Three-way nomination; contradictory meeting

Cottingham emphasizes roads, youth and schools; Durocher criticizes Union Nationale and leader; Paquette speaks of hospital and electric power

Following the nomination of candidates for the November 14 provincial election conducted by the returning officer, Notary Jacques Beaudoin, last Wednesday, the old-style "contradictory meeting", traditional to this constituency, was held in Lachute Auditorium. The retiring mayor of Lachute, Fernand Legault, Q.C., presided.

The three candidates are W. M. Cottingham, Union Nationale; Rodrigue Durocher, official candidate of the Liberal party; and Gaetan Paquette, Independent Liberal.

Each candidate was allotted 20 minutes of speaking time to be used by himself or supporting orators. . . Those speaking on behalf of Mr. Cottingham were Ald. Linton Armstrong and Gérard Thibeault, candidate seeking re-election for Montreal-Mercier; for Mr. Durocher, Marcel Prud'homme, chief of René Lévesque's organization in Montreal-Laurier. Mr. Paquette spoke on his own behalf.

W. M. Cottingham —

Mr. Cottingham, as initial speaker, said he was proud to come before the population once again, and confident of winning the election for this County for the fifth consecutive time.

"My intention, once re-elected, is to resume our previous program of aid to the farmer, aid to youth, promoting better highways, and the welfare of our school commissions.

"When Mr. Johnson visited Lachute, he said he would recommend the refunding of public subscriptions to the hospital. I approve of this idea. The people would be free to withdraw their donations or not, as they see fit, or assign them to some other charity fund," said Mr. Cottingham.

"I intend to urge more grants to those promoting youth recreation in our County.

"As for roadwork, the people of Argenteuil are well acquainted with our achievements from 1948 to 1960. These works will be continued when the Union Nationale is returned to power; they will extend to all corners of the County."

Rodrigue Durocher —

Mr. Durocher deplored the Union Nationale's desire "to resume the old program" and everything distasteful in it. . . "Since the Liberal party took power in 1960, we have spent $2,100,000 on roads in Argenteuil, even though I was not your deputy. Imagine what that might be if I were the representative of this County. They talk of roads, but our opponents have not done as much all the time they were in power.

"Since 1960," continued Mr. Durocher, "I have been frequently in Quebec, but I have not often seen Mr. Cottingham, whose chief, Mr. Johnson, insults the English-speaking population.

"There is no socialism among the Liberals", he continued, in another vein. "We are fair and straightforward, and if we insist on the nationalization of electric power, it is because we wish Quebecers to share in their rightful possessions.

"We know that Mr. Cottingham will meet defeat, through no fault of his own but because of the party he supports, and his chief, Mr. Johnson."

Gaetan Paquette —

Mr. Paquette, the last speaker, declared that he needed no outside orators, he was capable of speaking for himself and for the County of Argenteuil.

"I have worked hard for the completion of our hospital," he averred. "I requested the government to take over the hospital, which they did. It will be completed in March 1963, and will be ready to accommodate patients the following month. I promise also that the money will be refunded to subscribers; I was the first one to put forward that idea.

"With myself elected and the government behind me, we will demand that electric service used in this County be supplied by Hydro-Quebec.

"Our County is dotted with lakes no one knows about — because there are no roads making them accessible. I will elaborate an extensive program, which will include not only re-making, but the building of new roads.

"In Argentueil we can govern ourselves; we need no outsiders to come and tell us what to do."

Que. school boards pay honor to Dr. E. S. Giles

Dr. Elmer S. Giles, who retired recently to make his home in Lachute after serving for upwards of 30 years in the Department of Education, has been honored for his "outstanding contributions" to Protestant education in Quebec.

Dr. Giles, who retired June 1 as director of Protestant education for the province, and who was succeeded by Howard S. Billings, was presented with an "award of merit" at the closing session of the Quebec Association of Protestant School Boards, meeting recently at the Seigniory Club at Montebello.

Introduced for the honor by Lindsay H. Place, retiring president of the Association, Dr. Giles received the certificate of merit from A. A. Smith, Three Rivers, the new president.

Mr. Billings, speaker at the closing dinner, where Dr. Giles received a lengthy ovation from the more than 250 delegates, described the arduous duties performed by Dr. Giles in his several posts, first as inspector of high schools, then inspector-general of Protestant schools, and as director of education from 1957 to 1962.

Dr. Giles, born here in Lachute, graduated from the local Academy in 1911. He won a B.A. with first-class standing at McGill in 1915. He then served three years in France, gaining a commission in the Royal Garrison Artillery.

He was made principal of Gault Institute, Valleyfield, Que., upon his return to Canada. From 1920 to 1925 he was headmaster of Macdonald College High School. The next six years were spent as principal of the Three Rivers High School. He then entered into the service of Protestant education throughout the province.

He had conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by McGill in May, 1957.

Rites Sunday at cenotaph as gesture of Remembrance

The Lachute public will be joining with Legion Branch 70 in its Remembrance exercises once again at the Memorial Park.

Legionnaires will be assembling at their hall on Lafleur Street at 1.30 p.m. on Sunday, then parading to the cenotaph for ceremonies to take place at 2.30 p.m. The proceedings are customarily witnessed by a representative gathering of citizens, and wreaths are deposited on behalf of numerous organizations, church groups, business firms, civic corporations and war-bereaved families.

Both Catholic and Protestant clergy will take part, and the new mayor or his representative. Brief and appropriate speeches will be heard, while martial decorum will mark the observances of Lachute Legion, in tribute to fallen comrades. It is expected that the public will enter reverently into the spirit of this occasion.

Taking part in the parade this year will be representatives of groups not previously included. With music by the Harrington Pipe Band the parade will include units from the 131st Field Battery, the Highland Cadets, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Catholic Girl Guides, Air Force Cadets, Legion Auxiliary, and Legion Branch 70, under whose management and and supervision the entire demonstration is planned.

In the morning, the veterans will attend church parade, from the Legion Hall to Ste. Anastasie Parish Church. Details are given in the Legion column this week.

Arundel Tree Farm group held Conservation evening

(Our District Correspondent)

A well-organized and entertaining Conservation Evening for the Arundel School Tree Farm was held on Friday last in the school auditorium.

A delicious bean supper was served by students of the school, earlier prepared by members of the community. Following the meal, special speakers were Mr. L. Bastin, who addressed the audience on behalf of the Canadian International Paper; Mr. W. C. McCullough, who spoke for the Director of Protestant Education; and Mr. Leslie Cooke, chairman of the Arundel Protestant School Board, who reminded his audience of "the generosity of the Canadian International Paper" in that few might realize "how extensive was the Tree Farm, which was over a hundred acres in size".

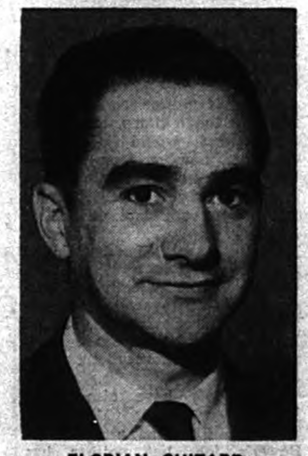

Mr. Bastin then presented the deed and clear title of ownership of the Tree Farm to Mr. Cooke and Wade Welden, president of the Students' Council. Ronnie Cooke, vice-president of the Students' Council, gave a report of work on the Tree Farm. Mr. Melvin Graham, principal of the Arundel School, said he "much appreciated the assistance of the Tree Farm committee and the public at large, for their encouragement and direct support of the venture". But specially "the work done by two C.I.P. officers, Yaap Salm and Mansiel Wilson, who have both given much time and assistance in organizing the activities of the Tree Farm" was particularly worthy of mention, according to Mr. Graham.

Then, at the drawing by Mr. L. Gibbons for the Shorthorn calf presented to the Tree Farm by Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Stuart of Tutira Farm, Mr. Ernest Swail of Arundel was announced as the winner.

Finally Prof. G. Jones, of Macdonald College, showed some beautifully colored slides of a canoe trip which he and three companions took while they were in the Northwest Territories this past summer. The audience then dispersed to view a very appropriate display of Tree Farm work displayed in the auditorium.

Other notables present included the Brownies and Cubs, with their leaders; Mr. J. L. Van Camp, manager of the Canadian Forestry Association; Mayor Breckenridge of Weir, and secretary of the Tree Farm Committee; Dr. W. Morrison, Mayor of Arundel; and the Rev. F. Bussell. Many others from the surrounding communities which had been included in the work of the Tree Farm, were also present. Among these was the Arundel School Tree Farm committee, Mr. Breckenridge, Buster Cooke, Coral Swail and Henry Williams, with Principal Graham, the chairman.

J.-O. Desjardins wins civic contest in west ward

J. ORPHIR DESJARDINS

In the west ward contest for Seat No. 2 in Town Council, vacated by the retirement of Ald. Stanley Church, J.-Orphir Desjardins won a decisive victory against Wilfrid Morrissette. The contest was held last Friday.

In the two polls Mr. Desjardins secured 266 votes against 49 for his opponent, for a majority of 217. A total of 321 electors cast their ballots, out of 503 eligible. Six ballots were spoiled and rejected.

In poll A to K, the majority was 132 to 20. In poll L to Z, 134 to 29.

This is J.-Orphir Desjardins' first experience in civic affairs. In federal politics, he was the Social Credit candidate in the election last June, placing third among the five contenders, with approximately 5,000 votes in the two-county constituency.

Mr. Morissette, now defeated by Mr. Desjardins for the civic honors, has served as alderman for several past terms.

Dis. Governor greeted at local Rotary Club

J. Douglas Mayhew, Governor of District 704, Rotary International, was a guest at the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club meeting last week.

A good number of members turned out to meet the visitor, prior to the regular meeting, at the Masonic Hall. The chairmen of the committees reported on their progress and discussed future plans. Mr. Mayhew presented ideas he had picked up from other clubs he had visited, along with the recent news from Rotary International. Later, at the Brownsburg Legion Hall, he witnessed the induction of two members into the club, John Leggitt and Keith Smith, both of Brownsburg. Rotarian F. Royal capably handled the ceremonies.

Past District Governor Linton Armstrong introduced the Governor to the club for his formal address. His talk was based mainly on the heart of Rotary, Club Service, Vocational Service, and International Service. He also commented briefly on his recent trips to the last two International Conferences, in Tokyo, Japan, and Los Angeles, California.

Rotarian Bob Wyse was called upon to thank the speaker on behalf of the club.

Life sentence for 18-year-old in rifle slaying last February

A 12-man jury found Jean Périard guilty of non-capital murder, after a six-day trial before Justice Claude Prevost at St. Jerome. The trial terminated on Monday and a sentence of life imprisonment was handed down by the judge.

Jean Périard, 18, was accused in the rifle slaying of young André Prévost, son of Mme Lucien Prévost, on January 14 last. The perpetrator of this crime immediately handed himself over to the police, at town headquarters. The act was the culmination of a long feud between the two youths. Prévost was shot down while returning from a soiree at the Recreation Centre, in company with his young companions.

Crown prosecutor was Roger Lagarde, Q.C., and the 12 jurors were chosen from outside the Lachute area. Five optional verdicts were offered to the jury prior to their deliberationos — namely, capital murder, non-capital murder, manslaughter, acquittal by cause of mental derangement, and plain acquittal.

Attorneys for the accused, Claire Lefebvre and Jacques A. Bélisle, called as a witness last Saturday Dr. J.-B. Boulanger, a psychiatrist and neurologist, who gave his opinion that at the time of the murder Périard was so "mixed up" that he could not distinguish right from wrong. For purposes of the defence he described the mental state of the accused on the fatal evening. He was a youth of average mentality, the witness believed, but his personality was affected by fits of depression. Reared in unfavorable family surroundings, he had found companionship in a group of young people; these had led him to misdoing which had landed him in reform school. . . The evidence of this witness was retained only in part by the jury.

The convicted youth had been held criminally responsible at an inquest held in Lachute Auditorium several days after the crime. Dr. Roger Lavigne was the district coroner presiding at that inquiry.

Bush clearing almost completed along Ottawa River south shore

Nearly 90 per cent of the clearing of wooded lands along the south shore of the Ottawa River — the final phase of the relocation project brought about by the Carillon development — has been completed, according to officials of the Ontario Hydro. The clearing is scheduled to be completed by the end of November.

Hydro also announced that at the end of last week 113 of an estimated 700 transactions had been completed, involving the purchase of nearly 1,100 acres of land along the Ottawa River shoreline. Advances are being paid to property owners whose transactions are not yet completed.

Harry Hustler, Hydro's director of property, says transactions west of the town are being completed at the rate of three to four a day. Staff at the Hydro Property Office has been expanded to complete the job as quickly as possible.

He said that priority is being given to owners whose property is most affected, such as farmers whose buildings are below the new river level. Those where only the shoreline will be affected, will be left until later.

In the town, virtually all property transactions have been completed, Hustler said. Work on shoreline improvements in the town — fill and grading along the river from John Street East — is almost finished. Many compliments had been received from citizens and visitors on the improved appearance of the shoreline and the landscaping around the new pumping station.

McGregor trial set for Nov. 15 at St. Jerome

The trial of Malcolm Arnold McGregor, of Chomedey, in connection with the murder of William Gunn in the woods at Dalesville, has been tentatively set for November 15 in court at St. Jerome.

Delay was caused by the absence of an important witness, a psychiatrist presently in hospital in Montreal. The case will be presented before Judge Claude Prévost, presiding in the present Criminal Assizes for the judicial district of Terrebonne, and trial will be by jury. Crown prosecutor is Fernand Legault, Q.C., of Lachute.

It is recalled that the accused, a former commercial air pilot, was arrested at Bala, Ont., a few days after the fatal shooting of Bill Gunn, of Lachute, while the latter was working in a woodlot. Motive of the crime appeared to be robbery. In McGregor's car when he was arrested, the police found a rifle of the same calibre as the bullet found in Gunn's body.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

A lot of the winter birds are back. After the first snowfall they came in by the dozens — which set me to wondering: Do these birds that you feed all winter remember? It would certainly seem that way. We put out our first suet sticks — the fat that had been saved all summer frozen in sticks with a few seeds thrown in. Birds sure do like this too; maybe like humans, they must have fat to combat the cold, so they gorged themselves on it. Some of the chunks the jays took off were astonishing. The chicks are smart with this, too. They just waited until the bigger birds got through tearing it apart, then moved in to pick up all the crumbs.

It is early to be putting out feed for the spadgers, but it needs to be done now instead of later. In this way you may be lucky enough to keep them with you all winter.

A few hawks can also be seen free-wheeling in the sky. Poetry in motion. They seem to be getting lots of field mice, etc. as they are continually diving to the ground. I never mentioned this before, but most of you will have noticed the numbers of mice that can be seen in the fields. Runways are all over, especially in the hay fields. Even turning over logs in the bush, scares a few out almost every time. If this keeps up the hawks and owls are going to live high on the mouse. Other predators too.

Out fishing during a recent snowstorm, it was not too good either in the catch or comfort. Only three small perch were taken. I did have a couple of good trailers while spinning, but they were not interested in striking. With the water still extra high, they are evidently getting lots of feed. The perch disappointed me, as I had thought they would be hitting very well right now.

Numerous bears have been going through, but I have heard of only one that was taken in this area. The same seems to apply to the deer. A great number of them have been registered, I know, but I have no real information on the County as yet. Some of the better hunters of this area have reported seeing lots of signs; that has been all. As you know, a deer can browse all over the place, suggesting there are lots of them around and that the County is better off than it really is.

Nothing has been heard of the moose for a few days; this is unusual, as most people take the time and trouble to phone me about these animals. (Thank you all.) I hope they are still with us, and are left alone. I don't think the local hunters would shoot at them, but rather some of the drugstore type that come into this district. However, with the cold weather setting in, these won't be with us much longer; that's one reason for hoping for cold, miserable days. . . Poor consolation though, it's a long winter.

Some time ago a group of boys from Brownsburg managed to get themselves into the small-bore titles. These boys have been trained by some of our local enthusiasts, who were, it seems, just a little fed-up with what the youngsters have to do for pleasure. Earl Bradley was one of these who have given time and energy to try and do something for the boys. I know a lot more were in on this effort, too, and they deserve the thanks of the community for trying to help the youngsters to be better citizens. May their gun club continue to prosper.

I know most fishermen have quit for this year and put their outfits away. I wonder just how many have taken time or trouble to look over their tackle? Frayed windings will be the most common defects, with loose ferrules next on the list. These are repairs that should be done now and not next spring.

In a lot of cases the ferrules will have warped and thus become loose. There is nothing you can do except put on a new set; in this case it sometimes happens you will have to use oversize fittings. The windings are also important; loose windings can cause you to lose a good fish, or if you are lucky, just an eye (from your rod).

Your corks on the handle may be loose or shrunk. Sometimes a soaking in water will be sufficient for these; at other times they have to be taken off and a new handle built up. This is not too hard. Cut the old corks away, clean the butt of the rod thoroughly with fine sandpaper, then rough it up a little with coarse paper. The cork can be drilled to a size smaller than your rod, thus making it a good, tight fit. A good grade of glue should be used to set the corks, both on the rod and for the handle. You will now have to shape the handle to get your rings to fit. This is a ticklish job at times; I usually end up by glueing all the corks except one together, then sanding the middle corks down until the rings fit; then the loose cork is glued and jammed tight. In this way you have the tapered cork for the end and your rings won't slide off. Do not sand the cork too much though, as your rings will then be loose; with continued use they will become sloppy, forcing you to use a filler under the ring. . . More on the repairs next week; maybe by then you will be in the mood to fix up your tackle.

For weeks I had seen no ducks, but during the recent bad weather they began showing up again. The ones seen were all blacks, and I would think they were the Northern type, as they were much bigger than those that were formerly seen in this area. Even the Ottawa River is harbouring a few, and it could be that others will come down later on; but I wouldn't count on it for a duck dinner.

I have been told of a bobcat or wildcat in the district. At least it was thought to be a bobcat. However, on hearing the description, everything points to its being a lynx. The bob is usually smaller, about 2 to 3 feet in length (same as the lynx) but not as heavy. Usually the bob will weigh about 25 to 40 lbs., while the lynx will weigh up to 50 lbs. The bob is a distinct brown color with flecks or spots on the body. The head also has a pronounced brown top, the side-whiskers are almost the same, except that they are in closer to the head. There are no tufts on the ears, and the tail has not the unmistakable black tip of the lynx. The lynx is a paler shade, more like a blue-dray, with white around the outside of the head whiskers. It has longer legs, with feet about twice the size of the bob, very heavy legs, tufts on the ears, and the readily-seen black tip on the tail. One thing is sure, while we have these cats in the district there will be very few fox around; the two are natural enemies.

I have been asked to give you hunters some information of importance. A Labrador Retriever (black) wandered away from her home a week or so ago; it has been seen in and around the Louisa district several times. The dog is very timid, and will run when spotted. So if anyone happens to see this Lab would you please give me a call. Thanks. . . Her name is KIM.

Fate, fortune in hockey fame

SPORTS CAMERA
By Jim Bastable,
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ever wonder why a young, strong Stanley Cup champion team can topple into the ranks of the ordinary in a few months with virtually the same personnel that reached the heights of hockey glory?

Some folks put it down to success — the defending champions sitting back and counting handsome pay cheques when they should be taking care of the business at hand. Others figure it as conditioning. Still others point to a strong opposition.

Whatever the ailment, Toronto Maple Leafs have it. Leaf forwards who only last spring were giving enemy goaltenders the willies with their scoring antics now are having trouble buying a goal. And Montreal Canadiens, a power in the league for years, are also having troubles, including injuries to key men.

Montreal coach Toe Blake says some of his boys are fat and making too much money.

To which Leaf coach Punch Imlach observes: "So, Blake thinks some of his players are making a lot of money. Well, for the performance I've been getting, my players are overpaid."

The Leafs aren't pushing the panic button. After all, the 70-game schedule is made to order for a young club such as the Leafs. But Imlach, who blasted his players for a miserable showing in a pre-season tour of Western Canada, wants to get at the heart of the matter in a hurry.

The Leafs had little to brag about after their first nine games. They had picked up only three victories and a tie. The Habs weren't much better off with four wins and two deadlocks in nine games.

On the other hand, Detroit Red Wings, the big surprise of the early going, waltzed to victory in their first seven games, allowing the opposition only nine goals and scoring 18.

The Leaf problems don't stop at the forward and defence lines. Goaltender Johnny Bower, a 38-year-old gent who has been in professional action 20 years, hasn't launched one of his better seasons. If Bower continues to run into tough times, his logical replacement would be Jerry Cheevers, now on loan to Sudbury Wolves of the Eastern Professional League. But Cheevers hasn't been any ball of fire at Sudbury.

Coach Murph Chamberlain of the Wolves was unhappy with Cheevers' work recently and asked the Leafs to send along another man. So they got Ed Babiuk, Toronto's spare netminder. That move didn't work out well.

The Leafs have also given journeymen Gerry McNamara and Don Simmons a whack at Bower's job, but neither has stuck. Their farm team in the Metropolitan Toronto Junior A series, Toronto Marlboros, can't help much. The Marlboros have already used four netminders in their own cause this season.

Maybe the Leafs let their best replacement get away when the Canadiens grabbed up Cesare Maniago, who was left off Toronto's protected list.

Wherever the answer lies, Imlach probably will find it. His big scorers, such as left winger Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon, should start exploding again. Mahovlich, a 48-goal producer in 1960-61 and a 33-goal man last season, fired only four goals in the Leafs' first nine battles this year.

United Church bowling league reopens

The Lachute United Church Bowling League under the presidency of Mrs. Wilson Bridge and with Marjorie Armstrong as secretary, held its preparatory meeting on Monday evening of this week.

The main business of planning for the 1962-63 season was on the agenda. It was decided that regular scheduled games would start on Monday, November 19.

As usual, the preliminary meeting showed that there are about 10 players short in order to complete the teams, and interested persons are requested to contact the president, Mrs. Wilson Bridge (LO 2-6150) or the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ed Armstrong (LO 2-4626).

It is hoped that practice games will be played in the hall on Monday, November 12; this will announced in the church bulletin on Sunday.

New Institute of Oceanography on east coast

Ottawa — The Bedford Institute of Oceanography, Canada's new centre of marine sciences on the Atlantic coast, has started functioning. Already about a third of the full staff of 300 scientists and supporting staff are at work in the new Institute. Full complement, which will linclude oceanographers, hydrographers, fisheries research scientists, geophysicists, underwater geologists and engineers, is expected to be reached by 1965.

The new Institute is located near Halifax, in the maritime heart of Canada's eastern seaboard. Director of the Institute is Dr. W. N. English, 43, one of Canada's foremost authorities on marine physics.

The Institute was planned and built at a cost of $4½-millions to house and centralize federal scientists and engineers of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys and of Fisheries Research Board, involved in the study of Canada's Atlantic and sub-Arctic waters and underlying seabeds.

In line with the federal policy of coordination of effort in oceanographic research, the new Institute will work with other federal agencies and universities, interested in oceanography.

Friends mourn lifetime resident of Calumet

The late Jack Bigelow

After an illness of about three years, during which he was confined to his home, one of Calumet's best-known residents, in the person of Mr. Jack Bigelow, passed away Monday, October 29, in his 74th year.

He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ebenezer Bigelow, and had been a resident of Calumet all his life.

Mr. Bigelow made many contributions to the "works of God" during his life, and of later years was an active supporter of Pentecostal churches. He had the distinction of being a charter member of Harrington Pentecostal Church.

By profession he was a farmer, lumber contractor, machinist and welder with Canadian Refractories Ltd. His ability in these fields was recognized by all who knew him.

Left to mourn are his wife, Martha Ann Arnold; seven children — Mrs. Elsie Kingsbury, of Vankleek Hill, Hiram, of Toronto, Walter, of Montreal, and Bertan, of Toronto; as well as 11 grandren, two brothers, Elijah of Rivington, and Gillman, of Montreal, and a sister, Mrs. Walter McVicar, of Niagara Falls. One brother, Ernest, and a sister, Jessie, predeceased him.

The funeral service was held Thursday, November 1, in Grenville Pentecostal Church and was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J. F. Parkes, assisted by the Rev. A. Voth of Calumet and Harrington, who preached the message, and the Rev. R. E. Solmes of Brownsburg, who gave the eulogy and sang "Beyond the Sunset".

The many floral contributions bore tribute to the esteem in which friends and relatives held this well-beloved man.

Pall-bearers were Messers. John Fox, Richard Young, Kenneth McHardy, Irvine Prophet, Percy McLean and Robert Welden. Interment was made in Calumet cemetery.

Obligations at road intersection

Very often the only difference between a "road hog" and a "gentleman of the road" is just education. The patient, courteous driver who respects the right of way of the pedestrian at an intersection, will never regret the two or three seconds' delay required by this gesture.

The Highway Code clearly states that drivers must, "when faced by an amber light, stop before the intersection unless already engaged therein or so close to it that it would be impossible to do so without danger. When faced by a red light, stop at the intersection, and when a vehicle stops or slows down to allow a pedestrian to cross, the vehicle behind it does not have the right to pass it."

Failure to observe any of these rules, states "Prudentia", can cause a serious accident which involves the entire responsibility of the driver.

Study of Bible

Bible Study in Canada is on the increase, reports Rev. F. E. Vipond, director of the Canadian Council of Churches project on the Use and Understanding of the Bible. Fifty-six workshops have been held across Canada in churches of many denominations, reaching some 4,000 people.

Mr. Vipond believes from his experience that relevant and thorough Bible study will feed and strenghten Christian people. "There is need for Bible study", states Mr. Vipond; "it should be closely linked with the church's missions of evangelism".

Defining effective Bible Study as "that study of the Bible in which men meet with God, and answer in responsible decision to the Word addressed to them", the Rev. E. H. Robertson, the Study Secrteary of the United Bible Societies, has recently written a book on Methods of Bible Study (SCM Press). "The real search" writes Mr. Robertson, "is to find a way to hear God in our study of the Bible".

Encouraging reports are being received of a wider use of the Bible for study in Germany, Britain and North America. Some branches of the Christian Church are emphasizing Bible Study projects throughout 1962.

"The Counting of the Birds"

By Dorothy Barker ("Diary of A Vagabond")

He wasn't a very big man and he looked even more gnomelike squatting at the edge of our swamp with an over-sized pair of binoculars glued to his eyes.

Earlier that morning he had knocked at our sunroom door and asked if he could borrow a piece of writing paper.

His request seemed mysterious and a bit creepy, especially as I saw him tuck my offering of a sheet of canary yellow copy paper in his leather brief case. He headed for the swamp and started industriously building a duck hunter's blind from the mellowing bulrushes.

The morning wore on and I could see him peering and jotting something on the scrap of yellow paper. Now and then he dropped his glasses long enough to scribble at greater length.

I had almost forgotten about him when the sleigh bells, our psuedo door bell jingled. "I have counted 34 species of birds in less than an hour. What a haven for bird watchers", he said. Then he asked me if I had seen the blue heron.

He said he was an official recorder of bird life and migrations in this area. A neighbor of mine had phoned that a blue heron was perched on the edge of her swimming pool. Never having recorded a blue heron in this particular vicinity before, he had hurried out but all he had seen of the species were two smaller green herons.

While I brewed him a cup of tea to thaw his congealed blood stream, I hospitably prattled about the splendid housekeeping habits of a pair of wrens who, each year before leaving for the south clean out the rustic bird house that swings in the apple tree at the back of our home.

When he told me he had counted at least ten species of sparrow, five different birds of the warbler family and an equal number who owe their lineage to the robin strain, I decided I had better not brag that I can identify a chickadee. Heavens, he might tell me those little clowns are distant cousins of the mourning dove!

Poor Lost Migrant

My visitor had hardly departed when there was a swoosh and thud on the terrace. There was the heron standing on two wobbly legs. It was dazed, obviously starved and so exhausted its huge wings drooped to the ground. It didn't even scare as I opened the door, just blinked at me with one bead-like eye.

I knew this migrant would never get off the ground again without a bellyful of something. I searched in the encyclopedia and learned fish and mice were a heron's chief sustenance. There are no fish in our nearby brook and Buffy, our orange cat, keeps the mouse population to a minimum.

In short shorts, knee high rubber boots, tee shirt and curlers tied in a red bandanna, I must have looked like a candidate for a straight jacket, salting frozen smelts among the pebbles in our brook as I waded up the stream.

I'll never know whether that heron relished my smelts or not. But, apparently replenished, the bird that should have been No. 35 in the recorder's notes took to the sky at sundown and headed south.

VISIONARY PROGRESSIVES

The men and women we select to represent us on municipal councils—and this includes villages and towns as well as rural—should be progressive perhaps above all else, for we are in continual era of progress. We hesitate to use the word, but they should also be people of vision.

Ontario may get 3-yr. auto plates

Deputy Transport Minister A. G. McNab of Ontario said that new license plates may be issued on a three-year basis, following implementation of the plans to retest Ontario's 2,500,000 drivers leading to issuance of three-year driving permits.

Mr. McNab said the plan, now in the "consideration stage," might follow the pattern set in the United States where tags are issued in preference to complete plates.

Has criticism for "nominal" ties with church

Vancouver (CP) — A Roman Catholic clergyman says increased emphasis on sacramental living is needed to cut down on the number of people who have only nominal adherence to a church.

In an article in The B.C. Catholic, Father Joseph Carney says a growing percentage of people claim some kind of religious preference but don't belong to any religious denomination.

"It has obviously become socially acceptable to belong to a church, any church," he says.

"Attendance at services, worshipping God and all forms of active sharing in the religious life of one's convictions, is too much of a commitment in pluralistic secularism."

"Actually the trend to nominal Christianity is simply an alignment of religion with moral, political and other phases of life. Society is marked by nominal Christians, nominal citizens and nominal moralists."

Father Carney says that for years Roman Catholicism has led in lapsed membership. Marrying outside the church, joining secret societies, exchanging vows to ministers and state officials help account for one half of Canada's 45 per cent Catholic population being nominal Catholics.

"Is this diluted Christianity and socially conforming lukewarmness evidence that the Catholic religion is outmoded and failing in the modern world?" he asks.

"Nominalism within the church will suffer no loss but enjoy increasing popularity unless sacramental living becomes the hallmark of more and more Catholics every year."

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank the many friends who sent cards and gifts, also for their visits, during my stay in hospital and since my return home.

Bill collector gives impressions and advice

Montreal (CP) — The "tough old days" of collecting overdue accounts are a thing of the past but collection agencies still don't have an easy time of it.

"We don't turn a fellow upside down then pick up the money as it falls out of his pockets." says K. D. Coulthard, of Montreal's Allied Collection Agencies.

"Today collection is a big and respectable business. Just as credit buying has become a part of our way of life, our work has become a necessary facet of business in general."

However, Mr. Coulthard says, there are still a number of "fly-by-night operators" in the business.

"Very often when they get the money out of the debtor, that's the last his creditor sees of them or the money. The agency should be checked through the Better Business Bureau."

Wide Range

Mr. Coulthard says the people who get into debt cover the social range.

"There are debtors in the professional range, and the list goes right down to the fellow who digs ditches."

While the bills start at $5 and go up to $10,000, the average is somewhere between $5 and $500.

A large percentage of people the agency deals with are in the $4,000-and-up annual income class. Often these fall into debt keeping up with the Jones, and Mr. Coulthard blames much of it on status-seeking wives.

However, once the damage is done, the wife usually is far more conscientious than the husband in paying up.

"She is more cognizant of the fact these matters must be settled. In this respect, she is far more mature than the male."

Offer to Settle

Mr. Coulthard has advice for those caught in debt. The first thing to do is get in touch with the creditor and tell him how much can be paid per week. Many will accept.

He looks upon his business as a sometimes-unpleasant but essential service.

"It's much like a game of cops and robbers," he says. "Some people owe money, and it's our job to get it for our customers. If people would meet their obligations in a mature way, we would be out of business."

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

If someone were to ask me if I found the prairie provinces backward in development as I tripped about during these past few weeks, I could be quite corny and say, "Not by a dam site". I learned more about hydro developments, kilowatt potential, expected industrial growth, paradise for fishermen (when all these dammed up rivers produce man-made lakes that will be stocked with sporting fish) and of all things the system of grouting, than I have been able to absorb during the years I have existed on this planet.

The only way I could absorb this whole burgeoning process was to actually be there. I watched men working all the daylight hours at Manitoba's Grand Rapids Power development, hardly concerned with the fact they had been slugging at the job for more than eight hours. Here was the old spirit of pioneering, reborn. There was no clock watching, few took advantage of their "coffee break" to visit the commissary for cold drinks. They were all aware of construction's chief enemy, weather, and on this sunny day they were each and every one of them putting their backs into the task.

They are getting paid for their labor, and well; for work in these isolated areas demands a high wage. But there was something completely divorced from a monetary aspect in their attitude toward their job. Maybe it was the challenge of harnessing nature, or wrestling with limestone and conquering the chances of seepage by forcing concrete into pockets where shale could seriously weaken the structure. It could have been all of these things or only one, for each group of workers had their own special tasks, their own deadlines to meet.

There were 1,400 men on the job this summer, where eventually there will be about 48 in residence at the dam site. They can come in by road, built by the Manitoba Government and Hydro as fast as a mile a day when construction first started, or they can fly in and out as we did. There is no longer complete isolation on these projects. And yet for the most part, they and their families — many residing in trailer camps and some as squatters in tar-paper shacks, are content to stay on the job.

I was flown 275 miles due north as the guest of the Manitoba Government for they want the citizens of Canada to learn about this provincial government's contribution toward helping to solve the country's economic problems. Prospects of what this power development may mean to industry and even tourist trade, were enlightening.

Two hundred thousand tons of cement will be required before the job is finished, more than half for grouting purposes. This must be transported. With no rail service into the area, the CN is using trucks to handle freight. Heavier commodities such as steel for reinforcing is brought in by barge during the open months and stockpiled. Quantities of cement are stored in four huge steel silos. This all fans out like fingers from a palm providing jobs in many other categories than construction and eventually through this vast electrical potential, attracting new industries

A splendid school has been built where Indian and white child alike integrate harmoniously. There is a modern hospital where babies are born, alcoholics are sobered up, operations performed and broken bones set. There is a smart motel, and a shopping centre is also planned.

Woman collects Indian legends

Montreal (CP) — When Mrs. Otto Burger decides to collect Indian legends and artifacts, she does the logical thing — learn the language.

Mrs. Burger, a New Yorker who spends her summer vacations at Kempt Lake, 140 miles north of here, spent a long time learning the "elaborate and very complicated" Indian dialect of the Manowan reservation near her summer home.

The Indians—the Tetes de Boules—some of whom helped her with heavy work around her house, guided her over the more difficult grammatical stumbling blocks. She also used a dictionary of Cree which is "slightly different, but many words are the same."

There were about 300 Indians on the reserve when she first visited the area. "Now there are between 500 and 600. I know practically all of them."

Mrs. Burger says few tribal members know their own legends. "Only the old Indians. A good part are half-breeds who do not know the traditions and legends of the tribe. The young look down on this sort of thing. They want to be like the French Canadians."

A native of Switzerland, Mrs. Burger is writing the legends first in Indian, then translating them into English and French.

An amateur archeologist, she collects Indian artifacts, such as arrowheads, stone hammers, axes and spearheads, the oldest of which is said to be 3,000 years old.

"Sooner or later I'll probably give the collection to a museum, but first I want to collect more."

