HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Pair shot by police officers in pre-holiday street fracas

Mayor Fernand Legault, expressing the opinion of Town Council, has condoned the firing of revolver shots by town police officers victimized in a pre-holiday fracas. As a result of this incident two men who resisted arrest and attacked a constable, sustained leg wounds from revolver bullets and were taken to hospital.

The Council upheld the action of the police, and — even though the municipality has a contract with Phillips Investigation Bureau for police protection — it was agreed the Corporation had a responsibility for the action of, and for protection of, the police personnel.

On motion of Ald. Dr. J.-P. Dorion and Ald. Stanley Church, the municipality will institute an action against the two accused, Guy St.-Hilaire and Origène Rousseau, both employees on the Carillon Dam project.

Report on Incident

There have been varied misguided reports on the matter; but summarized from the version given by Chief J.-L. Hebert before Council, the following are the facts:

On patrol around 2 a.m. on December 23, Lieut. Cyr and Cst. Gagné noticed a car turning the intersection from Main into Bethany in disregard of the stop-sign. They caught up with the car on Lafleur Street near the corner of Raymond, and Cst. Gagné accosted the driver, who was accompanied by a young woman. The driver could not produce a permit or registration of the vehicle, so was asked to accompany the officers to police headquarters to identify himself. This he refused to do, and started to be troublesome. The police were attempting to handcuff the man when another individual, informed by the girl of his friend's arrest, jumped on the officers, who by this time, had the first culprit on the ground to quieten him down. A fight ensued between the two policemen and the offenders, one of whom tore Lieut. Cyr's trousers from top to bottom and kicked him brutally.

The lieutenant withdrew to the patrol car to summon help, meanwhile calling to Cst. Gagné to defend himself. Onlookers had emerged from the nearby hotel. With the attackers threatening at close quarters, Gagné drew his revolver and warned them to keep their distance. They continued to menace the officer however, and after ordering them back several times, he fired and hit one of the men in the left thigh. The other man attacked the officer with his steel plated shoe raised in his hand; the officer fired again, hitting his assailant in the left leg.

Police Officer Jenri, of the Q.P.P. squad, then arrived on the scene. Dr. André Sauvé gave first aid to the men. The provincial police officer took one man to hospital in St. Jerome, and the second offender was taken in the town police vehicle to St. Jerome, where they consistently refused to identify themselves until influenced by the persuasion of a religious sister at the hospital. One of the accused then gave his name as Guy St-Hilaire, age 25. His friend identified himself as Origène Rousseau, 32.

Bottle salvage Scout collection this Saturday

A reminder to householders — the Lachute Boy Scouts' canvass for discarded bottle will be held this Saturday, January 6. This is a new experiment in fund raising, and public support could assist the boys in considerably augmenting their finances, for camping equipment and other expenses.

Empty beverage, medicine or syrup bottles — jars and scrap glass — all are salvagable. Householders will be called upon for their contributions, and pick-up will also be arranged in rural districts and surrounding villages (phone LO 2-4513 or LO 2-6776) — Brownsburg excepted, since it is possible a local collection will be planned in that community.

Turkeys to town employees

Ayersville's Christmas gift was $6,940 bill for paving

Ayersville's special Christmas t came in a registered package a bill for $6,940, presented in uncertain terms by Chomedy halt Ltd., for the paving of helieu Blvd. and Gauthier eet.

This job was seen as a pre-tion move in the contest be-en Marcel Therrien and Ray-d Champagne for Council hon- last September (the paving g instigated by Mayor Gaetan Paquette, principal supporter of Mr. Therrien's candidacy). No agreement was signed with the contractor either by the municipality or the government.

Following is the translation of a registered letter from the contractors:

Chomedy, Dec. 18, 1961

Mayor and Councillors,
Municipality of Ayersville.

This will advise you that, the Provincial Government having refused to meet our bill for the paving of certain streets (length, 0.43 mile) in your municipality, we are holding you responsible for this account.

You will oblige us by forwarding your cheque for $6,940. within eight days. You will appreciate that, even if the Government rejects this bill because the contract was not signed, it was on the instance of Mayor Gaetan Paquette that we undertook the work — which is the reason for this letter. We thank you in advance for your co-operation.

— Chomedy Asphalt Ltd.
per Jean-Guy Clément.

The letter was presented to Council at an adjourned meeting December 22, and again at a session held January 2 — the Council emphatically refusing to pay the bill.

Mayor Paquette was absent from both meetings.

First child at Providence Hosp'l

Distinction of bearing the first 1962 baby at the Providence Hospital goes to Mrs. Dalma Girard, of St. Andrews, the mother of a bouncing boy born at precisely 5.25 a.m. on New Year's Day. The infant is Mr. and Mrs. Girard's first child. Dr. André L'Allier, of St. Andrews, was the attending physician.

Face-lifting job for city hall, auditorium

The city hall and auditorium is undergoing a face-lifting — following a decision of Town Council to engage Ottawa Building Cleaners Ltd. to refurbish the exterior brickwork for a contract price of $1,395. . . . A resolution to this effect was adopted at the last Council session of the fading year, with Mayor Fernand Legault presiding.

The renovation job will consist of (1) cleaning the entire brick exterior; (2) re-pointing and replacing brick where necessary; (3) coating brick with silicone (a sand and silica protective against moisture penetration).

The Ottawa firm has executed similar work on several buildings here, including the Court House and business properties.

Request for Grant

Dr. Marc Papineau was spokesman for the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil in asking a municipal subsidy of $500 towards the cultural activities of this enterprise.

Dr. Papineau, a member of the provisional committee, explained the work and future aspirations of the Centre d'Art. A provincial grant had been obtained towards the fulfilment of these aims, but the Government in such cases looks for practical support at the municipal level, and it was hoped that the Town would contribute to the development of this project which provides courses, at this stage, for about 50 adults and 100 children.

Other members of the provisional committee with Dr. Papineau are Roger Lagarde, Simon Valois and Raymond Beaulieu, all professional or business men of this town.

Mails delayed

Despite the considerable volume of District News in this issue, several district correspondents have not been heard from due to irregular mails, and news is lacking from certain communities in this week's Watchman.

Grenville boy killed on way to midnight mass

Tragedy struck at New Year's Eve in the village of Grenville, where young Georges Guindon, 11-year-old boy on his way to midnight mass, was struck by a car and died shortly afterwards in hospital at Hawkesbury.

According to Traffic Officer Lawrence Cruise, of Lachute, the boy was walking at the side of the road with his brother, when he was hit by an automobile driven by Stanley Brazeau, 47, also of Grenville. The brother, Serge, accompanied the young victim to hospital, where he succumbed on his arrival, from fractures of the skull.

The body of the young victim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hermas Guindon, was brought to the Menard Funeral Parlors here, then released to his parents. The death was pronounced accidental — investigation showing that the driver had been blinded by approaching headlights, also that snow was falling at the time of the accident.

A memory worth keeping

Memories of a fruitful fishing trip are recalled by this photo of Nat Boyd, president of Boyd's Express Ltd., showing the 656-lb. tuna which he caught on a Newfoundland expedition with business friends last September. Mr. Boyd just recently received this snapshot, taken at Conception Bay during the eventful trip. The fish was among the largest tuna taken at Conception Bay during the season.

Sales, business or water tax to finance filtration plant costs?

A study of the civic budget for 1962 was the major consideration at a Council meeting last week, under chairmanship of the mayor. More specifically, the study centred upon means of financing the filtration plant project, which will improve the water supply of Lachute, Ayersville and the urban fringe of St. Jerusalem.

Merchants' Viewpoint

Debt incurred in this project will amount to $570,000, repayable in 30 years. The method of meeting this obligation provoked an interesting exchange of views between the Council and a number of businessmen present, representing the Chamber of Commerce. The latter, with President Gaetan Leclair as spokesman, raised objection to the levy of a two-percent municipal sales tax, which has been a rumored proposal.

"Due to our geographical location," said Mr. Leclair on behalf of the merchants, "we are opposed to an increase in the sales tax, which would divert local business to the Province of Ontario. We would suggest that a tax on water consumption would be a better solution."

Several of the 30-odd merchants in attendance gave verbal support to this opinion. They appeared unanimous in agreeing, however, that the business tax in Lachute was reasonably low, and they would not seriously oppose an increase in the rate. But unfortunately this would not meet the revenue required in the higher 1962 budget. . . . It was decided to study the business tax by-law, nevertheless, and explore the possibilities in this direction.

Council Opinions

Councillors were divided on the merchants' stand on sales tax. Some agreed, but others were strongly in favor of the sales tax. . . . Incidentally, a two-percent increase would bring the retail sales tax to six percent in Lachute (two percent provincial and two percent local school tax being now in effect).

In favor of a boost in water tax were Aldermen L. Armstrong, Dr. L. A. Middleton, Laurêat Laurin and Dr. J.-P. Dorion. Aldermen Nelson Lepage, Stanley Church F. Charlebois and A. Thibodeau favored the two-percent sales tax; while Alderman Réal Urbain suggested a compromise, with a slight increase in water tax and the sales tax, both.

Budget Estimates

Estimate of expenditures in 1962 is in the order of $340,750, as compared with a final figure of $261,000 for 1961. This represents an increase of $80,000, of which amount $61,000 will be required for debt service and maintenance of the filtration plant.

Sals Tax Method Chosen

It is learned, as this paper goes to press, that a two-percent sales levy was decided upon, in a heated debate at Council Wednesday night. A large number of taxpayers attended. Opinion appeared to favor the imposition of a higher water tax, but an amendment in favor of the sales tax drew a vote of 5 to 4 in favor.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

Thanks for the recipe! . . . Our bookkeeper, turning over a subscription cheque for $6, found the back of the cheque crammed with ingredients for Cheese Pie and Topping — so full that there was no room for an endorsement! A generous housewife, while sending two years' subscription, had unwittingly included one of her prize recipes for good measure. If the lady wants her recipe back, it's on deposit at the bank. (All our female staff copied it!)

Mr. Bob Haydon brought a souvenir of Christmas home from Ottawa, where his family visited over the holiday. It seems his brother had purchased a cultivated Christmas tree, which was duly set up in the living room and illuminated in traditional style. Here the family were watching television, when they heard a "plop" and found the nest of an animal had fallen from the mass of bushy branches. Fully a foot in diameter, the solid ball of dried grass was heavy enough to suggest that the animal was still inside! (In fact, some claimed it moved, and others heard it grunt.) Anyway, returning home next day, Mr. Haydon removed the curio from its urban habitat to a more rural setting in Lachute — and still anticipating an unknown visitor, the nest was opened up. . . .

But here ended a potentially exciting story; the nest proved unoccupied.

Our special sympathy at this season to the town garbage crew. With two (supposed) statutory holidays, interrupting a six-day schedule in two consecutive weeks, they are faced with a seasonal deluge of boxes, cartons, wrappings, discarded envelopes and calendar tubes from every dwelling — and a flood of far more bulky material from store premises.

Anyway — keep your bottles! Put them aside for the Boy Scout collection in Lachute this Saturday. Save the garbage man and help the boys in this fund-raising drive.

The editor lay awake last week, worrying over the trusting readers who took one of our Christmas recipes too seriously. The recipe called for " a pound of chopped beer", and we had nightmare visions of housewives with a meat chopper or a carving knife, endeavoring to do just that! . . . In defence, we may say that our Watchman recipes are usually read with care, but this Christmas dinner was a menu received in matrix form, from a syndicated source; and material of this kind is not usually re-checked for typographical errors. (Those who gave it up as a bad job might try the cleaver on a pound of b-e-e-f.)

Boy Scouts of Canada

LONG SAULT DISTRICT COUNCIL

Leadership Training

Because of the number of new leaders whose services have been enlisted this year, the District is planning to conduct leadership training courses to supplement the on-the-job experience that comes with regular week-to-week activities.

To all leaders — those of long standing as well as those who are helping out for the first time — public appreciation and encouragement are in order. This is interesting and rewarding work, but when done effectively, it makes heavy demands in terms of both time and effort. The community as a whole, and parents in particular, are sometimes a little too inclined to take their Cub and Scout leaders for granted.

Patrol Leaders' Banquet

Many Boy Scouts and former Scouts in this area will recall attending the annual Patrol Leaders' Banquet, which in recent years has been held in the R.M.R. Armoury in Montreal. This event has been held every year except one for more than 50 years; it outgrew several hotel locations and now has become so big that even the armoury is inadequate to take care of the attendance.

Consequently, the 1962 Patrol Leaders' Banquet will be held in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal, where space will be available for 1,400 guests. Group Committees, Scout Leaders and Patrol Leaders should make a note of the date — Saturday evening, February 24 — and watch for further particulars. There will be no limit on the number of Group Committee people who can attend. This invitation applies to all Groups in the Province of Quebec.

World Jamboree

The executive committee of the National Council decided at its meeting in October that a contingent of seven troops should be formed in Canada, with two troops from the Overseas Regions (with the Armed Forces in Europe) joining the main body on the Jamboree site. That means 231 First Class and Queen's Scouts and 24 Leaders; Quebec's quota is to be 16 Scouts and one Leader from our Association, and the same from La Fédération des Scouts Catholiques. The Jamboree will be held in Greece, August 1-11, 1963, and applications will be received at National Headquarters from September 1 to December 31, 1962. Thus, those desiring to apply have less than nine months within which to start saving and qualifying.

Ladies' Curling

After the holiday season, ladies' curling is again in progress, starting on Wednesday with challenge games.

The first games in the Club Trophy bonspiel are on Thursday, and on Friday, Lachute as holders of the Cottingham Cup will defend against Hawkesbury.

Just prior to closing for the holidays, the final game in the Singles competition was played. The finalists were Mrs. J. R. MacKimmie and Mrs. J. D. McOuat. The game was very close, Mrs. MacKimmie edging Mrs. McOuat on an extra end.

The monthly meeting will be held Monday, January 8.

Bigger and better in N.B.?

Claude Lecorre, of Lachute, and Robert Arnold, of St. Michel de Wentworth, brought home this haul from a fall hunting expedition in the area of Fredericton, N.B. The four specimens of deer would be the envy of any hunter. . . . The bag limit for deer in New Brunswick is two per hunter, and this is the second season in succession that the two local hunters have made the trip and procured their quota. . . . For them, the price of beef is of no great concern.

Proving worth of community cattle pastures

Ottawa — Community pasture facilities on the drought-hit prairie provinces were taxed to capacity during the past season, as nearly 7,000 stockmen grazed a record 145,000 head of livestock.

Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration officials said that the demand for pasture services was the greatest in the organization's history.

Sixty-nine pastures embracing 2,079,834 acres were pressed into use including two new pastures in Manitoba and one in Alberta. As an emergency measure, PFRA operated a holding area at Craven, Saskatchewan, where 1,800 cattle were fed screenings pellets in lieu of grass — demonstrating that pellets alone are adequate for maintenance of cattle.

Livestock on community pastures included 140,000 cattle and 5,000 sheep and horses.

In Alberta, a severe feed and water shortage in the southeast led to establishment of the 146,000-acre Suffield Pasture on a test area of the Defence Research Board. It is PFRA's first community pasture in the province and the largest one in the program.

In Manitoba, 45,000 acres were added by establishment of the Dauphin-Ethelbert Pasture near Dauphin and the Turtle Mountain Pasture in the southern region. Both were used to capacity.

Three other pastures in the rural municipalities of Wallace and Stuartburn in Manitoba and Foam Lake in Saskatchewan are under construction.

Continuing expansion of the community pasture program not only creates stability for agriculture, but promotes better use of lands that are marginal and submarginal for cereal crop production.

During the past season, necessity of maintaining an adequate carryover of grass on pastures was clearly demonstrated. This carryover — like money in the bank for stockmen — enabled PFRA to handle a full complement of livestock through one of the driest seasons on record.

Farm home program proves successful

Athabasca, Alta. (CP) — Four years ago in this farming area 90 miles north of Edmonton, few farm families had indoor plumbing. Today, more than 40 per cent have running water and other modern fixtures.

The change is one of the results of a farming experiment launched by District Agriculturist George Gobel. He says the philosophy behind the plan is to produce more to improve the standard of living rather than just to increase production.

Mr. Gobel says a successful farm depends on the co-operation of husband and wife working together as a team and understanding the vital role each plays in the partnership.

The basic principles of his farm-and-home program are a grain-grass rotation with no summer fallow but use of fertilizers, a livestock economy recording, and analysing farm accounts and records, as well as long and short-term budgeting.

In the experiment, farm-and-home groups are organized after the district agricultural representative calls a meeting. About 10 families form a group and meetings are held weekly or monthly to discuss farm management and other problems. Experts are brought in and the district agriculturist provides guidance at all meetings.

Mr. Gobel says the average net worth of members of the program has increased by $9,000 during the last three years. A farmer in the Athabasca district who 17 years ago made his first payment on property with rabbit skins now owns 320 acres of land, worth $50 an acre, and a $14,000 home.

Town police busy in holiday season

The town police force had a busy session in the 24 hours from December 28 to 29 when they were called to the scene of no fewer than 13 traffic accidents in town. For the most part these were minor incidents of crumpled fenders and car-bodies, caused by collisions on the icy streets.

On the morning of December 29 the emergency vehicle conveyed an accident victim to the hospital. Wallace Thompson, 81, residing with his niece, Mrs. Stanley Boyd, on Barron Avenue, slipped and fell at the corner of Main and Barron, injuring his head. Cst. Duquette came to his assistance and took him to hospital.

The trio had been arrested by local police and charged with disturbing the peace, using bad language in a public place, and resisting law officers. The offence occurred in the pre-Christmas season.

With song sheets on loan, those Rotarians remaining after the almost-regular group had left to curl, sang out the carols like a professional choir, and with hearty enjoyment.

New Year's resolutions

JANUARY 1 has been recognized as New Year's Day only since the Gregorian Calendar was adopted by Britain in 1752 — up to then, in England and the British colonies, New Year's Day was on March 25. And the first day of the year is still a different date in other calendars.

Anyway, if you're agreed that January 1 is New Year's Day, and this week you are solemnly propounding new resolutions, remember what the Bible says: A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country and in his own house.

Francis Bacon, who died in 1626, wrote: "Man must pursue things which are just, in present, and leave the future to the divine Providence."

There was a realistic observation by Sam Butler, who died in 1680, and who wrote: "Great actions are not always true sons of great and mighty resolutions."

More in the common spirit, the English poet William Godwin, who died in 1836, wrote this parapraph:

The log was burning brightly,
'Twas a night that should banish all sin,
For the bells were ringing the Old Year out
And the New Year in.

Edward Fitzgerald, who died in 1883, had another view:

Now the New Year reviving old desires,
The thoughtful Soul to Solitude retires . . .

Of course, different men have different views about the state of affairs which are customarily pondered at the change of the year. That's as true today as it was centuries ago. And if you still think the first day of the New Year is a significant date, you might be able to put it in perspective by reading these lines written by Edmund Burke, the English statesman:

"To complain of the age we live in, to murmur at the present possessors of power, to lament the past, to conceive extravagant hopes of the future, are the common dispositions of the greatest part of mankind."

Burke died in 1797, but the words could have been written yesterday.

Problem of the jobless

AS WINTER tightens its grip on Canada, seasonal unemployment will rise to an estimated 10 per cent of the total labor force.

That means that by February there are likely to be more than 600,000 Canadians out of work. It won't be as bad as last February, when 719,000 workers were without jobs, but no one denies that it will be worse than it should be.

With an election likely before the end of 1962, unemployment will undoubtedly be the subject of continuing debate. The opposition will accuse the government of not doing enough to combat unemployment. The government will point to steps it has taken, such as winter works programs, money for vocational training, special aid to depressed areas and other actions aimed at boosting the Canadian economy generally.

One prediction is that 1,000,000 new jobs will be needed by 1965 and the federal government has said it will do all it can to help industry provide these jobs.

A point of frustration is that unemployment remains relatively high despite the fact the economy is on the upswing.

Labor leaders have said they don't believe lagging productivity is responsible for the jobless problem. They declare it's lagging purchasing power and say it could be cured by heavy federal spending on socially useful projects.

The Senate manpower committee has investigated the nature and causes of unemployment, but it's evident there is no quick solution.

If economic recovery continues, it will bring further improvement in the job situation. But indications are that in the foreseeable future a certain percentage of Canada's labor force will continue to be unemployed.

An important factor is that unemployment is greatest among Canadians without special skills. All too many young people have come to regret their failure to complete their education.

The ordinary person in this country may be able to do little to solve the unemployment dilemma in a direct way but perhaps, by encouraging youngsters to finish school and learn a trade or profession, they will be able to make a long-term contribution of great importance.

Education battle far from won

ARE WE CANADIANS winning the education battle? Increased spending and evidence of wider public interest and concern may well have encouraged us to think so, in which case the following points made recently by Dr. S. H. Deeks, national director of the Industrial Foundation on Education, should cause us to think again.

Fully 50 per cent of Canada's population has only a Grade 8 education or less. At the current rate of "progress", another half a million such persons will drop out of school during the next eight years.

Canada has only one-third of the professional people and one-half of the skilled workers, proportionately, of the number in the United States.

Some 34 per cent of all Canadian students don't get as far as Grade 12.

Between 70 and 80 per cent of the top one-quarter of the population in intelligence are allowed to drop out of high school before graduation.

Although industry is contributing more than ever before, university students still have no more than five or six per cent of their total fees covered by scholarships and bursaries. Students now attending Canadian universities will have to raise an additional $195 million to finish their courses.

— All this hardly adds up to pleasant reading, but if it shocks us out of a developing sense of complacency it will be well worth it.

Clearly, the battle to raise national educational standards is very far from won. In truth, we will not have begun to win it until we succeed in substantially reducing the percentage of "drop-outs" from high school.

In this matter of making our students realize the tragic folly of premature school-leaving in this age of advancing technology, the role of the teacher is important.

But it is even more vital that Canadian parents understand that it is their interest and influence which are decisive.

Tightening on tax evaders

A REAL crackdown on tax evaders will hit a wide swath of Canadians in the months ahead. Many more thousands of taxpayers will undergo the most intensive scrutiny ever — writes Norton Anderson in The Financial Post.

In fact, the tax assessors and investigators already have stepped up their cross-check work, based on 1960 (and earlier) tax returns. More businesses and individuals will be called upon to prove that the "entertaining" was clearly intended to get business. Assessors will be using special techniques to track down some of the other sources of income obtained by moonlighters. Doctors, dentists, some lawyers — to name a few who take in a lot of cash — are in for tougher search and questioning. Hundreds of categories of self-employed, from retailers to repairmen, from farmers to hairdressers, can expect a tightening up.

Who Designed the First Canadian Stamp?

The first Canadian postage stamp, known as the three-penny beaver, was designed by Sir Sandford Fleming and issued on April 23, 1851. The resourcefulness and industry of the beaver, the ramifications of the fur trade, the wealth of lumber and the potential for water power development are all suggested in the design — a fitting commencement for the philately of the Dominion.

The postage stamp was first introduced in Great Britain in 1840 by Sir Rowland Hill. It was adopted as a means of collecting a small postage fee in advance of the mailing of letters, replacing the older method of collecting high postage charges on delivery. On the introduction of stamps in Canada it was not compulsory to use this means of prepaying postage; they were not used to any great extent until 1855 when there was a great increase in the percentage of mail prepaid with them. The use of stamps gave a tremendous impetus to the use of postal services and today the modern postal service could not function on a paying basis without them. Human ingenuity has not been able to devise a better, cheaper or more convenient means of prepaying and accounting for postage, for the vast majority of people.

What Bird calls "Teacher"?

The Ovenbird, which derives its name from the shape of its nest — a domed-over structure with the opening at the side like an old-fashioned oven, repeats two notes in its song resembling "teacher". It begins softly and rapidly increases to a remarkable volume. The bird is partial to deciduous woodland and ranges in Canada from the Atlantic to the foot of the Rockies.

What Causes Aurora Borealis?

Aurora Borealis, more generally known as Northern Lights, is a phenomenon frequently seen in Canada. Cree Indians thought they were camp-fires lit by the gods. To the Eskimo they were spirits playing ball with the skull of a walrus. Norsemen believed they were reflections of sunlight flashing on the armour of the Valkyries as the maidens carried the dead to Valhalla. Modern-day scientists believe them to be caused by the emission from the sun.

ALL ABOARD
With G. E. Mortimore

"You'd be astonished at the way people take advantage of an alcoholic — a chronic drinker," said an ex-lush.

"They'll give him a cheap job at wages far lower than they would pay anyone else. They'll say, 'Here's 93 cents for your work. It's enough to buy a bottle of wine.'

"And if you can't get that, you'll drink anything. Bay rum, rubbing alcohol, sterno canned heat. You know the canned heat is a kind of pink color. We'd dump it from the can and wring the juice out of it, in a cloth. That's what we called 'squeezing the pink lady'. It will kill you — but to an alcoholic, any alcohol is poison.

"I wandered thousands of miles across Canada, from the Maritimes to the Yukon and back. The geographical cure is an idea the drunk has at the back of his head. Maybe I'll go to a new town where nobody knows me, he says, and make a fresh start.

"But wherever you stop, you still have the same old thirst."

He beat the problem — at least for a while — when he got religion through the Salvation Army.

Was he saved by grace from heaven? Or is the Salvation Army hostel really a psychological clinic in religious disguise — a place where a devoted but hard-boiled psychologist gives the patient just the right blend of sympathy and challenge?

Believers would pray, "Thank God". Non-believers would look for a secular explanation. They would say that by invoking religion, the Salvation Army men were awakening powerful and long-dormant motives from childhood. Anyway, it works — sometimes.

Of Many Things
— By Ambrose Hills —

ABOUT YOU IN '62

How are you, personally, going to fare in 1962?

Hold tight, because old Ambrose is going to tell you, and I have it right from headquarters — from too darn many years of experience facing New Years which keep crowding closer and closer together all the time.

You are going to do just about as well in 1962 as you deserve to do, no better, no worse. Luck and circumstances may push you a bit this way or that, but in the main you're the chief causative factor in which way the ball bounces.

I've heard a number of sermons in my day, but the one that keeps coming back to mind is that of an elderly minister who said to his congregation, "I know that many of you feel you are too old now to start a new and important life, and that there are also many who feel quite young yet and think they have plenty of time. I want to say that you are both quite wrong; the time of salvation is now, whether you are young or old. Remember, just as you can get nothing free, you cannot perform well without getting paid. Nothing is wasted."

The old minister went on to urge an immediate start, without a lot of day-dreaming and procrastination. Live your best, stand straighter, think more clearly, look and talk your best, be your best at all times in the sure knowledge that you will be rewarded, for the law in this regard is unfailing.

So that's my hope for you in 1962, that you get just exactly what you deserve. And I hope it is good.

Late Samuel Willman last male member of pioneer Argenteuil lumber family

Major Samuel Lester Willman, who passed away suddenly at his home in Calumet on December 16, was well known and respected as a lifelong resident of that community. Born on April 3, 1879, he was the son of the late Edward Willman and his wife Eliza Stuart.

Following in the steps of his father and grandfather, the late Mr. Willman was a lumberman, known as an authority on all phases of the industry. As a young man he was first employed by the Alex Baptist Lumber Co. which, having acquired "the island" from Edward Willman and James Wilson in 1886, had built the first mill in Calumet in 1888. He continued his work at the same mill when it was taken over by the Perley Corporation, the Reardon Lumber Co. and finally the Canadian International Paper Co., retiring in 1950.

During World War I he served in England with the Forestry Corps of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, attaining the rank of Major.

A supporter of all community, church and philanthropic projects, he was for many years president of the Calumet Cemetery Corporation. He was a lifelong member of the Methodist Church and, later, the United Church in Calumet, in which he held various offices.

For over 50 years he was a Mason. He was a charter member of the Grenville Lodge, a member of the Laurentian Chapter of Royal Arch Masons, and a Shriner.

He was the last remaining male member of the Willman family, whose roots go back in the history of this County to 1798. United Empire Loyalists, the Willmans were forced to leave their home at McCarol's Ferry in Rhode Island after the American Revolution. They went first to Nova Scotia, but later they came to Argenteuil, arriving first at St. Andrews.

After several years, interest in lumbering took the family west on the Ottawa River — to Chatham, to Grenville, and finally, in 1842, to the area now known as Calumet. Here Southwell Willman and his eldest son, Edward, carried on an active lumbering business, clearing the forest, and selling the timber in Montreal and Quebec.

Major Willman is survived by his wife, Edith McMartin Darrough; two sisters, Priscilla and Vera; three nieces, Mrs. E. T. Griffith, Mrs. Howard Finlayson and Mrs. W. Stanford Reid; and a nephew, William Edward Walker.

Many paid their final tribute to an old friend as the body rested at the New Grenville Funeral Home. An impressive Masonic service was held December 18, at which every district in the area was represented. On the following day, the funeral service was held, conducted by the Rev. Kirk Feltham. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough delivered the address, and Mr. Ernest Johnson sang "Jesus, Saviour, pilot me". The interment was in Calumet Cemetery.

Late Wm. Jackson was old resident of Mount Maple

Brownsburg — The death occurred suddenly on December 12 of William Jackson, at his home in Mount Maple. He was born in Morin Heights, Que., on September 23, 1886, the youngest son of the late John Jackson and his wife Margaret McDonald. He came to live in Brownsburg at an early age and attended school there. As a young man he was employed with the Dominion Cartridge Co. (now C-I-L).

He was married May 1, 1907, to Eva May Moore, who is left to mourn his passing. Mr. Jackson (or Billy, as he was known to all his friends) lived for the last 50 years on his farm in Mount Maple.

Left to mourn, besides his wife, are five sons and three daughters — Edgar and George, of Lachute, Bazil, of Brownsburg, Robert, of Galt, Ont., and Stanley, of Cornwall, Ont., Eva (Mrs. Ted Fields), of Cornwall, Viola (Mrs. Perry Rowe), and Jean (Mrs. Jean C. Connell), of Lachute. He also leaves 33 grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren, and one sister, Miss Mary Jackson, of Lachute.

The funeral service, held at Brownsburg United Church, was largely attended, and was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, assisted by the Rev. George B. Hicks, who gave messages of comfort to the bereaved family. The hymns sung were two favorites of the deceased, "Softly and Tenderly" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus". The pall-bearers were two nephews, Douglas and Roy Jackson, and four neighbors, Douglas, Perley and Cecil Clark and John Black.

The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Dalesville, Que. Many beautiful floral tributes evidenced the respect in which the deceased was held.

Two deaths occur in Bourbonnière camp settlement

The death of Mrs. W. C. O'Malley, a resident of Camp Bourbonnière, east of Lachute, occurred around 4.30 a.m. Tuesday in the Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome, where she had been taken by ambulance in a critical condition during the night. . . . Mr. and Mrs. O'Malley have been residents for a number of years; they were among the first home-owners at Bourbonnière Camps, and Mr. O'Malley was engaged in automobile sales here some years ago.

Another resident of the community, Mr. Raymond McDermott, died at his home on New Year's Day. The McDermotts have lived at Bourbonnière's for the past year, and the late Mr. McDermott had been in poor health for some time past.

In Anglican parish of Mille Isles

Trinity Church, Morin Heights

Christmas services at Trinity Anglican Church brought many people together for worship. Like most churches at the festive season, there were larger congregations, especially on Christmas Eve.

The carol service by candlelight on Christmas Day was led by the choir, under Mr. Carl Elder. The church, with its century-old atmosphere, was beautifully decorated. Altar flowers were in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buxton.

Church of St. Francis

The skiers' services over the holiday season drew hundreds of young people. On Christmas Eve, 350 people crowded the tiny building, which was resplendent in glittering loveliness — the setting arranged by Mrs. John H. Molson and Mrs. Frances Nelles. Two other services were held the same week-end, all conducted by the Rev. Horace G. Baugh.

The New Year's service was attended by many entire families, beginning the New Year in worship.

Christ Church, Mille Isles

The Christmas Eve service was the highlight of the church year, with many attending. The church had been decorated, and the beauty of the evening was reflected in the joyous singing of the congregation. The Rev. H. G. Baugh officiated.

Global paradise now near!

Let's give praise to Jehovah God the great Creator and fountain of Life, and his son our King, Jesus Christ.

Does that sound odd at a time when atomic war threatens to sear all life from the earth? Not if you know it is God's time to turn earth into a paradise. When Jehovah planted paradise in Eden it was His purpose for it to spread till it clothed the entire earth. A crazed world cannot block His purpose. During this generation Jehovah will prepare the ground for the global garden by plowing under this present wilderness of evil. At Armageddon he will "bring to ruin those ruining the earth." (Rev. 11: 18). The righteous war will sweep wicked men and frightening weapons from the earth and will bring the power of Satan and his demons to nothing. In its wake no menaces, human or demonic, will remain to plague the global paradise, for only its advocates will survive the war that clears the way before it.

In that new world, the elements will not storm against it, and animals will be under man's loving domination. Disease will give way to health, life will supplant death, love will replace fear, and men will not even learn war any more. Past woes will be forgotten, "for the former things are passed away." (Rev. 21:4). An idle dream? No, a divine promise sure of fulfillment. Convince yourself by reading the book "New Heavens and a New Earth". You may obtain a copy on a 50 cent contribution.

Candlelight wedding in Christmas season

Lamb-Kerr

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Kerr, at Lakefield, was the setting of a very pretty candlelight, double-ring ceremony on the evening of Wednesday, December 27, when their granddaughter, Judith Doreen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Kerr, of Lachute, was united in marriage to Robert Owen Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lamb, of Lachine, Que.

The Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated, while Mrs. James Pollock played the wedding music. Mrs. Raynald Desjardins, aunt of the bride, as soloist, sang "I'll Walk Beside You" and "Because".

White and red carnations were used to decorate the home.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of white faille with a boat neckline, three-quarter length sleeves and a back bow trimmed with eyelet embroidered lace insets. For her headdress the bride chose a matching pillbox hat with a shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and white baby mums. Her only ornament was a strand of cultured pearls, the gift of the groom.

Miss Sandra Kerr, as maid of honor for her sister, wore a red velvet dress with short sleeves, bouffant skirt and a bustle back. She wore a crown of white baby mums and holly, and carried a matching nosegay bouquet.

Mr. Herbert Petts acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Ian Black and Mr. Harvey Kerr.

A reception was held following the ceremony, and the couple left on their honeymoon, the bride travelling in a turquoise wool dress with beige and brown accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Upon their return they plan to depart for Carol Lake, Labrador, for an undetermined period of time.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Owen Lamb photographed following their wedding, at the home of the bride's grandparents in Lakefield, Que., on Wednesday, December 27. The bride is the former Judith Doreen Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie S. Kerr, Lachute. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Lamb, of Lachine. The couple will reside in Labrador.

Cushing

Sunday School Entertainment

The Christmas Tree and concert of St. Mungo's Sunday School was held on the night of the 23rd, in the church hall. A welcome to the guests was given by little Karen Bradford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers Bradford of Cushing, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bradford, of North River. This welcoming address was a three-verse poem of greeting, composed especially for Karen to use, by her great-great-aunt, Mrs. Archie Graham.

The entire affair was a marked success, thanks to the training of the children by Mrs. H. Bailey and her teaching staff, the Misses Margaret Pearson and Jane Massy — Miss Doris Elliott is also Sunday School organist — Miss A. Davidson and Mrs. H. V. Elliott, pianists for the evening, also Mr. Massy, who helped train the children in their chorus singing. Mrs. A. Taylor, whose little daughter Joanne favored with a lovely vocal solo, also assisted in many ways. Miss Catherine Bailey's piano solo was much enjoyed, as was the vocal duet by the Misses Maureen and Olive Villeneuve. All the young people in the various skits played their parts well. The only really tense moment in the evening was when Santa failed to appear when the call of "Jingle Bells" was sounded, but he eventually turned up — and it was whispered among the adults that the delay was caused by Santa having caught his beard on some object, due to the rather sudden stopping of his reindeer, and it had taken a few moments to get it free.

The Boys and the Frogs

An old Fable tells the story of several boys idly throwing stones at a group of frogs in a pond. "Boys," complained one of the frogs at last, "this may be fun for you but it is death for us."

Too often we do thoughtless things without consideration for others—for example, spending our money solely for pleasure without regard for our family's future. How much better it would be to provide for that future through the medium of Sun Life of Canada's modern life insurance policies.

Life insurance is my profession and I am at your service. Why not call me today? You will be under no obligation.

Family Fun in 1962 Schedule

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"All happy families resemble one another; every unhappy family is unhappy in its own way," wrote Tolstoy in Anna Karenina.

