Court appeal for Periard life imprisonment sentence

Five Appeal Court judges took under deliberation an appeal on behalf of Jean Périard, 19, of this town, who was convicted for non-capital murder in a jury verdict recommending clemency of the court.

Périard was found guilty of the rifle slaying of 17-year-old André Prevost, which climaxed a long standing feud between the two youths.

J. A. Bélisle, counsel for Périard, pleaded mental alienation and contended that the jury in recommending clemency found him guilty of the act but not with criminal intent (by reason of his derangement) and made their recommendation accordingly. Mr. Bélisle therefore asked for acquittal on mental grounds, even though, in accordance with the law and the charge specified, he had been automatically sentenced to life imprisonment.

Roger Lagarde, QC, as crown prosecutor, opposed the appeal and asked that the sentence be sustained.

The defence argued the fatal shooting was a manifestation of mental aberration evident in his whole outlook in preceding months. Psychiatrists had testified the accused was melancholy; a test had revealed his depressed personality. The youth's mother had confirmed that he "had been strange" (il n'allait pas bien) since May 1961 and she had tried to get him to go into hospital. He had been in a nervous state, and wanted to do little else but "sit, and rock, and weep". Nor did he eat normally.

On another occasion the accused seemed to take renewed interest in life — inspired by the attraction of a young girl. Then followed a relapse into mental depression, when his love affair was broken off, and all his previous symptoms appeared more pronounced.

"The Scene" IN BROWNSBURG

(Our District Correspondent)

— Is there a town with sidewalks as badly eroded as ours? "They don't seem to make them like they used to." Some of the walks constructed many years ago are in excellent condition, yet some of the more recent ones show little semblance to their original appearance.

— Mayor James Donaldson officiated at the cutting of the first tree, when town employees began to clear the land recently purchased from C-I-L for a municipal office building. Mayor Donaldson expressed satisfaction at having obtained the land, but was rather dubious about the capability of funds for construction of offices.

— When, oh when, will the dog by-law become law? There are more wandering dogs to the acre in Brownsburg!

— Both the hockey and skating trophies at the Community Rink Association carnival were captured by the French school this year... Among other things, the skating events showed that the use of figure skates by girls of all ages has taken the art out of skating and produced a generation of awkward, hopping "walkers"! While a youngster's dreams of being a figure skating queen can still come true today, they must realize that a good figure skater is primarily an excellent and graceful performer.

Hon. Davie Fulton speaks here in support of Regimbal Cons.

Last Sunday afternoon Roger E. Regimbal, Progressive Conservative candidate in Argenteuil-Two Mountains, continued his campaign in a meeting at the Clement School in Ayersville, where the Hon. E. Davie Fulton, Minister of Public Works, said that only the Progressive Conservatives can hope to form the stable government Canada needs at this time.

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Regimbal has demonstrated that he is worthy of the responsibility of representing the constituency of Argenteuil - Two Mountains. He said the electors of the constituency have a clear choice, since Mr. Regimbal is the best candidate, representing the party with the best record and the best program.

A parade of more than 275 cars preceded the meeting, which was attended by over 350 people. Mr. Gaston Plamondon was chairman. Other speakers in support of Mr. Regimbal were the Hon. W. M. Cottingham, M.L.A. for Argenteuil, and Jacques Beaudoin. They spoke of Mr. Regimbal's abilities and experience, and of his personal sacrifice in offering himself as a candidate.

Mr. Regimbal emphasized that he had offered himself for the purpose of being of service to the population of Argenteuil-Two Mountains, which is a perfect working example of Canadian unity. He said he would like to see projected throughout Canada this example — a mosaic in which each element contributes its own strengths.

Mr. Regimbal reiterated his pride in his business and political associates, who had contributed much to the community.

He cited the strong leadership and the unity of the Progressive Conservative party, contrasted with the various self-contradictory and negative positions of the other parties.

Mr. Fulton, speaking both in English and French, described the dangerous record of the Social Credit party in British Columbia, with which he had become painfully familiar. He warned against the inflationary economic effect of Social Credit policies and decried those who would deny Canada's future by attempting to divide, rather than unite, its population.

He urged that all regions in Canada should adopt educational programs with broader outlooks, to eliminate regional prejudices. He suggested that we study the machinery of Confederation as an instrument of unity and examine it to see in what form it may best serve that objective in future. He suggested that Canada's various regional programs should be tackled one by one as opportunity arose. He warned against distant, high-sounding overall solutions. He said the Conservatives had conceived the idea of Confederation between its two original and equal parties.

Mr. Fulton declared that the Progressive Conservative party is the only one which can hope to achieve the working majority so vital to Canadian government at the present time. He said that the virtual lack of Liberal strength in the West and the Maritimes precluded that party from receiving a working majority, and pointed out that the remaining parties have already admitted their minority positions.

Drouin favors farm aid; heard in television talk

Quebec farmers would receive greater aid in the form of loans and crop insurance than they have obtained from the Conservatives, Vincent Drouin, Liberal candidate for Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes, said in a televised address last week.

Mr. Drouin referred to the proposal of Liberal Leader Pearson for two ministers of agriculture, one concerned with Eastern farm problems, the other with those of the West. This would be a first step towards the solution of a number of the difficulties confronting Quebec farmers.

"Thus for the first time in 75 years an agriculture minister from our own part of the country, who has lived with our problems, would give attention to the interests of our agriculture," said the Liberal candidate.

He pointed to the discrepancy between the number of farmers in Quebec receiving government loans and the total amount obtained, and the comparative numbers and amount for Saskatchewan. Such differences, he attributed to the lack of interest shown by the Conservatives in Eastern agriculture.

He said that Quebecers were not jealous of what the Western farmers obtained, but they were right in insisting that a minimum of consideration and justice be accorded them by the federal government.

One of the measures a Liberal government will introduce will be an amendment to the law covering crop insurance, he declared.

Hospital administrator appointed

The Hospital directorate (which meets regularly each Monday as construction proceeds) had a Health Department engineer, L. P. Langlois, at one of their recent confabs, and were informed that, barring unforeseen circumstances, the actual construction would be completed by the end of April.

Some of the essential equipment will be lacking, however, and none of the new furnishings will be delivered by that date. In order to satisfy the long-felt need for an early opening, the directors have pondered these difficulties, and after consulting the medical bureau and the staff of the present Providence Hospital, have decided to transfer the beds, furnishings and equipment from the old building to be used temporarily in the new Argenteuil Hospital. Thus, patients will enjoy the benefit of new, spacious and modern surroundings pending arrival of the all-new furniture and accouterments.

After interviewing several applicants for the position of administrator, the directors have appointed Mr. Guy Allard, a graduate in hospital administration latterly employed at the Ste. Jeanne d'Arc Hospital in Montreal. His appointment became effective April 1.

Strike vote taken by C.R.L. workers, Kilmar, Marelan

Ninety percent of union workers at Canadian Refractories plants at Kilmar and Marelan voted for strike action if demands are not met by their company. A secret ballot was taken at a meeting in Hawkesbury last Saturday.

The employees are members of Local 6213 of the United Steel Workers of America. Their wage demands are designed to bridge the gap between hourly rates in the same trade in United States and in Canada — $2.26 an hour as compared with $1.67 at Kilmar and Marelan.

The matter is under arbitration between company and union representatives at the Department of Labor offices in Montreal, with Justice René Lippé presiding.

A total of 378 union members voted at the meeting, held in the Catholic School at Hawkesbury last Saturday; only 37 voted against strike action — representing 90 percent of union workers in favor (75 percent of the total work force at C.R.L.). Robert Welburn, president of the local, stated there would be another meeting Saturday, April 6, to acquaint the workers with progress in the week's negotiations. The strike deadline is April 8.

Cattle buried in collapse of straw stack

(Our District Corespondent)

Rivington — An unfortunate accident occurred Friday at the farm of Herbert Smith. Part of Mr. Smith's herd of cattle were feeding from a straw stack that collapsed on them. Later in the day, when the proprietor was checking his cattle, he noticed that some were missing. A search led to the stack and the bodies of three animals. Six were pulled alive from the straw stack.

Easter Seals — significance of annual 'pink envelope'

A pink envelope, in all probability, was received in your mail... ...In all probability it remains unanswered... Yet your response to this missive may be all-important to the welfare of less-fortunate people, crippled, handicapped and denied the full enjoyment of life's activities.

"If enough of those pinks are sent back with a modest offering, we'll be able to act immediately on the requests of the many who need help," Robert E. Meagher, Quebec Easter Seals Society president, says. "We're not asking for big donations. A dollar each from even half of those pink envelopes will put us well over the top."

Col. Ernest Emmett (chairman of Easter Seals for the local canvassing agency, Lachute Lions Club) is equally anxious and enthusiastic for public sympathy with this cause. The Lions Club has been instrumental in helping many district cases through this fund — with artificial limbs, orthopedic aids, treatments — and only recently, was privileged to donate $300 to the Quebec Crippled Children's Society summer camp.

A portion of the local donations is remitted to headquarters. Organizations in Greater Montreal which benefit from Easter Seals through the medium of the Society, are — the Mackay Centre for Deaf and Crippled Children, Victor Dore School for Crippled, Province of Quebec Society for Crippled Children, Rehabilitation Institute of Montreal, Occupational Therapy and Rehabilitation Centre, and, the Montreal Rotary cripples' aid committee. Besides these organized agencies, crippled Quebecers are aided individually in many ways, either with social assistance, financial aid or transportation.

(Ontario readers may promote this good work in their own province through the Hawkesbury Rotary Club, which distributes Easter Seals in that area.)

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The petition from Ayersville that the municipality be taken under financial tutelage, will be pleaded by Roger Lagarde, QC, before a judge of the Superior Court at St. Jerome next Monday. A representation of village councillors was in Quebec recently to discuss the matter personally with the Minister of Municipal Affairs, the Hon. Pierre Laporte.

Mayor Roland Landriault of Grenville states that a $78,000 water and sewer project is awaiting only the endorsement of the provincial roads department. Plans are all prepared and it is hoped to tune in on financial aid from the winter works program (labor costs). It is understood that the department of roads will provide 40 percent of the total expense.

There's nothing so sordid as the mess which lingers around some properties in the long interim between March thaws and the gardening season. If the snow has now vanished from your yard, reach for the rake and the broom (especially you curlers, who'll be needing exercise). Don't wait for spring — do it now!

"We have sickness always with us," writes a mother in Huberdeau, sending $2 for the Easter Seals fund — $1 from her duaghter (in ill health for half of her life, and anticipating a heart operation this year) and $1 from her son, whose school work is frequently interrupted by an asthmatic condition. Her husband, moreover, is out of work. The lady feels, however, that Easter Seals is sufficiently worthy to deserve this annual contribution.

Regarding this campaign, three cases have come to notice of a personal approach by a collector on behalf of Easter Seals. We repeat the information appearing in certain Montreal newspapers — there is no personal solicitation for Easter Seals. It is a direct-mail approach, and donations should be sent only by mail, or handed to some official positively known and identified with the Lions Club committee.

April is Cancer month

The annual campaign for Canadian Cancer Society funds is now in progress, and on the program for the month of April. Co-chairmen of this effort are James K. (Jim) Campbell and J. Daniel Carrière, who this week are circularizing the appeal in letters to all residents prior to the personal canvass. The letter says, in part:

"Cash Kills Cancer"

The above headline appearing in our National newspapers should be a joy to us all.

Cancer, today, is recognized as our most dreaded enemy. Far more lives are lost to this one disease alone than the worst wars we have experienced.

Once again, the Canadian Cancer Society is asking you to contribute as generously as possible to its continuing research. You and we with our limited medical knowledge can do nothing except supply the dollars so that competent scientists can do our research for us.

Let's not let our selves, our friends and families down... A canvasser will be calling on you during the month of April. Please, receive him well!

Lions Club at Buckingham buys school building

The Buckingham Lions Club recently purchased a two-room school at Glen Almond.

The building had been put up for public auction by the Catholic School Commission, as it was no longer being used due to the fact that the area children now attend school in Buckingham.

Present at the auction, three members of the Buckingham Lions Club placed a bid of $1,000 on behalf of their club. The bid was accepted, and the Buckingham Lions acquired a new home.

Car hurtled down river bank, Barron's Bridge

Three Montreal men escaped serious injury on Thursday evening of last week when their rented car swerved out of control and smashed into the steel post on the western end of Barron's Bridge. The car hurtled through both guard rails down the embankment; it was prevented from falling into the river by a bumper, which caught on one of the fences.

Occupants of the car, Jean-Pierre Guerin, 23 (driver), André Bouchard, 21, and Jean Pierre Foisy, 24, all of Montreal, were doused in the river and received minor head and facial injuries. They were treated at the Providence Hospital and later released.

The 1963-model drive-yourself car was demolished in the mishap, which occurred at 9.55 p.m. Constables Beauregarde and Descoeurs, of the municipal police department, investigated.

Happened in Ayersville —

Councillors walk out on mayor!

Monday night at Ayersville, there was witnessed a scene that could only happen in the Council of that controversial community... Councillors were seated prior to their regular monthly meeting when the mayor unexpectedly walked in — and the councillors walked out!

At five minutes to eight, the six councillors were in caucus prior to the formal meeting, when Mayor Gaetan Paquette turned up unexpectedly. Four of the councillors immediately gathered up their papers and effects and filed out of the chamber, without a word to the Mayor. Two councillors remained — Lanthier (pro-mayor) and Simon, with the secretary. The latter, observing there was no quorum, also withdrew.

This eventuality had been inevitable, some day or other, for certain councillors vowed they would never sit with Mayor Paquette — without whom they could better administer the affairs of the municipality themselves.

Mayor Paquette has reportedly shown a complete disinterest, not having attended a meeting since January 7. If he had not appeared at the current (April) sitting, he would have been automatically disqualified from office, through repeated absence. His mandate ends at the beginning of May, and it is understood he will not seek re-election. His name remains on the valuation roll, even though he has sold his property on Laurier Street. Mr. Paquette is actually no longer a resident of Ayersville, having moved to Ripon, Papineau County. A registered letter was forwarded to him at that place, advising him recently that the Council was petitioning the court at St. Jerome to place the municipality under provincial tutelage.

Store showcard recalls old family medicos

Novelty and antiquity are combined in an interesting showpiece at Beaton's Pharmacy, which has been viewed by many passers-by, especially older residents. A French and English caption says, "Your reliable drugstore for over a quarter-century", and glued to the showcard are scrawling prescriptons by family doctors from the past, written on old-time letterheads faded and discolored by time (and additives?)

Some of the dates are undiscernible, but the doctors' signatures are plain to see — W. W. Alexander, M.D., Dr. J. M. Drew, Dr. J. H. Mason (1943), Dr. Findlay McMartin, Dr. A. Sauvé (1940), Dr. F. W. FitzGerald, Dr. Jules Lafleur... All, with one exception (Dr. F. McMartin) have passed to their reward, but their names are nostalgically remembered.

Felicitations to the proprietor, Donat Saulnier, B.Ph., on this unusual display.

By BOB ATCHISON

Comments on the set-up of our wildlife departments and their administration by the Tourist Bureau, have been heard from all sides — and this is to the good. With the announcement that Bona Arsenault is to become finance minister and the former finance minister to become head of tourist attractions, bears out the feeling that our natural resources are going to be shot through and through with problems. Briefs are being presented by almost every association. One of these in particular points out the lack of concern for hotels, beer halls, etc., and the final one makes very casual mention of the fish and game laws! Pressure must have been brought to bear in a big way in this case. A few honest-to-goodness sportsmen cannot operate against big business with any degree of success. Just the thought of what is going to happen is frightening. It looked as though our forests were going to get a break with the appointment of Mr. Arsenault; however, this is not to be.

Most sportsmen do not realize what is happening to our outdoors resources. Far too much thought is placed on controls that can be enforced without hurting them in any way. The true sportsman is neglected — in most cases not even thought of. A couple of years ago there was much talk on wildlife and its preservation, and all the changes the government would put into effect. But the only changes made to date have been for the worse. Sure, we know nothing was done before this regime got going, but the same situation is continuing, and none can deny it. Just herrings thrown out for the gullible sportsmen to grab at!

Lack of public fishing in this area is steadily upsetting the apple cart for sportsmen. . . This is just a suggestion, but how about the clubs contacting the owners of some of the supposedly private lakes, with a view to acquainting these "owners" of the aims and purposes of our clubs? You know, much can be said for the owners who have posted their lands. It is still quite common to pay more attention to poaching than to obeying the laws. And when one considers the money invested in some of these properties, and their wanton destruction by some of our supposed sportsmen, then it is no wonder they are closed — even though the owners have no real right to do this. . . Think it over and get going with some of these people. It could be worthwhile.

Some of the streams are starting to break up, but from the looks of the lakes, they will be some time before they are free to fish in. For the time at least the only fishing will be in the creeks, but these do pay off in some nice catches once in a while. . . Natural baits right from the creeks are going to be the best, and anyone taking the time to catch some of this will certainly be one step ahead of the ordinary anglers. With the sun now shining on the water, most underwater life starts working energetically around the stream bottom . Hellgramites, crawfish, water scooters, etc., all make excellent baits, but only if used with a very small sinker and really allowed to free-float with the current. Doing it this way, you will be able to cover more stream, with new pockets opening up for your fishing almost everywhere you go. If you have to try spinning, then use the very small spinners, either the single blade or double. These are light enough to be held in the stream without any action by the fisherman. The current will do the work, and if you do put a slash of night crawlers, then so much the better. The flies, of course, will have to be of the Streamer or Crane type, large and in most cases bright; they should be taken along, even if they are going to be used with the spinners. Small split-shot may have to be used with these, but if the shot is far enough ahead of the spinners, there should be no trouble. At any rate, anything and everything should be tried at this time of year. Another good point — really good fishing can be had if you do not use shark hooks; the smaller the better, as they will not sink too much in the float method of fishing.

Pollution is commanding ever-increasing attention. With the insecticides in general use, we seem to be "chemicalizing" ourselves right out of existence. Perch are being taken with evidence of Black Spot disease and fungus. What is going to happen if we keep this up? I know I've harped on insecticides, but what about all these detergents being shoved down our throats? People do not realize just what damage these do, not only to water but to human consumers. You may argue, these things wouldn't be sold if they were detrimental to us. Oh no? . . The commercials keep re-iterating, this and that super-detergent will remove anything, including the clothes. Claims are pressed "ad nauseam" on the respective merits of this junk, but we never really stop to think. All the various emollients they contain are supposedly for our protection; yet why do they put them in, if these same detergents are so pure and good? Ever think of that. They contain everything but soap or the additives to make soap, but they do contain chemicals harmful to us stupid humans, and no manufacturer can dispute this.

If every housewife were to stop buying this stuff for just one month! There are men who have been fighting this particular problem for years, all to no avail; yet we ordinary citizens could give them a quick boost in their work. Once again, it would be bucking big business, but I believe this time we could win. After all, WE buy the products. . . An interesting thought, isn't it?

As for sewage disposal — well in the whole Province of Quebec there are only 17 disposal plants being contemplated. Not very many, and as far as I am concerned these are only being built as a token measure. We cannot blame the water pollution board in this; if they do not get co-operation from governments who make the laws, then nothing will ever be done. Too many laws are made to regulate and curb the small-time authorities, giving no thought to the big business which is really responsible. Then it is convenient to look the other way.

By coincidence, I just spotted this item: In 27 cases of pollution reported, 21 of them were traced back to farmers who were using sprays. More deadly even than sewage, this really is frightening.

Imagine just what this killer "1080" will do. Instead of Ban the Bomb meetings, there should be a Ban the Pollution demonstrations!

Talking to a friend in the employ of the Ontario Dept. of Lands and Forests, the conversation turned to Splake, as he had worked considerably on this project. Numerous experiments were carried out, but to no avail. It was hoped the Splake would make up for lack of lake trout in the Great Lakes for commercial fishermen. With the lampreys, AND the commercial man, taking their continuous toll, it was a losing battle. . . Some of the operations in trying to propagate these fish went back one hundred years. We still don't seem to have learned so much!

A couple of moose have been seen in the district. These may end up as pets in our County if they are looked after. Maybe before the hunting and killing season opens once more, the southern end of Lake of Two Mountains could be closed for the killing of these animals.. Let's hope we do not have any more of the supposed RABID kind around, which was claimed as the reason for killing of an animal last year. . . By the way, I never did find out if any action had been taken on this either.

At long last, the manufacturers of Canadian tackle are showing a little interest in the Canadian fisherman. It seems to have been the practice to have given us anything that was left over. However, things have changed for the better. New baits are being given excellent finishes, and in most cases much superior to the imported types. Nothing has been left out — and believe me, it makes me feel pretty good to think we are important enough to warrant this!

Score high in spring bonspiel at Chantecler

A Lachute ladies' rink skipped by Mrs. F. J. Stein (with Mrs. R. M. Cairns, Mrs. J. S. Drew, Mrs. J. R. MacKimmie) took part in the 10th annual "Printanier" bonspiel at Chantecler recently. This bonspiel is played in two sections, 24 rinks taking part in each. "A" section was played from Sunday to Tuesday, and "B" section from Wednesday to Friday. Each team plays three games. Lachute met Montreal West, narrowly edging them out 9-8, then downed Chantecler 16-10; their last game was against Heather, which club they defeated to a tune of 12-3. Winning all three games with the highest percentage, they were declared the winner of "A" section, each player receiving a lovely tray.

The winner of "B" section was a Town of Mt. Royal rink, with a better percentage than Mrs. Stein's. Therefore they were declared the winner of "La Canadienne" trophy.

United Church bowling playoffs

The second round of the playoffs in Lachute United Church Bowling League was played Monday evening, and in the "A" Series, Teenagers (Ronnie Bain) defeated Mrs. H. Riddell's Bluebirds 18-10 in the two-game contest. The other "A" games resulted in Howard Dixon's Maple Leafs defeating the St. David's (Mrs. E. Armstrong) 20-7.

The "B" Series finished with Thistles (Mrs. D. Smith) 12-8 against the Beavers (Ed Armstrong), while St. Pat's (Gladys Davis) won against East Settlement (Les Gordon) 9-8 after an extra end.

The semi-finals will be played on Wednesday evening, as follows:

Thistles vs St. Pat's.

The two winning teams will meet in the finals on Monday, April 22, when the annual banquet will be held.

The Liberal muddle

It is extremely difficult to follow the Liberal policy and plans: the leader, Mr. Pearson, has changed his mind so often on the nuclear problem that he seems to be "in orbit" himself, most of the time.

Then, we hear about a Liberal proposition to form a coalition government after the election. This is an admission of defeat. No wonder some of the candidates are losing heart!

Mr. Lesage, who has federal ambitions to become the next Liberal leader, was dragged into the federal election and he is having a hard time to explain why. At first he claimed he was doing this because he wanted a stable government in Ottawa; now, he says he is helping Pearson because he pulled a promise out of the Liberals of a better tax deal for Quebec. What is the deal? Why did he not work on the idea when he was a Liberal minister at Ottawa, if he really always had the interests of Quebec so close to his heart? This whole affair looks more like a personal political game. He was told: "If you want us to draft you as the next French leader at Ottawa, get your organization in the field now."

I wonder what Mr. Paul Martin is thinking? He will have to be shelved...

A lot of people are wondering also what Mr. René Levesque may be thinking. He has ambitions too. Of course, he may be swallowing his adverse opinions about Pearson at the price of a promise to replace Lesage provincially. A lot of "traffiking" is taking place. The Liberal leaders are now the "mixed-up kids" of the election. So, people are losing what faith they had in them.

Some of the federal organizers have carelessly stated that generous election funds came from American friends and supporters who did not like Diefenbaker. This is dangerously hard to believe, or is it? Surely the Liberals, who howled so loudly at the devalued dollar, would not stoop so low as to benefit by an 8% exchange even for their election war-chest!...

Did you ever see so muddled a picture? The Liberals indeed had their chance; but they muffed it in their own contradictions.

Outcome viewed by journalist observer

Here are some of the ridings to watch (James Ferrabee in The Montreal Gazette, issue of March 23rd) —

Argenteuil — Deux Montagnes: This sprawling riding to the west of Montreal was taken by Liberal Vincent Drouin last June by 1,000 votes. However, this time Mr. Drouin has a formidable opponent in Roger-E. Regimbal, assistant to the president of Ayers Limited in Lachute. It is one of the few ridings in the province where the Conservatives stand a chance of upsetting the incumbent. One person who is counting heavily on a Conservative win is Hon. William (Bill) Cottingham, National Union Member for Argenteuil, who is campaigning openly and with gusto for Mr. Regimbal.

With father in the background, the family faces the sacrifices of political life with a smile. Left to right: Roger 12, Paul 11, Elaine 5, Renée 14, Louise 7, wife Lorraine, and baby Marie 3... The Shelty's name is Lady.

Running out of gas!

Newspapers reported last week the story of a Social Credit candidate whose car ran out of gas on his way to a meeting. A lot of them are indeed running out of gas; but they should be able to keep going on all the "hot air" they are blowing into the atmosphere!

Really, it does seem as if a cooling-off period is setting in. Mr. Caouette is beset with hallucinations about plots of all kinds — while his own followers have changed his name, in a song, from Mr. Caouette to Mr. Tabarrouette!

Comment...

Here is a report from a release of Radio and Press Publicity, Ottawa:

"You asked for my comment on the news report of Mr. Caouette's political heroes, and on his other remarks on Canada's participation in the last war.

Here they are:

His words are a condemnation of the war effort of Canada and, at the same time, they insult all Canadians. In his opinion, we were all brainwashed into fighting somebody else's war. He does not think this country is worth fighting for anyway, unless he runs it. His words are also a gross insult to all Veterans and he cynically brands as fools all those who died or who were wounded for the cause of Freedom, in which Freedom he does not believe unless he doles it out himself according to Social Credit recipes.

He spent the war indoctrinating himself with Social Credit theories and studying the secrets of MEIN KAMPF, in which Hitler explains how he rose to power by the cynical abuse of truths and half-truths, the "Big Lie" technique.

He poses as the saviour of the French Canadians; he sounds more like an irresponsible political maniac."

An apology

We had hoped to contact all the people during this campaign, but in spite of our efforts we may have missed some people, some of our best friends. We wish to apologize to those whom we failed to contact personally. Lack of time, and especially lack of money, forced us to economize on both. We did not have much time and, as far as funds are concerned, there is no Santa Claus helping us in this election, as some of our unkind opponents may state.

(THE CENTRAL COMMITTEE)

The Progressive-Conservative stand!

— It has not changed. It was not always popular, but it is not swayed by political expediency. The Prime Minister, in spite of all predictions and in spite of a press which is sometimes unkind, if not hostile, is still the leading leader of Canada. He has faced his critics, in Parliament and on the hustings, and the people are still looking to him to form the next government.

These are difficult times, but the Prime Minister never succumbed to pessimism, and he certainly never sold Canada short. He asked the people, in each riding, to give him the best possible candidates, who can share the burden of government with him.

In Argenteuil-Two Mountains, the people have a choice candidate whose potential for devoted and intelligent service is so far superior that nobody hesitates to recognize Mr. Roger E. Regimbal as the top man among those who solicit the favor of the voters.

Although not born in the district, he has worked and lived here long enough to become a true son of Argenteuil-Two Mountains; his perfect bilingual training and his outstanding qualifications stamp him as the most efficient representative for this County where the two cultures and the two races have learned to live in the greatest possible harmony and co-operation.

ROGER E. REGIMBAL

Progressive-Conservative candidate for the Argenteuil - Two Mountains constituency

My friends, in seeking your confidence on April 8, I do so, not to serve any special interests or any special group, in Argenteuil or in Two Mountains. I will serve for the greater good of the County, of the Province, and of Canada. For that purpose, I do not hesitate to leave the relative comforts of a good position where I have only my own and my family's problems to face. I know that my political life will be an arduous one, that it will mean great responsibilities and great hardships along with the sacrifice of my personal and private life and interests; I know I will have to face those prospects in order to serve all the people in Argenteuil-Two Mountains, and to do my full share for Quebec and Canada.

I welcome that challenge and that opportunity, and I thank you in advance for the confidence you will place in me on April 8.

(Roger Regimbal)

The Caouette insults...

The Caouette campaign has been one of insults to the intelligence of the voters, a loud display of irresponsible and untrue statements, a show of lowbrow jokes and class-war appeals. He is as irresponsible as a maniac let loose in traffic. His scorn for all Canada and for all Canadians who did their share in the last war effort will not be forgotten easily. As one of his own candidates has stated, he should have been jailed. A wave of disgust is building up in the public mind. He had a few good ideas, but he destroyed them in a drunken brawl of irresponsible statements. It is no wonder that his own followers of last year are ashamed of him; they were sincere, he was not.

WHY I WILL VOTE REGIMBAL

BECAUSE HE IS A MAN WHO "CAN STAND ON HIS OWN TWO FEET"

IT HAS BEEN SAID I am an Ayers man. Of this I am proud, as the Ayers family has kept this community alive and active in the industrial field for 93 years, almost as long as Confederation itself.

IF BEING called a Cottingham man reflects his devotion to duty and to the population of the constituency, then I am particularly proud to have my name associated with Bill Cottingham's.

I STOOD on my own two feet for 29 years before coming to this constituency, and my experience here has made me more capable of continuing to do so in the future.

Man aged 104 was native of Ste. Scholastique

Alfred Galipeau, member of a family of 17 children born at Ste. Scholastique, died Monday at Huntingdon, Que., where his funeral was held Wednesday — his 104th birthday.

He moved to Huntingdon with his family when he was nine years of age, and worked as a moulder and pattern maker, retiring at 70.

He outlived all his brothers and sisters, the majority of whom died in their 90's, and two sons. His grandfather, Joachim Galipeau, lived to 115.

Until a fall two years ago, the perky old gentleman "with the pipe in his mouth" used to be a familiar sight on the mile-and-one-half route from his home to the village, where he'd meet old friends.

FAMILY ROUGHS IT ON 18,000 MILE TRIP

Vancouver (CP) — Many families like to rough it during their vacation, but when Fred Voneicken's family does it, it's on a grand scale.

Mr. Voneicken, his wife and four children took an 18,000-mile camping trip through Central America in a 1952 panel truck last year. They travelled through jungles, forded waist-deep rivers, negotiated tortuous mountain roads and crept over others that were virtually non-existent.

Mrs. Voneicken washed the diapers for their baby in rivers and lakes as the truck journeyed through Mexico, British Honduras and Guatamala.

The six month trip cost them only $1,200, or seven cents a mile for food and gasoline. The family shopped at Indian markets and lived mostly on native fruit. They ete meat only once, deriving their protein from powdered milk mixed with boiled water.

RCMP team at Masonic lodge

Something unique in Masonry took place Monday evening at the Masonic Temple, when Argenteuil Lodge No. 67 was host to a large number of visiting brethren and a degree team of 16 Royal Canadian Mounted Police from Ottawa.

All were cordially welcomed by Wor. Bro. John Duncan, Master of Argenteuil Lodge, through whose efforts this pleasant evening was made possible.

The team exemplifying the 3rd degree were spectacular in their red uniforms, word perfect in their work, and marched with such precision as only a well trained soldier can attain. In their group headed by Wor. Master E. W. Janis, of Dalhousie Lodge, Ottawa, every province was represented, with the exception of B.C.

Over 200 Masons attended, and 29 different lodges were represented.

Refreshments were served, when numerous officers, following toasts to Grand Lodge and the Queen, voiced their sincere appreciation to the team for their fine demonstration.

Minister here reports on conf'ce of Witnesses

Mr. Bryce Miller, minister of the Lachute North congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, expressed keen satisfaction with the semi-annual assembly in Montreal, for its encouragement to all Witnesses to learn to speak French fluently. Said Mr. Miller, "Bilingual ministers will be better qualified to discuss the 'good news of the Kingdom' with their French as well as their English neighbors."

The Sunday afternoon climax of the recent assembly came when an audience of 910 heard Mr. Saumur, Quebec supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses, answer the critical question, "Who Will Win the Struggle for World Supremacy?"