During her stay at Kempt Lake she raised 11 bear cubs, three of which are at the Goldilocks exhibit in the Garden of Wonders in Montreal's Lafontaine Park.

She bought them from the Indians when they were quite small.

A rabbit, duck, herring gull and fox are among the other animals she has cared for in the past and then given to a zoo or a family with children.

"I like life in the wilderness, nature, the way of living in the bush. It's a freer life. If you have no interests, of course, it might be very dull."

In Prince Edward Island there are 45 persons per square mile, but in the whole of Canada, excluding the Territories, there are less than eight persons per square mile.

Pedigree stock as status symbol

The most coveted status symbol in Canada today is not a second home, an ocean-going yacht or a chauffeur-driven limousine. It is a pedigreed stallion, bull, ram or boar — writes McKenzie Porter in The Financial Post. Proof is visible in the social glitter that envelops the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair. This annual Toronto event draws 250,000 visitors, and rates as the biggest indoor farm show in the world. At the Winter Fair in the Coliseum buildings at the Canadian National Exibition grounds, some of Canada's wealthiest men and women once again will exhibit their extraordinary attachment to the beasts of the field.

Of an evening, indeed, they wear toppers and tails, and mink and diamonds, to inspect horses, cattle, sheep and swine. Many of the animals are owned by men who have made their money in finance, industry or commerce and then have set themselves up as gentleman farmers. Whether all of them genuinely are interested in livestock, or whether some merely find it financially convenient to write off a superb country home as a money-losing farm, make debatable points.

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

The poppy, flower of remembrance

ON NOVEMBER 11 Canadians all across the country will stop and remember the men who were killed in war. There will be parades to memorials in some 2,000 cities, towns and villages. Then everybody will stand in silence as they remember the more than 104,000 brave Canadians who were killed.

That is why November 11 is called Remembrance Day.

On that day everybody wears a poppy, a reminder of the blood-red flower which grew in the fields where many of these men died. Much of the fighting was done in a place called Flanders. This was during the war of 1914-1918. Every spring, the soldiers fighting in the trenches noticed the red flowers blooming on the battlegrounds. And as more and more of their friends were killed, the soldiers noticed that the poppies bloomed over the graves.

When the war was over and when the soldiers came home, they still thought of all their friends who were buried in Flanders. Each time they thought of the graves, they thought of poppies which grew around the graves. The men who came back from the war decided that they would wear a poppy each year, to show they still remembered their friends.

November 11 was the day on which the fighting stopped in 1918. The men who had been in the war picked that day each year to wear a poppy. Other people who had not been in the war, but whose loved ones had been killed, also wanted to show that they remembered the dead; so they also wore a poppy.

— Perhaps you didn't know, personally, those men who gave their lives. But they knew you; they sought peace, for you and all posterity. . . . When you wear a poppy on Remembrance Day, it is but a small token of tribute to those who gave so much.

Cause for concern

REPORTS OF Hallowe'en violence from a number of communities across Canada are reason for concern. The reason is that they may be more than simply unrelated incidents. They seem to indicate a loss of respect for authority among many teen-agers.

In Kamloops, B.C., police were pelted with eggs and fireworks by a crowd of youths. In Strathroy, Ont., about 200 teen-agers spent hours lining the street jeering at police.

If such activities were limited to the one night a year they might be dismissed as unimportant. But almost every day there are reports of teen-age rowdiness. . . What's the reason?

Dr. John Rich, a psychiatrist and teacher at the University of Toronto and Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., suggests that youngsters of today — at least those living in cities and towns — are driven to join gangs because of insecurity.

He says, for example, that families tend to move from one place to another much more than in former years, with the result that children often live in a rootless vacuum, cut off from a traditional and stable community.

With grandparents living thousands of miles away, the family unit was growing smaller, cutting the sense of security even more. In many cases the teen-ager's only stability lay in a meaningless conformity to the gang.

Dr. Rich says girls get a better break than boys since they are exposed much more to the example set by their mothers. Boys were being short-changed because their fathers' role was diminishing.

"In a suburban community, nothing that we do is really vital. Chores on a farm are a matter of life and death, but it isn't really important to take out the garbage in our suburban homes," he says.

The implication is that youngsters should be given more meaningful challenges and real responsibility.

"We are all pretty smug about the liberty we give our teen-agers but it's a liberty limited by our own framework," Dr. Rich says. "Do we really respect his integrity and his individuality of beliefs when they are in total opposition to our own?"

It's a question that each parent must answer for himself.

Taxes throttle economic growth

ONE MATTER of immediate importance to the well-being of all Canadians, says The Financial Post, is getting new drive into the national economy. It is naive in the extreme for governmental officials to look at the problem of slow economic growth without, at the same time, attacking the great taxation mess. The ugly fact is that our tax system discourages economic growth. It punishes success. It destroys capital. It is one of the most offensive tax systems devised anywhere in the world.

These questions, continues The Post, should be asked soon and answered without bias: How suitable for economic growth are today's confiscatory income tax rates? How appropriate for progress is a tax system that heavily emphasizes income taxes rather than indirect, turnover taxes? Canada needs, above all else, a reduction in rates of income tax, both personal and corporate. It needs a tax system that stimulates enterprise, and which permits the accumulation of capital. Surely it is more than coincidence that the countries where the pace of business is disappointingly sluggish — Canada, Britain and the U.S. — should also be the ones that rely most heavily on share-the-wealth income taxes.

Started in a London pub

TWO HUNDRED YEARS ago a group of city gentlemen met in a London tavern to launch the world's first mutual life assurance office — the Society for Equitable Assurance on Lives and Survivorships, the forerunner of life assurance as we know it today.

It was on September 7, 1762, that the deed of settlement was executed creating the office, now called the Equitable Life Assurance Society.

Today, life assurance is counted among the essentials of Western culture — simply a method of financially safeguarding wives and families should the breadwinner die.

But during the 18th century, when the seeds of Britain's industrial revolution were being sown, conditions were very different. The death of the man of the house often meant poverty and misery for his dependents. Prosperous families suddenly found themselves homeless or dependent on the goodwill of relatives or friends. Social security was virtually unknown.

It was to meet such a situation that the Society for Equitable Assurances on Lives and Survivorships was created.

Life assurance of a kind has been known since the Middle Ages, but it was usually in the form of contracts in the nature of a wager or of schemes for mutual self help.

That modern life assurance originated in Britain, was largely due to one man — James Dodson. Dodson descended from a family of tailors, can be called the father of mutual life assurance, for in 1756 he published his "First Lecture on Assurance", setting out the principles on which a life assurance society would operate and how the premiums should be calculated.

THE LACHUTE WATCHMAN

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 4, 1887—

Grenville — The two-year-old son of David Williamson, merchant, died of a fractured skull, casued by a fall on a nail obtruding from a plank walk.

Mr. W. Weir, president of the Ville Marie Bank, was in town on Wednesday last.

A sneak thief helped himself to the contents of a clothes line belonging to Mr. T. Wilson one night this week. The detectives have found no clue.

We visited the site of the new Court House, and were kindly shown over the construction by Mayor Dunbar.

Matrimonial — On Thursday last, Mr. A. McGibbon of Lachute Mills was married to Miss Maggie Mason of Dalesville.

A supply of fresh oysters has arrived at L. P. P. Rodrigue's, near the C.P.R. Station. (Advt.)

Buckingham — One of our deserving citizens has struck a rich gold mine a few miles up the Lievre River.

Inventor Edison claims that his new Phonograph will do away with typewriters and stenographic secretaries. A letter can be talked into it, and the paper receiving the impression can be sent to another correspondent who, by running it through another phonograph, can hear the contents read off.

St. Andrews — The bazaar in aid of the Convent was a success. The voting for the most popular gentleman of the parish was between Mr. John Kelly, of Carillon, and Mr. Israel Sauvé, of St. Andrews.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 8, 1912 —

Rural Dean Ireland, of Buckingham, was in Lachute for a short visit.

Workmen are busy laying the 8-inch pipe along Main St. Nine hydrants have been received and will be installed immediately. The work is under the supervision of Mr. Robt. McArthur.

Messrs. J. A. McGibbon and H. J. Giles have paid the town secretary the sum of $3.55 — balance left from watering the street. They have also left the watering cart in charge of the corporation.

A "ghost parade" was held on Hallowe'en by the Recreation Club at St. Andrews, about 50 members being dressed up to represent shades of the illustrious dead.

At Council meeting the salary of Mr. J. McGillivray was increased from $500 to $600, owing to extra work entailed in the collection of water rates, etc.

Miss Winnie Riddell has left to enter the Montreal General Hospital to train for a nurse.

Mr. H. Slater, M.P.P., has left for Quebec to resume his parliamentary duties.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Nov. 11, 1937 —

Dr. E. W. Archibald has received a signal honor from abroad — the honorary degree of Doctor of Medicine having been conferred by the University of Paris. . . Dr. Archibald is associated here, having married a member of the Barron family.

A High School debate was the feature of a Hundred Club supper meeting. Centurion (Principal) Clifton Hall presided. Pat Wrath and George Leggett opposed David Morrison and George Powell as speakers. The judges were Mayor A. Rodrigue, Rev. W. B. Rosborough, J. R. Charron, R. McArthur and Dr. J. M. Drew.

Mr. Garnet Cheley, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has been transferred to Toronto.

Miss Edith Rosborough, a student at Stanstead Wesleyan College, has been elected by her colleagues as Chairman of Dramatics.

A storekeeper's ledger 100 years old, found at St. Eustache, lists rum at 1½d. a glass (or 6d. a pint); buckwheat 4s. a bushel; pork 6s. a 100 lbs.; shoes 4s; labor 2s. 6d. a day. . . . It appears that William Vart, who came from Newcastle-on-Tyne, conducted a mill and general store opposite the Roman Catholic Church in St. Eustache. Mr. Vart has several descendants in this town and district. . . For these records of 1836 we are indebted to Dr. J. H. Mason, one of his direct grandsons.

TOO FEW WHALES

Nanaimo, B.C. (CP) — Gordon Pike, a member of the scientific committee of the International Whale Commission, says whales will be extinct in the Antarctic in the next five to 15 years unless whaling methods change. If they continue to be caught at the present rate — particularly by the Russians and Japanese — there will be none for commercial use, he says.

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

MAKE LIFE IMPORTANT

"I couldn't care less," the man said.

He was talking about politics at the time. In his opinion, those of us who work ourselves into a lather about whether this country turns left or turns right are crazy. As he put it, "I've enough to do to paddle my own canoe."

This stand-offish attitude of his applied to many things. He couldn't care less, either, about who wins the Grey Cup. Or puts a man on the moon. "As long as I get three squares a day," says he, "I don't much care who spins the universe."

His favorite phrase is, "What does it matter?" He points out, with potent logic, that "all of us wind up with only six feet of earth, in any event."

Around his town he has a reputation as a philosopher. Among the no-goods, that is. They like what he says. It is comforting for them to think that nothing matters much, because they have no intention of doing anything much and consequently little hope of having anything much.

Well, it's a free country. They are entitled to feel this way. . . if they really do. I can't help feeling sorry for them. I suspect that down deep inside, they want very much to do things, to accomplish, to create. If one could suddenly pull their alibis out from under them, they might just manage a bit of distance yet. They might make their lives important, at least to themselves and to those near and dear to them. Even if they hooked themselves right into the current of life for only a day or two, and felt the light coming on inside, it would be worth something.

YOUR WEEKLY NEWSPAPER —

Editorial 'informed opinion'

(This is the fourth in a series of editorials explaining how a weekly newspaper functions.)

An editorial is, or should be, an informed opinion on matters of public interest.

The Lachute Watchman rarely deals editorially with world subjects except in their reaction upon this district. This is not because we or our readers are not interested in the Indo-China situation, for example, but first of all because it is practically impossible for us to be fully informed on these world problems, and secondly we deal exclusively with local news. We lack time for the research necessary for a discussion of world problems and an editorial not solidly based on information is a mere street-corner guess.

It is easy to write editorials criticizing policy or administration of public officials and bodies. Much harder is the task of putting forth constructive ideas. We try to refrain from the class of irresponsible critic, for no public good is served by that kind of editorial.

Our editorial columns are pledged to the support of all policies and movements which will advance the welfare of the people of this district, and of public efforts which this community supports.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Want to save money on your next car?

You can — hundreds of dollars in some cases. The secret? Take good care of your present car to make sure you get the highest possible trade-in. The little money you spend now will be made up many times over when you trade it in.

Here are some tips on maintaining your car's appearance:

Give it a good waxing at least twice a year. Pay special attention to areas under the doors, to the joint of the door and fender, seams around the trunk lid, and to the drain lines around the roof. These are the spots where rust is most likely to form. When you're waxing, remember the chrome work.

Have minor dents and scratches repaired immediately. Have rust spots touched up before they spread or get deeper. If your car's been through a snowy winter, have the underside cleaned in the spring to get rid of road salt.

Protect the upholstery with seat covers. You'd be amazed what a difference good upholstery makes when trade-in time comes!

Rubber floor mats are a good idea, too. They prevent wear of the carpeting. Most important spot: in front of the driver's seat. Get the kind with a waffle-weave pattern to catch dirt and pebbles and keep them from being ground into the carpet.

Finally, never neglect lubrication. Your favorite service station will watch this for you. Good mechanical condition can give trade-in value a real boost.

"WINTERIZE" YOUR MEDICINE CABINET NOW!

Even more important than getting your house ready for winter, is the need to prepare your medicine cabinet for the coming cold months. Old or unlabeled medicines must be discarded. Fever thermometers, heating pads and vaporizers should be in working condition.

Let us help you get ready for winter. We have complete stocks of cold weather health-aids.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

The world remembers!

Canada's Commonwealth Air Forces' Memorial forms a symbolic background as an RCAF trumpeter sounds the "Last Post" for the dead of two world wars, honored in Canada and the Free World on Nov. 11. This year, the Air Force also marks the tenth anniversary of its contribution of an Air Division to the forces of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a constant reminder of the need to maintain strength to preserve peace. The Commonwealth Memorial, on Ottawa's Green Island at the junction of Ottawa and Rideau Rivers, commemorates the 798 men and women who died in Canada and neighbouring lands and waters while serving with the Air Forces of the Commonwealth from 1939 to 1945, and who have no known graves.

Discourage youth from smoking

An attempt to impress young people with the high cost of smoking, apart from its possible harmful effects upon their health, is being made by the Danish Cancer Society.

A recent radio program asks young Danes: "Why Smoke? Why spend all your hard-earned money at the tobacconist's when there are so many other things you would like to use it for?" Interviews of several young people follow on why they do or do not smoke.

"I think it's smart," replies one, "and all my friends do it, so I think I'll do it as well."

"I don't smoke because I want to save," replies another. "I would rather have a driving license when I'm 18."

"I smoke because I think it looks nice," says a young girl. "Don't you know that cigarette smoking endangers your health?" she is asked. "Yes," she replies, "but you can't really do without it when once you've begun."

"Think how much it costs to smoke!" the announcer urges. "For 20 cigarettes a day you can get a record player in two months. For ten cigarettes a day you can get a tape-recorder in a year. A professional-type camera: one packet a day for seven months. Five cigarettes a day for two months is the same as a new dress."

Blueprint for a Good Speech

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The ability to speak fluently in public is a great asset for a boy or a girl. Oral compositions are part of school training. The family circle is a good audience for the beginner struggling to express himself. Parents can help their children if they have a clear idea of what goes into the preparation and delivery of an address.

A very successful public speaker once gave this advice to would-be orators: "There are five directions to follow in the making of any good speech; have something to say, forget yourself, look at your audience, make your speech, and then sit down. Test any effective speech by these five rules, and it is altogether likely that the speaker is following them."

Perhaps the advice "have something to say" seems a little strange. But a speaker must have something to say which is of vital interest if he is to interest others. He must speak on a subject on which he has made sufficient preparation and done enough thinking that his material will hold the interest of his listeners. Colorful illustrations which are well chosen and an occasional striking, accurate, statistical fact in terms the hearers can visualize, add to a speech. A speaker should choose the most interesting and essential pieces of information about a topic, and never attempt to say all he knows at one time. A dictionary should be consulted in case of doubt about the exact meaning or pronunciation of a word.

Poise and self-confidence are two characteristics of a good speaker who is able to forget himself. Good grooming and suitable clothes are a great asset. An audience, even a school class, takes a moment or two to thoroughly examine a speaker's appearance and decide whether or not the total effect is pleasing.

Successful speakers are those who are keenly aware of those who are listening to them. The advice to "look at your audience" is sound. Look not at one person or at one section of the audience but at the audience as a whole.

It is worthwhile to take a minute or two at the first of a speech to make a friendly, happy contact by telling a story. An audience falls in love with a speaker who can poke a little fun at himself because he seems human and approachable.

Once introductory remarks are over, without apology or delay, plunge right into the speech. State clearly and concisely what is to be said, avoiding roundabout expressions like "it seems to me" or annoying hesitating "err-r-r's". Do not worry about an occasional pause. Likely the audience will be glad of the chance to catch up with the thought! Most speakers go much too fast.

Be sure that everyone can hear what is being said. There is a tendency to pitch one's voice too high in the excitement of making a speech. The "middle register" is most restful, with some variety in pitch and rate of speaking.

The importance of clear enunciation and distinct articulation cannot be overstressed. Mrs. Macy, the famous teacher of Helen Keller, was a much sought-after speaker. She had learned the vital importance of giving each word its full value. If a few natural gestures come easily, use them. But do not use an artifical motion or the same gesture over and over.

The final piece of advice to "sit down" once the speech is completed may seem foolish. But countless good speeches have been ruined by speakers who failed to do just that. Even after they have finished their remarks they have gone on and on, past several excellent stopping places, until their audience was weary and bored.

Every speaker should find out the exact length of speech which is wanted by the group to whom he is speaking. Then keep well within that time limit. It is better to be too brief than too long! This is an essential part in the blueprint for a good speech.

Canada's most famous apples

(Consumer Section)

Travel across Canada from Atlantic to Pacific, and in almost any market you pick up an apple chances are it will be a McIntosh. It is considered to be Canada's greatest commercial apple — a favorite for growers and consumers alike. It yields well, stores well, has an excellent taste and beautiful red color — what more could one ask of an apple?

If its discoverer, John McIntosh, were alive today he'd probably be amazed to see how it has survived the competition from other varieties over the years and how it still outpaces some of its famous progency — Courtland, Joyce and Melba.

A few weeks ago on the farm at Dundela, Dundas County in Ontario, a plaque was erected to commemorate John McIntosh, the discoverer of the famous McIntosh apple. The tree was discovered as a seedling on his farm over 150 years ago. It enjoyed no more than local reputation until around 1900 when it became a well established variety in eastern Canada. Since then it has become one of the leading varieties in North America. Today with improved storage methods, fortunately we can enjoy this apple from fall right through to spring.

The Consumer Section has some tips on storing apples at home which they pass on to you: -

Apples in bushel baskets or boxes are a good buy for a family if they have adequate storage facilities. Apples are ideally stored at 33°F. but will keep for a fair length of time in a basement cool room of around 40°F.

Apples like a cool, humid temperature so, to protect them from drying out, wrap the box or basket with perforated plastic.

Apples may also be repacked in perforated plastic bags and stored in a cool room.

Apples Sold by Grade

You may buy apples by the basket, bushel, box or plastic bag. Grades are Canada Extra Fancy, Canada Fancy or Canada "C" grade. Important qualities of Canada Fancy grade, the grade most readily available, are that the apples must be mature, handpicked, clean, smooth, fairly well formed, sound and free from disease or injury. They must have the amount of color specified for the variety and must be the required size (minimum diameter of 2½").

Embroidered cocktail dress

Arnel sharkskin is given a custom-designed look by tri-color "Fleurs Sauvages" embroidery in the cocktail-sundress designed by Vali of Josef Inc. for resort and summer 1963. The crisp, new sharkskin dress packs without crushing, resists soiling, washes easily with minimum pressing, for carefree days under sunny skies.

Oven-fried fish steaks

Crispy on the outside, tender on the inside — to paraphrase an old song — because they're "oven-fried". Frying is one of the most popular cooking methods for fish, and flavorful salmon steaks from British Columbia were never more tender and tasty than they are when the oven takes over the "frying" chores. The end product looks like breaded fried steaks but there's a vast difference. With the oven method, there's less absorption of fat and the fish is flaky and moist. Since the heat is better controlled by this "Spencer Method" or oven-frying technique, the cook can be assured the finished dish won't be overcooked — an important consideration where fish is concerned. Oven-Fried Steaks require only a simple garnish of lemon, although your family might like tartar or dill pickle sauce as an accompaniment.

"Oven-Fried" Steaks

4 B.C. salmon steaks, 1 cup milk, 2 teaspoons salt, dash pepper, ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs, ¼ cup melted butter or other liquid fat.

Combine salt, pepper and milk in a shallow pan. Spread bread crumbs on a piece of foil or waxed paper. Dip steaks first in milk, then in crumbs. Place in a shallow greased baking dish. Drizzle butter over steaks. Bake in a very hot oven preheated to 500 degrees F., until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork, about ten to twelve minutes, depending on thickness of fish. (Allow about 10 minutes per inch thickness of fresh fish; 15 to 20 for frozen). Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Let's have a teen-age party

Let's have a party!

First of all, talk over the idea between teen-agers and parents. Let the parents know when you would like to have the party, and make certain that the date you choose does not interfere with any of their plans. They will appreciate this, and will be more anxious to help with your plans.

Be careful, too, not to invite too many to the party. Smaller parties are usually more fun, and provide more room for dancing or games. Don't forget the record player and a stack of dance records. Incidentally, if you want the party to be a real success, invite someone who plays the piano or the guitar. Or perhaps a fellow or girl in your crowd is expert in leading a sing-song. This is always fun.

As for refreshments, keep them plain — and plentiful. Dips and other serve-yourself items are always popular, especially when served with chilled soft drinks.

Make sure that everyone you invite to the party knows each other, and all have the same interests. This is one important way of assuring that your party will be enjoyed by all. Also, assemble a clean-up squad, even before the party begins. You'll be surprised how quickly everyone will help — and your parents will appreciate having their home returned to them in good condition.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women who sew can have a heyday selecting fabrics from the wonderfully varied collection available for the fall and winter months.

In wools, brushed surfaces are rich and varied with mohair, fibrene and other animal fibres producing plush and shaggy effects. Hard-surface worsteds and classic checks in houndstooth and glen patterns are available, and the tartan revival is expected to result in one of the biggest seasons to date.

Many tweeds, which are being used more and more for evening and cocktail wear, sparkle with multi-colored and metallic effects. Knits are appearing in endless variety, with bouclé, soufflé, jacquard, damask and even tweed effects, while plain cotton knits continue to be popular for children's wear.

Paisley Favored

Flat-surface conversational patterns that resemble bright crayon-colored cutouts are the big news in prints. Animals, toys, fruits and the like appear in children's print at all price levels.

Rayons, available this season in a wider and more attractive array of colors, appeal to a wider age group, as do synthetic fabrics, particluarly light-weight blends, which impart a wool look and cotton feeling.

Sheers such as organdy and chiffon are both flat and crinkled, bright and pastel, and are patterned as well as colored. Motifs have no definite direction, and the over-all paisley stands out as a definite favorite for silk print designs.

To achieve the maximum of elegance in simply styled evening wear, elaborate brocades, matelasses, jacquards, and silks, many of these having an Oriental opulence, are available.

Tans Fading

That deep, golden glowing tan which looked terrific with light summer colors usually begins to look terrible with fall's blacks, browns, greys and wine reds.

But unfortunately, it is impossible to step out of your skin in the same way you step out of your shorts, and getting rid of a tan takes time.

Tina Case Breckenridge of the Richard Hudnut Co., however, recommends some emergency measures which will hasten the changing of skin color back to soft pale delicate-looking tones.

A very light makeup base underlying a thin covering of a base matching your own skin color produces light overtones without making you look clown-faced, she says. Pearlized face powders are also lighter than ordinary powders.

Tri-weekly use of cleansing grains will hasten the shedding of old tanned skin, and liberal use of ice-cold skin freshener or astringent will eliminate any danger of a sallow look.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Remembrance Day 1962! What is there to remember this day? During the two minutes' silence what vagrant thoughts go through a nation's mind? What do YOU remember? More important, HOW do you remember?

If you are like most Canadians who have been through a war, you probably go back 20 or 45 years ago. You try to recreate events. What you don't remember you imagine. Then, year after year, the fact and fantasy merge until there is no separation.

It is rather difficult to remember all the past with so much sabre-rattling going on in the world today. But, those who died with honor to their country and their race, deserve to be, at least, remembered once a year. They believed in freedom, and that freedom was worth fighting and dying for. They believed that all men were brothers regardless of color, race or creed. They are Canada's proud heroes, her martyrs, her splendid dead. They shed their puissant blood on forlorn seas, dreary deserts, forbidding mountains, thirsty plains, and in the frigid skies. It is to us to prove that all was not in vain.

In addition to pausing for two minutes' silence to honor the memory of Canada's 104,000 dead, each of us can participate in a second form of Remembrance. We can contribute to the poppy campaign, which makes possible year-round assistance to those who are still victims of war. Every day is Remembrance Day for the handicapped veterans, war widows and orphans. The war is still very close to them.

We all tend to forget anniversaries, but Poppy Day is one we should never forget. Through this poppy campaign, the Canadian Legion supplies direct assistance, help and personal service to the needy.

Tonight the door to door canvassing for the 1962 poppy drive gets underway. BUY A POPPY! WEAR A POPPY! REMEMBER THE DEAD! HELP THE LIVING!

For all veterans and Legionnaires, the week-end schedule is as follows:-

Saturday — 7 p.m. Remembrance Dinner at the Legion Hall, followed by a social evening.

Sunday — 10.15 a.m. Fall in for Church Parade to Ste. Anastasie.

1.30 p.m. Fall in at Legion Hall for Remembrance parade and cenotaph ceremonies.

At a time like this the eyes of the community are on the Legion. Let's have a good turnout for all parades.

For the cenotaph ceremonies, the citizens of Lachute and area are cordially invited to attend, to pay a commemorative tribute to those who gave their lives in freedom's cause.

Wreaths will be laid at the foot of the cenotaph in honor of Canada's (and your) war dead, by His Honor the Mayor representing Lachute, and by various organizations. Let as many citizens as possible join with town officials, distinguished personages, local clergy and local organizations, along with the Canadian Legion at the "Scattering of the Ashes" ceremony in honor and remembrance of those who gave their all for us.

Mrs. Willis Seale spent Saturday in Montreal visiting friends.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Miss Lillian Emmett, of Montreal, in the passing of her mother, Mrs. Emmett, a summer resident of this community for the past 30 years, had made many friends in the area, and will be missed by many.

Mr. and Mrs. James Robertson, of Montreal, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hillier.

HOME-TOWN TEAMS

The good old days when you could run a hockey team for a season with about $50 are over, and we might as well admit it. You can't turn out a winner today with each man buying his own stick and helping to clear the snow off the frog pond.

ELECTRICITY and PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

THE NEED

Public ownership of the electricity generating and distributing system is an economic necessity.

Quebec needs —

★ Cheap power for industrial development;
★ Greater direct investment in industrial expansion;
★ Lower consumer power rates in many areas;
★ New jobs in new industries for a growing population.

A responsible government must act to achieve these objectives. The figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show Quebec has lagged behind Ontario in both industrial development and her market share of manufactured goods. Statistics also show that the average rate for electricity to domestic consumers is higher in Quebec than in Ontario, and higher than the national average.

THE PROBLEM

The demands for cheaper power by industry and consumer have gone beyond the capabilities of the private companies, no matter how efficient they are — and several are efficient. Why?

★ A hodgepodge sytem of distribution;
★ Inability to earn a legitimate return on investment;
★ Payment of Federal corporate taxes;
★ Lack of capital to modernize.

Private companies cannot sell electricity to industry and consumers at low rates and, at the same time, pay corporate taxes and earn a fair return to shareholders. The 15 million dollars paid in Federal taxes ought to be spent in the province for the benefit of industrial and domestic consumers. The 20 million paid in dividends can be used to meet the need for cheaper power.

In the past 18 months, the private companies, through no fault of their own, could not supply the demands for stable, heavy loads of cheap electricity of a new zinc smelter at Valleyfield, a new stainless steel mill near Sorel and a new newsprint mill at Chandler in Gaspe. All three are now served by Quebec Hydro.

THE SOLUTION

The future of Quebec demands that the problem be solved. New jobs are needed. A larger home market for our goods and services is essential. How can this be done?

★ Industrialization;
★ A single integrated electricity system;
★ Greater buying power through higher employment.

Only through public ownership of the electricity system can these objectives be realized. Quebec Hydro can finance modernization and expansion at reasonable rates of interest. The savings in Federal taxation and the payment of dividends can be employed in lowering power rates.

AN UNDERTAKING

Fair play demands that public ownership of our power facilities must be achieved in a climate of good faith and honesty. There must be—

★ Fair treatment of shareholders;
★ Recourse to the courts;
★ Protection of employee rights and jobs.

The Liberal Government has made a solemn undertaking to protect public, shareholder and employee interests. This is a fair undertaking by an honest, straightforward government. The Liberal Party has established a record of keeping its word.

Youngsters exposed to deadliest of poisons

Shortly after his first birthday a well-contented child became whiny and irritable. Although concerned, his parents attributed the behavior change to normal teething, for the youngster chewed on everything — his bed, chairs, tables and window sills. Several months later, he grew worse. He refused to eat, was constipated, vomited periodically and became so lethargic that his mother frequently found him asleep on the floor.

Really alarmed by this time, his parents took him to a doctor, but too late. Within 22 hours he lapsed into a coma and died. An autopsy showed that his rib bones, liver, kidneys and brain were infected with high concentrations of lead which had destroyed cells, causing death.

His grieving parents were bewildered about where he had obtained the lead. But doctors easily reconstructed the story after having the paint on the child's bed chemically analyzed. It contained 47% lead and was ordinary house paint, the kind used on exteriors.

Day after day for probably six months the child had nibbled off and swallowed paint chips with their lethal content of lead. The lead accumulated in his body, gradually bringing on the fatal poisoning.

Every year hundreds of cases of lead intoxication are reported and the circumstances are nearly always the same.

Hideous Affliction

Lead poisoning, doctors agree, is one of the most hideous of childhood afflictions. One in three children who are poisoned by lead die. And survival is sometimes equally tragic, for lead destroys brain cells, which can never be regenerated, leaving the child with a lifelong nervous disorder or in a moronic state.

A child is poisoned usually from eating dried lead paint on window sills, peeling walls and repainted toys or furniture.

No Antidote

Since there is no really effective "antidote" for lead poisoning, a parent must be absolutely sure that his child is not exposed to lead.

Give the child safe articles to chew, such as hard crusts of bread, teething rings, toys designed for sucking.

If the child cannot be broken of the habit of chewing on painted surfaces, take him to a physician who can test his urine for lead content. Never wait for lead-poisoning symptoms to show.

Dangerous Flakes

Do not let the child eat paint flakes from peeling walls. Even tiny particles, formed by coat after coat of lead paint, can be dangerous. If a house was painted before occupancy, remove all loose, cracked or flaking paint and plaster from the walls and ceiling. If possible, repaint with an interior paint that contains not more than 1% lead. The label on the can will state the percentage of lead content; however, most interior paints are safe.

Never use exterior house paint on indoor walls, woodwork or toys or furniture. These paints contain as high as 70% lead.

Vincent Drouin, M.P., raises question on g'vt herd testing

Federal veterinarians withdrawn from brucellosis and Tb testing program

Herd testing for tuberculosis and brucellosis in Canadian cattle has, with some exceptions, been turned over by the federal Health of Animals Division to veterinarians in private practice.

Attributing this measure to the government's austerity policy, Vincent Drouin, M.P. for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, raised a question in the Commons last week. He wanted to know how many cattle, and how many farmers, would be affected by the measure in this constituency.

Mr. Louis-Joseph Pigeon, deputy for Joliette - L'Assomption - Montcalm, as deputy minister of Agriculture, replied and elaborated on the new measure. Tb accredited herds affected in this area number 62, while there are 31 herds tested for brucellosis. While the change would result in economy to some extent, its main purpose, said Mr. Pigeon, was to release personnel for more pressing duties.

In a recent circular issued by the Department of Agriculture, Dr. Kenneth Wells, Veterinary Director General, stated that the two programs concerned are the Tuberculosis Accredited Herd Plan and the Brucellosis-Free Listed Herd Policy. They were designed primarily to assist individual herd owners to eliminate bovine tuberculosis and brucellosis and to provide a source of cattle free from these diseases.

Now that tuberculosis has been virtually eliminated, the Accredited Herd Plan has outlived its usefulness, said Dr. Wells.

The same applies to the brucellosis-free listed herds program, now that approximately 65 percent of Canada's cattle population has come under the Brucellosis Control Area Program and the majority of the areas concerned have qualified as brucellosis certified.

However, brucellosis-free listed herds located where brucellosis certified area status has not yet been reached, will continue to be tested annually by the full-time divisional officers at no cost to the herd owner.

Provision was made at the outset for the use of accredited veterinarians to conduct the tests for these diseases, said Dr. Wells, and no new regulations are needed.

Those owners wishing to continue under the herd testing programs should approach their practitioners. If reactors are discovered by these veterinarians they must immediately report to the Department so that official action can be taken.

The Division's officers will also conduct tests when infection has been uncovered in a herd as a result of a screening program, or where an accredited herd certificate or brucellosis-free listed herd certificate is to be issued for the first time.

Dr. Wells added that his division will continue to maintain a register of listed and accredited herd owners. He pointed out too that the change in operation will not in any way affect the movement of cattle for export.

Don't forget that when the Unions called strikes in order to gain wage increases for the workers, the Union Nationale sent the Provincial Police to beat them and break the strike. (And Mr. Johnson comes to us with a Minimum Wage pledge.)

Don't forget the maltreatment of workers at Murdockville, Asbestos, Louiseville, etc, by Provincial Police under the Union Nationale regime (workers fighting for an increase in pay).

Check fallout

Vancouver (CP) — Civil Defence officials have placed canisters near 16 major Canadian cities to pinpoint the centre of a nuclear explosion and plot the probable fallout pattern.

Maj. J. R. Stafford, general staff officer at British Columbia Army headquarters, says that in Vancouver's case the canisters are at Aldergrove, Saturna Island and Nanaimo, all within a 50-mile radius of the city.

The indicators are chemical blocks placed inside foot-high canisters which are situated on top of high buildings. Each container has a hole pointing east, north, west and south.

The heat of a nuclear explosion would burn a hole into the block and instruments would measure the density of the fallout. At the same time the canisters would provide a "fix" on the nuclear blast, pinpointing the centre.

Woollen textile view and outlook

Canadian wool cloth industry expects that by the end of this year figures will show a better situation than during the first half, perhaps about the same as in 1961. During July and August, since the temporary tariff surcharges came into effect, imports from the U.K. have decreased and domestic shipments have increased. This trend should continue.

Long-term prospects are less clear and depend to a large extent on developments in international trade. When and if Britain joins the European Common Market, there will have to be reconsideration of the preferential tariff treatment which British cloths are now accorded by Canada. Also, there are indications of international arrangements, similar to those now applying to cotton textiles, to bring wool cloth trade under better control.

Craftsmen in stained glass

Southampton, Ont. (CP) — The historic art of designing and producing stained glass windows is practised by Roland Aldous and James Meikle in a cluttered studio in this Lake Huron town, 20 miles south-west of Owen Sound.

Modern techniques have had little effect on this art. Most of their tools have been handed down, and some of the diamond-edged cutters are more than a century old.