What do you think of this observation? Is it not true that in the strong sense of belonging, in the fine spirit of unity, which good fun gives to a family group, happy families do bear a resemblance to each other? At the same time different families have good times in very different ways.

One good product of TV is the number of families who view certain programs together regularly each week. But TV is a spectator amusement and growing children need active participation in projects. Other forms of leisure time activities prevent TV from having too dominant an influence on the minds and hearts of children.

Look around and you will see the varied ways families enjoy themselves as a group. The Browns are musical and they all love to sing. At least once a week in the evening they gather around the piano and big sister Margaret plays the music for a family sing-song.

The MacKays are keen on games and each year they invest in new equipment. They have space in their cellar for a recreation room, and even mother has promised to try her hand at ping-pong.

The Smiths are athletic and both parents are proud of the tumbling acts which their children have perfected with patience and practice.

There are many other ways families enjoy themselves, — listening to the radio, reading aloud, going to movies, taking walks or motor drives, skiing, skating or tobogganing together, pursuing a handicraft or a photography hobby.

It is not easy for a pre-school youngster to be a good loser or a generous winner. But when mother or dad take time to play simple games with their children, and encourage them in fair play, boys and girls are prepared for group life with chums their own age. It is easier for them to enter into activities in school and community groups happily and whole-heartedly with their friends as they grow older.

Acquaintances and strangers in the outside world are often critical, but in the home circle, because a child feels secure and is encouraged, he can quickly learn new skills. A little praise from Dad for the wooden boat his boy built himself, a piece of furniture which father and son have struggled together to make as a surprise for Mother, these experiences give a boy confidence a few years later when he joins a woodcraft group under a trained instructor. The great thing about family fun is that it trains a child in satisfying, efficient living.

There is a good deal of controversy these days about the benefits and drawbacks of different systems of bringing up children. Emphasis should be placed not on a plan of discipline, but on the atmosphere in the home. Every child should have that wonderfully comforting feeling of "belonging", of being loved for his own sake. If the routine of the family life includes generous time for play as well as work, the children going out from that home are likely to be well-adjusted, useful citizens.

There is nothing which can take the place of a little child's memories of happy times together in the home. "I wonder," boasted Charles Kingsley in a letter to his wife, "I wonder if there is as much laughter in any home in England as in ours?"

Cosy knits for young-fry

Luxurious hand-knit look for young children features Quebec knitwear in softly textured Arnel-Orlon yarn. The new blend, an exclusively Canadian development, creates garments that are light yet warm. They remain fluffy through countless washings by machine or hand, and do not shrink or stretch out of fit. Available in leading department stores and children's specialty shops from coast to coast.

The little boy modelling this sweater is Gregory Jarvis, 20 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jarvis, of Lake Macdonald, Que.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

There may not be any skeletons in your closet, but it's quite likely there is one in the refrigerator. It's the remainder of the New Year turkey.

Here are two good recipes for using leftover turkey. Meaty parts are best for the casserole dish called turkey cassoulet and the bones can be used for a turkey vegetable soup.

Turkey cassoulet: 1½ cups white navy beans; 2 cups water; one 28-ounce can tomatoes (3½ cups); ½ cup chopped onion; 1 clove garlic finely minced; 1½ to 2 tsps. salt; 1 tbsp. sugar; ¼ tsp. pepper; 1 tsp. savory; ½ pound skinless sausage cut in ½ inch pieces; 2 cups diced cooked turkey; 2 tbsp. minced parsley.

Soak beans in cold water to cover for eight hours or overnight. Drain. Place in large saucepan together with water, tomatoes, onion, garlic, salt, sugar and pepper. Cover, bring to a boil. Cook gently for 1½ hours, stirring occasionally. Add savory and sausage and simmer for 30 minutes. In a greased eight-cup casserole arrange half bean mixture, then turkey, then remaining beans. Bake in a moderate oven (350) for 20 minutes. Just before serving sprinkle with minced parsley. Makes six to eight servings.

Turkey Vegetable Soup: One turkey carcass (from 20 to 24 pound turkey); 9 cups water; one 20-ounce can tomatoes (2½ cups); 1 cup sliced celery; 1 cup chopped onion; 1½ tbsp. salt; ½ tsp. poultry seasoning; ¼ tsp. pepper; ½ cup uncooked rice or ½ cup uncooked noodles; 1 package frozen mixed vegetables (11 ounces).

Break turkey carcass into pieces and place in a large kettle. Add water, canned tomatoes, celery, onion, salt, poultry seasoning and pepper. Cover and bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer 1½ hours. Remove bones and strip off meat. Add meat, rice or noodles and mixed vegetables. Cover and continue to simmer until rice or noodles are tender, about 20 minutes. Makes about 10 cups.

Roll Roulettes

This suggestion for turkey roulettes comes from the Poultry Products Institute.

Make a rich baking powder biscuit dough. Roll thin and cut into finely minced turkey which has been moistened with gravy or cream and a little onion. Roll up and bake at 400 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve with gravy or cheese sauce.

For a quick supper dish, try this dilly turkey salad. Combine cubed turkey, diced celery, chopped dill pickles, shredded lettuce and salad dressing or mayonnaise. This salad may be moulded in an oiled ring mould or in individual moulds until chilled and served unmoulded on crisp lettuce, or just pile lightly in a lettuce-lined salad bowl or on salad plates and garnish with slices of dill pickle and a sprinkling of paprika.

For scalloped turkey with noodles, combine cubed turkey, cooked and drained noodles, canned pimento cut in strips and diced green pepper in a well-seasoned cheese sauce. Place in a buttered baking dish, top with a layer of buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 20 or 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated and golden brown on top.

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

THREE WISE WOMEN

It is this time, at New Year's, that we assess our losses and gains, our assets and depreciation, and rejoice in our successes and regret our transgressions.

Why it is human nature to choose this particular time to take stock of ourselves has always intrigued me. This year, rather than review my own conquests or shortcomings, I became fascinated with the way three women whom I know well have created more satisfying lives for themselves while contributing to the pleasure and happiness of others.

So many women today kick against the pricks of housekeeping monotony. Most of them have a desire to enrich their lives but are at a loss to know how to go about it. In choosing these three women to write about, I realized not every person is born with creative genius as one of my friends was, nor is every woman born with an inspired sense of salesmanship. On the other hand, the talent of the third has been developed by many, but it is her reason for establishing her business and her dogged determination to make it a success that may inspire others.

Problems No Problems

Carol Proctor has so many facets to her creative genius that it will be difficult to condense her story. She had problems. An obstreperous family of two boys and a daughter to raise, a mother to care for and farm chores to do seven days a week. She went through various hobbies from bird watching and nature lore when the children were small, to ceramics and metal craft when she was confined to her home to care for her invalid mother. She became an authority on every species of wild flower, tree, fungi, moss and bark which she painted with water colors in fairy-like illustrations for the tales she wrote to amuse her youngsters. Later she studied books on ceramics, modelled figurines which brought a good price in gift shops, taught herself to enamel on copper and fire the results in a kiln her husband purchased for her.

When her mother died she had one desire. To bring to other senior citizens some of the joy of creative craftsmanship. She volunteered as a craft teacher in York County Home for the Aged in Ontario. For years she worked under trying conditions until the new home was completed last year. Recently she accepted the position of a paid craft teacher in this provincial home for senior citizens. Last month, in the new building, the first sale of articles made by elderly people who eagerly await her coming each day to open the craft shop, realized $500.00. Carol Proctor says there is nothing more satisfying than watching latent talent develop.

From Food to Fashion

Bea Dailey's career is just as outstanding. Childless herself, she helped raise a niece and a nephew. Living with her during the school term, they attended high school while she ran a small restaurant in her own home. She soon became famous among travelers and local business men for her good food, home-made pies and ice cream. When this business was at its peak her health worsened. She considered retirement and actually closed the doors of her culinary fame forever as far as the public was concerned. Then Bea Dailey rented a shop further uptown and started a dress shop.

Since then she has moved to larger quarters and extended her fashion line to include millinery, sportswear, and lingerie. She has had to buck the threat of discou stores, shopping plazas and shopping habits of local wom who are constantly baited spend their dollars in metropo an stores. Style sense, good sal manship and her pleasant pers ality were her investment capit The wholesale houses she de with knew they could rely these attributes and Bea Dail has never disappointed them.

Third Success Story

My third success story is abo a person who also started h business career in her hom Terry Santoro learned the art hairdressing from her elder si ter who, with her mother, co ducted a beauty salon at the fro of their living quarters. She b came so adept that she was so working long hours, six days week. After her marriage sh established her own beauty pa lor. Through two pregnancies sh continued to build this busine She now employs two girls, h rented and remodelled an adj cent store, purchased a home an seen her husband through a se ious period of recession in h line of business.

Undoubtedly it was their me tal attitude, their determinatio their instinct for a fuller lif which led these women to su satisfying success.

Proprietors, merchants, councillors —

New sales tax for filtration plant passed by Council on divided vote

It was a stormy session of Council last week which decided on a two-percent sales tax hoist to meet the financing of Lachute's filtration plant. This was a weighty and portentous verdict; with the two percent provincial and the two percent local education levy on retail sales, the tax now adds up to six percent.

The resolution came in the form of an amendment to an original motion for a water tax (not exceeding $60, to be adjusted to needs of the present budget). On passing of the amendment two aldermen left the meeting, Dr. J.-P. Dorion and Lauréat Laurin, who declared (1) that they could not accept a delay in the budget and (2) that they could not agree to financing on hypothetical figures for the current year (the sales tax being an unknown quantity). . . . The meeting broke up with the withdrawal of the two councillors.

Proprietors' Views

At the previous Council meeting, merchants had attended in force to object to a two-percent sales tax. At the present meeting, however, it was property-holders' night; there was indication there had been an organized get-together of proprietors to express their views and oppose a water tax.

Opinions were freely exchanged among the councillors, storekeepers, and proprietors, and at one period in the proceedings there seemed to be a balance of favor for increase of water tax. It was a matter of surprise therefore when a 5-4 vote was given in support of the amendment and the two-percent sales tax.

The principal motion was sponsored by Dr. J.-P. Dorion and seconded by Linton Armstrong. Ald. Laurin and Dr. L. A. Middleton had also signified their support of the water tax.

Split Decision

Trans-Canada "Dominion" derailed —

South Shore train wreck spectacular spill on CPR

St. Eugene, Ont. (CP) — Two Ottawa railwaymen climbed out of their overturned diesel locomotive Sunday morning with only minor injuries after the C.P.R.'s Dominion train jumped the track near St. Eugene, Ont.

Engineer Harold Greenlaw, 46, and Fireman Frank Alexander, both of Ottawa, are recuperating in the Ottawa Civic Hospital. Fireman Alexander, a 17-year veteran with the railway, sustained a slight concussion and cuts and bruises to the back, shoulder and hand. Engineer Greenlaw, a railwayman for 25 years, was less seriously injured. He received cuts and bruises to his right hip.

Three diesel locomotives, eight express baggage cars and two passenger cars were derailed in the accident which occurred at 8.38 a.m. Sunday.

The train, bound for Montreal from Vancouver, left Ottawa for Montreal at 7.15 a.m.

Buses to Montreal

A C.P.R. spokesman said that a number of passengers complained "they were shaken up a bit" but there were no severe injuries. They were transferred to buses and taken to Montreal.

Farmers brought sleighs to the wreck and transported the passengers across fields waist-deep in snow to the school bus.

The derailment occurred as the train was crossing a trestle over a creek three miles west of St. Eugene, between Vankleek Hill and Rigaud.

It was not immediately known what caused the derailment. But police believe it may have been ice on the tracks or a broken rail.

The derailment — one of the most spectacular in the area for some time, sent the three locomotives, eight baggage cars and two passenger cars careening off the rails on both sides of the track. Two diesel units rolled down a 20-foot embankment and overturned. Both were badly smashed.

Stays on Rails

The passenger cars, however, remained upright and the last unit on the train, a sleeper car joined at Sudbury, remained on the rails.

Automatic brakes were credited with stopping the passenger cars rapidly when the diesel units jumped the tracks.

The line is the C.P.R.'s main link between Montreal and Ottawa. There are two alternate routes, and rail traffic was rerouted via Smiths Falls division to avoid delays.

Week-end storm blocks highways, causes problems

The Big Storm of February 1961 will linger long in memory as the most damaging ice deluge of recent years in Eastern Canada, more particularly in the Montreal area. However, each winter brings storms of varying severity causing trouble to transport or commnications, or both. One such snowfall, with high wind and freezing temperatures, swept this area last week-end.

Saturday was Epiphany, a public holiday for many — which may have accounted for the delayed attack on local thoroughfares deep in snow. Saturday night brought a high-velocity blizzard, and there were difficulties experienced in Sunday traffic, affecting church-goers and visitors to the mountain resorts. Cars were snowed-in, driveways were blocked, and highways impassable in many sections. Rail traffic was the only means by which weekenders could return Sunday evening to their jobs and duties in the city, several bus routes to the northern villages being suspended.

From district points in our readership area, it is reported that Sunday church services were cancelled, and schools were closed on Monday. All bus routes to Lachute High School were reported operating on schedule; however, in one section of Chatham, a number of homes were inaccessible and the children missed school for the day.

Power Interruption

There were a few minor interruptions in the Gatineau Power circuits, the worst incident having affected a stretch of power line from Grenville, eastward to and including, Cushing. Here the power was cut for 2 hours and 35 minutes when a branch fell and broke an insulator, around Stonefield.

Services of a snowplow were called for, but before this could be procured, Gatineau crews on snowshoes set out from Grenville and from Carillon over the blocked riverfront road, and the damage was discovered and repaired.

Bottle salvage venture by Boy Scout Troop

Thousands of empty bottles — of all shapes, sizes and colors — were collected and processed through an efficient production line of Boy Scouts, leaders and other citizens, at the Gun Park of the 37th Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Artillery Reserve Unit on Robert Street, Lachute, last Saturday.

Bottles which were re-usable were decapped, sorted and packaged for shipment or direct delivery to customers; those for which no market exists, were sorted as to color and broken up for bulk sale as scrap glass.

To a casual visitor this whole operation was interesting and impressive; its success obviously required the organization and cooperative effort of many people and it will undoubtedly contribute not only to the financial independence of the Scout Troop, but also to the improved housekeeping of a substantial number of basements and garages in Lachute and environs!

(A more complete report on results, and mention of those cooperating in this effort, will be furnished by the Boy Scout District public relations officer for next issue.)

A busy group at the Artillery armoury, Robert Street, which served as a warehouse for the collection and sorting of bottles. Enthusiastic Boy Scouts, with the guidance of adult citizens and with 40-odd vehicles, took part in this effort.

Fellowship is keynote at Lions' holiday meeting

There was a small but congenial turnout for the Lions Club meeting — held last week in the holiday season to avoid any interruption of the schedule. New Year's greetings were exchanged, and the fellowship aspect of service club membership had full rein, with no important business on the agenda.

Ex-president Dr. Eric Mongeon handed out cigars, having become the father of a son that day, January 2.

Key Raymond accepted the organizing of a bingo for February, and Geo. Locke reported satisfactorily on finances of the skating rink. There was some discussion on complimentary memberships available for poor families, and means of providing skates where they were needed.

President Ernest Emmett chaired the meeting, and Keith Clarke, secretary, spoke on dates and commitments of inter-club importance.

Asks inquiry into affairs at Carillon

Rodrigue Durocher

Information is received that a request for a royal inquiry into affairs of Hydro-Quebec, particularly in the matter of power construction projects, has been submitted to the provincial government by Rodrigue Durocher, Liberal candidate for Argenteuil in the last provincial election.

According to information, Mr. Durocher directed his request for an investigation directly to Premier Lesage last week, following repeated complaints, on abuse and irregularities at Carillon. Exact nature of the complaints, however, was not stated by the Watchman's informant.

Ski expert heard as speaker at Rotary Club

Guest speaker at the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club on January 4 was Ross Cole, the ski director at Ayers Ski Centre, Carling Lake, who is also president of the Quebec Division of the Canadian Ski Patrol.

Ross talked about the work of the Ski Patrol throughout the Laurentians, mainly in aiding injured skiers and administering first aid if and when necessary. He also stated that the work is strictly voluntary, and outlined the qualifications necessary to be a patroller.

He then spoke about the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance, which is Canada-wide and uses a uniform set of ski instructions throughout Canada. Here again, qualifications are a "must"; these are acquired by a week-long session of guidance and study by the applicants — then, only if they are successful, are they permitted to give ski instruction. During this week of night and day study, they are taught the best methods of learning to ski, with all kinds of equipment, and also first-aid.

Mr. Cole then showed the members some of the latest in skiis and harness and emphasized the importance of using safety equipment, of which there is a wide choice on the market today.

He stated that skiing is one of the fastest-growing family sports and that those who are about to purchase equipment should do so very carefully; there is such a wide choice available that the purchase of the wrong type of equipment could prove very dangerous, not only to those using it but also to others on the slopes.

Mr. Cole's visit was very appropriately timed, as skiing is just getting into high gear, and his talk was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Will complete calls in Scout bottle canvass

Due to rugged weather conditions last Saturday, the Lachute Boy Scouts were unable to answer a number of rural calls in their canvass for bottles and scrap glass. The boys and their escorts will endeavor to make amends next Saturday, and will call on all householders who kindly notified them of contributions on hand, particularly in the rural routes and St. Andrews area.

Any other residents having bottles to be collected, may kindly telephone LO 2-4513 or LO 2-6776.

Three-fold tragedy in fire at St. Benoit farmhouse

Two little girls and their baby brother died early Tuesday morning in their flaming farmhouse near St. Benoit — a few feet from their frantic parents, who finally had to leap from a window to save their own lives.

The tragedy in the Lake of Two Mountains community claimed the lives of Monique Dufresne, nine; her sister Manon, four; and brother Mario, two.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jean Paul Dufresne, 42 and 45, were taken to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cartierville. They were reported in serious condition with burns, injuries and possible fractures caused by their leap from the second-floor bedroom window into shallow snow covering the frozen ground.

The 9-room farmhouse sheathed in red imitation brick shingles was burned to its foundation.

Flames were visible for miles around at the height of the blaze.

Mr. Dufresne's mother, Mrs. Leon Dufresne, 73, and another of his children, Georgette, 17, escaped from their room on the ground floor of the 2½-storey building. The fifth child, Jeannette, 15, was spending the night with relatives nearby.

Lionel Leduc, whose farm is across the road from Dufresne's, said he was awakened during Monday night by "the sound of an explosion." Minutes later he saw the Dufresne farmhouse engulfed in flames.

Firemen from St. Benoit, Laval-sur-le-Lac and St. Eustache were unable to gain control of the fire until 5.30 a.m.

The sides of two barns near the house were hosed to protect them, and the livestock was evacuated.

The rubble was still smouldering on Tuesday when firefighters recovered the bodies. They were taken to the morgue at Ste. Scholastique.

Neighbors quoted Dufresne as saying, before being taken to hospital, that he and his wife opened their bedroom door to try to reach the children. "But the flames were all around," one neighbor said, "and it was all they could do to get back to their window, smash it and jump out."

Police report for December shows traffic accidents and numerous calls

The police report for December showed $552.50 collection in traffic fines and $440 for other infractions; $8.50 for a tax permit; $3 for a dog license; $26 for towing of cars illicitly parked in prohibited hours. Total revenue was $1,030 — according to the report submitted to Council by the police commissioner, Ald. L. W. Armstrong.

During the month, police officers answered 347 service calls; investigated 48 traffic accidents; lodged 15 persons in the cells; arrested 26, and took 110 cases before the court. There were 106 "tickets" issued; eight persons injured; three reported missing and found; three autos stolen and

Winter Camping Details

The overnight camping outing for Scout Leaders, Patrol Leaders and Seconds will be held at the Harrington Winter Campsite on Saturday and Sunday, January 20 and 21. Each troop is requested to bring its own tent, cooking and eating utensils and food. The Lachute Troop's large tent, which will be supplied with a stove, will be used for sleeping, but all individuals are being instructed to wear adequate winter clothing and to use double sleeping bags or blanket liners. Skis or snowshoes should be taken along, if these are available.

Arrival at the Harrington Tree Farm is planned for 10 a.m. Saturday and campsites will be cleared by 2 p.m. Sunday. This event has been planned and the program designed primarily to provide an opportunity for the uninitiated to become familiar with approved cold weather camping techniques — to gain first-hand experience of the special challenges, responsibilities, opportunities and thrills of outdoor living in wintertime Quebec.

District Scoutmaster B. A. Jenkins has asked all scoutmasters to let him know, not later than January 13, exactly how many will be attending from each troop.

Transportation

Leaders, group committees and sponsors of Boy Scouts of Canada are reminded of the importance of checking on the insurance carried by private car and bus owners whose vehicles are used for transporting Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs. In certain cases it may be found, for example, that school buses are licensed and insured only for specific routes and times of the week.

Insurance does not prevent accidents but it is doubly tragic to learn, after accidents have occurred, that insurance is ineffective or inadequate.

It is, of course, against the law to transport people in the body of a truck which is licensed to carry only produce.

Chatham T'wp tax rate $1.50 per $100 valuation

At the regular session of Chatham Municipal Council, chaired by Mayor Roméo Foucault, approval was given to By-law 123 setting a tax rate of $1.50 per $100 property valuation for the year 1962.

A grant was accepted from the Quebec Department of Roads towards winter road maintenance.

The secretary was instructed to send a registered notice to all property-holders in arrears of taxes for two years or more.

Bills totalling $300.40 were passed for payment.

Argenteuil Outdoors

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The past couple of weeks have been excellent for exploring the bush, and seeing things not previously visible. With not too much snow, around Christmas it was possible to visit familiar places with little trouble.

Going into the Blueberry Marsh, for instance, revealed a treasure-house of signs. Some of you may have visited this area, so you will know where I am telling about: An old boiler with some pipe still connected to it is visible; this must have been for logging earlier in the century. At any rate, no snow was around for hundreds of feet. Moss was still growing. Just past this old boiler the swamp starts, and believe it or not, seven deer were spotted out in the open. Droppings from all kinds of game were also seen, including bear. By now, this animal must have holed up, but at the time I guess it was still trying to get a free feed. Partridge were around in quantity and a hen pheasant (Ringneck) was spotted. Of course, rabbits were there just for the taking. This area is not visited much by anyone, so that would account for their numbers.

This is one of the best feeding spots for all game that I have visited in a good number of jaunts. Birds of almost every description were in evidence (winter variety), and the chickadees were abundant. Eating lunch, some of them came down towards the fire and waited for crumbs and scraps. I think if more time had been spent there, these same little creatures would have come down and taken it from my hands. Not too many jays were seen at first, but as the swamp was covered a little more, they showed up. A couple of them were the real Northern type, almost black in coloring, with very little of the beautiful blues usually associated with them in this district. Another thing, they were not nearly as well fed as the others. I guess they had travelled some distance, hence their condition.

Almost all the places in the County that we covered, it was the same with the birds too. Around Morin Heights, the partridge were seen almost everywhere we went, even walking on the roads looking for scratch. I was told of some snowy owls that had been seen around White Forest Lodge area, but did not have any luck seeing them.

* * *

Fishing has started in earnest in local areas, and some good catches are being taken at St. Placide. Pike are also showing up in quantity, and I have seen some very nice ones. It will not be too long until the ice will be covered with anglers from all over. This is a sport increasing in popularity every year. You can spot the gents, and ladies too, who make a practice of winter fishing, just by their equipment, personal and otherwise. The tyro soon catches on though, and considers himself a veteran after about four outings. And anyone who braves the cold, etc., for sport, is a veteran as far as I am concerned. The real test is when they fall into one of their own holes, and can still come back for more!

An expedition after rabbits last Thursday only emphasized one thing I keep repeating: the more you think you know of wildlife, the less you really do know. This area we covered had everything, both for birds and fur-bearing animals, but in all our walking, only one rabbit was seen and not a bird of any description. This should have been a very productive spot for birds, as there was seed of all kinds available. The same applied to rabbits — some of the best feed they could get, but not a bunny showed up. It's hard to figure out why these animals should leave a district so abundant and take up residence in some other part of the bush. A funny thing about all this — one spot we covered did not have a single track of anything, it was virtually DEAD. Yet a mile from there, tracks showed up again.

I was told of a rather unusual occurrence at one of our Provincial Parks this past summer. The party concerned have a dog, and were told beforehand that their pet could not go into the park with them. However, on taking the trip into this park, they saw numerous dogs and cats roaming around that other people had brought along. Going back this summer, they therefore took their dog with them, but on checking in, they were told to have the dog kenneled down the street, or they couldn't enter the park. The name and information was supplied to the people by one of the Park personnel, and said in no uncertain terms that this was the place they would have to board their pets. . . . Things like this make you wonder just what is going on, and why our Province gets such a bad name in other provinces. We all have brains, and it doesn't take much figuring to see what is happening.

* * *

People on snowshoes are seen more frequently these days. More and more it is becoming evident that there are other forms of sport than sitting at home watching TV. I had the opportunity of seeing some of the crop of snowshoes this year at one of our local stores. These are better than last year, if that was possible. All hand-made and of excellent workmanship, it certainly is great to see something in which pride has been taken in their construction. A new type of shoe is also being manufactured by a company in B.C. This should open new horizons for the shoe man. All aluminum, very light and almost unbreakable. As to the types manufactured, I do not have these at present, but hope to have the information in a couple of weeks. I understand these shoes have been tested for a couple of years by trappers, forest rangers, etc., so they should be practical by now.

* * *

With the cold and snow finally settling into the district, here's another reminder — Don't forget the birds! Get the feed and suet out in quantity for them. They will need it now; besides you want to watch the antics of some of the moochers. I have been spreading scratch alongside our cedars, and have five partridge coming down from the hills to feed. Nearly every morning and evening they can be spotted filling up. Of course, the other birds aren't forgotten. Suet tied up in a silk stocking with a few holes punched in it, will make an excellent suet bag; or if you want to take the time, make them some suet sticks by melting the suet down, drop in a little bit of seed, let it cool, then hang it up outside. A stupid way of making them, I'll admit. To get them shaped, pour the grease into a heavy paper rod, like a candle-holder only longer. That way you have the stick. The seed in the suet, makes a little extra treat for them.

Fire Report

There were nine fire calls during the month and one practice session, according to the report of Fire Chief Don MacCulloch. Of the nine alarms, seven were within the town limits (also a false alarm, December 23) and one was received from Ayersville.

Merchants' views on paying the filtration bill

LACHUTE TOWN Council has approved a two-percent municipal sales tax. The pros and cons of this method of paying for filtered water are many; there are equally numerous arguments for an increased property tax, water tax or business tax.

Lachute's merchants naturally oppose the sales tax, with that oft-used argument, "The people will go to Hawkesbury to shop, where the tax is much less". Several merchants claim they have noticed an increase in business with the adoption of the Ontario sales tax some months ago. If a boost in Lachute's sales tax means losing this new business, it seems that other means of finding the money would be more desirable.

Business tax will not bring the necessary revenues; and our merchants have repeatedly rejected the installation of parking meters, a good source of revenue. In reply to this argument, it may be noted that Hawkesbury has parking meters, and a good number of people from this area shop in Hawkesbury, meters or not.

The majority of properties in Lachute are taxed to the full extent, but there are a few chronic complainers who have managed to keep their valuation low, while at the same time agitating for better water, police and fire protection. An increase in the general property tax might curtail what small but steady growth Lachute has seen in recent years.

This leaves but one other source of revenue, that is, a water tax. The great majority of Lachute's population — businessmen and residents alike — have for many years complained of the poor quality of Lachute's water. The best solution is to let these people pay for it, in proportion to their water consumption.

Council has made its decision, not wholly to the public satisfaction; it is possibly too late to change. But if a higher sales tax is going to drive away much-needed business, an alternative solution might still be considered, or perhaps applied next year — and water meters appear to be the most fair to all concerned.

"In season" the year 'round

IT IS out of season to be writing of beaches and picnic spots, but this comment in the Macdonald Farm Journal last fall was drawn to our attention recently as being worthy of repetition. . . . It is never "out of season" to appreciate a need, or to plug for an improvement, which might benefit Quebec residents and Quebec economy.

"Not long ago we went to the beach — in New York State. We weren't the only Quebecers there. In this particular park and beach two out of every three cars had Quebec license plates! These people had driven about 100 miles from Montreal to a public beach no more than 6 rods long. Any one of our lakes would have served as well had our authorities but reserved a few rods of lakeshore for the public, and supplied it with a few acres of park equipped with picnic tables. Until this is done Quebec will continue to lag behind other states and provinces in tourism.

"The message ought to be clear enough. Let's have some public recreation areas near our cities. We certainly have enough submarginal land. Every citizen, especially farmers, should be concerned enough to put the bee on provincial and municipal authorities."

No "golden egg

ONE OF THE WORST features of taxation as it is managed in Canada is the lack of recognition of the fact that, no matter which government levies a tax, there is only one group of taxpayers to pay it — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review. Thus municipalities try to get grants from provincial or federal sources, and provincial governments want the Dominion government to assume some share of their expenses, just as if there were separate municipal, provincial and Dominion taxpayers. The recent annual meeting of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities asked for all sorts of grants from the Dominion Government to enable them to provide things for their towns and villages that the local taxpayers could not or would not afford.

It is high time that politicians stopped thinking of governments as the sources of wealth and remembered that the money comes necessarily from taxpayers, no matter how they may try to disguise the method of extortion. What is worse than forgetting about the taxpayer as the source of all government funds is the politicians' neglect of the fact that, once a new form of expenditure is established, it becomes a vested right of those who receive it and those civil servants who get the job of handling the disbursements. It becomes virtually impossible to get rid of such things as baby bonuses, old-age pensions, support prices for farm products and subsidies of various kinds. Some of these may be justifiable, but no politician is going to risk his career by opposing any form of handout as long as the beneficiaries of it can be made to believe that they are getting something for nothing.

The Seaway problem

THREE YEARS AGO there was great fanfare when Queen Elizabeth and President Eisenhower opened the St. Lawrence Seaway. Ocean ships were able for the first time to penetrate the heart of North America, and Great Lakes ports were looking to a future of great promise.

The Seaway recently closed down its 135-mile series of locks after its third year of operation. It's a good time to take a look at how much has been accomplished. . . .

It was originally predicted that in the first three years it would carry 87,000,000 tons of cargo. Actually 64,000,000 tons have passed through the $400,000,000 inland waterway in that time.

The estimate for 1961 had been 33,000,000 tons. The figure will probably be reckoned at about 23,5000,000.

More important, the tolls collected in the first three seasons are far short of what had been projected as necessary to make the Seaway self-sustaining.

Revenue was less than $12,000,000 this past year, as against predictions of $17,000,000.

Upshot is that some demands for increased tolls are being heard, particularly in the United States where it originally took considerable pressure to get Congress to approve construction of the Seaway.

It's evident, then, that the Seaway hasn't quite lived up to expectations. But it must be remembered that there was a general recession in North America during its first two years of operation. And last year the demand for iron ore from Quebec fell off with American steel mills operating at less than 70 per cent of capacity.

Seaway enthusiasts insist that the waterway has a great future ahead and confidently predict that within seven years it will be earning enough tolls to pay for itself. They contend that three years is not a long enough time to provide a fair test of whether tolls are realistic.

Another argument is that higher tolls might tend to discourage new ships from entering the Seaway run. That in turn would further cut into revenue.

While the controversy over tolls promises to continue, it must be remembered that the Seaway's development is closely tied to the economy of this continent. The Seaway's success is a measure of the continent's success.

PAT AND MIKE, STILL WITH US!

Father Kelly was paying a sick call on Pat in the hospital where he was laid up with a severe case of arthritis.

"Now you see what I meant years ago, Pat. When you were a young man I warned you many times that, if you didn't mend your ways, some day your sins would catch up with you. But you wouldn't listen. 'Wine, Women and Song' was your favorite expression — and now look where you are. Flat on your back with arthritis, and for no other reason but your fondness of pleasure, drinking to excess, eating and smoking too much. You have only yourself to blame."

"But father," said Pat. "Are you sure that that would be the cause of my present condition?"

"Absolutely," explained the priest. "Nothing in the world but the life you have led would bring on arthritis."

"Well, I'm sorry to learn that," replied Pat. "Only this morning I was reading in the paper that the Pope is laid up with arthritis."

* * *

And in another ward of the same hospital, Mike was under observation before undergoing a serious operation. He asked to see the chief surgeon who was to operate the following morning.

"I feel very nervous about this business," he said to the surgeon. "Tell me frankly, what are my chances of survival?"

"The best in the world, Mike," replied the surgeon. "You are a very lucky man. Statistics show that only ten per cent of patients survive this operation. I have operated on nine patients for this ailment, and they all died. You are the tenth. You are bound to recover."

How did Nova Scotia Get its Name?

In 1621 the suggestion of a Scot was adopted for the founding of New Scotland in the New World. In that year New Scotland was granted to Sir Wm. Alexander and its name took the form of Nova Scotia in his Latin charter. Two settlements were established by the Scots in 1629. One of those was Charlesfort, near the French Port Royal, by then abandoned by the French; the other was Rosemar at Baleme Cove near Louisbourg in Cape Breton Island. Following the treaty, restoration of Port Royal to France in 1632, most of the Scots returned to Scotland, but a few remained, married Acadian girls and raised families whose descendants are to be found in Nova Scotia today.

How was Montreal Founded?

The site of the island city was visited by Jacques Cartier on his voyage of exploration up the St. Lawrence in 1535-36. There he found the village of Hochelaga where more than 1,000 Indians celebrated his arrival with bonfires and feasting. Cartier named the mountain, or the slopes on which the village was located, Mont Royal. Samuel de Champlain first visited the site in 1603 but by then Hochelaga seems to have disappeared. In 1611 Champlain founded a settlement there that he named Place Royale, but strife between the Huron and Iroquois tribes did not permit it to be maintained.

Thirty years later, Paul de Chomedy, Sieur de Maisonneuve, arrived to found a permanent settlement named Ville Marie de Montreal, with dwellings, chapel, hospital and other buildings protected from Indian attack by a stockade. In 1644, Louis XIV granted the settlement its first charter and Chomedy was appointed its first governor. During the first mass said to mark the foundation, these prophetic words were uttered by Father Vimont. . . "What you see is only a grain of mustard seed . . . but it is so animated by faith and religion that it must be that God has great designs for it."

Almost three hundred years after Cartier first set foot on the island, Montreal was incorporated as a city — in 1832 — with a population of 40,000.

COURAGEOUS HOUSEWIFE

At the Alberta Farmers' Union convention in Edmonton, a delegate hit out at "turncoats" on the farm who might be using margarine. A farm housewife then stood up and admitted that she used margarine at times because she couldn't afford butter. She spoke against a motion to ban colored margarine.

According to the Canadian Press story, she then "sat down amid the stony silence of surrounding dairymen."

Silence there may have been. A stony silence — I doubt it. I know a few dairy farmers, and plenty of other farmers. They may not favor margarine, colored or uncolored, but they are not stony toward any man or woman with the intestinal fortitude to be straightforward. Fact is, I'd wager there were quite a number in that room who used margarine themselves and who had a good deal of respect for the little lady who up and said so.

Sure it is good business for dairy farmers to use their own products! No one has ever argued against that. It is good business for all Canadians to use our Canadian products whenever they can. I can't blame dairy farmers for using and promoting butter for all they are worth — it is time they promoted it and advertised it to the people instead of to governments.

But margarine is a good food product. It uses vegetable oils grown on farms. It is not a synthetic thing. It is recommended in Canada's Good Health Rules. To suggest that farm women who use it because they can't afford butter are being "turncoats" is pretty rough talk. The farm organization officials who have so conducted the dairy business that farm women turn to another product ought to be asking questions of themselves and their methods.

The farm organizations of Canada can use more little ladies of conviction who will get up at meetings and say what they think. Nothing could harm farmers more than a leadership clique which professes to find solutions for everything in the benevolence of governments. Nothing could do more damage than an atmosphere in which truth is met with stony silence.

Farmers, dairymen or otherwise, would do well to get this margarine ban off their backs. It has lost them friends and even made many bitter enemies. It hasn't helped them, it has hurt them. The energy wasted in this rediculous hassle should have been used to find ways and means of producing better butter at lower prices.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Ringworm, a nasty fungus disease of the skin, can be cured by a new pill discovered in Britain.

The old treatment was to dab the skin with chemicals, destroying the fungi that were growing there. Sometimes it took a long time to kill this miniature mushroom garden. Sometimes the infection spread to hair and fingernails, causing dangerous and annoying complications.

Now the patient just swallows an antibiotic called griseofulvin, which makes its way into the bloodstream and from here to the skin, where it kills the fungi.

