GOOD PROSPECTS FAVOR 'FAIR WEEK 61'

The outlook for Lachute Spring Fair next week is encouraging to this year's president of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, Donald M. Hay, to the secretary manager, Ken Riley, and to the various directors and committeemen who have devoted much effort to preparations for this big annual event.

Entries for the livestock contests indicate another excellent horse show this year and good competition, in quality and numbers, in the cattle breeds. There is also a highly representative entry list for the poultry show.

The King Reid Shows have the midway and associated concessions, ensuring a variety of entertainment, which has invariably attracted large crowds to this glamorous area of the exhibition grounds.

Official Opening

Mr. Glen Brown, M.L.A. for Brome County, will be here to officiate for the opening on Thursday afternoon, with the customary program before the grandstand.

On this occasion (Thursday afternoon) the school children will have a holiday (according to confirmation at this time from the Protestant School authorities, communicated to Secretary K. Riley), and there will doubtless be a large influx of youngsters to enjoy the perennial thrills of the Fair.

Live Broadcast

It is also stated by Secretary Riley that the CBC regular farm broadcast which features the Craig Family from Toronto daily at 12.30, will be diverted to Lachute for a special coverage on Friday. On that day the radio program will be produced direct from the Lachute Fair.

Service Clubs

The service clubs are to the fore again, with respective programs to highlight each of the three principal Fair days.

Thursday will be Rotary Night, featuring such fun-provoking entertainment as a women's football kicking contest, calf catching, musical stalls, milking contest, and a tug-of-war in which several stalwart teams will enter.

Friday will be Lions Club Night — with the famed CFRA Happy Wanderers entertainment troupe, also an old-time fiddlers' contest.

Saturday afternoon there will be harness racing events under auspices of the Richelieu Club.

Saturday night is allotted to the Canadian Legion, which will provide a varied program including "Magic Tom" Auburn, highland dancing, and a hilarious greased pig catching contest.

Several of the clubs are conducting prize drawings on the grounds, all in aid of community welfare work with which they are respectively associated. It is anticipated the grandstand entertainments will draw a generous patronage from the Fair-going public.

Historical Society invitation to join rivershore tour

Members and all interested friends are invited by the Argenteuil Historical Society to take part in a conducted tour of some of the historic sites and buildings in the Carillon-Grenville area which will be flooded shortly by the reservoir of the Carillon Dam.

Members of the Historical Society's research committee will describe the points visited, which will include: the Brick House built by Clark Noyes, 1827; the Chute à Blondeau Canal, 1832; Locks Nos. II and III of the Old Canal, 1825 and 1827; the Lockmaster's House, dated 1828; the Owens "general store" at Stonefield.

This tour is arranged for Saturday, June 10, meeting at the Carillon Museum at 1.15 p.m. Transportation will be by private automobile, and participants will be asked to make up full loads of passengers before leaving the Museum.

The tour will finish at approximately 4.30 p.m. at the new hall of St. Mungo's Church, Cushing, where light refreshments will be served by the members of the Women's Association at a cost of 35c. . . . St. Mungo's Church was built in 1836, and this structure will also be found of much historical interest. Fortunately, the old church will not be affected by the flooding.

B.Sc. degree in Geology

ROBERT LAMARCHE,

son of Mr. and Mrs. Gaetan Lamarche, Lachute, who has concluded his four-year course in Science at the University of Montreal, and received his baccalaureate degree, majoring in Geology.

This young student will proceed to Laval University, Quebec, next September for post-graduate study towards a doctorate in Geology.

Rotary Club tours site of Carillon project

An interesting outing was enjoyed last Thursday by the Rotary Club, when the members and a few guests visited the Carillon Dam site. This project actually has to be seen, in order to fully appreciate the massive construction work being done. Day and night shifts forge the work ahead, with completion anticipated in 1964.

It was interesting to note, in this colossal machine age, a wall, not yet demolished, from the old canal. The workmanship and skill, in this old construction without benefit of machinery, is to be acknowledged with reverence.

This educational and constructive tour, by bus, took an hour. The Rotarians also drove to St. Andrews Golf Club, where an enjoyable dinner was served amid pleasant surroundings. . . . Thanks are due to Keith Wilson and others who helped to plan this pleasant occasion for the Rotary Club and guests.

Bicycle Safety program June 10 at Brownsburg

By M. E. Cowley

The date — June 10; the place — the Brownsburg Arena; the time — 9 a.m. until 12 noon. . . . What is it? . . . The Bicycle Safety tests for children from both the English and the French schools. The tests are the culmination of a Bicycle Safety program launched by the Brownsburg Home and School Association, Les Loisirs de Brownsburg, and Canadian Legion Branch 71, and furthered by the school authorities, who showed films and distributed safety pamphlets to the students in recent weeks. A great deal of the material used in the program was provided by the Province of Quebec Safety League, in order that the idea of safe driving on bicycles could ultimately lead to safe driving in automobiles in later years.

Buttons and certificates will be awarded to successful candidates, as they were two years ago, when a similar program was successfully staged for the Brownsburg High School students.

Since safety education of our children may well save their lives (and ours), this program deserves the earnest attention of all parents of children in both the English and the French schools.

Parents are requested to encourage their children to take part in the test program, which has been designed to provide an interesting challenge to the driver's skill.

Ottawa to Gaspé, via Lachute

Two crusaders, strong in the limb, have undertaken to walk from Ottawa to the Gaspé in an effort to drum up interest in a Canadian flag. The pair on this 900-mile hike are Normand Gingras and Paul Lapointe, who are seen here with the distinctive flag they advocate, and for which they already have a lengthy petition of names. Seen between the two enthusiasts is Fernand Berthiaume, editor of L'Argenteuil, who met the travellers near Marelan and interviewed them last Wednesday evening.

Chest X-rays, free service in Exhib'n building

Fair-goers this year will have the opportunity to procure a free chest X-ray. The Anti-Tuberculosis League and Argenteuil Health Unit are collaborating in this service, for which premises have been placed at their disposal in the Main Building at the exhibition grounds.

It is estimated that several thousands will take advantage of this free service, and later receive clear-bill certificates, which are required in many trades associated with foodstuffs, restaurants and household provisioning.

The free X-ray examination is without formality or inconvenience. Previous experience has shown that from 5 to 7 p.m. is the peak hour, following the afternoon Fair programs; but one or more technicians will be on duty every day of the Fair from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. continuously.

Diocesan C.W.L. convention here Saturday, June 10

The theme of the sixth annual convention of the Catholic Women's League for St. Jerome Diocese to take place June 10 in Lachute, will be "The Christian Woman in Her Community".

The convention will open with the celebration of Mass at 8:30 a.m. at the shrine of Our Lady of Lourdes, on the Brownsburg Road near Lachute.

Breakfast will be served at l'Ecole Secondaire, Lachute. The presentation of annual reports, election of officers, and a panel discussion will follow.

The Rev. C. Lavigne, director of the Institute of Social Action, Ottawa University, will be the speaker at the luncheon at 1 p.m. at the Lachute Golf Club. . . . The Lachute Council of the Catholic Women's League will play hosts for this convention.

District silica plant expansion started

Practically all the groundwork for tripling over-all output capacity at its St. Canut, Que., silica operations, has been laid by Canadian Silica Corporation — according to President D. Denny.

This leading Canadian silica producer enjoyed its best sales year ever in 1960, and has now cleared the decks for a jump in capacity at St. Canut to 300,000 tons a year, from the present 120,000 tons of silica sands it now turns out. Cost of expansion will be in excess of $1-million.

The site for the expanded plant has now been cleared. A large part of the equipment necessary for expansion has been secured. Terms were such that an estimated $200,000 was saved. While final word on the main financing for the expansion work is still awaited, new funds have been supplied by associate companies which control Canadian Silica. In addition, shares are being called for trading on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

In its fiscal year ending November 30, 1960, Canadian Silica had sharply improved overall sales and profit. In fact, sales were a new high, operating profit was up 74% from that of 1959, and net profit was almost double that of the previous year.

In mid-1960 a large-scale exploration program was carried out at its St. Canut property. This was designed to triple known reserves of silica ore and it was successful in proving the existence of 9,000,000 tons of good-grade sandstone or sufficient for 30 years' operating at the present expanded rate.

Acceptance of silica products from the St. Canut plant is steadily broadening, and this trend is expected to continue in the present year. Research work, aimed at producing a higher quality sand, was completed in 1960, and it now appears certain that improved sands can be made that will meet the bulk of the requirements of the glass industry and other large consumers in southern Quebec. This opens up larger markets than now can be supplied, and fully justifies the decision to proceed with plant expansion.

Canadian Silica has now been in operation at St. Canut since 1955. Also they have plants at Whitby, Ont., and on Manitoulin Island in Northern Ontario. Many deposits of Silica in Eastern Ontario have been examined and tested. Now that definite plans have been made to expand production in Quebec, attention is being given to supplying the large markets in the Hamilton, Toronto and Niagara Falls area, which cannot be reached from St. Canut.

With 60 men plus staff on the payroll, Canadian Silica draws its labor force from the St. Jerome-Lachute area.

Wins M.Sc. degree from McMaster

ROSEMARY G. BONYUN

(prior to her marriage, Miss Rosemary Legg), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Legg, of Lakefield, who has won the Master of Science degree after a year's post-graduate study at McMaster University. A B.Sc. graduate from Bishop's in 1959, the former Miss Legg has also been lecturing in Mathematics at McGill. Her husband is a McGill professor in the same subject.

Graduated from Clarkson College

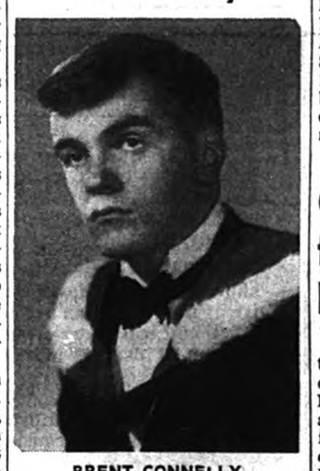

Potsdam, N.Y.—Robert A. Campbell, son of Mrs. J. K. Campbell, Lachute, graduated from Clarkson College of Technology, at the 68th commencement at the Clarkson Arena, Potsdam, on Sunday, June 4. He received the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration.

Bob Campbell, a 1957 graduate of Lachute High School, has played varsity hockey and lacrosse at Clarkson and has been a member of Varsity Club. He served on the Student and Class Councils, was a dormitory counsellor and was a member of the Society for the Advancement of Management. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Three teachers receive diplomas

At the convocation exercises held at Macdonald College on Monday, three local girls received their teaching diplomas. They were — Eileen Bryson, Liola Caya and Lois Silverson, who graduated with honors, winning the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers Prize in the Art of Teaching. Their respective parents, close relatives and friends attended the ceremonies.

U.N.B. graduate in Forestry

son of Mr. and Mrs. George Connelly, Brownsburg, recently received his B.Sc. in Forestry from the University of New Brunswick. Brent is now employed as a forester for Heath Survey Consultants Ltd. He and his wife, the former Miss Marjorie Clynick of Fredericton, are now in Wellesley Hills, Mass., where he is receiving training prior to being posted to one of the Canadian branches of the company.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

If there's one thing that jolts the anatomy, and the civic pride, it's those cracked and crumbled sidewalks. Hats off to our Council committee, for keeping the sidewalks consistently in good shape. We know of many towns less favored in this respect.

Said The Watchman 75 years ago: "A large number of city people are seeking summer residences here. Some of the streets and sidewalks are still in a disgraceful condition, and fences are patched with old slabs."

That triangular-shaped structure appearing in front of Arc Supply Co. on Bethany Road is not a new-fangled tourist kiosk or modern poultry-house, as some may surmise. It is a prefabricated summer camp, under construction by Arc Supply as a sales demonstration model.

◆

Close timing on this census business. . . . Take f'rinstance the birth deadline. Babies born after midnight May 31 are not eligible for listing, even if they vociferously protest. On the other hand, you may die any time now (after May 31) and the census takers will still require all your personal statistics. . . . There are 50-odd census takers now at work in Argenteuil County.

◆

Pass the spray, the salve, the ointment. . . . Were you fishing or cottaging last week-end? Black flies and mosquitos are now in their prime, enjoying the most prolific season in memory (we're sure).

◆

A good time to invite relatives and friends for a visit — next week during Lachute Spring Fair. On no other occasion during the whole year, will you meet so many old acquaintances from so many different places.

◆

Discussing the reaction to "Ben-Hur", which closed Saturday at the Cinema Lachute, Raymond Beaulieu, manager, expressed complete satisfaction — also warm appreciation to the public, who attended from Lachute and surroundings in large numbers. All patrons were pleased with the presentation, which, incidentally, was the biggest venture ever undertaken by the Cinema here in its effort to offer the best movie entertainment.

Good progress on Richelieu swimming pool

Construction is well under way at the site of the new swimming pool in the Richelieu Park. At the time this picture was taken, special crewmen were engaged spraying cement on the walls of the senior pool. This week, work has commenced on the dressing room, and the restaurant will be erected shortly.

Subscription blanks have been mailed to families in Greater Lachute, and prospective supporters are urged to communicate with those whose names appear in the circular letter, or with any member of the Richelieu Club.

Lachute and St. Jerusalem to consider combined site for garbage disposal dump

An adjourned meeting of Lachute Town Council was held on Wednesday, May 24, at which Council appointed three men to complete the property valuation of Lachute. Chairman of the committee is Richard Blais, while the two other members are Henri Trichard and Dave Campbell. This year will see only a revision roll, bringing new houses and repairs onto the roll. A secretary for the valuators is to be hired by Council. . . . The meeting was chaired by Mayor Fernand Legault, Q.C., and a full Council was in attendance.

Town Foreman Simard Larocque was granted a sum of $60 to flush the waterworks pipes — this being done after his regular shift.

On a motion by Ald. Horace Lamarche, seconded by Ald. Linton W. Armstrong, it was decided that a gift be sent to the town financial advisor, Germain Filion, under treatment in St. Jerome Hospital, and that in future, flowers be sent to the wives of members of Council who are confined to hospital for more than 10 days.

Ald. Linton W. Armstrong was asked to make enquiries into the work being done by the police department and report on its activities.

Tenders were called for the installation of lights on the river wall, Council having already purchased the material to complete the work.

Confer with St. Jerusalem Councillors

The Parish of St. Jerusalem mayor, Edward Smith, and members of the Council, were in attendance at this meeting and discussed common problems of a minor nature — offering Lachute facilities for a joint dump site, the Parish Council having an option on a portion of land suitable for this purpose. Three mercury street-lights were approved for Henry Street, the boundary between Lachute and the Parish — and there being no further business, the meeting was adjourned with Lachute Council to study the possibility of the combined garbage disposal dump.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Sunday, May 28th —

This is going to be one of the most difficult columns to get going. To begin with it has been raining and snowing all day. Getting soaked to the skin, even with rain gear on, is not conducive to writing. On top of all this I just had a good supper, and I do mean good, so you'll know just how I feel.

I told you, in an earlier report, of the damage done to boats at the club. I also mentioned, some were badly split. Well, these have been put out to pasture, as there are three new ones on the way. The boss won't have anything on the water that isn't safe; certainly no chances are going to be taken with the guests. The cabins are just about all completed, they sure look good. It seems strange to set a lodge and cabins as luxurious as these, parked out in the middle of nowhere. I know anyone seeing them for the first time would get a shock. Not a sign of habitation anywhere except the airstrip, at least three miles from the camp.

Then, the fabulous fishing — and that is just what it is. I know, reading about it will make you say "There goes that Atchison again", but this time it sure is true. I'm not talking of the North River now, even though that is good, too. The Speckled trout are starting to hit and for the unbelievers, they are only small ones at present, an average of about 1½ lbs. Mere minnows, so they are put back until they grow up. (You think I'm kidding? Not this time.)

Goldie has quit chasing the squirrels in favor of the lemmings. So far she has killed an even dozen that we know of. A couple of the boys and myself watched her yesterday, trying to chew a stump down enough so that she coud get at the rodent. Of course, she didn't realize that there is more than one exit, and by the time she got near to the stump the owner had abandoned ship for other places. There sure are a lot of these critters around though, and they seem to be increasing in numbers.

Watching a robin a few minutes ago; the poor thing was running along the ground with his head cocked to one side, the way they do right after a meal. The only meal he will get from the earth just now is frost. I wonder just how these birds can exist in country like this. I know we have been throwing bread crusts out for any birds that come around our camp, and it doesn't take long for it to go. Of course, this country may be a good producer during the summer; that I don't know, as yet.

A jack rabbit was around and even he looked as though he could do with a feed. It won't be long now, for not only the moss is breaking through, but small plants and shrubs. Talking the other day about this, as a bunch of fellows do when they get gabbing — one of them queried how on earth these weak little plants manage to push their way right through the ice, a matter of only four inches down, and get up into the air. It srue does make you wonder.

* * *

Tuesday, May 30 —

More snow overnight; it didn't stay long, even though it is still chilly. The lake is starting to break up all over. And it is hard to believe, but the ground is getting to be a nice shade of green; very pretty.

A couple of rabbits were in evidence this morning; and even these poor things seem to have that feeling of spring. Very tame — I have no doubt they would come right up to you, if you took the care and time to approach them first. More birds are showing up too. The Chipping sparrows have really taken hold, not overrunning the jays by any means, but still making it tough for them to scrounge. Sparrows, being so small and fast, have it all over the jays when it comes to swiping goodies. They are experts at it.

I watched an otter playing alongside the lake. They are graceful animals to watch and study. Even when alone, they seem to be having so much fun, flipping over on their back, splashing, etc. They may not be much to watch on land, but in the water they more than make up for any clumsiness otherwise.

A couple of the building crew are going home tomorrow. Happy? Well, that isn't the word for it. These boys live in Labelle, not too far from Lachute on the Ste. Agathe highway. As far as they are concerned they will never come back to Labrador again — not for any amount offered. We'll miss these boys, as we always managed to get a laugh out of my excellent French. (Their English isn't much better though!)

Another guide came in today. They are having a rough time trying to get men experienced in white water, as nearly all the fishing is done on the rivers and these all have rapids — some not too bad, others very nasty. The boss took one of the boats down through the small rapids near the camps, and hit three times. Of course, rivers change all the time and have to be studied constantly. Going down one day without mishap — the very next day one may run into trouble at the same spot. I know before the season is out, a good number of boats are going to hit the rocks.

I forgot to tell you this: On Sunday one of the workers was out in the truck getting sand, and hit a ptarmigan. He brought it home, dead, for someone to try. (not us.) Anyway, the skin was mine so I have some nice feathers. The eating was not so good, from reports we received; too many spruce buds for a winter diet.

Now for a strange item on the Indian boys. You would imagine that anyone living in a country like this would know just how to dress for any weather. These boys usually end up shivering with the cold, and I, stupid-like, lend them coats, etc. It is not a case of being short of clothing; it's just because they are so careless with everything that its use is shortened considerably. As an example, Louis had a very nice short jacket. Light in color, he used it while caulking tar in the seams of the cabins. Then when he had warmed up a little, the coat was discarded on the ground, where it promptly absorbed all the moisture from the moss. If this doesn't serve as an example how about this one: Cutting in the woods with the gang, he takes off the same coat, and leaves it right where he is — not knowing if he would ever be back for it. They all seem to be the same; there's no value to anything whatsoever. Even fur-bearing animals they will kill, then leave the pelts on to rot. It seems natural for them to be this way.

The hoot owls have started their racket, it is just a little after 8.30, with the sun just starting to set. Truly a melody of sounds comes with the night. Maybe some day I'll be able to record them on a tape recorder. I know some of our pictures will be good and I hope that some of you may like to see these when we get back to civilization. Everything is being taken in color and slides so they should be worth seeing. Incidentally, if anyone would care to write me sometime, I'll be sure and answer them. How about it?

Winner of bicycle at Desrosiers Automobiles

Winner of the most recent bicycle drawing at Desrosiers Automobiles was Gaetan Laforest, of Water Street, Lachute. The drawing was held last Saturday.

These prize awards are offered to purchasers of gasoline and supplies. The next drawing is dated for June 30.

Rotary Night and other big attractions . . .

According to reports the 10 Tug-of-War teams are practising enthusiastically also for this big occasion. . . .

Can last year's champions, Canadian International Paper, retain the cup? Can the successors to the Dominion Cartridge team win some of that team's former glory? Will the Farmers under the urging of Bill Brass make three pulls like their first, last year? (Bill's enthusiasm and support has been tremendous toward this Fair and Park project.) You can bet that nobody will pull the wool over the eyes of the Ayers team, and you can expect the Kilmar squad to be very "refractory". The J. C. Wilson team could beat competition to a pulp — if the Canadian Safety Fuse outfit doesn't ignite and burn up the rope with their fiery energy!

But watch out for the newcomers this year, the "black horses" of the competition — Lachute Lumber, Boyd's Express and Lachute section of the Royal Artillery.

Each pull will be 12 feet, with the same limit of two minutes. Due to the number of teams, the five winners of the first round will draw lots for a bye on the second pull. This allows an element of luck, so a lighter team could rest and win on the final round.

Memories Last Long

Will you be one of the "kids" who, 60 years from now (just imagine, it will be 2021) will be telling your grandchildren about the great pulls you saw at "The Fair"?

Will you remember as vividly as Roy MacPhail, who writes from South Mountain, Ont.: "The D.C. (Dominion Cartridge) team were not Top Dogs at the turn of the century." He continues, "They challenged the Brownsburg Farmers, with Archie McFaul as captain, Richard Clark, Ira McFaul, (Roy's father) Duncan MacPhail, Bill Boyd and Jim Bain. . . . Richard Hardy and Bill McManus were two of the Cartridge Company team.

"Next year the latter team challenged the Chatham Farmers, with Archie McFaul as captain again, Jack Owens, anchor, Jack Noyes, Dave Lindly, Albert Fuller, John Grace, Bob Black and Duncan MacPhail." . . . "The Farmers won both times, with an umbrella as prize the first time, and a meerschaum pipe the second." Roy states that his father's meerschaum was displayed on the mantel for years, since he did not smoke.

In case you think that tug-of-war men grow old fast, Roy states that he is producing race horses — keeps 20 to 30, and raised "Lenny Boy", winner of a $5,600 prize, last fall.

Well, the Rotary stakes aren't that high, but they are worth some practice. So, leave those machines aside for a night or two and practise the reliable old hand-milking method. With boys the wrestling comes naturally — for calf catching; and for the ladies' football kicking — well, that's a special kind of kicking.

Quote, David Copperfield

As Mr. Omer said in David Copperfield, "A long pull, and a strong pull, and a pull all together." That is the kind the Rotary Club needs to maintain and improve the Park and Swimmin' Hole on the Brownsburg Road. The support and cooperation of the people of this community has been excellent.

See you Thursday night, June 15, at the Fair.

"I wonder how he got in here — I knew him when he was an umpire in Brooklyn!"

Lach. Girl Guides conclude meetings for season

A very successful rally day was held for the 1st Lachute Girl Guide Company at the Harrington Tree Farm early in May.

Another important function held last week was the mother-and-daughter banquet. This was held at the Lachute United Church hall, on May 30. All the Guides attended, accompanied by their mothers. The guest of honor was the Guide Commissioner, Mrs. M. E. Wilson, who gave an interesting talk to the Guides and mothers. She stressed the importance of the Local Association in maintaining a good and efficient Guide Company. Commissioner Wilson and Captain Ogilvie presented 40 badges to Guides of the company.

The Brownies and their mothers were responsible for the delicious meal served on this occasion.

On Monday, June 6, the Girl Guides were invited by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 70, Royal Canadian Legion, to a film on the subject of Rescue Breathing. All concerned enjoyed this presentation and thanks are extended to the ladies of the Auxiliary for their kind invitation; also to Mr. R. G. Bell, of the Bell Telephone, for supplying the film, Mr. C. McOuat, for use of the projector, Mr. S. Milnes, for use of the screen, and Mr. G. Armstrong, for his services as projectionist.

This wound up the Girl Guides' weekly meetings for the season, and the girls would at this time like to thank Captain K. Ogilvie and her assistants for their instruction and guidance. A cordial thanks also to Mrs. J. Skinner, the Ladies' Auxiliary president.

Attention Motorists!

The Quebec Government has announced its intention to introduce a SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY LAW.

This new legislation is to become effective on July 1st, 1961.

This will mean that every motorist unable to show evidence of insurance or financial responsibility at the time of an accident or certain highway infractions, will face serious difficultes such as suspension of driving permit and registration.

Insure now and avoid such difficulties.

ROTARY NIGHT AT THE FAIR — THURSDAY, JUNE 15th

Key organizers in regional congress

BRIEF ON ADVERTISING

When a duck lays an egg she waddles off as if nothing had happened. But when a hen lays one there is a heck of a noise. The hen advertises — hence the demand for hen's eggs — not ducks'!

Regional Ch. of Commerce annual meet here Sunday

Thirteen Chambers of Commerce will be represented in the Mille Iles regional convention here next Sunday, June 11, to be held at the Golf Club chalet. The conference will be chaired by Lucien D. Gemus. The theme will concentrate on tourist attractions of the region — a subject to be developed by the Hon. L. P. Cécile, minister of Tourism and Publicity for the Province of Ontario, as speaker at the closing banquet Sunday evening.

Twenty-odd briefs and resolutions will be studied during the afternoon session. These will deal with regional, provincial and national questions. . . . Meanwhile, special entertainment has been planned for the ladies, including a boat trip on the Lake of Two Mountains.

It is expected there will be 200 persons in attendance at the congress. The two deputies for this county, J. O. Latour, M.P., and W. M. Cottingham, M.P.P., will be guests of honor at the banquet.

"Magic Tom" is headliner for Legion show

Final plans for Canadian Legion Branch 70's participation in the Spring Fair, have been completed. Tom Auburn, better known as "Magic Tom" to youngsters and adults alike, will headline the Saturday night grandstand show. Along with "Magic Tom" will be the McCullough school of dancers. The music and dances of this troupe should gladden the hearts of Gael, Celt and all others. Rounding off the show will be a greased pig rodeo, and various pillow fight contests held on suspended poles. The spills and tumbles of these acts should be hilarious, to say the least.

Raison d'être, operations of Lac St. Denis Air Force Station explained to visitors

Lac St. Denis RCAF Radar Base has been often mentioned in the columns of this newspaper, but little was known of the base and its operations by the general public, until a recent visit by members and guests of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club. Arriving at Lac St. Denis in the early afternoon, the visitors were treated to dinner and given a guided tour of all unclassified portions of the base, after-which Flight Lieutenant E. D. Cooke presented the following "briefing" on the operations of the station. Members of the local squadron of Air Cadets were also recent guests of the Air Force station.

The Commander of all-Montreal Sector is Group Captain J. C. Hovey; the Deputy Sector Commander is Wing Commander J. F. Edwards; the Commanding Officer of the radar unit at Lac St. Denis is Wing Commander W. J. Smith.

The Commanding Officers of the (four) heavy radar units within the Montreal Sector are responsible to the Montreal Sector Commander, who in turn is responsible to the Commander of Northern NORAD Region at St. Hubert (Air Vice-Marshal W. R. MacBrien), who is directly responsible to the Commander in Chief of NORAD at Colorado Springs, General L. S. Kuter, whose deputy is Air Marshal C. R. Slemon of the RCAF.

* * *

Air defence today is probably the most complicated operational function in the armed forces. Much of it is of course classified from a security standpoint, but is is possible to tell a coherent, clear story without infringing upon the national security.

There are two organizations at Lac St. Denis — No. 11 Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron with its heavy radar, and HQ Montreal NORAD Sector with its associated Air Defence Combat Centre.

The term "NORAD" is the abbreviation used for all formations of the North American Air Defence Command. The Sector HQ comes under the control of Northern NORAD Region HQ at St. Hubert, which in turn comes under HQ North American Air Defence Command at Colorado Springs. The Montreal NORAD Sector is responsible for the Air Defence of an area that embraces an air space of 180,000 sq. miles. Within this area and under the operational control of the Montreal NORAD Sector are four Aircraft Control and Warning Squadrons, such as Lac St. Denis.

In addition to these radar squadrons, the Sector includes the major fighter bases of St. Hubert and Bagotville, with fighter reinforcements available from U.S. bases in Northern New York State, Vermont and Maine.

Our area of responsibility contains the cities of Montreal and Quebec and lies athwart the direct route from the north to New York, Philadelphia and Boston. It is the approaches of these heavily populated areas, both Canadian and American, that we are here to defend.

Our defence is directed against the bomber and its weapons. Of course, we all know that our probable opponent has ballistic missiles available, and shortly, in operational quantity. We have no defence at the present time against these. However, this in itself does not lessen the threat posed by the manned bomber.

Our task here is to produce an effective defence system in our area. Our technicians, have an exacting task here for we are vitally dependent upon electronics in air defence. As both radars and aircraft improve in performance, and become more automatic, our training and maintenance task becomes more difficult.

Men and women are required to maintain our equipment. Judgment and skill are required in their use. Continuous training day after day is necessary; the human element is still the most important single factor in our effectiveness.

The paramount requirement of an effective air defence system is to be able to police its airspace. Any aircraft that penetrates our airspace that cannot be identified by flight plans, or by reason of the speed and altitude criteria, is intercepted and identified visually. Policing in this manner is continuous, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Only thus, by keeping complete control of our airspace in peacetime can we expect to be able to do so in war, or, more important, during those periods of international tension when, without further warning, the blow may be struck.

In addition to these important but largely routine functions, we must train ourselves to fight the air battle itself.

* * *

With the aid of projector slides, the speaker here gave a word picture of one of the large-scale "live" exercises. . . .

As soon as penetration is picked up by the Distant Early Warning Line radars, the information is told to the Regional Combat Centre at St. Hubert, which will then alert all participating Sectors and Radar Units.

While the Units are manning to full strength, the Sector Battle Staff calculate the probable times when the first waves may be expected to be picked up by the radars of the combat zone.

After the penetration of the MCL, it is picked up by the perimeter radars of the combat zone, and we will know the strength of the invadars and where the main weight of their effort will lie.

The distance between the Mid-Canada Line and radar cover can be traversed by the modern jet bomber within 30 minutes — the same time it took the Germans to go from the Pas de Calais to London in 1940. Therefore, we must scramble our fighters on limited information before the target reaches radar cover. Once the Mid-Canada Line has been crossed, all now depends upon the skill and diligence of the airmen and airwomen manning the radar scopes in the report rooms of the outer radar stations.

As targets are picked up by the various radars, they are told to the plotters at the Sector Control Centre, each plotter being connected directly to the radar station responsible for his or her area of the Sector plotting board. From these reports, the Sector Battle Commander and his Battle Staff get a picture of the activity in the Sector area.

Utilizing this overall picture, the Commander, who is connected by telephone conference circuit to each of his four Direction Centres, is able to direct the battle, detailing the fighter forces that are to be committed to the various targets.

The battle now becomes primarily the responsibility of the Unit Battle Commanders at the Direction Centres, since, with the battle moving at better than eight miles a minute, only at this level is it possible to have an up-to-the-second picture of the situation.

* * *

On completion of such an exercise, it is analysed and the results are evaluated. From these studies, changes where indicated are made in training, procedures, and tactics and new exercises are planned to stress any areas of weakness. And so it goes on, for we can never be satisfied with our performance. In this business, the enemy has the initiative. The attacker always does.

In spite of our peaceful surroundings and the pleasantness of the holiday area in which we are situated, we must not lose sight of our goal. Being so close to the problem and living with it day after day, we know that this time there will be no second chance; no opportunity by hard work and determination to recover from a "Pearl Harbour" and then to strike back. Our survival as a Nation will depend upon our readiness and our ability on the very first day. Knowing this, we set ourselves the task of consistently maintaining our skills and our alertness.

THURSDAY AND FRIDAY ONLY

Brownsburg Road
ALBERT MADY, PROPRIETOR

DISTRICT NEWS FROM OUR COUNTY CORRESPONDENTS

Brownsburg

Mrs. Sydney Seary and Mrs. Fred Barker were in Montreal on Wednesday of last week.

Friends of Mr. Wayne Petley, who is a patient in the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, wish him a speedy recovery.

Miss Marilyn MacLeod, of St. Laurent, was the week-end guest of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barker.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gagné and Mrs. T. Zimmer were in Montreal on Tuesday evening, owing to the death of the late Mr. D. Barbado.

Women's Institute

The Brownsburg and Dalesville-Louisa W.I. were entertained at the home of Mrs. George McGibbon in Dalesville, on Thursday afternoon last. . . . A script for "W.I. Jubilee Year", written by Mrs. MacGibbon and entitled "Rights and Responsibilities" was read at this meeting. Congratulations are extended to Mrs. McGibbon for this excellent work.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Woodings and Miss Joan Zimmer were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. Zimmer.

Mrs. J. Escala, of Kemptville, Ont., and Mrs. J. Taylor, of Perth, Ont., are visiting relatives here.

Bereaved

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mrs. J. Curren and family, in the death of Mrs. Curren's son, Calvin, who passed away Monday morning, May 29, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Basil Jackson.

Mrs. J. T. Seary has returned home from Montreal and has as a guest her sister, Mrs. H. Guanzeroli, of Rosemount.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Allen, of Sarnia, Ont., were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Mason.

Appreciation

The Students' Council of Brownsburg High School wish to express their appreciation to Mr. Anders Paulsen, of Lachute, who kindly donated flowers used as decorations for the graduation dance recently held in the High School gymnasium.

GONE SHOPPING

Thenton, Ont. (CP) — A horse-drawn wagon passed along Quinte street one Saturday morning. Shortly afterward the driver stopped at an intersection and tied the horse to a fire hydrant while he went shopping. Passersby watched with amusement, and motorists stared as they passed.

Arundel

Mr. and Mrs. Delaney and family, of Montreal, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Johnston. Mrs. Delaney will remain with her family, until her new home in Montreal is completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Bennett and family spent the week-end in Arundel.

Golf Tournaments

Arundel golf course was quite busy this past week-end. On Saturday a group of I.O.O.F. members held a tournament, and on Sunday a group of C-I-L (Brownsburg) members held another tournament. The weather held out for both events, and at the conclusion of each day a buffet luncheon was served.

Married in Montreal

A wedding of interest to this community took place in Montreal Saturday afternoon when Audrey, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Pope, was united in marriage to Mr. Gilbert Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Bennett, of Sudbury, Ont. . . . Those attending from Arundel were Mr. and Mrs. G. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Cooke, Mrs. Hugh Cooke, and Mrs. Val Swail. Good wishes of the community are extended to the happy couple.

Weir

Miss Kay Barton, of Montreal, spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Craig.

Miss Jane Dewar, of Toronto, nurse-in-training at the Montreal General Hospital, spent the week-end as the guest of Miss Maida Diver.

Recent guests at Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Loudin's were Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Carson and Mr. Robt. McIntyre, of Ste. Agathe, Mr. and Mrs. R. Gelston and daughter, Lynda Dee, of Montreal.

Mrs. W. H. Williams spent a few days in Montreal last week, and attended the graduation dinner at the Montreal General Hospital on Tuesday evening.

An opening meeting of "Alcoholics Anonymous" will be held in the Anglican Church hall on Friday evening, June 9, at 9 p.m. Everybody welcome.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs R. A. Craig on Thursday afternoon, June 1, with a good attendance.

Little Marion Eve, of l'Abord à Plouffe, spent a few days last week at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Trottier.

Cushing West

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dobbie, of Ottawa, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pinkerton on Monday.

Mrs. Kirk Feltham, accompanied by Mrs. Wm. Usher, was in Vankleek Hill on Thursday, attending the Ottawa Presbyterial rally of the W.M.S.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Turpin and Mr. R. MacAloney, of Montreal, were guests of Mrs. A. MacAloney for the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Neafsey, of Grece's Point, spent the week-end in Toronto.

Messrs. R. Nicholson and Gordon Woods, of Montreal, were the guests of Mrs. G. Woods for the week-end.

Mr. E. Turner spent last week in London, Ont., visiting friends.

Mrs. J. Pearson, of Montreal, spent the week-end as the guest of her parents at Grece's Point.

At Christening

Mrs. Wm. Usher spent the week-end in Ottawa, where she was present for the christening of her great-grandson at Glebe United Church on Sunday. The infant, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Menendez, received the names Charles Wishart.

Citizen died in west end

Late Wilfrid Durocher

Sympathy is extended to the family of the late Wilfrid Durocher, of Isabella Street, whose death occurred Tuesday morning at the age of 68. The remains are resting at Menard Funeral Home on Grace Street, for funeral rites Friday at 10 a.m. in Ste. Anastasie Parish Church.

The late Mr. Durocher, a carpenter by trade, had been in failing health for some time. He is mourned by his wife, the former Rosa Barron, four sons and four daughters — Wilfrid (councillor of Ayersville), Jacques, Yvon and Gilles, all of Lachute; Mme Armand Durocher (Jacqueline), Mme Lucien Larose (Fernande), Mme Armand Campbell (Evelyne) and Mme David Rozon (Madeleine), all residing in Lachute. There are also numerous nephews, nieces and grandchildren.

The late Mr. Durocher is survived by five brothers and four sisters.

Death of wartime battalion O/C

The passing of Mr. Allan Magee, noted business man and soldier, will be felt with sorrow by many older citizens of this district.

During the First World War, Lt.-Col. Magee commanded the 148th Battalion, of which "C" Company was partly composed of local men. Stern of mien, and a man of real character, he was respected and loved by all under his command.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday at St. George's Church, Montreal. Mr. R. A. Giles, an early member of his Battalion, attended as representative of those from this locality who served with him.

THE SCENE Around Brownsburg

By M. E. Cowley

Maurice Raymond of Brownsburg hooked a 21-pound Grey trout in Swastika Lake (Mont Tremblant Park) on Saturday. Maurice reports that the 34-inch Grey snapped at a wobbler lure on a copper trolling line and fought for some 20 minutes before being boated.

* * *

Encouraging signs — Miss Carol Barclay, Brownsburg High School's "Phys. Ed." teacher, out playing softball with the youngsters — after school hours.

* * *

Strange how it takes a lot of multi-colored signs installed by commercial interests to make inhabitants of the Lower Laurentians realize how beautiful their area is. (Or should it be was — before the signs were mounted!)

Morin Heights

Guests of Mrs. Alma Watchorn at Christieville last week-end included — Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Thompson, of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Blanchard, of Windsor, Ont; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Ivall, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Campbell and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. Romney and family, Mr. and Mrs. G. Pennington and Mrs. Heli Summerauer, all of Montreal. This past week-end, Mrs. Jos. Crook of Montreal was her guest.

Mr. Heli Summerauer, after a month in Austria visiting with his parents, has left for Australia, where he will be director of a ski school until October.

Best wishes are sent from this community to Mrs. Walter Darold, who is at present in hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Hancock, of Halifax, and Mr. Douglas Sadler, Town of Mount Royal, spent Sunday here visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Seale and Mrs. M. Dey.

W.I. Outing

About 20 members of the W.I. spent Thursday afternoon at the Botanical Gardens in Lafontaine Park. All reported a most enjoyable and interesting time.

Children's Course in plastic art

A departure in the children's studies at the Art Centre conducted by Mme Lebrun-Laforest, will be a series of eight weekly, two-hour lessons in Art designed to teach young pupils the elements of form and color by creative expression.

The course is organized with collaboration of l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, at a modest fee of $1 for enrolment and 50 cents per lesson.

To commence the first week in July, these lessons will be given at the Art Centre, 348 Main Street (Rio Theatre building), where Mr. Guy Racine, the instructor, will be present this Saturday, also Saturday, June 17, from 10 a.m. to noon to receive enrolments. Information: tel. LO 2-5868 or LE 7-3367.

Calumet

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Carrière, of Montreal, visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Young, last week-end.

Mrs. Leonard Reeves, and Mr. and Mrs. G. Reeves, spent Sunday in Masson visiting Mr. and Mrs Romeo Lajeunesse.

Miss Margaret Bowls is spending a few days in Montreal, visiting friends.

A few of the young people from Calumet attended a party at Bell Falls in honor of Miss Mary Fay Dobbie and Mr. John Prophet, who will be married on July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Nixon spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Melvin MacLeod in Harrington.

Mrs. D. MacLean spent the week-end in Harrington visiting her aunt, Mrs. Neil MacLeod.

Mrs. N. MacLean, of Brownsburg, visited Mrs. D. MacLean on Monday last.

Northern Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Taylor and girls, of Lachute, visited Mr. and Mrs. Reg Bennett on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McKenna, formerly of Washington, D.C., visited Mrs. Ed Mathew recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cameron and son, Glenn, of Toronto, were recent visitors of Mrs. Thos. Hoare, Sr.

Sunday visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Young's were Mr. and Mrs. Earl McRae and Mrs. Jack McRae, of Kilmar, Miss Mabel Young, of Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. S. Stringer and son, William, of Avoca, and Mr. Willis Young, of Aylmer.

Speaker at Youth Retreat

Last week-end the Rev. John C. Shrier was guest speaker at Camp Otoreke, St. Adolphe d'Howard, for a youth retreat of the Pentecostal Youth of Greater Montreal. There were 100 young people in attendance. The program included Bible teaching, an evangelistic rally and a problem hour. There was also a boat regatta and other types of sports.

To Attend National Conventions

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. McArthur recently attended I.O.O.F. Grand Lodge, which was held at Sherbrooke, Que. Mr. McArthur was appointed as Grand Representative to Sovereign Grand Lodge, which meets in Phoenix, Arizona, next September. . . .

Before that date, Mr. and Mrs. McArthur will be attending the convention of the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors of Canada, at Harrison Hot Springs on June 19-20-21. Mr. McArthur is national secretary of this association.

Joint get-together of two Protestant teachers' groups

The Argenteuil Teachers' Association held its final meeting of the year in Brownsburg, May 31. This was a joint meeting with the Laurentian Teachers' Association.

Supper was served in the Legion Hall, after which both associations proceeded to Brownsburg High School for their respective business meetings.

Annual reports from the various committees were given, including the following:

Mr. L. Kerr gave the financial report.

Mr. M. Blakely, regional representative, reported on the P.A.-P.T. executive meetings.

Miss E. Stanton gave an enlightening and enthusiastic report on the Curriculum Seminar held in Montreal, April 28-29.

Mr. K. Smith gave a detailed report on the annual general meeting, held in Montreal May 26-27.

Mr. L. Rossaert gave a report from the nominating committee.

Officers for 1961-62

The following are the executive officers for the year 1961-62:

President, K. Smith, Brownsburg, Vice-President, A. Petersen, Lachute, Secretary, Miss L. Primmerman, Brownsburg, Treasurer, G. Demerson, Lachute, Program Chairman, Mrs. L. Lessard, Brownsburg, Public Relations, Mrs. E. Dixon, Lachute, Athletic Committee, K. Smith, Brownsburg, Curriculum Committee, Mrs. E. Stanton, Lachute, Education Committee, L. Rossaert, Lachute.

Past-President, Mrs. K. Madden, Kilmar.

After a short recess, the two associations joined for a very rewarding talk by Dr. R. Rigby on the Carillon Project. This proved most enlightening, as Dr. Rigby not only gave a wealth of information, but brought the historic landmarks and scenes before his audience through his very excellent pictures.