Every window is different, and they have hundreds of designs, many created by Mr. Meikle's father.

They first make a small sketch, in colors, and a full-sized pencil drawing follows. Then the colored glass is selected, cut and shaded, and fastened to a plate glass with beeswax.

After a final appraisal, the sections of colored glass are fired at 1,200 degrees in an electric kiln. They are joined by cames, or grooved lead strips, and the window is ready.

The glass of varying shades is known as antique glass, with an irregular surface and containing many tiny bubbles. Some comes from the United States, but the best still comes from England, France and Belgium.

Mr. Aldous opened the studio here eight years ago, and was joined by Mr. Meikle four years later. They had been apprentices together years earlier.

COTTINGHAM (U.N.) RETURNED IN 3-WAY ELECTION CONTEST

For fifth consecutive mandate as M.P.P. for Argenteuil County

Argenteuil has emphatically reaffirmed its Union Nationale loyalities in the provincial voting today (Wednesday) by returning W. M. "Bill" Cottingham as its M.P.P. with a resounding majority of votes against his split opposition — Rodrigue Durocher, official Liberal candidate, and Gaetan Paquette, Ind. Liberal.

Mr. Cottingham returns to Quebec with the popular vote of the Argenteuil electorate — not without a keen fight, however, for he has conducted an energetic campaign throughout the County, challenged in every area by an equally determined appeal by Mr. Durocher, and by Mr. Paquette's somewhat limited campaigning.

Over the television CBM Montreal "Election Central", Argenteuil was one of the first constituencies to be reported among preliminary trends, at 7 p.m.; and only half an hour later at 7.30 p.m. it was reported Mr. Cottingham's election was conceded.

W. M. COTTINGHAM, re-elected for his fifth mandate

Mr. Cottingham was first elected to the Provincial Parliament in 1948, when he polled a 433-vote majority against the late Hon. Georges-E. Dansereau, then Minister of Roads in the Liberal cabinet.

He was re-elected in the 1952 contest, when he secured a majority of 4,352 votes over Bernard Gosselin. Two years later, in June 1954, he and the County at large were honored by his appointment as Quebec Minister of Mines in the Duplessis government.

In 1956 Mr. Cottingham was again opposed by Mr. Gosselin, but once again he won a decisive victory, racking up a majority of 1,427 votes.

In the June 1960 election he polled a 2,951-vote majority against the Liberal standard-bearer, Rodrigue Durocher, in a straight two-way contest. There was a high turnout of 89.8% of eligible voters in the constituency for that election.

The (unofficial) count from Argenteuil County polls, which became available at 9.30 p.m. Wednesday, is given on this page. Notary Jacques Beaudoin, of Lachute, was the District Returning Officer, to whom results were reported from the individual polling divisions soon after closing time, which was 6.30 p.m. The summary at our press deadline gives the following totals:

Cottingham (U.N.)	7,922
Durocher (Lib.)	5,368
Paquette (Ind.)	1,288

Mr. Cottingham's majority over his principal opponent, Rodrigue Durocher, was a formidable 2,554 votes. This, against two opponents, compares with Mr. Cottingham's 2,951 majority in 1960 — then against only one opponent.

The total number of electors exercising their franchise in Argenteuil was 14,578 out of 17,021 eligible to vote. This is in keeping with the high vote throughout the province.

Gaetan Paquette, the Liberal Independent contender, forfeited his $200 deposit. Mr. Durocher and Mr. Paquette together polled 6,656 votes. Mr. Cottingham, scoring majorities in most of the polls with four or five exceptions, polled 7,922.

Liberals make appreciable gains government returned to power

Canadian Press declared the Lesage government re-elected at an early hour, 8.05 p.m.

Latest reports at The Watchman's delayed press time, show the Liberals with 63 seats in the province — a gain of 9, and the Union Nationale with 31, a loss of 9. . . These figures, however, were not final. The remaining seat was won by an Independent candidate.

In the 95-seat Legislative Assembly on its dissolution, the Liberals held 54 seats, Union-Nationale 40, and Independents 1.

New nominations for centre ward

The resignation of Notary Simon Valois as town councillor (to which office he was elected by acclamation for Seat 2, centre ward, on October 26) was accepted by the Council at its meeting last week, with one dissenting vote.

Motion for the acceptance of the resignation was made by Ald. N. Lepage, seconded by Ald. R. Urbain, and in favor were Aldermen Middleton, Thibodeau, O. Desjardins and Ed McFaul.

Ald. François Charlebois, of contrary opinion, felt that Notary Valois would sit at the next Council meeting if his resignation was not accepted. However, Mayor Dave Campbell thought it was useless to reject the resignation; if a councillor is absent from three consecutive statutory meetings, he becomes automatically disqualified. And a refusal to accept this resignation would only delay the procedure of filling the vacancy.

Mayor Campbell finally decreed that nominations for the seat be called for November 26, with election contest if necessary on December 3.

Blazing barn at town outskirts, Sunday spectacle

A Sunday afternoon fire resulted in an estimated $10,000 loss to Allan Hammond, well-known Bethany Road farmer, when flames demolished a barn across the highway from the Golf Club. There was little insurance to cover the loss of hay, straw and farm machinery.

Smoke was noticed seeping from the barn by a passing motorist, who reported the fire to a nearby service station attendant. Mr. Hammond was notified and the fire department was summoned at 4.30 p.m.; by this time, dense smoke was seen by several firemen leaving their homes. It is reported that the flames broke out through the roof of the barn within a minute after the fire was first noticed, and that the barn was a mass of flames when the fire alarm was sounded seconds later.

A line of hose was laid from a nearby hydrant to the building, which was cooled down for a short time and then allowed to burn itself out.

The fire is believed to have been started by two unidentified youths who were seen near the barn some time prior to the outbreak.

Lock at Carillon applies new principle, first of its kind installed in Canada

A news release from Hydro Quebec stated last week that a new type of navigation lock is "now operational" at the Carillon Dam.

A Lachute boatsman, Roger Legault, intent that a local craft should be the first to make the passage into the newly-formed lake, entered the lock with his cruiser on November 6. His craft was actually the first in the lock; however, he found that the gate was not yet "operational" as stated, and he could not enter the higher level.

During the long period of transition, pleasure craft up to 30 feet have been lifted out of the river by derrick, then transported by road and lowered into the water at the other side of the Carillon works.

The lock, the first of its kind in Canada, is the application of a new technique developed in France. Located on the north bank of the river between the power house and a 16,000-foot earth dyke, the lock bridges the 65-foot difference between the upstream level of the Carillon dam and its tailrace.

It replaces the previous seven-lock system which was required to bypass the Long Sault and Carillon rapids between Lake of Two Mountains and Grenville. The old locks were connected by a series of canals six miles in length. Pleasure craft will be able to transit the lock in less than 20 minutes, saving about two hours over the old system.

Powered by electricity, the new lock breaks away from traditional concepts of lock design and construction. Equipped with a false floor, it contains a series of vertical walls to create an even flow of water within the lock chamber itself. The result is elimination of severe turbulence which sometimes creates dangerous conditions for small craft in locks.

The lock will serve pleasure craft almost exclusively, since commercial vessels rarely navigate the Ottawa River.

Town administers 4-municipality sales tax

The Department of Municipal Affairs has notified Lachute Town to hold itself responsible for collection of the sales tax in the "trading area" (the municipalities of Lachute, Ayersville, Brownsburg and St. Jerusalem), and for redistribution of the revenue to these four centres.

Lachute will retain 60 percent of the total proceeds, the remaining 40 percent to be divided as follows: Ayersville (2,909 pop.) 13.37%; Brownsburg (3,544 pop.) 16.29%; St. Jerusalem (2,249 pop.) 10.34%.

Cheques to the participating municipalities are to be remitted each month, the duties of collection and redistribution falling upon the administrative staff at Lachute city hall.

MAYOR D. CAMPBELL AT THE HELM —

Bouquets, felicitations as new Council meets

Mayor-elect Dave Campbell presided last week at his first Council session. Mr. Campbell was given an acclamation for the civic office on October 26.

Expressing his sentiments in both English and French, Mayor Campbell first thanked the population for the honor conferred upon him, and congratulated the newly elected aldermen around the Council table.

"I realize it is a serious responsibility to direct the destinies of a town council", he declared, "but with God's help, and the co-operation of councillors and residents, I hope to steer our municipal affairs on the right course."

Later in the meeting, one of the new aldermen, J.-Orphir Desjardins, took occasion to congratulate the retiring mayor on his achievements. "Mr. Legault has cost us more money than other mayors, but we must give him credit for having fulfilled an important need, the construction of our filtration plant. He has left us a legacy of debt," he said, in humorous vein, "but the town at last has its filtration plant."

Mr. Campbell seconded these remarks, and added his congratulations to the retiring mayor and to all the councillors who had worked for the materialization of this project.

M.P. named to House committees

Vincent Drouin, M.P. for this constituency, has been invited by the Hon. Lester B. Pearson, leader of the Liberal party, to sit on two parliamentary committees, namely, Public Printing and Agriculture-Colonization.

Committees of the House of Commons are formed of representatives of each of the four political parties. They are required to study specific legislation and government allowances to the Departments concerned.

Mr. Drouin also serves on committees of the Liberal caucus.

Remembrance Day rites held with reverence and solemnity

There was a large turnout of citizens to join with the Argenteuil Legion and patriotic groups in the cenotaph ceremonies last Sunday — a mild, sunny afternoon marking the first time in many years that fine weather has favored this occasion.

The parade from the Legion Hall to the Memorial Park included the customary organizations, and a few more. In order, they were — the Harrington-Kilmar Pipe Band; Legion Branch 70 and Auxiliary, with their color parties; Artillery Field Battery 131 with field gun and crew; the Highland Cadet Unit; Ayersville Air Cadet Squadron; representatives of the Fire Department; Boy Scouts and Cubs, with their colors; Girl Guides, and the Catholic Girl Guides. The parade was efficiently marshalled by Sgt. Bob St. Laurent.

These various groups having lined up around the cenotaph, Legion President George Kirby took over the proceedings. The Rev. James Armour pronounced the Invocation and Dedication. A bugler sounded Last Post and the flags were reverently dipped. A salvo was fired from the field gun, and the pipers played a dirge while the crowd bowed in silence. On the sounding of Reveille and re-firing of the gun, the Rev. Mr. Armour performed the ceremony of scattering of the ashes. The Hon. W. M. Cottingham was called upon and briefly addressed the gathering.

Cde. Ernest Evans, 1st vice-president of Legion 70, then conducted the depositing of wreaths, led by Mayor (Cde.) Dave Campbell on behalf of the town corporation. Then followed the Legion and Auxiliary, and a number of clubs and individual families. The great majority of wreaths however were laid beforehand, and Cde. Evans read the long list of those who had subscribed to this annual Vetcraft effort.

The parade then reformed and marched to the Legion Hall for dismissal — the entire observance having fittingly connoted the reverence of living comrades, and fellow Canadians, for the dead of two world wars. The Legion deserves public recognition for efficiently carrying on this tradition in the Lachute community.

Legion life membership given to 'Bill' Blakely

The highlight of the Canadian Legion's Armistice dinner, on Saturday, November 10, was the presentation of life membership in the Legion to Cde. William "Bill" Blakely.

Cde. Blakely was presented by Cde. R. A. Giles, who spiced his introduction with humorous anecdotes about his long and friendly relationship with Cde "Bill". A suitable scroll extolling the honored member, was read and presented along with the life membership and pin, and a gift from the Ladies' Auxiliary of Branch 70.

As Cde. Blakely was escorted to his seat thunderous applause shook the Memorial Hall, as 125 members and guests voiced their warm approval.

The community joins with a host of friends and Legionnaires everywhere in congratulating Cde. Bill Blakely on receiving this long merited award. To quote from the scroll, it is hoped "that as Cde. Blakely sails ahead on the ship of life he may be blessed with good health, fair winds, favorable currents, good companions and such other amenities that a solid citizen, a true Legionnaire and a staunch friend may expect."

(See report of Armistice Supper in regular Legion column.)

A & P manager goes to St. Jerome supermarket

Ken Raymond, who has served at the A & P store here as manager for almost four years, has received a promotion to the management of the new A & P Supermarket at St. Jerome. He left Wednesday for two weeks' briefing at Pointe Claire, and will take over his new duties immediately afterwards. Ken expects to retain his home in Lachute until the spring. He will be succeeded here by George Rowe, who has been assistant manager at the local store.

Mr. Raymond takes this opportunity to thank his many customers for their business, and for the cordial relations he has enjoyed since serving as manager in Lachute. . . Friends in turn wish him success. Among these are fellow members of the Lions Club, in which Ken has been a valued and active participant.

Old-timers' night at Lions Club; guests reminisce over early scenes

One of the most rewarding programs of the Lions Club so far this season brought together the members and many old-time citizens as guests, to see views of Old Lachute shown by Dr. G. R. Rigby, whose descriptions portrayed the earliest settlement and subsequent growth of this town.

Dr. Rigby, introduced by Keith Clarke, is a keen analyst both by profession and avocation. Chief research chemist at Canadian Refractories Ltd., he spends his leisure in such pastimes as delving into the origin and background of this countryside; and various audiences hereabouts have enjoyed the fruits of his investigations.

The speaker displayed an old map indicating the early habitation of La Chute, centred in the west around the falls and in the east around the area of White's Bridge. A long road connected these two concentrations — Main Street, as it is called today, Bethany Road was also shown, and this was an important route, the only one at that time connecting Lachute with St. Andrews, a busy village near the Ottawa.

Dr. Rigby spoke with admiration of Cyrus Thomas, in whose "History of Argenteuil" the whole story is recorded. Thomas however was a recorder rather than a historian, as he made no effort to link the facts and weave a human story. Dr. Rigby gave several hypotheses, in which human relationships and motivations had brought about the populating of this area and exploitation of its industrial possibilities.

There were chronological names and dates: the first settlers, Hesekiah Clarke, (1796), John Hutchins, Jedediah Lane and his purchase of land from Major Murray, then Seignieur of Argenteuil. In 1803 there were just 30 families in Lachute. In the year 1804 the first mills were established, and in 1809 Major Barron was the first virtual "squire" of the settlement — this name representing a period in which Scottish newcomers now superseded the New Englanders who had settled here via St. Andrews and the Ottawa Valley. A nephew of Major T. Barron — Thomas Barron the second — was the outstanding citizen of the era. The Barrons owned the greater part of the settlement. Thomas performed the functions of registrar and various other offices, and after his wife, daughters and family, many of Lachute's streets are named.

Dr. Rigby's collection of pictures portrayed the growth of

By BOB ATCHISON

Some of the excellent deer specimens passing through town make you wonder if the deer are losing their cunning or if the hunters are getting smarter. A couple were in the 200-lb. class, great animals. Of course, most of them are not from this County, although I have been told of a couple still running around loose that will be in this weight bracket. I would imagine these will be pretty wily and know all the ropes; after all, getting to be this big, they are not what might be called stupid. With the numbers of hunters, legal and otherwise in this district, these deer have "been around".

Up around another part of the County the other day, I got a surprise at the rabbits running around. Let's hope some of these meander down our way. I also took a gander at Pine Hill, just curious to see if anything was alive. After the wars that go on in this district, there wasn't. I did see a couple of cottages that had been used for target practice, along with trees filled with lead. This is really one part of the country that could stand some real inspection by enforcement officers; this could yield some surprising results, I'm sure.

Out in the bush on Sunday, November 4, I figured it was safe enough; considering the snow, there would be no shooters. Being able to look over an area without fear of getting shot, is sure nice. Most of us don't realize just what life there is in the bush until we really start looking.

Just as the sun rose, I spotted a huge flock of Snow Moths. With the first rays of sun they came out of hiding and headed for food. A couple of small cedars were covered with run-off from sap, and the critters gathered on these spots by the dozen. By this time the chicks and juncoes came, all out for feed. A couple of mangy crows were also seen; feed was their problem too, I think. One of them got his eye on something — a couple of croaks, and the other joined it. Then all that could be heard for awhile was their quarreling about food.

I really didn't realize, either, just how many squirrels there are around, including quite a number of young. It must have been a very good year for them. A sight to be remembered was the snow, fine and powdery, on the tree branches; the squirrels launching themselves into the air, landing on these branches, gave the impression of silver explosions. I still am surprised every time I see one of these little gliders as they power themselves out into space; ever think of how much power they have in their bodies to do this? We humans can't leap our own length, yet these little animals can leap at least 20 times their length. Another marvel is the way they can crack nuts. It is known that they gnaw them, to weaken it a little; but still, a tough nut looks formidable beside a creature of this size.

Down at the Ottawa River, there were no indications of ducks. Even the North River, that usually has a few around in the colder weather, shows no sign of these visitors. It has been pretty good in former years watching them on this river; just before the freeze-up they congregate around Cote St. Louis road. But I have seen none so far this year. It really looks as though ALL wildfowl are having a battle for their lives.

As most duck hunters know, the U.S. has a duck stamp. . . for this stamp was named King Buck, as was probably the most for this stmp was named King Buck, as was probably the most famous retriever in the world. During his lifetime he won the National Retriever Championships twice consecutively. He competed in seven annual runnings of the National Championships Stakes; of a total of 85 championship series, he competed in 83 within seven years, an all-time record. This fine old dog was a week short of his 14th birthday when he died in his sleep. A wonderful record, and one that will not be beaten in many a year. May he have good retrieving in the happy hunting grounds.

I have just read an article that makes you stop and think, just what we humans are doing supposedly in the name of progress. There appears to be a world-wide shortage of Red Clover, one of the most important crops for cattle fodder, and believe it or not, this is due to the shortage of Long Tongued bees, which are the only insects that can pollinate this crop. The lack of these bees is due to the ill-considered use of insecticide sprays poisonous to insects. Science can kill easily enough, but it doesn't seem to have been able to produce a substitute for the bee. Rather a strange item, isn't it? It seems that things supposedly designed for our benefit, so often end up as a detriment to humankind.

It looks as though the Junk Hounds were just waiting for the first snowfall to make their annual pilgrimage to the ditches. They must have hoarded every bit of junk, and made trips to pick up more. Jars, tires ("good used tires for sale") . . It has done no good to post signs around warning against dumping. It has been no deterrent to this practice, as far as I can see. As for education, I guess you can't change some people from being filthy.

More on rod repairs: Last week I talked of loose handles, etc., so this week it will be ferrules.

Some of these will be loose or cracked and will have to be renewed. A loose or split ferrule is not too serious if you follow these directions. . . Loosen the ferrule by rotating the end in a flame. Do not hold too long in any one spot, otherwise you will melt the glass and spoil your rod. When it seems to be loose (only your own judgment can tell this), wrap a cloth around the ferrule and pull slowly with a pair of pliers, taking care not to pull too hard; heat applied while you are doing this will help. Keep doing this until you have the ferrule off, then sand the glass to remove any excess cement. Now repeat this performance to the other ferrule, and you are ready to put the new ones on. Try them for fit; if they are too sloppy, wind some thread around the end of the rod, then use a good ferrule cement, heating this until you can wipe the mixture off onto the end of the rod without pressing too hard. Now rotate the end of the rod and glue in the direct flame; and not too long, only until the cement flows all around the end. Place the ferrule onto this goo, reheat, pushing the ferrule on as you heat. Always remember to rotate your rod, otherwise you will have a big job on your hands. Clean off excess cement only when the rod is cool; do not try to do this when it is hot or you will spring the ferrule out of position. Any of the rod eyes that are loose, rusty, cracked or damaged in any way, should be replaced, so look them over carefully. A coat of varnish applied over the whole rod, will give you a new one. It's well worth the time and trouble.

It seems strange, but not too much publicity has been given to our outdoors during the present political campaign. With more and more people enjoying outdoor life, a sure vote-getter seems to have been ignored by the present regime. Possibly they do not want any light shed on this subject — which seems strange, after all the hot air that was blasted around in the last election. These are my opinions only, but I think they are worth considering.

Why was the present hunting license increased? Certainly not for any work that may have been done in this field. I think a hunter is entitled to have some say in where his money is going, and certainly some protection while hunting. Certainly far too little is being done towards conservation to warrant this increase.

Private clubs were supposed to be a thing of the past, or so it was said. That would be funny, if not so far removed from the truth. More of these clubs now exist in this province than ever before.

The much publicized "new look" for our Game Wardens. . . I'm still looking for this, so are a lot of other people, including the Wardens.

The lack of good campsites for the outdoor fraternity, with resultant loss of revenue to the areas concerned.

Lack of anything progressive towards conservation of our resources; not too much has been done in this field, believe me.

Except for a few farsighted persons who live in hopes of better times, the rest just go ahead raping our resources for the mighty dollar.

This could go on and on, but there's no use in telling you sportsmen, who already know it.

Quebec-Ontario four-club league opens Thursday

A four-club Quebec-Ontario hockey league was reorganized at a meeting last week, in which Bill Brown was elected president. Activities will start Thursday, November 15, at Brownsburg Arena, commencing at 8 p.m. The four participating teams are Hawkesbury, Lachute, St. Andrews (Hydro) and Brownsburg.

Hockey fans are urged to support their local teams and witness the games, a schedule of which will be published in due course.

Lachute Team

All the Lachute home games will be played in Brownsburg, since Lachute has no arena. Lachute team will visit Hawkesbury for their first game, this Friday evening. Then Lachute will visit Brownsburg on Tuesday, November 20.

From all reports, the Lachute line-up promises to have a young, fast-skating aggregation; they look for the support of a good local attendance at their games.

Anyone in the town area interested in playing hockey with this team, is requested to turn up at either of the next two practices, scheduled for the Lions' Rink on Thursday, 15th, at 8.30 p.m., or Sunday, 18th, at 7 p.m.

Rotary sponsoring return of Unity Boys' Club show

Once again this year, the Unity Boys' Club Talent Parade, under auspices of the Westmount (Que.) Rotary Club, will be appearing at the Lachute High School on Friday, November 23, at 8.15 p.m. The show is sponsored by the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club.

The Unity Boys' Club of Westmount had its origin in 1943 when citizens of Westmount asked the Rotary Club to organize and supervise some form of recreational activity on behalf of youth, in order to combat a serious delinquency problem which had developed in a local area, and was causing grave concern.

At first a mere handful of youngsters, recruited from small street gangs and corner restaurants, met in private home basements, later in church halls and other locations, under paid and volunteer supervision.

The movement grew, and the purpose for which it had been established proved that this was a community need. And so it was that, in 1949, the Rotary Club of Westmount undertook, as a major project, the construction of a building to house the many activities necessary to the better development of good character and sound bodies in the less-privileged youth of Westmount.

The talented youngsters appearing here, have appeared at numerous other places, such as the International Assembly of Rotary International, at the Lake Placid Club in May, 1962.

A full-house turned out to see and hear the Parade last year, which was held at the school, and it is hoped that no one will pass up the opportunity to witness the suberb talent of this group and the wonderful work that the Westmount Rotary Club has been doing.

Council meets complex questions in lengthy session at Brownsburg

After a session which lasted for nearly five hours on Monday evening, the Brownsburg Town Council wound up with little more on the accomplished side of the ledger than before the meeting began.

A problem of long standing was brought to the fore once again with the attendance of local builder Hilaire Binette, to ask Council to move as quickly as possible to provide water and sewerage facilities in Woodbine Ave. South area. The new home of Harold Barber stands vacant on McVicar Street because of lack of these services. Mr. Barber, also in attendance, had originally asked for the water and sewer before construction began on his house. According to Mayor Donaldson, shortage of money in the waterworks account forced the delay.

To further complicate the situation, Mr. T. P. Hall, who had submitted a tender for the waterworks project some months ago, asked that Council return his deposit. Mr. Hall stated that he had better use for the money than allowing it to remain idle, if the town showed no evidence of intending to carry out the project.

After a lengthy discussion, it appeared that at least a temporary solution had been found for Mr. Barber's problem, with Mr. Hall agreeing to dig and backfill a trench for sewer and water pipes from the present system down to the Barber home. Mr. Hall would be paid cash for the job, and Mr. Barber would pay for the pipes, with the understanding that the town would reimburse him after the long-awaited waterworks referendum had been passed. Mr. Barber and Mr. Binette left the meeting assured that a mere formality remained before work would begin. . . . However, the formality has grown somewhat since the Council session, and the road surface in MacVicar Street remains intact (and in better condition than previously because of a "liberal" application of gravel). Mayor Donaldson had been advised by the town's legal advisor that the proposed temporary plan was not legal. . . A substitute plan acceptable to all parties was drawn up and adopted at a subsequent Council session; consequently it appears that Mr. Barber will finally get the overdue services.

Council managed to dispose of a number of other items before becoming embroiled in another lengthy discussion, this time on Christmas decorations. One of the top items concerned the passing of a resolution authorizing the Town of Lachute to divide the 2% sales tax among the municipalities taking part in the new taxation scheme. As established in talks with the provincial government, Lachute ends up with the lion's share of 60 %, while the remainder is divided among the three other participants on a per capita basis. Ayersville, with a population of 2,909, receives 13.37%; Brownsburg, with 3,544 people, 16.29%, and St. Jerusalem, with 2,249, 10.34%. It had been estimated that this arrangement should bring in some $20,000 per year to the town treasury.

With regard to Christmas decorations, members of the Brownsburg Chamber of Commerce, led by Robert Matte, asked Council if the town would install the Christmas street lights again this year. Mayor Donaldson hesitated, not wishing to become involved in the matter since a balance of $305 remains unpaid for Christmas decorations purchased for use in the town. A discussion ensued then regarding the financial liability of the town, since the equipment had been purchased by a municipal employee, but without authorization of the town. It remains to be seen who will pay the bill, but Councillor Georges Therrien, perhaps coming up with an early Christmas spirit, moved that the town mount the lights. The motion was carried, so Main Street will once again glow red, yellow, green and blue for the holiday season.

In his first report as acting police chief, Thomas Williams listed 31 tickets issued for illegal parking, 2 red light infractions and 2 speeding tickets. Miles patrolled — average of 52.6 per day.

Chief Williams asks that car owners take notice that it is illegal to park automobiles overnight on any street in Brownsburg, between November 1 and April 1.

Tenders for the construction of a new roof for the municipal garage were submitted by three contractors. After discussing prices, Council tabled the matter for further study. For a tar and gravel finish on top of rigid insulation, estimates were as follows:

Yvon Laurin	$918
Paul & Graham	$805 (No insulation)
Jacques M. Racine	$1,165 and $712

business and industry, schools, churches, bridges, railways and residences. After each old-time scene he projected his own color photograph of the same spot as it appears today. In conclusion the speaker expressed a hope that the Barron property, at the eastern side of Barron's Bridge, might be preserved as an open space for the young and old of posterity.

The visitor was cordially thanked by Col. Ernest Emmett, ex-president.

At this meeting, chaired by President Royal Carriere, the Lions stood at brief attention in tribute to Canada's war dead, and a round of wartime songs was led by Lions Hal Joyce and Ken Raymond, who make an energetic team in maintaining club procedures.

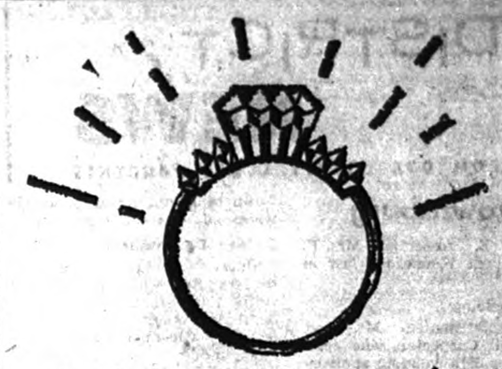

Keith Clark reported the Lions' Rink in full operation, and circular letters mailed to prospective supporters throughout the community.

There were around 53 men in attendance, joined also by two lady visitors to view the old-time pictures. Among the guests were such veteran businessmen as Mr. Michel Malacket (52 years in retailing); Arthur McOuat, one of Lachute's oldest industrialists; J. H. Mallette (retired after almost 50 years with the C.P.R.); Ross Muir (Muir's Service Station, established 1928); Wm. Jackson, retired farmer; not to mention such descendants of old families as Mayor Dave Campbell, ex-Mayor Fernand Legault, Thomas Ayers, Leonard Bedard, Dr. L. A. Middleton and others. . . Credit for this old-time reunion is due to the program committeeman, Lion Horace Lamarche.

Brief business, Chatham Council

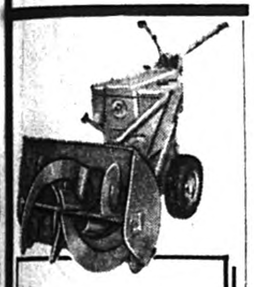

At the regular Chatham Council meeting, with Mayor Adelard Laurin presiding, it was voted to accept a proces-verbal of the Laughren watercourse, as prepared by Zenephon Plouffe, special superintendent on these matters.

It was ruled that January 2 next be declared a civic holiday in this municipality.

Oh, bitter was the trial to part

Who loved us well and true.
God saw the road was getting rough,
The hills too hard to climb,
So He gently closed your weary eyes
And whispered, 'Peace be thine'."

Scottish Dancers

On Saturday, a party of Scottish dancers under the leadership of Mrs. Alex Lawson, attended the monthly competitions of the Montreal Highland Dancing Association, held in the Montreal West Presbyterian Church hall. Altogether 10 members of the class went down; the participants were Lynn Cooke, Rolande Drouin, Gloria Graham, Mary Cooke, Patricia Graham — the rest being spectators. The competition was keen, and the points close, and one of the local girls, Patricia Graham, captured a third gold medal for her sword dancing. We warmly congratulate Patricia on this accomplishment. The class is working hard, and it is hoped to accomplish even better results next time. We also thank Mrs. Lawson for her efforts and time, given to this keeping of Scotch tradition alive in our community.

Remembrance Services

Full congregations in both churches marked Remembrance Day on Sunday. The churches were decorated for the services with poppies and the flag. At the Anglican Church the Cubs, Scouts, Brownies and Guides paraded to the church under their different leaders.

On Friday afternoon a Remembrance service was held in the Arundel School. At three o'clock the pupils paraded to the auditorium and formed a hollow square, one side of which was filled with parents and friends. The service was opened with the "Call to Worship" and a prayer led by Wade Welden. After the responsive reading which followed, a traditional hymn was sung, "O God our help in ages past", and a reading by Debbie Miller. Miss Bonnie Lee followed this with a beautiful poem. Principal Melvin Graham then read the Honor Roll and after a two-minute silence, Ronald Cooke closed this part of the ceremony with a prayer. The choir, under the leadership of Mrs. Melvin Graham, rendered a hymn entitled "Ye watchers and the Holy Ones", which showed careful training. The principal address was given by Miss Rolande Drouin, after which the meeting was brought to a close with the hymn, "Rejoice, the Lord is King".

"Uh — Tommy — I think I've found your lost pet."

Let's not abolish church bazaars

By Dorothy Barker ("Diary of A Vagabond")

I couldn't agree less with the author of a recent article who suggested we abolish the church bazaar. Her argument was that this form of money raising effort for any cause was beneath the intelligence of modern woman.

Bazaars and rummage sales have not only filled the coffers of women's organizations throughout the land, but they have paid off the mortgages on many of our town churches and contributed vast sums to any number of charitable institutions. Volunteer contributions, as she suggests, or tithing, would never have the same results.

The author claims a bazaar is merely a sweat shop effort, depriving merchants of required sales and I resent the article's inference that it takes little originality, no creativity and less brain power to launch a successful bazaar. I ought to know, I was once Joed with the convenership of a church bazaar and if ever I put my ingenuity to work and was amazed at the tireless cooperation of a large group of women, it was during the six weeks of preparation that preceded that sale.

Bazaars are not all pot holders and baby socks. They are an annealing process for temperament, a breeder of contentions that must be amicably settled giving stature to individuals, and finally, they are a proving ground for friendships and social demeanor.

My initiation into the weird world of the annual church bazaar was unsought and unexpected. I, as a newcomer to a community, was invited to attend a meeting of church women. I'll shortcut the way I was inveigled into accepting convenership. As my nature is always invigorated by the prospect of expression and originality, I dashed in where angels (at least all those angels who were sitting around planning that bazaar) fear to tread.

This bazaar, I decided, was going to be different, I fired my committee's enthusiasm with plans for a lampshade booth, a felt booth where original petticoats for Christmas trees all sparkly with sequins and cloths for holiday cocktail tables would be on sale. Cocktails! Don't mention the name. First snag, first uproar, first stand I must take. But the majority won, the tablecloths were just tablecloths, not for cocktails. My sophisticated urban attitude bowed to this ruling with grace.

I designed the booths as a carnival and rented costumes from the local skating club for the attendants. These, it appeared were fine for a rink, but too daring for a church hall.

When I got the show on the road I had made and broken more friendships only to be mended again, poured more oil on troubled waters and made more concessions to keep the peace than I had ever imagined in my most Christian mood I could be capable of doing. I had sewn most of the lampshades myself and finished the cock — pardon me, tablecloths to the last sequin. But I was ecstatic. It was a huge success, garnered $500. for the work of the Ladies' Aid and taught me a lesson in co-operation.

Yes, bazaars and rummage sales are necessary, if only as a leavener of human emotions. But in this age of packaged mixes, I still look forward to the date in November, when I can purchase an honest to gosh homemade cake at our church bazaar.

Remembrance at United Church

The Remembrance Day service at Lachute United Church was attended by a large congregation. The service began with the two minutes' silence, and concluded with the singing of the first verse of the national anthem. Under the direction of Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins, organist and choir-director, the choir gave a fitting rendering of "Requiescant in Pace", by T. Tertius Noble.

In keeping with the occasion, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, minister of the church, preached an interesting and helpful sermon based on Sir John Arkwright's well-known hymn, "O Valiant hearts, who to your glory came".

The wreath of poppies in remembrance of those who had made the supreme sacrifice, was placed at the foot of the war memorial at a later service, held in the town park during the afternoon.

Mr. Howard Ward, of Lachute, performed a "mock marriage".

The couple were presented with a sum of money by their son-in-law, Mr. Darrell Kilpatrick.

Cdn. Cancer Society members hear report

The regular monthly meeting of the Canadian Cancer Society was held in the Court House with Mrs. W. M. Cottingham, the president, in the chair.

Education Report

Highlighting the meeting were the reports given by the Financial and Education and Wrapping committees. The Education Committee concentrated during the first five months of the year on the program to warn teenagers of the hazards of smoking. A film strip, "To Smoke or not to Smoke" was shown to High School students in Lachute, Brownsburg and Grenville. "Fumer, Plaisir ou Risque" was seen in all French schools in Lachute, Ayersville and Brownsburg. Films aimed at breaking down fear, and encouraging men and women to consult their doctor regularly, were shown to service clubs, church groups, campaign workers and other audiences. A nurse or doctor always accompanied these pictures to answer questions, and literature was distributed.

The services of a very active publicity convener of the Education Committee, Mrs. Grace Dempsey, were missed when she moved to Ontario last April. Her poems on Cancer have been published in the Ontario and the National Newsletter, as well as in The Watchman.

Cancer literature is available to the public at the local Health Unit and at the Cancer Society Headquarters.

Campaign Results

The final results for the Cancer Campaign, 1962, are as follows:

Industries	$ 488.00
Blitz	$2,032.26
Outlying Districts	$1,203.05
Brownsburg	$ 651.40
St. Andrews	$ 204.00
Total	$4,578.71

Creditable Report

By contrast with the decline in cash donations, following is the highly creditable report of the Wrapping committee, for the year up to September 30 last:

During this period, dressings were issued to an average of 40 patients every two weeks. Seven counties were served — Argenteuil, Assomption, Joliette, Labelle, Montcalm, Terrebonne and Two Mountains.