The medicine itself is made from a fungus. British Information Service says it is "a product of a green mould found, for example, on the skin of rotten oranges."

Discovered in 1939, it has been used against fungus diseases in plants. Now the scientists have learned that the stuff is effective against ringworm in people.

How did they find this out? British Information Service does not tell us.

Was it a case of a brave scientist hazarding his life to conquer the scourge of ringworm? Or was there a laboratory hand who just happened to catch ringworm, and had the habit of moving from one test tube to another, sampling the contents — until by lucky coincidence he guzzled a flask of griseofulvin? Or did he just happen to bite into a rotten orange?

This little drama of medicine may remain untold.

However, ringworm is no joke. I caught it at least twice as a child, from fondling cats, and it made me come out in unpleasant itching blotches.

Far worse than the physical annoyance of ringworm was the shadow of moral shame that went with it. Somehow I got the feeling that there was a social disgrace attached to ringworm; that the disease implied uncleanliness.

I remember my mother telephoning the mother of some playmates to announce that a red spot on my arm had been diagnosed as ringworm. The voice at the other end of the telephone was inaudible, but I could hear the receiver buzzing with fierce noises, and see my mother's face registering shock and dismay.

As a matter of fact, there used to be a shadow of disgrace in catching anything.

People spoke of tuberculosis in hushed tones — as some people speak of cancer now. Out there in the dark world, all kinds of germs — from leprosy to barber's itch — lay waiting to feed upon the unwary.

This wasn't long ago. Some of these much-feared diseases had already been conquered, but much of the old horror and disgrace clung to their names.

Bacteria and various savage pollywogs were the demons that haunted people in the first half of the 20th century. A wise man didn't tempt fate by using their names frivolously. People who had been bitten by these modern demons were mildly accursed, until the spell wore off.

The times changed dramatically. Almost every year brought news of some victory over a dread disease. Some cures came so rapidly that doctors learned about them from the Reader's Digest in their own waiting-rooms.

Ringworm is the latest one to go. I won't miss it. Nobody, to my knowledge, is sad about the loss of the good old diseases.

Which one will science conquer next — athlete's foot?

During the past year the Baby Fold has been handled with effect and good co-operation.

The inspirational messages by the Rev. W. B. Rosborough, the music by the choir, the service rendered by all officers of the church, teachers and officers of the Sunday School, have been deeply appreciated, as well as any assistance by others to carry on the vital and important work of this church. . . . The congregation enters the new year of 1962 with a hope and prayer for "Peace".

We wish to thank all our customers for their patronage in purchasing their Christmas trees this season, and hope to be able to offer the same service next year. We also take this opportunity to wish all friends a prosperous and peaceful New Year.

Two Recent Drawings

Winners of a pre-Christmas drawing at the Cadieux Jewelry Store, Lachute, were — men's wrist watch, Alfred Carrière, St. Andrews East; ladies' ring, Mrs. Leonie Marcoux, Brownsburg.

Evasion not so easy

SPEEDERS BEWARE! Motorists could evade the old tripod radar traps that were easy to see standing on the side of a road, but Canadian police will soon be equipped with the above streamlined radar device. Mounted on the side of police cars, they will be less obvious to speed-prone motorists.

Lady resident mourned by many friends

Late Mrs. Herbert Cowan

On January 4 at the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, death came suddenly and quietly to Laura Lavina Matilda Noble, beloved wife of Herbert Cowan, and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Noble, Lachute. She had spent her lifetime in Lachute, and although she had been in failing health the past few months, had always kept her bright and cheerful smile.

The late Mrs. Cowan was in her 52nd year. She was married in September, 1938, to Herbert Cowan, who is left to mourn her passing, as well as her loved mother and father.

The funeral, held from St. Simeon's Anglican Church on Saturday afternoon, January 6, was largely attended. Service was conducted by the Rev. C. R. Lang, assisted by the Rev. W. C. LeCras. Hymns sung were, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Forever with the Lord". Pall-bearers were — Emerson, Gerald and Stanley Noble, cousins, George and Jack Cowan, and Bobby Hay, nephews.

The remains were laid to rest in the Lachute Protestant Cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes evidenced the respect in which the deceased was held.

Bridge League resumes games

The first meeting of the Argenteuil Bridge League in 1962 will take place at Lachute Legion Hall on Monday, January 15. This will be the seventh game of the schedule, and as yet no one has won more than one match. Even in the race for season's honors, there seems to be quite a scramble at the top, with Mrs. Pollock setting the pace.

Winners of the sixth tournament were Mervyn Hicks and Bill Mann, playing N-S, and Mrs. Booth and Mrs. Thorpe in the E-W position.

Monday's meeting, to begin at 8 p.m., will include a short discussion on the playing of bridge for Duplicate points. There are some differences in strategy which can affect the outcome of each board.

After Armageddon — God's New World

"For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope."
— Romans 15.4.

JEHOVAH GOD AND CHRIST JESUS

Since "there are many 'gods' and many 'lords'," the true God has a personal name to distinguish him from all other gods: "Thou alone, whose name is Jehovah, art the Most High over all the earth." And referring to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, God said to Moses: "But by my name Jehovah I was not known to them." Jesus made this name known to his followers: "I have made your name manifest to the men you gave me." Jehovah's witnesses today likewise make known Jehovah's name: "Ye are my witnesses, saith Jehovah, and I am God." — Exodus 6:3; Psalm 83:18; Isaiah 43:10-12; John 17:6; 1 Corinthians 8:5.

Jehovah's first creation was his Son: "the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation by God," "the firstborn of all creation." (Colossians 1:15; Revelation 3:14). Before coming to earth he was known as the Word, or Logos.

LIFE IN A NEW WORLD

Do you repeat the "Lord's Prayer" with its clause, "Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth"? Then you should be vitally interested in Jehovah God's long-promised new world.

CHRIST'S RANSOM SACRIFICE

That his name might be vindicated, that His purpose regarding the earth might be realized, and that men who kept integrity might get life, Jehovah sent His Son into the world: "to give his soul a ransom in exchange for many," and to "bear witness to the truth." (Matthew 20:28; John 17:4; 18:37.)

"For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it."

It is already the hour to awake from sleep, and likewise alert others.

Jehovah God's kingdom by Jesus Christ is destined to end man's every affliction and woe. Extension of its power to the earth inside this generation will be the greatest blessing in man's history. Already it is his most thrilling news. Learn this good news and be truly awake to the times!

Christ Jesus put God's kingdom first. He counseled his followers to do likewise and taught them to pray: "Let your kingdom come. Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth." (Matthew 6:10, 33; 13:44-46).

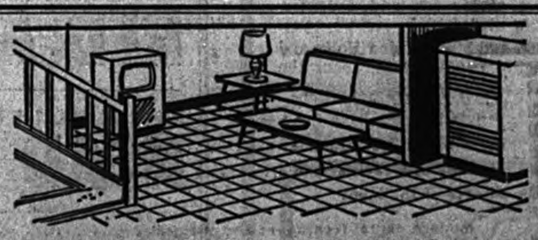

Did Jesus and his disciples continually dun the people for money, by passing collection plates, charging admission, holding bazaars and operating games of chance to defray expenses, etc.? Far from it! They warned against greed, counseled that we should store up treasures in heaven and reminded us that godly devotion with contentment is great gain. — Matthew 6:20; Luke 12:15; 1 Timothy 6:6.

RESULTS OF GOD'S KINGDOM

"And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea." — Isaiah 11:6.

LAST MINUTE ADVICE NETS AUTHOR FORTUNE

Most of us will dispense a "bit of advice" at the drop of a tam-o'shanter but few of us ever follow it as eagerly. Yet a few chance words can prove very fortunate sometimes.

Years ago, an unknown young author had his book accepted, and the publisher asked which he preferred, a hundred pounds for the copyright or a royalty arrangement.

The young man chose the hundred pounds, but while the publisher went out to prepare the contract, someone whispered, "I'd take the royalty if I were you."

Swinging around, the author observed an elderly clerk, already back at his work. The author didn't take long to decide. He went back into the publisher's office and settled for royalties.

The book, "King Solomon's Mines" by Henry Rider Haggard, became an all-time best-seller, and what that advice cost the company no one has dared to compute.

Now here's a "bit of advice" you'll find worth heeding. The easiest, safest and surest way to avoid financial stress and strain is to make regular deposits in a Bank of Montreal savings account. Then when unexpected need or opportunity arises, you have the ready cash waiting for you. You'll be amazed at how handy it can prove. To start your account, visit the Lachute branch of B of M soon. Paul Boivin, the accountant there, or Miss Lulu Miller, accountant-in-charge at Ayersville branch, will show you how easy it is, and how profitable in the years to come.

The Destructive Child

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What boy has not had some experience in playing the vandal. In David Walker's "Sandy was a Soldier's Boy" in the very first chapter, the author tells of a young lad, exploring in the woods, who comes upon a grey squirrel perched on the corner of a green-house roof, eating a baby bird. The father and mother birds were squawking and diving at the marauder, but the grey squirrel ignored their protests. Sandy decided to teach the murderer a lesson.

Taking out a sling from his sporran pocket, he fitted it with a little stone. Although he took careful aim, twice he missed the squirrel. The third time Sandy was sure he would hit him! But unfortunately the stone from his sling again failed to hit the target. Instead it smashed the top centre pane of the window of the greenhouse.

Without stopping to reflect, Sandy quickly aimed and broke every single pane, twenty-seven in all. A sort of madness possessed him.

He didn't get off without being caught, and this is one of the most enjoyable stories for members of your family of any age. Buy it for your home book shelf. As a reader gets to know Sandy better, assurance is given that one act of destructiveness does not transform a boy into a juvenile delinquent.

Very small children often unintentionally break things. They are full of energy, curious and sometimes awkward. Mothers save themselves a lot of grief if they put away valuables, easily broken vases and ornaments when their children are still at this stage. At the same time, a child should learn from experience that as far as possible he must repair or try to replace what he has damaged.

Care of property, his own and other people's, is learned gradually. It is not a virtue a child inherits! In most urban communities, houses are near each other, and home owners take pride in the appearance of their lawns and flowers. Parents should help Junior realize that they wish to be on good terms with their neighbors. Thus the rule "Do not trespass on a neighbor's property! Wait until you are invited — and be careful of other people's belongings."

A child is not as deliberate or as careful as most adults. His actions are often impulsive and hasty, and destructiveness is frequently innocent and unintentional. Sometimes, his curiosity urges him to take apart an article such as an alarm clock to see how it works. He cannot put it together again — and possibly a repair man cannot either!

Answer his questions about how things are made. Perhaps there is an old useless watch or clock which he could be allowed to examine. Sometimes a library book can be found explaining how mechanical things operate.

The clumsy child is constantly in hot water over things he breaks. His co-ordination may be poor because he is growing so quickly. Perhaps if he is constantly knocking things over, bumping into articles and breaking them, a doctor should check on his physical condition.

The very strong child bursting with life finds it hard to learn to handle things with care. He needs a place to play outdoors with equipment such as a swing or a tumbling mat where he can work off his surplus energy.

If parents are understanding, patient and firm in training their child, he will not be called "destructive" by others watching his actions!

'Gloves are the mark of a lady'

By Edna Blakely
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A new booklet on glove etiquette says that "gloves are the mark of a lady and their use should be as stringently respected as a proper knife and fork in a five-course banquet."

The booklet explains that a lady is never seen in the city streets, on a public vehicle or in public places without gloves. They are to be worn, not just carried, in every season.

The length of the glove is dictated by the length of the sleeve. Except in rare cases a glove should always meet the sleeve. One of the exceptions is the white wrist length glove worn in summer with short-sleeved or sleeveless cotton silk dresses.

A note says one always wears gloves when one goes to church; travels in a public conveyance; goes shopping; goes out to lunch, dinner or tea; goes out for any reason in the city; goes to a wedding or other formal reception.

One never wears gloves when one eats; drinks; smokes; sits at a dinner table; powders one's nose in public.

A woman keeps her gloves on when shaking hands with a gentleman and when going through a reception line.

A young girl removes the glove of her right hand when shaking hands after being introduced to an older woman, particularly if the older woman is gloveless.

Above-the-elbow or shoulder-length gloves worn with a formal gown to a reception or ball should be kept on before dinner.

Wedding Gloves

A bride should wear gloves and they should meet the sleeve of her bridal gown. For informal weddings and for bridesmaids, it is permissable and fashionable to wear pastel gloves to blend with the gown. The bride pre-slits the third finger of her right-hand glove so that she does not have to remove the entire glove to accept the ring.

Gloves can serve as a camouflage. A glove the same color as the sleeve of a dress makes the arm look longer and thinner. Contrasting gloves shorten a too lanky or too thin arm.

The older a woman gets the more her gloves should cover. Her face, which she has carefully tended for years, is not necessarily one of the first ageing points.

Fussiness is not good fashion taste. Simple gloves should be worn with all but basic types of clothing where they do not compete with dressmaker detailing in the dress.

WOMAN CHANCELLOR

Women in the news recently include Mrs. Frank M. Ross, the first woman chancellor of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Mrs. Ross, wife of the former lieutenant-governor of the province, graduated from the university in 1925. It was the first election for chancellor in the school's history. All others had been acclaimed. She won out over a personal friend, Mrs. H. G. Angus, wife of the chairman of the B.C. Utilities Commission.

Immigrant is disillusioned

Disillusioned with freedom of speech in Canada, Bepi Corti, a young immigrant working in Montreal, decided to return to Switzerland. Six months ago he said on TV that bosses of his union, the National Union of Elevator Constructors, made all-day chores of jobs that would take only a few hours in Europe. Since then, he said, union members have ostracized him, given him the menial jobs and threatened him harm.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Blakely,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Because of the Broadway play "The Sound of Music", many people have heard of Maria Augusta von Trapp.

The real baroness now lives in Stowe, Vermont, at a year-round resort called the Trapp Family Lodge.

Maria met Baron George von Trapp, a widower, when she was sent to his Salzburg home to serve as a governess for his seven musical children. Maria and the Baron fell in love and married.

Before long the family was singing together so exquisitely they were asked to perform in public. With the help of the family priest, Monsignor Franz Wasner, Maria and the children formed a choral group.

Soon after the Nazis occupied Austria, the family moved with Father Wasner to Italy and later to the United States. They were forced to leave their many heirlooms behind.

They began singing together again and during the next 18 years gave more than 2,000 concerts all over the world.

About 1940 the family heard of a resort in Vermont that was for sale. By this time, three new voices had been added to the family chorus, and economy was a strong inducement in buying the inexpensive resort.

Finances were a problem but "it was then that we learned about that wonderful American instiution — down payments," Maria Trapp explained.

The Baron died in 1947 but the Trapp Family Singers stayed together until 1955 when marriages disbanded the group. The home was then turned into a resort.

Austrian Specialty

At the Trapp lodge, Austrian cuisine is the preferred fare and skiers are often greeted back to the lodge with kaffee mit schlagobers (coffee with whipped cream) and Viennese torten.

The Linzer Torte is a crusty, buttery pastry filled with fruit preserves and nut meats. Here is the recipe which has been handed down from one Trapp generation to another.

Linzer Torte: 1 cup butter or margarine; 1 cup sugar; 1 tbsp. grated orange or lemon peel; 2 egg yolks; 1½ cups sifted, enriched flour; 1 tsp. baking powder; 2 tsp. cinnamon; ½ tsp. cloves; ½ tsp. salt; 1 cup ground nuts (filberts, almonds or walnuts); 1 cup tart preserves.

Cream butter; add sugar slowly while continuing to cream. Add orange or lemon peel. Add egg yolks one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, spices and salt. Add slowly, stirring in. Stir in nuts. After all is added, mix with hands until all ingredients are thoroughly combined. Chill. Pat two-thirds of dough in bottom of nine-inch layer cake pan, preferably one with removable bottom.

Spread preserves over this layer. Roll out remaining dough; cut into eight strips three-quarters inch wide and place lattice fashion on top of preserves. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 50 to 60 minutes or until edges of strips recede from sides of pan. Remove from pan, cool and garnish with a frill of whipped cream. Cut into small wedges to serve. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Quebec Hospital director reviews Insurance Service progress to date

Dr. Jules Gilbert, director of the Quebec Hospital Insurance Service, states that accomplishments of the Service to date would not have been possible without the understanding and the active collaboration of the medical and hospital professions.

His remarks were contained in a year-end statement to the 135 members of the Q.H.I.S. staff.

Dr. Gilbert noted that since the beginning of year 1961 more than 800,000 cases had been treated in the 275 hospitals under contract with the Quebec Department of Health. The figure represents an increase of more than 150,000 over the number of cases received in 1960, prior to the establishment of hospital insurance.

"In view of this major influx of patients, I feel we should pay tribute to the medical and hospital professions, and to all other hospital authorities, for the sympathetic comprehension they have brought to their new duties," Dr. Gilbert stated.

The 800,000 cases handled by Q.H.I.S. had surpassed original estimates by about 50,000, he said. The vast majority of these patients had enjoyed the benefits of hospital insurance.

Since January 1, 1961, more than 350,000 patients have been treated free of charge in standard wards; semi-private room rates have dropped by as much as 60 percent in the major hospitals; and the cost of private rooms had shown a marked decrease almost everywhere.

(The cost of semi-private rooms has been set at $4 and $5 on the Island of Montreal and $4 anywhere else in the province. Private room rates start from $8 on the Island and $7 elsewhere.) These rates apply to public hospitals.

"What is still more important is the fact that while room rates are generally much lower than before, patients no longer receive separate bills for such hospital services as operating rooms, laboratory expenses, X-rays, blood transfusions and other services. These are now completely covered by hospital insurance," Dr. Gilbert stated.

He said the personnel of the Service, working under heavy pressure throughout the year, had every reason to be proud of the accomplishments made to date.

WHAT TO DO WHEN THE LIGHTS GO OUT

1. Find out if your neighbours' lights are out too. If they are not, it is quite likely that the trouble is in your own wiring.
2. Pull the main switch and examine the fuses. If a fuse is burned, look for the cause. It may be caused by too many appliances on the same circuit or by defective appliances or cords. It may be due to a short circuit in the wiring. Be sure to find the cause, as a burned fuse indicates trouble somewhere.
3. If there is lightning or heavy winds in the district, and your neighbors' lights are out, it is probably due to trouble on the power company lines. Wait for a few minutes to see if the power is restored, if not, call the local office of the power company and report the trouble.
4. If it is a clear day, the power company may be working on the lines; a car may have struck a pole, or someone may have felled a tree over the lines. Wait a reasonable time to see if service is restored. If it is not, please report your trouble to the local office of the power company.

By reporting directly to the power company you are taking the most effective method of correcting the trouble.

How Ottawa continues to grow

It "is remarkable," said a man in the seat behind, "how Ottawa continues to grow." It would be most remarkable if Ottawa didn't continue to grow. A capital city inevitably must grow on the expenditures of the government.

Look at the expenditures. In 1944 the total, according to the Canada Year Book, for the federal government was $4,912,000,000. In 1958, the latest year for which there are complete figures, the total was $5,458,000,000. Estimates for the year ending March 31 next talk of a deficit of up to one billion dollars. The prospect for the next fiscal year, that one ending March 31, 1963, is for continuing deficits in hundreds of millions of dollars. In fact, mention of eight billions and up in Ottawa hardly raises an eyebrow. Apparently there is no restraint and can be no curtailment. Thrift is an obsolete word.

In the circumstances, how can Ottawa fail to grow?

Meat shipper to appear for court hearing

An investigation by the RCMP on the distribution of meat supplies in Canada and to outlets in the United States, originated in the Ottawa area and Southern Ontario some weeks ago.

Last week a district processor, Geoffrey Arnold, a director of the Arnold Farms at Grenville, was summoned to appear at St. Jerome this Tuesday, in a matter sparked by this inquiry. The Arnold enterprise includes the processing of meat as animal food, and allegations against Geoffrey Arnold are based on articles 309-310 of the Criminal Code, pertaining to false certification. . . . The arraignment was before Justice Omer Côté, and preliminary hearing was set for February 13 next, with Judge Camille de Martigny presiding.

The complaint, on 15 counts, was laid by the Department of Justice at Ottawa. Mr. Arnold through his attorney, Yves Fortier of Montreal, pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Fortier, in a statement on behalf of his client, was careful to emphasize that the charge had no relation to allegations current on the exporting of spoiled meat for human consumption.

1962 Legion officers installed

Last Saturday at the Legion Memorial Hall, George Kirby and Mrs. S. Bradshaw were installed as president of Argenteuil Branch 70, Royal Canadian Legion, and the Ladies' Auxiliary. The installation was capably conducted by Cde. A. Fuller, first vice-president of Quebec Command, and Laurentian District Commander H. Steele.

The opening portion was chaired by the retiring president, Cde. J. O. Martell, assisted by Cde. A. Fuller. Six new members were initiated into Branch 70, namely — Cdes. Frank Barron, H. Daoust, H. Sloan, J. Sloan, J. L. Carrière and M. Morgan.

In his address, Comrade Martell thanked the members and the outgoing executive for their all-round efforts in making 1961 a successful year. He said, in part, "Just to stay at the present level of business, to enlarge the hall and existing facilities, to continue to fulfill our duties and obligations, means we have to sell . . . sell ourselves and the Legion to others. Each and every one of us, as members, are therefore salesmen." He then proceeded to read a parable on a salesman.

The complete slate of 1962 officers reads as follows: R. O. MacLean and E. Evans, first and second vice-presidents; H. Ward, Sgt.-at-arms; A. O. Philipps, secretary; C. Demerse and Miss E. McFaul, treasurers; D. Ogilvie, R. Noble, C. Tucker, H. St. Onge, L. Bryson and F. Bradford, executive committee.

After the installation the new president, George Kirby, thanked the members of the Branch for the honor of serving as branch president, and gave a brief address.

The provincial vice-president, Cde. Fuller, then presented past-president's medals to Mrs. L. Bradshaw and Cde. Martell. He stressed the fact that, in retiring as respective presidents, they should not retire from Legion activities but continue wholeheartedly to support and work for the betterment of the Legion at all times.

The evening concluded with a dance and social evening.

Suspect tendered dubious cheque at grocery store

A Montrealer giving his name as Claude Giguère, age 28, was arrested by Cst. Maurice Joly of the town police force last Saturday on attempting to pass a false cheque at a local grocery store.

While attending to the investigation of a traffic accident opposite the store, the police officer was called in by the proprietor, who was suspicious concerning a man endeavoring to cash a cheque. Cst. Joly escorted the suspect to police headquarters, where he was questioned by Chief J. L. Hébert and Lieut. Cyr. Giguére, alias Dubé, alias Lemieux, had presented a cheque for $88.34 drawn on a Montreal branch of the Bank of Toronto. He had previously attempted to cash the same cheque in a local hardware establishment, without success.

The suspect was taken in charge by Detectives J.-P. Martin and D. Bibeau, of the Provincial Police, who continued the investigation. It was considered likely that the motorist, who caused the accident by backing into another car outside the grocery, might have been an accomplice of the accused, Giguère.

W. Hawkesbury to vote on Sunday entertainment

On February 5 next, electors of the Township of West Hawkesbury will be called upon to vote on the question: "Are you in favor of moving pictures, theatrical performances, concerts and lectures after 1.30 o'clock in the afternoon of the Lord's Day, to be regulated by municipal by-law under the authority of the Lord's Day (Ontario) Act 1960-61."

The referendum is in accordance with a by-law passed by the town council last week, calling a vote for February 5 between the hours of 9 and 8 o'clock.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The year 1962 marks the 50th milestone of the Joseph Malaket business, which was first established in a store now operated by Mme Perrier on Bethany Street. (The late Dominique Lemay did business there after Mr. Malaket's migration to Brownsburg.) Now, with his sons in the business under the title of Jos. Malaket & Fils Ltée, the firm has three stores — two in Lachute and one in Brownsburg.

Another business anniversary occurs later this year — the insurance firm of Gall & Jones having been established here 50 years ago next September. The Watchman will give fitting reference when the time comes around.

Children's classes in arts and crafts were resumed under instruction of Guy Racine at the Centre d'Art last Saturday. The second winter series of adult art classes, under Guiseppe Fiore, commences this Thursday evening at the same place, in the Rio Theatre building.

The first general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with election of new directors for 1962, takes place this evening (Thursday) at the new "Voyageur" Restaurant, in the form of a cold buffet supper.

The scene has changed at Carillon, in a few short years. The quietude, the languid pace. . . . Village Council has just purchased a $1,600 radar speed detector for the local police force. Motorists, watch out!

Week's Epigram

The only trouble with today's dollar is that it seems to have been built more for speed than for endurance.

Youth, 19, held in rifle slaying

A 17-year-old town youth, André Prévost, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Prévost, Lachute, was fatally shot with a .303 rifle at 12.05 a.m. Monday — shortly after Sunday midnight. His alleged assailant, Jean Périard, 19, of Isabella Street, gave himself up at local police headquarters a few minutes later, carrying a rifle in his hand.

According to his statement as reported by police officers, the young man shot Prévost in the back from a distance of about 50 feet. The shooting was the climax to an old feud between the two youths.

When informed of the incident Chief Hébert hastened to the police station where, with Q.P.P. Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, he interrogated the suspect. Périard was held in the local cells until next morning, then taken to Montreal for detention.

Cst. Laurin and Cst. Duquette of the town police department had been called to the scene of the shooting and rushed young Prévost to the Providence Hospital. Here Dr. Marc Papineau and Dr. Roger Lavigne, joint coroner, had proclaimed the victim dead. The body was taken to the local morgue, where an autopsy was performed by Dr. J.-P. Valcourt.

Five youths and girls, it appears, were walking with Prévost. They could not prevent the shooting as they had their backs to Périard at the time.

Assisting in the police inquiry were Officers Jenri and Fauchon of the Provincial Police local detachment, and Sgts. A. Gagné and J. Pagé from the homicide squad, Montreal headquarters.

Two inquests here Thursday, violent deaths

Two coroner's inquests into fatal shootings are set for Thursday, afternoon at the civic auditorium in Lachute.

First case before the jurors will be the death of André Prévost, 17, who was slain by a rifle bullet on Isabella Street in the early hours of Monday last. Jean Périard, held by provincial police in Montreal since the slaying, will be brought here to appear as principal witness.

The second case will be that of Bill Gunn, who was shot to death last November in the woods near Mt. Maple. Material witness in this killing will be Malcolm Arnold MacGregor, formerly of the Air Force, who was arrested and brought back recently from Ontario. It is recalled Mr. Gunn's body, penetrated by four rifle bullets, was found on the night of November 21.

About 10 days after Gunn's death, McGregor was arrested in Bala, Ont., in the Muskoka Lakes area, for breaking into summer camps and stealing food. He was sentenced to three and a half months in jail.

Ballistics reports here showed that one of two .22 calibre rifles found in his car at the time of his arrest fired bullets identical with those found in the victim's body.

The first inquest will open at 1 o'clock p.m.

Political fervor at municipal level; Ayersville Council budget debate

As feelings surged around the Ayersville council table last Wednesday evening, verbal exchanges reached fever heat on discussion of the 1962 budget figures — according to L'Argenteuil's reporter, present at the scene. Mayor Gaetan Paquette — who had reportedly taken no part in preparing the estimates but had studied the figures only that day — ruthlessly criticized the budget, tore it apart, and questioned the validity of certain items.

There were arguments between the mayor and the secretary-treasurr, the mayor and Councillor Champagne, the mayor and Councillor Plamondon — arguments which achieved nothing in advancing the budget but which antagonized the Council, in view of the mayor's complete disconcern in the budget preparations.

Councillor Doug Simon placed the mayor in an uncomfortable situation by asking if he was familiar with Article 107 of the Municipal Code. The article in question pertains to the duties of a mayor, which include "supervision of spending of the Corporation's revenues, according to law; advising the councillors on information and such recommendations as he considers in the public interest," etc.

Councillor Plamondon "exploded", in asserting to the mayor that the Council could put the municipality on a sound basis by reducing expenses and levying taxes necessary to meet part of the Corporation's deficit.

The outcome of this discussion was that the budget was referred to the legal advisor for study.

"Election Paving"

The contentious matter of "election asphalt" (sic) came up, as expected. Among other things Mayor Paquette is quoted as saying that "the Union Nationale laid the election asphalt"; "Mr. Durocher (Liberal candidate) was opposed to the paving of Richelieu Boulevard and Gauthier Street, also against the Ayersville bridge construction"; "Chomedey Asphalt would be back on the job next spring", etc.

Mayor Paquette made a statement during the proceedings which, according to our reporter, appeared remarkably near the truth — observing that the Council "was giving him no support".

C.N.R. link to Hawkesbury ends January 31

Although train service will continue to operate between Grenville and Montreal via St. Eustache, the town of Hawkesbury will not be served by this route after January 31.

Hawkesbury will thus be without the services of any passenger train. The passenger service between Hawkesbury and Glen Robertson was abolished, last year.

Hawkesbury people desiring to travel to Montreal by train will have to embark at Grenville, starting the first day of February.

Through various district newspapers, the C.N.R. has invited tenders for the demolition of the bridge. This bridge was used to join the municipality of Hawkesbury to the line going to Montreal via St. Eustache.

Acclamations for Carillon council

Two councillors were re-elected and one new member elected, by acclamations at Carillon last week.

Returned to the village council were Georges Crevier and Roland Moussin, while Jean-Paul Roy was elected to replace Eloi Langevin, retiring.

Mayor of the village is Adélard Thibert; other councillors are Joseph Moreau and Réal Gauthier; and the secretary-treasurer is Marcel Décary.

Preparation for flooding approaches final stages

Hawkesbury — Sections of the south shore of the Ottawa River between Hawkesbury and Ottawa will be cleared of trees in preparation for flooding the headpond of Hydro-Quebec's Carillon power development.

Harry Hustler, Ontario Hydro's director of property, said last week the Ontario Commission will act as agent for Hydro-Quebec in acquiring and clearing the necessary land. He made the announcement at a meeting of representatives from communities along the Ontario shore of the Ottawa River between Hawkesbury and Ottawa.

Compensation will be paid to landowners whose property is cleared, Mr. Hustler said. The cut timber will remain the property of the landowners, if they want it. He added that permission is now being sought from landowners for surveyors to enter their property and determine which areas have to be cleared.

Additional information on the program may be obtained from the Hydro Property Office in Hawkesbury, Mr. Hustler said.

Argenteuil research team argues for Carillon as scene of Dollard stand

Written especially for Lachute Watchman by Dr. G. R. Rigby and Miss H. Lambart

A vigorous campaign appears to be under way at the present time to have the so-called "Ross Farm" site officially recognized as the location of Dollard's stand against the Iroquois in May 1660 and preserved from inundation by the flood waters of the new Carillon Dam. The Ross Farm site is on the south shore of the Ottawa river, in the Province of Ontario, 5 miles east of Hawkesbury and almost opposite Grece's Point. A disquieting feature of this campaign is that no convincing evidence is cited to support the claim that the fight took place at this location. In the past, historians on the whole have tended to favor Carillon as the site of the combat, and in 1919 a committee of prominent citizens erected a monument beside the Carillon church to commemorate the event as having occurred in the vicinity.

It is obviously irrational to favor any particular site unless it accords with the known historical facts. We have made a dispassionate study of all authentic records and have paid numerous visits to both the Ross Farm site and the Carillon area. During 1961 we have also studied the entire region of the Long Sault under conditions more favorable than were enjoyed by any previous historians. The recent clearing of the land preparatory to flooding, with all brush and trees removed, has permitted the terrain to be fully assessed in terms of its strategic significance.

Firstly it must be emphasized that Dollard's engagement was conceived as a military venture and the site he chose would be the one best suited to carry out his strategic plan. He had only a small party and had to anticipate fighting against considerable odds. His plan was, to wait for the Indians in a "passage" where they had to pass in descending the river and no doubt he hoped to catch them by ambush and surprise. The contemporary records all refer to a "passage" and even call it an "infallible passage".

The Ross Farm site does not possess any of the physical characteristics required by this plan. There is nothing resembling a "passage" at this point in the river nor any place offering an opportunity for sure interception of descending Indians. The portage route is on the north shore whereas the Ross Farm palisade is on the south shore, and the river is broad and fast. We believe the descending canoe passage was along the north shore but in the spring flood there may have been a choice of routes. In any event there is certainly nothing in the river that would make it essential for a canoe to pass close in to the south shore.

Secondly it must be stressed that, although Dollard and his men were skilled soldiers, they were amateur canoeists. The contemporary records go out of their way to mention Dollard's difficulty in negotiating the rapid at St. Anne. It is logical therefore to assume that he would ascend the river no further than was absolutely necessary to occupy the first site which met his requirements and we have already located such a site near Carillon, on the north side of the river on a portage route. All the tactical advantages required by Dollard are to be found at this location. The Ross Farm site is miles farther up the river. If Dollard had gone to the Ross Farm he would have had to negotiate the Carillon rapids and also the dangerous Chute à Blondeau, but the contemporary records are silent con-

Three historians named for re-inquiry on site of Long Sault battle

A Quebec-appointed committee of three will pursue the controversy on Dollard's Last Stand, following on the report of Ottawa Archeologist Thomas E. Lee. They will perhaps come up with a more substantiated opinion on the site of the Long Sault battle of 1660 — though hopes are not too promising.

Cultural Affairs Minister Georges Lapalme said in Quebec that the committee is made up of Marcel Trudel, Director of Laval University's Institute of History; Maurice Seguin, Professor of Canadian History at the University of Montreal; and Canon Lionel Groulx, retired Canadian historian, of Montreal.

The Ross-Lavigne Farm, about four miles down-stream from Hawkesbury, has been examined periodically by Prof. Lee since 1951. It is one of three sites now suggested as the likely scene of this epic struggle.

The other two locations are here on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River — the latest probability having been suggested in a recent report by Dr. G. R. Rigby and Miss H. Lambart as a spot near Carillon Lock No. 2.

Concerning the Ross-Lavigne Farm, Prof. Lee is quoted as follows: "I don't particularly care where Dollard fought the Iroquois, but I am convinced this is the place and we are searching for positive proof."

Albert Gerin-Lajoie, head of the newly-formed Section of Archaeology of the Historical Monuments Commission, said about $5,000 was being spent on work on the site.

Mr. Lapalme said a survey of the Long Sault area was ordered by his department.

Mr. Seguin said he held no theory on the possible locations. "It is quite a problem," he said. "Indian forts were mostly of wood and I don't know if it is possible to distinguish one from the other."

Said Mr. Trudel concerning Prof. Lee's theory: "We have not yet found documentary proof that Dollard fought his battle on this site, but we will be in a better position to judge the findings when we read the report. Documentary sources up to now have not been too precise."

'New look' to inter-provincial bridge

The Perley Bridge crossing the Ottawa River between Grenville and Hawkesbury has been raised 8 feet, to allow a clearance of 42 feet for passing of boats beneath its centre span on raising of the water level by the new Carillon Dam. The cement piers have been enlarged and extended upwards to carry the steelwork at the new level.

A column for the sportsman

— By BOB ATCHISON —

The number of good people in Lachute who are taking care of our winter birds, is certainly a credit. Seeing all the feeders around, makes you realize that people do care about such things but are a little afraid, perhaps, to show their feelings. Bird-watching does give you a little insight into Nature and her ways; the only trouble is, we are not smart enough to take the lessons.

I don't know just how many watchers have spotted the flocks of Horned Larks around. Flocks of 20 and up may often be seen. So far none of them have come down to our place to scrounge, but I have hopes. Our jays have flown the coop and I haven't even heard a call for several days. The same applies to the sparrows. The chickadees are with us though, so everything is not lost. They fly down almost anytime for a feed, and don't have to wait or fight for it. I don't think this situation will last very long though. Shrikes are also being seen in the area; I believe these are the Great Grey variety. Any place around a farm, or on some old hawthorns that still have berries on them, they will be seen.

The nuthatch is also getting into the feeding act. These are often mistaken for woodpeckers, to be exact, the Downy woodpecker; but anyone taking the time to really look at them will spot the difference at once. The Downy has bars of white over a greyish black undercoat with a white, heart-shaped back. The head has a small cap of red, with a black mark running through the eye. The nuthatch is blue with black trimming along the edges of the tail feathers; a white head with a black stripe running right down to the beak, and a broken collar of black around the shoulders. They do give the appearance of a pecker at times though.

I have been told of the mountain lion or cougar being seen again. The informant who saw it had been inclined to laugh-off the other reported sightings, but after seeing this one on the road around Mille Isles, he has changed his mind. These animals are very much in evidence; how many, of course, is not known, but enough to prove they have decided to come back and stay. It's only a few who have had the good fortune to see them now, and it seems a shame that creatures like this can be hunted to extinction by a few who have the mistaken impression they are deadly killers. This can also apply to our lynx, even though a few of them are around. To hear their yowl and screech on a cold evening gives most people a thrill. Tracks of this animal can be seen almost all over the County — at least, from reports I have received.