Mr. Saumur highlighted past world conflicts leading up to the present-day issue, saying, "The East-West struggle for supremacy is a demonic strategy to divert attention away from the true solution, i.e. the need to recognize God's Kingdom as the world government of His choice. It will forcefully resolve all political-economic struggles for supremacy, and will achieve a unified world among obedient mankind with everlasting peace." The speaker exhorted his audience not to treat the Bible answer to this question as unrealistic or as just a dream, but as a factual answer from God to man's quest for peace."

Ten new ministers demonstrated their desire to be 'the right kind of ministers' and received water baptism during the assembly.

Remarking on the benefits derived from the assembly, Mr. Miller said, "The Right Kind of Ministers convention urged all to share the sure hope of world peace by the Prince of Peace."

Will Lasting Peace Ever Come?

This generation has heard the promise that the League of Nations would bring "peace on earth." The United Nations has been acclaimed as man's last hope for peace. But peace has not come. It is Satan the Devil who is the "god of this system of things" and who is responsible for the hate, the greed, and the lust for power that drive men to war. (2 Cor. 4:4) Man cannot lay hands on him to destroy him. They may vainly try to ignore the cause, but that will remove neither the cause nor the war.

We can be grateful that the prospects for lasting peace do not depend on men. The Almighty God of the universe, Jehovah, has promised that he himself will bless his creatures with peace through the Kingdom of his son Christ Jesus. "The princely rule will come to be upon his shoulder. And his name will be called Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Father for Eternity, Prince of Peace. To the abundance of the princely rule and to peace there will be no end . . . The very zeal of Jehovah of armies will do this." (Isa. 9:6, 7) The Bible shows that he will bring in that lasting peace by destroying the Devil and all his organization at the battle of Armageddon. — Rev. 16:14, 16.

Now is the time to inform yourself on how to survive that "war of the great day of God the Almighty" into God's peaceful new world. You will want to read the thought-provoking little booklet, "After Armageddon, God's New World". — Price 5 cents; ask any Jehovah's Witnesses you may meet, anywhere.

Analysis for pesticide residues reassuring to Canadian consumer

Sixteen years spent analysing for pesticide residues on Canadian grown fruits and vegetables has impressed federal chemist J. R. Miles with the effectiveness of measures taken for the protection of the consumer.

He found pesticide residues on crops extremely small by harvest time.

The law sets out the acceptable maxmum of residues, known as legal tolerance. But in addition, some crops have their own built-in safeguards.

Mr. Miles is on the staff of the CDA Entomology Laboratory at Chatham, Ont., where the technique used can detect the tiniest amounts of insecticides.

Using a method that could spot one-millionth of a gram, he was unable to find any phosphate insecticide residue in the edible part of cabbages experimentally sprayed to control insect damage. The outer leaves, analyzed separately, contained one part per million — or the equivalent of one pound of chemical in one million pounds of cabbage. However, these outer leaves, after they have helped to protect the rest of the cabbage from spray residue, are discarded in the field at harvest, or in the kitchen.

Similar analysis of corn showed spray residue on plants and husks at harvest, but none was found on the kernels.

At Chatham, chemists track the level of pesticide deposit from application until the residue disappears or until the crop is harvested.

Asparagus was sprayed with chemicals recommended to control asparagus beetle. The residue immediately after application was found to be less than the legal tolerance. As an extra safeguard, however, Miles suggests asparagus not be cut for at least one day after spraying.

Similar experiments with tomatoes showed it was possible to apply six sprays of DDT or DDD without more than a trace of the insecticide appearing in the juice pressed from the treated fruit. The residues on the whole fruits were less than legally permitted and were concentrated in the waste material — skin, seeds and cores.

Mr. Miles said his findings indicate that Canadians can be sure that only safe, wholesome food is offered for sale from crops treated with pesticides.

For auto men

A trend toward less maintenance and longer-lasting parts in motor vehicles moves to electronics for its next gain, reports Carlyle Dunbar in The Financial Post. Radical improvements in truck and auto ignitions are being made. Now on the market: transistorized or all-transistor ignition systems.

These promise savings in several ways: longer life for some ignition parts (such as plugs), less frequent ignition maintenance, more economical fuel consumption, surer wintertime starting. Already truck-fleet operators are testing transistorized ignitions. Preliminary talk in the trucking industry: this innovation can reduce downtime for auto ignition ailments. Heart of this development — greeted as first major improvement for auto ignitions in 40 years — is the transistor. It's a tiny postwar electronic invention which employs the odd electrical qualities of solid materials to alter electrical currents.

For two cents I'll leave town.

Don't go away mad.

Just go away. In a Volkswagen.

You'll come back smiling on the money you saved going.

The Volkswagen averages 38 miles to a gallon of gas. In fact we've heard a few owners claim 50 mpg. (They're either very good drivers, or a little weak at mathematics.)

The Volkswagen is small change in other departments too.

For a start, the oil never needs topping between changes. And even when it is time for a change, two and one-fifth quarts will do it.

When it comes to the cooling system, your expenses come to zero. The radiator can't boil over or spring leaks or freeze up because there is no radiator. We cool our car with air instead of water.

On a long trip your thoughts may turn to service and replacement parts. Don't worry. You can be miles from nowhere and still find VW service. (We have 346 dealers right across Canada.)

As a matter of fact, why not test drive a Volkswagen at your nearest dealer now? And since it only costs him a couple of pennies, feel free to head for the city limits.

Grenville High School will be host to Montreal choir and Kilmar band

Grenville High School will play host to the combined mixed choir drawn from the High School of Montreal (Boys) and the Girls' High School, Montreal. The occasion will be a concert and display at the school on Wednesday, April 10.

Principal J. Meikle Turner informs The Watchman that all grades of the school will be taking part in this concert, including the High School Glee Club under direction of Mrs. B. Dobson. The effort is part of the school's overall educational program, but has the added purpose of raising funds to equip a room in the school as an audio-visual room. Such a room would house a filmstrip projector, a sound movie projector, a tape recorder, and a hi-fi set, and later a TV set for educational purposes. The school presently has many of these items, but the project calls for expanding the equipment and centralizing it in the audio-visual room.

The Montreal Choir will have about 40 minutes in the program, while the Harrington-Kilmar pipe band will assist several times in addition to their 10-minute feature. Four pipers and two drummers attend Grenville High School at present.

Admission is $1 per person, and Principal Turner is hoping for a full house. All visitors will be welcome.

Next-of-kin visit war graves this week

Ottawa — Seventy-nine next-of-kin of Canadian war dead buried in Holland are visiting that country next week. The first of four pilgrimages left Dorval on Tuesday evening.

The pilgrims flew K.L.M. to Amsterdam. They then proceed to Nijmegen, where they will spend a week visiting the military cemetery at Grosbeck.

The pilgrimage is a joint undertaking of the Netherlands War Graves Committee and the Royal Canadian Legion. The Legion is acting as agent for the Netherlands group which provides accommodation and hospitality in Holland at no cost to the pilgrims.

The pilgrims will be quartered in homes of Dutch families who have been providing extra care for 6,331 Canadian graves since the war. Each Dutch family has adopted a grave, and in many cases has been corresponding with Canadian next-of-kin. In many of these homes, a picture of the deceased Canadian ex-serviceman is prominently displayed.

A second pilgrimage to the Holten area leaves Montreal on May 2. A third, also scheduled for Holten, goes in September, and the fourth is planned for Bergen-op-Zoom in October.

Among the pilgrims on tour from Quebec are Mrs. Irwin Martin of Brownsburg and her sister, Mrs. Russel Morrow, of St. Eustache, and others from the St. Eustache, Laval-sur-le-Lac area.

Teaching the teacher

EXPERTS TELL US that almost 90% of all automobile accidents are directly attributable to human failures of one kind or another.

Modern technology has succeeded in making todays cars and roads about as safe as can be. It is time for drivers to catch up—through driver safety training. (Only this type of training will teach young drivers the kind of "safety-thinking" so essential to safe driving.) But training requires teachers, and teachers themselves must first be taught.

That's why the automobile insurance business, as a part of its national program of promoting safety education for the young drivers, pays the costs of the annual Driver Training Education Program conducted by the Canadian Highway Safety Council for teachers in many parts of Canada.

Have you ever heard?...

"The parties are all alike"

They're not – fortunately. Never have political parties been more different than right now. Let's see to what degree each can form Canada's next government.

The New Democratic Party — The minority minded NDP doesn't even pretend it can form a government, now or in the foreseeable future.

Social Credit — The leader and "co-leader" of this weird money party can't even agree on basic policies — except on schemes to ruin our dollar. Even the "26" are divided among themselves. In seven provinces the party has no following.

The Progressive Conservatives — Can you put your trust in a divided party, a party without confidence in itself or in its one-man leadership who tried desperately to cling to power? It collapsed because it would not face up to Canada's immediate and long range problems at home and abroad.

The Liberals — The Liberal Party is united under one Leader. The Liberal Party can give us a government we can respect — believe in — count on to give Canada new direction and drive.

Pearson heads a united party that knows and agrees on what must be done. It has a program of action. Pearson's leadership has attracted able, responsible people who are prepared to make sound decisions — people qualified to get on with the job.

A Liberal government is the only government that can make decisions to regain your confidence and — just as important — regain the goodwill of Canada's friends, customers and allies. The Liberals will preserve national unity by promoting true partnership between the founding races.

Canadians have the opportunity, now, to put an end to do-nothing, wait-and-see, minority government. You can help do it in just one way — by voting for your Liberal candidate and so assure a Liberal majority in the next Parliament.

Vote for a strong, decisive, responsible, do-something

National Health Week, April 1-7

NATIONAL HEALTH WEEK presents an opportunity for all Canadians to focus attention on the health of the nation which is the sum of the state of health of all individuals.

In order to compete with the day-to-day demands of a changing world, it is necessary that we establish a well-balanced health program. Among the factors essential to the people's health are adequate nutrition, good housing, exercise and leisure. High on the health program, however, is the wise and sensible conduct of the individual, and his acceptance of personal responsibility.

It is true that many of the health hazards of today relate directly to our personal habits, to our pleasures and to our misuse of the powerful chemical agents which surround us. Cigarette smoking and lung cancer; fast motor cars and death on the highway; accidental poisoning in childhood — these are examples of menaces to our health which your doctor has to deal with, but which can only be prevented by you — and you — and you.

This year thousands of Canadians are realizing the importance of being physically fit; many have experienced this state of well-being and as a result have benefitted at home, at work, and at play. People feel healthier, and are healthier, when they have learned to balance their work activities with wholesome recreation.

For some, a fitness program would include very active sports. Then others, in accordance with their level of fitness, would find satisfaction in less strenuous recreation, or participation in an interesting hobby.

Through the sponsorship of National Health Week by the Health League of Canada, Canadians have the opportunity of reassessing their own health needs and paving the way for a healthier nation.

(The above is a Health Week message from M. R. MacCharles, president of the Canadian Medical Association.)

Where the money goes

WHY IS QUEBEC constanly seeking more taxation power from Ottawa ? . .

This year's record budget estimates — with costs up nearly $87½-million — illustrate one good reason. Despite this jump in costs, the increase in the federal contribution is only $7,000,000.

Notes accompanying the estimates pointed out that while Quebec's expenses will increase an estimated 9.13 per cent in the 1963-64, fiscal year, the federal contribution will go up only 3.3 per cent.

This is expected to be Premier Jean Lesage's tack when he makes his budget speech April 5; that Quebec, trying to fulfill enormous obligations, has to depend on limited sources of revenue.

The estimates of $1,045,245,000 (plus federal contributions of about $240,000,000 for various joint plans) reflect the scope of government activity — larger grants to school boards; more money to hospital employees under the Hospital Insurance Plan; more aid to old-age homes; $300,000 for studies on the possibility of building a steel mill.

The Youth Department's estimates alone are $259,672,000, an increase of about $31-million, partially attributable to higher school board grants and costs of transporting students to central and regional schools.

The Health Department is taking a $185,175,000 bite — up about $18-million — because of Hospital Insurance costs increased by higher salaries, a larger number of available beds, and the addition of outpatient services.

Construction of five old-age homes and a detention centre at Riviere-des-Prairies on Montreal Island, account for the Family and Social Welfare Department's estimated $4-million increase to $136,197,000.

Highway construction and repair will cost $160,310,000, an $8-million increase, though Quebec will spend $1-million less on the Trans-Canada Highway this year.

After the estimates were tabled opposition leader Daniel Johnson told a reporter: "One thing appears certain — we are headed for new taxes. Somebody will have to pay. I don't think Mr. Lesage will print his own money." The alternative to new taxation, he said, is borrowing to meet current expenses and capital costs. Legislature sources thought it unlikely there would be a tax increase, not with a Royal Commission on Taxation just appointed.

Another factor taken into account was that the budget speech will be read just three days before the Federal Election, April 8.

Meanwhile, no matter who is elected in Ottawa next Monday, they can expect to hear Quebec's growing demands for a greater share of the province's taxes.

A lower trade deficit

THE GOVERNOR of the Bank of Canada said last week that the devalued dollar played an important role in reducing Canada's balance-of-payments deficit.

Louis Rasminsky declared in his annual report that the deficit — the amount by which imports of all goods and services exceeded exports — was reduced to about $850,000,000 in 1962 from $960,000,000 in 1961.

"I believe that the lower exchange value of the Canadian dollar, in conjunction with the degree of price stability we have been able to maintain, has played a helpful role in the improvement which has occurred," said the central bank governor.

The Canadian dollar was pegged at 92.5 cents in terms of the United States dollar in mid-May last June. That policy had as its immediate objective restoring confidence in Canada's ability to maintain the exchange rate. The ultimate goal was to promote higher interest rates to encourage a renewed capital inflow.

Mr. Rasminsky said the over-all result was that Canada's money supply was four per cent higher last month than it was a year ago. "In retrospect, I believe that monetary policy made a useful contribution to bringing about a rapid recovery from the exchange difficulties of 1962," said Mr. Rasminsky.

Viewpoints and perspectives

THE OVERRIDING ISSUE

THOSE VOTERS who may feel tempted to say, "A plague on both your houses," and cast their ballots for one of the fringe parties, should recognize that they cannot thus make any contribution to solving their country's problems. They can only make them worse. Neither fringe party can possibly form a government. To vote for them is to run the risk of repeating the national indecision of last June. We cannot afford more of such indecision; it could lead to national collapse.

We have been without government. We must have government. This is the overriding issue which faces us on April 8. We can resolve it only by electing . . . a working majority.

MINORITY GROUPS. — If there is one thing that stands out clearly as being responsible for the sorry mess in Ottawa during the past year, it is the fact that good government is impossible if subjected to the dictates of minority groups.

POLITICS

It is tempting these days, in the midst of a confusing election campaign, to keep clear of politics. Much simpler to write about the diffusion of light through butterfly wings, or some such harmless subject, and keep out of the mess !

And it certainly is a mess. I have listened carefully to all the political leaders, and they all talk in broad generalities. Mr. Pearson has me completely confused with his suggestion that we take nuclear weapons now and beg out afterwards. Mr. Thompson seems to make very good sense in every speech, but he is on one side in the afternoon and the other in the evening, sounding very reasonable and logical on both occasions ! Mr. Douglas is against nuclear weapons for Canada, period, but if one reads the Commonwealth (the CCF newspaper) one wonders if he favors them for Cuba and the other Iron Curtain countries. Mr. Diefenbaker says the situation keeps changing so fast it would be folly to have a cut-and-dried policy unchangeable in the exigencies of the times. . . So you takes your choice !

Another thing that bugs me is the constant declaring by all politicians that this very business of nuclear weapons and the United States pressure to take them should not become an issue. They bring up the subject at every opportunity, which is about the surest way to keep it alive !

Then there's the question of Canadian problems. To listen to the campaign orators we're in one devil of a mess — yet our Gross National Product went higher than ever before, making the U.S.A. look as if it were standing still instead of "moving forward again" as promised in earlier days by the handsome young president.

Maybe, in the long run, it would be better to talk of butterfly wings. In my opinion, governments haven't as much to do with our prosperity or lack of it as we might suppose. You and I plow the land, dig the ditches, build the homes, run the factories, and do most of the important jobs. Government's main job is to keep order among us.

Anyone for a butterfly hunt ?

NEWS LETTER ON AGRICULTURE

By J. L. PIGEON,
Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Agriculture

In a number of recent columns, I pointed out to you the availability of farm credit through the services of the Farm Credit Corporation. Since that time two changes have been announced in regulations under the Act, which I am sure will be of considerable interest to Quebec farmers.

One of these new amendments can be particularly important to those of you who may be planning to switch over from dairying to beef production, since it will make it easier to make such a transition.

Because of the fact that we have rather troublesome surpluses of some dairy products but have much more room in the beef industry, I am sure many of you have considered making such a change, but may have found there would be financial difficulties because of the time lag in income during such a changeover.

As I mentioned in an earlier column, loans can be obtained from the Farm Credit Corporation, to help you to reorganize your farm into a more economic unit. These loans are at reasonable rates — in Quebec, the 5 percent interest rate is shared by the Government of Quebec, so that the direct interest cost to you is only 2½ percent — and repayment can take up to 30 years.

However, while this provides all that is necessary to finance gradual expansion or diversification of a farm, a complete conversion such as a shift from dairying to beef can mean that dairying revenues drop before beef revenues rise to replace them in your operation, and you might temporarily face a reduction of income. For such cases, a new amendment to the Farm Credit Act now makes it possible for you to arrange for postponement of instalment payments which would normally fall due in this initial readjustment period.

The effect of this is to give those of you who are making such a change a chance to attain a reasonable revenue-producing operation before having to meet payments on your loan. The only requirement is that the postponement provision must be arranged for at the time you are obtaining your loan.

Another recent amendment to the Act establishes an upper limit on the appraisal fees which the Corporation charges when you apply for a loan, and this amendment in effect sets the fees somewhat lower than originally stated in the Act itself.

Formerly, the appraisal fee for a Part II (standard) loan was set at $50, but in future a new formula calls for payment of $10 with your application, and deduction of 40 cents on each hundred dollars of loan approved, when the loan is made.

In the case of a Part III (package-deal) loans, the former $100 appraisal fee has been replaced by a payment of $10 with the loan application, and deduction of 50 cents per hundred dollars of loan approved, when the loan is made.

DO YOU RUN YOUR MONEY, OR DOES IT RUN YOU?

One of the toughest things in the world to do these days is to live within one's income.

A survey made a few years ago among people with incomes ranging all the way from $2,500 to $25,000 a year showed almost everyone wanted one thing more than anything else . . . just ten per cent more money !

"That would solve all my problems," everyone said.

But they're really wishful thinkers, says Don Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal's Lachute branch. He has found there's only one real way to get on top of the situation. That's to learn to live within your income — and like it !

Mr. Hay doesn't just talk about it, either. He has some sound suggestions about how to do it, too. Why not ask for a copy of the B of M booklet "Blue-Print for Successful Personal and Family Planning." It's free on request from the Lachute B of M.

It makes interesting reading. And it may do a lot to help you out of those dollar doldrums.

Vagabond Spree to Ville Marie

By Dorothy Barker ("Diary of A Vagabond")

From my window in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, it looked as though Place Ville Marie wore holiday dress in an effort to herald spring, then long overdue. Six storeys below me, a small forest of gaily lit spruce trees winked and twinkled their colored lights at the swirls of snow that danced to the howl of a bitter north wind.

The cruciform building of Place Ville Marie towered above me in a pattern of light and dark patches, its windows telling tales of workers catching up on their jobs, char women dusting and cleaning the new equipment of tenants, or the quiet of offices darkened and deserted by homing employees. They patterned its face like the squares on a chess board and helped me to imagine the story of a city after dark in its well-lit restaurants and promenade below ground level.

This was my annual visit to the CN offices and a much anticipated shopping spree in this most cosmopolitan of Canadian cities. Montreal has always fascinated me. This trip was no exception. I adore its bilingual rhythm, admire its very young French-Canadian girls with their beautiful legs and crazy hairdos, and endeavor to understand how its more mature women can balance on their chignons creations that look as though local milliners must be inspired by the famous Dali. They almost diverted me from the shops I planned to visit that attract thousands of people every day.

Evidently Montrealers pop their contacts quite often, for a sign on an optometrist's shop read "Professional Contact Lens Service While you Wait". There was another shop devoted to instant portraits in either charcoal or pastels, and one that made my investment in copper stocks seem much more secure. The entire display was devoted to articles crafted from this colorful native metal.

No visit to Montreal is complete for the female of the species without a visit to a "salon". I chose one on the promenade for this daring experience. It had atmosphere! The decor was peach and mauve. Clients in various stages of beauty culture sat at numerous "stations" draped in mauve muumuus. I looked my most exotic self when "Monsieur" twisted my gray wisps on mauve and peach rollers, swathed my head in yards of mauve tulle and placed me under a "thinking" dryer that knew enough to shut off when I was done. I smelled like a brewery as the tulle was removed and the beer that had been sprayed on my hair and warmed by the dryer had its fumes let loose like the evil spirits from Pandora's box.

Was it admiration or amazement reflected in the eyes of promenade pedestrians as I emerged from the beauty parlor and tried to slither stealthily down the tunnel to my room in the hotel? I took one glance at my ratted mop in the mirror. Heavens! I resembled the rear end of a frightened ostrich!

Luckily, I had a strong comb and brush, and still enough will power left to undo the horror with a few deft strokes. Despite the results it was worth the price of admission alone to have held a plastic mask to my eyes while I was sprayed with lacquer, then puffed and molded with the deft fingers of an artisan. It put me in a Mardi Gras mood as I realized it wasn't Monsieur's fault that I've passed the age of glamor!

Election weather – hot and humid

No matter what the weather is like in Canada on election day, it is certain that members of the Canadian Army voting in the Congo this week had it hot and humid. Canadian soldiers in various parts of the world will cast their ballots between April 1 and 6. Formal notification of the election must be posted in Army orders well in advance at every location where soldiers are serving. The balloting takes place at several detachments in the interior of the Congo, on the Sinai desert and in West Germany. Three Canadian servicemen are here discussing the election notice at the Leopoldville headquarters of No. 57 Canadian Signals Unit.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

WE ARE ALL IGNORANT

The late Will Rogers once said, "We are all ignorant, but ignorant of different subjects." How right he was! But I am often amazed at the total lack of knowledge that some city-bred folks have for all Nature. An acquaintance of mine once came to me and said: "I saw a funny tree today. Never saw anything like it. It was like a Christmas tree and it was covered with a lot of things that looked like little green pickles."

What he was describing was a spruce tree, of which there are millions. He had probably seen hundreds but had never observed one.

Another time I was driving near St. Hermas with a married couple from the city. We had to slow down for a large herd of milch cows going from barnyard to pasture. The lady remarked that we were lucky to be in the car instead of being on foot among "all those bulls". I explained that they were all cows. "Oh", she said, "I didn't know that cows had horns!"

Some ignorance is understandable and forgivable. Once in a while I meet a chap who was born and raised in the Channel Islands where all the cattle are Jerseys and nothing else. When he first came to Canada and saw Herefords and Ayrshires, he did not associate them with cows at all, but thought they were a different kind of animal.

When I visited the Bahamas in 1912 a native asked me if it were possible to go outdoors during a snowstorm. When I said it was, he asked, "How do you keep the snow from going up your nose?"

In 1907 a maiden aunt of mine came to Canada for a visit. Her sister (my mother) took her into an ice-cream parlor, and for the first time in her life she saw people drinking ice-cream sodas with straws. She thought they were blowing soap bubbles — some new kind of a Canadian game!

In 1918 a friend and I went out West with the harvest excursion. On the same train was an Englishman fresh off the boat. My friend bought three ice-cream cones at a railroad restaurant, handed one to him, one to me, and kept one for himself. The Englishman thanked him profusely and said, "I shawn't eat it now," then took down his suitcase from the rack and inserted the cone — before we could tell him that it simply wasn't done!

But if you're looking for ignorance, just ask me a few questions on stamp collecting, spectator sports, horse racing, and several other things. You'll find I have plenty!

Be seein' ya!

Bicycle season

With April, bicyclists will be starting a new season on the road. "Prudentia" reminds that every motorcycle must be fitted with a headlight throwing a white light in front and a red tail light. Bicycles are under the same obligation, if they operate on a public highway between half an hour after sunset and half an hour before sunrise. Each of such lights must be visible at a distance of 500 feet in front or in the rear, as the case may be.

Animal Care

A DOG OF YOUR OWN

When you have decided to acquire a dog it is obviously important to give the matter some thought. Most people choose a mongrel and if you would rather have a more fully grown dog there are always a number ready for adoption at the Montreal CSPCA.

If you want to own a pure bred animal, and can afford it, go ahead. Contrary to popular belief, well-bred dogs are no less hardy or more trouble than mongrels, except possibly among the more delicate 'toy' dogs.

But, if you are an amateur, don't expect to make a fortune from a pure bred animal. Breeding is a skill and art learnt the hard way over many years of experience.

Should you get a dog or a bitch? A bitch will have to be protected against attentions of neighborhood dogs twice a year, but, generally speaking, will be more affectionate than a dog.

With children, you obviously want a dog of reliable temperament. A cocker spaniel or bulldog type are particularly affable and, if you have the room, a St. Bernard is among the most gentle of all. However, with the bigger dogs, think of your budget! A Great Dane can consume as much food as the rest of the household put together.

FAMILY ELECTION DISCUSSIONS

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

What do you hope the next government of Canada, during their term of office, will achieve? What priority would you give to lessening our unemployment? To lower University costs? To scientific research? To greater social welfare? To expanding trade? To Canadian-wide standards of education? To protection from an enemy's attack?

Thomas Paine wrote: "When it shall be said in any country in the world, 'My poor are happy; neither ignorance nor distress is to be found among them; my jails are empty of prisoners, my streets of beggars; the aged are not in want, the taxes are not oppressive'. . . when these things can be said, then may that country boast of its constitution and its government."

Election time is one in which parents with school age children should discuss with them our democratic system. One of the best dollar books with a section on the government, is the Official Handbook, issued annually, published under the authority of the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This should be on every family bookshelf.

The description in it of our federal government might form the basis for a discussion of the weakness of no one strong party at the helm and the opposition members divided into a number of groups, instead of the more workable two party system.

The comments of "Canada 1962" on NATO and on Canada-U.S. relationship are enlightening. "Canada's defence policy is designed to ensure national security and the preservation of world peace through collective arrangements within the UN and NATO."

The following forthright remark by Doris Anderson in April Chatelaine is an editorial all Canadian women should read: "Anti-Americanism is an issue made to order for an emotional appeal. How easy to blame our woes on our big neighbor! How brave of little Canada to "tell off" the powerful U.S.A. . . Can we really indulge in such childish behaviour?"

The use of nuclear weapons receives a sane presentation by Wilson Woodside in the March 1st Observer. In his opinion Canadians are no more moral, nor have a greater abhorrence of nuclear weapons than their allies. He bases his case on our need to make a maximum contribution to a deterrent and insists that we cannot promote peace by being a weak joint in NATO, nor influence uncommitted nations by showing our friends cannot trust us.

You have every right to question these statements. You have a duty to discuss with your children the issue facing Canadian electors. At the same time put the soft pedal on your criticism of leaders in public life as you recall Socrates' words:

"No man undertakes a trade he has not learned, even the meanest; yet every one thinks himself qualified for the hardest of all trades — that of government."

Lemon cheesecake a prize-winner

Jo Davis of Toronto, one of the founders of the "Voice of Women in Canada" and wife of TV personality Fred Davis, was named grand-prize winner and awarded $150 for her Lemon Cheesecake in Chatelaine Magazine's 13th annual Family Favorites Recipe Contest. Commenting on her winning recipe, the judges said that it stood out from all the other entries with its delicious lemon flavor and moist, rich melting texture. To make it you need:

36 Chocolate wafers (crushed), ½ cup fine white sugar, ½ cup soft butter, 1 tsp. grated lemon rind, 2 lbs. plain white cream cheese, 1½ to 2 cups fine sugar, 5 eggs (separated), 2 tbs. sifted cake and pastry flour, juice of 3 lemons, 2 to 3 tsp. grated lemon rind, ¼ cup heavy cream, 1 tbs. fine sugar.

Mix the wafers, ¼ cup of sugar, butter and 1 teaspoon lemon rind together and press thinly onto the bottom and halfway up the sides of a 9 or 10-inch spring-form pan. Bake at 325F. for 10 minutes (to prevent soggy crust). Let cheese soften at room temperature, then beat until creamy in a large mixing bowl. Beat in the 1½ cups sugar, egg yolks, flour, lemon juice and rind and the heavy cream. Whip the egg whites until stiff with the 1 tablespoon fine sugar and fold into cheese mixture very gently. Mixture will be a thick batter. Pour into prepared crust. Bake in a preheated oven of 250F. for 1½ hours. Turn heat off and leave cake in oven for a further hour. Cool at room temperature for 4 to 6 hours. Chill in the refrigerator overnight. Before serving, sprinkle top with shaved chocolate or chocolate curls. Cut in small wedges with a sharp knife, wiping the knife after each cut. Serves 16.

Chowder — all-season delicacy

Chowder is an all-season delicacy. It breathes comfort. It steams enjoyment. . . A favorite type is made with fish. Fish chowder was originally a fisherman's dish; of recent years, however, it has been adopted by epicures. The following recipe for a very creamy and delicious version was developed in the Ottawa test kitchen of the Department of Fisheries of Canada. Served from a pretty tureen it could be the star of a family meal or a supper party.

Presidential Fish Chowder

1 Pound cod or haddock fillets, 1 cup water, 1 cup chopped onion, 3 tablespoons butter (melted), 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup diced potatoes, ½ cup chopped celery, ½ bay leaf, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups milk (scalded), ½ cup table cream, ½ cup dairy sour cream, parsley (finely chopped).

Thaw fillets if frozen. Skin if necessary. Cut into 1-inch cubes. Add water and heat to simmering temperature. Simmer uncovered for 5 minutes, or until fish will separate in flakes. Strain, reserving broth. In a deep saucepan cook onion in butter for 5 minutes. Blend in flour. Add fish broth gradually. Cook and stir until smooth. Add potatoes, celery, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Simmer for about 20 minutes, or until potatoes are tender. Combine scalded milk, cream and sour cream. Beat until well blended. Add to potato mixture. Stir in cooked fish. Heat gently below simmering temperature for about 5 minutes. Remove bay leaf. Serve piping hot, garnished with a sprinkling of parsley. Makes 6 (one-cup) servings.

Note: This is an easy recipe to double if a larger quantity is desired.

Candy decorated Easter eggs

This recipe makes 2 lbs. fondant, 10 three-ounce eggs:

⅔ Cup (½ can) sweetened condensed milk, ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon salt, 5½ cups sifted icing sugar (approx. 1½ lbs.).

Cream together butter, salt and vanilla. Add condensed milk and blend until smooth. Gradually stir in icing sugar. Mixture will become very stiff — then knead until all icing sugar is combined.

Place fondant on board or wax paper and continue kneading for several minutes, until mixture is very smooth but not sticky.

Cut off ¼ of the fondant and add a few drops of yellow food coloring for yolks. Knead until color is evenly blended. Cut into 10 portions and roll into balls for centre of egg.

Cut remaining fondant into 10 equal portions and pat out flat, then mold around egg yolk and into an elongated egg shape. Chill for a short time, then if necessary, remodel gently. Chill for several hours or overnight.

Dipping Chocolate

½ lb. Semi-sweet chocolate, ½ to ½ slab paraffin wax.

Melt chocolate and wax in top of double boiler over hot water, stirring until blended. Remove from heat.

Dip bottom half of egg in chocolate, using either kitchen tongs or fingers. Let drip for a moment, then turn it over and place on wax paper for chocolate to harden, chocolate side up. If chocolate becomes thick — reheat gently and continue dipping.

When eggs have been dipped on one side, then dip other side in chocolate; let drip a moment and place on wax paper with the soft chocolate side up to harden.

Royal Frosting (for decorating).

2 Egg whites (room temperature), 2½ cups sifted icing sugar, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Combine all ingredients. Beat with electric mixer 5 minutes or until very stiff.