In the past year there were 32 new patients, 18 patients deceased, 15 discontinued and 1 renewed; still active, 40.

The following number of dressings were issued: 53,670 (4x4), 4,375 (3x9), 19,612 (6x8), 7,345 (8x12), 1,083 (17x24), 1,027 bags swabs, 49 rolls cellucotton, 218 rolls tape, 66 rolls bandages, 29 boxes celluwipes, 700 mastex cups.

Cost of dressings for the year, $1,899.98.

Cost of mailing for these parcels amounted to $288.45.

A report of the number of dressings issued, number of patients served, and cost, is sent in to the Canadian Cancer Society head office in Montreal every month.

Members of the Cancer Society are asked to bring Christmas parcels for patients to the Bedard Ltée store before December 3.

Rehearse chorale for Christmas

Members of the Argenteuil Choral Society are reminded that rehearsals will be held each Sunday afternoon in Lachute United Church, at 2 o'clock. Christmas music will be presented for the second consecutive year by this group, and will be under the direction of Lowell B. Hopkins.

Interested singers are invited to come and enjoy the practices, and other information may be had from Mrs. Mason Crosby, of Brownsburg, Bernard Hewitt or Lowell B. Hopkins, of Lachute.

Sentiments and Sidelights

Ald. Réal Urbain, one of three councillors representing centre ward, was appointed pro-mayor for the ensuing three months, at Council meeting last week.

Four taxpayers on Wilson Street sent a written protest to Town Council, following damage to their lawns caused by sidewalk tractors after the recent snowfall.

On request from the Protestant School Commission, Town Council ruled against parking on the west side of Bellingham Street, between Main and Court Streets, from 8 to 9.30 a.m. and from 3 to 4.30 p.m. The same ruling will apply to Harriett Street between these hours of school traffic — in this case however, parking is prohibited on either side of the street.

* * *

The Anbar Institute, of St. Jerome (founded by Dr. Anbar, of Belgian origin) has acquired 200 acres of property at St. Andrews East for the purpose of establishing a centre for the mentally retarded. The projected plans call for a school for the young people, a retreat for older inmates, a rehabilitation home for alcoholics, and other buildings grouped in the form of a village community.

* * *

Mr. Thos. Milnes of East Ward, whose chimney was struck by lightning a few weeks ago, will be wondering about the irony of fate. . . . His lawn was plowed into by a heavy Overnite Transport truck and trailer, around 8 p.m. Tuesday. The truck, proceeding from east to west, struck a telephone pole; the pole snapped, and a neighbor's service line was severed. . . The road was slippery with new snow, at the time.

Teaching methods, talk at B'burg Home and School

Brownsburg — It was the Russians and their Sputnik I that focussed the attention of most Canadians — and others — on the fact that Science and Mathematics are very important in our modern life. The increasing use of computers, electronics and automation, have increased the interest.

The Brownsburg Home and School Association have asked Science teacher R. N. Wyse, of Lachute High School, to speak at their next meeting, Wednesday, November 21. He will discuss some changes in education, teaching methods and curriculum.

"Bob", as he is known to many, is well qualified to speak on the subject. A native of Boston, educated at Mt. Allison and McGill Universities where he obtained his B.Sc and B.Ed. degrees, he has written several Science courses and collaborated on writing four texts for Quebec schools.

A former high school principal near Truro, N.S., and lecturer at Mt. Allison — in addition to 12 years at Lachute High — Mr. Wyse has seen teaching from several angles. His past role as chairman of the St. Andrews School Board and president of the Argenteuil Protestant Teachers' Association, has no doubt been enlightening.

With two young daughters, Mr. Wyse is a parent who has done considerable community work through the Rotary Club, where he is a past-president. He is obviously interested in the home, school and community — particularly for children.

The last Brownsburg Home and School meeting entertained well over 100 parents and teachers. This subject and speaker should be cause for another large turnout.

Meet hazards of winter driving

Sudden snow falls, continuous changes in temperature and early darkness combine to make driving in winter more hazardous than any other time of the year — warns the All Canada Insurance Federation.

General lack of experience contributes to the seasonal increase in accident rates. The Federation, which represents more than 220 Canadian fire, casualty and automobile insurance companies, offers the following tips from expert drivers to help winter driving.

(1) Get the feel of the road when you start out in bad conditions by trying the brakes at a slow speed, when no other cars are around.

(2) Make sure you leave adequate room for stopping. Tests show that, at 20 miles per hour, a car equipped with ordinary tires and travelling on dry concrete can be stopped in about 21 feet. On hard packed snow the stopping distance is increased to 60 feet and on glare ice to 195 feet.

(3) Equipping the car with snow tires will cut the braking distance on glare ice to 174 feet while chains will reduce it to 74 feet.

(4) Remember that skidding and loss of traction are more likely to occur when the temperature is just at the freezing point, or slightly above, than in extremely cold weather. A brief warm spell means you must increase your precautions.

(5) If you get stuck and cannot "rock" your car loose or get any other assistance try letting a little air out of your rear tires. This flattens the tire tread and permits more of the tire to grip the surface.

(6) Foggy windshields can be avoided by wiping the inside of the glass with a clean cloth containing a few drops of glycerine.

(7) Drive slowly.

Joke of the Week

"One rabbit, yes; two rabbits, no!"

Mr. Merchant, does this mean YOU?

Merchants who do not advertise are invited to read the following from the American Bankers' Magazine, as it might give them a new slant on business, your own business, as well as the matter of building up your town:

- "No business man in any town should allow a newspaper published in his town to go without his name and business being mentioned somewhere in its columns.
- "The life of a town depends on the live, wide-awake and liberal advertising business men."
- "This does not mean you should have a whole, half, or even a quarter page ad, in each issue of the paper, but your name and business should be mentioned.
- "A stranger picking up a newspaper should be able to tell what business is represented in a town by looking at the paper. This is the best possible town advertiser.
- "The man who does not advertise does an injustice to himself and the town. The man who insists on sharing the business that comes to town, but refuses to advertise his own is not a valuable addition to any town.

Tonight will tell

THIS IS THE DAY — a deciding point in the administration of Quebec Province for the next four years. The campaign has been marked by no major issues except one; and this, in the opinion of many voters, should never have been an election issue, since it has fogged the merits and demerits of the two major parties with a question of economics on which opinions are divided. Nationalization, even in itself, is not a clearcut issue in this province; here there are implications of racialism which distort logical argument. Nationalization smacks also of Autonomy — the not-quite forgotten battle cry of a previous regime, not the party which is presently pounding on Nationalization.

The campaign has produced perhaps more mudslinging, on party lines, than recent contests in Quebec. All very sensational, rousing and dramatic; but utterly non-constructive. There has been, happily, no over-emphasis of this in Argenteuil. Through the province, though not in outspoken terms, there has been an unhealthy appeal to racialism; and in these days when unity is of paramount importance for the whole, both in economic and international aspects, this dividing influence is no credit to Quebec's politicians.

In the final analysis, the decision may well hinge upon personalities. Each constituency has its sentimental links, its personal loyalties; and the weight of these will count. In a campaign so slim on defined provincial issues, the personal considerations may indeed count more than one may expect.

Tonight (Wednesday) will tell the tale!

Not so good for motorists

BAD NEWS for automobile drivers came last week, in a forecast of higher insurance rates next year. It seems that Canadian drivers were involved in more accidents in the 1961 insurance year — and the accidents were more expensive — than in any year since 1958.

A survey shows that no fewer than 95 of each 1,000 drivers were involved in an accident during the year in which a "third party" claim was made. This is an increase of about 5.5 per cent.

At the same time, the average cost of each accident increased from $360 to $364. The average cost has increased steadily over the past years, jumping $56 since 1957.

Only partially reflected by the survey, which shows losses up to the end of June, are increases in the cost of accidents caused by Canada's austerity program. Because of devaluation and new import duties, replacement parts of many cars now cost more.

Insurance companies and the various insurance rating groups are currently studying the statistics with a view to setting next year's automobile insurance rates. Although the rates won't be known for several weeks, an increase averaging about 10 percent across Canada will probably be required to meet the increased costs. The increase in Quebec will average about three percent but will vary from area to area within the Province.

Individual car owners, particularly those who have graduated to a better classification by reaching the age of 25 or by completing three years of driving without a claim, might possibly find their rates lower despite the general increase.

— If more graphic illustrations have failed, this dollars-and-cents argument might surely convince the motorist that it pays to drive cautiously!

Voyage of discovery

LEAST KNOWN of the world's oceans is the Indian Ocean, which represents 14 per cent of the earth's surface.

Since 1959, science has begun exploring its mysteries on three levels — atmospheric, surface and under-water.

Now, over the next two years, a peaceful international fleet of 40 vessels is setting out on a voyage of discovery. The International Indian Ocean Expedition is history's most ambitious co-operative venture in oceanography.

These research vessels, in a venture in which 20 nations are co-operating, will range the 28,000,000 square miles of ocean that still hides many secrets. It is a gigantic laboratory for studying the effect of wind on currents, how currents affect fish production, the flow of heat and water vapor as part of the study of how the earth's atmosphere actually works.

Among the practical uses of such a tremendous survey is of course the production of protein food. Around the Indian Ocean are some of the world's most heavily populated countries.

Another biological aspect of the Indian Ocean expedition is perhaps even more appealing to the imagination. This is the designation of one ship for a latimeria hunt in 1964. The latimeria is a species of coelacanth — a species believed extinct until scientists learned, almost by accident, that one had been caught off Africa in 1938.

Physiologists are anxious to study the elusive coelacanth as an intermediate stage in the path of evolution that led to present-day fish.

The scientists will have the benefit of new devices that have transformed the science of oceanography within the past few years, it is noted by the UNESCO magazine "Courier".

There is a precision echo sounder accurate to one fathom at a depth of 3,000 fathoms — 18,000 feet. Another measures undersurface currents — this has detected a current moving 20 miles a day at a depth of 4,000 metres.

The whole venture could yield inestimable benefits to mankind, notably in food production, weather forecasting and untold advances in biology and other sciences.

Municipal councils and store hours

ONE OF THE unnecessary problems that concern municipal councils in several parts of Canada has to do with the shopping hours of retail stores. There is no reason in the world why retail stores need be controlled by local by-law or provincial law — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review. The fact is that retail stores will remain open only if there is enough business to justify the proprietors in keeping them open. . . A number of municipalities, including some of the larger ones, have washed their hands of trying to regulate store hours. It is a good attitude to adopt, especially if it enables a municipal council to deal with more important matters in the realm of municipal government.

Provincial laws govern hours of work, so it is not necessary for municipal councils to try to govern hours of work by means of regulating the hours in which business may be done by a retail merchant. Public convenience is something that should concern a municipal council. In many instances municipal councils are influenced by a council membership which includes retailers who wish to govern the business practices of their competitors — concludes the Letter-Review.

Kipling updated

THE LIST of great authors whose works have been subjected to "adaptation" in one form or another being an endless one, not too much exception can be taken to the following slightly revised version of one of Kipling's most famous "If" stanzas, appearing in a recent issue of the distinguished British medical journal, The Lancet:

"If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
You'll have the world and everything that's in it,
And a coronary before you're fifty-one!"

A book of Canadian poems, the work of Mr. A. Weir, B.A.Sc., is about to be published by Dawson Bros.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 15, 1912 —

Bell Telephone has found it necessary to move to larger quarters and has leased the lower portion of Rice's Hall. Mr. Rice will ply his town secretary's duties in the office being vacated by the Bell switchboard.

The Rev. Mr. Gagnon, who resigned his charge of St. Simeon's Church a few weeks ago, has been appointed rector at New Glasgow.

Mr. W. S. MacKimmie is improving his rink by the addition of a commodious room over the present frontage which will be a great convenience to the hockey boys.

A pair of parallel bars and boxing gloves have been added to the equipment of our Boy Scouts, who are trained by our worthy citizen, Scoutmaster A. D. Hogg.

The I.O.O.F. are planning a social evening at the Victoria Hall for the 30th anniversary of the installation of the Order here.

For the benefit of those who abhor printer's ink for the advancement of their business, we would state that Samson — the strong party — was the first man to advertise. He took two solid columns to demonstrate his strength, and several thousand people "tumbled". He brought down the house.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Nov. 18, 1937 —

At High Mass in St. Julien Church, Archbishop G. Gauthier invested two prominent citizens, Messrs. W. H. and E. F. Ayers, with the Order of St. Gregory the Great, the highest decoration bestowed by His Holiness the Pope.

Earth tremors cracked sidewalks and caused a scare in St. Jerome, Ste. Agathe, Morin Heights and Ste. Adele.

Mrs. A. Chapman of Montreal, a former resident here, addressed the W.I. Study Group on "Reading for Pleasure".

It is announced the Laurentian highway between Montreal and St. Jovite will be kept open all winter. Except on rare occasions, the road has been impassable beyond St. Jerome. This year it will be possible to go by car 20 miles beyond Ste. Agathe.

Mr. J. C. Logan, B.A., of St. Francis College, Richmond, Que., spent the week-end with his parents at Lachute Mills.

A step ahead of the town of Lachute, Ste. Agathe has made a change-over from the old bell-crank telephone sets, to the more modern system operated by lifting the receiver.

A new venture in journalism — a mimeographed four-page newspaper is being published for students of Lachute High School, largely the work of George Powell.

GOOD FARMERS

Farmers on this continent amaze the world. They produce staggering amounts of food each year.

It is not because they have large quantities of land. The Soviet Socialist Republic has 40% more crop land than the USA, yet they cannot feed themselves as well.

Does this mean our farmers are smarter?

I believe the answer is yes. They know much more. They should, because hundreds of private broadcasting stations supply daily bulletins of farm information, and the networks do a magnificent job of farm broadcasting. Most of our top dailies have well-informed farm editors, and the weekly papers in rural areas give generous space to important farm news. Excellent farm magazines give detailed farm facts.

Perhaps even more important is the vast amount of research being done for the benefit of agriculture. The universities are doing a magnificent job. Private companies engaged in canning and processing spend fortunes on research that will result in better quality crops. Federal and local governments do their share.

But in the main, the credit must go to the farmers and their families. They put the information to good use. They buy the machinery and keep it operating. They know they will prosper only if they keep up to date, suffer if they fall behind. Take away the well-motivated, independent farmer and replace him with a mere servant of the state and most of this wonderful research and know-how would be wasted.

Today the news wires are telling of the dwindling farm population. Farms are getting bigger. Fewer farmers are producing more food. We may regret the loss of farm population, but we must admire the productivity of those who remain on the land. They offer an example that city folks ought to try to emulate.

Letter to editor: outlet for opinions

(This is the fifth in a series of editorials explaining how a weekly newspaper functions.)

Like all weekly newspapers, The Lachute Watchman publishes communications or letters to the editor, when we receive them. They are expressions of the opinions our readers hold upon the matters of public interest.

Often conditions arise in every community that make certain phases of community welfare appear unsatisfactory. They can often be rectified simply by voicing a complaint in the local newspaper. Such action arouses interest, creates arguments, and sometimes rights the real or imaginary wrongs.

The Watchman has always held to the policy that the full name of the author should be published along with his letter. If a man has an opinion he should be willing to back it with his name. However, many people will not have a letter published over their signature and we do allow pen names provided the author's real name is known to the editor.

The letters-to-the-editor column should be the editorial comment of the subscribers. It allows everyone an effective voice in the affairs of the community. Thus, if you have something constructive to say on a public matter, or something you want the community to know about, write a letter to the editor. If it is not libelous, and doesn't offend good taste and if it is not advertising, and doesn't offend good taste and community interests, it will be published.

Official history of Cdn. Army in World War I

The official history of the Canadian Army in the First World War was published this month.

The book, entitled Canadian Expeditionary Force 1914-1919, presents an authentic account of the achievements of the officers and men who wore the badge of Canada in that great struggle. It is directed primarily to the general reader, and particularly to the Canadian reader who wishes to know what the Canadian Corps accomplished and why its operations in France and Belgium took the course they did.

It furthur deals with the activities of those Canadian forces who served outside the Corps, some of them in theatres far removed from the Western Front.

Problems of organization and administration receive careful attention, particularly the controversial question of the introduction of conscription in 1927.

The author, Colonel G. W. L. Nicholson, is a former Director of the Historical Section of the General Staff.

The book is issued under the authority of the Minister of National Defence and is published by the Queen's Printer.

Canadian Expeditionary Force 1914-1919 is the product of extensive investigation into Canadian, British, French and German records, both published and unpublished. For the benefit of the student of military history the text has been extensively documented.

Colonel Nicholson's book is a cloth-bound volume containing 594 pages, with 71 maps, 16 of which are in color. It is illustrated with a frontispiece in full color and 47 photographs in black and white.

It will be obtainable from the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, at $5 per copy, postpaid.

Canadian flag

A distinctive Canadian flag was mentioned in the speech from the throne, but this mention does not indicate with any certainty that Canada is any nearer to having a flag of its own than at any time in the past. Seeds of great political strife are in this proposal and it is unlikely that any national political leader will boldly and with relish get into a controversy on this subject. Canada may yet become known as the flagless country.

YOUNG CANADA'S BOOK WEEK
November 15-22

"What you read, when you can read what you like, determines what you will be, when you can't help it!" Do you doubt the truth of this sentence which we once read, posted above the shelves in Boys and Girls House, Toronto Public Library youth centre?

Good books do help to build character. Every parent, who wants the very best for his children, desires that he should appreciate the written word. Young Canada's Book Week the middle of November performs an important service in focusing attention on books for children in our homes, from the youngest to the oldest.

There are several things which mothers and fathers do to encourage a taste for reading, and the most effective way is for mother and dad to spend part of their salary and leisure on books. Then children growing up in this kind of home atmosphere will likely follow their example.

This year special emphasis is placed on books about the first Canadians. Little Runner, a small Iroquois boy, living in a log house, by Betty Baker, with pictures by Arnold Lobel (Musson) is a charming "I Can Read" book.

There is no series of books which are sought more eagerly by the youngest visitors to the public library than the stories of Mr. Small by Lois Lenski. The new book for 1962 is Policeman Small, (Oxford) with a little song with music at the first, "Oh, Do You Know Policeman Small?" and the dedication is "For the children of the children who first loved Mr. Small".

One of the loveliest books for younger readers which we have seen for a long time is Tonk and Tonka by Eugene Ackerman, (Clarke, Irwin) with beautiful illustrations of these two blue geese by Carl Burger. Bush Pilots, by Margaret Mason Shaw, is a second outstanding book in Clarke Irwin's fine Canadian Portrait series, which portrays the colorful personalities of the aviators who contributed so much to Canada's development, especially in the northern territories.

Good juvenile books which make history come alive, deserve special attention. Two of these are Guns at Quebec and Castors Away. Guns at Quebec by Allan Dwight, (Collier Macmillan) is the story of a boy captured by Indians, who later served with Wolfe when his troop won the battle on the Plains of Abraham, — a thrilling tale. Castors Away by Hester Burton (Oxford) is the story of four children of a Suffolk doctor who lived at the time of the Battle of Trafalgar. Both of these books are exciting and the characters are life-like, with a good plot to sustain the reader's interest.

River of Canada by Thomas Bredin (Longman) is a well-written description of the very early days of this continent with true accounts of Cabot, Cartier, Champlain and other explorers.

An old favorite in a new, and very attractive dress is Robert Browning's poem, The Pied Piper of Hamelin (Oxford) illustrated in color by Harold Jones.

"A child should learn a second language at an early age," Dr. Wilder Penfield, famous neurologist has been constantly pointing out. A most attractive book in French, Un Voyage en Bateau by Eleanor Gnarh Reaves, illustrated by Rosalie (Ginn & Co.) with original, life-like colored pictures and a lot of dialogue, is a wonderful book for the young linguist.

Stories about the North West Mounted Police have priority in most boys' bookshelves and Joe Holliday, author of the popular Dale of the Mounted series, has written an exciting tale in his latest book, Manhunt at the U.N. (Thomas Allen). The vivid red jacket with the figure of a mountie at the corner of a photo of the United Nations buildings, has been used, courtesy of the U.N.

In the stimulating Canadian Careers Library this year the book published is The Cure Searchers, by Max Brathwaite (Ryerson). This story of young Arnie Williams whose father's medical research laboratory is working on a cure for cancer will be read with great interest by many boys and girls. Another book of special merit is Mine for Keeps by Jean Little, (the Little Brown thousand dollar Canadian award book). The heroine, Sally Copeland, crippled by cerebral palsy, shows courage and perseverance which readers will long remember.

This year two appealing all-Canadian juvenile anthologies have been published by Gage and booksellers report they are having a phenonemal sale. They are Nunny Bag for younger boys and girls and Rubaboo for intermediates. Three wonderful additions to the family vacation bookshelf are Your Family Goes Camping by Doris T. Patterson (Welch), Canadian Animals by Charles Paul May (Macmillan Co. of Canada) and Native Wild Plants by F. H. Montgomery (Ryerson).

First Aid helps in heart attack

Vancouver (CP) — "The Pulse of Life," a film that expounds the theory that a steady hand can restart a balky heart, has been given a private screening here.

The producers, Pyramid Films, said if it receives endorsation by the B.C. division of the Canadian Medical Association, copies of the film will be circulated.

If treatment is applied within three minutes, there is a 75 per cent chance of recovery, it is believed. In the film, one rescuer applies mouth-to-mouth resuscitation while a second uses external heart massage.

The chest is compressed once every second, and two puffs of air are blown into the victim's lungs after every fifth compression. Treatment continues until face, lips, tongue and fingers regain normal color.

The need for beginning treatment as quickly as possible arises from the fact that brain damage results if circulation remains stopped for five minutes. The victim must receive expert medical attention as soon as possible.

SURVIVAL

Around the world malnutrition kills 25,000,000, people a year, a number considerably in excess of Canada's population of 18,500,000. This problem is being tackled for the first time on a worldwide basis by the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations.

Receiving degrees is familiar task

Vancouver (CP) — In 1924, Myrtle Kievell walked in procession past the registrar of the University of British Columbia to receive her degree.

Then she went on to a year of teacher training; then into business.

But Myrtle Kievell couldn't stay away from the quiet campus life so she went back to take a job on the UBC staff. "That's a long time ago," she says today.

In the last 17 years, as assistant registrar, she has made annually the same procession she first made 40 years ago. But the degree she picks up doesn't belong to her any more — hers is the responsibility of keeping track of the sheepskins and handing them to the registrar in the right order.

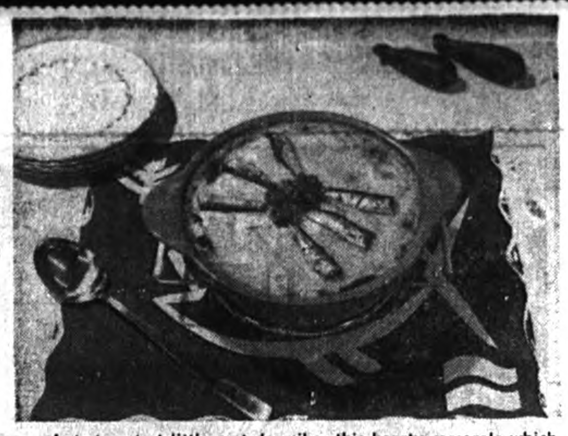

First there are the long, tube-like honorary degrees. Then come the folded, flat, blue leather cases. This autumn there were about 600 of them.

Miss Keivall's first convocation saw her preparing fewer than 100 diplomas. Since then about 30,000 graduates have watched as she smiled upward and passed over the document they had worked years to earn.

Fundy shore casserole

When it comes to holding food costs in line, it's hard to beat a casserole made from plentiful, nourishing, low cost foods. A good example, guaranteed to simplify an evening meal, is Fundy Shore Casserole made from Canadian sardines, cheese and potatoes.

Canadian sardines are small, silvery fish of the herring family, caught principally in the Passamaquoddy area of the Bay of Fundy and canned in New Brunswick on the Bay's southwestern shore. In Fundy Shore Casserole they contribute high quality protein coupled with delicious flavor.

Fundy Shore Casserole

3 Cans (3¼ ounces each) Canadian sardines, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons melted fat or oil, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 2 cups milk, 1 cup grated nippy Cheddar cheese, 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 5 cups sliced cooked pototoes.

Drain sardines. Reserve 6 whole sardines for a top garnish. Cook onion in fat until tender. Blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually. Cook until smooth and thickened, stirring constantly. Add cheese and Worcestershire sauce; stir until cheese melts. Arrange half the potatoes, the sardines (broken or not, as desired), and the remaining potatoes in layers in a well-greased, 2-quart casserole. Cover with the cheese sauce. Garnish with the 6 sardines. Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., for 25 to 30 minutes, or until thoroughly heated. Makes 6 servings.

Canadian toys to Germany

Canadian toys appeared significantly in West German toy imports, in 1961 for the first time in many years, says R. Turcotte, Canada's Vice-Consul in Hamburg, writing in "Foreign Trade" magazine. The value of our sales in Germany was only $5,500, but it is an encouraging sign.

The German standard of living in recent years has rapidly become one of the highest in Europe. The tastes of German consumers too are changing, moving away from price only, towards quality. Quality and design often command a premium and the trend is expected to continue. Despite the high duties, the lower value of the Canadian dollar, combined with a German revaluation of 5 per cent one year ago, should make quality Canadian toys much more attractive and better able to compete against German toys, says Mr. Turcotte.

MATCHBOX LABEL FAN

Regina (CP) — Steven Szekely has more than 80,000 matchbox labels in a collection he started as a hobby while working in Hungary for an export-import firm dealing in matches. He corresponds with people in 30 different countries and has labels from more than 85 lands.

New twist for an old standby

Mention tinned meat to any alumnus of our armed forces, and the reaction isn't exactly one of keen anticipation. However, in actual fact, tinned meat has unjustly suffered from a bad press. Many a good cook finds there's no substitute for a tin of meat when the budget is restricted or when time is of the essence.

Whether it's fashion or food, most women with reputations in either field usually say the same thing — a little imagination can spell the difference between success and failure; and in the case of food this usually means an astute use of seasonings.

Corned Beef loaf makes a hearty and tasty main course dish when teamed with potatoes and a green or yellow vegetable. Since squash is now available, one could be baked along with the meat. The unusual and pleasant flavor of the loaf can be attributed to the caraway seeds, with onion, parsley and tomato juice also contributing their own special touch.

Corned Beef Loaf

(Yield — 4 or 5 servings)

1 Can (approx. 12 ounces) corned beef, ½ teaspoon caraway seeds, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 2 cups coarse soft bread crumbs, 1 egg, 2 teaspoons grated onion, ½ cup tomato juice.

Grease a loaf pan (4½ x 8½ inches, top inside measure), and line with greased waxed paper. Preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate).

Turn out corned beef into a bowl and discard any free fat; break up meat into fine pieces. Sprinkle with caraway seeds, salt, pepper, chopped parsley and coarse soft bread crumbs; mix lightly with a fork. Beat egg, grated onion and tomato juice together; spoon over meat mixture and combine. Turn into prepared loaf pan and pack lightly. Bake in preheated oven until set — 45 to 50 minutes. Stand loaf in its pan in a warm place 10 minutes, then turn out onto a heated platter; peel off paper. Cut into thick slices for serving.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's apple time in Canada and homemakers should be taking advantage of it. With a little imagination and some preparation, this eye-appealing and tasty fruit can be served differently every day of the week.

On Monday, for example, fresh apples could be packed in lunches for mid-morning or afternoon snacks at school or at work. On Tuesday, apple wedges with slices of cheese could be served for dessert at lunch or supper.

For a quick lunch on Wednesday, an apple and cabbage salad could be whipped up, using equal amounts of chopped unpeeled red apple and shredded cabbage. And for a mouth-watering dessert on Thursday, baked apples with their centres filled with honey and nuts.

Applesauce and toast could be served for breakfast on Friday, apple dumpling for lunch on Saturday and apple pie and cheese to top off Sunday dinner.

Use All Winter

With today's improved storage methods, some apples such as McIntosh can be enjoyed from fall right through to spring. Here are some tips on storing apples at home, from the Consumer Section of the Canadian department of agriculture:

1. Apples are ideally stored at 32 degrees Fahrenheit but will keep for a length of time in a basement cool room with a temperature of about 40 degrees.

2. Apples need a cool humid temperature so they won't dry out and therefore the box or basket in which they are contained should be wrapped with perforated plastic. This allows the apples to "breathe" and at the same time keeps in the moisture.

3. Apples bought in small quantities keep their crispness and firmness best when stored in the refrigerator.

Apples are sold by grades — Canada Extra Fancy, Canada Fancy and Canada "C" grade. Canada Fancy is the grade most reasily available.

Popular Dish

Applesauce is a year-round favorite, and to make it smooth and white, beat in fine white breadcrumbs after the apple is cooked.

To add variety to this standard apple dish, try spicing it. To one can (about a pound) of applesauce, add one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of brown sugar, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg and a dash of mace. Then heat the ingredients, stirring often, until bubbly.

Applesauce can be served with a snow topping to make an appetizing dessert. To make the topping, combine one cup of granulated sugar and one-quarter cup of water in a saucepan and cook to the fairly firm ball stage. Beat one egg white with one-eighth teaspoon salt until soft peaks are formed and then pour on the hot syrup gradually, while beating constantly. When the mixture is fairly thick, add one grated apple and one-half teaspoon vanilla and beat until stiff.

This topping is best served within a couple of hours after it is made and on plain or simple desserts such as gingerbread, applesauce or spice cake.

Board meeting held by Assocn. for Retarded

A meeting of the directors of Lachute Association for Retarded Children was held last Thursday evening, with the president, Mr. W. Younkie, in the chair. This being the first meeting of the season, a full agenda was discussed.

As the Lachute Association for Retarded Children depends largely on public support, it was felt that a complete report of each meeting should be given.

Mr. Younkie stated he had attended a dinner held by the Duplicate Bridge League on November 3, and the president of this group, Mr. Gordon Davidson, stated that although the club had given a substantial amount last year in support of the Association, he hoped that an even larger contribution could be made in the coming season. The board is very grateful for this support.

A copy of a letter sent to Premier Jean Lesage and Hon. Guerin-Lajoie, Minister of Youth, by Mr. A. T. Brodeur, president of the Quebec Association for Retarded Children, was read. This letter explained the work of the Association and asked the Provincial Government for a contribution to the annual fund campaign. This amount, if received, will be divided proportionately among the various branches of the Association.

Letters are being sent to district service clubs, requesting a member from each organization be represented at board meetings. A unanimous response is hoped for, as this would stimulate interest in the work of the Association.

Mrs. Geo. Leggett, president of the Women's Auxiliary, gave a complete report and stated that plans are under way for fund raising.

School commenced on Monday, November 12. There are two new students already enrolled this year, and it is felt there are still a number of eligible children and young adults, either French or English, who would benefit greatly by attending this school. Anyone who is interested or desires information please call the education chairman, Mrs. B. Fillingham (LO 2-6534). This year the school will conduct a new adult training unit in the afternoons, and a pre-vocational curriculum will be carried on in the mornings. This new adult training unit will benefit those with adequate attention span.

The Association discussed the possibility of a united bilingual school for the near future. Other communities are already operating such schools successfully, and it is to be hoped Lachute will take advantage of the numerous benefits possible from such a project.

— One can't help getting the impression that the reading of the names of those commercial establishments donating wreaths at the cenotaph on Sunday was getting out-of-hand. True, the money paid for the wreaths is appreciated since it goes towards helping our needy veterans; but would the store keepers refuse to help those veterans if the commercial aspect of the solemn service were eliminated? How about it Chamber of Commerce? There must be another way!

— No permanent Police Chief yet! In the meantime, Thomas Williams does a fine job. Former temporary Chief Aurel Lemay recommends Tom highly. —Now that the radar is back in operation, perhaps the speeding angle will be covered more fully.

— Another recommendation made by Mr. Lemay: increase the fine for red light infractions from $3 to $10. At this rate the town would have filled the till on Sunday with a long parade of political cars crashing the red light — until Mayor James Donaldson turned policeman and chased the "voluntary traffic director" off the street.

— A sure way to chase some of the obstinate type door-to-door salesmen — ask to see their vendor's license (issued by the town).

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

All of Branch 70 express their thanks to the townspeople of Lachute and surrounding area who so generously supported the 1962 poppy campaign. All returns are not yet in; however, Cde. E. Evans informs us that it is away over the planned objective.

With the weatherman cooperating in grand fashion, one of the largest Armistice Parades was held here on Sunday, November 11. To music supplied by the Harrington-Kilmar Pipe Band, Cde. Bob St. Laurent, parade marshal, led the Legion, Army Unit, Army Cadets, Air Force Cadets, Scouts, Cubs, Guides, Brownies, Ladies' Auxiliary, from Memorial Hall to the cenotaph. A welcome addition to this year's parade was the Lachute firemen in uniform.

The parade stopped briefly at W.W. II memorial, where the representatives of the Legion and Town laid wreaths. At the cenotaph the short, formal but highly impressive "Scattering of the Ashes" ceremony was performed by Cde. President George Kirby and the Rev. James Armour. As the sounds of the Last Post faded away, the 131st Battery fired salvoes signifying the silence, while the Pipe Band played the Lament. Brief remarks were given by President Kirby of Branch 70 and by W. M. Cottingham, M.P.P., followed by the laying of the wreaths.

Earlier in the day approximately 70 members paraded to Ste. Anastasie Church for the 11 a.m. service.

The previous evening about 125 veterans and guests enjoyed an Armistice dinner, prepared and served by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

After the toast to the Queen by Cde. E. Evans, the highlight of the whole affair was the presentation of life membership in the Legion to Cde. William "Bill" Blakely. (See elsewhere in this issue.)

Cde. C. Duncan presented suitable gifts, to behalf of the group committee of the Boy Scouts, to two retiring patrol leaders, Cde. R. Dawson and Brian Noble.

Following brief remarks by the chairman, Cde. Jos. Martell, by Cde. Geo. Kirby and Mayor Cde. D. Campbell, the Ladies' Auxiliary were called in and thanked, and a toast to them proposed by Cde. Geo. Leggett. A social evening concluded this highly successful affair.

"Ship the Safe Way"

Lachute W. Inst. intrigued by talk on Duke's conference

The regular monthly meeting of the Lachute Women's Institute was held in the High School on Tuesday of last week, with the president, Mrs. Angus Taylor, in charge.

Mr. A. G. Leggett introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mr. Roger Regimbal, personnel manager of Ayers Limited. Mr. Regimbal was a member of the Duke of Edinburgh's Study Conference held last spring, and spoke of his experiences with the group.

He illustrated his address with two films. The first film showed the Duke, the former Governor-General, Vincent Massey, and Mr. Jodoin (Canadian Congress of Labor) being interviewed by Blair Fraser as to the aims and hopes of the Conference. The Duke stated that the Conference was being held to study the effects of Industry on the youth, lives, health and welfare of rural communities. In the course of the interview one was struck by the simplicity of the Duke's manner, his breadth of knowledge, his deep interest in humanity — here indeed, one felt was a man who though he walks with kings, has not lost the common touch.

The members were from all the countries of the Commonwealth, and from all walks of life — some labor, some management. They were to find out all they could, from close contact with the workers of the different plants they visited, of how that industry had affected their lives. Had it bettered their living standards or had they been better off before it came to the district?

