Next art event annual exhibition of members' works

With its second exhibition of the summer just concluded, the Argenteuil Art Association is inviting entries for its concluding show, September 23 to October 1, which is the annual exhibit of amateur and members' works. It is hoped to have an attractive representation of talent, both amateur and professional, at this annual display.

SCHOOL BELL RINGS TODAY —

Full house again at 'Lachute High'; staff and administrative changes

Today (Wednesday) brings another school day — and another school year — for the Protestant communities of Quebec. The return of pupils to Lachute High School after the long vacation, will restore to the town that youthful atmosphere welcomed by most citizens as a "more normal" state of affairs. School buses will converge from surrounding districts, and children and teachers flocking along Main Street will bring a change in scene from the summer's tourist and shopping crowds.

At the High School, according to Principal Fred Royal, the pupil enrolment will be up 25 from last year; the anticipated roll-call is 785, and there are 35 on the teaching staff for 1961-62.

Accommodation and Construction

There is one extra class for the coming year at L.H.S., making 27 as compared with 26 last year. Two of the classrooms are to be temporarily in the basement of the school — one in the new cafeteria wing and one in the Science lecture room.

Work is progressing in the rebuilding of the old Academy section of the school, facing Harriet Street, and it is hoped the six classrooms and staff rooms in this section will be completed by Christmas. Meanwhile there have been improvements made in the 1932 (Consolidation) block facing on Court Street, where new lighting has been installed throughout and cupboards added to the classrooms.

Administrative Changes

There are changes, less apparent, in the School Board structure this year: the school municipalities of Gore, Dunany and St. Andrews have been annexed to that of Lachute. Engaged as a full-time secretary-treasurer to the Protestant School Commission is Mrs. Elvine Prophet; this appointment has been effective since August 14. Mrs. Prophet served several years on the staff of the old Central School Board, and is familiar with this work.

Staff Changes

Among the teaching staff, as school commences, there are old friends missing and new faces in evidence. Those who have left the faculty are — Mrs. Ruth Graham, Mrs. A. McDonell, Miss Ann Olney, Miss Lorraine McOuat and Mr. Bernard Fitch. (Continuing in the profession, Mr. Fitch has gone far afield, to Dawson City, Yukon.)

While five teachers have taken their departure, there are today no fewer than seven additions. Following are the newcomers who will be making the acquaintance of new pupils — and several of them, new surroundings:

Grade I — Teaching the third class of this grade will be Mrs. Beverley Girling (formerly Miss Collins) of Lachute, who has spent the past two or three years on the school staff at Valois, Que.

Grade IV — Miss Shirley McGeorge, of Lachute, takes one of the three classes in this grade (previously two). Miss McGeorge has been teaching for several years at Ste. Rose.

Grade IV — Miss Lorna Crawford, of Blackville, N.B., comes as a graduate from Federicton Teachers' College, to take charge of another class in this grade.

High School Grades

Mr. Leroy Beals, a Maritimer just graduated from Acadia University, Wolfville, will be a Grade VIII teacher and specialist in History and Geography for the senior grades.

Mr. Donald Stewart, of Wolfville, who is also a new graduate from Acadia, will have charge of a Grade VIII class and specialize in Mathematics. Mr. Stewart is married.

Miss Joan Laurin (married last Saturday — her name is now Mrs. Nugent) is a Lachute girl with a number of years' experience as French specialist; she comes here from Otterburn Heights, and augments the L.H.S. French-teaching instructors to three.

Finally, Miss Margaret Kay, of Shannon Park, N.S., comes as a new graduate from Mount Allison University to teach Home Economics.

The present school staff, and the community at large, extend a welcome to these newcomers and good wishes for their success.

INQUEST REVEALS —

Branches obscured highway; ambulance long in arriving

A jury sitting last Thursday evening, under presidency of Dr. Roger Lavigne as joint district coroner, ruled the death of Georges-Henri Scarborough on August 18 last as accidental. The late Mr. Scarborough died in the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, from injuries sustained August 14 in an automobile mishap on the Dawson montee in Chatham. Death was due to fractured ribs causing a punctured lung and internal hemorrhage.

Roger Lagarde, as crown prosecutor, questioned six witnesses in the case, including Janor Leblanc of Grenville, driver of the second auto involved. The latter stated that he had just left his home, about a half-mile from the fatal spot, and on an S-curve met the Scarborough car only four feet ahead of him. Applying the brakes, he struck the small Morris car on the left side hurling it into the ditch. Leblanc had driven a car for the past year, had taken no liquor on the day of the accident, and was proceeding at 25 miles an hour, he declared. In the car were Miss Eva Picard and his three children in the back seat. None suffered injuries.

Provincial Police Officer Richard Dubé testified there was a mark in the gravel showing Leblanc's car occupied 8 ft. 9 inches of the road (which is 14 feet wide at this spot). The officer stated there were branches obscuring visibility from both directions. Leblanc appeared nervous but otherwise normal, at the time of the officer's investigation.

Two residents, Donat Lafleur and Gerard Ranger, also Miss Picard and Gilles Seguin, were called imtestify. The latter had arrived immediately on the scene. He had conversed with the victim, who appeared to be suffering severely, and it was an hour and 10 minutes before an ambulance arrived from Hawkesbury.

The jury, in returning a verdict of accidental death, recommended that municipalities should see that the roadsides are cleared of bush and obstructions, especially on curves.

Letters-patent for community pool

The Quebec Official Gazette of August 26 gives notice of letters-patent issued by the Lieutenant-Governor for incorporation of a company, without share capital, to operate a swimming pool east of Lachute.

Those involved are — J. Ernest Bourbonnière, retired; John Bresnahan, parts manager; J. Edward Bourbonnière, building contractor; Gabriel A. Downing, civil servant; Robert Haydon, printer; Remy Seguin, sales representative; Gerald Lamoreux, district manager, all of Lachute. . . . Their incorporation, dated June 27 last, is for the following purpose:

"To promote . . . and manage a country and social club under the name of 'Bourbonnière Community Pool'."

Immoveable property is limited to $50,000.

Residents' Project

According to a resident of the Bourbonnière settlement in Upper Lachute, this incorporation is a legal formality in connection with their swimming pool, built by, and for the use of proprietors and their families living in the settlement.

Fees established for out of town services of Fire Department

Following a communication received from the Fire Commissioner of Quebec, Jean-Louis Doucet, relative to fees for out-of-town fire service, Town Council ruled that the following charges be adopted:

First hour or fraction thereof, $100; each additional hour or fraction thereof, $75; services of firemen, $5 an hour.

These were the rates suggested by the Commission, and approved for local use at Council meeting last week.

It was also indicated by the Commissioner that the Council would receive $2,600 as a grant, for 50 per cent of the cost of equipment recently purchased.

In connection with out-of-town calls — the Village of St. Andrews has forwarded to Lachute a resolution, stating the municipality would accept responsibility for emergency calls on the services of Lachute Fire Department.

One of the two fire trucks, damaged by a fireman in backing-up the vehicle, will be repaired by the town mechanic. The firm of Deacon Motor Sales had quoted $99 for supplying and replacing a broken door.

Two scholarship winners at B'burg

Congratulations are extended to a Brownsburg High School graduate, Miss K. Brenda MacGibbon, who has been awarded a McGill University entrance scholarship. It is recalled this young student scored 90.2% marks in the Quebec departmental school leaving examinations, thereby ranking among highest students in the province.

Winner of the annual Hawkesbury Division, Chemical Institute of Canada scholarship was another Brownsburg student, Andrew Seary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Seary, who graduated from Brownsburg High School and intends to study Biochemistry at McGill. The Argenteuil and Prescott science scholarship is of $500 value.

Youth panics in auto, chased by B'burg police

(Our District Correspondent)

A wild chase through Brownsburg streets late last Friday night ended in the apprehension of a 19-year-old Lachute motorist by local police officers. The youth, accompanied by a girl, had reportedly run down a bicycle rider in Lachute. The driver apparently panicked and left the scene of the accident at high speed, heading for Brownsburg.

Cst. Roland Lepine, hearing the approaching car, stepped out on the road at the corner of Bank Street to stop the driver. The car swerved to miss him, then careened around the corner up Bank Street and swung into Elmwood Avenue, as Cst. Lepine ran to his car and took up the chase. The late-model convertible driven by the boy failed to make the corner at Greenwood Avenue, and smashed against a telephone pole. The girl was thrown from the car and was subsequently picked up by Chief Roger Boutet driving a second pursuit car. The boy threw his auto into reverse to back away from the pole, then raced down Greenwood Avenue to Main Street, with Cst. Lepine in hot pursuit.

After turning right on Main Street then left down St. Joseph, the frightened youth finally came to a sudden stop, hitting a cement wall near the C-I-L gate. With escape still foremost in his mind, he is reported to have hidden in a garage, until found by Cst. Lepine.

The youth was taken to the Brownsburg police station, where he was questioned along with the girl. He was then taken to Lachute and transferred to the Provincial Police, who laid a charge of "leaving the scene of an accident" — this in connection with the Brownsburg incident in which the girl passenger fell from the car. He was released on bail and appeared in St. Jerome court Tuesday, when he was sentenced to a fine of $50 plus costs, and had his driver's permit suspended for a one year period.

Girl student is guest speaker at Rotary Club

The Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club returned to their regular meeting place, the Brownsburg Legion Hall, for the August 31 session. The excellent turn-out of Rotarians, was an indication that summer is drawing to a close.

The guest speaker was Miss Diana Rigby, daughter of Rotarian Dr. Reg Rigby, chief chemist at the C.R.L. plant at Marelan. Miss Rigby spoke on University life in Europe, where she has been studying since 1957. She stated that, in order to attend an English University, it is first necessary to successfully complete two examinations, the General Certificate of Education at Ordinary level and at Advanced level. After taking these exams, this student had to wait another year before entering, as the university was full to capacity with successful students from the year before. She therefore decided to study French Art and Literature at the Sorbonne in Paris, the largest university in France; and painting, sculpture, and architecture at l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, one of the many specialized institutes in Paris. At the Sorbonne the student is quite free as attendance at the lectures is not compulsory and questions to the professors are not encouraged. After classes the sudents meet and discuss the subjects being studied.

At present Miss Rigby is attending the Courtald Institute of London University. She is one of the two students in the Institute specializing in Medieval Art. In contrast to the Sorbonne in Paris, there is quite close contact between student and professor. During the summer of 1960 Diana attended the University of Perugia in Italy, mainly to improve her Italian vocabulary. She said that this university has about 5,000 students, and that in most European universities foreign men and women form a sizeable portion of the student population.

Miss Rigby's talk proved most interesting, and the best of luck in her studies was extended by the club.

Drivers' permits

New applicants wishing to procure drivers' permits are advised that the provincial department's mobile "clinic" will be stationed at Lachute Auditorium next Wednesday, September 13.

Favorable reaction on regional police; committee will study possible set-up

An informal gathering of Council representatives and citizens from Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East, St. Andrews Parish, St. Jerusalem Parish and the Village of Carillon, met at the St. Andrews East Golf and Country Club on Friday evening of last week, and unanimously approved in principle the further study of a Regional Police and Public Safety System. The meeting was chaired by Mayor Antoine Paré of St. Andrews Village, and was attended by 30-odd persons.

In opening the discussion, Mayor Paré expressed appreciation to the members of Lachute Town Council whose co-operation had made possible the establishment of radio-communication for the St. Andrews police emergency vehicle. "For years, it has been next to impossible for us to reach a policeman when one was needed, without waiting for the under-staffed detachment of Provincial Police. We have always received the fullest co-operation from Cpl. Bertrand, his predecessors and the officers stationed in Lachute, but occasions have arisen when there was no one immediately available to help us when we were in need. With all our police calls now directed to the Lachute police station, they can immediately be transmitted to our car. We in St. Andrews feel that if a similar set-up were put into effect throughout the district, the efficiency of all departments would be increased."

Mayor Paré added it was his thought to set up a committee to study the value of a regional police department and what could develop from the communication system. "In the event of a bank hold-up in one of our communities, we would have immediate communication with all police cars in the locality. The area could be closed off, and I feel that this alone would be a big factor in discouraging bandits. With a centrally directed police department for the area, this efficiency would be improved even more," Mayor Paré added.

St. Andrews Police Chief A. J. Whiteway then gave a number of advantages in this proposal — including central control under a director of police; one telephone number for all emergency calls; a radio communication system; a higher standard of officer; co-ordination of by-laws, traffic signs, infraction tickets, office and court procedure, and identical uniforms and other equipment. . . . "Every participating municipality would have 24-hours-a-day protection, whereas some of the municipalities concerned have as little as six-hour protection at the present time. The standardization of all these items in each municipality where a detachment is located, would mean an efficient, effective department and should cut operation costs."

Chief Whiteway mentioned the Berlin and European situation and assured those present that, while Argenteuil would not be the first target in the event of a war, it surely would not be forgotten, due to its central location between Montreal and Ottawa; the Radar Unit located here; the Hydro development; and the largest ammunition plant in Canada. "There is no provision for evacuation of the cities and a Regional Police and Public Safety Department would do much to help, in such an occurrence. It could be tied in with fire departments and other such emergency organizations. Our safety lies in prevention and we have to protect the coming generation." . . . "With such a regional system, accident victims would not die needlessly, as emergency vehicles would be used, with properly trained men. At least four lives have been saved in Lachute with such a car, and there would have been no long delay in getting an ambulance, as occurred in a nearby area recently, when the victim succumbed to injuries," concluded Chief Whiteway — here referring to the case of an inquest reported on this page.

Ald. Horace Lamarche of Lachute felt that the system would bring numerous advantages to the region and give much-needed co-operation between the municipalities. "I deplore the fact that councillors in general want to have anything to do with the police department. If a mistake is made, it is exaggerated out of all proportions. There is no one more criticized than policemen. With this system, we would have qualified men to choose qualified men, and not have people hired because they were a good friend or relative to someone 'in power'. I cannot help but feel that it would be a good thing to start co-operating", he said.

Lachute's Police Commissioner, Linton W. Armstrong, stated he had discussed the question with Mr. Lamarche and agreed with his views. "The plan has merit, and I feel sure the Lachute Council would be willing to co-operate, as we all have more to gain by such action. There will be problems, and I favor a committee being set up of police commissioners or council representatives, who could study the problems in closer detail and report back to their respective Councils."

Bill Phillips, president of Phillips Investigation Bureau Ltd., which has the contract for policing Lachute, stated he "was in business of supplying police" and was willing to co-operate fully. He mentioned the difficulties encountered with the 27 police departments on the Island of Montreal, but added that, despite this, all departments co-operated. He mentioned possible stumbling blocks in setting up the system, and offered his services and experience if it were required in any study.

Provincial Police Cpl. Aimé Bertrand stated he would like to be able to give more police protection to the municipalities, but his office had more work than it could presently handle with the number of men available. "I feel the proposed plan would be an excellent idea, and can assure you our department will co-operate fully with any such organization, just as we do with the individual departments."

Other speakers included Maj.-General F. R. Phelan; Carillon Mayor J. J. Lemay, and Mayor Lucien Durocher of St. Andrews Parish, all of whom voiced approval.

Bernard Jenkins, of Lachute, was appointed temporary secretary of a committee to be formed by Council-appointed police committeemen or other representatives, at a date to be set. The meeting was then adjourned.

Preliminary hearing on bribery charge

Ottawa, Sept. 1 (CP) — A Federal Works Department official testified Thursday his recommendation that the government purchase a Hawkesbury site for a post office was not influenced by former Liberal M.P. Raymond Bruneau.

Donald A. Freeze, director of the department's property and building management branch, testified during the second day of the preliminary hearing of a charge that Bruneau agreed to accept a bribe and obtained $10,000 by false pretences.

The hearing was adjourned to September 7. Also charged is Abe Bergeron, owner of the Hawkesbury site for which the government paid $48,000 in 1956 and on which was built a $170,000 post office. Bergeron is charged with giving $10,000 to Bruneau corruptly.

Mr. Freeze testified that Bruneau, member for Glengarry-Prescott from 1949 until his defeat in 1957, on "many occasions" phoned him prion to the sale to inquire about progress in purchasing a Hawkesbury site.

However, Mr. Freeze told Crown Attorney John Cassels that the discussions with Bruneau had no effect on setting the price for the Bergeron property. The witness also told defence counsel Roydon Hughes that he was aware Bruneau felt the Bergeron property to be a "satisfactory" one but this did not influence Mr. Freeze's decision.

Seven other Hawkesbury properties had been considered, Mr. Freeze testified. He said he signed the memorandum on the basis of which the deputy minister recommended that the government purchase the Bergeron property.

Mr. Hughes asked what would eventually become of letters written by M.P.s — those of the same party as the government in power — to a Minister of Public Works, recommending the purchase or otherwise of certain property. Mr. Freeze said he didn't know.

"You know as well as I do," Mr. Hughes contended. "They are destroyed when they go out of office."

Young 4-H'er wins Kiwanis judging award

(Our District Correspondent)

Mabel — Truman Clark, 14 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perley Clark, R.R. 1, Brownsburg, was the winner of the third Kiwanis inter-fair cattle judging competition with a total of 85 points. His nearest competitor had a total of 72 points.

This competition, which is open to 4-H'ers under 15, was held last Saturday at the Huntingdon Fair, when the winners of Lachute, Ormstown and Huntingdon Fairs met to compete for the prize of $150, to be used towards the purchase of a purebred heifer calf — the winner being able to choose the breed.

Truman is the first member of the local 4-H Club, as well as the first boy, to win this competition. Congratulations are extended on his success.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

A little late in the news, but nevertheless worth repeating. . . . Barney Hartman, Canada's "Mr. Skeet", has once again proved to be one of the best shots in this world of ours. At the recent world championships in Norway, he broke 198 out of 200 birds. He placed second to Carlos Plaza of Venezuela. As most of us know by now, Hartman has for the past six years, been the Canadian skeet champ, and has held the world's high average for 20-gauge guns for the past three years. It sure is nice to be able to claim world champions in this country and not take a back seat to other nations.

How many of you readers have listened to the cat-birds in the district? We watched and listened to about 10 of them the other afternoon. They sure make a noise, and their mewing calls are very misleading at times. These birds are the slate gray except for a black cap, and they can be seen around shrubs. I also saw a couple of blue birds at the same time, and a few shrike. These are the birds that catch and eat rodents and sometimes even fellow birds. I may be wrong about these birds, as they are only with us during the winter, but from all the markings, etc., it would be hard to mistake the shrike.

Now a plea for the birds; sure it is early, but better now than never. Besides you will soon be thinking of what you can do to keep yourselves busy. . . . Bird houses and feeders. I need not go into details as to how to make them; anyone handy with the more elementary tools can do this. However, this shouldn't be any excuse, even if you have none. Even a penknife will do the trick. If you get a few made now, when the cold weather comes you will be all set to have birds around your homes all winter.

A few weeks ago a letter was printed in The Watchman about the creek running from Sir John's Lake. From Mr. Ponder, this letter asked and seemed to answer a lot of questions that had been bothering a number of people. But I don't seem to have seen any answer forthcoming. Rather strange when my letter re the same creek was answered so promptly. As you know, I was not in this district while the floods or heavy run-offs took place, so cannot say anything of conditions at that time. As far as I am concerned the creek is fine just now. But it would seem there is still a lot to be asked and answered, and as far as I am aware, this has never been done.

Last Sunday during the very heavy rains a hardy fisherman passed our house on the North River. Trolling, he had caught nothing when he passed us. But on the way back a doré was held up, to show that the old North River is still producing. This doré weighed a mere 11 pounds and maybe a few ounces. (I wouldn't worry about a couple of ounces with a fish like this at any time.) It also seems this fisherman is not a local resident but came from Montreal, and had borrowed the boat and motor. I have seen him often on the river, and talking to him occasionally. He shares my opinion that the North River is one of the best waters ever fished. For the past two years he has fished in these parts. Before this he travelled to the Eastern Townships but gave it up because of the number of fishermen and their lack of courtesy. It was nice to know that someone catches fish in the river besides our own townsmen. It could be there will be more of these visitors in the future. Good business will result from this, and we should help in any way to make them welcome.

Hunting will soon be in season — the inevitable warfare in the bush. As you recall, all kinds of legislation was going to be enacted to make it safer for everyone. As usual, not too much has been done. I know a number of briefs have been sent to the government giving views of different organizations and offering help in many ways. Still nothing is being done, or if it is, it has been kept secret. It could be that something like the Musy law is going to come out of this. You know we sportsmen are foolish; all united together could force the legislators to quit talking and something. Goodness knows there has been enough time. It's true some thoughts have been expressed by officials as to what should and should not be done; some of these ideas are good — others aren't even worth writing about. . . . I cannot help remarking here, it's no wonder we are losing our tourist business if laws take so long to be enacted.

Jack-lighting deer has already been reported. It sure doesn't take long for these meat hunters to get going. A couple have been caught but there seem to be more around. Let's hope the shooting of animals with lights will be severely dealt with and not just punished by token fines. More and more people are taking to the outdoors with the complete lack of respect for anything that may be law. . . . You readers must get tired of all this complaining, but it is only through publicity that anything will ever be accomplished. It is up to every decent citizen to help stop these infractions.

Moose are now being sighted all over the County. The latest is from the Morin Heights area. Argenteuil is getting back to its game status of 25 years ago. When you consider this County's earlier reputation for game and good sport, and the gradual depletion of animals through stupidity on our part or through Nature, it does seem strange that a lesson was not learned years ago. As usual though, we have to learn the hard way.

"I was hoping women would invade this sport!"

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Craig, accompanied by Mr. Arthur Craig and Mrs. Gilbert Bennett, left for a motor trip to Toronto and other points over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stern, of Manitwaki, Que., were Saturday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Moncrieff, after which a social gathering was held in the Arundel United Church hall to enable the friends to meet with their former minister, before they returned home. This took place on Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Bennett occupied their cottage over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Aitkens and family, of Toronto, visited with friends in Arundel over the week-end.

An interesting ceremony took place Sunday evening in the Arundel United Church, when 14 young people were received into church membership. The Rev. Mr. Ball, of Morin Heights, took part in the service and delivered the address. Despite the extreme heat, the church was filled to capacity. After the service refreshments were served at a social get-together.

Plan Witnesses' district assembly

"There will be accommodation for all," announced Mr. Henry Puruker to the local congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, speaking of the district convention this week-end. "The ready response of Ottawa and Hull housewives, hotel and motel managers, has helped to assure comfortable lodgings for the delegates of Lachute preparing to attend the United Worshippers' District Assembly at the Ottawa Coliseum, Lansdowne Park, September 7-10."

During the past three weeks (it is reported), approximately 200 Witnesses from the Ottawa and Hull areas have been climbing stairs and knocking on the doors of private homes in their quest for rooming accommodations. Hotels and motels have also been listed, resulting in a grand total of 1,200 available accommodations.

"Not only are preparations underway for the lodging of the visiting Witnesses," continued Mr. Puruker, presiding minister at Lachute, "but also to feed them. We will adopt the same systematic method of handling the crowds at our cafeteria as employed at all our large conventions, a system which enabled us to serve 1,000 meals a minute at our recent New York convention."

This New York convention, held in the famous Yankee Stadium, was the first of a series of 14, beginning in the States, up to Canada, over to Europe, and now back to Canada, winding up in Ottawa. The combined attendance of all these conventions has already reached a fabulous half-million.

BACK-TO-SCHOOL POINTERS FOR PARENTS —

EARLIER this summer a letter appeared in The Renfrew Advance — a personal note from Johnnie's teacher to Mrs. Jones. It pertained, primarily, to the long school holidays. But we kept this letter for what seemed to us a more opportune occasion, when the children return to school — and for a more opportune motive, the purpose for which they (supposedly) return: Learning.

This week doubtless brings a sigh of relief to harassed mothers of boisterous families; their children are back in the fold of the classroom for a few hours a day, at least. But for returning teachers it revives a perennial problem; and for young and inexperienced teachers it presents a major challenge bordering upon an ordeal. Their success is measured only in the progress of their charges; and in this connection there are incidentals to a school career which every Mrs. Jones should take to heart. Here, in short, is the letter. . . .

— June, 1961

Dear Mrs. Jones:

"Well, here we are at the end of another school year. I know you will be overjoyed to have your little Johnnie home with you all day for the next two months. Speaking personally I am glad too . . .

"You and I both know that he really should have had a higher standing in class but as you can see by his exam papers, I DID have to take off marks when he wrote that his town's main street was "Sunset Strip" and that Davie Crockett lost his "asterlobe" near Cobden. (Speaking frankly, Mrs. Jones, we teachers feel that 42 hours of TV a week is just a little too much for a boy his age. And it is hard to understand how the seven minutes of homework he says he has time for, could give him those bloodshot eyes.)

"I know, too, that a few days swimming in the sand will remove those ink stains from his fingers. The caretaker says that his desk will be clean again by September so we don't need to worry, do we?

"Susie did leave quite a mark on his head when she hit him with her binder . . . but perhaps it wasn't quite fair for Johnnie to trip her when the playground was so muddy, was it?

"All in all, we had quite a school year. I know that what he tells you about his teacher is all in fun (hah, hah), just as you know that I know children exaggerate when they talk about their home life in school (hah, hah).

"So, Mrs. Jones, I do hope you have a good holiday with Johnnie. I am looking forward to next fall, since I am moving to another school . . . though I will regret not having Johnnie's little brother Teddy to teach. The other teachers tell me he's exactly like Johnnie."

— Sincerely, Teacher.

Don't gamble with polio

SEPTEMBER is the month when paralytic poliomyelitis strikes most often in Canada. So far this year there have been more than 60 cases reported and by late August there had been two deaths.

This is a far cry from last year when the number of cases exceeded 300. And it's in sharp contrast to 1959 when 182 persons died of the disease that cripples when it doesn't kill.

The Federal Department of Health estimates that between 70 and 80 per cent of Canadians under 40 have had injections of Salk vaccine.

The fact that the incidence of paralytic polio has dropped sharply is encouraging but why should there be any polio at all?

What's wrong with the thousands of Canadians who have never bothered to go for their polio shots?

Perhaps they think that polio — once commonly referred to as infantile paralysis — is simply a children's disease. If they do they're wrong and they're gambling with their lives.

About one-quarter of all polio cases and about half the deaths occur among people 20 or over.

It's possible that many people think they are protected by the fact that thousands of others have had their shots and that there just isn't as much polio about these days. What they may not realize is that a person who has been injected can still be a carrier of the disease.

In a supposedly enlightened country such as Canada it seems reasonable to think that crippling polio could eventually be wiped out altogether. But it cannot be done unless every single person recognizes he has a responsibility to himself and his family.

Eskimos' big need

RECENTLY a group of school teachers, on a sightseeing trip north of the Arctic Circle, dropped in on a handicraft centre intent on picking up a soapstone carving or an Eskimo print or two.

After much searching they found what they were looking for, but it wasn't easy. Most of the handiwork had been shipped out to "better stores" in Montreal, Toronto or Ottawa.

That's the way it is through the north today. Production nearly always lags behind demand for the exquisite Eskimo works.

But not all Eskimos are carvers in stone or print-makers. The majority still live far from civilization, as dependent upon their hunting, fishing and trapping skills as they ever were.

For their children to receive a formal education, they must be sent hundreds of miles from home and boarded in government schools in settled communities.

Bright youngsters for the most part, they learn quickly — especially the mechanical skills — but they forget quickly the half-taught skills their parents had to learn to survive in a harsh environment.

They go as far as they can in school — wearing jeans and sweaters, sleeping between clean sheets in spotless dormitories and eating well-balanced meals in pastel-colored dining rooms.

But where do they go from here?

There are only so many jobs open to them. They can become interpreters, mechanics sometimes, cooks, laborers, possibly storekeepers. Some gravitate to large military bases where they find work in a civilian capacity.

Many go back to the snow houses of their ancestors — well-equipped to make their way in the white man's society, possibly, but somewhat less than useful at hunting and fishing.

No one suggests that their schooling be discontinued or curtailed, but possibly the answer lies in a different kind of schooling.

Maybe smaller schools, situated closer to the family environment, might be the answer. Here the education might be better attuned to the conditions the student will have to face when he leaves school.

SALES TAX. — The long expected and feared retail sales tax has become a reality (in Ontario). It appears to us the simplest, most equitable means of raising the needed extra revenues. The amount one pays is governed by the amount of taxable goods a person buys, so the lower income bracket are only paying their proportionate share of the cost of the benefits.

BOOKWORMS ARE SCHOLARS. — If your boy reads a lot, don't worry about him becoming a bookworm. A recent survey shows students who win scholarships read much more than those who don't, and a greater percentage of scholarship winners than non-winners achieve positions of leadership. The message is plain — men who read more, achieve more.

Teaching in the Good Old Days

Following is a list of rules for teachers drawn up by a principal in the City of New York in 1872:

1. Teachers each day will fill lamps, clean chimneys, and trim wicks

2. Each teacher will bring a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal for the day's session.

3. Make your pens carefully. You may whittle nibs to the individual tastes of the pupils.

4. Men teachers may take one evening a week for courting purposes or two evenings if they go to church regularly.

5. After ten hours in school, the teachers should spend the remaining time reading the Bible or other books.

6. Women teachers who marry or engage in unseemly conduct will be dismissed.

7. Every teacher should lay aside from each pay a goodly sum of his earnings for his benefit during his declining years so that he will not become a burden on society.

8. Any teacher who smokes, uses liquor in any form, frequents pool or public halls, or gets shaved in a barber shop will give good reason to suspect his worth, intentions, integrity, and honesty.

9. The teacher who performs his labors faithfully and without fault for five years will be given an increase of twenty-five cents per week in his pay, providing the Board of Education approves.

MARGAY AND TENREC

At the Lachute Fair this past spring, the King Reid Shows had an exhibition of small animals in one of their tents. One of these animals was labelled Margay. I could not examine it as it was rolled up in a ball, fast asleep. When I got home I looked it up in the Field Book of Natural History that has just about everything.

But not a mention of a Margay. So I went back a few years and referred to another book called the Treasury of Natural History, published in 1849. There was a full description of the animal, the Latin name being Felis Tigrina, native of South America, the size of a common cat and very fierce and untameable.

The Toronto Star Weekly carried a picture of another strange creature called a Tenrec. Once more the modern Field Book had missed the boat. Not a mention of it. But the Treasury had a complete description. It is a native of Madagascar and is sometimes called a Pig Porcupine. It looks just like a porcupine but is only seven inches long, so the quills are much weaker and finer.

I once offered to give this old book to McGill College Library, but was told by the librarian that it would be of no use as a reference book as so much more is known today about animals than there was in 1849. I am glad now that they turned down my offer. I wouldn't part with that book now for anything. Those old-timers were anything but dumb, and they were much more thorough than many of their modern counterparts.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

All Aboard

— With G. E. Mortimore —

Many girls are in too much of a hurry to grow up. It is depressing to see them at the age of 13 or 14, smeared with clumsily-applied powder and lipstick, mincing along in tight skirts like little caricatures of their mothers.

They don't have time to play. That would be childish. Instead, they moon around the house waiting for telephone calls, or slouch down the street with an exaggerated, hip-wiggling gait copied from television.

They hypnotize their parents into sanctioning their fancy-dress parade by the plea that "Everybody does it." Somehow they persuade their bewildered mothers and fathers that such strange behavior is normal, and that a girl in her early teens is underprivileged if her elders deny her the right to decorate herself like a little harpy.

They aren't all like that. It's pleasant to see some of them still acting like children — whooping around the waterfront with boys their own age, playing pranks, pushing one another into the water, and generally showing themselves to be young colt-like creatures — not raddled ham actresses playing the role of premature middle age.

There is little enough time to be a child. Why try to hurry away from childhood? It will fade into the distance all too soon.

Of course, people do grow up — emotionally and physically — at different rates, and at the same time young people do have a desperate desire to conform — to do the accepted thing.

But if a sufficent number of parents should decide firmly to encourage their offspring to remain children until they were ready to accept some of the responsibilities of grown-ups, then the climate of teen-aged convention might change.

It might become the accepted thing to enjoy childhood as long as it lasted, rather than rushing into the worrisome state of being grown-up.

Of Many Things

ON THE EDGE OF DISASTER

Poets and other sensitive people tell us that if we wish to live fully we should always be aware that life is lived on the edge of disaster.

Disaster struck our normal placid lives last week when our pony, Mite (short for Dynamite), took sick with the colic. We were all fond of Mite; and my daughter, Kathy, who owns him, was crazy over him — but she didn't quite realize it until Mite was nearly lost.

Today, Mite is well again, and doubly loved and enjoyed. Having nursed him to survival through one dangerous night, he'll always mean more to us. And to the good neighbor who stayed up most of the night with us to keep him on his feet.

When trouble comes, we find things out about life and its worth. There ought to be some magic attitude that would keep us aware of such values the whole year through, in good times or bad, so that we would react more deeply to friends and neighbors, family and surroundings.

Perhaps life lived at such a pitch would be a strain on the nervous system. I doubt it. I think we die a little during the placid lulls in our lives. We are keener, finer, richer when we face trouble and see something valued on the point of departing.

This week-end I watched a group of new-comers to Canada rollicking on a public beach close to our cottage. Many of these new-comers had lived a long time behind the iron curtain. They enjoy and appreciate the freedom and abundance they find here in Canada — enjoy it far more than we natives do, who take so much of it for granted.

Life is a hazardous business and nothing should be taken for granted. Each day that the sun rises should find us filled with gratitude to be alive and breathing, with friends and family close by, and work to do. We should live as if this were the last day granted to us. What a difference it would make!

Home-School renews activities September 13

Wednesday, September 13, at 8.15 p.m., will be the beginning of the 1961-62 meetings of the Lachute and District Home and School Association. The opening meeting will have the Protestant School Board on the platform to tell about the progress of the new school building, and to answer questions for members of the Association.

The local Association has, in the four years since its inception, performed many useful services for the High School and community, but it could do much more if more parents of students attending the school showed their interest by attending meetings and becoming active H.&S. members.

The primary concern of a Home and School Association is to assist the school, and every parent with a child in the High School should feel it his duty to support the Association in its endeavors to aid the school, its staff and its students.

School of Ballet resumes Sept. 29

On Friday, September 29, the Argenteuil School of Ballet will reopen a new year. It is hoped that this coming course will be as successful as previous years and that the community will take advantage of the facilities offered.

Once again, Miss Lucille Du Breuil, a well qualified teacher, will take charge of the classes. Miss Du Breuil is of course fluent in both English and French. She enjoyed several years of extensive study, on scholarship from the Canadian National Ballet, at the Royal Academy of Dancing in London, England. Miss Du Breuil is a member of the Imperial Society of Teachers, which qualifies her to train pupils for R.A.D. examinations. This is a program the school hopes to embark upon this coming season.

In order to improve the organization of the School, interested parents should contact Mrs. E. F. Gow, R.R. 3, Lachute, or phone LO 2-6102 before September 15.

Barbara Jane Cruise is bride at Weston, Ontario

Putnam-Cruise

Central United Church, Weston, was decked in white carnations and pink gladioli for the recent wedding of Miss Barbara Jane Cruise and Mr. Robert Garth Putnam. Officiating clergyman was a close friend of the groom, the Rev. James A. Terry of Oakville, and immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom took their first communion as man and wife.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cruise, of Weston (formerly of Lachute), and the groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. D. F. Putnam, Oakville.

The wedding music was supplied by Mr. and Mrs. John Booth, Mrs. Booth on the organ and Mr. Booth as soloist.

Coming in on the arm of her father, the bride wore a full-length white satin gown with imported lace overlay, styled on simple classic lines with self-bow at the back. Her fingertip embroidered veil was gathered on a pearl coronet and she carried a cascade of Sweetheart roses on a white bible.

Attending as matron of honor was Mrs. Gary Magee and the bridesmaids were Mrs. W. Rombough, a sister of the bride, and Miss Ardith Putnam, a sister of the groom. They were gowned alike in shrimp organza over matching taffeta with bandeaus of white organza, shrimp trimmed, in their hair. They carried cascades of white daisies and carnations.

Mr. Donald Wakefield was groomsman and ushers were Mr. Robert Cruise, a brother of the bride, Mr. Gordon Howden, Mr. Len Evenden and Mr. Gary Magee.

Central United Church hall was the scene of the reception. Mrs. Cruise received her guests in beige organza over matching taffeta, lace trimmed, and accessories in beige. A Cymbidium orchid corsage and green hat was a perfect foil for her beige ensemble. A Dior blue silk shantung was chosen by the groom's mother, Mrs. Putnam. Her accessories were in white and her flowers were shrimp roses.

The bride's "going - away" costume was a white linen sheath dress and jacket trimmed with touches of red, matching straw hat of white and red, and corsage of red Sweetheart roses.

After their wedding trip to Waterloo, Mr. and Mrs. Putnam returned to their new home in Weston.

The gown was fashioned with a fitted bodice having a decolletage neckline of re-embroidered lace trimmed with brilliants, and brief sleeves, and a bouffant skirt with appliqués of lace. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching lace crown trimmed with brilliants, and she carried a cascade of cornflowers.