While decorating, keep remaining frosting in bowl covered with damp cloth or wax paper to prevent a crust from forming. This frosting becomes very hard and is good for making flowers and leaves and writing names; they will hold their shape and the eggs can then be wrapped and boxed.

Directions for Decorating Eggs

Fill a cake decorator; make a shell or zigzag border around the middle of each egg.

A small portion of frosting may then be tinted green for stems and leaves.

Remaining frosting may be tinted any bright color for flowers. Flowers may be made directly on egg, or made on wax paper and when dry, peeled off and attached to egg with a dab of frosting.

Women's group keen observers

Victoria (CP) — A group of women is keeping a close eye on civic affairs in the Victoria area.

Members of the Association of Women Electors attend council meetings, make notes on discussions and report on them to the other women in the association at regular monthly meetings.

The women study and check what they have heard and may then form an opinion to work to gain support for their viewpoint.

The main interest of the association however is to promote a greater interest in civic affairs among the electorate.

One member says there is a greater reluctance on the part of councils to propose secret sessions when they know regular observers are watching them. Representatives usually attend meetings in pairs, with sometimes as many as four pairs showing up.

The idea started 20 years ago in Eastern Canada, and in Toronto such a group has become so well recognized that the council often seeks briefings from the group on important issues.

STAINFREE PORCELAIN

Discolored porcelain tubs can be bleached by scrubbing with a brush dipped in a paste made of equal amounts of six-percent hydrogen peroxide and cream of tartar. Light rust stains will vanish if rubbed with a cut lemon. For stubborn rust marks use a five-percent solution of oxalic acid, obtainable from the drug store. Use rubber gloves and apply the acid with a soft cloth. Rinse immediately or the surface will be etched.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Lady Eaton — you know — Eaton's catalogue." This is the way the 83-year-old Toronto philanthropist was introduced to some Eskimos during her 12-day trip to the Arctic last summer.

Lady Eaton recalled her adventures when she gave an illustrated lecture in Toronto recently on behalf of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada.

"Nothing is farther from the truth than that Eskimo art is being spoiled by teachers," she said. She saw their carvings done right on the stone, using no patterns.

All the Eskimos work with is their imagination and their tools, Lady Eaton said.

Her souvenirs of her 5,350-mile trip include several Eskimo carvings and other artifacts from the Frobisher Bay art centre. She also brought back a doll dressed in a red fox parka from Fort Chimo and a sealskin play ball used by the Eskimos.

Lady Eaton said she enjoyed the Arctic gourmet specialties — char and muktuk (white whale served raw) and fresh trout.

She wore jodhpurs, high boots, and a parka during most of the trip which included stops at Great Whale River on Hudson Bay, Fort Chimo, Frobisher Bay, Broughton Island, Hall Beach, Cambridge Bay, Baker Lake and Churchill.

Family of Future

A Canadian educationist speculated on the family of the future at the Canadian Food Conference in Ottawa.

This family will be entirely dependent on prepared foods, fabricated clothing and automatically-controlled housing, said Professor Helen R. Neilson, director of the School of Household Science at McGill University's Macdonald College.

The role of father and mother will be less clearly defined and both will work away from home, she said.

Dwellings will be small and compact, with many of the present household appliances such as washing machines being replaced by community services.

Clothes will be made of synthetic fabrics and everyday clothing will be largely disposable, the professor said.

Poor Nutrition

At the same conference, a senior federal nutritionist said over-eating is Canada's most prevalent dietary error and a hazard to health.

"It is well recognized that overnutrition is as great a hazard to health as undernutrition," said Mary MacBeth, federal chief nutritionist.

A survey among selected communities showed that poor diets occurred among families of all income levels, she said. The common factor underlying dietary inadequacy was not inability to procure the right foods but failure to appreciate which foods were essential to health.

Foods most commonly neglected were whole grain cereals, milk and cheese, vegetables other than potatoes and fruits, particularly those containing Vitamin C.

"There is not necessarily a lack of nutritional information but there is a lack of appreciation of the importance of good nutrition," Miss MacBeth said.

This was a truly representative gathering, as women attended from every province in Canada. A Tribute

In the recent passing of J. S. Giles, publisher of The Watchman, not only the people of Argenteuil County have suffered a sad loss, but Cushing community also, as residents personally mourn with his family the loss of a kind and understanding friend. They remember also with gratitude the many times in past years that he so kindly assisted with our church concerts. One of his songs in particular lingers in our memories like the fragrance of a rose jar; it was, "Make New Friends, But Keep The Old". While we are always pleased to make new friends, we will remember with great affection our old friend J. S. Giles.

DROUIN (LIBERAL) RETURNED WITH IMPRESSIVE MAJORITY

Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes electors followed the trend of the popular vote, giving a Liberal ascendancy — in the form of an increased majority to Vincent Drouin, representative for the riding in the last parliamentary term. This is Mr. Drouin's second successive victory; he took the seat from the Progressive Conservative representation in the last federal vote, in June 1962.

Vincent Drouin, re-elected

Drouin defeated three adversaries, the most formidable of whom was Roger E. Regimbal, the P.C. standard-bearer, who was supported by W. M. Cottingham, Union Nationale representative in the provincial house. Less significant opponents were Maurice Gougeon (Social Credit) and Maurice Hebert (N.D.P.), both of whom forfeited their deposit. Following is the standing of the candidates, in alphabetical order:

Drouin (Lib.)	12,098
Gougeon (S.C.)	5,104
Hebert (N.D.P.)	1,179
Regimbal (P.C.)	10,213

In the last election Mr. Drouin's majority was 1,172. His 1,885 majority on Monday therefore shows a gain of 713.

The 28,600-odd votes cast in this two-county constituency represent about 82% of the 34,902 eligible electors, an excellent showing, and equivalent to that of 1962.

Eight preliminary polls were held in the constituency, which produced — 54 votes for Drouin, 11 for Gougeon, 3 for Hebert and 70 for Regimbal. (These are included in the above tabulations.)

Despite a comprehensive radio and television coverage on election night, Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes appeared left out in the cold, and thousands of listeners in the constituency were disappointed with the dearth of news from their home riding. (Reports from election headquarters here were going forward regularly and systematically, however.)

Cross-Country Trend

Unknown quantities and misguided impressions fogged the forecasts on this federal election, and even to the end the outcome appeared uncertain. Across the country the Liberals made decided gains, but not sufficient to give them a clearcut majority in the Commons. The showdown effectively minimized the threat of two spectacular but lesser factors, the Socreds and New Democrats, showing a healthy return to two-party pre-eminence. Both of the minority parties lost seats.

Subject to the outcome of the servicemen's vote, it appeared on Tuesday as though Liberal strength in the next parliament would be 128 seats compared with the 100 won in last year's election. Progressive Conservatives would have 96, compared with the party's 116 election victories in June, 1962.

Social Credit seemed likely to have about a half-dozen members fewer than their 30 in the last parliament, with New Democratic Party two less than the 19 seats they held.

In Quebec the Liberals gained 13 seats — seven from Social Credit and six from Conservatives. But Social Credit gained two others from the Liberals.

Liberal Leader Lester Pearson

Appeal Court rules Périard insane and non-capital murder verdict unreasonable

Five judges of the Quebec Court of Appeal ruled unanimously that a jury verdict of non-capital murder against 19-year-old Jean Périard of Lachute, for killing a former friend, André Prevost, 17, was "unreasonable".

Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay, with Justices G. Miller Hyde, Paul Casey, Fernand Choquette and Pierre Badeaux last Thursday maintained the appeal, against the verdict given last November at the Terrebonne Assizes. Périard had been convicted of the murder of André Prevost and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Testimony had been given that on the night of January 14-15, 1962, Périard had ambushed Prevost, who was returning from a dance with a group of friends, from behind a snowbank and killed him with a rifle.

The appeal judges agreed with Périard's lawyers, Marie-Claire Lefebvre and Jacques André Belisle, that Périard had not been sane at the time of the shooting.

In his notes Mr. Justice Casey commented that several witnesses, including a social worker and a psychiatrist, testified that for some time up to the shooting Périard had been suffering from a "nervous depression."

The lawyers, the judge added, had pleaded that at the time of the shooting Périard's mental condition was such as to render him incapable of distinguishing, according to the Criminal Code, between right and wrong.

Mr. Justice Casey added that while the burden was on the appellant to establish such insanity, he was not obliged to do so beyond reasonable doubt, and the judge said he agreed with this argument.

Mr. Justice Casey and his four colleagues stated that for these and other reasons they felt the verdict was unreasonable, and the appeal should be maintained, and Périard transferred to a hospital for appropriate medical attention "at the discretion of the Lieutenant Governor."

GUY ALLARD
New Hospital Director

Interview with new director on hospital opening

Guy Allard, appointed in charge of the new Argenteuil Hospital (and to be known officially as its "director"), assumed his duties on April 1. His past experience has included similar positions in the Civic Hospital at Ottawa and the Ste. Jeanne d'Arc in Montreal. He is young and enthusiastic, and speaks with evident assurance on matters of hospital management.

The main job of a hospital administrator (he stated to our representative) consists of giving the patients the best possible care at the most economical cost. In Lachute it is the intention to provide best possible treatments for the patients. Among other duties of the director is the engaging of staff. Insofar as they meet the requirements of competence, Mr. Allard intends to give preference to applicants from this district.

Concerning the change-over from the Providence Hospital, and the transfer of furnishings and equipment, this will be handled smoothly without interruption of services or inconvenience to the patients.

Mr. Allard was appointed by the administrative board after interviewing several prospects for the position. He is highly enthused with the new structure and with facilities provided in the long-awaited Argenteuil Hospital. As at last week, the final touches were being made to the building, and in conclusion, all installations and services will be thoroughly tested before admittance of the first patients.

Mountain climber, Mont'l teacher, killed at Weir

Ian Brown, a 27-year-old Montreal school teacher, was instantly killed early Saturday afternoon while climbing the Larose Mountain, near Weir. He was accompanied by eight fellow mountain climbers at the time of the accident.

According to Q.P.P. Officer Yvon Faucheon, who investigated, the victim was struck on the head by a falling rock, which severely fractured his skull. The climbers were approximately 250 feet from the base of the mountain when the incident occurred. His companions immediately attempted to render first-aid, but to no avail, and then lowered the body to the ground by ropes. The joint district coroner, Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, investigated; no date for the inquest has been determined.

A native of Scotland, the victim is married and has been a resident of Canada for two years.

Year's officers for Social-Athletic Club at B'burg

On March 29, the Brownsburg Social and Athletic Club held its annual election of officers. The slate elected for 1963-64 term was as follows:

President, Kenneth Stewart; vice-president, Tom Goldthorpe; directors, Miss Jean Elliott, W. R. Dimock, Gaston Heroux, Carl Clausen, Hedley Dyer, Miss Elaine Leclair, Arthur Morrison, George MacDonald, Bob McGuire, Marc Diotte and Gerald Chapman.

It should also be observed that Sidney H. Stilwell has completed 34 years as secretary-treasurer of the Social Club.

Easter Seals — do it now!

If you have not returned your "pink envelope", please do it now.

Concerning the Easter Seals campaign, The Montreal Gazette in an editorial this week said, in part: "There can be few finer ways of showing compassion at this very special season of the year, than by helping these institutions that do so much for the crippled and the disabled."

Notices of motion for annexation, etc.

At the regular Council meeting last week, Robert Marcil was welcomed as a new alderman by Mayor Dave Campbell. . . Ald. "Bob" Marcil was elected by acclamation to succeed Réal Urbain on his resignation from Seat 1, Centre Ward. He also "inherits" Ald. Urbain's seat on various committees — chairman of the finance committee, chairman of the buildings committee, and a member of the special committee to study business tax levies.

The new recreation committee is headed by Ald. Linton Armstrong. Representatives for the various service clubs are — Richelieu, Dr. J. P. Dorion; Legion, Stewart Jones; Lions, Fred Jeffery.

Council will study a request from Brownsburg to hook-up its municipal radio communication with that of Lachute. It is considered this would be to the advantage of both municipalities.

Three notices-of-motion were presented, for adoption of by-laws at next or subsequent meetings. The first will be to establish a fund for the purpose of promoting industrial growth. The second will concern the annexation of territory now in the Parish of St. Jerusalem. The third measure will be an amendment to the law regulating potato-chip wagons.

Tenders are being called for the supplying of 250 chairs for the civic auditorium. The mayor also stated it was planned to erect offices in that portion of the reception hall which has been occupied for several years by displays of the Quebec Department of Mines.

The "Carrefour du Livre" was given free use of the auditorium for April 15-16-17, for a display in connection with Library Week. (Location of the Carrefour's display has since been changed.)

The meeting was adjourned until April 9.

Robbery at school in St. Andrews

A robbery netting thieves some $600 in cash and resulting in $1,000 damage to the St. Andrews Catholic School, was reported to Q.P.P. Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, officer in charge of the local detachment, early on Friday of last week.

According to the investigating officer, there was no evidence of entry having been made to the building, although damage in the principal's office was heavy, as the money was taken from a filing cabinet. The robbery is still under investigation.

Two arrested after escapade in stolen car

Two St. Jerome youths are being detained following an accident at 3 a.m. Saturday in which a car, previously reported stolen, was demolished on Route 41, a few miles east of Lachute.

According to investigating Q.P.P. Officer Yvon Faucheon, the 1955-model sedan, owned by Jean-Guy Corbeil, of St. Antoine des Laurentides, was reported stolen at 11.30 p.m. The two young men apparently drove to Lachute where, after having a meal, they started on their return trip to their home town, St. Jerome. They were travelling at a high rate of speed when they struck the gravel section of the highway and the car swerved out of control into an adjacent field, leapt 97 feet without touching the ground, then another 20-odd feet, finally coming to a halt after having smashed into Clark's barn.

The two walked to a nearby house, where they called for a taxi, informing the occupants they had been beaten in a roadside fight. One of the youths fainted. Police and an ambulance were called, and the youths were taken to St. Jerome hospital, where they were later released without serious injury, and were placed under arrest.

Town employee injured in mishap at Brownsburg

Henri Raby, an employee of the Village of Brownsburg for the past 21 years, was the victim of a serious mishap last Friday. While digging a ditch for a water intake on the Cedar Crest Homes project at 5 feet below ground level, a mass of frozen earth fell suddenly and he was trapped by the legs.

Fernand Brisson, town foreman, and four other men working near the scene, released the victim and he was taken in a truck to the town offices. Raby was then transferred to the Providence Hospital at Lachute, where medical aid was given by Dr. L. Middleton. The injured man was found to have suffered a broken left knee and another fracture in the right foot. He is now reported to be recovering satisfactorily.

Wage contract signed, strike averted at Canadian Refractories Ltd. plants

The threatened strike at Canadian Refractories Ltd. was averted when workers, meeting last Saturday at Hawkesbury, agreed to accept a new wage contract with the company affecting workers at Kilmar and Marelan.

The contract, accepted by a majority vote of the United Steel Workers of America, Local 6213, provides for a 24-cents an hour increase over a three-year period, and other concessions.

The agreement brings a conclusion to negotiations started September 4 last. The company's final offer was received at 10.30 Friday night, nearing the deadline for a strike. Arbitration had been conducted under the Department of Labor in order to reach a conciliation.

By terms of the new contract, the workers will receive an immediate increase of 10 cents an hour, with additional increases of 7 cents in each of the two ensuing years. The other benefits include one more paid statutory holiday in the year; three days compassionate leave of absence instead of one day; three weeks vacation after 12 years of service, instead of two weeks; also various other clauses.

Robt. Welburn, president of Local 6213, announced the new contract would be signed this Thursday at the company's offices in Montreal; 451 workers in the two plants are affected.

New procedure for driving permits

It is announced by the Motor Vehicle Bureau at Quebec that no driving permits will be issued or renewed unless the application is accompanied by form V-1A issued by head office of the Bureau. These application forms are being mailed out during April. (Local issuing officers have no such forms available for renewal of licenses.)

The cost of driving permits is $5; but the permits will be valid for a two-year period, until May 31, 1965.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

It is not the practice of outdoors writers to come to the defence of anyone of their clan being assailed by a government authority. They usually have enough trouble themselves; but in this case, I'm sure everyone will be up in arms. Having the Deputy Minister of Fish and Game term certain statements made by the dean of all outdoors writers in this province "false and dishonest", is just a little too much. Anyone acquainted with George Carpenter (Isaak Hunter), knows that everything humanly possible has been done to see that information written upon is reliable, certainly not "false and dishonest". In all fairness, this remark of Dr. Labrie's should be clarified after the apology of Mr. Carpenter. Having a responsible official of the provincial government make these statements does not sit too well. To my way of thinking, a public apology should be forthcoming.

The wholesale use of detergents in the quest for more cleanliness and more leisure, has reached alarming proportions on this continent. The side results — the destruction of wildlife and waters at saturation point of filth and disease — certainly need a little publicity. This situation does not seem to have alarmed our authorities too much. Possibly through the enormous investments by manufacturers of these products. Trivial publicity has been given to water pollution, but this has centred on the raw sewage angle, with no attention paid to cleaners.

I imagine the approach by citizens is that anything that is supposed to keep you clean, is above suspicion. In the past few weeks much publicity has been given to insecticides and pesticides, but never any mention of things that we use day in and day out — which in the future could present a situation much worse than any of these sprays. Any existing controls at present do not take this into consideration; and as far as I have been informed, nothing is even contemplated.

Those who can remember any expanse of water that was reasonably clean and good in former years, and is now an unsanitary, stinking mess of slime, may well wonder where this is all going to end. Are we going to poison ourselves right out of existence? The future does not look too bright for human survival, I know, but why hasten the stupidity?

With such arrogant claims put out for public consumption, we must truly be rated as first-class morons. Barnum truly said, a sucker is born every minute. . . The chemicals used in these products, the "special crystals" for suds and suds and a brighter wash, must be in tremendous quantity. (And incidentally the amounts of suds has no bearing on the cleanliness of your wash or on the quality of the soap.) As I say, all these stupid claims are ranted at full blast, with no mention of the damage these additives will do. . . A very small amount of any of these chemicals will kill a spawning bed of fish so fast it is not even funny, and these same bleaches will live for years without losing their potency. Nice to think about, isn't it? Naturally, they sink to the bottom, cutting off oxygen to all forms of life; the result is a slimey mass of corruption where nothing can live. Continued dumping of these chemicals will eventually clog all types of water, with disastrous results.

What these same materials do to humans, I do not know, but these are some of the questions I have asked myself. Even a small scratch on your hands will produce a terrific burning when immersed in these detergents. And as for getting it in your eyes, I would not wish this on anyone. The claims of cleaner, softer hands may be true, but after using this for awhile, you have no feeling left in your hands anyway. . . These, as I say, are my own opinions, with no real knowledge of actual effects on humans; but with the wildlife it is different, we have proof. . . It certainly could be that this type of cleanliness is getting us closer to godliness!

Canada Geese are winging their way north. One report told of a flock of them, 53 in number, pulling a switch; they were heading from west to east. These seen right now are without doubt the advance guards. The main flocks should be passing over very shortly. It is to be hoped that the geese that landed in this area last year will return; as you know, they are always supposed to return to former resting places, but this has been proven false, and I think weather conditions have a lot to do with it. Lots of Red Wings are with us now; in the puddles and run-offs, they sure seem happy. The splashes of color on the drab countryside right now, make you realize just what you have been missing.

The crows, of course, are out in force; they will provide prime shooting very soon. . I spotted a couple of black ducks winging down the North River the other morning. I guess they were just out sightseeing, as the river was still frozen over solid. A lot of the jays have deserted us, as their wilder habitats have become accessible.

Once more the Provincial Government has made changes in appointments for the Tourist and Wildlife Bureau. Just a few weeks ago it was stated that an appointment had been made; what happened to this selection, I don't suppose we'll ever know. Let's hope they make up their minds. There isn't too much time to make changes for betterment of wildlife, but this no doubt is a minor consideration. What does wildlife amount to, compared to the elusive dollar of the tourists! The bungling that goes on in these departments all points to friends, and friends of friends, as has always been the case.

With the trout season just a few days away, fishermen are waiting for the right moment to hit the lakes and streams. Some of the lakes I have seen do not indicate much fishing for some time yet. They are broken around the shores, but in the centre the ice is still thick. All the creeks are open, but great care will have to be taken fishing them. One spot that I visit regularly, has changed greatly this year. One of the holes has filled up and the flow has gouged out another about 40 feet downstream. I'm sure all the streams will be this way, and until you get to know them, watch out. The water is still very cold, and there isn't much fun in falling in. It is too much to expect we will all get good catches, but there is always the hope of getting a bite.

Not too many boats will be launched right now. When the time comes, if your boat needs repair and cannot be fixed properly, then don't put it in the water. You can do without the boat, but your life is not so dispensable. As for outboard motors; some repairs on these can be done by the owners, but unless you have a working knowledge, don't attempt it. It may cost you more after all. It might be worth while to look at your life jackets too. As you know, these are a must in any boat, but it's better to have none at all, than jackets no longer dependable. Incidentally, don't forget the registration of your boat if you are going to install an engine of 10 h.p. or over. I understand the RCMP are really going to crack down on offenders this year. These laws are made for our protection, and they must be observed.

As usual, anyone wishing to purchase a fishing license will have to shop around for it. According to the Department of Fish and Game, there are enough outlets in this district to take care of all. This may be true, but where is the information on the whereabouts of these outlets? It has been the practice of our wardens to hand out the odd book to parties who could help in the distribution. This (it is said) is no longer permitted. It would be nice to know the reason for such changes, especially since they affect the people who pay the piper for our wildlife service.

You may remember the Quebec farm organization and representatives of the hunting fraternity got together last December to seek a remedy for reckless shooting and destruction. The Farm Association has polled a number of its Forums and they have come up with a few excellent suggestions. One part of this brief I like; all Forums came out very strongly for the training of hunters as a "must" before issuing a license. Another part emphasized the sale of firearms and suggested controls; this is another real suggestion. Only one of these suggestions was a little unreasonable, namely — no hunting on Sunday. This may be fine for those who can take time off from their jobs, but most hunters have to be content with the week-ends. But, as a whole, these were all good suggestions, and I do hope something worthwhile may come of them.

Another point I agree with in part, was that the Wardens were not of good enough calibre. I think the blame for this is higher up; after all, there's not much incentive to do a job if these officers keep having cases thrown out of court through political or other influence. As far as I am concerned, our wardens in this province are doing a "lousy" job quite well. It's easy enough to criticize, but how about the critics taking over this job for just one month? Then maybe they would understand what goes on.

ARMY GUN SALUTES HAVE DIM HISTORY

Camp Gagetown, N.B. (CP) — The Camp Gagetown Gazette, a weekly army newspaper, raises the questions of where the practice of gun salutes originated.

It says the custom began about 400 years before the Fathers of Confederation were born, probably with the British.

Also obscured by the dust of history is the origin of the practice of firing 21, 19, or fewer rounds depending on the significance of the occasion.

The gun salute apparently started with the earlier custom of saluting with an open hand, to display there was no weapon. A ship firing a 21-gun salute for instance would be defenceless until its guns were reloaded.

Nowadays the gun salutes are strictly formal, and official saluting stations include Parliament Hill at Ottawa, with the 10 provincial capitals, as well as some naval stations. At Saint John, N.B., a 21-gun salute each May 18 marks the landing of the founding Loyalists.

Enthusiastic meet of Dow Fishing and Hunting Club

The first meeting of the Dow Fishing and Hunting Club this year, was held recently at the Hebert Hotel. President J. P. Dion welcomed the gathering, then introduced the guests of honor and the directors. He also explained the objects of the club, and gave the dates of the four principal fishing contests.

A short First-Aid course is offered to all members in good standing as at May 1.

Adelard Gagné and R. Harding, County game wardens, were then introduced and spoke briefly on conservation. Mr. Bob Atchison also emphasized the duty of the members to respect all rules and regulations on fishing and hunting, thereby helping to make their club the best. He kindly offered his services free to all members who would like a few lessons or other information they may require.

The drawing for a boat was then mentioned and tickets are now on sale. The club crests are also on sale and may be obtained from the president or the vice-president.

Two films on fishing and one on skiing were shown, by courtesy of Dow Breweries, through their agent, Raymond Laurin. There was a drawing for approximately 40 door prizes, and altogether, the meeting was a most enjoyable occasion.

Fair-sex celebrities feted at Lions Club

At a Lions Club meeting last week, the guests of honor lent charm to the surroundings, as they had also brought honor to Lachute. These were the senior girls' basketball team of Lachute High School, who had won the championship of the province (for schools outside the Island of Montreal) and brought the trophy to Lachute for the third time since the inauguration of this inter-school competition.

President Royal Carriere welcomed and extended congratulations to the girls. Lion Donald M. Hay recalled the semi-final and final series against outstanding basketball teams, which had led to their success and winning of the championship. Their coach, Bob Bailly, assistant-principal at L.H.S., then introduced the players and their P.T. instructor, Miss Jean Darbe; the visitors received a warm ovation.

In a more solemn vein, the gathering stood in brief silence as a memorial tribute to the late "Jack" Giles, who, active in his 80's and 90's, had been "Mr. Lion" — a symbol of Lionism in Eastern Canada and an inspiring example of fine citizenship in his own community.

Reports were heard on Easter Seals and the recent public speaking contest. The president had a special word of tribute for one of the newer club members, Ray Church, for his excellent job as Bulletin editor.

Zone Chairman Welcomed

This was a notable occasion at the Lions Club for another reason — being the official visit of the Zone Chairman, Dr. Eric Mongeon, who has performed his role most conscientiously in visiting all clubs of the Zone this season, and, finally, was greeted at this meeting by his home club. Introduced by Mozart Carriere, who recalled among other things Eric's activity in golf, track and field, and specially in organized hockey — Lion Eric brought constructive ideas for the wellbeing of the club. In a service group of this kind, it was essential not only to pull together, but to pull with individual energy and consistency. A club is no stronger than its weakest link, and its achievement at the community level can be measured only on the basis of every-man participation, he stated. . . Dr. Mongeon was thanked by Lion Bob Jones.

An enthusiastic song session was led by Lion Hal Joyce. This included the theme song of the home club, "Lions of the North", which appears in the International song book and has been promoted as a marching-song wherever local Lions have visited other branches of the club.

At the last meeting of the Brownsburg Boy Scout Committee it was decided to hold the opening Paper Salvage Drive on April 27.

Hawkesb'y buys site from C.N.R.

Hawkesbury Town Council voted recently to purchase from the C.N.R. a plot of land between William and Hamilton Streets. The railway will be vacating this property shortly, and it is presumed to have been bought for the purpose of a future city hall. The price was $3,500.

The town ceded to the company the site of its station for a nominal sum of $1. A clause in the transfer stipulated this land should automatically revert to the municipality, if the station should be discontinued by the C.N.R.

Mr. Stan Seary will act as the chairman.

The group was informed that Messrs. Carl Clausen and Conrad Peron have agreed to act as Assistant Scoutmaster and Assistant Cubmaster, respectively.

The father-and-son banquet held recently was a great success. Sincere thanks to the social chairman, Mr. Gerald Maitland, and to the fine support of the fathers.

Forty-three Scouts attended the "Scoutorama" in Montreal. Everyone thought the trip was well worth it.

CHANCE DISCOVERY

Bell Island, Nfld. (CP)— The extensive iron ore deposits here were first discovered after a fisherman in 1890 picked up a red rock to use as an anchor for his net. The rock was identified as iron ore when he visited Halifax.

Businessman at Rotary speaks of public relations

At the April 4 meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club, the election of four new directors for the forthcoming Rotary year was held, a very interesting guest speaker was heard, and more news on the Club's "Window on the World" project was given by Georges Desfosses.

Following is the new slate of officers for the 1963-64 club year:

President, Larry Presseault; vice-president, Don Wilson; secretary, Bill Morrow; treasurer, Bob Armstrong; past-president, Jack MacKimmie.

Of the eight persons nominated for directorship, John Chalmers, John Leggitt, Les Davies and Ross Cole were appointed in the election for directors.

Guest speaker for the evening was George De Lorme, assistant vice-president and Montreal regional sales manager for the Canadian Acceptance Corporation. Mr. De Lorme, a past active Rotarian himself for 10 years, and also a past vice-president of the Quebec Rotary Club, was introduced by Linton Armstrong. His talk was based on human relations, as exemplified by Dale Carnegie, and it contained many interesting points and helpful hints on understanding, and on bettering one's everyday human relationships. The talk was thoroughly enjoyed by the clubmen, and Rotarian Fred Royal thanked the visitor for providing such an enjoyable evening.

Manitoba lady member of pioneer Avoca family

Late Mrs. John Seale

The death of Mrs. John Seale occurred April 1 in hospital at Dauphin, Man. She was the eldest daughter of a family of 12 born to the late Joseph Arthurs and his wife, Jane Young.

Mrs. Seale was in her 92nd year. Born in Avoca December 1, 1871, she lived in that vicinity for 30-odd years; she then married the late John Seale of Dalesville, Que., and moved to Dauphin, Man., where they homesteaded and she lived until her passing. One son, John, was born to her — with whom she made her home.

A staunch member of the Baptist Church, Mrs. Seale was active in church work and other local organizations, always ready to lend a helping hand. Her cheerful disposition and keen memory kept her interested until the time of her death. She was loved by all, and will be greatly missed by her many friends.

She leaves to mourn her passing her son, John, five grandchildren and two great-granddaughters; also four sisters, Mrs. Sandy Bates (Mary), of Avoca, Mrs. Evan Newton (Pearl), of Vancouver, Mrs. Charlie Duncan (Jennie), of Niagara Falls, Mrs. Joe Bates (Hazel), of Hawkesbury, and three brothers, Josie, of Avoca, and John and Wyman, of Dauphin.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene L'Heureux, accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Girard, returned Monday after an extended vacation at Miami Beach.

Miss Janet McOuat, of Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, was home last week-end to visit her father, Mr. Arthur McOuat.

Visiting Mrs. Olive Riddell at her home recently were her sons, Messrs. Cleighton and Bazil, of Don Mills; Owen, of Belleville; and Wayne, of Montreal.

Friends extend good wishes to Miss Lily Stalker, who is presently a patient in the Montreal General Hospital.

Memorial Dedicated

During morning service at St. Simeon's last Sunday, the Rev. C. R. Lang formally dedicated communion hangings for the altar, lectern and pulpit — given by the Ladies' Guild in respectful memory of the late Miss Lily Hampton, who with her sister had filled the duties of the Altar Guild in this church for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leggett have returned from their winter vacation in Florida.

Miss Edna Boon, of Montreal, was a guest last week-end at the home of Mrs. Jos. McMahon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. George Hutchin, all of Lachute, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Carpenter and family, of Brownsburg attended the Carpenter-Massey marriage at Ashton, Ont., on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Giles, and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Giles, have left to spend the Easter season visiting in Springfield, Mass.

Acquaintances of Miss Bessie Collett, an occasional visitor to Lachute, will sympathize with her in the death of her mother, which occurred in Romford, Essex, England. Miss Collett left Montreal by plane last week for England.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex M. Vessie motored this week to Kitchener and Waterloo, Ont., being accompanied home by their son, Ian, a student at Waterloo University. The latter enters employment in Montreal next week, to continue through the summer season.

Miss Juliette Roderigue entertained a small group at her home last Thursday evening to discuss plans for the coming Community Concerts Association campaign.

Mr. Fernand Berthiaume, editor of "L'Argenteuil", attended a three-day clinic on newspaper production arranged by the Laurentian section of the French-language Weekly Newspapers Association. Mr. Raymond Church, advertising representative of the local newspapers, attended the Thursday sessions.

Mrs. Donald (Jean) MacDonald — in the Montreal Convalescent Home following an operation at Montreal General Hospital several weeks ago — is now reported regaining strength, and it is hoped she will be able to return home shortly.

Impressive Service

Before a crowded congregation at Lachute United Church last Sunday, the minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, welcomed 22 new members into the church fellowship; 21 of these were young people joining the church by profession of faith.