I have been trying to find out the deer and moose kills this past season in the Province of Quebec. One thing will be certain, deer were not taken this past season as numerous as in former years. The usual excuses will be handed out — that the deer are getting smarter and the hunters poorer. But I don't think this is really the case. Deer are just about shot out in all the province, and this cannot keep on. The tightening up of all game laws is long overdue, not to mention the gun laws.

A TV commentator the other night stated that Quebec expected to get from the tourist by 1967 a billion dollars. They sure have a hope, if they are counting on our natural resources to help. Quebec is so far behind all the other provinces in this matter that they will only have scratched the surface of needed reforms by '67. Many columns could be devoted to these, but space is precious; we all know of a few of them.

From enquiries received about the making of fishing rods and tackle, there seem to be more people interested than I had ever thought. Building your own outfits is satisfying, and it pays off. To begin with, the expensive thing in tackle is the labor involved. Building it yourself saves this item of expense. To give you some idea, a glass spinning rod that sells around town for the sum of $29, can be built for only $11. When everything is considered, you do save a good bit of money. As I have often stated before, anyone wanting to learn this business can call on me any time and get a few tips on the why's and wherefore's. Besides giving you a better outfit in every way, it gives you wonderful relaxation to make it.

A couple of queries have come in on the finishing of gun butts and stocks. This has been discussed before, some time ago. To begin with, clean all wood parts free of dirt, old varnish and oil. This can be done with a fine sandpaper or a small piece of glass, if you use this method, be sure not to press too hard on the wood and score it. When you have the wood all clean and free from blemishes, then polish it with brown paper. One point to remember, if you have not got the wood all free of dirt, then the polishing will bring up the blemish. When the wood shines like a new pin, then you can start oiling it. I have found a good linseed oil to be the best for the job. Smooth this with your hand, then let it dry thoroughly — at least 24 hours for the first coat — then you can polish it with brown paper again. The better you want your gun to look, the more you have to oil and polish, so this is entirely up to you.

The ice fishing is really good now, and should continue so for a few weeks at any rate. Perch are of course the fish, with a few pike being taken. It isn't very often that bass turn up, especially with the water so cold. Anyway these perch being taken are a nice size and very firm. Not the soft flesh of the warm summer, but this all adds up to excellent eating. I can't imagine anyone not liking them at this time.

Vankleek Hill foursome wins Centre mixed curling bonspiel

Tommy Moran of Vankleek Hill skipped his foursome to win the Main event in the Centre Mixed Bonspiel, in the playdowns at the Club de Granit at Montebello last Saturday. His rink, consisting of Mrs. Moran and Mr. and Mrs. Al Dunsmore, defeated Aimé Menard's rink from Alexandria. It was a close game all the way. Menard made a beautiful draw to the four-foot ring with his last shot. Tommy narrowly missed his take-out shot and almost hit one of his own stones at the rear of the house, which, if he had removed, would have left Menard with shot rock, and the winner of the bonspiel.

The Consolation event was won by Roger Roy, also of Alexandria, against the Lachute rink skipped by Duncan Graham, who was substituting for Art Lobel. Playing on this rink were Miss Mary Preece (third), A. Gillis (second), and Miss Marg Walker (lead). Whereas the Lachute rink won handily in the semi-final game in the afternoon against a Hawkesbury rink skipped by Roy Perrier, the Alexandria rink proved too strong for them in the final game.

It is generally agreed that this is one of the most popular bonspiels to be held during the curling season. There were a total of 48 entries from eight clubs — Montebello, Club de Granit, Brownsburg, Lachute, Hawkesbury, Vankleek Hill, Alexandria and Maxville. Whereas there were 17 entries from Lachute and 13 of these won their games on opening night last Monday, many were knocked out as play continued throughout the week. Special mention is due to the Alexandria and Vankleek Hill clubs. The former had four entries and three of these were in the play-downs on Saturday. It is possible that the fourth would have been there also, had two of their rinks not played against each other during the week. Vankleek Hill, with five entries, provided keen competition throughout the week, and succeeded in coming through with top honors.

During the presentation proceedings, Jack MacKimmie of Lachute explained that the beautiful trophy had never been officially presented to the Centre, and called on Linton Armstrong as Centre Umpire, and Dr. L. Biron of Montebello and Peter Bonneville of Alexandria, as Representatives to the Centre from their clubs, to accept the trophy. This trophy, which has been donated by the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, was then presented to the winners, making an impressive display, filled as it was with red carnations. The 16 participants in the final games then selected their prizes, and expressed their appreciation to the Centre Umpire for the splendid work he had done in organizing this event.

Ladies' Curling

Last Friday the January tea and the final game in the Club Trophy bonspiel took place. The finalists were Mrs. L. W. York (skip), Mrs. A. M. Vessie, Mrs. E. Rice, Mrs. W. W. Haldimand; Mrs. P. G. Roy (skip), Mrs. W. White, Mrs. F. R. Jeffery and Mrs. G. Higginson. Mrs. York's rink won this event.

• • •

Recently in the challenge games, Mrs. F. J. Stein (skip), Mrs. R. M. Cairns, Mrs. J. S. Drew, Mrs. H. K. Rutherford challenged the holders of the Wilson Cup, Mrs. L. W. York (skip), Mrs. E. O. Pollock, Mrs. H. D. Graves and Mrs. R. Bailly. Mrs. Stein's rink took possession of the cup.

In the Broomstick event, Mrs. F. R. Jeffery (skip), Mrs. W. S. Jones, Mrs. W. White and Mrs. M. McFaul challenged the holders of the pins, Mrs. J. R. MacKimmie (skip), Mrs. D. McFaul, Mrs. R. O. MacLean and Mrs. K. Boa. The holders retained possession of the pins.

Curling in swing at new rink in Brownsburg

Brownsburg — Curling is now well under way in the new curling rink on Maple Avenue N., which was erected last fall by the Tower Company and is a highly creditable job of construction.

Although not yet officially opened, the citizens of Brownsburg are very proud of their $80-thousand, two-storey clubhouse and three-sheet ice surface. The interior finishing of the clubhouse is wood panelling and it includes TV, refreshment facilities, and a modern kitchen. The kitchen is equipped to cater for as many as 150 persons.

Saturday was students' day, when some 60 girls and boys from 14 years and up, from the English and French schools, received curling instruction from nine volunteer teachers.

It is planned to hold the opening men's bonspiel on January 26.

School teams in basketball tilts

By Carol-Ann Demerse

On Friday night, the L.H.S. senior boys' and girls' basketball teams were hosts to the Brownsburg teams.

The senior boys played first and won their game by a score of 38-27. The three local starts for this game were Ian Cairns, John Hay and Grant McGibbon.

The senior girls then played; the Lachute team were also victorious, winning by a score of 35-13. The three local stars were Gwen Matthews, Elizabeth Hay and Nancy Hay.

On Saturday morning the Lachute senior boys played against the Grenville town team — the latter winning, 81-75. The three Lachute stars were Ian Cairns, Gordie MacKay and Gary Cruise.

cerning any formidable obstacles encountered beyond the St. Anne rapid.

Thirdly, the contemporary records inform us that Dollard's palisade was 200 paces from the river. Dollard's men had to go to the river for water and had to cover this distance under the fire of the enemy. Since the distance was so critical we may be sure the estimate is an accurate one. At the Ross Farm site the distance to the water's edge is only about 80 paces, or less than half that reported in the historical accounts.

Fourthly, it is on record that Dollard's palisade was overlooked by a neighboring slope. Dollier de Casson, who was himself a soldier and had visited the place, especially commented on this. It was one of the disadvantages of Dollard's location. At the Ross Farm site there is no rising ground overlooking the palisade or any nearby slope that could be turned to advantage by an attcking force.

Fifthly it is recorded that Dollard's men had no water supply in their palisade. They suffered more from thirst than from the Indian attacks. At the Ross Farm site a good water supply would have been available. There is a small stream running right alongside the palisade, which would have been in full flood in the month of May. Last year it gave drinking water even up until the month of October.

Finally, though it is indisputable that the valuable excavations of the well-known archaeologist Mr. T. E. Lee in 1951 and 1957 showed that there was a palisade constructed on the Ross Farm site, it cannot be assumed that this was the Dollard palisade. The fact that the post holes of the Ross Farm palisade could be located, and that the palisade diameter was more than 60 feet, is argument that this must have been a more substantial defence than the miserable palisade occupied by Dollard, which Dollier de Casson described as being "a small fort of the savages, not flanked by any protecting works, surrounded only by poor stakes which gave no protection . . . so placed, (they were) worse off than in the smallest village house in France". It is unlikely even under the most favorable conditions that any vestiges of such a flimsy structure would have survived for 300 years.

We shall be most interested to hear of the results of Mr. Lee's more recent excavations, carried out in the fall of 1962, for the Ross Farm site is unquestionably full of interest, the scene of many habitations over the centuries by people of several cultures. This possibly makes it the most promising area for excavation along the entire length of the Long Sault. It is indeed well within the bounds of possibility that the Ross Farm palisade was constructed by the infamous Iroquois chieftain "Chaudière Noire" whose depredations against the French settlements from his headquarters on the Long Sault, were such that a major expedition under the command of the Chevalier de Vaudreuil was sent out to destroy him in 1692.

M. Champagne former mayor of Ayersville

Mr. Maurice Champagne, a citizen well known in this community, died January 12 at Hull, Que., where he had resided for the past two years. His death followed a lengthy illness, at the age of 65 years.

The late Mr. Champagne, an architect by profession, was mayor of the Village of Ayersville in 1957-58. He was architect for the St. Julien Church and l'Ecole Secondaire building in Lachute, also for a number of shrines and religious sanctuaries elsewhere, for which he gave his services gratuitously. He was a charter member of the Richelieu Club here in Lachute.

Born at Hull, Que., in 1897, he was married to Miss Hattie Ayers, who predeceased him. (He was a brother-in-law of Mr. Gilbert E. Ayers by his first marriage.) He is survived by his second wife, the former Lucienne Germain — also by his mother, in Ottawa; three sons, Maurice, of Montreal, Georges and Ernest, of Lachute; a daughter, Mme H. Cardinal (Louise), of Buckingham, and his brothers and sisters in Hull.

Funeral rites were held Tuesday morning in the St. Raymond Church, Hull, Que.

District Home and School held meeting for January

At the January meeting of the Lachute and District Home and School Association, chaired by Mrs. John Thorpe in the absence of President Ernest Gow, it was generally agreed to again hold a whist drive in April, to raise money for the Scholarship Fund. A sum of $300 was given to a very worthy student last year, and the Association hopes to equal or better that total this year, in order to give substantial aid to a student desiring to continue studies at a college or university.

Mrs. J. D. McOuat recommended that the number of yearly meetings held by this Association be limited to five, an idea promptly seconded and passed, as the generally accepted opinion is that five good and well-attended meetings are much more satisfactory than seven or eight sparsely attended ones.

A film entitled, "Why Smoke", made for and distributed by the Canadian Cancer Society, was shown at this meeting. The subject concerns the definite link between smoking and lung cancer, and though it started the audience thinking seriously about smoking and its effects, the film was made primarily to be shown to teenagers so that they will be wondering, "Why start smoking in the first place?"

Canada's northland was the topic for the program part of the evening, and Mr. Tupper Porter, of St. Andrews East, showed some very interesting pictures of Northern Quebec and Labrador. In his capacity as a geologist, Mr. Porter has been on several survey trips to the North, and has a collection of pictures showing various facets of the country — its beautiful terrain as seen from the air, its fabulous wealth in minerals, forests, water power in the thousands of lakes and winding rivers, its fascinating towns like Fort Chimo in Labrador, which has sprung up overnight on bare rock. There are splendid opportunities for a future in the North, for anyone who likes the outdoors and a rugged, vigorous life. The Government is the biggest employer, and has many different jobs available, depending on the location in the North, and the education of the applicant.

The next meeting of the Home and School will be on Wednesday, February 14; Mr. Fred Royal will be the guest speaker. His topic, "Subject Promotion", should be of interest to every parent of a schoolchild.

Justifies request for royal inquiry on Carillon works

(TO THE EDITOR)

It is correct that I had the privilege, and took the liberty, to ask the Hon. Jean Lesage, Premier of Quebec, to open a Royal Inquiry on all undertakings of the Quebec-Hydro dams, and especially on the Carillon Dam, which we are particularly interested in here.

Numerous irregularities have occurred, and are still occurring on the Carillon project. I can say with knowledge that this project was started on the wrong basis. It started at the beginning of an election campaign. What should have been prevented or corrected before the construction of this dam, has not even been studied, as was also the case in the majority of enterprises by the Union Nationale regime.

Being afraid of patronage comebacks, we neglected to make the changes requested in the execution of this project. We are presently building a dam with the same men and same waste, not to say worse, than during the Union Nationale regime.

With proof on hand, I asked the Hon. Jean Lesage to open a Royal Inquiry on this mess, to prevent the repetition of such errors in future constructions of this kind.

Women's role in traffic safety

It is a fact that no important movement has ever achieved its final purpose unless the "better half" of the population, the fair sex, has taken an active part in it. Indeed, women's efforts have contributed greatly to many social improvements, so their role in the field of traffic safety is equally obvious. It is the mother's part to educate young children and prepare them for co-existence with the mechanical age, also to influence the driver to adopt a more realistic attitude to the accident problem, especially the driver who may be going faster than he thinks.

"Prudentia" is prepared to supply information to women's organizations which would like to include safety activities in their program, and thus contribute to the reduction of the traffic toll.

LEARN TO SKI OR MONEY BACK

Here's a deal for the winter outdoorsman: learn to ski in one week or your money back. It's one of the lures some Quebec resorts are using to get vacationers on their ski slopes this winter — reports Beatrice Riddell in The Financial Post.

There's a catch: you have to put in at least 28 hours of ski time. If you already know how to ski, there are a variety of package tours lined up for you, anywhere from three to 10 days. Quebec's numerous winter resorts, looking for a booming year, have new lifts and many other facilities for skiers.

The Bible Today

Katanga in Congo is strife-torn and horror-ridden. But amid the noise of conflict and of tortured people, the ministry of reconciliation through the distribution of the Scriptures still goes on.

The work begun many years ago by Mr. F. S. Arnott of the Brethren Mission, who penetrated into Congo from Angola and established a mission station at Bunkeya, is still strong. The mission at Luonza, established by Dan Crawford, who translated the Bible into Luba Sanga, and the mission of Alexander Clark, the translator of the Luba Katanga Bible, still witness to the love of God.

For more than 20 years the Methodist Mission and the Garenganze Evangelical Mission was the only Protestant witness in Katanga.

Through these and other missions such as the Seventh Adventist Mission in Elizabethville, recently bombarded, and the Baptist Mission, tens of thousands of Katanganese people have heard the Gospel.

There are now complete Bibles in seven or eight Congolese languages and complete New Testaments in several others such as Kiluba, Tshiluba, Lunda of Kalunda, Lunda Kambone, and others.

They are — Harry, of Montreal, James W., of Mimico, John George, of Chateauguay, Caroline (Mrs. P. Picard), of Montreal, Florence (Mrs. J. Picard), of Montreal, and Violet (Mrs. H. Morgan), of Terrebonne Heights. They have 21 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

The Rev. L. Hisey, on behalf of the gathering, spoke very kindly of the couple and presented them with a gift of money as a token of esteem. For this kindly gesture Mr. and Mrs. Cook expressed their sincere appreciation.

Mr. Cook was a member of the 148th Battalion, and since 1945 he and his wife have lived in this district.

Best wishes are extended for many more years of happiness.

Was lifelong resident of Upper Lachute

Late Mrs. Royden Morrison

On Sunday, January 7, after a brief illness, the death occurred suddenly of Barbara Morrison, beloved wife of Royden Morrison, at her home in Upper Lachute. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nicol, and had lived all her life in that community.

Besides her husband she is survived by two daughters, Ruth (Mrs. Geo. Macneill), of Toronto, and Eileen (Mrs. David Gill), of Grenville; four sisters, Maude (Mrs. Thom Davies), of Montreal, Margaret (Mrs. Ray Miller), of Winnipeg, Ellen (Mrs. Wm. Peterson), and Anne Nicol, of Bloomfield, N.J.; also three brothers, Thomas, of Port Arthur, William, of Bloomfield, and Andrew, of Lachute.

The funeral service was held Tuesday, January 9, from the Margaret Rodger Memorial Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. Armour officiating.

Death calls young resident of Chatham

Late Mrs. Lloyd Morrow

Mrs. Lloyd Morrow, the former Elsie Catherine MacTavish, who resided in Chatham (Grenville R.R. 1), passed away at the Smith Clinic on December 29, in her 20th year.

Born in Harrington, she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence MacTavish, and was married to Mr. Lloyd Morrow in 1960.

She leaves to mourn her loving husband and infant son, also her father, mother, three sisters and one brother.

Funeral service was held from the chapel of the New Grenville Funeral Home, conducted by the Rev. K. Feltham, assisted by the Rev. J. H. Lynn of Hawkesbury. Many floral tributes bore testimony of the esteem in which she was held.

Pall-bearers were her two uncles, Evan Bates and Rory MacTavish, Eric and Lynn Beauchamp, Donald Cowan and Kenneth Welden. Interment was in Harrington Cemetery.

Good-bye, measles

As much a part of childhood as stubbed toes and dirty hands — measles may soon be abolished by a new-found vaccine described as "one of the great accomplishments in the history of public health," according to an article in Reader's Digest.

Measles are the most prevalent of all major diseases of childhood — a world-wide plague. In 1846 an outbreak destroyed a quarter of the population of the Faroe Islands. Another outbreak killed 40,000 out of a population of 150,000 in Fiji, and it is becoming one of rural Africa's most pressing disease problems. While the death toll isn't generally high, the disease weakens its victims, making them prey to more serious illnesses.

The new vaccine is the work of Harvard's Nobel Prize-winner, Dr. John F. Enders. Extensive trials have taken place, with gratifying results. Research to perfect the vaccine continues and there is every hope that it will soon banish the disease forever.

BELL LINES

by Bob Bell, your telephone plant foreman

Sorry to report that two very happy years working in and around Lachute have come to an end, and that I've been transferred to Montreal. Lachute will still be home for some time, so although we won't be meeting along "Bell Lines", I'll be seeing you on Main Street. . . .

10 MINUTES FOR THE PRICE OF 5

Did you call your family or friends by long distance over the Christmas holidays? Isn't it amazing how quickly and smoothly calls go through nowadays . . . how clearly you hear that familiar voice at the other end? It's almost like talking face to face! And, if you called someone in Ontario and Quebec, station-to-station after 9 p.m., you also found that you could make use of our new "Night-Economy" Plan. Yes, this exciting new long distance plan gives you double value on station-to-station calls of ten minutes or more within Ontario and Quebec. The first five minutes are charged at low night rates; there's no extra charge for the second five minutes. (You get ten minutes of long distance time for the price of five.) From then on, every two minutes you talk will only be charged as one minute. Increased automation enables us to pass on to you the economies of station-to-station calls — giving you the lowest cost long distance plan ever offered to Bell Telephone customers! Be sure to take advantage of this low cost plan; call someone tonight after 9:00 p.m. on our Night-Economy Plan.

An amazing new home intercommunication service known as HOME INTERPHONE was introduced by our company recently and is available to telephone customers here in Lachute. With Home Interphone you can answer the door, communicate from room to room, call all members of the family to the phone and check on sleeping and playing infants. All this is accomplished by using regular telephones in the home plus built-in microphones, small wall-mounted loudspeakers and a special two-way door-answering unit. If you're alone, ill, or dressing, you can find out your visitor's business easily, safely, without embarrassment. You also have regular telephone service from any phone, and calls on the Interphone circuit can be answered "hands-free". Home Interphone makes the telephone more useful and convenient than ever before. Interested? Why not give a call at ZEnith 60,000 and ask us about this fascinating new service?

Life In A New World

"The Earth abideth forever". — Eccl.1:14

Unto us a son is born, and the government shall be upon His shoulders, and of His government and peace there shall be no end. — Isaiah 9:6-7.

For Jesus must reign as King, until God has put all enemies under His feet — 1 Cor. 15:25.

A complete end to all political corruption guaranteed. What a relief! This is but the beginning of early blessings under the rule of God's heavenly Son, Christ Jesus.

The meek shall inherit the earth: and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace. The righteous shall inherit the land, and dwell therein forever. — Psalms 37:11-29.

The new world will be a free world. No want or fear will lurk there. Clean speech and true worship will be established as the worthwhile freedoms that will be completely realized for the first time. The prophet Micah sketches some idea of this for us, saying: "But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig-tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of Jehovah of hosts hath spoken it. For all the peoples walk every one in the name of his god; and we will walk in the name of Jehovah our God for ever and ever." Yes, even freedom from war: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." — Micah 4:4, 5, 3.

Such unbroken peace can be a wonderful contribution to profitable works. At any rate we are promised that in the new world no building, planting or any labor will be in vain: "And they shall build houses, and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. They shall not build, and another inhabit; they shall not plant, and another eat; for as the days of a tree shall be the days of my people, and my chosen shall long enjoy the work of their hands. They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for calamity; for they are the seed of the blessed of Jehovah, and their offspring with them." — Isaiah 65: 21-23.

Total peace on earth will mean peace among all living things. Peace among men: The righteous King "will judge the poor of the people, he will save the children of the needy, and will break in pieces the oppressor. In his days shall the righteous flourish and abundance of peace, till the moon be no more." (Psalm 72: 4, 7, 8). And, wonder of wonders, peace will destroy enmity among wild beasts and between them and man:

"And the wolf shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain; for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of Jehovah, as the waters cover the sea." — Isaiah 11: 6, 7, 9.

This earth-covering "knowledge of Jehovah" will make possible the very best use of time — and think of the good works possible when renewed minds and bodies do not suffer the relentless inroads of degeneration inherited from Adam! As faithful Elihu illustrated it: "His flesh shall be fresher than a child's; he returneth to the days of his youth." (Job 33: 25). No more will death cut short lives filled with right works. And what of those long dead? The King, Christ Jesus, who is the "resurrection and the life", easily springs the latch on the grave, releasing all who have been retained in the memory of God, indicated by the expression "memorial tombs" which he used as shown at John 5: 28, 29:

"Do not marvel at this, because the hour is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who did good things to a resurrection of life, those who practiced vile things to a resurrection of judgment." For God-fearing persons, gone forever all sting of death! At an end are all victories for the grave!

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

LOVE THY NEIGHBOR

Living in a small community is like a marriage — it is "for better or for worse, for richer or poorer, in sickness or in health" — you either fail in your human relationships, or you gain immeasurably because of them.

We moved to our small village during the first year of the last world war. We had read a book describing how five acres could provide independence and felt secure in our venture because we had a bonus of three acres. We had visions of raising all our own needed produce, a flock of chickens and a goat for our milk supply. What greenhorns we were! We barely knew the front end of a goat from its udder and little or nothing about chickens. When the mother hen proved caniballstic we discovered our first need of an understanding neighbor. He didn't smile and sneer down his nose "city slickers think they know it all". He just put blinkers on the mother hen and removed the half-dead chicks to the warmth of a hover in his own barn.

To the Rescue

Almost within days he saved all our lives. Early one morning I heard a knock on the door and someone calling "are you all right in there?" When I jumped out of bed to assure him we were, the room swam before me and I literally staggered to the door. "Me and the wife been watchin' your chimney ever since you tore down that second storey. You weren't too careful and this morning when we didn't see any smoke I thought I'd better investigate how you all were." Before he had finished I had crumpled at his feet and he hurried into the house opening windows and doors and shaking the other sleeping members of the family.

His fears were well grounded, old bricks from our stint at demolition had fallen down the chimney and lodged in the flu. They had gradually slipped into a sooty mass preventing coal gas fumes from escaping. It took him hours to clean out the debris, but only a few moments for me to be grateful for his watching eye.

We have lived side by side for more than 20 years. I've nursed my neighbors' children through all their childish illnesses and they in turn have comforted me through loss, sympathized with my failure at farming, shared shortages of fuel and post war repair materials. My neighbor has mended my pipes, shovelled my snow, scythed my hay and shingled my roof. This fall, when the ravages of 1959 Hurricane Hazel were only beginning to be felt as the house began to sink at one corner, my neighbor was the one who noticed the slight list and offered to jack it up and cement the large crack that appeared in the foundation.

Yes, my neighbor knows a great deal about our personal life. He also very often knows what we have for dinner, for many times our table is laden with provender from his garden.

Are my neighbors gossipy? It is like pulling teeth to get anything from this couple who, having lived in the same neighborhood all their lives, hear all, know all and tell nothing, good, bad or sad news — unless they think it will "do good".

I'll bet no city dweller has ever opened their front door on a misty summer morning and found flowers, still laden with dew, in a newspaper cornucopia or a basket of carrots, beets and chard, the good earth still clinging to roots, or perhaps a dish of plump raspberries or in season, the first apples. My neighbors know how much I love green apple sauce and though they must only guess at the fact, for they hate demonstration of any kind, my neighbors must know how much I love them for just being my neighbors.

REALLY OLD

Virden, Man. (CP) — Diamond, the horse, has died at the amazing age of 44. Owned by Mrs. E. M. Emerson near here, the animal was foaled on February 2, 1917.

NWT Institute will teach English

Fort Providence Women's Institute in the North West Territories are starting a new project. For some time they have been quite concerned about the number of natives not knowing English. Children starting school have to take two years in Grade I for that reason. One of the W.I. members has now offered to teach Basic English to a class of five-year-olds for two hours a day. The principal of the school is most enthusiastic about this, has given a room for the purpose, and will help in every way possible.

"The big job will be to get all the youngsters to the class" writes the secretary, Mrs. Lamoureux, "but the school is aware of the problem, and is working on it". The Women's Institute will be sponsoring the class and will have to raise money for equipment that the school cannot supply. They have been given permission by the Education officials at Fort Smith to go ahead with the project and have been promised the full co-operation of the principal.

Another item of interest is the fact that for the first time this Women's Institute branch will be meeting at the home of an Indian member. The family have now acquired a house under the building program of the Department of Northern Affairs, "no more tents" and their hostess seemed so pleased and proud that she could now entertain her Institute.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Where were YOU when the call went out?

ANY WHO have criticized The Watchman for its unconvincing editorial on the new sales tax to meet costs of the filtration plant, might remember that this was intended to reflect the views of local storekeepers, also of property holders, and others. They might remember, too, that this is by no means a one-sided question. There are other viewpoints besides those of the merchants, equally deserving of expression.

The merchants have a legitimate kick against an additional 2 percent, bringing the local sales tax to 6 percent, and The Watchman has said so —while reminding our merchants that they have not consistently been so enthusiastic in town affairs. . . .

In two previous instances this newspaper (in this same editorial spot, and also in a leading front-page story) almost pleaded for public viewpoints, to help guide our Council in this matter. Our councillors are representatives appointed to act in the interests of the people; it is only fair that they should KNOW the desires of the public for whom they are to act.

This same call was voiced at a very representative Chamber of Commerce meeting around December 1, by one of the councillors as guest speaker. It was twice emphasized in our two newspapers on December 6. The merchants eventually made themselves heard at Council on December 27, and the property holders on January 3, the night the sales tax was adopted.

The fact that this is a divided issue, is seen in the Council vote, which was only 5-4 in favor of the sales tax.

To our critics: Accepting the maxim that a newspaper is expected to guide public opinion — we offer the premise that, when a clearcut majority of taxpayers is convinced, so are we, the newspaper. But when our own opinions are at variance with a large segment of our readership, we contend it would be an abuse of editorial privilege to propound our personal views, or those of a vociferous few, through this potentially powerful medium.

Our section, "Letters to the Editor", is always open to voice sincere viewpoints and to uncover all sides of a public question. It is only through the sounding-board of popular opinion that Council can measure the desires of the taxpayers, and apply them in the administration of this town.

Minor Hockey Week

MINOR HOCKEY WEEK in Canada commences this Saturday, January 20. The week has now become an established part of our Canadian sporting year. It is observed as a means of directing attention of the public to the benefits of Minor Hockey to our youth and to our community.

Minor Hockey here in Lachute has the support of many public-spirited sponsors, service clubs and other organizations whose love of hockey and of boys prompts them to contribute time and effort to the junior leagues. We should direct our appreciation and recognition to these citizens who are making a valuable contribution to the community in which we live, as does our great Canadian game of hockey contribute entertainment and recreation right across Canada.

Hockey is Canada's national game. It is one of our great heritages, and participation by the youth of our town should be encouraged at all levels. We are proud of our game, for its ability to develop character, citizenship and respect for authority, as well as for its physical and body-building benefits.

We should also encourage attendance and support by parents and other adults, for only in this way can the junior hockey program prosper. The young people play better knowing they have the support of their families.

We commend the official slogan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, which is promoting this fine venture. It is "Don't send, TAKE your boy to the skating rink."

Your school taxes high?

A NON-GOVERNMENTAL study of education has produced a forecast that in the next 10 years Canadians will double their spending on schools and schooling. Provincial governments, possibly with an assist from the federal treasury, will pick up an increased share of the costs.

The report, compiled for the Canadian Conference on Education next March 4-8 by William J. McCordic, executive secretary of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, said the cost of education is rising at a much faster rate than the growth of the national economy. This imposes a mounting financial burden on many municipalities.

"Education officials and the public they serve have, it seems, been so engrossed in more immediate tasks that few have recognized the magnitude of this problem."

The 10-year cycle

THIS YEAR — or perhaps 1963 — could be the year of the 10-year-cycle which sees a mysterious catastrophe sweeping across the land, bringing death to millions of wild creatures from a variety of causes.

Everyone is familiar with the story of the Arctic lemmings, which every four or five years, when their numbers have reached a peak, swim out to sea and perish.

The 10-year-cycle is different. An authority on the matter is Professor William Rowan of the University of Alberta, who studied records going back for 250 years. Actually, the strange outbreak averages out to 9.7 years.

The snowshoe rabbit is perhaps the main performer in this wildlife drama, says a report compiled by the British Columbia fish and game branch. But the cycle is also apparent in most of the fur-bearers, and in the grouse family, Hungarian partridge, magpie and grosbeak, and other species.

The early fur traders spotted this cycle, with a steady increase in numbers until one year there comes almost a total disappearance of many species. Hudson's Bay Company records extending back more than 250 years give a clear picture, one of almost mathematical precision.

The rabbits might be the key to the mystery, since they are the prey of hawks, owls and almost all the fur-bearing animals, and obviously if the rabbits disappear, then the animals that feed on them are going to suffer. But there are complications in the records — the cycle will hit its peak in one area one year, perhaps two years later in another.

In 1942, for instance, almost 6,000,000 rabbit pelts were shipped from Alberta to the U.S. market, and even this didn't seem to reduce their total much. But in 1943, the rabbits had virtually disappeared.

This decimation of rabbits, and other wildlife, has been called "the plague" by the naturalist Ernest Thompson Seton. But it is known today that many diseases rather than one run riot at times of the crash, wiping out hordes of the creatures subject to this cycle.

If the mystery of it could be solved, and the forces that control it could be harnessed, the B.C. fish and game branch points out, then a completely new era would open for wildlife conservation in Canada.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Feb. 14, 1887 —

Capt. G. B. Martin, Lieut. Williamson, Sgt. Chas. Calder, Pte. Albert Martin and Pte. Kenneth McAskill, of the Argenteuil Rangers, are attending military school at St. Johns, Que.

Mr. John Douglas was re-elected Mayor of Chatham for the ensuing year.

Lakefield — The Rev. A. Campbell of Montreal delivered a travel lecture in the Methodist Church here.

Arundel — Mr. W. Harris has been appointed minister of the Church of England. Hereafter the Arundel church will be separate from the Church of England in Lachute.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, Jan. 19, 1912 —

The Rev. B. B. Brown is in Ottawa to present the Educational Anniversary sermon at Wesley Methodist Church.

Mayor Jno. McGibbon, Councillors MacKimmie and A. D. McGibbon were re-elected by acclamation, and Mr. Wm. Miller was replaced by Mr. W. M. Scott in East Ward.

Mr. Robt. Hamilton has just installed a phone. Call 80 for your bakery needs. (Advt.)

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Jan. 14, 1937 —

Duncan Paul, 80, a former resident and summer visitor here for many years, died at his home in Saranac Lake.

The Royal Automobile Club has laid before the Duplessis Government a request to abolish three-lane highways, also to make lights on horse-drawn vehicles compulsory.

J. A. Gosselin, manager of Gatineau Power, received a severe shock through the telephone in his home, which threw him to the floor. It was found the storm had blown a high-tension line across a telephone wire near his residence.

Capt. J. D. Weir has been elected Mayor of Senneville, Que.

The heaviest "ice fall" in years broke trees and damaged wires in this area.

Messrs. Howard Jones, Henri Joly, Ovila Payé and Rudy Gagné, on their way to play hockey at Ste. Agathe — also George Powell, who was accompanying them to visit his home — were badly bruised and shaken when their car somersaulted off the icy highway.

A movie theatre is being conducted in the basement of the St. Jerome church, with seating capacity of 2,000. Showing mostly French films, the project is aimed to raise a $50,000 fund for a new parish hall.

A disastrous fire destroyed the home and outbuildings of Theodore Murdoch's farm near St. Philippe.

Teachers go to countries abroad

Teachers in Britain are being asked to consider going for periods of about three years to schools in developing countries, particularly within the Commonwealth. Their employers in Britain are asked at the same time to release them if they wish to go, and to reinstate them when they come back with no loss of privileges.

The appeal, launched on the eve of the Second Commonwealth Educational Conference which meets this month in New Delhi, is but the latest step in the efforts to promote educational co-operation within the Commonwealth arising out of the first Conference at Oxford in 1959.

For teachers going to key posts in developing Commonwealth countries the British Government has promised financial help.

Britain herself has a shortage of teachers. Nevertheless her government has recognized that since the United Kingdom has much larger resources than the newly-developed countries, it has a duty to help and meet the need of reinforcements to the teaching staffs which are building up new educational systems.

— Background to Britain

WHY IS A QUARTER CALLED "TWO BITS"?

When Canada became British territory in 1763 there were all sorts of coins in circulation. The most important of these were Spanish silver dollars or, as they were known in pirate days, "pieces of eight." Sometimes these large coins were cut into eight pieces and the pieces called "bits", were used as small coins. Eight bits were equal then to one dollar and four bits meant half a dollar. So, two bits were equal in value to a quarter of a dollar, just as, today, a 25c coin is worth one quarter of a dollar.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

The doctors have played a sneaky trick on us. They have made us live longer.

As a result of their hocus-pocus with new miracle drugs and preventive needles, the average human life-span has been stretched by 20 years or so.

The trouble is that the country isn't prepared to have us stay so long.

We are in the position of dinner guests who suddenly decide that we want to spend the night. The host and his wife are frantically scratching around upstairs for extra camp cots and trying to conceal the fact that they really don't know where to put us.

Many old people are not getting much enjoyment from the bonus years that science has given them. They are imprisoned in damp, gas-smelling rooms, living mainly on bread and coffee, with nobody to talk to.

There are two ways that we can brighten the lives of elderly people. One is the long-range way — work to get more low-cost housing and nursing rehabilitative care for the old people who need it.

Another way is to cheer them up now, by taking them for a drive or asking them to the house — perhaps for dinner.

Many old people whose sons and daughters have grown up and moved to a distant place, would be pleased to be invited into the homes of a young neighboring couple, as honorary aunts and uncles to their children.

What makes bacon so fatty and tasteless? A brief complaint in this column about the poor quality of bacon brought a number of letters — all agreeing that modern bacon was insipid, some trying to explain why, but none defending modern bacon or praising it.

Some people said they had stopped buying bacon. Housewives blamed farmers, for producing fat pigs instead of lean pigs. Farmers blamed marketing boards and packing houses, for encouraging farmers to grow fat pigs, and for curing bacon the fast, chemical way.

Someone sent me a sample of bacon made by a butcher who still cures his own. The sweet-smoky smell of the bacon cooking attracted every creature in the house, including cats.

It tasted like the first mouthful of food after a famine, delicious. I can remember only one taste experience like it. That was when I drank freshly-squeezed apple juice after years of the canned product.

The farmers and packers have all kinds of interesting arguments to offer. But you can't eat arguments. Unless the packers make some changes, they will have a consumer revolt on their hands.