— Fauteux Studio, Hawkesbury

Miss Joanne McVicar, niece of the bride, was flower girl, and wore a short white terylene dress with a fitted bodice having a Peter Pan collar and short puffed sleeves, with a bouffant skirt and a scalloped overskirt decorated with small blue rosebuds. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a small bouquet similar to the bridesmaids'.

PARTNERS — HOME AND SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I want my boys to attend Sunday School. It is in my opinion a kind of character insurance for them," a salesman, who had recently moved to a new community told his next door neighbor. "Are you going to do anything to make the Sunday School your sons will go to, the kind you would like it to be?" the neighbor asked quietly.

The newcomer was surprised and a little annoyed . . . "If necessary my wife will lend a hand with the Christmas concert and the Sunday School picnic . . . I don't think I need to worry about what is really the church's job!"

A True Story

This is a true story, and whatever is your religious affiliation, what do you think of this father's attitude? In the official handbook, "Canada 1960" readers are reminded that "many shades of religious faith are embraced by the Canadian people. There is no state church and all groups are free to worship as they wish."

Do you know quite a few fathers who interpret "freedom to worship" as freedom to fill their Sundays with all kinds of things which crowd out church attendance, but at the same time send their youngsters off to Sunday School?

Ideas about a child's religious training in different countries may vary greatly. At Winnipeg's Evangelistic Mission, sponsored by the city's Council of Churches, the missioner was Tom Allan, father of three school-age children, minister of a down-town church in Glasgow. With his sincerity, his down-to-earth approach and his quiet eloquence he made a tremendous impact on thousands who heard him.

Tom Allan was asked for his ideas about a child's religious training. He gave a reply which is a challenge to fathers and mothers, whatever their denomination. This most outstanding of living Scottish evangelists said:

"While the religious education of a child in Sunday School is of the most vital importance, and we cannot do enough to insure that the best possible instruction is given there, and the best possible methods used, it is still certain that the most profound influence upon a child's religious life is through the home.

"Obviously a Sunday School teacher who has a child for only a brief period each week, can only affect the shaping of the child's life in a limited way. This can be completely destroyed by the example and background of the home life of the child.

"It is my own conviction that the failure in family worship is the basic cause of such widespread indifference to the church and its message in these days in which we live."

Hungry children are restless and inattentive, and thus not at the beginning but at the end of the evening meal is often a good time for family worship. There is no one "right" pattern for this. Choose the one which fits your own family.

In planning for family worship, parents do well to ask themselves what they are trying to accomplish. "What is apparently wanted by everyone," says the writer on religious education in The Encyclopedia of Child Care and Guidance, published by the Parent Institute, "is the inculcation of ethical ideals and standards of conduct, a feeling for spiritual values, and the inner strength to meet the vicissitudes of daily living with dignity and fortitude." Are these your goals?

"Children have more need of models than of critics," Joubert said, and old Samuel Johnson commented: "Example is more efficacious than precept."

What kind of loving or cold atmosphere surrounds your little son or daughter in his home? Is he learning unselfishness, kindness, honesty and other virtues, not from what you say, but by the way you act?

"Any more fighting between you two and I'll have to take you out of housewares."

Pecan Sponge Pie

The pecan industry is big business, and nuts from the Southern States are exported around the world, although pecan pie is still thought of as a southern novelty. This recipe for Pecan Sponge Pie is an unusual version of the original. As the pie bakes, the filling separates into two layers — a sponge-like topping over a rich, sauce-like mixture. The result is a deliciously different pie that is not quite as sweet or heavy as the more conventional kind, but just as flavorful. If one wishes to save time, a packaged mix may be used for making the shell.

Pecan Sponge Pie

(Yield — 1 pie)

Pie paste, 2 eggs (separated), ½ cup lightly-packed brown sugar, ½ cup corn syrup, 2 tablespoons soft butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup milk, ½ cup pecan halves.

Preheat oven to 375 deg. F. (moderately hot).

Line a pie plate (8½ inches, top inside measure) with rolled-out pie paste; trim and crimp edges of paste. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry. Beat egg yolks slightly; stir in brown sugar, corn syrup, soft butter or margarine and lemon juice. Combine flour, baking powder and salt in a small sieve; sprinkle over egg yolk mixture and combine well. Gradually stir in milk and pecans. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into prepared pie shell. Bake in pre-heated oven until filling is set — 35 to 40 minutes. Serve warm.

Replenish the pickle shelf!

(Consumer Section)

This is the season to think about filling your jars with a variety of colors, tastes, shapes and uses. Here are some ideas from the tested recipe file of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture in Ottawa.

In this recipe for Pickled Onions the small white onions are first soaked in a brine, to keep them firm and crisp during the succeeding pickling process. This brine soak also reduces bitterness. Either coarse salt or table salt may be used for the brine, but do not use table salt that has been treated to make it free-running. Free-running salt may cause cloudiness in the brine or in the pickle mixture. White vinegar, rather than cider or blended vinegar, gives a better color to the onions. Pickled onions go well with sandwiches, cocktail foods and winter salads.

Pickled Onions

2 Quarts small white onions, 8 cups boiling water, ¼ cup table (bag) salt or ¾ cup coarse salt, 4 cups white vinegar, 1 cup white sugar, 1 stick cinnamon.

Cover onions with boiling water, let stand 2 to 3 minutes, drain, cover with cold water and peel. Make a brine of the boiling water and salt. Pour over onions and let stand overnight. Drain. Rinse thoroughly with cold water and drain. Heat vinegar, sugar and cinnamon to boiling point, boil 5 minutes and remove cinnamon. Add onions and bring just to boiling point. Pack immediately into clean sealers, cover with boiling vinegar mixture and seal. Makes about 4 pint sealers.

Mustard cucumber pickles will give a special fillip to meats like corned beef, pork chops and hot dogs next winter. Use a good quality vinegar in full strength to ensure firmness and keeping quality of pickles.

Mustard Cucumber Pickle

10 Cups peeled and diced cucumber, 1½ cups coarsely chopped onion, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon tumeric, ¼ cup dry mustard, ½ cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 cup water, 3 cups vinegar, 1 tablespoon celery seed.

Combine vegetables with the salt and let stand one hour. Drain thoroughly. Cook gently in about 2 cups water until tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Drain thoroughly. Mix tumeric, mustard and flour, salt and brown sugar to a smooth paste with ¼ cup of the water. Heat remaining water, vinegar and celery seed to the boiling point. Slowly add some of hot vinegar mixture to flour paste, blend well, then return to remaining vinegar mixture. Cook sauce stirring constantly until thickened, about 5 minutes. Add drained, cooked vegetables to mustard sauce and bring to boil. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 8 cups.

Chow Chow is a mild, spiced pickle of a soft texture and so good with roasts. The spices should be bought fresh for best flavor and tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag which is large enough to let the vinegar boil through them.

Chow Chow

30 Medium green tomatoes (7½ lb.), ¼ cup table (bag) salt or ¾ cup coarse salt, ½ medium cabbage (3 cups minced), 3 green peppers, 2 sweet red peppers, 3 medium onions, 6½ cups vinegar, 2 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, ½ tablespoon whole cloves.

Put tomatoes through food chopper, using coarse blade. Combine with salt and let stand ½ hour. Put into cheesecloth bag and let drain overnight. Add cabbage, peppers and onions which have been put through food chopper. Mix vegetables together and add vinegar, sugar and spices tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag. Cook, uncovered, over low heat until vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about 12 cups.

The next time you have to tote a meal with you, try packing each person's meal individually. There are several methods. For instance, egg cartons make suitable carrying cases. Fill halved wiener buns with butter and your favorite sandwich filling, wrap and put into sections. Next peel and halve cooked eggs and wrap them individually. Sectioned tomatoes also fit neatly in the carton's compartments for easy carrying.

Pie plates are good for meals-on-the-go. Cut hearty sandwiches in triangular shapes, wrap each section individually and place on the plate with the points toward the centre. Pickles, olives or celery fit around the edges and dessert, if it's pie, fits neatly into place between sandwiches. Wrap the pie in heavy foil which can be used as a plate.

Plastic cutlery trays make useful serving trays. Each person's meal can be packed for dining on his lap with no passing necessary except for the beverage. Buttered rolls, fried chicken, cole slaw, whole tomatoes, celery and pickles can be wrapped and packed in the various compartments. Tarts, cup cakes or fruits which can be eaten without forks are good for dessert. Place the necessary cutlery, paper napkins and salt and pepper in each tray and cover completely with foil. Dinner is ready when the foil is peeled off.

Copy and Kopi

When newspaperman William Drury of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin worked in Singapore he soon learned that the Malays, like the Filipinos, have no "f" in their language. They pronounce it "p".

When Drury yelled "copy" his Malay copy boy was supposed to rush his work to the editors. Instead, when Drury yelled copy, the boy disappeared and returned a half hour later with a steaming cup of coffee. The young boy thought Drury had said Kopi, which means coffee in the Malay tongue.

"The problem was easily solved," Drury explained later. "When we wanted coffee, we yelled copy and when we wanted to send copy to the printers we yelled coffee."

Odds and Ends

Pretty embroidery around the neckline of blouses is being repeated at the hem of slips in the new all-in-one blouse and slip combinations. The blouse-slip is a boon to women who have trouble keeping their blouses tucked in at the waist. They come in pastel and deep colors.

In England, officials at Anne Hathaway's cottage at Stratford-upon-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, were upset because sparrows were systematically removing single straws from the thatch. The solution was a terylene mesh netting which not only ended patching but matched the thatch.

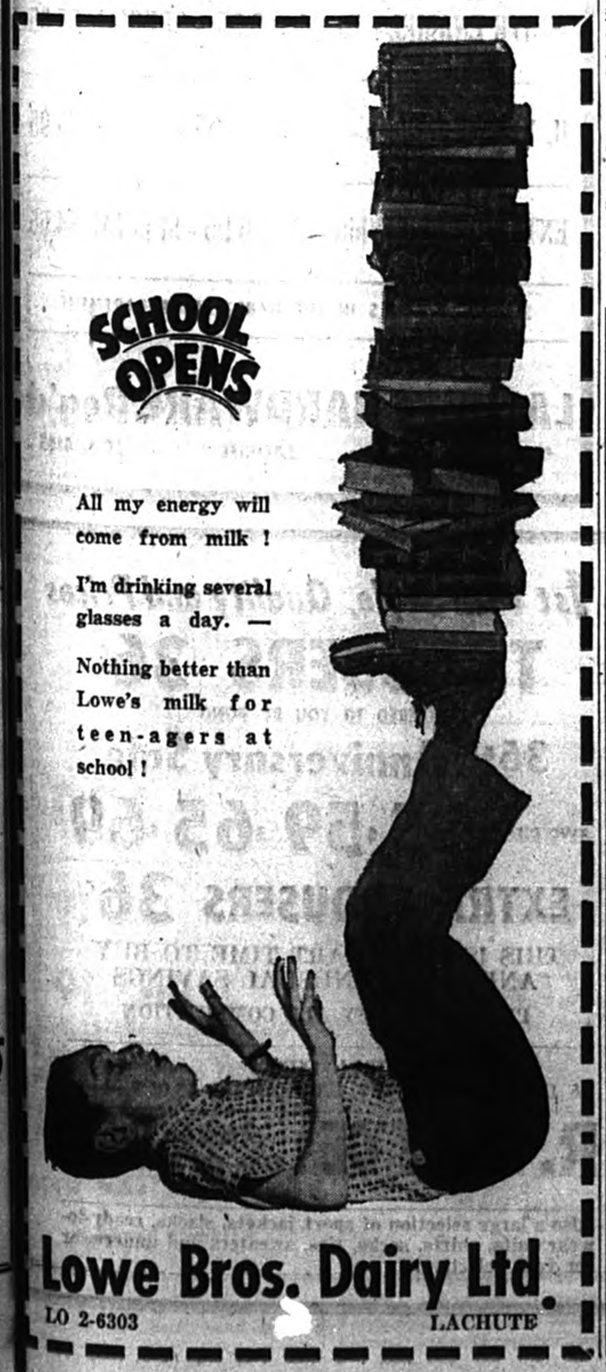

In St. Catharines, Ont., Elfrieda Penner got married but didn't change her name. She was married to Rudy Penner. Furthermore, the officiating minister was Rev. Henry Penner. None were related. "It's been a good name, so far," Mrs. Penner said.

TAXABLE VALUATION OVER 10-MILLION

Homologation of property roll and lengthier matters at Town Council

The town valuation roll for tax purposes next year was revised and homologated at the September council meeting, chaired by Mayor Fernand Legault, Q.C. In this instance only properties which have undergone a change, or properties newly erected, in the past year, are subject to revision for the roll. Total valuation stands at $10,328,400.

Police and Fire

On proposal of Ald. L. Armstrong, seconded by Ald. S. Church, it was ruled that George Taylor, serving as constable and fireman, be paid at firemen's rate while on fire duty, and that his remuneration as policeman be left to the discretion of the Phillips agency. . . . Ald. S. Holt also moved, and Ald. Church seconded, that Fire Chief Don MacCulloch be paid $10 every Sunday he is on duty; a meeting between the chief and the fire committee will establish a contract to this effect. . . . Payment was approved to Mr. Cleland for cost of repairs to radios on the police and fire vehicles.

Various Business

On due study of the budget, it was found inadvisable to vote a donation to the Domremy appeal, due to lack of funds available for such grants.

On motion of Ald. Dr. J. P. Dorion, supported by Ald. Lauréat Laurin, it was decided to ask the Roads Department to fill the east side of Cruise's Gulley along the length expropriated, so that the municipality can eventually lay a sidewalk without infringing on the road-width.

Garage proprietors in town will be asked to allow a discount of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline and oil; those agreeable will receive business in rotation.

Repairs to the fire truck will be entrusted to Deacon Motor Sales for the price quoted, $99.40.

It was ordered to send a registered letter to Laurent Ducharme on arrears of taxes.

Ald. Armstrong moved, and Ald. Dr. Dorion seconded, that $100 a month be charged to Phillips Investigation Bureau for use of the ambulance-station wagon until the agency procures its own vehicle, and that the town would not pay maintenance and repair costs on this unit.

Complaint on Ambulance

A letter was read from the firm of J. P. MacKimmie Reg., funeral directors, complaining that Dr. John C. MacKimmie had called upon the services of the town emergency vehicle to take a patient to hospital, while there are two private ambulance services in town. . . . Ald. Armstrong had approached the physician on this matter, and the latter had explained that due to the urgency of the case he had immediately thought of the police vehicle. The police officers meanwhile, seeing the condition of the patient, had not considered it advisable to delay by calling a private ambulance.

Following a letter received from the Ayersville Council representatives of the two municipalities will meet September 19 at 8.15 p.m. to discuss arrangements for water supply for the Regional Hospital.

Accounts totalling $15,277.68 were passed for payment.

It was decided to invite offers for the purchase of a piece of land, situated in Chatham, which belongs to the Town of Lachute.

Split Vote on Sidewalks

Last matter for discussion at this lengthy meeting was the most controversial in the proceedings. . . . Ald. Laurin, seconded by Ald. Church, moved that a sidewalk be laid on the north side of Henry, from Mary Street to Barron Ave., also along a section of Mary and of Barron.

Ald. H. Lamarche moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Dr. Dorion, that the matter be held in abeyance, since the majority of proprietors are opposed, and also since Alex Denault would be called upon to meet costs of widening his sidewalk without having being forewarned.

The Mayor called for a vote on the amendment, which was supported by Aldermen Lamarche, Dorion, Armstrong and Thibodeau. . . . The remaining four councillors, Laurin, Church, Lepage and Holt, then voted in favor of the original motion. . . . Opinions being evenly split, Mayor Legault cast a deciding vote in favor of the amendment.

The meeting was adjourned until September 19.

7,000 miles and made appearances in several States, also performing on four television shows.

Dr. R. Rigby pinch-hitter as Rotary speaker

At the September 7 meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, Rotarian Dr. Reg Rigby volunteered as speaker for the evening — relieving the worried Tom Johnson, who was in charge of the meeting but had a last-minute cancellation.

Dr. Rigby spoke about the Dollard site. Being on the research committee of the Historical Society, he proved an excellent speaker on the subject. He told of the adventures of Dollard and his men and the battles with the Indians around Carillon. He talked on the present arguments that are going on regarding the site of Dollard's last stand, and facts and figures being used to determine the exact site. The topic proves quite controversial; and to Dr. Rigby's listeners, proved highly interesting.

Speaking of facts and figures — on July 26, 1961, there were 11,016 Rotary Clubs and an estimated 511,500 Rotarians in 123 countries and geographical regions. The 1960-61 Rotary year saw the admission of 354 new clubs, almost one a day.

Tradesman dies in H'wkby mishap

Hawkesbury — Wesley Ladouceur, 37, a carpenter with the Philias Ouimet Construction of Hawkesbury, was fatally injured on Tuesday of last week while installing a window on the second storey of a store being built on the corner next to Brewers Warehousing. The victim was turning around on the scaffold when he accidentally missed his footing and landed head first upon the lower floor. He was rushed to Smith's Clinic but succumbed while preparations were being made to rush him to Montreal Neurological Institute.

Provincial officer asks co-operation of cottagers

Cpl. Aimé Bertrand, officer in charge of the Argenteuil detachment of Provincial Police, is requesting the co-operation of all local residents in taking descriptions and license numbers of any strange cars seen in the vicinity of summer cottages.

"This is the time of year we are called upon most frequently to investigate thefts from summer homes", Cpl. Bertrand stated.

He suggested that seasonal residents transport small articles such as electric razors, radios, etc., back and forth with them each weekend, to minimize the loss in the event that their home is entered by thieves.

Cpl. Bertrand also warned persons against leaving outboard motors on their boats while no one is in attendance at the property. He stated this is a general, but unwise practice, and as a result many motors are lost each year.

New alderman by acclamation

Nominations for Council vacancy in Seat No. 1 were held Monday, and François Charlebois was named for the seat, without opposition.

The term of this office concludes in November, at the new date set for civic elections — Mr. Charlebois completing the term of Ald. Réal Morrissette, which would have concluded at that time. . . . It is recalled Mr. Morrissette resigned from Council on removal of his residence to Calumet, where he purchased a hotel business some time ago.

Boy, 6, injured at St. Andrews

Six-year-old Pierre Stevenson, of St. Andrews East, received serious injuries on Thursday evening last, when struck by a car owned and driven by Claude Landry, 30, of St. Andrews East.

According to St. Andrews Chief A. J. Whiteway, the boy was on the river side of the road and ran from behind a parked car into the path of the Lachute-bound vehicle.

Dr. A. L'Allier treated the child at the scene. He was then placed in the St. Andrews East emergency vehicle and driven to Lachute, where he was transferred to a Montreal hospital in a private ambulance.

Week-end campers' rally at Hill Head

Last week-end the Laurentian Section of the Camping Club of Canada held a rally at the Wigwam grounds (Au Vieux Domaine, Hill Head) — the first rally held on this new local campsite. There were 94 tents with campers ranging in age from two months to 80 years.

Program of the rally included hiking, swimming, singsongs, a corn roast, folk dancing by the Esperanza group under Ghislain Robitaille, also modern dancing with musicians from St. Jerome.

A free campsite for next season was offered as a prize by the proprietor, L. P. Dumais — won by camper No. 36, Jean Chaizy, of Montreal.

Town garbage re-routed to St. Jerusalem Parish

After many fruitless efforts, and repeated prodding from the Quebec Department of Health, the town corporation has finally procured, ratified and endorsed a new site for disposal of the town's garbage. Success on this thorny issue was announced at last Wednesday's Council meeting, when the city fathers approved and passed the agreement.

The garbage dump will be situated henceforth on the Lebert Hume farm in St. Jerusalem, about 1½ miles from town (towards Beech Ridge, R.R. 4). St. Jerusalem Parish Council has given its sanction, and the Health Unit has approved the site.

Use of the new dump site in St. Jerusalem commenced on Monday, the old garbage ground now being closed.

This removal of the dumpsite satisfies (1) the long-enduring protests of Mountain View residents, (2) the necessity to withdraw from proximity of the hospital, and (3) the lack of adequate space at the former site.

Lachute Town will pay a monthly rental of $100 to the proprietor, and the latter has a period of three months to decide on a five-year agreement. Sand for filling purposes will be taken from the same farm, and the municipality will lay a road in to the dump, at a cost of about $500. If Mr. Hume decides against the contract within three months, he will re-imburse the municipality for this expense.

The final solution of the garbage problem follows lengthy negotation, and many frustrations, on the part of the councillors — notably Dr. Jean-Paul Dorion, Mayor Fernand Legault and Ald. Horace Lamarche, also Col. E. Emmett, health inspector — seeking sites in various quarters.

Police and fire report for August

The police department reported an active month, with 420 service calls — in summarizing its activities for August. There were no fewer than 24 accidents investigated, $2,027 collected in fines and permits, and 199 tickets issued for various offences.

Revenues included $1,424.45 in traffic fines; $175.76 for other violations of the by-laws; $384 for dog licenses; $40 for bicycle permits; and $3 collected for long-distance phone calls.

The police gave shelter or protection to 18 persons and made six arrests. There were six persons injured; eight reported missing and duly located; one case of breaking and entering; 14 bicycles stolen (of which 12 were recovered); and four other thefts reported.

The fire department responded to six calls within the month.

West-end bridge closed for repair

Long-awaited repairs to the Chatham Street bridge commenced Monday of this week, and Provincial Public Works officials report that the thoroughfare will be closed to traffic for an estimated two weeks.

Detour signs have been erected on both sides of the bridge, and all traffic is being re-routed across Fish's Bridge.

Search in river

Provincial Police were summoned to St. Andrews East by a resident who reported seeing two men throw a bag into the river.

Chief A. J. Whiteway and Provincial Police officers dragged the section of the river with grappling irons but failed to locate the searched-for object, which was reported to be "quite long".

Blood Clinic dates set for September 25-26

Preparation is now underway for the annual blood donor clinic, which will be held on Monday and Tuesday, September 25-26. The clinic will take place in the Lachute Auditorium, from 2 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m. Mr. Roger Regimbal, chairman, with Mr. Kenneth Riley as co-chairman, is requesting that everyone will make this event known and turn out to donate a small portion of their blood, which is so badly needed.

An objective of 600 pints, admittedly a small donation from such a large territory, has been set, and it is hoped that all persons between the ages of 18 and 65 will do their utmost to contribute. It is for a humanitarian cause, and every blood donation may help to save a life.

Volunteer workers will be welcomed to help in this campaign. A phone call to the chief convener, Mrs. L. Armstrong, LO 2-5005, with an offer to help, will be greatly appreciated.

An innovation — "prizes on the hour" — is being introduced this year, and it is hoped this may create extra interest at the clinic.

Committees have been set up, headed as follows:

Chairman, R. Regimbal.
Co-chairman, Kenneth Riley.
Conveners — Mrs. L. Armstrong, Mrs. G. McGibbon.
Registration — Mrs. G. Ayers, Mrs. R. Regimbal.
Records — Mrs. R. Stephens.
Volunteer Nurses — Mrs. A. Vessie.
Reception — Mrs. R. Carreau.
Telephone — Mrs. L. Bedard.
Publicity — Mrs. H. Watson.
Physicians — Dr. L. Middleton.

Talk about it — speak to your neighbors and friends — and let us make this one of the best clinics yet! . . . Transportation can be arranged and if necessary your children will be cared for at the clinic while you are making your donation.

Ex-police chief defeated in Ayersv'l election

Ayersville taxpayers recorded their votes last Wednesday to appoint a councillor for Seat No. 3, vacated by the resignation of Maurice Dumas, when he stood last May as candidate for mayor.

Jacques Champagne won the election with a 56-vote majority over Marcel Therrien, ex-police chief of the municipality. The count was 393 votes to 337.

There were three polls. Two of these recorded 14 and 73-vote majorities for Champagne, while the remaining poll gave a 31-vote lead for Therrien.

The election report submitted by Jacques Poitras, secretary-treasurer, indicates that 70 per cent of the 1,088 eligible voters exercised their franchise.

Councillor Champagne will complete the term of Mr. Dumas which terminates in May 1962.

Car misappropriated — comes to grief

A charge of "being in possession of a car without the owner's permission" was laid following an accident Thursday night on the Beech Ridge road, near Route 8 intersection. Charged was a 16-year-old Lachute youth. The car is owned by Fernand Bouchard, of Lachute. The accident was investigated by Traffic Officer A. Kennedy, of the local Provincial Police detachment.

Light Horse Association formed here; Show at Fair Grounds October 7

A meeting was held recently for the purpose of forming a Light Horse Show group in this district. The name of the new organization will be the Lachute Fall Horse Show Association. This new association will be under auspices of Argenteuil Agricultural Society, but will operate independently. The first Fall Horse Show will be held at the Fair Grounds on October 7. Many local horse and pony enthusiasts will be taking part in this event.

Interest in horses and ponies in this district is ever increasing, and it is hoped that in the future the Lachute Fall Horse Show will be as well known as the Spring Fair. Any information concerning the coming Horse Show may be obtained from Alwyn Stewart, Brownsburg, secretary. President of the newly-formed group is Donald M. Hay, Lachute.

THE LONG SAULT AND CARILLON DAM —

Two buildings on river front to be preserved

A recent article in La Presse under the pen of J. L. Lacroix, gave the following facts, among others, on current enquiries into the history of the Ottawa Valley in that area to be submerged by the Carillon Dam. . . .

An archaeologist engaged by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, Thomas E. Lee — with two authorities of the Hydro-Quebec, Albert Gerin-Lajoie and Michel Gaumond — have the area under surveillance with Hydro-Quebec machinery and manpower available to explore sites of likely interest along the river shore.

Hydro-Quebec and the Quebec Tourist Bureau visualize and are collaborating for a park to preserve ancient landmarks and provide space for visitors, with a tourist bureau, at the Carillon project.

Mr. Raymond Douville, Under-Secretary of the Province, discussed the project with this reporter, also Mr. Paul Gouin, chairman of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, who made a statement of interest to riverfront residents and others concerned in these developments — that two ancient buildings are considered specially worthy of preserving. These are the old Graham homestead, Bayside Farm, and the adjacent blacksmith shop. The two structures, at Cushing, will be taken down stone by stone and reconstructed in the park (according to the article quoting Mr. Gouin).

Speaking of the investigations on the Ontario side, Mr. Gouin is reported as saying there are indisputable artifacts that "might be relics of the Long Sault battle or of old Indian settlements. It is worth finding out before the ground is flooded." The research team has until next spring to complete its work.

Col. Emmett heads Lions reassembled for new season

Main business of the opening session of Lachute Lions — necessarily brief, due to sultry heat last Tuesday evening — was a welcoming address by the new president, Col. Ernest Emmett, and the naming of committee chairmen.

A few of these, in charge of club and community activities for the current year, are as follows:

Attendance — E. M. Jones;
Membership — Leopold Carriere;
Club Bulletin — Paul Guenette;
Rink Committee — Geo. Locke;
Public Speaking — Dr. E. Mongeon;
Conventions — Gabriel Valois;
Agriculture & Exhibition — Guy Besner.

Vice-presidents this year are Royal Carrière and D. M. Hay, with Jacques Bourgoing as treasurer and Keith Clarke in his familiar role as secretary.

It was reported that, thanks to the Lions' operation of the annual Calcutta event at the Golf Club, it will be possible to turn over substantial proceeds to the Regional Hospital fund.

Lion Gabriel Downing spoke briefly on the Ayersville Air Cadet Squadron.

Chatham Twp. seeks aid on road work, bridges

At the Chatham Council meeting last week, under chairmanship of Mayor Roméo Foucault, the secretary was instructed to write the Quebec Liquor Board stating the Council had no objection to granting of hotel permits to Gérard Denis and Jean-Paul Dagenais.

Council approved lot cancellations and corrections on a subdivision plan drawn up by Arthur Lafrance, surveyor, but will not accept maintenance of the road.

The secretary was asked to write the Department of Public Works for assistance in the building of a bridge at the Robert water course and also a bridge on the Mountain Lakes road near Dalesville.

Councillor Wm. Morrow, seconded by Councillor Adelard Gagné, moved that the Department be asked also for information on procuring assistance under the Winter Works program, in respect to road work needed — including the clearing of 75 miles of roadside brush, widening of roads and digging of ditches.

Council accepted By-Law 117 pertaining to the Hutt branch of the Robert water course.

Councillor D. Leroux and Councillor Ernest Lacasse moved that the Department of Municipal Affairs be asked for the services of an engineer to examine a water and sewer plan prepared for Whiselltown some years ago.

Accounts totalling $1,566.44 were approved for payment.

Red Shield fund appeal by Salvation Army

A yearly campaign which commends itself to every observant citizen, is the Salvation Army's Red Shield Appeal. The Watchman directs its readers' attention to the appeal, which in this district takes the form of a direct-mail solicitation. All who regularly support the drive, and others who might wish to do so, are invited to forward their donations to the chairman, Harold Deacon, or the treasurer, Donald M. Hay (Bank of Montreal), or a third member of the local committee, Leopold Carriere.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

With the hunting season rapidly drawing nearer, we will be having the influx of Shoot Anyway types in our midst. I know most of us know how to handle firearms, but a little brush-up on our own personal handling won't hurt. . . .

Don't drag any gun through a fence. Push it through ahead of you, and unload it before you do. This takes only a matter of seconds but it could save your life, or someone else's.

Do not carry your gun with a shell in the breech. Leave the breech open.

Don't try hammering something into the ground with the butt of your gun — even though this is a wonderful way to clean your teeth if the gun is loaded! It could also save you a lot of time trying to part your hair.

Look before you shoot, and then look again.

Make sure your guns will handle the types of new ammunition on the market if you intend to try these.

— Those are my own opinions and recommendations; some of them won't go over so big with you, but I like them.

I have not heard of any more rabies cases, but that is only to be expected. There are not too many foxes around, so these cannot be blamed for any present outbreak. I have been told of squirrels and chipmunks having contracted the disease, and this may be the way it is passed on. One thing is very certain, I have never seen as many chipmunks or red squirrels since I came into this district. This may be Nature's way of cleaning them out. You don't expect little things like this to have anything as dangerous as rabies, but it certainly is possible for them to get it. All fur-bearing animals are subject to the malady, no matter how small.

Not too many fishermen let the poor weather spoil their last big week-end of trout fishing. (Labor Day week-end). Literally every place that had water, there was a fisherman.

I saw a couple of very good fish taken, and some not so good. Around Lake Louisa the bass certainly did try to please. One group I saw had about 50 of these fish. None of them very big, but good eating. One of the group was a real fisherman — this was easily seen by his actions. For instance, every fish was cleaned field-style just as soon as it was caught, and put in a plastic bag out of the sun. At least he was going to be sure of good eating fish. The perch in some of the lakes were hitting and I did hear of very good catches being taken on the Ottawa River near St. Placide, the only trout of any size that I saw was a Grey, a shade over the three-pound class. It was being cleaned when I saw it, and full of spawn, with nothing very much in the stomach. This was the same with some of the Speckled variety taken, and I do know personally it was the same with the creek trout.

I suppose, with the passing of Summer visitors from the scene, we will now have an overflow of dogs and cats running the bush. It has never failed to be this way; and I suppose a lot of stray animals are going to be taken in by some kind-hearted people. As usual there will be those that couldn't land a good home and will have to fend for themselves. A tragic existence for a pet that has given its faithfulness and affection for a short time. Then doubtless a lot of them will be shot by their owners, or by kids with guns in the bush. I know that yesterday (Sunday) there were a few youngsters out with .22's shooting up everything in sight — birds and what-have-you — boys old enough to know better but who somehow have been left out of Conservation. Not local youths, I am glad to say. These types pose a great menace to our wildlife, not to mention humans.

The other night, while fishing with one of our local enthusiasts, I used one of these Air Cell lines. Brand new and just the way it came out of the container. Now this may be hard to believe, but the line was a floater for about 10 minutes and that was all. It sure turned out to be a lemon; it would have made an excellent trolling line the way it sank! After about half an hour of this, it was almost impossible to pick the line up or out of the water. It even dragged the flies down as soon as it was cast. This was one of the worst lines I have ever used. My companion had a cheaper level line, and it was a pleasure to watch that line float. Even when it was left on the water for minutes on end, it stayed high and dry. . . . Oh yes, we didn't get any fish!

I just received a phone call from a reader who wishes to remain off the record. He sure has a legitimate beef, too. . . .

On Monday, the last day of the long week-end, he was feeding his chickens when a car drove by. It slowed down, then speeded up a little. He then heard shots as though from some automatic rifle. Later, when he rounded up his chickens, he seemed to be short some, so he went looking for them. He found them right beside the fence, dead — shot with a .22 rifle, presumably. He has reported this matter to the authorities but hasn't much hope of anything coming of it. Things like this only point to the irresponsible people carrying firearms. Pity help anyone in the bush with these jokers around!

A couple of tips for the fall trout fisherman. The water is cooling off nicely; this will bring them nearer the top, so try fishing nearer the surface. By this I mean, if you are spinning, speed up your retrieve and add a couple of jerks to it every once in a while. As a matter of fact you could even use a surface lure to get them interested. Another hint — if you are still fishing with the good old garden hackle, use a very small split shot for a sinker and then just let it drift. Better still, don't use the split shot at all. Even a floater won't be amiss at this time of the year.

As for bait, if you have no luck with worms, get some of the Dobson crawlers from under any rock in a stream. These are also called Hellgramites, and they do make excellent bait. They are a little hard to catch and this is what I usually do: Use a handkerchief tied between two sticks, hold it behind the rock, then lift the rock; the current will do the rest for you. You see, these Hellgramites have little hair on their legs that catches in the cloth, making it very hard for them to get away.

For the natural bait man, right now there is all kinds of it around. Turn over any log, and you will find the grubs of all kinds of insects. I think the most prevalent is the big white specimen of the June Bug family. These sometimes pay off, but not too often, so if there are any other insects around collect them instead. Even the very small ones will help you get fish. Another place to look for insects or larvae is among the reeds, alongside the banks of any water. In some cases you will see the grubs encased in a jellyish mixture. Pick them out of this and you have the makings of a fish dinner.

The crows are around in force and there should be some good shooting right now. The bush is reasonably quiet, so they won't be scared off too easily. That is, until the shooting starts. However, before they do beat it, you should have some fun. More of these pests seem to be around now than ever before. . . . They are still pests in my book, and for a lot of others, too.

A number of the fish hawks, Ospreys, may be seen around the North River. For anyone taking the time to watch them, their antics are fascinating. To see these birds plummet down into the water to catch their meals, is worth seeing. There are also a lot of Sparrow Hawks and Sharpshins; these can also be seen hovering around the meadows. The Sparrow Hawk is of the Falcon family, so it is fast. Once it gets its eyes on something there is not much chance of the victim getting away. The Sharpshin is often mistaken for the Cooper's Hawk; it is hard to distinguish between them while in flight. The Sharpshin is slightly smaller than the Cooper's, with a square tail.

The jays are also with us again in numbers — it seems I haven't been away from these birds for very long — a wonderfully happy bird to have around.

Bible in the Congo

News has been received from the Congo that the Bible Society work is proceeding well even in the midst of the confused state of affairs which exists at the present time.

Since November 1960 import licenses have been readily granted for 300 cases of Books and Finger Phonos. The Finger Phonos are small record players operated by turning the turntable with a finger and thus playing a recorded passage of Scripture.

The Rev. A. W. Marthinson, the Bible Society Secretary in the area, reports that not only have large quantities of Bibles and New Testaments been received from London and New York, but that he has been able to dispatch shipments to many parts of the Congo. New supplies cannot be sent into the Oriental and Kivu provinces but the book stores there have a good stock of God's word on hand.

30,000 Tshibuba Gospels of St. John have been printed at the Leco Press. These will be used for distribution among the refugees in the Bakwanga area. A shipment of between 500 and 600 Tshiluba Bibles has been dispatched to the same area. A Volkswagen bus will soon be in service selling Scriptures in this part of the country.

Grass for calves

Ottawa — Calves can make excellent gains on pasture with salt and bone meal as the only supplements, states Vern Miles, of the Animal Research Institute at Ottawa.

He says the calves should be rotated on pastures with short, rapidly growing swards.

At the Central Experimental Farm winter-raised calves receive no more than 100 pounds of whole milk and 35 pounds of skim milk powder but they have early access to second-cut hay and a limited amount of meal.

By pasture time, calves that are four to six months old have become used to consuming large quantities of roughage. When put on good pasture they gain as much as two pounds daily.

Calves less than four months old can make excellent use of pasture but should be fed more milk before having to rely on pasture alone.

Quality of forage and management of pasture should receive careful attention, warns Mr. Miles. A permanent paddock close to the barn is not satisfactory for calves. In addition to the health hazards from parasites, the pasture is usually too poor in quality.

The calves should be sprayed regularly to control flies.