'Crucifixion' sung by Argenteuil Choral Society

Last Sunday evening was fittingly spent by a fair audience listening to the rendition of John Stainer's "Crucifixion", presented by members of the Argenteuil Choral Society in Lachute United Church.

The choir was under the direction of Lowell B. Hopkins, who presided at the organ, and all the soloists for this cantata were from the male section of the group. The tenor solos were sung by Jack F. Gorman, who was joined in the duet by Chas. L. Duncan, and the bass solos were sung by Phil Bate, George Taylor and Bernard Hewitt.

The minister of the Lachute United Church, the Rev. Wilson Bridge, extended a warm welcome to those present, and gave a short resume of the origin of The Crucifixion.

After the presentation, the choir were served refreshments, with the kind assistance of Mrs. N. MacGeorge and Mrs. Allan Hammond. The president of the choral group, Mrs. Mason Crosby of Brownsburg, thanked all those who had assisted in the presentation of the cantata, while Lowell Hopkins expressed his appreciation to the soloists and choir. . . Treasurer Bernard Hewitt presented his financial statement.

An Easter Prayer

(Contributed)

O crucified Son of God, I pray
All hate and evil in me slay:
That I may live with spirit free
Not unto self, but unto Thee.

Risen, living, triumphant Lord,
Breathe in my soul thy living word,
That risen, I may walk with Thee,
Within appointed paths for me.

Ascended now upon Thy Throne,
Thou wilt not leave us here alone.
Blest spirit, walk Thou by our side
And bless us in this Eastertide.

Often the question has been asked, "What was the greatest hour in history?" Undeniably, the greatest hour was when Jesus Christ walked from the tomb on that first Easter morn. From that very moment, we have had victory over death, with hope of everlasting life.

My prayer is that you may so pray and live that this victory may also be yours. . . May this Easter be a blessed one for you.

— The Rev. Horace G. Baugh

Prof. of Anatomy in humorous vein at W.I. meeting

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in Lachute High School on Tuesday of last week.

After the routine business had been dealt with, Mrs. A. Taylor called upon the County president, Mrs. Charles Stephens (who is visiting all the branches), to address the meeting. Mrs. Stephens told members that she hoped an extra effort would be made to enter exhibits in the Lachute Fair. Also grandmothers' samplers would be welcomed for display.

Mrs. George McGibbon put forward, for the members' approval, a suggestion that had been made in order to raise money for the Senior Citizens' Home project. This would take the form of a balloon "launching", in which tickets would be purchased for balloons, at 50c each, and the balloons to be sent off (with ticket number enclosed) at a time and place to be announced later. The ticket returned from the farthest distance would mean a prize of $25 for the returnee and $50 for the purchaser of the ticket. The idea was approved, and, if this is unanimous, details will be forthcoming later.

A number of visitors were present to hear an unusual and humorous talk concerning hands and feet, given by Dr. Cecil Martin, retired professor of anatomy, who was introduced by Mrs. Gordon Davidson. One of the many interesting points made by Dr. Martin was, that educationalists are coming around to the idea that the utilization of hands could play an important part in education. It might be that a lot more could be learned by "doing"... Altogether, a very interesting meeting.

French-speaking Baptist group

Asbestos, Que. (C) — The flock of l'Eglise Baptiste Evangelique in Asbestos, a French-speaking Baptist group, numbers only about 25 families. But they have their own modern church, built with their own labor and funds, that features such innovations as a sound-proof nursery where parents can leave their children during services. The church is on Highway 32 between Asbestos and Danville.

The church was finished enough last October for the first services to be held, but will not be completed until next June.

The group was organized in 1956 by Marcel Cotnif with a handful of members holding services in private homes. Ernest Keefe, pastor who joined the group in 1956, was jailed for preaching "without legal rights," and for distributing literature, but later was freed.

The church basement serves as a banquet hall for about 200, and also for Sunday School classes. On completion the church will have cost about $15,000.

Rev. W. Bridge guest speaker

The Rev. Wilson Bridge was guest speaker at the Pioneer Women's Institute meeting held Tuesday of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Armstrong. His subject was, "A look at the Canadian family in terms of the 20th century."

The Rev. Mr. Bridge was also speaker at the regular meeting of the Argenteuil Protestant Ministerial Association, held Monday at Dalesville Baptist Church. His topic on this occasion was, "The Fathers of the Evangelical Revival of the 18th Century" (John and Charles Wesley, and George Whitfield).

Message for Library Week

The observance of Library Week affords an excellent opportunity for English-speaking Canadians and French-speaking Canadians to work together to share their respective heritages of books and knowledge, and it is worthy of note that this year a special effort is being made to see that all provinces have access to material in both languages.

The rapidly expanding library system in Canada is providing many new positions for competent Canadian personnel trained in library science, and I am confident that the publicity associated with the observance of Library Week will do much to enlist interest in this field of service.

Hell, A Place of Rest in Hope

Egyptian and Buddhist priests taught hell-fire centuries before Christendom's religions did. The pagan philosophers Plato and Socrates taught a purgatory theory. But the Bible teaches neither one. To be tormented one must be conscious. The dead are unconscious, unable to suffer. "Hell" in the Bible means the common grave of mankind. Of those in hell the Douay Bible says ". . . . the dead know nothing more," and advises the living: "Whatsoever thy hand is able to do, do it earnestly: for neither work, nor reason, nor wisdom, nor knowledge, shall be in hell, whither thou art hastening." — Eccl. 9: 5. 10.

This hell or grave is not eternal, but is to be destroyed when "there shall be no more death." So the Bible says: "Death and hell were cast into the lake of fire." If hell is the lake of fire, as many say, how is it cast into itself? Actually, the lake of fire is only a symbol of destruction, and is itself called "the second death," meaning final death with no chance of restoration. (Rev. 21: 4; 20: 14). So hell is not hot, but is the cold grave, and will end when in the new world men will live forever. As for purgatory, the Bible never even mentions it! For more information on Bible teachings send for four free tracts.

The doctrine of a burning Hell where the wicked are tortured eternally after death cannot be true, mainly for four reasons: (1) Because it is wholly unscriptural; (2) because it is unreasonable; (3) because it is contrary to God's love; and (4) because it is repugnant to justice. From this, it is clearly seen that hell or sheol or hades means the grave, the tomb, the condition where all, good and bad, go awaiting the day of resurrection.

Get the Book "Let God Be True", price 50 cents. See, on page 68, what it has to say about the God-Dishonoring Religious Doctrine of a fiery hell for the torment eternally of conscious human souls.

National Wildlife Week

THE GOVERNMENT has proclaimed the period from April 7 to 13 as National Wildlife Week in Canada. Observance of Wildlife Week in this province is sponsored by the Quebec Federation of Fish and Game Associations, whose president is Manny R. Wilson, an energetic and esteemed citizen of this County.

"Wild animals, birds and fish, and the fields, forests, streams and lakes which harbor them, are part of our heritage of rich resources", says Manny Wilson. "They must be properly managed. Help celebrate National Wildlife Week by working with your fellow-sportsmen and biologists for better management of our wildlife and other natural resources."

The prime purpose of Wildlife Week is to bring the attention of people to the stake they have in the public lands and waters which their governments hold in trust for them. In Quebec there are more than 213,000 square miles of public forests and more than 51,000 square miles of public waters.

This vast domain, of which we are the joint owners, cannot be managed haphazardly. It plays a vital role in supplying our everyday living needs. It includes some of our finest outdoor and scenic areas, which provide homes for the wildlife on which we depend for our sport.

To get the greatest possible use and enjoyment from this public estate, we must make certain that it is properly managed. Only in this way can our forests, lands and waters, and the wildlife they produce, continue to meet the increasing demands of the province and the nation.

These matters deserve our earnest consideration, during National Wildlife Week and every week of every year.

The need for books

MOST PEOPLE read for relaxation and entertainment; the more ambitious read for knowledge and mental stimulation; and some read to free themselves from thinking.

Some people read anything and everything; others are more selective. Some people read avidly and in great quantity while others pick up a book only occasionally.

But any reader, no matter what his reading habits and personal rewards, would feel sympathy for any person not having access to books.

A report issued by a Toronto committee for Canadian Library Week, April 6-13, showed there are about 3,900,000 Canadians spread across seven provinces who have no access to public library facilities.

Other points in the report indicate that Canadians have no reason to be complacent about their reading habits.

Compared with some other countries, Canada does not rank high as a reading nation, the report showed. The Russians, with 753,000,000 volumes in their 137,609 libraries, have an average of 3.6 books per capita in their public collections.

The United Kingdom has 1.4 books per capita in its public libraries, the United States has 1.14 and Canada has only .73.

Only half of the 26,000,000 volumes estimated as the minimum necessary book stock for this country's public libraries have been purchased.

In 1962, Canada was spending about $1.07 per capita on public libraries, while $3 per capita is estimated as necessary for the minimum services.

When the report was prepared, 678 professional librarians were working in Canada's public libraries. About 2,432 would be needed to meet the minimum requirements.

Only when all Canadians actively encourage reading and become conscious of its benefits, will library services cease to creep along at their horse and buggy pace.

And only then will Canada be able to play an active, enthusiastic part in world plans to reduce the illiteracy of half the world's adult population (700,000,000 people), the Canadian Library Week Committee claims.

Do not quit when the going tough

THE EASTER BREAK is a critical point in the secondary school calendar for most of the pupils.

All have been working on the Easter exams — some with confidence, others with apprehension and, always, a proportion who have been struggling along in a defeatist attitude, concerned mainly with how and when they can get away from their teachers and start out in glorious independence.

"All the evidence indicates we are not achieving our full academic potential," it was noted in a survey by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics on the school drop-out question.

This report a couple of years ago estimated that, of every 100 pupils in Grade 2, only 14 emerge from Grade 12 or 13, whichever is the senior matriculation class. Of these, perhaps nine reach university, some of the others going into teaching or nursing schools.

And in university, about one-fifth will fail or withdraw in their first year. Of every 100 entering university, about 60 will gain a bachelor's degree.

"The most commonly accepted ideals in our Western civilization are security and a high living standard — less work and more pay," says Dr. Hans Selye, the Montreal medical scientist who became noted for his theories of stress.

He proposed in a recent address at Toronto the development of a distinctly Canadian cultural and scientific effort, and said what is needed is a nation-wide campaign to raise public understanding for the inherent value and satisfactions offered by the sciences and the humanities.

Dr. Selye added that to attract young people away from routine occupations toward scholarly careers "they should be recognized by the state as national heroes through really substantial rewards and public honors."

The boy or girl who perseveres in his school work — whether in public school, secondary school, or in higher education classes — may never gain recognition as a "national hero". But he or she at least will have the satisfaction of knowing that they did not quit when the going got tough.

Separatism "with us forever"

QUEBEC'S Natural Resources Minister, René Levesque, is convinced the province has obtained technical and financial support for an integrated steel mill. All studies and plans for Quebec's own steel industry are on schedule and he says the operation should be a reality within four years.

In a wide-ranging interview with Lauchie Chisholm of The Financial Post, Levesque touched upon a number of topics, including Social Credit, separatism and the sight of ships sailing past Montreal carrying iron ore to inland smelters ("a goofy proposition for Quebec"). Levesque, back from two solid weeks of talks and tours of steel mills in France and Belgium, implied the practical world of industrial planning is sometimes less frustrating than politics.

Levesque said Separatism will be with us forever. "If it wins out, then Quebec would really be separate. If it doesn't then the agitation and the friction will continue." "I think we can continue to live in the same house. Right now, we're occupying different rooms. Perhaps we could get together more often."

SIXTY MILE HIKE

A couple of disk jockeys, at radio station CKRC, Winnipeg, all for the fun of it, started a 60-mile all-night walkathon from Portage La Prairie to the parliament buildings in Winnipeg.

Several Manitobans joined in the walk. Four of them made it, and looked remarkably fresh in spite of the fact they had done their trudging in sub-zero weather that had chilled my bones during the fifteen minutes my wife and I stood outside our car to await the arrival.

I went down to the parliament buildings quite cynical about the whole thing. When I saw those young lads marching up to the waiting crowds, my cynicism changed to admiration. One lad, in his teens, had done a full day's work and gone straight from his job into the walk, and was still able to joke about it. Westerners are still pretty tough. If the new generation is going to fat and flab, as some of our critics claim, then it is mighty energetic fat and flab.

A certain amount of credit must be given to the new kinds of clothing we have today. The RCAF and the textile people who have done so much research to develop fabrics which are light but warm, would have been proud of the payoff it provided for these youngsters. No wonder the Eskimos are beginning to look with envy on the light, warm clothing of their fellow Canadians who brave the North.

But when all is said and done, the young men themselves deserve the credit. Tough wills as well as tough muscles kept those legs moving. That, and the challenge such a hike offered, for it was purely for fun and not for money.

I'm glad I went over to the parliament buildings to watch their arrival. I got a bit chilly, and I was tired from standing fifteen minutes on my sedentary legs; but I went away with a lot more faith in the sturdy character of Canadian youth.

Deplores parents permitting hazardous playing in streets

(TO THE EDITOR)

Editor, The Watchman

Dear Sir:

On Monday, April 1, around 5 p.m., an unusual arrest was made by the local police, an arrest which to my way of thinking was caused entirely by a lack of supervision on the part of certain parents that are considered Pillars of Society.

I am referring to the arrest on Bedard Blvd. East of a number of children aged from 6 to 10 years, for the reason of playing in the street, endangering their lives, wilfully blocking traffic and playing games liable to cause property damage, all in contravention of traffic laws, city by-laws, and most of all, against all the rules of safety.

I am not blaming the children; everybody knows the playfulness of a child at that age, and their lack of knowledge in this matter. I am not blaming the police department; on the contrary, I am commending them on their efforts to keep casualties as low as possible, specially child casualties. But I am blaming the parents for the lack of interest they show in the welfare of their children — parents, who instead of recognizing their failure in the aforesaid matter, try to pass the blame on somebody else's shoulders, mostly on city officials, who are only doing their duty in transmitting phone calls received from annoyed motorists.

I always thought the Pillars of Society were persons with a sense of responsibility, who would set an example for the whole community. Recent events tend to show otherwise. They show that these persons consider themselves above city by-laws — that by a mere phone call and a little influence they can "arrange" any and every infraction of whatever kind it may be. But let something happen to their child, for whom they show little concern when they are at play, and they will be the first to yell murder — as was the case a few years back. They will be the first to raise public opinion until city officials are forced to take steps to remedy a situation caused by those same persons.

Mind you, not all Pillars of Society are in this category but there are a few in every community, even some who spend their spare time organizing games and places for the kids to play, which is very commendable. But would it not be more commendable if they started supervising their own children, instead of leaving them to the mercy of the motorists?

With summer and outdoor living just around the corner, my reason for writing this letter is that all civic-minded people may do everything in their power to make such action by our police force unnecessary, and do everything possible to protect the growing generation — giving this community the best safety record possible and making the town of Lachute a better place to live in.

— An Interested Citizen

RED CROSS SERVES YOU EVERY STEP OF THE WAY

CHILDHOOD HABITS PERSIST THROUGHOUT LIFETIME

Instinct can sometimes be overrated, according to Donald M. Hay, manager of the Bank of Montreal's Lachute branch.

For instance, he says, many of the successful business men among his customers attribute their habit of regular saving to instinct, rather than to being taught the advantages of saving as children.

But it's much more likely, Mr. Hay believes, that their habit of regular saving was begun when very young, at the suggestion of farsighted parents.

Either way, Mr. Hay says there's no doubt the best time to learn the habit of regular saving is in childhood, and the younger the better. It's a simple lesson that gives youngsters a good start in life, and the knowledge that there's a savings account to fall back on in emergencies is often a source of confidence to youngsters when they start out on their own.

A single dollar will start your child's savings account at the B of M. As Don Hay puts it: "It might be only a small beginning, but it's a fine way to help develop habits that will be mighty valuable in the future."

If your child really wants something special — and it can be anything from a bicycle to a college education — having a personal savings account will be a strong encouragement for him to put away part of his weekly pocket-money towards the objective. And it will help him to develop the invaluable habit of saving.

Drop in soon to see Mr. Hay at Lachute — or Miss Lulu Miller at Ayersville branch — and ask for a free copy of the B of M's folder entitled, "How to teach your youngster to save." Parents everywhere are finding it helpful.

Milk goes to a party

To these healthy youngsters, a glass of milk is an accepted part of their Easter party. We wonder if their parents follow their good example! The Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, suggests that adults, too, should get the milk habit. For a quick and satisfying pick-me-up for busy days, you can't beat a glass of milk.

Eggs unusual — Italian style

Canada's food guide suggests eggs be included in the diet at least twice a week for good health. The Poultry Products Institute of Canada offers unusual ways to prepare and serve them.

Mrs. Herring's Italian eggs, excellent for a main course on a meatless day or when you don't know just what to have for supper, originally come from Prince Edward Island.

To make them, cook ¼ cup chopped onion and one small green chopped pepper slowly in two tablespoons of butter, until soft but not brown.

Blend eight eggs, ¼ cup milk, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon salt but do not beat to make the mixture frothy.

Pour the eggs into the pan with the onion and cook and stir over low heat until set but still moist. Carefully stir in cubes (about ½ pound) of a mild cheese such as Mozzarella and one tomato (fresh or canned) cut in thin wedges. Heat for just a minute, stirring once or twice, and then serve.

Your Child and Easter

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

In this brown seed, so dry and hard,
I see a flower in my door yard.
You, chrysalis in winding sheet,
Are butterfly all dainty sweet,
All life is warmed by
Spring's sweet breath,
And Christ our Lord has conquered death.

— Agnes W. Storer

Little children are puzzled by long words like "Resurrection" and "Immortality". But they can watch with wonder and delight the sprouting of a seed; the butterfly coming out of his cocoon.

Parents know that some time during their childhood, their son or daughter will be confronted by the death of a loved older relative or some one he knows. Easter can help prepare a child for this difficult experience.

Any thoughtful father or mother finds it hard to explain the mystery of the passing of an individual from this world to the next. But it is the wise parent, who at Easter time tries to put into simple words the Christian's faith in immortality.

To the early Christians the egg was symbolic of life after death. They rejoiced in the Resurrection.

For centuries peoples of many lands — Egyptians, Romans, Persians, Greeks have practised the art of coloring designs on eggs. Some of these patterns were very ornate. This year many New Canadians will recall childhood scenes in far away countries as they color the traditional designs of their race on Easter eggs.

Boys and girls of junior age love handcraft. Do let them either blow eggs or hard boil them and color them. The sets of vegetable dyes which may be purchased at a grocery store for icings, etc., are useful.

Junior can use his paint box or set of poster paints. Special packages of dyes for Easter eggs have detailed directions. Spread out newspapers on the kitchen table and floor, and keep an eye on the dyeing process, so you can come to the rescue if needed.

New clothes as an Easter custom go back to the reign of Emperor Constantine in Rome. He arranged Easter religious processions and decreed that everyone should join in, dressed in new garments.

With the high cost of living, new clothes for Easter are a bit of a problem in a home with several children. This is a good time to point out at a family council that the money for clothes in the family budget must stretch to meet the needs of all members of the family. Parents as well as children must have their wardrobes replenished from time to time.

Jokes are made about a child's "Sunday best". But this custom is part of making Sunday a special day, set apart from week-days. It does children, as well as adults, good to dress up to attend church.

"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart," the Bible says. Both are important in a child's anticipation of attendance at morning worship with his parents as a happy, satisfying experience.

Easter is one time when all thoughtful people are grateful for the witness of the church to things spiritual in a materialistic world. It lies with parents to see to it that it is a festival with a real meaning for their children.

Christians rejoice, not only at the return of Spring, but at the belief in life after death. Even as Christ rose again from the dead on that first Easter morning, we know that we too and those we love, will live on after this life is over.

"CHOCOLATE WALNUT SWEET BREAD"

Bread baking - its symbolic aroma

Even a few decades ago, many people regarded bread as the mysterious symbol of life. The mystery has since been dispelled, thanks to simpler steps in baking yeast breads, and a better knowledge of the ingredients. But many of us may still agree in some ways with our forebears, for the wonderful smell of bread baking in the kitchen will always be a symbol of warmth, affection and home.

Today's recipe is a little unusual, yet quite easy to follow, for it combines chocolate flavoring in yeast bread, along with chopped walnuts.

Chocolate Walnut Sweet Bread is almost cake-like in tenderness. The crusts are thin and soft, and the loaves are topped with a simple Confectioners' Icing. Thinly sliced and spread with butter or margarine, this bread makes a treat for tea time, while novel dainty sandwich slices can be spread with cream cheese and chopped candied ginger or jelly.

Since it is made with milk, you'll notice it is a little richer in flavor, has a more tender crust and keeps fresh for longer than a bread made with water, such as French Bread.

Chocolate Walnut Sweet Bread

(Yield — 2 loaves)

¾ Cup milk, ¾ cup granulated sugar, ½ cup cocoa, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ½ cup butter or margarine, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons sugar, 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast, 2 well-beaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 4 cups (about) presifted all-purpose flour, ¾ cup coarsely-chopped walnuts.

Scald milk. Combine the ¾ cup sugar and cocoa; add to scalded milk along with salt, baking soda and butter or margarine. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into a large bowl; stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle with yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, well-beaten eggs, vanilla and 2 cups of the flour; beat until smooth and elastic. Mix in walnuts. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a soft dough — about 2 cups more. Turn out on floured board or canvas and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Grease top. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until almost doubled in bulk — about 1½ hours.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or canvas and knead until smooth. Divide dough into 2 equal portions. Shape each portion into a loaf. Place in two greased loaf pans (4½x 8½ inches top inside measure). Grease tops. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk — about 1 hour. Bake in a moderately hot oven (375 deg. F.) 30 to 35 minutes. Spread warm bread with following Confectioners' Frosting and sprinkle with chopped walnuts.

Confectioners' Icing

1 Cup sifted icing sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla, milk.

Combine icing sugar, vanilla and sufficient milk to make a stiff icing.

The First Easter

In that far-off eastern garden
There was solemn silence there,
And the perfume of the flowers
Rose like incense on the air.

And little birds expectant
Sat tense on leafing boughs,
On that first, glad Easter morning
When Our Saviour, Christ, arose.

There, glorious guardian angels
Their watchful vigil kept,
As o'er the dim old landscape
The dawn of morning crept.

The bees had ceased their humming,
All of Nature held its breath —
Our Lord was awake and coming
From out the jaws of Death.

As that silent, white-clad figure
Emerged from out the tomb,
His face wore a smile so tender
That the lillies burst into bloom

And the birds, forgetting silence,
Poured anthems, note by note,
In peans of adoration
From each tiny, joy-filled throat.

With arms outstretched in blessing
He stood a moment, there.
His eyes the world caressing,
His heart a silent prayer.

'Twas wafted up to Heaven
To the Great White Throne above,
This plea — that all His children
Might know that God is love.

The traditional springtime scene in Ontario and Quebec of tapping maple trees and collecting the sap by horse-drawn sleigh is little more than a memory.

But modern tapping, packaging and processing methods now make maple products available on the grocer's shelf all year round.

The consumer section of the federal department of agriculture says it is important to read the label carefully when buying a maple product. "There are many syrups and spreads on the market that are artificially flavored."

Canadian labelling regulations forbid the use of the word "maple" in the description of a product which is not a pure maple product.

The product label must also show the net weight of the contents, the name and address of the manufacturer, his license if he is operating interprovincially and the grade if the product is sold by grade.

Syrup Grades

The established grades for maple syrup range from Canada fancy, which is a very light amber color with a mild characteristic flavor, through Canada light and Canada medium to Canada dark, which is the strongest flavored.

The sale of maple products by grade is not compulsory in Canada except within the Province of Quebec. Quebec regulations have and additional grade, Canada amber, between medium and dark.

Most of us are familiar with pure maple syrup for pancakes and waffles. Maple butter is delicious as a spread, filling, frosting or a sauce, and maple sugar, which comes in block form or is granulated like brown sugar, can be used as a sweetener, topping or filling.

FOR TALL GIRLS. Capes are ideal for tall girls who want to cut their height. Fashionable example is this linen-type dress with reversible cape lined in gingham.

"You were there"

Contributed — by the Rev. J. Armour

The words of the sacred song are familiar, "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?" It was in a far-off corner of the world, and almost 2,000 years ago. How could you be there? Of course you weren't. How senseless a question! The thing is physically, geographically and chronologically impossible. . . Is this your first reaction?

Well, think again. If you were not there, other people were, and many of them were just like you. The emotions of the people who gathered around Calvary are not too difficult to pinpoint. Hatred was there, a sullen undercurrent of unspoken resentment against the One whose life and teaching had upset many cherished notions and preconceived opinions. Cowardice was there, even in the band of disciples, and moral weakness, as exemplified in Pilate, who was willing to mutilate his conscience to maintain the friendship of men in high places. There were envy and malice and self-centredness and fear. These things and others, fanned to fever pitch, and using human hearts and hands as their agents, were responsible, from the human standpoint, for the death of the Son of God.

But the ancient world has no monopoly on these emotions. They are not the sins of yesterday. They are the sins of today. It may be that in our time they would assume more refined expressions than in those "crude and cruel days, when human flesh was cheap", but it still remains true that the emotions which rule your life today, are those of the men who nailed Christ's hands and feet to the Cross, and thrust the spear into His side. Yes, you were there, and you ought to be ashamed of it. You were there when they crucified the Lord.

You were there; and when you think again, surely you should be grateful that you were. For Calvary was not just something men were doing to Christ; it was something God was doing in Christ for men — God's love giving His only begotten Son, that all who believe in Him might have eternal life, instead of perishing. He died for the world's sin. He died for the sins of individuals. He died for you. Whoever you are, your name was on the Cross of Jesus. You were represented there. He loved you, and gave Himself for you. . . You were there when all this happened, and you should be grateful.

And there is this to be added, that since you were there on Good Friday, you were also there on Easter morning, when the grave was empty, and the powers of darkness defeated, and Christ risen victoriously and forever! He is become the first-fruits of them that sleep. . . In this is your eternal blessedness and your immortal hope.

May, then, the return of this Holy Season bring to you again this twofold message — Christ crucified for you, the assurance of your salvation; and Christ living in you, the hope of glory.

Sugar beet proves worth of research

A visitor to one of the federal agricultural Research Stations may walk around the buildings and fields and look at the livestock, then pose the question: Does this place pay its way?

It's a fair question, acknowledged Herbert Chester, the associate director of the Lethbridge research station, and he adds: The answer is "Yes."

Of course it doesn't pay its way in the sense of a private business making a profit in dollars which can be estimated at regular intervals. But it does help others to make dollar profits. In fact the success of a research station is based on the information it can produce contributing to the success of those working in agriculture, directly and indirectly.

Take sugar beets for example, a main cash crop in Lethbridge area.

The research station with which Mr. Chester is associated, researches problems on crop production on dry land, irrigation land, and range land.

The work with sugar beets illustrates how research helped develop a profitable operation.

The first work with sugar beets was reported in 1908. It was found that a variety seeded in early May yielded 14 tons per acre with 16 per cent sugar. In the following 16 years research on cultural methods including use of barnyard manure, and irrigation, clearly indicated that the crop could be grown profitably in Southern Alberta. The accumulated information led Canadian Sugar Factories to build the first successful sugar beet factory in 1925.

In the meantime research continued and expanded. The crop was grown on field scale in a station rotation for 30 years using good practices available to all farmers. Average production gradually went up to 23.3 tons for the last six years. Another experiment on the value of barnyard manure and commercial fertilizer, resulted in an average yield of 21 tons of beets per acre over 33 years.

Although many farmers have had yields as high as those on the Station, the southern Alberta average for the last 30 years was 12.3 tons per acre compared with the Station's 19.2 tons.

The southern Alberta average improved to 13.7 tons for the last six years.

It is obvious, said Mr. Chester, that research information available to growers has not been fully utilized although recent results were encouraging.

He added that agriculture in all its phases could use new information, especially to combat current high costs of operation. In that way the Research Station itself could show a "profit".

Your RED CROSS serves for YOU!

Shrub suited to acid soil

Acid soil, usually the bogey of most plants, is just what the doctor ordered when it comes to growing a healthy bed of rhododenrons.

Other ingredients in the prescription for a healthy bed of the flowers: partial shade, fertilizer, mulch and — where strong winds prevail — a sheltered spot.

Rhododenrons prefer a moist, well-drained acid soil with a fairly high content of organic matter, says G. S. Swain, of Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Kentville, Nova Scotia.

The planting site should be shaded during the hottest part of the day, preferably by large, pine or oak trees which do not cast a dense shade and, generally being deep-rooted, do not compete with the shallow-rooted rhododendrons for moisture and food.

In areas where the prevailing winds are strong, the planting site should be protected. This can be achieved with a plant screen or by locating the bed near a building. The shelter provides other benefits by helping to maintain atmospheric humidity about the plants and by moderating summer and winter temperatures.

A mulch is essential in establishing and maintaining the ornamental, and a satisfactory one is provided by three inches of pine needles, oak leaves or wood chips. It should be renewed every two or three years.

Avoid mulches that dry out quickly or compact easily, Swain warns. They are not only unsightly but usually injurious to the plants.

Newly bedded rhododendrons do better when protected during their first winter. This can be done by making a tepee-like shelter of small spruce trees or branches, with the pointed ends pushed into the ground and the tips lashed together. The "tepees" should be used from shortly before freeze-up to after the spring thaw.

Annual application of a small amount of fertilizer will help keep the plants healthy, the researcher points out.

Although special rhododendron fertilizers are manufactured, many home gardeners may find them difficult to obtain.

As a reliable substitute, Swain suggests using a mixture containing one part by volume of potassium nitrate to two parts of superphosphate. One cupful of the mixture is sufficient for a plant three feet tall.

At Kentville, all rhododendrons receive an annual application of this mixture on top of the mulch. The application is made in early spring before growth starts.

Community pastures

Community pastures are large tracts of land that was unproductive or perhaps sub-marginal and redesigned for joint use by farmers. Contrary to some beliefs, these community pastures even though used jointly by farmers will not be accessible by any farmer without his first meeting certain conditions. In provinces that now have community pastures, animals must be dehorned, injected or inoculated against certain diseases, sprayed. As all animals will be remaining together, they will also have to be marked. In other words, a program will be carried out the same as a farmer would do on his own farm under ideal conditions.

Most of these pastures have a manager, who does much of the work but also works with the participating farmers as a community, as the situation demands.

In the Province of Quebec many areas are suited to community pastures. This is particularly so in areas such as the Lower St. Lawrence Valley, Pontiac County, where markets for milk are quite distant. These areas will be good for beef and sheep production.

Animal Care

AWAY FROM THE LITTER

Many parents like to take their children along and choose their future pet from among a litter of puppies.

If you are buying from a reputable breeder he will advise you, although remember that even an expert is never quite sure how a puppy will grow up, physically or temperamentally.

When you see all the puppies together you can usually pick out the sturdy, independent pup from the nervous, undersized "runt". Points you can also watch for are: clear eyes, cool nose and good limbs — and a friendly disposition.

Puppies are weaned at about eight weeks old and they should not be taken to a new home until a month later, when they are about three months old.

At this age, soon after you have had him, it is wise to consult your veterinary surgeon on the question of inoculation against distemper and the so-called hard-pad disease.

Of course, if you obtain an older dog either from friends or a Society such as the CSPCA, you will not have the problem of housetraining.

Colorful gardens possible up North

Northern Canada gardens can be colorful and scented when the snows have gone.

Sweet Alyssum, Baby's Breath, Night Scented Stock, Pot Marigold, Mexican Marigold and Pansies bloom well through the summer.

W. A. Russell, superintendent of the federal experimental farm at Fort Simpson, North West Territories, says the seeds should be planted indoors about mid-April and transplanted outdoors in mid-June for Inuvik gardens.

At Fort Simpson most of these flowers will bloom from seed sown outdoors in the last week of May. Also Clarkia, French marigolds, petunias, snapdragons and sweet peas do well there.