Of Many Things

TODAY'S YOUNG PEOPLE

We had a party at our home between Christmas and the New Year. All the guests were young men and women between the ages of 17 and 19, friends of my daughter Sal. It was Sal's birthday and the night of the Prom, so the girls were all dressed up for dancing later and the boys were scrubbed and handsome.

The old man hung around most of the evening. I was official photographer for the gathering, and I had been a bit worried that they'd wish me out of the way with my lights and camera. I had intended to snap a few pictures, quickly, and then unobstrusively do the disappearing act so I wouldn't be a wet blanket.

Wet blanket or not, those young people made me feel so much at home I stayed right through the party and had a wonderful time. And that night I said to Nora, "If those kids represent the new generation, I'm for it. They've got more poise, more common sense, and a bit more of everything than we had when we were that age."

We have worried, from time to time, about giving the kids so much freedom. The rules aren't as strict as when we were young. They've all had a few brief curtain lectures about the rights and wrongs of things, and that's been just about it. The reins have been held quite loosely. They come and go pretty much as they please, read the books and magazines of their choice, have a good deal more spending money than we did, and get off by themselves in automobiles which we never even dreamed of having at their age.

Maybe, in that wonderful group of kids I had fun with, there'll be the occasional mistake made. In this upset world, they would have a much better excuse than we ever had to go a little mad and raise a bit of hades. They have the freedom to kick their heels pretty high if they've a mind to.

My bet is, however, after observing them in wonder, that they're the best generation yet. They don't abuse their freedom, they're capable of responsibility.

May God preserve them from atom bombs or the stupidity of their elders!

Grenville Guide News

A successful Christmas party was enjoyed by the Guides of the 1st Grenville Company in the pre-Christmas season. The evening's activities commenced with the singing of carols around the Christmas tree.

Two churches dedicated within two years

Brownsburg —

Sunday, January 14, marked the dedication of the second Pentecostal Church in this area within two years' time. The Brownsburg church was dedicated in May, 1960, while the Grenville church was dedicated this past Sunday afternoon.

The pastor, the Rev. John Shrier, indicates that this is a real milestone in the work of the Pentecostal Churches in this area. It is an accomplishment that brings much joy to the people of both congregations.

(The Rev. and Mrs. John Shrier were formerly members of the Bethel Pentecostal Tabernacle in Ottawa. Mrs. Shrier's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roles, reside in Ottawa.)

The dedication service last Sunday was conducted by the Rev. W. B. Greenwood, superintendent of the Eastern Ontario and Quebec District of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, while the dedication prayer was offered by the Rev. R. M. Argue, of Evangel Pentecostal Church in Montreal.

Miss Judith Argue sang two beautiful solo numbers, entitled "Calvary Love" and "I Believe in Miracles". She was accompanied by the Rev. Allan Hornby, assistant pastor of Evangel Pentecostal Church.

A brief history of the Grenville church was given by Pastor Shrier. He mentioned that the church began with the conversion of some Grenville people during a series of services in Brownsburg with Evangelist Clarence Shrier, about two years ago. Mrs. Hilda MacIntyre, receiving inspiration from these services, offered the use of her hall for further devotions, and from this time until the completion of the church, services were held weekly in what used to be the 'MacIntyre dance hall'.

Last summer a piece of property was donated for the building of a new church, and soon after, construction began. The finished building is of cement block with red brick front and cathedral glass windows.

Prior to the dedication message, the Rev. W. B. Greenwood gave the congregation a succinct summary of progress in the district. He told of two churches to be dedicated within a month's time, one in Deep River, Ont., and the other in Scarborough, Ont. This was followed by an inspiring message on the text, "We have an altar". He emphasized the need of the church being dedicated to leading people to the altar of Calvary, where all may meet God. After this the dedication ceremony was read by the Rev. W. B. Greenwood while the congregation remained standing.

For the occasion, the church was decorated with baskets of white mums and red carnations, placed in the church by Mrs. Wm. Kingsbury.

Safeguard Your Child's Teeth

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

When did your child last have a dentist check over his teeth? Not long ago it was announced that in a survey in British Columbia of 10,000 children over three years, 93 per cent required dental treatment.

There are a number of sensible suggestions on which most dental authorities agree. For proper care, teeth should be brushed after eating and at bedtime, the last thing at night. The motion of the brush should be up and down, not sideways; the inside of the teeth, (next to the tongue) should be brushed too.

Semi-annual visits to the dentist should be a must in every family schedule. The dentist is a professional man who can advise puzzled parents about special mouth problems.

New Development

They may mention two new developments in tooth care — the use of fluorine in water and the action of ammoniated tooth paste preventing decay.

They are both receiving a good deal of publicity. Research workers are studying their effectiveness. Fluoridation is recommended by WHO (World Health Organization).

A friendly visit of a little child to the dentist does pave the way for a happy relationship later. The child looks on the dentist as a friend. The shiny new equipment and the big chair fascinate a child's eager mind. In the long run, because it will likely eliminate panic later, this early visit is worthwhile.

Healthy teeth well-formed and in their correct place, help in pronunciation. Never laugh at the First Grade child who has lost his baby front teeth and is lisping! Your amusement may make him self-conscious. If a child loses a permanent front tooth in an accident, for the sake of his speech it should be quickly replaced, by a false one.

May Grow Crooked

Dentists know that unless a false tooth is put in where a permanent one has been, not only speech is affected, but the child cannot bite or chew so well. The teeth on either side of the space are apt to grow a bit crooked. The opposite tooth in the other gum, (above or below the space), may grow too long if the damage is not repaired.

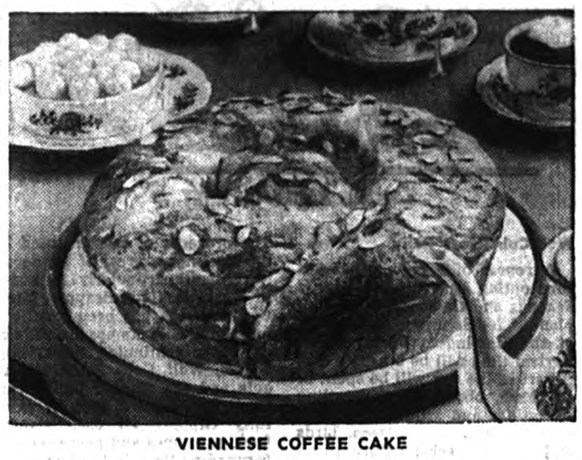

Good health and good teeth are dependent on each other. A balanced diet is of great importance to both. Digestion begins in the mouth with the thorough chewing of food.

For the sake of the child's speech and health, do train young children in good habits — brushing his teeth, eating proper food and regular visits to the dentist. Your child will thank you for a fine set of teeth when he grows to maturity.

Important Thing

Someone has said that the most important thing about a person's appearance is their expression. A friendly smile, when white, well-formed teeth are seen, is a great asset to a man or woman of any age. Will your son or daughter have a smile to be proud of when he or she enters the self-conscious adolescent period of growth?

VIENNESE COFFEE CAKE

January has more than its quota of bleak days; but there's a silver lining to even the most frigid cloud. This is an ideal month to try out recipes you have been clipping and saving. Doing something interesting and constructive will not only brighten your day, when bad weather limits outside activities, it will also give a lift to the family's spirits come meal-time.

Since cold weather and baking seem to have a special affinity for each other — especially baking with yeast — the recipe given here is for a Viennese Coffee Cake fashioned from a yeast dough and filled with a honey-sweetened fruit-and-nut mixture. Vienna is famous for its rich cakes, pastries and breads, and this cake is just as delicate and delicious as anyone would find in Austria. The recipe takes time to prepare, but the end result is worth every minute spent.

Viennese Coffee Cake

(Yield — 2 coffee cakes)

½ Cup milk, ½ granulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup butter or margarine, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes active dry yeast, 2 well-beaten eggs, 4½ cups (about) presifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup liquid honey, 2 teaspoons ground cinnamon, ½ cup butter or margarine (melted), ½ cup rich cream, 1½ cups seedless raisins, 1 cup chopped pecans, 1 slightly-beaten egg white, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ¼ cup slivered almonds.

Scald milk; stir in the ½ cup sugar, salt and the ¼ cup butter or margarine. Keep at lukewarm.

Measure the lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, well-beaten eggs and 2½ cups of the flour. Beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2 cups more. Turn out dough onto floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Meantime, measure honey into a bowl; blend in ground cinnamon, the ¼ cup melted butter or margarine and rich cream. Mix in raisins and pecans.

Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Cover with a tea towel, and let rise 10 minutes. Roll out one portion of dough into rectangle 8 x 20 inches.

Spread to within 1 inch of edges with half of the honey mixture. Beginning at a long edge, roll up jelly-roll fashion. Pinch seam and ends to seal in filling. Elongate the roll gently to about 27 inches, stretching and shaping it at the same time. Coil the roll in a well-greased 8-inch round layer-cake pan. Repeat with other portion of dough. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 45 minutes. Brush tops with slightly-beaten egg white and sprinkle with the 2 tablespoons sugar and slivered almonds. Bake in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 35 to 40 minutes.

SOCIAL DISTINCTION

Victoria (CP) — It is a mark of social distinction to live in a high rise apartment, making it possible to charge higher rents, says an investment dealer. Ernest Lindberg said high rise apartment buildings cost less to construct and operate than smaller buildings, yet rents can be 20 per cent higher.

Tuberculosis, Disease of the Young

Article published by the National Sanatorium Assn.

So far as TB is concerned, there are only two kinds of people. There is the large group of those who have never been infected, including the majority of young people for whom the risk of active disease after infection becomes extraordinarily high. This group cannot as individuals, take measures that will guard its members from infection by unknown active cases. Hence, safety, so far as the individual can effect it, lies in regular tuberculin tests which will detect infection at the earliest possible moment. The members of the other group, those already infected, as shown by a positive tuberculin test, owe it to themselves and to the large uninfected group, to determine regularly by chest X-ray that they are not among those who have developed active tuberculosis. Evidence of this latter phenomenon is the appearance last year in Canada of more than 6,300 new active cases, most of whom owe their disease to an old infection sometimes dormant for decades.

The question may well be asked, when will we be free from tuberculosis? . . . When can we let down our guard? Barring research discovery, the answer is far from cheerful, for with our present means we must follow the infected group during their lifetime. Even if this group were static in numbers other than for deaths, it will be seen that for the younger infected groups, this could be longer than 40 years. Unfortunately, the numbers are not static, for new infection still takes place in the interval between the first occurrence of active disease and the time of discovery.

In Ontario, where it is safe to believe that the intensity and facilities for case-finding are second to none, it is shocking to observe that 970 pulmonary cases of the 1,632 discovered had gone beyond the minimal stage before discovery. These, most often, were people who believed 'it can't happen to me'.

This time lapse between the occurrence of active disease and discovery is the crucial problem — it is the period of spreading infection. Paradoxically, if early tuberculosis made people feel sick enough to go to a doctor or clinic, new infection would stop almost overnight. In place of the nagging insistence of illness, we must depend entirely on the persuasion of public education. Early tuberculosis has none of the ordinary signs, symptoms, and warnings of other serious diseases. Hence, we ask healthy people to accept the fact that they are as likely as anyone else to be one of the unknown persons who spread the disease. Free tuberculin tests and chest X-rays at conveniently located chest clinics can remove any doubt. Someone knowingly or unknowingly, but always needlessly, is responsible for the infection of each of the more than 6,300 Canadians who annually contract active TB, with the resultant deaths.

Disgruntled

JOYCE DAVIDSON, TV interviewer known across Canada, said in New York she is "sick of being Canadian." She claimed Canadian newspapers are "bugging" her about her rumored romance with U.S. TV producer David Susskind, a married man.

Visibility for safe driving

This sounds like a truism, yet it cannot be repeated too often. . . . Judging by the number of cars noticed during a recent snowstorm with their windows snowed up and visibility impossible, it is hard to understand how a driver can take such chances. The rear-view mirror becomes useless when the back window is covered with snow.

Elementary prudence requires every driver to stop and remove snow and ice from the windshield and other windows, and to keep headlights, tail-lights and direction signals clean.

The United Church Women, a new group to embrace all women of the United Church of Canada, came into being with the New Year. Just before the end of 1961, the Woman's Association and the Woman's Missionary Society ended their separate activities to become part of the enlarged group. The groups have been operating for 37 years.

The events of the United Church Women will be reported in the new women's section of the church's paper, the United Church Observer. Editor of the new section is Mrs. Homer Lane, who spent 17 years with her husband in Saskatchewan churches at Carnduff, Weyburn and Regina.

The former Grace Grover, she specialized in English at Manitoba College. Following graduation, she spent two years as minister's assistant at St. Andrew's Church, Vancouver, then two years as girls' work secretary of the Quebec religious education council.

After her marriage to Dr. Homer E. Lane of the board of evangelism and social service, she took classes at Emmanuel College in Toronto.

She spent five years in Saskatoon and the last five have been spent in Toronto. During these years Mrs. Lane has done considerable free lance writing for magazines, and scripts for the CBC including school broadcasts and Trans-Canada matinee.

Like Spice

Mexicans like their colors just as spicy as their foods, a Mexican paint manufacturer said on a visit to Canada.

Fernando Alfaro was surprised to find Canadians decorating their homes in pastels which, while pleasant, have little appeal to the emotions.

"For every five gallons of paint we sell, one gallon is red — the brightest, clearest red you could imagine," he explained.

A favorite kitchen combination in Mexico might be a red ceiling with aquamarine walls and white furniture.

"Canadians seem to use the bright colors only as accents," Mr. Alfaro said. "In Mexico we like vivid hues lavishly on large areas. The pastels are saved for contrast only."

He said Mexicans take advantage of the emotional impact of bright contrasting colors when they paint their homes.

"Why, recently I addressed a Mexican women's group and they were most anxious to learn which colors I would recommend to keep their husbands home in the evenings." He didn't reveal what he told the women.

Mr. Alfaro was surprised at the skill of the do-it-yourself movement in Canada. Home decorating is only starting in Mexico and if a family does decide to do its own decorating, the woman chooses the paint and the men put it on.

Correct Measure

Many pots of mashed or whipped potatoes have been ruined by the addition of too much milk. Home economists of the consumer section in Ottawa recommend mashing the potatoes while still hot: season with 3 tbsps. butter; ¼ cup milk; ½ tsp. salt and a few grains of pepper for every six medium potatoes. Replace potatoes over low heat and beat until smooth and fluffy.

Noted agriculturist, Dr. G. S. Barton, favorably remembered in these parts

Many farm and livestock men in Argenteuil regret the death of Dr. G. S. H. Barton, G.M.C., federal deputy minister of agriculture, 1932-49, who died in Ottawa, on January 4. He was born in Vankleek Hill, June 29, 1883.

He was one of Canada's most outstanding scientific agriculturists and was dean of agriculture at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, from 1925 to 1932.

He represented Canada at numerous agricultural conferences abroad and played a prominent role in the early days of the Food and Agriculture Organizations as established by the United Nations in 1945.

During the past war, he represented Canada on the Combined Food Board establishment by the U.K., U.S.A. and Canada.

In 1935, Dr. Barton was named by His Majesty King George V a commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Dr. Barton was regarded as one of the best livestock judges Canada ever produced. While at Macdonald College, he was prominent in organizing the Milk Producers' Association of Montreal, in the advanced registration for dairy cattle, and as chairman of the Soldiers' Settlement Board of Montreal.

Dr. Barton was a leading figure in all the agricultural measures put through Parliament during the Bennett regime, including the first Canada Marketing Board. He was the author of numerous works on agricultural subjects.

Dr. Barton got his first training and interest in agriculture from his father, John M. Barton, farmer of Vankleek Hill, and his mother, Margaret Ann Allen.

In 1912, Dr. Barton married Miss Mabel Pauline Loveridge of Buffalo, who predeceased him in 1960.

He leaves two brothers, T. W. Barton and Gilbert Barton of Vankleek Hill; three sisters, Mrs. Hattie Hunter and Mrs. Leslie Nixon (Margaret) of Vankleek Hill and Mrs. Russell Lefaivre (Bertha) of Rosetown, Sask.

Farm philosophy on discomfort

We don't think much of a complex machine developed by science for measuring human discomfort. The countryman is definitely opposed to the idea. When he is cutting ice on a bitter day in winter to ensure cold milk through next summer he knows that he is uncomfortable. On a hot summer day when he is hoeing his golden bantam corn the moisture dripping from him is proof of the situation. So we think that the time has arrived for the scientists to stop telling us so much about ourselves or we will be even more upset than we are now.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Salt Is More Than An Appetizer

The medical profession has become far more nutrition conscious during recent decades than it used to be. I believe they now would disown a member of their profession who in the thirties, as health editor of a big city newspaper, wrote an article disparaging the use of salt.

Dr. Bohstedt

He stated that salt additions to a diet had no nutritional purpose in the body, that salt was merely a condiment for which people had developed a craving, and in any event no inorganic chemical like salt could be assimilated by the body.

I wrote him to ask what authority he had for that statement. Because if his assertion held true, a whole army of research men and women would have to discard their experimental results built up over years of work with inorganic salts for humans and livestock too.

Certainly man and beast assimilate inorganic compounds. Calcium carbonate and phosphate is assimilated to serve bone and other tissue formation, and to play a very important part in body metabolism.

Iron and copper compounds are assimilated and are used in the prevention of nutritional anemia.

Iodine can be assimilated in its inorganic form of potassium iodide, to prevent goitre.

In recent years even fluorine in its inorganic form, as dissolved in water supplies, can be assimilated to prevent dental caries in children.

I received no reply from this health editor, although I had sent him the required self-addressed stamped envelope. He must have realized that he had spoken out of turn.

The field of medicine has made enormous advances during recent years, many in the profession having made outstanding contributions to the science of nutrition.

Physicians may have their proper reservations regarding the unlimited use of salt by some of their patients, but few of the profession now would express themselves regarding salt as did this old-timer of the thirties. Salt serves too many vital purposes and any healthy human being needs to supplement the natural salt contained in food. Its elements, sodium and chlorine, take part in respiration, digestion, and blood circulation—and are therefore identified with life itself. In addition, salt serves as a carrier of vital trace minerals for livestock providing minute amounts of such minerals as iodine, cobalt, copper, iron, zinc and manganese.

Question: When whole grain has passed through the digestive tract of cattle and appears in the manure, has any of its feed value been absorbed by the animal?

Answer: No, at least extremely little of it. The outer seed coat is a very protective shell against the effect of the digestive enzymes. Only when the seed coat is broken, and the inside laid bare, is there a digestive breakdown.

LUXURY LINER HAD SHADY REPUTATION

Ever wonder how the word "posh" found its way into our language? "Posh" is another word for luxury, and its origin is an interesting one. The P & O steamship line between Great Britain and India used to charge a premium for cabins on the shady side of the ship.

Since the shady side was the port, or left-hand side, on the outward voyage, and the starboard, or right-hand side, when homeward bound, the cabins were referred to as Port Outward - Starboard Home — or P-O-S-H.

Words are fascinating creatures, They have so many faces. Take the word "bank", for example. It can mean the ground near a river, an establishment for the custody of money, or, when it's used as a verb, security of feeling, absolute reliability. "You can bank on it," we say.

These last two meanings bear a connection that is far from coincidental. The fact is, a bank represents security and reliability, especially the Bank of Montreal.

And, of course, saving at the Bank of Montreal doesn't only mean your money is safe. It also means that with money in the bank you can often take advantage of unexpected opportunities that might otherwise pass you by.

Ask Paul Boivin, accountant at the Lachute branch, or Miss Lulu Miller, accountant-in-charge at Ayersville branch of the B of M, about it. They'll show you how easy it is — and how profitable — to open a savings account. Call soon!

Safety in the woods

Prof. A. R. C. Jones, Woodlot Management Department, says that every farmer working in the woodlot this winter should invest in a hard hat, to help prevent accidents. It is difficult to hear, when a chain saw is in operation, and a hat of this type would give much protection against falling branches. Another point which he emphasizes is not to work alone when using a chain saw. In such a case help may be too far away, resulting in a fatal accident. There have been accidents of this kind before, proving it unwise to work alone in the woodlot when using a chain saw.

Wolf Cub Sixers' Rally

A repeat of a popular wintertime outing for Wolf Cub Sixers, Seconds and Cubmasters is being planned for Saturday, January 27, at the Harrington Forest Farm. Arrival time will be 9 a.m.

Part of the day will be spent in the bush, observing woodcutting operations and acquiring skill in the identification of trees, birds and animal tracks; nature slides and films will also be shown. Instruction in the safe handling and use of firearms will be followed by a period of outdoor target practice with .22 calibre rifles.

District Cubmaster R. T. Reppert has asked Wolf Cub leaders to let him know how many from each pack will participate.

Lachute's Bottle Collection

The response to the Lachute Troop's bottle salvage drive was so enthusiastic that the job of handling and sorting has only recently been completed. Scoutmaster George Gordon has estimated that upwards of 25,000 bottles were handled; this included approximately 100 cases of beverage bottles and more than 5,000 bottles of other types, which are also to be sold intact for reuse. The remainder, sorted and crushed, represent a total in excess of 5 tons of marketable scrap.

The Boy Scouts are sincerely appreciative of the co-operation of the citizens of Lachute and vicinity. The list of car and truck drivers and other volunteer workers is a long one — it had to be, in order to successfully complete a project of this magnitude. The special assistance of the following business establishments is gratefully acknowledged: Don Boa Service Station, Boyd's Express Ltd., Deacon Motor Sales Ltd., Giles Publishing House Ltd., Kerr's Diner, Paul and Graham Reg., and A. For readers who may not know about this, Boy Scouts have an arrangement with stamp dealers in many countries to accept bulk shipment of used postage stamps. The proceeds of sale are used in the most needy areas of the Scout world and particularly to assist in work with handicapped boys. Canada's part has been excellent but supplies of stamps are required on a continuing basis. Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs, leaders, parents and the general public can share in this good turn by carefully clipping all used stamps from envelopes and packages and forwarding them in large or small packets, to Boy Scouts World Bureau, 77 Metcalfe St., Ottawa 4, Ontario.

TIPS ON WINTER COW CARE

Here are a few tips that can help your herd come through the winter in good condition and with good production:

Ventilate: Cow comfort calls for a well ventilated barn and temperature ranging from 45 to 60°.

Warm water cuts feed bill. Check water heaters now to be sure they are working. If water is cold they won't drink enough for top production.

Sanitation is extremely important during cold months. Clip around udder and flanks to make cleaning easier. Keep clean bedding under cows.

Look for lice. They're troublesome at this season. Dust Purina Hog and Cattle Dusting Powder on cows and rub into hair.

Wash udders before milking. This is not a substitute for clipping. Use Purina Io-Dairy or Purina Disinfectant solution on udders, hands and equipment to keep bacterial count low.

Feed Purina Milking Chows that are designed to give you the best possible production and condition from your milking herd at this time of year.

Tony Malaket new president of Ch. Commerce

Antoine (Tony) Malaket, local merchant, was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce last Thursday evening, succeeding Gaetan Leclair. Elected as directors were Gaetan St.-Jacques, George Desfossés, Dr. Marc Papineau and Maurice Gravel.

Gaëtan Leclair, honorary president; Antoine Malaket, president; Gabriel Valois, 1st vice-president; Maurice Lussier, 2nd vice-president; Maurice Gravel, treasurer; Marcel Grondin, secretary.

Florian Guitard, Paul Guénette, Georges Raymond, Donat Saulnier, André Lefebvre, George Desfossés, Gaëtan St.-Jacques, Dr. Marc Papineau, Maurice Gravel and Roger Lamarche, directors.

President Gaetan Leclair, retiring, reviewed the activities and achievements of the past year. Chamber representatives had taken part in a seminar at Ste. Rose, a provincial postmasters' congress here in Lachute, the municipal inauguration at Chomedey, and the Mille Iles regional Chamber of Commerce meet, held here in Lachute last June with the local Chamber as hosts. It had assisted at the formation of a new regional group. The Chamber had presented a brief on traffic parking to Town Council, and a brief to the Tourist Bureau conference at St. Jovite last November. It had arranged for festive decorating of the shopping areas, organized a storekeeper delegation to protest against the proposed sales tax, had assisted in organizing the bicycle safety tests. Visits had been organized to the Dow Brewery, La Presse and C-I-L.

Mr. Leclair, in conclusion, thanked the officers and directors for their loyal co-operation, and Tony Malaket, in assuming the chairmanship, pledged his best efforts to continuing this energetic program.

The meeting, held at the Golfer's Motel, was followed by a supper.

Carillon worker drowned Tuesday

Marcel Rochon, a citizen of Hawkesbury, 23 years of age, drowned in the Ottawa River early Tuesday morning.

Employed on the Carillon Dam construction, he was descending a ladder propped against a pier, when he lost his footing and fell in the river. Scene of the mishap was near the centre of the dam, and the accident occurred around 7.30 a.m.

A search for the body was made with grappling irons and by divers, but up to last reports from the site, these efforts have been fruitless.

Week's Epigram

People are funny. Three thousand miles from home, they rejoice to see home-town people they would ignore back home.

Affects North Shore landowners —

Hydro-Quebec agrees on timber salvaging below Ottawa River flood line

All timber on the banks of the Ottawa River inside the field-contour established by Hydro-Quebec will have to be salvaged. Salvaging will no longer be possible after closing of the Carillon Dam.

Hydro-Quebec has maintained that such timber is located in the bed of the river and consequently is Crown property. The Commission is still of the same opinion but, without prejudice to its own rights, now agrees that such riparian owners dispose of this timber as they see fit. On the other hand, the fact that the riparian owner accepts this timber shall in no way indicate that he renounces the rights he claims to be his, if such is the case, on the land subject to such salvaging.

Should an owner, contrary to Hydro-Quebec claim, be legally recognized as owner of the land subject to salvaging and/or submerged as a result of the construction of the Carillon Dam, then the Commission will have to acquire each land by agreement or expropriation. In such case, Hydro-Quebec agrees not to consider as part of prospective settlement the value of the timber already salvaged and turned over to the owner.

Hydro-Quebec, from this date, grants all owners permission to salvage all the timber they wish, where it fronts their property inside the Hydro-Quebec markings. Such wood must be taken out of the area to be submerged. For each 128 cubic foot cord of wood (apparent volume), thus cut and taken out, riparian owners shall receive an amount of $8, and for each 1,000 f.b.m. of saw logs measured according to Roy Log Rule, an amount of $16, which shall be paid by the contractor engaged by Hydro-Quebec in this area or directly by Hydro-Quebec, should there be no contractor engaged in this area by the Commission.

Any riparian owner wishing to avail himself of this offer must immediately send written notification to this effect to Hydro-Quebec, 107 Craig Street West, Montreal (attention Mr. Emile Cousineau, Technical Surveys Engineer) mentioning the number of the lot adjacent to the salvaging area, as well as the range number and the name of the township.

Postponement in Date of Flooding

Montreal — Closing of the flood gates on the new Carillon Dam on the Ottawa River has been postponed from April until next July — a spokesman for the Quebec-Hydro Commission said last Friday.

He stated the decision was taken to provide more time to clear timber from sites to be flooded in the area. The postponement will not delay the schedule for producing electrical power from the development.

Two jury verdicts of 'criminal responsibility'

Jean Périard, 19, held in recent midnight slaying of André Prévost

At an inquest last Thursday under Dr. R. Lavigne, joint district coroner, Jean Périard, 19-year-old resident of Isabella Street, was held criminally responsible in the fatal shooting of André Prevost, 17, on the night of January 14-15.

Prosecutor for the crown was Roger Lagarde, Lachute lawyer, and the defendant was represented by Mr. Burns. The accused was handcuffed and escorted by two provincial officers; he was returned to custody in Montreal immediately after the inquest, at which he was not called upon to testify.

Miss Andrée Marinier, 15, and Paul Périard, 20, brother of the accused, were leading witnesses. The young girl stated that she had spent part of the evening with André Prévost, and it was while returning home with other young friends that the victim had been shot by Périard with a .303 Winchester rifle. The girl had seen Périard behind a snowbank aiming the rifle and had tried to prevent him, unfortunately too late; the shot was fired, and the victim was hit in the back, crumpling to the ground. Asked to identify the assailant, she pointed to the accused.

Paul Périard testified that he was owner of the weapon, which he kept hidden in a cupboard, while the bullets were kept locked in a suitcase. He was awakened from his sleep on the fateful night by hearing his brother rummaging in the suitcase. He warned him to leave it alone, then followed him out — but too late, the shot was fired.

Lucien Prévost, father of the victim, testified he had last seen his son as he was leaving for his night-work, at 11.40 p.m. When he was later called to the hospital, the boy had just died.

Dr. Jean-Paul Valcourt testified his autopsy had shown fragments of the shot in the chest and heart, and there had been copious hemorrhage internally.

Marcel Prévost, 14-year-old brother of the victim, corroborated the evidence given by the girl.

Cst. Raymond Bell stated he was on duty at town police headquarters Sunday night, when a youth came in carrying a rifle and gave himself up as perpetrator of the act. The constable found an empty shell in the rifle.

The coroner instructed the jury on the two alternative verdicts of accidental or criminal death, and after deliberation, the chairman, J.-H. St. Onge, announced the jurors' verdict of criminal responsibility.

MacGregor hearing in death of William Gunn, set for Jan. 29

Malcolm Arnold MacGregor, formerly of the Air Force, who was arrested in Ontario and brought back to Quebec, was held criminally responsible at an inquest last Thursday into the death of William (Bill) Gunn, who was fatally shot November 20 while working in the woods at Mt. Maple.

The inquest, held at Lachute Auditorium, was under chairmanship of Joint-Coroner Dr. R. Lavigne. The coroner's hearings on two violent deaths in the locality, attracted a large spectatorship that afternoon.

Fernand Legault as crown prosecutor questioned a number of witnesses, and Jean-Louis Blais, chairman of the jury, pronounced the verdict.

Two witnesses in the hall identified MacGregor as a man seen in the Brownsburg district during November, and articles found in MacGregor's car were identified by a witness, Donald James MacDevitt, as possessions stolen from his cottage at Half Moon Lake.

Dr. Jean-Paul Valcourt told of finding four .22 bullet holes in the victim's body when he performed an autopsy the following day. According to the medico-legal expert, the direction of the bullets, fired from a range of possibly 100 feet, indicated no possibility of suicide.

Dr. Rosario Fontaine, chief medico-legal officer of the province, had examined two bullets extracted by Dr. Valcourt, and examined also two rifles brought by Sgt. Alphonse Duchesneau, Q.P.P., on arresting MacGregor at Bala, Ont. In the expert's opinion, the two bullets from Gunn's body had been fired by one of these rifles taken from Mr. MacDevitt's cottage.

Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, of the provincial police unit here, described findings at the scene of the crime. He also reported on being called to Mr. MacDevitt's cottage the following Saturday, to investigate the disappearance of a .22 rifle, a sleeping bag and other effects. There were indications someone had used the cottage, and there were tracks of a car and marks of red paint from a car scraping against a rock.

Later Mr. MacDevitt had brought to the detective a "collection-jar" found near his place. This was identified by Mason MacAdam as a receptacle used in canvassing by the Girl Guides, which had been taken from his home. He had been visited by MacGregor, who had shown him his red Gogomobile car. He had noticed "all sorts of things" in the back of the car, especially the sleeping bag and flying suit. MacGregor had returned to the MacAdam home later, when the witness was absent.

William Hamilton, of Brownsburg, identified the jar and Robt. Tomalty testified he had seen MacGregor in the red car on the road to Half Moon Lake, on the afternoon of November 20.

John MacRae, of Brownsburg, told how Gunn, his brother-in-law, had been working for him in the woodlot. He had given him $10 at the noon-hour. . . . Cpl. Dinelle had previously stated he found only 10 cents in the victim's pockets, after his death.

Larry Presseault, jeweller at Brownsburg, stated he had loaned the accused $5 on a watch, November 13, to buy gasoline for his car. He identified the flying suit MacGregor was wearing that day, and also identified MacGregor in the hall at the inquest.

Called upon to testify, MacGregor identified a registration brought from Bala, Ont., by Sgt. A. Duchesneau, Q.P.P., as that belonging to his car, also the flying suit, and recalled being in Brownsburg last November. He admitted entry and theft at the MacDevitt cottage, where he had stayed from November 13 to 20. He also identified the collection jar taken from MacAdam's home, which (he said) contained $10 or $12. He admitted that he could have known the victim but was not sure, and did not recall him by name.

Mrs. Gunn also gave evidence.

Finally, on rendering of the verdict, MacGregor was handcuffed and taken away by his escorts, two provincial detectives.

Legal counsel for MacGregor is the law firm of Cohen and Kaufman.

Two fire calls in short order

A fire in the Lily Garden Restaurant, Bethany Street, Monday night, caused minor damage to the premises — according to Fire Chief Don MacCulloch, who stated the fire appeared to have been caused by overheated grease in the stove.

The fire call was received around 11.45 p.m. and, in an attempt to extinguish the blaze before firemen arrived, an employee threw water on the flames. This fell into the liquid fat, which boiled over onto the floor.

The fire was quickly extinguished by members of the Volunteer Fire Department.

* * *

At 7.20 a.m. Tuesday, firemen answered a call to premises not far from this spot — the home of Gerard Gagné, 191-A Bethany Street. Here a space-heater had overheated. Smoke and soot damage resulted from the outbreak.

Two claim for injuries from police bullets

From legal counsel for two men wounded in a tussle with local police on the night of December 23, came notice that the complainants are holding Lachute Town responsible for their injuries suffered in the fracas.

It is recalled that Guy St.-Hilaire and Origène Rousseau resisted arrest at the hands of Lieut. Cyr and Cst. Gagné. The latter fired shots to subdue the belligerent offenders, hitting each of them in the leg. Both spent time in the St. Jerome hospital for care of their wounds.

The town authorities brought the two men to justice. They will appear for preliminary hearing on Monday, February 5.

The notice of claim, from Jean Salois, attorney for the two accused, was handed over by Council for attention of the Phillips Investigation Bureau, police agency for this town.

The two men stand trial February 5, both charged with grievous assault, plus charges of resisting arrest (St. Hilaire) and interference with the duties of a law officer (Rousseau).

Annual meeting of the Lachute Caisse Populaire

An increase of $142,000 business last year brought assets of the Lachute Caisse Populaire up to a total of $1,431,000 — according to the report presented at the 14th annual shareholders' meeting, held Sunday evening in the council chamber at town hall under presidency of J. Romeo Legault. Raymond Beaulieu, manager, gave the report.

Revenues for the year amounted to $72,247.65 and expenses $63,931.16. The $8,316.49 net profits will be apportioned between reserve funds and dividends to shareholders.

Four retiring officers were re-elected by acclamation — J. Romeo Legault, Mozart Carrière, Notary Jacques Beaudoin and Dr. Marc Papineau.

It was voted to issue a 4½% dividend on shares (previous rate of dividend has been 4%); and shareholders may subscribe to a maximum of 200 shares, or $1,000.

The Caisse Populaire pays 3½% interest per annum on savings, and since March 1961, has instituted a life insurance for a maximum $1,000 savings. Other innovations have been adopted, and are operating efficiently for the service of patrons.

Staff of the Caisse Populaire comprises Raymond Beaulieu as manager, Raymond Campeau and Miss Claire Marchand.

Final word on filtration tax at February 7 Council session

A few taxpayers who attended Council meeting to hear more on the means of financing Lachute's filtration plant, were disappointed last Wednesday, when Mayor Fernand Legault informed them the matter was still under study and that definite mode of procedure would be forthcoming at the February 7 meeting, statutory session of the Council. (The meeting will start at 7.30.)

As regards the filtration plant, it appears the job is not going ahead on scheduled expectations of the engineers, or of the Council; it is three or four weeks behind the planned schedule. The contractors, however, can speed up the work when it is at a stage further advanced, thus making up for lost time. The job must be completed by May 25 next; the contract provides for a $200 forfeit for each day's delay in its completion.

Keen interest in Lions Club plans, projects

There are social events of interest on the Lions Club program this season, besides the necessary fund-raising ventures which permit this service club to maintain its charity and welfare work, its community rink, and various enterprises for youth progress.

At the regular meeting chaired by Col. Ernest Emmett, president, Roger Gravel agreed to convene the club "ladies' night" in a novel setting, at the Ayers Ski Centre, Carling Lake. Also, with Claude Landry as committeeman, Mr. Gravel will book the Golf Club chalet for the Lions' Spring Dance on April 28. A highlight of this affair is the big annual cash drawing for a $1,000 prize.

Gaetan Malaket will chair a soiree to be held for all young hockey teams in the Lions Rink League this season — with a youth-tingling hockey-star attraction, if available.