The members of the Conference began their observations in Newfoundland and continued across Canada to the Pacific Coast. It was no pleasure jaunt — no sidetrips to luxurious camps for fishing or hunting — but hard work from morning till night, indeed, often far into the night, gathering facts, assessing information, tabulating their findings and making reports to Group Chairmen. Mr. Regimbal was very impressed with how the people responded to their questions, how they opened their homes and their hearts to the searching questions asked them.

In the second film, a member from each of the Commonwealth countries identified himself and his country, gave his status at home, and told to which group he belonged. Then he answered a long list of questions, such as: "What impressed you most? What did you see that you didn't expect to see? How do Canadian conditions of labor, home life, standards of living compare with those in your own land?" Many members answered that they were impressed by the fact that almost every family had a car, or two; that almost every home had a number of electric gadgets to lighten housework. Some were awed by the vast distances to be traversed in Canada, and others were overwhelmed by the fringe benefits accruing to workers from "the Company". Some naturally preferred their own ways of doing things, and one was quite sure that women should only be employed after all the men were working.

So vivid were Mr. Regimbal's word pictures and films, that the Institute members felt they too "had been there", had met these fascinating people of the Commonwealth, had learned from them how little difference language, color, and religion make when you really get to know the people. . . And in these troubled times, is that not a long step in the right direction?

Mrs. Clarke thanked the speaker.

Arnold sentence $4,500 fine, day in jail

Sentence against Jeffrey Arnold, of Grenville, vice-president of Arnold Farms Ltd., who pleaded guilty in Criminal Assizes to a charge of forging a veterinarian's signature on meat exportation certificates, was handed down on Monday, November 12, by the presiding judge, Camille de Martigny, in court at St. Jerome.

Mr. Arnold was sentenced to one day in jail (which he elected to serve immediately) and a fine totalling $4,500 plus costs. The penalty assessed a fine on 15 specific counts, for falsifying inspector's permits to accompany shipments of meat across the American border.

Representing the federal government in this case was Lawyer L. P. Landry, from the Department of Justice, while Fernand Legault, Q.C., acted as crown prosecutor.

Grant fulfilled for labor cost in filtration job

The Town of Lachute has just received $51,221.70 as the last instalment of a $79,247 total grant towards winter works projects, specifically, the town filtration plant. This is under the federal-provincial aid plan to encourage public works in the season of highest unemployment.

The federal-provincial agreement applies only to the cost of labor in these projects. The federal government contributes 50 per cent, the provincial government 40 per cent, and the municipality defrays the remaining 10 per cent of the cost.

Tree Farm becomes property of Arundel School

A 125-acre tree farm was deeded by Canadian International Paper Company to Arundel Intermediate School recently, as a result of a successful effort by its 165 students to manage the area according to sound principles of conservation.

The area was placed at the disposal of the student body three years ago by C.I.P.'s Grenville division as a practical outdoor laboratory for conservation knowledge. It is managed by the Student Council, with the guidance of a tree farm committee composed of adults, two of whom are appointed by the students. Technical assistance is provided by the company's Harrington Forest Farm staff.

Hounds valued over $1,000 shot recently at St. Placide

Isaac Hunter's "Rod and Gun" column in Tuesday's Montreal Gazette gives the following story and comment concerning an incident near St. Placide. . . .

Every person who owns a dog should be interested in what befell three little hounds a week ago Sunday. The three dogs were being run by Frank Kleindienst in a patch of rabbit bush north of St. Placide, when they were shot with a .22 rifle for no apparent reason other than the impulse which seems to actuate all too many people in the bush with a gun — to kill every living creature. Kliendienst heard the shots and couldn't account for them. That bush is not deer territory and the shots were obviously from a .22, which a new and controversial law prohibits for use against partridge and hare.

Mr. Kleindienst hastened to investigate . . . and found one of his dogs crippled and bleeding from a bullet wound. Another in the same plight was nearby. He could not at once find the third but he found a set of man's tracks, which he followed with all haste. They led him to the road and a car in which a man and a small boy were about to take off. The man had a single-shot .22 rifle. He declared: "I didn't shoot your dogs." But the dog owner seized the keys of the car and held the man there until the arrival of the Provincial Police. They seized the gun but did not hold the man, a resident of Ste. Scholastique.

Mr. Kleindienst sought legal advice early in the week and further developments are awaited with interest.

More than a thousand dollars worth of dog flesh is involved in this outrage.

One of the dogs was shot through a shoulder. The lungs were pierced and the bullet lodged just under the skin on the opposite side. It was recovered in an operation by a veterinary and ballistics may prove whether or not it came from the rifle of the man intercepted by Mr. Kleindienst. That man didn't even have a license. In any event this case might well give the Department of Game and Fisheries an opportunity to prosecute under their new anti-.22 regulation.

Choral Society solicits members

Rehearsals for the annual Christmas Chorale are now in preparation. There is still time for new members to join this worthwhile musical organization. The president, Mrs. Mason Crosby, of Brownsburg, and the secretary, Mr. Bernard Hewitt, of Lachute, will be pleased to give all information to interested singers. This group is directed by Mr. Lowell B. Hopkins.

The Christmas Chorale will feature songs and carols of many lands, and has now become an institution of the pre-Christmas season, providing pleasure for hundreds of people in these regions. The singers, from Lachute, Brownsburg, Kilmar and nearby regions, assemble in the Lachute United Church every Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. (This Sunday would possibly mark the last date for enrolment of singers for this Christmas music.)

Driver permits good to May 31; 2-year issue

The current 1962 driver's permits are valid until May 31, 1963 — by authority of an amendment to the Quebec Highway Code adopted at last session of the legislature.

The new driving permits to be issued at the beginning of May will be valid for a period of two years.

Official instructions to this effect have been received by the district registrar from Roland Baribeau, director of the Motor Vehicle Bureau at Quebec.

Human bones believed remains of skiing victim

Montreal — Provincial medico-legal experts were called upon to examine human bones discovered Sunday on a farm at St. Sauveur, in the Laurentians.

A Provincial Police spokesman reported preliminary investigation has led police to believe the remains could be that of a skiing accident victim two years ago.

The grim discovery was made early Sunday in a ravine on a farm, police said. A set of skis, boots and personal papers were also found. The papers, police added, will undoubtedly reveal the identity of the victim after being studied by experts.

Husband guilty of murder attempt

St. Jerome — Gerald Chabot, 40, a resident of Brownsburg, pleaded guilty last Thursday to a charge of attempted murder.

He had been held since last August 12 after trying to choke his wife, Delah.

Sentence was set for December 12 by Judge Claude Prevost. The prosecutor in this case is Fernand Legault, Q.C.

Young cyclist hit at Barron's bridge

Randy Rendell, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Rendell, 481 Thomas Street, escaped serious injury on Saturday afternoon when he apparently fell in front of a car with his bicycle, on the eastern approach to Barron's Bridge.

According to municipal police, the child fell from his bicycle as he was leaving the bridge. He climbed on the bike again, then apparently fell in front of a car driven by Claude Pilon, 22, of 462 Lafleur Street, who was headed in a westerly direction on Main Street.

The child was treated at the scene of the accident. Transported to the Providence Hospital by the police emergency vehicle, he was released following a thorough examination.

Quebec election — retrospect and analysis; renewed call for shorter campaigning

"QUEBEC THIS WEEK" — By Gerry McNeil

Quebec, Nov. 16 CP — The re-elected Liberal government got down to work within hours after Quebec voters had increased its strength in the legislature.

The Lesage cabinet held a meeting the day after the election to begin work on legislation required to take over 11 private power companies, the issue on which the snap election was called.

Premier Jean Lesage, 50, looking fit after the campaign, also said the cabinet would review legislation to overhaul the Farm Marketing Board Act and laws affecting Co-operatives.

Before the meeting, the premier said he would not take a holiday before Christmas, but three hours later he emerged to tell reporters his ministers had ordered him to take a rest. "I feel in good condition except for my voice," he said.

The premier said a cabinet shuffle will be announced within the next two weeks. A replacement would have to be found for André Rousseau, defeated Industry and Commerce minister.

Observers considered it likely Lucien Cliché, now Municipal Affairs minister, would become Attorney-General, with Georges Lapalme who has long wanted to drop his portfolio concentrating on his duties as Cultural Affairs minister.

Mr. Lapalme, injured in a car accident just before the campaign ended, was expected to be in hospital for several weeks. He suffered two broken ribs near the spine and doctors said calcium deposits were also aggravated by the accident, causing severe pain.

The accident brought a renewed call for shorter election campaigns. Resources minister René Levesque said that with modern means of communications, campaigns should be no longer than one month. This campaign lasted seven weeks. Observers recalled that Daniel Johnson, Union Nationale leader, risked his neck to go to the Magdalen Islands during bad weather, and Premier Lesage flew through snowstorms and was driven over slippery roads while campaigning. The terrific energy expended by politicians during a campaign — energy that could be spent on Legislative affairs — also was cited as a reason for shorter compaigns.

The election gave the Liberals 63 seats, the Union Nationale 31, and left Frank Hanley, an Independent, filling the remaining seat.

Before dissolution the house standing was — Liberals 54, Union Nationale 40, Independent 1. It was a record vote, 2,130,000 Quebecers going to the polls.

Observers noted that although the Union Nationale saw five of its former cabinet ministers defeated, its freshmen candidates had better luck, in some cases defeating Liberal members.

"This is not a defeated party, it is a party that has 42 percent of the vote, well distributed," Léon Dion, a Laval University political science professor, noted. "It's not about to collapse." He felt the Union Nationale promise of a $1-an-hour minimum wage had backfired, while its appeal for Social Credit votes had not gained much support and alienated voters who opposed Social Credit. The political scientist felt the campaign had enhanced Premier Lesage's reputation in his party, pointing up his ability as a vote-getter and statesman. "It will put an end to rumors that the premier is run by his lieutenants."

Centre d'Art sponsors puppet opera and ballet

On the stage at Cinema Lachute this Saturday, November 24, at 2.30 p.m. the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil is proud to present the "Marionnettes de Montréal", in a program consisting of two major works that have been acclaimed both in Europe and in the United States.

The first is an opera by Mozart, "Bastien and Bastienne". The opera was composed by Mozart at the age of 12, and will be performed by the marionettes, on a sound track made in France.

The second work is a beautiful ballet by Claude Debussy, "La Boite à Joujoux".

The "Marionnettes de Montréal" are directed by Micheline Legendre, who is the first string puppet director in Canada. She has been official delegate for Canada in many international puppet festivals, the last one being in Warsaw, Poland, last summer, where she was requested to give a two-hour performance on the Polish television network.

The program given in Lachute this Saturday will appeal to both young and adults. Tickets will be on sale at the theatre.

European Market subject of talk at Rotary Club

Last week's meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was an inter-club meeting with the Hawkesbury Rotarians, held in the Legion Hall at Hawkesbury. There was a very large turn-out of Rotarians from both clubs to hear the guest speaker, Mr. Wilf Lavoie, of the Department of Trade and Commerce, who gave a talk on the European Common Market and its impact on Canada. Wilf gave a brief outline of the purpose of the Common Market, the strong unity the countries participating in it would enjoy, and the advantages and disadvantages for Canada if she were to join.

The discourse showed that this speaker had been following the subject very closely, and had devoted much effort to the preparation of his topic.

Jack Young and Doug Allen, both of the Hawkesbury Rotary Club, introduced and thanked the speaker very capably on behalf of the large gathering of Rotarians present.

Women painters in exhibition at Centre d'Art

The journal Revue Moderne featured in its October issue an illustrated article on women artists of Quebec. . . . "Unique phenomen; Women are prominent among our best painters", said the sub-title.

Rita Letendre, Lise Gervais, Marcelle Maltais, Monique Voyer, Marcelle Ferron and Henriette Fauteux-Massé were among names starred in this story. In full justice to these artists, they are well known not only in Quebec, but several of them uphold the pre-eminence of Canadian art in exhibitions and galleries abroad.

The Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil is opening its Art season for 1962-63 with an exhibition by 14 women artists of international quality, adding to other noted names that of Janine Leroux, a Montrealer, native to these parts, who has specially excelled in the art of engraving.

"Women Painters of Quebec" is an exhibition assembled by co-operation of five Montreal galleries — Agnes Lefort, Denyse Delrue, Camille Hebert, Galerie Libre and Gérard Lortie. It will be opened here November 25, on view to the public from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. daily until December 9 inclusive. A special invitation is extended to teachers and their pupils.

This feature and a stage performance at the Cinema Lachute this Saturday, are arranged in keeping with the policy of the Centre d'Art to present high-quality productions for interest of the local public.

Naval rank of Petty Officer

KENNETH TOMALTY

Among 33 technical apprentices at the Naval Technical School at Esquimalt, B.C., Kenneth Tomalty of Brownsburg graduated just recently with the rank of Petty Officer in the RCN. Graduation ceremonies were held on the parade ground of HMCS Naden. The apprentices started their 39-month course July 1959, after 15 weeks of basic training at HMCS Cornwallis, near Digby, N.S.

Kenneth is the son of Mrs. Howard Tomalty, of Brownsburg.

Meeting held by B'burg Red Cross

The Brownsburg Red Cross Society held their November meeting in the Social Club last Monday evening.

Business of the meeting was discussed. There was a bank balance of $25, while the loan cupboard was busy, with 12 items loaned and 10 returned. There were 162 sewing articles and 55 knitted articles shipped to headquarters. Sincere thanks were expressed to the Frontier W.I. for a quilt which they had donated to the Red Cross; also a gift of $10 was received.

The next blood clinic will be held on September 23, 1963.

All persons interested in the work of Red Cross are urgently asked to attend the next regular meeting, to be held in Brownsburg Social Club on December 10.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

A group of boys who do considerable upland shooting were discussing the scarcity of partridge in this County. The talk seemed to indicate the fact that never has this type of shooting been so bad. Only in a few odd instances have I heard of fair shooting on this game bird — and not in this County. It can't be the lack of feed or nesting materials on hand, nor have the winters been too severe. In the last couple of years there has been very little rain during the cold spells, so that suffocation of the birds under the snow cannot be blamed. True, the snares for rabbits take a terrific toll of these birds; it's surprising just how many will be taken this way, and we know nothing of it. Poachers are always a menace — but even they cannot be blamed for the decline of the partridge. There are always those who explain that the cycle of upland birds is responsible; however, this seems to be illogical too. The steady decline in this species during the past ten years should warn us that something is wrong. We seem to have missed up somewhere. Conservation is not a short-view problem, but rather a long-range program. It is going to take a lot of effort to rectify this depletion. Let's hope it is not too late...

Deer are naturally in the news, and some of these animals have been of considerable size. The largest I have heard of is one taken around Dalesville that makes you wonder, 306 lbs. Our first thought is — it just can't be. However, the huge specimen around Labelle the other week, with pictures in the press, proves that it can be so. Certainly they do not as a rule approach this weight, but it is possible. Actually we know so little about nature and her ways, that we should take nothing for granted. I'm not forgetting the deer crossed with a moose that was seen by me a couple of seasons ago. This animal was killed by one of the Brownsburg gunners; and before seeing it I would have said, it just could not happen.

River fishing has been very poor. Cold and wet, and no fish — not even a small perch. However, it won't be too long now before the ice fishing starts. I think more people will be getting into this type of fishing; it seems more and more people are thinking of winter sports than ever before. Not all of us can ski or snowshoe, but we can freeze as well as the next one, while fishing. However, with all the new types of clothing on the market today this is really not necessary. Besides, there's always that brand of medication to combat the cold for awhile.

I have not mentioned dogs lately, but this is still a very serious affair, one that is not being checked. From personal experience I know that numbers of them are running wild. Don't get the idea these are wolves, they are not, as the Game Wardens will tell you. Some stock should be taken about this menace. I have mentioned before a running dog is invariably more destructive than a wild animal. I do not like to keep repeating this, but the trouble is there, and the carnage is imminent.

A visit by Snow Geese on the river this week, intrigued me. Flocks of different sizes; there must have been about 60 of these birds around. A very distinctive type they are, easily spotted and identified. In different parts of the country they have different names, White Brant, White Wavy, Kang-a-wak, etc. They are all one and the same, however — pure white plumage with black wing-tips, and a slightly reddish bill. It isn't often they are seen in this part of the country. There were a few during my sojourn on Main Duck Island, but at that time they had never been seen before in that particular district. The natural fly-away for them is either the Pacific or the Atlantic, so it would take a very heavy storm to drive these birds so far inland. It can be presumed this is what happened. Also four Brant are around the district; they landed here near White's Bridge and have stayed for several days. These are not larger than a fair-sized Mallard. Black head and neck, dark back, with distinctive whitish sides. These birds winter on the Atlantic Coast up to North Carolina, not too often down as far as Florida; they seem to be a cold-weather bird. It is sure nice to have them around. Fast, with rapid wing beats, they are hard to hit.

A call last evening about a moose. One was spotted near Lake Macdonald, and it seems to have been hurt. The caller couldn't tell me whether it was shot or injured in some other manner. Walking slowly and in evident pain, it probably had been hit by some hot-shot hunter.

Panic and just what it means, is aptly illustrated in this story: There were five persons in a boat that overturned. One stayed alive because his feet were on the bottom, the water being only chest high. The four others drowned. Hard to believe, isn't it?

With bad weather approaching, this may be of interest to the outdoors fraternity. How about making some feed boxes and keep them supplied with feed for the birds? I don't mean just around town, although this would be a great attraction, but rather, take them into the bush and make regular patrols filling them up. As for the town, maybe a few feeders scattered around would enliven the place during the winter. There are plenty of spots where they could be placed, illustrating to outsiders that we love our birds.

There are a few of our local sportsmen who are going to try winter camping; at least, so they say. We have excellent country for this type of recreation, and it will be an unforgettable experience. Winter gear has been all the talk for the past couple of weeks, and I really think they will give it a whirl. I hope they do — and learn just what they have been missing all these years. For my part, it has a lot of advantages over summer; the first is the cleanliness of the countryside — no dust, dirt, flies, etc. O.K., so you can't go in swimming, but if you happen to be the hardy type, you can always roll in the snow with the temperature hitting 30 below. I imagine this would be an invigorating experience!

Seriously though, this is great fun — not diving into a snow drift, just the winter camping.

Ladies' Curling at Brownsburg

Ladies' activities at the Brownsburg Curling Club got off to a fine start this fall with practically all the members of the Ladies' Branch signing up for the first bonspiel, which started November 5.

Twelve out of town teams were entertained at a "friendly" on Thursday of last week. The Club de Granite, from Montebello, were the winners in the morning, and Wentworth Club took top honors in the afternoon.

Two Brownsburg teams have entered the invitation bonspiel taking place this week in Lachute.

NEW FIRE SCHOOL

Montreal (CP) — The city fire department's new $1,250,000 training school will be in full operation next spring. Chief Instructor Terence Butler says the school will make Montreal firemen "second to none on the North American continent within five years."

The ground is presently being frozen hard and soon the snow will be here to start another big season on the "hickories" (now a pretty well defunct word since the introduction of metal skis).

I trust everyone has been keeping in fairly good shape by participating in many of the summer sports, such as water skiing, golf or swimming. If not, I suggest you get down to some serious exercises, a few of which I will talk about in next week's column.

I would like to devote most of this article to the forthcoming Warren Miller ski movie to be shown at the L.H.S. auditorium. This might well be one of the most pleasurable evenings for anyone whether or not they are skiers. I have personally seen this movie and know you would find it an evening well spent.

Names like Aspen, Colorado; Chamohix, France; Sun Valley, Idaho; Sugarbush, Vermont; Innsbuck, Austria — all magic names when skiers are around and all of them are locales in "Swingin' Skis".

Miller, who has travelled more than one million miles in every conceivable type of conveyance, seeking out skiing subjects around the world for his highly entertaining films, provides on sound track an interesting and informative narration for the 90-minute film, which will be in full color and feature a complete musical background.

Such ski greats as Stein Ericksen, Jano Tournier, and Peter Estin are among the hundreds of snow pounders who performed for Miller's battery of cameras.

I sincerely hope everyone will make a special effort to see this movie, not only for the enjoyment they will receive, but to help out the junior skiers to whom the proceeds will go.

In addition to the movie, a fashion show with all the latest trends will be held at intermission, and door prizes valued at over $200 will be given away to holders of the lucky numbers.

After the movie, a short meeting will be held for the Ram Ski Club, for the election of officers for the coming season. A booth will also be set up for information or registration into the club.

All in all, I trust everyone will make this, our first real ski event of the season, a big success. (See more on page 5.)

New stamp issues in year 1963

The Canada Post Office Department's program of new stamp issues for 1963 was announced during a speech to the annual reunion of the Hamilton and Buffalo Philatelic Societies in Hamilton by the Hon. Ellen L. Fairclough, Postmaster General. The program as announced by the Postmaster General includes three commemorative and six regular issue stamps.

On February 4, the 1¢ and 4¢ denominations of the new Queen Elizabeth II series will be released. The 2¢ and 3¢ stamps in this series will go on sale May 2. The first stamp in the series, the 5¢ denomination, was released last month.

A new 15¢ stamp will be issued on September 30 replacing the "gannet" design presently in use. The new stamp shows four Canada Geese in full flight. The release of this stamp will mean that two Canadian stamps will have Canada Geese in their design and Mrs. Fairclough indicated that the present 7¢ stamp which now depicts a single Canada Goose, would be redesigned for release in 1964. The new $1 stamp, which will go on sale to the public on June 14, depicts a scene illustrating Canada's export markets.

Among the new stamps to be issued is a commemorative, which had previously been announced, honoring the birth of Sir Casimir Gzowski. This stamp will be released on March 5. Other commemoratives include a stamp honoring the northern explorer Sir Martin Frobisher to be released July 29, and a stamp to commemorate the bicentennial of the opening of the first Post Offices, in what later became the Province of Canada, at Quebec City, Montreal and Three Rivers. This stamp goes on sale August 23.

NEW RAILWAY YARDS INTEREST VISITORS

Winnipeg (CP) — People of all ages, including children who never before had seen a train, were attracted on a two-hour tour of the new Symington marshalling yard of the CNR.

Because of the interest shown in the new yard the railway announced further tours. A total of 1,500 went on the first Saturday tour.

The new push-button yard at St. Boniface is typical of the modern automated marshalling yards. The visitors saw loaded freight cars rolling down the hump and into the various groups of classification tracks, while railway employees explained the features of the operation.

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane

The most annoying driver on the nation's streets and highways today is the fellow I call the "get-ahead-at-any-cost" character.

He operates at his best (or worst) in heavy traffic when cars are bumper to bumper and moving slowly. He has but one simple thought, worthy of a simple mind, and that is to get ahead at any cost.

You know how he operates: he rides his horn viciously, takes pressing advantage of even the slightest opening to wedge and force his way in, cuts dangerously and sharply in front of cars, and weaves in and out of traffic lanes with utter and senseless abandon. Some of the more demented drivers of this type even falsely signal left or right turns to prevent cars behind from moving up to their regular places.

The get-ahead-at-any-cost driver is not only a totally unprincipled driver — he is a downright dangerous one. Your best method of dealing with him is to hold your rightful place in heavy traffic, fairly and firmly, refusing to be intimidated into giving way so he can force ahead another 10 feet or so.

Sooner or later every "get-ahead-at-any-cost" driver pays the bill, and it's usually an expensive one for getting ahead in traffic — all of a single car's length.

TO ELECTORS AND READERS OF LACHUTE WATCHMAN

My sincere thanks to my chief organizer and his wife, for the tremendous job they performed during the recent electoral campaign. I am also very grateful to all the organizers, who did everything in their power to make a success of this campaign. If we failed, it was not due to them. Argenteuil voted for deadwood because we were disunited. Remorse will follow those dissatisfied Liberals who were responsible for the County voting for the opposition.

We will reform our ranks in Argenteuil with true Liberals who have faith in the Hon. Jean Lesage and his government.

I again thank everyone who voted for the Liberal party and myself. They can be sure that I will continue to help them all.

Thank you and au revoir.

Witnesses held circuit assembly

Mr. B. Miller, presiding minister of the English congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses here, who headed the local delegation to their semi-annual circuit assembly in Rosemount High School, Montreal, last week-end, described it as "a stimulating gathering".

"The assembly theme was 'Spread the Word of Life'," said Mr. B. Miller, and what made it live was the practical demonstrations on just how everyone, young and old, can make effective neighborhood return visits, so that persons seeking Bible knowledge will really benefit and look forward to such visits to their homes.

"However, the highlight of the convention," said Mr. Miller, "was the public meeting on Sunday. Mr. Saumur, district supervisor for Quebec, delivered the timely address, 'The Bible's Answer to Our Problem of Survival', to a record audience of 955."

Mr. Saumur said, "By their feverish offensive-defensive measures for what they see coming, nations are following a policy that offers no hope to mankind. This is especially so in view of their foolishly overlooking the greatest threat to their very existence, namely, 'The war of the great day of God, the Almighty', Armageddon."

Then on a hopeful note Mr. Saumer said, "But no matter how disquieting the statements of their fear may be, there is an authoritative Bible message of survival being proclaimed all over the world."

In a stirring conclusion, he urged, "God's Kingdom is the real answer to our problem of survival! Study about it, believe in it, find your place in it and live by it."

"Amelia Guitard, Rolly and Gladys Dowd, of the Lachute area, were among the 26 new ministers dedicated on this occasion to serve God, by water baptism," said Mr. B. Miller.

Says 'nomadic Canadians' are killing the country church

Canadians are in danger of becoming a nation of irreligious nomads, with families moving too often to maintain their church ties, says the Rt. Rev. James R. Mutchmor, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, in Liberty magazine.

"More than 700,000 (one in four) Canadian families move every year," the Rev. Mr. Mutchmor said. "This is one of the factors contributing to the decrease in church attendance. Another factor is the automobile. There is no longer a need for many small country churches when congregations can be combined at nearby centres."

Mutchmor claims 60% of his church's congregations still live in centres of 2,000 population, or under. In its race to keep up with its moving flock, he claims the United Church must build a church a week.

Arguing in the same issue of the magazine, novelist Hugh Garner claims our churches are "silly, smug and sterile". He claims: "people have grown up intellectually, rejecting mythology, and have changed to an enlightened city economy."

In reply, Mutchmor denies that change means decay. "Consider the recent reduction from four to one of the United Church's Newfoundland-based mission boats — a 75% reduction. But that's no evidence of church failure. Recently-built roads and causeways wiped out isolation in much of Newfoundland, so mission boats are not needed as formerly."

The individual has changed too, the Moderator agrees. "With the constant threat of nuclear war, man's thoughts have shifted from a sense of guilt to one of doubt. Man can no longer be held by 'fire-and-brimstone' sermons. But throughout the ages, the Church has adapted her message to the needs of succeeding generations."

"The Church still contains many positive and creative elements, even though many social and welfare activities have been taken over by more efficient government agencies," Mutchmor said. "Consider her work in prisons and hospitals; her aid to the unemployed and the transient; her service to the Armed Forces, miners, farmers and lonely families on the east and west coasts. Heads of political parties and governments in Canada are church followers."

Garner charges the reason so many religious men are in politics today is because they recognized the futility of trying to do anything worthwhile through their churches. Among the ministers who left the Church to become politicians were Aberhart and Manning, Tommy Douglas, J. K. Knowles and J. S. Woodsworth.

Top-flight ski movie here Nov. 24

Regardless of what the weatherman or the calendar may have to say, the 1962-63 skiing season in this area will begin at 8 p.m. on Saturday, November 24, in Lachute High School auditorium.

Why? . . That's when presentation will be made of the 90-minute sound-color ski film "Swingin' Skis". This film is by Warren Miller, Hollywood-based skier-photographer.

Miller's 11th annual production is a potpourri of high-speed action, awe-inspiring scenery and comedy-on-skis filmed at top resorts in this country and abroad.

The world's great and near-great skiers — Ericksen of Norway, Jochum of Austria and Pitou of America among their number — are the stars.

The Ram Ski Club will sponsor the showing of the film, which has Warren Miller's own narration on sound track, with full musical background.

Tickets will be available at $1.25 for adults and 75c for children, at the door.

OLD FRIEND RETIRES

Recently at the Legion Hall we had an evening for Mrs. Florence Lister, who retired after 32 years' service with our company. Over 100 of her Bell friends attended and presented her with a Lazy-Boy chair for her leisure days. She was also presented with the traditional "president's wallet" and her life membership in the Pioneers Club, and spent a happy evening renewing friendships made over the years. Our picture shows Mrs. Lister receiving the president's wallet from H. Elliott, Building Supervisor.

AREA CODES SPEED LONG DISTANCE CALLS

Beginning December 2, the Area Code for long distance calling to the Ontario communities of Peterborough, Lindsay, Beaverton and surrounding centres changes to 705. When calling long distance you'll find it helps to know the Area Code for the community you wish to reach. North America has been divided into Numbering Plan Areas (NPA) for long distance purposes, and each NPA is identified by a three-figure Area Code. Area Codes for many centres on this continent are listed in the introductory pages of your telephone directory. Lachute, for instance, together with Montreal and St. Jerome, is in the 514 area. Anyone outside this area calling you should associate this Area Code with your number. If for example, they were calling the Lachute telephone number LO 2-2494, they should consider the full number as 514-LO 2-2494. The same principle applies to calls WE make outside our own NPA. (Long distance calls placed within the Numbering Plan Area do not require the Area Code). Those who dial their own long distance calls by Direct Distance Dialing find it saves time if they know the Area Code of the place they're calling. Also if you place long distance calls through an operator, you'll find it goes through smoother if you give the Area Code. May we suggest that you give your Area Code along with your telephone number to your out-of-town friends and business acquaintances. It will help to speed their calls to you.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Education not a provincial monopoly

THE DIRECTORS of the Canadian Home and School Parent-Teacher Federation have approved the principle of an organization to coordinate all federal activities in the field of education. Ottawa is surprisingly active in what many people think of as a provincial monopoly.

The Federal government is concerned with the education of Indian and Eskimo children; schools in military bases; financial support for universities and for the building of vocational schools; retraining of the unemployed; gathering of educational statistics; the CBC educational programs, and so on.

At present there is no one minister responsible for these activities and probably no one aware of all of them. Possibly the Federal government shies away from coordination because of provincial sensitivities in this field.

Neither Home and School nor the Canadian School Trustees, who also support the idea of a federal office, have any designs on provincial autonomy. They want to regularize an existing situation and hope that this will bring more efficiency into some of the operations.

However, there may be opportunities for greater cooperation between Ottawa and the provinces in such fields as research, interprovincial movement of pupils, teacher qualifications, vocational training, adult education, and so on. The Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation is studying this complex problem and hopes to come up with helpful suggestions.

A check on unintentioned menace

WHEN MRS. O'TOOLE sends a shamrock from dear old Ireland to her Canadian friend — probably in a box containing a little earth shot through with living organisms — she's being sentimental at the risk of introducing another agricultural menace to this country.

Fortunately the federal Plant Protection Division, with an assist from the Post Office, will dispose of the potential trouble-maker in the incinerator and hope Mrs. O'Toole won't do it again.

And the holidaying U.S. couple who packed a few tasty colorful Newfoundland potatoes to grow in their own backyard, will have these potatoes politely confiscated as they leave the province and will be reminded that potato wart, most serious of all potato diseases, could be spread by this means.

These are two of many instances when a little prevention can save millions of dollars.

The bible of the Plant Protection Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, is the Destructive Insect and Pest Act of 1910.

The Act and its oft-amended regulations, up-dated as recently as 1960, contain some 20,000 words framed to prevent the introduction or spreading of insects, pests and diseases injurious to vegetation.

Freedom from hunger

ONE OF THE chief hopes for a better world — the global war against hunger — is showing encouraging signs of progress.

About 100 member nations of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization now are taking part in the Freedom from Hunger Campaign that was launched two years ago.

Studies by the FAO show that more than one-third of the world's 3,000,000,000 people suffer some form of malnutrition. And between 300,000,000 and 500,000,000 people never get enough food in terms of quantity.

Dr. B. R. Sen, director-general of FAO, says the leading function of the Freedom from Hunger Campaign is to educate the public about the challenge to mankind, and to act as a forum in which the facts can be discussed and remedies found.

But the campaign is also a base and a starting point for action projects aimed at solving these problems. Projects totalling $20,000,000 now have been initiated in many parts of the underdeveloped areas of the world, financed by national fund drives or provided by non-governmental groups and agencies.

Typical projects are the fertilizer program to boost crops in 13 countries, and the Middle East wheat and barley program to increase these crops that supply at least half the calories needed daily by 130,000,000 people living in that region, as well as most of the feed for their livestock.

Two projects expected to go into operation soon will be supported by Canadian voluntary groups. One will provide a training centre for food science and technology at Mysore, India, at a cost of $300,000. The other, to establish fruit and vegetable gardens at schools in the Sudan and teach basic principles of nutrition, will be financed by the Canadian Junior Red Cross at a cost of $125,000.

An outgrowth of the Freedom from Hunger Campaign is the UN's world food program under which surplus food products to the value of $100,000,000 are being contributed to combat famine and chronic food shortages.

The Freedom from Hunger Campaign has a much larger objective — nothing less than the permanent removal of the threat of starvation which was hung over some areas for centuries.

A highlight of the campaign will be the World Food Congress at Washington in June, 1963. Earlier, in the last week of March, will be held a "World Freedom from Hunger Week" to remind everyone of the facts of hunger.

This would appear to be one special week that everyone can sincerely support.

Viewpoints and perspectives

DO YOU "JUST BELONG"?

Are you an Active Member, the kind that would be missed?
Or are you just content that your name is on the list?
Do you attend the meetings, and mingle with the flock?
Or do you stay at home and criticize and knock?
Do you ever go to visit a member who is sick?
Or leave the work to just a few, and talk about a "Clique"?

So come to meetings often, and help with hand and heart,
Don't be just a member, but take an active part,
Think this over, Friend, you know right from wrong,
Take an active part and help the work along . . .
Are you an active member or do you "just belong?"

NO HEADLINES — The results of common sense driving are evidenced by accidents that never happened — by headlines that were never printed. That's the big safety story. It's a story that happens so often it isn't news to the public. But it is news — and good news — to those it happens to.

ELECTORS' DEMANDS. — It would be easier for either of the traditionally strong Canadian parties to follow strong principles of financing of social welfare or economic planning, if they were not pushed continuously into greater give-away programs by a large block of voters, interested only in what they can get from their country.

FILE AND FORGET. — Providing larger wastepaper baskets for federal civil servants would pay off in streamlined operations. Instead of having three carbon copies made of all documents to be destroyed, the documents would reach the oversize baskets, thus cutting down labor costs and costs of storing unused material. — Gibsons (B.C) Coast News

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 25, 1887 —

Thirty-five deaths from diphtheria occurred in Montreal last week.

A law in Oregon requires bicycle riders to stop 100 yards from any person driving in the opposite direction with a team, and remain stationary until the team has passed.

Last week a son of the late Thomas Evans was drowned at the residence of his grandfather, Mr. Thos. Pollock, Hill Head.

The Bradford U.S.S. has closed for the winter months. For a new school, it has done remarkably well, the average attendance being 43 and the total number of verses recited being 5,177.

The revival meetings continue to be a big attraction. Every night Henry's Church is filled to overflowing.

Will some person please commit a theft, elope, get drowned, or do some great feat in order to provide us with some news?

