New chapel to be erected at Shrine

This sketch by the achitect, Claude Gagnier, gives a good idea of the summer chapel to be erected at the Notre Dame de Lourdes Shrine on the Brownsburg Road. Work on the project will start this month. The chapel, 144 feet long, 52 feet wide, with a 125 feet spread in the transept, will seat 1,000 pilgrims. The building will be ready for the Feast of the Assumption, on August 15 next.

Richelieu Club harness event at Lachute Fair

Reporting at the Richelieu Club meeting last week, Roger Lagarde, chairman of the swimming pool committee, stated that if construction were started between the 15th and 25th of May, the pool should be ready by the end of June, at the start of the school holidays. Finishing touches are now being made to the details of this project and it is reasonably certain the swimming pool will materialize this spring.

Forty-three of the 50 members were present. Plans were made for a sugar party at St. Antoine des Laurentides on April 12; and it is also planned to stage an afternoon program of harness racing June 17 at the exhibition grounds as a feature of Lachute Spring Fair.

In addition, the annual Richelieu harness event and charity program will be held Saturday, August 19, at the exhibition grounds. Prizes for the drawing this year will be an automatic washer and dryer, with a boy's and a girl's bicycle as door prizes. Rolland Menard, in charge of details for this event, reported on progress of the committees involved.

The meeting was chaired by the president, Yvanhoe Chevrier, and Paul-Emile Barbeau gave the impromptu speech, on responsibilities incurred in Richelieu membership.

Quebec provincial plowing match '61 at Melbourne

The 1961 Quebec provincial plowing match will be staged next fall near Melbourne, in Richmond County — it was announced at a recent meeting of the Quebec Provincial Plowmen's Association in the Town of Mount Royal. The proposed dates are September 14-15.

Last year's championship match was held at Macdonald College.

It was also announced that Canada's team to the world plowing championships, to be held near Paris, France, on September 30 and October 1 this year, will include William Dixon, of Brampton, Ont., and Albert Raymond, of St. Benoit (Co. Deux Montagnes), Que.

A new constitution and charter for the Quebec Provincial Plowmen's Association was accepted.

Cancer Crusade launched with canvass of stores, industries

Jim McOuat, chairman of the Argenteuil committee for the Canadian Cancer Campaign, announces that a record number have volunteered to help in the many jobs that need to be done in this community during the April educational and fund-raising drive. "It is impossible to name all the volunteers in this campaign," said Mr. McOuat, "but their help is greatly appreciated."

"Because cancer eventually strikes two out of three families," Jim McOuat stresses, "there is urgent need for everyone to do his share to combat a disease which last year took the lives of nearly 25,000 Canadians.

"Here in Argenteuil we can help save lives by serving as volunteers, by contributing our money, or by doing both. Volunteers will not only ring doorbells to collect funds, but will leave in each home leaflets which could save the life of some member of the family. This free education material stresses the value of annual health check-ups and the importance of learning the seven danger signals."

Jim McOuat points out the fact that some 8,000 men, women and children die needlessly of cancer every year simply because they do not see their doctors in time. "Our volunteers will urge every adult in every household to get a health checkup regularly," he said, "and they will also ask for a cheque to help the Canadian Cancer Society fight cancer through research, education and service.

"Let's all join together to surpass our efforts of last year, by giving more, and working harder, in the 1961 Cancer Crusade. Several thousand Canadians now living have been cured of cancer. Our objective is to help save more lives, and to support the research that will one day find a solution to the cancer problem," Mr. McOuat concluded, in an informal pep-talk on this campaign.

Premier Lesage appoints four to cabinet offices

QUEBEC THIS WEEK

By Leo Leblanc, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec (CP) — A cabinet shuffle in which Premier Jean Lesage filled four new Provincial Government portfolios held the news spotlight at the start of the Legislature's Easter recess.

Only one new figure was involved in the changes, as ministers already in the cabinet were named to head four new departments that came into being April 1. He is Rene St. Pierre, Liberal member for St. Hyacinthe, who took over the Public Works Department from René Levesque, former minister of Public Works and of Hydraulic Resources.

Mr. Levesque took over the Natural Resources Department, which combines the former Mines and Hydraulic Resources Departments.

Former Mines Minister Paul Earl was named to the new Revenue Department, formerly a branch of the Finance Department.

Mr. Lesage retained for himself the new Federal-Provincial Affairs Department and assigned the new Cultural Affairs Department to Attorney-General Georges Lapalme.

The Natural Resources Department is expected to figure prominently in implementing the Liberals' election promise last summer to draw up a master plan for the province's economic development.

Mr. Levesque, former journalist and CBC commentator, is a graduate lawyer but has never practised his profession.

Mr. Lapalme, who retains his function as Attorney-General in addition to Cultural Affairs, is a well-read enthusiast of the arts.

Stimulation of the arts and extension of French culture in Canada were two other election promises.

Mr. Lesage, who also holds the Finance portfolio, is a former federal Northern Affairs minister. One of his election promises was to clarify relations between Ottawa and Quebec and stimulate interprovincial contacts within the scope of the constitution.

Another government step to implement the pledge to plan economic development was the establishment last autumn of an Economic Guidance Council, an advisory body reporting to the premier.

At the Federal-Provincial fiscal conference last fall, Mr. Lesage said Quebec would continue in cost-sharing programs until ways were worked-out for the provinces to get out without losing a cent. After the conference, Mr. Lesage organized a meeting of the 10 provinces at Quebec to discuss general affairs. It was the first fully attended meeting of its kind.

Most ministers are on Easter vacations until April 11.

Officers named for B'burg Club

Brownsburg — At the annual meeting of the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club, held on March 29, Ken Stewart and Mander Gardiner were elected by acclamation as president and vice-president, respectively.

The Board of Directors for the year will be: William Brown, William R. Dimock, Marc Diotte, Mrs. Jeannine Dunlop, Miss Jean Elliott, Bernard J. Golphin, Thomas R. Goldthorpe, Robert Sugden, Vernon Yamasaki, William Hamilton, Carl Clausen, Jr.

For the 33rd consecutive year, Sidney Stilwell will retain his post as secretary-treasurer.

It was with considerable regret that those present accepted John Duncan's resignation, as he has been president for the past five years and on the Board for about 25 years. His many years of experience, both as an executive and as a top-notch participant in club activities, were a credit to the excellent manner in which he served this club.

Four men injured as car hurtles down embankment

Four persons were injured Saturday afternoon when the car in which they were driving swerved out of control on "The Hill", between St. Andrews East and Carillon, and dropped over a 40-foot embankment crashing into a house owned and occupied by Baron E. H. Falkenhausen, causing an estimated $1,000 property damage. The car, a 1958-model sedan, was demolished.

Injured in the mishap was the driver, André Campeau, 29, of Ville LaSalle, who was treated at the Providence Hospital for chest and internal injuries. Leopold Campeau, 16, of Carillon, was treated for a severe cut on the head and facial lacerations, and was transferred to St. Jerome hospital.

Claude Campeau, 14, and Gilles Castonguay, 18, of Carillon, were treated for cuts, bruises and shock by Drs. A. L'Allier and M. Sylvestre; both received treatment at the scene of the accident.

The mishap was investigated by Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise.

Ballet recital at Hawkesbury this Saturday

The Classical Ballet Concert Group of Ottawa will present a matinee and evening performance at the Hawkesbury High School auditorium April 8.

The performances are the third in a series being given by the Concert Group in Canada and the United States.

The nine-member, semi-professional company, which has been given a grant from the Canada Council to assist it in its out-of-town performances in Canada, is directed by Madame Nesta Toumine. Some 18 additional dancers have been especially chosen to assist in the larger ballets to be performed, bringing the total company to some 26 dancers for the tour.

The evening program will include "Mozartiana", a ballet in the pure classical tradition which has been completely reworked this season and given new costumes, and "Nutcracker, Act II" as well as "Gymnopedies", "Ballet Miniature", "Les Valses" and the Pas de Deux from "The Seasons".

For the matinee performance the Concert Group will open with a ballet demonstration designed to give young people an insight into ballet technique. In addition there will be the "Don Quixote Pas de Deux" and "Nutcracker Act II".

In addition to their Hawkesbury appearance, the Classical Ballet Concert Group of Ottawa will be seen in Cornwall, Pembroke, Scranton and Erie, Pennsylvania, and Dayton, Ohio. Performances have already been given this season in Ottawa, Deep River and Buckingham, Que.

These concerts are sponsored by the Rotary Club of Hawkesbury, and the proceeds are for crippled children.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

As we saw last week in The Watchman, the Provincial Government finally got around to publishing the fishing do's and don'ts. It seems, to a lot of us, that the Province could do a lot better than this. It is true that most of us don't go fishing during the winter, but some do, and in a couple of cases some queer things have happened regarding the '61 licenses. I've often wondered just why we manage to be so late in getting any required permits. Other provinces have them months before they are actually needed.

I will give them credit, though, for imposing a total ban on the sale of minnows in the province. A good piece of legislation, that has been needed for years. There must have been rugged opposition to this, especially from those who make a very good thing from the sale of this bait.

Birds by the thousands are with us now. From all the books regarding their migratory habits, some of them should not be arriving for a long time yet. This morning we saw a number of black-and-white warblers. About 20 of them, so no mistake could be made in the identification. These birds are not supposed to be in evidence until the beginning of May. Dozens of different breeds can be seen, in the same category. Red-wing blackbirds are now making the air tuneful with their O-Kee-Lee, one of the nicest sounds to hear after a long winter. Purple finch are also numerous. Naturally, the crows are getting bolder, and it won't be too long before they start getting at the smaller birds' nests.

Don't forget a little bread, and maybe some meat scraps, thrown out for the birds, will give them that much more sustenance during the cold nights.

The stores in Montreal are displaying fishing tackle in a great way. I'm surprised some of our stores are not making more of this seasonal display.

A new type of spinner seen has a plastic blade. How this will work I don't know, but being fairly light, it should turn very well. I haven't seen any spoons made of this material, but there must be some. The objection to these would be the light weight, I think, though there must be a way to increase the weight without adding to the size. I noticed a couple of stores that were playing on the youngster and his fishing. I liked this — for thus a future conservationist is born.

Once again we will personally be missing the summer fishing around this district. We will be located at Lake Ashuanipi in Labrador until early October — some 200 miles northwest of Seven Islands by air, with some good fishing, Grays, Ouananiche, Speckled, Graylings and Northern Pike. Going up there as Chief Guide for the Frontier Fishing Club, should be a terrific experience for both of us. Mail should not be a problem, so I'm hoping to keep on with the column during this time. Maybe pictures could be arranged too.

Dyed ducklings are once more being shown in Montreal. Not as common as in former years, it still is a sickening sight to see these little creatures penned up, just waiting for their doom at the hands of young and affectionate youngsters. I thought that a law had been passed prohibiting this, but evidently not. . . . True, we are not snow-white in cases of cruelty, but at least we don't have this in our town.

For the early fisherman, a couple of tips that may help you get a few trout.

The fly fisherman will have good luck with any type of nymph, and if a little trouble shows up in having it sink, soak it well in mud and water. If this doesn't work, use a very small piece of fine wire on the barb of the hook. At this time don't forget, the finer your leaders the better the action of the lure.

For the spinning man, use small spinners with split shot ahead of the blades. Don't try to hit a half-mile away with it, as that is just about the hardest way to fish a spinner that I know of. Forget distance, and you will get the fish.

The worm-bait fisherman can get away from the heavy sinkers and use the split shot, letting it drift down with the current. Good results can be expected with this. The same thing applies to your hooks. Small and still smaller, if you can get them. Early season fishing is tough, so try everything. Don't forget crawfish, either.

Some of the local residents have started cleaning up their boats — not to say anything about motors. One of the motors has not been used for a couple of years; unfortunately the gas had not all been drained out, and it has jelled or gummed everything up. It will take a complete overhaul to get this back into shape, and unless you are an expert at this sort of thing, you should leave it alone until you can get it serviced. I also saw a fibreglass boat left out all winter with a very flimsy covering. Too bad to spoil the looks of an expensive article like this by using odds and ends of coverings. I know a lot of us have been of the opinion that fibreglass does not need any care. In this case the whole inside has peeled, and by rubbing your hand over the boat it lifts up just as though it were paper.

Again the garbage hound strikes. All the ditches and cleared spots along the roads can be seen cluttered up with junk. Right beside Black's Bridge, there's an unsightly mess. Fortunately, the water is open around the dam so that the junk can't be seen there, but outside of town it sure is one mess. I know this is not the responsibility of the Town, but it is up to the Parish! So how about it?

Just got a call from George Jackson, who told me I was "all wet" about the deer around Dunany. He saw nine or ten of them in a certain spot he knows. I am more than pleased to yield to George in this matter.

Also, some information on the North River. Today (Friday) it is free of ice up to McLean's camps, so it shouldn't be too long before it is all cleared. I also noticed some human tracks on the ice; they might have been made during the winter, but don't let anything happen as tragic as the recent incident at Carillon.

One win, one loss for Brownsburg in finals

Brownsburg — In the first game of the Quebec-Ontario Hockey League finals, the Bombers defeated Buckingham 9-6 before a crowd of over 400, in the 'Burg.

On Sunday, however, the 'Burg played one of their poorer games of the season, dropping the game 4-2. Scorers for the Bombers were Mel Tomalty and André Pilon. With a minute to go and the Bombers down 3-2, Buddy Racine left the nets and within seconds Buckingham put the puck between the posts, making it 4-2.

The next two games will be played in Buckingham, on Wednesday, April 5, and Sunday, April 9. The following game will be held in Brownsburg, with the date to be decided later. (No game will be played when an N.H.L. game is on TV.)

Top bowler to date

scored a 282 single at the Bolodrome recently, for the high record in league games this year. (J.-Pierre Bélisle, record-holder, rolled a 283 single last year.) Bud holds the record single high score in both leagues this year — 247 in the Men's Commercial and 282 in the Mixed Commercial.

JIM DUNCAN

who bowled a triple of 577 last week in the Men's Commercial League. . . . Jim Duncan had maintained an average of 150 to this point. On the same evening he rolled a 539 triple in another contest.

Dangerous habit

A motorist sometimes attempts to overtake another vehicle just when he is about to approach a railroad crossing. This reckless manoeuvre often results in a tragic accident, as the visibility of the other driver is obstructed at the time when he needs it most. Such haste is unwarranted, and constitutes a grave hazard. Moreover, overtaking near a level crossing or an intersection is prohibited by law and, in addition to the danger, the offender is liable to a heavy fine for such action.

This was the closest race in many years of the league's operation, as a single point separated each of the first five teams. The playoffs start next Monday, and the line-up is as follows:

7.15 p.m. —
Teenagers vs. St. Andrews (B)
Redwings vs. St. Davids (B)
All Stars vs. Maple Leafs (B)

8.15, p.m. —
Bluebirds vs. Thistles (B)

DEER TOLL

Lindsay, Ont. (CP) — Eighty-two deer and three moose were killed in this area last year by means other than hunting — 39 were killed by cars, 14 by dogs, 14 by poachers, eight by wolves, three by drowning, two by trains, one by a wire fence, and one by unknown causes. The three moose were drowned.

Questions at conference of Quebec Outfitters

The 15th annual convention of the Quebec Outfitters Assocation is to be held April 10-13 at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal. Questions will be discussed of vital interest to all anglers and hunters in the province, roughly well over 800,000 people. And as indication of the importance of these matters it is estimated that these anglers and hunters, together with tourist visitors, contribute upwards of $150,000,000 annually to the economy of the province.

Keenly interested in the preservation for reasonable human use of Quebec's fish and game, for the very good reason that in these resources lie their livelihood, these outfitters have some excellent ideas as to what should be done to correct some adverse conditions.

There will be arguments pro and con the "Buck Law", licensing of guides, sale, transportation and use of minnows, living or dead, and many other vital topics. The discussions will be informative and well worthwhile.

Annual invitation event in swing at Curling Club

The 13th Lachute Invitation Bonspiel is in full swing at the Curling Club with an entry of 144 rinks in all. This number is on a par with entries of the past few years.

Teams are entered from Montreal district, Ottawa district, Cornwall and even as far away as Morrisburg, Ontario. There are 32 different curling clubs represented.

The bonspiel is divided into eight sections. The team with the highest percentage in each section comes back to Lachute on Saturday, April 8, to stage a series of "knock-out" finals to declare a winner of the Quent Miller Cup.

To date, the winners declared in the completed sections are as follows:

Section 1 — E. H. Hodgson, skip of Hudson Curling Club, 75%.

Section 2 — Shirley McKyes, skip of Pointe Claire Curling Club, 93.7%.

Section 3 — Mel M. Stonehouse, Ottawa Hunt Club, 88.2%.

Section 4 — Arnie Butterworth, Ottawa Curling Club, 80%.

Section 5 — Syd Drew, Lachute Curling Club, 76.9%.

Sections 6, 7, and 8 have not yet been completed.

Many fine games have been played, and the ice has been declared in very good shape.

Date changed for meeting of Arg'tl Fishing Assocn.

The general meeting of the Argenteuil Fishing Association, previously announced for April 12, has been postponed to Monday, April 17, at 8 p.m. in the Windsor Hotel, Lachute.

An interesting program is being prepared, with an authoritative speaker and an outdoors film. The 1961 fishing contest will also be discussed.

Any wishing to join this group and further the interests of conservation and good fishing in the area, are asked to telephone LO 2-2256 for information. The local association has been officially chartered by the Federation of Fish and Game Clubs of the Province of Quebec.

The pollution problem

"FLOW GENTLY, sweet Afton, among thy green braes" . . . Anyone who has gone to public school in Canada should be familiar with the melody and words of the famed Robert Burns' poem.

But it turns out that the Afton isn't so sweet after all. In fact, it smells rather badly and it's polluted with garbage! The situation has got so bad that police have established night patrols to trap persons who dump trash into the river.

We shouldn't, however, be too quick to criticize the Scots for destroying the delightful image built up by the old song. We've been guilty of pollution ourselves.

Canada boasts that it has half the world's fresh water within its boundaries. Perhaps we've got too much of it, because we seem to take it for granted.

Streams that once abounded with fish have in many cases been ruined by waste and refuse. Sewage and discharge from ships have made swimming impossible in some parts of the Great Lakes.

Experts from Canada and the United States are currently studying the problems of preventing pollution of bodies of water shared by the two nations.

Scientists have been working in Lake Ontario for several years aboard a former naval vessel seeking information on which to base anti-pollution programs of the future.

Industries which a few years ago thought little of dumping chemical wastes into rivers and lakes are co-operating in the program to keep them from being turned into filthy and dangerous slop basins.

But we've got a long way to go before we can be satisfied that we're doing all we can to preserve the natural beauties of our waterways.

As individuals, we can be more careful not to add to the pollution. But it's important that we take a personal interest in what our government is doing to solve the problem.

Public opinion is a powerful weapon when its force is brought to bear on the lawmakers, industrial concerns and others who can make major contributions to the fight against pollution.

Our lakes and rivers represent one of our biggest tourist attractions and it would be a shame to see them ruined in the way that the Afton has been.

No truck with Hoffa

LIKE A DEMAGOGUE of ancient and Imperial Rome, James R. Hoffa, caesar of all U.S. teamsters, swept into his Canadian satrapy recently to speak to the captains and lieutenants of Canadian teamsterdom — says The Financial Post in an editorial.

Cheer after wild cheer rang out as he promised to personally lead the Canadian teamsters to wage parity with their U.S. cousins. Indeed, in the grand tradition of a Roman proconsul, he provided circus and promised bread.

Now that the heady excitement of it all is over, it's devoutly to be hoped that the Canadian teamsters decide to run their own show, The Financial Post declares, continuing: "Responsible Canadian teamsters, like all thoughtful Canadians, know his idea that Canadian truckers should be paid the same as U.S. truckers is so far removed from the economic facts of life in this country that it is bound to do the Canadian teamsters more harm than good.

"His promise to personally lead the Canadian truckers into contract negotiation is an unwanted intervention in Canadian affairs. It places Canadian teamsters in a subservient position and perpetuates the idea that Canadian unions are controlled by U.S. labor bosses. It is also clear that Hoffa's move is an early manoeuvre in a campaign to open war on the CLC. He wants, plainly, to take over 'everything that moves on the North American continent'."

If peace broke out!

AN OPINION the communists have kept passing around so steadily that many who are not communists believe it, is that the economies of Western countries would fall apart if peace broke out, or even if serious measures of disarmament were attained. Disarmament is so vital to peace that this fallacy of ruin must be cleared up. Doubtless there would be shocks felt in the West and in the communist countries if manufacture for war were to cease, especially if the wonderful happening were speedy; but, far from ruining either the capitalist or communist countries, peace would open attractive avenues indeed for humankind. There would still be great battles for the natural belligerence of man to thrive on, but these would be battles against ignorance, hunger, disease and the like.

That capitalist economies can flourish without arms to make, is clearly shown by those countries that were forced to manufacture only for peace after the second world war. The people of these lands were fortunate in this respect, that they did not have to expend large amounts of their national treasure on weapons.

It is to be hoped, however faintly, that governments in the West are planning ahead, on the chance that peace may indeed break out. What they will have quickly to do, should this great good come, is to reduce taxation at the same pace as they reduce the manufacture of arms. Those who go around innocently peddling the communist talk of ruin, would be better employed helping to devise measures for switching the economy to peaceful pursuits and so modifying any shocks occasioned by turning the economy full on to the betterment of mankind.

Behind the communist talk, of course, is the fear that they, rather than the West, would have the most trouble if peace broke out. For instance, there would no longer be any excuse for keeping the good things of life from the Russian people. With the bogey of war gone, the competition between communism and capitalism would be more and more centred on unrestricted philosophy and on education that really leads out rather than being channelled, as in the Societ today. Travel would increase in easier times, even including travel out of communist lands. Eventually the news would get around that the economy that operated most effectively for the common citizen in peace was the economy where ordinary people were allowed to think without restriction and to possess things of their own.

The flapper look

THE MOST interesting news from the mysterious world of women's fashions is that the flapper look is supposed to be coming back. Reports from Paris talk of dresses with narrow hips and flat-chested looks with practically no waistline and snug-fitting cloche hats.

Folk who were around during the jazz age of the 1920's will remember the loose-fitting sashes hanging about the hips, those long, dangling strings of beads and the T-strap shoes.

It's always difficult to determine whether a particular fashion trend will really catch on. It's often when women protest the loudest that they really fall for the style edicts laid down by the Paris fashion houses.

Remember the reaction to Dior's New Look of 1947? Many women who said they'd never wear those long dresses were soon decked out in drooping hemlines that concealed their pretty knees.

Whatever happens to the flapper look, however, several things seem fairly certain. . . . It won't be quite the same as it was the first time around. Styles never quite repeat themselves. No one wants to look really old-fashioned and so the couturiers are likely to modify the flapper look to give it a modern, up-to-date appearance.

And it's hardly likely that we'll recapture the free-and-easy spirit of the flapper era, when fortunes were made overnight and people lived it up with little thought of what tomorrow might bring. Our irrepressible optimism was largely snuffed out by the Depression and the Secord World War. We still have fun today, but there's always the nagging fear of a future complicated by international tensions and the threat of an H-bomb war. We may soon see a man sent into space and there will be a world-wide reaction to the event, but it won't be quite the same as the unbridled jubilation that greeted Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic.

Yes, the flapper look may be coming back but it will be only a nostalgic reflection of an era that has passed into history.

THE SEED CATALOGUE

Each Springtime I am fired with a yen to do some deeds
That mainly are inspired by a Catalogue of Seeds —
This Spring is no exception, so in my easy chair
With a newly sharpened pencil
my garden I prepare.

There were a lot of reasons why past crops had to die,
For that was caused by seasons too cold, too hot, too dry.
This year will be a honey,
for Spring is here at last.
I'll make a lot of money —
my stuff will grow so fast!

I'll make the neighbors jealous;
they'll watch my garden grow,
And lots of City Fellows will offer me their dough
For products of my beanstalk, my cabbage, corn and kale,
My celery and green stock — they'll buy it by the bale!

"Gigantics" and "Colossals"
the catalogue says here.
None of those shrivelled fossils that I dug up last year!
Last year I made an error,
I specialized on corn
And worked like holy terror till I was tired and worn.

I seeded and I weeded and fired at the crows.
I bought the things I needed, like shovels, rakes and hoes.
Then one night in September, beneath the Harvest Moon
I vividly remember,
there came a fat raccoon.

He called in all his neighbors,
they chewed off every ear
And nullified the labors on which I'd spent a year.
With catalogue and pencil,
my list is now complete.
By using common sense, I'll have much more than I can eat.

They're all arranged by numbers —
Peas, Turnips, Beans & Squash
Beets, Carrots and Cucumbers, and early Corn, by gosh!
I'll have a lot left over,
enough to feed a hog —
Have you seen the pretty cover of the new Seed Catalogue?

Be seein' ya!

Will 'definitely do something' on pollution

Quebec (CP) — A Government official said that Quebec Government is definitely going to do something to combat water pollution in the province, but just what is not yet definite.

There was talk that a board or commission to watch over the province's waters will be created, probably during the current session of the Legislature.

Mines Minister Earl told a delegation two weeks ago he felt the Government should establish a commission to deal with water pollution. He said Dr. C. A. Kirkland, minister without portfolio, was already studying water pollution problems.

The statement was in reply to a delegation from the Provincial Chamber of Commerce and a commitee of provincial social clubs.

Of Many Things

TOO MANY VICTORIES?

"What Labor is chiefly suffering from today is too many victories," writes Henry Hazlitt in a Newsweek article. "It is no mere coincidence," he continues, "that unemployment now is highest in lines in which wage rates are highest. As compared with average wages of $2.30 an hour in all manufacturing industries, wages in automobile plants are $2.87 an hour, in steel mills $3.02, in bituminous coal mines $3.27."

What appears to be happening, however, is that unions are gaining more and more money for fewer and fewer workers, working fewer and fewer hours. In an effort to help those who are employed, the various governments pump more and more money into the country's economic system. Because this causes inflation, the unions demand a further increase in wages and the process begins all over again.

Says Hazlitt, "There is a perpetual and increasingly desperate race between the printing press and the union demands."

Can this process go on and on? Possibly, as a process, it can continue for some years, because those who inaugurate these wage drives are relatively free from the results. Rank and file union members, however, do suffer. First and most noticeably, they suffer from lay-offs, when business finds it difficult to sell the goods produced at such high cost. Second — and less obviously — they suffer along with the rest of us from the general slow down in the economy, the higher prices, the enormous tax rates which must be imposed on those working to support the many unemployed.

Eventually, rank and file union members will demand changes in the policies being followed by their leaders. As yet they do not seem to understand what is happening to them.

Hit most painfully are the old age pensioners, or retired persons living on dollars earned when dollars were worth much more. Their dollars have been cut in half by our inflated prices!

If this is true, why is nothing done about it? Obviously, governments fear the power of union labor and consider it politically dangerous to oppose their demands. Companies are unable or unwilling to resist the unions, because one by one they can be struck or slowed down. Ordinary citizens often refrain from criticizing unions for fear of being called reactionaries or anti-labor fanatics.

What's to come of it all? Who knows? Whatever does happen, ten to one it will be blamed on business.

23-MILE WATER CONDUIT

When Denver, Colo., had a water problem it had to be solved in an unusual way. A $50,000,000 tunnel, drilled 23 miles through the Rocky Mountains under the 14,000 foot Continental Divide, will bring 14 billion gallons of water daily to the city, starting in 1962. One section of the tunnel, 9.8 miles in length, is probably the longest in the world ever driven from a single heading — reports Reader's Digest.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

"Yes, I always vote for the man, not the party," she said.

"Sure you do. Not how good a member he would be, but how handsome you think he is, the clothes he wears and how he gets his hair cut."

"Mmmm, well . . . " she said.

"All women do," I suggested. "That's why the country's in such a mess. And . . . "

"And I know, you're going to say that's the reason why women never should have been allowed to vote."

"You said it. I didn't."

"Read your mind, though."

"Maybe a few lines of it," I muttered. "Don't you agree? Women vote on personality."

She pursed her lips faintly, as though to say: "Why argue?" The nicest women usually refuse to let themselves be drawn into the battle of the sexes, even in fun. They know how futile it is — a debate between Martians and Venusians, without interpreters.

"I vote for the man," she said.

"Shouldn't you strike a balance between the two?" I suggested.

"But voting the party right or wrong is more a male fault," I said, presenting her side of the argument — as she had expected me to do, I think. But she did not come to my aid. She merely looked at me tolerantly, to see what I was going to say next.

"The party vote can elect good men, and it also elects men who richly deserve to stay in private life," I said. "For example, X." And I mentioned a name.

"Anyone who would vote for a person with a name like that needs to have his head examined," she said.

"What has his name got to do with it? He didn't christen himself. Ah, female logic," I mumbled.

"That just isn't the kind of name that deserves to be elected," she said with an air of finality. And she wouldn't add any more to the subject, except a smile.

When it comes down to a decision, that's the way elections really are settled. And for all I know, it's the best way.

Late Mrs. H. P. Fuller Was Member of Pioneer Family Here

The funeral of a former Argenteuil resident, Mrs. Catherine Mary Fuller, 73, was held at St. Paul's Anglican Church in North Battleford recently.

Mrs. Fuller was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell of Dalesville, the youngest of a family of 11 children, of which the three surviving members are — Mrs. George Murdoch, of Edmonton, Mrs. Jas. MacKenzie, of Lachute, and J. Arthur Campbell, of Brownsburg.

Mrs. Fuller was the widow of Harold Paul Fuller, a railway official, who died in 1948. Surviving are one son and three daughters, Sgt. H. C. Fuller, R.C.A.F., of Camp Petawawa; Mrs. Dorothy Cavaghan, of Kamloops; Mrs. Evelyn Ulmer, of North Battleford; Mrs. Ruth Russell, Saskatoon.

An honorary life member of the Women's Auxiliary, past president of the Canadian Club, identified closely for many years with church work among children of pre-school age, Mrs. Fuller had led an active life, not only in North Battleford, where she moved with her husband 23 years ago, but also in Winnipeg, Kamsack and The Pas, where they had lived previously.

She was identified closely with welcoming new settlers to the North Battleford district, as secretary of the local IODE immigration committee.

In her girlhood days, as a young teacher in the disastrous fire that claimed the lives of 17 pupils and two teachers in the Hochelaga Public School, Catherine Campbell, as she was then known, was credited with saving the lives of all the pupils of her class. She led them to safety. Her bravery was recognized by the government of Quebec in ceremonies highlighted by the presentation of a medal from the lieutenant-governor.

Tribute

The following tribute appeared in the North Battleford News at the time of her death:

"A Kindly Woman. — The death of Mrs. H. P. Fuller, a former social editor of the North Battleford News, came as a shock to many city and district people who had come to know this kindly woman as a friend.

"Mrs. Fuller was active in many city organizations, but as a representative of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire she played a particularly prominent part as she welcomed hundreds of people to Canadian Citizenship at the Court House in Battleford.

"She was a stout-hearted woman who had carried her responsibilities as a citizen with conviction. She led a life which those who follow can remember with pride. She did her share in making our community a good place in which to live."

Easter season inspires appeal for help in care of retarded children

Specially Contributed — Mrs. Geo. McGibbon

It is hoped at this Easter season, when we have had time to reflect on the Greatest Sacrifice of all time, that all may be more willing to sacrifice for others. For those who are willing, there are many opportunities. One I would single out at this time is the School for Retarded Children. . . .

I hear you say "I'm not a teacher." — You don't have to be. These children need love and understanding; they are not taught by their chronological age but rather by their mental skills, as well as a limited amount of academic skill.

Why don't you call Mrs. E. K. Wilson, who is in charge of voluntary helpers? If you feel that you would be of little help, go as a visitor. You will better understand the problems of the teacher and that of the parents, who have them for life. It is a cross that you could help make lighter. I wonder how many have offered to keep a retarded child for someone for one day, in order that the mother might have one day of freedom? Remember — that child might have been yours.

At present a study group, under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. F. Hanley, is studying surveys on retardation conducted by doctors, teachers and interested groups throughout the world, so that we may be better able to help in this work in our own community. Financial help would also be very much appreciated.

Mission enters Ontario; teen-agers flock to hear Tom Rees

Kingston, Ont. — The Tom Rees Mission is continuing to draw large crowds. Chalmers United Church in Ottawa was crowded to capacity. In Montreal two thousand people jammed a downtown church on Saturday night, whilst on Sunday night the Salvation Army Citadel was filled. In Lachute Arthur Rose, Anglican Associate Missioner of the party, reported a great rally. Here a good number received help. Brockville has shared in one of the great rallies; thirteen hundred people were in attendance.

There was a great reception in Kingston as the party met for luncheon with a total of 90 clergymen and laymen. Greetings were received from the Mayor of Kingston. Bicycle Safety Rules

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

How do bicycle accidents occur? In a few cases the poor condition of the road is a contributing factor. There may be so much sand that the brakes if suddenly applied, will cause the wheels to skid. The surface may have had a large unexpected hole, rut or bump, or the shoulder of the road may have been weakened or partly wasted away by heavy rains. Occasionally a freezing rain has made cycling on good pavement very hazardous or a heavy mist had made the visibility very low.

Sometimes the motorist or truck driver who crashed into the bicycle was almost completely responsible for an accident. But often the driver was unaware of a boy or girl on a bicycle because he did not see the white on the mud guard of the back wheel or the tail light.

Perhaps it was dusk and the cyclist was in dark clothes with no light garment which could be seen easily. Maybe it was completely dark and no headlight or flashlight was attached to the frame of the bicycle. Another condition might have been that the horn or warning bell of the bicycle was out of order. When the motorist should have heard a warning sound from the cyclist, there was no signal given!

If a boy or girl wants to own a bicycle, in most families it is a good plan for youngsters not only to help pay for such a major investment, but also be responsible for its care. He must know and obey sensible safety rules. If a child is too young to ride carefully — he is too young to ride!

The law holds parents answerable for the actions of their children. So it behooves mothers and fathers to know the traffic rules and make sure their youngsters are familiar with them.

Bicycles should be kept to the extreme right of the road, out of the way of other vehicles. When meeting traffic it is passed on the right, when overtaking traffic it is passed on the left. In a town or city the careful bicycle rider stops near the curb.

At an intersection, traffic coming from the right has the right-of-way. When a cyclist wants to turn left, he approaches the intersection as near to the centre of the highway as he can, and then makes the left turn as close to the intersection centre line as possible.

Stop signals must be obeyed and also a traffic officer's directions. The cyclist must raise one arm when stopping or slowing down to turn to show in which direction he is going. He should use his horn or bell as a warning signal only when necessary. It is not a nuisance device.

Each cyclist must get along "on his own steam". Hanging on to a moving truck or car is against the law and very dangerous. To "cut in" in front of a moving car is also asking for trouble, and is never permissable.

Quite a few accidents occur when several cyclists are together. They get talking and forget to keep their eyes and ears open for cars or trucks or pedestrians. Sometimes they ride three or four or five abreast. Single file is the rule for bicycles in heavy or medium traffic. A motorist often has difficulty in passing more than two bicycles riding alongside each other.

