Blood clinic donations 584, below quota

Final report from the Red Cross blood donor clinic in Lachute Auditorium, at closing time Tuesday night, indicated a total of 584 bottles of blood.

This result, reported by the joint chairmen, Paul Deslauriers and Bernard A. Jenkins, was disappointing in view of the quota of 700 donations. However, the spirit of the donors, and wholehearted enthusiasm of the volunteer workers, dispelled any setback over the outcome — and the chairmen and organizers expressing only sincere gratitude to all who helped in this project.

29th Annual meeting of Arg'tl Historical Society

There was gratifying public interest at the 29th annual meeting of the Argenteuil Historical Society, held Saturday afternoon at the Carillon Museum. The meeting was chaired by Allen G. Talbot, the president, with Thos. Harries in the secretarial role and H. Gilbert Ferrabee as guest speaker. Mr. Ferrabee is president of the Province of Quebec Museums Association, also Curator of Education at McGill University Museum.

In the election of officers, recommendations of the nominating committee, presented by Leighton W. York, were approved unanimously and the new appointees are as follows:

Hon. president, A. G. Talbot; hon. vice-president, Mrs. Archie Graham.

President, George McGibbon; 1st vice-president, Gilbert Arnold, Jr.; 2nd vice-president, M. R. Wilson.

Treasurer, Leighton York.

Secretary, Thos. Harries.

Corresponding secretary, A. Melville Smith. Other members were appointed to the directorate and committees.

Reports Heard

The treasurer and secretaries gave satisfactory reports.

On behalf of Mr. A. F. Hanly, still absent abroad, Dr. W. Harold Reid reported on the past year's historical lecture series, in which the attendance had been discouraging.

Reporting for Mrs. Norman Holland, absent due to ill health, Gilbert E. Arnold reported on affairs of the Edina Cemetery, a protégé of the Historical Society, which had now attained status sufficient to apply for charter and establish its own identity.

Miss A. L. Wales, on behalf of the library and documents committee, reported progress on the work of collecting and classifying historical records.

Fraser Watson, for the museum maintenance committee, reported on the condition of the building and gave recommendations.

The president reported for Dr. G. R. Rigby, who was unavoidably absent, on the work of the historical research committee, which in the past year had centred on sites and structures in the inundated area of the Ottawa Valley.

The report of T. Lund, curator of the museum, showed the attendance and receipts somewhat lower, due to an inclement summer and also to a diminished influx of visitors since completion of the Carillon Dam. There had been 2808 admissions this past season.

President Allen G. Talbot emphasized a need for new and younger members. He paid tribute to the efforts of the officers and committees, to the voluminous work undertaken by the corresponding secretary, and also to the continued interest of Mrs. A. Graham of Cushing, one of the few charter members present at this meeting.

Authority on Museums

Mr. H. G. Ferrabee, describing himself as "basically a school teacher", touched upon his role in the Education division, one of the various departments of the McGill museum. Also, on behalf of the Quebec Museums Association, he placed a high value on the affiliation of the Argenteuil Historical Society with the provincial group.

The objectives of a museum, he said, are four-fold: to collect, to preserve, to study, and to exhibit artifacts of importance to the locality. In exhibiting these items, it becomes necessary to make them intelligible and meaningful to visitors.

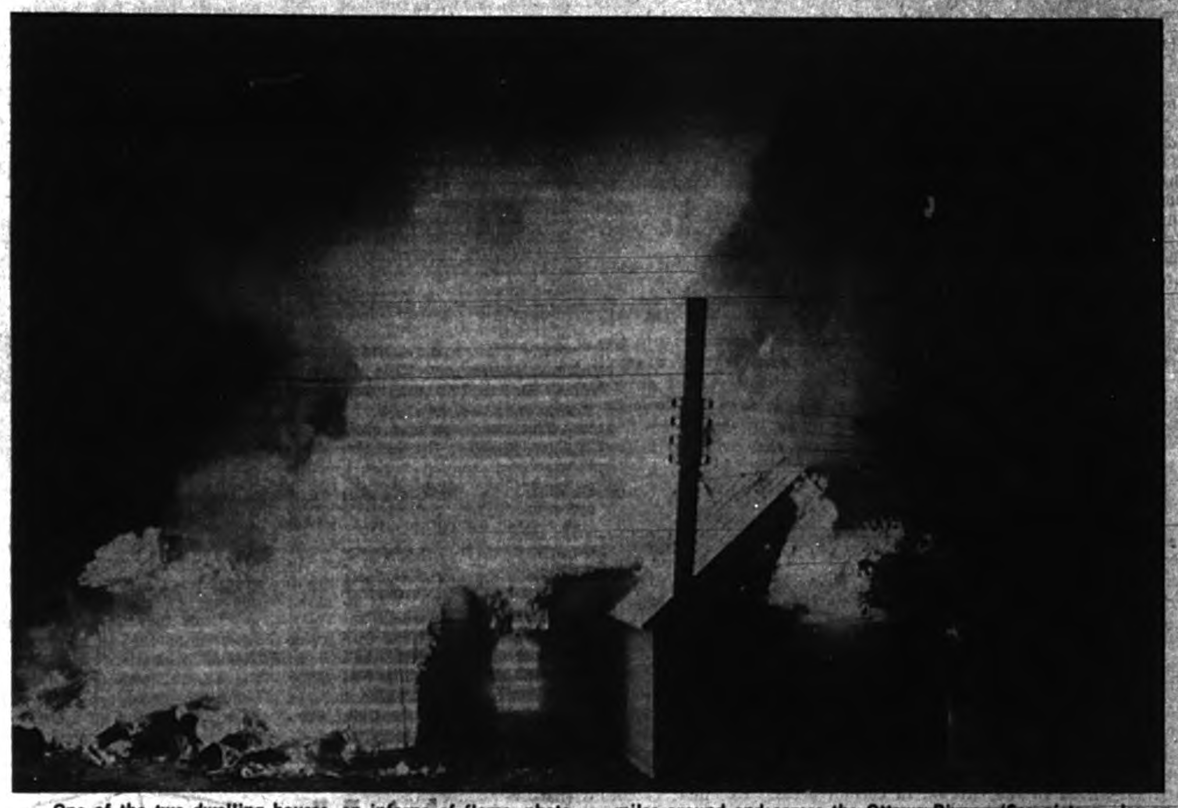

The building itself may be a museum piece, to be preserved in its historic form, or it may be merely an appropriate setting. In either case it imposes a problem for a group of devotees to maintain the structure.

Fulfilling these objects in all angles, and preserving for posterity not only the relics but the interwoven story of a community's human resources, presents a real challenge.

Mr. Ferrabee concluded with a commentary on color pictures screened from his own collection, showing historic sites in Montreal (including the Chateau de Ramezay exhibits in more detail), along the Richelieu River, in Ottawa, and at Kingston.

Homes, stores razed to the ground in conflagration at Pte. au Chene

Fire of unknown origin swept through a butcher shop, restaurant and two dwelling houses at Pointe au Chene last Saturday night, leaving five families homeless.

One of the homes destroyed was the property of John MacLeod, who had lived there for around 60 years. Mr. MacLeod, his daughter Nora, and Mr. and Mrs. Eric Gretton, lost practically all their personal possessions. Mr. MacLeod and his daughter were absent in Montreal at the time.

Viateur Lauzon and his family occupied another dwelling, owned by Wilfrid Villeneuve, of Hawkesbury. Mr. Lauzon operated the butcher-grocery shop. The restaurant was operated by a brother-in-law, Arthur Hebert. All buildings and most of the contents were completely destroyed. Massive maple trees in front of the properties had to be cut down next day, consumed by the heat of the blaze. There is no complete estimate of the loss at this stage, but tentative appraisals indicate $60,000 or $65,000. The occupants and proprietors had only partial insurance coverage.

The fire was noticed at 8.30 o'clock Saturday evening. Smoke was seen billowing from the attic of the restaurant; the discovery was made by Edmond Guindon, a Calumet taxi operator, who raised the alarm and informed the occupants of the building.

Fire Chief T. H. Foreman, with his crew and equipment, was summoned from Calumet. The Hawkesbury fire department also were on the scene, about an hour later. Hose was laid with considerable difficulty from the river, where the descent is gradual and the water shallow, up across the railway track. Chief Foreman reports that a portable pump was operated at the river's edge, and the larger pump-truck some distance up the incline. Despite these handicaps, however, water was being directed effectively onto the blaze.

Unfortunately, a freight train approaching on the track severed the hose — the train crew being apparently unaware or unable to stop, despite arm waving and a flasher operated up the track. Much valuable time was lost in re-establishing connections and renewing the water supply. A stream was played on the roof of the hotel about 50 or 75 feet away, which appeared in danger from heat and sparks.

Certain sources of information attribute the cause to electric wiring above the store premises. The fire spread and within two hours the dwelling houses owned by Mr. Villeneuve, and by John MacLeod, were both consumed. The Gascon Hotel and Campbell Garage were the next nearest properties. Both escaped damage. The Hawkesbury fire crew, under Chief Gabriel Lacelle, concentrated on the hotel roof, with hose directed from their pump truck. Firefighters were on the scene until after midnight. The village was without electric power until Sunday.

Ballet troupe was stirring product of star couple's 'Leap to Freedom'

Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky, former stars of the Leningrad (Kirov) Ballet and Budapest's leading dancers before their flight to the West in 1953, fulfilled a long cherished dream in forming the Hungarian Ballets "Bihari" which will appear in the first 1963-64 Community Concert here — Oct. 14 at l'Ecole Secondaire, Lachute. (The change of venue is due to more adequate stage facilities at the Catholic high school. In fact, all concerts this season are being presented at l'Ecole Secondaire.)

"Ballets Bihari" (named after a famous gypsy violinist-composer) brings together a sextet of spirited dancers and an ensemble of fiery gypsy instrumentalists playing violin, clarinet, cimbalom, bass and harmonium, all in costume, presenting a program of Hungarian folk and classical ballet numbers, with original choreographies by Karoly Barta as well as by Kovach and Rabovsky.

Here is a new conception in programming, and who but Kovach and Rabovsky could do it! This charming couple, former stars of the Budapest Opera Ballet and the Leningrad Ballet, whose exploits have been so vividly described in their book "Leap to Freedom", have drawn the members of "Ballets Bihari" from among the finest free Hungarian artists now resident in the United States, and their commitment to the music-and-dance of a fondly remembered homeland ensures a zestful program.

Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky have brought together dances, tunes and colors from many of Hungary's localities. Here then is a program of entertainment and artistic interest for all, where folk dance and ballet meet and are blended across the footlights to the zing of stirring music.

For Community Concert, October 14

Hungarian Ballet's "Bihari", which will appear October 14 at l'Ecole Secondaire in the first of this season's Community Concerts, stars Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky, former stars of the Budapest Opera Ballet and the Leningrad (Kirov) Ballet. The Hungarian born artists, with a brilliant troupe of free Hungarian dancers and musicians are shown here with some of the members of the "Bihari" company in the traditional "Czardas".

Grenville child is killed by truck

A three-year-old boy was instantly killed under the wheels of a truck, near his home at Grenville last week. Kenneth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hoffman, of Morrow Street, was the victim of the fatality, suffering a skull fracture and multiple injuries.

QPP agent Yvon Fauchon, of Lachute detachment, investigated. It was reported the child was playing with other young children in the street. The truck driver, Wilfrid Laviolette, 45, of Lefaivre, told police he had only just warned the youngsters away from the truck when the little victim came close again, and unseen by the driver when he started up, was crushed beneath the wheels. The father rushed the little boy to the Notre Dame Hospital at Hawkesbury, but the victim had succumbed.