Concerts given by Miss Rodrigue's piano pupils

In a series of recitals by her pianoforte pupils last week-end, Miss Juliette Rodrigue, Lic. Mus., was hostess to a number of parents, relatives and friends. Four concerts were presented — two at the Lachute High School last Friday and Saturday, and two at l'Ecole Secondaire on Sunday. The programs were presented by different age groups, and included compositions by Bach, Schumann, Beethoven, Chopin and two of the modern masters, Debussy and Kabalevsky.

Miss Mildred Douglas, of Cushing, a former pupil under Miss Rodrigue's tuition, opened the Saturday program with two impressive numbers by Debussy, "Sunken Cathedral" and "Delphes Dancers", receiving warm applause.

A surprise guest artist on Sunday was Miss Gail Ayers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ayers, who has been at the home of her parents this past year. A former star pupil of Miss Rodrigue's, she has also been attending her studio since returning home from her studies at Newton, Mass. Miss Ayers gave a beautiful performance of Addinsell's "Warsaw Concerto".

At these functions, in each instance, Miss Rodrigue was presented with lovely floral bouquets in appreciation from her pupils.

Lachute Catholic Women's League

Mrs. L. Bedard presided at the general meeting of the Catholic Women's League, held Monday, June 5.

The conveners were called upon for reports — including Mrs. Bea Lowe, who gave a good accounting of the food sale and voiced a word of thanks to all who co-operated.

The president, Mrs. Bedard, outlined particulars regarding the 6th annual Diocesan Convention, to be held in Lachute June 10, which will commence with mass at the Shrine at 8.30 — members from Brownsburg, Rosemere, St. Eustache, St. Columban's and Lachute attending. Breakfast and meeting will be at l'Ecole Supérieure, followed by a luncheon at the Golf Club, where the Rev. Father Lavigne, director of Social Action at St. Patrick's College, Ottawa, will be guest speaker. . . . The following day, Sunday, Father Lavigne will officiate at mass at 8 o'clock, and give instruction in the basement of Ste. Anastasie Church.

The meeting closed with prayer, followed by refreshments convened by Mrs. Berniquer.

PROVINCIAL RECORD

Winnipeg (CP) — The Manitoba game branch reports the largest walleye pike ever caught in the province was an 18-pound, eight-ounce fish taken by rod and line at George Lake in 1954. It was estimated to be 18 years old.

Ceremony at Pentecostal Church

Rodger-Murdoch

The marriage of Miss Faye Dorothy Murdoch, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Murdoch, of Brownsburg, to Mr. Erskine Ross Rodger, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Erskine Rodger, of East Settlement, took place in the Brownsburg Pentecostal Church on Saturday, May 27. The Rev. John C. Shrier officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Wilson Bridge, guest soloist, sang "Oh Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. She was accompanied by the Rev. Earl MacNutt. The wedding party was piped out of the church and to the reception hall by pipers Gilbert Young and Sandy MacTavish.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white organza with fitted bodice of Italian lace over poult-de-soie, with a tulip neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the hands. Her short veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a double crown of seed pearls, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids.

Miss Patricia Warwick as maid of honor, Miss Judy MacRae and Miss Barbara Allen as bridesmaids, wore identical dresses of pastel green, mauve and yellow terylene with matching headdresses, shoes and gloves, and carried bouquets of white Shasta daisies and yellow roses.

Miss Cindy Lee Murdoch and her little brother, Peter, cousins of the bride, were flower girl and ringbearer. Cindy Lee wore a bouffant dress of white terylene and lace with matching headpiece, and carried a basket of sweet peas and baby's breath. Peter wore a white linen suit and carried a white satin pillow bearing the rings.

John Rodger, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and Carl and Emerson Rodger, also brothers of the groom, were ushers.

The bride's mother was gowned in a powder blue sheer dress draped with chiffon, and wore a matching hat, white gloves and black accessories. The groom's mother wore a gown of Copen blue silk, with white hat and gloves and black accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

Standards of yellow snapdragons and white Shasta daisies decorated the church and reception hall.

After the wedding, the reception was held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall. While the cake was being served, Mrs. Shrier sang "A Wedding Prayer".

Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Rodger left on a motor trip. For travelling the bride wore a green suit with matching shoes and bag, a beige flowered hat, and a corsage of white gardenias. . . . The couple will reside in East Settlement.

Successful effort to raise funds, School for Retarded

The whist party held at the Legion Hall last Tuesday evening was largely attended — this event climaxing a worthy effort by the Lachute Association for Retarded Children to raise funds for their efforts in this district.

Tickets had previously been disposed of, and donations given, for a $50 bond. This was won by Mrs. W. Gain; second prize of $20 went to Mr. Marius Paulsen; and Miss Penelope Foreman, with the third lucky ticket, received an Ayers pure wool blanket.

A total of 132 persons enjoyed the card-playing, and prize winners were as follows — Mrs. R. Copeland (capt.), Mrs. M. Couvrette, Mrs. H. Neill, Mrs. J. MacDonald; also Mrs. G. Higginson (capt.), Mrs. A. Comba, Mrs. K. Boa and Mrs. C. Cunnigham.

Recipients of door prizes were Mrs. Leslie Strong and Mr. I. Conway.

Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Auxiliary, and Mr. T. Iddon, in his usual capable manner, acted as m.c.

Mrs. C. Foreman, of Grenville, gave a brief outline of the work being done by the Association, and with Mr. Geo. Tattersfield, the president, expressed appreciation to the gathering for their presence and help.

Thanks are also expressed here to the many who purchased tickets; to the prize donors; to Branch 70 of the Royal Canadian Legion; and to all who helped in any way with this most successful venture, which netted the Lachute Association slightly over $700.

3 M.G.H. nurses receive diplomas

Three young ladies from Lachute received their diplomas at the 71st annual graduation of Montreal General school for nurses last Friday. Congratulations are extended to Miss Judith Doreen Kerr, Miss Shirley A. B. Pollock, and Miss Patricia Anne Stansfield. . . . Miss Stansfield was actually in the class which completed its course last February. She has now sucessfully passed her R.N. examinations.

The parents, and a number of relatives and friends of the three graduates, were in attendance

Compromise on capital punishment

"AN EYE FOR AN EYE and a tooth for a tooth" was the rule of social order set down some 3,700 years ago by a Babylonian king named Hammurabi.

Civilized peoples ever since — especially since the beginning of the Christian era — have had pangs of conscience as to whether the pagan monarch's code should continue to hold true in the case of "a life for a life." Justice Minister Fulton has assured the Commons that the capital punishment bill he proposes is in accord with the moral standards of present-day Canadian society.

The bill is a compromise between traditional opposites. It reshuffles murderers into two categories — those who must die and those who may live. . . . Beyond social redemption are those who commit deliberate killings during crimes of violence. According to the new bill's terminology, these people are guilty of "capital murder." . . . Other murderers — those who kill impulsively, without clear intent or who are under the age of 18 — are guilty of "Non-capital murder." They are given a mandatory life sentence and may become eligible for parole.

The bill was approved in principle — 139-21. Of the 21 who voted against the bill, 20 were Liberals and one a Conservative.

In Mr. Fulton's opinion, the Canadian public attaches "so high a value to the sanctity of human life that the law which translates this feeling into effective form should provide the maximum sanction for its deliberate breach, and no other penalty would be considered adequate."

On the other hand the bill would assist juries by taking "formal account of the thousand-and-one different combinations of circumstances that may lead to, or form the background of, any such event which brings an accused before them on a charge of murder."

Under the present system juries "have found it difficult almost to the point of impossibility to bring in a verdict when they know the death penalty would be unjust. In the result, the verdict is sometimes manslaughter although the facts are patently at variance with the verdict, or if a verdict of murder is brought in, it is followed by such deep remorse or revulsion as to constitute a danger to the very jury system itself."

Under the proposed amendment, a person charged with capital murder could be found guilty of the reduced charge or of manslaughter. The jury would be given the opportunity to recommend mercy in capital cases where a guilty verdict was reached. . . . Hanging would be retained as the method of execution.

In practice, the bill would bring the law into step with the government's recent trend to commuting four of every five death sentences. Since it took office, the Conservative government has changed 39 out of 49 death sentences to life imprisonment.

Blessings in a small town

WE DON'T WANT to sound smug or complacent, but it must be apparent that some of the best advertising for life in the small town is contained in the growing crime rate in Canada's big cities.

Montreal and Toronto appear to be running a close race for the title of Canada's crime capital, with Vancouver — the major narcotics centre — in third place.

The figures for the two largest cities are shocking. Last year Metropolitan Toronto had 23 murders and Montreal 17. There were 10 attempted murders in Toronto and nine in Montreal.

Metro Toronto is estimated to have 85,000 alcoholics and more than 400 drug addicts.

Organized gambling appears to have become big business in the two cities and Montreal has found it necessary to call in experts from Britain and France to help organize the police force in an effort to combat the growth of criminal activity.

Now all this isn't to suggest that life in a large city must be a continual nightmare of fear. But it's difficult to believe that such people can be exposed to stories of terror day after day without feeling at least a little uneasy.

Nor is it fair to say that smaller communities are free of crime. We all have our share. But it's not unreasonable to suggest that at least there's a sense of greater security in rural life.

Many folks in small towns still feel they can leave their doors unlocked at night without fear.

And, in contrast to the reports of increased delinquency among city children, there are heartening statements such as the one recently made by Mrs. Laurence Fraser, a teacher in a one-room school near Barrie, Ont.

"In the schoolyard, children of all ages play together," she said. "You can see a big boy turning a skipping rope for a little girl, and a little first-grader playing ball with an eighth-grader."

As we said, let's not be smug or self-satisfied about our kind of life. But if there are blessings in living in a small town, let's recognize and enjoy them.

Enticing's the word

SOME COUNTRIES value manufacturing industry — and the increased employment and prosperity it brings — so much that they will do almost anything to attract it. Northern Ireland, for example.

The commerce minister of that country, in the course of a visit to Canada some months ago, spelled out the following incentives offered by his government to Canadian and U.S. manufacturers interested in establishing branch plants:

Direct, unconditional grants of a third of the capital cost of buildings, machinery and equipment for firms willing to build their own plants; alternatively, where preferred, the government will arrange for construction on a lease basis and the firm may buy the plant on easy payments — spread over 25 years.

Special manpower grants by the government to help train unskilled workers in the trades required by the new industries. These are substantial in the early stages of the training period and gradually taper off as the employee's usefulness grows.

New industrial concerns are required to pay only 25 per cent of local taxes.

Minor annoyances are symptoms

MOST OF US are not too keenly alert to the importance of water safety. Perhaps this is the reason why there are so many tragedies on our lakes and rivers each year. With the fishing season in swing, and cottage owners opening their camps, there should be a thorough awareness of water safety and particularly good boating.

The following boating notes are published more especially for fishermen at this season of the year:

Winds, waves and currents are frequently high at this time of the year and the water is always cold. Use caution and leave an extra margin of safety in the loading and operating of your boat. Be sure your boat is equipped with authorized life-saving equipment. A life jacket makes a good wind-breaker.

The weather is still cool enough in the northern lakes for warm clothing and footwear. This is an additional hazard in case of overturned boats. Never wear heavy rubber boots in a boat. Carry a second pair of ankle boots for that purpose.

Do not stand up to cast or land a fish in an open boat, and do not change seats on the open water.

At the first indication of bad weather go ashore or seek sheltered water immediately.

COMMITTEE ON BROADCASTING

Some extremely interesting information is being brought to light by the parliamentary committee studying the broadcasting industry.

Rather startling is the fact that CBC's Press and Information Services Department has grown like the green bay tree. There are 224 persons now employed in that department. In point of fact there are almost three times as many people engaged in public relations and information for CBC than are employed in the department handling the news of the world! As one M.P. put it, "This seems like a tremendous number of bodies distributed through the corporation that are dealing with information services, public relations programs, etc."

Mr. Fraser, of CBC, countered that in reality only 81 of these bodies are engaged in publicizing the CBC, 50 of them being publicity officers and 31 clerical staff.

One question still unanswered, as far as I can discover, is what the Press and Information Department cost in the past year. The CBC conveniently stopped reporting the cost of this department in its annual report. The last reported figure was well over the million-dollar mark. My guess would be that it is nearing the two-million dollar mark annually — and probably costs CBC twice as much as it does to gather and broadcast the daily news!

There will be more information brought to light when the answer is filed to this question by Mr. Smith, of Calgary South. He said, "I should like to get a further breakdown of the cost of programs as shown. . . . The total given is $57,890,000 and I assume the major costs would be production charges, fees for actors and so on; but I should like to know if such costs as copyright are included, and whether there is any apportionment for promotion and public relations and any other particular fees contained in this."

Mr. Ouimet answered, "We could give you exactly what is included under that heading, and perhaps some broad categories of expenditures within that."

It will be interesting, when and if that information is filed, to find out what CBC means by, "And perhaps some broad categories of expenditures within that." The fact is that CBC spends only 17.6c out of every dollar on performers and writers. How it can charge up 58.2 cents of each dollar to programs is a mystery that requires explanation.

SAFETY BELTS

Vancouver (CP) — Legislation requiring safety belts for front and rear seats of all new cars is being urged by the British Columbia Medical Association. It said studies in the United States showed that the injury and death rate is 60 per cent lower with seat belts.

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, June 11, 1996 —

A large number of people are seeking summer residences here. . . . Some of the streets and sidewalks are still in a disgraceful condition, and fences are patched with old slabs.

A young man, Joseph Boyd, had his kneecap badly lacerated while working on a tenon machine at Chapman & Drysdale's sash, door and blind factory.

A lumber firm from Three Rivers have bought the sawmill and dwelling houses at Calumet. They will work extensive lumber limits on the Rouge. Calumet will thus have all its manufacturing interests located at the west end — grist mills, shingle mills and two sawmills.

A whale 18 feet long was caught in the St. Lawrence a few miles below Montreal.

ORANGE AND GREEN

Several years ago, before traffic lights were as common as they are today, Pat and Mike stepped off a ship in New York harbor and started walking inland to find a cheap hotel in which to spend their first night in the Land of Promise. In the Irish village where they came from there were no traffic lights — nor any traffic! So they stood bewildered at a busy intersection, dazzled by the flashing signs and the ever-changing traffic lights. A policeman noted their plight and walked towards them.

"I guess you two are from 'Ireland, aren't you?" . . . "Oh, don't ask me why. I can always spot an Irishman. I'm from County Cork myself. Now you're trying to cross the road. See that red light? Wait now. When that light turns the color of the Emerald Isle, that's the signal for all good Irishmen to cross in safety."

At the next turn of the green, Pat and Mike crossed, but having reached the other side in safety they still were fascinated by the ever-changing lights.

Finally Pat said: "Mike, they don't give them poor Orangemen much time to cross, do they!"

Be seein' ya!

All Aboard

with G. E. MORTIMORE

With Canada's 1961 census under way, many people have been loading their guns to welcome the enumerators. The only thing in sight is the barrel of a .38 poked through a half-closed door.

That's the way it seems, judging by all the grumbles that I hear. "Too many personal questions," the critics assert.

Why should I tell a government snooper how much money I earn? Why should I answer questions about my wife, children, schooling, rent, religion, furnace and septic tank?

Those are the objections that people make to the census.

There will also be people who are eager to talk and will keep the census-taker fidgeting for hours while they prattle about their surgical operations.

Most people will answer glumly and reluctantly, prompted by some dim sense of public obligation — though unable to understand how the nation will benefit by learning how much money its citizens pay for water and electricity and how much the mortgages on their homes are.

But we hear the loudest cries from the champions of privacy, who arch their backs like angry tomcats at the idea of a government sleuth invading their home to quiz them on matters that they believe to be strictly their own business.

"Name, rank and number — that's all I'm going to tell them," said one veteran, repeating the orders given to all servicemen about what they must do if taken prisoner.

"For all the money questions I'm going to mark 'See income tax return'," he added. . . .

I am glad that there are such stubborn, awkward people in this country. We can thank such people for all the liberty we now enjoy. They, and their ancestors, refused to be pushed around.

It's true that the census rules contain elaborate guarantees of secrecy. The money part, for example, is to be filled out by the individual and handed in a sealed envelope to the enumerator.

But the champions of privacy still feel nervous at the thought of all that red-hot information smouldering inside the envelopes. Rules can be broken. Anyway, there are portions of the questionnaire that are written down openly by the census-taker.

Very likely, most of the information will be useful in drawing an economic and social picture of the country.

All the same — thank goodness for the diehard champions of private rights! They discourage snoopers from going too far.

MORE HOMES

It would appear that demand for new houses is going to slacken, except in areas of new industry and special growth. With reduced demand, the cost of homes should tend to drop. However, if NHA is going to create more potential home owners by payment spread over as long as 30 years and small downpayments, there is little likelihood of cost coming down in the immediate future.

Cushing

Mrs. W. Hodgson, of Vancouver, B.C., was the guest of her niece, Mrs. L. M. Gaston, on Wednesday and Thursday of the past week, also visited friends in Vankleek Hill on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Bailey motored to Hull on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Burton and sons spent the week-end at the Cleland house.

Mrs. W. Y. King arrived home last Wednesday evening after visiting Miss I. Ross of Kingston. On Thursday Mrs. King accompanied a party of nine other ladies from Cushing to Vankleek Hill to attend the United Church Sectional W.M.S. rally, held in the church that afternoon, with Mrs. Smith of Ottawa as guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Roulsen, of Montreal, were Sunday guests of Mrs. W. Y. King. Mrs. Roulsen was guest speaker to the Mission Band on Sunday morning.

Mrs. S. H. Beecher and Mrs. J. L. Maw were at "Lilac Lodge" for a few days. Mr. John Maw, of Vancouver, accompanied them to Cushing from Montreal the previous Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weir, of Baie d'Urfé, visited Miss Alice Davidson on Saturday.

Miss Annie McDowell and brother, Jack, of Montreal, spent the week-end at "Glenifer Cottage".

The Buzzell family, from Montreal West, were in residence at "Woodbine Cottage" for the week-end.

The house and adjoining cottage until recently owned by Mr. Roy Dobbie, have been moved to No. 8 highway, where they will be set up on the opposite side of the road, on a property belonging to Mr. John Douglas, replacing a house previously destroyed by fire.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Drew, of Verdun, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning.

Mrs. A. Starnes and son, Walter, visited Mrs. H. Wilkins in St. Jerome Hospital on Saturday.

Mrs. R. T. Holmes spent the week in Montreal, motoring here with Mr. Ray Bailey on Saturday, when he visited his brother, Mr. H. Bailey, and returning to the city with him for a further visit with her daughter, Florence.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Steele and children, of Cassburn, accompanied by Mr. Keith Fraser, of Ottawa, were callers on Sunday at the home of Mrs. L. M. Gaston.

St. Andrews East

Miss Gladys Mock, of Montreal, is visiting the Misses Wales.

Miss Janet Clattenburg went to hospital last week, news of her progress is favorable. . . . Capt. Clattenburg, who is in Hamburg, Germany, states that he is very busy and enjoying meeting the people there.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McLaughlin son Peter, and Mrs. McGowan, spent the week-end at their home here.

Mrs. G. A. Lilly was in town on Wednesday and attended the P.A.P.R.T. annual meeting, held in the Junior High School, Westmount.

Sympathy

Much sympathy is expressed to Mrs. T. Johnson on the death of her husband, who passed away Friday night at the Deslauriers Nursing Home, Hawkesbury, Ont.

Avoca

Pte. Donald McCallum spent the week-end with his parents.

Miss Selina Mackay, who underwent an operation in the Smith Clinic, is progressing satisfactorily.ily.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Doherty, of Montreal, spent the week-end at their summer home.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan McPhee on Sunday were Mrs. Wm. H. Kelly, of Aylmer, Que., Mr. Alex McPhee and Mrs. Chas. Steele, of Grenville, Que.

Orange Service and Supper

The Orange service in the United Church of St. Andrew was well attended, last Sunday. An interesting address by Kenneth Brown, B.A., was appreciated by the members. Grand Lodge officers were present from Lachute, also members from Grenville and Calumet. Canon C. W. P. Baugh, and Mr. Walker, from Lakefield, were present.

A delightful supper was served by the ladies, in the Community Hall, and several speakers were heard. Mrs. Scott MacLean announced that the J.O.L. in Avoca and Harrington had the honor of winning the silver cup for their third year, for maintaining the most proper decorum of any junior lodge of the province.

21st Anniversary celebrated by Dairy Queen stores

This month Dairy Queen stores all over the world will celebrate 21 years of rapid growth, from three stores in 1939 to today's total of more than 3200, according to Al Mady, owner-operator of the local Dairy Queen store, Brownsburg Road. As part of the celebration Dairy Queen stores are featuring a special 21st Anniversary sundae at a special price on June 8-9-10.

The phenomenal growth of Dairy Queen, as the leading dispenser of soft-serve dairy desserts, is based partly on the popularity of the product and partly on the fact that each Dairy Queen store is an independent, locally owned operation. The stores are individual enterprises and thus each operator has a keen interest in the growth of his business. This means that each Dairy Queen operator is especially anxious to give the best service possible.

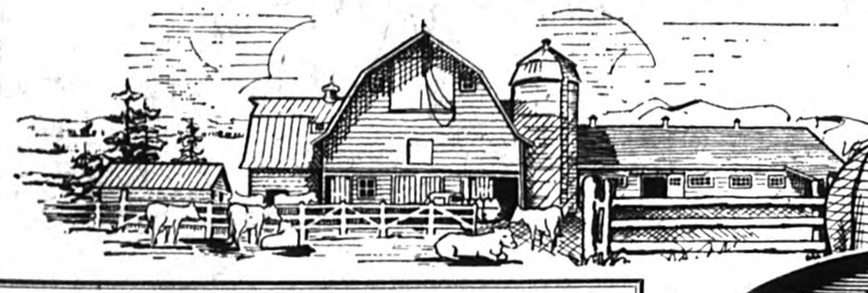

The first Dairy Queen store was opened in Moline, Illinois, by J. F. McCullough in 1939. The McCullough family, in close cooperation with Harry Oltz of Hammond, Indiana, developed the proper type of freezer, one that would make a nutritious, tasty dessert, and could be operated in full view of the public.

Operating a Dairy Queen store is not a life of leisure. The average workday is 12 hours and there are seven days of work a week, during the season which normally runs from March to November. These hard-working operators typify the best characteristics of free-enterprise operating in a free economy. They also prove the old business maxim that to be successful all you have to do is give the public what it wants.

CENSUS TAKING — YESTERDAY AND TODAY

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

During the current census, an enumerator will be calling on every household in Canada, and this visit, which takes place only every ten years, will stimulate all kinds of questions. Many parents and teachers will encourage school-age boys and girls to look up in encyclopedias such as "Canadiana" some of the information they seek.

This is also the season for end-of-term examinations for many young students, when the weather is so inviting that it is calling everyone to the great outdoors! Thus, information about census-taking, which can be clipped out of the newspaper and kept for future reference, is useful.

According to the historian Livy, the first Roman censors were appointed in the year 443 B.C., to number the people and organize the nation in arms for political purposes. Our word "census" is of Latin origin, and it has come to mean the official numbering of the population together with the tabulation of various statistics.

The ancient Roman censor also had the power to remove from the roll of citizens those he considered unworthy of being mentioned. The Roman censors went out in pairs and were allowed eighteen months to complete their task.

The Bible has several references to census activities. In the Revised Standard Version, St. Luke, chapter 2, verse 1, reads: "And it came to pass that in those days a decree went out from Caesar Augustus that all the world should be enrolled." Joseph had to travel with Mary to Bethlehem, the city of David, because this was "his own city".

The editor of Burke's Peerage, G. Pine, in his book "Trace your ancestors," comments on the horror many primitive nations had of counting the inhabitants, even in recent times. In the First Book of Chronicles, Chapter 21, Satan is pictured as tempting David to do this, and the pestilence which followed was interpreted as a punishment for this census. In the late Seventeenth Century a motion to number the people was voted down in the British Parliament because it would "provoke the wrath of the Lord." Not until 1801 was there sufficient public approval to establish the taking of a census in England.

When Marco Polo returned from his journey to the Orient he described the Chinese custom of each householder writing above his door his own name and that of his wife, his children, his slaves and also his animals! There is a fascinating census preserved which was taken in the year 1331 in the Chinkiang district. In India, the ruler Akbar held the first census in his country carried out along modern lines.

In the early days of French rule in Canada, the Intendant Talon in 1661 carried out a census and himself acted as one of the enumerators. In 1842 the United Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada passed a Census Act. After Confederation the Canadian Census Act of 1871 approved the plans for the first real Canadian Census of 1871. Thus our Census this year is the tenth for the Dominion of Canada, and the twelfth consecutive decennial census in the land now called Canada.

Under the signature of the Dominion Statistician, Walter E. Duffett, every Canadian household has received a communication with the well-chosen slogan "1961 Census: HELP CANADA COUNT!" Cooperation of those questioned is more likely when they see the practical uses which will be made of the composite picture of Canadian life which will be deduced from their replies.

Every thoughtful citizen is concerned in the problems of plans for future educational needs, for fair distribution of seats in Parliament, for those who will be claiming family allowances and old age pensions. Provincial grants to municipalities will be shaped in part from information gathered by the enumerator. These replies will give guidance to market analyses and production planning of industry.

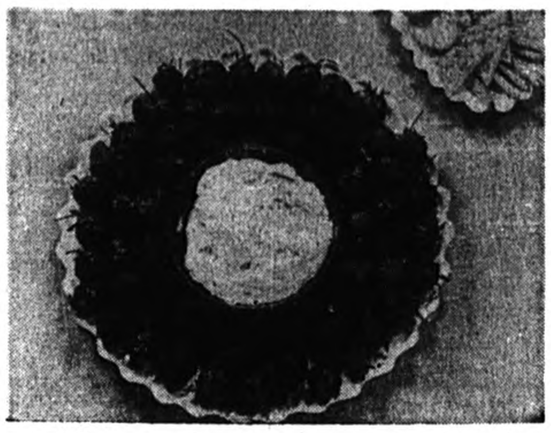

The questions of Canada's 1961 census cover not only name, age, and sex of each person in the household, but the place of birth, religion, language, education, employment, war-time service. At every fifth household the enumerator will find out about the date when the dwelling was built, the source of water supply, the type of sewage disposal, heating equipment, fuel and other details.

The sixth question on the sheet is "Are you a Canadian?" If the answer is negative, information is sought as to what country it is in which the individual holds citizenship. This key question may encourage parents to help their children realize how fortunate they are to live in a land so richly blessed with natural resources and democratic traditions.

Perhaps they will go on to think about a fitting way to celebrate Canada's Centenary Year, 1967. The significance of this historic event will not reach our children just through the schools, the newspapers, radio and TV, but it will be colored by our own knowledge, as parents, of Canada's past, of her position today, and our dreams for her future.

Cheese dip for strawberries

Dew fresh, bright red strawberries surround a bowl of cream cheese dip to make a simple but sophisticated pass-around to guests or family. To make the dip: Cream 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese. Blend in 4 tablespoons of cream. Add 3 tablespoons salad dressing, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Whip until light and fluffy. Makes about 1½ cups.

Know your strawberries!

(Consumer Section)

There's no question about the best strawberries we ever ate. They were the dew-fresh berries plucked from our father's strawberry patch when the morning was at seven and we were young. But there are many questions about store-bought fresh strawberries that consumers ask the home economists of Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, to answer for them. Here are some samples, along with the answers:

Question: What do you look for when you buy fresh strawberries at the store?

Answer: First of all, never look for a bargain. The strawberry season is so short that the crop is here today and gone tomorrow. Therefore, prices fluctuate very little while local berries last. But, do look for bright, glossy, solid berries with bright green caps. Flavor depends on ripeness, so avoid berries that have white spots. Bruised and damp berries are not a good buy.

* * *

Question: How many berries should you buy at one time?

Answer: It is best to buy only enough berries that can be used at one time. However, berries will keep in the refrigerator for 2 or 3 days. Remove them from the box and place on a plate or tray so that air can circulate around them.

* * *

Question: Should strawberries be washed and hulled before storing in the refrigerator?

Answer: Never. Do not wash or hull the berries until ready to use. At that time, wash quickly in cold water, lifting out with fingers so that dirt and sand fall to bottom of basin. Remove caps after berries are clean and dry.

* * *

Question: Have strawberries any significant food value?

Answer: They are excellent sources of Ascorbic Acid or Vitamin C. If a man ate a handful direct from his strawberry patch they would supply him with practically a day's need of Vitamin C. A bowl of fresh strawberries, therefore, is a wonderful way to start a day. Try them for breakfast.

* * *

Question: Could you give a suggestion for serving fresh strawberries as a party snack?

Answer: Your guests will like cheese-dipped berries. Arrange fresh, clean, ripe strawberries, hulls on, around a bowl of cream cheese dip. To make the dip: Cream 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese. Blend in 4 tablespoons of cream. Add 3 tablespoons salad dressing, 2 teaspoons lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Whip until light and fluffy. Makes about 1½ cups.

* * *

Question: Have you any ideas for a very simple strawberry dessert?

Answer: One of our favorites is fresh strawberry ice cream topped with more fresh strawberries, whole or sliced. The other is a tasty treat called Quick Strawberry Mallow, and here is the Consumer Section's recipe for it. . . .

Quick Strawberry Mallow

1 Quart (5 cups) strawberries, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ½ pound large marshmallows, ½ cup icing sugar, ½ cup shredded coconut, ½ cup whipping cream.

Wash, hull and cut strawberries into quarters. Add lemon juice and stir gently. Place in refrigerator to chill 15 minutes. Using kitchen shears or scissors, cut each marshmallow into eighths, dipping shears into water to prevent sticking. Add icing sugar to cut marshmallows and toss well to separate pieces. Just before serving, combine chilled strawberries, marshmallows and coconut. Fold in whipped cream, then pile lightly in sherbet glasses. — Six servings.

Note: If using small marshmallows, leave whole. Add the icing sugar to the whipped cream instead of to the marshmallows.

Institutions not whole answer to mentally retarded

Port Colborne, Ont. — "Placing mentally retarded children and adults into institutions is not the whole answer to solving this major social problem facing Canada," states Mrs. E. Kleinsteuber, of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children.

"The case of the mentally retarded has changed dramatically in recent years. Greater professional understanding and planning through experimental programs has reversed the concept of retaining the child behind institutional walls and there is a definite trend to maintaining these special people in their home atmospheres where they can receive the parental affection required by every child.

"In this environment they can be given additional valuable help through special schools and training programs in their communities — all at less than half the cost of institutional care, a point not often realized by the public."

Mrs. Kleinsteuber said that there will always be special circumstances when a certain percentage of the mentally retarded will require institutional or residential care — "but this should be planned on entirely new principles."

She said the trend of thinking is away from the massive institution and that the trend of planning is toward residential centres divided into small units of 15 to 25 patients. "There are such centres in existence today on this continent that are proving their worth in meeting the educational, emotional and social needs of residents."

Poultry Merits

The Poultry Products Institute of Canada recognizes the claims that frozen broiler-fryer chickens and small turkeys have less flavor than roasting chickens and large turkeys.

But they say many people forget that these frozen poultry are young and can't be expected to compare in flavor.

Broiler-fryer chickens become rubbery or tough in texture because they are cooked 15 to 30 minutes too short, they say. This is usually the fault of the recipe and doesn't mean that the poultry meat is tough.

Ginger Dessert

This recipe as tested by the Poultry Products Institute of Canada is recommended for pot-luck suppers and dessert parties.

It calls for: ¼ cup butter, 1 cup icing sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tsp. vanilla, 1 cup drained, crushed pineapple, 3 bananas, diced, ½ cup coarsely chopped pecans, 6 maraschino cherries, chopped, ½ cup cream (whipped stiff), 1 tbsp. icing sugar and ½ lb. ginger snaps, crushed fine.

Cream butter and sugar or beat with electric or hand beater. Add eggs and vanilla and whip until creamy. Fold the tablespoon of icing sugar into whipped cream and combine with fruit and nuts.

Lightly butter a two-inch deep cake or loaf pan. Sprinkle bottom and sides with ½ of ginger snap crumbs and spread butter mixture evenly on top. Sprinkle with half of remaining crumbs. Add whipped cream mixture and top with last of crumbs. Chill several hours or overnight in refrigerator.

Before serving, garnish with maraschino cherries cut into petals and arranged with nuts in attractive design. If necessary, dessert may be served after chilling 1 to 2 hours though it will not have the same texture. Yield 10 to 12 servings.

Hosiery Notes

Whether or not your legs are chorus-girl material, this season Canada's "upper 10" hosiery brands have devised styles and colors which should benefit anyone.

The Canadian association of ladies' hosiery manufacturers says that these "name nylons" are offering 26 new shades and 11 different styles. Some of these styles feature an elastic top, a seven-inch welt in three sections which are designed for longer or shorter foundation garments, and a centering mark to keep seamless stockings straight. Guaranteed run-proof toes and tops and elasticized tops for this summer's over-the-knee and knee-high lengths are additional features.

ON THE FARM FRONT

SEASONAL TOPICS FOR THE FARMER, DAIRYMAN AND LIVESTOCK BREEDER

Need good pastures for profitable dairy farming

It is impossible to imagine a profitable dairy industry without taking into consideration, first and foremost, the very important matter of pastures on dairy farms.

A large number of dairymen are now becoming more and more aware of this, and are planning their farming operations with the basic idea of having enough grassland to provide plenty of grass for as long a period as possible.

In order to accomplish this — writes J. R. Cloutier of the Queber Department of Agriculture — it is absolutely necessary to make use of at least some, it not all, of the most recommended of modern farming practices.

In the first place, it may prove very useful or even most essential to have a temporary (supplementary or annual) pasture based on oats, which can be used in case of necessity. Secondly, the reseeding of old pastures is highly advisable, if the yield is seen to be markedly on the decrease both in quantity and quality.

Manuring and the use of commercial fertizilizers are also recommended to maintain pastures at a high level of production: so too is the adequate control of grazing, which allows maximum yields without deterioration of pasture by too close, too frequent grazing.

Sensible application of these methods of management cannot fail to put into the hands of those who make use of them, a production potential which will prove its value throughout the entire grazing season. Pastures which yield an abundance of grass are at the root of all profitable dairy farming.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Metabolic Water in Animals

Some weeks ago I commented on metabolic water—water formed by respiration—explaining its importance in plant and animal life. This is practically the only water, produced within their own bodies, for many species of animals that must exist in desert areas.

A scientist wondered how in a dry atmosphere, certain insects like clothes moths, bee moths and pea weevils were able to survive and even reproduce, having larvae with a 60 percent water content. He subjected them to laboratory controlled conditions of absolute dryness while feeding dry foods such as wollen cloth and dry beeswax.

Dr. Bohstedt

He found these insects and also many reptiles and birds had the advantage of a number of water economies within their bodies. He also learned that all produce metabolic water—in some cases making the difference between life and death.

Mammals including farm animals also produce metabolic water. The end product of their feed protein breakdown is soluble urea instead of insoluble salt of uric acid as in insects, birds and reptiles. The farm animals normally need to drink considerable water, partly in order to flush the urea out of their bodies.

In line with this observation, it has been found that pigs and dairy cows on high-protein rations need more water to drink than they do on ordinary rations, or on low-protein rations. It is easily appreciated that high-producing cows need a lot of water.

Also some feeds, especially certain kinds of hay, have a stimulating effect on the kidneys, causing frequent urination, thus setting up a greater demand for drinking water.

Then, where for instance hard-working horses perspire a great deal and lose a lot of moisture, it is seen that we cannot very well gauge the exact amount of water that is required daily by individual farm animals. Metabolic water in domestic animals meets this requirement only part way.

For healthy livestock, water must be supplied in abundance, in a clean manner, and at a favorable temperature.

Question: We purchase an average of less than one ton of stock salt a year. Is this enough for an average general livestock farm?

Answer: To be able to compute the annual salt requirement, the following are the approximate daily intakes of mature livestock where horses, beef, cattle and sheep are fed salt free choice, and dairy cattle and swine are fed salt both free choice and mixed with their grain: Beef cattle and light horses, 1½ ounces; dairy cattle, 2 ounces; sheep ⅔ ounce; and for swine ⅔ ounce for each 100 pounds live weight. Young stock require roughly half as much. Climate and soil conditions, rate of production and natural salt content of the rations affect the salt requirement to some degree. In most areas the feeding of trace mineralized salt is recommended as insurance against trace mineral deficiency losses.

Questions from readers will be answered in the column or by direct reply. Please send your questions to Dr. Bohstedt, 221 North LaSalle Street, (Rm. 507), Chicago 1, Illinois.

Benefits from planting trees

Anyone who plants trees can benefit not only in the value of these trees when mature, but can also benefit by the laws relating to Lands and Forests (Chap. 93, Article 164) which reads as follows:

So long as there are at least 300 trees per acre, reforested lands must continue to be assessed for 30 years at the same rate they were at the time of planting: At the expiration of this period of thirty years the municipal assessment cannot be changed except at each ten year period, providing the land remains in forest.

Everyone who plants some hundreds or thousands of trees to help our natural regeneration or who plants a cleared area of a fraction of an acre, runs little risk that his action will be followed by a higher assessment for taxation. On the other hand all those who propose to reforest cleared land, an acre or more in extent, should do everything possible to profit by Article 164. It is possible that assessors, when they prepare the valuation roll, may not take into account the little trees covering a portion of the property, but it is by no means sure that they will close their eyes to the promising trees to which ones have grown in 10, 15, or 25 years. It is always wise to look ahead.

Any proprietor who has decided to reforest a certain area, and is anxious to take advantage of the provisions of Article 164 of the laws concerning Lands and Forests, should give notice before beginning his work to the secretary-treasurer of the municipality in which his land is located, stating the cadastral number of his lot and how many acres he plans to reforest on said lot.

He should keep a copy of his letter and ask the secretary-treasurer to send him a written acknowledgment which will be useful in case his letter might get lost in the office of the municipality.

Safeguard bees from insecticides

A little co-operation between crop growers and beekeepers allows insecticides and other chemicals to be used without killing off the local bee population.

L.A.O. Roadhouse, a Canada Department of Agriculture pesticide expert, offers some tips to farmers, fruit growers, market gardeners, custom spray operators and beekeepers.

If a beekeeper is warned in time that a toxic chemical is to be used in his neighborhood, he can protect his bees. He may move them or shut them up for a day. The beekeeper should be alert for spraying, and inquire what is being applied and when.

Mr. Roadhouse also suggests the following:

Sprays or dusts for orchards and field crops should be applied before the blossoms open, or after all the petals have fallen;

Warn local beekeepers before using a chemical fruit thinner;

Apply weed killers on cereal or forage crops before the weeds bloom;

If the orchard has clover plants in bloom, cultivate or mow before spraying;

Chemicals highly toxic to bees should be used only before and after flowering and never within a quarter mile of bee colonies or blooming fields;

Insecticides deadly to bees include arsenicals, Sevin, dieldrin, dinitros, parathion, Diazinon, Guthion and malathion;

Time the spraying and dusting so that chemicals will not drift to nearby fields where bees are foraging;

Do not dump waste chemicals or empty containers where they might contaminate pools or streams that bees are likely to visit for water.

Wireworm control

Ottawa — The damage done by wireworms in organic soils of Quebec in recent years, is such that strong control measures are called for — says J. Lafrance of the Canada Department of Agriculture at St. Jean.

Potato tubers are very susceptible to wireworm attack, and can be made unmarketable. Other vegetables are attacked also, and the young plants may be killed by having their roots eaten.

Clean cultivation will reduce the infestation, but not immediately. A single application of one of the recommended insecticides and frequent and thorough cultivation may reduce an infestation considerably.

The insecticides recommended are: dieldrin, 10 per cent granules at 70 pounds per acre, and aldrin, five per cent granules at 140 pounds. They are applied to the soil one week before planting and worked into the top six inches with a rotary tiller or disc harrow.

These recommendations apply when there are 15 to 20 wireworm larvae per square foot. For lighter infestation, 50 pounds of the dieldrin granules or 100 pounds of aldrin will suffice.

Canada's first telephone research centre

Ottawa — Canada's first telephone research centre just recently opened its doors to the scores of scientists and technicians who — working in a sylvan setting near the capital — will create and develop ideas of benefit to the nation's communications.

One of the four projected buildings is now being occupied. A second building will be completed on the spacious, 70-acre site in time for the official opening this fall. Two other laboratory buildings are planned for the future.

The Northern Electric Company's research and development centre will serve the Canadian communications industry, including its parent company — the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. It will double the Northern's present research facilities, fast growing since their formation in 1957.

Research into projects of specific concern to communications in Canada will be the centre's basic function, said A. B. Hunt, Northern vice-president, who heads the organization. In this, it will complement the work of the world-famous Bell Telephone Laboratories in the United States.

"There is a real necessity for the development of specialized products and services to meet conditions peculiar to our own Canadian environment," he said.

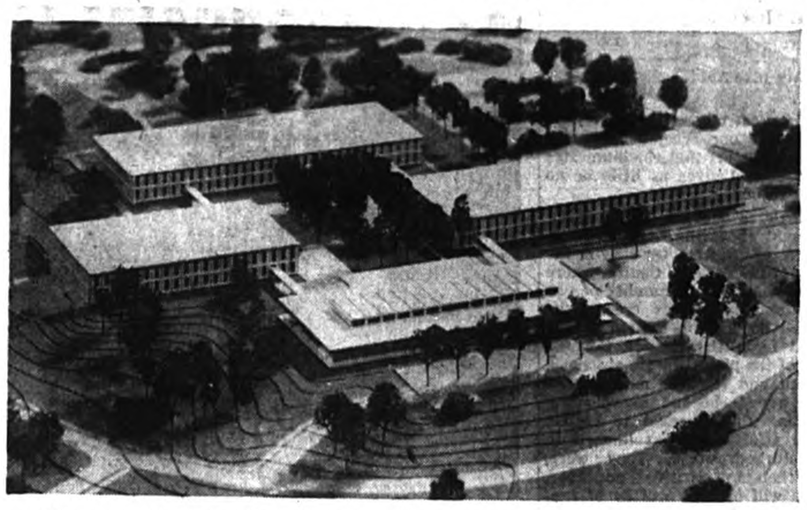

The importance of the Northern research centre was stressed by T. W. Eadie, Bell Telephone president, who described it as "the nucleus of a major Canadian research centre, one that will share its findings with the world just as the Bell Laboratories do today."

The scientists will work in an atmosphere conducive to the creation and development of ideas. The arrangement of the buildings provides a campus-like setting. The site is just west of the city limits in the two-mile deep "Green Belt" that is part of Ottawa's long-term plan to beautify the capital.

The staff will include many scientists with advanced degrees at the master or doctorate level, plus technicians such as laboratory assistants, tool makers and model shop personnel of high technical skill as well as their associated office workers.

The new centre will bring together groups now spread over three cities. The first group now moving in comprises some 125 scientific and office workers located in rented quarters in Ottawa. Next will be the 50 or so people in the semi-conductor research group in Montreal. Then there will be the 15 or 20 members of the audio and video research group now located temporarily in Belleville.

Eventually, when the last two laboratory buildings are completed as expansion dictates, it is expected the centre will house close to 1,000 persons engaged in developing new products and services for the benefit of Canadian communications users.