Adolescents sometimes start "clowning" or showing how smart they can be riding without their hands on the handle bars or their feet on the pedals. The highway is no place for stunt riding. Wobbling all over the road is a silly and dangerous practice. Keep in a straight line!

Bicycles are built for one rider and it is against the law in many areas to carry a passenger. Both youngsters might be badly hurt in a spill. Better be safe than sorry!

Veal well suited to springtime menu

Veal has much less fat than other meats and also has a milder, more delicate flavor. These factors alone would be reason enough for having veal on springtime dinner menus, even if it were not the peak season for this fine-textured meat.

Veal cuts that lend themselves readily to pan frying, broiling and baking are the various chops. There are 4 kinds — loin chops, rib chops, blade chops and shoulder chops. The Consumer Section at Ottawa points out that the bone in the chop is the key to its identity.

Loin chops may have a section of the backbone — which looks somewhat like a T-bone, and in fact, corresponds to T-bone steak in beef. The chop itself is fairly small.

Rib chops contain a rib bone along the inside edge which makes them easy to identify. The chop is triangular in shape, and corresponds to rib steak in beef.

Blade chops contain the thin shoulder blade bone. These chops are larger than either the loin or rib chops.

Shoulder chops contain the round shoulder bone as well as rib bones. They are usually quite oval in shape and more meaty than the blade chops.

Blade and shoulder chops are very suited to braising and frying, baking or braising. Loin and rib chops are best for frying.

Here are two delicious ways of serving veal chops. Note the use of seasonings in these recipes; they make perfect foils for the delicate flavor of the veal.

Braised Veal Chops

2 Pounds veal shoulder chops (½" thick), 3 tablespoons fat, 1 small onion (chopped), 2 teaspoons salt, few grains pepper, 1 teaspoon paprika, ¼ cup chili sauce, ¼ cup water, 1 cup tomato juice, ¼ cup grated old Cheddar cheese.

Cut veal into 5 or 6 serving-size pieces. Brown meat in fat over medium-high heat, 4 to 5 minutes each side. Add onion and brown lightly. Sprinkle meat with salt, pepper and paprika. Combine chili sauce, water and tomato juice, then add to pan. Cover closely and simmer, turning pieces once, until meat is tender, about 20 minutes each side. Sprinkle with grated cheese just before serving. Sufficient for 5 to 6 servings.

Curried Veal Chops

2 Pounds veal shoulder chops (½" thick), 4 tablespoons fat, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 tablespoon curry powder, 3 to 4 tablespoons flour, 1 can (10-oz.) consommé, 1¼ cups water.

Cut veal into 5 or 6 serving-size pieces. Brown meat in fat over medium-high heat, 4 to 5 minutes each side. Combine seasonings and sprinkle both sides of meat, then lightly sprinkle with flour. Brown again, about 2 minutes each side, adding more fat if necessary.

Remove meat from pan, add consommé and water and stir until smooth. Replace meat, cover closely and simmer, turning pieces once, until meat is tender, about 20 minutes each side. 5 to 6 servings.

Maple sponge

Ingredients — 1¼ cups milk, 1 tablespoon gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 2 egg yolks (beaten), ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup maple syrup, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons maple syrup, 2 tablespoons chopped nuts.

Heat milk in top of double boiler. Meanwhile, soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Stir a little of the hot milk into the beaten egg yolks, then combine with the remaining hot milk in double boiler. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add soaked gelatine and salt, stirring until dissolved. Gradually stir in the ⅓ cup maple syrup. Cool mixture until partially set — about 1 hour. Meanwhile, beat egg whites and nuts into the partially set gelatine mixture. Turn into a mould and chill until set — about 3 hours. — Makes six servings.

W. Institutes aid homemakers in West Indies

The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada is contributing to Unesco Gift Coupon Plan 400. This is a project to assist the women in the West Indies to raise the standard of living for their families.

The program of one of the groups, the Jamaica Federation of Women, consists first, and of most importance, in providing courses in homemaking in all its aspects and organizing community clubs to provide recreation and foster a community spirit. Handicrafts such as crocheting, knitting, Swedish darning, tatting, fabric painting, soft-toy making and straw work are taught. Clothing is provided for pre-school children under the Federation Clothing Scheme, with garments made by Federation members and other volunteer workers. Family life is being stressed through encouragement of stable marriages and parental responsibility. As one aid to this, wedding rings are purchased. Cultural development is not neglected. All centres are given free literature, including books and magazines. Concerts, lectures and discussion groups are encouraged in rural areas.

Girls' Clubs are active throughout Jamaica, providing physical training, lectures on health, social activities and teaching of handicrafts for adolescent girls.

To carry on this uplifting work, the first requirement is a Demonstration Centre and the second is the trained worker to take charge of the program. Each area is expected to do what they can to help themselves and Public Welfare funds are available to a limited degree. However, reports indicate that some phases of the work had to be curtailed due to lack of funds. This also means that the extension of this program cannot go forward. The Federated Women's Institutes of Canada realized the urgency of the situation and hopes that its gift will assist the women of the Caribbean to establish Rural Demonstration Centres with trained workers throughout their island countries.

The fund will soon be closed and returns from provincial Institutes are beginning to come in. These would indicate that the project will be well supported.

When on a shopping spree, a worthwhile purchase is one of the maple products such as syrup, sugar, butter or taffy.

Although they are more expensive than the synthetic maple products, they have more flavor and give better results when added to foods.

The consumer section of the federal agriculture department points out that these products are governed by strict legislation and the word "maple" means it is a pure product. All containers must carry the net weight, name and address of the manufacturer, packer or producer, and his license number if he operates interprovincially.

Every gallon of syrup should weigh at least 13 pounds, two ounces.

Keep Cool

Keep maple syrup in a cool, dry place. If opened, store the can in a refrigerator making sure the lid is air tight. Syrup that has been standing for several weeks should be boiled and bottled in sterilized pint sealers.

When mould appears on the surface of the syrup, skim off the surface and pour the rest into a large saucepan. Add three to four tablespoons water if the syrup becomes too thick. Boil a short while and skim the top of the liquid.

For moist maple butter keep in a closed container or covered with water. You can store maple taffy for one year if it is sealed in a tin can, cooled quickly and frozen immediately.

These maple products add zest to desserts, meats, vegetables, fruits and beverages such as milk and eggnogs.

Maple products are handy in almost any dish you cook. Glaze meats, vegetables, fruits; sweeten cottage pudding, ice cream and custards with a maple sauce, or add a dash of milk, eggnogs and whipped cream. Maple frostings, fillings and spreads are certain to brighten up even the dullest dish.

Maple Parfait

This recipe specifies: ½ cup maple syrup, 2 egg yolks well beaten, ½ pint to 1½ cups whipping cream and ¼ to ½ cup chopped nuts.

Measure maple syrup into saucepan, bring to a boil and boil vigorously for five minutes. Immediately pour syrup slowly into the beaten egg yolks, beating constantly until light and fluffy, about five minutes. Chill thoroughly. Beat cream until stiff, then fold whipped cream and nuts into egg mixture. Turn into freezing tray and freeze, without stirring, until firm, three to four hours. Yield: 6 servings.

If you substitute egg whites for egg yolks, follow the above directions beating the whites until fairly stiff before adding the syrup. Yield: 8 servings.

Fun afloat – Sightseeing by small boat

A new "backdoor" to Canada's scenic beauty is opened each year to thousands of Canadians who enjoy outboard boating. Travellers who have seen most of Canada's spots by the conventional means of automobile, airplane, bus or train, have found a whole new world in exploring scenic beauty with the small boat — reports Johnson Motors Boating Clinic. Canada's scenic beauty by boat isn't reserved for the rugged terrain. Seeing Montreal or Quebec City or many of Canada's other large cities also is a thrill from the small boat, and this vantage point offers unusual photographic angles, too.

Fishing, water skiing, skin diving and a myriad other activities are still high among the reasons for Canada's trend toward boating, but the "backdoor" view to Canada's beauty is moving up fast as a primary reason for owning a small boat.

Shows indicate trends in boating

Although many Canadian lakes are still coated with ice, to the ardent boater — and would-be boater — this is the time of the year when summer's plans are made; new boats are purchased, and manufacturers of boats, motors and trailers vie with each other for the boating dollar at the various boat shows across the country.

The local dealers, Deacon Motor Sales, Lachute, are staging their show during the coming week, commencing Friday, April 7.

A barometer of the trends in boating each spring is the New York Boat Show, held early in January, and the Toronto and Vancouver shows in February. This year's shows were the largest ever, from the standpoint of manufacturer and public participation. Once again trends in boating were clearly apparent, and an observer would most likely come up with the following conclusions:

Most interest was shown in aluminum boats this year, since manufacturers have made them more appealing in design and color.

Boats with high tail fins and other radical designs did not impress the boating public as much as previously. A keen awareness of the functional and safety features was predominant.

Because more people know about boats now than they have in previous years, they are more conscious of the ride-ability of boats. There was more "hull thumping", indicating that riding qualities are more important than speed to this season's boat buyer, who wants a boat that will perform well at all speeds.

Day cruisers, as a family type boat, showed a noticeable rise in interest. Houseboat manufacturers were deluged with interested spectators, most of whom were looking for "do-it-yourself" ideas.

A tremendous number of post-war motors will be traded for new models this year and for the first time there will be sufficient stock to satisfy the family which wants to get into boating more economically.

With the high mortality rate of boat manufacturers and dealers last year, boating customers are returning to long-established firms, on which they can rely. It would appear that the boat buyer is looking for price first, then for quality and simplicity . . .

To sum up, it looks like a good year for boat and motor manufacturers. Sales on complete units should go up over last year, with greater interest shown in the complete rig of boat, motor and trailer, so that people can avoid the high cost of summer mooring and explore and fish various lakes, instead of being confined to one body of water.

To stimulate an interest in safety afloat, the All-Family Boat Shows, being held by Outboard Marine dealers across the country at this time, are offering special prizes to those who answer a specially prepared boating "safety quiz".

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Thousands of women have found my "tourette" the perfect change-of-pace week-end for themselves and their families. A tourette is a planned two- or three-day trip to some point of interest within 200 miles of home. Drive there by one route, spend the night at a motel or inn, return a different way.

Another suggestion is a one-day outing for those who can't spare an entire week-end. It's a fine idea, too.

Pick an interesting spot (historic site, natural wonder, scenic area) not more than 100 miles away. Map out a round-trip route you have not used before and allow time for a leisurely ride and stops along the way.

Start early and take a picnic lunch. You'll be amazed at the delicious and varied food that comes packaged for just such a jaunt. Take vacuum jugs with hot coffee and cold lemonade; a frying pan (to warm food over a small fire), paper plates and cups, picnic spoons, a can opener — and you're all set.

After the picnic, be sure your fire is thoroughly extinguished, and put the refuse in a waxed paper bag for disposal when you get home.

If you want to splurge, have dinner at a restaurant on the way home. The money you've saved with your picnic will help pay for a steak or lobster.

Watch for these weeks

Canadians, weary of the winter, may find comfort in good times to come, as encouraged by U.S. proclamations on ensuing days, weeks and months. We have (reports the Washington correspondent of The Financial Post) just finished "National Smile Week".

While March was also "National Please Be Seated Month", it isn't long until May and "National Let's Go Fishing Week". Later we'll have "National Barefoot Freedom Week". Of less general interest, but significant, will be "National Sour Cream Month" which comes in October, and "International Whale Watchers' Week" not long after.

Immigrants — case histories

— By C. J. Harris —

The London Sunday newspaper, "The People", has renewed its campaign of warning Britons against emigrating to Canada. The paper makes a point of finding persons who have tried living here and returned home dissatisfied; these case histories are then sensationalized with stories of no work, high living costs and mass starvation in Canada. Unfortunately, most of the paper's readers may not realize that its editors are grinding a political axe. The publication, staunch supporter of Britain's Labor Party and bitter foe of Macmillan's Conservative government, will go far afield to smear the word Tory. So lambasting Canada is considered a fair way of attacking Macmillan.

It would be akin to a miracle, of course, if some of our nearly 600,000 post-war British immigrants had not had a bad time here and gone home to bitterly blame the country. But these may be one-in-a-thousand and it is unfair to Canada that the other side of the case so rarely gets into print. By chance, on the week-end of the latest outburst by "The People" the Canadian Press picked up such a story from Kingston, Ontario. It concerns Douglas Henderson, a bricklayer who brought his family from Scotland to Canada in June of 1959. His most startling comparison concerns rents — formerly $40 a year, for a house, and now $85 a month for a furnished, five-room flat. "But," he adds, "it wasn't much of a house. It had outside plumbing and was a pokey wee place."

"At home," he says, "I was off work only a week or so during the winter months, but all I ever made was the equivalent of $25 a week. When I'm on a construction job now I make $108 a week and with what I can save, odd jobs in the winter and my unemployment insurance, we're still ahead. At home it took all my wages to pay for the food we ate and the roof over our heads. Since we've been in Canada we've been able to buy all kinds of things — a car, living room furniture, bunk beds for the boys' room, a TV set, and still save money. What's more, when we go to the supermarket, we can buy a week's supply of food instead of the bits and pieces we used to get in the Old Country, a half pound of marg, four apples, one pound of sugar."

Mr. Henderson did not expect to find Canada's streets paved with gold. A Canadian immigration officer in Glasgow warned him that construction work in Canada would be seasonal. "He told us," said Mr. Henderson, "that it would be strictly up to us whether we made out or not."

For newcomer or native Canadian that is the whole of the case.

SCOUTS ON THE INCREASE

Latest census figures show that Canada now has 291,852 Boy Scouts, as of December 31, 1960, an increase of 17,244 over the 1959 total. Wolf Cubs enrolled now total 157,028 an increase of 6,907; Boy Scouts 98,328, up by 7,628; Lone Scouts dropped from 400 to 330, a loss of 70; Sea Scouts increased by 64 to 2,277; Rover Scouts now number 4,149 (including 179 Rover Sea Scouts), a gain of 134. Boy members now total 262,112 which is 14,633 higher than the previous year's total, while adult leaders (all volunteers) increased by 2,581 to reach a new high total of 29-740.

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. — I am a carpenter and I built a house for myself. I hired my two sons as laborers; one is 24 years old and the other is 17. The elder son pays his board. May I give them unemployment insurance stamps?

A. — It seems unlikely that your sons were employed under contract of service (that is, under a genuine master and servant relationship) and unless this were the case they would not be insurable. The fact that you were building the house for your own use strongly suggests that the two sons were simply assisting in a joint family enterprise and were not employees under a contract of service.

Q. — I work as a cook in a camp, on a contract basis; I do all the purchasing and I am therefore not entitled to pay unemployment insurance stamps. My wife works with me. Is she entitled to stamps? If so, what is the procedure to follow? She paid 17 weekly contributions over the past three years. Last winter she collected seasonal benefits. Are her 17 contributions still valid? How many contributions will she need to qualify for further benefits?

A. — The Act specifically provides that a wife is not insurable when working for her husband. In this case, therefore, contributions are not payable for your wife.

The Bible Today

The Rev. F. J. Bedford, Bible Society Secretary for East Africa until his recent appointment as Assistant Secretary of the Bible Society in London, England, reported a most unusual experience during a last trip through his territory before leaving for England. During his extensive journey Mr. Bedford arrived in the heart of the Kabaka's Kingdom of Buganda, very late — in fact near midnight. There was a crowd of 500 people still waiting to welcome the visitors and they insisted that full meeting be held and a film shown. They dispersed after one o'clock in the morning, rejoicing at the news they had heard concerning the distribution of the Scriptures.

Mr. Bedford also attended the inauguration of the new Anglican Province of East Africa when he presented the new Archbishop, the most Reverend Leonard Beecher, with a Bible. Archbishop Beecher has been made one of the vice-presidents of the British and Foreign Bible Society in recognition of his aid and encouragement to the Society.

Mr. Bedford also addressed the 300 delegates attending the All-Africa Lutheran Conference at Antsirake, in Madagascar. No less than 28 African mother tongues were presented and in all of them either a Bible or a New Testament had been published by the Bible Society.

TOO MANY VISITORS

Alma, Que. — Too many people are visiting patients in Hotel Dieu Hospital here. The doctors and some patients have complained that rooms become more like recreation rooms than hospital rooms. Officials have asked visitors to be more thoughtful.

DEPORTED WOMAN LEAVES HER BABY

Deported from Canada, Mrs. Yuet Louie decided at the last minute to leave her Canadian-born son behind with her parents in Ottawa. She gave birth to the son while visiting on a non-immigrant visa. Above, she wipes a tear from her eye at Ottawa airport before flying to Hong Kong.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Ping, ping, spring, spring, sang the drip of clear sap as it hit the tin bucket that hung from a spile on the trunk of a great old maple tree. Though this heralded the most joyous season of the year, I was sad. Oh very, very sad, for it would be the last time this particular bush would yield its sweeter than sugar harvest. Next year it would echo to the sound of bulldozers and carpenters' hammers for it is to be "a new subdivision affording gracious country living within commuting distance of the city."

I was reminded of the first time I became aware of the fact maple syrup actually comes from trees. I was a prairie child born and bred and my early association with maple syrup was from a bottle. Then one day, when my first spring dawned in the rural area of an eastern Canadian province, I was taken to the summer residence of the late Sir Sam Hughes in the Haliburton highlands of Ontario.

Sir Sam was a colorful figure, of World War I, who won fame for the rapidity with which he booted recruits in the early months of that first world conflict. I mean that literally for equipment for those intrepid souls was hard come by. But Sir Sam, then only a commissioned officer, knew where to go for quick results. Back in his home town of Lindsay, Ont., there was a shoe manufacturing concern that became a byword among Canadian soldiers. Now non-existent, this company shod much of the army almost as fast as recruits signed up, and before the war ended Beal boots marched thousands of miles through the mud and slush of war-torn Europe.

How did I get all mixed up with boots when I started out to lament the demise of the sugar bush? Yes, of course, I commenced to relate my introduction to the process of extracting sap from the trees and boiling it down into clear brown syrup.

Actually I didn't see it happen that way on the shores of Eagle Lake. There was just the evidence of industry, a shed stacked roof high with literally hundreds of small tin buckets. Little tin funnels that looked like spigots and are called spiles rolled around on the floor. Outside, huge iron caldrons half turned over rusted beneath the tall trees. Stone boats, used to haul the syrup out of the bush, had been abandoned like a worn-out glove. Sugaring at Eagle Lake was as much a thing of the past as World War I and Beal boots.

My curiosity however, was very much alive. When we bought our small farm during the hungry thirties I discovered there was a small sugar maple on the property. I could hardly wait for the first spring. I scoured the library for information on tapping trees. When the first winds of March swept across our field I took my trusty drill in one hand, tin bucket and spile in the other and marched out to encourage nature to give of her bounty. Visions of pancakes swimming in my very own maple syrup spurred me on through knee-high drifts.

Each morning, I went out to gather the day's yield, usually about two tablespoonfuls. When I had collected nearly a quart I started boiling and skimming. The smell of the boiling sap in a small house was sickening. Directions simply said "boil and skim until clear." I ended up with little more than a tablespoonful of syrup and a bad case of the gags. I thought I could never face another pancake embellished with maple syrup.

A number of years later I was invited to a "sugaring off" on a nearby farm. I learned why my tree had not "given". There is a special place one must drill for sap on any sugar maple tree. It takes experience to find a large tap root above which the spile should be sunk into the tree's trunk. Older trees have spile scars so that it is easy to recognize where they should be placed about two feet from the ground.

Sugaring off was a family tradition in this farm home. Neighbors from near and far gathered each spring to watch the last kettle of sap bubble up and simmer down into a golden pool. We were all given pie plates and I soon found we were expected to fill them with snow. But before this happened we marched around the huge caldron poking another stick on the fire beneath, beating on our pie plates and singing lustily at the top of our voices. Syrup was then poured over the snow in our plates and we ate this delicacy between choruses. The evening ended with a square dance in the old farmhouse kitchen to put the finishing touches on this annual ritual to welcome spring.

Was this the hungry thirties? No, the fabulous fifties. At Eagle Lake? No, only 25 miles from Toronto. But as I said, bulldozers take over next spring. It was a sad song we all sang recently to the echo of the March wind sighing in the branches of a doomed maple bush.

Canada demonstrates successful venture in race harmony

An unheralded venture in racial fraternization is taking place quietly in about two score Canadian cities and towns — practically every city or town where there is a university or college, writes Leslie Wilson in The Financial Post. The venture is working so successfully as to astonish some of the professors and college administrators who are involved in it.

Some 3,200 students whose skin color is black, brown or yellow — at any rate, different from that of the majority of Canadians — are fitting very well into Canadian college life. These are students from the 100 or so countries, territories, colonies and former colonies around the globe which are usually described as "undeveloped". They come to this country for an education, not to learn how to "mix" with Canadian students. But the latter is an inevitable by-product of the former and the mixing process is an undoubted success.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Salt for Farm Animals

Salt (sodium chloride) is recognized by animal nutritionists and physiologists as a mineral of great importance which regulates the water content of the body tissues, keeps the blood stream at the proper osmotic pressure, and plays an indispensable part in respiration and digestion.

Dr. Bohstedt

Enough experiments have been conducted with all classes of farm animals to show that when salt is withheld, these animals react unfavorably. They show slower gains, lowered feed efficiency, and debilitated health.

A salt deficiency has repeatedly been incriminated as the cause of death. Many cases of depraved appetites, where cattle chew soil or wood or metal and where a mineral deficiency is suspected, amount to nothing more than a craving for salt.

As a constantly necessary ingredient of livestock rations, salt, whether fed mixed in feed or free choice, is the most logical carrier of trace minerals, certain anthelmintics, and other principles that are commonly referred to as "additives" in livestock rations.

The two expensive trace minerals, iodine and cobalt, have been proved definitely needed. The often helpful and less expensive trace minerals, manganese, copper, iron and zinc, along with iodine and cobalt, usually go together to make trace mineralized salt.

Work with manganese added to swine and cattle rations has not been entirely conclusive, but it has in a number of cases been beneficial.

In the sandy area of Central Wisconsin, corn has responded to copper additions to the fertilizer. Might not animals in such areas also respond favorably to copper additions?

Zinc has been effective as a preventive and treatment of parakeratosis in swine when fed at the rate of from 50 to 100 p.p.m. of the ration. Even where no definite mineral deficiencies have been identified, many stockmen feel safer by fortifying rations with these trace minerals so that, if there are subclinical deficiencies in their particular area, the added trace minerals serve as low cost insurance.

Question: How can cows in milking parlors be made to eat their grain in the few minutes that it takes to get them ready for milking and to milk them?

Answer: A coarse textured or wet mixture is eaten more quickly than one that is finely ground and dry. Cows have been found to prefer grain that is ground medium fine or gritty to one that is mealy, or floury fine. Pelleted grain in some tests has been eaten 25 percent faster than ground grain.

Bulk milk tanks

The use of farm bulk milk tanks, particularly on dairy farms catering to the fluid milk market, has developed over recent years, notes the Production and Marketing Branch of the Canada Department of Agriculture. The Toronto market has been served 100 per cent by this means for some time, and Edmonton now has the same status. In the Edmonton area 465 farms have acquired bulk tanks since 1956. It is claimed that the system reduces costs and enables a higher quality of milk to be delivered to the dairies.

Insecticides in corn borer control

Ottawa — DDT is still the best insecticide for corn borer control if the corn fodder is not fed to livestock, states H. B. Wressell of the Canada Department of Agriculture entomology laboratory at Chatham, Ont.

This control is safe for use on sweet corn for human consumption as the residue is on the plant, not on the kernels.

If husks and stalks are to be fed to livestock, Sevin, a carbamate insecticide, is satisfactory, though more costly than DDT.

Parathion is a powerful phosphate insecticide, but it must be applied oftener than DDT and is dangerous to handle without specialized equipment.

Growers who need a substitute for DDT may use Malathion with safety, although it doesn't control the borer so well as Parathion.

New oat variety

Ottawa — Glen, the oat variety recommended for Quebec in 1959, has proved suitable for most regions in the province, states F. M. Gauthier of the Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Ste. Anne de la Pocatiere. Glen yields well, has good grain quality and has medium resistance to disease and to lodging.

The variety was developed at Macdonald College from a cross between Ajax, giving adaptability and early maturity, and Roxton, giving the high yielding trait.

Glen straw is medium in length and strength but is not recommended where lodging is a problem. It is not as resistant to disease as Garry but is resistant to the more common races of stem rust and to a large number of races of crown rust. Since it is somewhat susceptible to smut, seed treatment is recommended.

Its resistance to shattering and its early maturity make Glen suitable for seeding with Parkland or York barley when mixed grain is desired.

Expropriated — still farming

Six years after their farms were expropriated to make way for the 275,000-acre Camp Gagetown in New Brunswick, 100 farm families appear to be getting along quite well.

A Canada Department of Agriculture sociologist who recently made another check with the families, said that the majority of them are still farming, but, he added, an increasing number have found non-farm employment within commuting distance of their farm homes.

This trend towards a combination of farm and non-farm work was first noticed when the families were interviewed four years ago. It apparently has continued.

Farmers who stuek to farming, especially those on larger farms, appear to be doing very well, he said.

Control of weeds in potato crop

Ottawa — Weeds in potatoes may be controlled better with herbicides than by regular cultivation, states the Canada Department of Agriculture's Dr. J. R. Hay. He said that dalapon applied early, at four pounds of the active ingredient per acre, controls annual grasses, and DNBP at three pounds controls the broadleaf weeds.

As one or two cultivations are usually required for maximum potato yields, the chemicals should be applied in bands only 10 to 12 inches wide on the tops of the rows, at the rate of 1.3 pounds of the active ingredient per acre for rows 30 to 36 inches apart. It is important that application should be made when the weed seedlings are just beginning to emerge, and before more than five per cent of the potatoes have emerged.

Care should/be taken when cultivating not to cover the treated bands with soil. At Ottawa, an early cultivation and slight ridging before emergence of potatoes and again at blossom time has given satisfactory control of weeds between the rows.

In Church-State Clash

Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski (top), ready for a showdown struggle, has hurled defiance in Warsaw at Poland's Communist "Caesars" in a heightening church-state struggle. His target was Wladyslaw Gomulka (bottom), first secretary of the Communist party in Poland, who charged the Church with following Vatican directives. The cardinal declared his instructions were "to let Poland act on its own."

SEGREGATING ITSELF . . .

Here is the Union of South Africa, which announced in London that it would withdraw from the British Commonwealth of Nations as of May 31, when it becomes a republic. Opposition of other Commonwealth governments to South Africa's policy of apartheid (racial segregation) is the reason.

Lachute Town petitioned to annex Brownsburg Road and hospital area

The annexation of a portion of Ayersville to be incorporated into the Town of Lachute was accepted in principle by the Lachute Town Council, at its regular session on Wednesday of last week. The meeting was chaired by Mayor Fernand Legault, and the full Council was in attendance.

Guy Belanger acted as spokesman for the group and presented a petition approved by approximately 80% of persons living in the area concerned, which comprises lots 724 and 725. The section is bounded by the East River, Lachute Town, and extends as far as the Shrine, including Providence Blvd., (Brownsburg Road), Laurier, Roy and Dupré Streets, and includes the new hospital. The petition asked that Lachute Town Council take the necessary steps to effect this annexation. Mr. Belanger pointed out that these residents were isolated by the river from the remainder of the Municipality of Ayersville and that they had to pass through Lachute to reach their municipal offices, etc.

Mayor Fernand Legault stated that he felt the Council as a whole was in favor of the annexation, which, he added, was a logical move, due to location of the area involved. Mr. Legault suggested the delegation continue its work, obtain the necessary signatures to give a clear majority both in numbers and valuation, and then once again approach Council, who would inform the Quebec Municipal Commission of the request and take the necessary action.

It may be noted that, although this measure has the approval of Lachute Council and the general support of proprietors in the northern area, it is vigorously opposed by Ayersville authorities, who have taken occasion to express their disapproval through the French newspaper L'Argenteuil.

It is also interesting to note that this question, and Ayersville's state of finances, are shaping up as main issues in the village mayoral contest, to take place next month.

Appointment of Dr. J. MacKimmie as joint-coroner

Official notice of his appointment as Joint District Coroner has been received by Dr. John C. MacKimmie from the Attorney General's Department at Quebec. The new appointee succeeds the late Dr. Jules Lafleur, who filled the office for many years conjointly with Dr. A. R. Côté, of Brownsburg. The coronership applies to the Judiciary District of Terrebonne, with jurisdiction in the Electoral District of Argenteuil. Dr. MacKimmie's official charge is dated March 24.

Dr. John C. MacKimmie

A native of the North River settlement here, Dr. MacKimmie was educated at Lachute High School, Macdonald College and McGill University. In addition to his degrees of B.Sc., M.D., C.M., he has taken post-graduate study in Anaesthesia.

Dr. MacKimmie is a commissioner of the Protestant School Board. He was also appointed plant physician of the J. C. Wilson Co. Ltd., succeeding the late Dr. F. W. FitzGerald.

Two policemen, other employees engaged by town

At its regular meeting last week, Lachute Town Council engaged four new employees, including an office clerk, a mechanic, and two policemen.

The office clerk is Gerard Lavoie, 23, a former teacher at Ayersville's Clement school. He replaces Gilles Dumais, who left his job several weeks ago. Mr. Lavoie has been engaged on a temporary basis for two weeks and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Yvette Raymond, expressed satisfaction with his work. The only other eligible applicant was Fabien Grossinger, who did not list his qualifications.

On a motion by Ald. Stanley Church, seconded by Ald. Lauréat Laurin, Roland Belair was engaged as municipal mechanic, at a salary of $80 a week. His duties are to include repairs and maintenance to all municipal equipment. He is to be responsible for all municipal tools and is to make inventory of all garage tools and equipment. Ald. Réal Morrissette suggested Mr. Belair's appointment.

Tom Williams, of Brownsburg, was engaged as a police constable on a full-time basis, while André-Jean Laurin, of Lachute, was engaged on a part-time basis. The motion was made by Ald. Linton W. Armstrong, chairman of the Police Committee, and seconded by Ald. Horace Lamarche.

Fatality at crossing — perennial auto hazard

Lucien Campeau, 37-year-old Chute à Blondeau resident, was pronounced dead at the scene of an accident late Saturday evening at Simon's Crossing, west of Lachute on Route 8. The driver of the car, Ronald Lajeunesse, 19, of Hawkesbury, Mrs. Campeau, and the victim's 15-year-old daughter, Lise, were all treated for shock at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, and were later released.

The car was headed towards Lachute and the driver apparently missed the curve, striking the ditch and the signal light-standard at the railway crossing. The victim of the fatality was seated in the rear of the 1949-model car, which was demolished. He is survived by his wife, one son and five daughters.

Dr. Marc Papineau was called to the scene; he pronounced the victim dead, and treated the other passengers. The mishap, which occurred at 11.45 p.m. Saturday, was investigated by Traffic Officers Gilles Lavigne and Sam Kille.

No date has been set for the inquest.

TOWN COUNCIL AFFAIRS —

Chamber of Commerce asks parking signs on Main Street

A delegation of Lachute Chamber of Commerce members presented a request to Council, asking that parking signs be erected in the centre of Main Street. The following parking hours were recommended:

Sixty-minute parking on Fridays from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The delegation also requested that 60-minute parking be allowed from the former fire station on Main Street west to the Recreation and Sports Centre — this to be on both sides of the street.

Chamber of Commerce spokesman Antoine Malaket urged that display-signs should advertise free parking facilities placed at the disposal of motorists by the Bank of Nova Scotia, the Bank of Montreal, Beaton's Pharmacy and J. Roger Lamarche.

Mr. Malaket was informed that changes to the traffic by-law were now under study and that the requests would be taken into consideration.

Various Council Business

Alex Deneault, a resident of Henry Street, requested that he might receive garbage collection service, adding he would also appreciate several street lights and a sidewalk.

Aristide St. Jacques was in attendance, and requested a refund of business tax he had paid, stating that his restaurant had been closed for several weeks. Mayor Legault informed him that, due to the by-law, a refund could not be granted.

Gilles Dumais, a former office clerk, requested that Council take action to rectify his unemployment insurance card so that he would be in a position to collect insurance. It was decided that the local office would be consulted in this matter.

Accounts totalling $16,234.53 were approved for payment. An account of Argenteuil Fuel Oils for the sum of $81.75 was held over for additional information.

Following receipt of tenders, it was decided by a divided vote to purchase all gasoline from Fairway Sales & Service Ltd., and all oil from Canadian Tire Corporation, this for a three-month period.

The People's Church was granted permission to hold a service in the Auditorium on May 22, the facilities being granted free of charge; and a donation, identical to that of last year, was given the Canadian Cancer Society.

Complaints from Mrs. Rene Clement, Robert Street, and Georges Raymond, Bellingham Street, concerning snow removal, were left in the hands of the roads committee for study and action.

A new radar speed detector was acquired for the police department, to replace the present electric speed-timer.

For Improvement of Bridge and Thoroughfares

It was unanimously decided to approach the Provincial Government relative to the reconstruction of Barron's Bridge; also to request an improvement to the road leading to St. Jerome and the Autoroute.

The possibilities of widening Main Street West, in the vicinity of Deacon Motor Sales, and Bethany Street, between Muir Bros. Service Station and the C.P.R. tracks, was also discussed.

Filtration Plans

Engineers Lorrain and Laliberté then presented preliminary plans for location of the proposed filtration plant; these were studied briefly. The meeting was then adjourned until Wednesday, April 12, at which time the plans and other information would be given detailed consideration.

Appreciation for long municipal service

Fitting recognition to two retired councillors of St. Jerusalem Parish was made with this presentation at the April meeting of the municipal council. Mayor E. W. Smith (left) is seen presenting suitably engraved entree dishes to ex-councillor Felix Touchette, who held office for 22 years, and ex-councillor Thos. Dwyer, who also served several terms in the council seat. The gifts were a token of public thanks for their devotion to the interests of the municipality.

Cancer talk at Lions Club

Appropriate to Cancer Prevention Month (April) was the theme at Lachute Lions Club, where Dr. Lyle A. Middleton gave a talk on this subject last week which was earnestly appreciated by the members.

A former Lachute boy, graduate of McGill, and a practitioner in New Hampshire for the past 30 years, Dr. Middleton is now re-established in his former haunts as an integral part of this community. He was introduced to the gathering by Lion Ian Gordon.

Cancer, said Dr. Middleton, is not new. Evidence of the disease appears in writings dating back 2,000 years. In commonplace terms, the speaker described the properties of normal cells which constitute the human body — their capability of growth and orderly replacement. Cancer, to the contrary, is cell growth uncontrolled and conforming to no logical pattern, setting up disturbances and obstruction. . . . What causes this headlong growth, is the big question still unanswered by medical research.

Heredity, nutrition, irritation — these are three of the associated factors. The speaker gave examples and some interesting findings on these influences. He also touched upon the symptoms, emphasizing that pain, the panic-producer, is not an early symptom of cancer. Outward indications enumerated by the speaker were — a lump or swelling that increases in size; a sore that does not heal; painless bleeding or discharge; persistent hoarseness or cough; change in bowl or bladder habits. . . . Cancer is not contagious.