Among perennials which do well are: delphiniums and grass pink at Aklavik; Scarlet Lynchnis and Columbines up to Fort Good Hope; and Bleeding Heart, Peonies and Achillia at Fort Simpson.

Observations

This bit of advice from an old clipping is as much needed as it ever was (if not more so); it reads this way —

"If someone in a motor car offers you a ride,
Scream loudly as you run away,
but do not get inside."

Another interesting item from "World Echoes" says: "According to the zodiacal calendar of the Far East, we have entered upon the year of the hare. The hare is a symbol of prosperity which should make optimists happy, while sceptics can compare it with other years of the hare, which included 1927, 1939 and 1951. This item was from Tribune Lausanne.

As there is so much in the press about Good Will, it is interesting to note that Good Will Day is May 18. On the first annual Good Will Day, a radio message was sent by the children of Wales in 1922 after the First World War, and has been broadcast every year since. This May date also commemorates the opening of the first International Peace Conference at the Hague in 1899. May we also remember too this Good Will date.

Puzzled personalities

These three slightly perplexed people are Alan Millar, Margaret Morris and Allan Mannings, permanent panelists on CBC-TV's Sunday evening series, Flashback. The cause of their perplexity? No doubt a particularly puzzling problem posed by panel moderator Paul Soles, the man who asks them to identify once-famous people or objects, on this weekly television program.

The Canadian Voting Record

By NANCY CLEAVER ("Parents Only")

Are you proud of the percentage of Canadian citizens who voted? Do you wonder about the reaction of the thousands of Canadian boys and girls who realized that their mother or dad did not go to the polls? Their parents' example said quite plainly that they did not appreciate the franchise. Unless ill, their neglect of this duty showed that they were indifferent to their country's future or they have lost faith in democracy.

On Election Day, it is of first importance that every citizen, after careful thought, should mark his or her ballot.

Canada's voting record does not compare favorably with a sister Commonwealth country, Australia. In the Canadian 1958 election 79.5 per cent of the electorate marked ballots, and in 1962 this number decreased to 78.5 per cent. The average number of voters in Australia's federal election is around 95 per cent.

What accounts for the difference? One of the main reasons is that in Australia, after an experiment begun in the state of Queensland in 1915 of fining citizens who failed to vote and had no good reason for their neglect, the Australian national government as well as the other states there, followed this system.

Compulsory voting on a national scale was instituted in Australia in 1925. In the election before this only 57.95 per cent voters marked their ballots. Today there is never any question Down Under whether it is a good idea to fine careless citizens who do not exercise the franchise when they can. The rule is not absolutely inflexible. Allowance is made for sickness and genuine conscientious objectors.

The voter's name is marked off the role when he gets his ballot. After the election, those whose names are not marked off, receive a notice of a fine amounting to around two pounds. If they desire, they can appeal this decision in a court where cases are reviewed, but very few decisions are reversed.

It is rather interesting to know that it was the Labor Party which campaigned for this fining-of-non-voters plan. Labor had much less to spend on transportation and other campaign expenses and felt they were at an unfair disadvantage on Election Day. Now they, and the other parties, all save on this item. This scheme at least deserves consideration in Canada. Why not debate its merits in your family?

Diary of a Vagabond

BY DOROTHY BARKER

DR. SIGMUND SAMUEL'S GENEROSITY

Not all of our Canadian ancestors pioneered in log cabins furnished in crude pine stained with buttermilk paint, and paint made from lamp black. This was obvious when Clyde Batten, information officer of the Royal Ontario Museum, arranged an afternoon for the wives of Ontario Weekly Newspapers Association members to view the outstanding Sigmund Canadiana Gallery during the recent convention of editors in Toronto.

This gallery is a permanent monument to a man whose "abiding passion for the arts and crafts of Canada was matched by his zeal for their preservation". Because of his generous gifts to the museum, including funds for the building and the acquisition of many of its treasures, priceless additions are being discovered, while others have been loaned to enhance the collection.

I was lucky enough to be included among those who attended and were greeted by Mrs. Helen Ignatieff, acting for the curator, Scott Symons. Having been an enthusiastic collector of Canadiana in several forms, I was particularly impressed with the small, but authentic, collection of early Canadian silver and glass. Mrs. Ignatieff pointed out the exquisite workmanship in several Quebec pieces of furniture with their 18th and 19th century influence, especially that of Louis XIII. Many of the English-Canadian articles were of tiger maple, curly maple or cherry.

A lover of old pine and one who has put much elbow grease and effort into the "restoration" of several pieces discovered at farm auctions, I realized I could have been guilty of destroying the worth of the beautiful old pine corner cupboard on exhibit had I discovered it before the Museum did. It looks imposing and quite natural in its several coats of emerald green paint with its shelves and interior a shocking pink reputedly fashionable for china cupboards, dating as far back as 1800.

In the first flush of my collecting fever I once found a lovely old commode. When I scraped off a tiny bit of the several coats of dark brown varnish I realized my $2.50 purchase was old pine. I was elated but the family thought the cupboard was overpowering for our small home so I sold it to friends after I had put hours into scraping its surface. They finished the job, and some months later learned the piece was authentic early French Canadian which, had it been left in its original coat of cracked and weathered varnish, would have been worth at least $600 to any museum. In its present beeswax finish, it is still one of the loveliest pieces of early Canadian furniture I have ever seen but of no value to a museum, though my friend has been offered several hundreds of dollars for it on numerous occasions.

While Mrs. Ignatieff conducted the group from one exhibit to another we caught her enthusiasm for this interesting collection. Even when we approached the truly ugly bedroom suite ca. 1865 made in Lucknow, Ontario, by M. Davidson for a Robert Graham and, according to the handsome catalogue, ordered for the visit of Sir John A. MacDonald who was campaigning in favor of Confederation, her blue eyes twinkled as she said, "It won first prize in the regional Fall Fair at that time". In comparison, the lovely old pine hutch nearby restored my faith in Canadian design.

I Sold an Heirloom

Somewhere in Canada there is a pearl grey bedroom suite which was made for the room in Calgary to be occupied by the Prince of Wales on his historic visit to this country following the First World War.

Complete with its three plume decorations, we bought it, after his visit, and carted it from one end of Canada to the other on our many moves until, in a moment of despair a sad association led me to dispose of it at auction. Some day, when it is old enough, it too may end up in the Sigmund Samuel Canadian gallery.

BIRDS, CHIPMUNKS AND ANTS

A few years ago at my Lost River camp, robins built a nest in my wooden eaves-trough. I knew it would be washed away in the first heavy rain, so I made a short imitation trough about a foot long and fastened it to the wall under the eaves. Then I carefully lifted the nest into the short trough, and hoped for the best. The robins never came back. If I had left it where it was, the eggs or young robins would have been lost anyway in the first deluge. Did I do right or wrong? Perhaps some ornithologist will advise me.

One of the most amusing things I have ever seen a chipmunk do is as follows: I had thrown out the crust of a stale loaf of brown bread into the garbage tin. This was the end crust, and it had a hole in the center like a doughnut. A chipmunk discovered it and removed it from the tin. Then he took it by the edge and tried to run off with it, but he tripped and the crust draped itself over the chippy's head. It fitted nicely around his neck like a collar and the poor animal went nearly frantic trying to extricate himself — finally succeeding. Grasping it again by one edge, he tried again and once more tripped and turned a somersault. But he was no quitter. He tried a third time and tripped again, but this time the crust broke in half and he trotted off with one half and disappeared, later returning for the second half.

One night, for a midnight snack, I decided to finish what was left in a small jar of liquid honey. I didn't bother to wash up the dishes but left them and the empty jar till morning. Next day there were about 500 small brown ants all over the table, concentrating on the sticky jar and the plate that I had used for honey. I killed some, and the rest disappeared.

Some time later I finished another lot of honey, but this time it was the solid kind in a paper container. I wasn't going to leave it around after the last experience, but carried it some distance off to a sandy spot where I knew ants congregate. Did they go near it? Not a bit of it! What was left in the container melted later in the hot sun and a grasshopper got stuck in it, but not a single ant! Now, why should they go for the liquid honey, coming in from outside in a very short time, and yet ignore the solid honey?

In studying Nature, I know all the questions but very few of the answers.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

What Happened to Canada's First Moravian Mission?

Nobody knows. In May 1752 the Moravian Brothers, a Protestant church founded in the 15th Century, sent four missionaries from London, England, to Labrador, to start mission work among the Eskimo. They went ashore in Labrador — and were never heard of again.

How Long was Howie Morenz in Big-League Hockey?

Fourteen years — from 1923 to 1936. This star of the Montreal Canadiens won the Hart Trophy, as the National Hockey League's most valuable player, three times. In his 14 seasons in the League he scored a total of 270 goals. His daughter married Bernard "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion.

To stage blitz appeal Next Monday eve in annual Cancer Crusade

The Canadian Cancer Society launched its 1963 Crusade in the County of Argenteuil on Monday last, under the co-chairmanship of J. K. (Jim) Campbell and J. Daniel Carrière.

More than 400 volunteers here will join forces with some 200,000 similar volunteers throughout the nation, in the annual April Cancer Society fund-raising appeal.

Mr. Carrière said the drive has two objectives — "to save lives now, and to save lives in the future", and the chairmen jointly urged all residents of the County "to take an active part in achieving these objectives."

The immediate objective of the Crusade, the chairmen explained, is "to save half of those who develop cancer each year. We know this can be done if we are able to persuade people to get to their doctors in time for prompt treatment. But now only one out of three patients are being saved, because of delay in diagnosis."

The long-range objective of this campaign — is to supply the funds needed to save the other half of the people who develop cancer each year. Achievement of this objective rests on more research, for which more funds are urgently needed.

Mr. Campbell advises that on Monday evening, April 22, the annual Cancer Blitz Campaign will take place in Lachute, and that throughout the next two weeks volunteers will be calling throughout Argenteuil County. He expresses the hope of both himself and Mr. Carrière, that all members of the community will open their doors and their hearts when the volunteer canvasser calls. "In this way we can all help to continue the fight against this most dreaded disease."

Lachute four win Hawkesbury spring 'spiel

A Lachute team took the honors in the Hawkesbury Spring Bonspiel, winning the finals last Saturday against a Cornwall rink. The victors, seen above with the Calvert trophy, are Syd Drew (skip), Art Lobel, Al Gillis and Carl Rodger, who defeated Ken MacLennon's Cornwall foursome 8-6. Winners of the consolation event and the Molson trophy were Paul Roy's (Alexandria) rink, who defeated Jack Campbell (Club de Granite, Montebello).

Alderman gives reasons for resignation

Mr. Réal Urbain, who tendered his resignation from Town Council recently, wishes to correct an impression that he did so for reasons of health. Following is the translation of a letter he has submitted for publication in the two local newspapers :

Lachute, April 5, 1963

I handed in my resignation as councillor for various reasons — not on account of my health, as reported in two issues of La Presse (March 21 and April 2).

I did not accept the dictum imposed on the Council, that matters of administration should be discussed only in caucus. I feel it is undemocratic to restrict discussion in this way.

Moreover, I was sure, and am still convinced, that this year we could reduce the municipal tax rate; and also give more in grants to recreational enterprises, in which many citizens give voluntary effort for our young people.

In support of this stand, I refer you to the 1962 financial statement, which showed surpluses greater than those appearing in the news reports, and also indicated that Town Council could justifiably have reduced the tax rate with no detriment to good administration.

They even went so far as to budget for a deficit in the current year. After having prepared the estimates, there are always ways of boosting certain expense items and underrating certain revenue sources.

I take this occasion to urge all taxpayers to join a group now being organized — The Taxpayers' League of Lachute — whose first aim will be to prevent, as far as possible, the candidature of unqualified and incompetent aspirants for seats on our Council.

— Real Urbain, ex-alderman

Big haul in furniture store robbery at G'vl

Over $2,500 worth of merchandise was reported stolen over the Easter week-end at the establishment of Gaetan Desforges, Grenville merchant, who returned to his store Tuesday morning to find just about everything of value missing.

According to Q.P.P. Officer Sam Kille, who investigated the robbery, entry to the building was made by breaking in a rear door. The thieves then made their way to the basement, opened the garage doors and backed their truck into the basement, where they loaded the merchandise.

Reported stolen were several television sets, a stereo set, other electrical appliances and some office equipment, including an adding machine. The establishment is located near the Perley Bridge, and the merchandise stolen is a relatively new line being carried by Mr. Desforges. Members of the Q.P.P. robbery detail from Montreal were called to the scene to continue the investigation.

Servicemen's vote increases majority for Vincent Drouin

Returns from the overseas and servicemen's vote indicated a 106-majority in favor of Vincent Drouin, re-elected Liberal deputy, over his nearest opponent, Roger Regimbal, Prog.-Cons. . . In the cross-country count, the absentee military vote went 70.5% Liberal; the returns for this constituency were therefore consistent with the trend.

The military vote for Agenteuil-Deux Montagnes, according to Dr. J.-P. Dorion, district returning officer, was as follows :

Vincent Drouin (Lib.)	121
Maurice Gougeon (S.C.)	4
Maurice Hébert (N.D.P.)	2
Roger Regimbal (P.C.)	15

The official count for this riding was conducted by the election officer yesterday, and these are the final and authentic figures :

Vincent Drouin	12,324
Maurice Gougeon	5,114
Maurice Hébert	1,179
Rogêr Regimbal	10,106

It is therefore seen that Mr. Drouin's total majority over Roger Regimbal is 2,218. This represents almost a two-fold increase over his 1,172 majority against Notary J. O. Latour, ex-M.P., in the June 1962 election.

Cross-Country Picture

In the overall picture — with the fury of the election fray subsided — one notes the following standing for the next federal parliament :

Liberal	130 seats
Prog.-Cons.	94 seats
Social Credit	24 seats
New Democrat	17 seats
Total	265 seats

The Liberals therefore lack at least three seats to ensure a majority over all other parties. However (and this is the subject of another heated altercation, now brewing among the Social Crediters) a number of deputies in the lesser parties have signified a willingness to side with the party in power.

(The Speaker of the Commons is a member of the party in power. Since he has no right of vote, this decreases the government's voting strength by one.)

M.P.'s Political Record

Vincent Drouin, M.P.-elect, is a lawyer practising at St. Eustache. He was born March 29, 1932, at St. Benoit, and has been living in St. Eustache since July 1961. He has always been active in Liberal party activities. He entered the federal contest in June 1962, and was elected for the two-county constituency. His participation in debates of the past session has been chiefly in questions of agriculture. He has been mentioned as a prospect for cabinet material in this department of administration.

Linton Armstrong new vice-pres. of curling Branch

At a meeting of District 2 of the Canadian Branch of the Royal Caledonia Curling Club, held recently in Ottawa, Linton W. Armstrong of Lachute was appointed vice-president of the Branch. W. M. Raeside, of Cornwall, is president-elect; and Arnie Butterworth, a familiar figure in Ontario bonspiels and as radio commentator, was the unanimous choice as convener for the Ottawa district.

Fatality on Rte. 8

Montreal — Gérard Riché, 18, of St. André Avelin, Que., died in Ottawa General Hospital 10 hours after his car left Highway No. 8 and rolled 30 feet down a steep embankment, early last Sunday, two miles west of Papineauville.

Business man associated here

Mr. R. P. (Dick) Gledhill, whose funeral was held Tuesday in Verdun, Que., was the proprietor of a paper business of the same name in Montreal. He had been connected with the sales department of J. C. Wilson Paper Company for 35 years, before establishing his own business in the city.

The late Mr. Gledhill had a residence at Lake Sir John, and was a member of the Lachute Shriners Club. Through these associations he was known to a number of acquaintances in these parts.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

A door-to-door collection for the Quebec Polio Foundation's "March of Dimes", sponsored here by the Legion, was held in Lachute on Monday evening. A number of stores and business establishments have been co-operating this year with display coin-cards, in a more determined canvass by Legion Branch 70.

Three Lachute residents — Paul-Emile Barbeau, the Rev. Yvon Mailloux and Horace Lamarche — were judges for the Laurentian Junior Chamber of Commerce public speaking contest, held recently, in which André Desrosiers, of Joliette, was the winner. Only entrant from these parts was Paul-Emile Gélinas of Brownsburg. . . The Laurentian section of the Junior Chamber of Commerce includes Lachute, Joliette, St. Jerome and Berthierville.

Spring-like weather lured hundreds to their summer residences last week-end, the first holiday break in the year. Most of those with cottages in the higher altitudes encountered snow off the highway and the beaten track, while lakes in the Laurentians showed little sign of thawing. . . The Lachute traffic lanes were congested with motorists on Friday and Saturday.

While the spirit of Easter is still with us — if you have not yet returned your "pink envelope" in the Easter Seals campaign, please do it now. This will enable the Lions Club committee, under Col. Ernest Emmett as chairman, to conclude the campaign and assign the proceeds to the Crippled Children's fund. The total collection is divided between headquarters in Montreal and the fund here in Lachute (under Lions Club administration) for the aid of district cases.

Echo of elections — Brownsburg stresses by-law against posting

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — As is the case with many homeowners during early spring, Council seemed to be confined to routine matters at its regular April session, while chafing at the bit to get on with plans for summer !

After approving payment of monthly vouchers amounting to $4464.65, Council passed a resolution to adopt daylight saving time as of midnight April 27.

A citizen living in the Jackman Construction area appeared before Council to ask for opinions on a problem which has apparently existed for some time in the development, i.e. — culverts badly positioned in regard to elevation. Mayor Donaldson offered the only opinion he could under the circumstances (and the same one offered so often in the past in Brownsburg) — the street is still owned by an individual, therefore the town has no jurisdiction in such matters . . . Perhaps some time in the future, town authorities and the individuals owning land upon which town sewerage systems are placed, will arrive at a firm mutual agreement and let it be known. In this way, home buyers will not find themselves in the middle of controversies.

As if in preparation for the next election, whether it be federal or provincial, Council expressed a desire to publish an outline of By-law 110, which governs the mounting of posters and banners on town property. According to the by-law, which was passed as a direct result of a request from the owners of the power line poles, it is forbidden :

(1) To distribute pamphlets, circulars or any printed matter on the streets, except by leaving same at private homes.

(2) To erect or exhibit any posters, sign boards or any other posting of any kind, anywhere in the limits of the village.

Persons violating the law shall be liable to a fine of $20 and costs, or to imprisonment for one month.

What brought the subject up ? . . . A number of people wondered if a "blue" ski resort sign was in the same league as a "red" election banner.

Police Report

Police Chief Tom Williams reported a total of 20 speeding fines assessed during the month, eight tickets issued for illegal parking, and one for crossing the double line. Chief Williams, feeling that two-way radio equipment would be an asset to the police department, has been pushing the idea for some months. The problem — who answers the telephone and operates the main station radio equipment after 5 p.m., when the town offices close ? One answer was provided when it was learned that equipment could be rented and serviced, and operated in conjunction with the Lachute Police Department, at a cost of $75 per month. . . Council will take a while to think this one over.

Ayersville under tutelage of Que. Municipal Comm.

Found in default of its obligations to the Bank of Montreal, the municipality of the Village of Ayersville has been placed officially under tutelage of the Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs.

The case was heard in Superior Court at St. Jerome on Tuesday morning by Justice Lafleur, who acceded to the municipality's request to be taken under financial tutelage.

The municipality's defaulting on obligations to the bank was the basis on which the petition was made. In 1955 Ayersville borrowed from the bank's local branch a sum of $44,000 which came due for redemption in 1960. At this date the corporation had repaid only $22,000 of the total debt.

The Quebec Municipal Commission was represented legally by Roger Lagarde, QC, and by its officers, Messrs. Faucher and Desjardins; the latter will most probably be appointed "administrator" of Ayersville on this new basis.

The spokesmen for the Council were Councillor Raymond Champagne, pro-mayor, Councillor Gaston Plamondon, and Jacques Poitras, secretary. Despite a notice to appear sent by the secretary on instruction of the Commission's legal counsel, Mayor Gaetan Paquette failed to attend the hearing.

In taking the municipality under tutelage, the Quebec Municipal Commission fulfills a request from the Council, which is anxious to have authoritative guidance for a period of time to adjust certain difficulties, and bring to light certain procedures attributed to the Paquette administration over the past years.

Grass fires

Members of the Lachute Fire Brigade have been summoned to several grass fires during the past several days, none of which has been serious. All were quickly extinguished.

Lions submit proposal for municipal arena project

The Lions Club, faced with a necessity to remove its skating rink elsewhere (the present site having been kindly loaned without rental by Jas. and Colin McOuat, to whom the club is sincerely grateful) — a committee has been closely studying the prospects and possibilities of the future.

The value of this skating rink as a community asset has been well proven over the years of its operation. It is now felt, however, there is need for expansion and greater facilities; it becomes evident, in fact, that the community skating rink is a project calling for more general participation than the resources of a service club — it should be, as its name implies, a true community project, embodied in a civic centre with wider possibilities of development.

Encouraged by the same line of thought among certain town councillors, the Lions Club committee drafted a worthwhile proposition (which was duly approved by the club at a general meeting) to be submitted to the authorities. The plan offers substantial help from the club, both in finance and equipment, if the Town will undertake to provide a covered arena.

At its meeting last evening, Tuesday, Lions' representative Fred Jeffery formally handed to Alderman Linton Armstrong a document outlining the club's proposals. Next step will be a consideration of these plans by Council and by the newly-formed town Recreation Committee. Ald. Armstrong is key member of this group, together with representatives of various clubs and organizations in Lachute.

Details of the proposition will be published after its submission and study by the authorities.

Girl cyclist injured by car

Christien Servant, 10-year-old Whisseltown girl, was treated at the Providence Hospital and later transferred to St. Jerome, following an accident on Route 8 a short distance from her home.

According to Provincial Police Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, the girl was riding her bicycle along the highway when she swerved in front of a car owned and driven by Ernest Cardinal, of St. Benoit. Mr. Cardinal, travelling in the same direction as the bicycle, stopped within several feet after the accident. The girl was treated for a broken leg. The mishap occurred on Thursday afternoon of last week.

By BOB ATCHISON

Taking a look at some of the lakes this past week, makes it certain there will be no trout fishing there for some time. The streams are all very much open, and they are not too high, as might have been expected. I am going to be hitting them a good bit in the next little while, even though they may not be productive. The North River should be giving up good perch very soon. As for Lake Filion, ice is still hiding the water, so it will take lots of sun to open this. Around St. Andrews the perch and catfish have been in a very receptive mood and, judging by the number of fishermen around, just the enticement of the warm outdoors is enough. The North River could also produce some good pike, and a lot sooner than we think. With no flooding of the river as in former years, there is excellent feeding and these monsters will be on the prowl. (More on the flooding later though.)

I noticed a number of boys out after crows last week-end. The score had not been too good, but they had high hopes of ridding the countryside of some of these pests. Let's hope they managed to get a few. A few more hawks can be seen aloft, besides the ones that stayed with us this past winter. . . On the subject of birds, a good number of geese were seen passing over town one night last week, heading north. I would imagine these will be back to the last stretch of open water they passed over. When the northern lakes will open, only they can tell. A number of ducks have been scooting along on the river too; it is great to see them once more, although these were probably swimming around all winter on the Ottawa River. Incidentally, these were Mallards.

Some of our roads are in a sorry mess with garbage, thanks to the litter hounds. If any of you have junk to throw out, please don't ruin our outdoors. Another sore point is the St. Andrews road; maybe it will be cleaned up before too long.

In fishing supplies, a couple of very good fly lines have come out; not too expensive, they should be very good floaters when correctly dressed. I know most people will not take the time to do this, expecting their lines to remain floatable all day; then they complain because they do not. Dressing a line is very simple, and this should be done once in a while, if you are just an on-again-off-again fisherman. Not only does it help the line slide and float better, it also keeps it clean, thus making it less liable to wear and crack. I know whenever I fish streams or water that is dirty with sand and sediment, my line is dressed even before I get home. This may sound silly, but sand will wear anything, and only helps the line to split and crack, ending up as a piece of useless cord. There are some very good line dressings on the market, and inexpensive. Stretch your lines tight between two poles and wipe some of the dressing over with a clean cloth. Let this penetrate for a short time, then take another piece of cloth and wipe dry. If you wish you can then repeat the performance, making the lines just that much better to handle. When this is done, take another piece of cloth, clean and polish the line. The more you do this the better it will shoot or slide, also it will improve the floating qualities. If you have had a splice in the line for your leader, it will be well to cut this off and splice in a new bit for the leaders. Old ones aren't too much good, and besides, it is easier to do this at home than out in the stream.

Another important point I have forgotten to mention: On your spinning reels, most of you try and get a couple of years' wear out of the line. This is foolish; lines are so inexpensive today that it is not worth the risk of a lost fish or lure. There is no use in trying to save this line either, as it will have outlived its usefulness. Throw it away.

All your terminal tackle should be renewed also — that is, leaders, snaps, swivels, and split rings. All the wear of spinning is on these pieces of equipment, and even though they are supposed to be brass, they do rust and weaken in the continued water bath they get. I have been very surprised this past while at the numbers of fishermen who don't break at least a foot of line off after each use. You know this is a wise precaution, as, with continued use of a day's fishing, this part of your line becomes very weak. It stands to reason, the sudden whipping of the lure out into space puts terrific strain on that first stretch of line. Talking of this, and hearing complaints about poor monolines, impresses the fact that often it isn't the lines but the fishermen that are at fault.

A story told to me today makes me think of many things. To begin with, last week the North River here ran red as blood for a distance of about a quarter mile. Seeing this coloring in the water, my informant decided to investigate where it was coming from. It was traced right up to an industrial dam, and there it stopped. What this was, I wasn't told; it could have been dye. Where it would come from I have no idea either; but someone is very guilty. You know, last year the Water Pollution Board as much as stated, that everyone living on the banks of the river was guilty of some form of pollution or other. We probably were too, but it seems to me that industry can get away with anything they want, whereas the ordinary joker gets notice of a fine, unless — . Maybe it is about time one set of laws applied to all citizens.

As most of you know, we had no floods (up to the present writing, anyway). Looking the river over, I was struck at the difference in the dam. Two portions of it had been removed, allowing the water to run out much faster, and naturally lowering the level at the same time. Who was responsible for this I have not been able to find out — but from the number of us who are flooded out every year, we thank this gentleman for his foresight in having this done.

I have not had the opportunity of checking these stories, but I understand that some good catches of perch and doré are being taken at Carillon. A few small pike have also been caught, so maybe this summer the fishermen will be lucky. I do know that, just as soon as the river is fishable, I will be out after doré. Some of you may remember last year, great numbers of small ones were caught, and in most cases thrown back in the water. Having the winter in which to grow up, these should now make for good fishing.

Last week I was told of a lynx being seen, on the Dunany road from Lapisa. Seeing the car approach, it bounded from the road into the bush, and about 25 yards from the road, stopped to look over the car and its occupants — who thus got a good view of the animal. This just illustrates again, the lynx will not harm you in any way; being a member of the cat family, it is just naturally curious. Persons hanging up their firearms and starting to observe our wildlife, will get a real thrill out of anything like this. I know in my case, years have elapsed since I was gun happy; I'll admit it was a job to lay the guns aside, but being able to see animals roaming around without fear, has paid off in a better understanding of our wild creatures.

A letter was received yesterday asking some pertinent questions, and giving some answers too. Incidentally, the letter was signed, but there does not seem to be anyone of this name in Lachute or district. I would not be bothering about it, but one of the questions was appropriate . . . Why do I write so much about the government ? . . A short answer : They are doing a very poor job with our wildlife, that's why.

Campers are starting to get the itch — displaying interest in outfits. More and more people seem to be interested in this sport. I have numerous books on different types of terrain, giving information on why, when and how. Anyone wanting to look these over is welcome. As I've stated before, most dealers in this stuff do not know just what the equipment is for, and in many cases, give people misleading information. The result is that, within a year or so their outfits are up for sale. Consideration and much thought should be given to any purchases for outdoor living. In most cases, to get yourself a really good outfit costs a small ransom; however, there is a second for everything, and in many instances these are much better than the originals. . . Any help I can give, please do not hesitate to call — or write me a letter.

I've been harping on fishing and the coming season, but there's one thing I neglected to mention — your lines. It's not much use trying to fix over your old monofilament; cheaper to get a new one. Your fly lines, though, are another matter. If you hung them up on a wooden peg (as suggested last fall), there will not be too much trouble in getting them ready. Use a good line dressing, and you will be all set to go. Stretch your line between two long points, pull it tight, then polish the line with a dry cloth. Do this until the cloth slides along without snags. Then dress your line with the "goo", rubbing it in well with your hand. Use a soft cloth to finish this; you will probably have to dress it at least twice, and you should let the first coat dry fairly well before applying the second. Polishing is one thing that pays off in keeping your lines supple and high-floating; the more the line is polished, the faster and smoother it becomes. The fastness gives you better casts with less effort; and the smoothness will lay your lines down just that much better.

If you wish, you can splice a leader loop into the line at this time, without too much trouble. Take the tip of the line, pick all the weave out until it lies out flat in front of you. Separate the weave into two parts, lay in your mono-leader material; this should be around 8-lb. test. This leader or tip is only about 18 inches long the reason being it starts your taper of leader materials. Also that little extra weight gives you a nicer cast, with a fast flip-over of your fly. When you have the leader material in between the two strands, you will have to bind them with very fine silk thread. This is tricky but you can do it. Overlap the first coat with a second; having done this, use a good grade of varnish (waterproof type), rub it into all the thread with your fingers, and let dry. It needs a couple of coats to do the job right, but this saves you cutting off pieces of line every time you change leaders.

The ease with which you make your tapered leaders is very gratifying, believe me. To the 8-lb. test, tie in about 2 feet of 6-lb test, to this end tie in the same amount of 4-lb., then as long as you wish for your tippet leader. You can bring this down to about half a pound by shortening your heavier casts. In other words, instead of 24 inches, use 12 or 18 — making more splices for sure, but if these are tied in tightly you will have no trouble. Incidentally, if you buy a tapered leader of 8 feet, it will cost you from $1.25 to $3, depending on the droppers you have on the male leader. If you lose them as often as I do, it will pay you to tie some of them up ! Start with a dozen, and go on from there.

Children's shoes

Montreal CP — Regardless of style, shoes for children should be checked at frequent intervals, says Elizabeth Hammond, director of the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada.

"Tapered shoes are not, and never were, intended for round-the-clock wear. Such styling is for dress-up occasions only," she says.

A wide variety of round toes from street to dress wear, as well as the tapered toes, was available at all shoe retail outlets.

And how growing feet are treated now has a great effect on their condition in later life, Mrs. Hammond says. "Proper fit is essential, and shoes must be discarded immediately if they are outgrown — even if they're not worn out."

Eastern Quebec 'sets new gems in Liberal crown' — election review

By Gerry McNeil, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec CP — Besides b[illegible]king the Social Credit grip on much of Eastern Quebec, Liberal members of parliament also have provided the federal party with some welcome depth from this region.

Though Quebec City and the Lake St. John District remain strongholds of the Creditistes, about a dozen Liberals now represent ridings east of Trois-Rivières. There were only five last year.

Liberal strength was practically confined to the Montreal area after the 1958 elections, and wasn't extended a great deal in last year's vote. This time, however, Eastern Quebec planted some sparkling gems in the Liberal crown. . .

Maurice Sauvé, the Quebec City lawyer re-elected in Iles-de-la Madeleine, and Jean-Charles Cantin, who defeated Senator Jacques Flynn last year in Quebec South and whipped another able Conservative this time, are promising front-bench material.

However, it is the newcomers who have caught the eye of political observers here. . .

René Tremblay, 40, who resigned as deputy minister in Quebec's Industry and Commerce Department to campaign in Matapedia-Matane, upset the Conservative incumbent, J. Alfred Belzile, in an uphill battle. Mr. Tremblay, a talented administrator whose ability on the hustings was unknown, campaigned doggedly to win with a respectable majority.

In Lotbiniere, Liberal Auguste Choquette, 30, a Quebec City lawyer, unseated Defence Production minister Raymond O'Hurley, regarded by the Conservatives as among their strongest candidates. Mr. O'Hurley, a popular lumberman from St. Gilles de Lotbiniere, narrowly defeated Mr. Choquette last yeaar, but went down this time by about 1,400 votes before a barrage of television addresses and assemblies throughout the rural riding.