The body was brought to the morgue in Lachute and Dr. Roger Lavigne, joint coroner, decided an inquest was necessary to establish the circumstances of the death.

Besides his parents, the child is survived by a five-year-old brother, Garry.

An inquest, under Dr. Roger Lavigne, joint district coroner, will be held on Thursday, October 10.

Plan curling events, ice ready November 1

A hundred-percent attendance of the 12 directors of Lachute Curling Club at a meeting on September 23, augurs well for an active season in this district. President Keith Rutherford chaired the meeting.

James A. MacKimmie, in charge of ice-making, was requested to have ice ready for play on November 1.

An open mixed bonspiel will be held from November 8 to 16 inclusive, and will be under the direction of Linton W. Armstrong. Play for the Lachute Mixed Bonspiel cup had been discontinued for several years, but it has been decided to resume play for this year, to get local curlers off to an early start. Details of the bonspiel will be given at a later date.

The semi-annual dinner meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday, November 6. Members are asked to keep this date open — all meeting together to launch the 1963-1964 season with enthusiasm.

All curlers are requested to spread the news of the Mixed Curling Bonspiel far and wide, to ensure the participation of outside clubs. . . Let's get those sweaters and boots out of mothballs!

Week's Epigram

It's mighty hard to see what's going on around you when you stand in the spotlight too long.

Jail term and permit suspended in cyclist's death

Jean-Guy Dubois, 23, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., was sentenced last week to six months in jail on a charge of criminal negligence resulting from a Grenville accident in which Gilles Aubrey, 14, of Grenville, was instantly killed. He was also fined $100 plus costs, and had his license suspended throughout Canada for a two-year period, on an impaired driving charge resulting out of the same accident. The sentence was handed down in St. Jerome court.

Dubois was found criminally responsible in the death of young Aubrey by a coroner's jury early last month; the jury was presided over by joint district coroner Dr. Roger Lavigne.

Eight witnesses gave testimony on the accident, which occurred at 8.20 p.m. August 30, approximately 500 feet north of the Perley Bridge. The victim and a companion, Richard Woodbury, were riding their bicycles when they were struck from the rear. Woodbury was not seriously injured, but his companion died on the way to hospital.

Presentation of Industrial Scholarship

Thomas Edward Patterson of Mille Isles (left) received a $300 cheque as winner of the Prescott-Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship, at a meeting of the Chemical Institute (Hawkesbury Section) held at the Abenaki Golf Club last week. Presenting the cheque, above, is Dr. J. H. B. Herbst, scholarship chairman of the Institute, with H. Dyer, president of the group, at right.

The young winner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Patterson and a graduate of Morin Heights High School, is a freshman at Macdonald College, enrolled in the four-year course for B.Sc. in Agriculture.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

The duck season opened with a loud bang. Not too many birds were seen, but this lack was more than made up for by the increase in hunters. I think the shortage of ducks was expected in this quarter, but the enthusiasm sure made up for any shortage. Beachheads were established all over, with a number of hunters in from Montreal. Some of the stories heard were funny, but they could have been tragic. In one case a gent was so anxious to clobber a lone duck flying past that he pulled the trigger on his 12-ga. too fast, ending up with a hole in his boat that soon filled it! He got a little wet too. The Ottawa River looked like the corner of St. Catherine and Peel on a Saturday afternoon. Blinds were so close together that it would have been an impossibility for anyone to shoot without asking his neighbor to move over. Of course, some of the blinds were taken over by people too lazy to build their own, and accordingly, a good number of fights were reported. Fortunately, no damage was done in any of these tiffs. However, there could have been; with so much "giggle juice" flowing around, a hasty word could have developed into a real brawl.

* * *

It is to be understood that some of these blinds would be taken over by others than the builders; but this sure does not make for good sportsmanship. I also heard of a couple of near-misses. In one case the flying shot went right through a coat, leaving a small puncture in the recipient's back. The other victim got hit on the cap; this could have been a serious one. . . It does not look too good for the deer opening, lead will be flying in every direction; and a few of the more experienced boys say they will not be out after deer until the cold weather really sets in. At least, in this kind of weather the drugstore shooters will be staying home.

* * *

The close of the trout season was very good. Excellent fishing was enjoyed in almost every spot. Good fish were taken in Lake Louisa, and a few out of Silver, with Lake Macdonald up to good form. It seems the trout planted in this lake have been taken in good numbers. I haven't anything official on these, but I did hear a story that a trout of 4 lbs. was taken there last week. Northerns are starting to pick up in the North River; this of course was expected. With the water getting colder all the time, these fish will be on the look-out for a good meal. As I mentioned some time ago, the shortage of minnows in the river seems to have made them hungry, and by the time the fishing is all through, they should be peeling the paint right off the spinners thrown at them. Perch have also been very good in the Ottawa, in certain areas. Excellent catches have been taken right beside the dam, but the best seem to be in the bay at St. Placide. Doré are also reported in this area — so there is plenty of good fishing left yet for the anglers.

* * *

Partridge are maturing very well in the district, and there should be a lot of sport in this field. Mourning Doves are still with us; how long they will be around though, is anyone's guess. Plover are not too plentiful, and I don't think they will be, this year. Woodchuck are hard to spot, so that it appears there are not too many of them around. Hungarian partridge have increased greatly and they can be spotted in St. Andrews vicinity almost every day. They are tricky birds to hunt, so they should survive in fair number and possibly increase next year.

* * *

As I promised — some hints on preparing wild game for the table: Most game should be steeped in salt and water for at least 30 minutes. This will take out any of the gamey taste that so many people dislike. Preparation starts however before the cooking. As soon as shot, all game should be field-dressed, that is, the viscera should be taken out to allow the carcass to cool. This is very important. It is obvious that while a hunter may be walking around with a couple of birds or rabbits not cleaned, this allows the blood to congeal and soak into the meat. You have seen meat that has darkened considerably. Most of the time this is due to improper bleeding, and heat. Once this is done, you can carry the carcass around with no danger of the meat becoming tainted. No wild meat can be cooked rare; nearly all of this type has a fat that is not too edible — more like tallow than anything else. Cleaning most of this off before you cook, is naturally the best; but still, as I have mentioned, no game should be cooked rare, nor should it be ground up. Most of the time it ends up tasting like sawdust. All game has a rich flavor, so that a very mild sauce should be used. As an instance, ducks taste excellent with orange peel or lemon peel draped over while cooking. As a stuffing, plenty of bread crumbs rolled up in bacon strips will do the trick. You read a lot of recipes calling for wine sauce, etc.; this may be fine, but in a lot of cases you do not have the cooking wines on hand.

* * *

In the case of birds, these should not be plucked but rather skinned. This way is much easier and cleaner, also, you remove all the fat which is immediately under the skin, without having to drain it off after cooking. With ducks especially, the fat for their protection is right under the skin, and it's a tough job trying to get this away so that it will not flavor the meat. Even your Sawbills taste fine done this way. With rabbits you don't have to bother with the fat, or tallow; there is so little of this that its taste is unperceptible. As a matter of fact, you have to add fat with the rabbit, to make good eating. Most of you know how to cook deer, and that all fat must be removed from the meat. Very hot plates are needed to really have a good meal of deer, as a cold plate tends to cool down the meat too fast and give you the tallow taste. Doves do not need any fat with them as they have enough. This also applies to some partridge; you will see this for yourself when cooking the birds. We have found coating the doves with ground-up cornflakes makes a very tasty dish, certainly worth trying. Any recipes you may like to try — give me a call and I'll endeavor to give you something different.

* * *

It really looks as though more people are becoming safety conscious these days in their hunting expeditions — at least, for their own preservation. Colors for hunting wear have been much in the news these past few days. From all information gathered, the top colors seem to be orange, red and yellow, with checkered coloring following after. We have had red preached at us so long for bush wear, but tests carried out this past couple of years seem to lower its value. Orange was the most visible at all distances, while red seemed to blend in with backgrounds after a certain distance. Yellow is close behind the reds; as a matter of fact there is not too much difference in them. Checks with white may show up as the tail of a deer, while the browns resemble the body. It's up to you, though, if you wish to get shot. Even pants, socks and boots have been under this test. I was surprised at the numbers of people who had been shot through wearing socks with white in them. In many such cases the wearer was seated on a log dangling his legs, and the white appeared to be the tail of a deer lying down. Also, pants should be of a light color, but with no white in them. Reading this account of safety color studies, I was surprised at some of the accidents (so classed) from this one cause.

* * *

Of course, as the article points out, no amount of safety clothing will keep you alive unless you are willing to learn and teach safe handling of firearms. This is true: all it needs to turn a hunt into a tragedy, is to have some joker along who knows nothing of the rules and safe handling of guns.

Remember this — a gun cannot and does not fire itself. . . Bows and guns don't mix, either. . . If in doubt about what you are shooting at, then don't pull the trigger; better to lose your game than to have a death. That's not an accident, remember it's murder.

Hunters asked to collect woodcock wings

Hunters who enjoy the challenging target of the quick, erratic flight of a woodcock are asked to assist biologists of the Canadian Wildlife Service of the Department of Northern Affairs and Natural Resources by collecting one wing from each bird they shoot. The biologists need information which can be obtained only by examining and measuring a large sample of woodcock wings.

The wings are used by the biologists to determine the age and sex of the birds. Age is determined by examining differences in the pattern and color of the feathers on the wings. Sex is determined by observing a difference in the size of the large outer primary feathers.

Age and sex ratios provide an indication of the number of young birds being shot, and thus of the success of the preceding breeding season. Over the years, the numbers of wings sent in by each hunter will give an idea of the total number of birds taken each year. The more information hunters can give the biologists, the better our management of woodcock can be.

The woodcock is a challenging game bird for the hunter. It is usually found in moist thickets where the ground is soft and a supply of worms is available. The woodcock's color protects it well from the hunter's eye; it is very difficult to spot when not in flight. Most woodcock hunters depend on a good dog to assist them with their sport.

The Canadian Wildlife Service has prepared printed envelopes in which the wings can be placed for mailing to Ottawa. The envelopes are available from the Chief, Canadian Wildlife Service, Ottawa.

Affairs of the Arg. Fishing and Hunting Assocn.

At the Brownsburg Legion Hall at 8 p.m. next Sunday, October 6, the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association will meet to discuss matters of concern to the membership, and also plans for the hunting season. All members are invited to this meeting.

The Association is pleased to note that Sixth Range Lake was re-stocked last week by the provincial department, following requests from this organization. There are 3,500 young grey trout, and the Association asks all fishermen to protect and conserve these fish for the future of the sport.

For October 13 another fish derby is planned, at the Fernand Ouellette property on the Ottawa River.

Contest Held

Patrick Lalonde once more proved winner of the top prize, in last Sunday's fishing contest at Trout Lake, near Huberdeau. Fifty-odd enthusiasts braved the foul weather and took part in this last competition of the lake fishing season. The Hotel Gagnon was the scene of a bean supper and distribution of prizes following the day's outing.

Private club, Lac Laurel

The Quebec Official Gazette gives notice of letters patent granted for a private club, without share capital, to be known as "Club Privé du Lac Laurel", situated at the said lake in the Township of Wentworth. Among the several promoters from the Montreal area are listed also Leonce Gosselin, of Laurel, and Réal Demers, of Brownsburg.

Logging crane

Youbou, B.C. (CP) — Automation is doing away with one of the most hazardous tasks of the logging business.

A huge automatic timberdeck crane has been installed at the B.C. Forest Products factory in this Vancouver Island community, the first in the country.

The crane sorts and moves timber, the heaviest and most dangerous work in any sawmill, says a company spokesman.