True however, these symptoms may arise from other causes, and there is no point in fearing such indications to the point of cancerphobia. We must keep matters in their right perspective — realizing, for instance, that accidents are still a more vicious and undiscriminating killer than cancer.

Touching upon the remedies, Dr. Middleton stated that the surest measure was surgery — removal of the affected part. When this is impossible, radiation is the alternative; this treatment has prolonged and saved many lives. The third recourse is to drugs; and in the field of pharmacy, the speaker hinted at new and promising developments.

A question period followed, in which there was ample evidence this topic had commanded wrapt interest. A film on lung cancer and one of the earliest cures by surgery was shown by co-operation of Roger Gravel with the Ayers Ltd. projector. . . . Dr. Middleton was cordially thanked by Lion Donald M. Hay.

This enthusiastic meeting was chaired by President Dr. Eric Mongeon. Among sidelights of the agenda, the evening's topic gave an opportunity to urge support to the annual Cancer Crusade; this plea was voiced by Lion Royal Carriere, keyman in the financial appeal to business firms and industries in the current campaign.

$2,000 to Richelieu swimming pool

Lachute Municipal Council voted a $2,000 grant to the local Richelieu Club, to aid in construction of the proposed swimming pool in the Richelieu Park on Paquin Avenue. Richelieu members Bernard Gosselin and Roger Lagarde made the representation to Council, and were accompanied by a large delegation of the membership. The club requested a grant of $3,000, and a $1,000 donation was suggested by some Council members. However, Ald. Dr. Jean Paul Dorion made a motion to grant $2,000; this was seconded by Ald. Laureat Laurin. The main motion, for a $1,000 grant, by Ald. H. S. Church, was not seconded.

Mr. Gosselin recounted the history of this service club, pointing out that the playground purchased last year had been paid for, and now the $40,000 swimming pool was almost at the construction stage. The pool will be open days and evenings, and there will be a nominal membership fee to help defray expenses. The pool will require only one filling with water, as the water is re-filtered every six-hours.

Mayor Fernand Legault thanked the organization for the work they have accomplished in the past, adding that the Council was much in favor of the pool. "However, the money we have comes from you as taxpayers, and we have to be careful. The amount is up to the Council to decide."

Prior to the motions, Ald. Horace Lamarche, chairman of the Finance Committee, pointed out that the budget would not allow a grant of more than $1,000. Aldermen H. S. Church and Nelson Lepage voted against the $2,000 grant.

Restriction on straying dogs

Local residents are advised that, as of April 15, all dogs running at large will be picked up and a pound-fee charged for their board. This order will be in effect until June 1, after which time the dogs will be destroyed in accordance with the by-law.

Police and fire report given for month of March

The police and fire report, presented to Council by Ald. Linton Armstrong, commissioner for these departments, showed revenues of $930.95 listed by Police Chief A. J. Whiteway for the month of March. Traffic tickets (143) produced fines of $616.10.

There were 331 service calls received at police headquarters. Officers of the force investigated 17 traffic accidents and made five arrests. There were four persons injured, six fire calls requiring attendance of the police, two entries with theft, and nine other robberies.

The report from Fire Chief Donald MacCulloch enumerated the six fire calls answered during March. Four of these were in Lachute Town, one for a Quebec Roads Dept. car which caught fire in Ayersville, and one call in the Parish of St. Andrews, on R.R. 4, Lachute.

2nd Art exhibition announced at Centre Dramatique

Following the success achieved last spring by the Le Centre Dramatique in its first local art exhibition, Mr. Jean Laforest, director of the Fine Arts section of this enterprise (who, incidentally, has been directing a successful art class at the Centre's studio since January) is happy to announce that a second art show will be held, opening May 14, featuring local artists.

Jean Laforest

Along the same lines as last year, the exhibition will include paintings by amateur artists from Lachute and vicinity; the show will also group a certain number of pictures by professional artists well known in Montreal and throughout the country.

A special appeal is therefore made to all artists from Lachute and vicinity, since the primary aim of this exhibition is to present local talent to the local public.

Entries should be filed before the end of April, and works submitted at the Centre's studio (354 Main St., Lachute) on Fridays between 1.30 and 3.30 p.m. (i.e., at the time of the art classes held by Mr. Laforest). Exhibits will also be received on Saturdays, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. (There will be a nominal entry fee for each exhibit.)

Further information on this show will be gladly given by telephone (LEcture 7-3367).

Two-seat Council election coming up in Brownsburg

(Our District Correspondent)

Chief item on the agenda of the April 4 meeting of Brownsburg Council concerned the coming municipal election. Following the procedure set up last year, two councillors whose names were drawn from a hat will retire at the May 1 meeting. . . . The lot fell to Councillors Roger Raymond and Georges Therrien, both of whom have served for a number of years. The two men are eligible to run for office again, and both have indicated that they will be candidates in the election, scheduled to be held on Monday, May 15. Nominations will be received on Wednesday, May 10.

Furore on Speeding

Of equal importance, in this reporter's opinion, was the reading of a letter from a Brownsburg taxpayer, protesting the lack of action on the part of town authorities in curbing the excessive speed of automobiles on the main streets. Lack of enforcement in regard to parking on sidewalks, and parking on the wrong side of the street, was also singled out for criticism.

While discussing the sorry state of traffic conditions, Council was informed of a number of "wild speeding incidents" which had occurred in the centre of town. One of the members had heard of one of the occurrences, but one or two of the others seemed surprised that such conditions existed! It was suggested that one of the reasons for lack of enforcement was certainly that Chief Boutet does not begin work until 1 p.m. This leaves the entire morning, including the busy noon-hour, wide open. Council agreed that this could be so, and decided that staggered hours for Chief Boutet and any additional officers, might be the answer. The revised work schedule was to be drawn up immediately, and the "clamps" put on offending drivers. But so far, ——

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Early trout fishing is a venture that will at times take a lot of experimentation — and other times, anything you may throw their way will be gobbled up! This is one time of the year when the bait man comes into his own, right from the garden hackle to bugs.

Here are a couple of tips that will pay off in better fishing at this time . . . Worms; try the very small ones, and tie onto the hook with a little bit of thread of very bright wool. Do not use heavy sinkers, as fish are cruising around for the food. The more drift to your baits, the more chance you have of getting something worth while.

It will be a little early for these — Dobson Crawlers, naturals. Poke under rocks in fast water, and you may be lucky enough to get a few of them. They are excellent, early in the year. The Crawfish is in my opinion one of the very best live lures there is for trout. You will find both types of them soft and hard-shell. The only hard thing about the soft-shell is the hooking of them! Too big a hook, and you kill them. A small hook threaded through the body will keep them alive for a considerable time. I've often tied them onto the hook with thread, not driving the hook through them at all. It's tricky fishing this way, but if the Craws are not too plentiful, then try it. Look under old logs around the place; you have all seen the big grubs from the June Bugs, these are also a very steady producer. As a matter of fact, all naturals are the thing, but they have to be fished right. As I've said, the drift method is the best from a production standpoint.

The fly fisherman will naturally get results with nymphs. Any kind will do the job right now, remembering to cast UP the current and allowing the bait to drift with the stream. Be careful on the retrieve, as fish usually hit the lure just as it starts to swing around.

Big flies of the streamer type are also good producers, and these should be tried. It seems that, this early in the year, color does not play too important a part. After a couple of weeks though, you have to give the fish what they want. But for the time being, use everything you have. It's rather strange, but a white fly early on in the year often pays off, even with ice in the water. The Crane fly is always a getter, and shouldn't be forgotten.

The spinner man has a multitude of baits to try, and will probably try them all before the right one gets his catch. I have had good luck with a Red-and-White (Daredevil). Plugs are just about useless at this time, so keep hammering the spinners away. Even the June Bug spinner is good, and if you have any pork rind, a strip of it tied onto the hook may help.

Looking over fishing tackle in Montreal this past week, one thing I observed with a lot of misgivings. The fly rods only have, at the most, six eyes to them. Could be that the companies are trying to save money, at the expense of the fisherman. A fly rod should have a minimum of 10 eyes, making it a lot easier to cast a fly. For a beginner trying to cast a line that bellies into the rod, and the inevitable wrapping around the shaft, only makes for a dislike of fly fishing. Even the better grade of rods are made this way. I know, with the odd rod brought up to me to be fixed, the benefit of adding extra eyes can be seen in the first few casts.

Reports on the fishing this past little while have been exceptionally good. Some very big pike have been taken; one of 13 lbs., was the largest I heard of. Perch were very big, and heavy with roe. Most people don't use this as an edible dish, but fried in butter it is excellent. After all, it is a form of caviar, and not to be sneezed at. I can remember as a youngster being told these eggs were the baby fish plants, and they sure look like them at times.

Around the Lachine Power House in Montreal, I have heard a number of Ling were taken this past winter. Very few of anything else, and no wonder. But these can't be blamed for the lack of fish in that area, believe me. Looking at the running water, all that can be seen is FILTH, and the amount of junk near the water makes you think a bunch of pigs got loose! Everyone is getting on the bandwagon about pollution now, and it's not too soon either — rather, too late. It seems we just can't see the damage we do to our resources until it is too late. That's the way of civilization.

That's all for a couple of weeks. I'm hoping to send you reports, however, on my surroundings in Labrador, and will try and keep you interested in what goes on outside Lachute. . . . Be seeing you all in the fall.

Ottawa team scores triumph, wins 13th annual bonspiel

For several times the winners of the Quentin Miller Trophy, an Ottawa foursome were again the top team in this year's annual spring curling bonspiel, held here during the past two weeks. The winners were A. Butterworth (skip), Les Roger, Mike Maronek and W. Ott.

Play throughout the two weeks of this 13th annual invitation event had been very good, and at all times interesting, but the finals held on Saturday were exceptional, producing a brand of curling worthy of professionals.

Two Lachute teams and two from Ottawa played against each other on Saturday afternoon, A. Butterworth defeating Geo. Kirby and M. Stonehouse taking the lead over Syd Drew. This left the two Ottawa teams to battle it out for the trophy and high honors, and the Lachute boys competing in the consolation event.

Both games were very close, and at the last end Stonehouse lay ahead one point at 6-7. Butterworth's last stone changed the scene, however, and a well played and difficult shot left him winner by two stones in a score of 9-7.

The second Ottawa rink comprised M. M. Stonehouse (skip), W. D. Timmerman, J. J. Urie and D. E. Patterson.

With the Lachute teams, an extra end was necessary in a final of 4-4 and two dead ends. This also proved a tussle, and at Drew's last shot Kirby was three points up. Syd made an excellent try but was a wee bit short on weight, leaving George Kirby the winner by one point. These two teams comprised — G. Kirby (skip), Don McFaul, L. Rendell and R. St. Laurent, vs. Syd Drew (skip), F. Stein, L. Gaunt and R. McGuire.

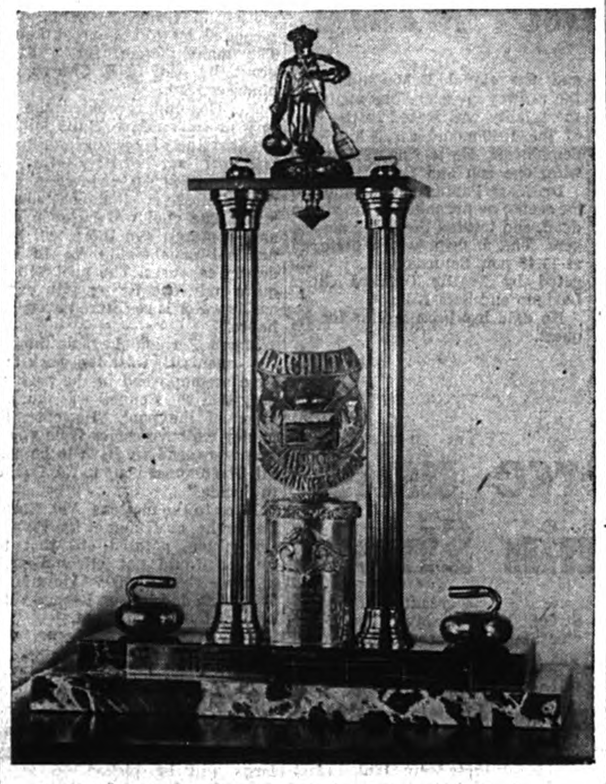

The very consistent play in both final rounds made it evident that it was anyone's game until the last stone had been counted.

President Leopold Carrière welcomed the visitors at the presentation of prizes and congratulated all four teams on their excellent showing. Various committees were thanked for the organizing of this two-week 'spiel, with special appreciation to the ladies for fine meals and refreshments served daily to the many visitors.

The prizes as usual were of high quality, and appreciation was expressed by the various winners.

Mr. Quentin Miller, in presenting the trophy, told of his affection for this district, having come for a short stay in 1895 and remaining for some five years. A member of Caledonia Curling Club, he still is keenly interested in the welfare of the club in Lachute.

A social evening followed, with dancing accompanied by a swing orchestra, to close another very successful event.

The Quent Miller Trophy won this year by Arne Butterworth's invincible Ottawa foursome

Putting tennis on professional basis

SPORTS CAMERA
By Milt MacPhail

Seems that it's only a question of time now until open tennis is accepted and becomes a regular thing.

Recent action by Wimbledon officials, asking that the 1962 tournament be thrown open to both amateurs and professionals, will provide terrific impetus to what is already a strong movement.

Open tennis just missed being passed last year by the International Tennis Federation. There will be additional pressure this time.

What would open tennis mean to the game? Well, it would bring the pros into proper focus. Instead of the touring, carnival-type thing they do now, they would be playing in long-established tournaments with the kind of tradition that the pros have not been able to build up.

It would mean that only the best of the amateurs would play, because only the best would have any kind of a chance against the pros.

It might conceivably mean the end of the "tennis bum". That's the player who travels from tournament to tournament, getting expenses and walking-around money, and living high society as he goes.

And eventually open tennis might be worked into professional Davis Cup type tournament. The best players of all countries, whether amateur or pro, would be able to compete for their own nation.

Burg down 3-2 in games as finals near climax

Brownsburg, April 10 — The Bombers have their back to the wall again. After losing two consecutive games in Buckingham, the 'Burg is now down 3-1 in games.

On Wednesday, the Bombers lost by a score of 8-4 after they had taken a two-goal lead early in the game. The Aces led 3-2 after 20 minutes, and scored four times in the second, to go ahead 7-3. In the third stanza, the Bombers outshot the Aces 14-5, but could score only one goal. Scorers for the 'Burg were Ken McGibbon (2), Gary Keatley, and Red Charlebois.

On Sunday afternoon, the Bombers blew a 4-3 lead to lose the game 9-5. Marcel Paul filled in between the pipes for this game, as Buddy Racine was unable to play. It was certainly no fault of his that the 'Burg lost.

April 12 — Tuesday night at Brownsburg, in the fifth game of the series, the Bombers downed Buckingham, 7-5. Tallies for Brownsburg were by Tomalty (3), Keatley (2), Ouellette (1) and Racine (1).

The standing in games is now 3-2 for Buckingham. Sixth game will be staged Thursday at Buckingham, and the seventh, if necessary, Saturday night in Brownsburg.

Two-fold hostilities on Cancer

THE SOUND of ringing doorbells will signal the climax of the 1961 Crusade of the Canadian Cancer Society here next Monday.

Volunteer canvassers will call on fellow townsfolk to distribute educational leaflets which could actually save their lives. It is hoped that every door in the community will be open to welcome these crusaders. If everyone followed the advice contained in the leaflet to be left in each home, more than 8,000 lives could be saved. This is the number of men, women and children who die of cancer in Canada each year, but who could have been saved by heeding the simple advice stressed in the Canadian Cancer Society's educational program.

The best protection against cancer is to have an annual health check-up, and to get speedy medical attention at the earliest sign or suspicion of any of cancer's seven danger signals. At least one half of all those who get cancer could be cured through early detection and proper treatment. The Canadian Cancer Society could make this goal a reality if it had enough funds to do the job.

The Canadian Cancer Society was mainly responsible for the dramatic rise in the cancer cure rate. Twenty years ago only one out of seven who developed cancer was saved; today it is one out of three. With adequate public support and personal action, it could be one out of two.

Money raised in the Campaign will be used not only to step up educational programs, but to provide service for cancer patients and to support research of scientists who are working unceasingly for a cancer cure or preventative. Progress in cancer research can only go as fast as funds are available.

Only a few short years ago, Cancer was virtually a subject for innuendo and whispered reference. How it has been brought into the open, and tackled with humane determination and understanding — is an illustration of the progress made in Education. . . . Our sympathetic support will achieve such strides in Research that — before both these avenues of attack, please God, this scourge on mankind will some day be vanquished.

Nature — close to God

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK in Canada was created April 18, 1947, by an Act of Parliament of the House of Commons, Ottawa, and by the Senate. So popular was the Bill, which was introduced by the late John R. MacNicol, M.P., that it was passed unanimously by the members of both houses.

The week as set forth by the Government is always to fall on April 10, which is the birthday of the late Jack Miner. It is an appropriate time of the year, as it comes when the birds are returning from the south to nest and raise their young in Canada's breeding grounds.

The week thus acts as a living memorial to the late Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, whom Edgar A. Guest referred to as "the best loved Christian in America."

For some thirty years between 1910 and 1940 the late Jack Miner toured Canada and the U.S. preaching the need of Conservation, which meant he was away from home on many Sundays. But he would always attend church with his hosts regardless of their church affiliations, which meant he attended worship in the Roman Catholic Church, the Salvation Army, Episcopal, Baptist, Pentecostal and other denominations, more than the Methodist Church of which he was a member. This religious experience made him very inter-denominational in his thinking, and gave rise to these memorable sayings:

"The day is past in North America to judge a man's Christianity by his religion."

"If my Christianity isn't stronger than my politics, then I have no Christianity."

"Science can put 10,000 horse power in a motor, but science cannot put the love of God in a man's heart."

Where production is booming

EVERY FIFTH West German worker changed his job at least once last year because of the stiff competition for manpower among the big industries — says the Fort-Erie Letter-Review. Workers are lured from job to job with more fringe benefits — bonuses, holiday allowances, sports facilities, free meals.

More than 300,000 foreign workers were hired by companies in West Germany in 1960, half from Italy, most of the others from Greece and Spain. However, it is estimated that at least twice as many are needed to cope with potential production.

Contrast this with the Canadian employment situation, concludes this writer. More than 700,000 here have no jobs, and a great deal of the suffering and hardship can be traced directly to too great a volume of imports from thriving European and Asiatic countries.

No rearmament

THE RUSSIANS may have their eye on the planet Venus, but there are others in this world who are more interested in the Venus de Milo.

"Punch", the British magazine, notes that "a meddlesome skin diver" is bound for the isles of Greece where he hopes to recover the missing arms of the famous goddess.

"What," it wonders, "does he propose to do with them? Any attempt to graft them back on the parent statue would horrify the Art world. Maimed, the lady is immortal; rearmed, with an apple in her hand, she would be just another marble hussy.

"Besides, restoration would ruin a hundred trademarks and spoil a treasured jest ('See what happens if you don't stop biting your fingernails!')."

Viewpoints and perspectives

WE HAVE TO MELT. — If this country is going to be the melting pot for a truly vigorous Canadian culture, then we are going to have to melt. Nothing short of a blending of all the racial origins with the best we can take from each, is going to make us truly Canadian.

— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

LOCAL FAIRS. — For years it has been advocated here that younger men should be induced to take an interest in the local fairs. One of the big arguments was that once younger men became interested in the fairs, they would become still more interested in agriculture and this would be good for farming practices.

— Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

STAY ON SCENE. — There is only one action the honorable driver can take after an accident and that is to comply with the law and remain on the scene. Failure to do so is an indication of utter indifference as to whether the victim is dead or alive.

THE FARM TRAGEDY in Ontario is that by now the best farming land of all in Niagara Peninsula has been sold for subdivision for housing and large factories, which could just as easily have been built on rocks.

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, April 16, 1886 —

Arbor Day will soon be here, and it is hoped that many will go in for tree planting on that day.

The steamer "Prince of Wales" is being refitted and remodelled in Montreal. The iron steamer "Peerless" is also undergoing changes and it is hoped will shortly take her usual route between Grenville and Ottawa.

We are glad to learn that the people of our neighboring community of Brownsburg are talking of an industry. We are grateful to Captain Howard for forming a company of some of the most intelligent and wealthy capitalists and inducing them to establish in Brownsburg. . . . Chatham Council has generously given full privilege of the splendid water powers of Brownsburg.

55 YEARS AGO

Friday, April 9, 1906 —

Mr. A. Graham, who recently disposed of his farm at River Rouge, has purchased the Thibeault property at the corner of Barron and Foundry Streets.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Lennon, of Monalea, visited their friends in Grenville Bay, previous to their departure for Ottawa to resume work on the construction of the New Museum.

Mr. Robert Gordon, of Genoa, has now got his gasoline engine in working condition.

The long looked-for local train service has been granted, to start early in May — leaving Lachute between 6 and 7 a.m.

Messrs. Ralph, Campbell and Stuart McOuat, sons of James McOuat of Brownsburg, have left to try their fortunes at Indian Head, Sask.

Owing to the dangerous condition of White's Bridge, the structure has been ordered by St. Jerusalem Council to be permanently closed.

At a referendum in Shawbridge a majority vote was cast favoring the sale of beer and wine in a local hotel.

Messrs. J. E. Dumais, H. Parkinson, W. K. McArthur and H. E. Desjardins were a delegation from the local One Hundred Club to attend charter night ceremonies of the new club in Verdun.

Mr. Philippe Roy left for a business trip to England and France.

Mr. Maurice Navion, Lachute, has been authorized by the Department of Marine to issue radio licenses in the district.

THE ATTIC

I cannot think of a more interesting place to browse around in than somebody else's attic. I mean the attic of an old house where the same family has lived for two or three generations. To explore one of these old attics on a rainy afternoon is really a rewarding experience.

One attic that I have in mind belonged to a man over 80 years of age, the house itself being over 70 years old. He referred to it as "the new house" because it succeeded a still older house where he had spent his early childhood. Years ago I used to spend an occasional night in this attic, lying awake amid the eerie creaking of the ancient roof, and admiring the stars through the cracks in the gable end. One cold October night I remember standing a big slab of beaverboard against the bed to break the force of the wind that whistled through the chinks.

The place was a veritable museum. An old perforated tin lantern, used before the days of glass chimneys, hung in a corner. A home-made baby's cradle; a broken spinning-wheel; a grain flail consisting of two sticks of unequal length joined together with the bark of the leatherwood, or moosewood bush; a solid iron teakettle with a bottom that protruded down into the stove-lid; old magazines of the 1880's and early 90's, with their advertisements in small type for such things as electric belts, Regina music boxes, Rambler bicycles, Estey organs, Poco cameras and sure cures for consumption, cancer and catarrh, not to mention four full quarts of seven-year-old rye whiskey sent postpaid to your door in a plain wrapper for $3.20. And Tanglefoot flypaper! You've got to be an oldtimer to remember those large, sticky sheets laid out to entrap many a human victim as well as thousands of flies that infested the grocery stores of the period.

In another attic I remember, a large number of empty sap-cans lay rusting in a corner. Several of them were in use, but not for the purpose for which they were intended. The old, dried-up, hand-made shingles leaked badly on rainy days, so the owner placed a sap-can under each spot that was dripping! Over a dozen cans would be placed in strategic positions on the floor. Only he never could remember to empty them until they overflowed on the next wet day. In this attic were also some massive picture frames holding those ghastly crayon portraits of departed ancestors; and a wedge-shaped device with a long iron handle made by some long deceased village blacksmith for the purpose of splitting rails to make cedar fences. Two "camel-back" trunks stood closed below the cobwebbed window. I never got to see what was in those trunks, but I'll bet they contained many interesting souvenirs of an era that will come no more.

Know anybody who's got an old attic? I'd love to go through it some day.

Be seein' ya!

Reader suggests modern emblem for Lachute Town

TO THE EDITOR

Lachute, April 7, 1961

Editor, The Watchman.

Dear Sir:

To anyone familiar with the industries of Lachute — textiles, paper mills, woodworking plants, dairy, printshops, etc. — it is safe to say that we are not behind the times. Modern machinery, modern methods, are apparent everywhere.

Even some of our municipal services, with a few notable exceptions, are tops in efficiency.

The same applies to our district farming and livestock enterprises; feeding and production methods are the most efficient; dairy and field equipment right up-to-date.

I mention these evidences of progress because they are far removed from the official emblem of Lachute Town, which embodies the symbols of a cog wheel and a plowshare (suggesting a team of oxen as the motive power), the whole idea portraying a pioneer settlement.

This emblem appears on our police and corporation vehicles. It appears on our official town stationery. It is inlaid in the floor of our city hall. The idea of antiquity and homage to pioneer origins, is fine in its place, but I think in this instance (our municipal crest) the design should be modernized to give a more progressive impression.

We gaze on this sign with a certain twinge of inferiority. Perhaps there are others who share this reaction? Anyway, I suggest this improvement for the consideration of our alert Chamber of Commerce and Town Council.

Thanking you for space to express this viewpoint,

Yours truly,

Lachute Reader

HEAD, HEART, HANDS AND HEALTH

Brian Sayles, of Paris, Ontario, raised nine lambs from a breeding flock of five ewes. Operating expenses, $68; market receipts, $188. Profit for 1960, $120. Brian is 14 years old, an active 4-H Club member. His parents are both former club members and are prominent leaders in their community. Their herd of Jersey cattle has won exhibition championships and ROP awards time and again.

Reading the weekly papers, I have been impressed with the wonderful work of the 4-H Clubs for a long, long time. To my shame, however, I wasn't certain of what the H's stood for. My brother, who is a weekly newspaper editor and very sold on 4-H work, suggested that I find out at once and write it up in my column so that others who never knew or have forgotten will be informed.

The H's come from the 4-H pledge which reads:

"I pledge my Head to clear thinking,
My Heart to greater loyalty,
My Hands to larger service,
My Health to better living,
For my club, my community, my country."

To my mind that would be a pledge worth taking by every Canadian. I know from personal knowledge that boys and girls who take that pledge really mean it and pay a good deal more than lip service to it. Loyalty and service are never in surplus supply in this world, so in dedicating themselves in this manner, thousands of young Canadains are insuring a better future for this country.

Men and women who had the advantage of 4-H membership in their youth may now be found in many important positions of leadership. In future years, more and more 4-H members, pledged to clear thinking, service, loyalty and so forth, will become leaders. That's a reassuring thought for anyone inclined to be pessimistic about our country's future.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

One of these days a speedboat driver is going to get a nasty shock. He is going to glance behind and see a water-policeman dogging him in a police boat with a siren and a red light on top.

The policeman will pull the boat-driver over and write him out a ticket.

In this way, the age of the water-cowboy will come to an end.

There will be no more tearing along the shore of a small lake at 45 knots, chopping waterfowl to pieces, half-drowning child swimmers, swamping people's wharves, breaking fishermen's lines and deafening people with the noise.

Enjoy Them Now

Sad to say, all these picturesque folk-ways are going to fall into disuse, quite soon. So you had better enjoy them, water-cowboys, while you still have a chance.

Of course, the federal government will need a little more prodding, before it begins a program of strict control, or gives provincial governments authority to do the job.

Only a few more people need to be run down'— just a handful of swimmers 'decapitated by feeble-minded youths at the wheel of 100-horsepower boats. This must be done, to dramatize the situation.

The speedboat drivers will soon attend to this chore and provide the necessary bloodshed. Since power boats are increasing by thousands each year and anyone can drive them, with not even a primitive test of physical or mental fitness, it will be easily accomplished.

Without Warning

After the government has been shocked into action we may get licensing of drivers, proper licensing of boats with large numbers that you can see from a distance, and a force of water police with boats that can be transported quickly and without warning from lake to lake.

Power boats will be ruled off small lakes completely, kept to a moderate speed in middle-sized lakes, and required to stay 100 to 200 yards from the shore of large lakes.

Impossible to regulate boat traffic? Too many boats? That's exactly what people said about cars, 50 years ago. Now they are regulating cars efficiently enough — too efficiently, some people think.

They'll be regulating boats, too.

Guest Speaker at Women's Institute

Dr. A. R. Côté was guest speaker at the April meeting of the Brownsburg W.I., speaking on the timely subject, "Our Senior Citizens", their welfare and comfort in the "over-50 years". . . . In her introductory remarks, Mrs. N. E. Smillie mentioned the fact that Dr. Côté had spent 30 years of his life in Brownsburg and that he really "belongs to this town". The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Hector Mason.

During the business session, plans for the 35th anniversary of the W.I. were discussed. During the past month this organization has been very active, having sponsored a coffee party and a rummage sale, a sewing class and a "Golden Age Tea". The latter took place Tuesday, April 4, when over 50 of the "Golden Age" group enjoyed the singing of early songs, contests, and short addresses by the Rev. Garfield Bruce and the Rev. R. L. McPhee. The question of organizing a "Golden Age Group" was discussed, but it was thought advisable to leave this matter under the auspices of the W.I. for the present time. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed together.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barker spent the week-end with relatives in St. Laurent. They also visited Mr. Ed Barker, who is at present in hospital; his many friends here wish him a speedy recovery.

Dr. and Mrs. Mullen and family, of Toronto, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Kettyle.

CNIB appeal in Grenville

Mr. John White, chairman for the Grenville area CNIB campaign, hopes that the canvassers and captains will turn in their contributions to him as soon as possible. (If more receipt books are required, please contact him at the Canadian Refractories, ME 2-2727.)

Your contributions do a great deal towards helping the Institute carry out its many services to the sightless and to the sighted. It must be borne in mind that the canvassers, the team captains and the fund chairman are volunteer workers, and do not receive as much as 1% for their help towards this humanitarian work. Furthermore, the Institute has an office in Lachute where information may be had on eyesight conservation without charge. The Institute still maintains an eye clinic, and the examining doctor is an ophthalmologist; anyone requiring glasses, however, is encouraged to see their local optometrist. . . . Recently, the ophthamologist detected, in time, eye ailments which could have been fatal to the persons examined.

Your contribution is badly needed to carry on this work, and to continue the work among the sightless. When the canvasser calls upon you, please be as generous as possible, and if perchance you are not contacted, it would be appreciated if you would get in touch with Mr. White and a volunteer worker will collect your donation.

Police and Fire Reports

Police Chief Roger Boutet reported a total of three parking fines and 32 auto-registration warnings. Listed also were two cases of breaking and entering, one of which had been carried out by a minor.

Fire Chief Ferne Brisson reported only one fire call during the month. This involved a smoldering chesterfield chair, which apparently had been ignited by a burning cigarette. So far this year, Brownsburg has an excellent record in the fire prevention field, and Chief Brisson would like to maintain that record. In an effort to do just this, he warns all citizens, "Be careful with grass and brush fires during the spring clean-up period!" One way to be careful is to make sure the garden hose is handy before lighting the fire.

Council's final decision at the short meeting (hockey night) was to adopt Daylight Saving Time for the summer months. The change will become effective at 12 midnight on Saturday, April 29.

Nonagenarian was old brick-maker, rich in memories

The late Hugh Mitchell

An aged and lifelong resident of this community passed away early Friday morning, April 7, in the person of Hugh Benedict Mitchell, in his 90th year.

He was born at Beech Ridge on July 10, 1871, a son of Francis Mitchell and Anna Maria Lawson. In his youth he took up brick making at the "Brick Hill", Beech Ridge. He made the brick for some of the prominent buildings in Lachute, including the old Post-Office. He brought the first gasoline engine to Lachute.

In 1903 he married Jessie Forrester, who predeceased him in 1952. Of this marriage there was one daughter, Myrtle, the late Mrs. Graydon Goodenough, who passed away on August 27, 1957.

The late Hugh Mitchell took up farming in later years, until he retired in 1951.

His mind had maintained extraordinary clearness, and he was capable of discussing events of both recent and long standing. He had been bedridden for over two years. His life was prolonged by the devoted care given him at the nursing home of Mrs. Olive Morrison.

Funeral service was held on Monday at the MacKimmie Funeral Chapel. Mr. H. Purucker, assisted by Mr. G. B. Crawford, conducted the rites.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. J. B. Hutton, Nelson Morrison, Roy Morrison, W. Chambers, W. O'Brien and H. Hutt. Interment was in St. Andrews East cemetery.

Surviving are one brother, Harry, of Prince Albert, Sask., and several nephews and nieces.

Varied services provided here by Cdn. Cancer Soc'y

In Argenteuil County, volunteer workers are doing a fine job for the Canadian Cancer Society.

Under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. E. Richardson and Mrs. Robert Cairns, Cancer Dressing Service volunteers in Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East and Kilmar, work the year round to provide free dressings for cancer patients in six counties.

The parcelling committee — with the president, Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, acting as chairman — meet every two weeks and send out the parcels regularly to the cancer patients.

Special mention should be made of Boyd's Express of Lachute, who transport all shipments from Montreal free of charge, and who also deliver some parcels of dressings.

Last fall, Brownsburg volunteers turned out 700 bed-pads in three days. Some of these bed-pads, to fill an emergency, were shipped to Montreal.

Donated by volunteer workers, Christmas gifts were mailed with dressings last December, and many letters of appreciation were received.

Last November, Mrs. C. L. Duncan, Mrs. Mac E. Walker and Mrs. Richard Ayers attended the combined Education, Welfare and Campaign workshop of the Society, held in Montreal, and brought back many new ideas to the local branch.

The Education committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. C. L. Duncan, with the help of doctors and nurses, and through the use of free films and literature, is carrying out a widespread educational program in the district. Many organizations have already made use of this service, and it is hoped that many more will do so in the near future.

Norwood players in religious drama at United Church

Members of the Young People's Union of the Norwood United Church, St. Laurent, were guests of the Lachute United Y.P.U. on Sunday last, and shared in a hearty supper prepared by members of the executive.

In the evening, the Y.P.U. from Norwood, under the direction of Mr. Keith Armstrong, presented a religious play, "The Robe of the Galilean", to a most appreciative audience of members, parents and friends. The play, based on excerpts from Dr. Lloyd Douglas's book, "The Robe", dealt with events connected with the post-resurrection appearances of Christ, and was communicated to the audience in a most telling manner. Stage by stage, the audience were shown how the followers of Christ were so influenced by His life and teachings that they talked about it among themselves, and determined to go out as evangelists for the message which had absorbed their souls.

Robin Fraser, president of the Lachute Y.P.U., outlined the aims of the Y.P.U. organization, and welcomed the friends from Norwood United Church. The Rev. Wilson Bridge, the minister of Lachute United, expressed thanks to the visitors, to members of the Lachute Y.P.U. and executive, and those who had provided and assisted with the meal.

Ottawa Valley historical topic by W.I. speaker

The Lachute W.I. meeting was held on Tuesday of last week. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Linton Armstrong, Mrs. Wm. Butterfield presided.