In fund-raising activities, energetic Ken Raymond will spark the next public bingo, in February.

Lion Donald Hay, who was Agricultural Society president last year, presented to a young guest at this meeting (Robert Rodger) the Lions Club trophy for showmanship champion in the 4-H Calf Club contest at Lachute Fair 1961. Robert was accompanied by his father, Mr. Douglas Rodger.

A regular weekly drawing was initiated, to help the fund towards expenses of a representative to the International Convention. The world conference takes place this year at Nice, France.

Civic exchequer aids two youth enterprises

As spokesman for a Lions Club delegation at Town Council last Wednesday, townsman Jos. Dumais was instrumental in procuring a $2,000 subsidy for the club skating rink.

Mr. Dumais presented figures illustrating the extent to which this rink has developed into a community affair. It is used by around 1,000 children every week for skating, by about 250 young players in organized hockey, by 100-or-so young people for other purposes, besides enthusiasts of both sexes who attend figure skating classes.

The Council grant will be applied towards maintenance of the rink this season, and to replacement of needed equipment.

Alderman Dr. J.-P. Dorion piloted the resolution through Council, and the support was unanimous. Mayor Fernand Legault, in the chair, took time out to express appreciation for the work of local service clubs on behalf of the youth of this town. . . . "The municipality is fortunate in this respect. The town collectively does nothing for the diversion of its young citizens. Our service clubs attend to all that, and we should be grateful to them."

The corporation equipment and crews will also maintain the driveway to the skating rink and clear the parking ground.

Centre d'Art

As regards the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil, which had petitioned for a grant of $500, the amount of this request was reduced by half, to $250.

Jean Laforest, prime organizer of the Centre, claimed: "The municipal council should encourage cultural and artistic activities of the youngsters, to whom many facilities are offered by this venture. We are confident that the Centre d'Art will bring favorable attention to this community throughout the province."

While appreciating the work accomplished by Mr. Laforest and Mme Armande Lebrun at the Centre, Mayor Legault remarked that it was the first time they had appealed for financial aid, and it was traditional in Lachute to pare such initial requests. "Moreover, your approach for assistance was not foreseen in our estimates, as was the case of the Lions' Rink. Now you have 'one foot in the door', so to speak — which is a good omen for future years. We are sorry indeed we cannot offer more, but rest assured that the Council knows and appreciates what you are doing."

The $250 grant was passed with Dr. J.-P. Dorion again as sponsor.

Chance meeting lands thug in penitentiary

Ste. Rose — Angusto Matos, of Carillon, Que., got sweet revenge just recently, when he was walking along Ontario Street in Montreal and came face to face with a Montreal man, who along with a woman companion, had beaten and robbed Matos in Ste. Rose just before the Christmas holidays, leaving him penniless and unconscious. Matos immediately recognized his attacker and by another sheer coincidence the meeting took place right in front of a police station. Matos rushed into the police station and had an officer arrest his assailant, who is named Bouchard. Bouchard appeared in court and was sentenced to five years in penitentiary for assault and robbery with violence.

Food market innovation

The I.G.A. supermarket on Chatham Street has introduced Thursday night shopping, for the convenience of customers. Starting this week, the store will remain open Thursdays until 9 p.m.

As an inducement and introduction to this new schedule, the manager, René Dagenais, offers price attractions specially for this 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. shopping period on Thursdays.

Mr. Dagenais hopes other grocery and provision stores will follow this gesture of opening Thursday evenings.

(The A & P Supermarket is advertising a similar measure, in this issue.)

Correction

In a report on acclamations at Carillon last week, Mr. Adelard Thibert was erroneously mentioned as mayor. It should have been stated that Mr. Jean Lemay is mayor of the village.

The full council comprises — Mayor John Lemay, Councillors, Georges Crevier, Roland Roussin, Jean-Paul Roy, Adélard Thibert, Joseph Moreau and Réal Gauthier. Marcel Décary is secretary.

Winter Camping

A composite troop of about 15 Boy Scouts from Thurso, Lachute and Brownsburg spent most of last week-end establishing a winter campsite beside the Rouge River, at the Harrington Forest Farm of the C.I.P. Company.

The skepticism and lack of enthusiasm with which any mention of sub-zero tenting is greeted by most adult Canadians, would have given way to amazement, had they been able to drop in late Saturday evening. With their stomachs full of hot roast beef and boiled potatoes, their sleeping bags comfortably spread over a dry, insulated floor, and a good birch fire in a cook stove in one corner of the tent, the boys would have been heard against the background of the transistorized play-by-play of the Montreal-Detroit hockey game.

Even the experts would have been impressed with the comfort and facilities with which these boys and their leaders had provided themselves. The Lachute Troop has a very large wall tent — almost 400 square feet — which served alternately as eating and sleeping headquarters. Properly erected on heavy poles, it is capable of withstanding the roughest of winter weather. It is provided with an asbestos chimney ring so that a small stove may be set up inside the tent for both heating and cooking. The tent was pitched on well-packed snow and the walls were banked from the outside to keep the wind from getting under. The whole floor, except for the stove area, was covered with a substantial layer of small evergreen branches, to provide insulation from the snow. Canvass, spread over the evergreen mat, converted the tent floor into a giant bed, where all 15 boys were able to spread their sleeping bags and blankets.

District Commissioner H. R. Wilson joined the group for their first meal on Saturday. Leadership for the event was provided by Ken Ball of Brownsburg, Harold Hall of Thurso, and Bob MacAdam of Lachute.

To Canadian International Paper Company and to Harrington Forest Farm Manager J. Salm in particular, the Boy Scouts are grateful — not only for permission to use the property, but for road plowing, firewood and other essential details which contributed to the success of this event. Arrangements for further use of the campsite and facilities may be made through D.S.M. B. A. Jenkins.

Lions Club Skating Rink

Activities and Highlights of the Week

Minor hockey is in full swing at the Lachute Lions' rink, with approximately 240 boys, ranging in age from 9 to 16 years, participating. The league consists of 12 teams playing in regular scheduled games, four teams in each of the Pee Wee (age 10-12), Bantam (age 12-14) and Midget (age 14-16) classification. In addition, two hours per week are scheduled for the 50 or 60 young Mosquitos (age 8-10), who are being taught the rudiments of the game.

The sponsors, coaches and organizers of this worthwhile effort are doing an excellent job of promoting hockey in Lachute, and deserve considerable credit. There is no better way for you parents to show your appreciation than by attending the games. If more of the fathers and mothers would turn out, they would not only boost the morale of their sons, but would also be surprised at the calibre of hockey being played by these young sportsmen.

Come on, Parents. Let's observe Minor Hockey Week (which started Jan. 20) by following the well known slogan, "Don't send, TAKE your boy to the skating rink."

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Outdoor recreation is now very Big Business in most parts of the country. Most of the legislators realize this, and have been developing their own immediate areas as much as possible. New parks, camp-grounds, easily accessible boating spots complete with wharves, marinas, etc. — all trying to pick up the elusive recreation dollar. Ontario is especially after this business, and is going about it in the best way possible. It is unfortunate that Quebec is, as usual, lagging behind. Publicity has been given to some of the projects being ATTEMPTED in this province, but they are two-bit jobs that simply don't count. I think the only reason they have been started is for publicity on what is being done. But when are we going to realize that it is not talk that counts? A closer look at the general wildlife and natural resources of Quebec certainly doesn't add up to anything in the way of accomplishments. One thing can be said with conviction — there is more talk and less action now than ever before.

Just finished reading of a snapping turtle which was caught and killed by a Montrealer. This snapper is a record, according to Dr. Scott of the Royal Ontario Museum. It was taken in Kensington Lake, of the same township, Gatineau County, about 100 miles north of Ottawa. Weighing 47 lbs., with a shell of 19 inches, this sure must have been a fighter. How old this creature was I don't know, but during its tenure of life it must have consumed tons of fish and young birds. A good thing to get rid of, and maybe a riddance that will help wildlife in some small way.

With most of us just reviving from the small wars that went on this past hunting season, it's about time we started to think what is to come in future, and try in our own way to do something about it. I say WE — as we, personally, seem to be the only ones that care if we survive. Signs prohibiting fishing and hunting sprung up all over the County, but these were not very effective. I have been told of a similar situation in another province, and what was done about it.

A group of farmers got together with all authorities concerned — Game, County, Club and Provincial — and they came up with this solution: Some of the farmers had waste lands not suitable for growth or grazing, and decided to get some use out of the land, along with a little tax money too. These lands were posted as usual, but on application by the hunters, were opened for a certain time. Everyone was checked in and paid a certain fee for their shooting on any given day. Responsibility was accepted by the hunters for any damage caused by firearms, and so far, everything is working very well. Some of these same farmers have started restocking their lands with game birds, etc., for benefit of the hunters, and with a little reforestation thrown in for good luck, it certainly looks as though something has been hit upon to make both farmer and hunter happy.

Something like this could perhaps be tried in this district, with good results. There certainly is enough waste land around to provide good hunting, AND, to keep irresponsible people out of the bush. It's worth a try, anyway.

It makes you think spring is almost upon us, when you inspect the sporting-goods stores. Fishing tackle is, of course, the big thing. Even though winter is still with us in a big way, we do get a sorely-needed lift out of seeing these things.

It's funny how all fishermen start to get that itch just about now, and the fishing tackle is taken out of its winter hiding place. Some of these enthusiasts are beginning to think now, maybe, they should have taken a little more time in putting their tackle away. I know of a couple of cases where rods have been damaged beyond repair. There is a wrong impression, for instance, that a glass rod is unbreakable, and that it will not warp. After being stored in a metal case with the top screwed tight for a few months, you can picture what happened — the nicest warp in the tip that you could possibly imagine. The handle was also so badly dried out, that it dropped off when taken out of the case. I also have a reel at home that had some sort of liquid spilled over it, that melted the monofilament. This is not going to be too bad to get off — but all so unnecessary when you think about it. Great sport for a winter's evening!

Ice fishing sure has come into its own. It is not too long ago that anyone going out could anticipate a rough time, from weather, etc. Now, with all the cottages and shacks being built on the ice, they look like villages. I'm afraid some brain is going to exploit the tax situation and proclaim a new source of revenue. Believe me, some of these cottages would do credit to a summer settlement. Certainly nothing is left to chance. Imagine having beds, and city furnishings — even, in one case that I know of, a TV. But even with all the comforts of home, these fishermen and women are a hardy breed, and they deserve respect.

I heard of an outfit that is starting sports shooting, indoors. This is a public shooting gallery, not to be confused with the private clubs. It seems that anyone can go in and learn the ins and outs, under qualified shooters. Boy, this sure could be a blessing in disguise, if it were started in an area such as ours. At least the customers would know they were going to be taught the correct way. Instead of youngsters hanging around the street with nothing to do, they could be starting target-shooting clubs among themselves. Also, Dad could go down to shoot a few rounds with his youngsters, with complete confidence. Sounds like a good idea for THIS district.

Garbage hounds are once more in evidence. More and more our roadsides are starting to look like junk heaps. Seeing a parcel tied up with junk in it, being thrown out on the road, makes me ponder on the mentality of these people. Certainly this type have no pride in their community, or for that matter, in themselves either.

Thanks for the compliment

SOMETIMES FROM the local pulpits, sometimes from the political platform, The Watchman hears acknowledgment of its effectiveness as a medium of information. But rarely from the Council chambers comes any sort of tribute to our coverage of municipal affairs.

One such reference reached us last week, when Mayor Legault and Alderman Armstrong lauded the role of our two newspapers in informing the public on civic problems and administration. In fact, the mayor jocularly remarked that the taxpayers were sometimes, perhaps, "too well informed".

Evidence that the councillors generally appreciate these efforts, was provided in their sponsoring a full-page spread in the 10th anniversary issue of "L'Argenteuil", our French-language counterpart, to appear on March 22 next. This was the matter which sparked the compliment.

Thanks again; we're listening.

Unearthing those "unknown origins"

OUR READERS, by this time, must be well informed on the common causes of fire. These have been repeated so often, there is danger they have lost their impact — which is a dangerous state of affairs indeed.

Over 50 percent of the 80,000 fires in Canada in 1959 were branded "of unknown origin". The United Kingdom Industrial Welfare magazine reveals some "hitherto unsuspected sources of ignition", and it will do no harm to consider these in the light of our own habits and surroundings. Four examples are cited in this study, illustrating the need of special precautions in particular industries and practices:

(1) Spontaneous ignition of sponge rubber shoulder pads during the dry cleaning of garments occurred on a number of occasions before the process was recognized as dangerous.

(2) A nurse, mopping up some spilt ether, found herself enveloped in flames when ether vapor was ignited by a spark believed to have been produced by the formation of a static charge on her nylon clothing.

(3) A fire in a shop window resulted from concentration of the sun's rays by a television magnifier displayed for sale.

(4) Steel wool, coming into contact with the terminals of an ordinary dry battery, was heated to the point of ignition by the current that passed through it.

One other example — an experiment this time — illustrated the evil persistence of a lighted cigarette, and left no doubt as to why smokers' carelessness is the greatest single cause of fire loss. . . . A partially smoked cigarette was dropped into a plywood tea chest filled with sawdust. Fire broke through the surface of the sawdust 17 days after the experiment began.

— Compare this sawdust to the wood-punk that carpets our Quebec woods, even surrounds our summer cottages — and this experiment becomes a practical lesson.

Probe on juvenile delinquency

THE DEPARTMENT of Justice has announced the launching of a one-year study of juvenile delinquency.

Justice Minister Fulton said the inquiry would try to define the nature and scope of the problem and produce ideas for federal action that could be dovetailed with steps by provincial governments and private agencies. "It has been neglected far too long," he said.

The study, headed by Allan MacLeod, Commissioner of Penitentiaries, will feature discussions across the country with authorities on the subject, and briefs will be invited from private organizations as well as the general public.

We know we have a problem of juvenile delinquency in Canada but its nature or extent are not known. Mr. Fulton said that statistics on juvenile delinquency were incomplete, that some provinces regard juveniles as those under 18 while others class them as under 16, and that parts of some provinces have no juvenile courts at all, with teen-agers appearing in adult courts.

One of the aims will be to specify an age — the same for all Canada — at which juvenile deliquents become adult delinquents.

Self-help on voluntary basis

ADVOCATES of a compulsory national health insurance plan are apt to refer disparagingly to the "small minority" of Canadians covered by existing voluntary plans — says the bulletin Industry.

The size of this "small minority" may come as something of a surprise to many who have hitherto accepted the criticism at its face value. It is, in fact, well over 40 per cent of the total population, or something like eight million individual Canadians.

Much of this spectacular increase in voluntary coverage is, of course, explained by the widespread provision of employee-benefit plans. These plans, the cost and extent of which have reached such proportions as to make their popular name of "fringe benefit" a misnomer, are all the time being broadened and now include such things as life insurance and pensions as well as hospitalization and surgical-medical benefit plans, not only for employees but for their dependants.

Voluntary plans which have shown this kind of growth in a matter of ten years hardly deserve to be called "inadequate".

Viewpoints and perspectives

DON'T CHUCKLE. — The 40-hour work week may soon be a thing of the past. At least it will, if two U.S. unions have their way. And it could signal new drives in Canada to trim the 40-hour week — writes C. Knowlton Nash, The Financial Post's Washington correspondent.

In New York, the Transport Workers Union is insisting on a 32-hour, four-day week for 38,000 subway and bus workers. Another union, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, is trying to get its members an even better deal. In negotiations in New York now going on, the union is insisting on a five-day, 20-hour work week. The 9,000 electrician-members of the union now work six hours a day, five days a week. This must be reduced to four hours a day, five days a week, the union says.

MARITIME VIEW. — We always thought the Maritimes were the chief complainers of confederation. And now that dubious honor has been snatched away from us by the separatists of Quebec. Perhaps we'll celebrate our centennial with a civil war. The United States had to get the same sort of problem settled before it reached the grand age of 100 years, and the settlement, although somewhat bloody, was quite final and satisfactory.

— Kentville (N.S.) Advertiser

ON TIPPING. — We have been reading that the president of the Canadian Restaurant Association advises that if people withheld tips when they got poor service, then the service would improve. We would like to see the restaurants print on their menus the admonition to customers to tip only when they felt the service was worthy of it.

— Liverpool (N.S.) Advance

MEMO TO OTTAWA. — A Tokyo despatch reports that the Japanese government is to give special tax relief to manufacturers who buy Japanese-made machinery in preference to foreign-made. . . .

In the words of an old Oriental proverb: "A whispered hint often teaches much."

— Industry

MUCH TO BE DONE. — It's a bit tiresome to note continual scolding, from platform, pulpit and press, of present-day society for not meeting obligations to its children. Much remains to be done, admittedly — but let's take a look at the record: In free countries of the world, never before in mankind's history was so much being done on behalf of the children

The legend of the phantom horse

By Norman Thorburn — Specially Contributed

A century — yes, even two and three centuries ago — much of the stone used to build stone houses, churches, etc., was hauled by a single horse hitched to a tumbril cart, or tombereau, as they are often called in Quebec Province by both French and English-speaking people.

It was in a tombereau cart that Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, was driven over the rough cobblestones of Paris to her doom, over 170 years ago. These carts are the direct descendants of the Roman chariots, it is said.

As a young man, in the depression years, I bought a small chicken farm of 38 acres, so as to have steady employment. It was situated about seven miles from Mascouche, and the same distance from Terrebonne. I didn't pay much for the place, and I sold it for even less — but don't try to buy it now, unless you have a big bank roll!

People said I wasted my time there, but I learned to speak French well, and also, as I lived intimately with the French-Canadian people, I learned their manners and customs.

One night, I was visiting at the home of a man whom we called Onésime, but more often "Père 'Nésime".

It was a pitch-black night and Père 'Nésime was sitting behind his sputtering oil lamp. He told me tales of the loup garou, or were-wolf and then the legend of the phantom horse.

"A poor villager, long ago," said Père 'Nésime, "owned a horse and tombereau in the village of St. Vincent de Paul. The horse was an old, broken-down nag, for the villager was poor and couldn't afford any better. Probably out of charity, he was given the contract to draw the stone for the Catholic church, that was about to be built at St. Vincent de Paul. He would have employment for a long time, hauling the stone from the nearby quarries to the church site. But the day before he was to start the job, he went out to his stable, and found his horse lying stiff and dead.

The poor "villageois" was broken-hearted. He went to his home to tell "la bonne femme" his great misfortune.

His wife tried to console him. "Mon oncle Seraphin will lend you money to buy a new horse.

"Your uncle is an old Scrooge, he will charge me 20% interest, the heartless old rascal. I won't have anything to do with him, never. I told you that before, Marie, never."

A neighboring farmer with a team drew the dead horse to a sandy field and helped the poor villager to bury it.

The poor man returned to his home and, to his amazement, he heard a strange whinnying sound as he came near his yard. To his great surprise, he saw a huge coal-black stallion, standing near his stable.

He tried to put a halter on its head, but it wouldn't let him. It glowered at him, with a strange reddish glint in its unearthly eyes. Finally, with the help of friends, he drove the horse into his stable and tied it up. Nobody knew where the horse came from, although the honest villager enquired everywhere.

The next morning, after some exertion, he managed to hitch the big horse to the tumbril cart, and started off to haul stone.

Never, in his life, had the villager seen a horse like this. It never seemed to tire. Never a drop of sweat, that hot summer day, appeared on the stallion's body. The thought came to the villager that this horse must be possessed by the devil! The heavier he loaded, the faster it travelled. It worried the villager. "Le diable y est," he said to himself. ("The devil's there.")

After six weeks of hauling, the work was done. It had taken less than half the time the man had estimated. He stabled the horse and went for supper.

While he was eating, a heavy clap of thunder broke the eerie stillness of the evening. Later, he went out to give the horse its evening meal. The stallion had vanished into thin air!

Around Terrebonne you will still hear this tale, I am sure. They will tell you that the devil hauled the stone to build the church at St. Vincent de Paul!

Who am I to say it is not true! As the Spaniard says, "Quién sabe" ("who knows?"). I don't.

— Norman Thorburn

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

NO COTTON-PUFF WORLD

As we entered 1962, India had just attacked Goa, and we had reason to realize that this is no cotton-puff world; for if ever a statesman had developed an image of pacifism and pious benevolence, it was Nehru.

Nehru must have thought long and hard before ordering his troops to shoot and kill. He is not a man who revels in bloodshed. He was thought of throughout the world as a peaceful man, the disciple of Gandhi, the exponent of passive resistance.

Why did he do it?

It could be that with Communist China pressing down on India from the North, inching little by little into Indian territory, that Nehru felt his image had to be changed. He proved nothing, militarily, by his victory in Goa — the wonder is, really, that it took 36 hours instead of 24. India had 30,000 troops against 12,000 opponents.

It wasn't the fighting strength of India that Nehru wanted to demonstrate. It was the fact that India would fight, that Indian soldiers would shoot to kill, that India would use naked force. Nehru sacrificed the reputation it has taken decades for him to achieve in order to prove that under all his talk he is a hard-boiled realist.

I am not arguing the points in dispute between India and Portugal over Goa. I am talking about the use of naked force by a big country against a small one. And the big country, led by a man who has talked so constantly about peace and benevolence and kindness and love and all the virtues men aspire to.

Here in Canada I am afraid that we do not always realize what a rough, tough world we live in. To many, it seems unbelievable and even inconceivable that any other country would attack us because we, certainly, have no intention of attacking anybody.

Nehru's act at the turn of the year should have dispelled such illusions. This is a rough, tough world, and no nation can afford to forget it. India's action underlines the need for a strong and well-equipped defence establishment for Canada.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS TAKE MORE THAN NEW SWIMSUIT

How was the holiday? Did it live up to expectations? Or did you have to pinch pennies?

Don't let it happen again next year, when it's so easy to plan wonderful vacations — and to pay for them in advance by steady saving at the Bank of Montreal.

Many modern families now operate their own "do-it-together" savings plan. Everyone contributes according to the amount he can spare, regularly.

The time to start is right now! And the way to do it is to deposit each pay-day enough to cover the expenses of one day of your holidays. Then, when it's holiday time again, your special vacation fund will be big enough to make it a holiday to remember.

Paul Boivin, accountant at the Lachute branch of the B of M, or Miss Lulu Miller, accountant-in-charge at Ayersville branch, can show you how easy it is to start your special savings account.

See Mr. Boivin or Miss Miller soon.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Many a man finds himself haunted by a tune that won't go away.

He hums, whistles, groans or snarls the tune all the time, even when he is half-asleep.

There are pathetic cases on record of men who have been haunted by singing commercials.

It tugs the heart-strings to encounter men — poor souls — mooning along the road and belting out in a cracked voice: "Umpty-umpty, it's a truly fine pale beer."

Nothing can be done for them at that stage.

Singing commercials don't usually get a grip on me, but I sometimes find myself playing host to some pesky little folk song that has clamped itself to me like a wood tick.

I can't get rid of the tune — and I don't want to. It's almost as bad as love.

Deadly Folk Song

Recently it was a recorded folk song which had come to the house to help teach the children and me French — a piece about Malborough going to war and his lady waiting for him, and climbing the castle tower to watch for his approach — and learning at last that he had been killed.

It's a sad story, but a catchy tune — and I caught it. I found myself singing about Malborough as I drove into town with young John and Michael in the car.

John, the elder, listened for a moment, and then turned to his brother.

"Daddy's got another tune," he said glumly.

"What do you mean, Daddy's got another tune?" I demanded.

"You know," he said in a world-weary voice. "Another song, and you can't stop singing it."

It wasn't until the boy spoke that I realized how far gone I was. At the age of nine, John has already developed an ugly talent for needling people in a tender spot.

PROJECT COMPLETED

Winnipeg (CP) — Ducks Unlimited, a conservation organization, has completed its largest project to date, the Cumberland Marshes project in northeastern Saskatchewan. It is designed to have a flooded area of almost 75,000 acres and 500 miles of shoreline.

The Lion and the Oxen

In union, there is strength. The fable of the Lion and the Oxen illustrates this lesson very forcibly. As long as the three Oxen stayed together, the Lion dared not attack. But 'the king of beasts' sowed dissension and jealousy amongst his adversaries, and they separated. It was then easy for the Lion to attack and destroy them one by one.

In Sun Life, also, there is strength. When you become a policyholder of this great company, you become one of a group of farsighted men and women — the holders of three million policies and group certificates — who protect their families and themselves against an uncertain future through the medium of life insurance.

Why not discuss your life insurance problems with me today? You will be under no obligation.

Steady growth in St. Simeon's Anglican parish

At St. Simeon's Anglican Church annual meeting, held January 17, reports indicated an active and successful year. The trend in church life, indicative of the parish since its inception, is that of a slow but steady growth.

The treasurer's report indicated an increase of 47% in the church's income. The perochial subscriptions to Missions shared in this increase.

The following officers were elected —

Rector's Warden, Bories Arran.

People's Warden, Joseph Sewell.

Delegates to the Diocesan Synod — Stanley Holt and Russell Elliott.

Select Vestry — Bernard Hewitt, Harold Maslin, Lionel Gaunt, Stanley Holt, George Leggett, Angus Strong, Bryan Noble, Bernard Jenkins and David Brown. The presidents of the Ladies' Guild and the Woman's Auxiliary are also members.

At Lachute United —

United Church Women inaugural — church history in the making

The year 1962 will have historical significance for the women of the United Church of Canada, as former members of the W.M.S. and Women's Associations amalgamated in the inaugural of "United Church Women". On Sunday morning, the service was held in Lachute United Church, as the executive members of this new organization were dedicated by the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge.

This special service was prepared by the Rev. Norah L. Hughes, M.A., B.D., Ph.D., of British Columbia, and the whole congregation joined in the responses and prayers. The choir sang a chosen hymn, "Hear Us, O Lord", with solo verses by Mrs. Don Barbour and Mrs. Leonard Armstrong, and with Lowell B. Hopkins at the organ.

Topic of the minister's address was "Vision of the Future", and the Rev. Wilson Bridge took his text from 13 Matthew — "The Kingdom of God is like a merchantman". He paid fitting tribute to all the former organizations of the church — the Woman's Missionary Society and the two Women's Associations, that had been so helpful in local, national and in wider fields. He expressed thanks on behalf of the church to these fine groups.

The Rev. Mr. Bridge felt that this inaugural service was similar to the charge to a minister or deaconess in ordination rites, and he pleaded with his hearers to make this vision a success.

"Being a Christian", he said, was "to have something in common with the businessman. First we must know the real worth of the goods, and secondly, to have a need. The same situation faces us in the Christian realm — the early church knew what they had to offer. We lack that ideal today — that real conviction to offer life to others.

"As in the business world, we must make contacts, keep in touch and feel the pulse of things," the speaker said. He suggested that if this new organization is to grow, it must seek new members, make contacts and tell what Christ really means to us personally, and to start with social friends and then business acquaintances. "This is the church's job," exclaimed Mr. Bridge, "not just the minister's!"

In the business world, competition is evident in many places. This point was strongly emphasized by the minister. "You, must expect competition from many sources," he said, "from your pleasures, extra activities, and so on," and he pleaded to his hearers to "put first things first", to always make room for the devotional side in the work of the new United Church Women. Finally, the Rev. Mr. Bridge spoke of the value of costs . . . in money, time and service, and he concluded with the charge that being a Christian, we will "not labor in vain in the work of the Lord".

The executive was then inaugurated in the special ceremony by the minister, following which, he greeted the new officers of the United Church Women of this church.

Bell Tel. installs cables, wires for 'Cable Vision'

Television viewers in Lachute will soon have their choice of nine different channels and excellent reception via Lachute Cable Vision Inc.

This new company has installed a 100-foot antenna about a mile from Lachute and will rebroadcast signals from the following channels: CBFT 2 and 6, Montreal; CHLT 7, Sherbrooke; CFTM 10 and CFCF-TV 12, Montreal; WCAX 3, Burlington; WPTZ 5 Plattsburg; CJSS-TV 8, Cornwall and CJOH 13, Ottawa.

Without the cable service, most televiewers can receive only five channels, and reception is often imperfect.

The Bell Telephone Company has installed more than 10,000 feet of main cable and some 24,000 feet of wire under the contract signed with Lachute Cable Vision Inc. This cable and wire will remain the property of the Bell and will be maintained by its employees. The equipment is of the latest design, eliminating many complications.

It is reported the cost for Lachute Cable Vision is low in comparison with many other systems where similar service is offered.

APPRECIATION

LEGION NOTES

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

The first regular meeting of the year 1962, under the chairmanship of Cde. President George Kirby, was held last Wednesday in the Legion Hall.

Cde. Ernest Evans, 2nd vice-president, graciously accepted the chairmanship of the forthcoming March of Dimes. This annual fund drive is one of the most needed and worthy causes held. The monies collected are used to stamp out that dreaded crippler and killer, poliomyelitis. As in other years, it will be a Mothers' March, on a blanket canvass of the town. Date will be announced shortly. Anyone — veteran, citizen or mother — willing to aid on this drive, please contact Cde. E. Evans.

Legion Curling is again in the news. The National Legion Playdowns, fast approaching the calibre of the Briar, will be held in Fredericton, N.B., on March 19-23. Branch and District playdowns, to determine the right to enter the Provincial Finals, will be starting very soon. Branch 70 will shortly hold the Branch Bonspiel to have two teams enter the district finals. So, curlers and would-be ones, polish up the old besom and stane and be ready. For the last two years, Branch 70's representatives at the Provincial Finals were knocking at the door. Who knows, perhaps, this year that door will open.

This week is Minor Hockey Week across Canada. Come out, watch, help and support the organizations in town who do so much and put so much time and effort in supporting boys' hockey in Lachute. This especially applies to parents of the boys participating. Time after time, we have seen a future hockey star make a good play or score a goal. Immediately, he looks not to the bench, to his coach or manager, but his eyes search the boards — he sees his parents — a wide smile lights his face, as if to say: "See, Dad, I did that for you." The Legion salutes and congratulates its two members, Cdes. E. Evans and Doug Ogilvie, who with their assistants are doing a magnificent job in all sports for boys, especially hockey.

This brings to mind the motto of the Big Brother Organization: "Never does a man stand so tall as when he stoops to help a boy."

Thought for the day: If it weren't for your wife, just think how heavy, bulgy and unsightly your wallet pocket would be!

Resident Mourned

The people of this community were shocked by the recent passing of Mrs. A. Vaillancourt, who succumbed to a stroke. The funeral was held in the Roman Catholic Church, with burial in the St. Sauveur des Monts Cemetery. To the bereaved family we extend sincere sympathy.

"Unaddressed mail biggest headache in Christmas deluge" — Postmaster

Press reports from the Postal Department indicate that last year exceeded all previous years in the volume of mail handled. In this connection, the public is informed that changes and improvements have been introduced, and increased attention given to specific mail problems.

Distributed for sale are 2c and 5c stamps in transparent envelopes of $1 each — an improvement which protects the stamps against humidity, from the printing up till the time of use.

In December 1960, the franking machine at Lachute post office handled 216,277 letters and cards. In December 1961, the number was 222,679. Also, 10,000 parcels were sent out, across Canada and abroad; over 82,000 pieces were delivered by truck in the town, and the courier staff personally delivered 400,000 items of mail or more, compared with 248,000 in December 1960.

In order to handle this Christmas mail, manhours in despatching at Lachute totalled 1,000, including 15 extra helpers with the regular staff.

There was a notable handicap in this work caused by insufficiently addressed mail. It is well time that the public realized Lachute is no longer a village where everybody knows everybody else. Remarks like: "I have lived here 40 years and everyone knows me here" and "I've been in Lachute longer than you have" are no longer pertinent to this problem — and they do not help to speed the postal service. We must realize that it is the ADDRESS that counts, not one's personal repute, renown or popularity. In the procedure of door-to-door delivery, the postman cannot GUESS; if he does, he risks disciplinary measures.

In the month of December the local post-office returned no fewer than 2,035 articles to "Dead Letter" office because they were not addressed. This is unpardonable in a delivery service which has been functioning now for four years.

A letter is being mailed to residents, asking them to advise all correspondents of their full, correct address, so as to help remedy this situation in future. Also, unaddressed mail which our postmen are able to deliver, will be rubber-stamped to ask the recipients' co-operation in this respect.

The postal department is supplying free, franked postcards for users to advise their correspondents of changes of address. . . . "Instead of criticizing, you are asked to make use of this service and help improve your postal delivery," says the local postmaster in concluding this report.

"United Church Women" group takes form in Lachute United

On January 1 the W.M.S. (Woman's Missionary Society) and the W.A. (Woman's Association) went out of existence in the United Church of Canada. A new short form came into being for these organizations — it is "U.C.W." — initials for the United Church Women. Probably the ladies will take some time becoming accustomed to its use in everyday conversation, since they have been saying "W.M.S." and "W.A." for years. Members of the United Church have worked towards this development for eight years, albeit with some misgivings, but it is expected that the change will bring more women into active participation and the functions they supported financially in the past will get the same support in the future.

Last Wednesday evening, January 17, the inaugural meeting of the U.C.W. of Lachute United Church was held in the church hall. The Rev. Wilson Bridge conducted the meeting, which he opened with a short devotional service.

Mrs. Angus Taylor, nominating committee chairman, presented the slate of officers for the year 1962-63, as follows:

President, Mrs. E. O. Pollock; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. W. Bridge; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. J. R. McOuat; Rec. Secretary, Mrs. C. White; Corr. Secretary, Mrs. C. Leishman; Treas., Mrs. A. G. Giles.

Christian Citizenship & Social Action, Mrs. Angus Taylor.

Community Friendship & Visiting, Mrs. C. R. Cunningham.

Co-operation in Christian Education & Missionary Education, Miss G. Hudson.

Finance, Mrs. Walker McArthur.

Flowers, Mrs. L. R. Duncan.

Literature & Communications, Mrs. Murray Lyster, Mrs. H. Riddell.

Manse, Mrs. Geo. Mitchell.

Membership, Mrs. Edmund McFaul.

Nominating, Mrs. Angus Taylor.

Periodicals, Mrs. L. Hopkins.

Press & Publicity, Mrs. Jas. D. McOuat.

Program, Mrs. C. L. Duncan.

Social, Mrs. Keith Boa, Mrs. S. McAdam.

Stewardship & Recruiting, Mrs. W. Graham.

Supply & Social Assistance, Mrs. Walker Scott.

Unit Chairmen (to date), Mrs. Stewart Jones, Mrs. Donald Barbour, Mrs. Jas. D. McOuat, Mrs. Bert McGibbon, Mrs. Edward Armstrong, Mrs. Gordon Dobbie, Mrs. F. A. Brennian.

The Rev. Mr. Bridge expressed thanks to the nominating and membership committees, and called the newly elected president to take the chair. Mrs. Pollock thanked the ladies for the honor of being the first president of the new organization, and assured them that with their help and co-operation the U.C.W. would enjoy a year of progress and achievement.

Mrs. Edmund McFaul, membership committee chairman, read the names of the members of the various units; there are four afternoon units and five evening units.

Mrs. C. L. Duncan introduced Miss Gladys Symington, president of Fairmount St. Giles United Church Women in Montreal, who spoke about the duties of the various committees comprising the U.C.W., after which she answered questions from the floor. Unit members then met briefly to plan for their first meeting, following which refreshments were served.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Help for Child who Stutters

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

If your child stutters, do remember that it is easier to help a child than an elder person who has had this trouble for years. There are several things parents may want to do which will be more harmful than helpful. Junior must not be punished or shamed for his stammering. The stuttering child lacks self-confidence. And repressive punishing measures only make him more unsure of his ability to speak fluently.

Neither must mother form the habit of asking Junior to speak more slowly. He should not be told to repeat the word or sentence over which he has been stumbling.

It is a big temptation, but Mother must not supply a suitable word for which Junior is frantically searching. If Junior's mother feels impatient with her child's struggles to express himself she should not show it. The stuttering child must neither be worried nor hurried.

If Junior is left-handed do not force him to use his right hand. Most modern parents know that it is suspected the inner tension arising in a child from trying to change a left-handed person into a right-handed person may account for a tendency to stutter. The part of the brain controlling speech is closely associated with the control of the hands. Teachers today seldom urge a left-handed child to use his right hand.

Junior's speech difficulties should not be discussed with other adults in his presence. Mother and father should not fuss over Junior nor show anxiety or concern for their child.

Stuttering is common among little children of two or three years who are learning to speak. In the great majority of cases, if handled wisely, it gradually disappears. In time of strain, or in new situations as when Junior starts to school or enters adolescence, stuttering may crop up again.

If Junior complains to mother that his playmates laugh at him and that he "c-can't t-t-talk right," mother should reassure him that "lots of children have difficulty learning to talk!" Mother should not urge him to try harder to talk correctly nor should attempt to cure his speech problem by rewards or bribes.