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, Nov. 22, 1912 —

The Carillon dam is to be exploited for the generating of electric power to the extent of 160,000 horsepower (this is guess work) by Mr. Henry Miles, president of a company which proposes to spend $10-million on the project — when it gets it . . . Carillon dam is one of the sights of that Sleepy Hollow on the Ottawa River. It was commenced over 35 years ago, took several years to complete, and cost in the neighborhood of $5-million. It was created in order to fill the new canal to circumvent the rapids at that spot, which were always a great hindrance to navigation and the rafting of lumber.

Messrs. Gilbert Demerse, Austin Boyd and Garnet Shaw have returned home from the West for the winter monts.

On December 3, Mr. J. A. McKenzie, B.A.,B.D., will be ordained as assistant to the Rev. J. L. George, recently-inducted minister of the Lachute Presbyterian Church.

There is deep mourning among our Catholic friends over the death of Father Ouimet, 67, who was the founder of the first church when Lachute was in its primitive days. The remains will be buried at St. Hermas.

The Rev. H. W. Cliff has been invited to become pastor of a congregation in the Brockville presbytery.

The Recreation Club at St. Andrews will hold a debate on "Resolved that it is not for the welfare of the country that women have equal voting privilege with men."

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, Nov. 25, 1937 —

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight title-holder, while in Lachute renewing acquaintance with his former ring colleague, Paul LaHaye, was escorted to the Ayers Mills, Wilson Paper Company and Lachute High School.

Mr. John (Jake) Rodger, 82, of East Settlement, was the victim of a fatal auto crash, while he was driving home after making several calls in Lachute.

Mr. Howard Jones left recently for Comeau Bay, Que., where he has been engaged as manager of Kelly's Store.

Wilbert Sherritt, of Lakefield, shot a 200-lb. black bear in a big maple tree near his home.

Mr. W. D. Stewart has been appointed Bank of Nova Scotia manager here succeeding Mr. G. J. Cheley, who has been transferred to Toronto.

Fortunat Larose, 52-year-old resident of Riviere Rouge, fell dead in his wagon — death being due to natural causes.

The Boy Scouts' toy repair shop is now operating, in the Farmers' Supply Co. building on Foundry Street.

In the basement of St. Jerome court house, 101 slot machines were destroyed by detectives of the Provincial Police.

St. Andrews Boy Scouts have been reorganized under the leadership of Scoutmaster C. L. Brownlee. Permission has been granted to use the basement of the United Church.

Of Many Things

DOUBLE YOUR ENERGY

My daughter Kathy once found me sound asleep on the chesterfield with a copy of a book called How to Get Things Done spread open across my chest. My family has never let me forget this embarrassing experience; but in spite of that, I propose to tell you about the book I am now reading.

It is a wonderful book called How to Double Your Energy and Live Without Fatigue. The author is a dynamic woman, Margery Wilson, who has a reputation for having plenty of energy herself (she has written ten other books, no less), so I am inclined to put a lot of faith in what she says.

She preaches a rather unpopular doctrine. Her theme is that if you aren't doing very well, it's likely to be your own darn fault. In her experience (and she has been counsellor to thousands of troubled people), the failures of this world are usually ineffective because they carry too many resentments against others, have narrow, mean personalities and consequently destroy themselves.

She is pretty blunt about it all. If you have a warm and honest interest in others, she claims, it will be a miracle if you are poor, unless it is by deliberate choice. On the other hand, if you are cynical, distrustful, and self-centred, it will be a miracle if you are rich — unless some better-natured grandfather leaves you the dough in his will.

There are some rare exceptions to the rule, no doubt. But just check up on the most prosperous people in your community, and you'll very likely find they are people of wide interests, curious about facts and people, and far from being all wrapped up in themselves. Then check on those who are less successful, and the chances are you'll find they are persons who are wrapped up in themselves, lacking in curiosity about the welfare of others, full of self-pity and cynicism.

Miss Wilson claims that resentments simply kill energy, drain it right out of you. You cannot hate and be full of zest at the same time. You cannot be mean and small and still have the energy to do big things. Miss Wilson wrote, "Looking back on my own travels, I remember that the person who came forward to help me in any way was always a mellow, poised, experienced individual of great quality and high position."

This, of course, is a strange doctrine in these days when it is so popular to decry success and reward failure. But Margery Wilson ladles it out in a most convincing manner. If you are feeling sorry for yourself, tired, and in the dumps — read How to Double Your Energy. You might not like the medicine, but the results are good.

YOUR WEEKLY NEWSPAPER —

Correspondents serve community

(This is the last in a series of editorials on how a weekly newspaper functions.)

Without its District Correspondents a weekly newspaper would contain little news. Correspondents are essential to the gathering of news of the district.

This is particularly true in an area such as The Watchman serves. We try to record the happenings in many outside communities as well as Lachute and Brownsburg, and it is impossible for our small staff to attempt to cover them from one office. Local men and women, living in those communities, knowing their residents, are the ones who can and do gather our District News.

These correspondents are performing a public service to their communities. They chronicle the doings of its people and report the meetings of community organizations. A good District Correspondent is a valuable aid in the building of a live, definite community.

Without the aid of our District Correspondents it would be impossible for this paper to carry the news it does from the various communities around Lachute.

In closing this series, let us review the main points we have tried to establish:

A weekly newspaper is a business enterprise providing a public service for a profit.

Advertising, the main revenue of a paper, is dependent on circulation.

Under modern conditions, no newspaper need have its advertisers influence editorial policy.

The local correspondent is providing a community service to the district in which he or she resides.

All Cdn. home in Chicago show

Lumber from Canadian mills will appear to advantage in an exhibit the Department of Trade and Commerce has prepared for the National Association of Home Builders Show in Chicago, December 12-16 next.

A 20-by-20 two-storey post-and-beam house with double A-frame, built entirely from Canadian material, comprises the government display, reports "Foreign Trade" magazine. The roof will have cedar shingles and the stairs lead to a second-storey lounge equipped with Canadian furniture. Display racks with literature on all the specific forest-industry products will be placed close to the materials described. Eight transparencies giving further information will decorate the back wall. Visitors can enter the exhibit and examine the quality of Canadian Douglas fir, western hemlock, western white spruce, western white pine, western red cedar (in decking, siding, panelling and shingles), eastern spruce and white pine, birch and maple (in flooring and railing), and hardwood plywood panelling.

The 19th annual NAHB Convention and Exposition will be held again this year under one roof at McCormick Place, Chicago. Over 25,400 registered business visitors attended last December. These included contractors and members of related trades, associations and professions from all over the United States.

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

Something New To Do

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"I'm tired of my toys! Isn't there something new that I can do?" Does your child sometimes say this? The interruption to mother's work may be unwelcome. But if she will take time to give the child a little guidance in his leisure time, she avoids trouble for both of them.

The so-called "bad" child up to mischief is often just a bored child bubbling over with physical energy and no help in channeling it into activity. The child who is convalescing or shut indoors with a cold is greatly in need of fresh suggestions for ways to fill the long hours.

Many parents do not realize that toys do not have to be bought at a toy counter. In every home there is material which is often thrown out, which a child can use for satisfying, creative activity. Here are some of the things found in the average house and suggestions for ways they can be put to use to keep small minds and fingers busy.

Buttons are great fun for little folk providing they are old enough not to put them in their mouths and swallow them. A small child will enjoy picking out buttons, one by one, from a shallow dish and dropping them into a jar. If the child knows different colors he can use a muffin tin and sort the various shades, red, yellow, black, blue, etc., into separate sections. A four-year-old can thread himself a necklace of buttons and a slightly older child can sew buttons on a square of cardboard.

Mother can draw a Button Man or a Button Woman on a large sheet of paper with a big button face and small buttons down the front and button hands and feet. Then a child, who is old enough to sew, will have a good time dressing the Button People, with crayon colored clothes.

Empty spools should always be saved. They can be painted with water colors or ordinary paint. They make an excellent rolling toy and mother can mark with chalk on the kitchen linoleum a circle "home base" for a child to aim his spool at. Spools can also be threaded and can be made into dolls. A dolly bed made from a box or fruit basket can have spool legs.

Plain clean clothes pegs can provide many absorbing building play periods. Fences, houses and barns can all be constructed with skill. A small child will enjoy fitting clothes pegs all around the edge of a large honey pail.

Tins with food in them come in various sizes. An efficient can opener leaves no rough edges and two children can play "store" with these cans. If the labels have been torn off, they can search an old magazine for pictures of fruit, vegetables and paste a new label on each can. If the child loves flowers he could use an old seed catalogue for a set of flower cans. A nest of cans of assorted sizes fascinates a little tot. He can practise fitting them together or try building a can tower.

Odds and ends of colored wool are attractive to children. They can sort out the colors, use them for threading in and out the holes mother has punched on a cardboard to make a wool picture. A school age child can make wool dolls with just a little help from mother.

Clean milk tops can become play coins and used for shopping at the "store". If a slit two inches wide is made in the cover of an empty baking powder can, a little child will enjoy dropping in the tops through the slit of his cash register.

Once mother has become aware of how much unused play material is in the house she will make discoveries of her own. Keep this list and add your own original ideas to it. Then you are prepared to give your youngster a choice of possible activities next time he is tired of his familiar toys.

PEDESTRIANS —

A roly-poly with sauce

Some desserts look almost too beautiful to touch; some are filled with exotic ingredients; others originated in far-away, romantic countries. Plum Jam Roly Poly fits none of these patterns — it's just easy-to-make, hearty enough to appease appetites whetted by the cold weather, and delicious to eat. And this is certainly sufficient recommendation for any dessert since "the proof of the pudding is always in the eating."

A good baking-powder-biscuit dough, flavored with a little mace, is the basis of this roly poly. It's filled with thick plum jam and served with a simple milk sauce, thickened with an instant pudding mix. When making this recipe, better allow for seconds.

Plum Jam Roly Poly

(Yield — about 8 servings)

1¾ Cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, or 2 cups once-sifted pastry flour, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, ¼ cup chilled shortening, 1 egg, ½ cup (about) milk, ½ teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup thick plum jam.

Grease a loaf pan (4½ x 8½ inches, top inside measure). Preheat oven to 425 deg. F. (hot).

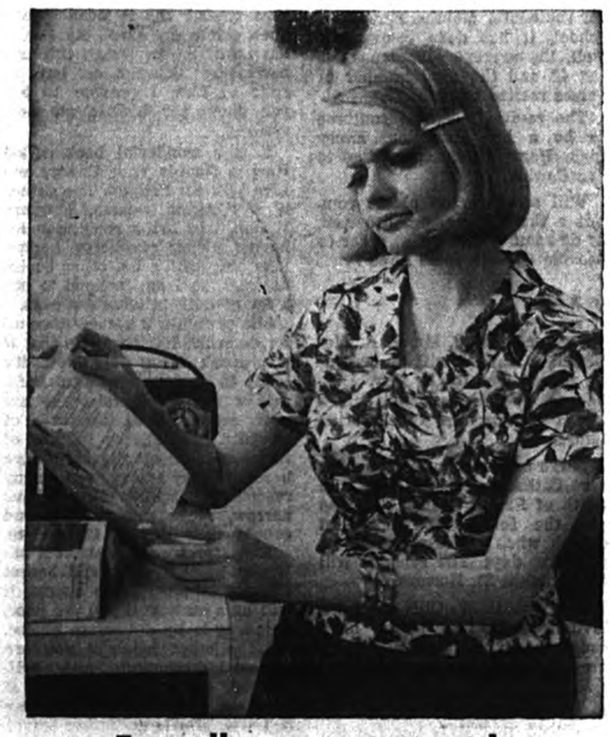

Sift together into a mixing bowl, the all-purpose or pastry flour, baking powder, salt, nutmeg and sugar. Cut in shortening finely. Beat egg; stir in milk and vanilla. Make a well in dry ingredients; add liquids and mix lightly with a fork, adding a little more milk if necessary, to make a soft dough. Turn out dough onto a lightly-floured board or canvas and knead 10 times, then roll it out into a rectangle 8 x 12 inches. Spread dough with plum jam to within ½ inch of edges. Moisten edges of dough with a little water; beginning at an 8-inch edge, roll up dough jelly-roll fashion and seal edges. Place, seam side down, in prepared loaf pan. Bake in preheated oven 35 to 40 minutes. Turn out onto a serving dish and cut into slices. Pass pouring cream or the following Quick Pudding Sauce.

Quick Pudding Sauce

(Yield — 3 cups sauce)

3 Cups cold milk, 1 package (approx. 3¾ ounces), vanilla-flavored instant pudding mix, sherry or grated lemon rind.

Measure milk into a bowl. Add instant pudding mix; beat 1 minute. Flavor the sauce with a little sherry or grated lemon rind. Chill until thickened — about 20 minutes. Stir well before serving.

'Birth' squad in rural Manitoba

Winnipeg (CP) — The Manitoba Medical Association has undertaken the establishment of a medical "flying squad" in an attempt to reduce the annual toll of deaths during births in rural areas.

Nova Scotia at present is the only other province with such a group in operation, says Dr. A. C. McInnis, chairman of the maternal welfare committee of the Manitoba association.

He says the group would consist of an obstetrician and an anaesthetist, and would be completely equipped, including an immediate supply of blood, to be rushed to rural areas in cases of emergency when no other medical facility was available.

Because Manitoba has such a large area, the committee is also considering stepping up complementary units at strategic points in the province other than Winnipeg.

Past Record

One of the reasons for formation of the squad, Dr. McInnis says, is that in 1961 there were 20 maternal deaths among the 23,000 births in the province.

Reasons for the deaths were divided into three main groups including patient factors, medical factors and hospital factors.

Four of the deaths fell under the patient factor class. Dr. McInnis said most of these were due to abortion or due to the mother not making proper use of medical facilities available. He said the four were on Indian reservations.

The four under the medical factor class all were treated by a general practitioner rather than by an obstetrician.

The two facilities under the hospital factor were caused when equipment or supplies or an adequately staffed hospital were not available to the patient during her critical period.

Bake a Bubble Loaf

Walnut cake is a long standing favorite among desserts. Traditionally, it's much like a pound cake in texture and method of making. Now, however, the full rich flavor of the nuts is added to a yeast-raised dough to make a loaf that's as luscious and light as it is lovely to look at.

Balls of a simple dough are rolled in melted butter or margarine, then in a mixture of sugar, spice and the chopped nuts. The result is a bubble loaf of unparalleled flavor, that can be served at an elegant tea, Sunday brunch, late night snack or simple breakfast.

Walnut Bubble Loaf

(Yield — 1 loaf)

¼ Cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 envelope fast rising active dry yeast, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons shortening, 2 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon, ¼ cup chopped nuts, ¼ cup butter or margarine, melted.

Measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes; then stir well.

Meantime, scald milk. Stir in the 2 tablespoons sugar, salt and shortening; add to the dissolved yeast. Stir in 1 cup of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 1 cup more. Turn out dough onto lightly-floured board or canvas. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in a greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. Combine the ½ cup sugar, cinnamon and chopped nuts. Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly-floured board or canvas. Knead until smooth. Form each piece into a smooth ball. Roll balls in melted butter or margarine, then in the walnut mixture. Arrange the coated balls in layers in a greased loaf pan (4½ x 8½ inches, top inside measure). Sprinkle top with any remaining walnut mixture. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — 40 minutes. Bake in a moderately-hot oven 375 deg. F. 30 to 35 minutes. To serve, pull apart segments with two forks.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A handful of seeds may mean little to most people, but to Mrs. Grace Green of Lindsay, Ont., it often means a whole day's work and a myriad of facts.

Eighteen years ago, Mrs. Green accepted a position as stenographer with a local seed company and a short time after was a student in a seed analysing course sponsored by the Ontario government. After five years of practical training she had earned two certificates — one as a registered seed technologist and the other as a commercial seed analyst.

What does her work actually involve? Accuracy and attention to detail are its most vital aspects.

First she weighs and measures a sample of seed and then grades it for color, size and quality. Then she picks out all the weed seeds and identifies them. The weed seeds actually determine the grade of the seed because government rules only a certain number of noxious weed seeds in each grade.

After grading, Mrs. Green prepares the seeds for germination and within seven days to two weeks she is able to determine the germination percentage of the seed.

Mrs. Green's busiest time is in the winter when she analyses from four to six seed samples a day and usually ends up with a stiff neck. She says a day's work can be measured by a good-sized heap in the middle of the table — "it doesn't look like much but it covers a great many facts."

Housewife's Labor

Housewives who have often yearned for some wild adventure such as mountain climbing don't realize the similarity in effort between such sport and their daily routine of trudging upstairs to make the beds, washing windows or cleaning out kitchen shelves.

The typical homemaker climbs the equivalent of Mount Everest more than once a year, says Walter Broxham, a manufacturer of light-weight aluminum steps.

"Mount Everest is 29,002 feet high and is a challenge to any man. But few people realize how much mountain climbing and the housewife doing her clean-up chores have in common."

He said studies have shown housewives are far more active than husbands who pride themselves on the mileage they chalk up on the golf course.

Winter Care

Hybrid tea, floribunda, polyantha and climbing roses require protection during the winter months and now is the time to take precautions.

Horticulturalists with the Ontario department of agriculture say soil should be drawn up around the base of the bushes to a height of several inches, and after the ground is frozen an additional covering of straw, manure or leaves should be added. To help trap the snow and give extra protection, cedar brush or twiggy branches should be placed on top.

Before applying these materials, make sure the ground is frozen, thus discouraging mice invasion and consequent damage. In areas where winters are severe, it may be necessary to cover the bushes completely with soil.

Climbing or rambling roses are best protected by tying the canes together, bending them as close to the ground as possible and then covering with soil.

LEGION NOTES

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

Our unqualified congratulations to both the winners and losers in last week's provincial election. This column always has, and always will, try to refrain from political comments. The reason is simple. The Canadian Legion has no political ties or affiliations, and besides, this column is intended to be informative, innocuous, sometimes inquisitive, sometimes institutional, and sometimes humorous — and politics is seldom any of these.

"With granite once a genius bridged a stream;
A builder once a rugged temple wrought;
On canvas once a painter fixed a thought;
A sculptor once in marble carved a dream;
A queen once built a tomb, and in the scheme
Of gold and bronze the quivering sunbeams caught;
Then came oblivion, unseen, unsought,
Contemptuous of thinker and of theme.

"And someone wrote a book. Palace and hall
Are gone. Marble and bronze are dust.
The fanes
Are fallen which the sun gold sought.
The rook,
At morn, caws garrulously over all,
All! All are gone. The book alone remains
Men builds no structure which outlives a book."

How true! Like the legends of old, the written word remains with us long after all else is gone.

We take great pride in being a highly literate nation, but we fail badly in making one important use of our ability to write: that of keeping family records.

Too often the permanent trace that an individual leaves is limited to official entries on the records at the county court house, a folder in a doctor's office, and a few haphazard snapshots.

A child grows more strongly into manhood if he knows who he is, under what circumstances he was born, who his ancestors were, and what his family has done before him. The people or the deeds do not have to be noble or famous. The important question is — what has gone before?

Families should have, and protect, some collection of personal records. Albums of photographs of people, places, homes, a scrapbook of papers, souvenirs, drawings, a file of letters, documents and facts. Ideally, some biographical sketches. The tale of a grandfather's immigration from Europe written by his son; the story of an uncle's service in the war; a diary kept by a young man away to school (uncensored, of course).

Too often it seems that these things are of little interest and that everyone knows the stories anyway. And then a generation passes on. No one remembers for sure what did happen. . . Wouldn't you enjoy having such a collection about your own parents, grandparents and great-grandparents? . . . Will your grandchildren have one?

Potato harvesting

Lots of horse-power and manpower help this machine make good time on the New Brunswick potato harvest. Hauled by a tractor, the machine lifts the tubers onto a platform where helpers pick out stones and debris. Moving belts carry the potatoes across the front of the machine to a truck which keeps pace with the tractor on the other side. The potato tops are dropped from the rear of the machine onto the ground.

Milk safe from radiation

Ottawa — The nation's milk supply is quite safe.

To reassure Canadians, Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton has announced that despite a certain impression that danger exists from fallout material, the levels of Strontium 90 and Iodine 131 are still substantially below those for which remedial action would be considered necessary.

Mr. Hamilton also explained why milk is mentioned in reporting fall-out levels. This is simply because milk is the commodity that is used for the purpose of taking measurements. And furthermore, this is because milk samples that can be taken throughout the year are representative of a large volume of production over a wide area.

The Minister added that the measurements with milk are in no way intended to indicate that there is any particular danger with respect to milk, or indeed, that fall-out material may be present in milk any more than in other commodities.

"As a matter of fact", he explained, "insofar as Strontium 90 is concerned, milk is one of the safest of foods because the high level of calcium in milk nullifies to a considerable extent the effects of Strontium 90."

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Plans almost never work out properly or perfectly; but good plans take this into account.

DDT on snow reduces hatch of mosquitoes

Winter — with snow deep on the ground — is the time to launch the offensive in the annual war against mosquitoes.

An increasing number of communities are demanding action to control the pest. This can be most easily done by treating pools and stagnant water with chemicals to kill mosquitoes in the wriggler stage.

But it doesn't necessarily mean waiting for the spring hatching period, says L. C. Curtis, of Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Kamloops.

In rough areas where there is no danger to humans or wild life, granular DDT can be spread on the snow, permitting treatment of breeding places months in advance of the hatching period. Pools and swamps, mapped out during the previous season, can be reached easily when the ground is frozen.

Treatment of dry ground the previous fall is effective, Curtis points out.

The plan offers other advantages:

— Granules, because they do not lodge on leaves or twigs like sprays and dusts, are safer to use in areas browsing animals might enter.

— Over large areas, the treatment is more thorough than when it is confined to the few days when wrigglers are most easily killed.

Satisfactory Results

At Kamloops, application of five per cent granular DDT at a rate of 20 pounds per acre proved satisfactory in controlling the pest, Curtis reports.

Granular DDT consists of a special clay that has been passed through a wire mesh and then impregnated with the insecticide. The DDT is released when the snow melts and the granules sink into the water.

Use of a hand seeder is recommended for applications in small, scattered areas; for large areas, granules should be spread from an aircraft or by means of an air gun mounted on a jeep. Granules containing 30 to 50 per cent DDT and used at a correspondingly lower rate than the five per cent DDT are recommended for most efficient application from a plane.

Some provinces have legislation governing the use of chemicals in water — including larvicides — and anyone planning mosquito control measures should make sure they will not violate regulations, Curtis warns.

'C' grade apples not for export

A restriction on the export of Canada "C" Grade apples to Britain was reimposed by the Canada Department of Agriculture at the request of the Canadian apple industry.

The measure, which exempts Golden Russet and Newtown varieties, was laid down originally in 1958 at the request of the industry in order to foster a good reputation for Canadian apples in a re-opening British market.

Last year, however, a poor crop in Britain increased the demand for Canadian apples and the control was relaxed to permit certification of red and red striped varieties of Canada "C" for shipment to Britain.

HOW TO WASH LEATHER

Wash chamois, pigskin and doeskin articles in lukewarm water with mild soapsuds. Gently rub any heavily soiled spots with mild toilet soap. Wash gloves directly on hands. Rinse once in lukewarm soapy water. Squeeze leather gently to remove any excess water and pat to shape on a towel. Dry slowly away from artificial heat. Just before the article is completely dry, rub gently to restore the suppleness of the leather.

Spud research

At the Morden experimental farm in Manitoba, the search goes on for good chipping potatoes — varieties that combine satisfactory yield and disease resistance with smooth shape, high starch and low sugar content.

Researcher R. B. Hyde says the increasing use of the humble tuber for chipping has pointed up the need for special varieties to produce quality chips economically. Smooth tubers can be peeled with little waste; potatoes high in starch yield the most chips; sugar, in some varieties, forms rapidly in cool storage and gives the chips an unattractive dark color.

Many varieties and seedlings were tested at Morden but few were found suitable for chip manufacture. Irish Cobbler, Kennebec and Netted Gem are reasonably satisfactory, says Mr. Hyde; Norland is not reliable enough; Pontiac is unsuitable.

However, some new seedlings now under test appear promising.

Asian countries may buy Cdn. poultry products

There are possibilities of exporting Canadian chicks of egg production and broiler stock to some parts of Asia — said A. Drew Davey, director of the 12th World's Poultry Congress in Sydney, Australia.

He said Singapore, Malaya and Hong Kong are importers of shell eggs for consumption and chicks for egg production Even surplus egg-producing countries like Thailand, the Philippines and Japan import chicks of egg production stock. In some of these countries too there is a small but increasing interest in broiler chicken. Some processed poultry is imported, chiefly for the non-native populations of these countries.

Mr. Davey said United States suppliers are active in most of these countries. There are definite possibilities for Canadian exporters too, but "they will not come easy" and careful planning and some knowledge of local conditions are necessary. He said he is willing to give what assistance he can.

He noted that Australia and New Zealand have a rigid ban on imports of poultry breeding stock, eggs or poultry products from the North American continent.

Mr. Davey was the leader of a 24-member delegation comprising mostly representatives of the poultry industry. Canada also had an outstanding exhibit.

At the Congress, Mr. Davey described the development of integration in the marketing of poultry products in Canada. At the First International Egg Marketing Conference that followed, he outlined his government's deficiency payment program for eggs as a means of attaining balance between production and consumption.

YOU HAVE A HAND IN THINGS CANADIAN
when you own Life Insurance

Surprising? Yes—but true. Like most people, you have probably thought of your life insurance—as protection for your family—as a good way to save money regularly—as a valuable collateral if you need a loan for an emergency—as a retirement plan for you later on.

Actually, your life insurance dollars are more than an investment in your personal security and your family's. These dollars are also an investment in Canada. They stimulate growth and progress and help make this country a better place in which to live and work.

At this moment, 9 BILLION DOLLARS of life insurance savings are invested in Important Canadian enterprises—through the purchase of bonds and stocks and through mortgages.

These hard-working dollars are helping to finance great projects all over this country such as pipelines, shopping centres, bridges and highways, homes, apartment and office buildings, schools, factories, industrial plants and power developments. These investments create employment opportunities, too.

The income from these investments benefits you directly by reducing the cost of life insurance to you and the 9 million other Canadian policyowners.

Official counting of the ballots in the recent election was held November 20 at the office of the District Returning Officer, Notary Jacques Beaudoin. Present were representatives of the three candidates.

As a result of this official count, Mr. Cottingham's U.N. count was the only one unchanged. His majority was 2,554 when originally reported on election night. Mr. Durocher, official Liberal candidate, dropped 56, and Gaetan Paquette, Independent Liberal, dropped 4, on the original reporting of ballots. Following is the official report:

W. M. Cottingham	7,922
Rodrigue Durocher	5,312
Gaetan Paquette	1,284
Cottingham Majority	2,610
Ballots Spoiled	158
Ballots Valid	14,518

A response of 14,676 voters, out of 17,021 qualified to vote in Argenteuil constituency, made this one of the most enthusiastic elections here in recent years. The proportion is 86.2 per cent; in the June 1960 provincial election, the turnout was slightly higher, 89.8 per cent.

At the official count Mr. Cottingham was represented by Yvon St. Denis; Mr. Durocher by Rodolphe Durocher; and Mr. Paquette by Fernand Poulin.

Centre ward to vote for new alderman

Taxpayers in Centre Ward will go to the polls next Monday for an aldermanic contest. The election will fill a vacancy in Seat No. 2 occasioned by the withdrawal of Notary Simon Valois after his recent acclamation.

Nominations, which closed at 2 p.m. last Monday, brought forth two candidates — Jos. Malaket and Paul-Emile (Pep) Pariseau, both Main Street storekeepers.

The poll will be situated at the city hall, and voting will be held from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. E.S.T. on Monday, December 3.

C-I-L long service employees honored

One hundred and thirty-five employees and pensioners of Canadian Industries Limited and Canadian Safety Fuse at Brownsburg attended a supper and social evening in the Legion Hall last Saturday evening. All had one thing in common — they had attained at least 25 years of service with the Company.

Those who became 25-year employees during 1962 include Mrs. Isabella Elliott, Messrs. John Kennedy, Leslie Keatley, Paul Levert, Adelard Lupien and Sidney C. Painter, of C-I-L; also Messrs. Harry Ball, Roy Jackson and Stanley Murdoch, of C.S.F. Co.

The Brownsburg 25-Year Club now consists of 198 persons; 113 active employees and 58 pensioners who attained 25 years or more of service before retirement from the Brownsburg Works, in addition to 16 employees and 11 pensioners at the C.S.F. Co. plant.

Canadian Safety Fuse Company Limited is a subsidiary of Canadian Industries Limited and manufactures safety fuse, detonating fuse and related products at its Brownsburg plant.

Under the Service Awards Plans of the two companies, each employee completing 25 years of service is presented with a distinguishing pin, inset with diamonds, and the choice of a suitably inscribed gold watch or silver salver. In addition, under the existing Vacation Plans, these employees are eligible for an annual four-week vacation.

Included at the head-table with John Duncan, chairman, were A. O. Anderson, Assistant Works Manager; John Chalmers, Manager of Canadian Safety Fuse; 50-year employees T. G. Pasco and Oswald Neveu; 50-year pensioners F. Vowles, W. Birch, O. Wilson; and a 40-year pensioner Lemuel Wilson.

Included among those present were two father-son groups and two husband-wife teams. The father-son groups consisted of C-I-L pensioner George Ball (29 years) and sons, Lorne, Detonator West (28 years), and Harry, who has this year completed 25 years with the C.S.F. Co.; John Connolly, C-I-L pensioner (42 years) and his sons, George, Match Line (32 years), and Alvin, Detonator East (28 years). The husband-wife teams consisted of Colin Martin, Tool Shop (40 years) and Erma, office (33 years) and David "Dick" Cooley, C.S.F. Co. (32 years), and Claire, C-I-L office (29 years).

Mr. Duncan introduced the new members to the Club, thanked the respective Company representatives, on behalf of the members, for their thoughtfulness in providing this annual supper and social evening, and also commended the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary for their catering services. The members joined with their guests, who arrived after the supper, in a dance which completed the enjoyable evening.

Oswald Neveu Becomes 50-Year Employee

Oswald Neveu, veteran toolmaker at Brownsburg's Explosive and Ammunition Division of C-I-L was feted by the company on Monday evening of this week. Approximately 80 guests, members of his immediate family, other employees and pensioners who have attained 50 or more years of service at Brownsburg Works, Tool Shop employees and line supervision, and other company officials, attended a supper and presentation held in his honor at the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Born at St. Philippe on August 2, 1898, Oswald has recognized service dating back to 1912, and completed his 50 years of service on November 14. Although he worked in other parts of the plant, Oswald has had unbroken service in the Tool Shop since 1923. For a period during and immediately following World War II, Oswald was a Tool Shop foreman.

Mr. Neveu was married to Flore Lavoie on May 23, 1918. They have two sons, Rod, of Montreal, Richard, of St. Martin, and two daughters, Régina (Mme Frank Proulx), of Hull, and Gisèle (Mme Roger Chamaillard), of Hudson. Two daughters, Jeannine (Mme Raymond Laviolette) and Rita, are deceased.

Interested in sports, Oswald was active in track, baseball, hockey and bowling during his younger years. He is a warden of St. Louis de France Church, Brownsburg. He has three surviving brothers, all employees of the Company, and four sisters.

Oswald was the recipient of a special Company Service Award, a mantel chime clock, bearing a suitably engraved plaque. The presentation was made on behalf of the company by S. J. Smart, Management Consultant, and a brief review of Mr. Neveu's service was made by Works Manager K. W. MacGibbon. Russell Graham, Tool Shop supervisor, filled in with background information on Oswald and offered congratulations on behalf of his associates. Mrs. Neveu was presented with a bouquet of red roses earlier during the day.

Rotary speaker describes work of Ontario Crippled Children's Socy.

At last week's meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, Hawkesbury Rotarian Fred Shaw was the guest speaker. Fred, who is the electrical superintendent of the C.I.P. plant in Hawkesbury, is also at present the District Chairman (County of Prescott) of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, and this was his topic for the evening.

The speaker gave a brief history of the Society. He recalled how the various service clubs in Ontario combined their efforts in aid of the Society so that something could be achieved, rather than one or two of the clubs trying to make a project of it. He stated that at present there were 226 service clubs throughout Ontario contributing towards the help of some 16,000 crippled children, and 25 full-time registered nurses.

The main fund-raising project of the Crippled Children's Society is their Easter Seals campaign, which was started in 1946 with the aim of distributing seals throughout the world wherever Easter is celebrated.

Rotarian Shaw then went on to give the definition of a crippled child insofar as receiving benefits from the Society was concerned. He said that the age limit had recently been dropped from 21 years to 19 years. Types of deformities applicable for the Society's benefits were those from birth, disease, or disabilities from accidents.

Fred also stated that the first summer camp for the crippled children was at Georgian Bay in 1937, that 169 children enjoyed the outing, and that at present there were five such camps in Ontario, with 1,200 children attending.

It was a great pleasure to hear of the work of this Society, and efforts of the service clubs for such a worthy cause. Rotarian Ron Barnett thanked the speaker on behalf of the club, for providing such an interesting evening.

Lions officials at local club, new members are inducted

The Lions Club meeting last week was highlighted by an official visit from the District Governor, Dr. George Saine, from Sherbrooke, and a contingent of visitors from Montreal. Among the latter (introduced at the head-table by Keith Clark, vice-president) was Lion Ed McLean, who is director for Quebec Province in the Canadian Association of Lions Clubs, besides other offices which he adequately fills. There were about 45 members and visitors in attendance at this meeting, at which President Royal Carriere presided.

Another highlight was the induction of three new members, who were impressively welcomed into Lionism by the District Governor. The three new members — Dick Pepin, Bernard Tessier and Bill Jones — were presented by their sponsors, Dr. Eric Mongeon, Paul Guénette and Royal Carrière, respectively, and with assent of the membership chairman, Jos. Dumais, were accorded full responsibilities, symbols and privileges of club membership.

The District Governor, introduced by Tony Malaket, paid a sincere tribute to leading figures in the local club, both past and present, who had upheld Lionism at the community level while contributing, besides, to the movement in district and provincial fields. His tribute included the late Dr. F. W. FitzGerald and J. S. Giles, both past District Governors, and Horace Lamarche, past District Deputy. He spoke also, with obvious sincerity, of the ideals of Lionism and its practical applications in a troubled world.

The visitor was thanked by Dr. Eric Mongeon, and a token gift, in the form of an Ayers rug, was presented to him by President Royal Carrière.

Aged resident hit by automobile, dies of injuries

An inquest into the death of Isaac Young, 75, of Calumet, who last Friday succumbed to injuries he received in front of his home when struck by an automobile, will be held next week — according to Q.P.P. Cpl. M. Dinelle.

The accident occurred on Route 8, in the early afternoon of Sunday, November 18, when the victim was crossing the highway to purchase apples from an Oka merchant, Yvan Leveille. Mr. Young, who had just recovered from an illness, apparently did not see the approaching car or hear the horn. He was struck in spite of attempts to avoid him by Rolland Raymond, of Lachute, driver of the car. He was taken to the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, where he reportedly died of head injuries.

Girl awarded scholarship to School of Ballet

It is announced by Miss Lucille DuBreuil that she has presented the Argenteuil School of Ballet Scholarship for the ensuing year to Miss Linda Laurin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. René Laurin, 620 Bedard Boulevard. Linda passed the Royal Academy's fifth-grade examination, the highest grade to be taken by a very few pupils of the Argenteuil School of Ballet when examinations were held in Lachute last year. This is indeed an honor to Linda and to the Argenteuil School of Ballet.