Mrs. R. R. Davidson, Home Economics convener, introduced the speaker, Dr. R. Rigby, who gave an account of the history of the Ottawa Valley, from the Glacier Period to today, illustrated by old maps and documents. At one time, this whole area was covered by water.

For a long time, the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers were the only means of transport, and the rapids at Carillon presented a serious obstacle. In Indian days, portage was used to pass the rapids; later, two canals were built at different times. The first one, the Old Canal, was built by the Royal Engineers from England and paid for by the British Government. The second canal was built by the Canadian Government, which then was rich enough to bear the cost.

Dr. Rigby recalled the heroic stand of Dollard des Ormeaux and 17 men against an overwhelming Iroquois force. Some discussion has arisen whether this took place on the north shore or the south shore of the Ottawa River. Dr. Rigby himself is convinced the site at Carillon is the right one; this opinion is based on letters written at the time by priests and nuns to their relatives in France.

Dr. Rigby showed pictures of old houses about to disappear. In the old forge of Bayside Farm, the windows are turning pink, which happens when glass reaches 100 years old.

The old wooden crib dam which existed until now was a great feat of engineering. A picture was shown of the river as it was before work started on the dam; this scene will never be viewed again.

Dr. Rigby stressed the importance of keeping records in the interest of future generations. He gave an example of what happens when this is not done: In most English churches there are two small, lowered windows, the purpose of which has been lost; nobody knows why they are there — no records were kept at the time.

The business meeting which preceded this most interesting talk, was mostly about the forthcoming dessert card party, on April 20 at 1.30 p.m.

Annual meeting held by Catholic Women's League

Twenty-one members were present at the annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League, with Rev. Father Conway in attendance and representatives of St. Columban subdivision as guests.

The members were asked to take part in two spiritual bouquets and to parcel gifts to the Eskimos. All conveners gave reports, including a special detailed report of the St. Patrick's supper by Mrs. D. Berniquer, showing satisfactory results.

A very good attendance was present at the Stations of the Cross on Good Friday, but members were asked to co-operate in larger numbers at the Hour of Recollection.

A request was made for clothes and furniture for a rummage sale in the fall.

Mrs. Walsh will replace Mrs. Proulx as telephone convener.

Mrs. Hebert and Mrs. Cassidy were named conveners for the breakfast at the Diocesan convention in June.

The following officers were then elected; president, Mrs. L. Bedard; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. C. Lowe; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. D. Berniquer; secretary, Mrs. C. Stephens; treasurer, Mrs. J. Martel; councillors, Mrs. M. Peters, Mrs. G. Lowe and Mrs. J. Lunny.

Father Conway commented on the League's activities and accomplishments of each convener, which proved the effectiveness of united action.

Mrs. Dorothy Berniquer adjourned the meeting, followed by social entertainment.

Maj.-Gen. A. E. Walford, Cancer Crusade chief, urges generous support

Maj.-Gen. A. E. Walford, general chairman of the Canadian Cancer Society's campaign for funds, urges full support for the Society's appeal which opened April 1.

Maj.-Gen. Walford described the Canadian Cancer Society as "the greatest single force in Canada working to control cancer and to determine its cause and establish a cure".

Many Lachute district residents are acquainted with Maj.-Gen. Walford, who has a summer home at Hill Head. As a boy he spent his summers at the family's country residence in Cushing.

"A check-up and a cheque"

Cancer creeps in like a thief in the night
And establishes itself while we're still feeling right.
It's insidious, and it parades
In many different masquerades.

If we weren't too busy fooling ourselves
We'd catch this villain before it delves,
For it gives us warnings to a degree
That sometimes we just don't want to see.

Perhaps it's in that persistent cough
That nonchalantly we shrug off,
Maybe it's in a little lump
We dismiss as some forgotten bump,

If we notice, by chance, a change in a mole,
We're incined to forget it and not tell a soul.
Feeling always tired can't mean we have ills —
So we smugly take a few vitamin pills.

And if our regular habits start playing tricks
We say it's nothing home remedies can't fix.
There's only one way to put worries to rout —
Go to your doctor at once and find out.

Don't start diagnosing symptoms,
You'll become a nervous wreck,
Support your local cancer drive
With a check-up and a cheque.

— G. D., Lachute.

Former prime minister sees Canada's place in international affairs

Quebec (CP) — Former Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said Canada should not withdraw from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"It is thanks to this organization that the Communists have not spread into more European countries," Mr. St. Laurent said.

"NATO has, perhaps, not accomplished all that was expected of it, but it has been useful in permitting us to live in peace."

The former prime minister said he is not sure of an answer to the dilemma created by Communist China's indication that it intends to settle some conflicts by force.

A first step, he suggested, would be disarmament talks which would include Red China. Mr. St. Laurent said, however, he would personally vote against the admission of Red China to the United Nations, since nations committed to using force are violating the UN charter. But the problem of Communist China was a question that could not be ignored, because the nation represented almost a continent in itself.

Resident bereaved

Sympathy is expressed to Mrs. D. D. Campbell, whose father, Mr. Eugene James Reynard, passed away on Tuesday, April 4. A veteran of the Boer War and two World Wars, Mr. Reynard was in his 84th year and had been in failing health for some time. Some 10 Boer War veterans attended his funeral.

DON'T RUN — REACH

If you're like most busy folk in Lachute, you've probably found that just keeping pace with day-to-day activities can be pretty taxing. And, like most of us, you're trying to find ways of cutting down on the wear and tear. When the lady of the home, for example, is preparing meals in the kitchen, she really has her hands full. She's generally doing a number of things at once including keeping one eye on the back burner and the other on the children. It's rather a bad time to have to leave the scene of operation to answer a phone in another room. A handy kitchen extension not only saves steps but permits her to keep an eye on things while she makes or takes calls. And what about the bedroom? Many a long run to the phone downstairs can be prevented by a bedroom extension. But more important for the housewife is the feeling of security that a bedside telephone provides, especially if she is ever alone at night. And then, of course, there's the added advantage of having a good place to go if you want to make calls in private. Remember, whether you choose the space-saving Princess, the compact wall phone, or the streamlined table set, there's a colour in each style to harmonize with your decor. Why not call us at ZEnith 60,000 today? We'll be glad to talk over extension telephones with you.

Last month was ushered in with some of the worst sleet storms in years that hit parts of our territory and disrupted service to some 48,000 customers. Here in the Lachute Section, the major portion of damage was experienced in the Ste. Scholastique Exchange. Close to 1,000 telephone subscribers were without service in Ste. Monique, St. Augustin, St. Benoit and St. Placide. With the assistance of line crews from Ste. Agathe and St. Jerome, we were able to restore service within the week. We in turn were able to provide assistance to the Valleyfield Section. As well as the hard-pressed crews working on service restoration, our operators played their roles. Switchboards hummed as many customers deprived of radio and TV turned to operators to be informed on everything including the time, the weather and the news. Many customers called just to be reassured, and to talk to someone in "the outside world". Although our operators are not normally able to give this service, during the storm there was no other way for many people to keep in touch. Our girls made every effort to answer all questions. We are proud of our people who worked so hard to minimize the effects of the storm, and we think they deserve hearty congratulations.

They say that troubles come in multiples of three, and the sleet storm was not our only trouble during that eventful week. Apart from the sleet storm we had bullets shot into the cable; three poles left standing after the sleet storm were subsequently broken by vehicles; cable, placed for temporary service to storm-affected subscribers, was stolen.

These causes resulted in about 300 subscribers being out of service even though they survived the effects of the sleet storm. — All in all, a very busy week!

Looking for a movie for your club, employee or business group? Last year, Bell films reached an audience of some 750,000 people with a wide variety of interests. A new catalogue is now available listing 48 free movies that can be obtained from our company. Among our latest films is the very popular Hollywood production, "A Manner of Speaking". It's a humorous film about a high-pressured president of an advertising agency and his staff who get themselves in hot water by disregarding a few basic rules of telephone usage. Also available are full-color films from our TV science series, such as "The Thread of Life," "The Alphabet Conspiracy" and "Our Mr. Sun." School groups will be interested to know that we have seven movies which can be used as aids to science education. For further information give us a call, or drop in and see us.

Radar speed detector for police patrol car

The Lachute police emergency vehicle-patrol car will be equipped with a radar unit, following the approval of a lease-purchase agreement at the regular session of Council. The unit is expected to be installed within two weeks, and is here on approval for a six-month period. In the event Council decides to purchase the unit, the $110 a month rental will be deducted from the $1,500 purchase price.

According to Police Chief A. J. Whiteway, the unit is highly recommended and is accepted by all courts of the province. It is identical to those used on the Laurentian Autoroute. The unit, when installed in the police vehicle, is expected to curtail patrol-car chasing by approximately 75%.

The radar detector is effective when the car is in motion, and is accurate within 2 m.p.h. at a speed of 100 m.p.h. It cannot be put out of operation by tinfoil, flashing lights or a dragging chain, as some people believe. It is expected the Council will sell the traffic timer, which was purchased several years ago.

'Uncle Walt' writer elected dean of magicians' group

The Watchman's popular humorist, Uncle Walt (Mr. Walter Jackson, Westmount), who has been a member of the Society of American Magicians for some years, has recently been elected Dean of the Assembly for the Montreal group, known as the Maple Leaf Assembly, No. 58, Montreal.

There are over 70 assemblies of this organization in American cities, but only two in Canada. The other is in Edmonton, Alta. These groups consist of professional, semi-professional and amateur conjurers, and each member is a qualified entertainer.

Mr. Jackson spends considerable time in his workshop creating and building new illusions and small tricks, as well as performing at various engagements — and writing a rib-tickling column for his favorite newspaper!

Avoid fault-finding

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Praise is sweet in anyone's ears and disapproval is unpleasant. Children blossom in the atmosphere of sincere appreciation for their best achievement in any field. But what happens when there is constant fault-finding in the home?

An ultra-critical attitude to one another can act like a poison at home. The French have a proverb, "A good husband should be deaf and a good wife blind." In the marriage ceremony, the two contracting parties take each other, "for better or for worse." It is no excuse for blunt criticism for either of them to complain, "My partner is worse than I took him (or her) for!"

Parents can best reform the faults in their children by giving them good examples to follow in their own lives. A courteous mother who is considerate is likely to have a polite daughter. When reproof must be given, if at all possible this should be done in private. A child should feel his mother's or father's love and their faith in him that he will outgrow his fault and in time follow a wiser course.

Jean's parents were disturbed by her complete domination by Nan, a new and very bossy friend. Instead of criticizing this acquaintance and pointing out Nan's aggressive, possessive ways, the parents allowed Jean to bring her home to meals and spend her leisure with her. But they did encourage their daughter to have other chums too. Before long, of her own accord, Jean tired of Nan's dictatorship.

When children enter adolescence, because underneath they are unsure of themselves, they are particularly resentful of critical remarks. Teen-age children are apt to explode when their actions are questioned, or they may go off by themselves and brood over their "cruel treatment." Tact, a friendly approach, and the desire to find some reasonable "middle ground" help to maintain a happy relationship between fathers and mothers and their almost grown children. Even the discussion on such difficult points as the use of the family phone and the hour of coming in at night need not deteriorate into fault-finding.

Sisters and brothers can be extremely bold in their remarks to each other. They will accept mutual criticism which would be most unpalatable from adults.

Nevertheless, too constant criticism can produce much unhappiness. A mother and father on vacation found their son continually pointing out his two sisters' faults. The girls quickly retaliated by telling him his failings. This led to noisy bickering.

In a family council the parents helped the children to see that they were making each other miserable and they were fast becoming a quarrelling household. The children agreed to fine each maker of a critical remark a nickel. The fine money, in the Critical Bank on the table, was to be used to buy a favorite food treat. They had fun over this — and the criticism fund never amounted to very much! The bank disappeared off the table before long.

"As soon seek roses in December, ice in June . . . before you trust in critics," wrote Lord Byron, and Coleridge once declared in irritation "Critics — murderers!" They were referring to literary critics, but a person does not need to be a writer to resent being picked to pieces. There is little which is constructive, and less which is encouraging in fault finding. Avoid it like the plague!

Blasted editor replies to critic

The editor of a small town weekly was severely criticized because of an error appearing in his paper, and in the next issue he had this to say:

"Yes, we know there were some errors in last week's paper. We will further agree that there were some errors in the issue of the week before, but before bawling us out too unmercifully, we want to call your attention to these facts:

"In an ordinary newspaper column there are 10,000 letters, and there are seven possible wrong positions for each letter, making 70,000 chances to make errors and seven million chances for transpositions. There are 48 columns in this paper, so you can readily see the chances for mistakes. Did you know that, in the sentence "to be or not to be", by transpositions alone, 2,759,022 errors can be made? Now aren't you sorry you got mad about that little mistake last week?"

SELF-PROPULSION

The trouble with not taking some kind of pills, is that your associates will think you are over-confident.

Bridal ring for Spring

Spring is an especially popular season of the year for bridal showers. This recipe for Orange Blossom Ring will add appropriate interest and goodness to any shower or tea table. Its delicious flavor, tenderness and attractive appearance can be attributed to the fact that it is made with yeast. Best of all, only forty-five minutes rising time is required to make the dough of this glamorous sweet bread; and it can be on the table only an hour and a half after you start to mix it. The dough is shaped in the manner of a Swedish tea ring and filled and frosted with a highly flavorful orange icing.

Orange Blossom Ring

½ Cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope active dry yeast, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 tablespoon granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 well-beaten egg, 2 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1 cup sifted icing sugar, 1 tablespoon orange juice.

Measure lukewarm water; stir in the 1 teaspoon granulated sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Meantime, cream 1 tablespoon of the butter or margarine in a rather large bowl; blend in the 1 tablespoon granulated sugar and salt. Add egg, part at a time, beating it well after each addition. Mix in dissolved yeast and 1 cup of the flour. Beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 1 cup more. Turn out dough onto floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Cover with a tea towel and let rest while preparing orange mixture.

Cream the remaining 3 tablespoons butter or margarine; blend in orange rind and icing sugar alternately with orange juice. Roll out dough into a rectangle 12x9 inches. Spread with half of the orange mixture. Starting at a long side, roll up jelly-roll fashion; seal seam. Place the roll, seam side down, on a greased cookie sheet, bringing ends together to form a ring; seal these ends together. Using scissors or a sharp knife, cut through ring almost to the centre at 1-inch intervals. Turn slices on their sides overlapping each other. Cover with a tea towel. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Spread top of ring while still warm, with the remaining orange mixture. Serve warm or cold.

Fashions

Here's quite a novelty — a resort wear dress that goes in for a United Nations theme via a parade of flags appliqued down the seaming at one side. The seaming conceals the fastening.

The dress is of natural color Irish linen and has a red leather belt buckled in silver. Teh short sleeves are cut in one with the square-necked bodice.

CANCER HAZARD —

Odds in favor of women!

The odds favor women.

Strange?

But this is a fact so far as lives saved from cancer are concerned.

The death rate from cancer for every 100,000 women in Canada is 136.2, while it is 156.4 for every 100,000 men.

Why?

There is some background for this disparity. . . . The two most common sites of death from cancer in women are: (1) breast cancer and (2) uterine cancer.

Breast cancer now takes the lives of some 2,000 women each year, or 25.6 for each 100,000 population. This is the top cancer-killer among women. Second is uterine cancer, which kills some 1,500 women each year.

Thus, the lives of about 3,500 women are at stake each year. What are we doing to reduce this large, and many times needless, loss of life among women? . . . Women, in cooperation with their doctors, are doing it. . . .

Because breast and uterine cancer occur in readily accessible sites, it is possible to diagnose and treat them in their early, most curable, stage. Cervical cancer could be virtually eliminated as a cause of death; this is now within our medical capabilities.

Breast cancer is also under attack by modern techniques of early diagnosis and treatment. More and more women are being saved each year. Thousands of women have responded to the Canadian Cancer Society's program of self-examination and to the Society's appeal that all adult women have an annual health check-up.

Therefore, since 1936, the cancer death rate in women has been decreasing — while the death rate in men from cancer has been going up. Today the odds favor women, who have proven the annual check-up pays off in saving lives. Men might change the odds if they too will have health examinations.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Deirdre Mungovan, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Mealtime need never be dull if you use a bit of imagination and plan the menu carefully.

The food and nutrition department of Macdonald Institute, suggests you vary the flavor by not repeating foods in the same meal and by serving only one strong-flavored dish, such as onions or Limburger cheese.

Vary the meal's texture with approportionate amount of hard and soft food. For example, a raw vegetable salad plate with fresh fruit for dessert might make the meal a monotonous chewing exercise.

Stimulate interest by adding colorful vegetable and sauces. A drab combination would be creamed whitefish, mashed potatoes and cauliflower.

Vary your cooking methods. Don't fry, boil or bake everything.

Gardening Hints

The dahlia should be kept indoors during the winter since it lacks the strength of many spring-flowering bulbs, says the Ontario department of agriculture. Early in April, start the tubers indoors using flat boxes and sandy loam. Place the tubers on their sides with the buds pointing upwards. Cover with two inches soil, keep moist and warm. Move the boxes outside when the tubers begin to grow. Use glass or polyethylene bags for protection against night frost.

Plant the larger dahlias three feet apart and the smaller ones at two foot intervals. Dig holes six inches deep but cover the shoots with three inches of soil. As they develop, fill in the holes until they are level with the ground surface.

Confusing Carcass

The anatomy of the hog may cause some confusion for the inexperienced shopper. The loin of pork extends from the shoulder to the leg and because there are many different types of cuts, the consumer section of the federal agriculture department offers some helpful tips.

The loin is divided in three main sections — leg end, centre cut and rib end — which may be sold as roasts or chops.

The leg end is the meatiest and contains most of the tenderloin and back bone. The bone may be removed and replaced with a well-seasoned bread stuffing.

The most expensive and choicest is the centre cut. There is little or no tenderloin and the bone is T-shaped.

The tenderloin is the long, tapering section found in the curve of the ribs. It is sold separately or left in the leg end.

Roasts are cooked in a 325-degree oven, allowing 40 to 45 minutes a pound. The boneless roasts take 45 to 50 minutes a pound.

A Tasty Dish

Shoppers often overlook minced pork in favor of minced beef, but here is a tasty dish easy to prepare.

Combine 1½ pounds minced pork, ¾ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, ½ to ¾ tsp. marjoram, sage or savory, 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce, 1 egg, 2 tbsp. water and ½ cup finely chopped onion.

Shape into 12 patties, half an inch thick. Brown slightly in a little fat over moderate heat, about two minutes each side. Pour off excess fat and turn meat, cover and continue cooking slowly over low heat about 10 minutes each side.

Here's quite a novelty — a resort wear dress that goes in for a United Nations theme via a parade of flags appliqued down the seaming at one side. The seaming conceals the fastening.

The dress is of natural color Irish linen and has a red leather belt buckled in silver. Teh short sleeves are cut in one with the square-necked bodice.

Garden Graph

BASEMENT WINDOW POSSIBILITIES

Basements today offer recreation rooms for family fun. The gardener has great possibilities for enjoyment by making use of a basement window for a small size greenhouse. This is perhaps the easiest and least expensive method of having a hot-bed or cold-frame having additional heat.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the warm air from the cellar heats the cold-frame. The window is left open at night and may often be closed during the day, when the sun is shining. It should be located on the side of the house that gets the most sun during the day.

On especially cold nights a straw or burlap mat can be thrown over the glass sash for emergency protection.

Newest cold-frames have aluminum sides. These are much lighter than old wood or cement frames, and also they can be moved from one place to another on the property with a minimum of inconvenience. New tops of lightweight, transparent plastic or synthetic glass are easy to lift up and down.

As shown, as the seedlings grow, raise one end of the sash on sunny days to permit ventilation. Gradually raise the sash higher and finally open it up entirely on bright days, closing it again at night.

As the weather becomes warmer, the sash can be kept open day and night and then the plants are ready for planting outdoors.

Can cancer be conquered?

Can cancer be conquered? How will it be done? When can we expect a final solution? These are among the most frequently asked questions on the cancer problem today.

Information is available which provides at least partial answers to these burning questions.

The only way cancer can be cured is by surgery or radiation or both. In certain types of cancer such as leukemia or Hodgkin's disease, the cancer cells spread rapidly through all parts of the system and no means of completely eliminating them have been discovered. Some other cancers may start as small tumors, and if not detected early enough, will shed their cells into the circulatory system, and eventually reach vital organs.

Science has long talked of a "magic bullet", some weapon to attack every cancer cell regardless of where it may be. This, of course, might be possible with a powerful chemical which could focus its attack on cancer cells without damaging normal cells.

About 20 compounds have been discovered or manufactured for experimental cancer therapy. A number of these, used in leukemia for example, have worked for a time but finally failed to check the wild growth of white blood cells. Yet the lives of children with acute leukemia frequently have been extended many months and even years, by using a series of such compounds, and replacing one with another when a specific compound no longer controls the disease.

The theory is good and the likelihood high that compounds for permanently controlling the different kinds of cancer by various drugs may eventually be perfected.

The human system itself produces certain hormones which exert control over various bodily functions, including cell growth. Scientists have found that male hormones will often check cancers in women and vice versa. Yet hormones given to laboratory animals in continued heavy doses will produce cancer! Is there an answer here? Science is trying to find out what biochemical paradox is back of this phenomenon. They are taking some of these hormone molecules apart, piece by piece, to find the vital link.

Now comes the great new hope that man himself contains the seeds of controlling his own cancer. The so-called immune reaction which exists in all of us to a greater or lesser degree makes it possible for humans to establish resistance and immunity to disease germs.

While cancer is not a germ-caused disease, there is evidence that it acts somewhat similar to diseases caused by microscopic invaders. In effect, the cancer cell may well be a "foreigner" as far as our systems are concerned. Studies of spontaneous regression, in which far advanced cases of cancer have disappeared suddenly without having been treated, lead to this theory.

No scientist is ready yet to say that we will soon be able to produce a vaccine against human cancers, although it has been done with laboratory animals against transplanted cancers. A serum to cure even far-advanced cancer — a vaccine to prevent it? These are the goals, the hope, the possibilities.

But when? It will be sooner, if more and more effort is poured into the job. This is one of the goals of the 1961 Cancer Crusade — to help the Canadian Cancer Society raise funds in a record amount to advance this life-saving program.

TAKES OVER AS NEW ENVOY TO BRITAIN

David K. E. Bruce (left), 63, new American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, is accompanied by Lt.-Gen. Guy Salisbury-Jones, marshal of the British diplomatic corps, as he arrives at Buckingham Palace, London, to present his credentials to Queen Elizabeth. He was President Truman's Paris envoy and President Eisenhower's Bonn representative.

Change-over to dial phone, Arundel area

Dial telephone service will go into effect in the Arundel area this week-end, when the telephone system serving that region is converted from manual to dial operation.

Shortly after two o'clock Sunday morning, Bell Telephone's Arundel dial exchange will whirl into service, and some 550 telephones in and around Arundel will become dial operated.

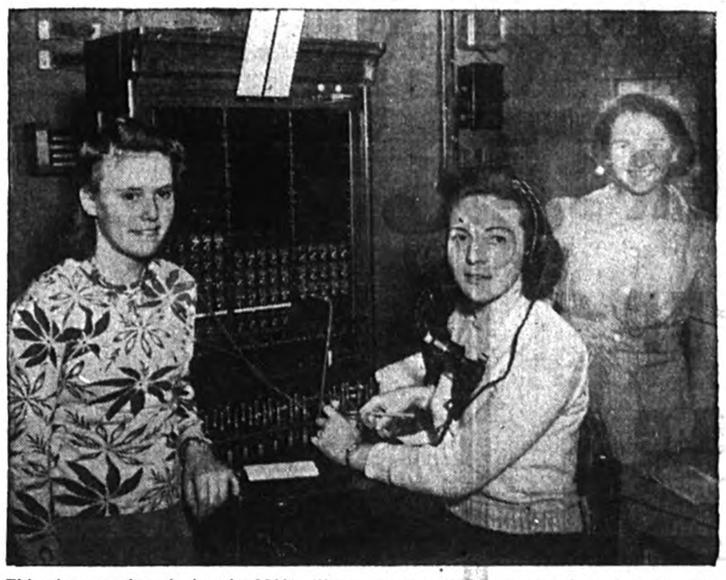

At the same time, all customers served by the exchange will get new, seven-figure telephone numbers consisting of the exchange digits. (The numbers are listed in the supplementary telephone directory recently distributed to all customers served by the Arundel exchange.)

In addition to Arundel, the list of communities served by the exchange includes Huberdeau, St. Remi d'Amherst and Weir — Henry Leonard, Bell manager for that region, pointed out this week.

The number disks on all Arundel telephones now show the three-figure Area Code (514) for this region just above the telephone number. The Area Code is part of the customer's long distance number, and should be included when numbers are given to persons from out-of-town, Mr. Leonard explained.

The change-over to dial in Arundel next Sunday will be made with virtually no interruption in telephone service. Early Sunday morning was chosen because there are few conversations in progress at that time.

Although the task of connecting all local calls will be taken over by the automatic dial equipment, operators will always be on hand to look after long distance calling, and to provide numbers not yet listed in the directory.

This picture, taken during the 1930's, illustrates the switchboards used during that era to complete local telephone calls. With the new equipment, it will be possible to make local calls without the aid of an operator. Also, the calls will be connected much faster. From left to right are Miss Evelyne Houle, Miss Mary Morrison (Mrs. W. Graham) and Miss Janette Dubeau, who were the local operators at that time.

Farmers' Association recommendations on agronome services, 4-H programs,

At a public hearing held recently in Montreal, the Quebec Farmers' Association made the following suggestions to the government committee on Agricultural Education, Extension and Research.

1. Agronomes should be given some training in extension work, and special consideration and assistance should afterwards be given to agronomes who request more advanced training in extension.

2. Agronomes should be required to take refresher courses in agriculture from time to time.

3. A co-ordinated regional approach to agricultural extension should be developed by the Department of Agriculture. This would include long-range plans for the development of each region.

4. More emphasis should be placed on sound farm management and on the administration of the farm enterprise, and agronomes be given training which would enable them to assist farmers in these respects.

5. More stress should be placed on efficient production rather than increased production.

6. The woodlot should be considered as an integral part of most farms, and a qualified forestry specialist should constitute a part of the extension team operating out of each regional extension centre.

7. 4-H Club programs should be expanded to include more projects to provide variety for members, and less emphasis should be placed on show-ring competition and livestock judging.

8. Vocational courses in agriculture should be available at regional extension centres to both farmers and farm youth.

9. The services available to farmers through the extension service of the department of agriculture should be well publicized.

The Quebec Farmers' Association was represented at the hearings by Cyril Dahms, of Huntingdon, president; Rudy Dallenbach, of Knowlton; and Leslie Young, of Macdonald College.

Criticism on dairy policy and milk quotas

All milk produced in Quebec should be classified into two categories: first quality milk, which would include that milk presently of sufficiently high quality to be accepted for fluid consumption, and second quality milk which would be milk not qualifying as first quality. This request was made by the Quebec Farmers' Association in its submission to the government study committee on the marketing and sale of dairy products in the Province of Quebec. The Q.F.A. also suggested that there should be only one blend price for each classification of milk.

The Q.F.A. brief stated that any dairy policy in the best interests of the dairy industry from the point of view of processors and consumers, as well as farmers, should encourage the improvement of milk quality; encourage dairy producers to develop the most efficient methods of production; should establish the same selling price for all milk of a similar quality; and should consolidate and strengthen the dairy industry so that any adjustment necessary would be borne by the whole industry and not by a small group of producers or processors. There is no sound reason, said the Q.F.A., why producers shipping milk of equivalent quality should not receive the same price for their product.

The brief expressed considerable dissatisfaction with their present system of marketing milk whereby each group of producers receives a different price for its product. It also pointed out that present methods of sale have led to the establishment of groups of producers who have a virtual monopoly on given markets and that this is leading to dislocations in the dairy industry. It criticized quota systems as leading to inefficient production and as incentives to certain groups of producers to increase their production. It pointed out that as much as 35% of the production of some fluid milk shippers is going surplus on the manufactured milk market, largely because these fluid shippers have been trying to increase their quota to the fluid market.

ON INCOME TAX

The decision to let the provinces set their own income tax rates with the federal government still doing all the collecting, will cause no increased trouble or confusion to the taxpayer as long as no province insists on changing the basis on which taxes are charged. But it will let him know whose hand is in his pocket and for how much.

Canadian uranium triggers political blasts in Commons

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
By Alex Morin, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, April 3 (CP) — Canadian uranium — 12,000 tons of it, still unmined — was causing atomic-sized political blasts in the Commons just recently.

And even after members of Parliament took their leave to enjoy Easter at home, a cloud of confusion continued to wrap the question of a 1957 deal with Britain for the sale of $192,000,000 worth of the material.

Through a clutter of charges and legalistic semantics, one of the more significant features was the stand Prime Minister Diefenbaker took in opposition to statements by Trade Minister Hees.

Core of the dispute was Mr. Diefenbaker's statement that no contract existed between Canada and the U.K. for providing the supply of uranium between 1963 and 1966.

Just a Letter

All that exists, he said, is a 1957 letter of intent from Britain to buy 12,000 tons of Canadian uranium at $8 a pound.

Mr. Diefenbaker repeated the statement seven times in answer to Opposition Leader Pearson's statement earlier that the government had concealed the existence of a contract while it watched uranium mines in Canada close for lack of orders. Mr. Pearson had called this incredible and shocking.

After Mr. Diefenbaker's statement, Mr. Pearson referred to March 2 and 3 testimony before the Commons research committee by W. M. Gilchrist, president of crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, that the contract was "firm".

The opposition leader also cited the following from a March 6 Commons statement by Mr. Hees: "The Canadian government through its crown corporation, the Eldorado Company, has a firm contract with the British Atomic Energy Authority. I have received from the British authorities no indication that they do not intend to honor this contract."

A Question Raised

Mr. Diefenbaker came back with the observation that the Liberals had formed the government when the letter of intent had been handed over in 1957 and that shortly after the Progressive Conservative party had come to power, the former Liberal Works Minister, Robert Winters, had become president of Rio Tinto Uranium Mines. A few months later, the late C. D. Howe, trade minister in the Liberal government, became a director of the same company.

"Naturally, these facts arouse a question amongst minds as to whether or not there might have been some communication on a question such as this, where a letter of intent had actually passed," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pearson pressed on with the argument that, if there was a commitment entered into at that time, it should have been carried to conclusion when the mines were closing as a means of saving them.

The government's attitude was "even more incomprehensible and incredible than I had previously thought it to be," he said.

A day later the battle ground shifted from the distinction between "letter of intent" and "firm contract" to "firm undertaking".

May Cut Price

Both Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Hees agreed that Britain was firmly committed to buy the 12,000 tons of uranium.

Although the government would consider letting the U.K. have the uranium at a lower price than the $8 agreed to in 1957, it would not negotiate for a reduction in the total tonnage to be purchased, said Mr. Hees.

But in the Commons research committee Mr. Gilchrist repeated that the government refining and mining agency regards the British letter of intent as a "firm contract".

Testimony before the committee resumed when the House reconvened, the week of April 10.

Share the driving

No sensible driver, whatever his experience, will ever attempt to set an endurance record in order to impress his fellow-travelers. He will rather let another person (if duly qualified) take his turn at the wheel. "Prudentia", the Provincial Highway Safety Committee, suggests that even if none of the co-occupants has a driver's permit, they can assist the driver in many ways — by remembering that his attention must not be detracted from the job he is performing, by looking up the map and advising as to the best route to follow. However, the fact of yielding the wheel, even for a short while, procures a needed relaxation on a prolonged run.

Postmaster General is enthusiastic for local press and public relations

The annual conference of the Canadian Postmasters Association (Quebec Division) drew an attendance of over 265 persons to Lachute last week-end. The gathering included the Hon. William Hamilton, minister of the Postal Department, officials of that department, and presidents or representatives from various provincial branches of the parent organization.

The convention was an unqualified success, despite a last-minute reverse in the matter of catering and accommodation Sunday afternoon, which necessitated a transfer to the civic auditorium for the business, reception and banquet.

Business discussions were held in the Council chamber, and according to Florian Guitard, local postmaster, who was host to this large gathering, prompt co-operation from the Chamber of Commerce and Town Council turned the tide, to permit a smooth-running program and general satisfaction all round. (Postmaster Guitard pays special tribute to Ald. S. Holt, Ald. J. P. Dorion, and the president and secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, Gaetan Leclair and Gabriel Valois, respectively, for their fine collaboration.)

The Hon. Wm. Hamilton, Postmaster General

This was the first time a conference of this organization had been held in Lachute. President of the Quebec group is Henri J. Roy, of Ste. Anne-des-Monts. The 265-odd delegates included representatives from Nova Scotia to British Columbia.

The afternoon reception was tendered by Lachute Chamber of Commerce, and an item on the program was an inspection of the Lachute central post-office.

The evening banquet climaxed this successful event. The Postmaster General and Mrs. Hamilton were among the head-table guests — the Hon. Mr. Hamilton presenting the pièce-de-resistance in his customary genial role as after-dinner speaker.

Postmaster General Addresses Gathering

Following are extracts from Mr. Hamilton's address:

"While the Post Office is one organization, there has been a tendency in the past for it to divide itself into two groups — the staff offices of the cities and the revenue offices of the country. This reflected both the difficulties of travel and communication, which isolated a great many small offices and a lack of effort on both the part of the department and the postmasters themselves to develop closer communication. Today, all this has been changed, with great benefits to our postal service and, I think, to our postmasters at smaller offices as well. The credit must go in large measure to the Canadian Postmasters Association itself, and its provincial branches, but I think it is also fair to claim some of the credit as a changed attitude on the part of senior postal officials.

Police-sponsored benefit dance

An adult dance to raise funds for the Lachute Police Athletic Association will be held in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening, May 26. All profits will be used towards the purchase of bugles and drums for the Athletic Association band. To date, the Association has 130 members, who are taking an active part in the sports offered by this enterprise.

Any local citizens having instruments that could be used by the band are asked to contact Police Chief A. J. Whiteway.

Exhibition here is part of broader Arts project

Emanating from the "Centre Dramatique" and a long-cherished plan of its promoters, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Laforest, it is hoped to give Lachute a considerable boost in cultural prestige with the ultimate development of an "Arts Centre".

For the past three years Mme Lebrun-Laforest has conducted her Centre Dramatique, with benefit to numerous young pupils in the art of oratory and diction.

Developing their ideal in the field of fine art, the proprietors invited a young Lachute artist, Guy Racine, to conduct lessons in painting and designing. This course was enjoyed by a number of young pupils.

Mr. Laforest, who last year sponsored an art show for local amateurs and professionals, also initiated an art course on conclusion of Mr. Racine's instruction. And again this year (from May 14 next) Mr. Laforest is arranging an exhibition, similar to last year's, to be augmented by professional exhibits from Montreal. Place of this exhibition is the Centre Dramatique premises in the Rio Theatre Building, Main Street West.

Mr. and Mrs. Laforest, both experienced in the rhetorical arts, in radio, television and other spheres, have enlisted local interest in their project to establish an Arts Centre which will be a credit to this community. The possibilities for child and adult development in cultural interests, and for recreation and entertainment of an uplifting order, are well worthy of support. . . . News of this project will be given out as plans develop and materialize.