This architect's model shows the new research centre, being built near Ottawa by the Northern Electric Company, where communications research will be carried out for the Canadian telephone industry, including its parent company, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada. The first building — a two-storey laboratory at the left — is now being occupied and the administration building at front will be ready by fall.

Cows don't think

The necessary precaution of slowing down on a curve, at the top of an incline, at intersections, and whenever the pavement is slippery, is standard procedure with all skilled drivers. But reduced speed is even more important when meeting or overtaking cattle, teams or saddle horses.

The farmer who has to guide such animals across or along a public road deserves special attention and help — instead of complicating his task by speeding. Reduce your speed, and refrain from using the horn, which only frightens the animals. Cattle are not capable of thinking about safety; it is up to the driver.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

Recently, a well-known TV personality and her friends were on a whirlwind week-end jaunt of Paris, France. When they spotted one of the city's well-known landmarks, one member of the party was heard to remark, "If the Eiffel Tower were in Toronto or Vancouver, they'd tear it down to make room for a parking area."

How true! But during my travels, I have discovered evidence that there are still public spirited persons who, either individually, or collectively through well-organized societies, have preserved for all time, much of Canada's historic background.

A few weeks ago I wrote of Eric L. Harvie and his family of Galgary, Alta., who have established the Glenbow Foundation "to collect, preserve and display material dealing with the human and natural history of western Canada." By the way, I misspelled their name, an unforgivable mistake for an experienced newspaper woman to make. The Harvies have made a wonderful contribution financially, historically and artistically to their adopted province.

Only a few months ago, the home of Stephen Leacock on the shores of Lake Couchiching near Orillia, Ont., was disintegrating into a shambles of rotting wooden siding and old shingles. An American, who loved the written works of this great Canadian humorist, undertook to restore this residence and preserve it in Leacock's memory.

Thomas Chandler Haliburton created "Sam Slick" in one of the few remaining old houses in Nova Scotia. It is now known as Haliburton Museum and is symbolic of the fortunes of a number of our first artistocratic families, an eloquent reminder of the culture of the province more than a century ago. The grand old wooden house that stands on Crown Land granted to a Windsor citizen by His Majesty King George the Third on July 9, 1766, was built after Haliburton purchased the property in January, 1833. Hundreds of visitors come each year to view the antiques, to see the illustrations of Haliburton's books which are strung like a Monday's wash on a line that extends from one end of his study to the other. It was here Haliburton dictated his tales to attendants. The government of Nova Scotia has taken over the house, its care and preservation.

Not too far away, Uniacke House is presided over by members of the IODE who conduct visitors through the fabulous rooms that once echoed to the laughter and gaiety of a socially conscious family. I think it was the downstairs kitchen in this manor that intrigued me most. The great fireplace with its huge spits on which "the joint" had roasted, while nearby, huge fancy moulds held chilled headcheese, jelly made with rare old wine, cast iron skillets in which "pan breads" had been tossed and the most lovely old chinaware which had been "the help's" service, needed little description to conjure up the picture of the lavish meals that had been concocted by cooks at Uniacke House, when its owner was attorney general of the province.

I was reminded the other day of these two lovely old homes and the misty Maritime day I spent listening to echoes of the past, when I read that another beloved Canadian author was to be memorialized early this year. Postmaster William Hamilton announced the stamp that has since been issued to commemorate the centennial of the birth of Pauline Johnson, famed Mohawk poetess born at Chiefswood near Brantford, Ont., on March 10, 1861. The stamp is designed to show Miss Johnson's two personalities of Victorian lady and Indian princess. It was designed by B. J. Reddie of Ottawa and is of the 5c denomination. There were 32,000,000 such stamps printed. I could just see philatelists standing in line at local post offices to obtain a "corner".

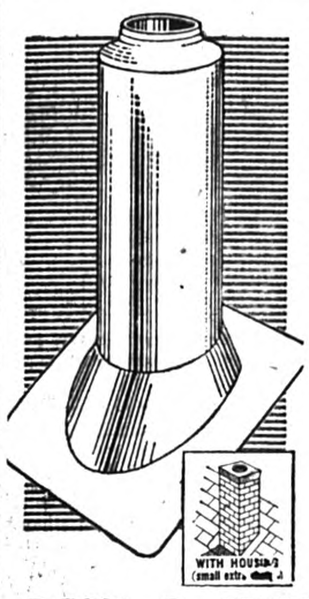

Perhaps this stamp issue was of great interest to me because last summer I walked through Stanley Park in Vancouver and stood near the monument erected to mark the spot where Pauline Johnson used to sit and gaze out over the Pacific Ocean in creative contemplation.

It is much more exciting to live history than to merely absorb it from books. This has been my privilege as I have travelled from coast to coast by train, absorbing the legends of early generations that contributed to Canada becoming the nation it is today.

From the middle of the 18th century when Edward Cornwallis established Halifax, to the early years after the second world war, when a startingly white gateway was built in a peace park on the boundary of Washington State and the Province of British Columbia, history on this continent has been building up to the "peaceful coexistence" we enjoy with our neighbors to the south.

I believe we can only realize what our heritage is by experiencing the thrill of standing among a garden of flowers on the Pacific Coast and reading words to this effect, "May there never be cause to close these gates between our two countries."

SCOTIA PLAN LOAN TALKS NO. 1

When should you arrange a car loan?

Today the automobile has become a part of our way of life, and for many people is almost as much a necessity as a comfortable place to live. But a car that no longer suits your purpose can become a liability to your peace of mind as well as your pocketbook. The time to trade your car is before operating and repair expenses become too much of a headache. However, you may be ready to trade in the old before your savings account is ready to pay for the new.

Here's the answer! Finance your new or used car purchase easily and at low cost through Scotia Plan—The Bank of Nova Scotia's unique consumer lending program. What's more, you can arrange your Scotia Plan Loan before you shop for your car. This guarantees you the advantage of Scotia Plan's low rates, and lets you make your deal the moment you find the car you want. You can also get a Scotia Plan Loan for debt consolidation, to pay medical bills, for new furniture, etc.

Whether you're a Scotiabank customer or not, when you need money promptly, call at your nearest branch of The Bank of Nova Scotia.

Cinquefoil — shrub for farm home

Cinquefoil is an excellent flowering shrub, that deserves to be planted more frequently than it is. It is a deciduous shrub, two to three feet tall at maturity, bearing yellow or white flowers resembling those of single roses, throughout many weeks from late May onwards. It is hardy, thrives in ordinary garden soil, particularly that which is light and well-drained. It may be used as foreground planting in shrub borders, foundation planting around the house and, as an accent point, in a rock garden. Cinquefoil is available from any commercial nursery at very reasonable prices.

Candid comments on Canadian culture

— BY DOROTHY BARKER —

Abridged from "Diary of a Vagabond", regular feature in this journal

"Despite notions to the contrary, artists do not live in ivory towers but, rather, need the stimulation of contact with other artists," Allan Jarvis, director of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, exclaimed recently. "I said long before it was set up, and have said it many times since, that the Canada Council would be well worth while if it did nothing more than issue railway tickets so that creative Canadians could communicate with each other."

There were many of our intellectuals from all parts of Canada, who travelled to Toronto for this stimulating Conference. It was a revelation to me, for I have been in the centre of many an argument intended to take the measurement of Canadian culture and taste. The Conference did just that and my estimate of native talent has been considerably increased.

Not Just Artistic

Sir Julian Huxley, eminent British biologist, during an evening session appropriately called "a meeting of minds", bruised democracy by describing our society as "an affluent rat-race in an anemic welfare state." He was supported in his criticism by Professor William Kilbourn and Rene Levesque, Quebec's Minister of Public Works and of Hydraulic Resources.

Professor Kilbourn was even more critical. He commented with well-timed bluntness that Canadians, in his opinion, are "tin-eared, brass-eyed people with the ugliest landscapes and townscapes in the world." He urged that art minded individuals get out and "fight the Yahoos".

"A Yahoo," Mr. Kilbourn explained to a reporter, "is anybody who thinks our towns look nice the way they are, anyone with vision so blighted they accept billboard advertising, a sea of cars parked on a lot, a forest of wires overhead and builders who have built our post-1945 slum suburbs".

Rene Levesque claimed we only "get the Yahoos we allow to grow". He told of Quebec's new governmental departure into the field of arts. Recently elected, with only ten months of performance to boast about, this group of Canadian enthusiasts has created a department for promoting culture. It has instituted the first demand by law in this country, for a percentage of construction cost in the province to be set aside by contractors for artistic and beautification purposes.

Gratien Gelinas, author-actor-director, when badgered later by Gordon Sinclair and Pierre Berton, Canadian columnists, for his opinion of statements made by these knowledgeable personages, said he would have to agree with them. "Drive through any rapidly developing Canadian city, or town, and the conditions are the same". . . . With his famous histrionic gestures and wit he concluded, in a cultured French-Canadian accent, "Except in Quebec".

Fight Ugliness

There isn't space enough to write about the campaign these thinking men outlined for the improvement of our native scapes. Briefly they included an anti-ugly campaign, proper design for city furnishings, utility wires underground, an educational system that would make youth aware of art, smaller cities and space to walk about, not just ride around in cars and aboard a subway; a campaign urging religious authorities to promote good art in the churches, and make people aware of art through public sculpture and murals.

While I listened, I was reminded of public protests over the arrestingly original wire sculpture in front of the Edmonton municipal buildings and the furor created last year when a selection of pictures was to be made for the city of Hamilton. Our artistic appreciation as a nation is, I am afraid, still in short pants. Collectively we only exert our acceptance of the obvious, the art that communicates on sight and gives us little or no effort to understand.

Which brings me to my final comment about the Canadian Conference of the Arts. On view in the lobby of the O'Keefe Centre, where it was held, were a number of pictures and sculptures created by those who have benefited by an award from the Canada Council. Most of the pictures were abstracts, far out and (for the most part, I must admit) beyond my comprehension. They seemed to reflect man's effort to orient himself in a disturbed world. They were, nevertheless, creative endeavor, which will ever be worthy of support.

Perhaps I was a little more impressed by the exhibition of books by Canadian authors. Their industry and imagination were exciting and I felt chagrined that I had read so few of the books on display.

There were a few long hairs, or should we call them intellectiual snobs, who claimed the Conference had achieved no purpose whatever. . . . But the birth of an endeavor to promote art appreciation, more beautiful towns, cities, and art education of the youth of our nation, should be commended for the effort.

HEARSAY

Mark Twain, in his reporting days, was instructed by an editor never to state anything as a fact that he could not verify from personal knowledge. Sent out to cover an important social event soon afterward, he turned in the following story: "A woman giving the name of Mrs. James Jones, who is reported to be one of the society leaders of the city, is said to have given what purported to be a party yesterday to a number of alleged ladies. The hostess claims to be the wife of a reputed attorney."

POLICE CHIEF AND FIVE OFFICERS RESIGN

Sequel to complicity and loud protest on immoral celebration

The Chief and four members of Lachute police force, also a police desk clerk, handed in their resignations at a packed meeting of Town Council in regular session last Wednesday. The resignations — sequel to a stag party which got out of hand and overstepped the standards of propriety — were accepted by the Council unanimously with one exception, Ald. Stanley Holt voting contrary to the motion for acceptance.

The council chamber at city hall was overcrowded with spectators. The atmosphere was static with tension, and credit is due to Mayor Fernand Legault for the fair and dignified manner in which he chaired the meeting. . . . "All who wish to speak," he said at the outset, "will have the privilege of doing so, but I ask that the assembly maintain order and discipline befitting the citizens of this town. It is an unfortunate incident which brings you here — a situation which is just as unpleasant for us as it is for you."

Hereupon, the Mayor read letters of protest addressed to the Council in two languages. The protests dealt with immoral entertainment at a bachelor celebration at Colford Lodge on May 29, organized here on behalf of a member of the police staff. (The affair had been raided by Morality Squad officers following local complaint.)

The letters came from 10 Catholic organizations and two priests. In the majority of cases they asked for dismissal of the police force and civic employees involved in the organizing of this event. Some went so far as to ask for resignation of certain aldermen who attended the function.

Resignations Tendered

Those who had tendered their resignations, prior to the meeting, were Chief A. J. Whiteway, Lieut. Gilles Poirier, Sgt. Gaetan Therriault, Constables Ken Fahey and Tom Williams, and Jean-Chas. Ménard, desk clerk. One full-time constable, two part-time constables and the desk clerk were not affected by the resignations.

Chief Gives Version

Asked to give his version of the whole affair, Chief Whiteway, with usual composure and deliberation, related how a "soiree" had been organized — not by the police alone but with collaboration of four other citizens and with the approval of several well-informed persons in the municipality. He stated he had never foreseen that the show would "go so far"; special entertainment had been asked for, which had been agreed to (ill-advisedly, he now realized). He asserted that the police were in no way responsible for promoting the immoral aspects of the spectacle featuring films and two dancers. He had not known there would be a film presentation and, moreover (he added), the affair took place outside Lachute, and there were no minors present in the hall.

"All these letters that have been read charge the police force with immorality. I assure you that we were not alone responsible, and if we are immoral, there were 120 men attending who are equally immoral."

The Chief deplored the fact there were people so "uncharitable" as to alarm and embarrass the families affected, and to enlarge on the incident — which he termed "un-Christian" interference.

Lieut. Gilles Poirier, André Bergeron and Bob Giles Jr., spoke in corroboration of the Chief's statements — the latter two referring only to the proceedings of the evening. Alderman Réal Morrissette explained his presence at the affair as a gesture of good faith, and Alderman Lauréat Laurin (with less finesse and restraint) minimized the gravity of the whole thing.

Alderman Horace Lamarche had a word of criticism for the establishment allowing this kind of entertainment, after three hotels in Lachute had refused their hospitality, for the occasion.

(Contacted by The Watchman, Mr. Tony Colford, proprietor, stated he had been assured this would be "above board" and a clean show; he acted in good faith for the exemplary reputation of his establishment.)

Mayor Censures Citizens

Before taking a vote on the resignations, Mayor Legault made a timely point for more public interest in the affairs of the Council. . . . "It is only on occasions like this that we have a crowd at our meetings. Right now we are studying a project of major importance — our waterworks system — but on a matter like this there seems to be no interest whatever! We who sit around the council table are not paid for our services, we do not want to be paid — but we would prefer that the taxpayers take more interest and let us know their views on such practical problems."

The Mayor voiced the feelings of the Council, that the resignations were accepted with sincere regret — not so much for the indiscretions committed, but in view of the excellent job accomplished by the police force in the past year. "Many good measures have been put into practice for benefit of the public," he concluded, "— some of them commended from the pulpits." He asked that this "incident" be considered closed, as those involved had suffered sufficiently already.

Organizations Protesting

Organizations heard from were as follows — the "Jeunes Foyers" (Young Wed Couples); "Lacordaire" and "Jeanne d'Arc" (Temperance groups); "Tiers Ordre" (Ste. Anastasie parish group); Catholic Women's League; "J.O.C.", (Young Catholic Workers); Council 2752 Knights of Columbus; the Rev. Adrien Giard and the Rev. Arsene Tessier, of St. Julien Parish; Sacred Heart League, of Ste. Anastasie; Richelieu Club; and the St. Patrick's Society.

Honored on his 50th birthday

Mr. Rodrigue Durocher, Liberal candidate for Argenteuil in the last provincial elections, was guest of honor at a soiree last Saturday in Lachute civic auditorium, marking the occasion of Mr. Durocher's 50th birthday. More than 500 persons were present from all parts of the County, with relatives and friends from the district.

Large cavalcade of sightseers tours valley sites shortly to be flooded

A strange sight was seen on the old "Front of Chatham" last Saturday, when a cavalcade of 48 automobiles toured that section of Route 29 which is no longer the "old front road" — being, in fact, surrounded by strange sights in the last year or two, and now largely denuded of trees and vegetation.

Designed to focus deserved attention on old landmarks, soon to disappear in the flooding of this countryside with the Quebec Hydro project at Carillon — the event was a public tour organized by the research committee of the Argenteuil Historical Society. Favored by fine weather, an estimated throng of 150 people attended — members and friends of the Society, and numerous others from Argenteuil and neighboring counties in Ontario. The response was gratifying to those of the research group who have expended such effort in exploring, photographing and recording the historic sites of the Ottawa rivershore from Carillon to Grenville. . . . Notable in the party last Saturday were Miss H. Lambart and Mrs. Howard Watson, who led the group, and Dr. R. Rigby, chairman of the committee, who served as guide and narrator through the medium of a portable public address system.

The gathering, from far and near, assembled in the early afternoon at Carillon Museum grounds and grouped together in carloads, then proceeding past the central structures of the new Carillon Dam to spots west along the dusty, truck-travelled highway. The cavalcade was escorted by provincial police cars.

The points of interest visited, and brief notes on which Dr. Rigby further elaborated, may be summarized as follows:

Points Visited on Tour

I. Brick house of Clark Noyes built in 1827 or earlier, in Regency style, with fine front door, and flue to baking oven. The brick in this building was possibly imported from England.

II. Bayside Farm — formerly the home of Mrs. Archie Graham, a member of the research committee. Adjacent is a stone shed which was originally a Blacksmith's Shop. The original dwelling was erected by old canal masons about 1835. The stone shed, of older vintage may have been used to make some of the ironwork of the original canal.

III. Chute à Blondeau canal, built in 1838 to by-pass the rapids. This has not been used since construction of original Carillon Dam. Lighthouses on the mainland and on Ordnance Island. The canal had one lock, at the east end.

On the towpath between Grece's Point and Grenville Station: To the south of No. 3 Lock is the grave of an unknown person during rebuilding of canal. Slightly upstream, across from No. 4 Lock, Little Rideau Falls are visible, with the "Ross Farm Site" nearby.

IV. Stonefield; here, side-by-side, are No. 5 Lock and, retained as a by-pass, Lock No. 3 of the original canal (1827). Owens' store, nearby, was built in 1888 from La Prairie brick, brought up the canal.

(A large number inspected this structure, in which the old store is retained in its original state. In the heyday of the canal traffic, the store did a roaring trade. Cabinets are built high into the walls; the drawers are labelled with such spices, herbs and cereals as were sold in bulk, before the days of canning and packaging — senna, sulphur, salt petre, madder, vitriol, alum, indigo, nutmegs, borax, cloves, ground ginger, carraway seed, etc.)

Visible remains of a stone house built by John Bowron about 1825, probably for C. C. Grece. A mile beyond, on right of towpath, ruins of the Dewar Mill beside the mill stream. Thomas dates this 1835 but it may be earlier.

V. Lock No. 6, side-by-side with Lock No. 2 of the old canal (1825), and original Lockmaster's Cottage. The old Grenville Cemetery lies in the woods to the west.

VI. St. Mungo's Church, built by canal stonemasons in 1836, which this year celebrates its 125th anniversary.

Tea of Old St. Mungo's

Everything stops for tea . . . and it was in the attractive hall adjoining old St. Mungo's that the travellers halted for refreshment, catered by the W.A. of this impressive church. Here Dr. Rigby, chairman of the research committee and dean of this enjoyable outing, paid tribute to his fellow organizers, and also enumerated the many persons of notable ancestry or association who had taken part in the tour, also members of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board, Ottawa.

Altogether, the event was a pleasant experience for the many who participated.

Council reverts to disposal of routine affairs

Further business at Town Council last week, following the police department debacle, included a resolution to call for applications for the position of police chief.

Among letters presented by the secretary was a communication from the Board of Transport Commissioners in regard to signals at Barron, Princess and Main Street crossings. The secretary was instructed to reply that the finances of the town do not allow contribution this year toward the cost of such installations.

Mr. J. E. Bourbonniere was appointed as agent for Lachute Town to secure options at Dawson's Lake, in connection with water supply. It was approved to pay an account of $3,250 submitted by the engineering firm of Lorrain, Tourigny and Dubuc in connection with preliminary work for the filtration plant.

Mr. Milton McFaul was appointed official weigher for the town.

Tenders were received — from Edgar Church, $627.15, and from Florian Laurin, $600. — for new stumps to be installed on the North River revetment wall. The offer of Florian Laurin was accepted, the work to be completed within a week.

Messrs. Gerard Lacoste (West Ward), Claude Rozon (centre), and Gilles Lefebvre (east) were appointed municipal census takers, at the usual salary.

July 3 was officially declared a civic holiday.

Owners of a fence along Princess Avenue opposite St. Julien Church, are to be notified to repair this fence.

Rodolphe Denault was appointed assistant foreman, at a salary of $25 a week, without overtime pay.

Authorization was given for purchase of material for the fire department.

Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion reported steps to procure land for a new campsite, and he was asked to approach the Parish of St. Jerusalem Council for a better price.

Accounts for the month, amounting to $17,782.19, were approved for payment, and the meeting was adjourned to Wednesday, June 21.

Warm weather set in early this week, with thunder showers Tuesday evening but high hopes for favorable weather, as this paper went to press and Lachute Spring Fair prepared to open its gates for a successful four-day run.

Entries for the livestock contests indicate another excellent horse show this year and good competition, in quality and numbers, in the cattle breeds. There is also a highly representative entry list for the poultry show.

The King Reid Shows have the midway and associated concessions, ensuring a variety of entertainment which has invariably attracted large crowds to this glamorous area of the exhibition grounds.

Official Opening

Mr. Glen Brown, M.L.A. for Brome County, will be here to officiate for the opening on Thursday afternoon, with the customary program before the grandstand.

It is stated by Secretary K. Riley that the CBC regular farm broadcast from Toronto daily at 12.30, will be diverted to Lachute for a special coverage on Friday. On that day the radio program will be produced direct from the Lachute Fair.

The service clubs are to the fore again, with respective programs to highlight each of the three principal Fair days. Individual advertisements and stories give a line-up of these entertainment programs elsewhere in these pages.

Official opening Thursday afternoon preludes peak periods of attendance

Police and Fire reports given for month of May

A report of the police department for May, presented by Commissioner Linton Armstrong, showed 156 tickets issued for traffic offences, with fines of $1,434.35; 28 dog permits sold, $91; 30 taxi permits, $200; 527 bicycle licenses, $661.25. Total revenues of the department in the month of May were $2,410.75.

The police desk received 466 service calls, and officers investigated 20 traffic accidents. Fourteen persons were in the police cells for various reasons and at various times; there were four arrests, 97 court appearances, six persons injured, one case of entry and theft, seven robberies and one armed robbery.

The fire department reported five outbreaks during the month. Three of these were minor fires within the Lachute town limits, including an automobile blaze; one was in Chatham Township and the other in Ayersville.

C.I.P. farm visited by Lands and Forests minister

In recent months the Provincial Government has been stressing the need for pulp and paper companies to purchase more wood from independent producers, such as farmers and settlers.

This week — on Wednesday, June 14, the C.I.P.'s Grenville Woodlands Division took delivery of the one millionth cord of wood purchased since 1952. On this occasion, the Hon. Bona Arsenault, Minister of Lands and Forests, made a presentation to the farmer supplying the historic cord.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Arsenault toured the Harrington Forest Farm to see, at first hand, the techniques of tree growing, land use and conservation which are being put into practice there.

Association for Retarded Children

A meeting of the Lachute Association for Retarded Children was held June 8, in the Legion Hall.

It was reported that the Ways and Means committee, with Mrs. Roland Moncrieff and Mrs. Thomas Ponech as co-chairmen, were hard at work organizing a Duplicate Bridge Club, which would be starting in September and continue through until spring of 1962. These ladies are very fortunate in having the able assistance of three Brownsburg gentlemen, namely, Mr. John Malloy, Mr. Mervyn Hicks and Mr. Roland Moncrieff, to help them in organizing this club. Mrs. Ponech stated that bridge would be played twice a month, once in Brownsburg Legion Hall and once in Lachute Legion Hall. Anyone interested in joining this club, or wanting further information, is requested to get in touch with any one of the above-mentioned people.

The Lachute Assocation for Retarded Children is also having a Wishing Well at the Lachute Spring Fair, and any pennies dropped in will certainly be appreciated by the Association.

For those unaware of this Association's activities, it may be stated that a school for retarded children is now being conducted in this district, and the above mentioned projects will help raise funds to carry on this work.

LADY GUESTS REGALLY ENTERTAINED —

Regional Ch. of Commerce gathers here for conference

"The Mille Iles Regional Chamber of Commerce, despite its youthful age, will become an organization to make its mark in this province. I am happy to offer sincere congratulations to the president of the local Chamber, Mr. Gaetan Leclair, as well as to the president of the regional body, Mr. Lucien Gemus, for their many activities benefiting the population of this region." . . . In this manner Mayor Fernand Legault greeted the Chamber of Commerce convention here last Sunday, at the Golf Club chalet, in extending the figurative keys of the city to the delegates.

Hon. L.-P. Cecile, Q.C. guest speaker

Among business matters dealt with in the more serious deliberations of the group, were resolutions promoting the tourist business of the area and, notably, the need for anti-pollution measures, and access-road improvements

Guest Speaker

Special speaker at the closing banquet was the Hon. Louis-Pierre Cecile, Q.C., ex-minister of Tourism and Publicity and present minister of Social Welfare for the Province of Ontario. Mr. Cecile spoke on the tourist attractions and potentialities of the Mille-Iles area.

President Gaetan Leclair of the Lachute group, in introducing the speaker, emphasized his links and attachments to this province — the Hon. Mr. Cecile having studied at Ste. Therese Seminary and married a young lady of Grenville.

Mr. Charles de Lotbinière Harwood, director of the Quebec Provincial Chamber of Commerce, also addressed the gathering.

The ladies of the party spent an enjoyable afternoon on the power yachts of Roger Legault and Miville Trickey, the "Gilnic" and "Mauve", cruising on the Ottawa River. The two hosts were assisted by Antoine Malaket and Paul Guenette. The trip concluded with a reception at Mr. and Mrs. Donat Saulnier's spacious summer home at Pointe aux Anglais, near St. Placide.

Travelled townsmen presented program at recent Lions Club gala ladies' night

A ladies' night supper at the Lions Club last week was a gala affair attended by approximately 100 persons.

Chaired by President Dr. Eric Mongeon, the gesture was a tribute to the wives who had made possible the Lions' high attendance record this season. The club has maintained an average 87% attendance. The "pencil pushers" team, under Geo. Cole as captain, won the symbolic pennant in the form of handsome powder compacts awarded to the wives. All other ladies in the hall were also presented with souvenir gifts.

Contributing to Lachute's prestige in Zone and International circles, the president paid tribute to the achievements of Horace Lamarche (Membership Chairman), Royal Carriere (Attendance Chairman) and Keith Clark (Secretary). He mentioned also the fine showing of this club at the District Convention in Kingston, and the distinction of Quebec Province in entering the first-prize float and the third-prize band in the convention parade.

The head-table notables were introduced by Lion Geo. Cole. Welcome guests outside the immediate club membership were Mr. and Mrs. Wes Younkie — Mr. Younkie being a stalwart of the Northmount branch.

A highlight of this meeting was the program presented by Lion Leopold Carriere and Lion Robert Marcil, narrating their adventures — illustrated by slides and movies — on a recent air trip to Ghana to visit Leopold's son, Daniel. Mr. Carriere proved himself an entertaining raconteur, telling many humorous and philosophic sidelights, while the scenes gave a vivid conception of the countryside, the people and their occupations.

Introduced by Col. Ernest Emmett, the two much-travelled Lions were thanked by Ian Gordon for their unusual travelogue.

Oldest resident, St. Andrews lady dies at age 103

Late Mme Lucien Larocque

The oldest known resident of this region, Mme Lucien Larocque, of St. Andrews East passed peacefully away last Thursday in a Montreal nursing home, where she had spent the last two years of her life. She was approaching her 104th birthday — on August 18 next. Mme Larocque had spent almost her entire lifetime in St. Andrews.

She was born at St. Hermas in 1857. The former Marie-Cléophyre Daoust, she became married to Lucien Larocque at the age of 15. Her husband was an employee at the Carillon Locks for 12 years or so. A carpenter by trade, he predeceased his wife by 31 years.

On her 100th birthday, Mme Larocque was feted by a large gathering of her family, friends, neighbors and parishioners.

Of her 11 children, only three survive, also three brothers and a host of grandchildren, great-grandchildren and relatives.

The funeral was held Monday morning at the parish church, with burial at St. Andrews Catholic Cemetery.

Liberal candidate feted by friends at social evening

Almost 500 ladies and gentlemen from the four corners of Argenteuil paid their respects to Mr. Rodrigue Durocher, Liberal candidate in the last provincial election, on his 50th birthday last Saturday. At an evening gathering in the Auditorium, a purse was presented, with an address by Emile Fournier, and a bouquet of flowers was presented to the wife of the honored guest.

A cold buffet was followed by a period of dancing and a program of entertainment directed by Maurice Gauvin, renowned entertainer.

Messages were read from parliamentary and political friends, and others from the surrounding area. Many notables from the Liberal ranks were in attendance from constituencies on the Island of Montreal, also representatives of local municipalities and school commissions.

Mr. Durocher sincerely thanked his friends for this kindly gesture, and brief speeches were given by Mr. Gosselin, Mayor Fernand Legault and Mr. Jas. W. McGibbon.

Voice from Labrador

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Sunday, June 3 —

The usual weather, snow, rain, cold and what-have-you. Don't think this is just another story; it isn't. We had it down to 22 degrees the other morning, and believe me, it was cold. . . . So much for the weather in Labrador.

Out fishing last evening, and the score, one small Ouananiche, about 2 lbs. There were a lot more to be taken for the fishing, but the cold sort of numbs you to the fingers. By the way, this last fish was taken on one of the old stand-bys, the Crane.

I'll tell you all about a happening the other evening. Coming back from fishing, we spotted a small black object on the river bank. From all appearances it was a bear. We approached carefully; Pictures were in our minds, and bear cub pictures particularly. However, this little thing kept bobbing in and out of a clump of bushes and, as we came up on it, there was not a sign to be seen. Naturally, caution was the keynote. If it was a bear cub, then there must be another around. Finally, up pops this object — a small black dog! It had come down with its owner, who was sitting fishing about 100 feet away. He sure seemed to get a kick out of the whole proceedings. So did we, when it was all over.

The birds are geting very bold around the camp. We now have what I take to be Chicadees. Instead of the pure white, they seem to be more of a gray. I also saw a Crow — and no gun! This one was walking on the ice along the shore when it spotted me. The croaks it let out were not the full-throated cries from our good old Lachute crows.

Ice is drifting by the tent now. With a fair evening in prospect; maybe some of the 49 miles will be free of all ice by this time tomorrow. We are supposed to pull out of camp on June 6, and start setting up some of the out-camps. A report from the R.C.M.P. stated that most of the lakes a shade north of us are still coated with ice, and not much chance to get in to the shore. The fly-in camps are out for awhile. The water is not free as yet, and won't be for some time. At any rate, there will be something different to write about in my next letter. (I hear the hurrahs.)

* * *

My lessons in Montagnish are proceeding slowly but surely. I can now tell the time, as that seems to be the most important thing in their dialect! A rather strange thing, there is no way of telling minutes in this language. For instance, if the time is a quarter after three, they never tell that time, everything is on the hour or half-hour. This would make it rather tough telling a guide to be at a certain spot at any quarter or three-quarters of the hour. He just won't be there! The sayings they have are very quaint, and to us would seem stupid — but after a garbled explanation they don't seem so stupid. It's certainly a long language — that is, the explanation is long. For instance, 11 o'clock is Co . . To . . . Nu . . . Asauay.

I can say this, I have the happiest bunch of Indian guides in the country. All they do is ask the time in Montigny, and I try and give it to them in the same way. This brings gales of laughter! When these spasms occur everything stops — the work included.

* * *

A bear was around the garbage dump this morning. Very early, as no one saw it. However, the tracks were there, nice and fresh — not too deep into the frozen mud, so maybe it's just a yearling that was pushed away from its mother last fall.

We are expecting a visitor in any day now, a guest who was in a couple of times last year. From what I hear, the only way he fishes is with a fly, and he will have nothing to do with anyone who uses hardware outfits. Incidentally, his own plane is to bring him in. The airstrip has been dragged and graded. This was some operation. We didn't do this ourselves, as the type of work takes very heavy equipment. However, the equipment came in the other day, with the crews to run it; and presto, in one day the strip was as smooth and hard as a billiard table. It has to be, as D.C. 3's use this all the time during the summer. There is also a doctor coming in with a party, in his own plane. . . .The boss who owns his own aircraft, remarks that it is not the initial cost that hurts; it's the upkeep. Imagine having to pay $1500 for a tire! .

* * *

Two visitors were in today, from the Bell Station some 40 miles away. They keep the direct line open; and they were telling me the weather has been very good so far this year. At least, that's what they say. Imagine, they have 40 miles of bush country to fish in. A swamp buggy is the vehicle they use at times, or a 4-wheel outfit, if it is dry in the bush. One of the boys has just come up from Montreal, and when asked his opinion of Labrador, he had no comments.

The lemmings are back as bold as ever; for a few days they were not to be seen around. Goldie is right back in her glory catching them. The damage these things do makes me think of the voles. They sure make a mess of anything they take a fancy to. They got into a chesterfield suite in the lounge at the lodge; in one night they are right into the heart of it and right through the back — a new chesterfield this year, we had brought it up with us. It's going to take some very fancy patching to make it right. We all know the damage squirrels do, but this is nothing, compared to these lemmings.

Talking to an old-timer in this area, who is with the Q.N.S.&L. Railway, he stated the last time these lemmings got going on their trek to nowhere, it was not possible to walk outside because of them. There were millions he stated. That was during the construction period of the railway and the men had to stop work because of them. This trek lasted a day and a half before it was over. . . . How true this all is I don't know and have no way of proving.

But after hearing this account I can understand how the biologists are fascinated by these vermin. Isn't it funny how nature always comes up with something that will kill off the too-numerous.

Notes on Water Safety

The flies and mosquitoes at camp can annoy. The "bugs" in drinking water which you can't see, can make you ill, or even kill you. Therefore, when camping or walking, suspect all drinking water from shallow wells, lakes and streams if within a mile of any house or farm. Live, nasty germs can travel a long way from cow pastures and domestic cesspools to your drinking water supply. You can sterilize your own, by using one Halazone tablet per pint of water. This will not improve the taste, but it will be safe. Halazone tablets can be obtained from any drugstore. They are cheap and easy to carry, or you can boil the water. Lemonade powders will improve the taste, but do not sterilize.

If you heard it said that a modest admixture of alcohol kills "bugs" in water, forget it!

1st Lachute Cub Pack

Last week marked the end of another year of regular Cub meetings.

At this meeting John Lyster was awarded his Second Star, which completes his Cub training, except for proficiency badges.

Also, the pack extends congratulations to John Lyster for having won the Long Sault District and Provincial essay contest. The theme of John's essay was "Conservation" and referred particularly to Water Pollution.

To complete the Cubbing season, the boys are going on a Pack outing, to take place June 24 at their campsite on R.R. 7, Lachute. The outing will include games, hikes, cooking and group competitions.

Good hunting and happy holidays!

District Wolf Cub Rally at Harrington Forest Farm

One hundred and fifty enthusiastic Cubs from the Long Sault District converged on Harrington Forest Farm on Saturday, June 3, for their annual rally and field day, organized by the District Council of the Boy Scouts Association. The program started at 9.30 a.m., with each pack erecting their tent, followed by the customary opening Grand Howl and an inspection of the packs at their camp sites. The Cubs then headed for the woods to collect samples of wild plant life. During the inspection that followed on these collections, the judges were amazed at the knowledge the Cubs displayed in recognizing various types of plant life.

Field events, including relay races, knot tieing, hopping, balancing board on head; throwing softball, somersaulting, skipping, observation, lighting fires to boil water, building a box, and compass work, occupied the afternoon. The grand finale was an inter-pack tug-of-war.

Field Commissioner J. A. Robson presented prizes to individual winners, and a softball and bat to the winning pack. A round-up of the scores for the day is as follows:

Happy Wanderers, old-time Fiddlers, Friday evening

The CFRA "Happy Wanderers", booked for the Lions Club grandstand night at the Fair this week, are a popular country-style entertainment group who need no introduction here. Their extensive tours across Canada have brought them to the Ottawa Valley and to Lachute, on previous occasions, and their talents have won warm acclaim.

Under the management of Ken Reynolds, the "Happy' Wanderers" will highlight the grandstand show on Lions' Night, Friday, at Lachute Spring Fair; committeeman in charge is Lion Bob Haydon. . . . Another major attraction, however, is the Old-Time Fiddlers' Contest which is expected to draw some interesting competition from different parts. Lion Guy Besner is in charge of this feature of the evening's entertainment.

All proceeds of this evening are for Lions Club community welfare. The club anticipates warm public support.

On the customary Lions Club stand, a handsome Tappan-Gurney kitchen range — a "fabulous 400" model, with automatic control and all the newest refinements — will be the prize in the annual drawing, for which tickets are now in circulation. (Kind collaboration of the manufacturers is appreciated, in providing this valuable prize, worth $500.)

Local Toastmasters play hosts to Mont'l, St. Eustache groups

While others talk about the great need for education, a group of about 30 businessmen gathered at Karl Pruuli's Farm, Dalesville, on Monday of last week to improve their ability to listen more carefully, think more clearly, and express themselves more effectively.

The local Toastmasters' Club entertained members from the C-I-L club, in Montreal and the Lake of Two Mountains club of St. Eustache-sur-le-Lac. Guests were welcomed by the local president, Raoul Merits, who then reported, along with Area Governor Don Hart (an engineer at Kilmar), on the successful International Convention of the Toastmasters' organization which they had recently attended at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal.

An Estonian-type "smorgasbord" started proceedings in a colorful and satisfying manner.

Walter Ivany, an engineer at C-I-L, Brownsburg, then called for some impromptu speaking, using thought-provoking quotations by famous persons as subjects for the talks.

For example, Ken Sarsons, of the St. Eustache club, spoke on the provocative quotation by Ibsen, "A minority may be right, a majority is always wrong".

Art Walter with Canadian National Railways, Montreal, spoke on Albert Einstein's quotation, "I never think of the future, it comes soon enough."

Dave Lewis, development engineer, Brownsburg, was given Dean Inge's quotation. "Public opinion, a vulgar, impertinent, anonymous tyrant who deliberately makes life unpleasant for anyone who is not content to be the average man."

Other topics and authors discussed included government; Jefferson; women and marriage; Geo. Bernard Shaw, and citizenship by Socrates.

These two-minute talks, prepared at the meeting, were followed by speakers who had spent time at home, researching and developing their subjects for longer speeches. Local Toastmaster Lloyd Thomas, manager of Canadian Refractories, introduced the first of this panel of speakers, Barry Williams, of St. Eustache, who spoke on "Office Manners". He proved that we could be much more courteous in the office and our places of business. "The rush of present living should not blind us to the benefits of good manners," he said.

Camping was the subject of the second speaker, Toastmaster Guy Belanger, of Lachute. He spoke with the enthusiasm of a man who knew his subject and believed in its benefits, for family activity in the healthy outdoors. He stated there were 35,000 state camp grounds south of the border, and though Quebec was behind the other provinces, the outlook for the future was very good.

A technical subject, "The Duodecimal system", was next expounded by Bill Andrews of Montreal, who pointed out some advantages of a system based upon 12, instead of 10. It was interesting to learn that English money has this characteristic; to an untravelled Canadian, pounds, shillings and pence never seemed to have any system, rhyme or reason — except to confuse.

"Man's Life" was a humorous and entertaining talk given by Walter Valters, of Lachute, a member of the local club. Walt, a native of Latvia, has the ability to see humor in most facets of life, and to express it in very good English.

"More time to think", by Bob Davies of the Lake of Two Mountains club, was a thought-provoking topic. As George Bernard Shaw pointed out, people usually think only when compelled to, by earth-shaking problems. If each of us took the trouble to use our intelligence in deep and profound thought, periodically, the world would be a much better place in which to live.

The final speaker — and voted the best of the evening — was Dave Clark of C-I-L Head Office, Montreal. Dave, president of the C-I-L club there, represented the district in the speech contest at the International Convention. There he did an excellent job before a banquet audience of 300.

At Dalesville his subject was, "It must be true", and dealt with "boners" taken from various newspapers around the world. With Dave's broad Scotch accent and keen sense of humor, the whole talk was an uproarious success.

For example: The newspaper report that Mr. and Mrs. Smith were proud parents of a new daughter. Needless to say Mr. Jones is a very proud father.

And the methematical genius' report of the "migratory flight of 1,000 ducks as they rose from the water, a million wings beat the air".

This was followed by evaluation of the talks, the educational guidance part of the meeting, under chairmanship of Jan Witkamp, research chemist with International Cellulose Laboratories, Hawkesbury. Here Don Hart, Wes Freeland and Raoul Merits of the local club took part, assisted by Roy Palmer, John Martin and Ken Sarsons, of Montreal and St. Eustache clubs.

6th annual convention held in Lachute by Diocesan C.W.L.

Close to 90 delegates attended the sixth annual convention of the Catholic Women's League, St. Jerome Diocese, held here on Saturday. The Diocesan group included Councils of Rosemere, St. Colomban, St. Eustache and Brownsburg.

The proceedings got underway at 8.30 Saturday morning, when the Rev. Father Sullivan of St. Eustache celebrated mass at Our Lady of Lourdes shrine. Here, the children's choir was directed by Miss Lydia Lowe, with Brother Director Blondin at the organ.

Breakfast and business sessions took place at l'Ecole Secondaire; the breakfast was convened by Mrs. Jean Hebert and Mrs. Edith Cassidy, with their committee. Mrs. Betty Aitken, diocesan president conducted the meeting and welcomed all in attendance. The Rev. Father Sullivan, diocesan director, expressed sentiments of appreciation, preceded by blessing of the banner of the Lachute Council (a donation from Mrs. Lunny, Miss Lowe, Miss Harrison, Mrs. De Breyne, Mrs. Bedard and Mrs. Berniquer).

Minutes of the previous convention were approved. A detailed financial statement was given by Miss Lowe, diocesan treasurer, after which the president of each Council reported on activities during the past year. Twelve other conveners reported, followed by the diocesan president's comments.

Officers for the coming year were installed as follows:

President, Mrs. Leblanc; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Gwyn; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Summers; 3rd vice-pres., Mrs. McGown; recording sec., Mrs. Burlton; corresponding sec., Mrs. Donvito; treasurer, Mrs. McKnight.

A reminder was given on the next closed retreat and notice of the next convention, to be held in Brownsburg in 1962. Three members on a panel discussion on "Suburbia and the Catholic Women" were applauded for the effort expended on this interesting topic.

The meeting adjourned. Father Sullivan offered a prayer of thanksgiving, with a remembrance also of the members who are ill. Mrs. L. Bedard, president of the Lachute Council, acted as hostess at the luncheon, at Lachute Golf Club. In the absence of the Bishop, the Rev. Father Sullivan was his representative. The guest speaker, Rev. Father C. Lavigne, director of the Institute of Social Action, of St. Patrick's College, was introduced by Mrs. Cole, of Lachute. His inspiring address emphasized the duties of a Christian towards the community. Mrs. Relecom thanked the speaker. Father Sullivan spoke on behalf of the Bishop of St. Jerome, who was unable to attend.

Past-president's pins were presented to Mrs. Fred McFarlane and Mrs. D. A. Aitken.

On behalf of the Diocesan Council, Mrs. L. Bedard, acting hostess, was tendered a token of appreciation for her efforts contributing to the success of this event.