Sheer muscle power has been replaced by the crane as each individual timber is moved from the assembly line to separate sorting areas.

The crane, which cost $75,000, has a 40-horsepower electric motor driving a hydraulic pump which operates the entire system. It can lift more than 6,000 pounds at a time.

Town at odds over procedure of Health Dept.

Buckingham, Que. — At the last meeting of town council a letter was read from Dr. Belanger, Medical Officer for Papineau County, saying that the Town of Buckingham should take action against Municipal Acceptance, for allowing a septic tank in a home they own to drain onto the street, instead of having the house hooked onto the sewer lines.

Members of Council did not agree with the Department of Health, saying that the Department had the services of the Attorney General and the QPP to enforce the law, while the town did not even have its own court.

Complaints were aired on the court situation in the town, with some aldermen remarking that when the town took a case to court and won, the fine went to the provincial treasurer, but if they lost, the town had to foot the bill for court costs.

It was finally resolved that Mr. Charron, the legal advisor, communicate with the Attorney General to find out what to do in this case.

(The Buckingham Post story reporting this situation, is titled "Must We Work for the Health Department?")

A Lachute-born educationalist becomes principals' principal

The subject of this extract from the Hamilton Spectator, Mr. Leslie W. Waddell, spent his early years in Lachute just prior to the turn of the century, when his father was serving here as minister of the Methodist Church. . .

After 36 years in the teaching profession, Leslie William Waddell, of Hamilton, who retires this month after 13 years as principal of Delta Secondary School in that city, starts a new career.

Appointed executive secretary of the Headmasters Association of Ontario, Mr. Waddell outlined the association's future hopes of co-ordinating the curriculum in Canadian high schools.

He said secondary school principals realized the great variations of standards in high schools and the problems that faced students moving from one province to another.

Before co-ordination of curriculum could be accomplished, the Ontario association's first step was to get other provinces interested and organized into a national association, he said.

Educational research and assistance to high school principals in such complex matters as timetabling, were part of the association's present services to secondary school heads, he said.

Born in Lachute, Que., and educated in Georgetown, and the Ontario College of Education, Toronto, Mr. Waddell said he had first planned to enter the ministry. He served six summers then began his long teaching career in Caledonia, Ont.

At Delta, where there are 2,200 students, Mr. Waddell said he often reminded the 98 members of his staff, "One of the big things we have to learn is to teach the boy and girl and not the subject."

After 36 years in the teaching profession he found it difficult to name the greatest reward of his career. "I guess it is in the thousands of young people I have been able to assist," he said.

To re-join local police force

CST. J. E. PINEAULT

J. Eudes Pineault will resume duties as constable on the town force, effective October 7.

A former member of the RCMP, he has served also with the Military Police, as a qualified Service Police non-commissioned officer, and a paratrooper. After his military service he worked as investigator for the Quebec branch of the Retail Credit Co., and also for a private detective agency.

A high school graduate, Pineault has spent the past 11 years as federal agent in the Customs and Excise Division, mainly in Quebec City and St. Jerome. While in Quebec City, he acted as lieutenant of the local company of the Canadian Corps of National Troopers.

Many citizens of Lachute will remember Cst. Pineault, who served here for a year and a half as auxiliary policeman.

Recently qualified as an automobile accident investigator from the Liberty School of Claim Investigating and Adjusting, Pineault is also a member of the RCMP Veterans' Association, "M" Division, Montreal, and of the International Association of Police, from which he intends to undertake the course in Crime Prevention and Criminology this fall.

Mr. Pineault is married and has one young son. He and his family are happy to become residents of Lachute.

SMART!

Interior decorators favor fire screens. So do firefighters. They look smart in front of a fireplace, smart enough to keep sparks from igniting the rug.

Old townsman was long-time Ayers employee

The late "Herb" Underhill

Many friends and fellow citizens gathered at Lachute United Church this afternoon (Wednesday) to pay their last respects to the late Herbert Edward Underhill. Mr. "Herb" Underhill (thus known to his friends), was an old and respected citizen, unassuming by nature, and a familiar figure to many in this town.

Born in London, England, in 1881, he came to Canada in 1910, and joined the staff of Ayers Limited in 1913. He retired in 1953, after 40 years' service with the Company. He was a charter member of Lachute Lions Club.

Predeceased by his wife, the late Mr. Underhill is survived by one son, Raymond, of Lachute, a daughter, Beryl (Mrs. Gordon Simpson) of Hamilton, Ont., 14 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren. There remain also two sisters, in England.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Wilmer B. Rosborough. Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Thos. Ayers, Horace Deslauriers, John Dixon, Nelson Lepage, Edmund McFaul and Rolland Rinfret. The remains were laid to rest in the family plot at Lachute Cemetery.

Rev. Wilson Bridge welcomed to Ontario pastorate

A new chapter was opened September 11 in the history of St. Stephen's United Church, Falconbridge, and St. Paul's United Church, Garson, Ontario.

Members and adherents of the two churches gathered in St. Paul's for the induction of their new minister, the Rev. Wilson Bridge. The well-attended service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. J. W. E. Newbery, president of Huntington University, who presented the minister-elect before the presbytery and the congregation for acceptance.

The service of induction was led by the Rev. Gordon S. J. Adams, chairman of Sudbury Presbytery. The sermon was preached by the Rev. A. H. Vickers, minister of St. Stephen's-on-the-Hill United Church.

Following the service, a reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. Bridge in the basement of St. Paul's. Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Giles of Lachute, Mr. Bridge's former pastorate.

Mr. Bridge studied at Paton Congregational College and University College, Nottingham, England. He served here at Lachute for ten years.

Farmers' Supply employee attends manager course

For George Desfosses, of the Farmers' Supply Co. Ltd., it was "back to school" time recently. He joined 31 other independent hardware retailers at Toronto's Ryerson Institute for the second annual management course sponsored by the Canadian Retail Hardware Association.

The "students" found much of interest in the course, which was designed to keep independent retailers abreast with modern management methods.

Changing conditions in retailing are making it necessary for progressive dealers in all trades to study under marketing specialists at classes of this type, to better serve the consumer.

On wedding trip to Europe

At the St. Bernadin church on Saturday, August 31, Miss Denise Gauthier, R.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henri Gauthier, of that parish, became the bride of Mr. Gilles Whissell, of Lachute. Following their wedding trip to Europe, the couple will reside in St. Jerome.

Business premises levelled by blaze

Beneath a blackened "Restaurant" sign, embers are all that remain of a grocery store and restaurant at Pte. au Chene. Adjacent is the storekeepers' residence in the throes of destruction, and beyond that, the home of John MacLeod, occupied by his family for 60 years, is seen burning fiercely. Two-year term on conviction of breaking, entering

A companion, Robert Ferguson, 20, also of Laurel, will be sentenced October 15, according to Q.P.P. Agent Sam Kille, who investigated the incidents and laid charges.

Coast Guard gets its first rescue ship

Vancouver (CP) — A new chapter is being written in Canadian shipping.

Canada's first specially-built rescue ship has been launched and seen brief service as the country's first Coast Guard cutter.

Christened the Ready, the trim 95-foot cutter is the first of five such vessels that will act as watchdogs in Canada's coastal waters, functioning chiefly as search and rescue units.

A second 18-knot cutter, to be named Racer, will be launched in Victoria this month, two more will see service on the East Coast and a fifth will patrol the Great Lakes.

With search and rescue a prime function, the trim little ships will also maintain certain marine laws. But as one Coast Guard officer says:

"We're not police officers. We don't want our captains spending their time sitting in magistrate's court."

However, one problem the Coast Guard will be interested in is freighters dumping oil.

Like her sisters, the Vancouver-built Ready is equipped to fight fires, carry out limited underwater repair work, has an electric hydraulic 1½-ton winch on her main deck and carries a 16-foot fibreglass work boat and two 10-person life rafts.

Included in the Ready's equipment are two complete scuba diving outfits. Her skipper, Capt. John Straud, says the Coast Guard is looking for young men with scuba, or skin-diving experience to use the equipment.

They will be trained for their roles by the Department of Transport, which is responsible for the inland service.

The Ready can carry a crew of 14, but Capt. Strand says he'll operate with only 12 aboard.

The cutter patrols outer Georgia Strait between Vancouver and Victoria. But when the Racer is launched, the two will divide duties, one patrolling the Strait; the other heading into more northern coastal areas.

TAKE FOR GRANTED

Did you ever stop to think of the forms of entertainment around you that you take for granted? Ten years ago you got the line that in Grandma's day there were only horses and buggies — no cars. Even five years ago, mother said that in her day there was no such thing as a cake mix or instant pudding.

TAX BRAINS

Perhaps the country should find some way of profiting from the export of brains just as it does from other exports. A tax on university educations leaving the country might be unpopular — but more profitable than spending millions to educate people so they can find jobs in the United States.

PRECIOUS PROMISES

From God's Book, The Bible

Peace is as sure as tomorrow's sunrise, and just as independent of men.

The Earth abideth forever. (Eccl. 1: 4)

The evildoers shall be cut off, but the meek shall inherit the earth, and delight themselves in the abundance of Peace (Psalms 37: 9-11)

For unto us a son is born, unto us a son is given. And the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful Counsellor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end. (Isaiah 9: 6-7)

We, according to God's promise, look for a new heaven and a new earth wherein dwelleth righteousness. (2nd Peter, 3: 13)

The eyes of Jehovah run to and fro throughout the whole Earth, to show himself strong in behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him. (2nd Chron. 16: 9)

Vows pledged recently at St. Simeon's Angl. Church

Parker - Sewell

The marriage of Marilyn Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sewell, to Mr. Robert Kenneth Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Parker, was solemnized on August 31 in St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute.

The Rev. C. R. Lang officiated, while Mrs. Charles Hall played the wedding music. Arrangements of mixed gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of white organza, fashioned with a fitted bodice, having a bateau neckline and long pointed sleeves. Appliqués of lace and seed pearls were designed on the bodice and a front panel of the skirt. Her elbow-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a spray of white organza petals with inserted pearls, and she carried a cascade of white carnations and yellow roses.

Miss Pamela Niddrie as maid of honor, and Miss Shirley Boa as bridesmaid, wore frocks of chiffon over organza — the former attired in pale yellow and the latter in pale turquoise. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline and elbow-length sleeves. They wore matching satin headpieces and shoes, and each carried a bouquet of yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Mr. Robert Nicoll acted as best man for the groom, and Mr. Edward Sewell and Mr. Leslie Parker were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of blue Grand Seignor, with a blue feathered hat and accessories to match. She wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Parker, mother of the groom, chose a sheath of deep blue crepe with a lace bodice. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Lachute Legion Hall, and later the guests were received at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Parker then left on their wedding trip. The bride chose a double-knit wool suit in peacock blue, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The couple are now residing in Brownsburg.

Anglican deanery W.A. meeting held at Weir, Que.

(Our District Correspondent)

Weir, Que. — The 40th annual meeting of the St. Andrews Deanery was held at Weir on Thursday, September 26.

The meeting opened at 10.30 a.m. with a service of Holy Communion in the Church of the Redeemer. The Rev. C. R. Lang of Lachute was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. H. J. Cohen of Grenville, with Mrs. W. D. Morrison as organist. The church was filled to capacity and there were 104 communicants.

Immediately following the service a delicious luncheon was served in the church hall, where there were approximately 150 persons present.

The afternoon session was opened with prayer by the Rev. W. C. LeCras, of Lachute and St. Andrews East. Mrs. J. D. Williams, president of the branch, conducted the meeting and Mrs. E. J. Craig acted as secretary.