Entries for the coming display should be filed before the end of April, and works submitted at the Centre's Studio (354 Main St., Lachute) on Fridays between 1.30 and 3.30; or on Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. (There will be a nominal entry fee for each exhibit.)

Further information on this show will be gladly given by telephone (LEcture 7-3367).

Week's Epigram

Canadian Library Week

The man who does not read, is no better off than the man who cannot read. Reading is the key that opens many doors.

Local associations with Jack Miner

The National Wildlife Week editorial in last week's Watchman has prompted information on a fact of local interest — namely, that a Lachute man, Gordon Miner, is the grand-nephew of the renowned bird-lover and conservationist Jack Miner, of Kingsville, Ont., whose memory this national anniversary perpetuates.

Gordon Miner, of Thomas Street, Lachute, is employed with Canadian Golf Landscaping, a firm headed here by Howard Watson. . . . It is interesting to note that on a lake constructed by Mr. Watson in the Medellin, Colombia, golf course around 1950-51, the first duck to settle on the surface was one which bore a tag from Jack Miner's sanctuary in the Lake Erie town of Kingsville.

The late Jack Miner, a deeply religious man, referred to his birds as "flying missionaries". Their legs were often banded with a plate bearing a scripture verse, and it is recorded that in far-distant South American countries, a missionary would sometimes preach on the scripture which appeared on these tags.

Truck hit pole, driver arrested

Andre Miron, 24, of St. Julien Street, was arrested early Sunday morning and charged with impaired driving, following an accident at the corner of Chatham Street and Brownsburg Road.

The accident occurred when the small truck allegedly driven by Miron, crashed into a pole carrying both Bell Telephone and Gatineau Power cables. The pole was smashed into several pieces.

Csts. Felix L'Allier and André Laurin investigated and made the arrest.

Entry and theft at High School

An estimated $200 to $250 in cash, and three cheques totalling $94, were reported stolen from the office of F. H. J. Royal, Lachute High School principal, sometime over the week-end. Members of the Lachute Police Department were called to the scene and have the case under investigation.

According to Chief A. J. Whiteway, it was believed that entry to the school was gained by a rear basement door and, once inside, the thieves attempted to get into the principal's office. Finding this impossible, they went outside the building and entered the office by means of a window, placing a ladder against the building.

The money was taken from a cash box in a desk. An attempt to force the vault was unsuccessful.

Physician charged in woman's death

Dr. Basil Duncan Robertson, a 60-year-old surgeon practising at Morin Heights, was on Tuesday morning found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury in the death of Miss Anita Desaulniers, 32, of Montreal, who, according to evidence presented, succumbed to an illegal operation on Tuesday of last week.

Following the death, Dr. Robertson notified the local coroner, Dr. A. R. Cote, who in turn called Traffic Officer Sam Kille. The latter went to the scene and notified Montreal detectives of the Quebec Provincial Police.

The body was taken to the Montreal morgue, where an autopsy was performed by Dr. J. P. Valcourt, medico-legal expert. His findings were presented at the inquest and confirmed the suspicions of the arresting officers. Dr. Robertson will appear in St. Jerome court where a probable charge of manslaughter will be laid.

Initial returns indicate $4,000 Cancer donations

The sound of ringing doorbells signalled the start of the 1961 "blitz" of the Canadian Cancer Society, Monday night in Lachute. Volunteers from Lachute, Lachute Mills and Ayersville visited homes of friends and neighbors to distribute educational leaflets which could save their lives — according to Dr. Eric Mongeon, co-chairman of the appeal.

"Every door in the community opened to welcome our Crusaders," Dr. Mongeon said. "If everyone followed the advice contained in the leaflet left in each home, more than 8,000 lives could be saved. This is the number of men, women and children who die of cancer in Canada each year but who could have been saved by heeding the simple advice stressed in the Canadian Cancer Society's educational program."

Early returns from the appeal indicate that Argenteuil will exceed last year's total, according to Jim McOuat, district chairman, who reported that over $4,000.00 had already been collected in the local drive.

"If anyone has been overlooked in the Crusade or was unable to contribute when the Canadian Cancer Society volunteer solicitor called," Mr. McOuat said, "I urge that he send his cheque or money order to the Canadian Cancer Society office at 520 Foundry Street. Every contribution brings us that much closer to victory over a disease which strikes in three of four families.

"This appeal means more than just taking up a collection. Our first objective is to provide everyone in the community with life-saving leaflets. This is part of the Society's educational program, which has been largely responsible for the fact that 100,000 Canadians are alive today, cured of cancer.

"Each of us has a responsiblity in the fight against cancer. This responsibility can be expressed in a simple sentence of two-letter words: 'If it is to be, it is up to me.'

"If you have not contributed, please do so. If you have not received your life-saving literature on the seven danger signals of cancer and information on the annual health check-up, please ask for it, whether you have contributed or not."

Joint dist. coroner appointment for Dr. Roger Lavigne

With the appointment of Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, reported last week, comes the announcement of Dr. Roger Lavigne as joint district coroner named by the Quebec Attorney General's Department. His duties are commissioned in the judicial district of Terrebonne and the electoral district of Argenteuil.

Dr. Lavigne is well known in Lachute and district. Born at Mont Tremblant, he was educated at Ste. Therese Seminary and the University of Montreal; after receiving his medical degree he interned in several city hospitals, before establishing his practice here in 1947. He is an ex-president of the Richelieu Club and of the Providence Hospital medical board.

Morin Hts. citizen found dead in his home

Aange Madsen, a 60-year-old artist and sculptor, of Morin Heights, was found dead in the basement of his home on Sunday. His wife was out of the house at the time of his death, and discovered the body upon her return, shortly before noon.

Sgt.-Det. Aimé Bertrand and Traffic Officer Sam Kille were called to the scene and investigated the death.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED —

Home and School group reviews an active year

The regular meeting of the Lachute and District Home and School Association was held at the High School on April 12. The president, Mrs. J. Thorpe, was in the chair, and there were 22 members present.

Mrs. Thorpe reported that members had helped Mrs. R. Rigby to make costumes for the concerts and had also helped provide costumes for a play.

Mr. E. Gow reported for the program committee that there was a greater attendance at meetings this year on account of the increased membership. However, the largest attendance, 120 at the "Meet the Teacher" night, still represented only about one-third of the parents.

Mr. G. Rodger reported for the membership committee that every family who has children at school was contacted by letter; 346 letters were written, and 224 families joined the Association. The average attendance at meetings was 60. Miss Soule's Grade VII-A won the attendance banner the most number of times.

Mrs. G. Higginson reported for the clothing bank committee that approximately 20 visits had been made to families needing school clothing, and about 50 articles of clothing were given. She thanked her committee and those who had donated clothing.

As a representative of the Home and School Association, Mrs. Higginson has attended the Regional Welfare Coordination meetings once a month, and two families have been helped through this medium.

Mrs. G. Dobbie reported for the education committee that they had studied "Operation Bootstraps" and had come to the conclusion that this Association at the present time could not form the committees and study groups to undertake this project. . . . There had been no skate sale this year, but several students and parents had enquired about it. The suggestion was also made that a tunic sale or exchange be held in early September. . . . Mrs. Dobbie also reported a most generous response to the request for prizes for the scholarship whist.

The liaison committee is busy actively studying the curriculum; the question of having a Grade XII; the teaching of Latin and Trigonometry; and the desirability of having a lady Gymnastics teacher and a school nurse.

Mrs. G. McOuat reported that "class mothers" had been appointed in the first three grades for those teachers requesting them.

Mr. Gow reported that the police had been very cooperative in the matter of traffic safety and had provided a policeman at the Main Street crossing when the children are coming out of school.

Mrs. Thorpe then presented the president's report, in which she reviewed the work of the Association during the past year and commented upon its aims and accomplishments.

On a recent questionnnaire on school uniforms for boys, Mrs. Thorpe remarked that all results were not yet received, but so far about half the parents were in favor of it.

Officers Appointed for 1961-62

Mrs. S. Milnes then read the report of the nominating committee, and the slate of officers was accepted as follows:

President, E. Gow; 2nd vice-president, F. Jeffery; recording secretary, Mrs. F. Jeffery; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Vessie; treasurer, C. Demerse.

Program Committee — E. Gow, Mrs. Mac Walker, B. Jenkins, Mrs. A. J. Whiteway, C. McOuat.

Membership Committee — T. Smith, Mrs. L. Holt, Mrs. J. Hadley, Mrs. McOuat.

Hospitality Committee — Mrs. W. Butterfield, Mrs. S. Jones.

Clothing Bank — Mrs. J. Gorman, Mrs. G. Higginson.

Scholarship Committee — Mrs. G. Dobbie, Mrs. I. W. Jones, H. Booth, R. Bell.

Liaison to School Board — Mrs. S. Patterson, Mrs. A. Vessie, Mrs. J. McOuat.

Costumes — Mrs. G. Tabrett, Mrs. R. Swail.

Publicity — Mrs. J. Thorpe.

Class Mothers — Mrs. G. McOuat.

Traffic Safety — A. J. Whiteway.

Applications for the H. and S. scholarship are to be received by April 30.

The provincial conference is to be held in Montreal on May 5-6. Mrs. Vessie and Mr. Gow agreed to try to attend these meetings. There is also a traffic safety conference in Montreal on May 1-2-3. Chief Whiteway will be asked if he can attend this conference.

The members were reminded of the "scholarship whist" to be held April 19 and were asked for their full support.

The question was asked why there were no students from Lachute High School in the Lions' public speaking contest, and Principal Fred Royal replied that none were interested in competing this year.

Newly appointed joint registrar

advocate of this town and former M.P. for Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, who has been appointed joint County Registrar, according to order-in-council dated April 15. The registrarship will now be under the official name of Calder and Valois.

Brownsburg man on NATO duty in Germany

Flight Lieutenant Marcel J. Ouellette (left), son of Mrs. Richard Ouellette, Rosedale Avenue, Brownsburg, checks an air map with his pilot, F/L Gerard Demers of Sherbrooke, before taking off on a training flight in the skies over Western Europe. F/L Ouellette is a navigator with the RCAF's 419 (Moose) Squadron based at 4 Fighter Wing, Baden-Soellingen, Germany.

Baden-Soellingen, Germany — The "Top CF-100 Gunnery Squadron in the RCAF". — This modest claim to flying fame, neatly lettered on a huge sign, welcomes visitors to what is officially known as 419 CF-100 All-Weather jet interceptor Squadron, but which is perhaps almost as well known as "Bruce the Moose" Squadron, based at the RCAF's No. 4 Fighter Wing here.

The Men of the Moose have chalked up an impressive record since arriving here on NATO duty in August, 1957.

During its stay to date in Europe, 419 has won all-weather honors in rocketry and gunnery. The squadron has never been beaten in gunnery in an all-weather competition, and has placed first in every rocket shoot, except in 1959. It was presented with its most recent rocketry trophy last December.

Commanding the Moose Squadron is Wing Commander Philip E. Etienne, a 39-year-old pilot from Montreal.

Serving as a member of 419 Squadron is Flight Lieutenant Marcel J. Ouellette, a 31-year-old navigator who is the son of Mrs. Richard Ouellette, Brownsburg. Born in Brownsburg, and educated there and at Montebello, Que., he joined the RCAF in 1949, was trained as a navigator, and served at Saint John N.B., before he was assigned to 419 Squadron in 1960. He is married to the former Rolande Hebert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emile Hebert of Brownsburg. They have five children and live in the German town of Schwartzach.

The Squadron was first formed in England in 1941 as the third RCAF bomber unit overseas under the command of W/C John (Moose) Fulton, a Canadian in the RAF. It was from this first commander that the squadron acquired its wartime "nickname" which was later embodied in the unit badge.

Safari over grim Spring highways

Sept Iles, Que., April 10 — Well, here we go again — rambling. . . . Leaving Lachute on Saturday about 10 a.m., we pulled into Seven Islands at 12.30 Monday morning. All I can say is, what a trip — in a truck, that is.

It was after 12.30 before we cleared the Island of Montreal, and from then on it was stop all the way. I think every Provincial Police officer in the province stopped me. You see, we were travelling on Transit Permits, that is, no licenses. Well, anyway, we managed to make Baie St. Paul by late Saturday night. To tell the truth by the time we bedded down in the old flea sack, we were bushed. We were travelling alone, as something unexpected had come up and we couldn't go in convoy. We are not supposed to travel on a Sunday in any commercial vehicle, but with my persuasive way, we managed to get to Godbout by Sunday night. This I must tell you about. . . . Imagine taking over three hours to travel six miles! Hard to believe, I know, but anything you ever had around home is wonderful compared to this. Any truck driver will appreciate this, down in creeper or bull-gear for the whole distance. The truck steamed like a calliope before we were finished. Naturally, everything in the back has been jammed around, and we haven't looked at it as yet. My guess is that everything is bust, or out of commission.

Incidentally, from Baie Comeau to Seven Islands is 161 miles by road, and about 10 miles of it is paved. A sidelight for Edith was counting the cars that were in the ditch and had been left just where they landed. The models ran anywhere from a 1953 to a 1960. Strange to leave them there, you think. But not too strange; after buying two cups of coffee and an order of toast 60 cents, you would think twice before getting a wrecking truck about 75 miles. More than the car is worth, after an accident!

I must tell you about this Godbout. We got in about 10 p.m. Sunday night, and the only accommodation was in a construction hotel. You know the type of place. The best of it was, no rooms were available. But Ede finally got one. She talked to the owner a couple of minutes, and he ultimately throws a guy out of his room for one night. By the time we got supper the room was all cleaned up and ready for us. I guess the owner had to bunk in with one of his cronies.

We left Godbout about 7 a.m., and somewhere along the way I lost an hour. That got me going in for breakfast at what I thought was 6.30, only to find out it was 5.30. Running over the last 100 miles was easy. By this time the graders had been out and smoothed the roads. Don't get me wrong; when you consider what these roads had to go through, they are terrific. Some of the rock passes are a good 100 feet high; they have signs up, "Watch out for falling rock." A nice thing to see late at night! Gives you the willies, until you get through. Reaching Seven Islands, all that can be seen is red dust. It clings to everything. So the first thing on the docket was a bath, and by the time I got through scraping off the layers of this goo, I'm at least 5 pounds lighter.

Naturally, Goldie came along with us. She lay on my knee all the way, making it a little rough to steer sometimes. She is in a dog's heaven of repose right now — on the hotel bed, dead to the world. — As soon as I get this written, me too!

There is one thing that deserves comment. We all know the Province of Quebec is telling tourists to "See Quebec." That is a good thing, the scenery is wonderful — but I do think a little more English could be spoken in some of these places. True, the majority are French-Canadians and should cherish their culture; however, the money being brought into this area is not French, but American and they should try in some way to cater to them. To illustrate, in one of these villages which seem to be doing a thriving business on the tourists, we entered a restaurant, and before we got what we wanted, Edith had to go into the kitchen and show them. (Just a thought about the whole thing, for what its worth.)

And a last word on this "See Quebec first". Believe me, it will be worthwhile. Words cannot describe the raw and majestic beauty of some of these sights.

April 12 — I was in such a hurry to get that first letter out to you that some of the more interesting things were overlooked.

As you know, the trip from Montreal to Quebec is routine, just one of those things. But getting east from Quebec on the north shore, Nature starts emphasizing her importance.

Montmorency Falls in winter, is a spectacle to behold. Passing them on Sunday as they glistened in the bright sun, revealed a beauty never to be forgotten. Huge spheres of ice hung from the cliffs, in one case spanning the full width of the falls.

After about 50 miles of travel you enter some of the most forbidding country you can hope to see. Mountains, small compared to the Rockies, but having their own particular craggy structure. There is not much evidence of spring, with the exception of the odd small stream running.

I get some kind of feeling, when I gaze upon things like this, of our complete lack of knowledge of Nature's ways.

The country is all heavily wooded and very hilly right up to a small place called Clark's Corner. From then on it rapidly flattens out, and all that can be seen is the ravages of fire. Mile after mile of charred trees. Not a bird or living creature. Desolation in the worst way, but even this has its tragic beauty. It makes you realize just how many forces and impediments are working against nature. One thing was queer; you would pass long stretches where not a living twig or tree could be seen, then, for some unexplained reason, a patch of trees that had survived the holocaust. In these areas crows and seagulls made their appearance, but elsewhere all was dead.

I mentioned previously about the cars abandoned along the right of way. It's a regular junk dealer's paradise! We did notice a couple of late-model cars which had plunged down the banks and caught fire. One can understand, in a remote area like this, the cost of having them hauled out would be prohibitive.

Another sidelight was the crossing the Saguenay River. With the heavy ice coming down the river, the forward progress was sometimes in reverse. It seemed we crossed the river a half dozen times before we got over. The power of this ferry was tremendous, yet at times it seemed alarmingly weak against the current and the ice. Only one ferry runs on Sunday; so people sometimes have to wait a long time to get across. We saw men working to clear the landing area of ice so the ferry could come alongside — then the ferry shoved it all back as it came in!

The numbers of tracked vehicles around here, is also notable. Some of these are the bombardier type; they sure can whip along the snow, plowing out of the bush alongside as you travel on the highway.

Untold work and planning must have gone into this Seven Islands development. Hundreds of miles of power lines; thousands of acres of land and bush cleared before they could be put in. As Edith remarked, "If the people in Montreal could only get to some of these hills for their skiing!"

I know we all kick about roads at some time or other, but when I think back on these roads, I don't think I'll ever beef again! The last part of this highway is something to see — it makes you speculate how many thousands of tons of dynamite were used, how many men employed on its construction.

The bay at Seven Islands is choked with heavy ice. Having seen the North River break up and flowing once again, I'm not too entranced with this return to winter!

Drastic changes in NHL 'Canadiens' before next season

SPORTS CAMERA
By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Chicago Black Hawks' triumph has gone down in history — their names inscribed once more on the Stanley Cup.

In Montreal meanwhile, no sooner had the Canadiens gone down in defeat in the semi-finals, than the threats of personnel changes cropped up. Montreal general manager Frank Selke said that at least four men will be chopped from the Canadiens club for next season. He didn't say who, but mentioned defence and left-wing as positions to be considered.

Replacements will be sought among seasoned players rather than newcomers, indicating the team will be in a trading mood in the off-season.

"With the exception of one good defenceman, I don't feel we have anybody in our organization of farm clubs who can do the job next year," Selke said. Jean Gauthier, of Hull-Ottawa Canadiens in the Eastern Professional Hockey League, is understood to be the defenceman referred to.

Was Thankful

Selke said he would have done some player cutting last year, but: "In thankfulness for winning the cup in eight games last season, I kept players I had intended to drop. There will be drastic changes made before next October."

There was painful irony for Selke in losing to the Hawks in the N.H.L. semi-finals. When the Habs were in their heyday and the Hawks were wallowing down in last place in the league race. Selke dealt off player after player to help the weaker link.

Six former Montrealers — Eddie Litzenberger, Murray Balfour, Billy Hay, Dollard St. Laurent, Ab McDonald and Reg Fleming — played prominent roles in the spectacular upset. Selke also said Canadiens will toss their muscle around more next season. "We have been playing nice, clean hockey for too long. The Hawks deliberately racked up five of our best players and not one of the Canadiens lifted a hand in retaliation."

The "B" series concluded with St. Andrew's (Mrs. W. Bridge) 13 and Bluebirds (Mrs. H. Riddell) 7; All-Stars (Reg Stansfield) 13 and Redwings (Grace Rosser) 3. The semi-final was — All-Stars 13 and St. Andrew's 12.

The annual banquet is being held next Monday, and the two finalists will meet in contest after the dinner.

Buckingham downs Bombers to take Portelance trophy

Brownsburg — Well, it's finally over! The Brownsburg Bombers had to give up the Portelance Cup to the Buckingham Aces, after the Aces beat the 'Burg 4-3 in the final series.

On Thursday, the Bombers went to Buckingham, down 3-2 in the series, but came through with a 5-4 overtime score to tie up the series. The winning goal was scored by Mel Stewart.

Saturday evening, before a crowd of over 900 fans, the Buckingham squad duplicated Brownsburg's feat when Frank MacDonnell scored in the first overtime period.

The 'Burg had taken a 2-1 first period lead, on goals by Gary Keatley and Mel Tomalty. At the end of the second stanza, they led 4-2 after Charlebois and Keatley had scored. In the third period Buckingham had the best of the play, and they scored twice to put the game into overtime.

At 1.11 of the overtime period, MacDonnell took a pass from Hayes and scored with a 20-footer that caught the lower right-hand corner.

To the many Buckingham fans who had come down for the game, it was a time for celebration; they flooded the ice to congratulate their players. After the teams had shaken hands, they retired to the dressing rooms. In the Aces' room, the cup was filled with champagne and passed among the players. After a short celebration, they left for Buckingham, where a party awaited them. . . . For the Bombers it was off to the Flamingo to drown their sorrows!

The Brownsburg organization would like to thank all their loyal supporters who, by their attendance at games, and their purchasing of score tickets, have given the Bombers a successful season.

Since the finals were not over by April 15, the Hockey Dance originally scheduled for that date, has been moved to April 29. It will be held as usual in the Flamingo Grill, starting at 8.30 p.m. The winners of the "Pay-What-You-Pull" raffle will also be drawn at this time. — Come one, come all!

Speaker and films at meeting of Arg'l Fishing Association

Around 100 fishing enthusiasts gathered Monday evening at the Argenteuil Fishing Association meeting to hear the reading of rules and regulations, and an outline of the 1961 program. Guest speaker was Firmin Bourque, general superintendent of fish and game services for the Montreal district.

Mr. Bourque launched his topic with a reference to the Ottawa and North River and prospects for anti-pollution measures. He urged every effort for the protection of fishing, especially in this County with its 500 lakes. On the subject of deer, he observed that wolves take a greater toll than poachers of this species. The speaker also mentioned steps to improve the number, the lot, and the qualifications of Quebec's fish and game officers. . . . The talk concluded with an interesting question period.

Seated at the head-table besides Mr. Bourque were Arthur Larouche, deputy inspector of fish and game authorities in Argenteuil, Deux Montagnes and Papineau counties; Adelard Gagné, district game warden; Paul Desjardins, Sr., president of the Association, who introduced the speaker; J. P. Dion, 1st vice-president; Hector Lepage, 2nd vice-president; Henri St. Onge, secretary-treasurer, who extended thanks to the speaker; Paul Desjardins, Jr., recording secretary; Denis St. Jacques, publicist; Marcel Belanger, Agapit Roy, Ernest Villemaire, Claude and Hubert Provost, directors.

A drawing for a boat is on the program for this season.

Two fishing films were enjoyed in conclusion of the evening's agenda.

Dedication of new St. Andrews parish church

His Excellency Mgr. Emilien Frenette, Bishop of the St. Jerome Diocese, officiated at the blessing of the new parish church at St. Andrews East. The new church — replacing the edifice destroyed by fire in December 1958 — was filled to capacity for the opening ceremonies, and for the confirmation of 117 candidates presented by the parish priest, the Rev. Father Hospice Rivest. The recent observances were a milestone in the life of this long-established Catholic congregation. Above is seen a portion of the structure, with its modern belfry and exterior contour, and a part of the crowd emerging from the doors, after the first visit of the Bishop Frenette to St. Andrews in four years.

LEGION NOTES

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

April — The month when nature begins to stir and another spring and summer are just around the corner. . . . But back around 46 corners stands the April of 1915. This is an April which is recorded in indelible ink as a noble part of our history. An April stained red with the blood of thousands of Canadian soldiers, whose exploits at Ypres and Vimy Ridge will never be forgotten. This is the April where so many Canadians fought and died or, wounded, lived to fight again. Truly an April of bitter memories. . . . And what of the Aprils of 1940 to 45? Many an additional epic was added to the annals of Canadian history. Let us hope that all those Aprils marching past in review were not in vain, and that our future generations will not be called upon to add their names to those long lists of men who have fought to keep the free flags flying.

Wednesday, April 5, was the wind-up of the winter's cribbage tournaments between Lachute and Brownsburg. On the season's play, Brownsburg were victorious over Lachute by 9 games, and captured the Molson trophy. S. Hall and D. Graham of Brownsburg were top dogs on the evening's play. Rene Paulson and Floyd Bradford of Lachute were high men for Branch 70. Both groups received prizes donated by Molson's. . . . These Wednesday night beans n' crib get-to-gethers have proved very successful and the challenge is already out for next winter.

Saturday, April 22, is installation night of our Ladies' Auxiliary. A dance will be held after the ceremonies. This has always been a popular event, and this year should prove to be no exception.

Com. Rene Paulson, chairman of the Sports and Entertainment committee, is in the midst of plans to wind-up the winter's hockey activities with a closing banquet. Plans are also being formulated for a new Legion Playground. Unfortunately, the baseball field that we had in the past will not be available this year. If anyone is interested in forming a horse-shoe pitching league, please contact Com. Doug Ogilvy.

The provincial darts and cribbage tournament will be held in Montreal next week-end; it is hoped that Branch 70 will be represented in these events.

Branch efforts are being concentrated on the provincial convention, to be held in Lachute this May. The various committees are in full swing. A part of these activities will be a band concert, with music supplied by the RCOC band. Comrade Bernard Jenkins is hard at work on the brochure, which will be issued to all delegates. This will include a special on our 25th Anniversary and a much-needed history of the branch.

Branch 70 would like to offer congratulations to Chief A. J. Whiteway on the bicycle clinics being held under his guidance. The bike riders of today are the drivers of tomorrow. Proper observance of all safety rules and traffic signals by both young and old, is necessary to cut down on our high rate of traffic accidents.

How are those raffle tickets going, men? Carl Demers will be only too glad to supply more, if and when you need them. A pony, or the equivalent in cold cash, for two bits — there's a bargain that you haven't seen since you flogged that deck of cigarettes to the civvy in the pub at Guildford!

Writer calls for tougher laws for drinking drivers

"If you drink, don't drive" has become "almost a sick joke — something to kid about at parties," because laws in Canada aren't nearly so tough as they ought to be about drinking drivers.

That's the contention of reporter Dennis Braithwaite, who says in a recent MacLean's Magazine issue, that it's time two steps were taken to get the "dangerously irresponsible tippler" off the road: taking breath-alyzer tests compulsory, and imposing a legal limit on the amount of alcohol a person may have in his blood and still drive.

Support for both measures is growing in Canada, says Braithwaite, and though the "breathalyzer" is sometimes opposed on grounds that it calls on an accused man to help incriminate himself, "there are plenty of precedents for it in other lands, and its constitionality has been established here in Canada" through laws passed in Saskatchewan.

"Highway safety is one of our major problems," he points out. "Vast sums are spent on law enforcement, improvement of roads, and an unceasing program of public education. Yet for some reason we are doing nothing to curb the drinking driver, who may be the biggest menace of all."

Family Allowance and Old Age pensions augmented in Quebec

By Russ Peden, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec (CP) — The tabling of Premier Jean Lesage's first provincial budget, and stormy passing of Quebec's new Liquor Act, were two highlights of busy legislature sessions in Quebec last week.

The budget featured a shift — but little or no reduction — in taxation, and three social welfare measures tailored to assist the aged and boost high school attendance.

Increased high school attendance appeared to be the aim of a $10 monthly allowance for each child between 16 and 18 who attends school.

This Provincial Family Allowance program, to be implemented in September, is the first to be established in Canada. It was designed to supplement the Federal Family Allowance, which expires when a child reaches age 16.

Another welfare measure was a $10 monthly increase to all old-age pensioners aged 65 or over. An allowance would be paid to needy widows and spinsters starting at age 60, but the amount of the allowance was not disclosed.

Mr. Lesage, Quebec's finance minister, said he proposed to repeal the two-percent tax on fuel oil and exempt meals of 99 cents or less from the five-percent restaurant tax. The restaurant tax now is levied on all meals of 60 cents or more.

But, he announced, the five-percent tax would be extended to the sale of alcoholic beverages in all establishments. It would not apply, however, to beer sold in taverns or by licensed grocers or to liquor sold at Quebec Liquor Board outlets.

Yield from the tax on liquor served in restaurants was not announced, but government sources indicated it would roughly make up for the estimated $2,500,000 loss of revenue from tax cuts on fuel oil and meals.

Deputy Revenue Minister George Shink said the tax cuts will take effect May 1.

Mr. Lesage said the 1961-62 fiscal year will close with a deficit of $107,264,844. He forecast revenues totalling $686,461,000 and expenditures of $793,725,844.

The program of expenditures — a record — exceeds $1,000,000,000 if federal contributions of $141,000,000 are included.

ADULT EDUCATION

Vancouver (CP) — The number of participants in British Columbia's adult education program will soon be one-third larger. The increase was made possible by a $150,000 Ford Foundation Fund Grant.

Postmaster General enthusiastic for local press, public relations

"This past year our service carried — for the first time in history — more than four billion pieces of mail — more than 200 pieces for every man, woman and child in Canada. For the first time, we achieved a revenue in excess of $200 million, and spent a similar sum in handling the mails and in improving our services. At the same time we managed to handle this vast volume of mail more economically and more efficiently than has ever been the case in the past. During the last Christmas rush season, for example, we set new standards of speed and efficiency in almost every office in Canada — and saved more than three-quarters of a million dollars while doing it.

"The Province of Quebec has been the scene for one of the most interesting experiments we have carried out in the carriage of mail by the railways. I refer to the 'piggy-back' experiment operated a few months ago on an experimental basis between Quebec City and Toronto, where we attempted to combine the best features of rail and highway services in the movement of the mails. Although this experiment has been completed, we are now assessing the results both from a financial and an operational point of view, and we are comparing the service rendered with other experiments along the same line carried out between Toronto and Ottawa.

"It seems basic to me that, to a large extent, the efficiency of the mail service depends on the quality of our relations with out patrons. To put it in reverse — poor customer relations is a luxury the postal service cannot afford.

"I feel that our relations with the public are inextricably tied in with our relations with the press. Particularly in the more modest-sized communities of this country, public opinion is still moulded and shaped, to a large extent, by the local press. If the press is not for us, much of the community is against us.

"As postmasters, I believe that you have a responsibility that goes beyond the cultivation of good relationship with your patrons. It is also your responsibility, in your community, to ensure that your press is informed — that your local newspapers are cultivated effectively, that the public image of the postal service, as seen through the eye of the press, is a good one.

"I am not suggesting that your job is to rush into print on every possible occasion, or to bear the flaming torch of postal publicity to the doorstep of your local newspaper day in or day out. Not at all. Your job is to handle the mails, first and foremost. . . . But it is your job to go to considerable pains to maintain a friendly and co-operative attitude with your local press. . . . Newspaper editors do not like obvious publicity seekers. But even less do they like the public servant who evades and dodges, who passes the buck, who feels that the postal service is none of the public's business. Your press wants you to be friendly, helpful, informative.

"Big cities are impersonal places. In smaller communities, personal atmosphere still applies and, generally speaking, press relations are a less critical, less complex subject to maintain. You can and should know the editor of your newspaper personally. You can and should be familiar with the executive staff of your local radio stations. Good press relations begin with good personal relations, and cannot succeed without them.

"But success in the field of good press relations is like success in almost any other field you can name. It depends on integrity and effort — a conscientious desire to do a good and effective job. Because of this, I am sure that the postmasters of the Province of Quebec, and of Canada, will be successful. In the postal service, conscientious effort has always been the rule, rather than the exception. It is this rule that has so often impressed me as I travel about the country and meet the people who make our service work."

The car for people who like boats

A Volkswagen will cost you a thousand dollars less than most conventional cars, and half as much to run. You'll save enough to buy a boat and trailer. (Or a trip to Europe, or the best part of a backyard pool.)

The car you'll get to go with it is designed and built to meet the needs and fit the pocket of the average family. Big enough for two adults, three growing kids and luggage. Small enough to park where other cars can't.

Because we don't believe in costly style changes, we can build more quality into the car. A VW doesn't date and it doesn't deteriorate. It just keeps running around, year after year, looking as up-to-the-minute as the ones in the showroom.

You can expect to get 38 miles from a gallon of gas under normal driving conditions. You'll never need oil between changes.

You can cruise all day in the sun, or dawdle for hours in a jam. The Volkswagen can't boil over because its engine is air cooled. It's far from unusual for a Volkswagen to go 60,000 miles without a major repair.

If you'd like to buy a boat for anything else for a thousand dollars, see your Volkswagen dealer. He'll show you the car that will raise your standard of living.

Lachute lady was lifelong resident here

Late Mrs. Alex Doig

On April 11 one of the older residents of the Lachute district passed away, in the person of Mrs. Alex Doig, in her 81st year.

A daughter of the late Thomas Black and his wife, Margaret Bilsland, she was born and raised on the family farm in East Settlement.

She spent almost her entire life in the Lachute district, except for two years she lived in Burlington, Vt., before her marriage to Alexander Doig on September 5, 1905.

She was a devoted mother and grandmother, and a staunch supporter of her church. She was endowed with all the finest attributes of the Scottish race.

A keen student of Argenteuil history, she told many interesting anecdotes about past events in this county.

She was an unfailing contributor to local charities and no "knight of the road" ever knocked at her door without being invited in for a hearty meal. A farm woman, with a deep love of the soil and the family acres, she will be sadly missed by those who loved and respected her.

She leaves to mourn her passing one son, Paul A. Doig, of Vancouver, B.C., two daughters, Irene (Mrs. Edward Craig), of Pointe Claire, and Myrtle (Mrs. Norman Thorburn), of Lachute, and four grandchildren, William and David Doig, of Vancouver, and George and Linda Thorburn, of Lachute.

Active in politics, he was a provincial candidate for the Conservative party in Argenteuil County in 1936.

Noted Irish cleric visited Lachute

Guests of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Armour last week were the Very Rev. Professor R. J. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, from Belfast, Northern Ireland. Prof. Wilson, acting principal and professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Studies in the Assembly's College, Belfast, was Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland from 1957-1958. He is in Canada principally to receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Knox College, Toronto, where he will also deliver the convocation address on Tuesday, April 25.

Prof. and Mrs. Wilson went to Ottawa on Wednesday last to meet the Prime Minister, on a personal invitation extended to them when Mr. Diefenbaker was in Belfast a few weeks ago. They are travelling across Canada, and, after Prof. Wilson's reception of his degree, will fly to Dallas, Texas, to attend the Centennial Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Later this summer a chartered plane will bring some 40 Irish ministers on a holiday tour of various parts of Canada.

W.I. technicians held courses

Mrs. A. Wells, Q.W.I. technician from Macdonald College, was in Lachute last week holding a sewing course sponsored by Upper Lachute-East End W.I. The course was held in the Lachute United Church, and was attended by members of four local Women's Institutes.

Miss Janet McOuat was also in St. Andrews for two evenings holding a cooking class, and several ladies of this vicinity took advantage of this class.

Successful venture to aid Retarded Children's School

At a social gathering held a couple of weeks ago, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clark expressed their desire to aid the Lachute Association for Retarded Children, and that in this connection they would be happy to provide, at reduced price, the necessary maple syrup for a "taffy party", also a place to hold such an event.