Father Mailloux, of Lachute, closed with prayer, and the convention concluded with O Canada.

Harness racing Saturday highlight

Harness racing enthusiasts will have their day, this coming Saturday when the Richelieu Club provides its card of events on the Exhibition race track, with over $600 in prize purses. There will be eight heats, the first starting at 2 p.m. And in all classes, according to the organizing committee, the entries have been filled since May 30. Some late entries had to be refused, in fact.

Keen Competition

As in previous years at Lachute Spring Fair, there is a promise of keen rivalry among both owners and drivers. Entries are in from such places as Morin Heights, Grenville, Curran (Ont.), Vankleek Hill, St. Jerome, Hawkesbury, St. Paul l'Hermite, Terrebonne, Valleyfield, New York State — and closer to home, Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Andrews.

Among the owners, one may mention Ernie Kennedy, Bertrand Ladouceur, Hormisdas Renaud, Gustave Bouvrette, J. Prud'homme and others.

As previously stated, with favorable weather the program will start at 2 p.m. sharp.

Brownsburg branch of Red Cross

The meeting of the Red Cross Brownsburg branch was held in the Social Club on June 12, under the chairmanship of Larry Presseault. The ladies' work department reported that 1,245 sewing articles, 318 knitted articles and 1,700 swabs were made since January 1. The "sick room supply" rented out 4 beds, 2 mattresses, 8 wheelchairs, 3 canes and 2 pairs of crutches, also 38 items were loaned from the supply cupboard.

The financial campaign was reported a success, and the president wishes to extend his thanks to all subscribers. The assembly were reminded that the blood clinic will be held on September 11.

As the Red Cross will be closed for the summer months, anyone requiring the services of the Red Cross is requested to call President Larry Pressault (tel. LE 3-4880 or LE 3-6974).

June meeting of Lachute W.I.

The monthly meeting of the Lachute W.I. took place June 6, at the Legion Hall. The roll-call was "Wild Flowers of Argenteuil". Members raised in the country had the widest selection. Different sites for the proposed Home for Senior Citizens were discussed, but the matter was postponed until the project has been studied further.

The Library committee announced that the quarters of the W.I. library have been moved to the new section of Lachute High School, and that many new books are available.

Mrs. A. G. Leggett reported on the County Convention held in Brownsburg. Mrs. Harvey, past-president of the Province, spoke about World Refugee Year. A resolution was passed to open technical schools in the County, where youngsters who do not finish high school will learn special skills.

The meeting was then turned over to the chairman of the Agricultural committee. The speaker was Mrs. Soper, who showed beautiful slides of flowers and insects in the garden of her Florida home. Mrs. Soper is president of several garden clubs in Montreal. The insects were chloroformed first before the pictures were taken. . . . Mrs. Gordon Davidson thanked the speaker for a most informative program.

The next meeting will be held on September 5.

APPRECIATION

My sincere thanks to friends and relatives who sent flowers, letters, get-well cards and kind messages during my recent sojourn in the Royal Victoria Hospital.

BELL LINES

by Bob Bell, your telephone plant foreman

"Enjoy outdoor living with an outdoor phone," says Gabriel Valois, of Lachute.

Well, sunny days are with us once again. Ask the average citizen what he likes most about summer and ten to one he'll say it's outdoor living. More and more folks in Lachute and surrounding towns are spending as much of their leisure time as possible working in the garden, cooking on their barbecues or just relaxing out on their patios. You've probably found that once you're outside you hate to go back in the house and leave that crucial planting job in the garden or that big juicy steak you've just put on the barbecue. But it's often necessary to run in and answer the phone. . . . unless, of course, you have an outdoor telephone. Portable telephones, with outlets for garden or patio are becoming increasingly popular. We expect to install a number of them in Lachute this summer. Why not call the Operator and ask for Zenith 60000 and ask about this convenient service. They're easy for us to install and you'll find the price is low.

Every year at this time we read of a great many drowning accidents that mar the carefree vacation season. All through the summer we see the unfortunate victims' names in the paper, sometimes we're saddened by a familiar name — it might be a father, a mother or a child. It's a terrible tragedy and yet it is often quite unnecessary. Bell employees have been urged to learn as much about water safety as they can.

Here in Lachute, all Bell employees have been trained in artificial respiration. Each year many of our people take the St. John Ambulance Course in First Aid after their normal working hours. Some of them have over ten years of First Aid training.

• • •

Speaking of summer reminds us of vacations and travelling. Have you ever driven along a highway at night looking for a place to stay, tired and weary after a long trip, and all you can see are "No Vacancy" signs? Frustrating, isn't it? It's probably happened to all of us at some time or another. But, by simply phoning ahead we can be assured of adequate accommodation — more than likely choice accommodation at that. And here's another tip for happy travelling: what about a reassuring call to the folks back home to let them know you arrived safely?

IN MEMORIAM

GAULEY — In loving memory of James Gauley, who passed away June 21, 1959. — Ever remembered by his wife and family.

McANDREW—In loving memory of our dear brother, Benson, who passed away June 18, 1959. — Always remembered and sadly missed by Calvin and June.

"He was taken without warning,
His going left hearts filled with pain;
But though he has gone from among us,
In our hearts he will always remain."

McANDREW—In loving memory of Benny, who passed away June 18, 1959. — Always remembered by Mother, Dad, brothers and Sandra.

"We think of him with love today
As we have done so often,
And feel once more the sudden blow
That does not seem to soften.
He wished no one a last farewell,
Nor even said good-bye;
He had gone before we knew,
And only God knows why.
Dear God, forgive us a silent tear,
A silent wish that he were here —
Others are taken, yes, we know,
But he was ours and we loved him so."

TRINEER — In loving memory of a dear brother and brother-in-law, Ross Trineer, who passed away June 19, 1960. — Always remembered by Wendell, Freda and family.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Died recently at Brownsburg

Late Calvin George Curren

Calvin Curren passed away on Monday morning, May 29, at Brownsburg, after a short illness. He was formerly employed at the Seigniory Club, where he will be greatly missed by his many friends.

Left to mourn his loss are a loving mother, Mrs. Isabella Curren, and two sisters, (Bertha) Mrs. Victor G. Barfoot, of Toronto, (Elsie) Mrs. Basil E. Jackson, of Brownsburg, and eight nieces and nephews. His father, the late James Curren, and his brother, the late Garnet Curren, predeceased him nine years ago.

The remains rested at the Robert Funeral Home, Montebello, Que. Funeral service was held in Christ Church, Seigniory Club, and was conducted by the Rev. Mark Beaufoy.

The pall-bearers were his six cousins — Stanley, Harold and William Curren, and Russel, Earl and Howard Sutton. Interment was at Papineauville Cemetery.

THE SCENE Around Brownsburg

By M. E. Cowley

Laughlin (Rocky) Baccardax sat in on his first council meeting last week, and from all appearances will prove to be a worthwhile addition to the group. He showed a special interest in traffic regulations, particularly those relating to the speed limit in town. With his concern, and the assigning of Councillors Georges Therrien and Gerald Vowles to the running of the police department, we may yet see a rigidly enforced speed law. The talk of the moment is "radar" for controlling speed in town. Supposedly this is the ultimate. — Possibly but as Georges Therrien once said, "Whatever equipment we have, we must use it!"

* * *

The Rotary Club will open the local swimming pool on June 25 — a week early this year. This move serves a dual purpose, in providing a lifeguard a week earlier to cover those people who just don't wait until the usual July opening, and it also furnishes the local school children with a favorite haunt for the week following examinations.

* * *

Eighty school children took part in the bicycle safety program held in the Brownsburg Arena on Saturday. Children from the two French schools made up 35% of the total. Aside from those running the program, parents showed little interest in the event as far as personal attendance was concerned. Question: Would the children attend if a safe driving program were held for their auto-driving parents?

* * *

The sight of the two red litter cans on Main Street prompted the following from one doubting soul: "Reminds me of some signs I saw in use in a plant a few years ago, 'If you spit on the floor at home, spit on the floor here; we want you to feel at home'." Perhaps the same-type formula applied in conjunction with a few more strategically placed cans, would help to improve the appearance of our Main Street.

Nurses graduate from M.G.H.

Three young ladies from Lachute received their diplomas at the 71st annual graduation of the M.G.H. school of nurses just recently. Congratulations are extended to Miss Judith Doreen Kerr, Miss Shirley A. B. Pollock, and Miss Patricia Anne Stansfield. . . . Miss Stansfield was actually in the class which completed their course last February. She has now successfully passed her R.N. examinations.

The parents, and a number of relatives and friends of the three graduates, were in attendance from Lachute. The Rev. Wilson Bridge was on the platform, and pronounced the closing prayer at the graduation exercises.

Social and Personal

Four district clergymen — the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, the Rev. Garfield Bruce and the Rev. Kirk Feltham — attended various sessions of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference of the United Church of Canada, held at Wesley United Church at N.D.G., from Monday to Thursday of last week.

Mrs. R. A. Giles is in Springfield, Mass., visiting her friend, Mrs. Wm. Bolster.

~

The president and one or two directors of Lachute Spring Fair were in Ormstown to attend the exhibition last week, also a number of local enthusiasts. Col. Ernest Emmett was present with his Imperial Frontiersmen on police duty.

~

Dr. John Calder, of Brantford, Ont., visited his brothers here recently on returning from Chicoutimi, where he had been to see his brother, Mr. Harold Calder.

Young Riders See Horse Show

Mr. A. J. Billingham provided a rare treat for his riding pupils last Friday evening when he escorted them to Ormstown to view the horse show at the annual exhibition. Taking part in this enjoyable trip were —

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Billingham, Mr. and Mrs. K. Billingham, Roy Billingham, Misses Joan Green, Lois Billingham, Wendy Tabrett, Ann Gorman, Brabara Vessie, Gwen Oswald, Nancy Humphreys, Elizabeth Hay, Barbara Rose and Careen Heggie.

Entertained in Honor Of Approaching Marriage

Romantic pink was the color theme of a shower honoring Miss Gail Ayers, given by Mrs. Mac Walker and Mrs. Howard Watson on June 8. Mrs. Ernest Leonard, aunt of the bride-elect, poured tea. A beautiful set of bridge table and chairs was presented to Gail.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Dougherty, of St. Michel de Wentworth, entertained friends at a buffet supper last Saturday, in honor of Miss Gail Ayers and Mr. Armando Mendoza.

Miss Jane Ayers and Mr. Ernest Ayers received the younger set at their home on Queen Street, Sunday evening, June 11, in honor of Miss Gail Ayers and Mr. Armando Mendoza. The guests enjoyed dancing and a delicious buffet. A lovely white and gold toilet set was presented to the bride-elect, and a handsome leather brief case to the prospective groom.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Elder wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Eileen Mary, to William Ross Oswald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Oswald, of Ste. Scholastique. The marriage is to take place July 29 at the Lachute United Church.

Anglican cleric wed recently

Margaret Joan MacTier, R.N., and the Rev. Kenneth Weldon Trickey, B.A., B.D., L.Th., whose marriage was solemnized at St. Philip's Church, Montreal West, on June 3. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald H. MacTier, of Montreal. The Rev. Kenneth Trickey is the son of Mrs. Arthur Chas. Trickey, of Barron Ave., Lachute, and the late Mr. Trickey.

Marriage rites in Catholic Cathedral at St. Jerome

Du Rocher-Kirkpatrick

The marriage of Miss Beverley June Kirkpatrick, only daughter of Mrs. Earle Kirkpatrick and the late Mr. Kirkpatrick, of Mille Isles, to André Du Rocher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Du Rocher, of St. Jerome, took place on the morning of May 20 at 10 o'clock in the St. Jerome Cathedral, Monsignor Paul Labelle officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Bernard Williams, wore a gown of peau-de-soie, with a long, full skirt, falling into a slight peacock train. The fitted bodice, buttoned to the waist in the back, was of "Elegance of Chantilly"-type lace, highlighted by a scalloped sabrina neckline and long sleeves, which came to a point over the hands. Appliqués of lace studded with pearls and sequins accented the skirt and neckline. Her veil of tulle illusion, with appliqués of handcut lace, was held in place by a double queen's crown of organza, enhanced with rosettes and pearls. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white Cala lilies.

The bride was attended by two little flower girls, Miss France Beaulieu and Miss Lynn Paquette, both nieces of the groom. They were gowned in frocks of organdy over silk taffeta and trimmed with fine lace and rosebuds, in shades of pink and green. They both carried baskets of baby mums.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, mother of the bride, was in a dress of ice blue embroidered silk organza, with a white hat and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. Mrs. Du Rocher, the bridegroom's mother, wore a neutral green dress of rayon chiffon with a white hat, white accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception was held at La-pointe's Hotel in St. Jerome, where a profusion of multi-colored tulips decorated the bride's table.

Later the young couple left by motor on their wedding trip to Niagara Falls, N.Y., Burlington and St. Alban's, Vt. The bride travelled in a sheath dress of shrimp organza over taffeta with a matching 3-topcoat. Her hat, a high crown cloche, was of white nylon organza. She wore white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Bible School again this summer at People's Church

Plans are well underway for another Daily Vacation Bible School, sponsored by the People's Church from year to year.

The theme of the school is, "Living by God's Time", and each department will have a wonderful time studying different aspects of this great subject.

The school is properly graded and the material taught is in keeping with the age and ability of the children. The lessons are taught in such a way that each child understands and receives a blessing.

The Nursery Dept. will be in charge of Mrs. C. W. Sorley; its theme is, "Loving and Pleasing Jesus." Mrs. Sorley will be assisted by Edythe Sorley.

The Beginners' Dept. will be in charge of Mrs. Elsie Stephens and the theme will be, "God's Word and God's World". Mrs. Stephens will be assisted by Mrs. Alex Stewart.

The Primary Dept. will be in charge of Miss Audrey Morrison, and the theme is, "Living in God's Family". Assistant will be Mrs. Ethel Young.

The Junior Dept. will be in charge of Mrs. Wilfred Morrison; theme, "The Christian's Time and Talents".

The Intermediate Dept. will be in charge of the Rev. C. W. Sorley, director of the school; theme, "Answering the Why's of Young People."

There will also be games and crafts, and so many other good things to do, the weeks will pass speedily.

This is an interdenominational undertaking, and children of all denominations will be warmly welcomed.

Confirmation at New Glasgow

Morin Heights — Archbishop Dixon of Montreal visited St. John's Church in New Glasgow last Friday evening for the purpose of Confirmation, when candidates were presented by the Rev. Horace G. Baugh.

Assisting in the service were the Venerable Archdeacon F. Morris, the Rev. W. Sellwood, and Messrs. Adrain Weekes and Nicholas Proswernjuk. Mr. Carl Elder was organist.

The church was filled to capacity, and the Archbishop congratulated the congregation for so faithfully maintaining the services of the church.

A reception followed in the local schoolhouse.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Where's our Civic Pride??

STRICTLY FOR home consumption, we feel impelled to deplore the impulsiveness of organizations in this town which rise in protest, voice their indignation, and ask for wholesale dismissals on the least provocation. Spurred by a sense of righteousness, their wrath outweighs all charity and sense of civic pride. We regret to brand this as immature thinking and impulsive acting, without thought of the consequences.

It is not the purpose of this editorial to excuse or protect anyone, whomsoever.

No one regrets more than we, The Watchman, the circumstances which occurred here recently, the immoral sidelights of a bachelor gathering — indeed, we condemn the unsavory speeches and stories, and the drinking, which characterize all such stag parties. But let us be fair and honest, in admitting that a celebration of this kind can become unruly without plan, intention or premonition. That admission is the smallest modicum of charity we could think of, or ask for. . . .

But no, with pitiless recrimination, the salvos explode from every side; and here's the tragedy — Lachute is on the national map for IMMORALITY, an offence not normally associable with our civic conduct, by any concept. How discreditably on the map — all those who read the papers, hear the radio, or watch television, have well realized.

Is it not possible to settle such grievances, and bring retribution to the offenders if necessary, in a calm and dignified way — well knowing that the news-hounds are ready to pounce and publicize our town in the most lurid light? . . . Must a personal mis-step or oversight, incur such public frenzy that the whole community becomes notorious? . . . It's as simple a question as that.

This is a repetition of the notorious "flag incident", when in the performance of a public duty as he saw it, one man inadvertently provoked a multitude of citizens — to the point that Lachute's fair name was sullied in the press and on the airwaves, continent-wide.

It is unfortunate, incidentally, that in both cases the blow fell upon a citizen who had done so much for this town. Chief Whiteway's interest in civic problems, his activities for public safety and for youth recreation, are acknowledged by all right-thinking townsfolk. Also the fact that he has fostered the most efficient police organization in the history of this town.

The point is that, given a little forbearance and discretion, these grievances can be settled at home. To The Watchman's way of thinking, before venting our wrath in indignation, there is one consideration which should temper our actions — the sense of CIVIC PRIDE, which unhappily many of our citizens seem to lack.

Highway inadequate to present needs

AS THE SEASON'S traffic increases, we cannot over-emphasize the need of a new highway to link Lachute and St. Jerome. It becomes apparent that the Laurentian Auto-Route, and its speedy access to Montreal has added heavily to traffic between the metropolis and Lachute by this itinerary. Travellers to our County resorts (which are also rapidly expanding) and the Lachute Golf Club are using this route, while heavy transports systematically pass this way to link with Route 8 via Mont St. Louis.

A request from Town Council has been forwarded to the Quebec authorities this spring, urging the rebuilding of Route 41. Regardless of the volume of traffic, this has long been overdue in the elementary interests of safety. The asphalt surface is outworn, while the curves, sudden inclines and narrow right-of-way present a hazard which is grimly recorded in coroner's cases over the years.

We give earnest support to Lachute Town's petition for immediate attention to this road, which is an anachronism and a relic in complete contrast with the general progress of this area.

Bouquet for the CBC

THE CBC COMES IN for its share of criticism, some of it deserved. But it merits full marks for its current program — in the TV "Explorations" series — on Canadian historical figures of the years immediately prior to Confederation.

There is nothing like a knowledge of its history for binding a nation together and these excerpts from the lives of men like Mackenzie, Baldwin, Durham and Elgin make for vivid and exciting viewing while simultaneously providing a valuable educational service.

It is to be hoped that the series will not be allowed to peter out prematurely. There is much in the lives of some of those who came later — e.g. MacDonald, D'Arcy McGee and Laurier — on which to base many a future program.

Sir John A. MacDonald in particular, for all his personal color, has been shamefully neglected by his countrymen. Yet no man has more claim to the veneration of his countrymen or better deserves the description "Father of Modern Canada". . . . June 6, 1961, marked the 70th anniversary of the Old Chieftain's death.

Comparisons in highway behaviour

THERE ARE some interesting comparisons between the highway accident rates in Ontario and in Quebec. Following are the figures given for 1959:

Motor Registrations, Quebec	900,888
Traffic deaths in Quebec	1,153
Motor Registrations, Ontario	1,889,637
Traffic deaths in Ontario	1,221

In other words, Ontario had a rate of 65 persons killed per 10,000 motor registrations. Quebec had a traffic death rate of 12.80 per 10,000 motor registrations.

After studying the report on 1959 motor vehicle deaths, Dr. Sarto Nadeau, D.Sc., president of the Province of Quebec Safety League, declared: "Obviously, this grievous official record in traffic fatalities is of deep concern to us. Deaths and injuries will certainly continue to rise unless we take a serious decision to prevent them."

"Those of us in traffic safety work, freely admit that at least four serious unsolved problems need our immediate attention", pointed out the president of the Quebec Safety League. The unsolved problems are:

1—Detect unfit drivers

(a) Conduct rigid examination when an applicant applies for a driver's license.
(b) Put all new drivers, regardless of age, on a two year probationary period.
(c) Conduct periodic re-examinations for all drivers once every 3 years.
(d) Apply the demerit point system.
(e) Legalize the use of radar.

2—Check unfit vehicles

(a) Inaugurate compulsory periodic inspection of motor vehicles.
(b) Start a rigid spot-checking system of vehicle condition.

3—New streets and highways

(a) We must be willing to pay the price in taxes for new streets and highways.

4—Adequate enforcement by police and courts

(a) Every driver and pedestrian must back fair, impartial, intelligent and adequate enforcement in his city and province.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

THE OLD AGE PENSION

I remember reading something, somewhere, some time ago, that if a man had enough good health and physical stamina to reach the age of 65, he stood a pretty good chance of reaching the age of 80. I suppose this means that, if he died before the age of 65, his chances of reaching 80 would be pretty slim.

If the Old Age Pension plan had been in force about the year 1900, the Government would have saved a lot of money on a per capita basis, because in those days a man's life expectancy was somewhere around the age of 45. But today, thanks to years of continued medical and pharmaceutical research, the life expectancy has been extended to around 65. In other words, there are many more old folks alive today than there were in 1900.

But if the present rate of scientific research continues, what about the future? Would it be wrong to say that the scientists are going too far? Some claim that it will soon be possible for a man to live to 100 and beyond. If so, what are all these old folks going to do? They will have to be looked after by someone — either by relatives or by the Government. And will they be happy? I doubt it. They would be living in the past, and longing for those good old days of 1940-50. Some of my contemporaries who are still around, are unhappy right now; and so might I be if I didn't have a flock of hobbies and a basement workshop.

Last week I received my first Old Age Pension cheque — a new experience for me. It was a pleasure to walk into the bank and exchange it for five new crisp tenspots and one five — better than any I could have made myself on an old handpress.

But of course, this arrangement between me and the Government is only temporary, because I read something, somewhere, sometime, that if the holder of a pension cheque walked into a bank after he was dead and tried to cash same, he would be guilty of a felony, punishable by life imprisonment or something. I knew there was a catch in it somehow. But the present arrangement, as long as it lasts, is O.K. with me.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Give a thought to the poor census enumerator, pleads a correspondent.

"We have a difficult job," she says. "Please try not to make it more difficult."

You won't have neighbors snooping into your business, she says. Commissioners are careful to assign the census taker to a route outside his own district. . . . This has not always been the case in the past, however. (Nor is it the case here. — Ed.)

"Each enumerator has sworn and signed an oath of secrecy and if he or she should divulge any information, such person is liable to a fine of up to $300 or a prison term of up to six months, or both. . . . "

"You are quite right in saying, 'Very likely most of the information will be useful in drawing an economic and social picture of the country.'

"Communities will plan their school requirements according to the numbers of children in certain age groups. Government must know the age trends of the population to estimate future demands on family allowances and old-age pensions. . . . Planning for community needs such as roads, waterworks and fire protection may be assisted by census information on population growth and movement."

I know this lady is right. Most of the information will be very useful. I intend to answer all the questions. And yet I can't help feeling uneasy about some of them, and I can't help sympathizing with the people who object to the personal nature of the questionnaire.

Valuable though the census will be in all sorts of ways, it is just another manifestation of the invasion of private lives by the state — a process which must be watched.

By the way, there is one more reason why you should answer the questions. If you refuse, you can be fined $100 or sent to prison for three months.

The census-takers are talking softly about the penalties. They want to keep the census polite and friendly. But the penalties are there, just to coax anyone who gets extra stubborn.

Colford Lodge owner states his case for propriety

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

In regard to the "Stag Party" — Tony Colford of Colford Lodge wishes the true facts to be known:

(1) I accepted the party in good faith and with the distinct understanding that all rules of decency and good morals be strictly observed.

(2) For years Colford Lodge has been an example of the highest moral standards, one of the many reasons why it carries such an envious reputation in the entertainment field, and is so favorably known to the highest authorities.

(3) For every one of the minority who attempt, through petty gossip, or editorial, to tarnish the reputation of Colford Lodge, thousands will be loud in their praise for Colford Lodge.

(4) Let us not be too quick to condemn. The greatest men of our times have made mistakes and recognized them. The person who claims never to make a mistake, does not belong in this world of ours. Our Lord has always forgiven the repentant sinner. Who are we to do otherwise?

And for the finest in entertainment, it's —

Women's Institute

An interesting meeting of Frontier W.I. was held in St. Mungo's Hall on Tuesday, with Miss Janet McOuat, of Lachute and Macdonald College, as demonstrator on cake icings. Several of these were toppings to represent special days and people, and the members were particularly pleased that, in the auction that followed, a young member, Mrs. Wm. McKiddie of Ogdensburg, got the cake depicting a bridal couple — the occasion was here eighth wedding anniversary.

Winners of a unique contest, a corsage made of vegetables, were Mrs. I. Fuller, Mrs. John Heatlie, Jr., and Mrs. Nelson Morrison. Other corsages had to be disqualified because they were decorated with ribbon bows. . . . The next meeting will be at the home of Miss Ruby O'Brien, on the regular day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Druce and daughter, Patricia, of Calumet, also Miss Diane Foreman, were supper and evening guests of Mrs. A. Graham and family last Saturday.

Interesting Interlude

A interesting event was held in St. Mungo's Hall on Saturday afternoon, when the W.A. of St. Mungo's Church served afternoon tea to the 130 persons who took the tour from the Museum to Stonefield and back, as a study of interesting homes soon to be demolished because of the Hydro dam. Quite a number were Ottawa residents, others from Montreal, Lachute and St. Andrews. Some were from Como, and there was one lady from Missouri, accompanying friends whom she was visiting. All present proclaimed the tour a very enjoyable affair, and the tea a credit to St. Mungo's W.A. and its president, Mrs. I. H. Fuller.

Miss Annie McDowell and brother, Jack, of Montreal, were at "Glenifer" for the week-end.

Miss Isabel Somerville, of Montreal, spent the week-end with her mother, Mrs. John Somerville.

Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Fuller were guests at the home of their uncle, Mr. Ed Croll, of Hudson Heights, last Sunday.

Callers on Sunday at the Graham home were Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Mark, of Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Buzzell and daughter, Judy, of Montreal West, occupied "Woodbine Cottage" for the week-end, having as their guests Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Adams, of Montreal West.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Pitt were Mr. and Mrs. D. Pitt and little daughter, on Saturday, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Taylor and little daughter, for the week-end. Both families were from Montreal.

Mrs. Jean Robson, of Montreal, was in residence here for the week-end.

Mrs. Jas. Coney and son, Raymond, of Brownsburg, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Elliott.

Mabel

Mrs. Wm. Todd and son, Kenneth, were at Dorval on Thursday to meet Mr. Todd; the latter was returning from Pakistan, where he has been employed with Dominion Engineering of Montreal for the past 16 months.

Mr. and Mrs. Perley Clark and family were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Cunning at Vankleek Hill.

Mr. Irvin Warwick, of Montreal, spent the week-end with his parents Mr. and Mrs. R. Warwick.

VISIT ONE OF CANADA'S EXPERIMENTAL FARMS

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Visit one of our Canadian Experimental Farms this year! Here is a rewarding trip for every member of the family. These attractive tourist spots are financed by Canadian citizens. They belong to us and we should know more about them.

Even in pioneer days leaders in our country were thinking of rural life on a national scale. The Canadian House of Commons over three quarters of a century ago appointed a committee in Canada which led to the establishment of a system of Experimental Farms.

The first five Experimental Farms have continued to serve Canadians throughout the years in widely located areas, in Nova Scotia at Nappan, serving the Atlantic provinces; the Central Farm at Ottawa helps both Quebec and Ontario farmers. The headquarters of this branchwork of farms is located in our capital, too, at the Central Station. Brandon is one of Manitoba's main farms, and Indian Head, which when it was built lay in the Northwest Territories, now lies within Saskatchewan. The Agassiz Station has continued to give leadership to agriculture in B.C.

Thirty-three new Experimental Stations have been scattered across our Dominion where there was special need for research and practical assistance. In Newfoundland farmers look to the workers at St. John's West for suggestions about peat bog development. The nutrition research with foxes continues at the Ranch at Summerside. Apple growing in the Annapolis Valley is studied at Kentville, N.S. Potato breeding for Canada is studied at Fredericton, N.B., and new suggestions are being made by two N.B. Substations on small fruit and blueberry production.

At Ottawa, a wide variety of Divisions are pursuing research: Animal Husbandry, Apiculture, Cereal Crops, Field Crops, Soils and Engineering, Forage Crops, Horticulture, Poultry and Tobacco.

We have visited Ottawa during the Tulip Festival and seen the lovely Spring flowering bulbs from Holland throughout the capital and at the Experimental Farm. Near our childhood home of Fergus was the fascinating Ontario Agricultural College with its fine grounds, a project of the Ontario Government.

Here in Winnipeg we have made an annual and very enjoyable trip to the Morden Experimental Farm.

There are plants at Morden from all over the world. The magnificent lilacs, the roses, the pansies and snapdragons, and many other flowers are displayed to advantage in well-kept beds. Many new varieties, including seven named lilacs, have been developed there by the research workers.

Discover the location of your federal and provincial agricultural government centers. Write to the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa for a copy of their map and booklet on Experimental Farms. You will likely find one not too far from your home which you can plan to visit as a family. Similar information can be obtained about provincial demonstration centers.

"Make the world a bit better or more beautiful place because you lived in it", is the motto in Edward Bok's own handwriting near his beautiful Singing Tower in Florida, set among the trees and shrubs and flowers. These were the words his gradmother often said to him when he was a boy — and this is a motto which our Experimental Farms carry out in many different ways, making Canadian farms more productive and providing beautiful displays for visitors to enjoy.

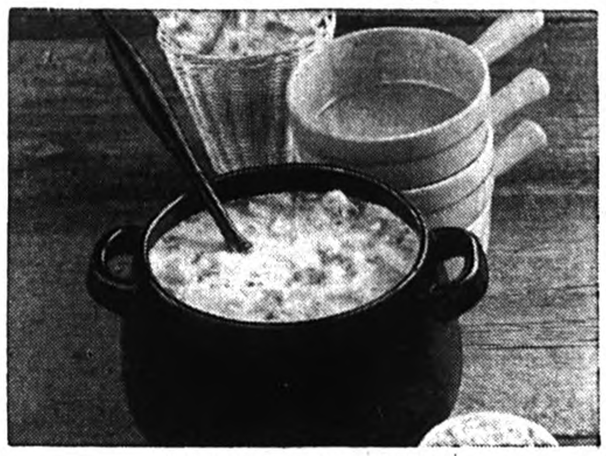

Simple supper idea

Seeking a simple supper idea now that mild, balmy days beckon you away from the kitchen? Here's a dandy combining the distinctive flavors of two favorite foods — canned salmon and asparagus. Asparagus Salmon Strata literally takes but five minutes to assemble. In a shallow greased baking dish arrange fresh cooked or canned asparagus — enough for four servings. Drain and flake a one-pound can of salmon (two cups) and lightly pile on top of asparagus. Season with salt and pepper. Spread one cup of sour cream over salmon; top with sprinkling of buttered bread crumbs. Bake in a moderately hot oven preheated to 375 or 400 degrees F., for about 25 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Makes four servings.

FACT

Ontario and Quebec, having 59% of Canada's motor vehicles, accounted for 61% of the traffic deaths in 1960.

A "super" supper

CONFETTI SALMON CHOWDER

Erwtensoep, borscht, pot-au-feu, puchero, minestrone — spell it and pronounce it as you will — in Holland, Russia, France, Spain and Italy, it's soup — hot, hearty and fragrant. These are typical of filling soups so popular in these countries where it is often served as the complete main part of the meal, with only chunks of fresh, crackly crusted bread and a nippy cheese rounding out the course. Confetti Salmon Chowder fits into this picture, with a truly Canadian touch from the featered ingredient. Colorful bits of vegetables effectively serve as seasoning compliments to plump pink flakes of canned salmon swimming in the creamy milk-based brew. Thinly sliced water chestnuts add a different and especially pleasing texture and flavor accent. We think it rates top billing in a soup and salad supper menu.

Confetti Salmon Chowder

2 Cups canned salmon (1 pound), boiling water, 1 tablespoon mixed dried vegetable flakes, ¼ cup butter or margarine, 3 tablespoons finely minced onion, ¼ cup flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon black pepper, 4 cups milk, 3 tablespoons minced pimento, 3 tablespoons minced green pepper, ½ cup thinly sliced canned, water chestnuts*, grated sharp cheddar cheese.

Drain, and flake salmon, reserving liquid. Add enough boiling water to salmon liquid to make 1 cup. In this mixture simmer vegetable flakes about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, melt butter in large saucepan. Add onion; sauté lightly until soft. Blend in flour, salt, pepper. Cook until bubbly. Gradually blend in milk; cook, stirring, until smoothly thickened. Blend in the vegetable flakes and liquid in which they were simmered. Return to boil; lower heat, add salmon, pimento, green pepper and water chestnuts. Simmer uncovered, until thoroughly heated. Serve in soup plates with grated cheese sprinkled on top. Makes 6 large servings.

*½ cup thinly sliced raw celery may be substituted for water chestnuts.

(Consumer-tested recipe released through Fisheries Association of B.C.)

Turn over new leaf

Turning over a new leaf — in the menu direction? Then why not try these turnovers with a taste twist. Salmon Turnovers Mexicali are flaky pastry with a substantial filling specially pleasing to male appetites. Roll out your favorite recipe for pastry; cut into three-inch squares. Season two cups of canned salmon with chili sauce, finely chopped green pepper and a few drops of hot liquid pepper seasoning. Place a couple of tablespoons of salmon mixture on half of each pastry square; fold over corners diagonally, making a triangular shape. Press edges together with a fork to seal, and prick top surface to allow steam to escape during baking. Bake in a hot oven preheated to 425 degrees F., until golden brown and heated through, about 12 to 15 minutes. Serve piping hot. A savory tomato or Spanish sauce is a tantalizing topper.

TNS

Teenagers across Canada are prepared to help pay for their own clothes, according to a department store survey. Teenagers who took part in the survey said all-round wardrobe can best be made up from one or two basic outfits. Here's an example of what teen fashion experts recommend for this summer — a chic blouse and shorts outfit suitable for beach or shopping.

A few years ago Laura Anne Wall graduated in a general arts course from Trinity College, University of Toronto. Because of her interest in library work she joined the university's staff and eventually ended up in the science and medical section.

This spring she headed a class of 79 at the Library School's one year course when she received a degree of Bachelor of Library Science. She also won the 60th anniversary prize of the Ontario Library Association, awarded for the first time this year.

Mrs. Wall now is in charge of setting up a medical library at Toronto Western Hospital.

Children's Fashions

Only 30 years ago ready-made children's dresses cost 59 cents each and many mothers could make them at home for 39 cents a yard of material. At that time there were only three manufacturers of children's clothing in Canada, whereas today there are more than 90.

Now there is as much a demand for color, variety, fabrics and fashion sense for toddlers' dresses as for ladies' wear.

Salesladies are not astonished to hear a youngster ask whether the dress does anything for her.

Prima Donna Dinner

Opera soprano Eleanor Steber who is also an artist at cooking has a chicken paprika recipe which the Pan-American Coffee Bureau says is one of her specialties.

It specifies: 1 frying chicken of 2 to 3 lbs., disjointed, 1 small onion, 3 or 4 parsley sprigs, 2 tsps. salt, divided, 4 peppercorns, 1 bayleaf, ¼ cup finely chopped onions, 4 tbsps. fat, divided, 1 cup flour, divided, 6 tsps. paprika, divided, ½ cup cream, ½ cup strong coffee and 1½ cups thick sour cream.

Place giblets in saucepan with 2 cups water, onion, parsley, 1 tsp. salt, peppercorns and bayleaf. Cover; simmer 1 hour. Cook chopped onion in 2 tbsps. fat until soft, but not brown. Remove onion, leaving fat in skillet. Combine flour — using all but 2 tbsps., — 1 tsp. salt and 2 tsps. paprika in paper bag; shake chicken pieces until coated. Brown well in fat. Add 2 tbsps. giblet broth.

Cook chicken, covered, slowly, 35 to 40 minutes or until tender. In saucepan, melt 2 tbsps. fat. Blend in 2 tbsps. flour. Add 1 cup giblet broth, cream, coffee and 4 tsps. paprika. Stir over low heat until smooth and thickened. Add sour cream gradually, stirring vigorously. Pour sauce over chicken in skillet; cook over low heat 3 minutes, turning chicken and stirring sauce. Do not boil. Makes 4 servings.

June Day treats

(Consumer Section)

Take some puffs — big, crisp, delicate, hollow puffs — and fill with a scoop of the fresh strawberry ice cream your dairyman is now featuring. You will have a delicious dessert treat for your family.

Take some puffs — tiny, bite-size, hollow puffs — fill with a sweetened mixture of whipped cream and sliced, fresh strawberries. You will have dainty Bouchées to make your party fare an outstanding success.

Cream puffs are simple to whip up and they bake quickly. As their texture is crisp and delicate it is best to fill them just before serving.

Here is a popular recipe for Cream Puffs which will make 8 large puffs or 3 dozen small ones. You will notice that the only difference in making large and small puffs is in the baking temperature and time. This recipe was tested by the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Cream Puffs

½ Cup butter, ½ cup water, ½ cup flour, 2 eggs.

Add butter to water and heat to boiling point. Stir in flour and continue stirring until mixture leaves sides of pan and forms a ball, about 1 minute. Cool. Beat in eggs one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition (beating is important).

Large Puffs — drop from dessert spoon onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 400°F. until risen and golden brown, 20 to 30 minutes. Then bake at 350°F., until dry, about 20 minutes. Makes 7 to 8 puffs.

Small Puffs or Bouchées — drop by scant teaspoons onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 425°F. until risen and golden brown, about 10 minutes. Then bake at 350°F. until dry, 10 to 15 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen.

GELATIN SALADS

The food and nutrition department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph, has a remedy for getting gelatin salads out of molds. Brush the mold lightly with salad oil before putting the salad to set. When the salad is firm, it will slip out easily with only a gentle shake.

HOW MANY HAVE A BANK ACCOUNT?

Chances are they all have / Because nowadays practically everybody is a bank customer. And they go to the bank so often and for so many reasons: to deposit savings, arrange a loan, buy or sell foreign exchange, purchase money orders . . . In fact, Canadians seem to use banking services more than the people of any other country / The chartered banks, for their part, do their utmost to make each branch a friendly, efficient centre for every kind of banking service.

King Reid Shows midway features Rock 'n Roll revue

Here for the first time on the King Reid Shows midway at Lachute Spring Fair is the fabulous all-Negro Rock 'n Roll Revue, "Harlem's-A-Poppin", direct from a triumphant tour of leading night clubs.

Sherman Dudley, Jr. ("Dud"), producer of "Harlem's-A-Poppin", whose father originated this bit of syncopated Americana 30 years ago, started in show-biz as a juvenile in vaudeville, travelling and working with his parents in their own act.

An outstanding producer today, Mr. Dudley has presented the inimitable Mistinguette in her Casino de Paris Revue; Josephine Baker in her Parisienne Revue; the European edition of "Blackbirds", which he originated on Broadway in 1928; and the world-famous "Silas Green from New Orleans" show, one of the greatest attractions on the road today. He has also produced revues for the renowned Cotton Club and Connie's Inn in New York.

The Rock 'n Roll Revue features Dud's Rockers, the Dixieland combo with a beat that really belts those notes way out; Francine and her swingin' Chicks, a comedy chorus of sepia beauties; Cornell and Ford, hilarious comedy, song and dance team; Grasshopper, the one-man band, producing novel effects as he strums a washboard, beats the bass drum, blows the gazoo and hits the symbals, all at one time; Jeri Williams, recording artist, and countless other stellar acts.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Branch 70 records with regret the death of Comrade Chas. Watson.

* * *

This is Fair Week, and a call for volunteers to help the various committees to make this another successful event, is required. The activities for the evening show are announced elsewhere in this paper. We think the entire show is headline material, and some real good entertainment is in store for the entire family.

* * *

A large turnout of members was on hand for the regular monthly meeting, held in the clubroom on Wednesday, June 7. Comrade E. Brown, of Lachute, was welcomed into the Branch. Comrade President Joe Martell commented on the recent Provincial Convention, expressing his thanks for the hard work done and the co-operation given by the local members. Several letters, including one from the immediate past-president, have been received expressing their appreciation of the excellent manner in which things were organized.

Comrade James Duncan reported on the recent provincial golf tournament. Comrades J. Duncan, L. Bryson, D. Hay and F. Stein represented Branch 70. A good time was reported, but unfortunately no loot.

Our own district golf tournament is scheduled for Sunday, August 13, at St. Andrews Club. The Committee of Cdes. Duncan, Paulson and Langille promise us a bigger and better "do" than ever, so keep that date in mind. . . . Any bets as to who will win the Duffers' Trophy?

* * *

Bear in mind that our hospital equipment is available for anyone in the district. A call to any member of the Legion is all that is needed to start the arrangements.

* * *

Looking Back. — "D" Day is over, the beachheads won with such cost were being strengthened and enlarged. We were back in France, where fathers and brothers of World War I had fought 30 years before. The Air Force were constantly overhead, and the little minesweepers were hard at work in the channel and the ports. . . .

Which brings to mind a verse published in "Rhyme and Reason, a Souvenir Volume of" Verse by Canadian Soldier Poets", published by The Maple Leaf. This particular epic was written by Sgt. D. Meade, of the Seaforths, and is called —

Verily, a Tragedy

Their blood ran cold with horror
As they gazed on the awful scene,
Their faces paled with anguish,
And their gills turned fairly green;
For seldom had anyone suffered
As they did that horrible night,
Seldom before have humans
Beheld such a ghastly sight . . .
There on the ground before them
The shattered remnants lay,
And a steady stream of crimson
Seeped into the thirsty clay.
And they stood in breathless silence
As men who were stricken dumb —
For they'd just seen the Sergeant-Major
Break a jug of issue rum!

IF CONSISTENT ADVERTISING DIDN'T PAY — so many wouldn't advertise TODAY.

"Magic Tom" is headliner for Legion show

Final plans for Canadian Legion Branch 70's participation in the Spring Fair, have been completed. Tom Auburn, better known as "Magic Tom" to youngsters and adults alike, will headline the Saturday night grandstand show. Along with "Magic Tom" will be the McCullough school of dancers. The music and dances of this troupe should gladden the hearts of Gael, Celt and all others. Rounding off the show will be a greased pig rodeo, and various pillow fight contests held on suspended poles. The spills and tumbles of these acts should be hilarious, to say the least.

NO BEVERAGE ROOMS

Simcoe, Ont. (CP) — The "wets" had it in a liquor plebiscite held in Charlotteville Township, southwest of here. Voters approved cocktail bars, dining lounges, sale of beer and wine with meals and mixed beer parlors. But they rejected beverage rooms for men only.

King Reid Shows return with 32 top shows, hilarious rides

"There's fun for everyone," said King Reid, master showman, as the famous King Reid Shows arrived in Lachute for the Spring Fair, which continues to Saturday mid night, June 17.

This year's midway is the great est collection of top shows, rides and extravaganza ever offered any exhibition. The King Reid Shows of Manchester, Vt., established in 1947, has been the top truck carni val in the northeast for the past 14 years.

A battery of neon-emblazoned Ferris wheels, a front gate with coat-of-arms of the different States and Provinces and flags of all na tions, present a spectacle one must see to enjoy. King Reid, owner and showman, assures visitors that this year's Lachute Spring Fair will run the gamut in thrills, spills, humor and joy. This goes for people of all ages, from wee tots to grandpa and grandma. And it's claimed to be the world's cleanest midway.