There were, besides the diocesan president Mrs. Kirby, 13 other diocesan officers present, and the guest speaker was Miss Mariame Natresse, of Sault Ste. Marie, who illustrated with slides some of her work during the past 30 years in India, where she has been engaged in missionary work.

The meeting was closed with prayer by the Rev. A. M. Reid, of Montebello, after which a light luncheon was served in the hall before dispersal of the gathering.

The next meeting will be held in Grenville, in the early fall of 1964.

Attending were persons from Montreal, Rawdon, Montebello, Lachute, Lakefield, Brownsburg, St. Andrews East, Grenville, Calumet, Kilmar, Rockway, Glen of Harrington, and Weir.

Thank-offering meeting, by Bapt. Mission Circle

The annual thank-offering service of the Women's Mission Circle of Lachute Baptist Church was held in the church on September 24, with the president, Mrs. Perley McArthur, presiding, and Miss Connie Austin as pianist.

The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Angus Cleary, and the opening prayer by Mrs. David Brown — Miss May McGibbon and Mrs. Lawrence Tomalty being the ushers.

Mrs. Burgess, of Buckingham, Que., was the guest speaker. She spoke of her many experiences while on the mission fields in the Belgian Congo.

During the service, Miss Doris Austin, of Lachute, and Mrs. Giberson, of St. Laurent, favored with appropriate solos.

At the close, some 90 ladies assembled in the church hall, where light refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was spent renewing acquaintances; the occasion closed with the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds".

Those attending were from Buckingham, Strathmore, Chomedey, St. Laurent, Dalesville and Lachute.

Special aspects of Bible Soc'y appeal

This is an urgent call to duty, responsibility and service for every church member in the area, and indeed throughout the land in which we live . . . as the Canadian Bible Society gets its Autumn Campaign under way; and you most surely can be of vital help in this tremendous work for the cause of Christ and your fellowmen the world around.

Plans are now under way for the canvass and annual meeting of the Lachute Branch of this Society, which is an auxiliary of the British and Foreign Bible Society. The Canadian Bible Society is making a Canada-wide appeal for a special offering of sixty-thousand dollars this fall, for the campaign "God's Word for a New Age." This offering is in addition to the one-million dollars required annually by the Canadian Bible Society to carry on its regular work of the translation, production and distribution of the scriptures in Canada and throughout the world.

All acquainted with this work will surely realize how important it is to distribute God's Word among all peoples, when governments with godless ideologies and philosophies are making a desperate bid for the control of the hundreds of millions of people of Asia, Africa, Latin America, and indeed of the whole world. Moreover, let us remember that our boasted Western civilization is not immune, but is also showing many signs of moral and spiritual decay and disintegration. Surely it is time for us to awake to the peril confronting the human race everywhere.

You may be asking, "What can I do?" You can help, and we trust you will. When the canvassers call at your door, be as generous as you possibly can with your donations for this great and vital work. Your donation will be used to help the world's 23 Bible Societies to give the people God's Word, with its life-giving message, in their own language. Remember the words of the Lord Jesus who said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and again, the words of the psalmist, "He that goeth forth and weepeth bearing precious seed shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

— Rev. W. Lorne Hisey,
Acting President of Lachute Branch

Appalling toll

"Of the 658 people in Canada who died in fires or explosions in 1962, 137 were children between ages one and four," declared Gay McLaren, general manager of the National Safety League of Canada. "This is by far the largest age group in fatalities caused by fire".

Mr. McLaren said the N.S.L. joins with the associations of fire marshals and fire chiefs in the promotion of Fire Prevention Week, October 6 to 12. He urged care and vigilance on everyone so "this appalling toll" could be drastically reduced.

SHOW FIRE SKILL

Art instruction to resume Oct. 10 at Centre d'Art

For the past two years, the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil — which during the winter and spring seasons has presented several interesting art exhibitions including works by prominent Canadian artists, present and past — has also conducted a series of art classes. These have been followed by a group of enthusiasts, both men and women, from Lachute and places as distant as Grenville and Hawkesbury.

This year, the Centre d'Art is proud to present an extended program of art classes for adults, teen-agers and children.

Opening of Adults' Class

The adults' class, under the dynamic direction of Guiseppe Fiore (whose services have been secured for the third consecutive year) will re-open on Thursday evening, October 10. There will be two classes — one at 7 p.m. for beginners, and a second one at 9 p.m. for the advanced group. These classes will be carried on every Thursday evening, starting next week.

Teen-Agers and Children

The art classes for children and teen-agers will begin a week later, on Saturday morning and afternoon, October 19. These classes are conducted in both French and English, and every boy and girl wishing to enroll is requested to do so on Saturday, 12th, from 10 to 12, at the Centre's headquarters, 360 Main Street, in Lachute. 3 great '64 Ramblers

One of them will suit you better than any other car you've ever owned...Read why

It's really quite simple.

Unless you're looking for a car that will go 180 miles an hour—or one that will give you 50 very uncomfortable miles to the gallon—or a $13,000 (plus chauffeur) limousine — the new car you're after falls into one of three basic categories.

The first of these is the car built primarily for economy. This should be a low-priced car that doesn't cost much to operate, with plenty of hip-and-leg room, and power enough to make highway driving fun. It's a perfect description of the all-new 1964 Rambler American (the car that started the compact trend).

Then there's the popular-size, popular-priced car. The important thing about a car in this category is selection. If you're looking for operating economy and low purchase price . . . or luxury and performance . . . or something between the two . . . the right car in this popular class will give you exactly what you want. The Rambler Classic — with its economical 6, powerful V8, wide choice of interiors and wide range of options — is just that kind of car.

The third category is the out-and-out luxury car — with the performance, interiors, and extras that set young men to dreaming of the day they'll own one. This, beyond any doubt, is the Ambassador V8. No other car in Canada offers a more luxurious interior. Few cars made have a better power-to-weight ratio, few cars give better performance.

To make your new car the best car you've ever owned, however, takes more than the right size and performance at the right price. It takes value; the value that is a natural result of Rambler's "maximum usefulness to the user" philosophy.

This philosophy has made the following famous features standard on every car in the Rambler line: exclusive Uniside construction for greater strength and beauty; the world's best rust-proofing; guaranteed Ceramic-Armoured muffler system; guaranteed battery and coolant; curved-glass side windows; battery-saving alternator; self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes; reclining seats; 3-year or 30,000-mile lubrication; 2-year or 24,000-mile warrantee on the entire car.

990—2 Door Hardtop

Luxury

Inside and out, the 1964 Ambassador V8 has luxury that is unsurpassed by cars costing much more. A padded wrap-around dash curves gracefully into the doors, new wood grain inserts add distinctiveness to instrument and door panels. There's a wide choice of rich fabrics and leather-finish materials with reclining bucket seats available on all models. Powerful 250 or 270 hp V8 engines are available in the 1964 Ambassador to give it an excellent power-to-weight ratio for exceptional performance.

Immunization helps reduce death rate

The death rate of American children from one to 14 years of age has been reduced by a third in the past ten years, according to information received by the Health League of Canada. This information was contained in a report of a leading life assurance company which announced that the mortality rate of this age group has fallen from 67.2 per 100,000 in 1950 to 45.5 in 1962.

Analysis of the trends by age shows that, in general, the relative decreases in childhood mortality were greatest at one to four years and smallest at ages five to nine.

The reduction in mortality at each of the childhood ages is due primarily to the decreases in the death rates from infectious diseases and accidents, the report continued. Marked reductions have occurred in the mortality from principal communicable diseases of childhood, tuberculosis, poliomyelitis and appendicitis. Each of these causes now records a death rate of less than one per 100,000. Pneumonia and influenza have also shown sizable decreases in mortality among children, although these are still among the major causes of death.

At practically every age, the relative reduction in fatal accidents has been about the same as that for all diseases as a group, but accidents continue to be the leading cause of death among children, particularly the boys.

Significant progress has been made in safeguarding the life and health of children, reflecting the advances in health sciences, in widespread immunization against communicable diseases, in health and safety education and in the general standard of living.

Accident victim was good citizen, active churchman

The late James Walker Scott

James Walker Scott, who passed away in the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, as a result of a level crossing accident on September 22, was born at Lakefield on May 26, 1893, the son of the late James Scott and Catherine Brown, his wife. In 1919 he was married to Miss Helen Scott. Mrs. Scott, who was in the car with her late husband at the time of the accident, suffered severe injuries, but is now making satisfactory progress in the Argenteuil Hospital, and expects to be back in her own home within the next few days. Their son, Gilbert, and his wife and six children, reside in Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Most of Mr. Scott's active life was spent in the employ of Boyd's Express Limited. He worked with Mr. N. W. Boyd from the inception of this well-known company in 1930, until his retirement a few months ago. As a transport driver he had over a million miles of accident-free driving to his credit.

Mr. Scott's main interest, outside of his home and his work, centred in Lachute United Church, in which he served as a member of the Board of Stewards for several years, taking his turn with other members as chairman of the board.

A good man, an active churchman, and a highly respected citizen, he will be greatly missed and gratefully remembered by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

The funeral service, held in Lachute United Church on Tuesday, September 24, was largely attended, and was conducted by the Rev. Wilmer B. Rosborough. The pall-bearers were Messrs. N. W. Boyd, Clayton Robinson, Howard Ward, Herbert D. Graves, Arnold Scott and Stewart Hume.

Montreal lady mourned by former neighbors

Late Mrs. Stanley Doig

Mrs. Stanley Doig, the former Ellen Isabella Janet Boa, passed away at the Royal Victoria Hospital on Monday, September 23, after a lengthy illness.

A daughter of the late Andrew Boa and his wife Agnes Doig, she was predeceased by her sister Alma in 1960 and by a brother, Norman, in 1962. She was married in 1941 to Stanley Doig, who survives her.

Born at East Settlement on September 15, 1907, she received her education there and at Lachute High School, then moving to Montreal in 1939; she had resided in the Town of Mount Royal for the past 22 years.

The floral tributes bore silent testimony to one who was highly respected by all who knew her.

The remains rested at the MacKimmie Funeral Home, service being held from Lachute United Church on Thursday last. The Rev. W. B. Rosborough officiated.

Interment was in Lachute Protestant Cemetery. The pall-bearers were — Messrs. Erskine Rodger, Peter Todd, Simon Wilson, E. W. Smith, Russell Morrow and Dr. W. M. Telford.

MATTE'S OF BROWNSBURG
FULL SELECTION OF TRENCH-COATS and YOUTHS' JACKETS

Meteor Custom 4-door sedan, one of the Ford Family of Fine Cars made in Canada. Certain features shown or mentioned are optional at extra cost.

In size, in performance, in luxury, in value,
METEOR
makes it big for '64

To understand the difference between the '64 Meteor and all other cars in the low-price class—you must understand one thing. Meteor is a bigger car. It is bigger in size, bigger in performance, bigger in luxury and bigger in value.

Its big 215.5 inch length straddles the bumps better—to eliminate regular dip and dive. Add to this the only suspension in the low-price class that lets wheels move backward and forward as well as up and down and you really get big car riding comfort.

Meteor's extra wide stance means better stability—you don't have to fight with the car when you're cornering.

And all this extra size means more leg and knee room, more hip and shoulder room—more headroom.

In luxury, Meteor really makes it big with the most distinctive roofline in the automotive world. Notice the way it's tucked in out of the weather. As a power option you can have the window go up and down to give you Breezeway ventilation all year 'round.

Meteor's power is bigger this year—ranging from an exciting 390 cubic inch V-8 down to a really energetic six.