Mr. Choquette now is being hailed here by Liberals as perhaps the most promising campaigner in the province — a spellbinder on the platform and a classic campaigner with an instinct for the right move. He countered Mr. O'Hurley's "native-son" appeal by promising in the closing days of the campaign to settle in Lotbiniere, where he is now reported negotiating to buy the home of Hugues Lapointe, the Liberal member defeated by Mr. O'Hurley in 1957.

Jean Berger, 38, a practically-unknown television announcer from Matane who had worked with a Quebec City station also, scored a surprise in Montmagny-L'Islet. The Liberal opposition there was Social Credit incumbent Jean-Paul Cook, confident of re-election, and Mme. Claire Lizotte, the Conservative candidate. With the full backing of her husband, Dr. Fernand Lizotte, Union Nationale member of the legislature for Montmagny, she also was confident. But Mr. Berger also made heavy use of television to blanket the rural riding and win.

A bitter battle in Riviere-du-Loup - Temiscouata saw Mayor Rosaire Gendron of Riviere-du-Loup win back another traditional Liberal seat. Social Crediter Philippe Gagnon had taken it from a Conservative last year, a scant 99 votes ahead of Mr. Gendron.

Plans outlined for Quebec roads, tourist attractions

Quebec CP — The Trans-Canada Highway should be completed between the Ontario border and Montmagny this year.

Work will start on doubling the capacity of another route between Laprairie, near Montreal, and the New York border.

The Sherbrooke-Montreal Autoroute will be started, and the Laurentian Autoroute north of Montreal extended.

A report will be handed to the Roads Department by next December on the feasibility of a North-shore super highway linking Quebec City and Montreal. . .

These are the ingredients of a $4,000,000,000 roads program the government hopes to carry out within the next four years. The deadline for most of the routes is 1967, Canada's centennial year, when millions of tourists are expected to flock to the World's Fair in Montreal.

Meanwhile, the newly-formed Tourist Department, with Lionel Bertrand as its first minister, will oversee other preparations for the expected 1967 influx.

For instance, the government already has a series of camping spots ready for this year's tourists, and more will be built in years to come.

Attractive natural sites with historic backgrounds have been chosen by the government. The campsites will include every facility for the tourist, but will exclude gouging and garishness — things the camper wants to get away from.

The new department also will organize information booths, supervise handicraft industries, establish parks, and help with new hotel legislation, Premier Lesage said during the week the government plans an amendment to the hotels act to prevent discrimination against patrons.

The bill at present is vague. There was an outcry during the winter for tougher and more precise legislation after a negro family from New York lost a reservation at a Laurentian skiing resort.

Labor Unions and other groups said the bill should specifically ban any refusal of lodging or food on racial or religious grounds.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white organza. White panels of peau-de-soie lace decorated the front and neckline. The dress had long lily-pointed sleeves. A shoulder-length veil was fastened in place with a large white nylon rose, and the bride carried a full cascade of American Beauty roses.

Hope for the Dead

"HOPE, the fondest ever entertained by righteous men, is about to be fulfilled. Today, in time of distress and calamity, the vain hopes of selfish men are being blasted, but the true hope built upon and immovable foundation stands unshaken and sure now of early realization. It is an anchor to the soul, both sure and steadfast, during these wild days of swiftly-shifting conditions, and those having knowledge thereof are rejoicing in hope, though the world mourns.

"That lovers of righteousness may learn the true hope and need not sorrow as others who have no hope, this booklet is sent forth."

For study of this subject, send for "HOPE FOR THE DEAD", price 10 cents.

"There shall be a resurrection of the Dead, both the Just and the Unjust." Acts 24:15. "Jesus said the hour is coming in which all that are in the graves shall hear His voice, and shall come forth." John 5: 28, 29.

Brigden-MacVicar

The marriage of Marilyn Mae MacVicar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford MacVicar, of Lake Keatley, to Mr. Edward John Brigden, son of Mrs. William Brigden and the late Mr. Brigden, of Calumet, took place on Saturday, April 6, at 6 o'clock p.m. in the Harrington United Church. The Rev. Wilson Bridge officiated. Baskets of spring flowers decorated the church.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a gown of white nylon over satin with a lace bodice, and sleeves ending in points over the hands. The gown had a scalloped bateau neckline and was trimmed with white sequins and seed pearls, and had a full floor-length skirt. A crown of rhinestones held her veil of tulle illusion, which was hip-length. She carried a bouquet of yellow daffodils and white carnations.

Miss Evelyn Chisholm, as bridesmaid, wore a street-length gown of silk and lace in a rose shade with matching headdress and shoes. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and yellow daffodils.

The groom's brother acted as best man, and the ushers were Jack Barnes and David Foreman.

Mrs. MacVicar, mother of the bride, wore a frock of navy blue and white with matching accessories, and her corsage was of pink and white carnations. The groom's mother wore a frock of pale blue flowered silk with matching accessories, and her corsage was of white carnations.

Some 120 guests attended the reception, which was held in the Harrington School auditorium. . . The bride and groom are residing in Eastview, Ont.

SINCERE APPRECIATION

I take this occasion to extend my very sincere thanks to the population of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, for the mark of confidence they have given by re-electing me on April 8.

A quick look at the results indicates that the Liberal vote increased considerably in all sections of the constituency — not only in Deux Montagnes but also in Argenteuil. In Lachute, for example, it was around 1,050 in June 1962 and 1,211 in the voting last week.

This general uptrend is attributable to energetic effort on the part of our organizers, working quite voluntarily and in many cases under difficult conditions. These were the prime instigators of our victory; I give them credit, besides expressing my deep appreciation.

I ask my opponents to accept, also, my admiration for the vigorous campaign they conducted throughout the constituency.

I am conscious of the burden of responsibility placed upon every member of the House of Commons in this difficult period, which looks to be a turning point in our history, and I will endeavor to fulfill my duties in a manner to justify the confidence which you have entrusted in me.

A SINCERE THANK-YOU TO ONE AND ALL!

— VINCENT DROUIN, M.P.

Under-age mentalities

IT'S TIME someone voiced public disapproval for the behavior of certain university groups, who are shaming not only the institutions they attend but, unfortunately, discrediting the mentality of the well-balanced majority. This behavior is a flamboyant denial of civic stability, a quality which supposedly distinguishes the educated from the uneducated masses.

In Europe and abroad, this riotous conduct is appalling. In Canada, fortunately, unmannered student demonstrations are the work of a very small minority — but that same minority (we repeat) casts a sorry reflection on our whole university structure. If, through indulgence of the authorities, they escape penalty of the law, it is high time these renegades were disciplined by the very universities on which they cast discredit.

Quebec is a bad example of unruliness. Ontario, however, also has its deplorable outbreaks; and we are glad to note a rebuke in one of our weekly exchanges last week, which said in part:

The disgraceful exhibition put on by a body of students from Queen's University at a political rally in Kingston, points up the fact that many of these young men in university today are still mentally in the juvenile age of eight to twleve years.

Seven young gentlemen (?) signed a letter, with their tongue in their cheeks, taking the blame for the affair, but the tone of the letter is worded to appear to say "what a smart and bright group we are".

Mr. Pearson ran into the same trouble in Vancouver, which is very regrettable and does not reflect any credit on the mentality of those responsible for the trouble.

One wonders what Canada is coming to when some young people have absolutely no respect for authority and treat a man in a public position of responsibility with such hostile demonstrations. No one doubts the mentality of the ordinary goon, as there are no brains in his cranium, but we always thought university students, under proper leadership, were a step above such procedure. We are sorry to say we were wrong in our conjecture.

Comment on the recent scene

ROWDY interference with an election meeting of Mr. Pearson in Vancouver, and the threat to blow up the election train of Prime Minister Diefenbaker as it travelled through Quebec, had little to do with the merits of either leader's platform — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review. The incidents merely proved that both leaders are unpopular with some people. Such incidents are almost invariably the work of a small group of cranks.

Bombing of the Montreal income tax office might have been more generally popular, since the deadline for personal income returns is near at hand and affection for the hard-working employees of the department takes its seasonal course downward. But, whether the bombing was meant as a protest against taxation or as a demonstration of the provincial separatists, it was an ineffective gesture. No one was injured and the income-tax records remained unscathed.

Old marriage customs

EVER WONDER WHY in the world people tie tin cans and old shoes to the back of a newlywed couple's car?

A recently translated work by the Dutch sociologist Arnold van Gennep shows this custom is a carry-over from age-old marriage rites and probably had parallels in primordial times.

It is still a custom among primitive tribes (according to anthropologists and sociologists) to roar, yell, beat drums and make noise when the bridal couple takes off to start their new life. The idea is to scare the wits out of the demons.

It is believed that friends and relatives of the bride and groom are subconsciously performing the same rite when they turn the wedding couple's car into a mobilized boiler factory.

This modern spook-scaring ceremony is also linked to the almost forgotten "chivaree", which used to be common in eastern Canada around the turn of the century. Hooligans used to whoop and holler, shoot guns and generally raise cain outside the bridal suite on marriage night.

When the evolution of the automobile made complete escape possible, the evil-doers turned the groom's vehicle into a bedlam out of sheer spite.

But modern rites for a married couple's departure are much tamer — and dryer — than the ceremony which is literally thrown to the bride and groom by North African Moslems. In 1902 an anthropologist saw a leave-taking ceremony which greatly surprised him. The sect's traditional ceremony is to throw water in front of the young couple's feet as they leave — thus assuring them a pure future life. . . However, the scientist witnessed a slight departure. A friend of the bride miscalculated and heaved a bucket of water all over the bride and groom. Enough to dampen anyone's ardor!

Few people today are aware of the source of present marriage customs. Most of them are centuries old. Throwing rice at newlyweds, for instance, is really an ancient fertility rite adopted from China. Grains of rice — the source of life itself — were practically revered by the Chinese.

The term "giving the bride away" comes from the days when the girl in question was placed on the block. She wasn't actually "given", however. Usually her pappy got a pretty good price for her.

Carrying the bride over the threshold stems from the happy days of club and muscle. The hero simply swatted a good-looker over the noggin and hauled her home.

The honeymoon is age old. It represents days of yore when it was very advisable for the groom to make tracks after a rather abrupt ceremony. After snatching his prey from her family, he got out of town fast — and stayed out of sight.

Then there is the belief that the wedding ring is just a smaller and more expensive replica of fetters (worn on the wife's left hand, because the right hand represents the authority reserved for the husband).

Viewpoints and perspectives

EXTRAVAGANT claims in today's world of commerce are confined largely to cosmetics, pain killers, cigarettes, and detergents. There are times too when other advertising has a borderline flirt with extravagance. Perhaps producers and salesmen should get together and decide to slow down on this abuse of the buyer's intelligence.

TB FIGHT GOES ON. — Progress made in treatment, cure and prevention of TB has been great. Curiously, this progress has led many of us to think TB is disappearing. That is not so. Further progress against TB can be made only if we all recognize that there is still progress to be made.

COULD BE GRIM. — If we are going to develop this country we need an end to excessive government spending and borrowing. We need some strong and resolute leadership. If we fail to get that in our representatives, the immediate future of Canada looks grim indeed.

QUESTION METHOD. — Canadian mothers are reported to be in revolt against the "look-say" method of teaching reading to their children. In this method a youngster is taught to recognize words by their shapes and not by the letters in them. What has been forgotten is that adults learned to read by the good old phonetic system with automatic recognition of words coming later.

— By Ambrose Hills —

SHOULD WE SELL WHEAT TO CHINA?

Any person who discusses public affairs and forms opinions must be prepared to make some tough moral decisions. And he can never be sure that he is 100 per cent right. I have chewed on this wheat-to-China problem a good deal, and it makes tough chewing.

If I had to answer categorically, I would answer that I am in favor of selling wheat to China. I believe that country is suffering from a very real famine. If other countries refuse to sell her wheat, she may, in desperation, attempt to take it by force. If she did not resort to force, there would be more starvation.

No doubt China brought this problem on herself. She is now undertaking a back to the earth program and re-establishing a limited form of private, market-garden farming. But it is late in the day. It will be some time before she can feed her 670 million population. To deny grain to the Chinese people because their government blundered would not make moral sense.

I also realize that China launched an unprovoked war against India. But again, this is an act of the Chinese government, and not of the people themselves. If she persists, and India is in dire danger, then I presume we would stop our shipments of grain. However, I don't think our wheat shipments are doing much more than ease the hunger of the people; I doubt that we are giving China the strength to wage its war on India.

Certainly there are other sides to this argument. The market in China is at best a temporary one. The Chinese government, once it is over the famine crisis, will use trade as a weapon against us. She will insist that we buy many products from her that we used to buy from Japan — a country much more likely to be a long-term customer for our production.

So it becomes one of those problems where the answer appears to be: proceed, but with caution. Don't give trade concessions or credit arrangements that ought to be saved for customers more likely to be with us ten or fifteen years from now.

WALKING WITH THE PUPPY

Good manners for your puppy are as important in the street as they are in the house. Start training him in walking habits as early as possible.

Some puppies take to the lead almost at once. Others just sit sulkily on the sidewalk. If yours is one of this kind, don't drag him along.

Stand the full length of the lead away and call to him. It may take a little time, but eventually he will come. Until he does follow you obediently on the lead without dragging, keep encouraging him. Make a fuss of him when he comes towards you, and occasionally reward him with a biscuit or something else he enjoys.

Another important part of his training is to make sure he doesn't try to dash across the road. This is necessary because there will be occasions when he may accidentally slip his lead or run out of the house.

When you come to a point at which you want to cross the road, make your puppy sit down for a moment. Do the same thing if he shows a tendency to rush after other dogs.

Remember, it takes kindness and lots of patience to develop a well-trained puppy.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

An artist on his vacation ran short of certain brushes, and as there was no art supply store in the village he tried the drugstore. "Have you any camel's hair brushes?" he asked. And the druggist replied, "Don't try to be funny. What would a camel want with a hairbrush?"

A commercial traveller, after spending the night in a small-town hotel, came downstairs in a bad mood.

"I hope you spent a comfortable night, Sir," said the day-clerk, smiling.

"I certainly did not!" replied the irate salesman. "Couldn't sleep a wink. Never closed my eyes all night!"

"Well," said the clerk. "That is not the fault of the hotel. How can you expect to sleep if you don't close your eyes?"

"NO PLACE LIKE HOME" SAYS BURGLAR BILL

If you took the advice of Burglar Bill, you'd keep all your valuables at home. Under the mattress, maybe. Or in that old teapot that lost its spout.

But Bill's advice isn't entirely objective. He figures if you leave your valuables at home — even in a "safe" hiding place — he stands a better chance of getting his hands on them.

Much better advice comes from Don Hay, manager of the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal. "Keep your valuables really safe in a B of M safety deposit box," says Mr. Hay. "Your personal strong box, exclusively yours, costs less than two cents a day, and it pays for itself over and over again in peace of mind alone," he adds.

Hundreds of thousands of Canadians use B of M safety deposit box facilities. Their valuables — bonds, leases, stock certificates, insurance policies, deeds, birth certificates, passports and other important family papers — are safe and sound behind the steel doors of the B of M vault.

Forget what Burglar Bill says. Don Hay advises, "Clean out those closets, drawers — and teapots. Bring your valuables into the bank instead."

Smoking and Health

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"The cigarette industry has no right to advertise a product that is even more dangerous than thalidomide", was the opinion of Fred Keeley, whip of the 41st annual Tuxis Boys' Parliament which met in Manitoba's Legislative Building.

Are the facts about smoking too conflicting for ordinary people to judge? Smoking claims a whole new army of teenagers in its ranks each season and if this habit really is a threat to health they and their parents should investigate it.

One of the most thoughtful presentations of this subject is Dr. Alton Ochoner's "Smoking and Health" published by Julian Messner (Copp Clark). The author is a widely-known scientist and one of America's most eminent surgeons. He has served as president of the American College of Surgeons and is a frequent contributor to medical journals. In his research for this book he has received permission to use charts, graphs and quote statistics from fifteen reliable sources such as the Journal of the American Medical Association, the British Medical Journal, American Journal of Public Health, as well as the American Cancer Society.

The international aspect of smoking's threat to health is pointed out in Smoking and Health. The Norwegian government is so convinced of the relationship between smoking and lung cancer that it forbids all sale of tobacco to minors and one per cent of the government's tobacco revenue is allocated for research on the bad effects of tobacco. In Finland lung cancer increased 7 per cent from 1936 to 1943 but since then the annual increase has been approximately 13 per cent. In Holland between 1924-1951 lung cancer increased 24 fold in men and 10 fold in women.

In England there was a 38 fold increase in the incidence of cancer of the lung between 1920 and 1954. The Medical Research Council of Great Britain after extensive careful inquiry stated: "Evidence from many investigations in different countries indicates that a major part of lung cancer is associated with tobacco smoking, particularly in the form of cigarettes."

The Medical Health Officer of London was so impressed by this statement that he ordered immense yellow signs posted throughout the city which read — "It is my duty to warn all cigarette smokers that there is now conclusive evidence that they are running a greater risk of contracting cancer than non-smokers. The risk mounts with the number of cigarettes smoked. Giving up smoking reduces the risk".

"Giving up smoking." — Have you yourself struggled to stop this habit? Do you know another person who has resolved to quit smoking, wrestled with this and finally been defeated?

Not long ago two teenage boys were discussing a man they admired who had sworn off smoking, stuck with it for several months, then started again. One boy said, "If it's such an awful job to stop smoking once you've started, why begin?"

It's a good question, isn't it? It is an issue which every family with adolescents should face. The discussion should be based on information.

A brief pamphlet To Smoke or Not to Smoke, revised in April 1962, is issued by the Canadian Cancer Society, (Manitoba Division, 283 Colony St., Winnipeg).

What are some of the Canadian facts presented here? There has been a considerable increase in death from lung cancer in the past 15 years in our country. At present there are approximately 2,500 Canadian lung cancer annual deaths with five times as many men as women dying from this cause. The Committee on Public Health of the Canadian Medical Association resulted in a report, approved at the June 1961 annual meeting of the Association. It stated in part: "The weight of evidence at present implicates cigarette smoking as the principal causative factor in the increased incidence of lung cancer."

How can an adult or an adolescent ignore serious warnings from responsible medical groups about the threat to health which smoking presents?

Try this new mushroom gravy, made creamy with better-blending evaporated milk; over crispy fried chicken. Hot rolls, and a tossed salad round out a tempting menu.

Tasty chicken variations

To the repeated question, "What's for dinner? — I'm starved!" comes a tasty and economical answer. Fried chicken with cream gravy takes advantage of the poultry which is currently plentiful. Only evaporated milk could make the crust so truly delicious and uniform, the gravy so simple-to-make and creamy smooth. Addition of sliced mushrooms enhances the appearance and heightens the flavor appeal — makes an old favorite even better.

This nourishing and attractive dish simplifies meal preparation. Fried chicken with cream gravy is suggested as the highlight of your meal. Complement this with a hot bread and a green salad, with fruit for dessert, and you have a meal fit for a queen — on a budget!

Fried Chicken with Mushroom Cream Gravy

(Makes 4 servings)

3-Pound broiler fryer chicken (cut in serving pieces), 1½ cups undiluted evaporated milk, ¼ cup flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ¼ cup shortening.

Place chicken pieces in large bowl. Cover with undiluted evaporated milk and allow to stand for one hour. Drain thoroughly; reserve remaining milk for gravy. Combine flour and seasonings. Coat chicken with seasoned flour. Brown chicken well on all sides in hot shortening. Cover and cook over low heat 30 to 35 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Reserve ¼ cup drippings for gravy recipe given below.

To prepare Mushroom Cream Gravy:

Blend reserved ¼ cup chicken drippings with ¼ cup flour in frying pan. Gradually add 1 cup water and 1¼ cups reserved evaporated milk, stirring constantly. Add ¼ cup undrained sliced canned mushrooms. Cook over low heat, stirring, until thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Cream of Chicken Specialty

(Makes 10-12 servings)

3 Quarts water, 1 chicken (3½ to 4 pounds, cut into serving-size pieces), 2 medium-sized onions (sliced), 2 cups chopped celery (include tops), ¼ cup chopped parsley, 1 medium-sized carrot (sliced), 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 bay leaf, 1 teaspoon savory, ¼ cup all-purpose flour, 2 cups undiluted evaporated milk.

Combine water, chicken, onions, celery, parsley, carrot, salt, pepper, bay leaf and savory in large kettle. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, 1 hour or until chicken is very tender. Remove chicken, cool. Remove chicken from bones, and cut into small pieces. Combine flour and evaporated milk; stir until smooth. Gradually add milk mixture to vegetable mixture, stirring constantly. Add chicken. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently, until soup is slightly thickened.

Budgets for Leisure

By Dorothy Barker ("Diary of A Vagabond")

There was a time when country women of Canada rated the expressed sympathy of their urban sisters for their restricted activities, especially in winter time. But not any more. Now the shoe could quite possibly be on the other foot, for those who dwell on Canadian farms and in the smaller hamlets of the nation live full and active lives.

Prior to the establishment of community welfare projects and those sponsored by the women's institutes, winter leisure time for the farmer's wife usually meant quilting, knitting or trying out some new recipe. Limited in scope as these activities were for expressing creativity, they were the foundation that bred a desire for wider endeavor.

Pioneered Craft Program

In the years that just preceded the last world conflict, when industry and commerce were struggling through a depression, expanding the horizons of country folk was a mission our senior citizen pioneered in Central Ontario.

I can well remember the bags of onion skins and bark I helped pack for a planned course she would give in vegetable dyeing in some community hall or schoolhouse in Simcoe County, Ontario. Into another box would go carders for teasing wool, patterns for weaving, hooks and rags for rug making and plasticine for puppetry classes for the children. She was only stumped once in her teaching under the sponsorship of the Community Welfare Council. A farmer's wife asked her how to cure the hide of a sheep!

I was reminded of her industry in the craft field when I read an article by Adelaide Leitch in the Christian Science Monitor. Subject chosen by the author was Louise Colley, director of Simcoe County Community and Recreation Service.

Louise Colley's undertaking far exceeds the early planning of former recreational activity in this area. The need was met then in what might seem today as a rather primitive way. When Stuart Paige, agricultural representative, met our senior citizen on arrival with her boxes of supplies and whisked her off to her billet in some farmhouse, there was little money for equipment or tutorage. Expenses had to be partially recovered from the small fee charged for instruction.

Having a budget to work with is no doubt restricting for all the activities Miss Colley plans, but at least it is a realistic approach to this undertaking, "Ontario's only county department devoted entirely to meeting the problems of leisure in a push-button world".

Many Achievements

According to the article, "Here are just some of the things Director Colley's department did last year — "It set up 43 leadership training courses and helped communities organize 27 swimming committies and arranged for summer classes".

The most impressive show window of the Community and Recreation Service is the every-other-year quilt, rug and craft fair, which was held this year in Beeton, Ontario.

NEW CLAIMS FOR TV

Research has proved a lot of pessimistic predictions about children and television to be wrong, says Reader's Digest. Findings: Children's eyes are not harmed by TV; watching it does not detract from wholesome recreation, but rather from street-corner lounging and reading comic books; better students sometimes watch TV more than mediocre students.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Springtime is veal time in Canada and this delicate-flavored, tender meat can be the delight of the cook who wants to give her family something imaginative after the long winter.

"Veal, more than any other meat, lends itself to cooking in a variety of ways and with a variety of seasonings," say home economists in the federal department of agriculture.

Veal marketed in Canada can be divided into two categories — young, light-weight veal from dairy herds and heavier veal from beef type cattle.

Young veal is a pale, greyish-pink color with little fat, while more mature veal is a dark pinkish-brown with a good covering of fat. The latter is firmer and usually has a more pleasing flavor than the young veal.

Slow Cooking

Veal is best if given long, slow cooking. Like beef, cuts may be roasted uncovered and cooked at a moderately slow oven temperature (325 degrees Fahrenheit) until the cooked meat is grey with no traces of pink.

The following recipes have been tested in the department of agriculture. . .

Veal Chops à l'Italienne — Dip six one-inch-thick veal chops in seasoned flour, then in a slightly beaten egg mixture (two tablespoons of water to one egg). Roll the wet chops in ¼ cup fine, dried bread crumbs and then fry in ¼ cup butter, allowing three to four minutes for each side of the chops.

After frying, cover the pan and place in the centre of a moderately slow oven allowing 25 minutes for each side of the chops.

About 10 minutes before the chops are cooked, sprinkle strong cheese (preferably Parmesan) over each chop. Serve with lemon slices.

Veal Chops with Mushrooms à la Crème. — Brown six one-inch-thick chops in four tablespoons of butter and then cook slowly over low heat for 20 minutes.

Add ½ pound of mushroom caps and ½ cup of chopped onions and continue to cook under cover until chops are tender. Then remove the chops and mushrooms to a serving dish. Blend one tablespoon of flour into the drippings in the pan, then gradually add ½ cup of water, stirring until smooth. Finally add one cup of table cream and simmer, stirring constantly until thickened. Pour the sauce over the chops and mushrooms.

Food Value

As far as nutritional value is concerned, there is little difference in the amount of B vitamins, minerals and protein between veal and beef.

Canadians however are beef eaters and do not favor veal as do the Europeans, the home economists say. They found that in this country, only eight pounds of veal per person is consumed each year compared with about 69 pounds of beef.

Let's eat more apples

The recent Florida fruit "freeze" helped to point up the increasing trend among Canadians to purchase imported fruits and vegetables. For example, our per capita consumption of apples is one of the lowest. This is hard to understand in an apple producing country like Canada. In 1960 per capita consumption in Canada of citrus fruits was about 66 pounds. This was divided almost equally between fresh fruit and juice. At the same time per capita apple consumption was only 27 pounds of which 8 pounds was consumed as juice. If we ate apples at the same rate as we do citrus fruit, it would take care of the average Canadian crop. If we ate an apple a day, production would have to be doubled to meet the demand.

Why is it that we Canadians don't eat more apples? Surely we must be taking this faithful friend for granted! Or perhaps its importance is overlooked in the maze of attractive packaging and advertising of other products all competing for our attention. Whatever the reason, it's time for us to take another look and eat an apple every day.

Apples are good calorie investments for careful dieters. One medium-sized apple contains only about 60 calories. This not only satisfies the appetite for desserts but provides the acids and needed roughage or bulk to aid good digestion and stimulate intestinal activity. The sugar in the fruit is readily absorbed and supplies the body with energy. Apples also contain some minerals and vitamins. The vitamin content varies with the variety of apple, storage conditions and the way the fruit is served. Because of their crisp texture, eating raw apples provides exercise for the jaws and at the same time helps to stimulate the gums and clean the teeth.

The apple season in Canada has been extended until May or June, thanks to modern cold storage facilities. Apples such as McIntosh, Spy and Delicious can be stored for several months longer than they used to be because of controlled atmosphere storage. When apples are taken from our modern storage plants they are as good as the day they went in. But after being in a cold temperature, they won't stay crisp and juicy very long if they aren't kept cool at home. If you have a cool room in your basement, you can keep a large quantity of apples so that you are not always running out of them. If you haven't any other place to store them in your refrigerator, you will have to buy them more often in smaller quantities.

SPRING!

The robins are back and April's here!
Sunday dawns freshly,
translucently clear;
While my bed is a heaven,
which points to the sky,
Lone seagulls wheel strongly and silently by.
The sun's yet to rise for earthbound me;
But there's gold on the wings of the gulls from the sea —
I laugh in sheer joy, to share with God —
The wonder and freedom and beauty so trod.

Feeding lambs in winter

Winter feeding of lambs in a farm feedlot in Hays District of the Bow River Project, Alberta, is an indication of the steadily increasing emphasis on livestock production in this irrigated area. Officials of the PFRA which operates the project, say that small, farm feedlots complement the irrigation farming enterprise by marketable by-products.

Hay quality

The 1962 haying season was not the best on record. A farmer who waited for more rain last summer for a higher yield probably brought in a poor quality hay. Some, however, had their hay in before the rainy season of 1962. These farmers even though the harvest was not as high certainly benefitted from the excellent quality.

It is advisable that farmers have a look at their hay left in the mow to see what the quality of it is. It would then be a good idea to start thinking how the situation can be improved this year. Many farmers make the error of waiting too long before cutting. As a result the hay is over-mature and much quality is lost. A farmer should think of starting earlier, and to use hay mixture varieties that have different maturing dates.

486 Tree farms in Prov Quebec

The Quebec Forestry Association reports that 486 tree farms have been certified in the province since 1954 when the movement was launched; the total acreage is now 149,254. Ten regional committees are acting under the auspices of the Q.F.A. branches in the different districts of the province. The objective for 1963 is the certification of 30 new tree farms.

Owners of well-managed woodlands, or those who plan to improve their woods by protection and wise cutting, may apply. Here are the standards: Tree Farmers agree: (1) to maintain their woodlands for growing forest crops; (2) to protect their woods adequately; (3) that cutting practices will be satisfactory to ensure future forest crops; (4) to allow the Committee's foresters to inspect their tree farms.

A minimum of three acres is required; however, some tree farms under industrial ownership range up to 75,000 acres.

The advantages are numerous. In addition to any advice provided by local committee and government foresters, Tree Farm Committees have booklets, bulletins, film strips, movies and posters available in offices all over the province. These will help tree farmers to learn how to manage their farms for continuous crops of wood.

Recommend seed barley and oats

The 1963 Recommendations of the Quebec Seed Board has been published and is available to all farmers.

Every farmer should have a copy of this informative and useful bulletin. It contains grain crop varieties recommended for different regions; hybrid corn varieties for silage and grain; root crops, hay and pasture mixtures. The bulletin also contains information on varieties as to maturity, disease resistance, yield and growth habits.

The recommendations are arrived at by extensive trials at the agricultural colleges and experimental stations throughout the province. The information is kept for several years, after which time the best varieties are chosen.

The bulletin is available free from the local agronome, or from the Information Division, Quebec Department of Agriculture.

The future for stock breeders

The next 10 or 20 years will bring many innovations to the farmer in animal breeding. Research has been carried on for many years and it is now ready for a break through. One new and important aspect to the farmer is that he will be able to control the sex of the animals so that he will be able to get all males or all females. This is now done by methods of separating the male from the female sperm cells. The problem up till now has been one of poor conception. More research is required to assure greater conception and as soon as this is achieved farmers will benefit from the research in their own herds.

FOR IMPROVED SERVICE

This winter has seen the removal of the major part of the old long distance line to Ottawa, and various roads and fields have a new look after 30 years. With our burying of cable last summer to take care of our rural lines, it left us free to take this line down, as the long distance lines had already been transferred to buried cable. . . This change to buried facilities was taken to avoid the sleet storms which over the years caused many interruptions to our service, mostly by broken wire, since the major part of the original poles stood up to the test of the years. The changed look in our locality by the removal of this line — taking it in out of the rain, as it were — will also mean an improvement in the dependability of our service . . . which is our aim at all times.

The most dangerous part of an automobile

...IS THE DRIVER. Today's modern automobiles are soundly engineered, safe, and remarkably reliable. Modern roads, too, are designed to present the minimum of hazards. Driving only becomes dangerous when fallible human beings come into the picture and, through their human failings, cause accidents.

In a determined effort to cut down the nation's accident toll, the automobile insurance business has dedicated itself to the promotion of highway safety programs and driver training education.

As a part of this extensive program of safety promotion, which includes several nation-wide projects, All Canada Insurance Federation sponsors the Alfred Campbell Memorial Awards, presented annually to Junior Chambers of Commerce conducting the best year-round safety program in their communities throughout Canada.

Equipment and pledge of $50,000 offered by Lions Club for arena

A good attendance of members at the Lions Club last week devoted their entire meeting to club affairs and projects. Among the latter, the submission of a proposal to Town Council on the subject of a community arena, was the highlight of business — and may, indeed prove a highlight of the current year's achievements. President Royal Carrière occupied the chair, and between 30 and 40 members attended.