The King Reid Shows offer thrilling rides, sideshows of drama, beauty, music, color, fun and glamor — just about everything. The elaborate stage show, "Harlem's-A-Poppin'", features a colored rock 'n roll revue with 26 performers.

Other shows include Col. Lew Alter's Supercircus Sideshow, "Can It Be Possible?" with freaks and curiosities; Dave Bloom's famous oxen exhibit, the world's largest team of oxen; the Hi Hat Club Re vue, with a comely cast of perform ers direct from Miami's popular night spots; Capt. Coo-Coo's Fun House; Louise Kneeland and her sensational Lila Show, from Las Vegas, and Irene Burton's wild life exhibit, a menagerie of wild ani mals and an exotic aviary collected from the four corners of the earth.

Thrills galore are promised visit ors to the King Reid midway in the form of the very latest riding de vices. New this year among the 25 major rides are a device but recently off the production lines — a passenger controlled Helicopter, and a new thriller — The Mad Mouse — a half-mile ride zooming along at 60 miles per hour.

Other adult rides include the Merry-Go-Round; Giant Ferris Wheels; Tilt-A-Whirl; Dodgem Bumper Cars; Roller Coaster; a Paratrooper; Scrambler; Flying Coaster; Round-Up; Dipsy Doodle.

Younger visitors will find more than their share of riding thrills in the King Reid Kiddieland, an area especially set aside for them. The new Helicopter ride gives youngsters the thrill sensation of actually riding in and piloting a helicopter; this is being brought before the public for the first time this season. The kiddies will also thrill to such rides as the Baby Ferris Wheel, the Boat Ride with real water, the miniature Merry-Go-Round, the Roto-Whip, the Jun ior Turpike where the youngster actually drives his own little auto, and others.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

A body of Canadian citizens set up as the Canadian Centenary Council is asking fellow Canadians for suggestions as to how our country's 100th birthday in 1967 should be celebrated.

One suggestion, which would be spectacular and undoubtedly make a lasting impression on the people of this nation is a "Freedom Train". The plan, in its formative stage, is to have this train travel from coast to coast carrying Canada's charters of freedom. Prime Minister Diefenbaker endorsed the idea when he recently addressed the newly formed Council at its first session. He also said it could carry such documents as the British North America Act and the Bill of Rights.

It wasn't mentioned, but Canada's publicly owned railroad has a Museum Train which would make an ideal vehicle for a venture of this nature. "A journey into yesterday" could be taken by thousands right across Canada if this monument to those pioneers who planted the seeds of nationhood was sidetracked at various stations. It would probably take the entire centennial year to remind citizens that the Canadian National system, with its 33,000 miles of tracks in Canada, is helping to keep alive the tradition of the country's railway heritage. The Museum Train is more than mere proof of the railroad's pioneer role in the making of Canada. It is also a reminder of a duty to hold what our forefathers gained for us. For along the Canadian National's vast system, the largest in North America, move many of the goods and services which supply Canadians with one of the highest standards of living in the world.

Centennial College

Another idea that is probably in the minds of many Canadians, would be the establishment of a Centennial College. This should not be a university, but rather a training school for young people who are not of university calibre. As a nation, we have not developed this vast store of talent. For example, many a truck driver would make a master mechanic, and many a waitress a skilled factory inspector.

The country's greatest economic burden (and it is increasing with the years) is the army of untrained youth. During this past winter of frightening unemployment, steps were taken to train the illiterate and the unskilled, but only under temporary conditions.

The idea I should like to promote is that this college be established, preferably in Ottawa, the nation's capital, where young people from all parts of Canada could be trained FREE. Campus dormitories would be a must, and railway transportation provided for those who could not afford to take advantage of the training, if they lived in remote areas.

I realize this would cost the taxpayers millions, but relief figures are mounting astronomically, the unemployment insurance fund is dwindling alarmingly, juvenile delinquency is increasing and who is paying the bill? The taxpayer. Why not invest in some type of security for our untrained youth rather than keep them in reform schools and on relief for most of their lives.

Perhaps an experience in reclaiming youth, which was a very personal one, would prove my point. When I was editing a weekly newspaper we had a constant flow of office boys and "printer's devils" journeying through our payroll. I conceived the idea of hiring only lads who were willing to learn how to operate a linotype. The paper paid their tuition for elementary training at the Ryerson Institute in Toronto. From there on they had to be interested enough to practice on their own time. In two years we had developed two excellent operators, one a youth who left high school in his second year and the other the best make-up man the shop ever boasted. He too, was in his teens when he grabbed at the chance to be trained. Both boys spent hours of the time they might have spent on the street, learning a trade.

Why They Are "Best"

You can claim they were exceptions. Not at all. I will always believe youth can be encouraged to be ambitious. It is our educational system that beats them and discourages any hope of a trained skill. There are those who will find "book learning" a hurdle they cannot take.

Someone is going to say "Why not scholarships. Wouldn't they accomplish the same end?" If we are going to mark our centennial, let it be visual as well as constructive. Scholarships are hidden assets. A Centennial College would be evidence for all the world to see of Canada's pride in its youth and consideration for those not as blessed as some in the ability to absorb textbook knowledge. They do have latent skills that only need developing. This country needs every one of them. If millions can be raised for universities, why not for a college for the less intellectually inclined. Graduation from "Centennial College" would give them a status a scholarship might never establish.

I have only one hope. That is, that monuments are not set up across this land to mark the country's century as a nation. This, to me, would be a most useless expenditure of funds so greatly needed for more realistic purposes.

Inoculation clinics 3rd week of June

Well Baby Clinics are being held by the County Health Unit at various times and places. At these clinics, vaccinations are available against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, smallpox and polio (all ages).

The following clinics are announced for the middle part of June. Subsequent dates will be published later. . . .

Morin Hts. (Legion Hall) —
Monday, June 19, 3 p.m.
Christieville (Legault's Store) —
Monday, June 19, 4.15 p.m.
Grenville (Dansereau School) —
Wednesday, June 21, 3 p.m.
Ayersville (Imm. Conceptn. School)
Friday, June 23, 3 p.m.

Chest X-ray clinics are also held at the Health Unit in Lachute every Tuesday afternoon, 2 to 4 o'clock, and on the last Monday of the month, 7 to 8 p.m.

Is the Sale of Liquor a Provincial Monopoly?

Yes, the salient feature of all provincial liquor acts is the provincial monopoly of the retail sale of alcoholic beverages. Partial exception is made in the retailing of beer by brewers, a practice most provinces permit while reserving regulative rights and taxing such sales. Ontario permits local wineries to sell at retail under certain conditions. In all the provinces, spirits in sealed packages may be bought only at government liquor stores, provision being made for a mail-order department for out-of-town customers. Local option may be used to exclude such sale, however. All the provinces restrict liquor advertising in some degree.

HI-HO, COME TO THE FAIR!

Then the Hospital told Mrs. Deslandes:

"YOU PAY NOTHING FOR DIANE!"

THE HOSPITAL INSURANCE SERVICE will foot the bill.

Miss Nicole Morin, patient accounts clerk at Ste-Justine Hospital, explains to Mrs. Monique Deslandes that Diane's hospital bill will be paid by Québec.

A SPONTANEOUS TESTIMONIAL

(published in "La Presse", April 6th, 1961.)

Nothing to pay

Dear Editor:

The hospital insurance plan gives rise to much talk. I, for one, wish to go on record as being a satisfied customer.

My eight-month-old baby daughter, Diane, was rushed to the hospital — suffering from acute gastro-enteritis. Upon admission, I requested that she receive standard ward accommodation. There being no ward vacancy, she was put in a private room. During the next five days, she was given the required treatments: serum, penicillin, vitamins, analyses, etc.

Upon leaving the hospital, the young lady at the accounts office told me: "Your costs are all billable to the Hospital Insurance Service."

This Service is over-criticized by many; I found it to be a good Plan. If not having to pay bills amounting to hundreds of dollars leaves some people cold, they must be awfully rich!

In my case, I admit it — I'm impressed.

I therefore feel that baby Diane, myself and . . . the family budget owe heartfelt thanks to the instigators of our Hospital Insurance Plan.

HERE IS THE STORY

1. Mrs. Monique Deslandes lives at 1280 Villeray Street in Montréal.
2. Her baby daughter Diane, 8 months old, was admitted to Ste-Justine Hospital on February 2nd, 1961 — leaving four days later.
3. As there was no vacancy in the standard wards, Diane had to be accommodated in a private room — since this was an emergency.
4. The Hospital Insurance Service paid in full the hospital costs incurred, including the private room granted on emergency grounds.
5. In her letter to the French daily "La Presse" (see opposite for translation), published on April 6th, Mrs. Deslandes thanks our Provincial Government for paying Diane's hospital bill.
6. EDDY EVERYBODY is happy to share your satisfaction, dear lady!

New insecticide against cornborer

Ottawa — Sevin, a new insecticide, is recommended for controlling the European corn borer in sweet corn in Quebec.

Corn plants treated with it can be safely fed to livestock seven days after the last application, states M. Hudon of the Canada Department of Agriculture's research laboratory at St. Jean, Que.

A rate of three pounds of 50 per cent wettable powder per acre and two applications, a week apart in early July, give satisfactory control.

Cobs from heavily infested corn receiving this treatment in 1959 were 91 per cent marketable. In 1960, when the infestation was lighter, 98 per cent were marketable.

The insecticides DDT, heptaclor, toxaphene and endrin can be used when the corn plants are not to be fed to livestock.

Ryania can be used when the corn plants are to be fed to livestock. However, it is expensive and the high dosages of wettable powder required may clog the spray nozzles.

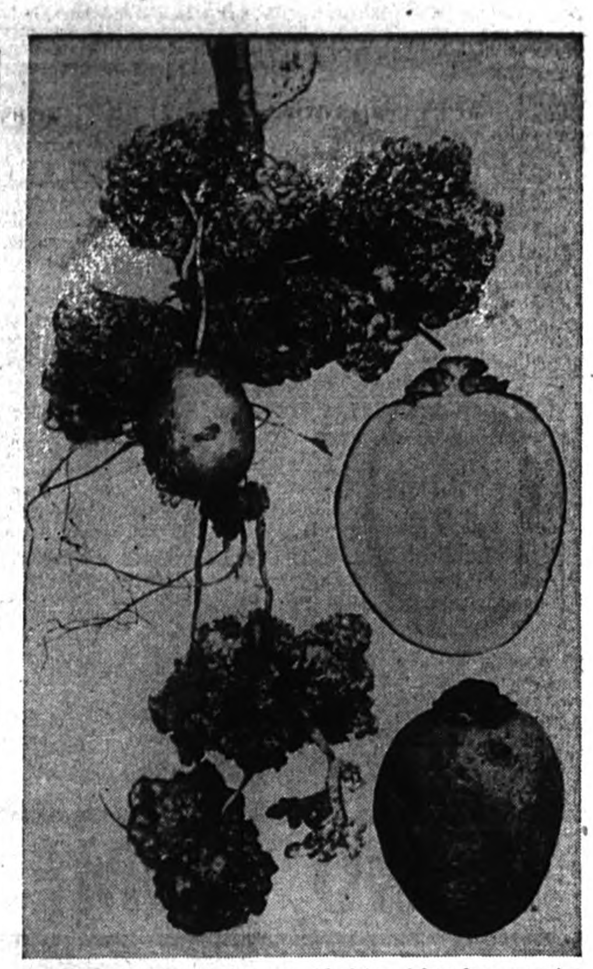

New cordless electric drill

Toronto — Development of a revolutionary new power tool — the world's first cordless electric drill — was announced here by Black & Decker, of Brockville.

The completely portable unit has a self-contained energy source that combines a series of power cells with a radically different, highly efficient motor. The need for conventional cord and wall outlet arrangement, familiar to millions of electric tool users, is completely eliminated.

The drill was developed by the Brockville firm's American parent company. It will go on sale in Canada and the U.S. in the fall.

Meanwhile, research and devolment engineers are working to develop other applications for the new unit.

POTATO WART—This ten-year-old picture taken from a poster warning against the movement of potatoes from Newfoundland is still typical of the disease and true of the situation. The quarantine still exists in order to protect the potato industry of other Canadian provinces. Potato wart is easily recognizable. The organism causing the disease can be carried in potatoes, soil or used bagging.

Added precautions against spread of Potato Wart

Any Newfie will tell you that his province's potatoes are the best eating kind in the world. In fact, many mainlanders will back him up. Whatever the merits of such a proposition, mainlanders will have to go to Newfoundland to taste the home-grown spud — it cannot be exported from the island because of the presence of potato wart.

A ban against Newfoundland potatoes on this account has been in existence for many years but, this spring, federal and provincial agricultural authorities agreed to enforce more strictly the potato wart quarantine. Besides potatoes, the taking from the island of root plants—turnips, cabbages — plants with soil, and used bagging are possible carriers of the dreaded potato wart organism. If the pest found its way into the famous potato-growing areas of the Maritimes, Canada would be in danger of losing its important potato seed export trade.

The authorities will continue washing down outgoing cars at St. John's, this port being on the Avalon peninsula where the infestation is greatest. It is also proposed to introduce this service at Port au Basque, the point of ferry departure for North Sydney, N.S. Extra precautions were recommended at a recent meeting of the Central Potato Committee of Canada — not necessarily because the disease had become more widespread but because traffic between the island and mainland has greatly increased in recent years. The presence of more travellers and tourists calls for greater care against accidental breach of the quarantine.

Treatment of weeds in lawns

Herbicide treatment for the destruction of weeds is the final touch needed for the proper case of lawns, writes Alexandre Dion, Quebec Department of Agriculture. The solution of weed-killer should be applied to the whole surface of the lawn by means of a low pressure sprayer. This should be done before the weeds come into flower, and on a calm day when there is no wind to carry harmful fumes or droplets onto ornamental plants.

Newly made lawns should not be treated during the year they are sown: they should be a year or more old before treatment, so that the roots of the sown plants will be well developed and firmly established.

Broad-leaved weeds, such as plantain, dandelions, etc., can be destroyed with 2-4-D. Against chickweed, 2,4-5-TP or CMPP is used. In each case, the instructions for use printed on the container should be followed.

For the destruction of crab-grass, PMA may be applied, at the rate of 2 to 2½ ounces of a 10% commercial preparation in enough water to cover 1,000 square feet of lawn. This treatment should be applied at the beginning of the season when the seeds of crab-grass are germinating. Two further treatments are necessary, seven to fourteen days apart.

Potassium cyanate may also be used against crab-grass at the rate of 3 ounces in 8 to 10 gallons of water per 1,000 square feet, applied when the crab-grass plants are young, before the appearance of the stems which bear the flowers. Two further treatments of potassium cyanate will be necessary, at intervals of ten to twenty days. This herbicide can also be applied in powdered form, at the rate of 6 ounces per 1,000 square feet of surface.

A new product, Zytron, is also recommended against crab-grass. It may be used in liquid or in granular form, the latter being the more effective. Zytron should be applied before the crab-grass appears, at the rate of 15 pounds of the active product per acre of surface.

Fertilizers for annual flowers

Ottawa — It's a good practice to apply a general-purpose fertilizer before planting annuals — R. W. Oliver, who has charge of a great many flower beds at Canada's well-known Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, advises in a current departmental bulletin.

Mr. Oliver says that a 5-10-5 or 6-9-6 fertilizer at four pounds per 100 square feet is satisfactory for the average garden, but gardens vary so much in soil type and fertility that specific recommendations cannot be made to fit them all. Even in the flower gardens at the Central Experimental Farm, tests to find the best fertilizer formula and the best rate of application have not given consistent results from year to year.

The tests were carried on for three summers in different sites but on similar soil — a light sandy loam. Since it was very low in potash, a 5-10-13 fertilizer was used, at 2, 4, 6 and 8 pounds per 100 square feet.

Test plants were China aster, scabious, snapdragon and stocks grown as cut flowers. Flowers were cut twice a week from mid-July to the first frost. Records were taken of height, number and weight of flower spikes.

The top three rates of application were equal in their effects on the flowers, perhaps because the soluble chemicals leached out quickly in the light soil. The four-pound rate was, therefore, the most economical of the top three rates. It was also more effective than the two-pound rate.

To determine the best treatment for your soil it is advisable to test it from time to time, using one of the simple "do-it-yourself" kits. Failing this, follow the recommendations made by Mr. Oliver.

Radar detector suggested as curb to Brownsb'g speeding

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — With the summer week-end season now in full swing, the Brownsburg Council once more listened to a police department report that listed the number of speeding tickets issued during the month. Chief Roger Boutet's department had issued 63 traffic regulation warnings and assessed 34 fines for speeding. When an observer asked on what days the speed trap had been in use, Chief Boutet replied "Friday, Saturday and Sunday". This led to a request to have the speed limit apply to local residents, during the week, as well as to out-of-town week-end travellers.

After the usual embarrassed silence, Council discussed the relative merits of a radar speed timer system, with Chief Boutet pointing out the inefficiency of the cable-type speed trap as compared to the electronic equipment. This is probably true in the long run, but the efficiency of any machine is largely dependent on the ability of the machine operator and those supervising the operators. Since all the councillors seemed to agree that radar had a number of desirable features, the subject is being pursued to determine whether the equipment might be rented on a trial basis.

New Committees

New committees within the Council were set up as follows, for the coming year:

Sewerage and water — Ernest Legault, Fred Monette.

Police and Fire — Georges Therrien, Gerald Vowles.

Roads, Lights and Garbage — Ernest Gagné, Laughlin Baccardax.

Georges Therrien was appointed pro-mayor for a period of six months.

The councillors voted to hire the services of James Donaldson, Stanley Thompson and Bill Ouellette as evaluators for 1962-63. Then, in discussions on town services, they passed a motion to have a proposed plan of a water and sewerage system drawn up for McVicar Street and Woodbine Avenue North and South.

Council resisted the temptation to spend $3,000 on a second-hand street sweeper, but is seriously considering the purchase of a $10,000 "Sanivan" garbage truck. This would go a long way towards improving the present system, where four men are required on a single truck.

Resignations from P.P. detachment

Traffic Sgt. Roger Massie, who last week tendered his resignation as a member of the Provincial Police Traffic Department. A native of Brownsburg, Mr. Massie has been employed by the department for a number of years, and is widely known throughout the County.

Traffic Officer Jean-Guy Foucault also resigned from the local detachment, after approximately a year's service. Richard Dubé, a recent graduate of the Provincial Police training school, was last week appointed to the local detachment to assist in police duties.

Crash at bridge in Pine Hill

Douglas McGillis, a St. Eustache resident, was treated in St. Jerome hospital Saturday evening following an accident on Route 31 at Pine Hill. According to police, the recent-model car driven by Mr. McGillis missed the curve and crashed into a bridge. Hitting a tree, the car then bounced into the river.

Mr. McGillis was treated for a skull fracture, internal injuries, broken ribs and a leg fracture. Traffic Sgt. Albert Legault investigated.

One-in-million coincidence

An old Bethany resident, Stewart Walker, who left some years ago to reside in Ontario, in calling on The Watchman last week produced evidence of a rare coincidence in numbers.

When he enlisted in the R.C.E.M.E. (Mechanical Engineers) in 1940 for service in World War II, Mr. Walker was given a regimental number, B.95054 — an identification which will always stick in his memory. . . . This spring, when he appeared at the auto registration office in Winchester, Ont., to register his car, the number of his license was — yes, you guessed it, B.95054.

Mr. Walker is now a salesman for agricultural chemicals, residing at Finch, Ont. He was in Lachute last week on behalf of his company, Galt Chemical Products.

Resident hurt in highway mishap

Norman J. Boyd, of Lachute R.R. 1, was seriously injured on Wednesday last when his car rammed the rear of a parked car owned by Joseph McGevin, of Toronto. The mishap occurred on the Vide Sac Road.

Mr. Boyd was taken to the Montreal General Hospital by ambulance. He was treated for severe injuries to one eye and several broken ribs. The accident was investigated by Traffic Officer Gilles Lavigne.

Art Assocn. holds annual meeting, elects officers

The annual meeting of the Argenteuil Art Association was held last Saturday at the home of the president, Mrs. Vivian Walker, at Carillon. This was the fifth annual gathering of the group, and discussions indicated an enthusiastic outlook for the season.

In absence of the secretary, Mrs. Ian Naismith, the duties were assumed by Mrs. F. A. Hungerbuhler for purposes of this meeting. The past year's record and finances were reviewed. Mrs. Walker thanked her officers of the past year for their support, and Miss A. L. Wales, on behalf of the nominating committee, proposed the slate of officers for 1961-62 as follows:

Honorary president, Antoine Paré; president, Mrs. L. T. Porter, Sr.; vice-presidents, Jean Laforest and Mme F. Robin; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Vivian Walker; and additional directors.

Regional representatives — Morin Heights, Mrs. Wm. Stock; Kilmar, Mrs. Wm. Bray; Lachute, Don Titman; Brownsburg, A. G. Talbot; Cushing, Miss F. M. Douglas; Carillon, Mrs. Vivian Walker; St. Andrews, Miss A. L. Wales.

Mrs. L. T. Porter thanked the members for the honor accorded to her, and in her term as president, hoped for another successful year.

The gathering enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Walker in their attractive old summer home. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by a few of her guests.

In a subsequent sitting of the executive, it was planned to hold three exhibitions and an early visit of artistic appeal, this coming summer and fall. A committee was formed to investigate possibilities of incorporating the Association.

Rotary Club events drew keen interest at the Fair

The Canadian International Paper Company team again took the Rotary tug-of-war silver cup and first prize money, at the Fair last Thursday night — but not without a hard-fought battle with eight other teams. (See picture on page 2.)

Runners-up, the Canadian Refractories team, representing Plant No. 2 at Marelan, almost did the trick (some felt) — but were only able to win second-place prizes.

The Farmers, ably organized by Bill Brass and coached by "Doc" Munroe, made the first semi-finals, as did a new team this year, Boyd's Express, called "The Elephants".

Brownsburg defeated Lachute in the first elimination pull, C-I-L defeating Ayers with a hard-fought battle.

In the first heat, Boyd's "Elephants" defeated the Army "Howitzers"; International Paper defeated Lachute Lumber & Millwork, "The Vikings"; and "The Farmers" defeated Canadian Industries Limited. Some felt that the latter did not have enough time to rest from the elimination match before competing with the Farmers — but the latter would have been hard to beat under any circumstances.

Due to the interest shown — and a lack of space in this issue — some information about the teams will be published next week.

Ladies First

The young ladies of the Wal-Ken Riding Club showed excellent skill, defeating the mere males in the Musical Stalls event.

Winners of the senior group were — Elizabeth Hay, Barbara Rose, Nancy Humphrys.

Winners of the junior event, and soon to be capable seniors — Lois Billingham, Gwen Oswald, Careen Heggie.

Calf Catching Contest

This event supplied plenty of action, thanks to the frisky and very lively young cattle supplied through the courtesy of North River Farms, and the generous help of manager Bill Brass and his son, Jimmy.

Winners were — Jackie Hume, Donald Mode, Ian Lees, Donnie Hadley.

Cow Milking Contest

These cattle, from the same North River Farms, not to be outdone by their young offspring, showed plenty of action.

Ladies — Miss Carol Parker, Mrs. Fred (Jean) Stein and Mrs. Ken (Glenna) Wilson, did a fine job, but the men carried off the top prizes — John Rodgers, Doug MacKenzie, and Lloyd Ayre.

Football Kicking Contest For Ladies

This novel eyent was won by Mrs. Ken Wilson, Mrs. Fred Stein, Miss Claire Cruise.

The Rotary Draw

The drawing held by the Rotary Club took place Saturday night, with Don Hay, president of the Argenteuil Agricultural Society, selecting the tickets. The camping outfit (including tent, sleeping equipment, stove, cooler, etc.) was won by Mr. Eugene Bacon, of Maple Avenue, Brownsburg. The portable television set was won by Gordon Brown, of Hillcrest Avenue, Brownsburg. The movie camera and projector were won by Mrs. Grahame McNair, Main Street, Lachute.

Fine weather — and Lachute Spring Fair '61 soars to high peak of public satisfaction

When the M.L.A. for Brome County, Mr. Glen Brown (representing the Quebec Minister of Agriculture) was delayed in his arrival last Thursday afternoon — then, in the words of the genial grandstand m.c., Bud McGeorge, "it fell upon the old standby's to officially open the 136th annual Lachute Spring Fair." Despite a setback in the schedule, the old reliables filled the role with fitting dignity — Donald M. Hay, president (son of the late Geo. Hay, an earlier president, and grandson of Wm. Hay, vice-president in the year of Confederation, 1867) and Clement Tremblay, O.B.E., director, life member and a former president, briefly addressing the grandstand spectators.

"The directors have put forth every effort to make this Fair 1961 one of the best, maintaining the high standard of past years," said President Don Hay. "We are pleased to welcome back the exhibitors who return year after year. We appreciate their loyal support and we extend a hearty welcome to those who are with us for the first time."

Traditional rite

Following with a welcome in the French language, Mr. Tremblay said, in part, "It is often remarked that agriculture is the barometer of general prosperity, inasmuch as agriculture depends on the state of commerce and industry for its own well-being. Only in conditions of high employment and production, with top purchasing power, can agriculture be considered a profitable occupation.

"There is indication that the present provincial government looks favorably on this exhibition, which dates back well over a century to the days of the pioneers, and has steadily progressed through difficult stages to its present high standard." . . . . Mr. Tremblay also mentioned the interest of the Hon. Wm. Cottingham, M.P.P., in the agriculture of his native county, and of Notary J. O. Latour, federal deputy for this constituency.

At exactly 3.30 p.m. President Don Hay cut the traditional ribbon, in the presence of Mr. Cottingham, Mayor Fernand Legault of Lachute, the Fair directors and Ken Riley, secretary-manager.

Glen Brown, M.L.A. for Brome County, was noted on the grounds and touring the sights, also Mayor A. Paré of St. Andrews Village and Mayor Paquette of Ayersville, also Frank Ryan, owner of CFRA, Ottawa, and, on subsequent days, other familiar radio producers, George Atkins of CBC daily Farm Broadcast, Toronto, and Ted Miller, of CBC, Montreal. Welcomed by the directors also were executives of the Central Canada Exhibition (Ottawa) and the Ottawa Winter Fair, also the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer of Ormstown Fair. Individuals of note were Dr. Hamilton, of the Federal Department of Agriculture; Donald McPhee, of Vankleek Hill, a consistent exhibitor here over the past half-century who now, over 80 years of age, exhibits poultry as his specialty; and an old patron, 81 years of age, who drives his own car from Ottawa and returns home the same evening — Jack McCallum, authority on Clydesdales, now retired from the Animal Husbandry division at Ottawa.

Fine weather — the one big speculative factor in this venture — prevailed throughout. This was the first rainless Lachute Spring Fair experienced for several years, and the attendance climbed accordingly.

Col. Ernest Emmett, in charge of the Imperial Frontiersmen on police duty, reported a continuous stream of traffic in the traditional peak period — from late Friday afternoon until night-time. Looking over the parking areas was "reminiscent of old times" — according to an observation by Past-President W. Erskine Rodger, who has seen many Lachute exhibitions.

The gate admissions showed a distinct increase of 15 per cent over last year — thus setting a new high for the past several years.

Superb Horse Show

In the show ring and the green ring before the grandstand, there was a more or less continuous spectacle of horse show events, featuring saddle and pony horses, Hackney and harness drivers, and light and heavy draft outfits. According to Secretary Ken Riley, for the first time in years some of the classes were overtaxed and it was necessary to turn away entries in the horse breeds.

Holstein and Ayrshire cattle, and other breeds for which this area is noted, appeared in number and quality; and all livestock departments measured up to the highest hopes of the directorate to maintain Lachute's enviable standard as a Class A Fair. The cattle parading before the grandstand also commanded high admiration.

All hands on the greased pig!

Two youngsters, unidentified, make a grab for the slippery porker in one of the Legion's mirth-provoking competitions Saturday night before the grandstand. The greased pig catching, the pillow fight, and highland dancing rounded out a full program with the popular-Magic Tom Auburn.

Central Building

There were no changes in the central building exhibitors, with exception of a stand arranged by the Lachute Association for Retarded Children and the Anti-Tuberculosis Society's X-ray clinic, which returned after a lapse of tenancy. Both these public services commanded public interest. The Quebec Department of Mines had an innovation in its display, with a layout of prospector's camp, equipment and instruments. Here also, an interesting display of antique coins was sponsored by the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Upstairs the Women's Institute handicrafts, junior handicrafts, floriculture, home-baking exhibits, and the Cercle des Fermières display, were in their customary places and well arranged.

Outdoor Exhibits

Many new farm and dairy equipment agents, including several newcomers from the Eastern Townships, occupied outdoor concessions which provided a round of interest for farm-minded fair-goers. New milking machinery, new feeding methods, new home, garden, camp equipment, and the latest in cultivating and harvesting devices were shown in an attractive manner. Don Boa's Riverside Motors had the only show of autos and vehicles on the grounds this year.

Entertainment

The catalogue of entertainment makes a chapter in itself, for the Midway and the Service Clubs provided a variety of amusement for every taste and preference. A report on each respective program by the Service Clubs, and winners of their various events, are included elsewhere in this paper. In addition, the Richelieu Club harness events on Saturday afternoon attracted keen public interest, and this feature compensated again for the three-day racing events held in previous years, which a number of regular patrons considered a real drawing-card.

There was one mishap in the racing, when a fast-moving sulky lost a wheel and the driver was thrown to the track. Fortunately he was unhurt; and the pacer continued around the track with the broken vehicle until eventually he was halted by attendents, using the mobile starting gate. (The grandstand crowd had seen nothing like this since "Ben-Hur" on the local theatre screen.)

Full interest maintained in W. Inst. June meetings

June has been the month of County Convention reports in most W.I. groups. Many of the branches discussed and voted on the proposed site of the Senior Citizens' Home.

Arundel members heard a talk given by one of their members, Mrs. Sosnkowski, on her recent trip to Spain. Members are sponsoring two concerts in July, by the Otter Lake Music Centre.

Brownsburg and Dalesville-Louisa branches were the guests of Mrs. George McGibbon at "Lazy River Ranch".

Frontier group had Miss Janet McOuat, of Macdonald College, give a demonstration on cake icing. There was a contest on "A corsage made from vegetables".

Jerusalem - Bethany members heard a paper on caring for the sick in a home, by Mrs. E. McOuat, Welfare and Health convener. They also had a contest on jumbled words pertaining to Health. All members are to work on talent money, to be turned in at the September meeting, and to state how it was earned.

Lakefield group had the Mille Isles branch as guests to share a demonstration by Miss Janet McOuat, on Supper Dishes. A bazaar and food sale is to be held in July.

Morin Heights had Col. E. Emmett to speak on Water Pollution, also Retarded Children in the Province of Quebec.

Pioneer branch heard papers on "Safety in Swimming", "Should women go out to work and leave children at home?", and "Preserving Historic Sites at Carillon".

Upper Lachute-East End ladies had as their roll-call, "A favorite recipe", signed and passed in to be made into a book. Miss Janet McOuat gave a most interesting demonstration on fancy sandwiches and arranging them for serving. Plans were made to cater to a luncheon on June 13, and to send two delegates to Macdonald College for the Provincial Convention.

Winners of various Fair contests and drawings

Rotary Club prize-winners are listed in a report of the club's activities at Lachute Fair, elsewhere on this page.

It is interesting to learn that the winner of the top prize, a camping outfit, had paid only 11 cents for his ticket (of the pay-what-you-pull variety). The winner, Eugene Bacon, of 369 Maple Ave., Brownsburg, subsequently sold the outfit for $175. Mr. Bacon is grateful to the Rotary Club for this generous award.

Contests

The Rotary contest winners are also published, but leading contestants in the Legion events Saturday night are not available.

In the old-time fiddlers' show featured by the Lions Club on Thursday, the winners were — first, Tom Linklater, Ottawa; second, Gerry Lafleur, Ottawa; and third, Lorne Wilson, Carleton Place, Ont.

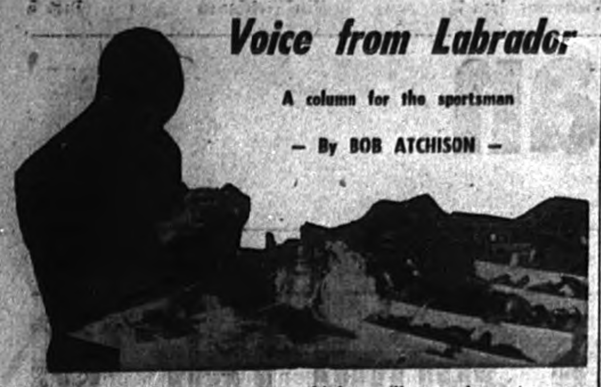

Memorable outing with Historical Society

In the recent sightseeing tour organized by the Argenteuil Historical Society, inspecting old buildings and points of interest soon to be submerged in the reservoir of the new Carillon Dam — this group was photographed beside the lower Grenville Lock (No. 6) in the Carillon-Grenville Canal system. Side-by-side with this is a lock of the original canal (1825) and, nearby, the Lockmaster's Cottage, built about the same time.

Week's Epigram

One trouble with traffic is that pedestrians walk around as if they owned the streets and motorists drive as if they owned their cars.

Voice from Labrador

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Wednesday, June 7 —

One thing I have never mentioned — the iron-ore trains that go out to Seven Islands every night. There are only two passenger trains each way during the week, the rest of the traffic is freight and ore trains.

The freights come in from Seven Islands loaded, going out empty. Some of the cargoes are really something to see. Huge, and by huge I mean just that — gas shovels, caterpillars, drag lines and tank car after tank car of gasoline and diesel fuel. The iron-ore trains, though, are the things to see — up to 100 cars loaded, pulled by four diesel loco's. They seem to pass for hours. Even during the night they can be heard pulling their loads in to civilization. From some of the literature I have read on Labrador, this iron-ore deposit is the largest in the world. Also other deposits that have never been touched, are supposed to be much more extensive.

Out fishing tonight. I don't know if you are going to believe this, but it is true. We watched trout, hundreds of them, just breaking the surface with the dorsal fin. What a sight to see. But not a bite, either at our spinner lures or flies, even though they would skim along as though intent on getting the lures and then just veer off. There was not a trace of wind, and while watching these fish we drifted over a gravel and sand bar about 200 feet long, close in to shore. What a perfect spot for them to spawn on. Water is as clear as crystal (just like the lakes back home used to be before the motor boats and garbage got going). . . . I'm going to miss kicking about pollution. That's one of the revelations of going off to the wilderness like this.

* * *

I told you our new Chef liked dogs; boy, does he particularly like Goldie! Nothing but the best for her — so that now she won't eat her regular food. First thing in the morning she heads for the cook's door, whines to get in — and believe me, she gets in. Now, if she is missed around the camp all we have to do is head for the Lodge and there she is waiting for the handouts.

Another amusing thing about Goldie, she is being put on the spot with the squirrels. Two of them are teaming up to get her going. They run her ragged, so that soon she hasn't even the energy to bark at them.

* * *

Louis, one of the Indian boys, brought his mother to see the Lodge all completed. The boss told me to drive her to the nearest point to her home, so I did. On the way she had to have a smoke. I naturally offered a cigarette. But, sissy, nothing like that for her. Out comes the old pipe — and "old" is no mere figure of speech. This one sure had seen better days. I'm not sure just what she was smoking but I think the Cariboo had a lot to do with it! It didn't just smell, it smothered a person. I expected to see her eyes pop out on her cheekbones, it smelled so strong. I know, the next time the Mountie comes around I'll tell him about this secret weapon that might be very effective during a war.

One more thing to interest you. You know these sleeping bags that are supposed to be for Arctic use. Don't believe it! Some of them may be, but we have a couple of fellows who sure don't think so. These are nylon-fabric covered, and from what they tell me, the coldest thing this side of the North Pole. Our bags are of down — to tell the truth, made by my dad in one of his sewing streaks. Nice and warm they are, too. But looking everything over, the very best for this country is the mummy type. I don't think you'll ever have to worry about the heat during the nights; and to me, there is nothing worse than a poor night's sleep in the bush. It sure does make it rough going the next day.

Thursday, June 8 —

The temperature's down LOW again. . . . I was talking to a couple of the boys from the railway who had come up fishing. It was their day off, and they came here by jeep, which was supposed to pick them up later on in the day. However, something happened, and I saw them hoofing it home. Actually I believe they were happy to be doing it; they said, after the first half hour of fishing they were too cold to do any more, and had built a fire and just waited for the jeep. On top of all this, no fish. They were so cold they couldn't have taken one off the hook, anyway.

Friday, June 9 —

A wonderful day, after the overcast cleared about 11 a.m. Boy, even one day of sunshine makes you feel different. We have a little joke among us; if the sun shines we stop work to have a look at it. To tell the truth it has been a rare sight to see.

Edith and I went down through the rapids tonight with an outboard — and seeing that I'm writing this, we must have made the trip o.k. A couple of ledges were tried for fishing. However, there really wasn't any heart in the fishing. I was more interested in seeing how I could navigate the rapids. Actually it is a lot easier coming back up than heading down. Going down you have to run faster than the current to give yourself steerage; and that gets to be pretty fast, and hazardous when rocks appear! At any rate, now we know what has to be gone through every day, and that helps.

Saturday, June 10 —

Snow in the late afternoon, a real blizzard that left about three inches on the ground.

There is a little story about Louis, the Indian boy. He had a toothache and got 3 days off to go in to Sept Isles — two days travelling time and one day to get the tooth fixed. Well, Louis showed up right on time. But he looked like the wrath of something. He had the tooth extracted, but then decided to sample some of town's liquid soothers. Only two quarts of beer, but after the effects of novocaine, he sure looked terrible.

When anything upsets him his expression is "Boy, O Boy" — to which, now holding his head pathetically, he added — "Sick". . . . Picture this grown man, with long black hair and hat perched on top, holding his head in sorrow and remorse. It wasn't really anything to laugh about, but the expression on his face would have made anyone laugh. . . .

Sunday, June 11 —

Unexpected visitors — two seaplanes that had a little trouble bucking the exceedingly strong winds. Talking to one of the pilots, he stated that on this run up to Knob Lake he can cover it in a given time. Some 50 miles by air from his destination, he had gone over his time limit. Both planes are anxious to take off this evening, but the winds have not subsided one bit, and there is snow flying, so they will probably be with us for the night. Both planes landed perfectly in heavy swells on the lake, proving the pilots were not ordinary fair-weather flyers.

* * *

There's a funny little incident to tell you about. Cleaning up around the area I had about 12 tar tins to get rid of (the 50-lb. type), so I headed over to the dump. During this time some of the boys had taken a 200-gallon tank that had developed a leak, and put it right down at the bottom of the pit; it must have been there some time. It happened that I threw one of these cans down right on top of it. You can imagine the noise that erupted when it hit the big, empty tank. . . . It also happened there was a squirrel under this tank. Boy, did it take off! Didn't even hit the ground on the first few jumps, and screamed all the way to a small tree. If I could understand squirrel language now, I could give you the monologue that went along with it.

Monday, June 12 —

We finally made it — a one-day trip, not an exploratory outing, but a bull work assignment. We left camp at 6 a.m. and were on the way in short order, loaded with outcamp tents and supplies, and seven boats. Travelling through this river water for the first time is tricky, and there were plenty of obstacles and rapids to cope with. Nine guides went along, with the Boss, and believe me, that was none too many. Portaging boats weighing 500 pounds over a very poor trail, is no light picnic.

We ran into some terrific lake country after leaving the rapids, clear and very cold — 10 miles without a real impediment in the way — then a sharp left-hand turn right into more rapids — which opened a saga of mishaps too lengthy and too varied to relate — foundered boats — boats adrift and powerless, with broken sheer-pins — no spare sheer-pins — propellers to replace — fouled sparkplugs, etc. But the outcamp sites were finally reached, without casualties. Some of the boys stayed behind to erect the camps and others, including myself, proceeded, by the same erratic travelling, to Wabush to pick-up 50 drums of gasoline. The whole safari, and the return to camp, was a challenging adventure. . . . Thank goodness no guests were along with us. How they would have enjoyed this schmozzle!

* * *

A few of the boys went back up to the outcamps; so many necessities were forgotten, that it was impossible to fix the camps satisfactorily. With guests due in Saturday, these must be finished. There's a lot of work to be done — wharves to build; trails to be cleared; work on the tents and equipment. They took along a good supply of sheer pine, and necessary tools — which we lacked for repairs to the motors and for preparations at the site. Maybe they will be luckier than we were. This is one experience I wouldn't have missed for anything, but one I never want to go through again. . . . However, maybe we weren't supposed to enjoy this.

NO WORKERS

There are cries all over the country of great distress of the unemployed. There is bewilderment all over the country that workers cannot be found when there is work to be done. The reason is the moral impairment of some workers, due to the fact that as soon as they have enough personal credit in the fund to get some unemployment pay, they lay themselves off.

Three acquitted in bank robbery at St. Eugene

Vankleek Hill — Marcel Lalonde, Jean Claude Lalonde and André Vermette, all of the City of Montreal, were acquitted by Judge G. E. Brennan at the County Court held at L'Orignal recently, of a charge of armed robbery at the Bank of Montreal in St. Eugene on July 5, 1960.

The case was dismissed for lack of identification, as only one witness had a glimpse of two of the accused. Another witness said that when the three men had gotten out of the car they all wore masks.

Grey Cup classic on French, English networks

All parts of Quebec served by the French and English Canadian Broadcasting Corporation networks will be able to see the Grey Cup game this year.

This was announced by Allan Magee, executive vice-president of Dow Brewery, who said the company will again co-sponsor both the Big Four league games and the Grey Cup classic.

The statement helps clear up the confused picture of television football rights that has existed since it was divulged the rights were sold to private interests.

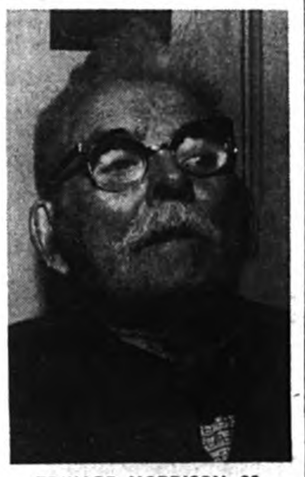

The Grey Cup game eastern rights were sold to CFTO-TV, Toronto's private television station. Dow has purchased these rights and is turning them over to the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"By doing this we are assuring the maximum number of football fans in the province a ringside seat at this great football classic," Mr. Magee said. "The game will be carried on all French and English CBC television outlets."

Shrewsbury church is monument to pioneers

An old Anglican Church built by pioneers in the Laurentians early in the last century still continues its mission of faith for five regular parishioners and some summer visitors — wrote Harold Poitras in the church page of the Montreal Daily Star. The article recalls other interesting facts concerning the pioneer settlement of Shrewsbury.

This picturesque little church (the writer continues), is located on the top of a hill at Shrewsbury, where three roads intersect, one leading to Lachute, the other to Morin Heights, and the third to farmlands developed by Irish Protestant families.

Across the road from this ancient church once stood the Orange Hall and a log cabin school house. Both buildings have long disappeared but the foundations, covered with overgrowth, are still visible.

Descendants of all the pioneer families have disappeared from the district with the exception of one family, whose senior representative is John Good. Mr. Good, 88, is a warden of the church with Edward Morrison, 95, who now lives in Lachute.