All these big features and many more like big wide opening doors, big stronger frame, a big 24,000 mile or 24 month total-car warranty—make Meteor the big value standout for 1964. See it now at your Mercury dealer.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Industry asks pointed questions

THE ATTITUDES of organized labor may well rate as a most potent factor in progress, for on its whims and decrees depends the outcome of the best-laid plans in Canada today. The Place des Arts inauguration is the most recent example in Montreal (still further aggravated by Separatist demonstrations). The national wheat deal and the World Fair '67 both depend so precariously on unionized labor . . . and there are lesser examples of frustration still closer to Lachute right now.

At this time, an opinion expressed by a business executive rings a relevant note. We clipped these extracts for an address by R. W. Todgman, president of Chrysler Canada Limited, at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers Association in Toronto last June. . .

"If I were proposing to establish a manufacturing concern in a town or city, there are some pretty pointed questions which I would direct to its Chamber of Commerce, to its Industrial Commissioner, and to any elected or appointed civic officials who were using their powers of persuasion to clinch my decision.

"One question would be: 'What is the attitude of your local public servants toward industry?'

"Here, I would have in mind such things as unfair or discriminatory taxation — biased zoning regulations, and building ordinances. I'd want to know all about the value placed on industrial assets for assessment purposes, in contrast to other classifications.

"Another question which I would ask — discreetly perhaps, but nonetheless firmly — would be 'What is the attitude of your local news media toward the role of the employer of labor, and toward free enterprise generally?'

"By that question, I would not mean for one moment that I wanted any guarantee — or indeed any suggestion — of a reactionary press faithfully intoning the dogma of the infallibility of big business, and portraying organized labor as something almost akin to subversion.

"Far from it! — Such an attitude on the part of any newspaper, or any radio or TV station, in this day is an affront to common sense, and out-of-keeping with the times.

"Let me hasten to add, however, that just as out-of-keeping with the times are news media which unthinkingly trumpet approval of every ill-founded attack on free enterprise, and which act as though their role in this late Twentieth Century was akin to Charles Dickens in his exposé of the cruel child labor practices of a century ago.

"Surely, in all things, there is a middle road."

Fire prevention — your heating equipment

FIRES CAUSED by Canadians are reaping more than $120,000,000 damage each year, and faulty heating systems cause more than 13 per cent of these fires — according to the All Canada Insurance Federation.

With winter approaching, the following precautions should be taken to ensure that your home is not needlessly destroyed during the cold months to come:

1. Choose only recognized and approved home heating equipment.
2. Have qualified workmen install the equipment.
3. Keep stoves and furnaces clean and in good repair.
4. Fireplaces, stoves and furnaces should be insulated to prevent combustion of surrounding walls.
5. Install metal flashing at points where pipes and chimneys pass through walls or partitions.
6. Use only clean, first-quality fuel.
7. Store spare kerosene and similar fuels in a safe place, preferably away from your home.
9. Have chimneys cleaned and checked.
10. If you doubt the safety of your heating equipment, ask your local fire department for advice regarding inspection.

Municipal income tax disfavored

THE MAYOR of Drummondville, Marcel Marier, has said that he believes that a municipal income tax will soon be levied in Quebec — observes the Fort Erie Letter-Review. Mr. Marier is president of the Quebec Union of Municipalities and may have received some inside information on which to base his belief. On the other hand, the provincial minister of municipal affairs, Pierre Laporte, has officially denied that the government has any plans to impose such a tax or has even discussed it.

Those who are accustomed to treat official denials with a degree of scepticism may still be worried about the idea (continues The Review). A provincial royal commission on taxation is to start public hearings on the whole problem of provincial and municipal taxation in November and Mr. Marier's statement may indicate that someone is going to suggest a municipal income tax as a new source of revenue for hungry municipalities. The argument in its support would be that it would relieve property owners of some of the taxes they now have to pay. This argument is fallacious. Municipalities, given the revenue from a new tax, will simply find more ways to spend the money and will leave property taxes unreduced.

NHL Moguls vs Moscovites

IT MIGHT BE stretching the imagination, but it isn't impossible that some day New York Rangers and Moscow Dynamos will meet in the Stanley Cup finals — according to a sports observer for the weeklies. . . And, judging from the Rangers' showing in the last few years, the Dynamos may make it first.

When four European players turned up at National Hockey League training camps this year, it was a signal that things are starting to pop.

None of the four — two Swedes and a Czech with Toronto Maple Leafs, and a Swede with New York — were given much of a chance to make it — but just consider the significance!

It wasn't long ago that Canada's amateur teams were winning the world hockey title by basketball scores. Now the best amateurs Canada can group together aren't even favorites in the same competition.

Hockey in Europe has been growing rapidly for several years and there is no reason to believe it is going to stop where it now is. One day soon the Europeans are going to be good enough for the NHL — and that day will be the start of hockey's golden era as a sport of tremendous international interest.

Viewpoints and perspectives

CANADIAN newspapers and magazines are likely going to continue writing editorials regarding Canada's flag — or, more correctly, the lack of an official Canadian flag. . . But what really bugs us is to see the United States' Stars and Stripes flown from a Canadian building. . . If it is to impress our southern neighbors and to show them how close we feel to them, we think other things would do equally well.

A Farewell Lament to St. Jerusalem

(LADY RESIDENT'S LETTER TO THE EDITOR)

Goodbye, fair parish, you have been sacrificed in the name of PROGRESS — what or how much, remains to be seen. We have always been happy together, you and I, and I will miss your green fields and placid cows, so long a part of your scenery. There are some who think of cattle as smelly objects not to be tolerated within smelling distance, but there are still some of us who realize how necessary they are to life. Ask some of the poor countries, low in agricultural produce. But in a well-endowed Canada, what are a few cows, more or less? You may argue that there is much more land better suited to industry nearby, but the time for arguing is over — PROGRESS has won.

We loved you well, fought well and hard against overwhelming odds. You understand the voting took place at an inopportune time for us; so many of our voters were tucked away in their winter homes in the big cities.

You have been bisected in this referendum, and we would dearly wish that your other half could survive the operation, but we doubt it. If it were possible to hang on, then we who might not like to be part of the town could always ask to be re-annexed to our beloved parish. Of such stuff dreams are made.

Try not to be too hard on those who performed the operation. They thought they were doing their best for the town, as we did, who tried to stop the painful process. You may even get a few smiles with your dying breaths, as you gaze on the attempts of administration on the newly-formed town. After all, there is a big difference between one thousand acres and fourteen thousand acres. But perhaps we won't be too badly hurt in the painful readjustment period. You see, we in the country never expect to have streetlights, sidewalks, sewers and other necessities of town or city life; if we did we would have built in town, wouldn't we? So we never had any trouble in administration; we went our own, quiet, non-progressive but productive way. We never had to draw water all the way from Lake Sir John — you remember the lovely lake in our ex-parish — almost to town, just to find out that after passing through the necessary processes of filtration (still in our parish) the water had to be led all the way back because someone at Lake Sir John decided to take advantage of "town living"!

But no doubt something can be worked out. Apparently the town fathers are not worried. Otherwise, why would they take so much land? We must have faith in them and their dreams, they are all we have left.

So, rest in peace, green and pleasant land. There are many other aspects I would like to discuss with you, but our local paper is only so big and we musn't take up too much of their precious space with our little worries and sorrows. We must look on tomorrow and try to forget the past.

Close your door to fire — open to prevention

Close your door to fire, but keep it open for fire prevention. This neatly describes the philosophy of Canada's campaign for greater fire safety in the home, on the job, and everywhere.

Close your door to fire. In plants, office buildings, stairwells, fire doors must be kept closed. Why? To shut off live air (oxygen) from fueling a fire. In the home, too, a closed door will slow down the spread of fire.

Open your door to fire prevention. Don't "slam it" in the fire fighter's face if he shows up suggesting a look-around for possible hazards. Shame (over an untidy house), fear (of consequences), ignorance (of what it's all about) — forget these things if you have an ounce of commonsense.

TELEVISION SLIPPING

In my opinion, the television industry has been very short-sighted in letting itself fall into a summer holiday mood, the way radio once did.

This past summer, television has been drab. The big shows have been repeated — and nothing could be duller than the repetition of a suspense story, shallow when first seen, and almost repulsive when one already knows the disappointing climax.

It will be January before families get back into the habit of watching — especially if the same old fare is offered.

Industry in Canada suffers from our severe climate. They have been smart enough to succeed in spite of it, and when given half a chance they have managed to compete with industries in other countries where the climate makes stock-piling easier, and where there are other advantages.

Television people, then, should surely be able to provide us with something better than they have been doing. If they are going to let our short but lovely summers defeat them, they deserve very little sympathy. The private television broadcasters, of course will bear the brunt of their own folly. The CBC's lack of initiative in summer will be charged to us, the involuntary shareholders in its huge investment.

Criticism for 'prize' incentive at blood clinic

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I was interested to read in last week's Watchman your worthy editorial commending the fine public spirit manifested in the giving of blood to the Red Cross blood clinic. May I say that I am in most hearty agreement.

On the front page of the paper, however, there was a news item in a somewhat different tone. Here the emphasis was mainly on the air trip for "twelve lucky blood donors", based on the drawing of door prize tickets. This perhaps is no great issue, but I would like to point out that the increasing use of bribes to bolster public spirit is not, in my opinion, a healthy sign of a community, and is in some ways the very antithesis of the spirit of unselfishness in which public responsibility ought to be discharged.

Yours sincerely,
Signed: (Rev.) J. Armour

Carelessness costs plenty

Estimates of the cost of fire protection to citizens of Canada:

Fire department annual operations — $70,000,000.

Capital equipment, buildings etc. — $250,000,000.

Citizens also paid (1962) $224.7 millions in earned fire insurance premiums.

This was a new record for fire insurance protection in Canada, comparing with $222.25 million in 1961.

Against the 1962 premium total of $224.7 millions, the figure for loss claims (including adjusting expenses) was $127 millions or a loss ratio of 56.54 per cent, about 4.3 per cent higher than the previous year.

Fire is indeed a heavy burden on the Canadian economy.

SCARECROWS

One thing seldom seen nowadays is a scarecrow in a farmer's field. This is probably because today's farmers are too well-informed to underrate the intelligence of the crows, who are too wise to be fooled by a scarecrow. Some farmers have put them up, not for crows, but to keep deer out of their crops. Even this doesn't work unless the clothes with which the scarecrow is draped bear a strong human scent — because deer can smell better than they can see. They would pay no attention to a stationary object that never moved.

The origin of scarecrows had nothing to do with crows at all. The ancient Greeks used to cut the head off a slain enemy and place it on a pole in a field, believing that it would bring fertility to the land. Later they would dress up a human figure in a crude form of Dionysius, the God of Fruitfulness, in place of using human heads. The idea spread across Europe, and the immigrants introduced it in this country in the form of scarecrows. . .

Which all leads up to the story of the woman who was so ugly she could not get a job of any kind. Finally, a farmer took pity on her and hired her as a scarecrow. According to the story she scared the crows so badly that they brought back all the corn they had stolen. . . But don't quote me. I wasn't even there!

Be seein' ya!

In the jungles of Peru there are spiders with bodies two inches wide and hairy legs seven inches long, wasps with five-inch wingspan, and flying elephant beetles the size of a teacup and with long curving horns. Here, too, says Reader's Digest, is the anaconda, up to 26 feet in length and the longest snake in the Western Hemisphere, capable of swallowing a deer whole.