Faced with a necessity to remove its skating rink from its present site in the East Ward, a committee has been closely studying the prospects and possibilities of the future. The proposal and offer to Town Council is an outcome of this study.

The submission, duly passed at a general meeting, was read by Lion Fred Jeffery and the text formally handed to Alderman Linton Armstrong, who was present as a guest and representative of the City Fathers. The Lions' offer reads as follows :

"Resolved, that —

"(1) The Lachute Lions Club co-operate with the Municipal Authorities for the erection and operation of a Municipal Playground which shall include a covered artificial ice arena.

"(2) Should the Municipal Authorities undertake to proceed with the aforementioned project, that the Lions Club donate to the Municipal Authority the present arena equipment now owned by the Club.

"(3) That the Lions Club, over and above the equipment, make a Pledge of Honor to donate $50,000, at a rate of $5,000 per year without interest, providing the Municipal Playground and arena be in operation.

"(4) That the first payment of $5,000 be made when the land is purchased, and that the subsequent payments be started one year later, providing the building is completed and ready for operation.

"(5) That the arena be ready for the 1963-64 season, within reason, this date being subject to negotiation."

Ald. Armstrong, on behalf of the Town Council expressed warm appreciation of the Lions' initiative in providing winter recreation for the youth of this town, and for the club's generous offer to transfer its interests to a broader authority. . . The offer will now be taken to Town Council and to the new Recreation Committee, of which Mr. Armstrong is the chairman.

Committeemen reported on other items of club business — including Easter Seals; the season's cash drawing; a coming regional rally in Montreal; and discussion on other matters of interest. A song session was led by Lion Hal Joyce.

Col. Ernest Emmett, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the slate of officers for 1963-64, to be elected at the next forthcoming meeting.

Many volunteers in blitz for annual Cancer Crusade

"Blitz Night" for the annual Cancer Crusade in Lachute opened with a parade of fire vehicles, municipal cars and business trucks through the streets of town on Monday evening. Some time before this, however, the canvassers were busy on their rounds in three divisions of the town — Lachute, Lachute West and Ayersville.

The outcome of this canvass, as team captains reported results from their respective districts, were gratifying to the co-chairmen and officers waiting to receive returns at the Bank of Nova Scotia later that night.

Co-chairman Daniel Carrière states the appeal to corporations, business firms and outside districts is continuing, and it is confidently hoped the $6,000 district objective for the Canadian Cancer Society's annual appeal will be attained, and perhaps surpassed. Jim Campbell, sharing the joint-chairmanship, is equally optimistic. The campaign will terminate April 30.

Young orator to Lions Club district finals

In the Lions Club public speaking eliminations at the Northmount club last week, two French-speaking students from among the Lachute winners ranked first and second — one of them qualifying for the finals to be held May 4 at Buckingham.

The English-language entrants from Lachute missed out by a narrow margin.

Céline Laurin, of the St. Alexandre school, ranked first among the French-speaking girls, and Frederic Rochon, 11th grade student at l'Ecole Secondaire, came second in the boys' group.

The contestants were escorted to Montreal by Gabriel Valois and Bertrand L'Heureux, members of the Lions Club, and accompanied by Marcel Brunette of the Catholic high school teaching staff.

Mother and child fatally shot in Oka family

Montreal — Police are investigating the week-end shooting deaths of a 35-year-old housewife and her two-year-old son at Oka.

The 38-year-old husband and father, Gilles Gagné, is under police guard in Montreal's Sacré Coeur Hospital following the slayings in the family home at Oka last Saturday afternoon.

Gagné's wife, Gertrude, was fatally wounded by a .303-calibre bullet which lodged near her heart. The couple's son, Gilles, was killed with the same weapon.

Police believe the father was shot with the same hunting rifle. His condition is fair.

— Less than three months to go in the school year, but certainly sufficient time to warrant a return to some type of traffic control in front of the Brownsburg High School. This area might even deserve a look from Brownsburg's finest !

Radio license denied, company will re-apply

There will be a new attempt next fall to start a radio station serving Lachute and Hawkesbury.

The Board of Broadcast Governors in Ottawa just recently turned down an application for a federal government license to open CHOT, a bilingual radio station to serve Argenteuil and Prescott Counties, with studios in Lachute and Hawkesbury.

The application was made by Donald H. Attfield on behalf of a proposed company called "The Voice of the Two Provinces Limited", comprising about 25 shareholders, most of them businessmen of Lachute and Hawkesbury.

Objections to the application were submitted by Station CFML Cornwall and Station CKJL St. Jerome represented by Jean Lalonde, the president of Radio-Laurentides.

Mr. Attfield said that his group will re-apply, probably in August, for the license. "We are optimistic of success this time," he said.

The decision to re-apply was taken after a meeting last week with the chairman of the BBG, Dr. Andrew Stewart.

"Dr. Stewart told us the reasons for the denial, Mr. Attfield said. "The board apparently has no objection to the basic proposal. It merely is not convinced that the Argenteuil-Prescott market can provide sufficient revenue to support a radio station. It appears to be concerned that, in programming bilingually, from the two studios and in daytime only, such a station would not realize the revenue that normally could be expected from such a market. . .

"In applying again, we shall provide the board with proof of sufficient commercial support, in the form of statements from sponsors and advertisers," Mr. Attfield said. "We think we can dispel the board's misgivings on all the points mentioned by Dr. Stewart."

Lady occupants at gunpoint, home ransacked second time

A repeat performance of a 1958 night-time robbery, was staged at the residence of the Hon. W. M. "Bill" Cottingham on Sunday evening, when two masked men, one of them armed with a revolver, jumped through a window into the living room where Mrs. Cottingham and Miss Emma Kingsbury, a companion-housekeeper, were watching television. The incident occurred shortly after 8 o'clock at the Cottingham residence on the St. Jerome highway, just past the town limits. Mr. Cottingham was absent at the time.

According to investigating Provincial Police officers, the men demanded money and Mr. Cottingham's coin collection, which Mrs. Cottingham informed them, was not in the house. The intruders then locked the two women in a clothes closet, piling furniture against the door, and ransacked the house, taking $172 from Miss Kingsbury's purse and a small sum from the purse of Mrs. Cottingham, along with the keys to her car; this was taken and later found abandoned on Berry Street, near the railway station, by Lachute municipal police.

Around 10.15 p.m., a long-distance call was received by the Montreal Q.P.P. office, informing them that two women were locked in a closet at the home of "Mr. Cunningham" in Lachute. The local office of the Q.P.P. was immediately notified, and the homes of Messrs. Cliff and Hugh Cunningham were checked. After the police had left, Cliff Cunningham remembered the robbery of several years ago at the Cottingham Farm. He consequently drove past the Cottingham home just east of town. This appeared to be in order, but he then notified Linton Armstrong, police commissioner, who failed to get a response by telephone and went personally to the Cottingham residence. There he found the place in upheaval and discovered the ladies locked in the closet; he immediately notified the police, who are now continuing the investigation.

A possible tie-in with the robbery was the theft of a car on Main Street at 7.45 p.m. The vehicle, owned by Jim Campbell, had not been recovered at press time.

A phone call that Barron's Bridge would be blown up by a bomb, was received by the municipal police early Sunday evening. This is also believed to have been an expedient to distract the police and keep them from the east end of the town.

Rotary "Window on the World" display

With collaboration of fellow clubs in different parts of the world, the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary has assembled a highly interesting collection of souvenirs from far-off lands. The story of this venture (received too late for publication) makes interesting reading; its details will be told in next week's issue. The articles are on view in Cliff Cunningham's show-window, Main Street, Lachute. They will be auctioned off to patrons at the coming Rotary dance, May 4.

New potato-wagon by-law annuls all previous by-laws

Town Council, at its regular sitting last week, tackled a frequently recurring problem — the regulation of chip-potato wagons — and came up with a by-law to supersede and annul the various statutes previously adopted on this matter. . . Whether it is conclusive and decisive, remains to be seen.

The by-law, No. 233, was formally read and re-read, for its first, second and third time, and carried by vote. The regulation prohibits potato-wagons in a certain section of town, described as follows : That area bounded on the west and the north by the North River, on the south by the C.P.R., and on the east by the limits of St. Jerusalem; also, in all zones designated as "residential" in the Building and Zoning By-law.

The restriction applies to mobile stands or vehicles for the dispensing of edibles or drinks. Offenders are liable to $40 fine and costs, or 30 days in jail, according to provisions of this statute.

Robbery charge at St. Adophe

A district resident was arrested over the week-end in connection with a robbery in a St. Adolphe d'Howard hotel on Thursday evening of last week, when a sum of money and a considerable amount of liquor were reported stolen. Another theft in a nearby barn resulted in the removal of a power mower.

Charged with the robbery, the suspect will appear in St. Jerome court within several days.

Montreal Power Squadron heard Carillon Dam topic

The more than 100 persons who attended the annual meeting of the Montreal Power Squadron last week, were cheered by a promise that the new locks at the Carillon Dam would be open for traffic at the opening of this year's boating season — writes Carl Dow in a report to the Montreal Star.

René Gauthier, project manager for Quebec Hydro, who was guest speaker at the meeting, said completion of the locks had been delayed by some inferior material, lack of information and the turbulence of the Ottawa River.

Mr. Gauthier said the locks were constructed at a cost of $4,038,000.

He said that at one point last year the river piled up ice 50 feet in depth. On another occasion the waters battered at a protective wall and tore a hole in the wall by ripping out lumber and three-quarter-inch sheet metal piling, thereby flooding the area under construction.

Mr. Gauthier personalized the river : "When we spent $247,000 to dredge a channel, she refused to accept this defacing of her territory, so she filled the channel in a week — at no cost."

He recalled that in May, 1960, a man and a 60-ton mobile crane were swallowed by the river. "Two years later, to the day, we salvaged the crane; the only things that were worth using again were the tires. The metal had been twisted beyond repair — and the machine had been only 15 days old when the accident occurred."

Mr. Gauthier said that a vessel could be lifted 63 feet through the locks in 20 minutes. The operating gates close and open in two minutes, and have been equipped for a crash close against a 16-foot head of water.

The dam raises the water 55 feet at Carillon and results in navigable water from Montreal north to Ottawa and the locks of the Rideau waterway.

Week's Epigram

By BOB ATCHISON

Deer are once more being run down by dogs; the latest report was from the Morin Heights area. According to one version, the dog was said to have been tied up all winter, but on seeing the deer near its home, broke loose and then dragged it down; also that the owners witnessed this attack, and they have supposedly had the dog destroyed. . . . I know some very strange stories have been heard on this matter.

A wolf was also found dead, from poison, last week near St. Michel. A horse that had been shot because of a broken leg last fall, was doped up at that time. The wolf had evidently stumbled on the carcass, and paid for it with his life. . .

Poisoning, in my opinion, is one of the most ghastly ways of killing. Most of you will not know this, but the Provincial Government has outlawed the use of poisons for the killing of these grand animals; and this is a step in the right direction. I certainly have enough to write about in a critical vein, but in fairness, I'll give the Government authorities credit for something worth while. It indicates at last that someone is taking a long, hard look at the stupid and callous methods used in killing off our carnivorous animals. I hope this will continue, maybe sometime in the distant future there will be legislation against all forms of this cruelty. This will include the trapping of fur-bearing animals with set traps and underwater drops. I see along the North River more of these things have been put out. At least if they are going to trap (and there is no objection to this) they can be forced to use the painless types of trap; sure, they cost a little more, but most of the trapping in this area is supposedly for sport, and not for profit.

It appears the Fish and Game branch of the Tourist Department has run a little short of money. After all, wildlife is not as important as the tourists. I understand patrols by Wardens have been shortened, and car allowance has been cut down — if they have used up their quota of gas, nothing will be done. This is really bad, I think most of you will agree. Some of the equipment the wardens have to use in the pursuit of their duties is pretty inadequate. I watched the Wardens in our area trying to start their outboard motor. Believe me, if they had been going out after offenders then, they would have been pretty ineffective. As for the boat these officers are using, it is a contradiction of all propaganda on water safety, and should have been condemned years ago.

I have noticed (as most of you have) the helicopter flying around; this is also for the use of the Wardens, when they can get it. This recalls a personal observation. I noticed that on one occasion the copter pilot spotted a car in the bush; thinking it was poachers after deer, Wardens were despatched to this car — but you know what? It was more Wardens. Maybe some insignia could be painted on official cars, thus letting the observers know they were on a wild goose chase. I think this would mean a saving in time; and in money (apparently so pressing) it could save plenty of this. . . I repeat — give our Wardens a break, and a little help; they'll do a more effective job. It really surprises me the number of supposed "sports" who make it a habit to take more game than they are legally entitled to.

In the last week or so, I have been asked a hundred times just where fishing permits can be obtained. There are a couple of places around Main Street, but there should be more. I was informed by Firmin Bourque that there were "enough outlets for them to take care of all", yet no one seems to know just where they are. It is really amusing to note some of these authorized issuers — drugstores, garages, butcher shops, even a beer store and a private house. It certainly appears that "friends of friends" have a lot to do with the selection!

More geese have been passing over. With all the lakes still frozen solid (April 18) around this district, it does not seem possible they can be open farther north. . .. Numerous ducks have been skimming along the river, more than I have seen for years. The water is still pretty high, so I have not had a chance to note any shore birds that have come in. Some Greater Yellow Legs could be heard the other day, but I sure couldn't find them. It seemed a little early.

A few boats have appeared on the river, naturally with fishermen. After all they are nuts, this breed (glad I don't go in for this sport!) Nothing was caught, and I don't think anything was expected. I did hear of some doré being taken just before the season closed, near the Black Bridge. This has always been a fair spot for fishing; we have taken some good specimens from this area. One especially good spot has been the opening of Lake Fillon into the North River. Very big perch, pike, with a few good bass for luck. If I remember correctly, this spot also yielded a couple of fair-sized brown trout last year. I know there are those who say trout could not live in the North River, but they could be wrong. After all, the Brown is more adaptable to new habitat than any other type of trout. Besides, this North River has come a long way towards getting cleaned up. The way things are going now, it could be a worthwhile river in a short time. This idea, I believe, came from ex-Alderman Lamarche — right from the Black Bridge down to the Lachute limits, one big bathing beach, with parks, etc., fronting on the water. A wonderful dream, and let's hope it may be fulfilled. If you want to be materialistic about it — just think of the money that could flow into town, with an attraction like this.

The opening of the trout season saw many nimrods out after their favorite dish. Somehow I don't think many were successful. Water is much higher in the creeks than it has been for some time, and this could have spoiled a good many private spots; trying to find new haunts while rivers are in flood, is not funny. (I usually end up losing a few dozen flies from underwater growth, etc.) However, this coming week should see a difference in the lakes, and more pleasure-bent hombres on the loose.

I have been pleasantly surprised at the reaction to my views on detergents. Most of these calls have been from you ladies, and I must apologize right off for not addressing this article to you personally. In writing it, I thought the men would have been the ones to take note, as it was depriving them of fishing, and in some cases, hunting. In most of the calls one thought seemed to predominate: What are our children going to do? This is something I cannot answer directly, although I have some ideas that could possibly work. Ladies' clubs, a very powerful factor in any community; Home and School Associations, Service clubs — all these have the influence to right a wrong, if they only get together for the common good.

In fact, I offer a suggestion: If all the clubs in Lachute will get together on this problem, with petitions to the manufacturers and the CBC, then maybe something would come of it. Why the CBC? Because of the half-truths, and plain untruths, exploited in commercials for these products. I always thought there was some form of control against such extravagant advertising. . . Thank you once again for the interest shown in this matter; keep it up.

I would like to pass on some bouquets — these to The Watchman, for printing stories that are of interest to its readers. (Thanks, pal. — Ed.) Most of you do not realize that a weekly paper is yours; any beefs and complaints are handled for their interest and constructive value to the community. True, some discretion and decorum must be exercised in printing these letters, but in most cases they do appear. I have been writing for this paper now for many years. On certain matters I have expressed myself quite plainly and volubly, but (this is important) these stories have always been printed if they were considered for the good of the community.

Lachute wins Tip-Top trophy at badminton

In an enjoyable badminton tournament at Lachute High School last Saturday afternoon, Lachute won the Tip-Top Trophy by a narrow margin. This was the first time Lachute had claimed the Lower Ottawa Valley title since 1956, when it was in local possession.

There were 36 players taking part in the round-robin, from three centres — Lachute, Calumet and Hawkesbury; and the scores resulted in 22, 21, and 17 games for these teams, respectively.

Lachute club played host to the visitors, and the afternoon proved a pleasant and successful venture.

Finals, banquet held by United Bowling League

The annual banquet and finals were held by the United Church Bowling League on Monday evening, when approximately 50 members and guests sat down to a delicious dinner.

The president, Mrs. Wilson Bridge, extended a welcome to honored guests, who after the banquet were called upon to speak briefly. These represented the bowling leagues of the Anglican and Presbyterian churches.

The final game was between the Maple Leafs and the Thistles of the 12-team league, and they won their honors in a hard and interesting elimination process. The Maple Leafs pulled into a commanding lead of 7-2 after the third end, but the Thistles made a brave fight as the game concluded 10 to 7 for the Leafs.

The president asked the teams to present themselves for the prize giving, and the league champion Teenagers, (skipped by Ronnie Bain, with the Misses Judy Matthews, Gwen Matthews and Donna Holt) were given their awards. The play-off winners, the Maple Leafs (led by Howard Dixon, with Mrs. S. Wilson, Mrs. Bert McGibbon and Mrs. S. Boyd, sub.) were presented with their prizes, while the runners-up, Thistles (Mrs. Doug Smith, Mrs. A. Blute, sub, Mrs. D. Girling and Mrs. W. Wilson) were the other team.

After the presentations, a gift of appreciation was made to the retiring president, Mrs. Wilson Bridge, by Miss Gladys Davis, who spoke of her fine leadership as president over the past few years.

Fatstock production urged in Quebec

"QUEBEC THIS WEEK" by GERRY McNEIL

Quebec (CP) — Another plea for Quebec farmers to raise more veal and beef was heard this week. It is a familiar one across the country.

The Maritimes have turned to more cattle raising in recent years, and in Western Canada, farmers often have been urged to switch from grain to beef.

Grain surpluses and the headache of price supports prompted the advice to Western farmers. In Quebec, dairy products have the same problems. But neither government nor farmer faces many marketing problems in dealing with beef cattle or sheep. The great North American appetite for meat is far from satisfied.

Agriculture Minister Alcide Courcy of Quebec told the Purebred Livestock Raisers Association there is "a limitless" market for veal both in Quebec and the United States. It would be more difficult to increase beef production in this province, Mr. Courcy said, but it could be done gradually. Beef cattle could slowly be introduced to farms now concentrating on other produce. "The revolutionary aspect will be substituting beef cattle for dairy cattle," said Mr. Courcy.

Additional grazing land would not be hard to find, because of the number of abandoned farms. Areas in the northwest of the province could be used for breeding cattle through low-cost artificial insemination. Then herds could be fattened in the Montreal area, with its alfalfa and nearness to feed grain.

The Agriculture Minister pointed out that farm credit bodies could help finance the change-over from dairy production to beef raising. A prosperous future for Quebec farms "will rest principally on the expansion of animal products."

No matter how much work was done on price-support schemes for milk producers, sooner or later they would have to arrive at "the disagreeable but necessary decision to adjust their production to the demand."

A good way of doing this, he made clear, was to start making the change to beef or veal production.

District angler gets big trout

The Watchman's outdoorsman, Bob Atchison, reported yesterday the first outstanding catch this season — a 9½-lb. grey trout taken by Pierre Gagnon in the Dunany district. The fish was taken while spin-casting, on a 4-lb. test line. The trout was 28¾ inches long and 16½ inches in girth.

Look what they've done to "My Bank"!

Yes, we've just finished construction of our new addition and extensive alterations, and we think you're going to like the result! There's more room, brighter decorations and extra facilities at the Lachute Branch of the Bank of Montreal. But come . . . see for yourself!

Everything has been arranged for your convenience . . . there's much more space than before — a new streamlined counter, with five tellers' wickets for speedy service — two private coupon booths, for safety-deposit-box customers — and a large steel-and-reinforced-concrete vault with increased and improved safety deposit facilities for maximum security. Add to these features, new fluorescent lighting, rubber-tile flooring as well as complete redecoration . . . and you get the last word in banking facilities, in the most attractive surroundings.

In Lachute, as in hundreds of other communities across Canada, our aim is to provide the same kind of helpful service Canadians in every walk of life have come to expect from the B of M over the past 145 years.

DONALD M. HAY, Manager

You can bank your money 24 hours a day — every day

If you sometimes have trouble getting to the bank during regular banking hours, you'll be glad to know the Lachute B of M has an "around-the-clock" depository.

This unit means both private and business customers can make deposits 24 hours a day — seven days a week.

Be free from worry about loss through theft or fire at night or over the weekend . . . use the B of M's "around-the-clock" depository unit.

Any member of our staff will be glad to supply full details on request.

Big modernization job completed at B. of M.

An extensive modernization project at the Bank of Montreal's Lachute branch will be completed this week-end, according to Donald M. Hay, the manager.

The work included construction of an addition measuring some 535 square feet, as well as installation of new counter fittings to provide accommodation for five tellers. (There were four wickets before.) Two private coupon booths are located close to a new steel-and-reinforced-concrete vault, while additional fireproof storage space, for the bank's books and records, is situated in the basement.

Fitted with new rubber-tile flooring, an acoustic-tile ceiling and fluorescent lighting, the office has been completely redecorated in a pleasant color-scheme.

The alterations were carried out by Walsh-Canadian Construction Co. Ltd., architects, of Ville Brossard and Montreal, and the plans were prepared by Montreal architect Bruce Crowther.

The Lachute Branch was opened in March, 1917, as an office of Molsons Bank, which later merged with the B of M. Originally located in small rented premises on Main Street, the bank moved in 1918 to the Desjardins building and, in 1931, occupied its present office, now modernized and renovated.

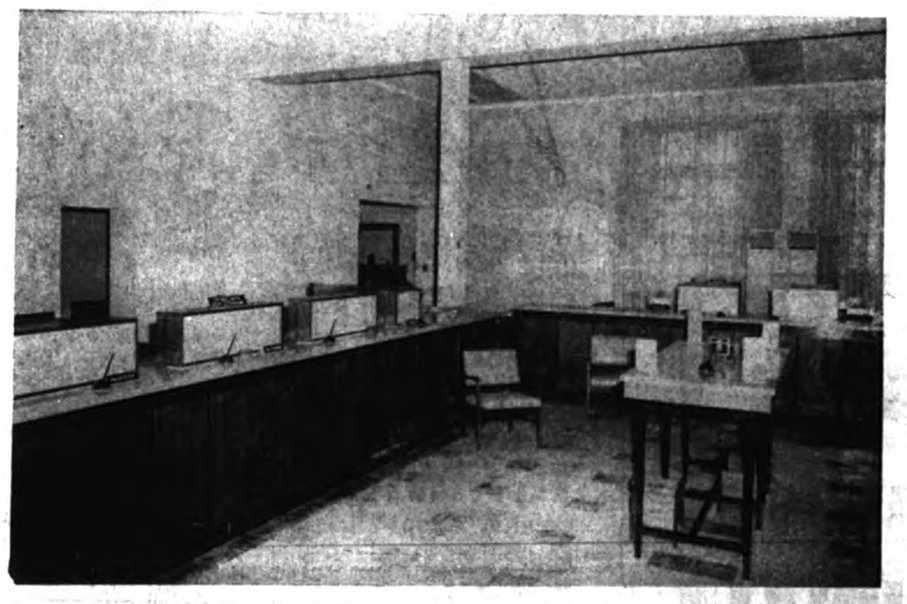

Mr. Hay, who has been manager here since October, 1949, began his banking carreer at Lachute Branch, when he joined the bank as a junior in the year 1924. He subsequently served at numerous branches in the province, as well as at Cornwall, Ottawa, Ont., and Grand Falls, N.B.

Contrast in B. of M. interior

These interior photographs of the Bank of Montreal's Lachute Branch, taken in 1919 and 1963 respectively, show a sharp contrast in banking facilities over the past four decades.

The old office was in use from 1918 until 1931, when the present premises were occupied. The recent picture shows part of the newly-renovated B of M office with its streamlined counter-line and modern decor.

Charities appeal at final stage in delayed areas

Various difficulties prevented certain areas in the diocese from keeping pace with the Charities Federation campaign within its prescribed dates, but these are now doing their part so that the coverage will be complete.

This was the case in Rosemere, which was canvassed in another campaign during the month of March. The Charities appeal is now under way in that parish.

Other difficulties arose in other areas, and the organizers are now well satisfied that canvassers are still enthusiastic to do their job for the Federation. A number of these are re-visiting donors who have expressed a willingness to increase their subscriptions, in view of the under-subscribed total at this date.

Special names and plant subscription-lists have boosted the result to $71,000; while other gifts pledged, but not yet handed in, give hope of $75,000 as a final outcome.

This is far from the original target of $130,000, prescribed to enable the dozen member-agencies to operate on a normal basis through 1963. It is, however, a very substantial sum for the first comprehensive appeal of this scope, and the committee feels the experience will afford a sound basis for future years' campaigns.

FUR TRAPPING

Kenora, Ont. (CP) — Fur trappers in Northwestern Ontario's Kenora district lined their pockets with $132,500 during the 1961-62 season. The Ontario lands and forests department reports the trappers took pelts from more than 25,500 fur-bearing animals.

Proceedings at April sitting of Town Council

Mayor Dave Campbell chaired the regular Council meeting for April, with all members present.

The Health Committee of the Council was authorized to purchase a fire extinguisher, at a price not exceeding $70, for use on the tractor at the garbage site.

Preliminary to a by-law providing for the establishment of an Industrial Fund, it was voted to petition the Minister of Municipal Affairs for authorization to set up such a fund for an amount not exceeding $500,000. Aldermen Bob Marcil and P. E. Pariseau sponsored the motion.

A new by-law for the regulation of chip-potato vendors (reported under separate heading in this issue) passed its first, second and final reading.

Ald. Edmund McFaul gave notice that at a subsequent meeting he would present a by-law to set up a price to be charged for construction of new sidewalks.

A motion was passed for the removal of a rock garden on the roof of the filtration plant under supervision of the two contracting firms, with the latter's assurance that the removal would not affect the guarantee on the filtration plant; also that steps be taken to cancel a projected contract with A. Paulsen, florist, with a corresponding credit to the town on this portion of the contract; and that steps be taken to ban access of the public to the said roof. . . The motion was sponsored by Ald. Dr. L. A. Middleton and seconded by Ald. P. E. Pariseau.

Role of sheriff topic of address

Impressions from his many years as sheriff of Russell and Prescott Counties, across the Ottawa River, were recounted by Capt. E. A. Johnson, of L'Orignal, Ont., before a small audience in the music room of Lachute High School last Saturday. The lecture was one in a series arranged by the Argenteuil Historical Society.

Among friends in these parts, Capt. Johnson is better known for his association with the earlier river navigation. His years in the role of sheriff, however, followed his war service in the Navy. In his duties he seems to have tempered the functions of a law officer with human understanding. His major triumphs were in averting seizures and evictions that would inflict hardship on the innocent; and in arranging the alternative settlement of just debts, his keen appraisal of human character evidently proved a valuable guide. . . The office of sheriff originated in England in 1388. The title comes from the derivation "shire-reeve" (reeve of the shire or county).

Capt. Johnson was introduced and thanked by Allan G. Talbot, president of the Argenteuil Historical Society.

Alberta pioneer related here, died in Edmonton

The late Sam Kennedy

Funeral services were held recently in Edmonton for Sam Kennedy, one of that city's pioneer policemen. Born at Alexandria, Ont., in 1872, Mr. Kennedy joined the Edmonton Police Force in 1910, when the force consisted of 13 men. He retired in 1941.

When he was 19, Mr. Kennedy travelled from Alexandria to Butte, Montana, to join his father who operated a sawmill. Shortly afterwards, the two embarked on a month-long journey through Indian country, travelling by horse and wagon to Alberta. Mr. Kennedy's father decided to settle at Leduc, and began a homestead.

Later, Sam Kennedy left the farm and headed for the gold fields. He first went to Salmon Arm, B.C.; then he and a partner left for the interior of the province, where they prospected for a few years. Mr. Kennedy met many different Indian tribes, some with little knowledge of white persons.

In 1910 Sam Kennedy returned to Edmonton and joined the police force. Following his retirement in 1941, he joined the Northern Alberta Pioneers' and Old Timers' Association, where he held a life membership until his death.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Peter Wild of Edmonton, a son, Lloyd, of Port Credit, Ont., four grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Katherine Wilcox of Lachute, Que.

United Church at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — The Units of the U.C.W. have been very busy in the last few weeks, as the report of finances showed at their meeting.

The U.C.W. entertained the ladies from the Maple Avenue Baptist Church at the general meeting, when the Rev. S. C. Woods was guest speaker and Miss Bonnie Gain guest soloist. This proved to be a very enjoyable fellowship gathering.

A donation was sent to Verdun Hospital, for the chapel fund.

Twenty-two ladies attended the Easter thank-offering service in Lachute, when Mrs. G. Johnston was guest speaker.

A Good Friday service was held and was very well attended by members of the Protestant churches in Brownsburg. Mr. F. Steere was soloist.

The Easter Sunday service had a record attendance; the choir rendered a beautiful Easter anthem.

Mrs. H. Elliott attended the Presbyterial of U.C.W. in Montreal recently.

"Would you mind not standing in the entrance, sir? I'm not very good at painting people."

New curriculum for Sunday School, U.C.W. Easter thank-offering topic

"Will the Kindergarten Outdistance the U.C.W.?" proved to be a thought-provoking subject, well chosen by Mrs. Geo. Johnston, 1st vice-president of the Montreal Presbyterial and wife of the principal of the United Theological College, when she addressed the U.C.W. at their Easter thank-offering meeting in Lachute United Church on Thursday last.

Mrs. Edgar Pollock, president of the U.C.W., welcomed United Church women from Brownsburg, Kilmar and St. Andrews East, and introduced the guest speaker.

A devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Wilson Bridge, who gave a vital message on "Encouragement", taking as her text Isaiah 41: 6, 7.

Mrs. Hart, of Kilmar, added to the service by singing, "Come Unto Him, All Ye Who Labour."

Having written a year's lessons for Kindergarten Sunday School children — 40 lessons, including stories, handwork, hymns, etc., Mrs. Johnston was well qualified to explain the new curriculum being undertaken by the Christian Education department.

Sunday School teachers involved in the New Curriculum will find that preparation for the Sunday School session will take more than a quick reading through the lesson on Friday night, but they will also find a tremendous amount of information, guidance and inspiration. Biblical background, which most teachers do not have; guidance for teachers — such as what to do for one whole hour (no less); a book of stories; some theological, some Biblical interpretation; meaning of the church; meaning of baptism; the new baby as a member of a Christian family; sin and death — all these are included in the new Sunday School helps. One thing missing from the lesson book will be printed Bible passages, so it will be necessary to use a Bible.

Teachers, parents and grandparents may find themselves in difficulty keeping up to the kindergarten child's questions. What he hears, when he goes home, may conflict with what he has learned in Sunday School, so deeper understanding on our part would prevent our getting into awkward situations.

One of the problems in writing the New Curriculum was that adults need to be educated first, so "The Word and the Way" was written by Prof. Mathers, who is "pleased but worried," because his book has been so well received. He is afraid that some feel that this — not the Bible — is the final word. The Bible is the centre of the curriculum.

A period of fellowship was enjoyed in the new church hall, where Unit 3 served refreshments, carrying out the Easter theme with appropriately decorated tables, arranged in the form of a cross.

Witnesses meet at Fabreville

Jehovah's Witnesses of Lachute and district will hold their next assembly in the city of Fabreville (Lucie Street, Boulevard Dagenais) April 26-28. According to Mr. Blair Shearer, local spokesman, over 300 members will attend.