Originally, there were some 30 families who settled in the area, but over the years they sold their farmlands and moved elsewhere. Memories of the birthplace of these people are kept green by habitual summertime visits to the area and particularly to the old church and graveyard where their ancestors lie buried.

The two veteran wardens recall the days when the community was one of bustling activities. The Orange Hall was the mecca of family gatherings, the school attracted the children of the district, and the church provided the spiritual background of a God-fearing people.

Mr. Morrison remembers when the church was filled to capacity each Sunday. Today, during winter months, it is closed and the handful of parishioners attend service, conducted by the Rev. Canon Cyrus W. P. Baugh, in the home of the Good family.

Mr. Morrison's father, William (son of Henry, the first Morrison to settle in Shrewsbury) made pot ash for soap-making. Mr. Morrison was for many years a fur trader. Some of the older people of the district remember the days when it was said that wherever there was a mink prowling, "Eddy was not far behind."

Mr. Morrison's wife, Catherine Rathwell, also of Shrewsbury, died eight years ago. They had five children; two of them are still living, Edward, of Ottawa, and Kathleen, a teacher at Verdun High School.

His lifetime friend, John Good, son of Capt. William Good, of the 11th Regiment, Argenteuil Rangers, whose father, James Good, came from County Cork, Ireland, was one of a family of seven. A grand-aunt of his married into the Henry Ford family and walked from Quebec to Rochester to be married.

Besides being warden, Mr. Good is also the church treasurer and occasional bell ringer. In the cemetery all the earlier citizens of Shrewsbury are buried. Many of the tombstones have tumbled over with age but on the facing are still visible the names of pioneer families — Morrison, Good, McCulloch, Swail, Copeland, Kennedy, McNeil, Chambers, Carruthers, Thompson, Clifford, McKnight, and others.

The Good family, the last of the original families to still maintain their farmland, say they will never leave Shrewsbury. "The district has lost most of its original families but unlike its time-honored namesake in England, there is always the question — will Shrewsbury continue in Canada?" said Mr. Good.

* * *

This recent article, enjoyed by many local and Montreal readers of The Star, inspired a heart-warming letter, received by Mr. Good a few days later. From a summer resident steeped in the sentiment of the Shrewsbury settlement, the letter contains references here reproduced, with permission:

Montreal, Que.

Dear Mr. Good:

It was with a great deal of interest, and indeed pride, that I read the article about you in the "Star". After many years, old Shrewsbury has surely received more publicity than ever before, and deservedly.

St. John's Church, over 100 years old, with you and Mr. Morrison as its wardens, is certainly a unique situation, probably unparalleled elsewhere in Canada. There is something very fine and sentimental about the whole circumstance.

As the senior member of the last remaining pioneer family, you are certainly the personification of the older generation with its traditions still fresh in your heart.

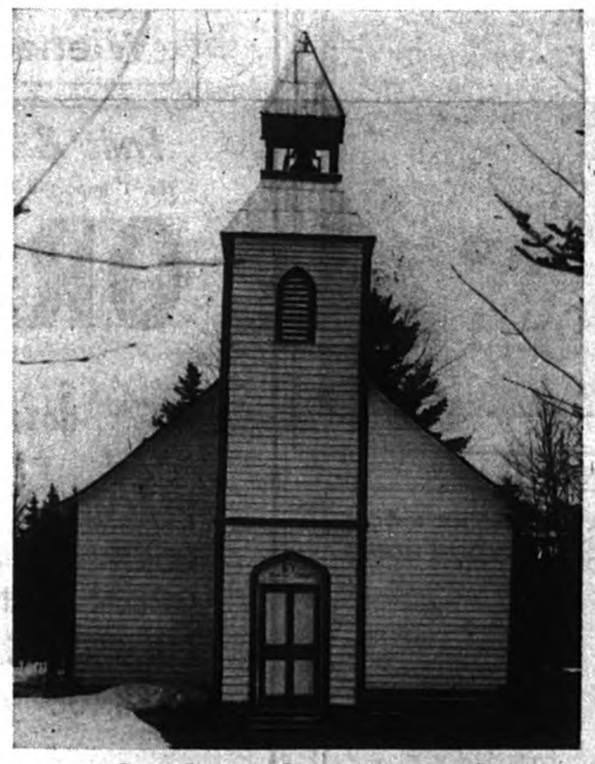

JOHN GOOD, 88, warden and treasurer of St. John's Anglican Church, Shrewsbury.

I wish to sincerely congratulate you upon this recognition, for you have, sir, in your own quiet way, contributed so much by your influence and example to the past and present days of Shrewsbury. . . .

Sincerely,

H. S. Joyce

Arundel

We welcome home Dr. and Mrs. Henry, who have been absent on an extended visit overseas.

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gray on the occasion of their 18th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Dixon were recent guests of Mrs. William Swail.

Mr. and Mrs. Bethume, of Montreal, and family, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Dubeau.

Miss Margaret Norman, accompanied by guests, spent the week-end at her cottage.

Woman's Association

The monthly meeting of the Womans' Association of the United Church took place last week. In the absence of the president, the meeting was chaired by Mrs. S. Swail. Summer activities were discussed, among which were a sale of work, a home-cooking sale, and a strawberry festival — which makes for a busy time ahead. The devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. Stuart Cooke, and the hostesses were Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Walter McMahon, Mrs. Gordon Gray and Mrs. Harold Gordon.

We are pleased to report that Mrs. Alvin Graham is convalescing satisfactorily from her recent operation.

Mrs. Melville Graham has returned home after a surgical operation, and is convalescing nicely.

Lachute Fair — A Bouquet

Quite a few residents attended the Lachute Fair, enjoying the fine weather, and the interesting attractions which are so ably presented each year. Congratulations are extended to the organizers on another successful outcome of their hard work.

Farewell to Minister

On Sunday evening in the United Church, a farewell get-together and tea will be tendered to the Rev. Mr. Westhaver, prior to his departure from Morin Heights for another charge. Mr. Westhaver has been associated here in various functions and it is with deep regret we have to say farewell. Best wishes will follow him in his new charge. . . . The service will begin at 7.30, and all the adherents of the church are invited to thus honor one who has never failed the congregation in time of need.

Golf Tournament

A successful tournament, with enjoyable weather, was held Saturday at the Arundel Golf Club by some members of the C.P.R. About 80 took part, and enjoyed a substantial buffet supper at the conclusion of the play. . . . The Golf Club is becoming more and more popular, not only with local members but with players from outside districts, and is becoming better known all the time — thanks largely to its genial management, which strives to make everybody feel right at home.

District correspondent mourned by many

The Watchman deeply regrets the passing of an old and devoted correspondent, Mrs. George Bennett, who wrote regularly from the district of Harrington. The late Mrs. Bennett was typical of those selfless correspondents whose news columns are a link of sentiment between their community and many related or distant friends. . . . The publishers extend sincere sympathy to Mr. Bennett and the bereaved family.

Weir

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Henderson, of Montreal, spent last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clifton.

Mr. R. A. Craig, accompanied by his son John, attended the sports car races at St. Eugene, Ont., last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Booth, of Ste. Rose, spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Basil Kerr.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Gray, of Gray Valley, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Loudin on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. MacKenna, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shelley and family, of Montreal, were Sunday guests of Miss Alice Purcell.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Crompton, with their daughter Diane, of Ste. Dorothée, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Clifton on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Davis and daughter, Wanda, of Montreal, spent the week-end with Norman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Davis.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, of Montreal, are spending the present week on vacation here.

Northern Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McMichael entertained at a bridal shower in honor of Miss Vivian Grant, last Saturday evening.

Miss Noreen McCart, with a girl friend from Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. B. McCart.

Miss Heather Stone, of Montreal, spent a couple of days last week at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Eady and children visited Mrs. Thos. Hoare, Sr., on Sunday.

Recent visitors at Mr. and Mrs. John Arthurs' were Mrs. Samson Arthurs, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young and little son, Greg, of Kilmar.

Miss Bernice Hoare, of Ottawa, spent the week-end with her parents.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the husband and family of the late Mrs. Geo. Bennett.

St. Jean Baptiste observances here Saturday evening

St. Jean Baptiste Day celebrations will be held this year at the Richelieu Club Park, Paquin Avenue. Weather permitting, the program will be held in the evening of the annual observance, this Saturday, June 24. (In case of unfavorable weather, it will be held the following evening.)

The program will include folklore singing, at 8 p.m.; games by the Lachute-Ayersville Guide troop attached to the 4th St. Jerome Company, at 8.30 p.m.; addresses, a bonfire, and fireworks display, concluding with "O Canada" at 10.45 p.m.

Brownsburg

Mr. Ian Edward, of Baie d'Urfé, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Stephens.

Mrs. J. T. Seary has returned to Montreal with her sister, Mrs. H. Guanzeroli, for an extended visit.

Week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Omer Gagné were Mrs. Alex Stevenson and family, of Verdun, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hunter, of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gagné, of St. John's, Nfld.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Creswell and family were in Montreal on Saturday.

Mrs. Arthur Morrison and son, Bobby, are visiting friends in Montreal this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barker were in Ste. Anne de Bellevue on Monday, owing to the death of Mr. E. Start.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Seary were in Montreal last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Creswell, Mrs. G. Tomalty, and Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Tomalty were in Lachine on Saturday attending the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bale.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Greeley returned home after spending a week vacationing with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnson, in Burgessville, Ont.

Red Cross Item

In last week's Watchman, a report on the Red Cross mentioned that a number of sickroom articles were "rented" out. It should be noted, of course, that such articles are "loaned", and anyone in the district may avail themselves of this equipment.

(The Watchman accepts no responsibility for this slip. The item was telephoned in the manner it was printed.)

Inoculation clinics to end of June

Well Baby Clinics are being held by the County Health Unit at various times and places. At these clinics, vaccinations are available against diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, smallpox and polio (all ages).

The following clinics are announced for the last week of June. Subsequent dates will be published later. . . .

Ayersville (Imm. Conceptn. School) — Friday, June 23, 3 p.m.
Whisseltown (Mrs. Dinelle's) — Monday, June 26, 2 p.m.
St. Philippe (School) — Monday, June 26, 3 p.m.
Grece's Point (Mr. Dupuis') — Monday, June 26, 4.30 p.m.
Barkmere (C. Legault's Store) — Tuesday, June 27, 11 a.m.
Huberdeau (Parish Hall) — Tuesday, June 27, 2 p.m.
Arundel (School) — Tuesday, June 27, 4.15 p.m.
Brownsburg (Social Club) — Wednesday, June 28, 2 p.m.

Chest X-ray clinics are also held at the Health Unit in Lachute every Tuesday afternoon, 2 to 4 o'clock, and on the last Monday of the month, 7 to 8 p.m.

Work of the Church in the Congo

Approximately 60 delegates met in Leopoldville recently when the Congo Protestant Council held its annual meeting. The Conference was marked by an optimistic faith that the work of the church would continue. The delegates emphasized the unity of the work. The increased distribution of the Scriptures was seen as a means of transmitting the truths of the Word of God to the people who are living in a very confused state.

It was also learned that Bible Sunday had been observed. One Congolese pastor brought the gifts of three BMS churches to Bible Society headquarters in a large bundle. The total was 2,400 francs, or about $48.00, mostly in one-franc pieces.

The churches in the lower Congo are trying to distribute a larger number of Gospels, and the proceeds from their sales are used to establish a Colportage Fund by which still more Gospels may be offered to the people. This procedure will develop self-reliance among the African churches in the Congo.

APPRECIATION

On behalf of my wife and myself, I take this occasion to thank the 700-odd persons who so kindly expressed their esteem at a birthday party in my honor. We were deeply touched by this gesture, which will renew and stimulate our devotion to the people and the interests of this good County. Many thanks!

Evangelistic crusade at Pentecostal Church

The Rev. Gerald Morgan, evangelist, will be at the Brownsburg Pentecostal Church starting Wednesday, June 21, until Sunday, July 2. There will be a service each night at 7.30, and Sundays at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Evangelist Morgan is an accomplished gospel soloist and provides his own accompaniment on the electric guitar. He is a very powerful preacher and his messages always carry relevant truth. He has travelled in this type of evangelistic work for some eight years now. His travels have taken him from coast to coast in Canada, and into many parts of the United States. He has prayed for the sick, and in many places there have been real miracles of healing take place. Evangelist Morgan was raised in the home of a Pentecostal minister and his father is now pastoring in Kingsville, Ont. He studied for the ministry at Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough. Mrs. Morgan, who will be with the evangelist, was raised in the home of a Pentecostal minister also, and her father is now a pastor in Western Canada.

The evangelist will be speaking at a special zone rally this coming Monday when the Brownsburg church will be host to Pentecostal ministers of Greater Montreal.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. G. Goodenough, of Potsdam, N.Y., returned home after having spent a pleasant vacation with the latter's brother, Mr. Lebert Hume.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyall Tomalty, of Detroit, Mich., have been recent guests of the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Boyd. Miss Betty Ann McGregar, of Santiago, Cal., joined them in visiting her uncle and aunt.

Dr. and Mrs. Eric Mongeon, and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Clarke, left Sunday to attend the Lions International annual four-day convention, at Atlantic City.

Young Ladies Go Touring

Having graduated from the Cotnoir Capponi Fashion School, Miss Evelyne Ayers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Ayers, has left for a voyage to Europe. She will join her cousin, Miss Leda Ayers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ayers, who has concluded her studies at Lausanne, Switzerland. Together they will then enjoy a tour visiting eight countries on the European Continent.

Dr. John C. MacKimmie and his wife, Dr. Suzanne MacKimmie, are in Montreal this week to attend the convention of the Canadian Medical Association.

Mrs. Geo. McGibbon, as 2nd vice-president of the Quebec Women's Institutes, is a delegate attending the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada (F.W.I.C.) convention in Vancouver.

Miss Shirley Tomalty, of Dalesville, returned recently from Ireland, where she enjoyed a pleasant visit with friends. Eastward she traveled by air — returning aboard the new liner Empress of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Snow and son, Charles, of Lennoxville, Que., are vacationing here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McOuat, Bethany Road. Mrs. Lillian McFaul, of Ayer's Cliff, is also a guest for a few days.

Miss Marjorie Kettyle, of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kettyle, Bethany Road.

Entertained for Bride-Elect

Several friends have entertained this past week for Miss Gail Ayers, in honor of her approaching marriage. . . .

Mrs. Leopold Carriere entertained last Thursday at a luncheon and kitchen shower, at her summer home at Lake Louisa.

On Saturday, Mrs. L. J. Dumais entertained at a buffet dinner at her home in Lachute.

On Sunday afternoon Miss Monique Côté was hostess at a beach party, at the summer residence of her parents at Lake Louisa.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Lefebvre entertained in honor of Miss Ayers at a dinner party Monday evening, at their home in Town of Mount Royal.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Donaldson, of Chatboro, Que., wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Grace, to Mr. Calvin Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Morrow, of Monalea Road. The wedding will take place Saturday, July 22, at 4 p.m. in St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing.

Mrs. Fraser C. Morrison, and Miss Ruby Parsons of Renfrew, left Monday for a motor trip to the Maritimes.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Millar and son, Jimmy, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, visited Mr. and Mrs. Fred Royal last Sunday.

Mrs. Margaret McDonald, of Montreal spent the week-end here visiting her sister, Mrs. Ewart Callicott and Mr. Callicott.

Mrs. Cecil McFaul, of Winter Park, Fla., is visiting relatives in the Lachute district, Avoca, Calumet and Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Thompson returned from a trip to Moncton, N.B., where they were guests of their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morrison.

Christening

At a baptismal service in Lachute United Church last Sunday morning, the Rev. Wilson Bridge officiated for the christening of Lezlee Marie, the infant daughter of Captain and Mrs. Edmund L. Buchanan, of Lachute.

95th Birthday

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Sidney Vasey, who passed his 95th milestone last Thursday, June 15. Mr. Vasey — who lives with his daughter, Mrs. Fred Roberts and Mr. Roberts — is hale and hearty, and mentally alert. Although having lost his eyesight three years ago from glaucoma, he is contented in his surroundings and continues to enjoy life.

Editor Bereaved

Mr. and Mrs. Fernand Berthiaume and family were in St. Hyacinthe, Que., last week to attend the funeral of his mother, the late Mme Philippe Benoit, which was held Saturday morning. A number of fellow workers from Giles Publishing House, also Mr. Rodrigue Durocher, of Lachute, attended the funeral. Friends who visited the funeral parlor were Messrs. Yvanhoe Chevrier, Jean-Paul Roy, Bernard Gosselin and Roland Rinfret. Sympathy is extended to Mr. Berthiaume in his bereavement.

The examiner was Dr. Eugene Lapierre, director of the National Conservatory of Music.

Anglicans give $10,000 to N.B. flood relief

The Anglican Church of Canada through its Primate's World Relief Fund has donated $10,000 to aid in the New Brunswick flood relief program. The money has been forwarded to the Diocese of Fredericton for allocation.

Flood damage has been most devastating in the Saint John, Nashwaak and Miramichi Valleys. Houses were tipped over, swept away or flattened, personal belongings, livestock and equipment destroyed. Fertile farmlands already seeded are a total loss.

The Anglican Church itself suffered, when St. Peter's at Durham Bridge was undermined by floods.

Highways and bridges were smashed and torn away, and cords of pulpwood spread inland to mark the peak of the floods. It is estimated that between 10,000 and 12,000 acres of productive farmland were flooded. The flood has been described as a "national disaster that deserves the aid of all Canadians".

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Know your Autoroute

"ON A RAPID transit highway which is closed to pedestrians, cyclists and horse-drawn vehicles, the responsibility for obeying traffic rules clearly rests with its only users — the motorists", it was stated by Commissioner Guy Poliquin of the Quebec Autoroutes Authority, at a brief ceremony marking Safety and Courtesy Week on the Laurentian Autoroute.

With the summer outflow of large numbers of Montrealers to the Laurentians, traffic on the Laurentian Autoroute increases very considerably.

"The Laurentian Autoroute enjoys a reputation for safety and cleanliness in all of North America. I take this opportunity to thank all motorists and bus and truck drivers who have made this possible. It is up to us to maintain this excellent reputation.

"On the eve of the vacation period, newspapers and radio stations are cooperating to remind motorists using the Autoroute during the summer that they should avoid behavior that could be a cause of accident, and strive to keep the Autoroute clean."

Hints to drivers, in order to reach their destination in complete safety, include these five major rules:

1—The right lane is reserved for trucks, buses and cars travelling at minimum speed.

2—The central lane is for cars travelling at legal speed limits.

3—The left lane, which must be used only for passing, must be kept free for police cars, ambulances and other emergency vehicles.

4—The motorist must always indicate what his next move will be, either when passing or in any other circumstance.

5—Stopping on the Autoroute is prohibited except in the case of car trouble or serious emergency. In such a case, everyone should remain in the car, put up a white handkerchief on the left side door as an emergency signal and wait for the police.

6—Any motorist noticing the above sign should have the courtesy to notify the Autoroute police.

Narcotics laws

MOST CANADIANS go through life without ever knowingly meeting a dope addict. For that reason the problem of illicit traffic in narcotics may seem remote to most of us.

But it's a real problem, nonetheless, and it has become obvious that something more must be done to deal with it.

There are estimated to be about 3,500 addicts in Canada. Practically all live in the large cities where the chances of concealing their problem are better.

Narcotics are expensive and many addicts turn to theft to get enough money to keep themselves supplied. This, and the fact they usually reach a stage where they are unable to hold any kind of a job, represent a drain on the Canadian economy.

But the real tragedy is that these people are captives of a habit that destroys any hope of leading a normal life.

The government has announced plans to set up federal treatment centres for addicts. The first is planned for British Columbia where a large proportion of Canada's addicts is located.

But it isn't enough to treat those who have become addicted, particularly since the likelihood of a cure is still slender.

It's essential that efforts to get at the dope peddlers and smugglers — the people who prey on human misery — be stepped up.

To this end Parliament has been given the job of tightening the laws. Legislation brought in by Justice Minister Davie Fulton creates a new federal offence.

Conviction on a charge of importing illicit drugs will carry a sentence ranging from seven years to life. The maximum penalty for trafficking in drugs is also being increased to life from the present 14 years.

Provision is being made for medical examination of persons caught with drugs in their possession so that if they are found to be addicts they can be sent for treatment instead of to jail.

There is no suggestion that these changes will eliminate the narcotics problem. But if the fear of life in prison deters one would-be drug peddler, and if the treatment centres salvage even only a few addicts, it will be evident that we have at least made a step in the right direction.

Rise and shine

THE PEAK of human efficiency, a West German professor tells us, is in the early morning and late afternoon.

Professor Otto Graf sizes up man's daily highs and lows in his contribution to a recently published book with the jawbreaking title, "In the Shadow of Technology: Contributions to the Discussion of the Human Situation in Modern Times."

For best results, the professor suggests that we get up with the sun, do the main work in the morning, rest for two hours after taking our main meal at lunchtime, go back to work in the late afternoon and take a light meal in the evening. Then, he says, you have time and energy for active recreation.

Well, the professor is entitled to his own idea of what makes the ideal working day and he'll probably drum up plenty of support for that nice, long lunch break.

But some of us have news for him if he expects us to be at our best at sunrise. And there are those among the younger set who can offer vigorous and noisy rebuttal when he suggests the human animal is low on vitality at 3 a.m.

Let's face it, profesor, the human animal is not uniform in its habits. Some of us face the dawn with a gleam in our eye and a song on our lips. Others aren't fully conscious before noon. And the world is full of marriages in which and early-rising type picked a late bloomer for a spouse.

One way and another, all of us manage to get through the chores, the office routine or the housework, do the shopping, play with the youngsters and maybe watch a little television. Most of us even seem to do reasonably well at getting to eat and sleep regularly.

But we'll thank the professor not to go overboard on his idea of making the sun our alarm clock. If he wants to get up at five in the morning in summer and sleep in along with the executives in winter, good luck to him.

But if the West German winters are anything like ours, he's bound to run into days when he'll be lucky to get out of bed at all.

"Slow down and live" campaign

CALLING ON ALL motorists and pedestrians to realize their responsibilities in reducing Canada's heavy toll in traffic, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker pleaded for sensible, safe driving and walking "not only in the vacation period that is approaching but throughout the year". The Prime Minister, in a message to Ira G. Needles, general chairman of the Canadian Highway Safety Council, referred to the increasing travel by Canadians in Canada. "As they are joined by the thousands of motorists who come from the United States," he said, "the traffic on Canadian streets and roads has risen to remarkable proportions. Motoring hazards grow accordingly, particularly in the summer vacation months, and every means must be taken to meet the dire threat of increasing traffic hazards."

The Prime Minister's message was issued in support of the Council's "Slow Down and Live" campaign, which continues to the end of August, in conjuction with the same campaign in the United States. Provincial safety groups are co-operating fully in this drive.

O CANADA! By George Shane

Former Watchman staffer impressed with alluring facets of Old London

Miss Barbara Wilson, who assisted at the editorial desk one summer at The Watchman, has a yen for travelling, and for the past year or so has been living and working in England. On her departure, Barbara (daughter of Mrs. E. K. Wilson, Lachute) was invited to write and give her impressions of the Old Country, dear to the heart of The Watchman publishers and numerous readers. Following are extracts from a letter received last week from this young lady.

81 Holland Park,
London, W.11.

The elements of time and distance are very strange. The passage of a year can seem both long and short at the same time, and the closeness of home, family and friends has nothing to do with geography. . . . I will be terribly happy to return to Lachute in September. . . . And yet I am a traveller, and this is where conflict enters the picture — the question as to whether I shall ever be able to settle down, and where to settle.

This year has been one of wonder, adventure, discovery, and of great happiness. Once a person learns to adapt to certain inevitable differences, and to discover the similarities of all nationalities, then one is happy.

London is indeed like home now; it is a home to so many nationalities, and its international flavor is exciting. Dozens of French, Italian, Spanish, German and Indian restaurants, etc., are to be found everywhere, but they are more heavily concentrated in the Soho area. When I think of London in the future, I shall think of Soho and its theatres, and squares and twisting streets; the lone street musicians and crazy comedians, trying to make a living; the flower sellers, and the newspaper sellers shouting from every corner. Then there are the parks and flowers and small lakes, constantly surrounded by families every week-end. I'll always remember the Thames and the lights of London as seen from the Festival Hall. London's majesty in Whitehall, Westminster, The Mall and Trafalgar Square, in my opinion, cannot be equalled anywhere.

Although color prejudice exists, it is greatly outweighed by non-prejudice. Mixed couples are seen everywhere and their children are happily played with in the parks like everyone else.

It is an experience to hear the speeches and other cheerful dissension at Marble Arch. Sit-down strikes, and marches for various causes are very much a part of life here. Also after a while you stare calmly at dozens of horse-guards exercising their mounts on the main thoroughfares.

I shall miss the crazy radio programs, and that marvellous English humor — and the lack of commercials.

Most of all I shall miss the English, for after living with them for many months I now realize what a treasure they are! Other things that have grown on me are the accents (which I have failed to acquire); the English tailoring; and the wonderful transportation systems, with the tubes and these two-decker buses.

Now that I have started writing I realize how much there is to tell you. How I wish I could live and work in the countries I have so far visited for too brief a time. I wish the importance of knowing at least another two languages had been impressed on me in school. Some people may deny its importance, but I think it is invaluable for purposes of complete understanding and communication. . . .

I will write again — probably from Vienna and the beautiful little country of Osterreich. . . . Best wishes to all.

Things 'n Stuff

A few years ago a friend of mine lived in an apartment house in uptown Montreal and called my attenion to a notice tacked up in the lobby. It was not written, but laboriously printed on a piece of notepaper. It is not my intention to ridicule the efforts of the foreign-born janitor who printed it. He did much better than I could in his native language, but it was so funny that, after it had served its purpose, I took it home and typed it out. Here it is, and I have not altered a single letter:

Men's shoes are coming to a point. It is difficult to buy shoes with round toes.

I found this out when I went in search of a new pair.

"Round toes, please," I said. "Something - er - like the ones I'm wearing."

As the clerk's eyes fell on my shoes, his professional smile faded to a frozen smirk.

I had lived with those shoes for some time, and I suppose I had learned to understand them. But they must have been a startling sight to a stranger — with part of the sole flapping loose, the uppers glued precariously to them by a compound of polish and garden grime. I believe in getting the maximum possible wear from my shoes.

"It's - ah - a kind of shoe we don't get in very often now," the clerk said. He was smiling again. But I could see that it was costing him some effort.

"Why not?" I asked.

"It's the manufacturers," he said in a slow, patient voice — straining for humility. "They're making them in this style now. It's fashionable."

He gestured toward a pair of pointies that looked as though they had been designed for a leprechaun.

"But haven't you anything like the shoes I'm wearing?" I asked plaintively. "At least, like they used to be, before decay set it?"

He gave me a tolerant, pitying glance, as though I were an old codger who had driven a 1903 Stutz Bearcat into a garage and demanded to buy a new one exactly like it, at the same price.

"Sorry," he said, and stared down at my ancient shoes with thinly-veiled contempt.

"I've only had them about six years," I said.

He turned toward a pair of elfin-looking brogues with quaint stitching and toes shaped like ice-cream cones.

"These aren't really pointed, you know," he said.

"They look pointed to me," I objected.

He shrugged. I thought I should say something else. "I guess men's shoes are going the way women's shoes went," I said. "That's the way they're made, and you can take it or leave it."

"Yes, the manufacturers are trying to introduce a little fashion into men's shoes," he said.

I went to other stores. The conversation followed the same pattern — until at last I found a place — no doubt a hopelessly old-fashioned store — where they still had shoes with round toes.

Furthermore, the proprietor seemed to think that it was quite a sane and ordinary request for a customer to make.

"Oh, yes, they're still making them that shape," he said. "But I hear that if you go into a store in Montreal, you can't buy anything but pointed shoes."

"In some ways, I'm glad I live here," I said.

Mr. Kennie de la Ronde, who spent the winter in Montreal, has opened his cottage for the summer.

Miss Ryan spent the week-end at her home here.

Mrs. McGowan, who occupied the McLaughlin cottage last week-end, had as her guests on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fraser, of Valois, and their young daughter, Lorna.

Mrs. Jas. Higgs, Mrs. Philip Cabana and Miss Florence Cabana were guests of Mrs. G. A. Steeves on Monday.

Mr. Brendan Kennie and Mr. Gordon McCambridge, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Webster and daughter, Tracy, were guests of Mrs. O'Brien on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Turner, of Victoria, B.C., visited recently with the latter's sister and brother, Mrs. Lilly and Mr. Snowdon.

82nd Birthday

On Sunday, Miss Elizabeth Wales came from Montreal to visit her cousin, Miss Lamb, on the occasion of Miss Lamb's 82nd birthday. Many friends from St. Andrews and vicinity sent cards of greeting on this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Ron Murray, Town of Mount Royal, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Lilly, of Lachute, were guests at the Lilly-Snowdon home on Saturday.

Cushing

Miss Annie and Mr. Jack McDowell, of Montreal, arrived Friday night for a week-end at "Glenifer". Their sisters, Janet and Betty, joined them on Saturday.

Master Graham Dougall, of Cote St. Luc, was the guest of his uncle, Mr. A. T. Graham, for the week-end. His parents visited at the Graham home on Sunday, and their son returned home with them.

Mrs. A. Graham is spending a week in Toronto attending the Dominion Convention of the Canadian Authors, being held in Hart House, Toronto University. Before returning home she will be the guest of Mrs. George Walker, of Ottawa, also attend "Pageant Day" of the Quebec W.I. at Macdonald College June 28, and the evening banquet.

Mrs. Hattie Wilkins, of St. Jerome, is visiting her sister, Mrs. A. Starnes, for several weeks.

Mrs. Archie Graham was honored by being invited to join the luncheon of the Carlyle Reading Club of Montreal, at the home of Mrs. A. Hanley on the St. Jerome Road last Tuesday afternoon, and by special request, gave a reading of several of her poems.

Mrs. S. H. Beecher is spending a few days at her cottage, "Lilac Lodge".

Mrs. H. Bailley, who has been spending the last two weeks in hospital at Hawkesbury, returns home this week — to the pleasure of her many friends.

Cemetery Corporation annual meeting held at Mille Isles

Morin Heights — At the annual meeting of the Mille Isles Protestant Cemetery Corporation, held June 5, the president, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, was re-elected, as well as the four directors, Messrs. Gilbert Ryan, Walter Maxwell, Albert Fraser and Victor Ward, and the secretary-treasurer, Miss Lilly Pollock.

Appreciation was expressed to Col. Garnet M. Strong for his generous assistance in the restoration of the old Methodist Cemetery in Mille Isles. This cemetery now will come under the direction of the Board, along with the Anglican and Presbyterian cemeteries in Mille Isles.

A campaign for funds towards the maintenance of the Methodist Cemetery will be carried out by Mr. Amos Kerr, of Lakefield, and Mr. Alex McCambly, of Morin Heights.

ORGANIZED FARMERS

Nelson, B.C. (CP) — British Columbia farmers are over-organized, Agriculture Minister F. Richter said here. Suggesting a greater liaison between producers and consumers, he said 92 farmer organizations are striving in 92 different ways to achieve the same end.

Avoca

Mrs. Cecil McFaul, of Winter Park, Florida, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Geo. Kelly, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Howard Smith — also visiting her sister, Mrs. James Bates, of Lachute, and Mrs. Wm. Andrews, of Ottawa, and her brother, Mervin, of Calumet.

Mr. and Mrs. Donna Currie and family, of Montreal, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. MacLeod.

Pte. Donald McCallum, of Petawawa, spent the week-end with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Hand and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Burwash and children, all of Ottawa, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arthurs, over the week-end.

Sudden Bereavement

People of this vicinity were shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. George Bennett, of Harrington. Sincere sympathy is expressed to Mr. Bennett and daughter, (Glenna) Mrs. Trineer, of Tennessee, U.S.A.

A well attended dinner was given by the members of the Baptist Churches of Avoca and Rivington in the Community Hall. Friends attended from Montreal, Ottawa, Brownsburg, Buckingham, Thurso, Grenville, Calumet, and visitors from as far away as Florida.

Please keep in mind the afternoon tea and sale on Saturday, June 24, in the Community Hall, sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of the United Church of Avoca.

The Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Toller and family are leaving for a holiday at Muskoka Lakes and Hamilton, where Mrs. Toller will meet with her class associates at McMaster University, which she attended a few years ago. Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. Toller's mother, who has been visiting them for some time, after the holiday will return to her home in Edmonton, Alta.

4-Millionth vehicle from Oshawa plant

Oshawa — The 4,000,000th vehicle built in Oshawa drove from the assembly line at General Motors of Canada on June 16, 53 years after the first McLaughlin-Buick was produced here.

The car, a white Pontiac four-door sedan, came off the line without ceremony. It was part of an export shipment of 10 similar cars destined for the GM distributor at Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

GM said it took 30 years to build its first million cars and trucks, 13 years to build the second million, five-and-a-half years to build the third and five years to build the fourth.

Production schedules at General Motors of Canada run currently at about 1,000 cars and trucks a day. Passenger car assembly is a two-shift operation. Present employment at GM in Oshawa exceeds 12,000 people. The company's total employment including its Windsor parts warehouses and service training centres across Canada is 14,200.

Mother's Vacation

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Oh dear, I could do with a splendid holiday
In a complete vacuum."

— From Christopher Fry's "The Lady's Not for Burning"

Vacation plans are in the minds of everyone! Half the fun of a holiday lies in anticipating its joys. Son is talking about camp or working on a farm. Daughter is looking forward to a trip or to her best chum visiting with her at the family cottage. Dad is overhauling his fishing tackle — but what about mother?

The hours of the average homemaker are much longer than those of women in any other occupation. There is nothing new about this — but there is an increased tempo in modern living and greater demands on mother's reserve energy.

To far too many homemakers, the summer months are the most taxing ones of the whole year. Shopping for addition to the summer outfits for all the family — re-modelling last year's clothes, figuring out costs of vacation plans, plus extra outlay for entertainment of guests, trying out new menus to tempt flagging appetites in the torrid weather, who would choose to fill a mother's role during July and August?

In the many vacation areas, part-time or full-time domestic assistance suddenly disappears to the summer resorts. During their brief prosperous season, the motels and tourist centres just must have abundant help in the kitchen, dining room and bedroom work. The operators of these vacation resorts are in a financial position to offer fantastically high wages. No ordinary household can compete with their scale of pay.

What can be done about this situation? Just accepting an unsatisfactory summer for mother in so far as any real change from her regular household duties, is decidedly unfair. Mother needs a vacation as much as anyone. Feeling sorry for herself is exhausting for her emotional health. All summer the constant heavy demands on her physical reserves frequently leave her very little optimism or energy for the Autumn work. Surely mother and father together can discover some partial solution to mother's vacation problem! "Where there's a will, there's a way" still makes good sense.

Every household has its own peculiar set-up and so contrasting solutions appeal to different home makers. — But the very fact that her partner in marriage is tackling this knotty point with her will put new heart into mother.

In one home, Monday Wash-Day during the summer months without the usual outside help paid by the hour invariably ended up with mother laid low with a sick headache brought on by fatigue. A decision was reached to send out the washing to a commercial laundry and this proved to be an excellent investment in mother's health. One husband bought a much needed new combination washing and drying machine as a summer surprise for his wife. Still another family, with school age children at home, were organized by Dad to give Mother more help with the housework, especially on Wash Day.

A family trip still leaves mother with the major responsibility for supervising the children and keeping them from distracting dad's attention when he is driving. A carefree vacation for mother and dad, without their children, is strongly advocated by many marriage counsellors. This is an excellent cement for a happy partnership. Mother and father have a chance to talk without interruption from the "small fry". They can recall their honeymoon days and discover in a new way what good company the other person is!

This plan is difficult to carry out when the children are pre-school age, unless there is a willing granny, aunt or housekeeper whom the youngsters know and love, who will "double" for mother. Little folk are usually best looked after by a mother-substitute in their own home, following their usual routine.

But once boys and girls are of school age, a camp holiday for son and daughter sometimes leaves the parents free to vacation together. In some families a "barter" arrangement has worked out. Ellen Johnstone looked after the Browns' children for a week while their parents got away in July. Then in August, June Brown took on Ellen's twins, and for the first time in ten years, mother and father Johnston went holidaying alone together.

Brownsburg — On Monday evening, June 12, the past-presidents of the Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 71, who attended a buffet dinner preceding the short business meeting, were very pleasantly surprised when they discovered that a "Past-Presidents' Night" had been organized in their honor.

The ladies were each given a lovely corsage of pink carnations, and were seated at the head-table for dinner. Mrs. R. Summers expressed appreciation for the generous work performed by these members, and presented each with a gift from the Senior Branch — a lovely mother-of-pearl brooch with the Legion crest. All the ladies who have held the office of president since formation of Branch 71 were present, with the exception of Mrs. T. Williams, who was unable to attend because of recent illness.

Several ladies of the Lachute Legion Auxiliary were guests at this dinner. Two other welcome guests were Mrs. J. T. Seary's sister, Mrs. Guanzeroli of Rosemount, and Mrs. A. W. J. Chacksfield's sister, Miss M. Morris, of Montreal.

Several games of bingo were enjoyed by those present.

Green grows the spinach

(Consumer Section)

The tender and crumpled, glossy dark green leaves of spinach have a specially nice taste when they come straight from local gardens to your dinner plate or salad bowl.

Spinach is a good warm day vegetable because it takes a cool preparation and almost no time at all to cook. For 6 servings buy 1½ pounds or 2 bags of fresh spinach. Wash in plenty of cold water, lifting the leaves out of the water and breaking off any large stalks. No more water is needed for cooking than that which clings to the leaves after washing. Sprinkle salt over spinach, cover pot tightly and when steam escapes from under the cover, time it for 3 to 5 minutes. Spinach should be thoroughly drained before serving. To help do this, cut through the leaves with a sharp knife before draining.

Although fresh spinach needs only butter for seasoning, it's fun to be even a little bit adventurous.

The Consumer Section at Ottawa suggests seasoning this leafy green vegetable according to the kind of meat it accompanies on the dinner plate. For example, spinach served with chicken is specially nice seasoned with sautéed, blanched silvered almonds. Sour cream seasoned to taste with salt, pepper and nutmeg and spooned over hot drained spinach makes it a delicious vegetable for serving with veal; while lamb couples up to a spinach which has had ¼ teaspoon of rosemary sprinkled over it before cooking.

When school's out, bike riding booms

— By Carol Lane — ("Tips on Touring")

One thing every mother knows — when school's out, bike riding booms. July to September are the worst months, Saturday the most dangerous day.

Here are some tips for adults and particularly parents who want to help keep young bike riders safe:

Teach children safe bicycling practices.

According to a recent survey, bike riders violate the law in four out of five bike-car accidents. Stress the necessity of obeying all traffic laws. Traffic lights and signs are for bicycle riders too.

Teach the children to stay on the right, ride with traffic in single file, never zigzag.

Keep bicycles in perfect condition.

When traffic is heavy, have children dismount and push their bicycles across the street, staying within the crosswalks.

Finally, don't allow the youngsters to bicycle at night unless it's absolutely necessary. If they do, make sure the bicycle has a headlight and rear reflector. Have the children wear glowing or light-colored clothing that can easily be seen by motorists.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Deirdre Mungovan, Canadian Press Staff Writer

When Margaret and Jenny Gemmell of Brandon, Man., visited Sanibel Island in West Florida a few years ago, they were amazed at "the quantities of shells on the beach."

They turned their delight into an enterprise which has won them notice and satisfaction. From the thousands of shells they gathered they selected some 250 now on display in the Brandon Allied Arts Centre.

Many of the more interesting and unusual specimens are mounted for illustrated lectures given by the sisters.

The Misses Gemmell also create floral arrangements, jewelry and artistic pieces from their shells. "There is no limit to the usefulness and applicability of sea shells," said Miss Jenny, "and there is no limit to the joy experienced in studying them."

Barbecue Beef

During Queen Anne's reign, Englishmen of wit and joviality were honored if selected to wear a small golden gridiron badge which marked them as members of the famous old beefsteak clubs. Today the badge is a large chef's apron when Canadians take to cooking steaks over the grill in their backyards.

The consumer section, federal agriculture department, has these pointers for steak buyers:

For several servings of large beef steaks, allow ½ to ¾ pound per person. A porterhouse steak, the choicest of the large steaks, contains a T-shape bone and part of the round tenderloin. Allow 1½ inches in thickness for cooking.

The round and wedge bone sirloins which have lean meat, and the double and pin bone sirloin which have a greater amount of bone yet give fewer servings, should be cut at least 1½ inches thick.

A ½ to ¾-inches-thick top round steak with some marbling of fat through the lean is good for slower cooking on the barbecue grill. For tenderness, marinate or score prior to cooking.

Trim Fat

Small steaks such as the tenderloin or filet mignon, the T-bone and the club or wing steak should be cut at least 1½ inches thick to prevent any drying out while cooking. Before barbecuing, trim the fat from the outer edge and use the trimmings to rub over the grill to prevent any meat sticking. Score edges of steak, keep the grill high above the flames and turn steaks with tongs.

A tested barbecue sauce for meat specifies: 2 tbsps. brown sugar, 1½ tsps. dry mustard, ½ to ¾ tsp. chilli powder, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 1½ tsps. spicy meat sauce, 3 tbsps. vinegar, ¼ cup finely chopped onion and 3 cups tomato juice.

Mix brown sugar and seasonings. Add remaining ingredients and mix. Simmer until thick about 30 minutes. Makes 3 cups. Use with beef, lamb, minced meat patties or spareribs.

The radish patch

Radishes are supposed to be one of the most ancient of cultivated plants, having been grown in China for thousands of years and in Egypt long before the building of the pyramids. In the Orient today a radish is grown for use as a winter vegetable, and in Egypt one is cultivated for its leaves only. Although there are some people in our country who use radishes for a cooked vegetable, they are primarily a salad crop. The tangy, peppery flavor of radishes contrasts well with the mild flavor of new crisp greens. People who are especially fond of this little vegetable like to eat it as is, with or without salt.

Whole radishes are also popular shaped into "roses" or "accordions" and used as edible garnishes for cold meat platters, salad or sandwich plates, also hors d'oeuvres trays.

To make the roses: select well shaped radishes. Remove root ends and all but one or two small leaves. With a sharp knife, cut thin strips of peel from the top down to and almost through the stem. Two rows of petals may be cut — one from the middle down, the other from the top to the middle. Chill in ice water until petals curl.

To make the accordions: cut radishes crosswise in paper-thin slices, three quarters of the way through the radish. Chill in ice water.

Radishes are sold in bunches or topped and packed in perforated plastic bags. Stored in the refrigerator, topped radishes keep their crispness for a week or so.

The Consumer Section at Ottawa suggests using radishes in a garden salad bowl. It gives a fresh and colorful touch to the menu.

Garden Salad Bowl

10 Radishes (sliced), ½ cup sliced green onions, 1 bunch watercress, 1 cup chopped celery, 1 cup shredded cabbage, 1 cucumber (diced), French dressing.