NOTES FROM ABROAD

By R.A. Giles — Written specially for The Watchman

Salzburg, a thriving city, is in winter most attractive for its winter sports. We stayed overnight and on Sept. 17 were taken on a short sight-seeing tour, and were reminded that this city was proud of its Mozart. Princely squares and narrow streets are characteristic of this city whose main themes are recreation, music and sport. As well there are the medical baths and indoor swimming pool, offering cures and relaxation through mud and brinebaths. It was here also that the hymn "Silent Night, Holy Night" was composed and later found its way all over the world. It is here too that the Danube River flows. Following along its banks we travelled through pleasant farmland pastures to Vienna, federal capital and cultural centre of Austria. On our city tour we spent considerable time at Belvidere Palace, entranced with its delicate interior furnishings. Some managed to get seats for the opera, others took a night tour of the city, ending up at the well known "Lido", where a splendid performance was given.

Vienna is as far east as our tour went and we then turned south to Graz, the 2nd largest city in Austria. Delightful mountain and picturesque scenery were with us as we climbed and descended, safe in the hands of an excellent driver, while we marvelled at his ability to guide his coach round curve after curve with such skill.

Venice was a city we were looking forward to visiting and I must say we were not disappointed. It was probably founded in 726 on the isle called Rialto. During the centuries it developed in the lagoon carrying its name on a group of 119 islands which are divided by 160 canals and linked by about 369 bridges. Medium sized freight and passenger boats ply up and down the canals, delivering produce and taking the place of our street cars and buses. It seemed strange to see so many people travelling to work by water, and gondolas waiting to taxi you wherever you wish to go.

Our two-night home was the Grand Hotel which at one time had been a beautiful palace. On leaving our coaches we were brought by water taxi, a beautiful, highly polished and smoothly running craft of about 30 feet and carrying about 10 persons with their luggage. The hotel front is on the canal, and we stepped out of our launch right into the building. Meals are served in good weather right on the front verandah as it were and looking out over the water watching the traffic go by, added much to the enjoyment of eating outside.

Quite close to our hotel was Saint Mark Square the very centre of the town's life. It is 192 yards long and 90 yards wide. Herein is the famous Basilica and we learn that Saint Mark's body was carried to Venice in 827 and a temple was built to his honor made of raw stone. It was later destroyed by fire. In 976 reconstruction was commenced, being finished in 1071, portraying harmoniously all the architectural styles. It also holds the clock tower, the bell tower and other stately buildings. Nowadays as in the past it is the meeting place preferred by both citizens and tourists, crowding almost unceasingly the arches, the shops and the well-known coffee-houses. Pigeons galore live in and around the square. On the outer terrace are the famous Four Horses of gilded copper, a Greek work of the 3rd century B.C. In the Doges' Palace there is a treasury of art works, scriptures and relics. Connecting the Palace to the Prisons is the Bridge of Sighs, so named from the joy of those released from the dungeons.

On Sunday our journey was through the Piave Valley to Cortina D'Ampezzo for lunch. Cortina is in the heart of the Dolomite Mountains and a noted winter resort. It will be remembered that the Olympic Games have been held here and we viewed with interest the somewhat high ski jump. These famous spots border Innsbruck a popular sports centre and also the residence of Mozart. Winding our way up the mountain sides to heights of almost a mile we passed Italian soldiers still guarding their country along the Brennar Pass where during the past war heavy fighting took place and casualties were heavy. From the city the mountains towered above with the sun shining in a golden hue against the huge masses of rock.

Monday morning and on our way again looking forward to more grandeur. This we had in delightful views and magnificent countryside. Small farms, with every inch of ground cultivated and thoroughly raked after cutting they present a model appearance, in their bright colors, dotted here and there on mountain slopes where we wondered how they could manage to eke out an existence — but they are hard-working, industrious, and happy with the simpler things of life and consequently prosperous. In Lucerne, of course, we think of the wonderful watches which this country is famous for and they are on display everywhere, along with wood-carvings and linens. The city is partly enclosed by a wall built in 1333, when the town was under Hapsburg rule. The nine great Musegg Towers still rise from the ramparts along which there is a delightful walk.

The Lion of Lucerne is a beautiful piece of carving in a sandstone cliff. Designed by the Danish sculptor Thorvalsdon, a dying lion defending the Bourbon Fleur-de-Lis of France. Swiss guards loyally defended Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette from the Paris Revolutionary mob storming the Tuileries in August 1792, with a loss of 800 men. To them this great piece of sculpture which took 52 years to complete, is a lasting monument. Relic of older days is the oldest covered bridge in the world dating back to 1333 in which the original paintings still exist.

This, Sept. 24, is the first day we have had rain and although not heavy, it prevented our visiting Mount Pilatus, which is 7000 feet high. This was disappointing, but we have been most fortunate with sunshine every day. And so we leave Lucerne early to catch the train for Paris. This part of the trip was arranged so that we might relax somewhat, and see a different part of France than travelling by coach. The country view started to change, with flatter fields for we were now leaving the mountain areas. Farms were well kept, crops looks excellent and all were of course much larger than those of the smaller countries.

Paris, as always, the capital of France, is also the capital of the world to many people and is claimed to be all things to all men. We are staying at the Claridge Hotel, on the Champs Elysees, close to the Arc de Triomphe where lies the tomb of the unknown soldier with its eternal flame. On this tree-lined wide boulevard, as you stroll along, you will rub shoulders with the most cosmopolitan assemblage to be found anywhere. You will pass world-famous shops, exclusive night spots, luxurious hotels, beautiful gardens, interesting parks and outstanding restaurants.

A tour round the city by night was most spectacular with lights shining brightly on the many fountains and the well-known Eiffel Tower stands so very prominently. Then there is the tomb of Napoleon, Churches, Palaces, and a great many other historic buildings and sites, all of which are closely connected with ancient history and warfare. Tomorrow we are on our own to rest, roam or shop as we wish, which will be appreciated for the past 3 weeks have been busy ones.

Saturday Sept. 28 we expect to visit the Palace of Versailles, visiting the ornamental gardens, Hall of Heroes and Hall of Mirrors wherein was signed the 1918 peace treaty.

Sunday the 29th will see us on our way to England, passing through some of the scenes of battle in World Wars I and II. We are hoping for continued good weather when sailing from Calais to Dover. Up to London once again, we will bid farewell to many of our newly made friends and then do a little visiting in the Old Land with our own relatives.

Until then, Cheer-i-o.

Who, what, why of fire prevention annual campaign

A reduction in the past spiralling losses of property and human life by fire! This is the goal of a new public education campaign, now in its sixth year, against fire carelessness in Canada, a country with one of the world's worst loss rates. It is conducted by a Joint Committee of the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs. Primary objective: the promotion of Fire Prevention Week (in reality, every week) in support of safety drives and inspection programs. Directors and officers serve without compensation. The campaign is financed by grants and subsidies from public and private sources. The effort is endorsed by all levels of government, and generously assisted by editors, broadcasters and poster media.

The Association of Canadian Fire Marshals comprises the Fire Marshals and Fire Commissioners of the 10 provinces and the Northwest Territories, as well as the Dominion Fire Commissioner, and the Fire Marshal of each of the three armed services, Navy, Army and Air Force. The strength of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs is drawn from municipal and industrial Fire Chiefs from coast to coast.

HE SAID IT!

Choose potato varieties for tastier 'fries'

Preparing tasty french-fried potatoes requires more than luck or even skill as a chef.

Basic to producing quality french-fries is the use of a potato variety having several desirable characteristics, says H. T. Davies, of Canada's Department of Agriculture's research station at Fredericton, N.B.

First, the potato should contain a large amount of dry matter. This produces french-fries that are mealy, crisp and less oily and flabby than those made from potatoes with a low dry matter content.

Second, the potatoes should be large in order to provide strips of good length.

A third consideration is the variety's ability to "recondition" — getting rid of the sugars that accumulate in tubers during storage — when the potatoes are moved from storage temperatures of 40 degrees to temperatures of 70 to 75 degrees.

The ability to recondition is important to the color of the french-fries. If the variety is lacking in this regard, it will produce a product that is dark brown and unappetizing in appearance after frying.

No varieties are ideal for french-fries under all conditions and the factors that contribute to good quality vary between districts.

However, he adds, a number of varieties will do very well if properly handled: Netted Gem, Kennebec, Avon, Russet Rural, Sebago and Irish Cobbler.

Road Safety for Your Child

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Did you know that Canada has one of the highest motor vehicle rate of accidents in the world?

In a recent year motor vehicles claimed over 4,000 lives in our country. Your child's safety from a road accident depends to a great extent on you.

The other day we were driving behind a car with a man at the wheel, a little child standing between him and the woman seated at his right. Very suddenly traffic came to a halt. The car in front of us had to stop without warning to avoid crashing into the motorist crossing at right angles to him on the red light.

Thrown Forward

The adults in the car evidently braced themselves for the stop, but the child was hurled forward, her forehead crashing onto the instrument panel. Her loud howls proclaimed her pain. How badly she was hurt we could not tell, but we did know a seat belt, firmly fastened, would have prevented this accident.

Seat belts for front seat passengers are compulsory in a number of areas. Their record in saving lives and lessening injuries is impressive.

There are many crashes where there is some, but not serious damage to the car, but the driver and passengers unprotected by seat belts, are thrown out of the car, and lose their lives or their bodies are terribly injured.

Front is Worst

Front seat passengers are in a more dangerous position than those in the rear. Parents know that children riding in the back seat sometimes open the door in their play. A safety catch would prevent the possibility of their being thrown out and back seat safety belts are a good investment, too.

No one wants to take chances which will involve his car in an accident. A child should never be allowed to badger the driver or distract his attention from the road for even a second. If father is driving, it is mother's job to provide activities on a long trip for the child in the car. Firm discipline — "Behave your self or you cannot go in the car" from the very first would prevent many mishaps and make motoring pleasanter for everyone.

The number of bicycle accidents continues to mount. Safety rules for cyclists must be reviewed, by parents with their children, from time to time. Riding two or three abreast or hitching a ride on the rear of a moving truck are two dangerous practices. If the traffic is very heavy at an intersection it is best to walk the bicycle across with the green light.

Be sure your child's bicycle is in good condition, with satisfactory lights and white painted rear mud-guard. See that he wears a light color at night so he may be easily seen by motorists.

Driving Lessons

The youngster who is a careful cyclist, always giving correct signals for turns, etc., is likely to become a careful driver when he is old enough to get his car license. When he reaches this stage insist on driving lessons from a qualified instructor. To reduce costs, several parents might co-operate in organizing a class taught by an experienced driving teacher.

Accidents are more likely to happen to a pedestrian when it is dusk or dark, in bad weather on slippery pavement. Teach your child to keep his head up, look around and be especially careful at these times. Vehicles making turns are another hazard.

If you allow your child to play on or beside the road you are asking for trouble. How many children have been injured darting out between or in front of parked cars after a ball?

Recipes for quick relishes

These days there's a general air of business in the kitchen, with the familiar ritual of pickling and preserving. The great variety of fruits and vegetables on the market makes it hard to resist the temptation to make up several batches of pickles and relishes for winter use. Even if your family doesn't eat them all up next winter, it's nice to have variety on the pickle shelf and so handy to have for gifts for friends or neighbors. If you should be going on a pickling spree, be sure and follow tested recipes. It takes time and effort to prepare and collect all the ingredients and it's only good sense to follow tested directions. The Consumer Section booklet, "Jams, Jellies and Pickles", may be obtained free by writing to the Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

If you wish, you may make some quick relishes with the vegetables you have on hand. These must be kept covered and refrigerated and used within a few days, since they do not contain enough salt or vinegar to keep them for any length of time. Here are three brand-new Quick Relish recipes from the Consumer Section test kitchens:

Quick Tomato-Green Pepper Relish

2 Cups peeled, chopped tomatoes (1 pound), 1 cup diced green pepper (1 medium), ½ cup finely chopped onion (1 medium), ½ teaspoon celery seed (or ¼ cup chopped celery) ½ teablespoon salt, ½ teaspoon dry mustard, ½ cup cider vinegar, ¼ cup salad oil.