Mr. Laurier Saumur, principal speaker for this assembly, stated that throughout the world more than 35,000 persons have joined their ranks in 1962. There are now a million preaching; last year they spent 142 million hours going from house to house — which means 4,000 hours of preaching have been necessary to convert each person. They have distributed 112 million magazines, and their activity reaches 189 countries now. Only last year, 609 new congregations were formed.

Their purpose consists of warning the people of the Creator's purposes. According to them, we are living in the last days, because the events which have happened on the earth since 1914 were predicted in the Bible.

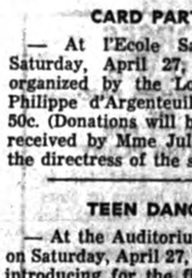

The main purpose of this gathering is to climax an extensive subscription campaign for their magazine, "The Watch Tower", which is printed in 66 languages and has a circulation of over 8 million copies a month. Each house will be visited by the Witnesses in order to invite the people to read "The Watch Tower".

Highlight of their assembly will take place Sunday at 3 p.m., when Mr. Saumur will speak on the subject, "Who Will Win the Struggle for World Supremacy?" Admission is free.

APPRECIATION

I would like to express my appreciation to both the Lachute Municipal and Provincial Police, also to Messrs. Linton Armstrong and Cliff Cunningham, for their quick thinking and action in connection with the Sunday evening hold-up at my home.

Wayne Riddell's choral group in successful debut

Eric McLean, music critic for The Montreal Star, has a highly complimentary review of the debut performance of Wayne Riddell's "Tudor Singers", at the Redpath Hall in Montreal last Sunday evening. Mr. McLean says, in part:

A new chamber choir of 17 mixed voices made its first public appearance in a concert Sunday night. Organized last fall under the direction of Wayne Riddell, the group calls itself The Tudor Singers of Montreal, and, as the name implies, their policy will be to plan their concerts around the great repertoire of English music from the Tudor and Jacobean periods.

It is a particularly well-balanced choir. Mr. Riddell is clearly an intelligent and thorough-going musician who knows how to get the most out of this choir.

The guest artists in this concert were Kenneth Gilbert, who played the organ which Casavant built for Redpath Hall, and the counter tenor, Martin Foltin, who sang in the solo parts.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Progress incurs increasing hazards

FIFTY YEARS AGO, a group of public-spirited businessmen, appalled by the needless loss of life and limb, got together and launched an educational movement whose purpose was to prevent accidents of all kinds. . . This was the Province of Quebec Safety League, which this week holds its annual meeting.

Since then, man has created more inventions than in all of the previous centuries combined. We have moved from a speed of eight miles an hour of the horse and buggy, to a speed of 18,000 miles an hour of the space rockets. We have learned to annihilate time and distance. The earth has become much smaller, and now we expect to reach the moon by 1967.

This tremendous advance in science and technology which made it possible for man to travel faster than ever before in his history, which has made possible new miracles in production, has, at the same time, created new dangers never before encountered. So, to the hazards of life which the League's founders faced 50 years ago, have been added the hazards generated by the space and atomic age.

For 50 years, the Quebec Safety League has been striving incessantly in the field of accident prevention. Through its province-wide educational program, it has contributed to the preservation of human lives — the most precious resource in our province.

The year round, the Safety League promotes accident prevention along many lines. But the members are determined that the next 50 years in the Safety League be as important, if not more so, than the 50 years just completed. They are making intensified efforts to meet the challenge of the future and to fulfill a vastly expanded program of activity.

We salute this public-spirited enterprise, and pledge our continued support.

Political courage of a high order

TO ASSESS the size and boldness of the government moves now needed to stimulate the Canadian economy, an editorial in The Financial Post urges consideration of these facts about jobs :

1. Canada's work force will be growing sharply faster in the next decade than in the past decade — yet in the last decade, we couldn't create enough new jobs to keep unemployment from almost doubling between 1956 and 1962. To get present unemployment down to more acceptable levels and to accommodate the big inflow of new workers every year, business will have to produce at least 800,000 new jobs in the next four years. If it can create only 500,000 — the number of new jobs created in the last four years — unemployment will be half again as high as it is now and almost three times the level of the mid-1950s.

2. Some 450,000 youngsters will have reached working age in the five years 1961-66 — as many as arrived at that age in the whole of the 15-year period 1946-61. Most of these teenagers are still in the schools — but the omens are not good. Teenage unemployment is now twice as high as over-all Canadian unemployment. Unless plans are laid soon, the years immediately ahead will see disillusion and discontent among young Canadians and anger and futility among the older workers pushed to one side by the more mobile youngsters or by automation. Meeting this critical situation will require powerful new incentives to expansion in the places that provide most of the new jobs — business and industry. This will take much government intelligence, and political courage of a high order.

The editorial fails to touch a point where (as we see it) political courage is most needed — that is, in the reviewing and revamping of unemployment lists. Why not start out right, by probing and purging and presenting Canada's unemployment picture in a truer light? In their present form our lists are fictitious. For instance, a generation ago, a female worker got married and withdrew from the labor market to perform her allotted job at home. Today — how many in such circumstances just withdraw and collect unemployment insurance as a rightful heritage — we would not venture to estimate. This and other abuses have long distorted the picture on employment. We need political courage to set this matter right. And with the election now past, votes need no longer be the all-important consideration.

Ready for summer driving?

THINK YOUR CAR is all set for summer driving? Maybe it is. But then again, maybe it isn't, if results of a 13,000-car survey in 400 U.S. and Canadian cities are any indication.

Conducted by automobile service experts on cars picked at random as owners pulled in for gasoline, the test revealed without much doubt that Mr. Average Motorist does not have his car properly prepared for warm weather driving.

Two out of three car owners, for example, did not have their cars' cooling systems serviced before hot weather set in. Six out of ten did not have their cars tuned up last spring.

The survey also revealed some interesting information about what happens when vital maintenance services are ignored.

For example, one out of ten motorists who did not bother to have their cooling systems serviced last spring, found themselves boiling over on express-ways and in traffic tie-ups with over-heated engines.

In the spring tune-up department, even more startling things happened. For example, when checked during the summer months, three out of every five motorists had spark plugs that were worn, while one out of every three had faulty ignition systems in their cars. Either or both of these factors can waste gasoline.

Other things you may wish to have checked on your car this spring — and which the survey showed were neglected by many car owners — are :

1. Fan belt — 35 percent of the cars checked had worn fan belts. A broken fan belt may strand you when you least expect it with an overheated engine.

2. Ignition timing — 70 percent of cars checked were out of time, which can cause poor gas mileage and loss of power.

3. Exhaust system — chances of having a leak, where dangerous carbon monoxide fumes can escape, are one in four, according to the survey.

One thing the survey didn't show is why people will invest a small fortune in an automobile, then neglect it to the point where simple routine maintenance operations become major repairs and overhauls. . . Probable reason for this is that performance loss occurs so gradually that it goes unnoticed by the average motorist until it reaches the point where more than a simple tune-up is needed to remedy the situation.

This is not an advertisement for garages and service stations; it is just a word of advice. — Better let your mechanic check your car now; before the little things become big ones.

Do-it-yourself sewer

ANY do-it-yourselfer who has had trouble evening-up the legs of a stool will have sympathy for the city fathers of Kingston, Ontario, and their do-it-yourself sewer — writes C. J. Harris in his "Clip-Sheet."

The Kingston board of works has just learned that a sewer built by civic employees — which a construction firm would have built on a contract basis for $2,200 — has cost $3,352. Not only that, but the sewer does not pass leak tests and more cost will be involved to check the joints.

"When we lay these people off," said Alderman Paul Kennedy, "we have the labor council on our neck and this is what happens when we put the men to work."

"Let the poet keep his pen and the peasant keep his plow," concluded Alderman George Webb.

FREEDOM OR COMPULSION?

Man cannot, in my opinion, discuss various political systems intelligently until he has studied the merits of freedom and of compulsion, and has made some choice between them. Let us have a look at each in turn.

Compulsion exists in the very act of living. If man chooses to live, nature insists that he breathe, move, feed himself. This is not a man-made law, nor does it apply to man alone. Every animal is faced with the same inevitable law, administered impersonally by nature herself. There can be no such thing as freedom from the need to breathe, move and feed. Energy must be expended in order to live. This we cannot change.

All other forms of compulsion are man-made. These we can accept or resist in favor of freedom.

Are there advantages in compulsion? There may be short-term advantages for those who impose the law; for example, it is probably a short-term advantage to me if I can force you to feed me while I take my ease. On the other hand, in order to force you to feed me, clothe me, shelter me, and all the rest of it, I must have arbitrary power over you, and would need to have an army or police force to keep you in line. One fine day that army or police force might turn on me, and I'd be in a bad way. Worse, of course, is the fact that in this master-slave relationship, my soul and yours would be destroyed. Had I made my own way and you yours, each would have a greater sense of freedom and responsibility and self-respect.

It is this kind of freedom that mankind has always sought to obtain. Whole societies have jointly financed a police force, in order that it might maintain your right and mine to make our own way — and not to interfere with each other's freedom. We devised laws for the same purpose, to defend the freedom of each under the rule of law.

Why this longing for freedom? It seems to be part of the nature of man and continually reasserts itself. The Negro slaves were sometimes well treated by their masters — yet they longed for freedom. Freedom, they knew, meant that they would have to make their own way, suffer some hardships, but in the long run they felt it was the only way they could be men among men.

There are a hundred facets to both compulsion and freedom. Each man, in these days particularly, should study them for himself and give them the deepest thought. Many political schemes are based on the advantages which would come from compulsion — and admittedly there are short-term advantages. But are they worth the sacrifices of freedom that would be part and parcel of such schemes? I, for one, would doubt it. I checked every scheme or political proposition against the amount of compulsion required to put it into practice. The more compulsion, the less I like it, regardless of short-term advantages.

Fire victims express deep appreciation

R.R. 3, Lachute, Que.,
April 17, 1963.

Editor, Lachute Watchman
Dear Sir:

Please allow me the columns of your newspaper for some thanksgiving. Usually people write to their local newspaper for the purpose of airing their discontent on some subject or another. Such is not the case in this instance.

Our home burned down near the end of November. At that time neighbors, friends, service organizations and people who were total strangers to us, came to our assistance with clothes, furniture and household articles of all kinds, and not least of all, a home to live in for the winter months. I couldn't possibly name all the donors, without exasperating the editor!

At the same time a group of people got together to collect money to contribute some articles of furniture for our new home. As a result of their efforts and the generous response of the people canvassed, we have a new refrigerator, an 8-piece kitchen suite and also a receipt from the Parish for the fire call. The committee supplied us with a list of the donors which, needless to say, cannot be thanked individually because of the list's length.

Let me take this opportunity to thank everyone for their kindness and understanding.

— Sincerely,
W. R. Parr

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

AIN'T NATURE GRAND

Anyone who puts up bird houses to attract our feathered friends, should look after them and remove all the old nesting material and make the roofs water-tight. This is exactly what I did NOT do, so had three neglected bird-houses around my camp at Lost River. Some two years or more previously they had been occupied by tree swallows, and I derived much pleasure in watching them. Last October I decided to take them all down and recondition them for 1963. One was up quite high in a birch tree. I climbed a ladder with a screw-driver and removed it, carrying it to the house by inserting my first finger in the entrance hole. Then I pried off the warped plywood bottom and started digging out the sopping-wet nesting material of shredded cedar bark. Just as I came to the last bit of material, out bounded an adult red squirrel who ran across my hand and up a tree before I could count two!

Now, what would a red squirrel be doing sleeping on top of a soaking wet mass of cedar bark? And why didn't he take a good bite out of my finger while I was carrying the birdhouse a distance of about 100 feet, with my finger inside the hole? I don't know who got the biggest surprise — he or I. But if I don't know what he was doing, he doesn't know what I'm doing — so that sort of squares things. Actually, I'm getting the houses ready to put up early in May — for tree swallows, not squirrels!

Be seein' ya!

F.I.L. Fixes Farms and Fattens Profits

There's no doubt about it — needed repairs and improvements are costly around the farm. Baling wire and burlap bags are a help when something goes wrong, but they contribute nothing to efficient operation and farm profits.

There's no need to let a shortage of ready cash interfere with the efficient operation of your farm when you can finance repairs or construction of buildings, purchase modern machinery and equipment and pay for improvements to your land with the help of F.I.L. — a low-cost Farm Improvement Loan available at the Bank of Montreal. In fact, you can do almost anything to improve your farm with a B of M Farm Improvement Loan.

Go-ahead farmers everywhere are using F.I.L. to boost their profits and save them time and work. If there are any improvements that will make your farm a better farm, why not talk to Donald Hay, manager at the Lachute branch of the Bank of Montreal. He'll be glad to show you how a Farm Improvement Loan can help your farm to better operation and bigger profits.

Tips on Children Telephoning

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Mummy, I want to play phoning. Where is my little red phone? I'm going to talk to Granny."

Little girls, and little boys too, love to pretend they are "grown up" and carry on imaginary conversations "just like Mummy". A toy phone can be a great source of happy times. It can also be a play tool by which a child learns how to answer the "real" phone.

What are some of the things a boy or girl should be taught about the right way to use the phone? First of all a child should learn that a phone in the home is a valuable instrument, for use and not for abuse. It should be handled with care. This invention which makes possible a business and social conversation with others at a distance is a very great convenience and time saver. Its ownership is a responsibility as well as a privilege.

The telephone should be answered promptly when it rings. Speaking clearly and distinctly with the mouth about an inch from the receiver is essential. It is unnecessary to shout — and rude as well!

There is no point in becoming angry with the operator over delays or mistakes. Sometimes these are not her fault. Often a person "guesses" at a phone number — and gives the wrong one! The numbers which are frequently used by a family should be written on a card which is hung near the phone for handy reference.

A child should be taught to be polite and be brief in his phone conversations. Consideration for others in the family who may want to use the phone and for the other subscribers on a party line makes brevity in speaking, (but not answering in abrubt monosylables!) important. Neither an adult or a boy or a girl should form the habit of "putting in time" in lengthy, aimless phone "visits" with a friend.

Children are great imitators. If they hear their mother using "little white lies" on the phone to excuse herself for attending a meeting, who can blame them for placing the mark of approval on this way of acting? If children never hear others asking, "Do you know who is speaking?" but rather notice that at the very first of a phone conversation, grown-ups in their home make a habit of saying, "This is Mrs. Blank speaking," they will follow this excellent rule — let the other person on the line know at once who called their number.

Sometimes a small child makes himself a nuisance trying to use the phone before he is old enough to use it properly. A fond granny or auntie may want to carry on a conversation with "Junior" but often busy people, who are not relatives, are annoyed by the delay in speaking to a small youngster on the phone.

It is also important that a child be trained to keep reasonably quiet or go to another room to play when a phone conversation is being carried on. Placing the phone in a hall instead of in the main living room often gets around this difficulty of noise impairing good hearing and also provides a more peaceful atmosphere for conversation.

In many homes where there are teen-age boys and girls, the use of the phone is a disputed issue. Daughter is expecting her beau to call her about a party next week — son wants to phone his girl to invite her to go to the movies without the whole family "listening" in. Adolescents do want and need privacy if they are not to be hampered by self-consciousness in talking with their friends on the phone.

But where there are a number of people in one home using the phone, an agreement should be reached about the minimum rules which will be fair for everyone. A Family Council on the use of the phone gives each one the opportunity to express his ideas about the length of conversations and taking turns on "Phone Duty," writing out numbers and messages which are phoned in. Democracy can be "at work" in your own household on making a Blue Print for the Best Use of the Phone for all the members of the family. Why not try this plan for improving "telephone technique" in your home?

GUIDE TO BUYING PORK

Good pork roasts and chops can vary in color from grey-white to pink (in young animals) to a deep rose (in mature animals). The meat should be firm with a fine texture and any marbling should be evenly distributed and firm. Poor quality pork is coarse in texture, dark red, and the fat is soft. — Chatelaine Institute

Crisp sportswear for summer

The crisp and tailored look for sportswear this summer is shown in this Arnel-cotton gingham check by a Toronto manufacturer. The skirt of the two-piece shirtwaist has A-line shape, and deep front pleat. The trim Oliver blouse can be worn with matching shorts. The cool fabric washes easily.

Try veal for variety cooking and seasoning

At this time of year when we are looking for something different for springtime meals, delicate flavored, tender veal is a good choice. The greatest amount of veal is marketed in Canada from March to June, and most comes from Central Canada.

Veal, more than any other meat, lends itself to cooking in a variety of ways and with a variety of seasonings. Cook books in almost any language will invariably feature veal in some form or other. Looking through a gourmet-type cook book the other day, we discovered over 60 ways of cooking veal chops or steaks and as many ways again of cooking "escalopes" of veal, i.e., cutlets from the fillet or leg. The home economists of the Consumer Section have been testing some of these gourmet veal recipes this month and have adapted them for Canadian homemakers. In the following recipes, veal chops were used but the same ideas could be used equally well for veal steaks or cutlets. You will need 1½ to 2 pounds veal for 6 servings.

Veal Chops à l'Italienne

Dip 6 one-inch thick veal chops* in seasoned flour, then in lightly beaten egg mixture (2 tablespoons water to 1 egg). Roll in ½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs. Melt ¼ cup butter in a frying pan and brown chops over a moderate heat allowing 3 to 4 minutes each side. Cover pan and place in centre of a moderately slow oven (325°F) for 25 minutes. Turn chops and cook uncovered 25 to 30 minutes longer. About 10 minutes before chops are cooked, sprinkle 1 tablespoon finely grated, strong cheese (preferably Parmesan) over each chop. Serve with lemon slices. Six servings.

Veal Chops with Mushrooms à la Crème

Season 6 one-inch thick veal chops* with salt and pepper. Melt 3 to 4 tablespoons butter in a frying pan and brown chops over moderate heat allowing 3 to 4 minutes each side. Cover pan and cook slowly over low heat for 20 minutes. Turn chops and cook covered for 10 minutes longer. Add ½ pound mushroom caps and ¼ cup chopped onion and continue to cook covered for 10 minutes longer or until chops are tender. Remove chops and mushrooms to serving dish.

To thicken gravy, blend 1 tablespoon flour into drippings in pan. Gradually add ½ cup water stirring constantly until smooth. Add 1 cup table cream and simmer, stirring constantly until thickened. Taste sauce and season with salt and pepper, if necessary. Strain sauce over chops and mushrooms. Six servings.

*(½ inch chops will take 8 to 10 minutes to cook on each side after browning.)

Veal Chops à la Lyonnaise

Sprinkle 6 ½-inch chops* with salt and pepper. Brown in ¼ cup butter over moderate heat allowing 3 to 4 minutes each side. Turn the meat and cook slowly over low heat, 8 to 10 minutes each side. Add ¼ cup finely chopped onions 5 minutes before end of cooking. Remove chops from pan and add 2 tablespoons water, ¼ cup vinegar and 2 tablespoons chopped parsley to pan. Heat well. Serve over chops. Six servings.

*(1-inch thick chops will take about 20 minutes each side to cook after browning.)

CANCER

Cancer's number one target among women is the breast. But authoritative statistics show that breast cancers caught in the earliest stage are 90-percent curable by surgery, says Reader's Digest.

Dental Assocn. gives advice on oral health

The Canadian Dental Association continues to make an increasingly intensive effort to fulfill its responsibility to convey to the public through all available channels the kind of up-to-date information which people themselves can use to preserve their oral health, and more particularly that of their children.

There is now reliable scientific knowledge which people can use as individuals, as family groups and as communities, to prevent most tooth decay and gum disease. The use of this knowledge does not require the presence of a dentist. It can conveniently be made a part of everyday living. Those who utilize it will experience very little, if any, tooth decay and gum disease, thereby reducing their own needs for dental treatment and making it possible for the dentist to meet the smaller needs of a very much larger number of people.

It is the desire and aim of the dental profession that all people should have this knowledge and that they should learn to use it. They and only they, through their own individual efforts can make it effective. The dentists can explain it to them and hope to inspire its adoption, but they cannot force people to use it, nor can they apply it for them.

It is simple and within everybody's reach. Here it is:

Select good food. (Canada's Food Rules are a good guide to this). Avoid excessive sticky-sweet foods, especially between meals and before retiring. Brush the teeth and gums always after eating, or at least wash out the mouth with water. Get your community to fluoridate its water supply.

These four preventive measures constitute a dental care program that can be carried on at a very low cost and in the absence of a dentist. Dental care is inexpensive; it is dental neglect that is costly — says the Canadian Dental Association.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Only four of the 43 women candidates were successful in the April 8 federal election.

But those elected — Liberals Judy LaMarsh in Niagara Falls, Mrs. Margaret Konantz in Winnipeg South, Dr. Pauline Jewett in Northumberland, and Progressive Conservative Mrs. Jean Casselman in Grenville-Dundas — have already shown that their energy will compensate for the small feminine representation in the House.

As soon as her victory was announced, Mrs. Konantz, an energetic 63-year-old grandmother, told her party workers: "Tomorrow I'm starting to plan how I can work for you as you have worked for me this glorious night."

Mrs. Konantz called her organization the KOEDS — "knock on every door." And that's exactly what her 1,600 workers did. During the last three weeks of the campaign, they went out morning, afternoon and evening making house calls, while Mrs. Konantz visited families who had requested to see her personally.

"I've been told I'm an old woman and an old-age pensioner in this campaign so I wore a pedometer to check my pace. It averaged 10 miles a day and 14 miles a couple of days."

Long Service

Mrs. Konantz has a long record of service in community and international organizations. She is the Canadian vice-president of the United Nations Association, Manitoba chairman for World Refugee Year and has travelled through Asia and Africa for UNICEF, UNESCO and the World Health Organization.

The day after her re-election, lawyer Judy LaMarsh was back in her office working.

Mrs. Casselman, daughter of Earl Rowe who has been appointed lieutenant-governor of Ontario to succeed J. Keiller MacKay, visited polls from eight o'clock in the morning until closing time on election day.

"That was about 150 polls in two counties," she explained. When asked if she was tired, she said, "One can't afford to be fatigued."

Classroom Technique

Dr. Jewett, a politicial science professor at Carleton University in Ottawa, credits her victory to the question and answer type of political meeting in which she specialized during her campaign.

"I let the voters fire questions at me, just as my students at Carleton did."

Dr. Jewett, who has a PhD from Harvard and has done post-doctorate studies at Oxford and the London School of Economics, is just as relaxed in the farm kitchen or on the tractor trail as she is in the classroom.

New Appointments

An example of the broadening role played by women in government was the appointment in Ontario on April 10 of two women economists to government agencies.

Mrs. A. F. W. Plumtre of Ottawa, national president of the Consumers' Association of Canada, was appointed to the Ontario Economic Council and Dr. Alice Turner of Toronto, assistant professor of mathematics at York University, was appointed to the finance committee of the Ontario Development Agency.

DESSERT FESTIVAL

SO GOOD, SO EASY TO MAKE

This "parfait" is the delight of everyone. Place, one on top of the other, 3 scoops of Lowe's vanilla ice cream. Add a thick mint syrup. Cover all with whipped cream (hmmm!) and serve.

In the bottom of your bowl place biscuits or marshmallows. Add one full scoop of Lowe's vanilla ice cream. Frost with caramel. In the wink of an eye, this dessert is ready.

Take Lowe's ice cream of variety to your taste. After your cup is full, add marshmallow or preserved fruits, a few nuts and a cherry to top this dish.

This is a strawberry Lowe's ice cream cone. It's not necessary to add anything else to this preparation. You will be able to taste the flavor of our strawberries!

Place 2 scoops of Lowe's vanilla ice cream in the container. On the side you can have pieces of pineapple or peach. Cover with whipped cream and crushed nuts.

For a fancier dessert, you place in an oblong dish 3 scoops of Lowe's ice cream. One, with chocolate ice cream, cover with marshmallow; one maple, and the third one with vanilla ice cream. Decorate with chocolate syrup.

Serum detects virus in trees

Rabbits are being used as a rapid means of detecting virus diseases in young fruit trees and potatoes, by research workers of the Canada Department of Agriculture.

After the rabbits have been injected with a particular virus, their blood serum is used to detect the same virus in plants.

At the Vineland Station in Ontario, Dr. J. L. Tremaine is using the serum to detect necrotic ring spot in young peach and cherry trees, and at the Fredericton Station in New Brunswick, Dr. R. H. Bagnall is using it to detect the widespread potato virus S.

The test is made by mixing a little plant sap with the blood serum from treated rabbits. The antibodies that had formed in the rabbit's blood against the foreign proteins of the virus cause the sap to become clouded if the plant is infected with the same virus.

To obtain the serum a rabbit is put through a series of treatments similar to that for humans who receive polio shots and later donate blood to be processed for its gamma globulin. Rabbits, like humans, produce antibodies to spare.

Since the antibodies are specific for a particular protein, the virus injected into the rabbit to produce them should be highly purified. This is done with a high-speed centrifuge.

Obtaining sufficient virus-laden sap from peach and cherry leaves proved a problem since the infected part of the leaf is very small, states Dr. Tremaine. The difficulty has not yet been overcome with sour cherry leaves.

Sap is easily obtained from potato leaves, but in earlier work the tests were often unreliable. Dr. Bagnall found that the virus concentration was affected by the temperature and light conditions in green-houses where his potato seedlings were grown. A great improvement resulted when these were corrected to provide favorable growing conditions.

Pasture-fed quality steers

Ottawa — Top quality steers can be produced in 17 months using only a small amount of grain and a single winter feeding period.

Use of good quality roughage and pasture is the key to this method of beef production which gives comparatively quick returns with a minimum expenditure for feed and management, says W. A. Jordan, of the Animal Research Institute in Ottawa.

Of 20 Shorthorn steers finished in this manner at the Central Experimental Farm, 11 graded red. The rest graded blue.

Spring-born calves were weaned in the fall with an average weight of 440 pounds. They were then fed a ration of good roughage which was supplemented by two pounds of meal per head daily. Average daily gain per animal during the winter was one pound.

By spring the animals averaged 606 pounds in weight. As yearlings, they were turned out on a four-year-old stand of a grass-legume mixture. The stand, which produced well, had been renovated from an old natural pasture.

No grain was fed to the steers while they were on pasture. They gained 1.6 pounds daily and, when marketed in mid-October, weighed an average of 870 pounds each.

Brucellosis control — cattle picture is healthier

The day when brucellosis will no longer plague Canadian cattlemen is drawing nearer.

A giant step towards this goal was taken recently with the completion of a general test of all cattle in Manitoba under the federal Brucellosis Control Area program.

General tests had previously been completed in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. In addition, all areas in the maritime provinces have achieved 'certified' status.

(Areas are certified when in a general test not more than one per cent of the cattle react and where not more than five per cent of the herds contain reactors.)

Officials of the CDA's Health of Animals Branch are hopeful that practically all areas in Canada will be certified by early 1965.

In Saskatchewan, testing should be completed before the cattle go out to pasture this year.

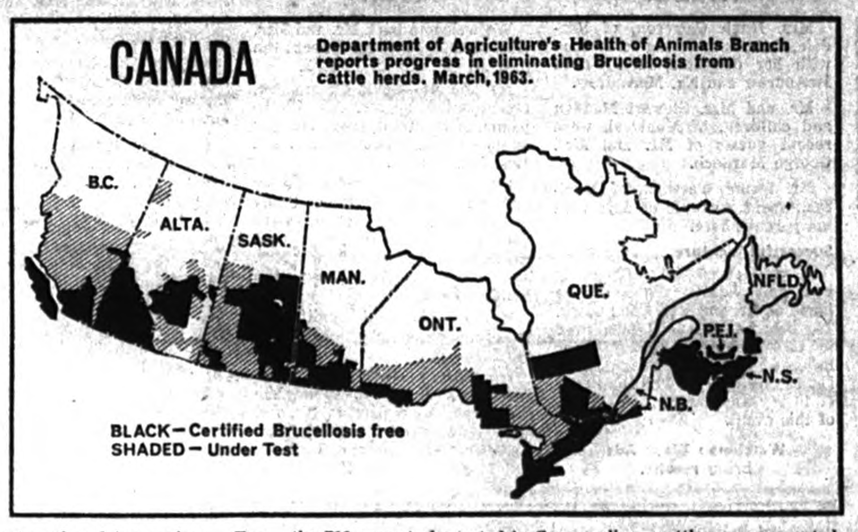

Many counties and districts in the other provinces have been individually certified. Across Canada, seven million cattle are now in such areas. This is nearly 60 per cent of the country's total cattle population. Seventy per cent of Canada's cattle have been tested at least once.

Testing has been completed in most major dairy regions. For instance, about 90 per cent of Ontario cattle are now in certified counties and about 98 per cent of Ontario cattle have had at least one test.

The brucellosis control program was launched in April 1957. Of the 710 areas to be tested in Canada, 552 had been completed at the most recent count with 497 achieving certified status. An area is certified for a three-year period.

To the end of January 1963, almost 130,000 reactors had been uncovered in the eradication program. Compensation paid to Canadian cattlemen amounted to $9,018,810.

One million cattle were involved in the recently completed Manitoba general test. The program took four-and-a-half years to complete. In the initial Manitoba test, about 20,000 reactor animals were slaughtered from 5,000 infected herds.

Various crops thrive in muck or organic soil

Given a little attention, muck — or organic soils — are suitable for a wider variety of crops than is generally believed possible, says E. F. Maas, of the federal experimental farm at Saanichton, British Columbia.

Muck soils are easily cultivated, facilitate penetration by plant roots and yield readily to expanding tubers or root crops.

Keys to successful cultivation of these soils are drainage, land preparation, weed control and fertilizers.

Adequate drainage is necessary to remove surface water and to lower the water table, Maas points out. Poor drainage results in cold, wet soil which delays tillage and retards growth.

Mole drains, installed in the fall, will help remove excessive subsoil moisture in the spring.

But Maas sounds a note of caution: guard against excessive drainage. This can lower the water table below the desired depth of two feet and deprive plants of a reservoir of readily available moisture.

Disks and rotary tillers are best for organic soils, which should be worked to a depth of one foot to develop a thick layer of surface soil.

Packing after planting not only firms the soil around the seed but also improves germination and facilitates the rise of water.

Weed control on organic soils is a problem — a big one. Once weeds are established they grow rapidly and are difficult to dislodge.

Fortunately, says Maas, the small annual weeds, which are most abundant, are easily disturbed and killed on these soils.

Frequent light cultivations and applications of pre-emergent weed killers early in the season are most effective. And, if the weather is dry, a dust mulch can be established to provide an effective deterrent to further germination of annual weeds.

After rainy weather, a light cultivation is required usually to control a new flush of weeds.

Use of fertilizers is essential for successful crops on organic soils.

Maas explains that such soils are high in total nitrogen but their conversion to a usable form is often quite slow.

Nitrogen should be supplied according to crop needs, he says. In addition, phosphorus and potassium — usually deficient in organic soils — should be used generously. Lime is usually required only on very acid peats.

Manure is recommended only during the initial years of cultivation. It is a good source of the minor elements, helps to decay the peat and to improve the soil structure.

Continued use of manure tends to encourage excessive decomposition of the organic soil which may lead to increased drainage problems.

Maas suggests using small amounts of the proper chemical compounds to overcome deficiencies in the minor elements.

BASIC RULES FOR HANDLING DOGS

It is particularly useful to have a puppy or dog that responds to one particular command quickly. One of the easiest to teach is the command "Sit".

With this word, you gently press the hindquarters of the puppy into a sitting position. While your hand is there, the puppy will naturally stay in this position, usually with his tail wagging.

At first, as soon as you take your hand away, he will spring up. But eventually he will get the idea and will stay for increasing periods of time.

Some dogs can be trained to sit, and remain in that position, even though you leave the room.

In handling your dog there are basic rules you should never forget:

1. Don't lose your temper.
2. Reward your dog for good behaviour, don't punish too harshly for disobedience.
3. He may not obey because he doesn't understand you.
4. Give lessons every day — dogs have short memories.
5. Be consistent, always praise for the same reactions and scold for the same faults.
6. Teach one thing at a time and don't make the lesson too long. Dogs get confused and bored — just as people do.