Lady M.P. to address Rotary next Thursday

Guest at the Rotary Club meeting in Brownsburg next Thursday September 21, will be a noted lady speaker, Judy LaMarsh, Liberal M.P. for the Niagara riding.

Judy LaMarsh, 35, heads a law firm founded by her late father. She is a past vice-president of the Ontario Liberal Association, a director of the Canadian Club of the Niagara Frontier, and the vice president of the Ontario Association of Rural-Urban Municipalities.

Among her "firsts" — she is the first woman solicitor for a municipality, assuming the post held by her father in Stamford Township; only Canadian woman delegate to the first conference of N.A.T.O. young political leaders in Paris in 1958; first woman member of the Canadian Legion's Stamford branch.

She has held many offices, and is presently a member of the Canadian Bar Association, Niagara Falls Bar Association, Women's Law Association of Ontario, Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, Ontario Municipal Association, the Planning Association of Canada, the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

Miss LaMarsh was born in Chatham. In 1943 she joined the Canadian Women's Army Corps and served as an architectural draftsman with the Engineers Corps for one year in Halifax, then was transferred to Vancouver for a course in the Japanese language. She was assigned to Camp Ritchie, Maryland, where she served 1½ years as linguist and interpreter.

After the war, she attended the University of Toronto, and graduated with a B.A. in 1947. Entering Osgoode Hall, she was graduated with the Gold Key Award in 1950. She was a partner in her father's law firm for 7 years and in 1957, on the death of her father, headed her own firm. She has successfully defended four murder cases.

Miss LaMarsh is widely sought as a speaker for church, home and school clubs, service clubs and other groups. Her hobbies are knitting, reading, gardening, and collecting recipes.

C.N.I.B. 'blitz' in Brownsburg

The annual "blitz" campaign for the C.N.I.B. in Brownsburg, will be held on the evening of September 25, from 6.30 to 8.30. Chairman will be Mrs. T. P. Hall.

The Institute is grateful to the donors and the workers who have assisted the Argenteuil section during the past 10 years. It is hoped they will again support this worthy cause, as the work has been made possible only by such co-operation.

It is difficult to cite cases, as they are numerous and each one deserves mention. For example, one child would have been doomed to blindness had it not been for immediate attention of the Institute to assist the parents by sending hom to an ophthalmologist for an operation, and finally the assistance of an ophthalmologist to provide proper glasses for this particular case. Today, the child is able to see normally — and this has been made posible by donors' generosity.

The volunteer worker who will call on you is a citizen of Brownsburg, and one who thoroughly believes in the work of the Institute among the sightless as well as the sighted. If there are any questions or doubts in your mind, why not contact the Institute, and the local representative will be glad to discuss any problem, so that you too may be fully acquainted with the work.

The over-all objective for the County of Argenteuil has been set at $6500.

J. W. Lefebvre, old business man, ends long career

Following a very brief illness, Mr. J. Willie Lefebvre passed away at the home of his son, Henri, in Lachute, on Saturday, September 9.

Born in Plaisance, Que., July 13, 1880, the late Willie Lefebvre was 81 years of age. He spent the early part of his life in the Plaisance district. He came to Lachute at the turn of the century and in 1906 started in the furniture business on Foundry Street. In 1923 he purchased the present place of business, which he has carried on progressively with the help of his sons, Georges, Henri and André, under the name of J. W. Lefebvre Ltée.

In 1907 Mr. Lefebvre was married to Miss Leona Lalonde, of St. Hermas. She predeceased him on April 17, 1959. From this union were born seven sons, Paul, Georges, Louis, Jean-Jules (Quebec), Henri, André and Guy, a White Father missionary in Manitoba; also three daughters, Antoinette, Gertrude (Mrs. Marcel Laframboise), and Madeleine (Mrs. Roger Fauteux), all of Lachute.

Funeral rites were held on Wednesday in Ste. Anastasie Church, mass being chanted by his son, the Rev. Guy Lefebvre, in the midst of many sorrowing friends and relatives.

Mr. Lefebvre was a member of the local Knights of Columbus Order, and a trustee of the Parish of Ste. Anastasie. He had also served as a school commissioner on the Catholic School Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Lefebvre celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in 1957.

Legion Auxiliary activities resumed

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Legion Branch 70, held their September meeting at the Legion Hall on Monday evening. This was the first assembly after the summer adjournment

The next meeting, to be held October 2, will have the veterans from Ste. Anne's Military Hospital as guests for the evening.

The Legion Bursary was awarded to Miss Judy Evans this year. Miss Evans is now studying at Macdonald College.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. R. Thorburn and Mrs. N. Lavis.

Blood clinic September 25 in Brownsburg

Brownsburg — There are many worthy campaigns throughout the year and most good citizens "do their bit". But few campaigns offer so much benefit to the donor as the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic. There is a tremendous satisfaction, almost a thrill, in the knowledge that the donation will be instrumental in saving the life of a fellow human being. The donation takes so little from the donor, yet the value to the injured child, the accident victim or the old lady undergoing a major operation, is more than a millionaire's fortune. What value can you put on a life?

There is more, however, than the satisfying feeling that you have saved a life. You are participating in the most wonderful of banking system — you deposit what you can afford and you withdraw what you need. . . .

There are countless examples of dramatic withdrawals, but close to home recently, Leon Tessier of Brownsburg was unfortunate in needing an immediate withdrawal of 15 pints. But he was fortunate indeed in having an unlimited bank account at his disposal, and Mr. Tessier's life was saved by 15 unknown depositors.

This is a bank which functions "in the red". Like any bank though its deposits must equal its withdrawals. Do yourself a favor. Perform the most brotherly of all acts. Give a little of yourself so that someone might live.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in in its columns.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. advertising business men."

Driveway robbery.

He bought a Volkswagen for his wife and drove it around the block just for fun. Now he drives it downtown for business. He leaves the big car, with its driving problems, at home and smiles his way through heavy traffic and into pint-sized parking spots. He's the happiest car thief on four wheels.

And why not. His year 'round average is 38 miles to a gallon of gas. He gets better traction on mud and sand because the engine's in the rear with its weight over the drive wheels.

The Volkswagen engine is air cooled. There's no radiator. No water to boil over. (The only water a VW uses is in the windshield washer.)

In summer he avoids traffic, follows the back roads to the golf course. The Volkswagen's unique suspension smooths out bumps and ruts, even at top speed. And on tight corners, it has the handle and feel of an expensive sports car, without the pain of the price.

The new VW engine provides more power with the same gas economy. All four speeds are synchronized. And the extra space under the front hood nearly doubles the car's luggage capacity.

There's no getting away from it. The finest thing a man can do is buy his wife a Volkswagen—one with all the latest improvements as shown now by our dealers. Let her choose between the thrifty Custom and the elegant Deluxe!

B'burg man takes bride in suburban wedding ceremony

Golphin-Pelly

The marriage of Thelma Louise, twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Pelly, of St. Laurent, to Mr. Robert Frederic Golphin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Golphin, of Brownsburg, took place recently in St. Mark's Anglican Church, St. Laurent, the Rev. B. J. Thorpe officiating. Mr. Bruce Birtell played the wedding music and Mr. Harris Beaton was soloist. White gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given away by her father, was gowned in white silk organza over taffeta, appliquéd with Alençon lace and seed pearls, with fitted bodice having a scoop neckline and a bouffant skirt with bow at the back. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a bandeau of silk organza flowers and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of blue carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Sheila Pelly, twin sister of the bride, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Bruce Murdoch, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Bernard Golphin, as bridesmaids, were gowned alike in Copen blue silk organza over taffeta, fashioned with fitted bodices having scoop necklines, brief sleeves and draped taffeta cummerbunds with bows at the back, and bouffant skirts. They wore matching veiled crowns, and carried baskets of blue and white mums.

Mr. Denis Morrow acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Bernard Golphin, brother of the groom, and Mr. Thomas Goldthorpe, all of Brownsburg.

Mrs. Pelly, the bride's mother, wore a gown of aqua organza with a brown velour hat, brown accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Golphin, mother of the groom, was in a gown of Ciel blue organza over lace. She wore a shaded feather hat in tones of blue and magenta, black accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Following the reception, which was held at the Town and Country Motel, Mr. and Mrs. Golphin left for Atlantic City, the bride wearing an olive green wool suit, beige accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Golphin, Mr. and Mrs. D. Golphin and daughter, Sandra, Mr. and Mrs. H. Steele, Mrs. D. Brunelle, Mr. and Mrs. I. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. O. Gagne, all of Brownsburg.

Nearing Completion of Lengthy Summer Tour

Campbell-McDonald

At the United Church manse on Saturday, August 26, the marriage took place of Brenda Shirley McDonald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McDonald, of Lachute, and Reginald Stanley Campbell, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Campbell, of Lachute. The Rev. Wilson Bridge, of Lachute United Church, officiated. The bride was attended by Miss Carol Tomalty, of Lachute.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white silk organza over taffeta. Her shoulder-length veil was caught up by a crown effect of beads. Her bouquet was of red roses and stephanotis.

The bride's attendant wore a gown of pale green silk organza over taffeta with matching headdress, and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white mums.

Mr. Bates Campbell attended his brother.

The bride's mother wore a green rayon frock with three-quarter length sleeves and flared skirt, and a corsage of white petals and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a gown of flowered green iridescent silk, with a pink hat, gloves, and corsage of pink petals.

A reception was held in Lachute Legion Hall, which was decorated with a profusion of varied-hued gladioli. Bouquets of red roses and other blossoms were on the head-table, which was centred by the wedding cake flanked by white candles.

The Rev. Mr. Bridge proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom replied in a few fitting words. Mr. Bates Campbell toasted the bridesmaid.

For travelling, the bride's costume was of pale green shantung. She wore a white hat and accessories, and pale yellow roses as a corsage. The newlyweds motored to Niagara Falls and other points of interest. They will reside in Lachute.

25th Anniversary

Lake Keatley — On Saturday, September 9, Mrs. Gordon Bennett and Mrs. Sanford MacVicar were joint hostesses at a surprise party held at the former's summer home at Echo Valley Lake, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Barnes, of Hawkesbury, who were celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

The gathering of some 50 friends and relatives presented the guests of honor with a purse, after which Mr. Gordon Bennett, Jr., who acted as master of ceremonies, entertained with folk-songs.

Afterwards Mrs. Barnes was presented with a corsage of roses, and a toast was proposed to the bride of 25 years.

The hostesses of the evening, who served refreshments, were assisted by Misses Marilyn MacVicar, Nancy Barnes and Louise Larocque.

It was an evening which will long be remembered by all present.

Argenteuil Bridge Club

The Association for Retarded Children have plans well in hand for their 50-table Duplicate Bridge tournament. The tourney, which takes place at Lachute Golf Club at 7.30 p.m. Tuesday, September 19, is shaping up as a sell-out. Admission will be by ticket only — so call Mr. Jack Thorpe in Lachute, or Mrs. R. J. Moncrieff in Brownsburg, to make sure of yours.

Duplicate bridge, of course, is competitive play and first prizes of $25 to the top North-South and East-West pairs are likely to go to the top players. However, there are many other prizes, so expert and novice alike can participate in the loot.

The evening is also intended as an introduction to duplicate bridge for the forthcoming Argenteuil Bridge League, and while the match points are being tallied, it is proposed to elect an executive and register teams for the league competition starting the following week.

Here is an excellent opportunity to enjoy a pleasant evening, improve your bridge, and assist a worthy cause. There should be a good blend of keen competition for the experienced players, and fun for the newcomers. . . . Refreshments will be served.

Red Shield annual appeal

the chairmanship of this appeal, succeeds his father, the late Geo. Y. Deacon, who filled the role for many years. The all-out objective this year is $335,000, and it is hoped the Lachute district will participate as generously as in previous campaigns.

"The Salvation Army continues to live up to its motto, 'A Shield for Thousands'. It is a heart-warming task, working in the interest of the less fortunate, and indeed satisfying to realize that the funds raised will bring aid and comfort to many people in distress", says a paragraph in the letter to local subscribers.

Many guests at golden wedding

To mark the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Kettyle were "at home" to their relatives and friends on Saturday, September 2, at their residence on Bethany Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Kettyle (the former Jessie May Todd), were married October 4, 1911, at the Todd farm in East Settlement. The Rev. Thomas A. Mitchell officiated.

Mr. Kettyle settled on "Glenborough Farm" 68 years ago, retiring eight years ago when his son, Kenneth, took over. They have four daughters and three sons, and 16 grandchildren.

Mrs. Gordon McRae (the former Mamie Marshall), Mrs. Kettyle's bridesmaid, from Huxley, Alberta, was present at the recent gathering. Other guests from a distance included Mr. and Mrs. Russel Todd, from Fort Bragg, Cal.; Mr. Leslie Todd, of Winnipeg, Man.; Mrs. R. L. Louis Guillotte

Louis' family of two girls and two boys keeps him and his wife, Huguette, quite busy. However, he enjoys hunting, fishing and golfing in his spare time.

Should you meet Louis as he goes about his job in your town, I am sure he would be only too glad to answer any questions you might have about your telephone service.

Now, here's an entertainment treat for the whole family! On October 2 — 9.30 to 11.00 p.m. — the Trans-Canada Telephone system will present its first 1961-62 television program — an all-Canadian production by CBC-TV of Tyrone Guthrie's 1961 Stratford Festival presentation of "The Pirates of Penzance", Gilbert and Sullivan's gay comic opera about Major General Stanley's beautiful daughters and their adventures with the pirates. The show, which will have the original Stratford cast, has been skilfully adapted for television by CBC-TV. This will be the first of several shows that will be presented during the coming season by the Trans-Canada Telephone System, of which The Bell Telephone Company of Canada is a member. So make a note of the time and date; you won't want to miss this excellent show.

Here's an important thought for September. This is the month when the streets about town are alive with youngsters starting back to school. Some of them are very young and not always alert to passing automobiles. Most of us have little ones who are near and dear to us; let us think of them as we drive through the streets of our town.

Musician-evangelist to preach at Brownsburg Pentecostal Church

Widely known preacher-composer Robert Watters will conduct an evangelistic series September 19 through September 22 at the Pentecostal Church in Brownsburg.

Mr. Watters has conducted meetings throughout the United States and Canada. He has appeared frequently on television and radio. The versatile young minister is a recording artist with Joy Records of California, a writer and Gospel song composer.

The Rev. John Shrier, sponsoring pastor, states that this evangelist at one time rejected 33 college scholarships in order to study for the ministry. Mr. Watters, raised in Breckenridge, Texas, topped his school's history in scholastic honors. As valedictorian for the class of '49 he received the scholarship awards but turned them down in favor of his ministerial training.

Evangelist Watters began his musical career singing and playing the banjo. Later, as a teen-ager he studied under an eminent concert pianist. He has received numerous offers from the entertainment world. He uses his music in his meetings.

The Rev. Watters is a forceful speaker, preaching on the themes of the practical, everyday power of Christianity.

The Rev. John Shrier extends a cordial invitation to the public to attend these services at 7.30 nightly, except Mondays and Saturdays.

Paid members may submit entries for art exhibition

Argenteuil Art Association invites entries for its concluding show, September 23 to October 1, which is the annual exhibit of amateur and members' works. The exhibition takes place at the municipal hall at St. Andrews; in charge of this event is Mrs. Vivian Walker, secretary, and all 1961 paid-up members are entitled to enter two original works.

Following are a few particulars for prospective entrants:

(1) Pictures (suitably framed) will be received at the municipal building by someone in attendance Thursday, September 21 (7-9 p.m.) and Friday, September 22 (3-5 p.m.)

(2) Eyelets and wire must be attached to the back of each picture, for hanging.

(3) A sticker with artist's name and address, the title of the painting and price (if for sale) must also be attached to the back.

It is hoped to have an attractive representation of talent, both amateur and professional, at this annual display.

Witnesses attend Ottawa assembly

Jehovah's Witnesses of Lachute returned from Ottawa after attending the "United Worshippers" French district assembly. Henry Puruker, presiding minister of the congregation here, reported that 2,242 persons attended the public address Sunday by Laurier Saumur, district supervisor for Quebec and the Maritimes. Mr. Puruker commented as follows: "Mr. Saumur exposed with startling clarity the monumental foolishness of governments set up by puny men in creating a world situation that threatens to wipe out modern civilization — yes, wipe out the human family. He declared that the opposition of these governments to God's kingdom is forcing them into a unity in which they will be slaughtered in the 'war of the great day of God the Almighty'. Then Saumur posed this salient question, 'So what shall WE do? Be united under God's kingdom for our salvation, or be united with them to be slaughtered with them?' Mr. Saumur then urged all present to close ranks under God's kingdom, to call upon Jehovah as subjects of his all-conquering kingdom, and to serve Him shoulder to shoulder.

"You cannot imagine the thundering applause which greeted the release of the long awaited From Paradise Lost to Paradise Regained in the French language," continued Mr. Puruker. "This book will be of immeasurable help to us in our ministry, a truly delightful book from its artistic cover to the simple and direct message it carries. It has already reached an unprecedented circulation of 5,242,000 copies in 15 languages. In our house-to-house ministry we meet repeated requests for this publication in French."

The 2,242 present for the closing remarks heard the announcement of a world-wide series of conventions in 1963. Around the world in 60 days! Plans were outlined for Jehovah's Witnesses from every country to travel by jet to conventions in many key cities of the world.

"What impressed me," concluded Mr. Puruker, "were the many young people present at this convention.

Drive-in telephones for motorists

Motorists travelling the Laurentian Autoroute can now phone ahead for last-minute hotel reservations or make forgotten telephone calls without leaving the road, and without getting out of their cars.

Four drive-up public telephones, two for north-bound traffic and two for south-bound vehicles, were officially put into service recently at the Laval des Rapides toll plaza, the last one before entering Montreal. The installation, engineered by the Bell Telephone in collaboration with Autoroute officials, is the first of its kind along a Canadian autoroute.

Inaugurating the new service, Quebec Autoroutes Authority Chairman Ernest Gohier commented that the public telephones would prove a real convenience to motorists using the road. "In addition to their value in an emergency, they will allow regular commuters to make last-minute calls to their homes or offices, while tourists can use the new service to check on hotel accommodations," he stated.

The inaugural ceremony was attended by Provincial Secretary Lionel Bertrand; J. Noël Lavoie, MPP for Laval; Autoroute Commissioners Guy Poliquin and Claude Roleau; and Bell officials, including Marcel Vincent, vice-president and general manager of the company's eastern area.

Located just before the toll booths, because traffic is required to slow down there, the telephones form part of a drive-off set apart from the roadway. Drivers wishing to make a call pull into the drive-off, make the call while seated in their car or truck, then proceed back onto the road and through the toll booths.

Phone facilities on Autoroute

This lovely lady demonstrates one of the new drive-in telephones inaugurated recently at Laval-des-Rapides, on the Laurentian Autoroute. The driver of a vehicle can move his car up to the set and make a telephone call without stepping out of the car. Several officials of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the Quebec Autoroute Commission attended the official inaugural ceremonies.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

To club secretaries —

THIS IS THAT COZY time of the year when we return to a richer community living. With some reluctance we relinquish our personal interests of the summer, and find ourselves caught up once more in responsibilities to the various organizations of our town — the churches, the service clubs, the women's associations, the Home and School, even the bridge and recreation groups.

For the home-town newspaper this is a season of immensely increased demands upon its space. From the routine reporting of municipal affairs, accidents and family celebrations, The Watchman, like other weeklies of its class, must apportion its news columns between bowling clubs, youth groups, cultural associations, fund campaigns, charity ventures, etc., etc. These are all an integral part of "the way we live", and their activities make news which The Watchman is happy to publicize, in the interests of the community and the progress of its institutions.

But here's the rub . . . Many club secretaries and press conveners think their editor has nothing to do but sit back and wait — that the last minute before press time gives ample leeway for editors, typesetters, make-up men and pressmen, all down the line.

The fact is, however, that even in normal seasons, in any newspaper, the hours before press time are swamped with news changes and revisions — by mail, telephone, and over the counter. Thus, due to lack of time and space, much good material must be held over for the following issue, when it is no longer news.

It is unfair that mid-week meetings should be reported to the newspaper the following Tuesday afternoon, just before lock-up time. It is unfair to readers and the club members interested. It is only reasonable to expect that all club reporters send in their reports immediately following their meetings; and The Watchman pleads with local organizations to appoint press officers alert to our needs and ready to co-operate in this respect. Only with such co-operation can we fulfill the expectations of our many community groups renewing their activities in the autumn season.

Canada and tuberculosis

THE EPIC story of the fight against tuberculosis is highlighted in the current conference of world TB specialists now gathered in Toronto. Canada's contribution to that story is a matter of satisfaction to all who have read the advance reports and news connected with this assembly.

When the Canadian Tuberculosis Association began in 1900 there were not 50 sanatorium beds in the whole 3,845,144 square miles which make up Canada! There were no tuberculosis clinics, though tuberculosis was the leading cause of death. Neither the national nor provincial governments had health departments.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians did not believe that tuberculosis was infectious. They thought the disease was hereditary and incurable, so they were not trying to do anything about it.

There were thousands of patients, and the death rate was about 40 times what it is now. No drug had been found which successfully attacked the tubercle bacillus and none was to be found for more than 40 years. Surgery in tuberculosis was still a long way off. . . .

There was not much money either. . . . But there was a small group of brave, determined men and women who believed what Koch had said. They maintained that tuberculosis could be cured and could be prevented. Some of them were doctors and nurses. Others were teachers, housewives, lawyers, bankers, clergymen, journalists or merchants — anyone who was willing to work voluntarily because of interest in mankind or because they saw the ravages of tuberculosis in their own families or among friends.

Their hard work, patience, courage and determination brought about changes. They started with the dollars of the rich and the cents of the not-so-rich. Public opinion was changed and the interest of governments aroused, as one goal was achieved another was set. The last chapters of the story are still to be written — when tuberculosis has been wiped out. Meantime, Canada owes much to its pioneer campaigners, and to the untiring contribution of its lay and medical workers through the years.

Back to the caves ?

THE THREAT OF a war with hydrogen bombs is, in the view of noted American psychologists, a form of collective insanity.

Dr. Howard Gruber of the University of Colorado told a symposium of the American Psychological Association at New York that the H-war threat "is a form of collective insanity in which we prepare to kill tens or hundreds of millions of people in other countries with no hope of gaining anthing from it except, supposedly, a lower casualty rate in our own country."

Such bitter comments have intensified since the Russians carried out a test nuclear explosion September 1, and a fourth test even while the first was bringing a downpour of condemnation from all the non-Communist world. The tests disrupted the long-drawn-out negotiations at Geneva on an international treaty to ban such tests.

The developments have lent urgency to plans in many nations to put vital industries in blast-proof underground shelters.

Underground facilities for military production and civilian defence were of course developed by most of the nations involved in the Second World War.

Since 1945, certain key industries have been put under cover in Norway, Germany, France and Britain. Power stations deep in mountains are common now from India to Switzerland. Soviet Russia, Communist China and the Communist satellite nations probably have many subterranean factory installations.

Neutral Sweden, since the war, has created the most elaborate system of underground structures known to exist. The National Geographic Society says these huge granite burrows hold private industries with thousands of workmen, as well as military installations, bomb shelters, nuclear power stations and public-utility centres.

The new caverns are nothing like the ancient holes in which early humans made stone age tools. They have air conditioning, daylight-simulating electricity.

One U.S. arms firm has a huge plant with specially-equipped underground chambers built underneath a drained Massachusetts swamp. Manufacturers of various goods in the Kansas City area have either drilled caves for themselves or have rented space provided by enterprising underground realtors.

The ancient caveman would certainly be astonished at the progress in technology evident in the modern underground structures.

But has the world really progressed?

Reversal in the Orient

HUSBANDS in Japan are beginning to knuckle under. As the country becomes more North American in many of its ways, housewives are quick to take advantage of the situation.

According to a survey conducted by a Japanese newspaper, seven out of ten husbands are now helping with the housework. This is a radical change from the situation only a few years ago, when both husband and wife would have been ridiculed if the husband so much as picked up a few groceries on the way home from work!

The husband would have been ridiculed for doing this "work"; the wife would have been ridiculed for allowing her husband to degrade himself.

The change began to take place in the early fifties and it has taken ten years for the situation to reach the current status where men are apparently doing many of the jobs around the house.

According to the survey, men in Japan have a different reason for doing the work than do their North American counterparts. Whereas the North American probably gets nagged at until he does the work, the men in Japan do the work because they enjoy it. (Or so they claim.)

"QUIET PLEASE... ROGER MARIS IS UP TO BAT!"

When President John Kennedy became a Boy Scout he felt he should get more allowance. This is his letter for his father: "My recent allowance is 40 cents. This I used for aeroplanes and other things of childhood, but now I am a Scout and I put away my childhood things. Before, I would spend 20 cents of 40 cents allowance and in five minutes I would have empty pockets and nothing to gain and 20 cents to lose. When I Scout I have to buy canteens, haversacks, blankets, searchlights, poncho things that will last for years and I can always use it while I can't use chocolate marshmellow sundays and vanilla ice cream and I do put in my plea for a raise of thirty cents for me to buy Scout things and pay my own way around." There is no record of whether he got the raise.

CIRCUS MEMORIES

I've just been looking through some junk
Downstairs in my old circus trunk
And found a bunch of souvenirs
Collected during bygone years —
Old posters, programs, things like those Pertaining to the tented shows
And lastly, several photographs
Each signed beneath with autographs
Of good old pals of good old days
Who now have gone their various ways.

Here's one of Joe, the famous clown
Who made 'em laugh in every town.
Who leapt from his ladder and missed the tank.
Altho' he'd done it several seasons
He had to quit for divers reasons.
Now here's a guy, and what a sight —
It's me — the second from the right —
Taken in 1923, before the moths got into me.

The Valdez Troupe in yellow tights
In daring stunts at dizzy heights —
(Today they're just a bunch of wrecks
With double chins or scrawny necks)
There's Mingo, of the high trapeze —
(With or without the greatest ease).
The next one's Wilbur J. McKim
An elephant rolled over him —
The elephant was not to blame
But Wilbur never looked the same.

That's Geraldine, the bareback rider,
She's married now to some outsider.
(I think he should have spelt it 'Clawed!)
His mother was a tiger trainer —
He took her place, and I don't blame 'er.
The others' names I can't recall
But in those days I knew 'em all;
Where they are now I'll never know —
Those pals on Buncome Brothers Show.

All I have now are two or three
Old-timers who still write to me.
I only wish that I could tell
Where these folks are I knew so well.
Many have crossed the Great Divide,
Others are drifting 'round outside.
Some have gone into other lines
Working in stores or copper mines
And as for me — a thousand curses!
I am reduced to writing verses.

It's late. I'd better put this junk
All back in my old circus trunk.

with G. E. MORTIMORE

Here comes a reader with a plan to save the world: Let the women take control.

"I thought they already had. But Arthur Levy of Victoria, B.C., wants to make it official.

"Man through his frailties is inadequate to rule on account of his egotism, greed for riches and lust for power," Mr. Levy writes.

"It will only come about when women take over the reins of government, that we will have peaceful conditions."

Is Mr. Levy right when he says that women have no lust for power? I think he is mistaken. If we could eavesdrop in the average home, we would hear a gentle wife urging her husband to go out into the jungle and kick, gouge and elbow his way to wealth.

Are women well-organized? Attend a women's club meeting, and hear the discussion going around in spirals, and getting nowhere.

Are women merciful? Take a look at the faces in the front row at wrestling matches — female faces, contorted with anger and excitement.

Women aren't saints. They are people; all different. Most of them are good at getting their own way. If they suddenly decided that they wanted to take over Parliament, Congress, the Supreme Soviet and the United Nations, they would do it.

Then the scenery in those halls of government would be prettier, but the fighting would go on just the same.

Lights, reflectors needed by cyclist

The laws which seem to be most often broken are those pertaining to the cyclist. Too many cyclists drive along the highway at night without showing either headlights or rear reflectors. And, when one thinks of it, the cyclist has no protection to speak of but that of his own prudence. When the auto or truck, approaching at the speed of 50 or 60 miles an hour, is not given warning that there is a cycle ahead, then there is only one result — the cyclist is the victim of another highway accident.

Of Many Things

A PRETTY GOOD SYSTEM

There's a small restaurant near the office which I frequently patronize, but today it was boarded up. I think I know why.

About five years ago an immigrant couple took it over and made it a success. They were at work before I reached my office in the morning (and I'm an early bird), and usually were still at it when I headed home at night. A friendly pair, they attracted a good many customers and the food was good enough to hold us.

In the summer, when I "bach" for two months, I made a habit of eating breakfast there. It was always good, served with a smile, and the couple made it clear they appreciated the business.

Not too long ago they sold the restaurant and opened a larger place in another part of the city, where they specialize in the dishes of their homeland. Their successor was a man who did not appear to have much experience in the business. He raised the prices, served less tasty food. One by one, the regular patrons started to look elsewhere. Finally, the restaurant was closed.

I am sorry the man's venture failed, but I realize that he practically guaranteed his own failure. No arbitrary power closed him down; the process was completely impersonal — the patrons simply stopped coming, either because of the higher prices or, more likely, the less attractive food.

I don't know what the man who failed thinks about all this. Perhaps he curses the economic system; perhaps he blames himself; perhaps he thinks lady luck had a finger in the pie. I hope, however, that he got the message — that he is just not a good restaurant man, and he ought to find another position in which he can serve someone satisfactorily.

In a planned economy, of course, the man would have been moved out of the restaurant by inspectors. They would have decided that he was a failure, and would have bluntly told him so. There are some people who believe in such planning, done by experts, and consider it the most efficient system. It seems to me, however, that inspectors might blunder. They might declare a man a failure because they didn't like the way he parted his hair. Our competitive system operates more justly, and with an impersonal efficiency that cannot be denied.

Our system gives men the right to fail or to succeed. To succeed, they must serve the public, not the arbitrary tastes of inspectors or efficiency experts. And after all, the public is the best judge of the service it desires.

Blind persons attend pilgrimage

Argenteuil White Cane Club members of Lachute took part in the 7th annual pilgrimage for the blind of the Diocese of Montreal, organized jointly by the St. Lawrence Club of the Blind and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, at the Chapel of the Reparation on Sunday, September 10. More than 600 blind persons and guides were present at the mass celebrated by Father Wilfrid Laurier, C.S.V., director of the Louis Braille Institute, and at the Way of the Cross in the afternoon. Groups of blind pilgrims also came from Levis, Quebec, Sherbrooke, Magog, Waterloo, Granby, St. Jerome, and other centres in the province.

The Louis Braille Institute choir sang a few hymns during mass. Following the Way of the Cross, Father Rolland Campbell, C.S.V., (who is himself sightless) officiated at the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The Nazareth Institute choir performed.

A message from Paul Emile Cardinal Leger, addressed to the pilgrims, was read by Father Wilfrid Laurier. During the luncheon, served by a group of volunteers, W. E. Milton, Superintendent of the C.N.I.B., Quebec Division, said: "My dear friends, your collective prayers have been heard and it is my sincere wish that they will be answered." After welcoming the pilgrims, Albert Marion, president of the St. Lawrence Club of the Blind, invited all present to offer all their pennies to help in the work for the welfare of the overseas blind.

A bus service picked up the pilgrims from different parts of the province, and those of Lachute were taken care of by private cars supplied through kindness of the Knights of Columbus local council. The drivers were Messrs. Arthur Lafrance, Gerard Martineau, Richard Valois and Lucien Hamel. All expenses incurred were absorbed by the C.N.I.B. and the local club.

New postage stamp on natural resources

Details of a special postage stamp to illustrate Canada's renewable natural resources were revealed by the Postmaster General, the Hon William Hamilton. The stamp will be released on October 12 next.

Mr. Hamilton recalled that the new stamp is part of the Post Office Department's contribution to the Resources for Tomorrow program being inaugurated at the Federal-Provincial Conference in Montreal this October. The stamp, which symbolizes the close link between the wheels of industry and Canada's natural resources, will serve to make all who see it, in Canada and abroad, conscious of the economic importance of these resources and the constant need of their careful husbandry.

The new stamp will show two hands holding up a five-spoked cogwheel. Seen between the spokes are modernistic sketches representing water resources, agriculture, forestry, wildlife and fisheries. Across the top of the stamp are the words "Resources for Tomorrow" and "Richesses renouvelables". The five-cent denomination and the word Canada are placed at the bottom of the stamp.

The stamp was designed by noted Canadian artist A. L. Pollock of Toronto, who also designed the 50-cent Textiles stamp and the 25-cent Chemistry stamp, both currently in use.

"They've voted ten to two on the Dodgers winning today."

Late Mrs. Henry Neill

The death of Mrs. Henry Neill, an esteemed resident of Lake Sir John, occurred suddenly at the Montreal General Hospital on August 31.

Bible Society's special commemoration service

A service of commemoration and thanksgiving for the 350th Anniversary of the Authorized Version of the Bible, A.D. 1611, and for the New Testament of the New English Bible, A.D. 1961, will be held in Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, on September 24 at 3 p.m.

This special service has been arranged under the auspices of the Montreal District of the Canadian Bible Society and through the kindness and co-operation of the Dean of Montreal. Representatives of the various denominations will take part while appropriate music for the occasion will be rendered by the Cathedral choir under the direction of Mr. Kenneth Meek, L.Mus., Mus.Bac.

The guest speaker, the Rev. Dr. W. J. Platt, has recently retired after 30 years' service with the British and Foreign Bible Society. Before his appointment to the staff of the Bible Society, Dr. Platt served in West Africa with the Methodist Misionary Society for 14 years. He has been successively Secretary of the Bible Society for Equatorial Africa, Youth Secretary, Home Secretary, and for the last 12 years, General Secretary. He has written several books and articles on Christian strategy throughout the world, including "From Fetish to Faith", "An African Prophet" and "Whose World". Dr. Platt's work has brought him into close contact with the political, economic and social revolution of our day.

Here he walks over his Animal Import Inspection Certificate which was in good order . . . his first step to first-class citizenship. The piebald mouse arrived at Willowdale, Ont., with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter of Preston, England. He is the outcome of a school project to introduce children to animals. A broken paw caused his withdrawal to Mrs. Carter's home where he became a pet. "Finding a home for a mouse is not easy," said Mrs. Carter. "And we couldn't bear to leave him behind."

TIPS
ON SAVING FEED AND GETTING MORE AND LARGER EGGS

On light, leghorn-type pullets you can save up to 4 pounds of feed per bird during the growing period by using Purina's Controlled Feeding Program which provides exact nutritional requirements for each stage of growth:

First 10 weeks; full feed a top quality feed. Purina Startena and Growena are especially designed to give your birds vigorous growth and sound development—the solid foundation they'll need for sustained production.

10 to 14 weeks; 14 pounds of Purina Pullet Developer per day per 100 birds.

14 to 22 weeks; 15 pounds of Purina Pullet Developer per day per 100 birds.

After 22 weeks; Put them on a Purina Laying Ration, free choice.

On Purina's Controlled Feeding Program you will have lean, "hard" birds that develop slowly . . . begin to lay up to 2 weeks later, but, they'll start laying large eggs and they'll produce more eggs over the laying cycle. Why not call me, or drop in at my Store with the Checkerboard Sign. I'd like to tell you more about Purina's Controlled feeding Program.

If you have your own grain I'd like to tell you about a controlled feeding plan that uses Purina Growing Chow and your own grains.

Temper tantrums

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I hate you!" Johnny screamed at his mother when she would not let him have his tricycle. Grandma was arriving any moment for a visit. She would be eager to see young Johnny at once. Johnny proceeded to stage a temper tantrum — yelling, jumping up and down, and pulling at the cupboard door knob where his tricycle was kept.

"Can I hold the dolly?" Susan asked eagerly, pointing to the exquisite doll with lovely yellow curls high on the store's toy shelf. The clerk explained to Susan's mother that it was both expensive and fragile. She could not allow a small child to handle it unless the parent was interested in purchasing it.

When Susan's mother heard the price, she knew it was much more than they could afford. But Susan, who was only three, was determined to get her hands on that dolly! When mother tried to hurry her out of the store, Susan resorted to a favorite device to get her own way. She "went limp", lay on the floor and kicked and screamed, "I want that dolly!"

There are few more exasperating phases of behaviour than a child's temper tantrum. They are horrid at home and even more trying in public. These sudden gusts of anger are so violent. The small boy or girl, feeling frustrated and disappointed, loses emotional control. He knows what he wants, and he wants it right now! He strains, every nerve, including his vocal chords, towards reaching his objective.

What is mother to do? If she meets anger with anger, the child only becomes more excited. She wants to calm him down and at the same time not give in to him. Mother has seen too many tiny tyrants using a temper tantrum as a "Big Stick".

There is no rule which fits every case. Mother should ignore his temper tantrum as far as possible. If it occurs at home she can go into another room or pick him up and carry him into his own room and leave him there. There is no fun for Junior venting his rage with no audience to watch him!

Sometimes his attention can be diverted to something else, and thus a head-on collision is avoided. If he has been building with his blocks and his tower has collapsed and angered him, perhaps he might like to look at a picture book or watch out the window for cars passing on the road.