Learning to speak without stuttering is a little like learning to swim. A child must not be afraid. Trying too hard defeats its own purpose. The relaxed child can swim more expertly and can talk more fluently than the tense youngster.

Parents can help their child who stutters by seeing that he gets more rest and by building up his general health. A mother can keep a record of the situations which precede or provoke her child into having a speech "block" and try to avoid these if possible.

Children are born imitators and parents can discipline themselves to talk more slowly. In a child's ears, the tempo of adult talk is very fast. It is little wonder they often cannot understand grown-ups.

Parents can also speak more simply and in shorter sentences. The stuttering child needs a quiet, relaxed atmosphere, in which mother and dad speak to each other calmly, and not in an excited, upset fashion.

Singing is often a joyous activity for a stuttering child, because in singing he is not bothered with his search for words. Specialists in speech difficulties have found by experience that reading in unison or choral reading is often a help for the scholar with this weakness.

If a speech defect persists over a period of time or is causing the child real unhappiness, do not delay in consulting your family doctor. Ask him where you can get expert help. In a number of centres there are speech clinics where a child may receive expert assistance. His parents also find guidance in how best to encourage their child to overcome his difficulty.

No parent wants his boy or girl to go through life with an unnecessary handicap! Mothers and fathers can do a great deal to help Junior out of the stuttering group.

Sled-dog derby at Ste. Agathe this week-end

A total of 33 teams have been registered for the International Sled Dog Derby, which will take place at Ste. Agathe-des-Monts this week-end, January 27-28.

At stake in the Derby, organized by the Laurentian Sled Dog Club of Ste. Agathe, will be Molson's trophies and purses.

Twelve entries have been received from various points in the United States, with the remaining entries from Ontario and Quebec. Last year's event was won by Dr. Roland A. Lombard, of Auburnvale, Mass.

Organizers of the event have issued a cordial invitation to the public to attend this popular annual event.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

WINTER CAN BE FUN

I met an old friend on a cold winter's day,
He said to me: "Isn't it nice,
To be meeting you now when I'm just on my way
To fish through a hole in the ice."

He carried a fishpole, a net and a creel,
And suggested that I come along.
I went home for my rod and I oiled up my reel,
And off we went singing a song.

I'm the kind of a guy who'll do anything once.
As we started to trudge through the snow
I thought it was one of the craziest stunts
With the temperature seven below.

We walked for two miles to the opposite shore,
Then started to chop through the ice.
The job took the best of an hour or more
But the exercise made us feel nice.

We baited our hooks with some minnows he'd brought
In a can from a sporting-goods store.
There was nothing to sit on — we just had to squat
Till our knees and our ankles got sore.

At the end of two hours he said: "I've a bite!"
At the same time I said: "So have I!"
So we reeled in our lines both expecting the sight
Of two wonderful fishes to fry.

And what do you think we brought up from below?
A perch about six inches long.
Our lines were entangled by only one fish —
Then everything seemed to go wrong.

The lines froze at once, could not be untied —
The bait-can upset in the snow —
The minnows escaped and we saw them all slide
Through the hole to the water below.

A blizzard sprang up and it took us till dark
To find our way back to the shore.
My wife greeted me back with a nasty remark
As she went to buy fish from the store.

But I'm going again because that's what I like doin'
And fishin' is fun, but I figure
On postponing the trip till the first week in June
When the hole in the ice is much bigger.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Dark Skies in 1962

Man dreams of peace in this new year,
His soul's release from nuclear fear.
Man plans for war, the victor's score,
Yet knows with every breath
The victor must be death!
Man sails the uncharted seas of space,
Yet builds a bomb to doom his race.
Debris of the atom, an awful brew.
Man sits with Satan on his throne,
And cannot call his soul his own.

Cdn. Legion awards highest recognition to S. Stilwell, B'burg

Brownsburg — The Meritorious Service Medal was presented to Cde. Sid Stilwell by the Provincial president, John St. Germain, in ceremonies at Brownsburg Branch 71 Legion Hall last Saturday night. In presenting the medal and scroll, the president congratulated Comrade Sid on his long record of public service. The scroll reads:

"In recognition of service beyond that usually expected of its members, Brownsburg Branch 71, with the approval of the Provincial Command and Dominion Command Awards Committee, hereby present the highest award of the Royal Canadian Legion, the Meritorious Service Medal, to Sidney H. Stilwell, on the occasion of the Installation of Officers of Branch 71, Ladies' Auxiliary, and of the Laurentian District No. 12, held in the Brownsburg Legion Memorial Hall on this 27th day of January, 1962. Signed, Leon Tessier, president; Charles Low, Awards chairman."

Mrs. Stilwell, who has served in various executive offices in the Legion Auxiliary, was presented with a bouquet of red and white carnations in recognition of her contribution to her husband's unselfish work for the community.

The president also commented on the beauty of the framed scroll. This was made by a local artist, Mr. George Donaldson, who had also painted the memorial scroll at the Hall entrance.

Installation of Officers

For the Senior Branch —

Pres., Les Camus; 1st vice-pres., Harold Hewitt; 2nd vice-pres., Dave McCulloch; treas., J. V. Broadfoot; sec., Grant Tomalty; sgt.-at-arms, Bazil Jackson.

Executive — Bob Duncan, Vic Billingham, Don Todd, Noel Racine, George Wilson, Keith Low.

Auxiliary —

Auxiliary president, Mrs. Reg. Ball; 1st vice-pres., Mrs. Theo. Zimmer; 2nd vice-pres., Mrs. Bertha Enlow; treas., Mrs. Noel Racine; sec., Mrs. Bob Shacksfield; sgt.-at-arms, Mrs. Vernon Martin.

Executive — Mrs. Gordon Todd, Mrs. Sydney Seary, Mrs. Peter Phillips, Mrs. Frank Steere.

Past-president, Mrs. Russ Summers.

Following this ceremony the Provincial president installed the officers of District 12 (St. Jerome) for 1962-63:

District Commander, Hec Steele, Brownsburg.

District secretary, Bill Mann, Brownsburg.

Youths charged in entering and theft

Some patient sleuthing by Chief J.-L. Hébert of the town police, has brought two 16-year-old youths to grips with the law, and apparently solved four cases of entry and theft at local business establishments.

While investigating these recent cases, Chief Hébert, in plain clothes, met up with the two suspects on the street one night last week, and took them to headquarters for questioning. It is reported the two youths confessed to the robberies. They will be brought to court at St. Jerome this week.

Q.P.P. Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, officer-in-charge of the Provincial Police detachment here, reported the arrest of six local youths, ranging in age from 14 to 18, all of whom have been charged with numerous thefts. The youths are presently awaiting trial in Juvenile Court at St. Jerome, in connection with the theft of money and cigarettes, etc., from a number of restaurants in the Lachute area, dating back to the summer months.

Ex-M.P. elects trial by judge

Raymond Bruneau, former MP for Glengarry-Prescott, re-elected trial before a judge on a charge of accepting a bribe, when he appeared before Judge Peter Macdonald last week.

Mr. Bruneau faces a charge that during 1956 he accepted a sum of money from Abbé Bergeron, a Hawkesbury garage operator, for the use of influence in his official capacity as a member of parliament for Canada.

Trial date for Mr. Bruneau, who had earlier elected trial by judge with jury, was tentatively set for March 21.

Winter grandeur

Snow paints a greeting-card picture on trees and fences in this timely scene, with sunlight and shadow accentuating the charm of mid-January in Quebec. . . . A consoling sidelight for those who have braved the early morning sub-zero temperatures on their way to work this week!

At Brownsburg Home and School —

Principal looks at Vocational Guidance

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — With student guidance becoming an increasingly important phase of education, the Brownsburg Home and School Association helped to maintain interest locally by inviting Principal K. G. Amos to speak on this subject, at the January meeting of the organization.

In his talk Mr. Amos pointed out that the program in Brownsburg includes vocational guidance for students in the higher grades, but actual guidance of the students begins at the time of enrolment and involves a study of all individual capabilities and interests.

Results of mental ability tests given in Grades 3, 5, 8 and 11 reveal trends in thinking and preferences, and give a good indication of the students' capabilities. A definite correlation exists between I.Q. and school grades, and there is evidence that some students having high I.Q.'s do not obtain good school grades because of lack of effort. According to Mr. Amos, this lack may simply be the result of insufficient interest on the part of the student — or because there is no encouragement at home — or in some cases because of emotional disturbance.

In the principal's opinion the ability to read is the basis of success in school and later life. Those with little reading ability are seriously handicapped. Consequently, much attention is given to the reading program in the school. Grades 1, 2 and 3 have been taking standard reading tests for some time, and beginning this year Grades 4 to 11 have followed suit. The results of these tests indicate a wide variety of abilities, and except for a few exceptions, show a correlation with scholastic achievement. Good readers do sometimes stand in the lower portion of the class, but poor readers are never at the top. Based on the belief that anyone can improve his or her reading ability, plans are underway to establish a reading instruction course, preceded and followed by a standard test.

With regard to vocational guidance, Mr. Amos stated that until last year the program was conducted for Grade 11 only, and consisted of a recording of personality traits, study habits and abilities. This was followed by a conference with the students and an offer to obtain information on various vocations. Last year one-half of the students in Grades 10 and 11, plus some from Grade 9, took advantage of the service offered by a professional counsellor. Some of the students were directed to a particular vocation, while others were re-assured in the choice that they had made.

This year, professional guidance service will be available to those students who did not receive it last year.

In July, 1962, the minimum compulsory school age will be raised to 15 years, and could rise to 16 in the near future. For those students who do not have the ability to proceed beyond Grade 7 or 8 but who must remain in school because of this regulation, trade or technical schools are highly desirable. Such schools are of great value also to those high school graduates who are not suited to university training.

Mr. Amos closed his address by reminding parents that McGill and Bishop's universities and Macdonald College now require entrance tests from all prospective students. These tests, which are concerned with aptitudes and achievements, are written in January and provide successful candidates with a provisional acceptance to the institution.

During the business session, President John Rutherford announced that the next regular meeting of the Association would be held February 21. This will be the ever-popular "open house" night, when the parents and teachers are able to get together to discuss mutual problems. The March 14 meeting should be of special interest also, since it will be a joint meeting with the Lachute H & S Association. Guest speaker for the occasion will be Miss Judy Lamarche, M.P.

A nominating committee for the year 1962-63 was proposed and accepted, with Ron Barnett as chairman. Also on the committee are Mrs. H. Dixon, Mrs. W. Campbell, Wes Freeland and Ward Moncrieff.

Rodrigue Durocher to press demand for probe on Carillon Dam project

(TO THE EDITOR)

Lachute, Que., Jan. 27, '62

Dear Sir:

From the time I first announced I was requesting Royal Commission investigation into the construction of the Carillon Dam, I have received numerous calls asking if I will persist in the matter and put my demand into execution. Practically every day, conscientious workers give me more facts of irregularities, and it is unacceptable that the Liberal Government let this situation continue. The population has faith in the Hon. Jean Lesage and his government, and I am sure the population is correct. A government cannot change everything that is wrong in a year or two, or even in a longer period, and the Carillon Dam subject is now in the hands of the Premier and the Minister of Natural Resources, responsible for Hydro-Quebec.

For example, practically everyone knows that on April 10, 1960, at 10 a.m., a crane fell into the river. Worth many thousands of dollars, this piece of equipment was never recovered, although one day's work would be sufficient time to pull the crane from the river bottom. In the meantime, another crane is being rented, for $1,000 a week. In addition to all this, unfit persons are in charge of workers, and practise protection, against the interests of the taxpayers.

I sincerely consider it my duty, being informed of such facts, to notify the government of the poor administration of staff employed by the previous government and who are still on the job. I say bad administration, not to say more.

I assure the population I will exercise all pressure possible to bring this problem into the daylight, and will not stop until justice, honesty and good management prevail on all Hydro-Quebec projects, especially at Carillon.

— (Signed) R. Durocher

Legion's March of Dimes set for Monday, Feb. 5th

The Mothers of Lachute are on the march—says Comrade Ernest Evans of Branch 70, Royal Canadian Legion, in kicking off the 1962 fund campaign of the March of Dimes.

The March of Dimes in Quebec is initiated for the Canadian Foundation for Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation of the disabled. It is sponsored by the Royal Canadian Legion, and Cde. E. Evans is the chairman of the Lachute drive.

The Foundation depends entirely upon voluntary contributions to provide the medical, surgical and re-training programs which are to equip the disabled to regain their rightful position as useful citizens. It also provides the free polio vaccine clinics, which are province wide.

Serving as "Chief Marching Mother" Cde. Evans expressed his dedication to this annual project: "Helping to combat polio and aiding the disabled to a new life of usefulness and achievement is not a one-shot affair. Rather, it is a continuing drive which vitally needs continuing support. At this stage of the campaign, the main problem is volunteers. Naturally, there cannot be a Mothers' March unless enough women members of our community volunteer to spend this one hour on behalf of a truly worthy cause."

Cde. Evans pointed out that, although in other years the March of Dimes campaign has met with a successful response, the need is even greater this year. "Although the rehabilitation of disabled persons becomes more and more successful each year," he said, "the number of men and women who are disabled is growing each year. Yet efforts on their behalf for the placement of the disabled worker in wage-paying positions, has reached a record high level, and these handicapped persons are proving their worth in competitive industry."

Cde. Evans further stated, "It is because of the ever-growing need and ever-growing services that more funds are needed each year. And that is why I am asking our volunteers, the Mothers of Lachute, to raise the funds for the March of Dimes. It is difficult to describe the benefits which the campaign will bring to those in need. Probably most important, from the viewpoint of the handicapped, is the lessening dependence on family, friends and public charity, and the resulting gain in self-confidence and personal dignity.

"It is up to each of us to see that this great and, for the most past, unpublicized work continues, There are few occasions in which a modest contribution and a small amount of time can bring so much to so many."

Cde. Evans announced that Lachute and St. Andrews East would hold the campaign on Monday, February 5, between 6 and 7 or 8 p.m. Any mother, any citizen, any veteran interested in assisting in this March of Dimes program, please contact — Mrs. H. Simpson in St. Andrews East, or Cdes. E. Evans, C. Demerse, D. Ogilvie, C. Tucker, J. Martell or G. Kirby in Lachute.

To join ranks for reorganizing of Liberals here

In response to requests from Liberal interests in this County, the executive council of the Quebec Liberal Federation is taking a hand in reorganizing the party's ranks in Argenteuil.

Towards this end a committee has been selected by the Federation, and given the job of preparing a list of partisans, who will elect delegates for naming of the Liberal Association of Argenteuil's executive. . . . The committee includes Rodrigue Durocher, Antoine Paré, Bernard Gosselin and Rolph Nelson — with the official representative of the Quebec Liberal Federation, L.-G. Giguère, as chairman.

This committee will meet February 3 to prepare the list and to ensure a free choice of delegates in each municipality of the County. With this groundwork prepared, there will be an election of executive council for the Argenteuil Liberal Association held March 3, at Lachute Auditorium.

To conform with the constitution of the Quebec Liberal Federation, nominations for the executive will be received up to February 22.

— Above is the procedure communicated by Gérard Bardy, secretary-general, for this reorganization in the Argenteuil constituency.

H'ksby relocation job progress, mid-January

The Hawkesbury relocation project is progressing smoothly. "By the end of March, all essential parts of the Hawkesbury program will be completed," says Harry Hustler, Ontario Hydro's director of property. "All that will remain to be done are clean-up jobs on construction and administration."

Construction of the 8,500-foot, $500,000 combined trunk sewer along Main Street was virtually completed, except for a short section immediately east of the pumping station. The contractor is Spino Construction Co. Ltd. of Montreal. Traffic is back to normal on Main Street, which will be resurfaced later in the year.

The new storm sewer in the east end of Hawkesbury is scheduled to be finished by the end of February. Spino Construction is also contractor for this $190,000 trunk main.

The first of eight pumps at the new pumping station on Main St. East was scheduled to be delivered January 29. The $500,000 plant being built by Sam Cosentino Ltd. of Scarboro, Ont., will handle storm drainage and sewage from the town's combined sewer system.

Under the terms of the 1943 agreement between Ontario and Quebec, Ontario Hydro was responsible for expropriating 327 properties in the affected area. Agents have completed negotiations for 80 per cent of these properties. Although expropriation covered 327 properties, Ontario Hydro made every effort to reduce the relocation of residents. Not all the remaining properties will be purchased, therefore, as in some cases owners will have the option of selling to Hydro or retaining their property.

In Hawkesbury, 87 houses covered by expropriation were saved by remedial work, shoreline improvement, or by moving them to higher ground. Altogether a total of 170 families moved into new accommodation. The majority relocated in Hawkesbury, including a number of families who now rent their homes from Hydro. . . . In the township — where farmland was primarily involved — 35 families moved into new homes.

The latest — and possibly the last — phase in the Hawkesbury program is the clearing of land along the Ontario side of the Ottawa River between Hawkesbury and Gloucester Township, adjacent to the City of Ottawa. The properties to be cleared are now being surveyed. Compensation will be paid landowners whose property is cleared, and the cut timber will remain their property.

Clearance of the shoreline between Hawkesbury and the Carillon Dam is now in its final stages.

Commenting on the overall relocation program in Hawkesbury and district, Mr. Hustler said the end is now in sight. "The credit for the success of the program is due almost entirely to the people of Hawkesbury and the surrounding area," he said. "Without their co-operation and understanding, we would never have accomplished so much in so little time."

North Shore proprietor threatens injunction against Hydro-Quebec

From a riverbank land owner on the Quebec side, Quebec Hydro has received notice that, unless they make clear their intentions regarding his land, he will take out an injunction against the Commission.

Alfred Laflamme, a Hull businessman, is co-proprietor of 85 acres of hunting land at Lochaber. Since the outset of work on the Carillon power development, he has frequently approached the Hydro authorities, but has received only evasive and ambiguous answers to his enquiries.

"All we want," says Mr. Laflamme, "is to be sure we will not be deprived of our rights and privileges. Hydro-Quebec has set a pattern by redressing the rights of Ontario-side proprietors, and we expect only the same consideration."

A representative of Hydro-Quebec, it seems, told him at the outset that his land would be affected by the flooding only to the extent of "a few inches". . . . On the strength of this assurance Mr. Laflamme decided to extend his property holdings. But later, a forestry expert came to define the riverbed, and surveyors came to establish future water levels. Proprietors were informed that pickets marked only where trees and timber must be removed, but later they were told these same pickets set the line between private property and government rights, and that timber below that line rightfully belonged to the Crown.

In all these conflicting versions, a number of land owners are wonder where they stand, and what is the exact significance of the picket markings.

A brief on behalf of northshore proprietors was sent to Premier Jean Lesage and the minister of hydraulic resources, the Hon. René Levesque, by Oswald Parent, M.P.P. for Hull. . . . Subsequently, last November, Mr. Parent called a general meeting of rivershore property holders, at Montebello, and another more detailed brief was drawn up, regarding claims of proprietors from Grenville as far as Hull.

In addition to these complaints, Mr. Rodrigue Durocher is persisting in his demand for a commission inquiry into procedures and practices at the Carillon project.

To double size of Hawkesbury High School

Hawkesbury — Tenders have been called for a $700,000 addition ($250,000 included for furnishings) to Hawkesbury District High School. When completed next fall, the school will be able to offer a full four-year vocation course as well as academic and commercial courses.

The entire cost of the addition will be paid through a grant from federal and provincial governments under the vocational school subsidy program.

The addition will double the size of the school by adding eight classrooms and four workshops.

It will be the only high school between Cornwall and Ottawa offering the three four-year-courses. It is hoped the vocation course will reduce more than 40 per cent of Grade IX students who drop out before graduation. Present enrolment of the school is 450.

Liberal convention at Hawkesbury

Hawkesbury — The Liberal Association of Grengarry-Prescott will choose a candidate for the coming federal election at a convention set for February 6, at Hawkesbury.

Likely candidates include Viateur Gauthier, 46-year-old Dalkeith businessman, and Daniel Lalonde, Alfred businessman. Rosaire Gascon, former Hawkesbury mayor, is also a prospective candidate.

Employer fined on regulations for Insurance

A storekeeper at St. Andrews East who had neglected to renew his employees' Unemployment Insurance books was found guilty and fined $25 plus costs in St. Jerome court by Judge Omer Coté recently.

The Unemployment Insurance Act requires that employers must, upon request of the Commission, return Unemployment Insurance books and the employer concerned had ignored repeated requests from the Unemployment Insurance Commission to renew his books.

Judge Coté sentenced the storekeeper because he could not offer an acceptable excuse for not having complied with the regulations.

Périard rejects lawyer for defence in murder case

Jean Périard, 19, charged with the rifle slaying of André Prévost, 17, said through tears in court in St. Jerome on Monday that he doesn't need a lawyer to defend him. Périard is charged with capital murder, which carries a mandatory death sentence.

He was brought into court on Monday for the postponement of his preliminary inquiry to February 5. Fernand Legault, Q.C., the crown prosecutor, told Judge Camille DeMartigny that the postponement was asked with the consent of defence counsel Robert G. Burns, who represented Périard at an inquest here January 18 into the death of André Prévost.

"I don't want a lawyer," Périard said. Mr. Burns told the court that under the circumstances he wished to withdraw from the case.

Prosecutor Legault asked Périard if he had another lawyer. "I don't want one," the prisoner sobbed.

Judge DeMartigny said Périard would have to be defended and asked Mr. Legault, who is bâtonnier of the Laurentian Section of the Province of Quebec Bar Association, to find him a lawyer.

"You'll have a lawyer," Mr. Legault replied.

Périard is charged in connection with the killing of young Prévost on the night of January 14, while the latter was returning from a dance with a group of friends. The rifle was fired from behind a snowbank.

The case was the second to be postponed to February 5 for preliminary inquiry. The other accused is Malcolm Arnold McGregor, 29, held for the robbery-slaying of William Gunn, 40, at Mt. Maple.

Argenteuil Outdoors

— By BOB ATCHISON —

Birds of almost every type have started to come back into our immediate area — Chickadees, Nuthatch, Jays, Snow Bunting and some Horned Larks (though not too many of this type just now). On top of all this, the partridge that use our cedar fence for roosting have now come down so close to the house that it is possible to watch them from the comfort of our own place. . . . In fact I must admit, more time is spent watching the birds than in tieing flies right now. The partridge do not bother with any of the other birds around. The chicks are without a doubt the most fearless; at times they seem to land right on top of the bigger birds, until of course the bigger birds get mad. I see little birds that can walk head-first down a tree, and try and figure out just how they do it. Imagine the strength a human needs, to hold himself at arm's length; yet the birds hang head downward, running up and down. A few hawks may be seen too; they must be having a tough time getting enough feed. I also heard of a few crows being spotted the other day (winter type) — holed up in some barn, no doubt.

• • •

A few friends have been talking over the deer situation in our County and, as much as they dislike the evidence, they feel this area is almost finished as far as the deer population is concerned. I have talked to a number of persons all over the County, and have been told this past season was one of the worst they can remember. To do any good, the season should be closed for at least three years, if we do not want to end up with the deer as rare as the moose. . . . This idea is not going to meet with approval in most quarters, I know. However, if we want our future generations to see wildlife in its natural habitat, then we'd better start doing something now.

• • •

Poaching has been, and will always be, a very grave problem in Quebec; and it seems a particularly bad one in this County. Our Wardens are doing a terrific job under very adverse conditions. What with the laughable fines levied when a case is brought to court, and the amount of evidence needed for a conviction — the situation seems to put the Wardens in the role of culprits! This past week our immediate Warden, Adelard Gagné, managed to catch three persons jacklighting deer in their yards. This is certainly a start for the year, but it is going to be a long, hard road for the wildlife. Heavier fines, stricter control in the handling of deer tags, closer co-operation between all the police forces, etc., might help. Certainly something has to be done, and the sooner the better.

While on the subject of poaching — a tip for our Wardens: Take a look around the Lakefield and Mille Isles districts. It might be worth while.

• • •

Reports on wolves are coming in nearly every day. However, a report I just received makes the wolf situation much clearer than before. Nine wild dogs have been shot hereabouts since the beginning of the snow. These were dogs that had at some time been pets, and were turned loose to fend for themselves. Any animal that has been acquainted with humans and then goes wild, is certainly much more vicious than the actual wild species. Certainly there are wolves in the County, but a lot fewer than most people think. Anyway, wild dogs or wolves, they are especially bad for our shrinking deer herds.

The rabbits are just about finished as an epicurean dish. The last couple we had were very bitter, with the distinct taste of cedar to them. There are still lots of them for the taking, but, as far as I am concerned, what cannot be used should not be killed.

The lynx will be having a good time right now; with the snow crusted they can get around easily after these same rabbits. I have not seen a fox, or for that matter a track, for a long time, although I did hear of some not too far from town. Certainly there are not the number that were evident in former years. I did hear of a skunk being spotted the other day. With the mild weather at that time. I guess it decided to take a look around. However, it would soon go back to sleep once the sun had gone. Strange how hibernating animals will do this every once in awhile. (I guess we would do the same if we went to sleep for a couple of months!)

• • •

Ice fishing is very good all over, and this includes the Island of Montreal. Driving around, any thoughts you may have had regarding this sport being "for the birds", soon is dispelled by the number of enthusiasts. I have never seen as many in this district before; and all over, more people are getting into the art of jigging. Possibly because of the shortage of bait in some districts.

• • •

New camping equipment is being shown, and some of it is tops. A new tent on the market is shaped like a shell, and with no inside poles. They are being made in 2 to 4-person types, and these should have a big impact with the tent manufacturers. Not too much change has been made in actual tent design for a long time, and this possibly explains why anything coming onto the market of different design sells so well. Of course, the companies producing this new design will also feature the last word in materials.

• • •

New boats are also being shown around Montreal. Some of these are very radical in design. (It's getting to be as changeable with boats as it is with automobiles. It seems unreasonable that boats have to be changed every year). No doubt a lot of newer types have achieved something in safety, but, looking them over, it would still seem that some manufacturers have overlooked this little thing. Design is running to longer, lower and faster models. Heavier motors are now making this a racing hobby instead of a pleasure pastime. Water safety is certainly given much publicity, but it still lags behind the new designs. When one considers a youngster controlling a boat of 100 h.p. with no permit necessary to "drive", then trouble may be expected. Fortunately, not too many accidents happen considering the number of boats in use. . . . However, this is a Federal field, and I presume something will come up before it is too late.

Brownsburg Boy Scouts

Attending the recent winter camping session at Harrington were Scouts Gary and Warren Helmer, Douglas Connelly, Sandy Welburn and Peter Robert. They were accompanied by Scoutmaster Kenneth Ball. Scouts from Lachute and Thurso were also present.

Several boys have recently passed their Fireman's Badge. They are — Scouts Dwight Ball, Douglas Connelly, George Dixon, Earl Donaldson, Bernie Paquette, Peter Robert, Vernon Thompson and Alan Vowles. Second Class Badge has been awarded to Dwight Ball, and Tenderfoot Badges to William Brady and Michael Caron.

Of 63 boys who attempted the Marksman Badge at Camp Tamaracouta last summer, only seven passed; three of these were from Brownsburg. They were Scouts Robin Hazel, Gerald Vowles and Sandy Welburn. Other badges taken at Tamaracouta were Tracker and Athlete. The Tracker was awarded to Dwight Ball, James Devine, Warren Helmer, Andrew Izzard, John Maitland, Bernie Paquette, Sandy Welburn and Wayne Seary. Athlete was awarded to Bernie Paquette and Gerald Vowles. Also, Robin Hazel was admitted to Knights of Tamara, the Honor Society of Camp Tamaracouta.

The Brownsburg Boy Scout Troops sincerely thank those who purchased 1962 calendars; a total of 200 were sold. This generosity and goodwill are gratefully acknowledged.

Wolf Cub Sixers' Rally

Some 18 Wolf Cubs and their drivers braved last Saturday morning's blizzard to travel from Thurso, Arundel and Grenville to the Sixers' Rally at Harrington. In spite of the cold weather the boys enjoyed a varied program, which included an hour in the bush in the morning and a period of outdoor target practice in the afternoon. Thanks are once again extended to C.I.P. Forest Farm Manager J. Salm.

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Writing a weekly column is something new and novel for your correspondent, especially following in the footsteps of two immediate predecessors, Cdes. B. A. Jenkins and Art Philipps. We can only think of Robert W. Service's introduction to Rhymes of a Rolling Stone:

"I have no doubt at all the Devil grins,
As seas of ink I spatter,
Ye gods, forgive my literary sins;
The other kind don't matter."

Cde. Ernest Evans informs us the March of Dimes campaign is scheduled for February 5. (See front page of this issue for more complete details of this campaign.)

Branch 70's Sports and Entertainment Committee, 10 members strong, are very active and working hard to line up Branch activities for the next few months.

Most important item is the Branch Curling Bonspiel, now organized. This event could and should become an annual major highlight. Organized properly, conducted properly and in the true sportsmanlike manner, it will create new and added interest in Legion Carling and at the same time strengthen the calibre of play. Eight teams are entered, draw made games will be held as soon as ice time is available.

All cribbage players remember — February 7, Brownsburg at Lachute. Also a euchre party is scheduled for the 14th. All you penegers and hot euchre players get practised up, in order to challenge such ruthless players as Messrs. Blakely, Evans, Miller and Rogers. Admission 50c, prizes — and please bring your own playing cards.

Saturday, 3rd, will be a Teenage "Cabaret" Night. The Monarchs orchestra will be in attendance. Dancing 8.30 to 11.30. Admission 50c.

Canada's Display at Boat Show in Britain

The International Boat Show opened at Earl's Court in London recently with the usual fanfare and rush of people in "buying" or "just looking" frames of mind. Canada's exhibit was in keeping with the glamorous air of the show — probably the most distinctive structure there and certainly one of the most unusual that Canadians have ever featured in Britain. Under a nautical canopy of manila rope in the design of a compass "rose", 21 Canadian boat, marine hardware and accessories, and sporting goods manufacturers displayed their goods to the public and the trade.

School curling championships

Arvida, Jan. 29 — In ten days from today, school curling rinks from all parts of the province will start to play off in a two-day struggle for the Quebec School Curling Championships and the Pepsi-Cola Trophy.

The championships, to be held at the Saguenay Country Club February 8 to 10, are the crowning event of a series of local and regional playdowns involving thousands of teenage curlers in Quebec.

With more than 50,000 schoolboys taking part in curling from the Atlantic to the Pacific, the game can no longer be considered an "old man's game". Most Canadian high schools now have curling teams.

Winners of the provincial playdowns will proceed, all expenses paid, to the Canadian School Curling Championship to be held this year in Halifax, February 19 to 23.

Officials say that the high school curling competitions do not interfere with school work. If a boy is not a good student and does not get sufficiently high grades, he is not allowed to take part in the playdowns, according to rules laid down by the Dominion Curling Association.

Pepsi-Cola Ltd., which provides most of the expenses in conducting the provincial and national 'spiels, sponsors the events as part of its Canadian junior sports development program.

NEW 'FLU STRAIN

Ottawa (CP) — The federal health department's laboratory of hygiene reported at Ottawa it had identified a new strain of type-B influenza virus as being responsible for an outbreak of the disease in Saskatchewan. Authorities said it was too early to tell whether the disease would spread to other parts of Canada. In the Regina area, several schools were closed.

A WORLD MARKET

More art and antique masterpieces change hands in London, England, than in all the art centres of America and Europe combined, says Reader's Digest. In the 1960-61 season, Sotheby's, its closest rival, Christie's, and other smaller auction houses and art dealers scattered throughout London, handled about 75 million dollars in art objects.

Reappearance of rabies in district

Rabies has been reported in foxes in the Huberdeau and Harrington districts in recent weeks. The following advice should be taken by everyone in these areas in order to safeguard human life, farm stock and pets:

1. When bitten or exposed to the saliva of wild animals suspected of having rabies, wash the affected parts with soap and water, apply alcohol, and contact a physician immediately.
2. When bitten by a dog or cat suspected of having rabies, do not kill the animal but rather confine it out of reach of other animals and people for two weeks. If the animal is alive at the end of two weeks, rabies need no longer be suspected and no treatment is required. However, if the animal dies within that period or develops more advanced symptoms of rabies, the bitten person still has sufficient time in which to become immunized.
3. In areas where rabies is present, all dogs and cats should be immunized by a veterinarian in order to protect these pets and to prevent rabies from entering the community and endangering human life.
4. Do not permit dogs or cats to run at large where rabies is present. Stray dogs should be eliminated.

Annual meeting held at Lachute United Church

The annual meeting of Lachute United Church was held last Wednesday evening. A large gathering was present to hear reports from the various organizations connected with the church and Sunday School. The church had experienced another year of steady progress in all departments, with a continuously growing Sunday School, and an increase in church membership.

Mr. Stuart Armstrong, clerk of the Session, paid high tribute to the work of the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, for the way in which he had conducted the services and for his exposition of the Scriptures. During the year the congregations had been excellent, he reported.

Mr. Rexford Griffith, in presenting the financial report stated that there had been a large increase in church offerings and in givings to the Missionary and Maintenance fund.

The building committee, under chairmanship of Mr. Herb Graves, reported an encouraging response to the appeal for funds towards proposed extension of the church premises. Plans had been accepted by the Montreal Presbytery, and it was hoped to commence the work this spring.

The Rev. Wilson Bridge expressed thanks to all who had helped to make the past year a success, and extended a welcome to Miss Gertrude Hudson, the new recording secretary.

Mr. Fred Jeffery and Mr. Arnold Berry were appointed to serve on the committee of Stewards, along with Mrs. G. G. Mitchell representing the United Church Women of the congregation.

Lachute C.W.L. semi-annual meeting held

Nineteen members attended the semi-annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League, January 28 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, in the presence of their director, the Rev. Father Conway, O.M.I.

A detailed statement of finances was presented by Mrs. J. Martell. Mrs. C. Robinson reported on the Christmas cake raffle; the cake was, as usual, made by Mrs. Berniquer.

Congratulations were extended to those who made it possible to organize the children's Christmas party, at which about 150 were in attendance.

The following conveners read their reports: tea convener, spiritual education, social action, press, membership, citizenship, Catholic magazines.

A decision was made to hold a St. Patrick's supper; Mrs. Jean Hebert and a committee will convene this event. The members were reminded of the March of Dimes, on February 5, and of organizing to make cancer dressings.

The Rev. Father Conway was called upon by Mrs. L. Bedard, and he briefly stressed Christian development, as taught in Canada at St. Francis Xavier College. Mention was made of the Conference on Education in Montreal next March, theme of which will be "Development of the Student's Potential", that is to say, developing students who leave school before they are forced to by limitation of intelligence. In other words, he stressed, there should be more honor and scholarships for graduates. The speaker was thanked by the president for his very interesting topic.

The meeting was adjourned by Mrs. Berniquer, who then convened refreshments with her committee.

WORLD POPULATION

The world's population when Christ was born (about 250 million) took some 16 centuries to double itself, but only 300 more years to reach, by 1900, a billion and a half, says Reader's Digest. In the 61 years since, the rate of increase has again accelerated alarmingly, and world population has doubled once more, to three billion. About 50 million people are being added to the world every 12 months.

Carnival candidates at Brownsburg

Seven candidates for the crown of Carnival Queen in the Brownsburg winter carnival, early next month. The honor will be conferred on the merit of tickets sold, rather than on charm and personality. Left to right, the girls are — Micheline Legault, Micheline Paquette, Patsy Lacasse, Micheline D'aoust, Suzanne Brisson, Huguette Lafleur and Evelyne Therrien.

$2 A LEG

Massawippi, Que. (CP) — Veteran blacksmith Reg Coates, who earned 50 cents a week as an apprentice 52 years ago, now doesn't shoe a horse for less than $2 a leg. "That's $8 a horse," said Mr. Coates.

LIVELY CALF

New Westminster, B.C. (CP) — A yearling calf wandering from a nearby farm led poundkeeper Paul Bandick and two police officers on a 90-minute chase before it was cornered and tethered to a clothesline pole. "It jumped fences like a deer," said Bandick.

SOAP?

A radio program hitting the air at 7 a.m. each day received this note from a feminine fan: "Before I tuned in your program, I could never get my husband out of bed in the morning. Now he can't get out of the house fast enough." —Reader's Digest

if she could have shopped at a modern store

Nobody had much of an answer for the age-old question "What will we have for dinner?" in Granny's time. She was tied by seasonal products and to the basic ingredients with which she roasted, fried and baked.