Immediately neighbors, friends and relatives offered to help, all wishing to show, in some way, their gratitude that their children are normal and able to enjoy the many opportunities and pleasures that are available for young people, as well as grown-ups.

Many contributed to the cause with gifts of money, home-made candy, sandwiches, etc. Several cases of soft drinks were donated by Jas. P. MacKimmie & Sons; paper containers by J. C. Wilson Ltd.; a case of Seven-Up by Chevrier Lachute Ltée; and advertising by Giles Publishing House.

The sum of approximately $128 was realized by this effort. This has been forwarded to the treasurer of the Association, Mrs. Robt. Cairns.

The parents who are chiefly concerned with the progress of all retarded children in this district, are deeply grateful to all who in any way contributed to this venture, and to others who help to promote the success of the school here.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Must this continue?

"SIMON'S CROSSING" rings an ominous note in these parts — a place suggestive of disaster. Through the years it has come to be associated with death and injury and twisted metal. It is perhaps unfortunate that it has not the same dire implication to strangers outside this County — motorists who do not know it by name or reputation — for they, too often, are the unsuspecting victims of its treacherous curves.

For many years it was agitated to have this crossing marked with a flashing warning signal. This was done, but still the accidents occur. Another death was recorded at the spot last week.

Since the accidents now occurring do not involve trains, but cars alone in trouble with the sinuous highway — it cannot be expected that the C.P.R. should foot the bill for further safeguards. It is rather a matter for the Provincial Roads Department, to broaden the curve on each side by acquiring necessary land; to ensure clear visibility and maintain warning signs for all to see — the careless, the wary, and even the befuddled. (True, one would think the present signs sufficient, but in some sad cases they still are passed unnoticed.)

We strongly recommend that — between Ayersville Municipality, the County Council, the provincial traffic officers, or whichever authority may be concerned — the Quebec Highways Department should be prevailed upon immediately to study and remedy this danger spot.

Protecting young Canadians

A LOCAL PHYSICIAN gave a talk on Cancer (a timely topic this month) before a service club audience recently. He dealt simply, and capably, with his subject, and effectively impressed his message . . . with one admonition, however: that we should keep this hazard in its proper perspective. The doctor remarked that accidents were a more vicious and undiscriminating killer than cancer, and emphasized the accident toll among Canada's innocent children.

Having concentrated our publicity recently on cancer, it is opportune now to heed the ever-present threat of accidents — accidents to young people, even in the shelter of our homes. . . .

We all abhor the thought of cruelty to children. In our environment, a child's world should be a place of comfort and security, and we flatter ourselves that now, more than ever, we have succeeded in providing such a place for our children.

We are saving them from polio, tuberculosis, smallpox and other dread diseases that have threatened them in the past, and we provide them with more creature comforts and shining baubles than our forbears could have imagined. Yet with all our attentions, all of us who at any time have charge of a child are burdened with the knowledge that nearly 2,000 of our young people are killed in Canada every year by accidents.

Home accidents are taking well over half of this toll of young life, and yet ironically this environment could be made the safest place in the child's world. A child's safety in the home depends largely on two things, both of them adult charges. First, he must be protected, as a helpless infant, from such accidents as suffocation, drowning, fire, falls and poisoning. It is the job of the parent to make sure hazards which could cause these accidents are well under control — that the child is not surrounded by pillows and soft bedding, or given toys with small removable parts he could swallow, or exposed to utra-thin plastic, which can suffocate him. We must be alert in bathing the child, we must lock away poisons and administer medicine with care, we must provide barriers for windows and stairways, and take every precaution against fires. These boil down to the physical ways in which we can make sure a child and an accident hazard don't meet.

But this is only half the job. It would be impossible, as the child grows in strength and curiosity, to shield him from all hazards. The second half of our responsibility is to begin to educate him as early as possible. This education must anticipate, rather than follow, disaster. He must learn increasingly to protect himself.

Cruelty is no less painful to the child for being inflicted inadvertently. And to omit to arm today's child against the lethal weapons which surround him, is to commit a cruelty against him.

Chamber of Commerce Week

IN A MESSAGE addressed to President Joseph Jeffery of The Canadian Chamber of Commerce endorsing Chamber of Commerce Week (being observed across Canada April 16-22) Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said:

"Our democratic processes are well served by these organizations which, in a spirit of good citizenship, have undertaken, among other tasks, to advance solutions for national questions after full discussion between all sections of Canada. By performing this useful function, which brings them in frequent contact with the authorities, they contribute much to good government. . . . I welcome this opportunity to extend my best wishes to all who will participate in the celebration of the Fourth Annual Chamber of Commerce Week."

Special programs and events have been organized for Chamber of Commerce Week to bring home to all Canadians an appreciation of the role these organizations play in community building for the national good.

Believe it or not — a labor shortage

CANADA'S most pressing domestic problem is without doubt her acute labor shortage. . . . This seeming absurdity is explained by the fact that while there are vacancies a-plenty in industry, commerce, schools, hospitals and the like, those who are unemployed are for the most part lacking in the qualifications to fill them.

Two-thirds of those who are jobless have only a primary school education or less. And this in the age of technological changes and advancing automation! Even more serious, great numbers of these unskilled citizens of limited education have only left school in recent years.

Up to a few years or so ago, there was no great lack of suitable employment for unskilled, uneducated people. There was always manual labor to be done on the farm, in construction, in industry and service occupations.

Now, suddenly it seems, such jobs have dried up as the machine has taken over in one line of work after another. In agriculture alone, an industry that not so long ago employed more Canadians than any other, mechanization has reduced the farm labor force by more than half-a-million in the past 10 years. A high proportion of these ex-farm employees now live in the cities and seek work in manufacturing, construction and the various occupations.

Plainly, the need is for a national program of educational and vocational training involving the cooperation of industry, governments, educational institutions and the national employment service.

First steps in the development of such a program have already been taken under the Canadian Vocational Training Act, but as yet they represent no more than a very modest beginning.

Even so, this is a start and provides some indication of what can be done. There obviously are great difficulties in the way of training, say, 100,000 unemployed persons annually in needed skills, notably the provision of sufficient teachers, instructors and facilities. But these are not insuperable.

Clearly, the problems we face today are as nothing to those which will confront us tomorrow unless we act swiftly to make sure that our national labor force is both well educated and highly skilled.

We are in a race with the machine which we must win if we are to maintain our living standards.

"MEAN TESTS?"

Political jargon is interesting.

Popular today is the idea of a "needs" test rather than a "means" test. Politicians love to protest against what they refer to as the "meanness" of the means test.

Their protests, however, are insincere. The meanness they object to applies, they seem to suggest, only when the government is giving tax money away. They do not dedeplore the "meanness" that is involved when the government takes your tax money from you.

Every time you fill out an income tax form you are taking a mean test; and it is very mean indeed because the purpose is to take from you a large portion of your earnings — not to give you something.

If you are a married man and die before your wife, your widow will be taxed what you leave her. If you leave her a pension, she must pay a tax on her entire life interest in it, because the government will guess how long she is likely to live and will tax her on what she may get for the next ten, fifteen, or even twenty years. It can be a big sum, even though the pension is small. And if she dies in ten years and thus doesn't get all the money, she still has paid the tax on it! Can you think of a situation much meaner than that?

The excuse for this sort of thing is always that the government has to have money to pay for all the wonderful things it does for us. Well, if it does many more wonderful things for us we're going to be in a bad way indeed! Many of us would like to be allowed to do some of these things for ourselves, because we believe we could do them less expensively, or do other things more to our taste.

The reason governments have been able to go on taxing us so severely is simple. Many voters aren't aware that they pay for all these "benefits." They think the rich do most of the paying.

How wrong they are! You and I do the paying. We pay the taxes not only on our incomes but also in the prices of the goods we buy. For example, next time you buy some gas, ask how much of the price is for taxes. Taxes on gasoline have gone up in five provinces recently.

When the majority of voters awake to the fact that they pay for every single thing that governments "give" them, there'll be some new planks in political platforms — planks like Prudence, Thrift, and Tax Reductions!

LAZY SHOPPERS

The public is a queer lot when it comes to parking and shopping. For most of us, the streets seem terribly congested if we must walk half a block from the point where we leave the car to the shop in which we wish to do business.

THE ABERDEEN EXPRESS

Much has been written about the frugality of the Scotch. Most of it is entirely fictitious. I have always received nothing but exceptional hospitality from anyone of Scotch descent. But this is one of the fictitious stories about Sandy's avoidance of unnecessary spending. . . .

Sandy was waiting in the railroad station of a small town in Scotland to meet his wife, who was returning from Aberdeen after her visit to her sister. He had been waiting for some time.

Suddenly a newsboy came in, calling, "Extra! Extra! All about the big train wreck! Aberdeen Express wrecked — twenty dead — eighty-five injured."

"Gie us a paper, boy!" shouted Sandy, putting his hand in his pocket for the necessary coin, but immediately withdrawing it. "No. Never mind, laddie. I'll wait for the late edition and get the racing news as well."

And what about the Irish? I'll tell this one about Pat and Mike. These two well-known characters had been misbehaving, as they explained to Father Kelly at confession.

He told them that they had to do penance by putting a handful of white beans into each shoe the following Sunday, and walk to church and back without removing the beans. They did so. Pat was in agony the whole period, but Mike seemed unconcerned.

On reaching home after the service, Pat said, "Mike, you can fool me, and you might fool Father Kelly, but you can't fool the Almighty. I'll bet you never put beans in your shoes at all!"

"I did too!" said Mike indignantly. "I put the same number into my shoes as you did."

"Well then, how come you weren't limping all the way to church and back, like I was?"

"Because I'm smart. That's why," answered Mike. "Father Kelly didn't say a word about not boiling them first!"

Be seein' ya!

Many people think of themselves as everyday heroes. They tell stories in which they appear in the role of knights battling against dragons and infidels and pirates.

Their enemies are the Boss, the Customer, Sickness, Debt, Husband, Wife, Child and Inanimate Object.

"And there I was, half way down the stairs, when Joe dropped his end and I had to bear the whole weight. Two hundred and fifty pounds. Well, he picked it up again, but by that time my arms were just about torn loose. Then it was three more flights of stairs down and two more flights up to the new place."

If it's a woman listening, she is expected to make female sounds of approval and admiration.

A man is required to be amazed at the feat of strength or brain-power, whatever it is.

"Well, there was this big truck booming down the hill at me. Right in the middle of the road was a boy on a bicycle. On the other side was a parked car, away out in the road. I couldn't stop."

"Goodness, what did you do?" she asks, just as if she really wanted to find out.

"Threw 'er into overdrive and stamped on 'er and the old bucket whistled through the gap like a goose heading for the nesting grounds."

"Gosh, terrific," says the girl, who in fact has quit listening and is wondering to herself what time that appointment with the hairdresser was.

But you can see the man bristling with pride at the vision of himself that he has just conjured up for his nice listener. In his own mind he has already edited out the awkward details, such as the fact that he was going too fast and not looking at the road. He sees an idealized, clean-cut and unreal figure of himself at the wheel.

"So she has been giving me nothing but trouble all the time, wanting the eggs turned over and the French-fried cooked more than ordinary and oh! I tell you! Just a pill. And three extra glasses of water. After all that, you know what? She eats only half the egg and stubs a cigarette in what's left of it. That's all, brother. I bang down her coffee on the table. Then you know what?"

"What?"

"I go out and take off my uniform, and I throw it to the boss. 'Here, catch,' I says. 'People eating! Ugh! Keep 'em, brother.' And out I walk, and I never went back."

So ends the saga of the damsel who broke out of the prison tower by her own strength and daring, and walked to freedom over the bodies of Dragon Boss and Dragon Customer, whom she slew at one blow.

It's a battle all the way, against Giant Debt, Devil Car, Witch Wife, Demon Husband and all the other wild, fierce creatures that set upon a traveller in this dark country.

Usually, however, the hero wins.

Travellers Return

The tuneful birds are gradually coming back to Cushing, and are welcomed by the residents. . . . But even more welcome is the return of old friends who have been sojourning in other places during the winter — namely, Mrs. W. Y. King, who spent the winter in Toronto, and Miss Alice Davidson, who had the pleasure of a plane trip to California in the late autumn, returning again by plane to her home in Cushing. While there, Miss Davidson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bromby, who at one time were residents, in company with his sister Iva, at the home of the late Mr. W. Davidson of St. Philippe. Miss Davidson also spent a week with another well-known resident of these parts, the former Effie Chambers, now Mrs. Harold Schoelder, of San Diego. In order to reach San Diego, Miss Davidson had a pleasant motor trip along the California coast.

Other old friends who must be numbered with those spending the winter away from Cushing, are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning, who enjoyed the hospitality of the home of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Drew, of Verdun. The return of these old friends brings a comforting thought, that summer is winging its way to Cushing and surrounding territories.

Builders

We are all blind until we see
That in the human plan,
Nothing is worth the making
If it does not make the man.

Why build these cities glorious,
If man unbuilded goes,
In vain we build the world unless
The builder also grows.

APRIL 16 - 22 —

Canadian Library Week

Libraries in Canada — are there enough? Are they effective? Do Canadians use their libraries? Do Canadians read books? Do they buy books for their home libraries? . . .

Canadian Library Week seeks to answer some of these questions, in its observance this year from April 16-22 — an occasion when librarians and those who work with books all year, invite their fellow Canadians to join with them in a special consideration of the importance of libraries, books and reading.

The slogan is a simple one, "Reading is the key". Many doors open to the person who reads, their precise nature determined by his needs and interests.

The patron is Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, who, in his Library Week message, reminds Canadians of some basic truths about reading. "Books enlarge the mind, stir the imagination, please us in our leisure hours, and help us in the serious business of life."

Canadian Library Week is administered by a Council whose chairman is Dr. Wm. Kaye Lamb, Dominion Archivist and National Librarian.

Dr. Lamb points out that "many more books are being written, published and sold than ever before. More books are being consulted, borrowed and read than ever before. . . . Experience shows that when better library facilities are provided, the public will make use of them — will indeed, soon tax them to capacity." This is the bright side of the picture, but a warning is added: "In spite of striking advances in many places in recent years, library facilities in Canada — public, university and special — are still far short of what they should be."

There is the question recently put to a representative cross-section of adult Canadians, in the course of a survey: "Are you reading any book now, or have you read any in the past year?" Twenty-six percent answered "yes" in 1959, compared with 40 percent in 1945. How much higher can the proportion of non-book readers go?

The Canadian Library Association has formulated its standards for public libraries in Canada. "The minimum annual income and population for an effective library unit for essential services is 50,000 population at $2 per capita. For a more vital effective service, a considerably larger budget is required. . . . The book stock of the public library must reflect its basic objectives — education, information, aesthetic appreciation, research and recreation. . . . The librarian should be skilled. . . . " Six large urban libraries in 1958 met these financial standards — London, Toronto, Windsor, Saskatoon, Regina and Vancouver. Fifteen other libraries, in centres of 10,000 to 49,999 population, also reported current operating payments in excess of $2 per capita. Thus a total of 21 urban public libraries was prepared to give service that met the standards set by their Association.

Another measure of service lies in the reference department. In all Canada, there were 85 urban public libraries reported as having reference books (33 of these in Ontario).

Canadian Library Week is concerned with libraries and reading in Canada. It looks forward to the day when library service will be available to all Canadians, and when this service will be high in quality. It invites Canadians everywhere to visit their community libraries, and consider their quality. Interested citizens, working with library authorities, can do much to bring about improvements locally — indeed, together they form the ideal team to make Canadian libraries more effective, thus raising the percentage of readers.

A daughter's wardrobe

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Younger teen age girls often have a rather low opinion of their mothers' taste in clothes. Sometimes adolescents bristle with independence. A mother needs a great deal of tact in making any suggestions. But it is quite possible a girl might co-operate in and benefit from a discussion on "stick to your type" — and so might a mother!

Girls who dress well are not always those who spend the most money. Knowledge of what is becoming and suitable, form a basis for the selection of clothes. A girl should decide what type she is and then stick to her type in planning her wardrobe. It should not be difficult to discover which group she belongs to, short-stout, short-thin, tall-stout or tall-thin.

The short girl, for instance, looks "overbalanced" by too large a hat. She should keep to smaller hats. A feather or a high hat ornament gives the illusion of added inches.

A dress is a better choice for a very short girl than a suit, but if a suit is chosen it should have a short coat. A dress with unbroken lines and a fitted dress without a belt are becoming. Contrasting coat and skirt which cut the figure in two must be avoided.

The tall girl is apt to be self-conscious and a bit awkward. If only she would carry her height proudly it would give her distinction. Unlike her short sister, the tall girl does well to wear skirts on the short side, which are fashionable just now.

A long line of buttons all the way down the front or vertical strips should not be worn. Odd jackets and sweaters of a contrasting color to the skirt are an excellent choice. Tunics and box coats also fit into the tall girl's wardrobe.

The plump girl is also apt to be very sensitive about her size, therefore horizontal stripes or plaids are not for her. Too tight clothes, light colors in odd shades, shiny material, bold prints or large polka dots are also taboo. Heavy tweeds and such fabrics as satin or velvet add pounds to a girl's appearance.

The stout girl must depend on simplicity of outline, dark colors, and small all-over patterns to look her best. Shoes are important to everyone, but a stout girl especially needs a well-fitting, conservative shoe. Nothing looks worse than a too tight, flashy pump on a fat ankle.

The slight girl has an easier time choosing her clothes than the other types because so many dresses and suits at the present time are planned for slender models. A well-cut suit of good material is a particularly good buy in these days when there are so many dainty, washable blouses and pretty sweaters in the shops. The thin girl looks well in bright colored sweaters and plaid skirts.

Whatever type your daughter is, encourage her to stick to it and resolve not to copy others who are different. She would find a personal scrap book on clothes fun to make and a great help in choosing clothes.

Protest U.S. imports of subsidized textiles

Montreal, April 6 — The Canadian government was today called upon to stop the U.S.A. from continuing to export subsidized cotton textiles and clothing to Canada.

W. H. Young, of Hamilton, president of the Cotton Institute of Canada, said that enforcement of existing anti-subsidy legislation would have no adverse effect on Canadian consumers and would not reduce the sale here of surplus U.S. raw cotton.

"The only difference is that more of the cotton required by the Canadian market would be processed in Canada, rather than in the U.S.," he told the annual meeting of the Institute.

Continuation of the U.S. subsidy was reducing Canadian industry and throwing thousands of Canadian cotton mill workers out on the street, Mr. Young said. "It is hitting hard at a vital section of the Canadian economy — that of manufacturing. For it is manufacturing alone that has the potential to supply jobs and reduce our tremendous and unnecessary unemployment total."

"Debby and the killer disease"

Toronto — On a sunny September afternoon five years ago, Mrs. Albert Selmes set out from the hospital to return home with Debbie, her new baby. Waiting to welcome them back were Mr. Selmes and their other daughter, a chubby four-year-old named Bonnie.

The new baby meant there would be another stint of diaper washing, formula making and floor walking in the small hours of the morning. But that didn't matter to Mrs. Selmes, who was the happiest of women.

She was glad that Bonnie would have a companion, that the older girl would soon be able to help care for the baby, and would not run the risks to personality that come from being an only child. In a short while the household was running smoothly on its new routine.

Then statistics stepped in — statistics in the form of a ten-thousand-to-one chance.

In the sections of the Canada Year Book dealing with vital statistics we can discover the incidence of the killer diseases, but never consider that it might be a member of our own family who will supply figures for the deadly tables. It is always, we vaguely feel, someone else — not a relative, not a friend, just some nameless Canadian citizen.

But this time it was Mrs. Selmes' new baby. Little by little Mrs. Selmes noticed that Debbie was having trouble learning to crawl. It looked as if she would never be able to do so, at the rate she was going. There was something wrong. Mrs. Selmes, now worried, called in a doctor. Then the full force of the word "statistics" was brought home to this little family, for the doctor revealed that Debbie had muscular dystrophy.

Most children with MD seldom reach the end of their teens, and Mrs. Selmes had to face the cruel fact that their little girl would be with them for only a few years.

Debbie Selmes is this year's poster child for the muscular dystrophy campaign. On the M.D.A.C. posters she looks out wistfully, still too young to wonder what strange chance of fate has chosen her to be one of the statistics.

The Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada is doing everything it can to help Debbie Selmes and thousands like her. They are pouring millions into research at our university medical centres. They still do not have the answers to muscular dystrophy. To Mrs. Selmes they still can only say: "We must sooner or later find a cure for MD — with all the skilled researchers at work on the problem it can only be a matter of time."

But for Mrs. Selmes' daughter, Debbie, the time left is very short.

POOR PLANNING

The overlapping of financial campaigns in February and March again points up the need for a conference to schedule and space these worthwhile community efforts. It is imperative that some co-operative planning in charitable drives be done, not only for the benefit of the giver who must budget the dollars, but to aid the overworked canvasser.

Serve Frozen Pork Dinner In 25 Minutes

By Carolyn Campbell

The pig has often been called the "Encyclopedic animal" because of its variety of cuts... ham, bacon, ribs, chops, and one of the most popular which has now found its way into a frozen prepared dinner ... loin of pork.

Where it formerly took several hours of oven time to roast a loin of pork and additional minutes to make gravy, it now takes only 25 minutes when you slide one of these 10-ounce dinners onto an oven shelf. When ready to serve, remove the foil cover and you'll find lean, tender slices of pork loin surrounded by rich brown gravy. As a bonus... golden French fried potatoes and lightly spiced apple slices... perfect accompaniments for pork.

This dinner is excellent served "as is" but if you have a creative urge how about trying one of these suggestions... certain to please the men in the family.

MUSTARD

Fold aluminum foil back to uncover meat section of dinner. Spread prepared mustard lightly over meat. Reseal. Heat according to label directions.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

A few week-ends spent vacation-scouting now will help you find a new site, avoid false starts and insure more pleasure for your big vacation this summer. Here's the simple plan:

First, decide what kind of vacation the family would like to try — beach, golfing, camping, fishing, mountain-climbing, resort-loafing, etc.

Second, get a road map from your favorite service station dealer and circle the areas where vacations you want to consider can be found.

Third, go scouting.

If everyone in the family agrees on a general goal, plan a week-end trip and scout a promising area for the site you want. If there's no general agreement, plan two or three week-end tours and check several places.

Each scouting trip can be a little vacation in itself, but with its special, fact-finding purpose. Be sure the trip yields the information you want. Try the local restaurants, talk to people. Find out all you can about each spot you consider. When you've gathered facts — and impressions — then make your big decision.

Part of your choice will be determined by the accommodations you find. It's a good idea to make reservations as soon as you do pick a site.

A vacation-scouting week-end is a little investment in time — and pleasure — that will earn big dividends in an enjoyable and refreshingly different vacation later on.

At the 10th Annual National Home Show in Toronto, pioneer and modern trends in furniture and fabric styles were blended perfectly in the various displays.

In one exhibit, for example, an old-fashioned drying sink of pine wood was converted into a modern hi-fi stereo system.

Today's do-it-yourself enthusiast is encouraged at the show to cover old scratched tables with mosaic tiles. They come in kits with directions applicable to the size of the object which is to be decorated.

Another idea featured at the show was a spice and herb rack in either finished or unfinished pine. Some had shelves for planters as well as drawers and shelves for the bottles.

A delightful small apothecary chest in either a six or nine-drawer design was featured in a mellow pine. Its use is boundless for the imaginative housewife.

Huge white pots, loaded with flowers of every hue and description, were scattered at random around the show's display booths. They would be attractive on a patio, around a swimming pool, in a garden, in front or inside a house.

Home Decorators

Betty Barrymore, decorating consultant for a Toronto firm, designed what she calls "a room of her own" as one of a suite of rooms in the home show.

Before venturing to decorate a room, she advises home decorators to take samples of the carpet, drapery fabric, wallpaper and paint chips and place them together under the same lighting conditions in which they'll be seen.

"A mistake commonly made is to paint the wall, then try to match carpets and wallpaper or drapes," Miss Barrymore said. "Paint is one of the easiest of the main color elements to match, because there are so many shades available now and it can be mixed to suit exactly. So it's best to choose the carpet first and match the other items to it."

Mushroom Spaghetti Sauce

It calls for: 1 pint or 1 pound of mushrooms, whole or cut in pieces, 2 tbsps. butter or margarine, 2 tsps. finely chopped green onion, 2 6-ounce cans tomato paste, 1 6-ounce can water, ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. paprika and a crushed red pepper or cayenne which are optional.

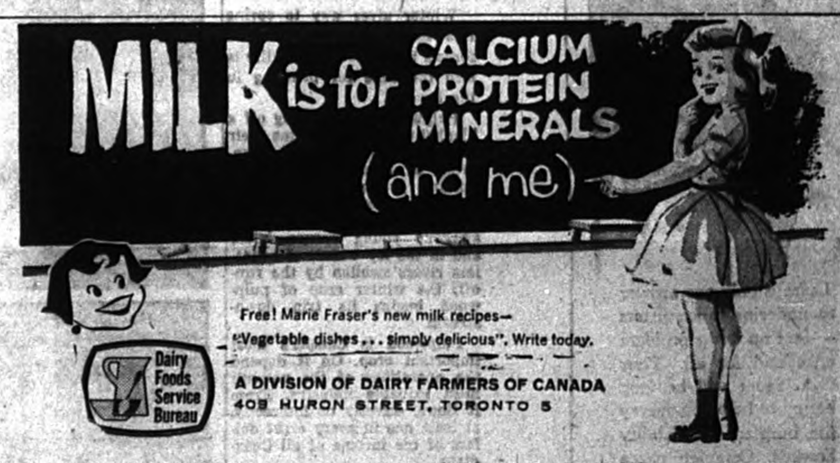

Sauté mushrooms in butter or margarine for five to six minutes. Add onions, tomato paste and water, bring to boil and simmer three to four minutes. Stir in seasonings, adding the red pepper or cayenne to taste and serve over hot spaghetti.

This sauce is also excellent with meat, fish or chicken and may be served with toast or crackers as a self-service, hot hors d'oeuvre.

Experiments in lactation intervals and milk output

Ottawa — Cows freshened about every 12 months and milked for 10 months produce better than those with longer milking and freshening periods. . . . A. Gorrill, of the Canada Department of Agriculture, reached this conclusion after studying the records of the Ayrshire herd at the Experimental Farm, at Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Average milking period and interval between freshenings have been shortened in the Charlottetown herd over a period of years. From 1937 to 1947 the cows were milked for an average of about 12 months and the freshening interval was 440 days; from 1953 to 1957 the milking period was about 10 months and the freshening interval 368 days.

The cows that were milked 12 months averaged 7,550 pounds of milk per year with 4.10 per cent fat and 309 pounds of butterfat. Those milked 10 months produced 8,780 pounds of milk with 4.46 per cent fat and 378 pounds of butterfat. Those milked 10 months gave 1,230 pounds more milk and 69 more butterfat. A higher test as well as higher milk yields were responsible for increased fat production.

Although improved breeding and feeding practices were partly responsible for the bigger production, much of it can surely be attributed to the shorter lactation period and calving interval. An additional advantage is that most cows can be bred to freshen every year at about the same date, making it simpler to plan freshenings to meet fluid milk quotas.

The 305-day lactation and 12-month calving interval are ideal for the fluid milk producer, but often may be difficult to achieve. Heifers must be bred to freshen around two years of age, at about the same date as their dams, and for all but every small heifers, this is feasible, with proper feeding and management. The breeding of well-grown heifers at an even earlier age (15 to 17 months) generally will not stunt their growth and may prolong their productive life and increase milk and butterfat production. But with cows, breeding troubles often present a problem in maintaining a 12-month calving interval. The recommended time for breeding is 60 to 90 days after freshening.

For apple trees damaged by mice

As soon as the snow has disappeared, the apple grower starts making his rounds of the orchard. On his first tour of inspection, he will ascertain what damage has been done to the trees during the winter by mice. André Cloutier, of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, gives the following directions for first-aid to nibbled trees:

Very early in the spring before the sun has grown too strong, and before growth has started and the wounds have become infested with insects and disease, the scars should be daubed with an asphalt emulsion or grafting compound such as "Braco" or Treecoat". Paint or roofing tar should never be used for the purpose, because they will damage the trees even more instead of protecting them. During the course of the summer, the damaged trees should be examined again and, if necessary, the injuries should be given another coat of grafting compound to make sure that they remain well protected.

If the damage to the bark is very extensive, bridge grafting should be resorted to so as to ensure adequate circulation of the sap. If, however, an injured tree is still quite small in diameter it should be top-grafted or simply replaced.

INSTANT MASHED—Experiments on this standard drum drier at the Plant Research Institute of the Canada Department of Agriculture at Ottawa led to development of a new process for making instant mashed potatoes. The federal goverment has taken out patents on the process which manufacturers will be able to use by procuring a licence. Seen checking production here is Dr. E. A. Asselbergs who, with his team of workers in the Food Processing and Storage section, undertook to find the new formula in order to open the field to Canadian manufacturers. Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton hailed the discovery as a triumph for agricultural research and commended Dr. Asselbergs on his work. Potatoes that have been peeled, diced and cooked are passed between dehydrating steam-heated rollers. The finished product is below the roller.

Farmers advised disinfect seed

With the return of spring comes the time to prepare for work on the land. One of the first concerns of any farmer at this season is to make sure of sowing good seed, and he therefore takes it to a seed-cleaning centre to get the weed seeds removed from it.

David Leblond, of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, reminds us that there is another pest of seeds which is as important as weeds, if not more so, namely, the germs of disease. These are all the more formidable because they are hidden. Moreover, there are always some of them present, even on seed of good quality. They are said to be hidden because, whether they are carried right inside the seed or on the surface of the hull, they are invisible. Such are the germs which cause for example the well-known disease called smut and another one, less familiar but equally harmful, seedling blight. In the case of either of these two diseases, there is always an appreciable reduction in yield.

Although the cleaning of the seed removes the weed seeds, it does not get rid of disease germs. These can only be dealt with by means of disinfection, that is to say, by poisoning the germs in question with a chemical product. For many years formalin was used for this purpose, only to be replaced by powders or "dusts", which were more effective but had certain disadvantages. Finally, there have come into use, liquids which are very suitable for the treatment of seed by means of spraying with the aid of a special piece of equipment. The great advantage of this equipment is that it can be attached to a fanning-mill so that seed can be cleaned and then disinfected, in a single operation.

A growing number of cooperatives are using this system at their seed-cleaning centres. The aim is obviously to help members to purify their seed by a more efficient method than they have used in the past. Unfortunately, inquiries show that our farmers are not taking proper advantage of the opportunity: altogether, less than one in four get their seed disinfected. The disinfecting device can be separated from the fanning-mill if need be and, as a rule, cleaning only is asked for, in the belief that this will be enough.

Disinfection admittedly costs a little extra, but only a trifle, considering the increase it leads to in the size of the crop.

Canada's Forests Bid Winter Goodbye

New Life Begins As Pulpwood Crop Sails Downstream

Winter gives way to spring this month, and in Canada's forests the season of new life is also the time for bringing in the harvest.

Pulpwood flumes shrug off a blanket of snow to resume their job of ferrying logs by the hundreds of thousands from the holding grounds to the pulp and paper mills. Throughout the woodlands, the warm sun awakens young spruce buds; and in the icy waters of countless rivers swollen by the run-off, the winter crop of pulpwood begins its trip downstream.

Pulpwood is Canada's most important crop. On it depend the operations of the nation's most valuable industry. From it flows, directly or indirectly, at least one in every eight dollars of the income of all Canadians.

This year's pulpwood crop will come to some thirteen million cords. Most of it will be afloat for several months, sailing steadily by sea, by lake, and by river to reach the mills in late summer or early autumn. There it will go to the great cone-shaped piles, to await its turn at the grinders or the chippers and then to become part of the $1½ billion of new wealth that flows each year from Canada's pulp and paper mills. Most of this production is shipped all over the world.

Foresters who met recently in Montreal for the 43rd annual meeting of the Woodlands Section, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, said that this year's crop of pulpwood was harvested more efficiently than any in the past. Increasingly, they reported, machines are being introduced to woodland operations, and their effect is to increase the speed of woods work and the productivity of the woods worker, who today is highly-trained and highly-skilled.

2 Young orators, protégés of Lions, qualify for finals

With four local winners entered in the district eliminations at St. Lambert recently, two of these young public speakers from Lachute emerged as aspirants for the finals, to be held May 6 at Dixie in suburban Toronto. The finals embrace all Lions Clubs in Quebec and Ontario.

Lachute has produced top winners in these showdowns in previous years, and it is a matter of pride to the local Lions, and to tutors of the Lachute and Brownsburg speakers, that they are again in line and optimistic for championship honors.

The young speakers from this district were accompanied to St. Lambert by President Dr. Eric Mongeon and Secretary Keith Clarke. The two taking top laurels were Miss Liane Robillard, from the St. Alexandre Convent, Lachute, and Andrew Seary, of Brownsburg High School. Those privileged to hear the discourses given by these young students (both prepared and extempore speeches) agreed that they gave a fine performance and carried their role with poise and confidence.

The two other candidates in the semi-finals from Lachute were Brenda McGibbon, of Brownsburg High School, and Claude Guitard, from l'Ecole Secondaire. There were altogether 18 contestants taking part at St. Lambert.

Rotarians hear missionary priest in talk on Africa

The Rev. Guy Lefebvre, of the White Fathers Order, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club, giving a very enjoyable and interesting talk on some of his experiences during his sojourn in Africa. This address helped the audience to realize the problems of the natives in Africa. Many of these problems do not appear to have an immediate solution. Meanwhile the Church enjoys the natives' confidence in the knowledge that it will always tender help without expectation of reward.

In a question period following his address, Father Lefebvre answered a number of queries from his listeners.

Daylight Saving effective Sunday

Opening ceremony at Arundel, Que. dial exchange

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel has now gone on the dial telephone system, and an interesting ceremony took place last Thursday when the Bell Telephone exchange was formally opened. The invited guests met at the exchange, where Curé the Rev. Bisson, of Huberdeau, blessed the building. Invited guests were the Arundel councillors and their wives, the municipal council of Huberdeau and their wives, Mayor W. Morrison of Arundel, Mayor Brosseau of Huberdeau, the Rev. Mr. Bussel, and the Rev. Brother R. Reigobert, director of the Huberdeau orphanage.

After the ceremony, a general inspection of the exchange was held and the intricate system was explained to the guests by a number of Bell Telephone employees. All then adjourned to the "Maplewood Inn", where cocktails were served, followed by a buffet supper.

District Governor on official visit to Lions Club

The District Governor and accompanying Lions from Montreal were guests at the local club meeting last week. Visiting notables at the head-table were District Governor Ed McLean, International Counsellors Bill Shields and Alf Cadman, and Zone Chairman Bob Leggett. The guests were introduced by Secretary Keith Clarke.

Under the chairmanship of President Dr. Eric Mongeon, this was an enthusiastic and well attended meeting to welcome the District Governor on his official visit. The visitor was presented by one of his closest friends in Lionism, past D.D.G. Horace Lamarche, and the ensuing talk was a sincere appraisal of club spirit and affairs, from which all listeners drew a warm sense of inspiration.