There is absolutely no use attempting to reason with a child in a temper tantrum, because his emotions blot out his thinking. Threats and physical punishment usually increase his rage. Mother must not show hostility, or make her child feel that she will certainly get even with him for this bit of naughtiness. She should try to mix a casual attitude with necessary firmness about essentials.

Observant parents will notice that temper tantrums are a common affliction to pre-school children. They crop up most frequently when youngsters are depleted physically or emotionally. Too much adult pressure produces a rebellious youngster. Perhaps there has been too much excitement or too many orders.

No good comes from blaming a child for his angry feelings. He needs mother's help to realize that a temper tantrum does not "pay off". A little more rest or less strict discipline, may be two practical ways to lessen the frequency of these outbursts but they will not help all tempestuous scenes. If a child is using a temper tantrum to attract attention or because he is jealous of a new baby in the family, these reveal his loneliness or insecurity.

Learning emotional control, like growing up, is a long slow process. Parents help their children if they realize that temper tantrums are part of this growth process of the very young. With patience, and understanding and love, these emotional flare-ups will gradually disappear — although at the beginning of adolescence they may re-appear in another form.

The child with a temper tantrum is a child in distress who craves help — not a naughty youngster who needs harsh punishment! Don't fail your youngster when a temper tantrum darkens his small world!

Warns against floating toys

Vancouver CP — The supervisor of Vancouver pools and beaches considers the beach ball a child's worst enemy in the water.

George Burroughs feels other potential killers are inner tubes, inflatable plastic animals, toys and air mattresses. In fact he considers these objects so dangerous that he instructed lifeguards to send children ashore if they were seen in the water with them.

"The objects give novice swimmers a false sense of security," said Burroughs. "Then, if something happens, the novice becomes panicky."

Burroughs says beach balls are blown out to sea by the wind, tempting the novice swimmer to chase them.

Air mattresses have a habit of suddenly shooting out from under the body, while inner tubes and plastic animals can easily spring leaks.

"But," said Burroughs, "the worst offender of all is the beach ball."

"Parents shouldn't let children use any of these things, even in the back yard."

Burroughs, also chairman of the B.C. safety council's water safety section, warned against using plastic bags as emergency life jackets.

"The big thing is to teach a child to swim on his own. This way he'll progress faster and become a more competent swimmer."

"If anything is used to help a child to swim, it should be an approved life jacket."

Recipe Of The Week

Gourmet Treat for Family or Party

If you're anxious to prepare a special treat for the family or a party, this easy-to-do recipe for a date nut loaf, served with delicious orange sauce, is recommended by the Good Luck Cooking Service, directed by Mlle Germaine Gloutnez, Montreal food expert.

This is a new recipe that Mlle Gloutnez, drawing from years of cooking experience, has especially prepared for Quebec housewives who are anxious to obtain gourmet results through the use of margarine. It can be served either sliced thin with an orange icing, or many may prefer to cut the date nut loaf into squares, like gingerbread, and serve orange sauce as a topping.

Date Nut Loaf

1¾ Cups all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ cup dates cut in strips, ½ cup chopped walnuts, ½ cup margarine, 1½ cups brown sugar, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk.

Sift flour, measure and resift with baking powder and cinnamon. Coat fruits with this flour mixture. Cream margarine and gradually add brown sugar, then the eggs, one at a time. Beat well after each addition. Fold in flour mixture alternately with the milk and then add floured fruits. Pour batter into greased pan 10 x 5 x 3 inches. Cook at 350°F for 35 to 40 minutes.

Orange Sauce

¼ Cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cornstarch, 1 egg (separated), ½ cup orange juice, dash of salt, 1 teaspoon lemon peel, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

In top part of a double-boiler, mix sugar, cornstarch and egg yolk. Add other ingredients and cook until mixture coats a spoon. Remove from heat and pour gradually over the egg white beaten stiff.

From a pretty tree to a pretty head—in just two snips. Dianne Smith, 18, of South Burnaby, B.C., found this inexpensive hat style in her garden—one branch of her "Purple Splendor" rhododendrum. TNS

Sauce for the pickle shelf

Fruit Chili Sauce is delicious for special occasions such as buffet parties and Sunday night suppers when poultry and ham are served.

Fruit Chili Sauce

12 Large or 16 medium ripe tomatoes (4 lb.), 1 cup coarsely chopped peaches, 1 cup coarsely chopped pears, 1 cup coarsely chopped apples, 1 cup chopped onion, 1 cup chopped sweet red pepper, 1 tablespoon hot red pepper, ½ cup seedless raisins, 1½ cups vinegar, 1½ cups sugar, 1½ tablespoons salt, ¼ cup whole mixed pickling spice.

Blanch and peel tomatoes, then cut into pieces. Peel peaches. Do not peel pears or apples. Put three fruits through food chopper, using medium to fine blade. Combine vegetables, fruits, vinegar, sugar, salt and spices tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag. Bring to boil and cook until thick, 40 to 50 minutes. Remove spice bag. Pour into hot sterilized sealers and seal immediately. Makes about 8 cups.

Scotiabank appoints former RCMP chief as security co-ordinator

Toronto, Sept. 5 — The former chief of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Leonard H. Nicholson, has accepted an invitation from the Bank of Nova Scotia to establish a new department in the bank responsible for protection and investigation.

"This is one more phase of our program to keep our procedures and services abreast of changing times," said F. William Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia. "We have a particular responsibility, as a member of the business community and as a good citizen, to ensure that our security precautions are adapted to the present-day needs of the community. Mr. Nicholson's wide and unique experience will be invaluable to us in helping protect our customers against possible fraud, hold-up and robbery. A little care can double the house life of cut flowers, says Louise Heringa, a horticulturist at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

Flowers should be cut in the morning and placed in the basement or some other cool place. Place them in water at room temperature and make sure the water covers the bottom of the stem. Leave them uncrowded for at least one or two hours, then they will be ready to arrange. Miss Heringa says an inch of water is sufficient for most flowers.

One of the exceptions is woody-stemmed flowers such as lilacs. The stems should be slit two or three inches to ensure that they are open to receive water.

Dahlias, poppies and other plants that ooze a milky sap require singeing. The simplest way is to hold the stems in an open flame for 30 seconds. Another method is to push the stem ends through heavy paper, then place the stems in one or two inches of boiling water for one minute. The paper keeps the steam from rising to the blooms. Both methods hold the sap in and make the flowers last longer. When rearranging flowers, cut and singe again.

Carnations take in water the full length of the stem and, so should be immersed their full length.

If one flower in a bouquet begins to droop badly, remove it. The droop may be caused by an air space at the bottom of the stem which stops the water from rising.

Put the wilted flower in a container of warm water and cut two inches off the stem while it is under water. Leave until the bloom straightens up.

To keep bouquets at their best, change the water daily and cut a little off the stem each time. Otherwise, Miss Heringa says, bacterial growth may flourish and clog stem ends.

Dessert Waffles

If you've got the kind of family that likes any flavor "as long as it's chocolate" they'll usually like these chocolate waffles. They go to the dinner table as a dessert or serve as the main course at teen-age parties.

For dedicated chocolate lovers, top the waffles with chocolate ice cream and a sprinkling of nuts.

Chocolate Waffles à la Mode: 3 tbsp. butter; 1½ squares unsweetened chocolate; 1¾ cups sifted flour; 4 tsp. baking powder; ½ cup sugar; ½ tsp. salt; 2 eggs, well beaten; 1¼ cups chocolate milk; 1 qt. chocolate ice cream; chopped walnuts or pecans.

Melt butter and unsweetened chocolate together over hot water. Sift flour, baking powder, sugar and salt into mixing bowl. Add beaten eggs and chocolate drink; beat until smooth. Add melted butter and chocolate to batter and blend. Bake waffle batter in waffle iron. Use medium temperature. Serve waffles topped with chocolate ice cream and chopped nuts. Makes eight servings.

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE
In Rain and Sunshine

Specially contributed by Ethel Kettyle

No doubt many from this district have visited Upper Canada Village, but for those who have not, the following may help them to visualize this antique village which has been erected, and exists in its antiquity, amidst the modernism and progress of the present day.

When the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway was completed, it meant the end of many small towns, so a new project was then undertaken — the creation of Upper Canada Village. This has been erected in Chrysler Farm Park, near the town of Morrisburg, Ontario. During the summer, it draws many tourists from both Canada and the United States.

The Park was made in commemoration of the men who fought in the Battle of Chrysler's Farm in 1813, but at the present time the chief attraction is the village, which is actually a panorama of the past.

Ancient buildings have been discovered in various places, and moved for miles to form a part of the new settlement, some of which are — a shanty built in the year 1790, a first log cabin, of 1789, a wealthy farmer's house of 1860, all as verifications of the type of buildings in the evolution of Canada.

Curiosity of the Crowd

Shortly after the opening of the village, a visit to the place gave evidence of the interest which had been created. Leaving the busy highway, with its rush and hustle of the present day, and entering the village, gave one the feeling of having gone back a couple of centuries. Gone were all the contrivances and conveniences of today; but as one wandered from building to building, a feeling of rest and peacefulness seemed to permeate.

At the time of the first visit to the village, more and more people entered the gates. They came in a steady stream. Old people, young people, single couples and married couples with their children; and surprisingly, even the dogs had been brought along. Many a pet dog was led along by a proud owner (whether the dogs appreciated the sights of antiquity or not, one cannot say).

Finally the sky darkened, and rain began to fall. As time went on it gave no indication of ceasing; it rained unceasingly during the entire afternoon. However, the interest of the spectators apparently did not diminish — without coats or umbrellas, dripping wet but undaunted, they continued from building to building. One family was seen sitting at a table just outside the gates, seemingly enjoying their picnic lunch in the pouring rain. Fathers carried their babies, while a number of children tagged along behind.

However, as evening shadows deepened, the crowd gradually dispersed, and cars turned homeward, guided by smiling policemen who stood with water streaming down their raincoats.

Drawn Back to the Village

The following day dawned bright and clear, and something seemed to draw one back to this fascinating setting of the past. In the village, one seemed to actually live the life of long-departed ancestors, while browsing through forty-odd buildings. Old homes, churches, mills, Indian habitations, schools, taverns and shops, all had been restored and refurnished with attention and detail, to bring back the past. Here are depicted the courage, toil and dignity of our ancestors. Young people, born within the last 20 or 30 years, may explore and realize the discomforts endured, and finally overcome, by the courage and perseverance of their forefathers.

Inside the Village

Just off the highway along the St. Lawrence River, one enters the village. Outside, but nearby, are picnic tables, where visitors may partake of lunches which they have brought along. An entry fee is then paid, and detail pamphlets handed out. To the right is a souvenir shop, where gifts and momentos may be purchased. Then on to Christ Church, and nearby a pastor's house (formerly Lutheran). Close by is a long red buggy shed, which was moved from the Hallville United Church (about 30 miles away). Interesting is the fact that my brother and sisters formerly attended Sunday School, Church and Young People's meetings at that church.

At every turn things grew more interesting. A team of oxen, harnessed to a cart, was seen ambling along at their usual slow pace. (We were told that they had been brought up from Nova Scotia, to lend antiquity to the place.) From time to time they halted in their leisurely pace, and were immediately surrounded by curious spectators.

The Blacksmith Shop is a place of rare interest (especially to the men), where a blacksmith may be seen putting shoes on a horse, or repairing wagon wheels.

Twelve of the buildings in the village were once houses, six of which are refurnished to demonstrate the actual furnishings formerly used in domestic life. In each of the buildings is a college girl, in natty cap and uniform, commenting on all details of the origin as well as the original owners and furnishings of the buildings.

As one proceeds, the various structures and their contents may appeal to individual interests. As to manufacturing, the Asselstine Factory is an operating woollen mill, where blankets are being turned out while one watches. Near to this mill is a saw mill of the year 1870.

Crafts

Most interesting are the crafts. We can imagine that, in years gone by, the women, when not occupied otherwise, spent much of their time in spinning, weaving and sewing by hand. In the Crafts Buildings we see women dressed in apparel of ancient times, busy at the looms. One little lady dressed in tight bodice, full skirt and frilled bonnet, all in a pretty shade of pink, made one almost wish that the present styles could be the same. (No slacks, shorts, or revealing sweaters at that time — only the most modest types of dress.)

In the village we get another glimpse into the past, as we enter a log house (called the Ross-Buffin House) and see demonstrations of quilting, rug-making and other crafts.

In the McDiarmid House (1860) are more demonstrations — spinning and weaving and flax being prepared.

Nearby is the Blacksmith Shop and Cabinet Maker.

Travel and Stopping Places

The mode of travel back in the seventeen and eighteen hundreds was a slow, tiring process, in comparison with travel today. Much of it was done by water, sometimes in a bateau, and much danger was involved. Travel by stage coach was also tiresome and hazardous. There were, at that time, few stopping places, but to give the public a general idea, Cook's Tavern (1825) and Willard's Hotel, (1790) have been restored and set up in the village.

If many of our younger people today could visit Upper Canada Village, they probably would be astonished to see the schools of their ancestors. The first "schooling" was given by school masters, who would travel from place to place holding classes at settlers' homes at intervals. Probably the teacher, at that time, was a man who had some infirmity, and was unable to farm, but who had a smattering of education. Often, if he had a home of his own, he would start classes in it, and provide room and board for pupils who had a great distance to go to school.

Glengarry School was one of the cheapest possible structures, with the old pot-bellied stove that got red hot, windows with small panes, and a water pail and cup, from which all drank. All equipment, even to the birch rod (used on bad boys and girls), is seen in Upper Canada Village.

Farming

The first settlers, of necessity, lived off the land. In the village, we see the settler's progress from the first shanty to a log cabin, and later to a log house, on to a comfortable home with fairly convenient furnishings; wall paper (which we now might consider quite gaudy), heavy drapes, and a musical instrument — all of which were considered the greatest of luxuries.

We are told that the Government was so generous as to give some of the first settlers a few tools, a few panes of glass, plus provisions for one year, also a cow to be used between two families. With this help they proceeded to clear land and build a home. A log cabin probably consisted of one room and a loft above, a stone fireplace and chimney. Cooking utensils were of the crudest kind.

The family, finally settled, started to farm. The main crop was wheat, which was ploughed in between many stumps, with a wooden plough. Sugar came from beets, or from the maple trees. While at work, black flies were the worst enemy to man.

In the Loucks' House (restored 1860) we see depicted the successful farmer and his mode of living — the settler, who through sweat and toil had eked out an existence to a fairly luxurious way of life, by standards of that time. In the house is a transportable stove, a metal sink (with hand pump) and a dumb-waiter to carry food to a cool cellar. The furniture is strong and solid, and expresses permanence and security, after 60 years of struggle with the soil and elements. Through severe cold, heat, and illness (with no doctors close at hand), with poverty and discouragement, many of these brave and God-fearing people bore and cared for their children, and saw those who lived grow to maturity.

To add to the many trials of the early settlers, was the War of 1812. The Block House at the village is typical of what took place.

Museums

One of the buildings, which has been restored as a Museum, is Chrysler Hall. There is also a Museum of the River and Border, and old and authentic replicas of the tools and vehicles used in the past. Two large barns have been joined together, and inside are displayed a collection of agricultural implements.

We were told that this old and interesting settlement (The Village) would be closed to the public in early autumn, to be opened the following summer. For those who wished for a glimpse into the past, and to see the ways of their ancestors, nothing could have been more worthwhile than to browse through the log cabins, mills, stores, churches, houses, schools, etc., at Upper Canada Village, in its beautiful setting along the St. Lawrence River.

Farmers warned on antibiotics and chemical spray

Ottawa — Dairy farmers across Canada have been warned again of the need for careful handling of antibiotics and chemical sprays.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, authorizing a departmental contribution to the campaign of the National Dairy Council of Canada and the Dairy Farmers of Canada, said antibiotics and chemical sprays were a great boon in almost every field of agriculture but they could be a hazard if not properly used. While his department had some control over the products permitted on the market, it could not carry through to the ultimate use the kind of educational campaign the industry was undertaking.

A spokesman for the industry said that 130,000 cheque-stuffers and 101,000 barn-cards in English and French had been sent to warn farmers to carefully observe directions for use of disease and pest controls. This was a follow-up to the first warning sent a few months ago.

HINT

To prevent slipping on a step ladder or on cellar steps, here's a good trick. Paint the steps with varnish, then when the varnish is still wet sprinkle with sand. When dry, the steps will be slip-proof and an accident may be averted.

Farmyard fever

An important medical fact often neglected by animal lovers is that pets and other apparently harmless animals can be a threat to our health, and even our lives. Medical authorities estimate that people can contract as many as 80 diseases from animals or animal products.

One of the commonest and most baffling of these animal-transmitted diseases is undulant fever or brucellosis, often carried by cows.

"There are few diseases so destuctive to both men and animals," asserts one medical expert. In the U.S. alone it has wiped out $87,000,000 worth of dairy products and veal calves in a single year, and afflicted more than 10,000 persons.

In addition, thousands of other brucellosis sufferers probably go undiagnosed annually, medical experts point out, for the disease can mask itself under a variety of symptoms, ranging from a general "rundown" feeling to personality disorders. It can even be confused with such diseases as typhoid fever, tuberculosis and malaria. Characteristically, the disease causes waves of fever which rise and fall over a period of months, and may prove fatal to its victims.

Proved effective in the treatment of brucellosis — particularly in its acute phase — is the antibiotic drug Terramycin. First given to patients in an investigation carried out in Guadalajara, Mexico, the drug produced improvement in all the acutely ill patients, restoring their temperatures to normal within two to four days after treatment.

Brucellosis can only be routed once and for all, however, medical experts assert, by wiping it out in animals. To achieve this goal, a concerted drive is now being launched in various parts of the world. In the U.S., rigid measures by veterinarians and public health officials have resulted in a decline in the number of cases reported in recent years. With persistent effort, the day may soon come when brucellosis is one of those rarities that only a handful of old-timers can remember.

Farmer brothers revitalized dairy business

Many Canadians have a natural aversion to accepting credit. They simply hesitate to plunge into dept.

On the other hand, more and more business-minded farmers are finding credit the answer to shrinking incomes brought about by the technological revolution that has been reshaping the face of Canadian agriculture.

The Crozier brothers, Clayton and Hugh, share this opinion. They are unabashed boosters of the Farm Credit Corporation.

Owners of a half-section dairy farm near Edmonton, Alberta, that had been established by their forefathers in 1898, the brothers faced a difficult decision a year ago — modernize or go out of business.

With a lot of planning and hard work they rose to the challenge and today own one of the most modern dairy barns in Western Canada. Making it possible was assistance of the Farm Credit Corporation, whose Edmonton staff pitched in with technical advice as well as arranging loans to finance the venture.

Because the Croziers did much of the construction work themselves to cut costs, they were able to acquire the latest in dairy equipment to round out the efficiency of the 80 by 150 foot pole-type housing unit and milking parlor. They milk between 65 and 72 grade Holstein cows.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton visited the farm recently and expressed amazement at what had been accomplished. After seeing a number of cows pass through the automatic milking parlor (sixteen cows standing in stalls arranged in herring-bone pattern at one time), the Minister commented: "I've never seen anything so good."

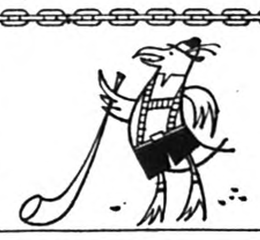

W. G. (George) O'Brien, Branch Manager for FCC, was also high in his praise for the Crozier dairy farm. His staff designed the building and helped to iron out financing arrangements. He regards it as an example of how the Farm Credit Act can help forward-thinking farmers keep pace with the times in the face of costly expansion.

Under the legislation, introduced in 1959, competent farmers using only their farm land as security, can borrow up to $20,000 at five per cent and take up to 30 years to pay it back. Using land, livestock and equipment as security, young farmers can borrow up to $27,500 and the same rate of interest and repayment terms apply.

CHEQUE-CREDIT
from Scotia BANK

gives you extra money to spend but helps keep your budget

SCOTIA PLAN CHEQUE-CREDIT is The Bank of Nova Scotia's system of "revolving credit". This is how the plan works.

1. You select the monthly payment that you can afford and then apply for twelve times that amount.
2. When your application has been approved you receive a book of special personalized cheques.
3. You are not confined to spending in specified stores. Your cheques are good for anything you need, anytime, anywhere in Canada.
4. You pay only on the amount of credit actually used. The charge on Cheque-Credit accounts is $6.00 per year for each $100 borrowed. You do not pay anything for the money held in reserve for your account.
5. Each month you will receive a statement of cheques written, payments to be made, and the amount of credit still open.
6. Your monthly payment is approximately one-twelfth of the amount of credit you have used, so far.
7. Each payment you make rebuilds your Cheque-Credit reserve, giving you a continual supply of credit.

Scotia Plan Cheque-Credit is life-insured, too, at no extra cost to you. Find out today all about Cheque-Credit at your nearest Scotiabank branch.

Sandra Silverson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Silverson, was the recipient of the Eliza M. Jones scholarship which is awarded to two first-year students in the Bachelor of Science (Agr.) course at Macdonald College. This scholarship has a minimum monetary value of $300 and a maximum value of $500.

L'Argenteuil wins top award for third year

L'Argenteuil, French-language counterpart of The Lachute Watchman, brought home to Giles Publishing House Ltd. the Best Newspaper award (3,000 or less circulation class) for the third time in five years.

The plaque, presented at the Canadian French-Language Weeklies convention, held at Lac Beauport last week, was received on behalf of L'Argenteuil by Raymond Church (in the absence of Fernand Berthiaume, editor, through illness). The award is accompanied by a cash prize of $100 given by the Association.

L'Argenteuil has the distinction of having won the Best Newspaper honors in its class in 1957, 1960 and 1961 — a notable achievement by Editor Berthiaume and his staff.

In the over-3,000 class, winner of top honors was the "Gulf Progress". The trophies were presented by Lt.-Col. Sarto Marchand, president of Melchers Distilleries Ltd.

Blood Clinic on Monday, Tuesday, September 25-26

Monday and Tuesday next are dates set for the Red Cross blood donor clinic, being held in Lachute Auditorium from 2 to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m.

The public are cordially invited to attend and make a donation of their blood, so that the Red Cross blood bank may be replenished in case of emergencies, illness or accidents where the use of plasma may help to save a life. A special appeal is being made to teen-agers of 18 years, who are now eligible to participate. . . . Won't you help? Come along and bring a friend!

Housewife fells fox with broom

(Our District Correspondent)

Rivington — No fox is going to out-fox Mrs. James Trineer, Jr. . . . Glancing out of the kitchen window the other day, Dora noticed that a fox had grabbed a protesting gobbler. Seizing a broom, the lady ran to the rescue, and proceeded to clobber the fox. Net outcome of this furious battle was one dead fox and one live but slightly ruffled turkey!

NEW VIEWS ON AN OLD CONTROVERSY —

Study of maps and terrain convinces research team on Dollard Battle site

Report on a research project undertaken by Dr G. R. Rigby and Miss H. Lambart

Nearly all historians appear to be agreed that Dollard's battle with the Iroquois on the banks of the Ottawa River in May 1660 took place in the vicinity of Carillon, on the north shore of the river. Despite this agreement, or perhaps because of it, a concerted effort to find the actual location does not ever seem to have been undertaken. The only person who has done any research appears to have been Abbé Arthur Guindon during the years 1910-1923. He published the results of his work on Dollard in the journal "L'Action Francaise" in June 1918. This was followed by publication of a small booklet "Les Trois Combats du Long Sault" in 1923, dealing with the Dollard affair and two other engagements on the Long Sault of the Ottawa about 30 years later.

Anyone attempting today to find the actual location of Dollard's battle ground at Carillon is severely handicapped by the fact that the north shore of the Ottawa River in this area no longer bears much resemblance to its original state. The various construction works undertaken there during the past 130 years have extensively altered the appearance of the shore-line. The original Carillon canal work of 1830-33 was followed by construction of the new canal and the first Carillon dam in 1872-74. Today the Quebec-Hydro has churned up a large part of this area for the third time.

Abbé Guindon seems to have surmounted most of these difficulties and we are in agreement with his references to a navigable current of slack water along the north shore of the river for nearly a mile above the foot of the rapids. We also agree that this current ended in a small bay with a backwater, which today gives access to both the old and the new canals in the centre of the Village of Carillon. However, we cannot find ourselves in agreement with his view that canoes coming down the river would necessarily come in for a landing at the bay. On the contrary, if the canoe man came down over the portage he would put his canoe into the water again at the head of the navigable current. We may be sure he would then continue on down the river without stopping at the bay. If the canoe came straight down the river, running the rapids, the little bay would be a very good place for a landing, however, there was no assurance that a landing would be made.

For these reasons we must disagree with Abbé Guindon that Dollard made his stand near the little bay in the village of Carillon that today gives access to both the old and the new canals. We have to remember that Dollard made his stand at a place where he could expect the Indians to pass without fail. All contemporary authorities are agreed on this point. We believe the little bay at Carillon does not meet the requirement and therefore should not be accepted as the site of the battle ground.

In our view it is necessary to look first at the route of the portage around the Carillon rapid in order to find the answer to the question "Where was Dollard's palisade?" The portage was always the place where the Indians tried to catch their enemies and if the Algonquins had built a small palisade, as stated by the contemporary reports, it seems to us more than likely this would be located somewhere near the portage route.

We have been fortunate in locating an old surveyor's map of 1778 which gives an accurate survey of the area including the portage route. The portage around the Carillon rapid, according to the map scale, was approximately 1120 yards in length. The head of the portage was about opposite the centre of an island called Isle Perseverance, now known as Dewar's Island. It was not possible to tell immediately where the foot of the portage was located. The old map showed a small stream or inlet immediately to the east of the landing beach, however, this could not be found on any other map, ancient or modern. The old map also showed that the portage route followed the line of an escarpment along the north bank of the river. The beginning and end of the portage coincided with the beginning and end of the escarpment.

Since the location of the head of the portage could be identified, we started our calculations at that point. Projecting the indicated distance of 1120 yards onto a modern map, it was found that the foot of the portage would have been in the immediate vicinity of No. 2 lock of the present canal. This was also the immediate construction area for the first Carillon Dam of 1872-74. In addition, a substantial earthwork was constructed here for the original canal of 1830-33 as well as a drainage channel for waste water. The original shore-line at this point had also been enclosed within the embankment forming the southern side of the present canal. The prospects for locating the foot of the portage did not appear to be very promising.

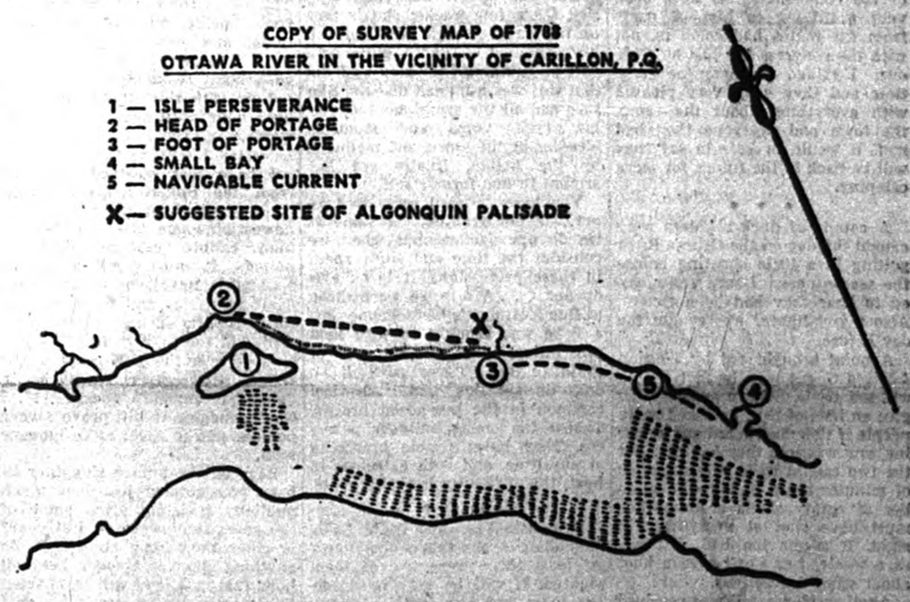

The first point of identification was provided by an aerial photograph of the area of No. 2 lock. Although it was not indicated on any map, the photograph revealed there was a small drainage ditch leading into the canal exactly in the position of the stream indicated on the survey map of 1788. This encouraged further study of the immediate area.

The next step was to secure, if

Browns'bg to hold blood donor clinic Monday, Sept. 25

Brownsburg — There are many worthy campaigns throughout the year and most good citizens "do their bit". But few campaigns offer so much benefit to the donor as the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic. There is a tremendous thrill in the knowledge that the donation will be instrumental in saving the life of a fellow human being. The donation takes so little from the donor, yet the value is immeasurable. . . . What value can you put on a life?

There is more, however, than the satisfying feeling that you have saved a life. You are participating in the most wonderful of banking systems — you deposit what you can afford and you withdraw what you need. . . .

There are countless examples of dramatic withdrawals, but close to home recently, Leon Tessier of Brownsburg was unfortunate in needing an immediate withdrawal of 15 pints. But he was fortunate indeed in having an unlimited bank account at his disposal, and Mr. Tessier's life was saved by 15 unknown depositors.

This is a bank which functions "in the red". Like any bank though its deposits must equal its withdrawals. Do yourself a favor. Perform the most brotherly of all acts. Give a little of yourself so that someone might live.

School of Ballet re-opens Sept. 29

On Friday, September 29, the Argenteuil School of Ballet will reopen a new year. It is hoped that this coming course will be as successful as in previous years, and that the community will take advantage of the facilities offered.

Once again, Miss Lucille Du Breuil, a well qualified teacher, will take charge of the classes. Miss Du Breuil is bilingual and a member of the Imperial Society of Teachers, which qualifies her to train pupils for R.A.D. examinations. This is a program the school hopes to embark upon this coming season.

Interested parents should contact Mrs. E. F. Gow, R.R. 3, Lachute, or phone LO 2-6102.

Youth training opportunities in Army Cadet unit

Enrolment for the 1961-62 training season of the Army Cadet Unit in Lachute opened this evening (Wednesday), at quarters in the basement of the Auditorium. Capt. W. E. Butterfield is chief instructor, and Lieut. R. W. Haydon assistant.

The Highland Cadet Battalion, 4D Company, parades each Wednesday between 7 and 9.15 p.m. at the Battery gun park on Robert Street, and at the Auditorium. A three-year program of training is in operation, during which time Cadets will have been trained in drill, correct use of rifle, light machine gun, map reading, signaling (Morse and wireless) and, most important for these days, First Aid and National Survival.

This corps is open to all boys between the ages of 14 and 18. Instruction will be given in English.

Opportunities are given to Cadets who wish to attend Summer Camp which is held at Farnham each summer for 49 days. The successful completion of training at camp carries with it qualifications for promotion and a cash bonus.

Uniform and equipment are provided free of charge, but remain the property of the Department of National Defence.

During the winter and spring, ice hockey, basketball and small arms firing take place. During the winter also, the Cadet annual dance and party is held.

The main objects of Cadet training are to instill into the future citizens of Canada a sense of responsibility and self-discipline.

Employers fined for Unemployment Insurance neglect

Two businessmen from Brownsburg appeared in St. Jerome court last week to answer charges of not renewing their employees' Unemployment Insurance books, as required by the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The two accused pleaded guilty. Presiding Judge Omer Coté noted that instructions given to them by the Unemployment Insurance Commission had been clear and to the point, and several written requests addressed to them had remained unanswered without satisfactory explanation. Since these employers had persisted in ignoring their obligations, Judge Coté sentenced them each to $25 fine plus costs, commenting that the law provides for a maximum fine of $500, or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or both fine and imprisonment.

The public are cordially invited to inspect the exhibition, daily between the hours of 2 and 5.30 p.m.

Passes through Lachute to Carillon project

The first of 14 Kaplan type turbine runners was shipped on September 12 to the $50,000 h.p. Hydro-Quebec Carillon project.

Some 20 feet in diameter and weighing 90 tons, the runner is of the variable-pitch propeller type, and was built at the Lachine works of Dominion Engineering Ltd. It was transported on a 65-ton, depressed-centre flat car, hauled by a special train made up of a locomotive, the flat car and a caboose manned by a special crew. The train was moved over a complicated route via Lachute, in order to obtain the necessary clearance, and was allowed to travel on main lines only after midnight. For part of the journey, speed was restricted to 15 miles an hour. When planning the journey, CNR made a dummy run to ensure that all clearances were adequate. Power had to be turned off at one point to allow the train crew to ease power cables over the runner blades.

Completion of Carillon is scheduled for 1963 and delivery of further runners will continue at regular intervals through 1961, 1962 and 1963 to meet installation schedules. This is the first time in North America that a Kaplan turbine runner of such size has been shipped in an essembled condition.

— By BOB ATCHISON —

A few of our local citizens took the time and trouble to visit the Canadian Camping Congress on Saturday, the 9th. I know from the talk among some of them they were very surprised, and needless to say, now they have the camping bug. A very successful turnout made it very enjoyable for everyone. About 125 tents, with about 300 people from all over, were in evidence.

I had the opportunity of visiting a bus that had been specially built for campers. It had all the comforts of home, including TV, phone, hot and cold running water, and so many labor-savers they are too numerous to mention.

A giant bonfire and a corn roast for everyone made it especially attractive. Dancing by some of the campers and by a professional group, enlivened the evening. I talked to a lot of these campers, and they were all of the same opinion. They hope to come back next year, or in a couple of years. Very few complaints were heard, and the ones that were talked of, all had to do with the camping ground. More water is needed. More toilets, more garbage disposal areas, and more trash cans around on the grounds.

Believe me, a vote of thanks is deserved to Mr. Dumais, owner of the camping ground, for his terrific work in preparing this site. Some of the comments must have been very gratifying to him. A party from the States had come in, not with the congress but just on their own. I talked to them for some time and they were very pleased with everything about the camp, the town and everyone they had met. It would be safe to say they will be back in the future for more camping.

A couple of duck shooters were caught Sunday on the Ottawa River getting in a little shooting before the season opens. I sure was pleased to hear they had been caught. Also a jack-lighter was caught the day before.

A point brought out by Warden Adelard Gagné was the fact people will not try to help in any way. To give an idea of this, he asked some people if they had heard any shooting, and was told they had not. Yet the two caught were only a matter of minutes away, and by the number of empty shells around, they must have shot at everything in sight. It seems too bad that we, as a whole, just don't give a hoot about game infractions.

Another phone call was received about hunters along the North River bank shooting at everything. Five men were in this party, yet when Warden Gagné was along there he was given no information. How anyone can do a job without a little co-operation from the public is beyond me. I have often mentioned in these columns, that Wardens are for our benefit and they should be given any help possible. To my way of thinking, it is our duty to try and help these men do an unpleasant job.

Some very good perch have been taken from the North River, along with some small Northerns. Some of the perch were over the pound mark, and the pike were not too good; about 3 lbs. would be the largest, but there are more to come. At least there are small ones there, and this ensures good fishing in the years to come. Trout have not been hitting at all. Only one fisherman I have heard of got anything worth while. Two were taken, but one of them was a nice Red. Let's hope it will pick up before the season ends. Even at some of the resorts close to home, the fishing has been very poor.

I have been told of a couple of Golden Eagles hovering around. I have seen countless hawks of every category, and they seem to be increasing every day. I have also seen a number of owls roosting during the day. It's a remarkable sight, to see one of these very small Screech owls during the day blinking its eyes at you and not seeming to care a hoot about your presence. I believe this is the only small owl with ear-tufts, and this gives it a comical appearance. With the white feathers around its eyes and a very slender brown stripe down between them, it looks like a very dignified bird. They also change their appearance once in awhile. Sometimes you will see one with grey coloring, while other times they are brown. They are cousins to the Saw-Whets that can be seen around this district every once in awhile. Of course, the most common is the good old barn owl. This bird looks just like a clown with his makeup on.

I heard that a couple of Canvas Back ducks have made their nest up on one of the rivers close to us. Let's hope they keep out of range when the season opens. Not too many of these ducks frequent this district, and they shouldn't be up this far north. However, they do travel a lot, and Nature has strange ways of getting new breeds into areas. I hope I don't get calls about the Canvas Backs. I know they do travel north and much farther at times. But for the past few years they have not been getting much past the St. Lawrence River. This has no doubt been due to the great inroads the hunters have made on them. I wouldn't be a bit surprised if they were put on the same basis as the Wood duck — protected at all times until they have increased their numbers.

Our dog Goldie has been very sick for a few weeks; she is now on the mend though. She had yellow jaundice — and I guess you will be thinking the same as I did that this was a human disease. She sure had all the symptoms too, yellow eyes, gums and stomach. Needles by the score, and medicine by the gallon, finally got her around to her former self.