Canadian manufacturers have done much towards relieving kitchen drudgery. Better cooking methods, better tools, canned and frozen goods, semi-prepared foods — all have helped to provide the demand of the harassed housewife — LEISURE TIME.

Advertising has made a vital contribution to making prices within reach of all, because advertising makes for mass production and this means lower cost to produce — to sell.

Advertising too, provides innumerable answers to "What will we have for dinner?" New recipes, new foods, new menus, new ways to save time and effort.

This newspaper would be quite a different thing without the new ideas, where to buy and for how much, provided by the advertising.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

THIS IS "Hospitality Week" in Quebec. Not that we are unduly agitated by the fact, nor would we wish to excite our readers — for such "weeks" are, in so many cases, a commercial subterfuge; they confuse the calendar and insult our intelligence. However, this may be as good a time as any, to brush off the Welcome Mat and give a thought to our acceptance, as a community, among outsiders.

Lachute district in recent years has become far more tourist conscious, adding many man-made facilities to the natural attractions with which it is endowed. Taking stock of these improvements may surprise us. They include such things as new golf courses, driving ranges, public swimming pools, camping grounds, bowling alleys, motels, skating rink, curling rink, ski tows and resorts, ice-fishing facilities, and many new restaurants. . . . The list of additions, all within the last year or two, is impressive. Not the least noteworthy has been the opening of several new and attractive eating places right here in Lachute. From tourist viewpoints, a scarcity of good restaurants had been felt for many years.

To these, of course, may be added the number of accommodations and social attractions for new residents, and Welcome Wagon service to help newcomers feel at home in this community. While admitting there are still cultural attractions which are lacking, these will doubtless come. We may feel pardonably pleased with the distance we have travelled, and cognizant of those whose personal foresight and investment have boosted this progress.

It remains to measure the spirit of our hospitality — to be sure we are co-operative, in our individual and collective attitude. A polite word in the street, a helpful answer to strangers' enquiries, courteous shopping and traffic behavior, and a genial personification of order and protection from our police officers — these create the corporate image of a community, and count as effectively as material conveniences in impressing our visitors.

Are we — citizens, storekeepers, officials — matching up with our amenities in an expanding spirit of hospitality?

Need guidance on farm management

THERE IS NOT sufficient farm management guidance available to satisfy most members of Quebec's Farm Forums. Some assistance is available from agricultural representatives of the Quebec Department of Agriculture, who sponsor better farming competitions, dairy herd improvement plans, and who supply information on special topics. Macdonald College provides help for some farmers, as does the Canada Department of Agriculture, particularly through its experimental farms. The farm radio, TV and press also supply advice, as do some farm supply companies. . . . However, still better information is needed, in the opinion of Farm Forum members.

Most Forum members would be willing to participate in farm management groups. Their reasons for doing so are varied. Besides wishing to improve their farm incomes and farm operations in general, through group action they believe they could obtain expert advice at less expense than individually. They also feel that group action would permit them to exchange ideas and benefit from the experience of others who farm under similar circumstances.

There are some, however, who disagree. Those who do not wish to study farm management in groups point out that farm operations differ from one farm to another. They also believe that it would be difficult to have enough farmers interested to keep a group functioning properly.

Fortify against fall-out

NEWS REPORTS concerning milk radioactivity and its alleged danger from Strontium 90, an element from the fallout of nuclear weapons, have boomeranged until now it is learned that drinking milk is about the best way of counteracting Strontium 90. Wide publicity has been given by officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, in regard to the vital part milk plays in diets of humans.

People have been warned on numerous occasions of the danger of radioactive fallout and because of its widespread availability and year round production, milk has been the food most widely tested. Unfortunately the public now has Strontium 90 and milk so closely associated in its mind that milk has been regarded by many as a source of danger to health.

Prof. D. M. Irvine, head of the department of dairy science, O.A.C., Guelph, said milk actually was one of the best foods as far as Strontium 90 was concerned and the public should be made aware of its association with calcium in the human diet. If calcium is deficient then more Strontium 90 will remain in the body. Thus the presence of an adequate level of calcium in the diet, which is high in milk-consuming countries, means that even though more strontium may be present in the food, actually less will be available for deposition on the bones. Milk and milk diets are said to play a very important part in preventing higher accumulation of radioactivity in the bones.

Milk, quite naturally, contains less fallout than a lot of other things we eat, points out the Farmer's Advocate in an editorial on the topic. Fallout is strained through the cow. Only one-eighth of the fallout in the food the cow eats comes through into the milk. In addition, there is scientific evidence to show that we should be drinking more milk, not less, to combat fallout. Strontium 90 and calcium are closely related. If the human body has insufficient calcium being fed to it, it will take the Strontium 90 into the bones. Therefore if we want our bones to take less radioactive Strontium 90, we should drink more milk.

Safety note

"THERE HAS BEEN an alarming increase in facial smashes, most of which are caused by car accidents!" declared Dr. F. M. Woolhouse at the annual meeting of the Manitoba Medical Association. He urged car manufacurers to provide seat belts and padded dashboards, and the public be educated to use them.

Dr. Woolhouse is a specialist in facial injuries and director of the reparative and traumatic unit at the Montreal General Hospital. He said it was the person sitting in the right front seat who usually suffered the most. Injuries were caused by the passenger striking his head against the windshield or dashboard. He added that high percentages of facial smashes were caused when vehicles were travelling at less than 25 miles per hour. Seat belts would greatly reduce these injuries, as well as save numerous lives.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

THE AMATEUR PLUMBER

Why does a water-pipe burst without warning at 4.10 a.m. on a cold Sunday morning? It never could happen at noon on a Monday, but always at 4.10 a.m. on a Sunday.

To shut off the water's the first thing to do. The valve is all rusted and will not unscrew; by the time this is mastered you're pretty near drowned, while stuff in the cellar starts floating around.

And why must a leak appear next to the wall, or some place where you cannot see it at all? Like inside the furnace. I had one last week, and had to do something to plug up the leak.

I'd much rather have one that squirts in my face than one in some damnably hard-to-see place. I fried my left arm from the fingers to forearm (that's why I am walking around with a sore arm). I made the hole bigger, and out went the fire. Thick clouds of live steam rose higher and higher. I made a repair by the following night. The house had cooled off and my clothes were a sight. This happens in winter, but never in summer, and just at a time when you can't get a plumber.

It wasn't on Tuesday, nor Friday nor Monday, but 4.10 a.m. — yes, of course, on a Sunday!

— Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Drive cautiously on autoroute

In driving on a busy thruway, some additional precautions are essential. Motorists travelling at the maximum speed allowed, should use the centre lane, while the lane to the left must be left free and used only for passing. The lane to the right is to be used by heavy vehicles travelling at a lower speed (maximum 50 miles per hour) and also car drivers who prefer to travel more slowly. In addition to three asphalt lanes in each direction, the thruway has also a paved lane at the extreme right at points of entry and exit. "U" turns are prohibited, and a safe distance should be left between your car and the one ahead of you. Before braking or slowing down, the precaution should be taken of first easing into the lane at the far right, after having indicated your intention to cars behind.

A CHALLENGE

The other day in a restaurant I heard some irresponsible remarks about Canadian institutions and I let them pass. They seemed to me so foolish that they were scarcely worth rebutting. I don't like to argue against pure ignorance, so I just sipped my coffee and let it go.

I'll not do that the next time.

Next time somebody says, knowingly, that this injustice or that is "enough to turn people to Communism", I won't let it pass. There may be some injustices here, and some folks may get bad breaks. If this makes them think that the proletariat gets pushed around in Canada, they ought to learn what happens to citizens in Russia, where they've been enjoying the so-called "blessings" of Communism for more than 40 years. Forty years of Communism without a free election! Without any of the civil liberties we enjoy. A standard of living miles below ours. Purges and punishments that are shockingly brutal. If there is anything in Canada bad enough to "turn people to Communism", I'd like to know what it is.

But most of us let such comments go by as if they were pearls of wisdom. It saves an argument. "Let the man spout his nonsense," we say.

The other day the president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce urged Canadians to stop letting these attacks, ridiculous as they may appear, go unchallenged. He said that we ought to speak up, to defend our basic Canadian traditions and institutions.

I go along with that. I'm not going to give up my right to kick sacred cows now and again; but I am going to accept a responsibility to speak up when somebody makes snide or unsupported remarks about such things as our courts, and our economic system. I say that because I believe that our way of life is under such constant attack these days that those of us who believe it is fundamentally sound, ought to be careful not to criticize it too casually. Certainly we ought to be ready to defend it when it is unjustly criticized.

I hope many others will take up that challenge too.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Canada's peacemongers are going to make a nation-wide appeal for money.

The Canadian Peace Research Institute wants $2,000,000 to launch a scientific study of the hates, fears and rivalries that lead to war.

That's about 12½ cents for each Canadian — a low enough price for the hope that we and our grandchildren will stay alive for a reasonable span of years.

Our 12½ cents each won't buy a sure remedy for war. There is no such thing on the market.

The money will buy us some facts. We already know that wars are caused mainly by greed and fear. We need to know in detail what kind of greed, what kind of fear.

If the Madison Avenue soap vendors can hire brains to learn why people use Brand A instead of Brand X, and to sway the public taste, then the peace merchants can also put some wise men on the payroll to help them hawk their favorite product around the world.

Not the Time to Quit

In objection to this plan, it may be said that many clever men have wasted years in a futile search for peace. So they have. But the world is in worse danger than it ever was. This is the time to try harder, with more courage, and ingenuity, and staying power, than we ever showed before.

Science has given us new techniques for studying human motives and for influencing behavior. These techniques may be profitably employed in examining the mass lunacy that we all call war, and in devising reasonable alternatives to it.

The critics may also object that there is no hope of studying or influencing the mass of people in Communist countries.

However, we need not be too sure that they are right. Few of us have access to reliable and detailed knowledge about the thoughts that pass through the minds of our so-called enemies.

Fog of Suspicions

We live in a fog of slogans and suspicions, dimly perceiving the actions and words and motives of other peoples much distorted in the gloom.

We need the light of knowledge for ourselves, and with some luck we may find a way to make it shine across national boundaries.

Herman Kahn, American strategic analyst, had this to say in 1960:

"Aside from the ideological differences and the problem of security, there does not seem to be any objective quarrel between the United States and Russia that justifies the risks and costs that we subject each other to. The big thing that the Soviet Union and the United States have to fear from each other is fear itself."

His words are still true. Is there any way to lessen that fear? It will take money and brains to find out.

MERCY GUN

Vancouver (CP) — A gun that shoots tranquilizers into frenzied animals to quiet and capture them, has been acquired by the local humane society.

SCROOGE METHOD IS DEPLORED IN ATTAINING YULE SOLVENCY

There are at least two effective ways to keep out of the red at Christmas time, according to Don Hay, manager of the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal.

"You can follow the Scrooge technique and just ignore the holiday. But it's not the best way to win friends and influence people. You're not likely to have much fun, either," he adds.

Much better to plan ahead, Mr. Hay believes, and open a special Christmas savings account at the B of M.

Next year, when it's time to start Christmas shopping again, it'll be much more fun to draw on money in your special Christmas account.

Why not start right away? Figure how much you'll need to spend at Christmas, divide the amount by the number of paydays between now and then and make a regular deposit of that sum. It's guaranteed painless.

Each year, more and more Canadians are learning how pleasant it is to do their Christmas shopping with no worries about where the money's going to come from.

Mr. Hay at the Lachute branch, or Miss Lulu Miller at Ayersville branch, will be glad to show you how easy it is to operate your own Christmas account throughout the coming year at the B of M. . . . Now's the time to start!

The roll-call is in the form of a contest, producing an original Valentine verse composed by each member, also a joke. — The radio sermon on Sunday from Knox Crescent - Kensington Church claimed that fun and laughter were not only brighteners of life but essential to the wellbeing of everyone. In this verse contest there will be a chance for fun, as one of the small prizes given will be for the most comic original Valentine verse or verses.

Written suggestions for next year's program are to be brought to this meeting.

Abuse — of words and privileges; the deception of rural 'progress'

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Now that all the Christmas thank-you's are written, the festive linen put away, and the cake eaten, we can relax and sink gratefully into routine — of which this column is one facet. . .

Come to think of it, does routine have a facet? As one who often amuses herself by noting errors of diction on the part of TV announcers, it would behoove us to write correctly, I think the error that should get top marks for frequency and annoyance is the perversion of the word "detail". All American broadcasters seem to say it as a Frenchman would say "the tails". Now some of our Canadian announcers are following suit; good newspaper ethics forbids us naming names, but there are a few who say dee'-tail correctly, and whose other utterances are a delight to hear. The other word that is often maltreated is "luxurious" which generally comes out lugs-urious. Horrible sound! There is some excuse for de-tails, as the verb is thus pronounced, but none for the horrible lugs-urious. I agree with the writer of Ecclesiastes, who says, "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the sun. A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak." There may be a time to pronounce incorrectly, but it is surely not 6.30 of a cold, frosty night on TV. This kind of thing spreads ignorance among the young, as do cheap American dictionaries, and other foreign publications used in our schools. If anyone is sceptical of our criticism we refer them to any English dictionary, and to Fowler's Modern English Usage. We are happy to see that at last the various provincial governments are trying to eradicate the more blatant Americanisms. Not that we are against Americans. There is a time for Americans, and a time for Canadians, to paraphrase the ancient writer.

* * *

The holidays had their usual round of dinners, shows, parties. At one of the dinners, we heard an amusing story about President Coolidge, for whom we have the feeling, as the head of the house used to have a striking resemblance to the head of the United States. Once, years ago, in the elevator of one of our large Montreal hotels, an American, partly inebriated, catching sight of our head of the house, exclaimed in surprise, "Why, however did you get in here, Cal?" . . . To return to the story — there had been talk of various eating customs, and one lady said she thought that all dishes should be first served to the hostess, to avoid any possible confusion on the part of guests. Then one had only to follow the leader, so to speak. That this is not the perfect solution, was made clear by the story that Calvin Coolidge, when served tea at a dinner, gravely poured a little tea into the saucer. Whereupon, the guests near him did the same, and bravely prepared to drink from their saucers. Without a smile, the President then gently lowered his saucer to his waiting cat!

* * *

Speaking of cats, we picked up a number of suggested solutions to the hunting menace, at the Anniversary reception at the Kerrs'. A gentleman from Wentworth seemed to have a good idea, the only difficulty being that it would be hard to enforce. His thought is that at the entrance of his municipality a notice, or rather a series of notices, should announce that only residents of the municipality were allowed to hunt. This is an eminently sane solution, but who is to decide who is a resident? Are the Cooks of Lakefield residents, or merely summer visitors? There is also the trouble of screening the incoming hunters, and who is to do it? Just the same, such a law would be sensible, if feasible. No one minds local hunters who know the terrain, the game, and the peculiarities of the soil that make it particularly inflammable.

Another suggestion that we found rather amusing, was that hunting should be confined to one short week. From our point of view, this would be ideal. We should simply stay in Suburbia till all was over. But what about the local inhabitants? They would presumably spend the week indoors, with all domestic beasts ditto. Sudden death!

Still another was that some form of examination, and of instruction, should precede the giving of a hunting license. This is a scheme that is practised in a neighboring province, and in some countries of Europe. It is undoubtedly a sane and wise approach, but would need the services of many trained government personnel. Anyway, people are trying to find a solution, and that is encouraging. Let us keep up our efforts during the next six months, and come October, perhaps we can sleep and walk in peace. Personally, I object violently to being a species of clay pigeon on my own acres.

Never think that the task of guiding the policy of a rural municipality is a trifling or faintly humorous matter. The doings of Juniper Junction are strictly for the cartoonists. Right now, the writer knows of several problems that are exercising the minds of the council of The Gore. Most of these are suggestions for the "improvement" of the district. We are understandably wary of improvements, since the late deplorable incident at Sunnyacres was the result of an "improved development". We wonder if the ordinary taxpayer of the municipality knows of the problems that daily confront the members of the council. Let us look at one. . .

It has come to our ears that a resort corporation at Lake Evans has recently applied to the provincial authorities for a liquor license. As I understand the law, there must be an interval designed to allow anyone interested to object. After that, the issue is put to the electors. Several attempts to make The Gore "wet" have already been made, only to be thwarted at the polls. We commend this issue again to your thoughtful consideration. Just to assure you that we do not fence-sit, we say right now that we shall vote "dry". Our reasons are devious, but logical, at least to us.

We have little patience with folk who advocate total and compulsory abstinence, finding no warrant for this attitude either in religious teaching, or in nature; we enjoy a glass of good wine, and abhor whisky, which always reminds us of smoked fish. But this is a matter of the taste buds, not of principle. Just so, we adore duck, and abhor tapioca, which we always call frog's eggs. These are private and personal reactions, but when we enter this realm of public welfare, we become "dry".

A license to dispense alcohol in the city is a matter of business competition with a man in the next block, or even in your own. Licenses in the country are another thing. A licensed rural hotel becomes a lure for any roughneck looking for a secluded retreat. The press has been full lately of the goings-on of a nearby Laurentian resort. The "wetter" and more "progressive" The Gore becomes, the less attractive it is for the ordinary respectable resident.

There are plenty of worthwhile reforms demanding attention, so why waste time on liquor licenses? We have in mind the collection of garbage, which might prevent the disgusting dumping of remains of food, utensils, bottles, and household equipment, in little hollows alongside the road. Right now, there is an ancient refrigerator among the bushes at the right of the road near the MacIntyres' turn. We believe that a newly-formed organization at Lake Barron is making an issue of this matter, and that a piece of land had been acquired by the council as a dump, with a view to inaugurating a garbage service in the spring. Now that's something worthwhile!

The space is gone, and we have just time to wish everybody a Happy New Year.

Parents must ever keep in mind the fact that their children, being human, will make mistakes, and they should concern themselves with their own behavior when confronted with a child's mistake. What happens in your home when your child blunders? There are numerous incidents every day. Books are left on the stairs for some one to trip over, or the child helps himself to a bottle of milk in the refrigerator and spills some of it on the floor trying to pour it into a glass. The radio is left blaring with no one in the house and a tube burns out.

Incidents such as these are very trying in every household, and the desire to blame the person who makes the mistake is a very natural one. But it is more constructive to ask two questions about any mistake: "How did it happen?" and "What can be done about it?".

In asking "How did it happen?" a parent often can chart a course to prevent it happening again. So can a boy or girl. But let a youngster do his own thinking and come to his own conclusions. A Family Council is a good place to discuss how repeating careless blunders can be avoided.

"What can be done about it?" is a sound question, too. It suggests that it is better for a child to take responsibility for his actions, and do what he can to rectify a mistake than to make excuses and fail to make amends. The older generation often complains that younger people are not responsible. Perhaps parents do not let them face the consequences of their actions. If they have made mistakes, let them do what they can to make up for their errors.

At the same time, no one, young or old, gains experience without making blunders. Parents must constantly remember that everyone is bound to make mistakes. A lot of mistakes are sure to be made, but children must be taught never to repeat their mistakes. An error is excusable, but repeating it is stupid. With the necessary help from Mother and Dad mistakes which have been made can be analyzed, and amends made, and this is called a "learning situation," an effort to aid the child when it occurs again.

Mother and Dad should hope, not that their child should never make a mistake, but that the mistakes he makes are not serious. They should also trust an intelligent youngster not to make the same mistake twice. Conversely, a son or daughter should always feel free to discuss these mistakes with their parents.

Parents can encourage this by refraining from becoming angry when a child's error is brought to their attention. Every effort must be made by parents to build confidence between parents and children, and this cannot be done if parents allow anger to dominate the situation. Anger does not make for happy family living, either. An emotionally upset atmosphere with adults reproaching and children resenting, is anything but constructive.

The adolescent who gets into serious trouble with the rules of society or the law and who frantically refuses to confide in his parents is merely a youth who has received more than his share of blame at home and has received far too little understanding in his relations with his parents.

Bertram M. Beck, an authority on youth work, lecturing recently in Winnipeg said that when a teen-ager makes a mistake which lands him in serious trouble, welfare organizations should have the funds to step in quickly with experts to help solve the mistake.

Is it not strange that adults who make so many blunders themselves, often expect perfection from their children? When it comes to your child's mistakes, do remind yourself that it is human to make them. Give your child understanding, loving support, encouragement to face consequences. If this treatment is applied in time, it will help keep your child out of trouble. If applied when trouble rears its head, it may cause a reformation.

SET-BACK

A secretary was plagued by wolves asking for her telephone number. She never turned them down — just whispered a number. When they dialed it later they found themselves in for a big surprise. The voice that answered didn't whisper — it merely set them back on their heels with the words: "Pest Control Service!"

"Okay, I'll take my cold elsewhere!"

Butter-crisp salmon steaks

Perhaps the fabled belief that fish is a "brain food" came about because of an idea held by the Ancient Gaels of Erin. They thought that unless a man had eaten the "salmon of wisdom" he would be incapable of performing a difficult task or solving a puzzling problem. Though few of us today would accept the idea that eating fish will make us any more intelligent, the Gaels weren't too far off the right track, since salmon is an excellent source of many of the important nutrients necessary to keep us fit and able. It's a fine protein food in addition to supplying generous amounts of minerals and vitamins A and B, all necessary for healthy bodies and clear minds. On the subject of salmon here's an intriguing new way of broiling the succulent steaks. They're dipped first in seasoned melted butter then in a unique coating of crunchy potato chips and crushed saltines. Butter-Crisp Salmon Steaks, retaining all the natural delicacy and flaky moist qualities of the fish, are a hearty and appealing dinner choice.

Butter-Crisp Salmon Steaks

3 Salmon steaks (fresh or frozen), ½ cup melted butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon paprika, ½ cup crushed saltine crackers, ½ cup crushed potato chips, lemon wedges, parsley.

If frozen steaks are used, let them thaw on refrigerator shelf. Dip each steak into melted butter, seasoned with salt and paprika. Roll in combined crushed saltines and potato chips. Place in preheated broiler 4 inches from source of heat. Drizzle half remaining butter mixture on top. Broil until golden brown, about 5 minutes. Turn steaks carefully, drizzle with rest of butter and broil 5 to 8 minutes more or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. (A good rule is to allow 10 minutes total cooking time per inch thickness of fresh or thawed fish.) Garnish with parsley and lemon slices. Makes three servings.

Timely note on crêpes, pancakes

(Consumer Section)

Did you know that there are actually two days in our year which are traditional "pancake days"? The first day which may come to mind is Shrove Tuesday, or as the day is called in some places, Mardi Gras. This is the day when the leavened English pancakes are served. The second day may not be as familiar; it is February 2. On this day, some French - Canadians traditionally serve the tiny, very thin and rich, unleavened French Pancakes or Crêpes in celebration of Candlemass, the following Sunday.

Perhaps you would like to serve Crêpes for dessert, or tea, or for party refreshments. The Canada Department of Agriculture's French home economists have a delicious recipe which makes 15 Crêpes of about 5 inches in diameter:

Sift together 1 cup flour and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir in 1 cup of milk. Add 4 to 6 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Melt a little butter in a small to medium sized frying pan. When pan is quite hot pour in a little batter, just enough to cover bottom of pan. Cook over moderately low heat. When crêpes are brown underneath, turn and brown other side. Roll and serve hot with jelly, syrup or a hot fruit sauce (crêpes suzettes). Or spread with honey or maple sugar and then roll.

Incidentally, to test your fry pan for heat, sprinkle on a few drops of water. If the drops dance and roll around for a moment before evaporating, the temperature of the griddle is just right. If the drops sputter and disappear almost immediately, the pan it too hot.

Calories a-plenty; balanced diet is essential

How's your diet? . . . Good nutrition is one of the best ways of maintaining good health throughout the year, and a healthy body is far more resistant to germs. It is wise to check your family's diet and, if necessary, change the menus to good, basic intake of the proper foods to make strong, healthy bodies.

Three meals a day, at least, is the pre-requisite of a good diet.

Milk, the builder of strong bones and teeth, is a daily necessity. Children need one pint a day, adolescents one-and-a-half pints and adults half a pint.

One serving of citrus fruit or tomatoes or their juices should be included in the daily diet, for the Vitamin C contained.

At least one serving of potatoes and two servings of other vegetables, preferably leafy, green or yellow and frequently raw, should be eaten daily.

Dieters will be happy to note that at least four slices of bread with butter or margarine and one serving of whole grain cereal is another dietary necessity for daily consumption. These supply starch, the B vitamin, iron, protein, thiamine and cellulose.

Serve meat, fish, poultry or meat alternates like dried beans, eggs, or cheese daily and include liver frequently for B vitamins, thiamine and iron.

At least 400 international units a day of Vitamin D is essential for children and expectant and nursing mothers. Fish like salmon, sardines, tuna and herring are about the only sources in our food, but it is manufactured in the body by the sun, or can be taken orally in capsule, tablet or liquid form.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Edna Blakely, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women with a fondness for navy blue will be happy at the spring fashions. Navy is making a big comeback, for the first time in four seasons.

Clothes are curvier and even coats are semi-fitted. The dress with a back-buttoned bolero or cape is expected to replace the dress and jacket costume.

Swimsuits feature relaxed bodices and the newest slims, cut low over the hips, are called hipsters. These are shown with bare midriff tops. Some have matching skirts.

Canadian Furs

A collection of Canadian-made furs will be taken to Switzerland in February for a series of trade and consumer shows.

One of the show's organizers, Denis Grosvenor of Montreal, says it will be the finest fur collection which that international audience has ever seen.

"I know the lavish shows which are the Swiss pattern of the season son and we plan to outshine them all," he said.

About 100 items have been chosen and a large percentage are sports items.

"This is partly a concession to that audience at that time but it is also because we believe that sports furs, furs-for-action and novelty furs are going to be big fashion business at home and abroad," he added.

Furniture Fashion

At the Canadian Furniture Mart the deeper and brilliant colors were shown for home fabrics.

No one should be afraid of colors, said members of the Society of Interior Designers of Ontario.

Red could be used with pink, or as an accent for black and white and even for walls.

One designer suggested one color, such as red, right through the house.

Striped and patterned fabrics were in abundance. Tapestry and damask fabrics added an elegant air and elegance was added to the bathroom with a crystal chandelier.

IS YOUR ELECTRIC BILL HIGHER THIS MONTH?

There's a good reason, if it is. Winter is here. You're using more electricity to make your home more livable, more comfortable. Your home's heating system is on more. Nights being longer, you use lights 5 times as much as in summer.

In winter, you stay at home more, entertain yourself and friends more. The TV and radio are on longer. More food is cooked — and kept cold — electrically. There are more clothes washed and dried electrically too. The electric water heater heats colder water and more of it. An automatic blanket keeps you warm at night.

During these wintry months, electricity is doing more work for you at home . . . adding to your family's pleasure, comfort and living. That's why Electricity is the Biggest Bargain in your Family Budget — especially in winter.

NOSTALGIC MEMORIES OF AN OLD-TIME NAVIGATOR —

The Ottawa — the Lonely River

EDITOR, THE WATCHMAN

Specially Contributed by Capt. E. A. Johnson, of L'Orignal

Dear Mr. Editor:

I have been requested by several of my friends to write up my memories of the Ottawa River as I knew it as a navigator, in the good old days when the steamers' sirens could be heard night or day as they plied the busy river. These included passenger vessels, freighters, tugs, pleasure craft, oil tankers, and American and Canadian yachts. Yes, I repeat, these were busy days. When the winter months closed in, the river became a solid sheet of ice between the two provinces, which enabled the farmers on the Ontario side to haul their wood over, which they had cut in the mountains of Quebec Province.

Now, let me start with the various companies using the river for their lines of business. Let's start with the Ottawa River Navigation Company. They had several boats, including the Empress, Sovereign, Princess, Prince of Wales and Maude; the last named was sunk in a collision with the Ottawan, owned by the Ottawa Forwarding Co., on the Lake of Two Mountains off Pointe aux Anglais.

The passenger steamer Empress was a sidewheeler, which means she had paddle wheels on either side instead of a screw or propeller in the stern. She ran between Ottawa and Grenville, stopping at all warves down and back to the city. This was a delightful trip, which meant she had a full load of passengers. Her master was Capt. Bowie. The company was owned by the Sheppards, of Como, Que., an old and prominent family.

One of her important stops was L'Orignal on the Ontario side, where many of her passengers disembarked en route to Caledonia Spring, famous for its baths for those troubled with acute forms of rheumatism and arthritis. There was a line of conveyance for these people, supplied by the owners of what was then known as the Grand Hotel, beautifully situated among the pines with cement walks leading to baths where various types of water gushed out; these waters were Saline, Sulphur and another kind which I can't remember, but it was reported that many cures — or believed cures — were accomplished. I can well remember as a boy the sight of these many stages that came to meet the Empress. They were beautifully painted yellow and black with the "fringe on top" and all were named — for instance, the Beaver, Muskrat, Martin, Bear and Wolf. The wharf at L'Orignal, extended a quarter of a mile into the Ottawa River; it had freight sheds and a lovely waiting room. The amount of freight unloaded and loaded here ran into thousands of dollars.

Dwelling for a few moments on the steamer Empress — she carried an orchestra known as Valentine's, and they supplied dinner music and wonderful meals; and on her return to Ottawa, moonlight excursions were arranged, with dancing aboard, and these were always well patronized.

She continued on to Grenville where passengers disembarked and took a line of railroad, which was a narrow-gauge and some years later became standard-gauge. However, this line brought them to Carillon where one of the company's boats, the Sovereign, continued the trip to Montreal. This took them over beautiful Lake of Two Mountains, where to the left was the Indian Reserve at Oka, and also the Oka Monastery of Silent Monks.

The steamer Maude was sunk in a collision with the Ottawan on this same lake just off Pointe aux Anglais; she still remains at the bottom. Passing on we come to Ste. Anne de Bellevue; we enter the lock here, cutting over to Ile Perrot which was used as a picnic ground. Continuing on and opposite Pointe Claire, we turn to starboard, where on a calm day one can see the dividing line between the two waters, the Ottawa blue and the St. Lawrence green. Now comes the enjoyable and exciting part of the trip, the running of the Lachine Rapids. I had the pleasure of being a passenger on this memorable trip on my way to the Quebec Centenary; my brother, Capt. Fred Johnson, accompanied me on his way to take over a goverment boat.

The steering gear in the early days was hand-control; power steering didn't come into use for some years afterwards — it made a wonderful difference. Now coming to actual shooting of the rapids: Up to this time only one man was at the wheel; he was now being helped by two others, as we glided into rough waters, with rocks protruding on both sides. This was a real feat which required a steady eye, plenty of nerve and coolness, and most of all, knowing the channel. The run didn't last very long and we were soon in quiet waters in Montreal Harbour, after a very enjoyable and exciting trip.

Another important company was the Ottawa Forwarding Co., owned by the Hall brothers, residents of L'Orignal and Ottawa. This was a line of freight boats leaving Ottawa and stopping at all wharves between that city and Montreal, going down and on the return trip. Here are some of their names — the steamer Hall, Welshman, Harry Bate, Hebron and Ottawan. The latter ran between Perth and Montreal. Carrying passengers and package freight all these boats were loaded down at all times; they did a tremendous business. The freighters loaded on cattle and pressed hay at all these points, and on their return trip their holds and and main deck contained merchandise for all local points, finishing with a great supply for wholesale stores in Ottawa. I think L'Orignal was probably one of their most busy stops. Thousands of tons of hay were loaded here. Cattle night, as it was called, provided a lot of excitement for the visitors which crowded the dock to see bawling cattle, squealing pigs and nervous sheep. This was a night trip, arriving in Montreal the following morning. More freight was taken on before reaching the city. These pilots were sure of themselves; the darkest night made no difference to them.

Before continuing with another transportation company, I'd like to pay tribute to Capt. Tom Weir, the popular Master of the government-owned S.S. Argenteuil, who plied the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers looking after all range lights, and both gas buoys and otherwise. We surely appreciated this service, and I'm sure in his retirement he must often think of these good old days. (Sweet memories, Captain!)

We will hurry along now and talk about a very important company that was a credit to its owners and to mill operators all along the Ottawa River. Known as the Ottawa Transportation Company, it towed the barges laden with lumber from Ottawa to Montreal. The Canadian barges were painted blue and generally carried a captain and crew for the loading of their craft. These crews were mostly French-Canadian, and very often had their families with them. Then we had the American barges, painted white; very often they had their families too, but they paid the mill to load for them.

The company had a fleet of power tugs that took these barges in tow, beginning with the firms in Ottawa and picking up at all mills down the river — MacLaren's at East Templeton; V. C. Edwards at Rockland; Montebello, and the C.I.P. at Calumet; and finally at a mill owned by the late George Higginson, where lumber was sawn for firms in Montreal. Millions and millions of feet of lumber were shipped every year. Here are the names of some of fine tugs, most of them carrying the names of important people — the E. B. Eddy (the flag ship), George A. Harris, Archie Stewart, Dolphin, Florence, Sir Hector, and Nottar. All were fine and powerful tugs; again I say with wonderful navigators.

* * *

What I am stressing is the remarkable business done on this beautiful river which I feel sure will become in the not-too-distant future, the All-Canadian Seaway. It is up to all Chambers of Commerce, owners of manufacturing plants and all concerned, to keep after the governments to study the findings of the survey made several years ago by Mr. MacLeod Stewart, known as the Georgian Bay Canal. Naturally this survey would entail the spending of several millions of dollars, but it is known to be the shorter way compared with the St. Lawrence Seaway. And look at the employment this would bring. Canada is growing in leaps and bounds, and with oceanic traffic in full swing we would really be in the eyes of the whole world.

I'll close, Mr. Editor, in a few minutes. First I will mention a few more craft which had responsibilities. The steamers Glyde and Bonito, one of Hawkesbury owned by William Lawlor and his son, Capt. Lawlor, carrying the Royal Mail to Calumet, and the other owned by James Lee, engaged in the same work as the Glyde. The steamer Owns, which brought down thousands of pine logs for the Hawkesbury mills, owned by the Hamilton brothers. The many many cribs of square timber that came down each year from various companies from the tributaries of the Ottawa, housing their men in small cabins; in fact, when they got moving it looked as if a small village had made up its mind to forsake the soil and live on the water!

One of the last rafts that went down the river was towed by one of the tugs owned by my father. He had four boats at one time, and my brother and I became interested in navigation. At one time we had the oil tankers built on the Clyde; trucks put these boats out of business. So with the freighters — at the present time, apart from small outboard motors, there is only the Atica and Templeton hauling pulp and logs for the C.I.P. Is it any wonder I have called it the "Lonely River?". . . .

I've nearly finished, but I just want to mention a sad ending for an old captain by the name of Monarque. He did towing for a company in Quebec. While moving along on a quiet summer night he fell asleep at the wheel. Coming close to Thurso, his craft began to head for the north shore, which has a clay bottom and is long and sloping. The fireman would be the only man awake, and as long as he could hear the old paddle wheels turning, it was alright with him. Well, she finally came to a stop, well embedded, and to make matters worse, the tow came in behind him, struck the tugboat in the rear and pushed it up still further. Well, to close this episode, we all took a pull, but all we got was broken lines. The boat stayed there the balance of the summer; the coming winter, all further contracts were cancelled — and the poor old skipper died of a broken heart.

Let us keep on boosting this beautiful waterway — bring back the importance it so richly deserves. Rising as it does in Lake Temiskaming; supplying a vast amount of power with the construction of huge dams; a river of swift-running water supplied by many tributaries, in the land of expert loggers. The Gillies Lumber Co. comes to my mind, as well as several others. Who knows but that these firms might again ship their products by water; let us look for the oil tankers and the wheat carriers!

I trust, Mr. Editor, I have not burdened you with too long an article and that you may forgive me possibly for the poor arrangement of my impressions.

Yours very sincerely,

— Capt. E. A. Johnson

Personal Note

P.S. — I have omitted to mention in my article that my late father was the owner of four steamers plying the Ottawa River, namely the Reliance, Princess Louise, Laverdure and British Lion. My father had established a market line run between Thurso and Ottawa. My late brother Capt. Fred Johnson was the captain of the Princess Louise making this run, leaving Thurso in the early morning so that the passengers would have a day of shopping, returning in the late afternoon. A great deal of freight was handled for the various towns on the return trip. I occasionally exchanged boats with him, while one of the others was towing to Montreal.

I finally decided to look for larger fields and entered the employ of the Algoma Steamship Co., and my home was in Sault Ste. Marie. This company owned a variety of vessels, from passenger ships to the iron ore carriers running between West Superior and Ashtibula, Lake Erie, where the ore was processed; we then loaded coal at Lorain for West Fort William.

On receiving a letter from my my mother in which she informed me that my father was very sick, I felt it my duty to give up my navigating career and returned home.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.