The District Governor gave credit to Lachute for several notable achievements in the year, including high attendance, new enrolments, sound finances, an excellent semi-monthly bulletin, and worthwhile community projects. . . . He reviewed progress in the District, which proved equally encouraging — six new club branches formed, including Rimouski and Baie Comeau, and memberships appreciably increased.

The speaker made reference to Lions Club links of international scope and emphasized the importance of this movement as a factor for world brotherhood. It was notable that Lions International was represented in a consultative capacity in the United Nations Organization.

Col. Ernest Emmett, in thanking the District Governor for his visit and his stirring address, presented him with the gift of a handsome Ayers blanket.

Among out-of-town guests was Stan Agar, a member of the Gananoque club, and former Lion Bill Flanigan, now of Trenton.

Plea for deep-water navigation facilities on Ottawa waterway

Paul Labreche, of St. Andrews East, in his capacity as president of the Ottawa Valley Development Association, was invited to address the Montebello Chamber of Commerce last evening (Tuesday), at the Curling Club in that community. Accompanying Mr. Labreche was Stanley W. Rodger, of St. Andrews, ex-president of the O.V.D.A. Mr. Labreche was introduced by Normand Robert, president of the Montebello group. Following is the text of his remarks. . . .

Arthur Lower wrote in "Queen's Quarterly", in the summer of 1959:

"Unlike the Moldau in Europe, or the American Mississippi—the Canadian Ottawa has inspired no memorable verse or song. Yet this river, no less than the English Thames, is 'liquid history', one of our precious possessions; but like so much else in this strange country, not much honored by the people who possess it." . . .

You all know, I am sure, of the important role the Ottawa has played in the development of Canada. It was the liquid passagway for the explorer, trader, log driver and rafts. Today these are all gone. But the great river continues to play a major role, for it furnishes us with millions of horsepower of electricity. Every rapid and fall of importance above the Long Sault has been harnessed. As a result, we now have instead a series of calm inland lakes where we once had rapids. In this way, hydro-electricity has permitted us to exploit the Ottawa Valley without destroying its beauty, and at the same time improve its forests, by the effects of these new lakes and controls.

Now, what is this stretch of the Ottawa River between Montreal and Ottawa-Hull? It is one of the best natural waterways of Canada. What is more, the present condition of the river in this region will be improved shortly by the construction of the dam at Carillon, which will level off the Long Sault rapids, the last one to be tamed other than the Lachine rapids. But the Lachine rapids, which are half Ottawa River and half St. Lawrence, are to be harnessed also by the Quebec Hydro Commission, which is now preparing plans for it.

These two new projects will improve the waterway between Montreal and Ottawa-Hull to such an extent that the opportunity should be seized to permit the passage now of deep-draft vessels. Deep-draft navigation from Lake of Two Mountains to the rest of the Ottawa Valley up to the Capital itself, is a step that this generation will feel justified to take. However, at the site of the dam at Carillon, new locks will have to be built, and what the Ottawa Valley Development Association would fail to understand, would be to see new locks with all the necessary high and costly walls and gates required by the height of the dam itself, built to a size that would not admit the greatest possible percentage of Community Concerts campaign next week

Next week (May 1 to 6, inclusive) is devoted to the annual campaign of the Community Concerts Association, by a group of workers who will enroll members for the 1961-62 season. The subscriber list increased last year to a total of 400 adults and 76 students, and it is hoped the coming 16th annual campaign will enlist still further support. Co-chairmen of this drive are Mrs. R. Rigby and Miss Juliette Rodrigue.

The week will open with a rally and snack for campaign workers, at Lachute Golf Club, with Mrs. W. M. Cottingham and Mrs. J. Beaudoin in charge of arrangements. At this send-off, next Monday evening, Mr. Pierre Emond, Columbia Artists representative, of Montreal, will be present to give impetus to the drive. He will also remain to assist at campaign headquarters, which will be situated at Deslauriers & Marcil Inc., next to Bedard Ltée, Main St. (LO 2-5291).

Attraction Booked

Although it is not possible to book artists for the season until the success of the campaign is assured and the budget prescribed, Lachute Community Concerts have spoken ahead for at least one star attraction, Ronald Turini, Italian-born Montreal pianist, who has climbed to the top ranks of performance. It is felt by the Association president, Mrs. Fernand Legault, and her directors, that this engagement will win warm approval of the majority.

Turini's record is impressive. He came second in pianoforte competitions at the Queen of Belgium's international festival last May. He has since been sponsored by the Canada Council to play with 10 major Canadian orchestras — having played a concerto recently with the Toronto Symphony and, again, performing next week (May 2) in the first of the Montreal "Pops" series at the Forum.

Other programs have been discussed by the directorate, but no formal bookings can be made until completion of the campaign.

Year's Officers

Officers of the Community Concerts Association this year are as follows:

President, Mrs. Fernand Legault.

Vice-presidents, Mrs. J. Bedard, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, W. Hlibchuk.

Secretary, Jacques Bedard.

Treasurer, D. M. Hay.

Concert co-chairmen, Mrs. R. Rigby, Simon Valois.

In addition, Miss Rodrigue continues in the role of corresponding secretary, and Don Titman as press publicist.

Legion Branch to open local playground

Branch 70 of the Royal Canadian Legion have acquired the use of a very nice tract of land, by courtesy of the Dairy Queen, which is to be turned into a community playground.

This area, situated directly behind the Dairy Queen premises, Brownsburg Road, will shortly be opened to the general public. There will be sand boxes, see-saws and swings for the young fry; a regulation Little League baseball diamond, and, it is hoped, a cinder track, jumping pits and other track and field equipment.

It is also planned to set up a series of regulation horse-shoe pitches. In this respect, anyone interested in this sport is invited to drop in to the Legion Hall Friday evening, April 28, around 8 o'clock, to help organize and establish a horse-shoe pitching league. It is hoped to set up a series of competitions in singles and doubles with round-robin as well as open and challenge matches.

The Legion hope that this playground will become a popular spot for the young and old of the community — Dad playing horse shoes, the children at their various activities, and with Mother joining in or just plain supervising!

Polio clinic at Legion Hall, May 15

The polio clinic sponsored by Branch 70 of the Royal Canadian Legion will be held in the Legion Hall, Foundry Street, at 7 p.m. on May 15. The clinic will visit Arundel and Huberdeau in the afternoon of the same date.

This is the third shot of the second series of free anti-polio vaccine clinics that has been sponsored by the Legion. The second shot of this same series was held last June, at which time 437 people took advantage of obtaining protection against the dreaded, crippling disease.

Plan public housing project for evictees in Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury — A land development here which would include a public housing project and sites for relocated homes and new dwellings, is being considered by municipal, provincial and Federal authorities — according to Ontario Hydro officials.

The project calls for development of some 20 acres of land into about 100 serviced lots. Part of the new subdivision will be used for low-rental public housing financed by the Federal and provincial governments, with the town sharing a small part of the cost. Part would be reserved for parkland.

Under Federal regulations, families in this project will be required to pay approximately 20 per cent of their gross income for rent. Because of its low-rental nature, families with incomes of more than $375 a month will not be eligible for admission.

Once this project is completed, all administrative work — including renting of units — will be handled by a Housing Authority.

Close Collaboration

To ensure close working partnership in solution of the problems resulting from the flooding, Ontario Hydro has requested that committees be set up to represent residential owners and tenants, merchants, and farmers and other rural property owners.

The first committee, representing Hawkesbury merchants, has already been formed.

As of April 11, Hydro had purchased 70 properties. For families living in modest dwellings, two alternatives are offered; they can sell to Ontario Hydro or have the house moved. If a house can be moved, but the owner chooses to sell, it may be made available for a displaced family whose house cannot be saved.

Homes to New Locations

These homes will be completely restored in their new locations "and families will find themselves in possession of a house of equal, or better condition, in a new and desirable location. The homes will be painted, if necessary. Walks and driveways will be provided and front and back lawns will be sodded or seeded."

To demonstrate how the house-moving program will work, it is planned to move a small number of houses almost immediately. The main moving operation is scheduled to begin in August.

The job of relocating sewer, water and other services will be carried out as rapidly as possible, Hydro says. Engineering consultants expect to call for first tenders immediately for the new sewerage and water systems, approved in principle by town council and the

The Iron Road to Mile 224, Labrador

Friday, April 13 —

At last we are on the way — leaving Seven Islands at 8 a.m. bound for Mile 224, Labrador, via the "Quebec North Shore and Labrador Railway. Combined Passenger and Freight"; schedule questionable, time of arrival, ditto.

This is the type of train that stops for the unloading of everything and anything. From the conductor we are supposed to be at 224 at 3 p.m.; there are ifs, ands and buts to this, however. About 20 miles out of Seven Islands the Moise River comes into view, a beautiful river to see, with very fast water and a good number of shallow falls. The water is flowing so fast through this channel that it is not frozen at all. We made a couple of stops along the way to drop off gasoline drums and such; and that is just what happens, they drop it. The train goes very slowly and the drums are rolled off into the snow. They don't waste any time at some of these stops, as you see. The odd little shack can be seen along the right-of-way, and a number of tents with Indians in them. They are cutting timber so I would imagine they are more or less nomadic.

We are now at Mile 74, still a long way to go, but such wonderful scenery sure makes for pleasant travelling. The Rockies are of course very spectacular, but these mountains take no back seat to them for majesty. So far the railroad has followed the river, so you know what it has been like; at times the front end seems to be heading back the way we have come. To tell the truth, I have my misgivings at times. Trees are starting to be a little stunted now; to see them clinging to the mountainsides with seemingly just a tiny ledge to stay up on, is remarkable. . . . The birch disease seems to have been very severe in this part of the country, as hundreds of birch can be seen dead.

The distorted shapes of the trees makes you realize just how the fight for survival goes on daily, with Nature always coming out in the end. Except for evergreens, there's not a trace of color except snow. For awhile it looked as though we were running out of the winter's grip, but that was only a hope. We have just passed a couple of waterfalls of about 100 feet and they are solid with ice, not a trickle of water to be seen. There must be watersheds up on top of some of these mountains, otherwise there could be no waterfalls. Along about Mile 97 multitudes of these cascades can be seen, all asleep with winter. Winter is still definitely in the driver's seat. Even the fast-flowing river has lost out in its battle for freedom.

A fire must have raged through these parts not so long ago; the desolation all around is horrible to see. Not even the small pint-sized spruce have been overlooked. Just as though some giant hand had cleaved away part of every living thing.

We had hopes that the train was going to stop for awhile and maybe give us a chance to stretch our legs, but no such luck. I forgot to mention, there are eight Indians on the train. Where they are going I don't know, but I've got to tell you this. The cars of the train are heated by these old-fashioned box stoves; you know the type, where everyone puts a shovel of coal in every time they pass. The temperature in the car climbed to about 100 degrees, so I tried to open a window. Naturally I couldn't, as they are bolted from the outside; but at any rate, these Indians nearly had a fit when they saw me trying to open the windows. So having no luck at the windows, I opened the coach door. I hadn't even got back to my seat before one of them closed it. What she said, I don't know, but I'll bet it wasn't complimentary. Believe it or not, but they hadn't even taken off their heavy coats — and I down to my shirt sleeves and the perspiration just running off me.

Mile 121, Dufresne Lake. We have left the river and are now rolling along through hundreds of lakes. At least they give that appearance, it is hard to tell because of the snow. The hills are changing into long, sloping mounds, covered with scrub timber. The train is starting to pick up speed, which is a welcome change. We have just passed Mile 200 so we are almost there. This has not been a luxury ride by any means.

In camp at last, situated about 11 miles from the railroad. And with no one there, we had visions of having to walk that 11 miles. However, along comes a Sno Cat owned by the Hoosier Engineering Co. to pick us up. In a very short time we were drinking coffee and getting warmed up. The gang that came up on Tuesday had all the cabins cleaned, heated and made shipshape for us. A very pleasant surprise. The chef had the coffee on, so with this and a piece of pineapple pie under our belts, things didn't look too bad. . . . Goldie the dog, on getting out of the Cat, plowed right into the deep snow trying to get herself clean. Truly, with the dust and grit from Seven Islands, she was dirtier than we have ever seen her before.

Strangely enough, we have a bunch of jays around and they are very tame. They will come almost into your hand to feed. There is also a chipmunk making a home for himself in the cook's storehouse; he's mighty fond of cheese. Since Tuesday night he has eaten about a quarter of a pound. This is being left for him with the idea it may stop him from sampling anything else.

It is now 8 p.m. and almost blackout, no trace of a moon or anything. It looks like more snow, and sure feels like it. Be writing you.

Saturday, April 14 —

Walked in to the railroad track this a.m. to check on the truck and equipment that was due in. It has all arrived, so now there are two boxcars and one flat-car to unload. The cars will not be placed near enough for unloading until about 3 p.m., so from then on it's going to be rough. . . .

Finally got the cars placed, and the first thing unloaded was the truck. Some job, without a proper ramp. Outside of tearing the tail light off, everything went fine. Along with the truck there is about 16 thousand feet of lumber on the flat-car and this has to be unloaded before anything else. Before we could transport the lumber though, it was necessary to bring the truck to camp to unload all the personal gear. This was completed about 5.30 p.m. after one of the roughest trips I have ever had. I did think the trip up from Baie Comeau to Seven Islands was bad, but, I've since changed my mind! We got back to the cars about 7 p.m. and had the first load of lumber into the camp by 10 p.m. The second came in at 12 midnight; a little easier going as the road is starting to take shape. At least the snow and ice is being packed down. The third load was in at 2.30 a.m.; then the boss took over so I went to bed. They kept right on all night and I was back at it by 5.30 this morning. The temperature yesterday morning was a mere 12 above, but this morning it is a positively spring-like 22, and getting warmer, So much so that the road is starting to break up and we had to quit hauling. We'll be back again at about 7 tonight, though. With a little luck and good weather, they should be all unloaded by Tuesday.

Walking down to the railway yesterday morning, the spruce partridge, hens and grouse (whatever you want to call them) were very numerous. And tame, believe me. They are right around camp all the time, along with the jays. I heard some geese this afternoon, and did this sound good! Maybe spring is on the way for this part of the world, and most important, the lake is starting to show signs of melting on top.

Supper finale to minor hockey in Brownsburg

Brownsburg —

The organizers of the Brownsburg minor hockey teams officially ended the season on Wednesday, April 19, with a closing supper in the Legion Hall. Main course for the supper was beans, and coupled with soft-drinks, cakes and ice cream they made an enjoyable meal. Thanks are extended to Police Chief Boutet, through whose canvassing most of the food was obtained. Thanks also to the donors as well as to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the local Legion, who provided superb service to the 130 persons in attendance.

After the supper, Noel Racine, the m.c., introduced Bill Dimock and Gerry Ouellette, who reviewed the season's activities. . . . The group operated under the backing of the Social Club and had total expenses for the season amounting to about $800. The bulk of this amount was spent on uniforms goaler equipment and rink rentals The organizers are indebted to the local groups who provided the uniforms. Other income was derived from the registration fees and the very successful minor hockey tournament held in March. It is anticipated that at least $600 will be required to cover next year's operations.

It is quite probable that next year a Midget group (14-16 yrs.) will be started, and possibly a Mosquito group (8-10 yrs.). In the coming season affiliation will also be made with the Quebec Minor Hockey Association and hence all players will be signed to playing cards. Parents were advised to have birth certificates available for the next season.

John Duncan, who had conducted a personal canvass for trophies, presented the awards to the winning captains — Pierre Tessier (pee-wee) and Harold Ross (bantam) — and congratulated the members of the triumphant teams. In a short speech he cited the tremendous amount of work done by the committee — Bill Dimock, Gerry Ouellette, "Zag" Cousineau and Bernie Golphin — and the success they had achieved in their first year.

After the speeches were completed, a movie of the 1956 Grey Cup was shown, to round out the evening. All in all, everyone seemed to enjoy the supper — which could become an annual event.

Final play-off in Anglican bowling league

The final game to decide the second-place winner in the St. Simeon's Bowling League was held on Monday, between the Rangers (skipped by Harold Maslin) and the Stars (skipped by Gordon Silverson).

This turned out to be a thriller all the way, the final decision going to the Stars, 12-11.

This was followed by a social gathering, with the ladies serving refreshments.

Mr. J. Sewell, chairman, thanked the various officers for their good work during the past season, and a presentation was made to Mrs. A. Neill as a token of the Club's appreciation for her work as secretary-treasurer.

The prizes were then distributed by the chairman as follows —

League Champions — Mrs. C. R. Lang (skip), Mrs. W. Chambers, D. Brown, Miss M. Sioui.

Runners-up — Gordon Silverson (skip), Mrs. B. A. Jenkins, J. Sewell, Miss Margaret Silverson.

The Rev. C. R. Lang made a few appropriate remarks for the occasion, followed by a report on the season's activities by the Match Committee convener, Harold Maslin.

Comings - goings in American League baseball

SPORTS CAMERA

By Bruce Levett,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Major League baseball, the richest, most powerful sport in the United States, has grown richer and more powerful this year with the addition of two teams in the American League.

And next year they figure to increase in stature even more, with still another two teams joining the National circuit.

But, if baseball is gaining in the number of teams in the big time, it finds itself lacking in a couple of spots this year. Two of its more colorful characters are out of the line-up.

Foremost is Casey Stengel who, for the first time in more than 20 years, watched the opening of a baseball season as a fan instead of a manager.

The change didn't seem to bother him, particularly, any more than it did Boston's great Ted Williams. Williams, great slugging out-fielder, is at least still in the game as a batting coach for the Red Sox.

But Ol' Case is a banker now and he wasn't even on hand when New York Yankees — once synonymous with Stengel — took a 6-0 lacing from Minnesota Twins in their opener.

"You never miss that kind," said Casey.

Acting Assignment

Stengel, fired by Yankees last fall after his 10th first-place finish in 12 seasons, showed up at the Los Angeles Coliseum to watch Dodgers open against Philadelphia Phillies. He's vice-president of a bank in suburban Burbank.

"Naturally, you just can't walk out of baseball after 50 years or so and not miss it," he said. "But that vice-president's chair feels pretty good. Also, I'm going to be an actor in a month or so. I'm going on a TV program with Art Carney. He wanted to get in the big leagues, so I'm giving him a preak."

He declined to elaborate on his TV role, but umpires have admired his acting for years — and those long, slow strolls to the mound were once sheer poetry.

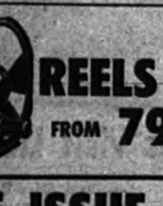

How about Williams?

He says the Sox won't miss him too much, that they've got a potentially great replacement in Carl Yastrzemski. And Williams, not noted for his courtesy or charity, picks young Carl as a big winner.

United Church bowling banquet concludes season

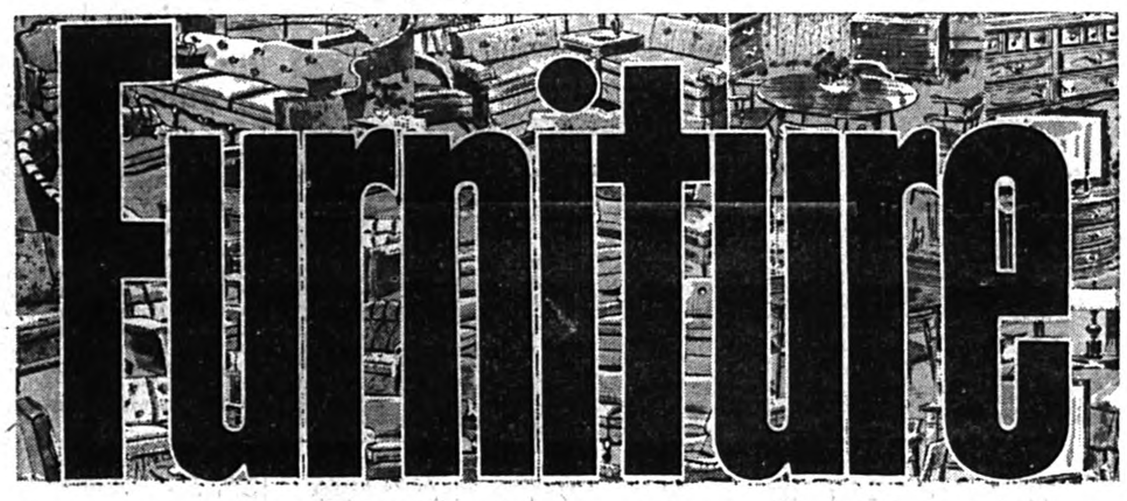

A very fitting and enjoyable climax to the activities of the Lachute United Church Bowling League was held Monday evening, when the annual turkey banquet was held. Approximately 100 members and guests sat down to a delicious dinner arranged by a competent committee headed by Mrs. Lawson Taylor and Mrs. L. P. Hopkins. The president, Mrs. Wilson Bridge, introduced the guests at the head-table, and expressed the regrets of the Rev. Mr. Bridge who was unable to attend.

Following the dinner, the president reviewed the season's activities, and to the various committees of the organization extended sincere appreciation.

The final contest of the season was held, between the All-Stars team (Reg Stansfield) and St. George's (Owen Todd). The All-Stars were away to a good start in the first end, when they scored 3, and from that time on, the St. George's team could not seem to attain their fine form of the season. The score was — All-Stars 12, St. George's 4.

The president then presented the prizes to the All-Stars team (Reg Stansfield, Mrs. Edward Armstrong, Mrs. L. P. Hopkins and Irvin Touchette) and to St. George's foursome (Owen Todd, Mrs. Keith Boa, Mrs. D. Steele and Mrs. P. Braney). The league champions — Miss Margaret Gordon, the Beavers — were also recipients of prizes for their all-season standing. They were — Miss M. Gordon, Edward Armstrong, Mrs. L. Gordon and Mrs. L. Taylor. A gift was also presented to Jack Gorman for his interest in the league operations during the season.

We take you South, unbiased and receptive — glad to be Canadian "Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Well, Chilluns, here Ah am! — Excuse the Southern approach, but after two weeks of exposure to the greeting, "Honey, Honey chile," or "Ma'am," according to the feelings, the social status, or the age of the speaker, I find myself slipping into this endearing habit! To be fair, one feels that the sweet approach is sincere; the manners of the Southerners are delightful. To go from Richmond, Virginia, to Albany, New York, is to go from one country to another. Not that the Yankees are rude, but it is as if everyone were guilty till proved innocent — and in the South the opposite.

We always return invigorated from a visit to our American neighbors. I do not know about the head of the house, but the writer is restored because she comes back feeling pleased with herself, or, to be more accurate, with her fellow-countrymen. In plain English, I would rather be Canadian than American. I get the same reaction after a jaunt to the city from suburbia. I may go in feeling rather dowdy, and morose, but after a tour on a bus, for instance, I see so many people that are worse-looking, or more ill-mannered, that I return with my ego refreshed.

When we first arrive in the true South, I am impressed with the abundance of domestic labor, and I sigh with envy. After a day or two, I begin to wonder. The negro may be a blessing in the house, but he is a perpetual worry to the nation. Up here it is so easy, and so Christian, to say "Alas, the poor negro! How ridiculous to shun him because of his color." But after only a short sojourn in the southern states, it soon becomes evident that it is not the color that repels one, it is the habits. We drove through back roads where the colored live in small cabins, sometimes of logs not unlike those built by our own pioneers, rather smaller than most that survive here. Most of these were distressingly untidy outside, and, I am told, worse inside. A lady, the owner of the motel where we were staying near Virginia Beach, told me that a great percentage of the children are illegitimates, in that the parents have never bothered to marry. Lacking a father, the children spend their time with grandparents while mother goes out to work — in that district, probably in a motel or a hotel. The children become infested with lice, scabies, and other of the less endearing pests and ills to which dirty flesh is addicted. Just whose fault this is, is hard to say. Can the Church go from house to house to enquire if the mother is married? If the answer is negative, has it the power to insist that a marriage be arranged? Can education (which is free, I believe) be taken seriously, if there is no home-life to carry out the precepts of church or school?

Numerically, the colored are strong. Passing through a town in Delaware, I did not see one white face. The people on the streets of Petersburg, Virginia, had about an equal percentage of white and colored. Regretfully, I was forced to admit that, were I living in one of these states, I would not want my daughter to go to an integrated school. Or to teach in one. I am as free from prejudice on account of color as can be, but I am prejudiced about good and evil, and it does seem silly to expose the young to avoidable temptation. . . . So, I came back gratefully to Quebec. When I hear someone sounding off about the two races here, and what a nuisance it is, I feel like saying, "You ain't seen nothin', honey chile."

Enough of politics, here are a few notes from our trip, that may be of interest . . .

In a hotel in Annapolis, built in 1837, I read in a manuscript the record of the sale of a colored boy, named Harry, age 10, for $250. This was March 13, 1813.

In the same case, a receipt from Daniel Boone for $46 for "services as a spy". This was dated March, 1812. Spying on the Canucks, very likely! The rate of pay was two dollars a day. From what we can gather from the papers, the scale has been adjusted upwards since then!

The racket worked by some motels, who warn one to make reservations well ahead, (with this chain, of course) although they must know that, at some resorts at this time of year, the accommodation of the town is about 10% occupied. We did not fall for this one, and got good accommodation, with private bath, for $5 a night. The previous night, we had paid $12.50. The difference — a shower instead of a tub.

The following breakfast costs from $1.05 to 65c, as one works south from Albany — Fruit, or fruit juice. One egg, toast, coffee, some sweet such as jam, or honey. This, with bacon or small sausage. Last week, I saw this same breakfast advertised in Montreal, less the orange juice, for 45c.

The best meal of the trip was taken near Williamsburg, at an Italian restaurant. It was under $3.00.

The red-bud tree is beautiful. It isn't red; it is mauve.

Two signs on farms that will please our friend Amos, who cannot abide fancy farm names: Pryde's Heritage, and Walter Smith's Farm.

Herefords and Black Angus seem to be the favorite cattle in the southern states. The pigs are all Berkshires; and they are let loose in cornfields among the stalks that were left over the winter. They are also fed lots of peanuts. There is a great to-do over Smithfield hams, which are presumably peanut-fed, and hickory-smoked.

I had peanut soup at Williamsburg. Good! The man of the party refused it. Why are men so stubborn and conservative?

Newcastle, Delaware, is a better example of early-American architecture than is that of Williamsburg, inasmuch as it is not "restored" but consists of the original buildings, most of them still inhabited. I saw only one commercial sign on these buildings. It said, simply, "Guests."

Criticism of the Kennedy administration from different Americans — "Our grandchildren will be paying the debts he is piling up" . . . "He's had too much money" . . . No criticism of his religious affiliations.

The tea in the northern states is awful. It improves as one goes south. The coffee is uniformly excellent, but tiresome.

— Space gone again. Next time, surely, we can print joyfully, "Writing from Sunnyacres"!

As mentioned elsewhere in this paper the Legion-sponsored Community Playground is becoming a reality. A work party is being formed for Saturday, April 29; all help offered will be needed. Keep the horse-shoe deal in mind, this could be a lot of fun. It is hoped that a club can be formed (with membership open to all local residents, for a nominal fee) and from this a series of round-robin tournaments and "bonspiels" can be run off throughout the summer.

Comrades Howard Ward, Joe Martell, Rene Paulson and Floyd Bradford represented Branch 70 at the provincial cribbage and darts tournament recently held in Montreal. Unfortunately, they did not bring the trophy back to Lachute.

The next Bingo will be May 4, so keep that night open for the wife.

The big night for the Legion-sponsored hockey teams is this Thursday. The players and their dads will be attending a banquet at the Legion Hall. Boom-Boom Geoffrion, the 50-goal all-star of the Montreal Canadiens, will be in attendance. Dads, please note that you and your hockey players are requested to be at the hall for 7 p.m. Supper to be served shortly afterwards.

Comrade Tom Smith, the hard working chairman of the Lachute Spring Fair activities (Legion version), and his committee, are lining up a real good evening of family entertainment. Headlining the show will be the very popular magician, Tom Auburn. Magic Tom has become increasingly popular since he has had his own regular show on Channel 12 TV. There will also be a display or demonstration of Scottish and other types of dancing put on by the McCullough School of Dancing from Alexandria. To round out the evening's show, there will be a greased pig-catching contest, a greased pole, pillow fights, tilting, and other mirth-provoking contests. All this, and we hope more, in front of the grandstand Saturday evening, June 17, from 8 to 11 p.m.

The Legion have purchased lots in both the R.C. and Protestant cemeteries. This will enable us to come to the assistance of veterans' families if and when there are financial difficulties. It will also assure the fact that no transient or unattached veteran will be buried in an unknown or unmarked grave. Anyone wishing advice or assistance on this subject should contact Com. Carl Demers, who was the leading light in this project.

For deep water navigation on Ottawa River world shipping. The geographical location of this waterway, and its natural connection with the St. Lawrence Seaway in Lake St. Louis near Montreal, seem to offer the answer to those who have been authorized to make a study of the plan to capitalize now, at low cost, on this great asset, by preserving intact for future generations all the possibilities of this most valuable natural resource.

The Federal Department of Public works, in its recent study which is not yet complete, seems to have decided that at Carillon, dimensions comparable to the now obsolete structure along the old route of the St. Lawrence, would suffice. The Ottawa Valley Development Association has doubts about such standards that will only allow the passage of ships of 3,000 tons. This, we believe, would not make the waterway and its region accessible to a reasonable percentage of world shipping. If we look at the population map of any country, we must see that where there is navigable water there, also, are our people and our industries. Industrial development is far more closely related to water transportation than to any other single factor.

Industrial growth in Canada, today, seems to be limited to the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes areas, which lie on the southern limits of our country. But at this time, we believe that we should foster industrial depth, and herein lies the Ottawa River and its great potential..

WHAT IS THE EXCISE TAX?

Excise is a federal tax paid upon delivery to a purchaser of certain goods when they are taken out of a factory or warehouse, if produced in Canada, or when imported. Excise taxes and duties are derived largely from three classes of commodities: alcoholic beverages, cigars, cigarettes and tobacco; and automobiles, tires and tubes. Numerous other commodities, however, are subject to excise tax. Practically speaking, the sales tax is also an excise tax.

THE SCENE around Brownsburg

Latest addition to the list of candidates for the municipal election coming up on May 15 — John Rutherford, supervisor at C-I-L.

So far, no change in the speeding situation, although Chief Roger Boutet was seen observing the traffic at the traffic light at noon on Monday! The electric timer has yet to make its appearance.

The Woodbine Avenue North waterworks project is underway now. A total of 600 feet of sewerage and water pipe will be laid providing services for 14 lots.

The post-office area shows up as a potentially hazardous place for pedestrians at noon-hour. A six-year-old girl missed injury by scant inches last week, when a driver moved his car out from between Maitland's Restaurant and the post-office. The driver, looking eastward, didn't see the child approaching from the west, and nearly ran her down. The youngster was one of many sauntering back to school after lunch.

Better light at night — that's the word on Brownsburg's main streets at least, as the town authorities continue to push the installation of the mercury-vapor streetlights.

House numbering is still proceeding, but it is considered a spare-time job, second to such things as cutting trees, sewerage projects, etc.

The town's governing body is going along with its own regulation banning the mounting of signs and posters on telephone and power poles, by removing any they find. Perhaps a copy of the by-law mailed to the offenders might serve a purpose.

Mabel

Mr. Irvine Warwick, of Montreal, spent Monday at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Clark, and Jean Clark, visited Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cunning at Vankleek Hill on Sunday.

Miss Helen Black, of Hawkesbury, and Miss Mary MacDonald, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Black during the week-end.

On the Sick List

Best wishes for a quick return to good health are extended to Mrs. George D. Murdoch, who has been confined to bed for several days; to Mrs. Wm. Jackson, who has undergone an operation in the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury; and to the Rev. George Hicks, who is a patient in the Montreal General Hospital.

Late Montrealer was related and well-known here

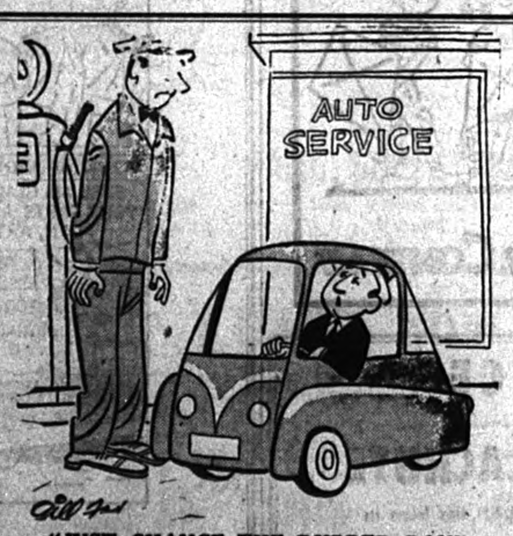

The late Arthur D. Roberts

Mr. Arthur Daniel Roberts passed away at the Montreal Neurological Institute on Monday, April 17, at the age of 62, after a short illness.

Scholarships to Otter Lake Music Centre

A number of scholarships are being offered this summer by Otter Lake Music Centre to musical amateurs and students. The Music Centre this year will be held from July 2 to July 30, at Weir, Que.

Scholarships for the 1961 season have been made available through the generosity of interested donors.

Since the program of the Music Centre is designed primarily to stimulate and encourage the amateur, these scholarships will be awarded not only to music students, but to those who have a sincere desire to develop their capabilities for future active participation in music as an avocation rather than as a profession, and who are in need of financial assistance.

The following factors will be considered:

1. Participation by candidate in group music-making in the community; evidence of need to acquire experience which will assist and broaden such group activity.

2. Need of a family of musically active members to receive help and stimulation.

3. Need of amateur musicians to receive instruction and come in contact with others for the purpose of group music-making.

4. Need of a music student who is interested, in addition to the requirements of a musical career, in group participation under expert supervision.

The financial needs of the candidate will, in all cases, be of primary concern.

Generally speaking, scholarships will not completely cover expenses; however, in the case of students allowed special rates, their status will not be affected, and amount of the scholarship in such cases will be applied against the student rate.

Applications should be clearly written (typed, if possible) and forwarded to: The Secretary, CAMMAC Music Centre, Box 195, Outremont, Que., and should include:

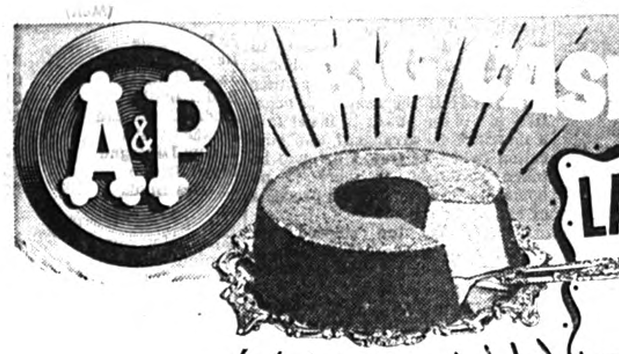

1. Reasons for wishing to attend the Music Centre.

2. Reason for requiring financial assistance.

3. Length of time of desired stay at the Centre.

Each application must be accompanied by two letters of recommendation from competent persons giving references as to candidate's musical abilities and to need for financial assistance in the form of a scholarship. Closing date for applications is May 15.