You know, we all seem to take our vets for granted, the same as we do our doctors, but when we consider the time and study spent in these professions, it is an eye-opener. . . . While we were down at Doc McMahon's kennels one day, a Peke was brought in with heat prostration. This is another of those things I never realized — dogs do get this, and it is very common in the pug-nosed breeds. That is, the boxers, bulldogs, pekes, etc. They have trouble breathing at any time, and with extremes in heat, this difficulty is really acute.

Lynx have been seen in the Lakefield district, and this is good news. At least there were two of them sighted. It will be very hard seeing them just now with so many leaves around, but in a few short weeks this will change, and they will be seen much more readily. I also heard in a round-about way that a panther had been seen, but up to the present, have not had any verification on this. It is more than possible they may be around. After all, these animals were spotted in the Lachute vicinity about a year before they were seen in the Montreal Island district. In this area a good many years ago, there were a number of them.

The garbage hounds have come, and gone (I hope). Seeing the countryside littered with the summer's garbage sure makes a person mad. They must have waited until they were leaving before getting rid of all their junk. In one spot along the Lakefield road there is a pile of cans that must contain at least 100. I guess these were can-eaters. This is not the worst either: a mattress, spring, old tires, a wooden table, and everything else they wanted to get rid of. It's only the year-round residents that have to put up with this; the perpetrators have gone until next year, so why worry.

I have just received literature from the Ruger Arms Company (U.S.A.) all about their latest and newest big-game rifle. It is 44 Magnum calibre carbine. Only 6½ pounds, it must pack a terrific wallop. It has been used on big game in Africa and from some of these reports it has worked very well. Not too high in price — just a shade over the $100 mark in the States. (How much it will be in Canada is anyone's guess). . . . I would imagine it will prove a very popular gun to shoot more humans with.

Back on the human slaughter — have you noticed just how much publicity is being given some of the cases that occurred last year? It takes them long enough to do anything about it, though. Let's all hope that new laws will be enacted this season. . . . Sorry if I repeat myself, but this is one subject that can and should be emphasized at every opportunity.

Sherbrooke man wins provincial plowing title

The seventh annual Quebec Provincial Plowing Match, at Richmond, was a little early this year but despite the fact that many district farmers had not yet completed their grain harvest, good crowds watched the plowing during both days under sunny skies. A soaking rain the night before the matches, and showers during the night of the match, left the sod in good condition.

The 11th annual St. Francis Valley Plowing Match was staged on September 14, in conjunction with the Provincial Match the following day. A total of 62 entered the 1 classes, and a dozen of these were 18 and under. There were also a dozen plow teams operating, and it was noticeable that the biggest crowd followed the walking plow classes. A popular tractor class was that for ladies, with six entered and one junior.

There were 11 entries in the Provincial Championship class the next day, with four counties, Richmond, Sherbrooke, Compton and Soulanges, represented. In the new class for young farmers under 20, there were seven entered, and these boys got an intensive course in the technique of plowing according to World Rules.

At the closing banquet there were two sittings to accommodate the crowd of over 200 which attended. Chairman was Robert Landry of Imperial Oil, and the Esso Championship Trophy was presented to Herbert Winget, of Sherbrooke, who also won the gold medal presented by La Ferme.

Runner-up was Romeo Besner, of St. Clet, Soulanges County, and these two will represent Quebec at the Canadian Plowing Championships being held at Belleville, October 5 and 6. Winner of the Provincial Junior class was Fred Johnson, of Melbourne.

Brownsburg 'blitz' appeal for C.N.I.B. next Monday

After 12 years of blindness, Peter Johnson sees again. When he lost his sight, he had just graduated from university as a chemical engineer. He had landed a good job with a well-known Canadian company and was on his way to a bright future. One afternoon, he was inspecting a test project. Suddenly there was an explosion — and Peter Johnson was blind. After weeks in hospital, he began the process of learning to live with blindness. A teacher, sightless herself, from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, taught him typing, Braille and the proper use of the White Cane. Peter was responding well. CNIB employment officers were discussing employment possibilities. Peter discovered there were many fields open to a man of his education.

Then, just six months ago, his eye doctor suggested a corneal transplant. Peter had heard of the operation but knew little about it. The doctor explained: "The Eye Bank of Canada is a C.N.I.B. service. Through this bank, Canadians may pledge their eyes and so pass on their good vision to someone else". After removal from the deceased and testing in the bank, the eye is sent on to the hospital requesting it. Doctor and patient are notified, and the operating room is readied. . . .

It was midnight when Peter got his call. That was five days ago. Now the surgeon was removing the bandages. Peter's hands felt clammy. He tried to dry them on the blankets. Then the bandages were off. Peter opened his eyes slowly — there was the doctor's face, dim and hazy, like looking at someone through a heavy fog; but the doctor's face was there. Peter said softly, "I can see!"

"Peter was one of three hundred Canadians to regain his sight through the Eye Bank", said Mr. T. P. Hall, chairman of the C.N.I.B. campaign for Brownsburg. He benefitted from two types of C.N.I.B. service, the adjustment training program for rehabilitation, and the Eye Bank for restoration of sight. You make both possible when you subscribe to the current financial appeal".

The canvass takes place in Brownsburg as a blitz campaign on September 25 from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m., and the entire campaign will be completed in two weeks' time. Be as generous as you can, when your volunteer worker calls.

ODDS AGAINST

Life is very much like Christmas — you're more likely to get what you expect than what you want.

Creative art by young pupils on display

The art work of young pupils 5½ to 12 years of age is on display this week at the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil, in the Rio Building Main Street West.

This work is the product of a class held by Guy Racine last July and August, attended by an average age of 55 or 60 youngsters. The program of instruction, approved by l'Ecole des Beaux Arts in Montreal, included sketching in charcoal, gouache and crayon; plastic art — the fabrication of masks and objects (designed to develop expression in the third dimension); and group collage.

Some of the exhibits in this display give distinct evidence of originality and color-coordination. A harmony of line in a few of the charcoal drawings is pleasing to the viewer — and, quite apart from merit or quality, the whole show gives practical testimony of the enjoyment and enthusiasm of this young class in their summer pastime

The pupils, both French and English, came from Lachute, Brownsburg, St. Andrews, and one from Ste. Scholastique. Their work is a credit to Guy Racine as tutor, and to Mr. and Mrs. Jean Laforest, who promoted the venture.

OLD FASHIONED

An old-timer is one who can remember when a job was the first thing you went steady with.

Free transfusions cost almost half Red Cross budget

It will surprise many to learn that almost half of the provincial Red Cross budget of a little more than one and a quarter million dollars must be devoted to the costs of the Red Cross free blood transfusion service in the Province of Quebec. Expense is inherent even in a free blood service, in which the blood is given free of charge from the veins of volunteer donors. Surgical, nursing and laboratory supplies have to be purchased for the blood donor clinics. The laundry bill is monumental. Then there is the cost of refrigeration of the blood bank, blood test and serum equipment, the transportation problem of getting blood to the hospitals, and, finally, the communications and record files involved in calling the right donors in emergencies.

But life is beyond cost, and so is the precious blood that will sustain life in the event of an accident or an illness. Even those with a commercial soul cannot disregard the blood balance sheet. The price for blood transfusions from professional donors has for years been $25 for a pint of blood. Since the free Red Cross blood transfusions, were inaugurated in Quebec Province in 1949, a total of roughly 770,000 pints of blood have flowed from the veins of volunteer donors and indirectly into the veins of patients who needed it vitally. At the rate of $25 a pint, this represents a cumulative total of $19,250,000 worth of blood given free that otherwise would have added substantially to the hospital bills of Quebec patients.

'Farmers Abroad' tour next month

Several local farmers participated in the autumn tour of Scotland and England last year, and enjoyed it greatly. The venture was so successful that another has been organized for this year. It will comprise 33 days of travel, covering, besides the ocean trip, 1200 miles by motor coach, all inclusive at only $650.

The party will leave Montreal October 5 on the Empress of England, returning on the Empress of Canada to arrive in Montreal on November 7.

These tours are designed for their educational value . . . for all who love the farm and countryside . . . to introduce the Canadian farmer to his British colleague . . . to see latest developments in agriculture and animal sciences. . . . There will be motor tours through the beauties of rural Britain, lakes, rivers, castles, Roman ruins, quaint villages — and free days for browsing and shopping. And among the historic cities — the ever-alluring London.

Think it over! This all-expense tour is a bargain. For further information call Giles Travel Agency, Lachute, LO 2-2494.

Here today—how about tomorrow?

A U.S. study shows that, on an average, 15% of customers are lost to a retailer each year. In 10 years 81 out of every 100 customers will drift away.

Reasons why customers leave: 14% unadjusted complaints; 9% lower prices; 5% influenced by others; 3% move; 1% die: 69% lost thro' neglect, bad treatment, poor service, indifference.

Late Miss Slater was daughter of early town couple

Missed by many acquaintances in this town will be a familiar figure and lifelong resident, Miss Marian V. Slater, who was removed suddenly by death at her home last Thursday.

Her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slater, were English and of the old school, one of Lachute's more notable early couples. Marian, their only daughter, was born in Montreal 70 years ago and came here in her infancy. The family resided near the paper mill; her father was then office manager of J. C. Wilson Co.; and he later became M.P.P. for the Argenteuil constituency, Mayor of Lachute, and was awarded the O.B.E. Miss Slater was educated at Lachute Academy and at Dunham Ladies' College. She later conducted a jewelry store on Main Street, and in the same quarters, was first clerical employee of the Gatineau Power when that company came to Lachute.

Miss Slater attended her parents through long illness. After their death she took instruction as a trained attendant, and in that capacity she served many families through the years and endeared herself to children, many of whom are now grown to maturity. She had no living relatives except a cousin in Australia.

The late Miss Slater was a member of St. Simeon's Anglican Church, where service was held Saturday, from the MacKimmie Funeral Home. The Rev. W. C. LeCras officiated in the presence of numerous friends and fellow townfolk, and many flowers bore silent tribute to her memory. The remains were laid to rest beside those of her parents in Lachute Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Ross Muir, Russell and Percy Carpenter. R. A. Giles, Donald M. Hay, and Bories Arran.

Five bridal attendants at St. Matthew's ceremony

Myre-Crooks

A double-ring ceremony was solemnized in St. Matthew's Church, Grenville, on Saturday, August 26, at 12 o'clock noon, when Miss Shirley Crooks, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. Frank Crooks, was united in marriage to Mr. Yves Myre, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Omer Myre, of L'Orignal, Ont.

The Rev. W. C. LeCras, of Lachute, officiated at the ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Dora MacLeod and the soloist was Mrs. Fred Moore, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" as the bride's mother entered the church, and "Oh Perfect Love", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length white gown of pure silk organza trimmed with French lace and small pearls; the fulness of the back was caught up with a large rose of pure silk organza, and the gown had brief sleeves. The bride's elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a matching pearl crown. She carried a cascade of red American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Grant Scott, of Lachute, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Nancy Bray of Kilmar and Miss Lise Myre, the groom's sister, were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns of organza in shades of lilac and mauve, having fitted bodices, decolletage necklines, brief sleeves and bouffant skirts, with back fulness caught up by matching roses. They wore matching flowered veiled simsies, and carried pink and mauve carnations with trimmings of baby's breath.

The junior bridesmaid was Miss Shirley Preston, cousin of the bride, wearing a full-skirted knee-length organza dress in similar color to the bridesmaids', with headpiece of organza to match. She carried a small bouquet also similar to the bridesmaids'. The flower girl, cousin of the bride, was Miss Francine Allard; she wore a pure white silk dress, knee-length, with short veil and headdress with mauve trim, and carried a basket of pink Sweetheart roses and mauve mums, with baby's breath trimmings.

The best man was the brother of the groom, Mr. Geo. Myre, of Montreal. The two ushers were Mr. Sandford Crooks, brother of the bride, and Mr. Gerald Myre, of Ottawa, brother of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a blue French lace sheath dress with white and pink accessories.

Many out-of-town guests attended the wedding, from Pennsylvania, U.S.A., Montreal, Lachute, Kilmar, L'Orignal, Hawkesbury, Calumet, Vankleek Hill, Ottawa, Brownsburg and Cornwall.

The church decorations were in beautiful colors of gladioli arranged by the bride's mother.

The reception was held at the Montana Inn, Pointe au Chene, Que. Later Mr. and Mrs. Myre left on a motor trip to Niagara Falls. The bride wore a two-piece emerald green woollen suit with white accessories, black shoes and purse. The couple will return to live in Grenville, Que.

Other members' children attending school out of town are Carol and Gerald Beacroft, Wayne Seary, Adele Thiebaud, at Laval West, and Jacqueline Thiebaud, at Lachute.

Bible Soc'y Week Sept 25 - Oct. 1

The canvass for the Canadian Bible Society will commence on Monday, September 25, and culminate in the annual meeting on Sunday, October 1.

This is an outstanding year in the history of the English Bible. Two great events have taken place with much cause for thanksgiving. First the New Testament of the New English Bible has come off the press and is now in the hands of millions of people. Secondly, the 350th anniversary of the King James authorized version is being celebrated.

No other book has made such an impact on the thinking and life of the English speaking people of the world and it is with gratitude to God that we express our thanks and appreciation for the Bible.

While we have many Bibles in our homes, there are many who have not a single portion of the Word of God in their own native tongue. The Bible Society is one of the agencies that God is using today to give the peoples of the world the Holy Scriptures.

The great task of the Bible Society must go on, translating and publishing the Scriptures, and while the Bible has been printed in over one thousand different languages and dialects, much remains to be done if the millions of the world's population are to have the Word of God in their own language.

Without your help this would not be possible. As we thank you for your generous help in past years, we come to you again with our sincere appeal, asking that you will help to make 1961 the best year yet for the Lachute Branch of the Society. As the Bible Society collector comes to your door, please receive her kindly, and be as generous as you possibly can.

If each home in Lachute would give a dollar, we would be able to increase our donation to the Society from the Local Branch, which last year was $690.

— Rev. C. W. Sorley,
President, Lachute Branch

Red Shield fund appeal by Salvation Army

A yearly campaign which commends itself to every observant citizen, is the Salvation Army's Red Shield Appeal. The Watchman directs its readers' attention to the appeal, which in this district takes the form of a direct-mail solicitation. All who regularly support the drive, and others who might wish to do so, are invited to forward their donations to the chairman, Harold Deacon, or the treasurer, Donald M. Hay (Bank of Montreal), or a third member of the local committee, Leopold Carriere.

All-out objective of the campaign this year is $335,000, and it is hoped the Lachute district will participate as generously as in previous campaigns.

"The Salvation Army continues to live up to its motto, 'A Shield for Thousands'. It is a heart-warming task, working in the interest of the less fortunate, and indeed satisfying to realize that the funds raised will bring aid and comfort to many people in distress", says a paragraph in the letter to local subscribers.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

— Edmund Burke

A very personal opportunity

THE RED CROSS is a Society which exercises a salutary influence on all social levels. It gives assistance to those in need, and to victims of disaster. It turns to those who are blessed with this world's goods, and to those who enjoy good health in order to solicit their support in favor of the afflicted and the sick.

Among the services of the Red Cross, one in particular is worthy of special note — that of the Blood Banks. In certain types of severe illness, in many accident cases, the care of the most skilful doctor would be of no use if blood plasma were not available to keep the patient alive until treatment can be given. Blood Banks must therefore accumulate large quantities of blood plasma to be in a position to fill the needs of modern medical care.

In order that the Blood Banks may be prepared to meet all emergencies, a clinic is being held at Lachute Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday next, September 25 and 26, from 2 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. . . . The clinic at Brownsburg is on September 25.

You are invited to do your share by attending and making your donation.

World problem of hunger

THROUGHOUT the world, there is a growing awareness of the continuing problem of hunger.

The UN's Food and Agriculture Organization has been reviewing results of the first 12 months of its world-wide "Freedom from Hunger" campaign, and it finds that despite a slow start, the world-wide response by the public as individuals and by groups and associations has been a most encouraging feature.

So far national Freedom from Hunger committees have been established in 26 countries, but many more are in the process of being established.

"We see how in some countries the challenge of climate and soil is being met, how agriculture productivity is being raised even in areas previously considered beyond any economic use," said Dr. B. R. Sen, director-general of FAO, at the FAO council's last meeting in Rome.

A program like this doesn't capture headlines, but there could hardly be any more important effort to improve world conditions. Tackled on a massive scale, the problem of hunger could be solved and vistas opened up for unlimited progress. Without such action, the FAO argues, the situation "may collapse into unlimited disaster, not only for individual nations but for the whole world."

Dr. Sen said the hope lies in awakening of the masses in the underdeveloped countries to their rights to a better life, which means that the world's most valuable resource, its manpower, now is ready for progress.

These "masses" are estimated to number about half of the world's present 3,000,000,000 population. Almost all of them are to be found in the underdeveloped countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America. The average income level among these people is 1/10 or less of that compared to average income in the technically advanced countries.

The biggest single proposal to fight the hunger problem is the plan put forward by the United States for establishment of an international fund of $100,000,000 for food aid. The U.S. government would contribute $40,000,000 worth of commodities to such a fund.

These proposals for the constructive use of food surpluses reflect a changed viewpoint. At one time, surplus foods were destroyed to protect the market. Since the Second World War they have been used for rehabilitation purposes. Now they are being considered for long-term use in helping the underdeveloped countries to help themselves.

It is a bold project, but the problem demands a bold solution.

The West Berlin "escape hatch"

WHEN THE WAR TALK about Berlin has been loudest, there has been an outcry about "the defence of human rights" and the Soviet Union "slamming shut the door on her East German jail". Some people feel that something violent and immediate should be done about this — observes the Fort Erie Letter-Review.

It's understandable that West Berliners — and many East Berliners and East Germans, too — should feel this way (continues the writer), but for the people of the West, even of West Germany, to call for action, however dangerous, is a sudden change of view.

The closing of the West Berlin "escape hatch" is deplorable. There is no question about that. No people should be forced by walls and guards to remain under a regime they detest.

What the present "Callers-For-Action" forget is that this has gone on elsewhere for years and still goes on. A comparison of two evils would indicate that the East Germans, at least until now, have been extraordinarily lucky. They have had an "escape hatch." Three million of them have taken advantage of it. Now it is closed.

The Russians have never had an escape hatch, not in 40 years. For 16 years, the door of the Polish jail has been shut. The Hungarians, the Rumanians, the Czechs, the people in the Baltic States, have never had a jail door open.

Has the West ever considered it must go to war to open a door for them? It never has. Not even when the people inside tried to batter their own way out, as in Germany in 1953, as in Hungary in 1956.

There is a real dispute over Berlin, particularly over West Berlin. International agreements, signed by the Soviet Union in 1945 and 1949, guarantee Western access to the city and the free movement of Allied forces within the four zones of the city. The dispute does not concern the right of East German Government to deny her people the opportunity to flee to the West.

When the issue is world war or peace, it is wise to confine the argument to the points in dispute — concludes this analyst of world affairs, in the Letter-Review.

Viewpoints and perspectives

SUNDAYS CHANGE. — The blue Sunday of a couple of generations ago was undoubtedly too severe, but the secularism of today is to be deplored also. There ought to be a middle ground where people who wish a quiet Sunday can have it without listening to power mowers in the suburbs or having their eyes offended by a display of the family wash in the city or country.

— Gananoque (Ont.) Reporter

WHAT'S THE CURE? — It used to be said that it was alchohol and gasoline that did not go well together, that caused so many accidents. The demon today is generally regarded as speeding by heedless drivers. . . . We just can't blame the police as neglecting their duty, nor can we place all blame on roads.

— Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

SCHOOL DIVISIONS. — If you are shocked at some of the things that happened in Little Rock, please consider this: What would happen right here in the Province of Quebec if a government in Ottawa suddenly said there would be no more segregated schools in this province? It would make no difference whether the Protestant pupils were to go to Catholic schools or the Catholics to Protestant schools; there would be trouble.

— Stanstead (Que.) Journal

LAST RESERVE. — It is a fact, regrettable perhaps, that in Southern Ontario the best agricultural land is rapidly being gobbled up by industrial and residential users. As a result, Northern Ontario is the last great reserve of good farming land in the province. — Temiskaming (Ont.) Speaker

ALLERGY WRITTEN IN A COUNTRY CHURCHYARD

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day —
Ah-Choo !
There's pollen on the ragweed and the hay —
Ah-Choo !
Although the summer days are stunning
I do not feel like jokes or punning
Because my eyes and nose are running —
Ah-Choo !

* * *

My Doctor says I'm past all curing —
Ah-Choo !
He little knows what I'm enduring —
Ah-Choo !
This year I'm never going near him
Because I dread and also fear him
And his infernal shots of serum —
Ah-Choo !

It's always this way in September —
Ah-Choo !
Each year as far as I remember —
Ah-Choo !
A cold in winter is much easier
To cure, because it's much less sneezier
In weather that is crisp and freezier —
Ah-Choo !

* * *

Summer —
Ah-Choo !
The one we just had was a hummer —
Ah-Choo !
I'd rather sneeze until I'm weary
Than live through days dark, cold, and dreary
Like those we have in Janueery —
Ah-Choo !

Be seein' ya!

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Sept. 3, 1886 —

Dalesville — Mr. C. Vary has succeeded in capturing three large bears this season, the largest weighing 400 lbs.

Dr. W. Smith has commenced building his house on Main Street next to the Ville Marie Bank.

Chatham — While Mrs. John Burke was driving out a short distance, her horse took fright and threw her to the roadside. Despite medical aid, she lived only a short while after the accident.

Mr. J. C. Wilson has built a new plank walk from Fish's Bridge to the Paper Mill, for the convenience of his mill employees.

Mr. Potter, of L'Orignal, who for many years has made excellent brick, is about starting a brick kiln at Lachute.

On Saturday the 5th Military Divn., First Brigade, hold their annual games on Barron's Lacrosse Grounds. There is also to be a reunion of the veterans of the Fenian Raids of the 66-70.

55 YEARS AGO

Friday, Sept. 14, 1906 —

The Hon. Mr. Gouin, premier of the province, has consented to attend our Annual Exhibition next Thursday.

Owing to the exceedingly high price of feed and labor, the milk vendors of our town have decided to advance the price of milk from 5c to 6c per quart.

Cushing — Among young men from this vicinity who have gone West with the Harvest Excursion are Messrs. L. Kerr, L. Hartley and E. T. Derrick.

The 11th Regt. Rifle Association matches will be held in Lachute next month.

Mr. A. T. Morrison of Montreal is here for a few days in the interests of the Royal Arcanum Society.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Sept. 10, 1936 —

Putting his pre-election promises into effect, Premier Maurice Duplessis declared the cancellation of insurance policies on government buildings "due to flagrant abuses in the system of placing insurance"; replacement of crown prosecutors and liquor commission attorneys throughout the province; and organizing of all government departments on a sound and economical basis.

Misses Janet McKenzie, Lillian Gordon and Irene McFaul, of Lachute, are attending Macdonald College.

Friends of Mr. Wm. Blakely welcome him back to town, after spending the summer months in Arnprior.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, told a service club that James Wolfe, hero of the Plains of Abraham, died of tuberculosis rather than from battle wounds. Wolfe braved the rigors of war rather than the horrors of his mother's pet remedy, a potion of green garden snails and earthworms.

The Province of Quebec may "borrow" two crime experts from England's Scotland Yard and two experts from the Paris Prefecture to study reform of the Provincial Police.

The best place to build your bomb shelter is in South America. Experts say that the human race may survive there, after a war. But a shelter built any closer to the trouble zone is of doubtful value.

If a nuclear bomb hits town, the shelter will protect you the way a pressure cooker protects a roast of beef.

Only if the bomb misses your town altogether, and hits some other place over the horizon, can you count on the shelter to be of any use. It will protect you from fallout, provided that you are willing to hibernate until the country is fit to live in. How long will that be? Ten years, or 100?

Even the civil defence people seem luke-warm about shelters. Few civil defence people have shelters of their own. They put forward excuses — the landlady won't let them dig up her yard, or they can't afford to buy the cement until the car is paid for.

Some people in the United States, however, seem ready to go underground.

According to news reports, certain shelter-owners are stocking their concrete burrows with guns and knives, to defend themselves against other survivors. They have issued statements to the press, warning potential trespassers that any outsider who comes nosing around a private shelter, taking up private space and breathing private air, will get it right between the eyes.

They are the new cave men, rehearsing the part that they will play in the new Stone Age, after the great powers have argued the Berlin question to a finish.

The subject of bomb shelters has an aura of lunacy. Interviews with civil defence people about shelters are like dialogues between Alice and the Red Knight.

The idea of War itself is madness, no matter whether the war is waged in support of Communism, Capitalism or the Loyal Order of the Moose.

Bargaining for a principle at the conference table makes sense. But fighting for a principle with nuclear bombs is wholly irrational — as though you were to burn the house down because you didn't like the color of the paint on the walls.

Recent Russian actions, viewed from here, seem brutal and wrong-headed to the point of paranoia. But we have listened to a great deal of demented whooping and chest-thumping from the United States as well.

What can the ordinary citizen do, in a world that seems to be run by madmen? If anyone knows the answer, I wish he would write to his member of parliament and send me a carbon copy.

Just winning court cases for your clients isn't good enough if you're not a legally registered lawyer, restaurant owner Alex Woods found out. Woods, of Millbrook, Ont., got into the habit of helping out neighbors with their law cases, winning more than 50 of 100 cases. This angered the Law Society of Ontario, who charged him with acting as a lawyer without legal qualifications. Case is now before the courts and Woods—you guessed it—is defending himself.

Petite Smorgasbord

Try serving this "Petite Smorgasbord" to family or guests the next time you have an informal sandwich supper. Each person should have one plate with four open-face sandwiches made from a variety of breads and toppings. Crisp bacon, chicken, and button mushrooms; cheese, hard-cooked eggs and chopped chives; ham and potato salad; rare beef, tomatoes and anchovies were used for the four shown here. But anything goes, and the more imaginative, the better.

This quotation from the case k of a psychiatrist is one of the y sensible comments on human tionships in a very readable me.

Children can be terribly aggra- ng, their actions can try the ence of their parents to the but no matter what a child , the child must never be re- ed by the parents. Every child the right to know, that come t may, mother and dad still n him as a member of their ily.

is also true that a child needs belong to a little group of his age. The small "neighborhood " of boys and girls who live in same block and play together, happy activity in a nursery ol, all promote in the pre- l child this same sense of radeship with others.

school age child dislikes to be different in his clothes or in his dards of conduct, from his playmates that he is considered an outsider. He will appreciate his friends being welcome, and occasional treats of cookies or apples being available when a chum comes into his home to play.

A teenage girl does not want to be excluded from parties because the hour she must be home at night is so much earlier than the "deadline" for her friends. Parents must sometimes weigh the values of health rules with the need of "belonging" and reach some satisfactory compromise about rules.

Pride in one's own community can be fostered by parents and years later children will have the feeling of having grown up in a desirable area. Parents who attend and support the church and give religion a vital place in their lives, also give boys and girls the sense of belonging to one of the oldest and most significant organizations in the world.

The spirit of internationalism is stressed today in the higher education of students. The threat of destruction through atomic warfare hangs over the whole civilized world. For their very preservation men and women in many lands are rising up and objecting to nuclear tests.

The refugee problem demonstrates in a practical way the need for the brotherhood of all men. In our families we should encourage our children to proudly echo the words of the Greek, Diogenes, who centuries ago declared: "I am a citizen of the world!"

Hospital Insurance means peace of mind for millions

One of a series of articles describing the Federal Health and Welfare Services Canadians get for their tax dollars.

A house never got built. A promising teen-ager couldn't go to college. A long-awaited holiday was never taken.

These were some of the casualties of a by-gone era when heavy hospital expenses could wreck many plans for tne future.

The coming of Hospital Insurance in 1958 ended this era for Canadians. Today, all ten provinces and two territories of Canada work with the federal government in providing their citizens with hospital insurance protection. Young or old, married or single, families or individuals Canadians can rest easier, cushioned against sudden ruinous expense.

The program was launched July 1, 1958, under the Hospital Insurance and Diagnostic Services Act passed by Parliament in 1957. The Act enabled the provinces and the federal government to make agreements and act jointly in their programs.

The federal government, using money from general revenue funds, pays about half of the provincial costs of the program across the country. In the current fiscal year alone, $270 million has been set aside for this purpose by the federal government.

What do Canadian taxpayers get for this expenditure? Actually, a great deal.

The Act stipulates that the provinces must provide Canadians with in-patient services including accommodation and meals, nursing services, diagnostic procedures such as x-ray and laboratory facilities, also drugs, operating room and related services. They are also covered for radiotherapy and physiotherapy, and entitled to the services of hospital personnel. All of these services come under the heading of "in-patient" services and do not differ from out-patient services except to the extent that provinces choose to implement them, since out-patient services are optional. Each province decides how far it wants to go in this field. So far the range of out-patient services varies from province to province, from no services at all to limited emergency, or to a fairly complete array of out-patient services.

Hospital insurance is available to all residents of the province regardless of nationality, age, income or other circumstances.

Tourists, people passing through, or visitors to provinces can't claim protection. But residents can get services when visiting outside their home provinces, under stated circumstances which vary from province to province.

Never before has this type of care been offered to Canadians on similar terms — either by voluntary, commercial or provincial agencies.

The hospital insurance assures everyone adequate health protection all-year-round — as well as peace of mind regarding health problems — and hospital expenses.

Tomatoes timely – and economical

(Consumer Section)

Fresh tomatoes are never cheaper nor better eating than in September when they literally flow from nearby fields to our local stores and markets. Vine-ripened under a summer sun, field tomatoes are meaty, colorful, full of flavor and vitamins; so don't resist them, eat them to your heart's content.

The Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggests that you —

Select tomatoes which are plump and have a smooth, well-colored skin.

Store ripe tomatoes in the refrigerator to keep them from over-ripening.

Hold green tomatoes at room temperature, out of the sun, so that they ripen evenly.

Use tomatoes which have healed growth cracks or scars at the blossom end for slicing, for tossed salads or in casseroles. They have fine flavor in spite of these defects.

Tomatoes are primarily a "salad vegetable", refreshing and juicy in salads. The large, meaty tomatoes are ideal for stuffing with poultry, meat, egg, cottage cheese, potato or fish salads. Three simple and attractive ways to prepare tomatoes for stuffing are:

(1) Wash tomatoes, cut a cone from blossom end and scoop out half of the centre. If tomato wobbles cut a thin slice from stem end. Invert and drain well before filling with a chilled salad mixture.

(2) Wash tomatoes, cut in 2 or 3 thick slices. Place chilled salad mixture between the slices.

(3) Wash tomatoes. Make 5 or 6 slices from top down to, but not through, stem end. Fill between the attached slices with a chilled salad mixture. Tomato spreads out like a fan.

Herbed Tomato Dinner

Fall is the time to go back to serving regular hot dinners. Fresh tomatoes make a quick and easy dinner vegetable. Here's something new, something quick, and something very delicious for your fall dinner. It is Herbed Tomatoes, tested for you by the Consumer Section in Ottawa.

6 Ripe, medium tomatoes, ¼ cup butter, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon brown sugar, ½ cup diced celery, 3 tablespoons finely chopped chives or green onions, 3 tablespoons finely chopped parsley, ½ to ½ teaspoon crushed oregano.

Remove core from tomatoes. Melt butter in a frying pan, add salt, pepper and brown sugar. Place tomatoes in pan, cored side down. Cover closely and simmer 5 minutes. Turn tomatoes and spoon butter mixture over them. Add remaining ingredients, cover closely and continue simmering until tomatoes are just tender, 8 to 12 minutes. Carefully lift tomatoes into serving dish and spoon remaining mixture over top. 6 servings.

Note: If tomatoes are firm fleshed, they may be blanched and peeled before cooking.

Color can make or mar a room, according to Toronto decorator Maria de Nagay. Along with Pat Lamont she was responsible for the decoration of a group of model rooms at the 1961 Canadian National Exhibition.

"Color is the element that gives a room its character, that sets the mood, and that reveals the owner's personality," Mrs. de Nagay said.

Color could also dictate the decor to a certain extent. Gold was luxurious and demanded a luxurious setting.

"On the other hand, a brown-beige color scheme with white accents would tend to demand a tailored setting," she explained.

Samples of carpet, drapery fabric, wallpaper and paint should be examined in the home under the conditions where they will be used because colors change under different conditions.

Carpeting and wallcovering should be co-ordinated in muted colors to give freedom in decorating for years ahead. Accent colors in the unholstery were easily changed with a subtle background.

Mrs. de Nagay predicted that colors will be softer, "not pastels, but greyed tones."

Miss Lamont said the blue-green and blue-mauve combinations would remain popular and both women agreed that the pink-red group will emerge strongly.

Green, a perennial favorite with Canadians, will replace the brown-beige combination, Miss Lamont said, and she expects an increase in the yellow-greens, the olives and citrons and the grey-greens.

They urged more attention to color in kitchens and bathrooms.

Forced Retirement

A "young chick" was the downfall of Sparky, the former mascot of the Peterborough, Ont., fire department.

Sparky, a thoroughbred Dalmatian, arrived at the station "on credit" in May, 1958. City firemen gazed into his big brown eyes and then contributed one dollar each until the $50 price was raised.

The friendship with the firemen survived for four months. All went well until the late shift decided to treat themselves to a chicken dinner. The meal was spread on the table, the knives were sharpened and the firemen were just about to sit down when the alarm sounded.

The men raced away leaving Sparky and the children in the same room. When the men returned they were greeted by a well-fed animal and Sparky was forcibly retired. Since then, the two-year-old dog has spent his life on the farm home of Fireman Bill Baker.

October Cheese

October is cheese festival month and a preview dinner was held in Toronto to mark the occasion. The menu included these Swiss Style Veal cutlets:

For six servings you need 6 veal cutlets; flour; 1 cup fine dry bread crumbs; ½ cup grated Canadian Swiss cheese; ½ tsp. salt; 2 eggs, slightly beaten; and ¼ cup butter.

Wipe veal with a damp cloth. Coat lightly with flour. Combine bread crumbs, cheese and salt. Dip cutlets in slightly-beaten eggs then in crumb mixture; chill ½ hour. Heat butter in frying pan. Fry cutlets in butter until golden brown.

"They're very becoming, if you don't mind my saying so."

Have You A Question on UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE OR EMPLOYMENT?

In this column we publish questions about unemployment insurance and employment, together with answers received from the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

If you are uncertain about any point do not hesitate to send us your question. We will obtain an answer and publish it in this column.

Q. — I am a single man without a dependent. Why do I have to pay as much as a married man, when I cannot draw as much benefit?

A. — Unemployment insurance is a social measure which takes into account the greater need of a person with a dependent by providing an increase of benefit for this purpose. However, no distinction can be made in the payment of conributions beween a contributor with a dependent and one without a dependent, because a conributor who acquires a dependent later would thereby be deprived of the increased rate at the very time when he does have a dependent and his needs are greater.

Q. — There is a ceiling of $5,460 for contribution purposes for salaried employees, but if a person is paid by the hour, he can go far beyond this and still be insurable. Why?

A. — An employee paid by the hour (or by the day or at a piece work rate) has less certainty of steady employment than a salaried worker. He is more exposed to the hazard of intermittent lay-offs for such reasons as weather or shortage of materials. His earnings tend to estimate in advance how much he will earn in a year. He is therefore insured irrespective of how much he earns.

Study of maps and terrain convinces research team

possible, a large scale map which would show the topography prior to the works of 1872-74. Through the combined efforts of the Public Archives at Ottawa and the Department of Transport, whose assistance is very much appreciated, we received a copy of the official plan prepared for the construction work. This showed the area in detail and also indicated exactly where the new works were to be located. The plan confirmed what we had suspected, that the location of No. 2 lock coincided with the eastern end of the escarpment. The landing beach, according to the old map, was to be found between the end of the escarpment and the small stream.

An investigation at the site has confirmed that the foot of the old Carillon portage with its landing beach can still be seen. It is an area scarcely 100 feet wide, the only section of the original shore-line in the vicinity which has not been mutilated. To the west are the great bulwarks of the No. 2 lock and to the east are thousands upon thousands of yards of crushed stone dumped there by Quebec-Hydro out of their excavations. Menaced both from the east and from the west, the little beach has somehow survived. The nearby ditch is still draining, as it did in the beginning, the marsh lands lying along the north shore of the river.

If this was the foot of the portage then the Algonquin palisade, we felt, could not be far away. The area north and east of the landing beach was wet and boggy. It was obvious the portage path would turn to the west immediately and climb up the slopes beside the river, onto the top of the escarpment. We went down to the old landing beach and measured out 200 paces, commencing at the water line and following the old foot-path up the hill. The contemporary accounts tell us the palisade was 200 paces from the water. At the end of 200 paces we found ourselves on a small plateau on the top of the escarpment, high above the river. We felt this was exactly the place a canoe man would choose to make his camp. Looking around we saw that close by, to the northwest, there was a small slope overlooking the plateau. This recalled immediately that Dollier de Casson in his History of Montreal described the place as being overlooked by some adjacent rising ground ("commandé par un côteau voisin"), which is one of the most specific details that we have.