Linda Laurin was thrilled on receiving her diploma from the Royal Academy and the Argenteuil School of Ballet. Friends wish her good progress.

Miss DuBreuil, who studied ballet in England and Canada, is continuing further studies. She is also affiliated with the Royal Academy's teachers' association.

In business since 1927, Lunch Car closed this week

The Lunch Car on Main Street — now something of a landmark among local business ventures — closed its doors on Wednesday, the property having been taken over for expansion of the Lacasse Automobiles sales lot.

The present joint-owner, Paul Desjardins, Sr., recalls that the Lunch Car was started by his father, Josephat Desjardins, in 1927.

There was a long list of successive proprietors, many of whom are well remembered by patrons and citizens of this town. It was acquired by the late Dr. J. O. Touchette, county health inspector, in 1935. It was then taken over by Bill Blakely, who operated the establishment for a number of years. Next owners, for a brief period, were the Lefebvre brothers, Paul and Georges, with Germain Filion. Around 1945 it was bought by Leo St. Onge, and later by Mme Latreille, who ran the business for 11 years. In 1955 it came back to the Desjardins family — Paul Desjardins, Sr., and Georges Quesnel having jointly owned the business since that time.

Modern paintings by women artists at Centre d'Art

On Sunday afternoon at the Centre d'Art an exhibition of modern works by Quebec women artists was opened, in a ceremony which fittingly inaugurated the Centre's program of winter exhibitions and activities.

Ald. J. Orphir Desjardins represented Mayor Dave Campbell and extended congratulations from Town Council to the promoters of this cultural effort — notably Jean Laforest, and Mme Laforest, directors of the Centre d'Art; Dr. Marc Papineau, president; Simon Valois, vice-president; Raymond Beaulieu and Mme Beaulieu, secretary and treasurer, respectively. . . Alderman Desjardins expressed a hope that some day Lachute could combine, in a worthy building, the Centre d'Art and the library.

Presented by Simon Valois and thanked by Dr. Papineau, Ald. Desjardins then declared the exhibition officially open. . The display groups abstracts in different moods and media by such artists as François Bujold, Monique Charbonneau, Henriette Fauteux-Massé, Marcelle Ferron, Janine Leroux, Lise Gervais, Rita Letendre, Louise Louvain and others. Some of these were represented in the Canada exhibition held last summer in Italy, while others have exhibited in the salon of women painters in the Museum of Modern Art in Paris.

The exhibition is a credit to the Centre d'Art, in bringing to the local public examples from the recognized exponents of modern painting. Both to those who approve, and those more dubious of the modern trend, the collection cannot fail to provide interest. It remains on view until December 9, from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. daily, at the Centre d'Art, 360 Main Street. The public are cordially invited.

Police recover stolen goods in Weir robberies

An estimated $1,600 in stolen goods was recovered on Tuesday of last week by Q.P.P. Agent Sam Kille, following an extensive investigation into a large number of thefts from automobiles and summer cottages in the Weir district. A 16-year-old Weir youth was arrested at the time and Provincial Police are awaiting the arrest of three friends, all in the Montreal area.

The Weir youth has been charged in Juvenile Court at St. Jerome, where he will shortly appear on the numerous charges of theft, breaking and entry.

The Provincial Police report the recovery of cameras, radios, golf clubs, ski boots, skates, garden tools, electric razors, blankets, a lawn mower, household appliances, and about everything else imaginable. "The big majority of the articles still have not been identified," reported Q.P.P. Cpl. Dinelle, who requested that any person having had their car or summer residence broken into around the Weir district this past summer, should contact the local Q.P.P. detachment, where the recovered articles are being held.

Shop-at-home contest starts next Thursday

The Christmas contest announced in Lachute Watchman and L'Argenteuil will commence next week, December 6, when names of the participating merchants will be advertised in both papers.

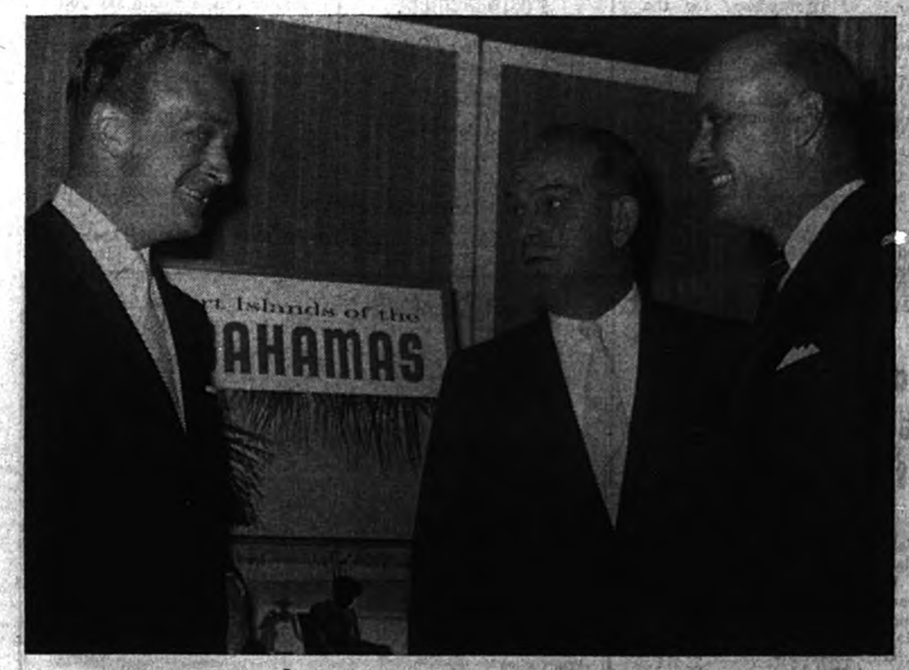

Every $1 purchase gives the customer a coupon, which must be filled in and mailed (at regular letter rate) to: "Christmas Contest, Box 303, Lachute".

The first drawing will be on Saturday, December 15; the second on December 22.

Prizes in the first drawing will be $100, $50 and $25; in the second drawing there will be six prizes, two of $100, two of $50, and two of $25 — making total awards of $525 in this contest.

The public are urged to scan The Watchman and L'Argenteuil next week and note the names of participating stores, where coupons may be procured.

The contest is designed to stimulate home-town shopping in the pre-holiday season, and all shoppers are urged to enter into the community spirit of this effort.

Revolution slow but sure in our education system, says Home-School speaker

"It is a challenging, exciting and dangerous world that we live in", said R. N. (Bob) Wyse at the Brownsburg Home and School meeting last Wednesday. He outlined the Russian primary and high school educational system, which has shaken the world with its space achievements. Continuing with a comparison of our own, and some reasons given for our deficiencies, the speaker gave his audience much to think about. He pointed out some of the trends in education on this continent, explaining some of the experiments — reminding us that Canada spends only $200,000 a year ($38,000 contributed by teachers) on research — for our multi-million dollar project.

(When you consider that progressive industrial companies spend about 4% of sales — from $8,000,000 to over $50,000,000 per year for each of the large ones in the United States — Canada's greatest natural resource, her young students, do not rate very highly. — Your reporter.)

The speaker, however, was optimistic. He felt that we not only had better-equipped schools, but better-equipped parents and teachers, and that the students learn more and faster than their parents did.

Mr. Bob Wyse, popular Science teacher in Lachute for the past 12 years, studied at Mt. Allison and McGill Universities for his B.A.Sc. and B.Ed. degrees and recently attended seminars at the latter college to study possible curriculum changes in Science and Mathematics. A parent of two young children, he has worked with the Argenteuil Protestant Teachers Association (president), the St. Andrews School Board (chairman), and the local Rotary Club (president), on community betterment.

Committee organized to promote Laurentians as World Fair site

Some 65 Chamber of Commerce representatives gathered at a meeting in St. Jerome last Wednesday, to form a committee to promote the Laurentian area as site for the 1967 World Fair. The representatives were from centres between Ile Jésus and St. Jovite.

The Mayor of St. Jerome welcomed the visitors, and J. R. Duhaime, professional engineer, outlined the purpose of the meeting based on a report from the City of Montreal on plans for the World Fair. He named over the requirements of a suitable site, such as land space, easy access, transport facilities, etc. The Laurentians, said Mr. Duhaime, were keyed to the demands of the tourist industry, and he compared the available accommodation with that of Montreal, and with the 42,000,000 visitors which might be expected — based on experience of the Brussels World Fair. It seemed necessary that the Laurentians must collaborate with Montreal, and indications were that a site should be chosen convenient to Metropolitan Boulevard, the Autoroute, the Airport, and the Subway.

Brussels in 1958 attracted 400 conventions, and it will be opportune for the Laurentian committee to try and procure such conventions as would doubtless be held incidental to the 1967 Fair.

A committee was duly formed, and nine members commissioned to select a distinctive name. President of the committee is Maurice Dupras, of St. Jerome.

Numerous suggestions were forthcoming, including an idea to bid for the 1968 Olympic Games at St. Jovite.

At St. Adolphe

A Laurentian Santa Claus parade will be staged this Saturday at 10 a.m. in St. Adolphe de Howard. Sponsored by the community's Businessmen's Association, it will end at the Roberto Lodge, where Santa and clowns will entertain the children.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The November 14 provincial election was not quite a record as far as this constituency was concerned. A total of 86.2 percent of the voters exercised their franchise in the Argenteuil polls.

In the June 1960 provincial showdown (a straight Cottingham-Durocher contest) the vote recorded here was 89.8 percent.

In the June 1962 federal voting, for five candidates in the Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes riding, the percentage of voters was 82.

With a news item from Brownsburg this week, an appraisal of the UNICEF Hallowe'en collection in this immediate district is now complete: Lachute $206; St. Andrews $90.50; Brownsburg $169.35. . Good work, kids! . . We are reminded by a district correspondent that these sums include collections by school children in their home areas, outside the towns.

We are sorry the Rev. Dr. W. H. Reid's illustrated lecture got mixed up last week with the advertisement of an auction sale. The 11 Holstein heifers were not on behalf of church funds.

Festive lighting and Christmas trees now enhance the shopping appeal of Main Street, and the business section of Lafleur Street. Store windows are gay with Yuletide decorations, and the scene is set for a busy pre-holiday season.

By BOB ATCHISON

Once again, the passing of the deer season is greeted with sighs of relief by most outdoorsmen — the serious type, I mean. Just what the kill has been in this County will not be known for some time; from every indication, it has been high. A grave situation is staring us in the face and we don't seem to know it. The slaughtering of these animals is reaching the danger point, and unless drastic action is taken immediately we will have no deer.

As most of you know, the killing and selling of deer and all other types of game has become big business in this province. Of course no one can tell accurately how many animals are taken by the supposed "guide", but in my opinion the legal limit reported, could well be doubled. There does not seem to be any law in operation that will stop this business. Certainly, there are token fines on the law books, but these do not, and never will, stop this abuse.

Still on the subject of deer, a number of you must have seen some of these animals passing through town, and wondered just what mentality our supposed hunters have. I have personally seen fawns that would not hit the 50-lb. mark, even if they were soaking wet!

On top of this, I saw one that had been shot at with a .22 at least two weeks before it was killed by a heavier-calibre bullet. The man who showed me this was quite upset at the amount of good meat that had been spoiled. Shot in the rump, all this bullet had done was to sting the deer. The effects of the shot, however, were very different; the animal had evidently suffered, and it was indeed fortunate that a sportsman had finally despatched it. A bump about the size of a small turnip was evidence of infection where the shot had penetrated. The bullet had lodged alongside the spine, and it must have caused crippling.

We know that a certain amount of wounding does happen, but this is inevitable, but why not keep it down to a minimum by banning any bullet weighing less than 100 grains, against deer. The law as it stands is no help towards the conservation of wildlife. It certainly is a wonder that someone in the know did not come up with the brilliant idea of using air rifles against rabbits, and only on the run must they be shot. Maybe that will give them an idea for next year though; after all, they can charge for a license, and this should help in some disorganized way.

Well, I guess the perch are going to be out of harm's way for awhile. The North River has frozen over in most spots, and until it becomes safe to walk on, the fishing is finished for the time being. However, this does not stop you from dreaming of the day you can cut that hole in the ice for a feed of the King of Fish. For the ice fisherman, I will give some information on the building of tippets and ice fishing rigs very shortly. There are more and more ice fans every year; equipment is getting better, also, so that the thought of standing out in the cold is not as bad as it seems. It is worth a try, believe me.

In some of my travels around the lakes I have noticed a number of boats that have been supposedly stored for the winter. A good few of them will be warped and otherwise damaged, if a little care is not given them now. With the weight of the snow during the winter, some of these boats will be warped out of all shape and usefulness. In all the cases I noted the trouble had been with the blocking up — either too many blocks had been used in one certain part of the hull, or not enough. Either case is not too good; even with the newer types of fibreglass, they will warp — so take it from there.

We have droves of birds now coming to the feeders; most of them are the chicks, with jays thrown in. A story I heard the other day about this type of bird, makes you realize they know their way around. A feeder had been built and put on a very small branch, so as to try and attract the smaller birds. A real bird lover thought of this. However, it didn't work. The jays in particular fly right into the feeder, hover over it, and pick up the feed without landing on it.

I hear the local fishing association has closed up for the winter. Rather a shortsighted way of doing things. They are a hunting association also, so for my money, it would seem logical during the winter to keep checking on the birds, etc., in the bush. Putting up small feeders wherever needed, and keeping them filled, would pay off in the increase of everything. With the wanton killing of these during the hunting season, they do need all the help they can get.

Farmer-hunter relations are once more making the headlines — well, maybe not the headlines, but they are getting a little publicity. This is a problem that has needed and deserves some help from all interested. The investment that the average farmers have in livestock and property, needs protection from stupid shooters — I do not say hunters, as the average hunter is safety-conscious at all times. The hunter also deserves some protection too, for his continued investment in our natural resources. Maybe something worthwhile will be forthcoming this time.

A couple more foxes have been shot that seemed rabid. It would appear that rabies is more prevalent in the district than was first believed. Porkies, skunks, squirrels and fox have all been reported. Just what form of protection should be taken when these animals are killed, seems to be the first thought in one's mind. I recommend that you should not handle the animal; if necessary, however, then use gloves. Take or send the head to the Dept. of Agriculture (I think) and bury the carcass as deep as possible. Then cover the grave with stone. This may seem like a lot of work, and it is, but a little precaution is never wasted. A word to the wise: any animal that is acting strange — in other words, in any abnormal pattern of behavior — take care.

This is nice: In King City, Ontario, a fox being chased by about 30 hounds, ran onto Highway 400. Two cars connected, with (I would imagine) smashing results. You can imagine the fun, with the week-end rush in progress. Motorists finally steered through the confusion. What happened to the fox is not stated, but he probably made his exit laughing.

Another amusing story concerns a group of shooters out for their annual mayhem. They park the car in a lane; it has whitewall tires — a fairly new model. Getting turned in the bush, they come out on the opposite side; and seeing a patch of white they thought was a deer resting, a couple of them started blasting away. You know the sequel — one badly blasted vehicle, maybe a long walk to a service station, and the subsequent cost of being towed out.

Recent projects by Boy Scouts in Brownsburg

Brownsburg — A total of 20,380 lbs. of paper was collected recently by the Boy Scouts. This netted the sum of $81.52, which will help defray some of the expenses incurred in Scouting. On behalf of the Cubs and Scouts, the Group Committee wishes to thank the people of Brownsburg for the success of this paper drive.

In the past the collection for UNICEF was done by the Cubs and Brownies. This year the Boy Scouts Group Committee sponsored the drive through the three local schools, the Brownsburg High School, l'Ecole Bouchard and the Convent of St. Louis de France. A sum of $169.35 was collected, thanks to the splendid co-operation of the school principals and the excellent response of the school children. Mr. George Connelly acted as chairman.

Mr. R. R. Summers, secretary of the Group Committee, requested members, leaders and all Scouters to save used postage stamps. Proceeds from the sale of these stamps are used for the World Scouting of the Handicapped. With Christmas nearly upon us, a fair bundle could be forwarded early in the New Year.

Ram Ski Club News

On the Saturday just past, the Ski Club held a ski movie presented by Warren Miller, one of the world's leading ski cinematographers. Although the turnout was not as expected, it did prove to be a success for those who attended. I'm sure the people who did make the effort will return next year, and also pass on the word to other interested people.

At intermission a fashion show put on by Crystal Ski Shop at Ayers Ski Centre, showed the latest in fashions. The amateur models, who did a most professional job, were —Leon Tessier, an instructor at Ayers Ski School; Mrs. Germaine Tessier and her daughter, Danielle; Evelyne Ayers; and Rachael Barbour. The excellent commentary was compiled in both languages by Mrs. Reine-Marie Graham.

Following the show, a short meeting of the club was held for the election of officers. These were as follows —

President, Jess Humphries.

Vice-presidents — (Racing) Don Barbour; (Social) Bill Jones; (Junior Activities) Pete Johnson; (Publicity) Evelyne Ayers.

Secretary, Mrs. Hildred Simpson.

Treasurer, Leon Tessier.

May we congratulate the elected slate, and wish them every success for the coming season.

Conditioning

Now that the skiing season is just around the bend, I feel most of you skiers should be in fairly good shape. Of course, the best way to maintain good condition is not to do it all at once, but to keep a good program of general fitness throughout the summer months. I'm sure most of you are saying right now, "I'm in good condition, I don't have to do any exercises". But I'd like to ask you just one question: How many times have you taken an elevator up a couple of floors when the stairs were handy? Or even worse, how many times have you gone down the stairs? Also, how many times have you taken the car to go to the corner drugstore for a package of cigarettes? I'm sure quite a few... These are but a couple of normal everyday exercises that will keep your leg muscles from getting soft.

For those of you who are really interested in conditioning yourself for skiing this year, here are a few very good exercises I would strongly recommend :

1 For a balance builder extend left leg, then hop across the room on the right leg. Repeat, using alternate leg. You may lose your balance at first.

2 Simply walk up and down stairs whenever possible. However, when descending stairs, walk backwards. This helps to develop your leg tendons.

3 Assume a sitting position with arms touching the floor behind your derrière. Do fast leg lifting, up and down, without touching the floor with your heels.

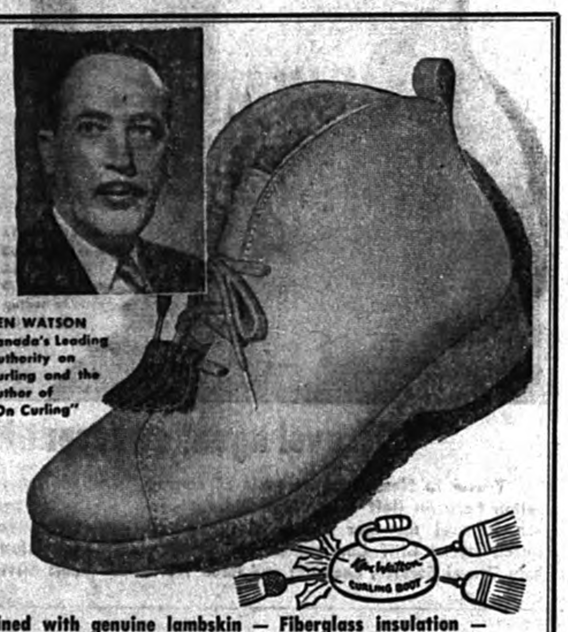

4 Deep knee bends, I would say, is one of the best exercises for skiing. Place hands on hips. Now squat, flat-footed, going down low, then up, then down, increasing the tempo. After you feel good at this, try doing this exercise on one leg. If you can master this, I would say you are in very good shape for skiing. Another variation of this is to place your back against a wall, and maintain a sitting position as you would in a chair, with your feet flat on the floor and your upper and lower legs at right-angles. If you can maintain this position for 2½ minutes, I would like to personally meet you and shake your hand!

Next Week : Ski Lessons.

Pointe Claire again takes trophy in ladies' invitation bonspiel

Last Friday saw the finish of the second annual invitation bonspiel at Lachute Ladies' Curling Club.

Play was for the Mrs. E. H. Wilson trophy, and there were 24 clubs represented.

Some excellent curling was witnessed during the week, and the four clubs qualifying for the playoffs were St. Lambert, Pointe Claire, Gananoque and Lachute.

In the semi finals on Friday morning, Mrs. Copeman's Pointe Claire foursome downed Mrs. Lloyd's Gananoque rink in a closely contested game, and Mrs. Dent's St. Lambert rink edged Mrs. Stein of Lachute in an extremely close game, the outcome of which was in doubt until the last stone was played.

In the main-event final in the afternoon, Pointe Claire with Mrs. J. A. Copeman (skip), Mrs. L. P. Ramsay, Mrs. G. F. Rogers and Mrs. W. E. Evens, were the winners. Runners-up were St. Lambert with Mrs. C. J. Dent (skip), Mrs. R. D. Shepard, Mrs. J. Gleasby and Mrs. G. Royds.

The consolation final went to Mrs. F. J. Stein (skip), Mrs. R. M. Cairns, Mrs. H. K. Rutherford and Mrs. J. R. MacKimmie. The runners-up were Gananoque, with Mrs. D. Lloyd (skip), Mrs. G. Clare, Mrs. L. Earl and Mrs. J. Cunningham.

The winning of this trophy is a repeat for the Pointe Claire Club, as they were the winners at last year's bonspiel.

At the conclusion of the presentation of the trophy and prizes by the president, Mrs. F. A. Brennian, the Men's Club entertained the ladies at a cocktail party.

A week ago last Wednesday in challenge games, Mrs. F. A. Brennian (skip), Mrs. W. S. Gordon, Mrs. D. Heggie and Mrs. Doug Hay challenged the holders of the Wilson Cup, Mrs. C. E. Richardson (skip), Mrs. G. A. Muir, Mrs. T. Johnston and Mrs. D. MacKimmie. The challengers took possession of the cup.

In the Broomstick event Mrs. A. M. Vessie (skip), Mrs. M. E. Walker, Mrs. L. Ayers and Mrs. J. Thorpe challenged the holders of the pins, Mrs. J. R. MacKimmie (skip), Mrs. D. McFaul, Mrs. R. O. MacLean and Mrs. K. Boa. The holders retained possession of the pins.

In Laurentian Trophy play at Chantecler Club last week, Mrs. A. M. Vessie (skip), Mrs. M. E. Walker, Mrs. L. Ayers and Mrs. J. Thorpe won their game against St. Sauveur. Rosemere, however, won the round, having won their game with a slightly higher margin.

Play in the doubles competition resumes tomorrow (Thursday) and will continue next week.

Appeal to District Residents

Lachute, P. Que., November, 1962

Dear Fellow Citizen:

Once again, in order to provide a healthy outlet for youth activity in this town, especially in the winter months, the Lions Club is operating its artificial ice rink, now in its fifth successive season.

Skating and the season's program of organized hockey, etc., should continue without interruption to the end of March, 1963.

The annual operating and improvement costs, make it necessary to solicit your support. Your past generosity has been invaluable, and we count on you once again for your co-operation.

We are offering season tickets at $5 per household or individual, plus $1 for each child in the family under 16 or attending school, wishing to skate. However, the maximum charge for any family, regardless of number, will not exceed $10. . . . Considering that the season extends over approximately five months, this rate is by no means excessive.

For those who have no family but wish to help us in this project for youth recreation, we would suggest, and appreciate a "supporting membership" of $5. or more. We receive many requests from less fortunate families, and it will be a pleasure to extend to them, in your name, the privileges of our rink.

Since we have to raise $5,000 in order to operate this venture, you will readily understand our concern. We look forward to your contribution, at an early date, and thank you in advance for your kind assistance.

Badges may be obtained at the Skating Rink Canteen.

Revolution slow but sure in our education system, says Home-School speaker

for the Quebec schools, Mr. Wyse has done much research on the subject. One committee of which he was a member, collected 300 different Biology texts, from Canada, the United States and Europe, read and evaluated them, in order to choose one for use in our schools.

The fact that the present Physics text used in Quebec is based on material written in 1895, and the Chemistry text was written in 1945, should be cause for concern.

If Russia has practically wiped out illiteracy and reached outer space — in one generation — what will she do in two or three? All schools in Russia have the exact same curriculum, with one foreign language (70% English), Maths, Geography, History, and Sciences plus Music, Art, Gymnastics and Sports. No courses in Marxism or Leninism.

The advantages and disadvantages of the compulsory, standardized, free system were pointed out by the speaker.

Unfortunately, for instance, much of the scientific and the mathematical training, compulsory in Russia (not counting the arts) is short-changed with brief courses, or dropped by students for various reasons, in Canada. Many of the reasons why we don't accomplish more, were outlined by Mr. Wyse. The fact that we produce an individual who knows the world outside his own country, compared to the narrow scientific brain of the Soviet, is important; but this should not dull us to the possibility of improvements to our system.

Changes are not dramatic in our educational system, but a revolution is going on, slowly but surely.

The look into the future, with some details of the interesting projects that are being carried out, formed an enlightening part of Mr. Wyse's talk. It deserved a much larger audience of parents who set an example for their children. The teachers were well represented, along with Mr. Leggitt, the new principal.

It has been mentioned that the speaker was optimistic. He pointed out that over 98% of the students "don't get into trouble" and they do grow up to become leaders in all walks of life — leaders in whom we can have a feeling of pride.

This should not blind us to the fact that we have a rapidly changing world, and the need to train our young people with best known methods, in order to cope with new and sometimes dangerous conditions.

Fishing-Hunting Association trophies presented

A pleasant soiree at the Flamingo Hotel in Brownsburg concluded the season of the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association last week. The entertainers, Ronnie Dallaire and partner, and Mlle Claire Lepage (Lachute), played to a full house, and music was provided by the Rockets with André Marcoux (CJMS and recording star) as m.c.

Gaetan Villemaire, a young resident of Lachute, won $150 worth of fishing and hunting equipment in the Association's drawing, and several door prizes were given out.

Lacasse Autos' trophy for the largest grey trout, won by George Taylor.

Boyd's Express trophy for the largest doré, Dalma Lemay.

Molson trophy for largest bass, George Couvrette.

Desjardins Transport trophy for largest barbotte, Patrick Lalonde.

Molson trophy for largest pike, Gaston Gagnon.

Molson trophy for largest number of trout, Pierre Gagnon.

Mme Paul Desjardins, Sr., won a special ladies' prize awarded by Bourgon & Leroux for the biggest specimen of game fish; her entry was a 3lb. 10oz. doré.

Hunting trophies were presented to the following winners:

Argenteuil Enterprises Ltd. trophy for biggest buck deer, Jean-Guy Gagnon.

J. A. Scarborough trophy for biggest doe, Noel Lemay.

Desrosiers Automobiles' trophy for biggest bag of hare, Florian Raymond.

Lascelles Sport Shop trophy for biggest bag of duck, Hartland Dewar.

Esquire Shop trophy for biggest bag of partridge, Hartland Dewar.

A prize of two tires from Lachute Tire Shop for the smallest deer, was awarded to Mrs. Dewar.

All hunters or fishermen competing for these prizes had caught or shot the game in Argenteuil County; this was one of the requirements of the contest.

The Association is grateful to its sponsor, Leonard Bedard (Molsons agent), to the prize donors, and all who have contributed to a year of successful activities. An election of new officers will be held shortly; time and place will be announced in this newspaper.

Youngsters drown in private pool near Hawkesb'y

Two Hawkesbury children were drowned recently at a private pool near Hawkesbury. The victims were Luc Filion, three-year-old son of school inspector Gaetan Filion and Mrs. Filion, of Hawkesbury, and Danielle Sabourin, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sabourin, also of Hawkesbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Filion and two of their other children were attending a convention in North Bay. The parents of the Sabourin girl were both at work at the time of the tragedy.

During the absence of their parents, the two children had been left at a convalescent home near the town.

The pool, used as a reservoir, and located behind the home, contained from three to five feet of water. It is about 50 feet by 125 feet in size with a wall on three sides. However, the fourth side is not protected, and police believed the children went into the pool from that side.

Congregational dinner meeting at B'burg United Ch.

The seventh annual congregational dinner of the Brownsburg United Church was held in the church hall on Tuesday, November 20. Approximately 150 members and friends sat down to a turkey dinner, catered to by the U.C.W.

Mr. R. Burnett outlined the financial estimates of the church. The Rev. C. S. Woods, B.A., B.Sc., B.D., principal speaker of the evening, prefaced his remarks on Stewardship by referring to the fellowships of sharing and of thanksgiving which are traditional in the Christian Church. He emphasized that the challenge and responsibility of greatness which must be accepted by the church set high priorities on the time, talents and possessions of its members; the freedom with which these are given is evidence of the reality of faith.

The U.C.M. held its meeting on Wednesday, November 14, and favorable reports were brought in by the Units. The Rev. C. S. Woods was speaker at this meeting, and gave a very inspiring talk on Unity in the church, and its advantages.

Family ousted, home destroyed east of Lachute

The two-storey home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Parr, R.R. 3, Lachute, was demolished by flames early Tuesday evening — Mrs. Parr and six children escaping from the burning building with nothing but the clothes on their backs. Mr. Parr was absent at the time of the outbreak, arriving at the scene during the blaze.

Lachute Fire Chief Don McCulloch reported he received the call for assistance at 6.23 p.m. and that a few minutes later, while leaving Lachute with the fire truck, he could see the house a mass of flames. With the arrival of the fire equipment, a successful effort was made to remove a new furnace and some furniture from the basement, and a nearby garage was cooled down.

The portable pump was put into operation from the river, and two lines of hose used to quell the flames.

It was reported that Mrs. Parr smelled smoke, and investigated the basement, finding nothing. When she returned to the main floor, she saw the upstairs stairway filled with flames. She immediately rounded-up the six children and ran to a nearby neighbor, who in turn ran to another neighbor and summoned help. According to reports, the house was a blazing inferno within several minutes of the outbreak.

The loss is partially covered by insurance. The building, situated on the north side of the North River, was the former summer residence of Dr. Roger Dumais, local dentist, and was purchased by the Parr family a year ago.

Safe Driving Week —

Extra hazard, winter driving

It's an odorless gas designated by the chemist's symbol of "CO", which is given off by a motor in operation; its effect is asphyxiating. Cases of asphyxiation are much more frequent when travelling with all the windows closed. This is when the inside of the car can become filled with fumes from the exhaust system, especially if the tailpipe is rusty or loose. It is also dangerous to let the motor run in a closed garage. At the least sign of uneasiness or headache, stop the car and get out in the fresh air.

CANADIANS USE MORE MAN-MADE TEXTILES

During the first half of 1962 Canadians used man-made textiles at a record rate. But volume of fabric imports increased faster than that of Canadian shipments, leaving domestic mills with a smaller share of the larger market than last year.

Total Canadian market for these fabrics during the first six months of this year was 100.7 million square yards, up from 93.4 million used in the first half of 1961 — according to the Primary Textiles Institute.

We've got 40 horses that run on chicken feed

The Volkswagen will cruise all day at 72 miles per hour.

In the city, and on the highway, it averages 38 miles to a gallon of gas.

What's the secret? How does the Volkswagen do so much for so little?

We wish we had a good, simple answer.

Instead, there are a lot of reasons that explain the VW's amazing performance.

To begin with, the Volkswagen is lighter than conventional cars. Not only because it's compact, but because of the way it's designed.

For example: there is no radiator or plumbing. (We use air instead of water to cool the engine.)

The Volkswagen has no long, heavy drive shaft that runs from the front of the car to the back. The VW engine is in the rear where it gives direct power to the drive wheels. The weight of the engine provides better traction on ice and snow.

And the engine weighs less because it's made with magnesium. (Magnesium is one of the many products we buy in Canada.)

Take a look at the front of the car and you'll see how we've reduced wind resistance. Instead of a flat grill, like the bow of a barge, the Volkswagen is streamlined.

Enough talk. Your Volkswagen dealer has 40 horses all saddled up and ready for a test ride. (Don't be afraid to go for a good run. It costs us chicken feed.)

Christmas gifts to mental patients

The sixth annual Christmas gift campaign for the "forgotten" mental patient, organized by the Quebec Division of the Canadian Mental Health Association, has been launched on a province-wide scale.

This campaign for gifts is one of the educational programs carried out by the Association.

Chairman of the 1962 Campaign is Mme Claire Gagnier, well known stage, radio and television star. "I am honored," said Mme Gagnier, "to do what I can to help this Christmas Gift Campaign. I understand that about 22,000 gifts were distributed among 25 mental institutions and psychiatric hospitals last year and I feel that with the collaboration of the public, the service clubs, the companies, women's groups and all those interested, we will exceed that record this year. I have visited mental institutions and realize that these gifts mean much to the patients but I realized something even more important — the patients need encouragement, self-respect and a feeling of belonging. This can only be given to them by the members of the community through visits and every possible contact with them, not only at Christmas time but throughout their stay in hospital. It came to me as a shock that a person in a general hospital receives countless visits, while the mental patient does not receive any."

This province-wide campaign is a request for gifts and for understanding. It is not an appeal for funds. The public is asked by the Association to send gifts such as men's and women's clothing, lotions, cigarettes, pipes, tobacco, beauty aids, any article which a hospitalized person could use and appreciate. These gifts are then re-distributed by the Association to the psychiatric institutions and hospitals which have requested them.

Gifts may be addressed to the Canadian Mental Health Association, 5757 Decelles, Montreal, Que.

'Safe Driving Week' starts Friday

BETWEEN MIDNIGHT Friday, November 30, and midnight next Friday, December 7, the Canadian Highway Safety Council will be joined by provincial safety groups, industry, business, governments, police, clergy, legal profession and many more to promote Canada's national Safe-Driving Week.

The Council fears 50 human lives will be snuffed out during that period on the highways and streets of Canada. While this is a large and needless slaughter, it would be less than the average for a week this time of year (77) and less than the seven-year average for Safe-Driving Week (53).

The Safety Council has called for the greatest possible co-operation by all motorists and pedestrians, to make this the safest seven days of the year. The request is not complicated or beyond reason; all that is asked is: "Drive safely, walk safely. Do that, and suffering and death can disappear from our roads."

It is a fact that more automobiles were sold in 1962 than in any of the three previous years. The number of licensed drivers increased at a more rapid rate in 1962 than in any year since 1950. There are more miles of good roads in Canada, better maintained, than ever before — these are miles of danger for the unwary.

December weather across Canada can bring tremendous variety. Bad weather means fewer travellers, more careful driving, fewer dead and injured. Good December weather means more deaths in highway traffic. December was once, and can still be the most dangerous traffic month. The seeds of tragedy are there.

If every Canadian province and every Canadian city can induce its people to double their vigilance, the tragic toll can be cut in half.

Unhappy prospect for the motorist

CREWS ARE standing by across Canada ready to dump thousands of tons of salt on roads and highways to melt snow and ice — reports Basil Jackson in The Financial Post. Roads department officials are happy — salt prices are down for the second successive year. But motorists are glum — they still say salt corrodes their cars. They have depreciation and repair bills to prove it.

Competition between Canadian salt producers is responsible for the nearly 10% drop in prices this year, plus some threat from U. S. producers. Just under 200,000 tons of salt, worth more than $1 million were imported in 1961. "For the first time in years", an industry executive says, "we are facing competition from U.S. exporters. Actually, prior to 1955, all salt used for roads in Ontario was imported from the U.S. Now, most of it is produced in the province". Ontario is the biggest user of salt for melting snow and ice from roads.

"Do it now" perennial slogan

THIS YEAR AGAIN, Canada's annual "Do It Now!" Winter Employment Campaign will promote the advantages of having more work done during the winter when men and materials are readily available.