Mix tomatoes, green pepper and onion. Drain off excess liquid. Add celery seed or celery. Mix remaining ingredients in a screw top jar and shake well. Pour over vegetables, mix thoroughly. Cover and refrigerate for several hours before serving. May be stored for a few days in the refrigerator. Makes 2½ cups relish.

Quick Vegetable Relish

1 Cup diced tomatoes (1 or 2), ½ cup diced celery, 1 cup diced cucumber (1), ½ cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ cup vinegar, ½ teaspoon mustard or dill seed.

Mix vegetables and sugar, salt, vinegar and seasoning. Refrigerate for several hours before serving. May be stored for a few days in the refrigerator. Makes 2 cups relish.

Quick Corn Relish

2 Tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 1½ cups corn (cut from 3 cobs), ½ cup chili sauce, 1 tablespoon vinegar.

Sauté onions in butter for 2 to 3 minutes. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer for 5 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve hot or cold. May be stored for a few days in the refrigerator. Makes 2 cups relish.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Now and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may often cause backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, rest better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all drug counters. You can depend on Dodd's.-ep

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The role women can play in a political campaign received much discussion during Ontario's election time.

There are many opportunities for a woman to participate actively in a campaign — she can organize or be a hostess for a coffee party; she can make contacts for raising funds; she can canvass door-to-door; be a scrutineer; a chauffeur who drives voters to and from the polls; or a volunteer baby sitter for others more directly involved in the fight.

Even if she simply sweeps out the committee room, she is performing a vital task, a Toronto campaign manager said.

One city campaign official expressed a wish that more women would get out on the street and canvass rather than resign themselves to a back-seat committee room job.

"Those who do summon up the courage are our best canvassers. They are more friendly, sociable and interested in people than men. They do a much more effective job."

There are two things every woman can do, another campaign manager said. She can listen attentively to the discussion of issues and she can get out and vote.

* * *

Strategy for Women

What kind of strategy or issues will get a woman's vote?

An informal survey of 50 Toronto women — half of them housewives — showed women are influenced more by a candidate's personality than any other factor.

Only five of the women interviewed mentioned specific issues — three were concerned about medicare and economic progress while two mentioned pensions. Most women complained they were confused about issues because they had just returned from summer holidays.

Very few attended candidates' meetings, listened to speeches, read campaign literature or talked at length with door-to-door canvassers.

The majority of women admitted the carnival atmosphere of federal elections captured their attention more forcibly than did provincial campaigns.

* * *

Here are the opinions of a few women voters:

A legal secretary — "I vote for the man not the party. I don't see any burning issues . . . and I'm put off by all the ballyhoo."

A housewife — "Candidates' meetings influence me all right — unfavorably. The candidates are never as gorgeous and as intelligent as they're made out to be."

An artist — "I chose my candidate because I know him and know he's concerned for the well-being of the people. So many politicians just want recognition but this man is sincere and has something to contribute."

An actuarial clerk — "Mine is strictly a party vote since MPs speak and act according to the party line and can only be responsible in that way."

An insurance company executive — "Party leaders don't influence me at all and I'm as much amused as informed by the various campaigns."

Cooking course for restaurateurs

Having in view the improvement of restaurant menus, the Quebec Provincial Restaurant Association will give, beginning this Monday and Wednesday, practical demonstrations in dessert and general cookery for restaurant operators and their cooks.

The management of Molson's Brewery is lending the facilities of its cafeteria installations to the Association, from three to five o'clock in the afternoon, on Mondays and Wednesdays.

These sessions could not be full-fledged courses in culinary art, but they will be practical demonstrations of specialties, adaptable to the average restaurant. And this initiative is only the beginning, a prelude to a vast program of personnel training being set up by the Association and made more pressing with the coming of the World Fair.

REACTIONS

Terror makes the blood vessels in our faces tighten, causing us to become white-faced, says Reader's Digest. But when we are embarrassed the reverse happens — the blood vessels relax, making us blush. No one knows why the blush is restricted to the face and neck.

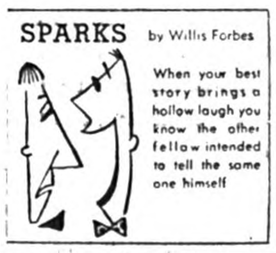

9 out of 10 dwellings could be spared

Every week fire strikes at more than one thousand Canadian homes.

In terms of dollars that means a yearly loss of below $30,000,000, although the typical house fire averages under $500 in damage.

But the truth is that three quarters of all fire deaths occur in those homes. And not only deaths, for hundreds of Canadians are horribly burned and often permanently scarred in these fires.

Fires rarely just "happen"! Nine out of every ten fires are the result of carelessness and neglect, and the victims are often trapped by their own ignorance. They might have gotten out IF they had known how.

Crane loading of pulp logs on upper Batiscan River fascinating wood-handling operation by C.I.P. Co'y

One of the most interesting adjuncts to the traditional log drive in moving pulpwood to Canadian International Paper Company's mills, is the scow-loading and forwarding operation carried out on the west bank of the Batiscan River some 25 miles from Trois-Rivières.

This year, under the direction of superintendent Albert Pagé, some 115,000 cords of wood cut on company limits at the head of the Batiscan watershed will be moved in this manner from the loading area to the Trois-Rivières newsprint mill.

LOADING

Departure from truck hauling and river driving

Logs cut in the Upper Batiscan area cannot be driven to the St. Maurice River, and trucking from the stump to the main drive stream would be impractical due to distance, terrain and cost. As a result, they are driven down the Batiscan itself to the loading camp a few hundred feet north of No. 2 Highway.

Loaded by Basket

The wood is processed into a boom at the site, scooped up in a huge, crane-operated steel basket and loaded on to the large scows. Average load is 170 cords, and the operation takes about 90 minutes. Eight scows are loaded each day, six days per week.

Once a scow is filled, it is taken to the main channel of the St. Lawrence by tug and moored to a buoy. When four or five units are attached to the mooring point, they are picked up by a 1,000 h.p. tug and start on their eight-hour trip to the Trois-Rivières mill. Two trips are made each day.

When the scows reach the mill, unloading is done by a giant crane-powered scraper which dumps the wood into mill holding booms.

The Batiscan operation has been in effect for some 15 years, handling as much as 150,000 cords in one year. Since cutting plans in the upper valley have been completed, it is expected that the unusual loading system will be suspended for several years as of 1964.

DOGHOUSE LIVING

An earlier column in this series dealt with the types of dogs you might like as pets and how they can be housetrained to fit into your family life.

The majority of pets live in with the family but, as some readers have mentioned in letters, there are dogs that are more fitted for outdoors living and, in fact, seem to prefer it.

Here is one comment: "We live on the outskirts of the city and we have a large Dalmatian who will only stay in the house in the coldest days of winter. He has a very solid doghouse and seems to enjoy this way of living." There is a PS: "He has kept away unwelcome intruders."

If you do want your dog to live out of doors, at least during the better days, he must have a well-built doghouse. This is the sort of project that father and the younger members of the family will enjoy doing.

A good basic size for the doghouse is 4 ft. square and 3 ft high. It is made of one-by-six tongue and groove board using 2 x 4's for the main framing. Inside is a partition which acts as a windbreak, keeping the doghouse warm for sleeping.

The floor should be 2 x 4 cross members underneath to give it adequate ventilation and keep it dry. The roof has a slight slope on it and should be covered with tar-paper or other waterproof material. It should be built so that it can be propped up to give the doghouse a regular airing.

If you make the doghouse so that the roof is removeable, cleaning is quite easy. With the roof off the building is laid on its side and can then be scrubbed and thoroughly hosed out. The doorway is made draught-proof with a strip of canvas or old carpet nailed over it.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OBSERVED OCTOBER 6-12

Good job — bad fire people out of work

Fire really hurts Canadians

Fire really hurts Canadians. Scandinavia (Sweden, Norway, Denmark) has a combined population nearly that of Canada, with generally similar climate. Its overall fire loss is less than half of ours.

The fire death-rate comparison (deaths per 100,000) puts Canada to even greater shame. Ours is three times greater!

55 Big Fires Swell 1962 Loss

Last year Canada suffered no big fire like the $4,000,000 one of 1961 involving a Newfoundland waterfront. But 55 fires alone were responsible for almost a quarter of the year's dollar loss, although their number was but a fraction of one per cent of all fires.

Biggest industrial fire of the year, a west coast cannery, cost an estimated $1,787,000. Seven store fires totalled $3,758,500, a Quebec supermarket blaze itself claiming $1,500,000. Three major school fires destroyed $1,013,000. A church fire at Baie St. Paul, Que., and another at St. Catharines, Ont., cost nearly $2,000,000. Six major fires in apartment buildings wasted a bit more than two millions. Large hotel fire losses, $1,672,000, more than doubled the 1961 record.

Why Minor Blaze Gets Out of Hand

The world's leading fire study organization, the National Fire Protection Association, takes a hard look at Canada's 55 large loss fires of 1962. It says that the key to elimination of such fires is improved building design, and proper use of protection equipment like sprinklers and alarm systems. Missing division walls and unenclosed stairwells and elevator shafts are among structural weaknesses reported.

Adherence to fire safety standards will prevent a minor fire getting out of hand to become a major loss, the Association finds.

Plant Folding Forever, Small Town Disaster

Boxcar figures of the loss in an industry fire are only part of the story of fire destruction. The community and human considerations of industrial fire disaster are even more important . . . particularly in a small town where new jobs are not easily found.

The direct loss of fire in a manufacturing establishment (building and equipment replacement) represents only a fraction of the indirect, economic community waste. A documented analysis by the International Association of Fire Chiefs puts the indirect loss at five times the direct loss, and it may be even greater in special circumstances.

Fire burns pay cheques

"Fire swept a portion of the main street section of one of our towns. Not only were the 42 employees made jobless, but the loss of the buildings and contents had a serious effect on the income of the town."

This terse remark in the annual report of the Fire Commissioner of a Canadian province is illustrative: "Good job, bad fire . . . people out of work."

Take It On Chin If Plant Folds

If the factory is the only one in town, every citizen, directly or indirectly, suffers if it permanently folds.

Look at the history of a factory fire in a Canadian community of 25,000. Workers thrown out numbered 350. A few (mostly women) were absorbed elsewhere, as the management pondered rebuilding, and decided to go ahead, though it would take at least a year. In that time, some were relocated, even if it meant daily travel of 80 miles. For the rest, it was a painful experience, living on the avails of unemployment insurance, digging into savings, trying to learn new job skills and, always, the worry of home responsibility and a whole way of life uprooted. For a handful well in the prime the easy way out was to accept management's offer of early retirement pension and call it quits.

Not The Least Of Life's Disasters

The morale factor of jobs suddenly lost by fire, says a leading labor authority, is not the least of life's disasters, perhaps because the situation seems so meaningless.

The plant we are talking about is now back in business. But with new machinery, automated production, the plant employs 100, not 350.

Fire is a job robber.

One of the year's more costly blazes

An April 27 morning fire at the Gatineau Power Company log storage yard on Paquin Avenue, resulted in damage estimated at between twelve to fifteen thousand dollars — according to Rod Carreau, district manager. A total of 281 creosote-treated poles were damaged beyond repair. Some 50 feet in length and valued in excess of $100 each, these were of red pine and western cedar; 10 regular poles were also consumed by the flames. The fire, which was burning for some time before the fire department was notified, was believed to have been started by children playing in the area. Several Bell Telephone cables, including the Cablevision hook-up, were damaged and full service was not restored until late that evening.