Combine vegetables and toss together lightly with French dressing. 6 servings.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Calcium - Phosphorus Must Be Balanced

Livestock rations containing calcium greatly in excess of phosphorus have been found to reduce the digestibility or availability of protein, phosphorus, iodine, iron, manganese, and zinc. These rations have reduced rate and economy of gain in swine.

When fed to dry cows such rations have been found more likely to result in milk fever.

Dr. Bohstedt

Research indicates a desirable calcium-phosphorus ratio in a dairy ration is 1.0 to 1.5 parts calcium to 1.0 part phosphorus, or in actual amounts, about 0.37 percent calcium and 0.28 percent phosphorus. This is especially true with high producing cows. Proportionately lower amounts of each would suffice for low producers or for beef cattle.

In dairy regions, the growing of legume forage is almost axiomatic and these forages are rich in calcium but contain only a moderate amount phosphorus. Alfalfa, for instance, has 6 times as much calcium as phosphorus and most of the clovers and other legumes have comparable amounts of the two minerals. The excess of calcium is aggravated by adding ground limestone or calcium carbonate to the grain mixture for dairy cattle and the depressant effects of excessive calcium intake are noted.

With swine, increasing the amounts of calcium while holding the phosphorus at more or less constant levels, resulted in declining rate and economy of gain. Calcification of bones, as gauged by the ash content of ribs, was affected relatively little.

High levels of calcium have been found to interfere with assimilation of other minerals, particularly phosphorus. A calcium-phosphorus ratio of 2 to 1 or higher impairs the utilization of the phosphorus of phytic acid. Too much calcium in the diet of chicks depresses assimilation of manganese, iodine, and zinc.

In experiments with dry cows, California workers used low-calcium rations, no legume forage and no supplemental calcium. The ration kept the para-thyroid glands active and responsive to sudden demands for calcium in the blood on freshening, resulting in decreased incidence of milk fever.

It seems the high calcium rations frequently fed to dairy cows do not benefit them, but are a tribute to the cow's apparent ability to tolerate them. What harm is done from a depressing effect of excessive calcium on the absorption of other nutrients is not readily evident, but this undesirable effect has been proved.

Question: I read where Cornell University reported milking cows got enough salt from salt blocks. Does this mean that with access to salt blocks we do not need to mix any loose salt with the grain?

Answer: The Cornell test was conducted with cows on pasture, therefore in the warm time of year and favorable for licking block salt. Considering the fact that salt blocks are used in various ways, at times in barn yards and during cold winter weather, it is advisable to mix one percent salt in the grain, with additional block or loose salt in suitable containers and accessible to the cows.

Grenville C.I.P. takes delivery of 1-millionth cord local pulpwood

Grenville, Que. — The Grenville Woodlands Division of Canadian International Paper Company took delivery last week of the 1,000,000th cord of pulpwood purchased from local woodlots over an eight-year span. The division is one of the largest consumers of purchased wood in the province.

To mark the occasion, Omer Lapointe, a St. Andrews East farmer, was presented with a power saw by Lands and Forests Minister Bona Arsenault, who stressed the importance of the private woodlot owner in the provincial economy. He stated that pulp and paper companies should buy as much of their wood supplies as possible from private operators.

Earlier, Mr. Arsenault visited the company's 18,000-acre Harrington Forest Farm, a demonstration centre for the theory and practice of tree growing, land use and conservation. One of the areas in which he expressed particular interest was the farm nursery from which 630,000 seedlings were made available for reforestation in the Rouge Valley this year. Eventual production will be 5,000,000 seedlings annually. The young trees are distributed at cost to local farmers and members of the Rouge Valley Association.

F. A. Harrison, vice-president, Woodlands, C.I.P., pointed out that during the past eight years purchase of the one million cords of softwood and hardwood from 2,500 farmers poured close to 20 million dollars into the local economy.

Mr. Arsenault praised the work of the forest farm and said that the reforestation program coincided with plans being prepared by his department for wide-scale reforestation throughout Quebec.

C.I.P. vice-president F. A. Harrison, centre, explains the growth and development of a seven-year-old pine at Harrington Forest Farm to Hon. Bona Arsenault, Quebec Minister of Lands and Forests. Grenville Division manager M. R. Wilson is at the left. Mr. Arsenault visited the division last week, and presented a power saw to Omer Lapointe, district farmer, who delivered the 1,000,000th cord of pulpwood purchased from private woodlots.

Delivery of the one-millionth cord of wood purchased by Canadian International Paper Company's Grenville Division from private woodlot owners was made last week by Omer Lapointe (centre), farmer at St. Andrews East. To mark the occasion, a power saw donated by C.I.P. was presented to him by Hon. Bona Arsenault, Quebec Minister of Lands and Forests. F. A. Harrison, left, vice-president of C.I.P., congratulated Mr. Lapointe.

425 Ayrshires shipped to Cuba this week

One of the largest shipments of Canadian dairy cattle, if not the largest, ever assembled for export in one group, are being assembled in Montreal for shipment to Cuba June 21. The shipment comprises 425 head of Registered Ayrshires, part of an order for I.N.R.A., San Cristobal, Pinar de Ria, Cuba.

The Cubans have now purchased over 1,000 head of Registered Ayrshires since the first shipment about six months ago. Dr. Rolando Fernandez, in charge of the Cuban Government Agricultural Agency, I.N.R.A., visited Canada twice last fall previous to placing the orders. The Ayrshire cattle are ideal for this market because of their hardy characteristics and their ability to adapt themselves to a wide climate variation.

The shipment is all bred heifers or young cows. The exporters are R. R. Ness & Sons, Ltd., Howick, Que.

Twenty-eight head were selected in P.E.I., 52 in Eastern Ontario and 130 in Western Ontario. The remainder are from Huntingdon and Chateauguay Counties, 142; Eastern Townships, 44; Argenteuil County, 18; Pontiac County 11.

Does weather affect your truck engine?

It sure does. . . . Many drivers say a truck runs better in humid weather, others say their truck likes it clear and dry.

Here are the facts from Texaco. They say a truck engine rated at 200 h.p. delivers a full 200 horses at sea level, in dry air and at a temperature of 60 degrees F. This is "Standard Weather" as set up by Society of Automotive Engineers.

But at 100% humidity — rain — that same truck produces only 196 h.p. This is because the air coming into the carburetor contains water vapor crowding out some of the oxygen. That same moisture does decrease the knocking tendency, so your motor runs smoother, but with less power.

Engine horsepower output generally follows the barometer. When it is high — a good day — the air is heavy and you get top power. When the barometer drops, the air is lighter and there is less oxygen to convert into power. At high altitudes the lower the air pressure, and the less power from the air. This is why your gas mileage drops at high altitudes.

4-H Apple Club in Ontario

With 13 members and prospects of more, the first 4-H apple club was organized this spring in Durham County, Ontario. Objects of the club are to demonstrate the value of good cultural practices and to focus attention on costs. Marketing, storage, grading and packaging are other topics that will be studied. The overall 4-H objective of developing leadership and providing training in good citizenship will of course apply to this new project as well.

For project work, members will prune four trees in the home orchard, keep cost records on at least one acre of orchard and will cooperate with the parents in the spraying and overall management of the farm orchard. At achievement day next fall each member will exhibit two half-bushel lots of apples of different varieties.

The club is being sponsored by the Bowmanville Kiwanis Club.

Good calves — good returns

One of the great educational values of 4-H work is the training which the members receive in the raising and marketing of farm products. This phase of club work is emphasized by local leaders and extension officials, particularly in view of the ever changing scene in the economics of farming.

The experiences of two beef club members in Halifax County, N.S., are of interest in this regard. The members selected good calves and kept accurate records of production costs on each calf, which incluued: a value of $25 at birth; hay consumed, $31.65; pasture, $5.50; mill feeds, $40.53 — a total of $102.68.

The calves were marketed through the new Co-operative Abattoir near Halifax. One dressed out at 540 pounds, choice grade, and brought $221.40 — a net return to the club member of $118.72. The second calf dressed 472 pounds with a net income of $90.84.

While these two members were no doubt encouraged with the results of their 4-H beef feeding projects, the market returns do not reveal the full story. Of equal significance is their personal development, and what they learned through the management and responsibilities assumed in caring for their individual projects.

Packaging fruits and vegetables for freezing

It will soon be time to start harvesting and freezing garden produce. Dr. Jean David, of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, makes the following recommendations:

For successful freezing, gather the fruits and vegetables at the proper time; that is, when they have reached the ideal stage of maturity at which you would have picked them if they were to be eaten at once. Prepare your material (adding sugar in the case of fruit, and blanching in the case of the vegetables) and pack in suitable containers.

The ideal container is one which is perfectly water-tight and impervious to water vapour as well, so that it will protect the contents against drying-out and dessication (two of the commonest causes of loss of quality in frozen foods). Rigid, waxed cartons, and those in which a waxed or polythene bag is inserted, are the most commonly used.

The same general remarks apply to the freezing of meat. This must also be protected against dessication and oxidation, which cause fatty materials to become rancid. Ordinary waxed paper or ordinary aluminium foil should never be used for wrapping meat, because they allow water vapour to escape. It is better to use polythene, special aluminum foil for freezing, special cellophane, Cry-o-vac, Saran plyofilm or other materials which have the property of preventing frozen food products from becoming dessicated during storage.

WELL-DRILLING FIRM DEMANDS PAYMENT—

Ayersville finances referred to Quebec

The regular Ayersville Council meeting last week was chaired by Councillor Douglas Simon, pro-mayor, in the absence of Mayor G. Paquette.

At the request of Notary Richard Valois, it was moved by Councillor Durocher and Councillor Gauthier that the municipality should (1) acquire from Allan Hay, proprietor, a part of streets 725-26, 728-18; (2) acquire a certain piece of land from the Argenteuil Regional Hospital; and (3) exchange lots with Mme Benoit Morrissette.

A letter from the law firm of Marchesseault & Rousseau, St. Jerome, informed the Council that Jean-Marc Methot had been assessed a fine of $20 by Judge Omer Coté, upholding judgment of Justice Cousineau in the case of Ayersville (represented by Police Chief Marcel Therrien) vs. Mr. Methot.

Those Artesian Wells

The two artesian wells sunk by Puits du Québec Enr., to the order of this municipality at a cost of $25,500, came up for discussion — when Mr. Lizotte, president of the company, and his lawyer, Mr. Laflamme, of Quebec, appeared before the Council. The lawyer pressed the claim of his client, stating that the drilling had been executed on resolution of the Council and on estimates of the engineers, Desjardins & Sauriol. It was contended that the company had fulfilled its contract, the work had been executed, the volume of water approved, and work inspected by the Department of Health. . . . Notwithstanding, all bills for payment had been ignored.

In the absence of the mayor, Councillor Gaston Plamondon stated the case for the municipality in this disagreement. He showed a report which declared the proceedings illegal, since they had been authorized on a single resolution instead of on a by-law, and since there had been no loan by-law passed for the project. Moreover, the resolution had mentioned only one well, whereas the company had drilled two.

Councillor Plamondon then moved, seconded by Councillor Cyr, that the whole financial muddle of the municipality be referred to the Municipal Commission at Quebec, and that the Commission be asked to intervene in the administration and direct the Council's course of procedure.

The meeting was adjourned until the regular monthly assembly in July, with police matters and garbage disposal heading the agenda.

Neighbors rally to assist with farm cropping

Arundel — Mr. Wm. Morrison has been confined to hospital for over six weeks, and while progressing nicely, will not be home for a while. In his absence, his friends got together for a "bee" and, assembling with trucks and tractors, cut the ensilage in his large field for his silo. This was a neighborly act of friendship, and he and his family are most grateful to all who helped out in his absence.

Rural Bar delegates meet Premier

Photographed at the Rural Bar Association's conclave with the premier in Quebec — J. Marchildon, S. Déry, the Hon. Jean Lesage, Fernand Legault (president) and M. Archambault.

Officers of the Rural Bar Association of Quebec — of which a Lachute barrister, Fernand Legault, Q.C., is president — gathered at Quebec recently to confer with Premier Jean Lesage. . . . The premier assured the lawyers that steps will be taken to provide all judicial districts, in order of priority, with court houses necessary for legal proceedings.

Questioned on "order of priority", the premier intimated that geographical needs would be a prime consideration. "For instance, Gaspé and the North Shore area, which presently have no court houses."

President Fernand Legault read to the premier certain resolutions of the Association, and expressed regret that the delegation could not meet the Attorney General, Georges Lapalme, who is presently in Europe. The Hon. Gérard Cournoyer, Minister of Transport and former president of the Rural Bar, was present at the interview.

The delegation presented nine requests to the provincial authorities, and invited the premier to attend the annual conference of their Association, to be held October 6-7-8 at St. Donat. The premier warmly commended the role and functions of the Rural Bar Association of Quebec, and extended good wishes.

Enjoyable outing by members of Art Association

An unusual outing was enjoyed by the Argenteuil Art Association last Saturday afternoon, when between 60 and 70 members and friends visited "Montigny", the home of Madame Westcott Papineau at St. Placide — a stately, tree-shaded residence overlooking the broad expanse of the Ottawa River.

To enter the interior of this home is like stepping into the past of French Canada. Eighteenth century oil portraits by Plamondon and pastels by Delongpré, depict the seigneur, Louis Joseph Papineau, with portraits and miniatures of his descendants, furnishings and curios from the Manor House at Montebello (around 1830), and links with the seigniorial days of the Ottawa Valley. There are rare pieces, including candelabra and a gilded ornamental clock from the families of Bonaparte, to evidence the associations of Papineau with historic France; also early-American inlaid furniture, canopied four-poster beds and other interesting items which lend charm and antiquity to this home, in its setting of well-kept gardens and tall, stately poplars.

Mme Papineau and her daughter, Mme Chs. Bech, graciously described the objects of interest. The guests were served refreshments before departing.

Members of the Art Association, under the presidency of Mrs. L. T. Porter, are grateful for the hospitality of their hostesses and for the opportunity of this interesting tour. Visitors were present from St. Andrews, Brownsburg, Lachute, Calumet, Montreal, Morin Heights and elsewhere.

WHERE ARE THEY?

We often wonder why more of our business friends don't get out and argue for what they believe should be done by their Chamber of Commerce in the same convincing manner that they are capable of displaying in a coffee shop debate.

$500 Fine against projectionist, for obscene film

Aurèle Martini, arrested for showing an obscene film in the recent police raid at St. Canut on the occasion of a "stag" party, has been condemned to pay a fine of $500 and costs. The judge also ordered the confiscation of his equipment and films. The sentence provides for six months imprisonment in default of payment of the fine and court costs.

75th Anniversary celebrated at Baptist Church

It was a happy occasion on Saturday evening last which brought together members, adherents and friends of Lachute Baptist Church to celebrate its 75th anniversary. A children's service was held Friday evening, and upwards of 100 attended the Saturday banquet, at which Pastor Hisey filled the role of chairman.

Greetings from Dalesville were brought by Leslie Tomalty, deacon; from the Shantymen's Christian Association and Dovercourt Road Baptist Church, Toronto, by the Rev. J. Strachan; from the Montreal Association, by the Rev. C. Wilhelm of St. Martin, president of the Montréal Pastor's Fellowship.

Special guest and speaker of the evening was Dr. C. J. Loney, who holds an envious record of 53 years in the Baptist ministry, 46 of which have been spent as pastor of Stanley Avénue Baptist Church in Hamilton, Ont.

In his belief that Christians should be happy and "enjoy a good laugh at times", Dr. Loney related a few anecdotes and experiences during his long ministerial service — to the amusement of his audience. In a more serious vein, he spoke forcefully, taking his text from Proverbs 19:18; "The measure of every man is his vision," and urged all present to continue with their good work.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Strachan rendered a duet, "The Christ of the Cross", which was very much appreciated.

Special services continued over the week-end, with a large attendance.

Over the years, building up the Lachute Church to its present state of activity has indeed been a struggle, and credit is due to those who have worked so hard, particularly in renovating the old church and building a spacious hall with Sunday School classrooms and all modern facilities.

The Rev. Hisey expressed his appreciation to all, and closed with the benediction.

"The Scene" IN BROWNSBURG

Mrs. Howard Elliot, one of the three local census takers, states that she received a friendly welcome when calling on citizens in Brownsburg during the recent population survey. It looks as though the ethnic origin question caused little concern in this area.

* * *

The Jackman Construction Co. development in the south end of Brownsburg is finally underway. The "on again — off again" reports were based on some people reclaiming their deposit when the down-payment required was set at 10% rather than the 5% they had hoped for.

Wonder if the radar speed-timer will be forgotten? A new system of speed control was tried locally on the week-end, and it seemed to slow down some of the uninitiated, but how long can an "operatorless", "recorderless" pair of insulated wires stretched across the road be effective? One might have expected to see the speed trap itself in operation at some time over the week-end.

ONE CONCLUSION

If the practice of men working on two jobs is as bad as some people say, one thing becomes very clear: It simply means that the man looking for the second job is not satisfied with working 40 or less hours per week. The solution is just as clear: Back to the six-day, 48-hour week.

Petitions received by Town Council for reinstatement of police force

The Lachute Municipal Council heard a petition presented by Bernard Jenkins and signed by some 300 persons, requesting that "the same consideration be given to the application of Mr. Arthur Whiteway as will be given to any other applicant for the position of Chief of Police for the Town of Lachute." The petition added: "We would further request that the excellent service given by Mr. Whiteway and the other members of the police force during his previous term of office be taken into consideration." The petition was read following the opening of tenders for the position, as was a letter signed jointly by six ministers of the Argenteuil Ministerial Association. Mr. Jenkins also read another letter, which, he pointed out, was his own opinion and unsolicited.

All the appeals were similar in vein, suggesting that the punishment to the policemen had been too severe. Following is the text of the ministers' letter, signed by the Rev. Wilson Bridge, Lachute United Church; the Rev. Cyrus R. Lang, St. Simeon's Church; the Rev. Winter C. LeCras, Christ Church; the Rev. C. W. Sorley, People's Church; the Rev. James Armour, Presbyterian Church; and the Rev. W. Lorne Hisey, Lachute Baptist Church:

Letter from Clergy

To the Mayor and Members of Lachute Town Council:

We, the Protestant ministers of Lachute, having heard with alarm that the Chief of Police and certain members of the Force are no longer in office, in view of a recent incident outside the town limits, do herewith forward the following for your consideration — that, while we do not in any way condone the recently alleged happening, we nevertheless feel, in view of the very fine record of work carried out by Police Chief Whiteway and members of the Force, that the whole matter be reconsidered, and request that a warning be given and the Chief and members of the Force be re-instated, and that nothing be done that will in any way jeopardise the fine spirit which has existed between the French and English members of the community.

It was recently brought to our attention that the town of Lachute was one of the best policed towns between here and Montreal during the last twelve months. We feel that the Police were victims of a situation for which they were not entirely responsible, and consequently that the punishment was out of all proportion to the alleged offence.

* * *

Citizen's Letter

"I sincerely believe that the feelings I here express are those of an overwhelming majority of the French and English citizenry of Lachute and district.

"Our Police Force committed an unintentional error when they solicited outside entertainers for a reception in honor of a crippled French Canadian fellow employee when he was about to be married. Every member of the Police Force realizes this and is heartily sorry to have committed this error. We must not overlook the fact that there was no malicious intent. Their true intention was to give this man a friendly send-off and monetary assistance for his wedding day. Such was the fine esprit-de-corps which existed within our Police Force.

"Under these conditions a short suspension, a severe verbal reprimand and a warning of discharge for any future occurrence would have been sufficient. Certainly we, as taxpayers, have no moral right to sit in complete judgment of these men — take their jobs, defame their reputation, persecute their families and cast them out of our community as criminals. Surely every one of us has at some time been involved in situations of which we would not have others know — and, but by the grace of God, would have been publicized as in the case of these men. In such cases have we not all emerged from such situations a little wiser, thankful and better citizens?

"It has been my privilege, during the past winter, to serve as chairman of the first Regional Welfare Coordinating Committee to be organized in this area. It involved nearly every worthwhile organization in this community. Its aim was to coordinate assistance to our less fortunate citizens. Race and creed were no barrier. My association with the representatives of each of these groups was extremely pleasant because of that fact. Now, I find, several of these same organizations demanded the resignations of the most efficient Police Force in the history of our town. I find it hard to believe, from my associations with these people, that they would intend that harm to reputation or persecution should result from their action. I believe the wishes of the Catholic clergy and of these other organizations are to stamp out and make unavailable all livid programs, to discourage their use locally and to encourage our citizenry to partake of a higher plane of entertainment at these so-called "stags".

"To a program of this nature I feel sure that my fellow citizens, French and English-speaking, wholeheartedly agree, whether or not they are members of any organization. To this end they can join forces regardless of their cultural or religious affiliations.

"With the above in mind I challenge the members of all those good organizations, the Clergy and the Mayor and Councillors of the Town of Lachute, to demonstrate to their fellow citizens, to the Province at large and particularly to these unfortunate policemen and their chief that they are all sincere CHRISTIANS by extending to these men that greatest of all Christian qualities — FORGIVENESS!

"Surely two weeks off work without pay and the persecution which they and their families have suffered by the deeds of some of our citizens is far more severe punishment than the "error" would dictate.

"When they realized it, these men readily admitted their error and to a man they stood and acted like real gentlemen in front of their accusers at the open Council meeting. Let us then give them a chance, with our full support and confidence to redeem their positions in our community. Let them taste foregiveness by a truly Christian community!

"Not only will the Town save the money that it has cost to bring this force up to its peak efficiency, but we will retain this strong unit in the fight against crime within our town limits; I am sure they would become crusaders against the very thing all Roman Catholic churches, all Protestant churches, all good organizations and all good citizens are trying to combat!

"For those concerned about the possible legal aspects to this case, the full support by this community for reinstatement is the first and most urgent step to be taken."

(Signed) Bernard Jenkins

Celebration, bugle parade, on St. Jean Baptiste night

A crowd estimated at 2,000 people, and around 500 automobiles, gathered at the Richelieu Park last Saturday evening for the St. Jean Baptiste celebrations. High enthusiasm was evident, especially among the younger folk, who sang lustily in old-time community songs before the bonfire, and watched the fireworks with wrapt fascination.

A surprise element in the celebrations was a band parade preceding the program. This feature was an impromptu affair: the Rev. Father Maurice Valois of St. Janvier, on hearing plans for a celebration here the previous day, offered the services of the trumpet band from his parish. The young musicians arrived accordingly, paraded through the streets with a very creditable performance, stopping briefly before the home of Mme Gaetan Valois (mother of the St. Janvier curé) to present arms and pay their respects.

Messrs. Paul-Emile Barbeau, Roméo Legault and Roger Regimbal led the singsong. Mayor Fernand Legault congratulated the organizers and set light to the bonfire, which received the blessing of the Rev. Curé Mailloux. The Ayersville-Lachute Guide troop enacted games around the bonfire, and a fireworks display terminated the program.

Tender $118,767 for filtration plant equipment

Three tenders for equipment for Lachute's proposed filtration plant were opened by Mayor Fernand Legault, at the adjourned session of Council held on Wednesday of last week. After considerable discussion, the tender submitted by the firm of Francis-Hankin was accepted in principle. This tender was for the sum of $118,767.

The firm of Upton, Bradeen & James Ltd. submitted a tender for the sum of $174,000, and according to Engineer Paul Laliberté, it did not comply with the specifications, as they tendered on one type of system only. On this basis, the tender was not taken into consideration. The other tendering firm was Hydro-Dynamics, for the price of $112,300.

The tender of Francis-Hankin was accepted on the recommendation of the engineers as this firm has considerably more experience, and the break-down of the various sections of equipment tied in closer with the estimate of the engineers.

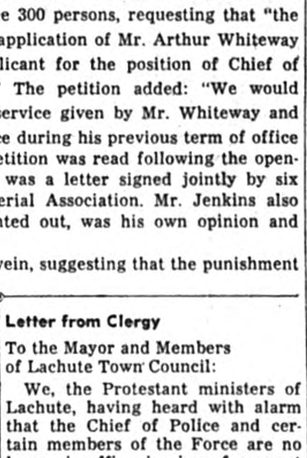

The prices do not include the building, heating system, electricity, dam, or water main to the existing system.

The break-down is as follows:

Graver Reactivator	$27,241
Miller Blocks	15,812
Feeders & Chlorinator (Wallace - Tiernan)	13,659
Piping Gate Valves & Pumps	32,003
Control System (Hankin - Honeywell)	24,141
Miscellaneous	5,911
	$118,767

Applicants for new auto drivers' permits are advised that the Quebec Government personnel to conduct necessary tests and examinations will be stationed at the Court House, Grace Street, Lachute, on July 19 next.

To open practice in Lachute

W. M. C. (Bill) Steeves, who today was admitted to the Bar of the Province of Quebec. The younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard M. Steeves, of Lachute, he is a graduate of Lachute High School. He was graduated in 1956 from Bishop's University, where he received his B.A. degree; took a post-graduate course in Economics at McGill University in 1957; and in 1960 received his B.C.L. (Bachelor of Civil Law) degree at the same institution. He will be opening a law practice in Lachute in the near future.

General business at Council session

Reverting to general business, after the discussion in Council, Mayor Legault commended the quick response of the firm of J. C. Wilson Ltd. in their offer to repair the fence along the river in front of the St. Julien Parish Church.

A request for permission to construct a wall around the B.A. oil and gasoline tanks was refused, due to zoning regulations. The request followed a demand by the Department of Transport for a retaining wall, to be eight feet high. Application for a permit had previously been refused by Richard Blais, building inspector. Mayor Legault assured the company's representative that the permit would not be refused without reason, and that the matter would be studied and decided upon prior to the July 5 meeting.

A request from the Department of Transport, for more adequate crossing warnings in Lachute, was tabled until such time as additional information on the cost of the equipment was determined.

Claims no notice or explanation given for dismissal

Roger Massie, former sergeant with the Provincial Police Traffic Department, has informed the publishers of The Watchman that he did not resign his position, as was stated in last week's paper. We therefore reprint the translation of a letter he latterly received:

"Following the letter from our director addressed to you on June 2, 1961, informing you that you had been relieved of your duties as an officer of the Provincial Police as of May 17, 1961, we would appreciate your sending without delay all uniforms and equipment pertaining to the Provincial Police."

(Mr. Massie claims he did not receive the letter here referred to and that, to date, no proper explanation has been given for his dismissal.)

Voice from Labrador

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

I should have plenty to interest you this time. . . . Our first guests came in Saturday, 13 of them this first trip. By the time everyone got things ship-shape, there was no time left to take any big trips. However, everyone fished the lake, and as luck would have it, the finest day of the season and not a fish was caught — not even a minnow.

On Sunday the guest whom I was guiding wanted a flying trip. That was O.K. with everyone too; all the others wanted the overnight trip. So we left at 7 a.m., headed for the upper Chebogama. A rough, nasty country, that is, if you happen to dislike the outdoors. Flying in, all that can be seen for miles is lakes and more lakes. We stayed at about 600 ft. altitude, to give me a chance to study the waters. The snow and ice is still in evidence all around. . . .

But to get down to the important part — fishing. We got in to shore about 8.30 a.m. and started fishing right away. Not a rise of any kind until just before noon. Then an old Northern Pike of 7 lbs. took the lure. I thought for a time I was back in Lachute (but one look at the ice changed my mind). I cut a couple of hefty fillets off this, and we had them for lunch. Not bad at all, because of the cold waters. Back fishing right after lunch and things started to pick up a little. The next victim was a Splake of 5½ lbs. This may surprise a lot of you folks. Splake have been natural fish to these waters for years without any artificial rearing; Nature took a hand there. Then the next to come our way was a speckled, of 2 lbs. even, a very nice fish. Then nothing happened until five o'clock. A small Ouananiche of 4 lbs. came visiting, and stayed. Then we struck some real sport! Two Ouananiche came fast — these were better in the weight class, both around 7 lbs. On the way back to the plane, another good hit; this time a laker of about 6 lbs.; not much fight to this one though. Rather strange — all these fish when examined had nothing in their stomachs except a black-looking moss. They must get this off the rocks, as all these same fish had teeth worn down close to the jaws. . . . Finally, about 11 p.m. to bed and all set for another day.

On Monday we flew in to the Molson Lake district which is famous for its Speckeld trout. However, this was one of those killer days. The winds were so strong that fishing was out of the question, and then the rains came. Imagine a whole day without even a strike. Even though Specks could be seen rising right beside the falls, they would not touch a bait. This lake is a real beauty spot. Hundreds of small islands, with heavy rapids and a waterfall at one end. I should imagine it is about 18 miles long, as by motor boat it takes 40 minutes to cover the distance. I got to bed about 11 p.m. after this jaunt.

* * *

Tuesday, June 20 —

Back to the Upper Chebougama but the winds had shifted to this spot. We were all ready to start fishing at 8 a.m., but didn't get at it until 2.30 p.m. The winds funnelled right across the lake into this small river. It was nigh impossible to hold a boat even with a motor in the current and the winds. Again, the first fish to hit was a Northern Pike. This about 3 lbs. Then on the way back to the plane another Spalke of over 7 lbs. This specimen really put up a battle. It was hooked in very fast water, and as soon as it felt the hooks, took off just like a Ouananiche; the only thing lacking was the jumping.

Heading back to home base was a real pleasure, as I was beat, bushed and what-have-you. We landed about 8.30 p.m., but by the time I got the fish cleaned and prepared for the freezer it was after 9.30. Even though it is a tough grind, the scenery alone is worth it. To be able to see thousands of small lakes within view when you rise up into the air, is beyond telling about. One of the strangest things I have seen, was three rivers all running different ways until they meet to form one big river which runs in the opposite direction!

At some time in the long forgotten past, before men inhabited this earth, Labrador must have been bombarded by meteors. All these small lakes are almost perfectly round; it looked as though some giant fist had puniched holes in the ground to let the waters have no inlets or outlets. Rainfall must keep them well filled. Another strange thing to see from the air, is furrows in the earth that look for all the world like a giant washboard. Maybe some of these giants we hear about used them for this purpose.)

Whoever coined the phrase "this drab earth", could never have seen Labrador from the air. There are lakes that run from crystal-clear to an almost red, due to the minerals in them. It's a wondrous country to see, and I hope to get to know it much better. Right now I'm dreaming of a canoe and walking trip across Labrador. That to me would be one of the greatest experiences. It will never come true, but I can dream anyway — about such details as how much dried food one would need, etc. Anyone want to share the dream?

* * *

Checking with some of the other guides, I find the fishing has not been too good for most of the visitors. One thing I found out, they do NOT want any kind of hardware. The gent I'm guiding tried everything in his outfit, and he sure has a lot. Not a strike of any kind, so I gave him a Badger Streamer and a Rebgold, used with a small spinner ahead of it. On the second cast he had hooked a Splake. This was taken on the Badger, but not a hit on the Rebgold. After about another ten minutes another fish was brought in and released; this a small Speckled, again taken on the Badger. This afternoon we are going to try a bunch of streamers, and I'll give you the results tonight. It was very sunny this morning, and maybe that had a lot to do with the fish not hitting. I guess they stop everything just to take a look at the sun, the same way we do at camp!

One of the guides just came in from a trip up the lake. His party had been using fly rods all day, had managed to get only seven fish up to 6 p.m., but from then on it was a ball; 54 Speckled were caught and released in about 1½ hours, then everything stopped, just like that. That's what makes fishing so interesting, the uncertainty. A great sport!

Scouting activities

Local Participation in Canadian Scout Jamboree

Boy Scouts of the Long Sault District are getting ready to take part in the Third Canadian Scout Jamboree, which will be held at Connaught Ranges, near Ottawa, from July 6 to 15.

Local Scouts participating are Gerry Bignell, Lachute, Robert Rutherford, Gerry Gervais and John Atkins, Brownsburg.

They have been selected as members of Quebec's Contingent for the Jamboree. The contingent, totalling 165 persons, will assemble at Camp Anderson near Choisy, 40 miles west of Montreal, on Monday, July 3rd.

The Scouts will spend three days forming their troops, getting acquainted, and becoming familiar with their equipment. The equipment includes tents of a new design built especially for the Quebecers attending the Jamboree, and they will be introducing it to Canadian Scouting.

The entire contingent will move up to the Jamboree on Thursday, July 6th, in a special train. Opening ceremonies will be held on July 7th with Governor-General Georges Vanier, Chief Scout for Canada, presiding.

Theme for the Jamboree is "Scouting from Sea to Sea" and the 10-day program will allow as much time as possible for Scouts from across Canada to meet, get acquainted, swap souvenirs, and taste each other's cooking.

Four sub-camps at the Jamboree will be made up so as to mix Scouts from across Canada. The sub-camps are named for famous Canadian explorers; Cartier, Champlain, Thompson, and MacKenzie. John W. Miner of Granby will be a sub-camp commander.

Bank of Montreal centennial scholarships

Six of Quebec's most outstanding students have been awarded second-phase Bank of Montreal, Canada Centennial Scholarships, worth $1,500 a year for three years, the bank has announced.

The winners are — Gilles Beaudry, of Three Rivers, a Science student at St. Joseph's Seminary there; Elaine Carducci, of Montreal, who is taking an arts course at the University of Montreal; Serge Laplante, of Montreal, U of M, arts; Gary Luxton, of Montreal, McGill, science; Dorothy Jean Milne, of St. Laurent, McGill, science; and Ralph C. S. Walker, of Montreal, McGill, arts.

Last year, the six Quebec students each received one of the 13 first-year $750 scholarships for this province — one of 48 in Canada. Choice of the 16 second-phase winners has now been made from these 48 by a national selection committee made up of leading Canadian educators.

Ability only, rather than geographical location, governed the second-phase selection, and Quebec led all other provinces with its six winners. The scholarships will be worth $1,500 to each student during the 1961-62 university year; and provided they maintain good grades, they will also be financed to the same extent through third and fourth year studies to graduation.

Eight Fellowships

At the conclusion of the present three-year phase in 1964, eight of the 16 B of M-sponsored graduates will be chosen for three-year fellowships of $3,000 a year for post-graduate study anywhere in Canada or abroad.

Then, in 1967, the two final Canada Centennial awards will be made — one in arts and one in science. These two awards will be in the amount of $5,000 to be used for further study anywhere in the world.

For this final contest all students who received B of M scholarships in 1960 will be eligible.

Recognition for promoting golf course facilities

With two championship 18-hole golf courses completed and a third in the making, Gilbert E. Ayers' interest in the game, and in providing outstanding golf facilities, was recognized by his having been made a complimentary member of the American Society of Golf Course Architects. The honor was accorded at the summer meeting of this Society, at the Seaview Golf and Country Club in Absecon, N.J.

New restrictions on power boats

Ottawa (CP) — It will be a federal offence for a boat towing a water-skier to have less than two persons aboard, under an amendment to the Criminal Code proposed in the Commons just recently.

The bill sets out that in addition to the boat operator a second person must be on board to keep watch; other provisions are that a boat towing a skier must not be operated in darkness or in a dangerous manner.

Lowest score on new golf course

Gerry Proulx, the popular golf pro now of "Golf Land", scored a 68, the lowest yet recorded on Lachute's new No. 2 course. It is reported Gerry sank his second shot, for a score of 2 on the 16th hole. Par for this new course is 72.

Dedication and tribute to minister at United Church service in Lachute

During service last Sunday morning in the Lachute United Church, the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, dedicated an oak offertory table in memory of the late William D. Pollock, who was for many years an elder and faithful member of this church. The table was given by his wife and members of the family, and was dedicated in the presence of a large congregation.

"Speaking for this congregation," said the Rev. Mr. Bridge, "I accept this beautiful memorial gift with our sincere appreciation, and with the assurance that not only will it help to perpetuate the memory of our long-time friend and faithful member, but will also add beauty and dignity to our chancel and add grace to the worship we offer to God — and we dedicate it to the glory of God and the use of His church." In the prayer of dedication he said, "And grant that, as we make use of this table, we may ever be mindful of Thy servant who loved the habitation of Thy house, and the place where Thy glory dwelleth."

The service was also the occasion of the minister's 25th anniversary of his ordination. Mr. Stewart Jones, an elder of the church, speaking to the congregation on behalf of the Session, congratulated the Rev. Wilson Bridge and expressed in well chosen words their appreciation and good wishes for the future. He said that God had

The Rev. Wilson Bridge

"blessed their minister not only with the gift of ready speech, but also given him a gift in expounding the Scriptures," and not only did they appreciate his services but extended their sincere good wishes for many years to come.

A very impressive service concluded with the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, at which three new members were received into the fellowship.

In hospital after car mishap

According to information from the St. Jerome hospital Tuesday night, three Lachute persons were under treatment following a car mishap near St. Canut earlier that evening.

Involved in the accident were Gordon Miner, of Thomas Street, his mother, Mrs. M. Miner, his infant daughter, and Miss Mary Preece. Mr. Miner was unhurt, but the two ladies and the child were detained for observation, and for injuries which were not described as serious.

Gordon Miner later stated that, near the Silica Plant on Route 41, a truck turned into his path and his car hit the vehicle broadside. The auto was considerably damaged. Mr. Miner and passengers were driving to Montreal to bring his wife to Lachute.

Bible School to open Monday at People's Church

On Monday morning, July 3, at 9 o'clock, the Summer Bible School will open at the People's Church, with the theme of the school, "Living by God's Time".

Quoting from the Director's Guide-book: "What children do not thrill to stories that begin 'Once upon a time'? With what interest we follow eventful journeys from Long Ago and Now. . . ."

"This three-dimensional thing called time — with its past, present, and future — is more significant than ever before. In past years men have mapped the earth's great masses and chartered the seas. Today they are thrusting out into vast unknown areas of the atmosphere. Tomorrow — who knows?"

What has this to do with Vacation Bible School and our choice of the theme "Living by God's Time"? Simply this: In these exciting days of high tension, split-second tempos and daring attempts to explore outer space, we feel an ever increasing sense of urgency to produce boys and girls to Christ as Saviour in God's "Now-Time", to make more understandable the Bible as the Book to live by, and to help pupils grow, change, mature, and become more Christ-like, more interested and intelligent Christians."

This great theme of "time" will be taught in such a simple way that even the youngest child in the school will understand. The school is properly graded, and the materials used are perfectly suited for each age-group.

This school should be a great blessing in the community, and the Rev. C. W. Sorley, his teachers and helpers, extend a warm welcome to all the children to attend.

Drawing at Brownsburg store

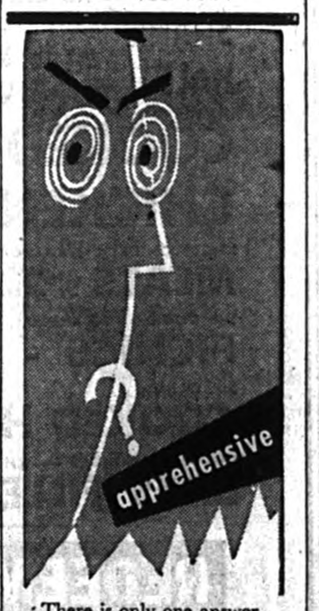

The Rev. Leo Clement selects the winning ticket in a drawing outside the store of Robert Matte, merchant tailor, Brownsburg — awarding to Wilfrid Gagné the prize of a bicycle. (Mr. Gagné has not yet turned up for his prize, which will be awarded to another winner if not claimed before July 1.) . . . Another drawing is now in progress for customers at Robert Matte's, to conclude at the end of August; the prize will be a bicycle, or the alternative choice of a $50 merchandise certificate.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

BENNETT — The family of the late Edith Bennett wish to express many thanks to friends, relatives and neighbors for cards, contributions and expressions of sympathy during their recent loss of a beloved wife, mother, grandmother and sister.

MORROW — The family of the late Mrs. Laura Morrow wish to extend their sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy, also for cards and floral tributes, received during their recent bereavement in the loss of a dear mother and grandmother.

IN MEMORIAM

CALDER — In loving memory of Amy McOuat-Calder — July 4, 1956.

COWAN — In cherished memory of our beloved infant son and brother, Bobby, who left us all too soon, on June 22, 1950. Always foremost in our thoughts. — Mom, Dad, brothers and sisters.

"There was a little band in heaven
Which was not quite complete,
They chose our darling little son
To fill the vacant seat."

HARDIE — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Florence, who passed away June 26, 1960. — Always remembered by the family.

"Your memory, Mom, will never grow old,
It is locked in our hearts in letters of gold;
Till memory fades and life departs
You will live forever in our hearts."

MacTAVISH — In loving memory of our darling daughter, Shirley Joanne. God took her home on July 2, 1949. — Loved and sadly missed by Mummy, Daddy, Ronald and Julie.

"Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of peace so fair
Sometime, someday, when our work is done,
Wee Joanne, we will meet you up there."

MacTAVISH — In loving memory of our dear little granddaughter, Shirley Joanne. God loved her and took her home July 2, 1949. — Always loved by Grandpa and Grandma MacMillan and Carl.

"The memories of her dear wee ways
Will linger with us all our days,
Sweetest flower, too sweet to stay —
God took her home to show us the way."

TRINEER — In loving memory of my dear son, Ross, who was taken away suddenly one year ago. — Always remembered by Mother.

"I think of him with love today
As I have done so often,
And feel once more the sudden blow
That does not seem to soften.
He wished no one a last farewell,
Nor even said goodbye,
He was taken before I knew it,
And only God knows why."

Farewell to Minister

A special service was held in the Arundel Church on Sunday evening, when the Rev. Mr. Westhaver, of Morin Heights, preached his farewell sermon, prior to leaving for a new charge in Ontario. After the service, all adjourned to the church hall, where a singsong was held. During the social hour, Mr. A. Lawson presented Mr. Westhaver with an edition of the New Version of the New Testament, and also with a wallet containing a sum of money, donated by some of the members of the congregation who had been helped by him in time of need. We are sorry to lose Mr. Westhaver, and our warmest wishes go with him in his new mission.

MORE COMPLEX TIMES

There were 12 different Indian language groups in what is now Canada, and in some cases the languages were as different from one another as English is from Chinese.

Long-time resident, Mrs. Laura Morrow, laid to rest

Largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends, the funeral of Mrs. Laura Morrow, for many years a resident of this community, was held from the J. P. MacKimmie Funeral Home, Lachute, for service in Brownsburg United Church.

Mrs. Morrow, the former Laura Burk, widow of the late Thomas Morrow, died suddenly in Hawkesbury, Ont., on Tuesday, June 20, in her 77th year.

The Rev. G. W. Bruce, minister of Brownsburg United Church, conducted the service. The hymns sung were, "The Lord's My Shepherd", and "Nearer, My God, to Thee".

Left to mourn her loss are three daughters, Elsie (Mrs. Herbert Graham), of Moncton, N.B., Alice (Mrs. Frank Steere), of Brownsburg, Helena (Mrs. John Dodge), of Belleville, Ont., and two sons, Wesley, of Lachute, and Ernest, of Hawkesbury. Mrs. Morrow is also survived by one sister, Margaret (Mrs. John Cousins), of Lachute, one brother, William Burk, of Cornwall, Ont., and 10 grandchildren. She was predeceased by three sisters and one brother.

The pall-bearers were — Gordon Morrow, of Grenville, Alex McCulloch, of Brownsburg, Arthur Burk, of Cornwall, George Witham, of Brownsburg, Garfield Moncrieff, of Stonefield, and Allen Cousins, of Rawcliffe.

There were many floral tributes and expressions of sympathy, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

Interment was at Lost River, Que.