We felt right away there was no need to look further for the site. Every aspect is in accord with the descriptions available to us from the contemporary records. It is 200 paces from the water, it is on a hill, it is overlooked by some nearby rising ground, and there is no water. In addition, the location is a very strategic one, high on the escarpment overlooking the river and the surging waters of the Carillon rapid. The view in each direction, up and down the river, is extensive. No one could approach this place without being seen. It is protected by a swamp at the rear and to the east. Obviously it would be a very attractive location for a military man like Dollard, seeking an engagement with the enemy.

The more we studied this plateau the more we were impressed with this idea of a strategic location. Going back to the surveyor's map of 1788 it was apparent immediately that canoes descending the river would have no option but to come down inside Isle Perseverance and along the north shore into the navigable current that bypassed the rapids. There was no other possible route. This would bring them close in underneath the escarpment. Those standing on the plateau on the top of the escarpment would be in absolute command of the passage of descending canoes. Since the plateau was actually situated on the portage route it was thus in command of all travel up or down the river. It is not difficult to understand the strategic importance of such a position at the time of the Iroquois wars on the Ottawa, when the whole of the Long Sault was a bloody battle ground with constant ambush around the rapids and on the portages. No one could enter or leave the Long Sault without passing the place where this plateau was located.

We have studied the topography of the upper parts of the Long Sault with care; the rapid and the portage at the Chute à Blondeau, and the long rapid of six miles from Grenville to Grece's Point with the portage on the north shore near Grenville. We are satisfied there is no other location in the whole of the Long Sault area, anywhere between Carillon and Grenville, where all travel routes must pass through one narrow defile. There is no other point where all movement on the river could be controlled from one location. The strategic importance of the plateau on the escarpment, in the days of canoe travel on the Ottawa, must have been absolute and complete.

Inevitably we asked ourselves whether Dollard and his companions had come to this strategic place by accident or by design. Going back to the accounts of the contemporary historians, so often quoted in today's debates about the location of the battle, we found they had an entirely new meaning for us. Dollier's History of Montreal says that when Dollard had placed himself in position, he waited for the Iroquois as if he were in an infallible passage ("il attendoit les Iroquois, comme dans un passage infaillable au retour de leurs chasses"). In the Jesuit Relations there is the statement that Dollard took up his position, there to await the Iroquois who, according to their custom, had to pass that way in single file ("pour y attendre les chasseurs Iroquois, qui selon leur coustume le devoient passer file à file, en retournant de leurs chasses d'hiver"). Radisson says that Dollard made an arrangement with his Indian allies "to goe and wait for the Iroquois in the passage at their retourne with their castors".

In our view these statements tell us that Dollard knew all about this strategic point and had selected it for his battle ground, before he left Montreal. It was his plan of campaign, to come to this place and make his stand there, and wait for the Iroquois who must inevitably pass that way, on descending the river. This was "the passage" of the contemporary historians.

This is an entirely new conception of Dollard's expedition to the banks of the Ottawa but it appears to be very well supported by the statements of the contemporary historians when these are studied in the light of the strategic importance of the plateau on the escarpment. We tend to forget that Dollard was a military man and his expedition had a military character. The purpose of the expedition was to wage petty warfare with the Iroquois, to have skirmishes with small bands of the Indians. What is more reasonable than to assume that Dollard would prepare a careful plan of campaign, and select his battle ground with the greatest care, the more so as he had such a small party at his command? What is more logical than that his choice would fall on this plateau which commanded all travel on the river?

It was not Dollard's plan to intercept the great masses of Iroquois which were gathering for an all-out attack on the young French settlements. He was not prepared for that and was seeking only to have engagements with small parties of the Indians, returning from the winter hunt. When he found himself attacked by the overwhelming forces gathering for a massive attack on the infant colony, there is no doubt as to the bravery and determination with which he and his small party, not forgetting the five loyal Indians, resisted the Iroquois, literally to the last man. All contemporary accounts are agreed that the result of Dollard's determined stand, was that the Iroquois postponed their attack on the young colony for another year, giving it another year in which to strengthen its defences. The statement that Dollard's battle was "the salvation of the country" does not appear to be any exaggeration.

Dollier de Casson wrote his History of Montreal in 1672. He was then the Superior of the Sulpician Order in Canada and well qualified to judge the events of his time. Discussing Dollard's battle, Dollier tells us:

> "If ever Canada becomes of any importance, the act ought to be held in esteem for ever by posterity, since by its means Canada was saved on this occasion, not to mention others."

Recognition of the site of the battle would appear to be the first essential in according this event its proper place in Canadian history. We would suggest that consideration might be given to immediate recognition of the plateau on the escarpment. Unfortunately the area is going to be covered under many feet of water when the Carillon Dam is closed early next spring and, in fact, the waters have already begun to rise. There is no time to be lost.

CHILDREN AND TRAFFIC

One may consider the chief cause of accidental death among children to be the motor vehicle. Drive safely yourself, and teach traffic precautions to your children.

Children will be children . . . so it's up to us grown ups.

1. Drive on city streets at moderate speed.
2. Watch carefully for children . . . always.
3. Keep the brakes and tires in condition to stop quickly.
4. Park off the streets if possible. A car parked at the curb may obscure the view of children and be a contributing cause of an accident.
5. Use the utmost care in backing and turning.
6. Instruct your children never to play in the street.
7. Explain to your children the need for looking both ways before starting to cross any street or car track, and always wait until the way is entirely clear before stepping off the curb.
8. Talk about traffic dangers in your home; help them to become safety conscious.

Indian relics in Argenteuil County

Article contributed by Norman Thorburn

The Eskimos and Indians did not originate in America; they came from Asia. The Eskimo language contains words similar to those in the Mongol and Finno-Ugrian languages. The Eskimos of Alaska have relatives in the islands of the Behring Straits, and these island Eskimos have relatives in Siberia.

No ancient bones of Neanderthal man or Peking man have ever been found here, no skeletal remains of Java man (also called Pithecanthropos the man-ape).

Quite recently, two ancient Indian villages were discovered, one in Alaska and the other in Siberia. Both contained similar artifacts 10,000 years old. The first Indian immigrants came to America about 20,000 years ago, before the invention of the bow and arrow. There was no mass immigration, they came in small family groups over a long period of time.

There does not seem to be any similarity between the American-Indian languages and those of Asia. American Indian languages, spoken by tribes in close proximity to each other, are often as different as English and Chinese.

The American Indians are Mongoloids, with many Mongolian characteristics — straight black hair, broad cheek bones; and the Indians have a yellow skin, tanned to a copper hue by outdoor living. They have a stoical nature like the Mongols. . . . Few Japs were taken prisoner in the last war.

When Count Frontenac was Governor of New France, he became very angry towards the Iroquois for torturing Frenchmen at the stake. In reprisal, he ordered two Iroquois prisoners to die in this manner.

A French soldier who was guarding the prisoners, handed them a knife. One of the Iroquois killed himself, but the other, preferring torture to dishonor, handed the knife back to the soldier.

He was taken out and tortured at the stake. The only sounds that came from his lips were insults hurled at his tormentors, and when he knew he was about to enter the spirit world, he softly chanted the Iroquois' Song of Death. . . . Of such tough fibre were the Iroquois.

Sir Winston Churchill is, through his mother, who was once Jenny Jerome of the State of New York, a direct descendant of an Iroquois chief.

On a recent visit to the Carillon Museum, I saw artifacts of the Indians that were found on Argenteuil soil. There were flint chisels, for making stone tools, many tomahawks, stone scrapers, for scraping the flesh off animal hides, and an instrument that looked like a stone meat-cleaver.

Several of these stone tools were found by Mr. Alner Snowden of St. Andrews East. One of the tools found by Mr. Snowden was a stone digging-tool. These Indians must have been Iroquois, because the Algonquins (or Adirondacks as they were called by the American colonists), did not engage in agriculture. The first farmers of Argenteuil were Iroquois squaws, and that stone digging-tool is, to my mind, a most important relic of the past, and should remain in Argenteuil.

This agricultural tool, and several other stone artifacts, were found on the St. Andrews golf course, close to the site of the old seigniorial manor.

There must have been an Indian village here, for the cornfields of the Iroquois were outside of the palisades of their villages.

Now the Indians buried their dead in cemeteries, towards the setting sun from their villages. There is a tradition among Indians that they come from the land of the setting sun.

So we would think that the Indians of St. Andrews East would bury their dead west of the village.

There is a legend in St. Andrews that the Indian cemetery was on the Carillon Hill, near the Protestant cemetery there.

Mr. Wm. Cottingham, M.P.P., told me a few months ago, that while digging sand for mortar at St. Andrews, as a youth, he came upon human bones, but being very busy at the time, he didn't investigate further.

If there are Indian bones on the Carillon Hill, tools will also be found there, for the Iroquois buried the dead man's tools with him.

The village would have a palisade, probably like the village of Hochelaga that Jacques Cartier saw in 1534. This palisade would be in three tiers — the middle tier, the height of two lances or 15 feet. There would be a narrow opening in the stake fence, for people to enter and leave the village. This opening would be surrounded by stone piles so that it could be easily defended.

Let's look at the everyday life of a member of the tribe. We will call him Garangula. Garangula is clothed from head to foot in buckskin. His moccasins, his leggings that extend to his thighs, his jacket and loin cloth, are all of buckskin.

His squaw has moccasins too, and leggings that extend to the knees. Over the rest of her body she has a sleeveless chemise and a mantle.

Garangula and his family lived with a friend (we will call him Castraga) and his family in a lodge or wigwam, 60 feet long by 25 feet wide. There were several rooms and a loft in this abode. The frame of the wigwam was made of poles, lashed together with strips of white cedar bark.

The roof was covered with birch and elm bark, and the sides were covered with skins, and reed and rush mats. Garangula's squaw dug her garden with a digging-tool, a long pointed stone (similar to the one in the Museum), lashed to a stout handle. The squaw grew Indian corn, because corn was the staff of life of the Huron-Iroquois people. The Iroquois grew great quantities of corn, and their enemies always strove to burn their wigwams with the precious store of corn seed.

They boiled corn or roasted it on a spit, over the embers of their fires. When you go to a corn-roast, remember the Indians showed the white man how to do this.

When the corn was hard and ripe in the fall, the Indians gathered it and stored it in the loft of the wigwam. The squaw would take this hard shelled corn to a block of wood with a deep depression gouged out of it. She would then pound the corn into meal. She would make a dough by adding water, and bake it on a greased, flat stone over her fire that was ringed with stones. I wonder if the habitants got their idea for a stone oven outdoors for baking bread, from the Indians?

Garangula's squaw made baskets and sewed clothes with a bone needle. She also grew beans, squash, pumpkins and tobacco in her garden. Did she grow peas? Possibly, for the Virginian Indians grew peas, cucumbers and watermelons when Sir Walter Raleigh explored Virginia. The Iroquois were in communication with the Indian tribes as far south as Virginia. Did the Indians give the French-Canadians the recipe for French-Canadian pea soup? To make soup, Garangula's squaw 500 years ago would take the roots of a spruce tree, split them, and weave a basket that would hold water. She would put water into this basket, and then place white hot stones into it. By taking out the cooled stones and replacing them with hot rocks, she could make soup. Even if she didn't have peas, she could obtain the wild peas or vetch seed that grows all over Argenteuil.

Did she grow potatoes? The Indians ate the roots of plants. The Californian Indians presented "tabah" and "petah" to Sir Francis Drake in 1579. "Tabah" was tobacco "petah" was potatoes. (Note similarity to the French words tabac and patate.)

The Iroquois were in communication with the Sioux. In fact, once in their blood-drenched history, they crossed the Mississippi and were savagely repulsed by their fierce relatives, the Sioux. The Sioux possibly had knowledge of the potato.

The Indians had many herbal remedies for various ailments. One of these was a herb called "golden thread", a bitter root of a plant that grows in mossy places. The French people of the Gatineau district call it "la sawinian", an Algonquin word.

Wampum, made from conch shells, was Indian money. A couple of enterprising New England companies made wampum in great quantity. They were counterfeiters.

It is a lovely night in May. Garangula has taken some ripe cattails down from his loft. He takes a spear also, and he and his friend, Castraga, walk to where their canoe is beached above the rapids on the North River. With two sticks, one of which he whirls by means of a bow in the other, he soon has a fire going in some dry cedar bark.

They light one of the greased cattails and go out on the river, with the blazing cattail lashed to the rear of the canoe. They spear several salmon and trout, and return happy to the wigwam. The French called this "flambeau" or torch fishing, and some of our English-speaking pioneers and their descendants called it "flambeauing" . . . There is an old fishing spear on our farm here.

It is now early spring and Garangula and Castraga set out once more in their canoe, up the North River. They pass the site of Lachute, known in the days of the French regime as "La Grosse Chute", by portaging their canoe through the bush. On this very farm and on the farm of John Drennan, they hunted beaver and other animals. In the old logs buried in the black muck flat in front of our house, beaver chips have been found, although the beavers were killed off here over a century ago. . . . The Indians lost a tomahawk on this farm, and on John Drennan's farm.

There is some discussion, at the present time, of handing over the control and management of the Museum to the government. I fully realize I have no authority to step into this discussion, but I only hope that the pros and cons of this move will be fully debated, and the Argenteuil people fully informed by means of the press, before the priceless paintings, books, objets d'art, relics and Indian artifacts pass out of control of the Argenteuil Historical Society. And I would like to ask that the digging-tool found by Mr. Almer Snowden — the oldest agricultural tool in this county — remain in this county!

Are We Taller Than Our Ancestors?

Yes, we do seem to be taller than our ancestors, at least since the Middle Ages. Of course we do not have records of the height of every person who ever lived, but records have been kept for at least several generations in a number of countries. These records all seem to show that both men and women are growing taller. For instance, the heights of fathers and sons who attended Harvard University were compared. On the average the sons were at least a half inch taller and ten pounds heavier than their fathers. Too, men drafted for service in World War II were, in general, taller and heavier than those drafted for World War I. Going back further in time, suits of armour that have come down to us from the Middle Ages are too small for the average-size man today. In Roman times, however, cavalry soldiers had to be at least 67.5 inches tall, and this is about the average height of men today. So it seems that men were about as tall as they are today in ancient times; were shorter during the Middle Ages and since then have been growing taller again. We still seem to be on the way up.

Why Do I Laugh and Cry?

If a bright light suddenly strikes your eyes, the eyelids close. If your finger touches a hot surface, you instantly draw it away. These are examples of what we call a reflex, or a response to a stimulus. The light and the hot surface are stimuli. The reflexes or responses, are what you do. Laughing and crying are responses also. Something seems funny to you and you respond by doing a number of things all at once. You move many muscles of your face and some of your throat muscles. These movements, taken together, we call laughter.

Crying is a response, too — a response to pain or sadness or some other stimulus. In crying we move many muscles and, in addition, tears come into our eyes. Let us go back now to the happy response of laughter.

Many different kinds of stimuli cause laughter. A sudden surprise may do it, as when you tumble on a skating rink. Seeing a sharp contrast may cause laughter, a very tall and a very short person walking together, for instance. A hat that is new or startling or an old-fashioned hat makes us laugh for the same reason — they are unusual. Some scientists say that we are prone to laugh at the bad luck of others and that clowns in the circus use this truth. By appearing to be falling, losing things and having bad luck generally, they win our laughs. Isn't it true that we laugh at Donald Duck when luck goes against him? Laughter is catching. Most people enjoy laughing in company better than laughing alone. Sometimes, if we laugh very hard, we may begin to cry, for laughter as a response is often near to crying. Man is probably the only laughing creature, though we may once in a while see a dog or a cat that seems to be laughing. Children laugh and cry more easily than grown people. That is because, as we grow up, we learn to control our responses.

Readers are invited to send their own questions to WONDER QUESTIONS, Grolier Society Research Service, 800 Bay St., Suite 104, Toronto 5. The more interesting questions and answers will be published in future columns.

The outdoorsman's perfect transportation is a development of a Canadian who has a plant at Scarborough, Ont., but got his original idea while cutting timber in the deep snows of Alberta. John Gower's Jiger is a tough, cross-country vehicle that can ride over rocks and brush, ice and snow and purr along at 8 miles an hour on water. It goes 30 mph. on land and gets 42 miles to the gallon with a cruising range of 300 miles. The body is of fibre glass. The vehicle will be in production this month.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Cool Animals Pay Profits

Some months ago this column mentioned that when cattle and hogs are shipped from this country to the tropics, the hogs often get along much better than the cattle.

Hogs not only hunt shade but use any excuse to start a wallow, and cool themselves in a way that cattle cannot ordinarily do. Cattle, instead, may spend a good deal of the time in open fields under a blazing sun, and then do a lot of panting.

Dr. Bohstedt

Cattle respond to good comfort management. This was shown at the University of California where Hereford steers in open feed lots gained 1.63 pounds daily per head; when getting an artificial breeze from fans they gained 1.85 pounds daily; and when in shade, or under both shade and fans, 2.15 to 2.28 pounds daily per head.

The feed consumed per hundred pounds gain was in keeping with the comfort of the steers, being 928 pounds, 872 pounds, and 790 pounds, respectively, from the least to the most comfortable.

Dairymen even in our northern states have found it a good practice to leave cows on pasture all night, and turn them back on pasture for only a couple of hours after the morning milking. Then keep them in the barn which is ventilated decently until the evening milking. This way the cows are at least reasonably cool during the hottest part of the day.

The summer season even in the northern states, especially in the corn belt, can produce tropical temperatures.

In an experiment conducted in one of our southern states, Louisiana, hogs in dry lot gained 1.45 pounds daily; with a sanitary wallow 1.80 pounds; and with an earth wallow 1.85 pounds daily per head. Their feed efficiency was in keeping with their comfort.

It pays to be mindful of the creature comfort of animals.

Question: What is an approved method of parasite control for sheep on pasture?

Answer: Give all ewes a 1-ounce drench of phenothiazine at the beginning and end of the pasture season, and free access at all times to a 1-part phenothiazine, 10-parts trace mineralized salt mixture provided in a covered container.

Questions from readers will be answered in the column or by direct reply. Please send your questions to Dr. Bohstedt, 221 North LaSalle Street, (Rm. 507), Chicago 1, Illinois.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

PERSONS, PLACES AND THINGS

Until a few months ago, the Canada Council was only a string of three words to me. I knew it existed for the purpose of promoting culture and artistic talent among our citizens but beyond that — just who, for instance, was eligible, was unknown to me. Probably thousands as well have wondered, for there are persons in this land who think of things other than the price of cheese and whether it is going to rain tomorrow.

Last spring I wrote of the Canadian Conference of the Arts, a stimulating experience. At that time I saw evidence of the work of artists and craftsmen, writers and municipal architects, whose Council grants are helping them to make a worthwhile contribution to the Canada of tomorrow. But never, until a day or so ago, had I known anyone personally who had either applied for or been granted help from this federal body of selected citizens sitting in judgment as to who and what endeavor is worthy of assistance.

I have also in the past written about Alan Beddoe, designer and chief architect of the two Books of Remembrance in the Peace Tower of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. The other day I received a letter from him regarding three books he had lent me on Heraldry. In it he remarked about a most interesting trip he had just made to England, France and Switzerland. He is writing a book on the "legal and constitutional aspects of Heraldry in Canada" and, while abroad, visited Dr. Anthony B. Wagner, new Garter King of Arms and author of "Heraldry in England" and "Records and Collections of the College of Arms".

Alan Beddoe is one of those persons who abhor imitation or sham of any kind. When I last interviewed him some two years ago he was alarmed at the sale of coats of arms to gullible citizens by a company scattering arty rampant lions on a shield, inscribed with a person's name for a price, among families and towns in the eastern provinces. Heraldry is something almost sacred to this well-informed individual, and I am delighted that the Canada Council has recognized his vast knowledge, artistic and creative ability by awarding him a grant enabling him to complete his book.

Colossus at Work

I shall never cease to be amazed at man's ingenuity and mechanical genius. We in this part of Canada are witnessing the construction of the CN's new hump yard for assembling and despatching freight. I, in my wildest state of imaginative contemplation, could never have dreamed how farm fields, highways and homes could be ploughed up, detoured and moved, hardly distracting or disturbing traffic or our mode of living. Almost the entire contour of the land has been shifted in a swath that cuts across two townships, making way for overpass and underpass, across valleys and underneath a main traffic artery. The great thunder of the diesels driving earth movers, the growl of trucks tumbling ready-made cement, the smell of sweat from hundreds of laboring bodies mixes with fuel oil fumes and dust from the good brown earth. The pattern of an area is changing from rural simplicity to the pulsating throb of an industrial era. What a wonderful time to be living and to witness such gigantic undertakings, designed to implement the rapid transit of goods and chattels to all parts of our land.

Passengers Wanted

Probably because I am busy at my typewriter during the program time of "Court of Opinion", a CBC production, I missed a recent broadcast when a panel of so-called experts discussed "railroads".

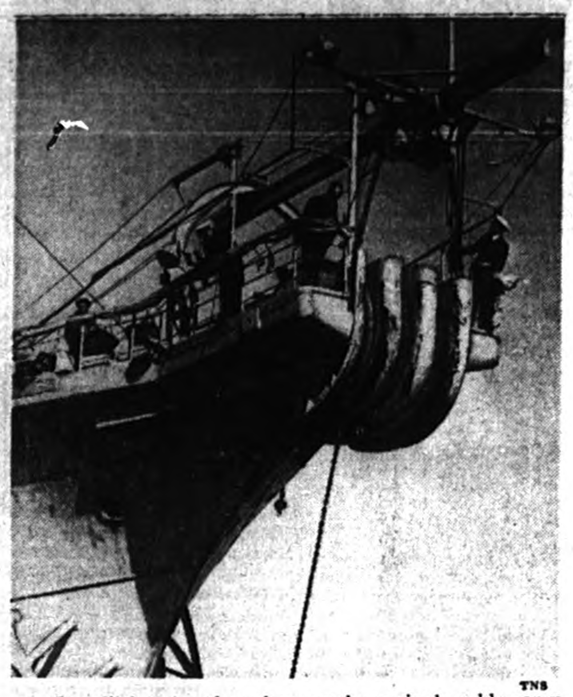

A friend informs me that the conclusion these experts came to, is that the railroads do not want passengers and are doing little or nothing about encouraging this type of traffic over their lines.

Now this may be true in other countries, I am not sufficiently informed to argue the point. But I do know that Canada's publicly-owned railway has taken very seriously the necessity of wooing passengers back to the rails.

Modernizing equipment and services has been a major project for the CN. Promotion is another. Naturally there are weaknesses which can only be ironed out through major research. This is going on constantly in the various departments which are concerned with passenger traffic.

Though for some years the CN has organized tours, recently this increasingly popular type of vacation has been given greater attention by the passenger and public relations departments. I have booked one of these summer tours to the Maritimes and it will be fun in future columns to relate my adventures on an organized CN Maple Leaf Tour.

And now I shall pack my bag, put the plants in the bath tub for the neighbor youngsters to water during my absence, caution the gardener about cutting the grass too short at this season, tuck my traveler's cheques in my handbag, close the door on my troubles and board the train for the Maritimes. It's my happy hunting season for copy to be typed into more words for this column.

In a little more than three weeks, a single cable carrying circuits for 60 two-way telephone conversations will stretch across the Atlantic Ocean from Hampden, Nfld., to Oban, Scotland. The $24 million Canadian Transatlantic Telephone cable will eventually stretch around the Commonwealth. Two U-K ships are laying the marine cable. Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Wise women watching family budgets know that some corner-cutting can lead to false — and foolish — economy. How many of these fruitless attempts at cutting car costs do you recognize?

1. Trying to beat the meter. Drive around town for half an hour hunting for a free space or meter with time left on it. Saved: a few cents parking charge. Lost: time, fuel, and the wear and tear of stop-go driving (far worse than highway cruising).

2. Drive miles to get cut-rate gasoline. Saved: a few cents. Lost: the fuel used for the trip, plus possible harm from fuel of unknown quality, plus the service and car-check you get from a dealer with a well-known brand.

3. Stretch the period between oil changes and lubrication. Saved: a few dollars a year. Lost: performance, power and efficiency, plus possible permanent damage to the engine.

Your modern car is a beautifully made machine, as well as a big investment. You hurt it and cheat yourself if you cut corners. Real economy comes with proper care. Any reliable service station operator will be glad to see that your car gets it.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in in its columns.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town. advertising business men."

a big question, these days, concerning Hospital Insurance:

"WHAT ABOUT A PRIVATE ROOM?"

here are some facts and figures for EDDY EVERYBODY

STANDARD WARD ACCOMMODATION

Let's get one thing straight. Hospital Insurance has not been set up for the purpose of paying private room bills; but, more realistically, to supply free, to all, adequate hospital care. And that is precisely what you get in a standard ward, namely a hospital room numbering 5 beds or more. Therefore, if you wish the Provincial Government to foot all of your hospital bills, you must settle for ward accommodation. As at least 40% of all beds in every insured hospital must fall within this category, there should be room for you. But please bear in mind that most hospitals have waiting lists: you might perhaps have to patiently wait your turn.

WHEN ROOMS ARE FREE...

In any event, if there happens to be no vacancy in the standard wards at that time and if the doctor considers that you urgently require admission, the hospital must supply you with a room at no cost to you. But as soon as a vacancy turns up in a standard ward, the hospital is entitled to transfer you — unless you wish to keep your room by starting, then and there, to pay for it. Secondly, when your condition or that of the other patients requires it, you also receive free room accommodation. Your doctor will rule on this. But, there again, you may be moved to a ward bed as soon as you take a turn for the better.

WHEN ROOMS ARE NOT FREE...

Save those two exceptions, room accommodation must be paid for by you — or out of your supplementary insurance policy, if you happen to hold one. At that, the Hospital Insurance Service is of considerable assistance by making possible much lower room rates than those in effect last year.

SEMI-PRIVATE ROOMS

If you feel you must have a room, why not select a semi-private one? On the island of Montréal, a room numbering three or four beds will cost you $4 a day, no more; a two-bed room, $5 at the most. Elsewhere in the Province, $4 will pay for a semi-private room of any description.

PRIVATE ROOMS

Selecting a private room is not as easy, and here's why. Every hospital offers several "types" of private rooms — more or less expensive according to facilities supplied, such as running water, toilet, shower, balcony, or any other "special" feature.

As would be expected, such features vary greatly from one room to another and from this hospital to the next. You would therefore do well to ask the hospital, before admission, how much this particular room costs, and why. You are entitled to know!

But it will still boil down to this. On the island of Montréal, a private room costs $8 a day, and up. Elsewhere in the Province, the rate is $7 a day, and up — depending upon the furnishings and "special features" offered.

Indeed, this is much less than what it used to be! Don't forget that you no longer receive bills for the cost of medicines, operating room, regular nursing care, lab tests, X rays, etc. — since these costs are borne by the Hospital Insurance Service.

NEVER FORGET FORM AH-108

Much of this will be plain to see on your copy of "new" Form AH-108, which you must request upon being discharged from the hospital. Note the two amounts shown: the money paid for you by your Provincial Hospital Insurance, and the other amount left for you to pay because of your taking a private or semi-private room. Insist upon receiving this Form: it should clear up a lot of misunderstanding.

AND TO SUM UP...

Here is the whole story in a nutshell. Completely free hospitalization is available to you within standard ward accommodation. But it will be up to you to pay for private or semi-private room accommodation. Even then, such rooms will cost you much less than they did last year and the years before!

New ski club to be formed here; Ayers ski school director appointed

Ross Cole, newly appointed ski school director at Ayers Ski Centre, Carling Lake, has been a well known ski personality in the Laurentians for many years. He began his instructing career in 1957 after obtaining his S.I. (First Professional rating) at the Eastern Professional Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance School. He taught at Jasper-in-Quebec that season and became the assistant director at the Mt. Tore Ski School in Ste. Adele the following season. In 1959 he was seventh in a class of 53 of the finest skiers in North America and obtained his C.S.I. rating (the highest possible) at that school. In the same year he was appointed president of Quebec Division of the Canadian Ski Patrol System. Since then Ross has instructed at Mt. Tremblant and directed his own school at Val Morin, Que.

During his skiing career, Ross has skied in Austria, Switzerland, Sweden, and the finest in North America, so he brings with him a wealth of skiing experience, as well as the highest qualifications.

From his previous school in Val Morin, Ross Cole is bringing two of his top instructors, Bud Tucker of Fabreville, and Daphney Pinhey of Hudson Heights. Bud will be assistant director, as well as managing the new, fully equipped ski shop at the development. Mr. Tucker is national supply officer for the Canadian Ski Patrol System and has been teaching for a number of years, including the "Ski Jays", a club of young girls from which the Canadian Amateur Ski Association gathers talent for our national team. To round out the complement of five instructors, two new local boys, Noel Racine and Leon Tessier, both of Brownsburg, will be taking the professional ski instructors' course this December to obtain their certification.

Ross, Daphney and Bud are also First Aid instructors and examiners of the Canadian Red Cross and will be conducting courses for those interested in becoming members of the Canadian Ski Patrol System for the area. Those who have attained the age of 20 years and are above-average skiers may qualify for the course.

The new ski club, to be called the Ram Ski Club, is being formed as a non-profit organization to create a greater local interest in the world's fastest growing sport. Among the many advantages of belonging to this club would be — organized races for all ages, dry-land ski school, movies, discounts on lessons and at the ski shop, fashion shows, monthly news letters, cloth membership badge, membership card, etc.

For more detailed information about the ski club, or on becoming a member of the patrol, jot your name, address and your interests on a card and send it to — Ross Cole, Director, Ayers Ski School, Box 101, Lachute, or call LE 3-4748.

Local talent displayed in 44 Art exhibits

The sixth annual exhibition of the Argenteuil Art Association is notable, inasmuch as it reflects a steady and, in some cases, remarkable uptrend in the quality of its members' works. This was one of the Association's first long-term objectives, and its fulfilment is gratifying to the directors. . . . This observation was voiced by Mr. Allen G. Talbot, ex-president, who declared the exhibition open to the public last Saturday afternoon at the municipal hall in St. Andrews East.

Mr. Talbot — introduced by one of the newer but nevertheless active officers, Mr. Jean Laforest — briefly looked back upon the origin of the Association, and mentioned other desirable objectives not yet attained — specifically the acquiring of premises for housing of a permanent collection and as a centre for the Art Association's activities. Mr. Talbot valued highly the adhesive impetus of sketching-classes, and regretted the fact that Mrs. Vivian Walker's groups had not been resumed this past season.

There are 44 exhibits in the present show, mostly the work of amateurs — which in itself is a creditable indication: no non-member Montreal professionals have contributed this year, yet good quality and variety have been maintained. The variety ranges from water colors to oils in conventional and abstract forms, and includes also two engraved linoleum plaques. There are new exhibitors this year, and others who have contributed works consistently since the Association started.

This year's president, Mrs. L. T. Porter, was regrettably absent. Mr. Talbot welcomed the visitors and announced the exhibition will be open daily from 2 to 5.30 p.m. until next Sunday. The public are cordially invited.

Lady (Lib.) M.P. heard as speaker at Rotary Club

At the September 22 meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, a large turnout of Rotarians and their wives were present to meet and hear the guest speaker for the evening — Miss Judy La Marsh, the Liberal M.P. for the Niagara riding. Miss La Marsh is head of the Niagara Falls law firm of La Marsh & La Marsh, founded by her father the late W. C. La Marsh. She is a past vice-president of the Ontario Liberal Association, a director of the Canadian Club of the Niagara Frontier, and vice-president of the Ontario Association of Rural-Urban Municipalities.

Miss Judy La Marsh, M.P. for Niagara constituency

Among her "firsts" are — she was the first woman solicitor for a municipality; the only woman delegate to the first conference of N.A.T.O. Young Political Leaders held in Paris, 1958; and first woman member of the Canadian Legion's Stamford Branch.

She is presently a member of the Canadian Bar Association, Niagara Falls Bar Association, Women's Law Association of Ontario, Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, Ontario Municipal Association, Planning Association of Canada, and the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

Miss La Marsh spoke about N.A.T.O., the work it is doing for Canada and the world, and N.A.T.O.'s achievements in the past. She also referred to the present touchy world situation and the major role that N.A.T.O. is playing. Although (as she remarked) it was not a very pleasant topic to speak about, her talk was very informative, most interesting, and enjoyed by all present.

160 Employees out on strike, pickets posted at plant gates

One hundred and sixty employees of Dominion Ayers Wood Products Ltd. have been on strike since last Friday morning, following a vote taken at a meeting of the Union local Wednesday evening. A secret ballot declared 95 per cent of the voters in favor of declaring a strike. Scutineers for this voting were Emmanuel Carrière, Union officer at Lachute Lumber Co., and Gaetan Proulx, president of the Union at the Ayers plant.

Negotiations

Local 3263 of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America have been recognized bargaining medium here since October 4, 1960, and have been in negotiation with Dominion Ayers Wood Products for the past eight months. Points of difference discussed at two arbitration meetings between authorized representatives of the Union and the Company, involve the following factors:

Closed Shop. — The Union demands that all employees be members of the organization and dues deducted from their pay.

Working Hours. — Demand for reduction of hours, from 50 to 45 a week.

Overtime. — Pay at the rate of time-and-a-half for hours in excess of regular work day.

Statutory Holidays. — Six paid statutory holidays a year, an increase of two days.

Vacations. — One week's vacation with pay for all employees with service from one year to five years; two weeks for employees of five to 10 years; three weeks for employees of 15 years or more.

Rates of Pay. — Increase of 15 cents an hour, plus privilege clauses not included in contract.

Health, Safety. — Demands for better sanitary and welfare conditions for employees.

According to Union spokesmen, the main point of difference is the demand for higher hourly rates. Agreement has been reached on most other differences. Negotiations are now suspended.

Representing the Company in these deliberations are — Eugène Lacasse and Aimé Campeau, of the Association of Professional Industrialists; W. H. Smith, J. A. Hayman and Gustave Joannette, officers of Dominion Ayers Wood Products.

Representing the Union are — Leopold Lavoie, technical advisor; Marcel Raymond, councillor of the provincial Union; Lucien Giroux, provincial organizer; Richard Ranger, Mlle Nicole Ouimet, Paul Raymond and Claude Lavoie, employees.

Pickets Posted

Pickets have been continuing in front of the Company gates on Hamford Street since last Friday. The Union has organized a recreation committee and a welfare committee for the employees on strike. The strikers have been warned by their officers to maintain order, and to avoid trouble or violence at all times. The strike is held as strictly legal, and the organizers express their intention that it shall be maintained in an orderly manner.

Argent'l supporters at U.N. party convention

A number of citizens from various sections of this county journeyed to Quebec as delegates to attend the convention of the National Union Party. This convention was held for the purpose of choosing a new leader of the party, and to discuss a program. It officially opened on Thursday, September 21, when delegates from every county in the province gathered to register. Friday was devoted almost entirely to the discussion of various matters such as agriculture and colonization, labor questions, constitution matters, municipal affairs, roads, natural resources, education, health and social measures. On Saturday morning, reports of the various committees were presented. During the afternoon the six candidates for leadership of the party each addressed the thousands of people packed in the Coliseum. While speculation was rife as to which candidate would win, it was generally conceded that the chief contenders were Daniel Johnson and Jean J. Bertrand. Each received a tumultuous ovation, assisted by five or six bands located in various sections of the Coliseum. Voting began at 7.30 p.m., and at about 10 p.m. it was announced that Daniel Johnson was the new leader of the National Union Party.

Those delegates attending the convention from Lachute were — Mr. and Mrs. Gaetan Leclair, Omer Tessier, Guy Lafortune, Donald MacRae, Jr., Rene Matte, Francois Charlebois, Romain Beaulne, Dr. J. P. Dorion, Linton Armstrong, R. Campeau and L. Ducharme.

Those from other parts of the county were — Marcel Godin, of St. Adolphe de Howard; Raymond Meilleur and James Voce, of Morin Heights; Mrs. Mandly Chisholm, of Lost River; Ulric Charland, of Laurel; and Sylvio Modérée, from St. Andrews East. Mr. C. E. Dorris, of Lachute, was obliged to cancel his trip at the last minute, due to illness in the family.

Mr. W. M. Cottingham, M.P.P., was in Quebec during the week, and welcomed all local delegates at his apartment.

To resume work on new Regional Hospital building

There are indications work will be resumed shortly on the Argenteuil Regional Hospital (if it has not already begun) — judging by a request addressed to the Lachute Council from the Ayersville Village Corporation.

The request, instigated by the engineers in charge of construction, asks for a connection with the Lachute water main in order to boost the pressure. It seems the pressure is inadequate — only 7 lbs. — whereas it would be 24 lbs. if taken from the main directly opposite the hospital, at the hydrant facing the Masonic Hall.

(It is learned the pressure is required in connection with heating of the building, since the interior plastering will be proceeded with this winter.)