Legion Auxiliary dinner celebration, 11th anniversary

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Legion Branch 70, Lachute, held their 11th anniversary dinner last Saturday evening at the Legion Hall.

The president, Mrs. W. Bradshaw, welcomed the members and guests, and a lovely supper was provided by ladies of the C.N.I.B. Auxiliary.

A toast to the Queen was given by Mrs. R. Thorburn, and the guest speaker for the occasion was Mrs. Bluebell Phillips, of Dorval, who has been long associated with this County. Introduced by Mrs. Ian MacDougall, Mrs. Phillips spoke on the subject, "Kids in Jail", a topic which proved most interesting to her listeners.

A feature of the evening was a colorful display of hats made and worn by the members. Prize winners were Mrs. C. Napp and Mrs. W. Skinner.

At the close, a dance was held by the senior branch, and a further display of hats was given. Prizes were awarded by the men's branch to the winners, Mrs. S. Bradshaw and Mrs. Ian MacDougall.

Guests at the dinner, besides the speaker, were Comrade Joe Martell, president of the senior branch, and Mrs. Martell, also Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Iddon.

APPRECIATION

Mrs. Mel Wilson wishes to express her thanks for the many cards, letters, flowers, visits, and prayers, during her recent sojourn in hospital.

Story describes welcome of Bach Choir in Tokyo

In the Montreal Gazette last Saturday appeared an exclusive story by William Doyle describing the arrival of the George Little (Montreal) Bach Choir in Tokyo, and the wonderful reception accorded to this group. The story is of particular interest since the choir is well known here, and also because a local townsman, Wayne Riddell, is a member of the party enjoying this rare experience.

Following are two brief extracts from the Gazette report:

"This was really V.I.P. treatment. . . . In the welcoming group were four young and beautiful Japanese maidens, dressed in colorful kimonas standing by a large table bedecked with flowers.

"As we lined up in semi-circular fashion these young ladies presented bouquets of flowers. First a huge bouquet to George Little, the director of the choir, and then a smaller one to each member of the group. We were all very much touched with this very gracious gesture of welcome.

"Our first day in Japan was a busy but a very rewarding one. Canadians are highly regarded here and the Montreal Bach Choir, the first Canadian choral group ever to come here, has excited a great deal of interest. While there are still tickets available for our Tokyo concert in about 10 days, the opening concert of the the tour in Osaka has been sold out for quite some time. Considering that the hall seats 4,000 people this is an indication of the interest in choral music and in a Canadian choir."

Choral Society cantata on May 7

The second cantata of the season will be presented by the Argenteuil Choral Society on Sunday evening, May 7, at Lachute United Church, when Gaul's "The Holy City" will be given. This choir of 50 voices, composed of singers from Lachute, Brownsburg and Kilmar, have had an extended season this year with the preparation of two spring cantatas.

The director, Lowell B. Hopkins, will again be at the organ console, and the various soloists will be named in next issue. It is hoped that all lovers of sacred music will make an effort to support the Society in this presentation.

Appointed to Provincial Body

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Textile Colorists and Chemists (Quebec Section), held last week in Montreal, Mr. David Heggie of Ayers Limited, was re-elected treasurer of the group. . . . An interesting conclusion from talks at this conference was that "efforts to discover new man-made textile fibres are diminishing, while greater concentration is being devoted to the improvement of existing man-made fibres."

Successful year by B'burg C.W.L.

Brownsburg — The annual meeting of the St. Louis de France Council, Catholic Women's League, was held on Tuesday, April 18, in the church hall. All conveners submitted their annual reports, which showed that the members, though few in number, spent an active year "For God and Canada."

Mass in honor of Our Lady of Good Counsel will be held in the church on Wednesday. This will be followed by a communion supper for members and their families, at the Legion Hall. The Rev. Peter Garland, P.P. of St. Jude's Parish, Hawkesbury, will be special guest. Later in the evening he will address all English-speaking members of the parish.

The president, Mrs. Noël Robillard, announced that Father Garland would come to address the children on four consecutive Wednesdays in May. This will be at 7 p.m., in the Bouchard School.

For the May meeting it was decided to hold a Christmas shower for the Eskimo children of the Arctic mission of the Rev. Maurice Matayer, O.M.I. Members are asked to bring small toys, trinkets, rosaries, cheap jewelry, bright ribbons, candy, etc., to be sent to Father Matayer, to help brighten Christmas for those little Canadians in the far north.

Card party held for Home-School scholarship fund

The Lachute Home and School Association scholarship whist, held last week in Lachute High School, proved very successful — the large number of participants occupying 72 tables for the games. Public housing project planned at Hawkesbury

Ontario Water Resources Commission.

For Future Needs

This new system will not only be an improvement on existing facilities, but will also provide for future industrial and residential development.

As to East Hawkesbury farming property, about 1,400 acres of the 2,300 acres that must be purchased for lease to the Province of Quebec has been acquired to date. .

The majority of business properties on the north side of Main Street between John Street and No. 89 can be saved in part. Merchants here have the option of remaining where they are or moving elsewhere.

The land most urgently needed within the town limits, Hydro says, is situated between Philip Street and the railway trestle. This area has been selected by the town's consulting engineers as the site of the pumping station which will be built by Ontario Hydro, and any future municipal services the town might wish to build. This area must be cleared by July 1, 1961.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Pictorial records are precious

IN THE CLASSIFIED section of this newspaper appears an advertisement requesting old photographs of the local scene — meaning Lachute Town and its immediate surroundings. This item is inserted by The Watchman, which is willing and anxious to take care of these pictures as a local service. . . .

On the front page of this same issue appear two current photographs which effectively explain the reason for this gesture. The face of Main Street is changing, not rapidly but irretrievably. Old-time residents are dying off, and memories are fast fading. Meanwhile there is no organized effort to retain a record of our landmarks for the interest of posterity.

If this community were not already over-organized in terms of clubs and groups and societies, it might be opportune to suggest that a new association be established to concern itself with the records of our disappearing past.

In the Argenteuil Historical Society there is a worthwhile move of this kind, now well advanced, to collect facts and artifacts of the Ottawa rivershore in that section between Carillon and Grenville which is shortly to be inundated and lost forever. The field committee chaired by Dr. G. R. Rigby for this purpose, has a somewhat formidable task, but is doing a valuable job in this respect. Argenteuil County, and its Historical Society in particular, will owe a debt of recognition to this research venture, when the face of things in the Ottawa Valley is no longer recognizable.

We wish some comparable effort might be made in Lachute Town, to perpetuate those recollections so dear to the hearts of many older residents. In the meantime, if readers rooted in this community have photographs of streets or properties, which appear in danger of being lost or discarded, The Watchman offers its services as a depository, until some day these mementoes may be filed and preserved in a systematic manner.

Bloomers — late and early

WHEN EDUCATIONISTS talk about "late bloomers", they aren't referring to flowers — unless, perhaps, it's in a horticulture course. What they are talking about is the student who is average or below average in high school but suddenly blossoms and does well in university. They are the opposites of early bloomers, who get good marks in high school but don't do so well in college.

And there are also dark horses — students who don't show much in the early years of university, but come on with a sprint to finish near the top.

The definitions were provided by a panel at a Toronto meeting of the Ontario Educational Association.

What is possibly more important is that the educationists admitted it's difficult to spot an early bloomer or a late bloomer with any certainty.

This should be a double-edged warning to parents, who themselves seem to fall into two categories. We've probably all heard some parents describe their child as stupid and indicate they have given up all hope the youngster will ever complete his education. And many teachers have encountered parents who refuse to face up to the fact that their child's intelligence isn't high enough to permit him to complete a university course successfully.

On the one hand, the danger is that the parents are abandoning hope for a child who may be destined to become a late bloomer. On the other, they may be expecting too much of a student who just hasn't the ability to cope with higher education. . . . Either way, it can mean loss of interest or frustration in the child. The boy or girl who senses that his parents think he's stupid may give up the idea of pursuing an education before he has been given a chance to show his true colors.

Those whose parents practically force them to continue in an academic course when they haven't the capability, are being denied the chance to find their niches in a field where they can succeed — such as in vocational or commercial courses.

There is no simple answer to the problem, particularly since it's all wrapped up in the emotional ties between parent and child. But perhaps if we at least try to recognize a problem when it exists, and to get the best possible advice and heed it, we can do something to help our children find their way to a fruitful and satisfying role in society.

Stunt performers and everyday actors

WORDS OF WISDOM and advice of value to everyone driving in modern traffic come from Colette Duval, eminent French acrobat. . . . She said: "I consider life very much worth living and I would refuse to take risks that involve pure chance."

Acrobats and stunt performers select and create the dangers they face, said Colette, but only after carefully perfecting the technique they need to exert 100% control. "When I say 100%," she is quoted, "I'm perhaps exaggerating a little for there is always an element of risk."

That risk, she claimed, acts as a stimulant. "On the other hand, it forces us to take every conceivable precaution and never trust to luck. . . . All of us must bear in mind that chance may work against us; we must never rely on chance being on our side."

Admitting that fatal accidents happen in her profession, Colette Duval said, "You live in the belief, which I suppose is deep-rooted in human nature, that accidents always happen to somebody else. It's like the motorist who sets out on a Sunday morning with his family and who knows that by the end of the day so-and-so many deaths will have occurred on the roads, but who doesn't believe for a moment that he himself will be among the victims.

"When we hear news of a fatal accident our first reaction — aside from grief — is to find the precise causes of the accident."

Motorists could benefit from Colette Duval's words — sense the reasons behind each accident so they may be avoided by others, and forever remember there is an element of risk that can kill.

Butter and the heart

IT MUST BE EVIDENT to any layman, that eating so traditional a food as butter, in moderation, will do him no harm. And this will remain true regardless of the outcome of the medical controversy between saturated fats and unsaturated ones — says an editorial in the Halifax Chronicle-Herald.

The committee has received support from some distinguished physicians — for one, Dr. Romeo Boucher, Professor Emeritus of the University of Montreal and Director of Public Relations for the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons. Dr. Boucher points out that it is an over-simplification to blame heart trouble on animal fats, when medical science has not yet set a real standard of cholesterol level.

To illustrate irrational attitudes toward butter, Dr. Boucher cites the case of the executive type who "for some mad reason . . . will down six scotches before lunch, then refuse a small pat of butter as being dangerous for his health." . . . "I ask you," he says, "count the calories!"

Bad eating habits of all kinds do, indeed, lead to poor health, Dr. Boucher remarks. An excess of anything is unhealthy, including drinking water. "Butter in the diet is by no means injurious to our health, unless we eat too much of it," he advises.

It seems strange that, in this supposedly enlightened day, eminent doctors must go out of their way to persuade the public of such homely truths.

But necessary it appears to be, and the committee is therefore performing a service in making this information, and much more, available. It is to be hoped that as a result this tasty, wholesome, nourishing food will be restored to the place it deserves on the dining table.

CHANGING THE WORLD

We all go through a stage when we want to change the world. Like the old tent-maker, we are convinced that we could reshape society somewhat closer to the heart's desire.

This supreme confidence that we could reshape the world is a characteristic of youth. I think it was Mark Twain who said that when he was a boy of 14, his father was so ignorant he could hardly stand to have the old man around; but when he got to be 21, he was astonished at how much the old man had learned in seven years!

Some men go on all their lives trying to revolutionize the world. Charles K. Kettering used to say that these men would continue to try to revolutionize things as long as they never have to present a working model!

There is an amusing paradox in this situation. The revolutionaries seldom persuade the rest of us to give them the power they want to reshape the world. There are two reasons why we do not give them power: First — they cannot demonstrate a working model; second, what model they do prefer seems always to be some form of society that would be unchangeable, fixed, static, blueprinted forever!

But while we resist the allurements of those who want to change the world — we go on changing it ourselves, as free individuals. For man is perpetually dissatisfied. He looks for new and better ways of doing his job, of providing a service, of making a profit.

Individuals who really do change the world seldom belong to revolutionary groups. They do not believe our society is in a mess and must be radically changed and set in some new blueprinted form. Their slogan, rather, is that things are good but can be better. And they go about the job of finding and presenting better ways of getting things done. Henry Ford, Marconi, Kettering, Edison — these are the kind of men who change the world for the better . . . yet leave it free to change again and again over the the centuries.

We should all wish to change the world. But we should all avoid trying to impose the change by compulsion. We should be sure, too, that having made the change, we do not stamp it indelibly upon society so that no further improvements can come about through the skill and ingenuity of the individual — the divinely dissatisfied individual with whom the best of all changes originated.

Inflated unemployment

By Lewis Milligan

The question has been raised as to how much the spate of unemployment in Canada is due to economic inflation. The Truro Daily News, in an editorial, raises the question as to how much of the reported 600,000 out of work is due to "Inflated Unemployment Figures." Under that headline, the editorial begins: "An analysis of those registered as unemployed with the National Unemployment Service confirms the suspicion that their total is grossly inflated. Dr. R. W. James, statistician of the Department of National Defence, estimated in mid-September that one-third of those registered as unemployed are not really so by any 'meaningful definition' of the term. Wives, whose husbands are employed full time and . . . children with a working parent 'probably ought not to be registered as full-fledged members of the labor force'."

The unemployment situation is serious enough, but exaggeration only aggravates the problem of dealing with it. To those who are legitimately out of work, the situation must seem hopeless, and their morale for endurance is lowered, while that "one-third" who are malingering on unemployment insurance have less incentive to work and are depleting the fund upon which the genuinely unemployed workers depend. It is common knowledge that teen-agers living at home are on the insurance pay-roll, and that married women, with husbands who are working full time, are registered and periodically "out of work", and even drawing pay through periods of maternity.

The Truro Daily News cites the case of fishermen in its own province, thus: "Since those who are regularly unemployed (as fishermen are, for certain seasons of every year) become entitled to payment from the Unemployment Fund, the fund has ceased to represent any meaningful type of insurance and has become simply a dole. Some of the fishermen in a good season can earn enough to give them a comfortable annual income and could well afford to look after themselves in slack seasons. With the insurance payments coming in to supplement their earnings from their regular work, they are not impelled by any financial necessity to seek other jobs in their off season."

These cases of flagrant misuse of the Fund renders the title "Insurance" a farcical misnomer. Unemployment is in the category of an accident, and no Insurance Company could or would give a policy to even one person who deliberately ran into accidents.

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

In some offices there is a mean, gloomy and grudging spirit. Look around, and you can often trace it to an emotional Typhoid Mary who is spreading the infection of pessimism and bad temper to everyone.

The culprit may be the boss, or someone at a lower level who comes in contact with a number of employees.

And then there are happy offices. You can feel the warmth as soon as you go in the door. These lucky organizations — government or commercial — have agreeable people in key places.

Their spirit filters down to the lowest level. For example . . .

Aboard a ferry boat not long ago, I saw a cleaning girl moving among the passengers with a green button held between thumb and forefingers.

It was a button from a woman's coat. She had picked it from the floor, and was trying to find its owner. I saw her approach several woman passengers, and hold the button against their coats, for comparison.

How many people would have bothered? This was one of the small acts that provide a clue to character. It meant kindness in petty things and thought for other people's welfare.

Whether or not the girl janitor found the owner of the button, she pleased the people who understood what she was doing. That is the way to build a good public relations "image" — by small, spontaneous acts of service.

And she was a good advertisement for the people who had hired her. The behaviour of minor employees tells you a lot about the boss.

Recent statistics show that the death toll of children killed by accidents in Canada, reaches the appalling average of 1,500 a year. This picture accentuates the necessity for greater public awareness of the problem.

This average of 1,500 children killed every year exceeds by far the total of children dying from all contagious diseases during a same period. And it should be remembered, the motor vehicle is the greatest killer of children from 2 to 15 years of age. The situation is all the more shocking if we consider that THESE ACCIDENTS ARE PREVENTABLE.

Charlotte Russe won spectators, delights family

(Consumer Section)

Montrealers who attended the annual "Salon of Agriculture" held their city recently, saw five different buffet menus planned, prepared and set up by the French home economists from Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Of all the dishes on the buffet tables, a Charlotte Russe caught and held the eyes of the spectators. Since there have been many requests for this "prima donna" dessert the Consumer Section is passing the recipe along to you.

Charlotte Russe

1 package flavored jelly powder (grape, lemon, cherry, raspberry or strawberry), 2 cups boiling water, 16 to 20 single lady fingers, 3½ to 4 inches long, 1½ tablespoons gelatine, ¼ cup water, ⅔ cup milk, ⅔ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 cups whipping cream, 2 teaspoons vanilla (or ¼ cup sherry or cognac).

Dissolve jelly powder in the 2 cups boiling water. Pour into 8-inch round mold to a depth of ½ inch. Chill until almost set. Stand lady fingers in jelly, around sides of mold. Chill until firm. Meanwhile soak gelatine in cold water. Heat milk, add soaked gelatine and sugar and salt, then stir until dissolved. Cool at room temperature. Whip cream and add vanilla, sherry or cognac. When milk mixture has begun to thicken, beat in part of the whipped cream, then lightly fold in remainder. Turn into mold lined with lady fingers. Chill until firm, 3 to 4 hours. Unmold onto a serving plate. 8 servings.

Variation: Omit fruit-flavored jelly from recipe. After unmolding, garnish with maraschino cherries and whipped cream.

When you make this Charlotte Russe — Any flavor of jelly powder may be used but if the flowers on the table are daffodils or narcissus, grape jelly contrasts nicely; on the other hand if the flowers are iris or lilacs, lemon jelly powder gives a good effect. All of the dissolved jelly powder may not be used in the dessert, for more than ½ inch of the jelly in the mold will not leave enough room for the whipped cream mixture. A lesser amount of cream mixture than called for in the recipe does not make as rich or pretty a Charlotte Russe.

When buying the lady fingers at the bakery, buy the long, narrow ones if possible. These give the height necessary for holding all the cream mixture. Also, buy the larger number (20) called for in the recipe; it is better to have a few too many than not enough. If the tips of the lady fingers stand above the cream mixture, trim them to come even with it. This keeps them from breaking away when the dessert is unmolded.

Charlotte Russe may be made the day before and held overnight in the refrigerator. Come party time, unmold and set it out with the other foods for all to see, as it stands up well at room temperature.

Watching all the girls go by Observers back from the 1961 Easter parades assert that the arbiters of female fashion may have made a serious mistake. The designers have introduced a new skirt. This, comments The Financial Post, some of the girls like. Some think it a public service to deliver flashes of knee-cap as they twinkle along. But when they sit down, it's all too obvious that they do, in fact, have knees and all knees are ugly. Cutting skirt material on the bias and skimping on the front hem is the reason. When a girl sits down these days, her dress has nowhere to go but up. The Chinese have been smarter for centuries. They know knees are ugly. They know flashes of thigh are not, hence the long side slit which has for generations helped Chinese girls entrance mankind.

Our Juvenile Courts

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Canadian children today are more law-abiding than their parents were thirty years ago," a lecturer in social work stated recently at a conference held in Ottawa of dental nurses and assistants. He backed his statement with this comment: "Most types of crimes involving minors since 1943 have declined. Juvenile convictions were 67 per 100,000 in 1958 compared with 69 per 100,000 in 1932 when mother and dad were youngsters."

These remarks may come as a surprise to parents who regret the number of adolescents who get into the news because of some brush with the police. Juvenile delinquency, in the over-all picture in U.S., has been growing for many years.

It is heartening to know that this problem, although grave, is not increasing in Canada. Much credit must go to various social agencies and to the establishment of Juvenile Courts. It was our neighbor to the South who pioneered in these special courts with the first one in Chicago a little over sixty years ago.

The Juvenile Delinquents Act and its amendment established a new and important principle of individual justice. In the traditional criminal courts the emphasis is on whether or not a crime has been committed. In the questions which are asked at a juvenile court, the youth who has committed a misdeed and his parents are faced with questions which demonstrate that he is regarded as a person, different from other persons, and needing individual attention.

Judge Hugh Arrel in speaking to a Teachers' Convention, pointed out that a Juvenile Court is a court of law established for the protection of the individual as well as for the good of the community. There the questions about a misdemeanor are "Why?; Under what circumstances?, and What can be done to help him?"

The procedures at Juvenile Courts are not as formal nor as technical as other courts but facts must come out into the open, and then later opinions and recommendations. There is proper presentation of evidence, opportunities to examine and cross-examine witnesses and a fair chance for interested parties to present their point of view.

In our civilization where a car is a status symbol, and where men and boys often look on cars as an extension of themselves, theft of autos has naturally been on the increase. Many juveniles are also at fault in speeding and endangering their own lives and those of other people.

Causes of misbehaviour and of crime are usually complex. Many of the forces contributing to delinquency have been operating over a long period of time. There is no one simple cure which will change the picture.

Better housing, youth centres playgrounds, mental examination of school age children and assistance for all urgent cases, are among the many helpful suggestions.

When no mother is at home, (because she is away working) when Junior gets home from school, there is a chance that a boy will fall in with undesirable companions and eventually get into difficulty with the law.

"Harsh punishment does not reform delinquents. Only the best knowledge in rehabilitation, intelligently used, has any hope of succeeding," Dr. S. R. Laycock, former national Home and School president claims.

If a boy or girl must appear in a Juvenile Court, many individuals are quick to lay the blame on parents, companions or on some special circumstances. It would be more enlightening if all concerned with an adolescent in trouble would quietly and thoughtfully search for the answers asked in the Juvenile Court about his misdemeanor — "Why?", "Under what circumstances?" and "What can be done to help him?"

Facts about baby foods

This is National Baby Week, the special week set aside each year for a bonnets-off salute to Canada's most important new citizens. Last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports, there were 477,933 babies born in Canada. Many food stores are staging special promotions on such items as baby foods and other baby supplies this week.

Mothers now have a wide choice in baby foods available to them. Now all the drudgery of scraping, grating and sieving is done by the food makers, who also add essential vitamins.

When it comes to baby feeding, mothers know this is the most important thing in the baby's life. It is his first education. It should not be looked on as a problem, and it need be no problem if you remember that baby is the best judge of his food requirements. When he's hungry he cries. When his hunger has been satisfied, he stops eating. Balanced diet is simple, with the wealth of nutritious baby foods at mother's disposal. And if you're in doubt, always ask your doctor.

Here is some helpful information about prepared baby foods, to guide you in your choice and use of these baby-builders and time-savers.

Selecting

Cereals, which you can buy precooked, supplement the minerals and vitamins of milk or formula. A good cereal contains thiamine and iron. Varieties include rice, barley, oatmeal, corn, mixed cereal and infant soy. They come in 8 and 16-ounce packages, can be prepared in seven seconds. Just mix in the feeding dish.

Strained foods are usually introduced from two to three months. They give easily digestible bulk. They come in a wide variety, including egg yolks, egg yolks with bacon, custards, fruits, vegetables, meat combinations, and many others.

Junior foods are slightly coarser, to encourage chewing at from 8 to 12 months. Variety is available, similar to strained foods.

Using Baby Foods

They can be used right from the tin. Wash top of tin, open with sterilized opener. Heat in the tin, standing in hot water. If using only a portion of a tin, spoon portion into clean dish. Cover, to prevent loss of vitamins while warming. Place dish in hot water for three to five minutes. Serve tepid.

Storing Baby Foods

It is perfectly safe to store unused portions in the tin. Cover tin with special tin top, or piece of waxed paper and elastic band. Store in refrigerator for up to three days. Unopened tins of prepared baby foods can be stored on cupboard shelves indefinitely. Select a cool place, stack tins by color pattern—the way the foodstores do it — for easy selection.

"Molly" of radio fame dies of cancer

Marian Jordan, better known as the sharp-tongued but soft-hearted Molly of the "Fibber McGee and Molly" radio show, died recently of cancer a week before her 63rd birthday.

She and Jim Jordan, her husband and co-star, amused millions in the pre-TV era with their gentle humor as the daffy couple who lived in the mythical town of Wistful Vista. Her quavery rebuke, "Tain't funny, McGee!" and the fantastically cluttered closet which McGee opened at least once a show, were sure laughs.

The urgent demand for more women physiotherapists in Canada was emphasized last week in Toronto at the 12th annual meeting of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society's national board of directors.

"You need to be with those who actually are handicapped by arthritis or one of the rheumatic diseases to appreciate their great need," said Mary Pack of Vancouver, executive director of the British Columbia division which has treated 28,000 patients since 1948.

"We have existing vacancies for physiotherapists and we have no occupational therapists on hand at all," said Joan Hudson of Halifax, where she is executive secretary of the Nova Scotia division which handles 200 patients a year.

Regional Gardeners

One of the problems for the amateur gardener in Canada is that books with expert advice on the subject have often been too general to be of specific assistance in a particular part of this big country.

Now Roscoe A. Fillmore, retired gardener of the Dominion Atlantic Railway, has turned out a book, The Perennial Border and Rock Garden (Ryerson Press), which gives specific details for gardening success in the various regions of Canada.

"We have a huge country and the plants and flowers that are practical to grow in one or two climatic zones may be totally impractical as planting materials in many others," he says.

Soufflé Supper

The Consumer Section of the federal department of agriculture says that if you're making a soufflé be sure to serve it as soon as it comes out of the oven.

Begin with a thick sauce and add egg yolks and other ingredients for variety in flavor and texture. Stiffly beaten egg whites, which are folded gently and completely into the sauce mixture just before baking, ensure a light soufflé.

Grated cheese or chopped, cooked meat or poultry can be added when the soufflé is served either as the main dish or as a side one.

The sauce calls for: ¼ cup butter, ¼ cup flour, 1¼ cups milk, 1 tsp. salt, few grains pepper, 4 egg yolks, beaten, 2 cups chopped, cooked vegetable, meat, poultry or fish or 2 cups grated cheese, 4 egg whites, beaten until stiff.

Melt butter. Blend in flour. Gradually add milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens. Add seasonings. Add slowly to beaten egg yolks. Cool.

Mix vegetable, meat, fish, poultry or cheese into the sauce and fold into the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into a buttered six cup casserole and oven-poach at 350 degrees fahrenheit, until firm, about 1 hour, or use six baking dishes and cook about 40 minutes. Yield: 4-6 servings.

BAKING POTATOES

Before baking potatoes, be sure to butter the skins. They'll come out of the oven with a delicious shiny glaze, be much easier to open on the dinner plate.

A springtime treat

Fried Spring Chicken with "Honey Apple" Sauce

Fried spring chicken is as delicious a treat as a new spring bonnet — only not as costly. Dredge 5 to 6 pounds cut-up chicken in 1 cup flour seasoned with 2 teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1½ teaspoons paprika. Let stand 20 minutes. Fry pieces in ½ inch hot fat, turning several times, until chicken is an even, golden brown, 5 to 10 minutes. Cover and reduce heat; continue cooking slowly until pieces are fork tender, 25 to 30 minutes. Meanwhile, measure and mix: ½ cup apple juice; 2 teaspoons liquid honey, ½ cup finely chopped parsley. Spoon sauce over top of chicken pieces and continue cooking, uncovered, for 10 minutes longer. Then drain on absorbent paper. Serves 6 to 8.

Spring planting of trees, shrubs

As April draws to a close, it is time to be thinking about preparations to plant trees and shrubs. Roland Gilbert, of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, gives the following advice.

It is a good idea to plant those kinds which are hardy and suited to local conditions of climate and soil. It is also a good idea to try and visualize what the tree will look like in 20 years' time. If this is done, the tree or shrub is more likely to fulfill expectations.

Planting should be done as early as possible, that is, as soon as the soil has warmed up and can be worked easily. If the soil is fill or excavated material, a hole about 18 to 24 inches should be dug, the poor soil removed and replaced with good earth, rich in organic matter and nutrient elements. The tree or shrub is then placed in the hole with its roots well spread, and the soil replaced. Care should be taken to tramp it down well so that no air-pockets are left. A good watering is a guarantee of success.

The tree or shrub should be set about two inches deeper than it was in the nursery. When the plant is received, it is easy to tell from the color of the bark how high up the trunk the soil came before it was dug up. Dead roots and weak or frozen branches should be removed. The number of branches retained should be in proportion to the amount of root remaining.

When a tree is chosen in its natural setting, it should be taken from a sunny spot. Earth should be moved with it at the rate of nine inches width at the ground surface for every inch diameter of trunk. Note should be taken of its natural orientation, so that it can be replanted in the same way. For fertilizer, bonemeal is recommended, and also 8-16-16, at the rate of ½ to 1 pound per inch diameter of trunk.

Amateurs would do well to read publication 244 of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, entitled "Shrubs".

Sound advice on strawberry planting

May is the time for setting out strawberry plants. In fact, good early planting is essential to a high yield.

It should be remembered, it is the flower buds of the secondary plants which are set by the runners, that will produce next spring's crop, and that these buds are formed at the end of the summer and the beginning of autumn, or between about August 20 and September 20. Hence, when that time comes, it is important to have a good number of well-established, secondary plants with thick necks. Other secondary plants formed after this time are less well rooted and developed. As a result, the flower buds on them are smaller and less numerous, so that such late plantlets yield less fruit. Planting should be done in the spring: there is no advantage in doing it in the fall.

Preparation of the land should have begun two or three years before the actual date of planting, so that the soil will be free of weeds through cultivation of a hoed crop or by summer-fallowing. During this rotation, organic matter should be worked into the soil either in the form of well-rotted manure or by turning under a green manure crop. Early in the spring of the year of planting, the land should be harrowed two or three times so that a loose, even texture of the soil will make for good, easy planting.

In order to encourage early rooting of secondary plants on the runners, it is important to do the planting well, and as early as possible in spring; soil and atmosphere are then more moist, and the plants will therefore take root more easily. The plants should be set in the soil up to the collar, and the earth pressed firmly about them.

The grower should take particular care to make a good choice of varieties. New ones of great merit have now been available for some years: Cavalier (early); Redcoat (semi-early); Sparkle (mid-season); Guardsman (late). Any grower with two or more acres in strawberries should have two or three varieties which ripen at different times.

A wise choice of varieties will make the work of harvesting easier, and will help to prevent periodic flooding of the market. And, last but not least, plants must be healthy and vigorous, free from disease.

The Quebec Department of Agriculture has a number of propagation fields around Montreal and Quebec, where growers may obtain certain quantities of good plants at a reasonable price.

Paul Vanier, of the Department of Agriculture, stresses that no grower should keep these virus-free plants for more than two years; he would even advise that they be kept for only one year, because of uncontrollable contamination in the grower's field. It would be in the grower's interest to buy new, healthy plants every year for his new beds. This will cost a bit extra at first, but the difference in yield will mean more revenue in the end — which, to a business man, is what counts. Hence, it is foolish to think of buying say 500 healthy plants with the intention of multiplying them so as to have home-grown, virus-free plants the following year.

Briefly then, the grower who wants to harvest a big crop of berries should keep the following points in mind when making his plantings:

1. Use good land prepared during two or three years previously;
2. Make a good choice of varieties;
3. Plant early and carefully;
4. Use healthy plants.

For more detailed information, the grower may seek the advice of the specialist horticultural agronome in his district.

Sees New Farm Deal earnest attack on over-production problem

The Diefenbaker government merits kudos for launching the first basic attack in decades on the multi-million-dollar boondoggle which, in this country, has masqueraded as an honest and thoughtful farm policy, comments The Financial Post.

We refer to the new Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, which should help bring to an end the wasteful and absurd practice of tilling unproductive farms. The bill comes up soon in Parliament for its second reading. Canadian taxpayers will wish it well.

But this move to bring the 20th century to Canadian agriculture furnishes a paradox as big as they come: Why, with one hand, would Ottawa try to solve the problems of farm overproduction while, with the other, it persists in promoting and financing gigantic farm surpluses?

Consider these facts:

The new legislation will enable the federal government and the provinces to encourage farmers to put marginal farmland to other and more profitable uses — trees for the paper industry, recreation areas, crops such as rapeseed which can be sold rather than crops which can't — and to conserve existing land and water resources.

This is, certainly, one of the most creative and beneficial farm measures to come before Parliament in years. But its attack on the problem of farm overproduction will be unfortunately blunted by the fact that existing support legislation will continue to generate unwanted surpluses.

With lamentable success, the Agricultural Stabilization Board has managed to encourage overproduction by throwing the remarkable sum of $142 million in three years into the price support sinkhole alone. It has begotten a race of efficient farmers who specialize in producing things for the board to buy at prices that can't be recouped when the board later sells those commodities in home or in foreign markets.

This country, due to the eagerness of its politicians to support farm prices, is now awash with butter, eggs, hogs and fast-rotting skim milk powder.

The new rehabilitation scheme shows, anyway, that Canadian governments no longer have delusions of adequacy in farm policy. But it's earnestly to be hoped that Ottawa will also clip the wings of the Stabilization Board before it goes any further in its riot of unnecessary, prodigiously expensive and utterly wasteful projects — concludes The Financial Post.

CLUTTERED FARMS

Every farm, because it sits in the open country, has the makings of a beauty spot. Too many don't make it so simply because of careless clutter. People seem to grow so used to clutter that they don't notice it.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Disease-Free Pigs

Every ordinary swine herd is to some extent afflicted by diseases and parasites that cut profits from the producer's ledger.

Even under excellent management where pigs are ushered into the world free from disease, they may become contaminated the minute they come in contact with the exterior of their dam and with the customary bedding.

Dr. Bohstedt

Recently it has become possible to develop an extraordinary herd by obtaining disease-free pigs. This is possible even from diseased stock. The sows are slaughtered late in pregnancy, about the 112th day, and the piglets are removed from the uterus to be placed in isolation brooders where they are fed sterile milk.

With our present knowledge of nutrition it is possible to give the piglets a good start in life. After four weeks without contact with other swine these pigs are put back on the farms. It is noted that the disease-free pigs have gained much more rapidly and more economically than ordinary pigs.

In raising disease-free pigs it is necessary to put them into thoroughly clean and disinfected quarters that have not been used for six weeks. Of course, there can be no contaminated pigs kept anywhere on the place.

These pigs are referred to as Specific-Pathogen-Free (SPF) pigs, meaning they are free from virus pneumonia, atrophic rhinitis, cholera, brucellosis, leptospirosis, bloody dysentery, transmissible gastroenteritis, and parasites. It does not mean that all swine diseases are eliminated for them forever. Veterinarians may recommend certain vaccinations even for these disease-free pigs, especially vaccination for hog cholera.

Many farmers and breeders who have suffered serious disease losses will be interested in breaking the "carrier chain" for diseases in their herds by starting fresh with disease-free breeding stock.

Various laboratories have been licensed to produce "SPF" pigs as described here, and it is possible to use them for breeding. Naturally-farrowed herds raised from such stock must be proved free from the above diseases before they can be certified as pathogen-free.

Question: Why is it that pigs or lambs born in January or February always seem to be stronger and more vigorous than those born later on in the spring?

Answer: It seems that the unborn young benefit from the nutritional carry-over from the preceding pasture season, when sows and ewes store in their bodies many of the fine nutritional principles of pasture. For the late-born young these reserves have been largely exhausted.