Petitions to Town Council

Mayor Fernand Legault, at the adjourned meeting called for that purpose. Of the tenders, some 15 were for the position of Chief, including applications from Mr. Whiteway and J. Laurent Ducharme, both former Lachute Police Chiefs. Applications came from Cochrane, Ont., Hawkesbury, Calumet, Lachute, Hudson, St. Andrews East, Montreal, Ste. Adele, Brownsburg, Papineauville, Toronto, Riviere-des-Prairies, St. Jean, St. Bruno, Dorion, Marieville, Rockland, Rosemount, Lachine, etc. An application was also received from the Phillips Investigation Bureau to handle the policing of the town, supplying all necessary men and equipment, including the police vehicle.

Following the opening of these tenders, Mayor Fernand Legault suggested the applications be tabled for study, due to the difficulty of making an immediate choice. The Mayor added: "We don't want to be blamed again for acting too hastily."

In commenting on the petition following this meeting, Mr. Jenkins pointed out that the names on the petition were an excellent cross-section of both French and English language citizens of the community. "We did not try to get as many names as possible, and we received only four or five refusals to sign from persons contacted." He added that the "gallup poll" for Lachute consisted of only approximately 20 persons.

All letters and petitions to the Council were presented in both French and English, and Mayor Legault assured the petitioners that full consideration would be given to the requests.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

"Where ignorance is bliss . . . "

A MATTER of serious public concern emerges from the deliberations of the Canadian Medical Association, convening in Montreal last week. The medicos came out emphatically with a statement that cigarette smoking is contributive to lung cancer. The profession has committed itself to this opinion in many earlier statements, but rarely in terms so definite as this.

There has probably been no challenge so grim and stern to confront the males of the human race — those so deeply entrenched in the joys of smoking, yet well aware it can be harmful. With man's spirit uncowed by this dire threat — and with gargantuan interests involved in catering to, and profiting from, the smoking habit — it's a safe bet there will be no retrenchment. (It may be considered rank sacrilege on our part to even mention the word.) . . . The old adage, "Where ignorance is bliss — ", was never more appropriate.

The medical profession anticipates no diminishing of this threat to human health. In fact, the doctors appear to accept it as a challenge to themselves — to medical science — rather than a challenge to long-practised habits of their fellow men. Here are some facts and opinions on the subject. . . .

Dr. W. G. Cosbie, medical director of the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation, stated before the Health League of Canada recently, that over 34 billion cigarettes were smoked in this country last year, an increase of 1.4% over 1959.

"In the last eight years there has been an increase of nearly 50 per cent in lung cancer in men," he said. This association between heavy cigarette smoking and lung cancer has been indicated by observers in Canada, Britain, the U.S. and Denmark.

"Surely here is a field for preventive medicine in a disease for which the five-year survival rate is only five per cent," he said. "At the same time, it should be realized that statistics from 'Smog Alley' and Los Angeles indicate that atmospheric contamination is a factor which cannot be overlooked."

"We are all aware of the intense advertising campaign of the tobacco companies, and in spite of this, there are only modest warnings of the incipient danger of cigarette smoking," he said.

In less ominous vein, the week has produced another medical opinion of passing interest.

Dr. Mitchell A. Spellberg, clinical associate at the University of Illinois college of medicine, said, in effect, that men without hair on their chests shouldn't drink. The bare chest state appears to be the result of a genetic defect making such males especially prone to cirrhosis of the liver. The protection seemingly involves a biological mechanism enabling one person to burn up his alcohol intake better and with less harm than his hairy colleague. . . . So watch out, you hairless males!

Lights for a brighter outlook

IN EVERY INDUSTRY hit by foreign imports, there is a pardonable tendency to agitate for tariffs, quotas and other government expedients. In a magazine of the journalistic trade, we find a contention that the Buy Canadian campaign is not without its flaws and fallacies. (Having vigorously upheld the slogan from time to time, The Watchman hopes to reproduce these arguments, as space permits.)

Meanwhile, however, we are stimulated by an effort in Canadian industry, reported this past week, which (borrowing a term from the Home & School Federation this year) might well be labeled "Operation Bootstraps". Here is the story, which is worth repeating:

Canadian General Electric claims it has solved the Japanese price competition in the Christmas decorative light market. Now, completely new production, packaging, distribution and marketing techniques by this company have resulted in prices equal to, or even lower than Japanese import prices.

The Japanese have had the lion's share of the Canadian Christmas light market for several years. Christmas lights, both indoor and outdoor, had been manufactured by Canadian firms for distribution organizations that sold them under their own trade names. But the production of Canadian-made lights virtually disappeared when the private-brand organizations began purchasing large quantities of the Japanese product. As a result, many Canadians lost their jobs. "We had to develop a completely new approach, or go out of business entirely in these lines," said a company executive. "Even so, we did not feel that the problem was sufficiently important to the national interest to justify asking the Government for help. We decided to face the challenge the best way we know how — by using the knowledge, ingenuity and determination of our people to succeed."

Planning began two years ago, resulting in new production equipment that turns out lamps in quantities that bring the price down. Then new packaging, merchandising and marketing techniques were developed that meant additional savings all down the line. Canadian General Electric launched their offensive, convinced that Canadians will prefer a Canadian-made product that is not only competitive in price but also top quality and safe to use. "We have put a lot of people to work on this project and they are now turning out some 18,000,000 Christmas lights for the coming season."

Courtesy — like ripples in a pool

MANY SUCCESSFUL businesses have been built on the sound principle of providing a reliable product or worthwhile service at a fair price. It cannot be denied, however, that when such a product or service is marketed in a courteous manner a more pleasant and rewarding experience for all will result — says a timely plea in the Canada Trust Bulletin.

People, both young and old, in all walks of life, react favorably to courteous treatment — and it costs no more than a little time and effort plus thoughtful consideration of others. How many of us remember a businessman in our parents' or grandparents' time who invariably walked to the door and opened it as his customers left? He found the time to be courteous.

Courtesy is an important and valuable asset. It cannot be monopolized by any one group, but it would appear at times that it could be used to better advantage in many of our personal and business relationships. Like ripples created when a pebble is thrown into a pool, an act of courtesy will extend far beyond the original gesture.

The summer season is now approaching and many visitors will be travelling in our country. Would this not be an excellent time to make a conscious effort to be more courteous, not only on our highways, but in our stores and places of business? It takes so little time and effort and the results can be far-reaching. It can make for a more pleasant world in which to live.

Prestige of Canadian medicine

CANADIAN MEDICINE is among the most advanced in the world. It represents the one clear facet of the Canadian image abroad which commands unqualified recognition — says The Financial Post in a feature report. The achievements of relatively small, highly skilled and devoted teams, have received international acclaim.

But medical science, which learned more in the last 10 years than in the previous 50, acknowledges that the 10 most vital years lie ahead. It hopes that in this decade it will find the means to conquer the two greatest destroyers of life — heart disease and cancer. Already, many of the dramatic discoveries in medicine are being taken for granted. What were once "miracle" operations are now commonplace; family doctors have vast arrays of disease-killing drugs at their command. Canada's health and welfare bill is now estimated at $3,000 million a year.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, July 2, 1886 —

Dominion Day in Lachute — a concert under the patronage of the Ladies' Working Association of Henry's Church was held in the Victoria Hall.

The first Canadian Pacific through train for the Pacific Coast arrived in Winnipeg on Dominion Day.

The cities and towns of every province of Canada are responding to the call for relief of Vancouver (fire) sufferers. It is felt that Lachute should come forward with its cotta (sic) of aid.

A student of the Montreal Congregational College, stationed at Hawkesbury for the summer, was drowned in the Ottawa River.

55 YEARS AGO

Friday, June 29, 1906 —

Two ladies of Lachute have passed their examinations in the Dominion College of Music, Montreal — Miss Jeanie Pollock receiving the intermediate diploma, and Miss Marie Berniquer the senior diploma.

The town of Hawkesbury will celebrate Dominion Day with a program of sports and a parade, with allegorical cars and a brass band.

St. Andrews — The closing exercises of the Sacred Heart Convent at St. Andrews. The contest between the English and French course, for the gold medal, was won by Miss Murphy of Carillon.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, July 2, 1936 —

A sad death occurred when David Provencal, 30, of Harrington, was instantly killed by falling rock in the magnesite quarries of Canadian Refractories at Kilmar.

Sir George and Lady Perley were luncheon hosts at Ottawa to Principal D. Staniforth and a party of Brownsburg school pupils visiting the federal parliament buildings.

J. P. Lanctôt, K.C., whose summer home is at St. Andrews, was asked to stand as Duplessis U.N. candidate, by a meeting of partisans held at McArthur's Hall.

Principal C. L. Hall is spending the summer months at the Ontario College of Education, Toronto University.

Dr. Locke, one of Canada's most famous physicians, was a visitor here from Williamsburg, Ont.; with a party of three friends he inspected livestock on some of the surrounding farms. One of his horses was a recent winner at Lachute Fair.

At the weekly four-ball foursome mixed golfing, Mr. W. Drew and Miss Shirley Hamilton were the winners. Major Mitchell donated the prizes.

A flower committee has been formed by Lachute W.I., to send flowers to the sick and underprivileged in Montreal.

Miss Edith Jones is visiting her sister in Galt, Ont. . . . Miss Ethel Dixon is away on an extended trip to B.C. . . . Miss May Yelland, of Montreal, is visiting friends in Lachute.

Things 'n Stuff

PAT AND MIKE, TANDEM BIKE

To keep this column going, I often have to resort to using some material from the nineteenth century. Like this, for instance. . . .

None of the present generation has ever seen a tandem bike except perhaps in a museum. They never were very common, but I saw a few when I and the Twentieth Century were very young. Both riders, usually a lady in front and a man behind, sometimes two men, propelled the vehicle which had two sprockets, two sets of pedals and one continuous chain. The party in front did the steering. . . .

According to this story, Pat and Mike bought one of these contraptions shortly after their arrival in America. While out for a spin one Sunday, they came to a long and steep hill, and after a period of hard and painful pedalling, reached the top. Pat, who was completely out of breath for some time, finally said: "Begorrah, that's the hardest piece of work I ever did. Never in me life did I ever see a hill the likes of that."

"No," said Mike. "An' we'd have slipped back sure if I hadn't kept the brake on!"

• • •

Another Irishman was applying for American citizenship after having lived over here for a few years. The examining official asked him the following questions: —

Do you know the Declaration of Independence? — No.

Can you recite the Constitution of the United States? — No.

Do you know Lincoln's Gettysburg Address! — To which Pat replied: "No! Don't tell me he's living there yet!"

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

INSECT CONTROL

Today, with many more professional foresters in the woods and highly developed aerial survey techniques, insect outbreaks, even the small ones, seldom pass unnoticed and unrecorded. One of the most important tools in insect control is up-to-date knowledge of conditions in all forest areas.

Knights used to ride off to the Holy Land armed with a sword and a lance.

Today's crusaders ride to the underdeveloped countries by plane, ship and truck. Their weapons are slide rules, books and ideas.

This modern crusade to free mankind from poverty and ignorance is one of the great adventures of our time. The other is space travel. These are not adventures in which everyone can take part. Only a few people will ride through space in rocket ships, and they must be tough, adaptable and clever.

• • •

A larger number will claim a share in the other great enterprise of the 20th Century, the war against poverty. Many young people of the West are catching the spirit of this cause, and are enrolling in its ranks.

They must train for the campaign. They can't merely drift to Asia and Africa as a zealous rabble of do-gooders. Those areas need technicians, engineers, scientists, teachers and specialists of many kinds.

The need is for educated men and women. Some of them will enroll in the "Peace Corps" organized by nations of the West; others will join the service of foreign governments.

• • •

All of them will work hard in faraway places, building dams, teaching peasant farmers how to use new tools and methods, bringing language and numbers to illiterate millions. Many of these peace soldiers will live in smelly and uncomfortable houses. They will be chewed by flies and bugs. They won't make much money.

But they will earn something that money can't buy: the feeling of being useful. When a man has that feeling, nothing else matters. But if he fails to attain it — or, having attained it, he loses it again — he is poorer than any peasant scratching for life in the Asian earth.

• • •

The feeling of being useful is none too common in the pampered West. But more and more people are going in search of it.

You may look out of your window and see a youth in a black leather jacket reel down the street with a stomachful of beer.

But other young people at the same moment are sailing for Africa to teach in jungle schools.

The boy in the black leather jacket might be going there himself, tomorrow.

Safety rules for insecticides

Many insecticides can be very dangerous to man and animals.

Here are a few precautions to take in their use.

1. Always read and follow exactly directions on the label.
2. Keep materials labelled and stored under lock and key.
3. Destroy empty containers.
4. Wash hands and face after handling poisons.
5. Do not apply poisons that remain on paints or crops to be eaten shortly.

Remember to use caution at all times!

Farewell Party

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kelly left this week for their home in Prince Albert, after visiting their parents here and in Quebec, as well as many other friends. A party consisting of 40 members of their immediate family (the Kellys) met at Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kelly's to bid Mr. and Mrs. Percy Kelly farewell.

Kindly remember the Vacation Bible School in the Baptist Church, from July 3 to 12. All are welcome.

Flora, fauna — the unseen world of comedy and drama

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Remember we mentioned the young rabbit which still had four white feet, "in case it snowed"? We must have been psychic — or rather the rabbit was — for he needed those white paws on May 26, when it snowed an inch in the Laurentians. We were at the old place for 10 days during May, and in that time, the fire on the hearth was kept glowing while the daffodils gleamed yellow through the white snow. Quite a picture. We can remember the same phenomenon in 1946, only that was at the end of April.

In the middle of June, the picture had changed. Then narcissi were everywhere, and in the garden, the big red peonies glowed. We glowed, too, but in righteous anger, for the African marigolds that we had planted in May had disappeared, and the florist in Lachute assured us that this was the work of rabbits. It seems they like the smell of marigolds. So we bought some Sweet Alyssum, which has only a very faint sweetness about it, and put it in the row where formerly the marigold had flourished for a few days. When we left, three small marigolds were timidly appearing, coming up from the roots. We saw a rabbit investigating the spot at dusk, but he left without doing any damage. There are so many rabbits this year that they are almost a plague. They are so endearing, hopping about, that we cannot bear to shoot them, but we do not discourage Peter, the cat, from giving than a good chase. Occasionally, he brings a half-grown one proudly home.

Down here in Suburbia, the garden is at its best, the roses which edge the patio and climb up around the dining room windows are a deep red, very handsome. There are three kinds of syringa out — the usual white — another smaller white with double blossoms, almost like roses, with yellow leaves — and a third, that has pink, bell-like flowers. This particular bush is like a rose-colored fountain of bloom, spraying out nearly to a red floribunda next. In the floribunda, some yellow summer-birds or wild canaries have built a nest. They seem to be using dandelion fluff to line it. Something fairy-like about the whole thing, the tiny yellow forms setting up house in a rather hit-and-miss fashion. But the location is excellent, for that rose bush has such formidable thorns that neither human nor feline can approach it. By the time the nestlings are ready to appear in the big, bad world, Peter will have gone to Sunnyacres.

Speaking of birds, the head of the house has a beguiling tale that he heard in South Lancaster, just over the border of Ontario. In a cottage by himself lives an old man from Devon, whose hobby is watching birds. To facilitate this, he has built 50 bird houses in his backyard, thus the normal bird population in early summer is 100; in a few weeks, it must be about 400. Pursuing his hobby lately, he witnessed a dramatic bird-rescue operation. His birds are all purple martins, and a fledgling had flown to the top of a garage, then lost his nerve and slithered down the metal roof half way, where he huddled, squeaking dolefully, unsure of his flying capability. His parents gathered round and tried to encourage him, but he felt too frightened to make any effort. The older birds seemed to have a consultation. Then they began to utter piercing cries on the same note, again and again. They flew about shouting for help, and their friends answered. They began to circle around the stranded fledgling, closer and closer, fanning desperately and concertedly with their wings. They literally fanned the youngster up to the top of the roof. Sometime later, he was sufficiently recovered to make it back to the nest. One hears much of the effect of childhood experiences on the psyche. That martin will probably always have a horror of garages!

Yesterday, I witnessed another bird incident. We have many grey squirrels in this suburb, and while they are handsome and incredibly graceful, I am afraid that their morals do not match their exterior. This little grey fellow raced along the ridge of the neighbor's garage and disappeared in a large maple. Subsequently, there was a great rustling and agitation of the leaves, and in a few minutes Master Squirrel appeared racing back along the ridge hotly pursued by Papa Robin. I suppose the squirrel had fancied robin's eggs for lunch. We humans go about our business unaware most of the time of the seething life all around us. Tragedies and comedies are perpetually being enacted in the grass, the trees, the shrubs.

The nephew who survived the Winter Survival test in February, has quit the Scouts. He subsequently had pneumonia and decided that survival in the Scouts was too precarious. Right now, his attention is about equally divided between examinations and a baby raccoon, whose mother was shot by an irate farmer. She was raiding the henhouse. She left four babies, of whom one is with our nephew. He is a cunning little thing (the raccoon, not the nephew), drinks milk from a bottle, and laps pablum, but still refuses solids. He washes his paws frequently, and if his dish is empty, uses the water in the turtle dish. Last week, the turtle was rescued just in time. The raccoon had him in his paws and was trying to puzzle out where the turtle had gone. Unable to pry open the shell, he was about to bang it on the floor in order to break it, when the poor thing was rescued by my niece, whom the raccoon thinks is his mother.

Just to give a touch of reality to an article that will make our more earthy friends sigh with boredom, may we point out that the recent article in the press about the church at Shrewsbury is not specific about its age? It was built in 1858, through the efforts of the Rev. Joseph Griffin, who was also instrumental in having the lovely church at Lakefield built. He was a large, be-whiskered, vibrant man, who made quite an impression on the communities that he served. We know and love the Shrewsbury church, but wish that some of the ladies about would see that it is aired, swept and dusted before the services. It grieves us to see the place in such poor condition. The services we recommend would cost nothing but time, and we would gladly donate some of ours. We women would be embarrassed to have a house as untidy as is that which is called God's house. "God looketh on the heart" — but surely He sees the dusty pews, the dead flowers in dirty vases, as well.

Harrington lady favorably known, died recently

The late Mrs. Geo. Bennett

The sudden death of a well known resident, Mrs. George Bennett, on June 15, came as a great shock to her many friends and relatives in Harrington and in this district.

Mrs. Bennett, the former Edith Cook, was in her 58th year. Born in England, she came to Canada with her parents in 1910, and was married to Mr. George Bennett in 1925.

The late Mrs. Bennett was known for her outstanding work in the various churches of the community, and was president of the British and Foreign Bible Society, Harrington group. She was also district correspondent for The Watchman for many years.

She is survived by her husband; one daughter, (Glenna) Mrs. Trineer, of Nashville, Tennessee; two grandchildren, Bonita and Lyanne; one sister, (Helen) Mrs. Langford Armstrong, of Abernethy, Sask.; and three brothers, Frank, of Ottawa, Harold, of Detroit, and Stanley, of Winnipeg.

Former resident is bereaved

The late H. Clifford Andrew

Friends of Mrs. H. C. Andrew (formerly Miss Lily Boyce), who spent her early years in Lachute, will sympathize with her in the loss of her husband, H. Clifford Andrew, who passed away suddenly on June 20 at their home, 2544 Dunlevy St., Victoria, B.C.

In past years, the Boyce family was well known in this town. Mr. Boyce conducted business on Main Street, just east of the present theatre building, prior to taking up residence in the West early in the century.

The late Mr. Andrew was a member of First United Church, the Uplands Golf Club, and the Al Azhar Shrine Temple, of Calgary.

They have one daughter, Mrs. R. J. (Lilyan Mae) Chandler, of Calgary.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, June 22.

Late war veteran resided here in retirement years

The late Charles E. Watson

Following a lengthy illness, Mr. Charles E. Watson passed away at the Queen Mary Veterans' Hospital, Montreal, on June 7.

A veteran of the First World War, Mr. Watson served with the 7th Siege Battery, from 1916 to 1919. He was born in Montreal in 1889, and had made that city his home until his retirement, when he took up residence in this vicinity.

Mr. Watson's business was in Montreal, where for 50 years he was master plumber of John Watson & Co. Ltd. During 1944-45 he was first vice-president of the National Association of Master Plumbers and was also honored as a life member of that organization; he also belonged to the Victoria Rifles of Canada, branches of the Canadian Legion in Montreal and Lachute, and both the Caledonia and Lachute Curling Clubs.

Left to mourn his passing are his loving wife, Lucinda Burns, one granddaughter, Gayle Beverley Morrison, of Weir, Que.; two sisters, Mrs. Herb Parsons, of Yonkers, N.Y., and Miss Gladys Watson, Montreal. A daughter, Mrs. Royce Morrison, predeceased him in 1950.

Service was held from St. Simeon's Church, conducted by the Rev. C. R. Lang, who took as his text "What is your life?" Burial was made at Mount Royal Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were six nephews — Douglas Burns and Charles Tomalty, of Brownsburg, Richard Burns and Bazil Tomalty, of Arundel, Ernest Burns and Leonard Tomalty, of Montreal.

Twelve members of Legion Branch 70 acted as honorary pall-bearers.

The late Lawrence Smith

Funeral service for the late Lawrence Thomas Robert Smith was held June 8 in the United Church at Star City, Sask., the Rev. J. H. Elkins officiating. Brethren of the local Masonic Lodge (A.F.A.M.) attended and conducted a graveside service.

According to the Star City Echo, the late Mr. Smith passed away June 4, following a lengthy illness. He is survived by his wife, Eva M. Smith; one daughter, Eva J. (Mrs. G. Bloomer, Vancouver); three sons, L. Earl and Malcolm R. (Winnipeg), and Gordon K. (Minnedosa); and 13 grandchildren. Also surviving are two brothers, Gordon (Lachute) and Leslie (Aurora, Ill.). He was predeceased by a sister, Ruby (Mrs. D. Picken).

The late Mr. Smith was born at Lachute in 1888. He completed his education at McGill University. He went West on a harvest excursion in 1910, stopping at Regina. In 1921 he married Eva M. Earl, R.N., and shortly after settled in the Melfort and Star City districts, where he was actively engaged in the International Harvester Co. implement business, insurance, farming and dairy work. He served as an elder in the United Church, and as a trustee and chairman of the school board for a number of years, and took a personal interest in all community affairs.

The remains were laid to rest in the Star City Cemetery.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

"I can swim now!"

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Mother may I go out to swim?"
"Yes, my darling daughter.
Hang your clothes on the hickory limb,
But don't go near the water!"

This old rhyme has been repeated by countless parents. A child is not content to play long with a sand pail or toy boat. He wants to get right into the water and learn to swim! How important it is that every child should have this chance to be at home in the water and be safe in it, is plainly shown by the tragic fact that in a recent year in Canada over one thousand men, women and children lost their lives from accidental drowning.

How about your child's swimming ability? As a parent are you seeing to it that your son or daughter, at a very early age, makes a beginning in learning how to swim?

If there are classes for little folk in swimming by an experienced instructor in a nearby park or at a community swimming pool, parents should see that their child attends these sessions. It is such fun to learn to swim with other youngsters! If necessary mothers should cooperate on transportation and supervision of dressing. School age children who attend a summer camp have a marvellous opportunity not only to learn to swim but also to improve their strokes.

The biggest hindrance to learning to swim is terror of drowning or ducking under the surface. A little child must overcome his fear of the water. Play-time wading, floating a celluloid fish, or pulling a wooden boat help him in this. When walking on all fours, pretending to be a bear or another animal in the shallow water, the child discovers, to his surprise, how buoyant he is. The well-padded, rolypoly child, with a little help from mother or daddy, may learn to float quite easily, and even the lean child who is unafraid can often turn into a surface fish!

Breathing correctly is vital in swimming. A child gains confidence with practice in inhaling through his mouth and blowing bubbles out through his nose. This can be done in a wash basin as well as in the lake or river, or pool.

Propelling oneself through the water is a matter of balance. A parent can show a child with a rubber doll, that if the shoulders rear up out of the water, the rest of the body sinks. Keep shoulders under the water is a rule of first importance. The child who knows how to breathe when swimming, is less apt to sink. He is not likely to get into a panic and flounder about wildly.

An inflated inner tube is often used at a summer cottage for a child's play in the water. Care must be taken that he does not relax his hold and get a ducking in a deep part, or be blown out into the lake on a windy day. A wooden "kicking board" about 18 inches by 10 inches and 1½ inches thick is a better support for a child learning his kicking strokes.

A good swimmer is relaxed and unhurried. Many a parent makes the mistake of urging his child. Then the youngster tries too hard for too long a time. A swimming lesson should be short. Stop as soon as the child is fatigued or chilled. If mother or daddy can occasionally give the child a little support, (no more than necessary) by placing a hand under his chin or tummy, then the child can attempt co-ordinating arm and leg strokes.

Children love to repeat what is satisfying. A child will make much faster progress if his parents will show him how to make a stroke, or how to breathe, or how to float. Just talking about it is a poor substitute for illustrating a method. Getting into the water with him makes it much more fun than yelling instructions from the bank! Many a child delights in water play. Daddy can tow him through the water. Mother can show him how to take a deep breath, duck and grasp both ankles in the Jelly Fish Float.

What the child needs most of all is to overcome his fear and feel the water is a friend not a foe. Once he learns to float with his face down, one parent can "send" him to the other through a short space in the water. Then he can try to swim this small distance, by dog paddle, or any other stroke he finds easiest. The space between the parents can be gradually lengthened as the child becomes more expert. Then on one Red Letter Day he will exclaim, "I can swim now!"

Spinach and lettuce salad

Crisp, green and glistening, this Spinach and Lettuce Salad is a favorite sunset supper or backyard barbecue accompaniment to a simple menu of chicken and foil-wrapped potatoes. Half an hour in the refrigerator gives washed, dried greens extra crispness. A blue cheese dressing gives a special tang.

Ideas for the Salad Bowl

(Consumer Section)

Barbecues and patio suppers are very much the vogue. This means many of us are taking a reprieve from cooking vegetables; instead, we are tossing them together in our big wooden bowls. Here are ideas for your salad bowl from the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, that may add a new twist to your "toss". To make these salads specially crisp, give washed and dried greens half an hour in the refrigerator before using.

Chicory Mixed Salad

1 Small head chicory (3 cups), 1 small head romaine (3 cups), ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, ½ cup French dressing (or Blue Cheese Dressing), 1 cucumber (scored and thinly sliced), 2 tomatoes cut into wedges.

Tear leaves of chicory and romaine into bite-size pieces. Place in a salad bowl and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add dressing and toss lightly. Top with sliced cucumbers and tomato wedges. 8 servings.

Spinach and Celery Salad

6 Cups spinach leaves, ¼ to ½ large onion, very thinly sliced, 1 cup diced celery, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 4 hard-boiled eggs, ½ cup Blue Cheese Dressing, 1 cup sour cream.

Tear washed spinach leaves into bite-size pieces. Add celery, onion rings, salt and pepper. Toss lightly. Garnish with egg wedges or slices. Mix dressing with sour cream and serve in a separate bowl. 8 servings.

Blue Cheese Dressing

3 Tablespoons salad oil, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ clove garlic, very finely minced, 3 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese,

In a jar combine all ingredients and shake to blend thoroughly. Makes about ½ cup.

Household hint

Don't throw out soiled and offensive running shoes. Put them in the last washwater in your washing machine, turn on for 10 minutes or so, rinse in clear water and hang up to dry on clothesline. The shoes will look "just like new again."

There is no such thing as bargain hunting when buying strawberries, since the season is so short and there is little price fluctuation, advise home economists of the federal agriculture department.

Choose ripe, glossy, solid, bright berries and only as many as you can use at one time. If storing them in the refrigerator for two or three days, place berries on a tray or plate for air circulation.

When serving strawberries, wash them quickly in cold water and remove the caps after the berries have been cleaned and dried.

Economists say strawberries are a good source of ascorbic acid or vitamin C and one handful of them would be sufficient for a day's supply of this vitamin.

Strawberry Mallow

This tested dessert calls for: 1 quart or 5 cups strawberries, 1 tsp. lemon juice, ¼ pound large marshmallows, ¼ cup icing sugar, ½ cup shredded coconut and ½ cup whipping cream.

Wash, hull and cut strawberries into quarters. Add lemon juice and stir gently. Place in refrigerator to chill 15 minutes. Using kitchen shears or scissors, cut each marshmallow into eighths, dipping shears into water to prevent sticking. Add icing sugar to cut marshmallows and toss well to separate the pieces. Just before serving, combine chilled berries, marshmallows and coconut. Fold in whipped cream, then pile lightly in sherbet glasses. Yield: 6 servings.

If using small marshmallows, leave whole. Add the icing sugar to the whipped cream instead of to the marshmallows.

Full Fashions

Intense bright colors and closer fitting dresses and coats are on the Canadian fall fashion agenda, says fashion editor Vivian Wilcox of Toronto.

She predicts a leaning to magenta or related berry tones, kelly green and old gold shades for the coat and suit collections. Knits and sportswear will be featured in gold and burnt orange and some of the deep blues will be coupled with equally deep greens.

Coats will be fashioned in semi-fitted silhouettes, low waists, pleats and full backs. Flared or pleated skirts and two-piece dress ensembles with blouse tops are important and laminated knits will dominate the sportswear scene.

Neckline trimmings will range over the fashion spectrum from knits for sportswear to beaver, mink and lamb for coats and suits. The trend now is towards brushed fabric effects, supplanting shag materials.

Miss Wilcox recently addressed 150 delegates to the Garment Salesmen's Ontario Market semi-annual meeting in Toronto.

Cooking Hints

To separate excess fat from meat drippings when making gravy, the food and nutrition department, Macdonald Institute, Guelph, has this suggestion. Pour the drippings into a tall cup which is then placed in cold water. Skim the fat off when it rises to the top.

Strawberry meringue dessert special

Strawberries are one of the delights of summer — whether eaten out-of-hand in the berry patch, sprinkled with sugar for dessert, or used in baking.

The Indians of Chile were among the first devotees of the red, ripe fruit that grew in abundance along their sandy beaches. French travelers came upon the fruit in the early 18th century. Taking it back to France with them, they crossed it with other berries, imported from North America, and produced the prototype of the berry as it is known today.

One delicious and easy-to-make recipe, using strawberries, is given here. Strawberry Meringue desserts are made from rounds of white bread soaked in fresh strawberry syrup, then topped with a mound of berries, and baked. Serve the desserts warm with pouring cream.

Strawberry Meringue Desserts

(Yield — 6 servings)

1½ Cups crushed strawberries, ½ cup fine granulated sugar, 6 slices white bread, cut about ½" thick, 2 egg whites (at room temperature), 1 teaspoon lemon juice, optional.

Wash, hull and crush sufficient ripe strawberries to yield the required 1½ cups prepared berries; mix in ¼ cup of the sugar. Let stand ½ hour, stirring occasionally. Turn into a sieve and allow fruit to drain well — save the juice.

Preheat oven to 300 deg. F. (slow).

Using a 3-inch cookie cutter, cut a round of bread from each slice. Arrange the rounds in a shallow baking dish (approx. 6½ x 10 inches, top inside measure). Pour sweetened strawberry juice over bread. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gradually beat in the remaining ¼ cup sugar. Fold in drained crushed berries and lemon juice, if being used. Pile the meringue on bread rounds. Bake in preheated oven until meringue is set and golden — 30 to 35 minutes. Serve warm, with pouring cream.

School boards reminded, tax levies must adequately meet year's budget

School commissions in the Province of Quebec have received a notice from the Superintendent of Education, O. J. Desauniers, relative to taxes and annual budgeting for education costs. The letter says, in part:

Article 356 of the Education Act, adopted at the last Session of the Legislature, reads as follows:

"Between the 15th and the 30th of June, every School Board must prepare and submit to the Minister of Youth and to the Superintendent of Education, its budget for the following school year and this budget takes effect only after it has been approved by them".

The drawing up of the budget and the imposition of the necessary taxes for the maintenance and administration of schools are certainly among the main duties of the commissioners and trustees. Before setting up the tax rate, the commissioners must carefully prepare and study their budget, that is to say, the summary of the estimated expenditures and revenues for the year.

The expenditure item of the budget must include all operation costs without exception: general administration, salaries of teachers, upkeep and heating of schools, transportation of pupils, etc.

Once the budgetary estimates on expenditures and revenues have been established, it is easy to find the balance to be paid by taxes, that is, the sum required to balance the budget.

It is then necessary for the School Board to take into consideration the taxable valuation to set up the general real estate tax at the rate required to balance its budget without any deficit, in order to have the monies it absolutely needs available.

To those School Boards who have to meet annual or semi-annual payments to defray the cost of construction or renovation of schools, I must insist on their obligation to levy a special tax. They must see to it that their secretary-treasurer enters each year the amount of the said tax on the collection roll, until the loan is fully redeemed, capital and interest.

In short, School Boards must collect each year from the ratepayers sufficient taxes to obtain the necessary amount to meet all their obligations, and cannot prepare an estimated budget showing a deficit.

It is in the interest of your Board to submit a copy of your budget as soon as possible, considering that it cannot incur any expenses or make any payments for the year 1961-62, before the budget has been approved.

Better Farming Day July 6 at Macdonald

"By their fruits ye shall know them." The annual Better Farming Day at Macdonald College will be held on July 6. It will feature what the farmer can expect from crop varieties and kinds of forage. One may see, growing side by side, the grain varieties recommended for Quebec. The college staff will be there to discuss their good and bad points. You will be able too, to compare stands from commercial and certified seed; to see how the horticulturists select strawberry varieties that are resistant to virus disease; and how the feed experts find out just how much good an animal gets from a certain kind of forage. The College has decided on "World Seed Year" to present "the proof of the pudding" where seed varieties are concerned. Plan on being at Macdonald on July 6 all day. There is a special program planned for the ladies too. Come along with your wife, your family, your neighbors and your agronome. Chicken barbecue will be supplied free for all who register.

On the record for posterity, stalwarts in epic tug-o-war

When you are old and grey, and someone who braved the chilly night air of the grandstand with you that Thursday, June 15, 1961, at the Lachute Spring Fair, asks, "Who was on the Farmers' tug-of-war team?" . . . "Who won that year?" . . . you will be able to look up The Lachute Watchman and find out, not only who won — just as you can look back 35 years now — but you can also read who was on the team, and what other teams took part; some teams supplied names only to your reporter.

It may be interesting to know that the final and longest pull was 1.53 minutes, between the winners, Canadian International Paper Company, and the runners-up, Canadian Refractories (Marelan Plant).

A limit of two minutes, or a pull of 12 feet, had been set up in the rules. A rope 130 feet long and not less than 4 inches in circumference (1.274 dia.) was used, according to the Royal Tournament rules. Each team consisted of eight men and a coach, with two reserves, who could be used to replace a member but not alternated with him.

The Winning Team

The winners were the Canadian International Paper Company. Doug Morrison and Mansiel Wilson of that Company, have been enthusiastic from the time the idea was mentioned, about a year and one-half ago. This enthusiasm was, no doubt, backed up by the keen interest of their staff, accustomed to the healthy outdoors.

Their team this year, as last, was coached by Ernest MacRae, foreman of the Harrington Forest Farm. Captain of the 1961 team was Romeo Constantineau, millwright at the Calumet Mill. Their anchorman, Howard MacLean, river driver, Harrington — with Lucien Lalonde, fireman, Calumet Mill; Lucien Desjardins, yardman, and Paul Dubord, sawsetter, both of the Calumet Mill; Emile Laurin, bulldozer operator, Harrington Forest Farm; Maurice Clement, river driver, and Aurele Tittlet, drive foreman, and Rolland Charron, mechanic, all of St. Jovite as were the two reserves — Raymond Emond and Gaetan Lemard, both river drivers.

With only two men over 200 lbs. (260 and 233), they formed a well balanced team.

Runners-up

The second prize winners outweighed the champions slightly, and according to some observers, almost outpulled them. This team, for Canadian Refractories Ltd., were not the hard-rock miners as might be expected, but were from the No. 2 Plant at Marelan, headed by Fred Gauley (captain), production supervisor. Coach John McDonald, machinist, did a fine job. His heaviest man, 250 lb. Evangelis Desabrais, a truck driver, was anchorman, supported by Alwyn Carriere, welder; Elmer and Albert Lacombe, both of the grinding dept.; Ewing Whinfield, pipefitter; Gerald Kelley and Albert Portelance, brick press operators, and Henry Stewart, lead hand in the grinding dept. Reserves were Harold Bigras, crusher operator, and Mervin Dewar, machinist.

Eliminations

The tournament started with an elimination pull between C-I-L Ammunition and Ayers Ltd. C-I-L were the winners in a stubborn "pull".

In the next "heat" the Farmers, runners-up of last year, outpulled C-I-L; Canadian Refractories defeated the Safety Fuse "Hustlers"; Canadian International Paper Co. defeated Lachute Lumber "Vikings"; The Army "Howitzers" were carried away by the Boyd's "Elephants." (No, Hannibal was neither captain nor coach.)

A new team to the arena, the "Elephants" no doubt took their name from the elephantine trucks they nearly all drive. They showed plenty of spirit.

Their captain was George Cox; Ken Kettyle, coach; Keith Wilson, anchor; Alex Page, Don McRae, Noel Charlebois, Harold Warwick, Roger Gagne (mechanic), Walter Watchorn, Henry Gagne, Grant Scott and Jules Laurin.

The Farmers, second-prize winners of last year, were eliminated by Canadian Refractories, who won that prize this year.

Captain of the Farmers' team (an enthusiastic team organizer and staunch supporter of the Rotary work-for-youth in the community) was Bill Brass, manager of North River Farm, Lachute. Coach was "doc" Munroe, of Maxville, Ont. — with Lloyd Hume, Nelson Titley, Ken Hanley, Cecil Graham, Austin Rodgers, Don Rodgers, John Greenshields, Marcil Coté Albert Oswald and Rodger Compeau.

So there you have the members of the top four teams. Altogether there were nine; one of the ten originally scheduled, withdrew before the match.

Appreciation

The co-operation of all who took part, not only in the tug-of-war, but also the other events and "the draw", is certainly appreciated by the Rotary Club. (Eugene Bacon, camp equipment winner, had just recently returned from a sojourn in the hospital.)

Not to be forgotten is the fine spirit of the audience, who stuck it out when the weatherman turned chilling winds into that Thursday night grandstand. Thanks! See you at the Park — with the children — on warm, sunny days.

Last 'patient' in Canada's 38-year anti-bovine TB campaign

LAST TB SHOT—Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, about to inject the last cow in the wind-up of Canada's 38-year campaign against bovine tuberculosis, displays the gold-plated syringe for the benefit of Joe Skirlik of Nampa, 20 miles south of Peace River in northern Alberta. Mr. Skirlik is owner of the last herd to be tested under the eradication program. He acquired his homestead in 1933, clearing 80 acres with an ax.

LENA TAGGED—After injecting the last cow in Canada's 38-year bovine tuberculosis eradication program, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton clipped a gold-plated ear tag on its ear. Lena, the black and white cow, was owned by Joe Skirlik of Nampa, 20 miles south of Peace River in northern Alberta. With the minister is Dr. E. J. Gariepy, of Peace River, sub-district veterinarian for the Health of Animals Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

Of Many Things

WORLD OF TOMORROW

Back in 1939, the World's Fair displayed "Tools for Tomorrow," and many visitors thought them all so startling they wouldn't really arrive. Yet the committee which is now at work preparing the next world's fair says that 85% of the tools that were so startling 23 years ago were used and improved and are already obsolete. Things are changing very quickly indeed.

Recently a Russian was sent into orbit. Yet a society exists, in England, which claims the earth is flat! Resistance to change seems to be the only permanence.

Every time I hear a man holding forth like an expert, I recall the hundreds of "experts" before him who held forth just as persuasively, but who turned out to be quite wrong when more was learned.

It seems the more we learn the less we know, because each new intellectual beachhead gained presents a whole new assortment of problems and new fields of disturbing ignorance. Former President Eisenhower's brother Milton, put it clearly when he said, "Every question answered exposes a hundred mysteries to be investigated."

The president of Albion College, in Michigan, recently warned a graduating class about how partial their knowledge must be. "Your greatest enemy henceforth," he said, "will be triviality, the easy assumption that the partial knowledge you possess can represent the whole truth."

Sounds discouraging, doesn't it? A bit hard to take for writers like me who do so much preaching in such an opinionated way?

I don't think for a minute that we should throw up our hands — or our ideas — in despair. It seems to me that we must speak from our convictions, from our partial knowledge, knowing all the while how vast is our ignorance.

Above all, I am sure we should try to see to it that the door is never closed against the new and different idea. We should avoid imposing, by compulsion, our ignorance on others who see things in a different light. While lighting what feeble candles we can, we should do nothing to stop others from lighting bigger and better candles of their own. We must always struggle against blinkers, against any who would set themselves up as oracles claiming the one and only solution to all problems.

FIRST CENSUS

The first census of Canada was taken in 1666 and showed a total of 3,215 Europeans; this was the first census in the world in the modern sense.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

The amount of school taxes overdue makes the administration of the Catholic School Commission more difficult, and it is now necessary to take determined measures for collection of arrears.

An immediate remittance will oblige.

Salt More Than An Appetizer

Some time ago I received a letter from a reader of this column, referring to a recent test withholding salt from cows.

He writes: "I read the article you wrote about the experiment conducted by an Eastern university depriving a herd of cows of their salt. Don't you think that this experiment was ridiculous and uncalled for, considering the fact that people have known for centuries that cattle must have salt to live. Most any farmer or farm boy knows that if a calf needs a little salt, a cow producing a lot of milk needs much more, or she won't give any milk. Just because they were university professors, does it make sense to make cows suffer for months to prove such a known fact?"

Dr. Bohstedt

In acknowledging receipt of the letter I recognized the writer's compassion toward animals and his obvious unwillingness that they be subjected to needless discomfort or suffering.

I stated that when some of the first such tests were conducted at the turn of this century there was a real need for such a salt-deprivation test with dairy cattle, for many things needed demonstrating.

Even in recent years a medical writes with a very large reader audience raised the question of whether salt was not merely a condiment, something to give flavor to foods, rather than being necessary. He said that inorganic substances like salt could not be assimilated in the body. Of course he was wrong.

At any rate there are always ranchmen and farmers in different parts of our large continent, and elsewhere, that feed salt in a very haphazard manner to livestock.

The experimenters to whom the writer referred must have felt a need, a half century after the early salt studies, to re-examine the experimental findings and to announce the results so that farmers and ranchers of this day would have and use the knowledge re-confirmed and newly developed by these salt experiments.

Question: What is there in early pasture that causes grass staggers?

Answer: Three things, according to Dr. E. J. Underwood of Australia: (1) The low intake and availability of magnesium. (2) The increased requirement for magnesium due to stimulation of milk yield. (3) The slow rate of release of magnesium from the skeleton of mature cows. Old cows in their 6th lactation have been found 14 times as susceptible to grass staggers as heifers in their first lactation. It has been noted that ready access to salt often reduces the number of cases of grass staggers.

Questions from readers will be answered in the column or by direct reply. Please send your questions to Dr. Bohstedt, 221 North LaSalle Street, (Rm. 507), Chicago 1, Illinois.