Actually, this low pressure is only a temporary difficulty, since the completion of Lachute's filtration plant within a few months' time will increase the pressure considerably. It was therefore suggested to the four-man delegation from Ayersville (Councillors Doug Simon, Gaston Plamondon and Raymond Champagne, with Jacques Poitras, secretary) that they rent a pump in the meantime, rather than incur several thousand dollars' expense in laying an additional main.

The delegation agreed to relay this suggestion to the hospital engineers.

Building permits and tenders for new snow plow

Building permits and snow-removal equipment were foremost on the agenda of an adjourned Council meeting last Wednesday, with Mayor Fernand Legault, Q.C., presiding.

Request from Jean-Marie Brisson for construction of a sidewalk on the north side of Henry Street, was held over for consideration, while a permit was accorded to Gordon Cruise to install water-main and sewer, at his own expense, 265 feet in the Cruise subdivision.

T. McOuat & Son Ltd. were authorized to establish an island for gas pumps at the Princess and Millway intersection, to conform with the building and zoning by-law.

Dr. J. P. Dorion asked, and secured from his fellow councillors, authorization for a police committee enquiry on damage to the fire truck amounting to $99.40. He had been informed that the door was damaged in backing up to a hydrant, and not in the municipal garage as reported to Council.

Tenders for Snow Plow

Council then considered bids on a truck equipped with snow blade, received from various firms as follows:

Deacon Motor Sales — $14,695 net ($3,400 trade-in allowance for present truck).

Pollock & Graves Motors — $14,200 net ($3,845 allowance).

Desrosiers Automobiles — $19,200 net ($2,936 allowance).

Lachute Farm Equipment — $18,041 net ($3,741 allowance).

Laurion Equipment — $20,000 (no trade-in mentioned).

The tenders were set aside for the procuring of further information.

1,800 Social Service recipients in area; present procedure seen sound, efficient

Following various press articles on possible changes of procedure in Social Service administration, the following information pertaining to the service in this region and elsewhere, is given out for publication:

Under jurisdiction of the Social Service there are 1,800 recipients receiving assistance in this diocese — indirectly benefitting about 8,000 persons, since many of these are heads of families.

In view of the responsibility for distributing such large-scale benefits, The Watchman enquired into the procedure followed by the Social Service to ensure adequate and equitable treatment.

Under present requirements, no moneys are given out by the Service without written authority from the Quebec Government. The applicant applying at the Social Service bureau must fill out various documents and one, notably, authorizing an investigation into his needs. On completion of such investigation, the Social Service officer requires a medical certificate (if health is a factor involved), and written evidence (in the case of a jobless claimant) that the man is ineligible for Unemployment benefits, also that he is available for eventual employment. These are required before any assistance is paid out by the Service.

With these enquiries completed, the documents are forwarded the following week to the Public Assistance department of the Ministry of Social Welfare. The report is dealt with by special officers of the department, and only then is written authority given. . . . For every case of assistance given by the Social Service, there is a written authority from Quebec.

This explanation will dispel any doubts about responsible management of public funds for Social Service work.

The nature of these cases justifies the wisdom of the Department in entrusting home and household assistance to non-provincial bodies, such as Social Service or municipal welfare agencies. The system eliminates political influence, which could play a part in many instances, and also permits direct and prompt measures for the applicant.

Many cases requiring financial aid involve a personality problem, and if not treated in a personal way, present the risk of creating a chronic and permanent indigent. The rehabilitation phase of charity endeavor effects a long-term saving, in helping indigents to become useful and constructive citizens.

LEGISLATION EXPLAINED AT LIONS CLUB — —

Highway Victims Indemnity Act effective in all phases October 1

Of very timely interest was a talk given by Mr. H. Georges Gonthier at the Lions Club last Tuesday, explaining the new Highway Victims Indemnity Act (Bill 48) adopted by the Quebec Legislature this year and to be wholly in effect next week, October 1.

President Col. E. Emmett chaired the meeting, with about 40 Lions in attendance. The speaker was introduced by Gabriel Valois and thanked by Edward M. Jones — both of whom are chartered insurance brokers, intimately concerned with the new regulations and their application to the public.

Mr. Georges Gonthier is an "administrator, economist, sociologist, consultant on human relations" with many business and educational affiliations. Equally notable, he is a past-president of Quebec Provincial Command, Canadian Legion. He was in Lachute on the present occasion speaking for the All Canada Insurance Federation, which embraces 400 chartered companies.

Salient points in the new Act were emphasized by Mr. Gonthier as follows:

(1) The first part of this Act became effective July 1, and from that date on, (a) Minors, (b) car dealers, or (c) those convicted of a criminal traffic offence cannot own or drive a car, or get a permit or register their car, without filing proof of financial responsibility.

(2) On October 1 the Highway Victims Indemnity Fund comes into effect so that (a) Innocent victims of an accident will receive an indemnity even if the person responsible for the accident cannot pay or cannot be identified;

(b) If one is involved in an accident, as owner or driver, both the parties involved must show to the traffic, provincial or municipal, police proof of financial responsibility, or both the license and the car registration will be lifted. Irrespective of who is at fault — that can be determined later — the ability to compensate financially must be supplied when called for, by drivers, owners, victims or authors of accidents.

(The minimum amounts have been set at — $10,000 for one victim; $20,000 for all victims of claims of more than $100; $5,000 for damages to property (less $250 deductible).

(3) The Act lays certain conditions for the return of both the drivers' and owners' licenses or permits and car registration if either or both have failed to produce a certificate of financial responsibility when requested, at the time of an accident.

If the party at fault cannot pay the indemnity set by the court, then both his drivers' license and his car registration are withdrawn until he can reimburse the Indemnity Fund of all indemnity, court

Arg. Historical Society represented at Quebec Museums' workshop

Representatives of the Historical Society of Argenteuil County were among those attending the first workshop training session of the Province of Quebec Museums Association, which was held at the Musée de Vaudreuil-Soulanges on Saturday, September 23. About 30 persons attended, representing 10 museum organizations. They were welcomed by the president of the P.Q.M.A., Mrs. George McGibbon, of Dalesville, who expressed the appreciation of the Society to the Musée de Vaudreuil-Soulanges for their hospitality to the workshop group. The visitors were also welcomed by the mayor of the municipality, Mr. Dunberry, and the parish priest, Canon Jeannotte, both of whom attended a part of the sessions.

In her opening remarks, Mrs. McGibbon stated that the "primary purpose of the P.Q.M.A. was to help especially the small museums, to learn to better display what they had in their collections," and the workshop was organized for this purpose. The convener of the workshop was Mrs. Alice Turnham, director of McGill University Museums, who outlined the program for the day's work and introduced the speakers. The sessions were conducted on a bilingual basis, with notes being in both languages.

The museums represented at the workshop were — Musée de Vaudreuil-Soulanges, McGill University Museums, Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, Suffolk Museum of Donnybrook, Long Island, Argenteuil County Historical Society, Lachine Historical Society, Lake of Two Mountains Historical Society, Ecole des Beaux Arts, Canadian Handicrafts Guild, Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

The morning session was devoted to a discussion of the methods of classification and registration of museum objects. This discussion was led by Mr. James S. Gooding, Museum Advisor of the Dept. of Travel and Publicity of the Ontario Government, who was "borrowed" from Ontario for the occasion. This discussion proved very interesting.

Quebec passes plans for filtration plant; Council calls tenders

Another step in the slow progress of the filtration plant is marked by the approval of plans just granted by the Quebec Health Department. This approval was relayed by Messrs. Laliberté and Lorrain from the firm of consulting engineers — Lorrain, Tourigny, Dubuc, Gerin-Lajoie & Laliberté — appearing before Town Council last week. The plans now require only the official signature of the minister of health, the Hon. Alphonse Couturier.

Next step in the complex procedure is to call for construction tenders. These are to be in the hands of the committee by 5.30 p.m., October 11, when the entire Council, together with the engineers, will give them full study.

The construction job consists of the filtration plant proper; building of an intake conduit; erection of a dam; construction of a steel-wire fence around the site; cleaning of the dam pond-site; tidying, terracing and seeding of grounds around the area.

District plowman in world contest

Six-time winner of plowing contests in Two Mountains County and Canadian champion at Macdonald College in 1960, Albert Raymond of St. Benoit carries Canada's hopes to Orignon, near Paris, France, where the world championships are being held on September 30 and October 1. Mr. Raymond has chosen the Ford-son Power Major for his performance in France. He expects to return to Canada on October 7.

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The opening of the duck season certainly brings out the factors of good sportsmanship. As you all know, there are more and more hunters every year. It is a sad state of affairs when a hunter erects a blind in his spare time during the weeks before the opening, and then finds out someone else has taken over. I know of two cases where this happened, and the offenders were not out-of-towners but locals. In one case the owner of the blind did not get any shooting from his at all.

Another case worth telling about is the group on the Ottawa River who had been up this way and stayed all night. Naturally they were cold, so they sampled some of the liquid fire; before it was all sampled they were all asleep, and stayed that way until well on into the morning. Not a shot was fired by them for the early flights. It could be they had sampled some of this rot-gut the Indians drink in Labrador, alcohol and wine. This mixture can produce the most wonderful headaches; and as for shooting off a rifle or shotgun, man, your head will drop off! Great for the nerves.

The bags of ducks that I managed to see were not too good. Only one group had any real shooting, and where this was, I could not find out. I guess it will remain a secret spot until it runs out of ducks. Our friend George Jackson was out early, but as yet I have not heard his score.

Fishing continues to improve, and we had better make the most of it for trout. One very good catch I heard of made the fishermen happy — four good Reds of about 2 to 3 lbs, and one Grey of 5 lbs.

Around Lake Sir John the perch have been hitting, along with some fair bass. The only drawback is the bass are full of parasites. Even the perch have these, though not in the quantity of the other fish. This condition seems to be common to all the coarse fish in the area, and could be because of their prolific number. I don't know too much about the Trout having parasites; I have not been informed of any. However, it could hit them. The fisherman is not responsible for this condition. Birds are very much to blame. Prominent among the offenders are the kingfisher and the loon.

Birds are starting to flock up, and when you start to see the Swallows hanging on the wires, then you know winter is not too far away. The Jays are coming back from up North. Chickadees are also around in numbers. The Snow Birds and the rest of the winter dwellers will soon be with us. I have noticed this year has been very good for the Greater Yellow Legs and the Plover. These are sometimes mistaken for Snipe; they do resemble them in a way, but the size alone should differentiate.

Also for the first time this year I saw an American Bittern. We have some cattails right outside the windows in the river, and I was lucky enough to spot this specimen last Sunday morning. These birds are not easy to discern; they seem to have the habit of crouching down, and they also hide in brush or weeds. Much smaller than most of the Heron family, they are great birds to watch.

Hawks are around in great profusion, and by the looks of it, there are more right now than all summer. I've mentioned the Ospreys before; these are still "jetting" down into the water after the fish. Where they have been nesting I haven't found out.

A couple of fishermen came to the house Sunday night with a fish they had caught in the Ottawa, across from the mouth of the North River. Messrs. Leishman and Dorion were mystified as to what kind of fish they had caught. To tell the truth when I first saw it I thought it was a Ling, until I noted the head, which was too small for a Ling. However, one of our good friends was up to bid us goodbye before he returned to college — Don Humphries, studying Zoology at Queen's — and he saved me looking through the Fisherman's Encyclopedia. It was Bowfin, according to Don; and it sure was. According to Mr. Dorion he thought for a time it was a Dore, but from the fight this Fin gave, he knew it was something special. This Fin was about 2 lbs, and nasty-looking. It was a drab olive color, with very tough scales. The dorsal fin does not stop in the middle of the backbone, but runs right down to the tail. The tail is not cut the way we know the fish tail, but instead is perfectly round. From the Encyclopedia they are very vicious and will attack anything that swims, floats or flies, if it comes within reach. Not too many of them are around, though they are found in the continent of North America at different times. . . .

Now this is the wonderful part of the history of this fish; it is the last living survivor of a group of fishes that were abundant in the past. Now found only in fresh waters from Vermont to Florida, and the Great Lakes to Texas, the Bowfish can more than hold its own; with very large and powerful jaws, they attack fish much bigger than themselves, and any birds that may happen along. They reach a weight of 10 lbs. During the breeding season the males change color in the pectoral and pelvic fins. These turn a dark green; also the male has a large black spot on the end of his body that runs into the tail.

This species also has a prehistoric lung that allows it to live in the most polluted water — able to clean the impurities out and allow the good air to pass into the body. The gills are very small and thought to help them in breathing this foul water. They can also gulp air from the surface of the water, and I believe there are only a couple of fish than can do this. . . . Not good eating, they are certainly a curiosity in the fish world.

We have all been thinking the winter was with us. . . . But the wife spotted a couple of hummingbirds around the cedars this afternoon so I guess we will be having warm weather yet. Rather strange.

A lady was talking to me in one of the local stores Friday evening, telling about some wild canaries that have been helping to enliven the summer days. They are still here, and have become very tame. You know it is a wonderful thing when you can make friends with wild creatures and have them trust you. A little kindness and trust goes a long way in anything — and this applies to wild animals much more so.

I know there will not be much attention paid to this — but maybe someone will give it a few seconds' thought. . . .

I have been told on numerous occasions of fishermen poaching on certain properties. I don't know just what they will think of this but here it is. When a certain area of lands or lakes is posted, then it is done for a purpose. The protection of that property is the only reason, and we are pretty stupid not to see the point. There certainly is no prowess in sneaking onto property; and all protection of said property fails. A certain party that I know has been doing this and thinks it smart.

I know we don't like to see all this posting, but we have no one else to blame but ourselves.

Partridge are numerous in the area, and it looks like one of those better years for this breed. All the upland shooting seems to be very good. Doves are around in nice flocks, and for the shooter that just wants to bang away, there are always the crows. A few woodcock are also in the area; these birds haven't been in the district for some time in such numbers. I haven't seen the Pheasants for the last couple of days, and don't imagine I will, until the hunting season is over. As soon as the duck shooters got busy on the North River, they would just fold up. The only way you might get a crack at these birds is with a dog, and even then it will be improbable.

Within the past couple of weeks there has been a lot of comment on the duck situation around the Island of Montreal. There is a sanctuary at Ville LaSalle running across to Laprairie basin. Ducks have been seen in this area very thin and in poor condition. After a lot of hard work by different associations, they have come up with the cause. Some form of insecticide is being used that is hard on the ducks, and will kill them in time. . . . As we all know, these sprays have been put on the market for commercial gain, but with no thought of what they will do to our wildlife.

HELPING HOBOS

Historically, hitchhiking has been an active practice by hobos, bums and drifters. . . . Those of us who encourage the begging of hitchhikers by giving them rides in reality are fostering a false charity. They are depriving the individual of meeting his own responsibilities and obligations. . . . We are putting the stamp of approval and respectability on a growing group of white-collar mendicants.

Urge timber land clearing up-river from Grenville, in path of flooding

Up-river communities to be affected by flooding of the Ottawa River on completion of the Carillon project, are agitating for precautionary clearing of an area west of Grenville — as indicated in this Montreal Gazette article by Al Palmer.

A dismal swamp stretching the 60 miles from Grenville to Hull is envisioned by communities on the north shore of the Ottawa River, unless Hydro - Quebec removes growing timber stands before completion of the Carillon Dam and subsequent flooding of the area.

Frank H. Knights, Mayor of Calumet Village and spokesman for the 13 communities, said the flooding area next spring will partly submerge thousands of acres of forest.

"This derelict and dead forest would remain for over 30 years, gradually rotting into the river, where the wood would decay. An oxygen deficiency would result in the water, adding to the problem of water pollution."

Mr. Knights said that Hydro-Quebec has intimated it is not its intention to cut and remove timber west of the Grenville-Hawkesbury bridge.

Rene Gauthier, project manager of the dam, told The Gazette that "700 acres had been contracted to be cleared and is almost cut in the area from the dam site to Grenville.

The 13 communities involved have written Jean-Claude Lessard, president of the provincially-owned utility, requesting that similar action be taken west of that location.

The communities, in addition to Calumet, are: Grenville, Fassett, Montebello, Papineauville, Buckingham, Notre Dame du Bon Secours, Ste. Angelique, Lochaber West and Lochaber and Gore.

The Seigniory Club at Montebello is also represented.

The Calumet mayor said work on clearing the timber would have to start immediately.

"Thousands of cords of pulpwood, maple and elm is involved. If the wood was salvaged after the flooding it would have to be cut in winter on the ice and stumps would remain protruding above water level. After two seasons the wood would be unacceptable either as pulpwood or sawlogs."

He added that there is considerable demand for wood resources by pulp and saw mills in the area and arrangements should be made to harvest the affected trees while this can be done with relative ease.

"If this timber is not salvaged," he said, "it will create a flagrant waste of raw material not to mention an eyesore to the public in an area which will be in demand for its potential recreational value."

Success story

(Geneva, July 6, 1961 — The largest emergency operation ever undertaken by the Red Cross has been concluded. Of the 10,466 victims of paralysis in Morocco, all but 340 have been rehabilitated. These will be treated by local medical authorities.)

Young Canadians in Red Cross can be justly proud of the above press clipping. Their efforts brought relief to those who suffered paralysis from cooking oil that became poisoned with aircraft oil. The Junior Red Cross sent a team of physiotherapists to Morocco to work together with teams from other parts of the world. Their mission was successful. The Canadian Junior Red Cross can be proud of its achievement.

Arg. Historical Society represented at Quebec Museums Assocn. workshop

Mr. Gooding emphasized that a museum is a custodian for the material in its possession, and that good records are an essential part of a good museum operation. It is also important for a museum to be clear as to the legal title to objects in its collection.

The afternoon session was led by Mrs. Nancy J. Dunbar, curator of exhibits for McGill University Museums, who said that the basis for good museum display was the "love for the story behind your material, and the desire to tell it". It was also necessary to have a love for research; it was necessary to establish the facts first, and then set out to interpret them. The problem was, "to communicate your story by means of your display". Mrs. Dunbar commented on some of the museums she had visited in the area recently, many of whom had fine buildings, and she suggested that if the building had an historical heritage, that should be covered in the display. Many people nowadays are interested in historical architecture.

Mrs. Dunbar also noted that sentimental associations are quite dangerous if they interfere with the telling of the story behind the material — you have to decide what story you want to tell, and then follow it through. Most of the museums she had visited did not seem to have any real organization in the sense of telling an historical story; they had fine collections of material but often they did not seem to tell a story. Mrs. Dunbar also emphasized that history has a contemporary as well as ancient aspect, and that we should give thought to preserving the things around us that are slipping away day by day.

Representatives of the various museum organizations then discussed their respective methods and problems, and some of their aims and objectives. The representatives of the Bell Telephone Museum mentioned that everything in their museum had been put into working order, and was operational according to its original condition.

Speaking for the Argenteuil Museum in the Carillon Barracks, the president of the Argenteuil Historical Society, Mr. A. F. Hanly, said that no great changes were planned. Dr. Maud Abbott and her committee had worked out a plan 30 years ago which he felt was still suitable, and the Abbott Room, he thought, was one of the most popular in the museum. His program was to improve a little bit the things they had, but not to make any big changes.

Visit to Historic Church

During an interval in the training sessions the party paid a visit to the parish church, under the guidance of Canon Jeannotte, who explained the history of the building. It was constructed during the years 1783-89 and is called St. Michel de Vaudreuil in memory of Michel Alain Chartier de Lotbinière, Marquis de Lotbinière and Seignieur de Vaudreuil, Rigaud and Lotbinière, who was speaker of the House of Assembly at Quebec in 1793 and died in 1821. The Seigneurial Chapel attracted much attention, with its memorial tablets to the de Lotbinière and Harwood families and its seigneurial pew bearing the de Lotbinière coat of arms and still used by descendents of the family. The fine wood carving and decoration of the church, its paintings and organ were also admired.

After supper outdoors on the lawn of the Musée, there was a showing of colored slides illustrating museum installations, after which the gathering dispersed with many expressions of appreciation and thanks to the curator of the Musée, Mr. Lucien Theriault and Mme Theriault, who were the charming host and hostess for this successful occasion. Their generous hospitality and constant attention to the pleasure of their guests made this gathering a most pleasant as well as instructive one.

Little deeds are big deeds

Little things mean a lot; little things like a friendly visit to an elderly couple down the street or help for a blind man crossing the road. To most people on the receiving end of these favors, it is a big thing, not a little one. It tells them that others still care and take the time to show it.

Young Canadians in Red Cross are performing countless deeds of kindness for those who need help in some way. The Junior Red Cross offers a helping hand in the form of material assistance or in the form of a boost to an individual's morale. This is Junior Red Cross Week in Canada, a time for recognizing the deeds of kindness and understanding given by the young people of our community.

G. P. Porter takes bride in ceremony at Lindsay, Ont.

Porter-Frost

The marriage of Marjorie Carew, daughter of the late Cecil Gray Frost, and of Mrs. Frost, of Lindsay, Ont., to Mr. George Patrick Porter, son of the late Lawrence Tupper Porter and of Mrs. Porter, of St. Andrews East, Que., took place Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in Cambridge St. United Church, Lindsay, the Rev. Robert K. MacLean officiating. Baskets of mixed autumn flowers arranged with greenery and candles in candelabra were used to decorate the church.

The bride, who was given away by her uncle, the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, was in a gown of pearl white satin and Irish lace with a fitted bodice having a V neckline and bracelet-length sleeves edged with lace, and a bouffant skirt falling into a chapel train caught at the back by two self roses. Her full-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white begonias and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ian McDermaid, of Halifax, N.S., as matron of honor for her cousin, was in a frock of peacock blue satin with a fitted bodice having a scoop neckline and bracelet-length sleeves, and bell-shaped skirt trimmed with tiny bows. She wore a matching hat, and carried a cascade bouquet of white baby chrysanthemums and Baccara roses.

Mr. Tupper Porter, of St. Andrews East, acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. John Wright, of Toronto, and Mr. Frederick Flynn, of Montreal.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Porter left for their wedding trip. Upon their return, they will take up residence in St. Andrews East.

Local student reports on visit to Shakespearian Festival — Canada Council sponsored

Specially contributed by Caroline Binda

For the past three years, the Canada Council has successfully sponsored a group of students on a tour to Stratford, Ont. Students from the Yukon to Newfoundland came to the internationally famous Shakespearian Festival. I was privileged to be awarded the trip for the 1961 season, and I can enthusiastically state that it was great success with all the students.

Stratford is a small city that welcomes the many tourists who come to visit its beautiful gardens and parks, museums, exhibits and theatres. It provided an excellent background for the best productions of Shakespeare in Canada.

The excursion provided culture, intermingled with fun and excitement, for every student. Guided tours had been organized and we visited many interesting places such as the Stratford Festival Exhibition Hall, and the Exhibition of French Arts in Canada. We also took exclusive tours of the Festival Theatre and the National Theatre School. Between guided tours, students were given free time — which I spent in personal sight-seeing along the Avon River and in downtown Stratford. As I have described, the trip was very efficiently organized.

Of course, the highlights of the trip were the Shakespeare productions: "Love's Labour's Lost", an early comedy; "Henry VIII", an historical play; and "Coriolanus", a typical tragedy. I thoroughly enjoyed my first experience of seeing Shakespeare acted on the stage. The group also attended "The Pirates of Penzance", a delightful opera.

The aim of the Canada Council is to promote enjoyment of the arts in Canada. I wish to say that it has done an excellent job in planning and executing the annual students' trip to Stratford.

Duplicate Bridge successful event

The Duplicate Bridge sponsored by the W.A. of the local Association for Retarded Children was held at Lachute Golf and Country Club recently, and proved very successful.

There were 31 tables played, and winners of the Duplicate Bridge match points were —

North and South — Mrs. McIsaac and Mrs. Walsh, of Lachute.

East and West — Mrs. P. Grant and Mrs. W. Freeland, Brownsburg.

The Ways and Means Committee of the W.A. wish to thank all business firms and private individuals who contributed towards making this evening an outstanding event.

Hawaiian theme at Golf Club social function

The Hawaiian Luau at the Lachute Golf and Country Club last Saturday was a night to be remembered. The Polynesian setting, artistically portrayed by the women's decorating committee, was a perfect background for the colorful South Pacific costumes. Mr. Joanis, the chef, is to be congratulated on the Hawaiian dishes arrayed to form a very exotic buffet table. Mr. Henri Groulx, at the organ, played sultry Hawaiian music for dancing. The entertainment was in keeping with the evening theme, and everyone enjoyed the humors of the event. The women members worked hard to put on this gay function, which was different, unusual and something everyone enjoyed.

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

National Immunization Week

DURING THE WEEK of September 24-30, Canada observes its 19th National Immunization Week.

This annual event is designed to call public attention to the fact that there are communicable diseases which may be prevented by immunization. The most outstanding of these are smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough, poliomyelitis — and one should add tetanus and tuberculosis, the latter of which is in a measure preventable by immunization.

Canada's record in connection with these diseases is, on the whole, very good. For example, there has not been a case of smallpox in Canada since 1946. In 1959 there was not a single death from diphtheria in the whole of Canada for the first time in history. The fact is, however, that eternal vigilance is the source of success and that any letting up of this vigilance is proven by the fact that in 1960 there were 53 cases of diphtheria and 7 deaths. Polio, with the advent of the Salk Vaccine, has shown a rapid decline, but nevertheless there were 909 cases in Canada in 1960, with 83 deaths. Whooping cough, still a dangerous disease has been reduced from a maximum of 19,082 in 1943 to 6,014 in 1960.

There has been talk in some quarters of abandoning National Immunization Week because, in some places, there appears to have been reasonable success in the program of immunization. However, all of the figures are against any such decision. It is therefore necessary that an annual campaign be instituted which will bring into the homes of Canada, by radio, television or by the press, some knowledge as to the means of preventing these killing and disabling diseases.

This editorial is produced in order to call to the attention of everybody — including all organizations, churches, schools, service clubs and individuals — that we cannot relax our efforts to fight diseases which could be abolished if we cared enough. In knowledge is power, ignorance is weakness! National Immunization Week is calculated to provide a means whereby we may present a united front in our attack on these preventable diseases.

Tribute to a junior organization

THIS IS ALSO Junior Red Cross Week in Canada — an appropriate time to take a closer look at this nation-wide organization.

The accomplishments of its youthful members in 1960 have established a list of staggering statistics which indicate quite clearly the value of this in-school project. The figures also verify the statement that the Canadian Junior Red Cross is one of the outstanding sections of the Junior Red Cross movement throughout the world.

The membership has enjoyed a phenomenal expansion over the years and boasts 1,390,794 students of elementary and secondary schools as members. They participate in 43,328 classroom branches.

In the Province of Quebec the enrolment was 106,543 members in 3,467 classroom branches of kindergarten to Grade 12. Of these 17,364 were teen-aged members in 886 high school branches.

The prime purpose of the Junior Red Cross is to develop a sense of responsibility in our children through its albums, recordings and art, and the provision of international relief and assistance through self-help projects fosters international understanding among youth everywhere. Both are stepping stones to good citizenship.

All administration costs of the Junior Red Cross are the responsibility of the Canadian Red Cross Society. All funds raised through their various fund-raising projects are devoted entirely to their work for youth in Canada and throughout the world. Their efforts provide clothing, food, medical supplies and materials for self-help projects for less fortunate children far beyond our shores. Here at home their funds are used to assist handicapped and crippled children.

Financial records show that Juniors in Canada contributed $182,095 to their fund to assist crippled and handicapped children and $188,087 to help needy children. In turn, 13,068 children in Canada were assisted at an expenditure of $256,858 and $188,636 was spent to held children in 30 nations. In response to an appeal for World Refugee Year youngsters throughout Canada contributed $156,035. This was used for specific projects for young refugees in many lands.

Those are impressive figures and they are a tribute to our boys and girls who serve proudly as members of the Junior Red Cross. Let us encourage them in their work. Their spirit and interest will pay big dividends in the future.

The nuclear debate

FEW SUBJECTS generate more lively debate in Parliament than the question of whether Canada should acquire nuclear arms for her defence forces.

The latest uproar was touched off when Defence Minister Douglas Harkness told the Commons it is the policy of the government that "our forces should not be required to face a potential enemy with inferior weapons."

The opposition hopped on Mr. Harkness's remarks as an indication that the government is trying to prepare the people of Canada for the moment of decision.

The Liberals insisted this is not the time for Canada to join the nuclear club. And the CCF-New Democratic Party declared flatly that Canada should refuse to accept nuclear warheads for her weapons.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has since said the Progressive Conservative cabinet has not yet reached any decision and that the country would be informed if such a decision were made.

He added that if hopes of reaching a disarmament agreement with the Soviet Union were to disappear, the survival of NATO — including Canada — would depend on having adequate defence to the nuclear threat.

The reasons Canadians feel so strongly about the nuclear question are fairly obvious. Some believe there is no real defence against nuclear attack and that having defensive weapons with nuclear warheads would serve no useful purpose.

Some subscribe to the hope that in an atomic war Canada without nuclear arms might be overlooked as a target.

The attitude of defence chiefs is that as long as we have military forces they should be armed with the most effective weapons available. They argue it would be grossly unfair to send Canadians into any fight unless their equipment could match the enemy's.

When a decision is finally taken, it may not meet with everyone's approval. But it will follow considerable public discussion, which in itself is a healthy state of affairs.

Viewpoints and perspectives

WILFUL DESTRUCTION. — There have been increasing reports of vandalism; windows have been broken, as well as street lamps. This apparently is not the act of children but of youths old enough to know the difference between right and wrong. Just because a youth is allowed to walk the streets late at night with nothing better to do than break windows, just for the kick of it, or to show off to his friends — leaves him with no excuse if apprehended.

— Campbellton (N.B.) Tribune

"MINOR ACCIDENTS". — The good driver realizes there is no such thing as a minor violation. The only difference between a so-called minor violation and a fatal accident usually is a split-second and a lot of luck. Repeated violations are precursors of an accident. A driver who repeatedly violates traffic rules may find the law of averages catches up to him before a traffic officer can get around to correcting him.

"Here's a plan to save us from the hydrogen bomb," said my friend, fumbling in his pocket.

"Ah yes," I said, "I know your kind. You had a plan to organize the world scribbled on the back of an old envelope, but you lost it."

My friend grinned as he produced his notes and looked at the jumble of papers on my desk.

"What's your plan?" I asked.

"Assume that the hydrogen bomb is just another weapon that will kill a lot of people, but leave survivors."

"It's much more than just another weapon," I said. "It can poison whole continents."

"Don't argue with me. I haven't time. All right. We have a high standard of living. Let's put it to work for us. Say the bomb destroys everything within 50 square miles. Then let's get the people out of the big cities. Disperse them across the country. It will cost money, and maybe we'll have to lower our living standard, but we can afford it."

"What are we going to do — live in shacks strung out across the tundra?"

"No, this is more reasonable than you think. Now the Russians don't mean to bomb us. They're just trying to scare the bejabers out of us, and we're trying to scare the bejabers out of them. It's a war of nerves. Every man worries about what's going to happen to the ones he loves. All right, send the family to the house in the country and let the man drive in to work every day. That will cut down his worries, knowing they're safe."

"What about the colossal amount of time a man will waste, commuting between here and Aklavik?"

Nearer than Aklavik, my friend said. "The best hope you can have for a plan like this is that it will never be put to the test by a war. And if it isn't put to the test, what harm is done? Maybe the family has lived for a long time in one end of a converted barn, made some new friends, done some fishing had an adventure. It makes more sense than any other civil defence plan I've ever heard."

"Maybe we should have a bomb shelter stretching from Victoria to St. John's," I said. "The world's first coast-to-coast subway. Better still, dig a shelter from here to China, so that both the Communists and the free-worlders could use it, with a partition in between."

But my friend was beginning to move away, looking defeated.

"I don't want to throw cold water on your idea," I said. "It's a good idea. That's why they will never put it into practice."

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

LADIES AND THE LAW

Women are smartening up. Little by little they are getting a better deal for themselves from our various governments, and from employers. And they are achieving all this without going on the rampage the way their grandmothers did in the days of the suffragettes.

American women are a few years ahead of our Canadian ladies in the battle for a fair deal, but then they have been organized over a longer period. Canada's National Council of Women is well led and becoming more aggressive and persuasive every year. The Canadian Association of Consumers, presided over by some of the brainiest women in the nation, makes a wonderful ally.

The ladies have many worthwhile projects in the field of legislation. One of the projects, of course, is to get reluctant governments to revise the ridiculous inheritance taxes imposed on Canadian widows.

Taxes of all kinds concern women quite seriously. They do most of the shopping, and inevitably high tax rates mean high prices. Women are more practical than men and they know whatever governments spend must be recovered from the people in taxes that eventually boost prices.

The ladies have no easy job winning concessions from politicians. They get a polite hearing; but too often they find that the politeness was just a brushoff. Many politically misinformed have an old-fashioned suspicion that women take very little interest in politics and when the chips are down, will vote the same way their husbands vote.

Women do not give up easily, however. They gradually educate the politicians, through letters direct to Ottawa or to the editorial pages of the newspapers. Each year, before Budget time, they visit the Minister of Finance and other members of the Cabinet. At annual conventions, they pass resolutions and in between times they can muster up some pretty impressive petitions. They appear before Royal Commissions and parliamentary committees, where they are noted for their frank and straightforward talk — talk that sometimes startles politicians who are inclined to beat about the bushes.

Protestant teachers hold prov'l convention next week

The annual convention of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec will be held at the Montreal High School on October 5 and 6. Over 4,000 educators from all parts of Quebec will attend.

The speaker Thursday morning will be the 1960-61 president of the association, Miss Genevieve L. Getty, grade XI teacher at Gault Institute. Miss Getty was a representative of the Canadian Teachers' Federation and of the P.A.P.T. at the 1961 conference of the world Confederation of Organizations of the Teaching Profession, held in New Delhi, India, during August. . . . "Education for Knowledge and Wisdom" will be the subject of Miss Getty's address.

Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principal of Prince of Wales College, P.E.I., and author of a thought-provoking book, "The Politics of Education", will be the keynote speaker at the Thursday evening public meeting, in the high school of Montreal. His subject is "It's Time We Took Education Seriously". Dr. MacKinnon advocates that teachers be given full responsibility for the curriculum of the schools in which they teach, and that 50 per cent of the members of any provincial council of education should be chosen by the teachers' association. He believes that reforms of this nature would result in an amazing improvement in education.

Many guest speakers and members of the profession will take part in sectional meetings, demonstration lessons, panel discussions and workshops.

In a ceremony Thursday evening 16 members of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers will receive the Order of Scholastic Merit, bestowed by the Department of Education upon recipients who have made an outstanding contribution to teaching.

BUSINESS TIP

Keeping the son's picture on your office desk will help you along the ladder to success — especially if it's the boss' son.

FINAL WARNING TO MOTORISTS

Starting Sunday, October 1, several motorists every day will lose their driver's licence and their car's plates.

They will be off the road because they have omitted to obtain protection against the risk of being involved in an accident.

DON'T BE ONE OF THEM!

The HIGHWAY VICTIMS INDEMNITY ACT states that, if you are involved in an accident - - no matter who is at fault, - - you must, on the SPOT, produce evidence of financial responsibility or lose your licence.

Evidence is available either by a card saying you have deposited $25,000 with the Director of the Motor Vehicle Bureau; or by a liability insurance card issued by an insurance company.

Avoid the consequences of the new Act. Make sure that you have one of these cards by Sunday, October 1.

For further details consult any Motor Vehicle Bureau, or your insurance agent, or the Highway Victims Indemnity Fund, Box 9, Station "H", Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivor Patterson, of Montreal, were Sunday guests, with Miss Florence Holmes and Miss Elaine Rhind as week-end guests.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to Mrs. R. T. Holmes, who celebrated a birthday on Saturday.

Miss Alice Davidson spent the greater part of the week visiting friends in Beauharnois.

Guests at the Graham home during the week were Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Kettyle, of Brownsburg, on Monday night, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Wilson, of Lachute, on Friday night.

Miss Annie McDowell, of N.D.G., spent a few days as the guest of her brother, John, at "Glenifer". Their sisters, Janet and Betty, were also week-end guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Rueben Chambers, of Riverdale, Ont., visited Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Chambers over the week-end. Saturday guests were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Blore, of Verdun, Mrs. A. Lighthall, of Lachute, and Mrs. Laura Thompson, of Saskatchewan. Mrs. Thompson will be visiting relatives in this vicinity for some weeks.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning on Wednesday were Mrs. Gordon Brown and daughter, Mrs. Massey, of Hawkesbury, and Mrs. Laurence Gauley, of Grenville.

The Rev. and Mrs. K. Feltham motored to Bishop's College on Saturday to visit their son, Keith, who is in residence there.

Sincere sympathy is extended to Mr. Dennis Swail, also Mr. Ross Swail of Lachute, and other relatives, in the recent passing of their mother.

Miss E. H. Graham, of Verdun, spent the week-end at "Hillside Cottage".

We are pleased to welcome Mr. and Mrs. A. Thom from an extended visit to friends in Ontario, and extend our sincere sympathy to them in the loss of their sister-in-law while visiting at her home.