As in previous years, the national program, supported by some 200 local campaigns, will be directed to consumers of goods and services in industry, business and the home. It will be based on sound business principles recognizing that the profit-motive does play an important part in creating more winter work.

There are many ways in which businessmen can help the "Do It Now!" Campaign and at the same time help themselves — says the current Newsletter of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. The winter months provide an opportunity to train or retrain personnel; to arrange annual vacations; to produce and stockpile standard products for spring delivery; to take advantage of the availability of skilled men and materials to do renovations, redecoration, repair and maintenance work; to build new plants or additions to existing ones; to investigate new applications of normal products in the manufacture or distribution of additional products suitable for winter marketing; to seek new and imaginative ways to overcome the cold weather inertia of potential customers; or to undertake winter sales promotion programs tied in with the "Do It Now!" Campaign, taking advantage of the public acceptance of the principle it publicizes. When everybody works, everybody benefits.

The lost million

RECENT EVIDENCE suggests that earlier estimates putting at 900,000 the number of emigrants who left Canada between 1946 and 1961 were distinctly on the low side. The actual number now appears to have been well in excess of 1,000,000.

This is an unpalatable subtraction to have to make from the total of 2,000,000 immigrants who entered this country in the same period.

We will never know what contribution this lost million might have made to Canadian growth and development. We do know that, in terms of age, education, skills, talent and capital, the loss is not one which Canada can take lightly.

Devising policies which will reduce the outflow in the next 15 years — and possibly attract back some of those who have left — is not the least of the challenges which now confront us.

A sidelight of "foreign ownership"

A FAIRLY COMMON complaint among persons worried about Canada's economic problems is that we're not really masters of our own destiny. They point to the fact that much of Canada's industry is owned by outsiders, most commonly Americans.

But if one of the most recent government moves proves to be successful, it may happen for just this reason — outside ownership.

This move involves the automobile industry, which is one of the bulwarks of the country's economy.

Because Canada has a relatively small population while possessing the auto tastes of her American neighbour, the industry finds itself in a position where it annually spends $500,000,000 more abroad than it realizes from exports.

It would, of course, be to our advantage if we could bring this more into balance, and this is the aim of the policy announced recently by Finance Minister Nowlan.

From the beginning of November Canadian plants are, in effect, permitted to import duty-free automatic transmissions and some engines up to the value of the exports of auto parts. The remainder will be subject to a stiff 25 percent duty.

The idea is the brainchild of Dr. Vincent Bladen, the University of Toronto economics professor who two years ago completed a one-man royal commission inquiry into the problems facing Canadian automobile manufacturers.

It will be some time before the success or failure of the idea becomes apparent. But one thing that makes success seem possible, is that the automobile industry is to a large extent controlled by parent firms in the United States.

It seems reasonable to assume they want their Canadian subsidiaries to be in healthy condition. And if that's the case, then they are in the position to do something concrete about seeing that the subsidiaries are able to benefit as much as possible from the concession on duties.

Something along this line has already been tried in the oil industry, and seems to be working. And if the plan for autos works out as hoped, it may lead to similar policies for other industries, which in time might turn the foreign ownership of many Canadian firms into almost a blessing in disguise.

Joke of the Week

Of Many Things

— By Ambrose Hills —

FARM PROBLEMS

Farm problems had an airing in parliament during October. Every farmer should get Hansard for October 16, 18 and 19. It makes better reading than a hot Whodunit.

Oddly enough, though I am an anti-socialist from away back, I find myself much in accord with the sentiments of a leading socialist on some farm matters. H. W. Herridge, New Democrat Parliamentary Leader, commenting on the debate in his party's paper, wrote: "We have always rejected the maxim that bigness automatically brings about greater efficiency. We have only to look at the inefficiency of Soviet agriculture despite collectivization — or, rather, precisely because of collectivization — to see how dangerous and tragic are the results of doing away with the family farm. The disasters that have befallen the Chinese communes are simply the latest example."

When Mr. Herridge changed his "despite" to "precisely because of", he rang bells for me.

He rang more bells when he wrote: "While I have great respect for highly trained persons and specialists, whose advice is always necessary, I place an equally great value on the common sense of the ordinary Canadian farmer. He knows his economics."

He could have delighted me more if he had said he placed greater value on common sense, and that farmers know their farms — rather than their economics. I believe the man who has been farming most of his life, on his own land, is the best-trained specialist to make decisions about it.

It is refreshing to hear socialists talking like old-line Conservatives these days, when too many leading Conservatives are talking like doctrinaire socialists. Perhaps some sort of balance will come of it.

Of course, Mr. Herridge always has been an unusual socialist, if he is one at all. He may be socialist in the party sense, but not in the theoretical sense. At any rate, he often talks a lot of good common sense.

The bogey that bigness automatically means efficiency that will squeeze the little fellow out of business is one that needs to be killed. The big concern is in constant danger of slowness and bureaucracy; the little fellow, quick on his feet, can often win. Just keep out of the fight and watch it; chances are the little fellow, if you leave him alone, will do all right.

FREE VEGETABLES

Kitchener, Ont. (CP) — Allan White of Petersburg, about six miles west of here, gives away vegetables. Mr. White likes to grow them but he can't use all the pumpkins, squash, tomatoes and potatoes, so he piles them next the highway outside his homestead with a sign "Free — help yourself."

Early Canadian furniture becoming collector's items

In nearby Ste. Therese, second and third generations of the Thibault family are producing — on a commercial scale — handcrafted furniture that is as Canadian as the maple leaf. Employing skilled craftsmen, rather than factory workers, E. Thibault Limited reproduces early 18th and 19th century Canadian provincial furniture and helps to keep alive the memory of that colorful era in Canadian history. Highly skilled workers who use pegs with screws, and ironworkers who hand-forge hinges, are the workmen in this unique plant.

The firm was founded in 1898 by Ernest Thibault, cabinet maker, who for many years turned out pine wood sideboards similar to the primitive ones used by early Canadian settlers. The ready acceptance of the cabinets encouraged him to enlarge his plant and to seek out other original pieces worthy of copying. Today, the firm makes every imaginable piece of furniture — from old-fashioned rocking chairs to modern poker tables — but the hand-crafted nature and the quality of the workmanship have remained constant.

These present-day reproductions are covered with upholstery fabrics that are distinctively Canadian too. Many of them are hand-loomed by the artisans of the lower St. Lawrence Valley, in patterns as old as the province. Woven from yarns spun by Canadian mills, the fabrics are alive with gay colors, sharply contrasting with the rugged simplicity of the furniture itself.

But Thibault furniture is also widely used commercially in hotels and motels, where more hard-wearing upholstery coverings are used. Durable and easy to maintain, plastic coated fabrics are ideal for this purpose. They add function, without detracting from the character of the furniture itself.

To round out the Canadiana theme, Thibault also produces home furnishings. Hand-hooked pictures, depicting familiar scenes in brilliant colors, are set off by rich, hand-made wooden frames. And hand carving is applied to lamp bases, decorative wall plaques and even to some chairbacks.

The firm is just starting to make authentic, line-for-line reproductions of early Canadian furniture pieces. Interest in it is rapidly mounting — not only among Canadians, but by furniture collectors throughout the world.

Safe Driving Week —

Pedestrians must be seen

The pedestrian walking along the highway at night can better protect himself by wearing bright clothing or by carrying a bright object, so his silhouette can be distinguished from the shadows. Where there are no sidewalks or footpaths along the road, the Highway Code says a pedestrian must walk at the left facing traffic approaching. In this manner he is more aware of an oncoming vehicle than if his back was turned. The safety of the pedestrian depends on his own vigilance, and if he observes the simple rules of the Highway Code, all the chances are with him.

"Let me help!"

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Let me help!" What happens in your home when your small son or daughter asks to join in some grown-up job? A child watches mother or dad engrossed in a task with great interest. His eagerness to be of assistance is a precious thing. If a small child's offer of assistance is refused or postponed to some other day he will be less likely to want to help another time. Children don't like to be rebuffed any more than adults!

It does take time and patience to include a little boy or girl in performing some job. Dad can bring in the wood and light the stove faster all by himself than if he waits for Junior to collect his pile of sticks. Mother can mix muffins much more quickly if she does not stop to delegate the beating of the egg or the greasing of the tins to Mary — but how much Junior or Mary will miss not only in training to be contributing members in the work of the home, but in the sense of comradeship and in the pride of achievement which a father-and-son or a mother-and-daughter completed job brings with it!

When a child wants to help, if at all possible put the youngster to work then and there. See that daughter is properly clothed for the job — an apron on for baking. Make sure that your child has the right work tools — such as a mixing bowl and beater to beat an egg. Then work alongside the child at your part of the job. If you must give more instructions or criticize the way the child is working, do it in a constructive, kindly way. If a task is a little too difficult for a child or he is taking too long to do it, help him finish it. Don't take over the job and do it yourself!

The next time the child is helping, delegate more responsibility and cut down on directions. If the child is old enough and keen about that particular task, work toward the time when the son or daughter can complete the task all by himself or herself. Use encouragement and show a child how to avoid making the same mistake twice. Be generous in your praise of a job well done.

Sometimes in a home where there are older boys and girls at school, the youngsters have become more and more preoccupied with their school work, their friends and their own interests and activities. They rarely ask, "Let Me Help!" Often mother, in a mistaken idea that she is being "good to the children," asks little or nothing from them in assistance in the work of the home. She may not realize it, but a house where mother does the children's beds, tidies up and picks up after them, is an excellent training ground for her son and daughter to become a selfish husband or a helpless wife in a few years' time.

In the fair division of the work of the home, father, because he is away so much and can look on things with a more impartial view, should give some direction. Everyone, even a small child, should have some work to do. A family council, when father reviews all the work mother does each week is a good idea. In some houses each child is allowed to choose at the end of the week some job he likes to do which he will carry out the next week. The tasks that no one is likely to pick such as washing the dishes, are written out on slips and rotated around so that each one has a turn.

Abraham Lincoln once said, "Wanting to work is so rare a merit, it should be encouraged".

Home-baked goodies, tasty gifts

Share your Christmas baking with your friends. Jelly Cheese Dreams with a cheese-shortbread base, red jelly centre and butter-crumb topping are easy to make and handy to serve or package for gift giving. The recipe comes from the Consumer Section at Ottawa.

— Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

1 Cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 1 cup shredded medium or old Cheddar cheese, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add cheese and combine thoroughly. Gradually add flour and stir until well mixed. Pat mixture into a 10-inch square pan. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) until very lightly browned around edges, about 20 minutes.

Topping

2 Cups tart red jelly, ½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar, ¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour, ½ cup butter.

Spread jelly evenly over the baked mixture. Mix brown sugar and flour, add butter and blend well with a pastry blender. Sprinkle on top of jelly. Return to oven and bake until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Cut in rectangles 1" x 2". Makes about 50 rectangles.

Breakfast Spread

An unusual and delicious spread for breakfast toast is made by beating one-half cup honey into one-half cup soft butter or margarine, and mixing in one-eighth teaspoon ground cinnamon.

BREAD MAKING

In the North of England, the housewives usually use a large, earthenware bowl with straight, slanting sides, for making their breads. Not only is the bread mixed in this bowl, which is called a "pansion", but the dough is kneaded in it too. This is done by revolving the ball of dough round and round while pulling handfuls of the dough from the outside and tucking it down into the centre. It is thought that the origin of this custom stems from the days when northern kitchens were large and draughty, so the deep-sided "pansions" were used to protect the dough and keep it warm.

Plan distinctive, colorful outdoor Yule decorations

By Mary Fran Burke

Now's the time to start planing your Christmas decorations. You may be as creative as your heart wishes and your pocketbook won't even feel the pinch.

Your home, lawn, trees and shrubbery can be a winter wonderland by using Christmas lights. Decorative strings run the gamut from Sparkle, Glow, Lighted Ice, to Snowball lights.

Creating a colorful outdoor scene can be fun for the whole family. Remember, though, simplicity is the keynote, and before doing anything else, you should decide on your decorating scheme.

If you want to make a hit with the youngsters, you can present Santa in several novel ways. Use Santa perched on a fence, lighting him with Christmas lights; or put Santa in a balloon made of hoola-hoops — wired together to form a sphere — and trimmed with strings of Christmas lights, using colored floodlights for effect.

On the other hand, you may prefer to highlight the religious story of Christmas. Many beautiful effects can be created by floodlighting the manger scene with various colors. Add a lighted cross on your roof, outlined with white, low lights.

If you want your house to say "Merry Christmas" for you, outline windows, doors and roof with strings of colorful Christmas lights.

It's a good idea to make a detailed plan of your decorating scheme, including color of lights to be used and where they will be placed. Also, if you use two or more centres of interest, keep them well separated so that they do not compete with one another.

One way to focus attention on a centre of interest is to use strings of Christmas lights that have been anchored on the lawn and that come together in a stream of light to the focal point on the house.

Don't forget to use floodlights to give an added touch to your decorating theme outdoors. This helps to tie the whole project together, by supplying a diffused light over the entire area.

A word to the wise: it is what you do with what you have, that spells the difference between an attractive, eye-catching display and a gaudy show. Now's your chance to put your artistry and originality to work!

If you really want to get things rolling, the best way to begin is by rolling up your sleeves.

W. I. extending activity in Canadian Northwest

Have you ever had to fly to reach the next community, 100 miles away or so? Have you ever had to travel 300 miles by plane to reach a dentist to have a tooth pulled?

"These are normal everyday occurrences in the north", says Mrs. William Hough, of Stratford, Ont., as she reports on her recent journey to the Yukon and Mackenzie District in the interest of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada.

Among some of the vivid word pictures she paints: a small boy struggling up a 15-foot embankment carrying a pail of the muddy Mackenzie River water to his home (how can the Women's Institute stress adequate cleanliness in the home, she comments, when there is no adequate water supply?); an Indian family that had taken in an old widow without family and a small orphaned child; Arctic cranberry jam and tarts at a W.I. supper (delicious!); music by Indian boys, who have a keen sense of rhythm; and the friendliness of the native women everywhere she went.

Mrs. Hough visited the groups organized in 1960, three of which she found in a flourshing condition. Inuvik, "the modern story book picture town", description used by Mrs. Hough, holds craft classes at the Federal School and a Get-Acquainted party is held each fall, as the population is quite transient. At Discovery she found their outstanding project had been collecting $1,700 for cancer treatment for one of the residents at the camp. Other welfare work is also done for the needy in the Yellowknife area, 15 minutes away by air. Fort Providence is carrying on an extensive work in crafts, in particular reviving the older Indian handwork. Their moosehair embroidery has become quite famous all through that region and even farther afield. A class in Basic English for pre-school native children is another outstanding project of this group. Fort McPherson had temporarily disbanded but there is a possible reforming of the W.I. there among the native women.

Five new Institutes were formed. These are a second group at Inuvik, composed mainly of native women and choosing the name Delta W.I. to avoid confusion with the older W. I. at the other end of the town; Aklavik; Fort Good Hope; Fort Simpson and Fort Smith, the latter to be called "Capnoweta W.I." (Capital of the North West Territories).

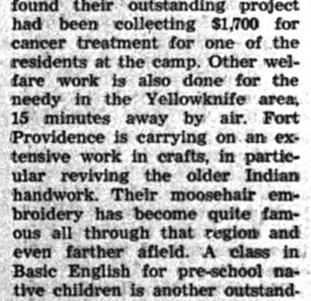

The Yukon proved more disappointing. The more advanced development there seems to have widened the barrier between the white and native population, with the result the latter are more withdrawn, is Mrs. Hough's observation. The interest shown by the women in the Yukon could not be compared with the Mackenzie District.

"The FWIC is meeting the challenge in promoting and extending the W.I. program to the women of the north", says Mrs. Hough.

TAKE HEED

Premier Castro might do well to reflect on the fact that in Russia well over half the total berry and vegetable production comes from the tiny privately owned plots which the Russian peasants are permitted to cultivate in their spare time. He might also be well advised to reflect on the conspicuous failures of the state farming system to produce adequate foodstuffs in Russia, Red China, East Germany, and most other Communist countries.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Just the mention of liver for dinner may evoke a protest from some member of the family, so that many homemakers are reluctant to prepare it. But Canada's Food Guide recommends liver should be included in the diet as one of the best available sources of iron.

Nutritionists at the Macdonald Institute in Guelph say that when properly cooked, liver is tender, juicy and very tasty meat. The secret is a low cooking temperature (375 degrees Fahrenheit) and immediate serving.

To pan fry, place the floured and seasoned liver in a pre-heated frying pan and fry over low to medium heat until brown. Turn and continue to cook until the centre shows no sign of redness.

A different liver dish is liver dumplings served with creole sauce, fried onions or sauerkraut.

To make the dumplings, slice two-thirds of a pound of liver and let it stand in boiling water for 10 minutes. Then grind liver with half an onion and two strips of bacon and combine with three thick slices of bread softened in water, two beaten eggs, two teaspoons of salt, one-quarter cup flour and one-half teaspoon baking powder together and add to the liver mixture. Then drop by spoonfuls into boiling water, cover tightly and simmer for 10 to 12 minutes.

In addition to iron, liver contains other essential nutrients such as vitamin A, vitamin C, niacin and riboflavin.

Proper Garnish

Most dishes can be made to look tasty and tempting by the simple art of garnishing — an art which can be acquired by following a few simple rules.

Generally, garnishes should be edible and suitable in character and size to the food adorned. Scalloped orange shells filled with cranberry sauce, for example, make an attractive surrounding for a crisp golden turkey but would be too large to place around a small chicken.

The flavor of edible garnishes should be in keeping with the food. A dill pickle would be suitable beside a mound of potato salad but not with pancakes or French toast. Bland foods require more highly seasoned garnishes, but if they are too spicy these may detract from the main dish.

A garnish must be neatly arranged in a fashion that will enhance the food with which it is used. A flat spreading garnish will make a mould appear smaller while a perky lettuce leaf will give it height.

Temperature is an important factor — it would be unsuitable to serve a cold sliced frankfurter with a hot soup, or hot pineapple rings on cold ham. And any frozen food used as a garnish should be sufficiently cold to hold its shape.

Colors should harmonize. Contrasting colors usually produce an appetizing picture, and so much of our food is a neutral shade that a wide range of colors is permitted.

One point to remember — a drab looking dish can be made to look regal but no garnish can disguise a poor-quality food.

Card Party

The members of St. John the Divine (Glen) held their second successful "500" party, at the home of Mrs. E. Tomalty last Saturday. The prizes were won by (first) Mrs. T. Cooper and Mr. Edgar Williams, and (consolation) Mrs. Jack Smith and Mr. Charles Washer. . . Again the church groups wish to thank all who helped make this party successful, with special thanks to Mrs. Tomalty for the use of her home. The proceeds will be donated to the Altar Guild.

Cushing

Mrs. George Drew, of Verdun, was an overnight guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning, last Wednesday-Thursday.

Mrs. K. Thompson visited her sister in Ottawa recently, prior to leaving by plane to visit friends in Paris and other centres.

Miss E. M. Graham spent the latter part of the week in Montreal.

Acknowledgment Appreciated

It was rather gratifying to note that, in the account of Brownsburg Red Cross meeting, Frontier W.I. were thanked for their donation of a quilt. As a rule, no matter what society Cushing gives help to, they are not mentioned when results are tabled. Several collections are made yearly for UNICEF on Hallowe'en night by Lachute school pupils, but no mention is made of the fact that Cushing residents have had a part in the givings.

Miss Kama Bailey was an overnight guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Noble in Lachute, and went to Montreal with them on Saturday to view the Santa Claus parade.

A number of Cushing residents attended the St. Andrews East United Church tea and sale on Saturday.

Miss Florence Holmes visited her mother, Mrs. R. T. Holmes, for the week-end, at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. Bailey.

Sympathy Note

The very sincere sympathy of this community is extended to Mrs. I. Young of Calumet, in the passing of her husband recently.

Mrs. L. R. McGain spent the past week with friends in Montreal.

Mrs. R. Robinson and Mrs. Davidson, of Lachute, visited Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Canning on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bryerton, of Rosemere, visited Mr. and Mrs. Bailey on Sunday.

Mrs. Jean Robson spent the week-end at her Cushing home.

Mr. Gerald Cushing, of Montreal, spent the week-end in Cushing, occupying "Kingscot".

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Morrow and baby, Dean, of Chatboro, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Morrow, Monalea Road.

The church service and Sunday School will be held in St. Mungo's Church at 10.15 a.m., until further notice.

Miss Shirley Graham, of Monalea Road, had a birthday party on Saturday. All the young guests were local children except her cousins, Stanley and Victor Kaprusiak, of Montreal.

Kilmar

We are sorry to report that Mrs. G. Rouleau is still a hospital patient in Montreal; friends hope she will soon be home again.

Birthday Club

The Kilmar Birthday Club met at the home of Mrs. Omar Thomas last Wednesday, to celebrate the birthday of her daughter, Mrs. St. Onge. The ladies present all reported an enjoyable afternoon. Mrs. St. Onge was presented with a lovely blanket and two china cups and saucers.

The ladies of Kilmar United Church held their annual turkey supper last Thursday evening; a large crowd attended, and all agreed that the event was a great success.

Succumbs to Accident

The sympathy of this community is extended to the family and friends of the late Isaac Young, of Calumet, who passed away Friday evening as the result of injuries he received when struck by a car the previous Sunday.

With fruits, spices and goodies, 'that season' approaches again!

"Exile from Sunnyacres"

By Margaret Cook

Christmas cake time! The whole house smells of fruits, spices, molasses, and all the other goodies that are embodied in the fat, round cakes. It took one and a half hours to mix the things, about an equal time to prepare fruits, nuts, baking-tins, etc. The baking time was three hours, and I have almost 9 lbs. of cake. That's $9.00 at the going price. . . As my char said insultingly to me, "You should have been a cook, instead of a teacher". Former pupils please note. Said char, until I hove on her horizon, bought her Christmas cakes at the super-market; now by unsubtle methods, she generally manages to get one of mine. This year I cruelly suggested that she take my recipe and make her own. She went home quite depressed, musing on the hard-heartedness of employers.

As you can see, the Christmas spirit is already abroad in the land. Only, it's the Advent spirit, of course. I see and read with interest that a few people are beginning to protest the Christmases that arrive each year, earlier and earlier.

Now that everybody has simmered down after a well-fought election, we hope we can look for a sane and stable government for a few years. Only trouble is that governments, like people, begin to die as soon as they are born. I believe that the anomaly that enabled a boy or girl to get married before they could go to a movie, has already been corrected. Now I hope we can have some sensible laws about the possession of hunting licenses, and the preservation of game. . . Please excuse if my colleague in the Outdoors column and I, keep harping on these subjects. We both see and hear too many revolting and stupid actions, to keep silent. That's one good thing about a democracy; if one feels like saying "To hell with the government", we can. But not for long.

Suburbia closes in; instead of long walks in the woods, and pleasant gossips with the neighbors, we go to see films, attend meetings, listen to Chamber Music, run for buses and trains, join the crowds in the supermarkets. We had an amusing experience in the last named just two nights ago. First, Margaret Cook trundled the basket belonging to another shopper, a good ten feet from where she left it. Apologies, and all that. Somehow, we kept meeting this poor creature from aisle to aisle. Finally, in the fruit and vegetables, the head of the house put ten grapefruit in her basket. I ran to correct this, but not in time. The poor thing just said mournfully, "The same people!" It wasn't really finally, because, when he was carrying out a large box of groceries, the head of the house bumped into the same woman. Mercifully, I did not see the collision.

As for the Chamber Music, that, too, has its overtones of comedy. This particular concert was devoted to music on the recorder. This is a long, slender pipe, like a flute, only wood. On such an instrument did the Elizabethans tootle, accompanied. I have always been an admirer of the first Elizabeth, and to while away the musical hour, I imagined Elizabeth with her red hair piled high, her fan-shaped neckpiece framing her long, white face, swinging a dainty toe. Probably with poor Essex, who literally lost his head about her. In this case, the recorders were accompanied by a spinet, but I suspect that was an anachronism. I do not think spinets were around in Elizabeth's time. The head of the house refers to that instrument as "that tin-can thing". Certainly, the sounds are a little tinny. The brasses were good; but it was the conductor whom I really enjoyed. He so obviously loved the sounds he was making and guiding. Not conceit; just nice, childish enjoyment.

As for the long walks in the woods, well, we can, if we wish, walk in the Arboretum, belonging to the College. It is very pleasant, if a little civilized. Then, there is the back garden and patio, where life is played out in miniature by Peter, the cat, the grey squirrels, and the sparrows, not to mention the occasional raiding cats and dogs. The other day I saw what appeared to be a fan running across the yard. On closer inspection, it turned out to be the husks of an ear of corn, which a grey squirrel was propelling toward our patio, where the eating would be easier. Peter, too, saw the squirrel, and ran on stealthy cat-feet to intercept him. The squirrel was scared off just short of the stones and ran up into a tree, scolding fiercely. Peter, in true cat-fashion, sat down on the edge of the patio and sneered at him. While the two were busy daring each other, two sparrows hopped up and had several good pecks, before Peter became conscious of their audacity. When he charged them, they flew up into a tree. Just there, Margaret Cook had to attend to some cooking, so I never saw the sequel, except for a denuded ear of corn left lying on the lawn.

On the home-front, life goes on much as usual — little tragedies, little comedies and much work. I was placidly watching television the other night when the head of the house rushed into the room, lifted drapes, moved the set, peered along the walls. Educationalists, along with artists and musicians, are quite often eccentrics when they are not stuffed shirts, so I am innured to such peculiarities. But this got a bit monotonous, as I could not see the man's brain being removed, or some such, on the screen. So I inquired what the head of the house thought he was doing. He replied, "Trying to catch that darned cricket. . ." Yes you guessed it. . . It was the beep-beep of the heart-monitoring instrument being used in the operating room! Seems that he and another educationalist had had an unfortunate night with a cricket in a motel in your fair city of Lachute. Now you know what government inspectors do in the long evenings. They chase crickets.

LEGION NOTES

— by —

Branch 70 Correspondent

"ACTIVE SERVICE YESTERDAY COMMUNITY SERVICE TODAY"

On November 11, Argenteuil Branch 70 held Remembrance services for those of their comrades who gave their lives while wearing the Queen's colors. Let us also remember those of our comrades who have died while wearing the Legion's colors.

At the recent Armistice dinner we noted many empty places in the Memorial Hall — places formerly occupied by those who have passed to the Great Beyond.

Yes, the Flame in the Hall was dim that night,
Too many vacant chairs,
The sun has lost too much of its light,
Too many songs have taken flight,
Too many ghosts stand on the stairs.
Death, here's to you; as man against man,
We sure wish we could pick them
the way you can.

Yes, there are many gaps in the ranks of the Legion these days. When the roll is called there are some who still answer "Here" when the call is due. But Death is a busy boat, and the dock gets closer with each passing day.

Pilot, who look to your river trade
Where the shadowy Styx rolls by,
You have taken your pick of the mystic glade,
Danny Bryson, Tom Stewart and Ted
Hammond's shade,
Drift through a starless sky —
And somewhere deep in the tarn
Eddie Jones is spinning another yarn.

Death, answer us this day —
From all the world's corrals
Why do you always look our way?
We are not worried about your pay
But why do you always pick our pals? . .
David Paul, J. MacPherson, C. Matheson,
C. Walker and Ray Holmes,
From the Hall they knew where the flagons foam,
One by one you have called them home.

One by one on a mist-blown eve
Wearing your ghostly hood
We have seen you pluck them by the sleeve,
Telling them each it was time to leave . . .
Tommy Grey, Les Hooker, W. Cross,
Rev. Cousins.
Just before the show was getting good,
With a lifted glass, as we looked about,
We have seen them leave as the tide rolled out.

Death, we are sorry we failed the test,
You're not the one to blame.
You picked the brightest, you picked the best,
You carried them off to a dreamless rest
That towers above all fame. . .
Jim Coney, Stew Wilson, Charlies Rapson,
Martel and Watson, Frank Earle, N.
Levis, R. McRae, Mel Copeland,
F. Lavigne —
No wonder the angels roar and sing!

Listen Death, the last of all,
Who knows where the journey ends —
When you have come to the final call,
Where the candle flutters against the wall,
Kindly forget all our friends;
For friends are all that this old earth
Has yet to give that is any worth.

* * *

Fame and Gold? They are less than dust,
Less than April's song;
They are less, than weeds in the earth's dull crust
When a friendly hand in your own is thrust,
And an old mate comes along. . . .
John MacKimmie, Bryan Townsend, R.
Morrison, R. Miller, C. Theoret;
But the dock lights flame with a sudden flare
And Death beckons — who is there?

Yes, the Flame in the Hall is dim these nights,
Too many vacant chairs,
Too many friends have taken flight. . .
Joss, Taylor, Sid Maidens, G. Kuhring
W. Dinsmore, G. L. Gall,
Too many ghosts stand on the stairs. . .
Death, here's to you; as men against men,
We wish we could pick them the way you can.

Out of our duty and obligations to those who fell in war, has risen the Royal Canadian Legion. For our duty and obligations to those Legionnaires in fraternal service to others, must come the continuance of the good work the Legion does. As the Church has her honored roll of Saints — so these, are the honored Saints of the Legion. They await us. Let us here attend more Legion meetings, in order that we will not feel out of place at that Final Legion Meeting.

Safe Driving Week —

Car upkeep vital to safe driving

"Safe-Driving Week, December 1 to 7, would be a good time to give your car a thorough check-up," advised Peter Millard, chairman of the Vehicle Safety Council. Mr. Millard advised every motorist to check his car's lights, ignition, exhaust system, horn, windshield, rear window glass, windshield wipers, defroster, heater, brakes and tires. "And do it at once!" he said. "Catch flaws before they become breakdowns."

Mr. Millard also urged motorists to have their cars checked regularly by reliable mechanics. "But," he said, "every car owner can check his car's lights every day if he wants to. Simply switch on lights and turn-signals and walk around the car to see if they're working. Lights are vital to safe driving at night and in bad weather, particularly during snow storms."

The potato speaks up

There are so many attractively packaged convenience foods on the grocery shelves these days that consumers are inclined to overlook an old standby like the potato. It can only watch with envy as its rivals, rice and pastas, put up in glamorous packages, catch the consumer's eye. If it could speak for itself here are some of the things it might say:-

— What food gives you so much value for your money as I do? For only a few cents per pound I supply food energy, vitamins, particularly Vitamin C and minerals. I am most valuable when cooked whole in my jacket, either boiled or baked.

— Canada's Food Guide, our national yardstick to healthful eating, tells you that you should eat at least one serving of potatoes every day. Do you do this?

— Why am I considered fattening? I don't have any more calories than a piece of candy and my calories are not "empty ones" — they provide good food value as well.

— You can buy me in any quantity you wish — 5, 10, 15, 25 and 50 pound bags are available.

— I am graded and given a grade name. This means I have to come up to certain standards as to size, shape and maturity and I must be free from blemishes, disease and injury. My most common name is Canada No. 1. Many of the packers give me a washing and pack me in transparent bag.

— I am well liked by young and old and many expect to find me at every dinner.

— I get along well with other foods. For dinner, my natural companions are meat or fish. For lunch, supper and even breakfast I go well with other foods.

— So next time you're shopping don't forget to put valuable and economical potatoes on your list.

Canada No. 1 grade potatoes are sized - 2¼" to 4" in diameter for round varieties (2¼ to 3¼" in containers of 25 pounds or less). Long varieties — at least 2 inches in diameter or, if not less than 3¼ inches long, 1¾ inches in diameter.

TIPS ON COLD WEATHER POULTRY MANAGEMENT

1. Ventilate house. Let fresh air in without admitting drafts; let damp, moisture-laden air out. If strong ammonia fumes hit you when you open the house in the morning, more ventilation is needed. Insulation is an absolute must before proper ventilation is attained in cold weather.

2. Provide plenty of ice-free water. Keep water at 50° or higher. Your birds will not drink enough to maintain peak production if forced to drink icy water. If necessary, use automatic electric water warmers.

3. Extra light pays. Provide enough light to make a 14 hour day; with 1 watt to every 4 sq. ft. of floor space. Use dim night-light if desired.

4. Keep flock on feed. Your hens have to eat to lay. A slight drop in feed consumption may be a first indication that a stress condition exists that could result in a laying slump. To increase consumption feed Purina Boost-R-Aid.

5. Feed a Purina Laying Ration; designed to give you lots of eggs, fine-flavoured, tasty eggs, with uniform yellow yolks, and whites that are thick and upstanding.

I'd like to give you any help you need on feeding, management or sanitation. Why not give me a call, or drop in at my Store with the Checkerboard Sign and let's talk about how you can make more profit the Purina way.

Donald M. Hay
Manager, Lachute branch

B of M manager says fiscal year busiest on record

Coast to coast in Canada — and abroad — the fiscal year just ended has been the busiest in the Bank of Montreal's 145-year history, according to Donald Hay, manager of the Lachute branch.

The bank's annual statement for the year ended October 31, shows that resources climbed beyond the $4 billion mark — to $4,015 million — for the first time at a year-end.

Loans of all kinds, to individuals, businesses and municipalities, set a new record at $2,269 million — 17.33 per cent above the 1961 figure — and deposits reached a new peak of $3,713 million, said Mr. Hay. The deposits figure includes $1,834 million of Canadians' personal savings, also a new high.

Earnings Up

The bank's earnings set a new record, too. Net profit for the year was $16,013,512 for operations of the local branch and more than 900 other offices at home and abroad. However, this amount was earned only after payment of income taxes of $18,353,442 — 14.6 per cent more than the net earnings figure.

22,000 Shareholders

The B of M's 22,000 shareholders are being paid dividends totaling $2.10 per share.

The B of M manager said quickly available resources are $1,820 million, or 47.85 per cent of the bank's public liabilities of $3,803 million, compared with a 54.56 per cent in 1961, and providing evidence of the heavy credit demands made on the bank during the year.

Valuation of bank premises is shown at $65,878,133, compared with $63,062,983 in 1961, an increase of 4.46 per cent, and an indication of continuing branch modernization and extension in this province and elsewhere in Canada.

HIGH PROFITS FROM LOWLY POTATOES

Canadians are eating close to $20 million worth of potato chips annually, making this crisp snack food one of the most profitable ways in which to market potatoes, says Jack Schreiner in The Financial Post. This is proven by the major food companies that have moved into chip-making during the last year or two, either gobbling up the small companies that pioneered chips or opened their own production lines.

Potato chip production, which has doubled during the last five years just keeping up with consumption, is expected to grow almost as fast during the next five years. Canadians eat about 2 lbs. of chips per capita annually, about half the U.S. average per capita consumption. The success of potato chips is one of the best examples of the boom in the Canadian snack food industry. The industry credits more leisure time and more disposable income for the surge in snack food sales. The TV-watching habit is commonly believed responsible for some of the increases.

Canada's most famous irrigated crop rotation test — Rotation "U" at the Lethbridge Research Station — has this year produced hard red spring wheat at the rate of 72 bushels per acre.

Established in 1910, Rotation "U" is the oldest experimental area of its kind in North America. It is a well-managed fertilized rotation of wheat, oats, barley, sugar beets and alfalfa.

Results of soil analyses taken every 10 years have shown that nitrogen and organic matter content have increased steadily over the period.

The long term average wheat yield for the fertilized plots on the rotation is around 58 bushels per acre. Long term yields of oats and barley in the rotation have been around 104 and 74 bushels per acre.

Applications of barnyard manure and commercial fertilizers have helped to maintain yields over the years.