Mrs. Jan Kaprusiak visited her father, Mr. Andrew Graham, of Monalea Road, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Morrin and children, accompanied by Mr. Earl Bryerton, of Brownsburg, visited friends in Cornwall on Sunday.

Mrs. L. R. McGain, of "Tynwald", spent Thursday and Friday in Montreal, and entertained Mr. and Mrs. A. Hollingworth and children, of N.D.G., at her home over the week-end.

Resident Laid to Rest

Death has again visited this vicinity, Mrs. Otto Call, the former Hannah Weatherdon of Mulgrave, Ont., passed away quite suddenly September 20 at the home of Mr. Fred Graham, where she had occupied the position of housekeeper for many years, even before the passing of Mr. Graham's parents, the late Andrew and Mrs. Andrew Graham, Sr. Prior to their occupation of this residence, it was the home of the late Archibald Graham and his wife Janet, and their 12 children (previously mentioned in regard to another Graham home, in The Watchman some time ago).

In referring to Mrs. Call, the Rev. W. Bridge, in his funeral sermon, spoke of her as a person of kindly deeds done in a quiet way and unknown to many. The funeral service was held in the chapel of the MacKimmie Funeral Home on Saturday, September 23 —many of Mrs. Call's relatives from Ottawa and Montreal, as well as many of Mr. Graham's relatives and neighbors, being in attendance.

Sincere sympathy is extended to her daughter (Jane), Mrs. J. Berryman of Ottawa, and family, as well as to the three brothers and sisters yet remaining of the very large Weatherdon family.

The remains, with beautiful floral tributes, were taken to St. Andrews Cemetery for interment. The pall-bearers were John, Cecil and Melvin Graham, Edward Byrne, Percy Wilson and Grant Beattie.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Wm. MacGillivray, of Rawcliffe, on his 83rd birthday on Monday, September 25.

Mr. MacGillivray is one of the pioneer farmers of this district, and still is very active. He often gives some of his neighbors a "helping hand" as well as doing his own work. Many old-timers will remember him as a thresher-man, in the days before the combine, and he has shown on various occasions, in these later years, that he still hasn't forgotten the knack of "feeding the mill".

St. Andrews East

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Burton and Susan spent the week-end at Brome, Que., with Mrs. Burton's mother, Mrs. MacIntosh.

Mr. and Mrs. Liutec and little daughter, Kathyrn, of Montreal, were Mrs. Gates' guests on Sunday.

It is our hope to have one of Canada's top statesmen as the guest for this special occasion. The final date will be determined very shortly.

As Armistice Day falls on Saturday this year, our parade and supper will both take place on Saturday, November 11. There will be church parade for the Roman Catholics and the Protestants on Sunday, November 12.

In conjunction with the Remembrance Day Service is the annual Poppy campaign. Comrade Vice-President Geo. Kirby will be in charge of this event. With the help of all members, and the generosity of the townspeople, this should be another successful drive.

costs, plus interest, and HE CANNOT DRIVE OR OWN A CAR BEFORE HE HAS MADE A SETTLEMENT.

Application for Indemnity

The Act adds that the victim of a highway accident in which the party at fault is without means, may apply to the fund for the payment of the indemnity set by the court and the Fund will pay up to the limit prescribed.

For those owners or drivers located in areas where the insurance companies have been forced to hold back the protection usually given to motorists, the Act provides for the Assigned Risk Plan, a means by which the Insurance Companies can get better acquainted with the new or unknown driver, and keep a closer record of the bad driver's history. The new or unknown driver will pay the regular premium; that of the bad driver will be graduated according to his record. This Assigned Risk Plan will enable almost every driver or owner of a motor vehicle to be insured.

In essence the Act recognizes the value of human life and of property; places the responsibility of accidents happening on the highways squarely on both drivers and owners, jointly, and provides for financial means to all users of motor vehicles in case of accidents — but it does not force them to have an insurance policy.

These innovations are at no cost to the public, since the Indemnity Fund will be made up of assesments from the various insurance companies — and from the increased revenue from the 450,000 owners and drivers who are not at present insured or could not be insured in the past.

The Act is not a copy of legislation in force in any other parts, but the result of careful studies by a representative Committee of responsible persons. It answers the very special needs of Quebec Province in that field.

Implications of Ownership

The speaker dealt at some length with responsibility of the owner of a car or fleet of vehicles (for every one of which a policy must exist or financial responsibility be established). The owner according to the Act implies anyone who owns a car outright, and any bank, finance company or car dealer who has a lien on, or interest in, a car or vehicle not wholly paid for.

MR. MOTORIST:

On and after October 1st, if you are involved in an accident, REGARDLESS OF FAULT, you must show evidence of financial responsibility or lose your license and car registration.

Financial responsibility may be shown in one of two ways :

1. A certificate of responsibility issued by the Motor Vehicle Bureau.

2. A certificate from your insurance company showing liability insurance coverage.

Don't take chances on losing your privilege of driving.

Home and School meets commissioners; L.H.S. and District matters discussed

Some 65 persons enjoyed a lively and interesting discussion with the Protestant School Board, as the Lachute and District Home and School Association assembled recently to resume its meetings for the coming school year. Many problems were discussed, and questions answered by the Board members, who were guests of the Association for the evening.

After a short business session presided over by Mr. E. Gow, the president for 1961-62, the members of the School Board (Messrs. Jas. McGibbon, R. O. MacLean, L. Duncan, J. Douglas, and Dr. J. C. MacKimmie) were invited to the platform. The chairman, Mr. McGibbon, spoke for the Board, and outlined first the construction work that has been going on at the school. As he mentioned, the enrolment of students increases at the rate of approximately 25 pupils a year, and it keeps outgrowing the size of the school. The first big enlargement of the school, in 1950, had been thought too big, and had called forth some criticism. However, that was outgrown in less than 10 years, and now a new addition has been completed.

It had also become increasingly necessary to replace the original building, and that is the project going on just now; it has been a difficult job, but will be completed after Christmas. Lachute High School will be one of the biggest Protestant schools in the province, outside Montreal. It will contain 31 classrooms, a medical room, guidance office, staff rooms, typing rooms, as well as good play area inside and outside. This last item is important to a school where more than half the students come by bus and spend all noon-hour at school. A new item has also been added in a separate play area for the primary students, which was a very worthy idea.

Mr. McGibbon stated that the School Board spends about $256,000 yearly, half of which is raised in taxes, half in provincial grants. This sum is proportioned out in salaries, school buses and maintenance, operation of the school, and repairs. A new law has come into effect, that all parents of school children will have a vote, not just property owners, in elections for School Board members. Mr. McGibbon hoped that more parents would make it their duty to vote in the next election, and that they would take more interest in the Board itself, by attending meetings, to see how the taxes are raised and spent.

Mr. McGibbon went on to mention the change in the Lachute School District. This came about when the school districts of St. Andrews, Gore, and Dunany were disbanded, and there are now 15 municipal districts included in the District of Lachute — all administered by the Lachute School Board.

Mr. MacLean, as the member in charge of transportation, was called on to answer questions concerning the buses — the most critical one being that of cars passing a stationary bus. This matter has been studied, and Mr. MacLean stated that anyone caught passing a stationary school bus will be fined. This is not a new law, but it will now be strictly enforced. . . . A big headache this year is the overcrowding of school buses, a fact known to the company insuring the buses. At the moment the only alternative is — walking.

Mr. McGibbon was asked about changes in the Education Act in the province, and he outlined a few of the highlights, which included free textbooks, no school fees (except for those outside the school district), and the raising of the school-leaving age to 15.

The question of Trade Schools was raised, and as the possibility of obtaining one for the Lachute District has been discussed a few times at Home and School meetings and elsewhere, it is hoped that the interest will not lag and that a move can be made towards getting one established in this area.

Mr. Gow expressed the gratitude of the members to the school Board for a most entertaining and enlightening evening.

During the business part of the meeting, the members of the Association were pleased to be able to vote $300 instead of $250 for this year's scholarship award, which went to Lloyd Elder. The Association wishes to congratulate this very capable student, and to wish him success in the future.

The next Home and School meeting will be Wednesday, October 11; Mrs. E. Rigby and Mr. Wayne Riddell will be guest speakers. Their topic is a provocative, "Why Music in School", and promises to provide a most interesting program.

Domremy Fund nears deadline; $35,000 donated

In a joint statement, Dr. Paul Riou, general campaign chairman of the Domremy Building Fund, and J. Leon Legault, chairman of the Management Committee, urged all volunteer workers to complete their work at the earliest possible moment.

"While we are delighted with the results to date and are confident that final reports will meet our expectations, we must urge all workers to speed up their reports," said Dr. Riou. "Campaign headquarters at 529 Labelle St., St. Jerome, will remain open until September 30, and later if necessary; but with a view to keeping expenses down to a minimum, we want to close operations as soon as possible. Please help us by getting your reports to your local president, or to headquarters, the very day you read this."

Mr. Legault reported that slightly over $35,000 has been received from 1,650 donors. "With thousands more to be heard from, and with the public's continuing generosity, the campaign will help build a new and better 'Domremy'," added Mr. Legault. "This will mean the rehabilitation of thousands of alcoholics and the rebuilding of countless broken homes with consequent happiness and security to many mothers, wives and children. Please do your just part in supporting this vital cause."

Shown here with her husband, Alan, who is in the personnel department of the same bank, the blue-eyed blonde is manager of a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Toronto. The only other woman to hold such a job is Miss Gladys Marcelus with the same bank in Ottawa. The bank consulted Alan Giles to ask if he minded if his wife was a bank manager.

Quebec subsidy for limestone

Montreal — The Quebec Department of Agriculture has announced a new subsidy for ground agricultural limestone to encourage its use for correction of soil acidity. The Department also has agreed this year to pay the entire cost of shipment by rail or water, and to increase the road transport subsidy from $2 to $2.50 per ton.

The new purchase subsidy amounts to $1 a ton for ground limestone delivered in bulk. For the Western Quebec area, supplies of ground limestone to government specifications are available from Aluminum Company of Canada Ltd. (Alcan), Wakefield, Que. Net price of the product has been reduced by the subsidy from $2.50 to $1.50 a ton.

The Company offers free same-day service for soil analysis to establish the amount of limestone required per acre. For further information, phone Ken Winfield of Alcan (Wakefield 459-2323, or Ottawa CE 2-6011), or nearest Quebec Government agronomist.

'New town' is visualized at Hawkesbury

(Hawkesbury Echo)

The Town of Hawkesbury is a hive of activity these days. To the casual visitor, it might seem that the town is bursting at the seams.

Sections of Main Street are ripped up, houses on the Chenail and in the Philip Street area have been torn down, there's a building spree on in town — and along the banks of the Ottawa River between Hawkesbury and the Carillon power dam, men are at work clearing trees and bush.

All this work is causing a certain amount of disruption in the town, but it will pay off next spring when Hawkesbury will reappear with a new face.

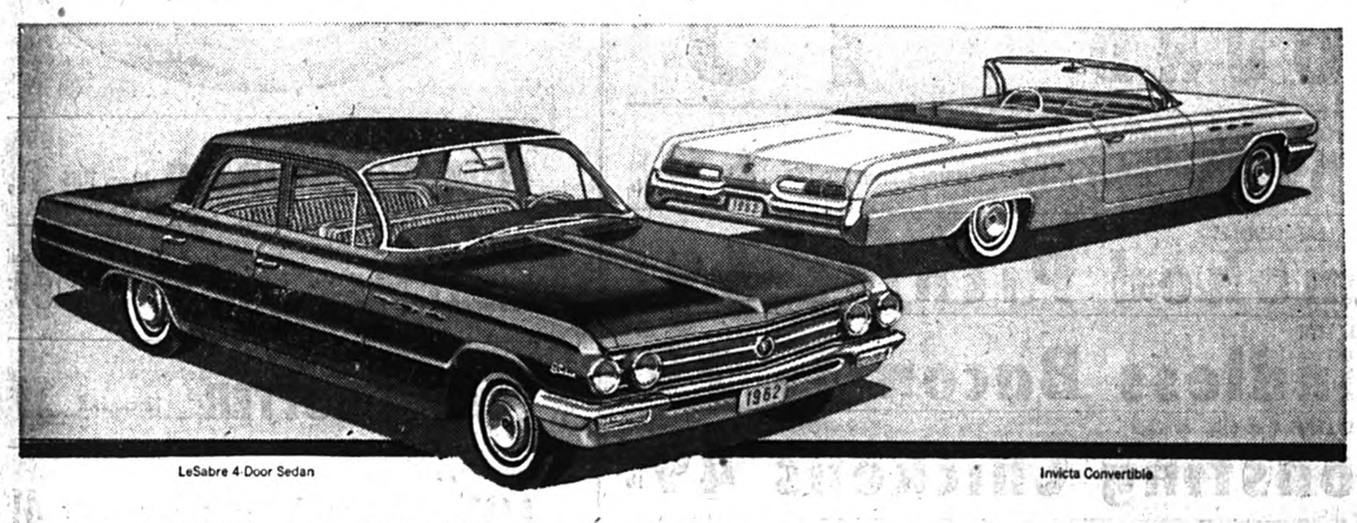

Not only will the town be more attractive and efficient for its citizens, it will also take care of expansion in the years to come.

A side benefit of the present activity is that it will revitalize the tourist industry. With the coming of the lake and the face-lifting of the town, the chances are that Hawkesbury will become a major tourist attraction on the main route between Ottawa and Montreal, over which many tourists today speed by without visiting the town.

When the tumult dies down and the lake appears on the map, the consensus is that a new era of prosperity will dawn for Hawkesbury. . . . It is worth waiting for.

Why do we not Laugh when We Tickle Ourselves?

The laugh that comes when someone tickles us is a reflex action, an action that is automatic and has nothing to do with our will. It is really a cry of distress, begging the person to stop tickling our sensitive skin. When we tickle ourselves, we are in no distress, we are not at the mercy of anyone else, we can stop any time we wish.

Why does a Lump Rise in my Throat when I Cry?

Your throat is a wide tube with walls of muscle. When you swallow, a wave like a ripple in a pool runs downward through these muscles. When you want to cry, your throat muscles contract. They tighten up. Then the wave motion may be reversed, and the ripple runs from below upward. Either this, or the actual tightening up of the muscles themselves may cause the feeling that there is a lump in your throat.

What does the Orchestra Conductor Do with his Stick?

He may be said to collect on the tip of his baton the musical powers of the singers and instrumentalists who have placed themselves under his command. Watch the first raising of the little wand by a good conductor as he is about to launch the performance of some great work. Try to imagine the musical force he is privileged to wield. For the time being every one of those trained musicians is waiting to translate into musical sound his slightest gesture.

The conductor's part, then, is much more than that of beating out the time. The composer sets down the notes to be played or sung. The musicians produce the corresponding musical sounds. The conductor takes these scattered efforts and with them weaves the enthralling story that holds his audience spellbound. Yet there is an important mechanical side to his work. Notice that kettledrum player standing at the back. See how keenly he watches the conductor. He is not playing, but is busy counting the seventy-four bars' rest allotted to him. Now watch the conductor. He gives a quick glance at the player, to be sure he is prepared for his entry. Then the baton gathers in the brass. The excitement is growing. Suddenly the conductor's left hand shoots out and the kettledrums crash in confidently. So the conductor shepherds the members of his flock — showing them, not only when, but how, to play.

PRIMATE'S NOON-HOUR PRAYER FOR ANGLICANS

Winnipeg — "Thy Kingdom Come — in my life and in my home; in our Parish and in the whole Church; in Canada and in all the world. Amen."

This is the noon-hour prayer that the Primate of All Canada, the Most Rev. Howard H. Clark, asks Anglicans across the country to say daily. The prayer is now in two languages, the Cree Indians of St. Thomas' Church, Moose Factory, having recently asked for a translation. They paid to have it printed and made available to their people.

More than 150,000 cards already have been printed and additional runs are contemplated.

Longevity in the Laurentian hills; the personality of pioneer homes

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

We write from the old farm. We wish we might say still — but alas, it is merely again. We finally tore ourselves away on the second Sunday of the month, which as you will recall was one of the two hottest days of a hot summer. We felt as if our lungs would never accustom themselves to the mixture of gas fumes, moisture from the river smelling heavily of sewage, dust particles, etc., that the city dwellers naively think of as oxygen. . . . Now, ten days later, we are back, and the interval might well have been ten weeks, to judge by our feelings; but Nature seems unaware of our distress. The flowers, all except the phlox, are gayer than ever, the trees little changed in color, and the thermometer registered 76 degrees at noon. We plan to sleep on the porch tonight. It has been a queer season, all mixed up.

We were thinking today of the innumerable times we have staggered into Sunnyacres, our souls empty, our bodies exhausted, only to find ourselves renewed after only a few hours. We wondered what is the secret of these hills. Our daughter says it is the height and the purity of the air. Certainly those are factors, but for me I think it is the absence of noise, and of people. I know there are those who say that the incessant noise of the city does not register at all, that they just don't hear it consciously. But the ears must receive this perpetual bombardment, and there must be some reaction on the body. Tiring, I think. . . . As for people, I like them, but in small groups, and not talking! It must be the Quaker grandmother!

A gentleman of our acquaintance who, life ourselves, spends much of his life in these highlands, was remarking recently on the long life that most natives up here enjoy. We had never given the matter any thought, but he is right. We can think, as we write, of six people, natives of these parts, who are ninety or over, and there are many in their seventies and eighties. Yes, the air must have something to do with it, and possibly the absence of stress. We have just read bits of Dr. Selye's book on Stress. Most of his stress is urban; there must have been some stress about farming fifty years ago, and certainly plenty of it in pioneer days, yet the incidence of heart disease was far less. . . . I leave you to ponder on all this; or perhaps to move to the Laurentians. But pick your spot well. Some parts are not exactly rustic!

Our ten days in the flats were taken up with housework and church meetings, with a sprinkling of college observations. As we polished the floor last night with the electric machine, we pondered once again on the efficacy of machines. Household machines, that is. The polisher, I am all for. It practically runs itself. The washer is efficient — but how much more efficient, from my point of view, a good maid! Without the vacuum cleaner, we should undoubtedly be dirtier, but less tired. Somewhere I read recently the report of one of these tiresome polls, and the reasoned conclusion was that household appliances cut the time of housework, but make it more fatiguing. The logical conclusion is that, with no appliances, I would have no time to write these articles — and probably a good thing, too!

The meetings were as other meetings, much talk, and who can assess the result? But one thing is worth noticing; on a bright September day, with the thermometer registering in the mid-seventies, about fifty women, and two men, thought it worth while to spend the hours discussing different phases of religious work. It is encouraging. Pretty soon, if we keep at it, we shall be even, in reflection, with such people as Moslems and Buddhists. We note that one of our artists just back from the East, when asked about her impressions, said the chief thing she noticed was the greater time spent in reflection in those countries. How many of us sit down quietly and just think? Very few, I judge, by the general mess things are in!

The College across the street from our home in suburbia is supposed to make its students think. So does any college. . . . But do they? Most of the young things I know, go to college to increase their income. There is nothing wrong in that; I do not mind a good income, myself, but the fitting of oneself to get a good job is the acquisition of a skill, not necessarily education. Most people seem to think in cliches, first enunciated by someone else; rarely would we meet a person who does some thinking of his own. Well, nobody can accuse the writer of being stereotyped.

A propos of nothing, a well-known couple of Lachute spent the summer touring the West, and report seeing The Watchman in each of Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver. We knew this paper got around, from comments, written and otherwise, that we hear from time to time. I think the farthest-flung was from Scotland, something about the birds we had mentioned in this column.

Finally, our summer was made complete by being allowed to go over what I think is the oldest house in the district. It now belongs to Mrs. Smith, and she says it is the best-loved house but one of the neighborhood. She means Sunnyacres for first place, but I doubt that. After all, I am an interloper in the house here, but Mrs. Smith's ancestors built and inhabited her house. It is one hundred and thirty years old, and except for an interval of thirteen years, some one of the Scotts or the Rodgers have lived in it ever since it was built. Having been given loving care, the house does not look its age. The south wall outside is as it was built, whitewash, or white paint, over something that looks like stucco, but it has been necessary to replace the other walls. Downstairs is now panelled in knotty pine, but the upstairs is just as it was built, four smallish bedrooms around a central hall. This seems to have been the usual pattern in pioneer houses once the owner moved out of the first cabin.

Another fine specimen of these early houses, but not so old, is to be seen on the back road to Morin Heights. It is the old Campbell place, now the possession of Mrs. Riddell, who was one of the original family. This is a larger house, and it, too, has loving care showered upon it. It is nice to know that here and there are people who cherish these symbols of the pioneer days.

Education Not A Luxury

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

One of the most useful things which parents can attempt to do is to try to understand some of the aims of education today. Schools are different from those in which parents studied and vastly different from those of two generations ago. Our world continues to change swiftly and important as the Three R's (Reading, 'riting, 'rithmetic) were in a simpler pioneer society, the mastery of basic subjects is not sufficient education today.

Early in this century the majority of scholars received a public school education which equipped them for most of the jobs open for adults — skilled and semi-skilled work, farming and homemaking. The high school curriculum was planned to prepare professional workers — doctors, lawyers, ministers, teachers. Today there are many highly skilled professions and a shrinking number of unskilled laborers. Obviously a boy or girl needs a different type of education from that of former years if he is to be prepared for adult life.

The major job of the schools is training the minds of children. There are a certain number of facts, an understanding of the world which pupils need. Important products of the discipline of learning are the ability to reason, to assemble material, think conclusions.

If mother or dad take an interest in Junior's schooling, and ask him, "What have you learned in school today?" this is an incentive to him to think about the different subjects he studies.

It is hard for parents to accept the fact that children differ greatly in their intellectual ability. It is unreasonable for mother or dad to expect a child to have all "A's" on his report card if he has an only average or below average I.Q. (Intelligence Quotient). A scholar should be encouraged to do the best he can with the intellectual equipment he possesses.

"Get as much education as you can before starting to work," Labor Minister Michael Starr, at Ottawa, has frequently advised young Canadians. Without an education it is more difficult to find a job, and as a worker gets older he is less able to do hard manual labor.

The semi-skilled and unskilled occupations in Canada represent only thirty per cent of the jobs available.

The great majority of unemployed are unskilled, with little formal education. Over the third of three hundred and eleven thousand out of work June, 1960 were between the ages of fourteen and twenty-four.

Canada should have a better record in searching out its brightest scholars and helping them to stay in school. Of every one hundred pupils in grade two in Manitoba only fifty-three reach grade eleven and only thirty grade twelve. In a study of a test group of three thousand Canadian grade twelve students with an average above seventy, almost half did not receive any further higher education.

How does this compare with the way Russia deals with training its youth? In Larry Henderson's "A Journey to Samarkand" he points out that in Soviet education there is state subsidization, scientific specialization and new economic incentives. Every child has an equal opportunity for education, tuition free, books free, lodging free, and when attending college he receives a salary related to his marks. Here is a program which can well make citizens of Canada and other democratic nations envious.

No one will deny that education is not just measured in years of schooling or in marks in academic subjects. Parents are well aware that teachers are partners in fostering health, in encouraging appreciation of and co-operation with other people. Character education, with an emphasis on integrity, and appreciation of moral standards is essential. But formal higher education for the bright scholar or one with even medium ability, in a modern progressive nation is not in any sense a luxury but a necessity.

Native Cheddah, tops in National Cheese Month

(Consumer Section)

Native and good, Canadian Cheddar cheese, made from the milk of cows, has the happy gift of enhancing the flavor of other foods. Grated and folded into omelets and scrambled eggs; sprinkled over soups and scalloped dishes; added to quick breads; crumbled into salads; melted into sauces, soufflés and fondues; sliced for snacks and sandwiches; used as the last touch to dinner — wherever and whatever — it makes any dish the better for it. In recognition of this marvellous food October is called National Cheese Festival Month.

Canadian Cheddar is top quality cheese usually grading Canada First Grade. It is available in its natural deep rich cream color or it may be colored yellow with edible vegetable colorings. It is sold in retail stores according to its age or degree of ripeness as "mild", "medium" or "old". "Medium" cheddar is aged for several months, "old" cheese for a year or more; this care and storing during ageing puts the price of "medium" and "old" cheddar above that of "mild" but for those who like a tang to their cheese it is worth it. Made into large rounds, Canadian Cheddar is sold cut into wedges of various weights.

Anyone who likes cheese will want to try this special recipe for Cheese Soufflé, tested for you by the Consumer Section in Ottawa. The secret of serving it with its "top hat" still on, is to have diners seated and waiting at the table.

Cheese Soufflé

3 Tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, 1 cup milk, 1¼ cups grated Cheddar cheese (¼ pound) 4 eggs yolks (beaten slightly), 4 egg whites.

In a saucepan melt butter then remove from heat. Add flour, salt and pepper, and blend well. Gradually add milk, combining thoroughly. Return to heat and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir a little of the hot mixture into the beaten egg yolks then add gradually to hot mixture. Allow to cool slightly. Meanwhile beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold cooked mixture into egg whites, then turn into an ungreased 6-cup casserole. With a dessert spoon trace a groove around casserole 1 inch from edge and 2 inches deep which, when soufflé is baked, forms a "top hat". Bake in a slow oven (325°F.) until golden brown, 55 to 60 minutes, OR set in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven (350°F.) about 1 hour. Serve immediately. 6 servings.

Vegetables with their bland flavor go blissfully with the sharp tang of this Cheddar Cheese Sauce tested and recommended by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Cheddar Cheese Sauce

2 Tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ½ teaspoon dry mustard (optional), few grains cayenne, 1¼ cups milk, ¾ to 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese.

Melt butter in top of double boiler, then blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add milk, stirring until blended. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until mixture begins to thicken. Then place over hot water and continue cooking for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add cheese and stir until melted. Serve over drained cooked vegetables. Makes about 1¼ cups sauce.

Turkey every Sunday

The red "Canada Grade A" tag on the breast of this oven-ready turkey indicates it is a top quality bird. Large turkeys like this one are so reasonably priced and in such excellent supply that the old favorite "chicken every Sunday" could be replaced at your house by "turkey every Sunday".

Restore birthplace of W.Inst. founder at St. George, Ont.

Work has begun on the restoration of the Hunter-Hoodless Homestead, at St. George, Ont. This modest farm home, the birthplace of Mrs. Adelaide Hunter Hoodless, founder of the Women's Institute, is now the property of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. The committee in charge of the undertaking recently visited the homestead and report satisfactory progress; they hope to have the interior of the house finished shortly.

A small portion of the old house has been renovated as an apartment for the "hostess", Mrs. Horace Lockman, who has been secured by the FWIC to live there and attend to the many guests who are already visiting this historic spot. Visiting hours are from 2 to 5 p.m. daily, and at other times by appointment with Mrs. Lockman (R.R. 1, St. George, Ont.).

Plans are underway also to landscape the grounds. These include a flagstone walk and the planting of old-time shrubs. The whole purpose is to restore the house and grounds as it must have looked when Mrs. Hoodless lived there as a child, a typical farm home of that era. Care is to be taken in the selection of the furnishings and expert advice on that period has been obtained to assist the committee in their choice.

The homestead has been declared a historic site by the National Historic Sites and Monuments Board, and is to be marked with a plaque erected at the opening of the season next year.

Immunization Week Sept. 24-30

Immunization to prevent the occurrence of many of the communicable diseases is so well established in Canada that we should not need to be reminded of its benefits. However, the acceptance of a concept and its actual performance do not always follow each other, and we are grateful to the Health League of Canada for the annual reminder of National Immunization Week.

Every child in this country should be made immune to diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox, tetanus and poliomyelitis. We accept this as a fact but to obtain the benefits of these protective inoculations there is required an effort on the part of parents. To call to the attention of the fathers and mothers that these life-saving and disease-preventing agents are of little avail if they remain in their bottles, is the basic message of Immunization Week.

Your doctor and your health department are ready to provide the protection which your children need. Will you do your share in bringing the parties together? While you are about it, why not see that you too are protected against poliomyelitis?

On behalf of the entire medical profession, the Canadian Medical Association endorses the purposes of National Immunization Week and urges every Canadian to take advantage of the available protection.

Tips on Touring

Here's a pleasant "f'r instance". Let's say you're going to have dinner tonight with friends.

And let's say you have a drink or two before dinner, then enjoy a leisurely meal and drive home about 11. So far so good.

But let's change the program. Follow dinner with three or four drinks during the evening. Then drive home. Now the "f'r instance" is tricky. Chances are you'll make it. But there's also a real chance of trouble. This is not good. Responsible drivers should know about the numbers that prove why.

Recent traffic studies indicate that drinking drivers figure in as many as 50 per cent of fatal accidents. The percentage is even higher around Christmas.

What to do about it? One smart thing is to know the relationship between alcohol and driving ability.

The obvious drunk in a weaving car can be spotted and avoided.

A great menace is the social drinker, who seems all right until an emergency arises. He feels great and thinks he is alert, but his reflexes are off. Result: possible trouble.

Coffee does not help. Only time gets alcohol out of the bloodstream. It takes three hours to work off the effect of two cocktails.

And note this: alcohol is not a stimulant. It is classified medically as a narcotic depressant.

For a pleasant evening — if you have a drink, have it early. Your pleasure and your driving will be better for it.

There's a bargain right now in a basket of peaches, says the consumer section of the federal agriculture department. Both the peaches and the price are attractive.

Freestone peaches, grown principally in the British Columbia and Niagara Peninsula orchards, are popular because the flesh pulls away readily from the stone.

The consumer service says peached are quite perishable so it is not practical to buy more than can be used within a short time. However, they do offer this advice:

Be thrifty and can them, be generous and serve them, be indulgent and eat them, be different and pickle them, be practical and freeze them, be sophisticated and broil them, be original and make chutney with them and be neighborly and share a pie from them.

Top quality peaches are best for canning and freezing because they are less wasteful. Top-grade peaches are free from bruises and blemishes and have a somewhat creamy complexion with overlying blush.

Peaches that are slightly green should be left at room temperature to ripen, then stored in the refrigerator.

Glazed Peach Tarts

Here is a recipe for glazed peach tarts. It requires 6 large baked tart shells; 3 medium-large peaches; ¼ cup water; ½-¾ cup sugar; few grains salt; 1 cup thinly sliced peaches; 4 tsps. cornstarch; and 2 tbsps. cold water.

Blanch and peel peaches, cut in half and remove pits. Heat water, sugar and salt, drop in peach halves, cover and simmer for one or two minutes depending on firmness of flesh. Lift peaches from syrup and drain, cut side down, on cake rack. Reserve syrup.

To make the glaze add sliced peaches to reserved syrup. Cover and boil gently until slices are tender, about five minutes. Press this syrup-peach mixture through a sieve. Measure and if necessary add water to make 1¼ cups. In a saucepan mix cornstarch and cold water; add syrup mixture, cook until clear and thickened, three to four minutes. Cool slightly.

To fill tarts, spoon one tablespoon of peach glaze into each tart shell; top with a peach half, cut side down. Cover with one or two tablespoons of peach glaze. Chill thoroughly. Makes six servings.

For Chutney Too

For a "peach" of a chutney that is also easy to make try this recipe.

It requires 6 cups peeled chopped peaches; 4 cups peeled chopped apples; 2 cups raisins; 2 tsps. cinnamon; 1 tsp. cloves; 1 tsp. allspice; 2 tsps. salt; ½ tsp. black pepper; and 1½ cups cider or malt vinegar.

Combine all ingredients and cook slowly, stirring frequently until thick, about one hour. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about six cups.

Finding a $3 million cheque was all in a day's work for Emery Cosman, 66-year-old former New Brunswicker now employed as a financial house messenger in Toronto. Cosman found the cheque, made out to a bank from a trust company, on the street and merely turned it in "to the girl" at the trust company. Last year he found a $90,000 deposit on the floor in a bank and quietly deposited it without a second thought. But Cosman has never lost so much as a postage stamp.

Diary of a Vagabond

FRIEND OF THE BRIDE

The sun slanted through the stained glass windows and danced among the posey hats of the congregation's feminine members. This was common ground where two generations could meet on the same social footing.

Men have often wondered why women weep at weddings. I never have, possibly because my own married life, for the 18 years it lasted, was a continual series of happy events. But I can understand WHY women weep. The stirring notes of the wedding march from Lohengrin is like a fanfare announcing the unknown.

Mothers of the brides tremble wondering what this step will mean for their darling daughters, while mothers of the grooms smother a sense of jealousy because another woman has usurped their place.

Brides today for the most part are tall, self-assured, openly confident, strikingly groomed young women. Pablum, vitamins, exposure to sunshine, sports and usually a business career before marriage, have all contributed to this generation's assurance.

We were all "gathered together in the sight of God to witness the joining together in the holy state of matrimony" this man and this woman who only yesterday it seemed were fighting like cats and dogs in the backyard trying to blind one another with buckets of sand while they conked each other on the bean with wooden spoons pilfered from a pantry drawer.

Why, it was only yesterday that our neighbor's daughter had come visiting with her parents. When we discovered she was missing, we found her bouncing on my bed trying to make her flying, coal black pigtails hit the ceiling.

I watched her now as she came down the aisle. Those locks were smartly shorn and tucked like black feathers beneath her white veil. Her smile lit up the church as she greeted her groom's nervous grin where he stood at the altar waiting for her. This was characteristic of him, for he had waited a long time. All through her university life and through several romances he had waited. The years she had dedicated herself to a teaching career because of unrequited love left a few scars on his sworn intention to make her his wife, but his fidelity was rewarded when the whole neighborhood watched her awaken to the realization that the boy next door was the happiness she had been seeking.

We were a scattered lot of humans who gathered that day to witness their ceremony. From the far west coast came the retired parents of the bride, travelling safely in the air-conditioned railway drawing-room, across the mountains and sunscorched prairies. From nearby cities and small towns friends and relatives journeyed to pay tribute to this union. Typical of youth, university pals, who had accepted jobs across the border, broke speed laws in a last minute dash to act as ushers and bridesmaids.

We were all there, the women in their "standin' up" dresses and "sittin' down" shoes, unwilling to admit they were being slowly tortured, the men hot and bored in dark suits with a wistful look as though they were remembering the tall one they might have been enjoying while stretched out under a tree if it weren't for all this fuss and formality to get two people hitched.

What a short time it has been down the years from that throbbing moment when two hearts beat to the rhythm of "I love you truly", sung by a bosom friend in a thin soprano while we signed the register. From those winter months, which at the time seemed endless, when I staggered around a cold kitchen in the middle of the night to heat a bottle of formula, or other blustery days when I broke every finger nail on either hand endlessly putting on and taking off pairs of small galoshes. From the hours spent washing off dirty little finger prints from white woodwork or sewing name tapes on faded jeans and sweat shirts destined to be lost at camp. Was it only yesterday, or a year or two ago, that we parents attending this wedding used to lie awake listening for the home coming of a dancing daughter or a celebrating son, newly graduated?

We stood with our glasses poised listening to the best man humorously propose a toast to the bridesmaids. Surely I can be forgiven for remembering the number of times I wiped the dirty little nose of the tallest and best looking usher, or how often I had scraped jam and peanut butter from the bib on the protruding tummy of the willowy maid of honor.

In those days, we did a bit of mutual baby sitting. There was an unwritten code of honor in our neighborhood, "You mind my kid today. I'll watch yours tomorrow."

Maybe it was comforting to remember Gordon Sinclair's recent comment on his 60th birthday. "I don't really mind being this old because I realize the tiniest baby being born today, if it is as lucky as I have been, will someday reach this venerable age."

Seems to me I can feel the small, round, blond crewcut head of the eldest bairn digging into my shoulder blades as he challenges me every time we meet, "Turn around, let's stand back to back and see how big I'm growing. I'll soon be as tall as you are." How true, how true and likewise how soon. Oh, how soon!

A breadline around the world

A breadline in any Canadian town or city is not a familiar sight, but imagine a breadline stretching from your front door all the way around the world. Multiply that line by 25 and you have an idea of how many people are starving in the world today.

Almost one billion children are standing in that line, one billion lean, undernourished little bodies, one billion hungry little faces.

Canadian children will share their own good health with some of these children by sponsoring a project designed to teach them to grow their own produce, to teach them how to cook to get the most nourishment from their food. Red Cross Juniors will provide the funds necessary to buy seeds and garden tools, funds for instruction and teaching aids in order that these children can learn to help themselves out of their unfortunate state. This is Junior Red Cross Week in Canada.

This is the season for long-distance walking—and leg-weary hikers have been plodding across Canada from east and west to prove they can do it. 62-year-old John Packud spent three months walking from Vancouver to Toronto pushing a wheelbarrow. Little Leisha Shannon sampled the wheelbarrow at a stopover in northern Ontario. Meanwhile, Walter (Peg-Leg) Piotrowski, 52, (right) walked from Montreal to Toronto despite handicap of a wooden leg. He did it "to show my friends." He was joined by his 11-year-old son, Danny, for last 116 miles of 400-mile hike.