First question for the fire-fighter reaching a house blaze: Who's inside, and where? Some municipalities put up rescue markers denoting that a house is occupied by invalids or incapacitated persons.

Why muzzle your watch dog!

Still current and choice is the overheard remark by a dear old lady:

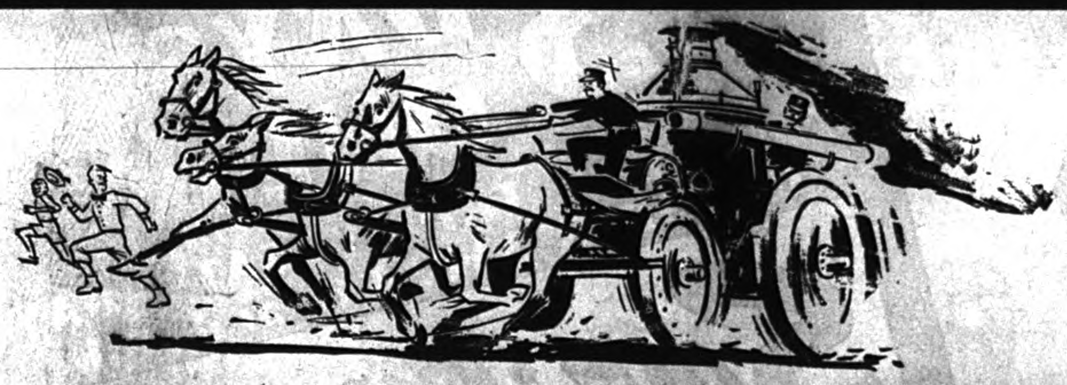

"I bought 30 ampere electrical fuses because they are twice as strong as the 15 size and because they cost just the same."

Another overheard remark by a lady:

"Fuses you buy today aren't as good as they used to be 10 years ago. They keep blowing out."

To the first lady, as the fire fighter points out, the answer is that the "weaker (15) size" is probably the only safe one.

To the second, the answer is that she is probably using many more appliances and connections than she did 10 years ago, on the same wiring.

MUSCLE and COURAGE and STEAM

A few words on behalf of the good men of many a Canadian community

The days of the belching steamer and the gallant fire horses are no more (and to many an oldster 'tis a pity). But the fire fighter himself hasn't changed. He still needs muscle and courage.

In the great expanse of Canada, it's the volunteer brigade on which many a community depends for answer to the urgent call of FIRE.

To these men of muscle and courage (and much more), such a community owes grateful thanks.

No better way to express it than by helping them to keep the dreaded summonses to a minimum.

Wherever you are, you can do your part by not giving fire a place to start.

'We left them alone only a few minutes'

Penalties under Criminal Code for wanton neglect

For a compassionate community there can be no sadder news than the death by fire of children in the home.

The shadow deepens when the headlines read: "We left them alone only for a few minutes. . ."

For the stricken family, the shadow lasts a lifetime.

No child (and, for that matter, no very old or dependent person) should ever be left alone. This is a vital message from Canada's fire services, not just for Fire Prevention Week but throughout the year.

There are various provincial penalties for callous neglect of children. And section 189 of the Criminal Code of Canada reads: "Everyone who unlawfully abandons or exposes a child who is under the age of 10 years, so that its life is or is likely to be endangered or its health is or is likely to be permanently injured, is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years."

Many Lives Snuffed Out

There is a tragic monotony to the files of the year in which 266 children died: Eight children die, frying potatoes . . . parents out drinking, infant smothers in fire . . . 3-year-old knocks over oil lamp, kills self and two brothers . . . youngsters alone in barn playing with matches, die in flaming haystack . . . brother or sister unattended in nursery, caught in blaze caused by electric heater . . . year-old baby killed in stove fire while mother outside . . . boy lighting waste papers in garbage, smothered by gases . . . youth cooking on faulty stove kills self and five other brothers and sisters.

Parents who go out have a duty to their children, to the community and to themselves to see that the youngsters are properly looked after.

Fire briefs

Some things have to be imported — but why an octopus? Matter of fact, octopuses are quite common — and consist of a three-way plug in each electrical outlet with appliance and lamp cords fanning out in all directions. They overload circuits, breed fire.

* * *

Another expression: Fire prevention is good housekeeping, in industry, home or wherever you are.

* * *

Don't barbecue yourselves along with the steak. Flammable liquid "fresheners" for live fires are highly dangerous.

* * *

Burning alive is a horrible way to die. Knowingly to expose a child to perish in fire is a cruel betrayal of trust.

* * *

ZERO HOURS

Most home fires taking three or more lives occur between 9 p.m. and 9 a.m., fire records show.

Three Ayersville families ousted in 'below zero'

Ice-covered firemen photographed inside a gutted two-storey frame building at Ayersville, which was destroyed by fire on the morning of February 21, in below-freezing temperature. The fire call was received at 9.32 a.m., at which time the flames were raging throughout the building, on Alexandre Street, near the Exhibition Grounds. Left homeless were the families of W. R. Farrant, Gilles Perreault and Lucien Joly. Firemen had to fight dense smoke during the height of the blaze, and strong winds and a lack of readily available water hampered their efforts. Chief Don MacCulloch is reported as saying he was "sure more hose was laid at this one fire than at all the fires during the past two years." Firemen were at the scene until 2.30 p.m.

The property was a total loss and was only partially covered by insurance.

Good rules for baby sitter

Here, for parent and for baby-sitter, are standard rules:

The sitter should have a sense of responsibility, should like children and preferably live in the neighborhood.

Instructions should be given in writing as well as orally:

Where you are going and telephone number, or the name and number of someone to call in an emergency.

Your telephone number and location of telephone.

Emergency telephone numbers for FIRE, POLICE, DOCTOR.

How to call the fire department.

Location of exits.

How to control the furnace or stove.

Leave a flashlight in case of power failure.

In emergency:

Get the children out. Don't wait to dress them. Wrap them in a blanket.

Even the smell of smoke or gas is enough warning to summon help. Say exactly where you are. If you can, turn on the front lights, to attract attention.

Don't re-enter the house.

Smoking in bed, frypan flash, reap fire toll

Canada's fire fatalities would be the fewer if more people realized the deadly hazard of smoking in bed, and if the kitchen cook thought about the "flash fire" of sizzling grease.

Both are potential killers, apt to imperil the lives of everyone in the house, as the climbing fire toll shows.

While the kitchen "flash fire" is usually a spectacular affair, the fire started from a smouldering bed mattress can be an insidious job.

Sadly the Same

For each the end result can be sadly the same.

For the bed-smoker: never, never do it, unless you have a guardian angel to watch over you. The ashes on the floor can be your own.

And see that nobody else in your house smokes in bed.

For the cook, planning "French Fries": water (on the potato slices) and grease (at 350 degrees) are certain to sizzle and sputter. Have a pan cover ready. If there's a flare-up, don't grab the pan and rush to the door. The draft may blow the flame back at you, set you afire. Smother the fire with a rug, coat, anything (baking soda will help, too).

Conflagration

If the kitchen wall is of combustible stuff, you have the makings of a real conflagration.

In two Canadian homes recently, a total of 16 persons died horribly from such a fire situation. All were children.

Now is the time to think about fire . . . wherever you are, whether in bed or out of it.

GREAT CALAMITY

One single fire in which 600 persons died and $127 millions of property wasted (as was our total toll in 1962) would be easily one of Canada's greatest disasters, and indeed one of the world's worst calamities. Only six lives, for example, were lost in the Great London Fire in 1666.

10-YEAR STORY OF FIRE TOLL — BILLION DOLLAR WASTE

Canada's fire services unite to curb losses and carelessness, save lives

Children suffer most by fires in Canada. Of the 5,580 victims of smoke and flames in the last ten years, 2,320 were youngsters. In 1962, their toll was the highest ever — 266. And more than half of them were wiped out in just 43 home fires that took three or more of the family with them.

Women (1,167) suffered least in the record of fire carelessness, compared with 2,093 men.

Over a billion dollars of property was destroyed in the decade, making the rate of Canada's fire losses one of the worst of any country in the world. One bright spot: in 1962 the estimated per capita loss dropped to its lowest figure in five years. Nevertheless, last year recorded a sharp increase in major industrial fires, 16 vs 7 in 1961. A major loss fire is one of a quarter of a million dollars and up. Six times last year, a million dollars went up in smoke in single fires.

Fire summary of recent years (excluding forest and federal government property losses):

	1962	1961	1960	1959	1958
• Number of fires	84,898	83,706	79,611	84,241	86,919
• Killed	620	556	566	560	532
• Loss ($ millions)	126.1	128.3	129.3	124.6	120.3
• Per Capita	$6.72	$7.03	$7.26	$7.06	$7.05

Keep homes safe for family survival — Don't give fire a place to start!

Water shortage in rural area

Farm-dwelling fire in mid-winter

The smouldering remains of the Léon-Jean Plouffe home in East Settlement, photographed towards the end of a February fire which left the family of six homeless and with only the clothes on their backs. A crew of volunteer firemen answered the call for help, but were unable to be of assistance due to the complete lack of water. Mr. Plouffe had recently completed construction of the building, and only a small portion of the loss was covered by insurance.

Fire facts for all

Firecrackers and picnic bonfires are wonderful attractions for young of heart. But both entail dangers that stand thinking about.

Firecrackers are no longer something for small children to play with. Displays should be strictly supervised and in any case subject to local ordinance.

As for bonfires on the family outing, let there be adult ideas about the manner of start and stop. The bonfire out of hand can become a tragedy.

• • •

Home, safe home . . . Be it ever so humble there's no place like home, a fire-safe home . . . a home which uses proper size electrical fuses, which has plenty of large ash trays around for smokers, which keeps its heating equipment in good order and which is free of disorderly trash and rubbish. It's a good home for Canadians.

• • •

"It happened in a flash, like a bolt from the blue." Nothing can be more terrifying than a "flash fire" in the home, especially since it usually strikes in the most innocent way.

• • •

Hold an unlit match level with, and an inch away from a candle flame. The match doesn't light. But hold the same match four inches directly above the candle flame and the match ignites. Heat rises. And so do the deadly combustion gases. Now you know why one of the fire fighter's first jobs at a burning building is to chop a hole in the roof. It's to let the superheated gases out.

• • •

Is the electrical wiring in your home capable of safely taking the "load" of appliances? Look at it from the standpoint of appliances available then and now: 1913—5; 1933—9; 1963—60.

• • •

If you cook with electricity the blowing of the fuse is your safety signal. With gas your nose gives warning of a leak. Whether natural or manufactured gas, a distinctive odor is deliberately introduced for your protection. The natural gas odor is sweet and sickly, even suggestive of a skunk. Manufactured gas may smell to high heaven like rotten cabbage. You may never enjoy such rare fragrance! But, if you do, open the windows, get out, and call aid. Don't strike a match or switch a light.

CANADA'S SHAME

PLAIN TALK TO EVERY CANADIAN

Picture a highway stretching 5,000 miles, from Atlantic to Pacific . . . . . on both sides of the highway, on lots 100 feet apart, there are homes, an eighth of the nation's homes. These are the more than 500,000 homes struck by fire in ten years. At every mile, there is a cairn for the dead, the more than 5,000 victims of fire in the ten years. Nearly half of the victims were children.

Is it not a shameful picture of fire carelessness in Canada?

Heed the fire fighter's message: THINK about FIRE . . . wherever you are.

You Can Help Prevent Fire

Many tragic fires are reported as being due to "Defective Wiring."

Electric wires in older premises were not intended for the heavy loads they require to carry today. They were installed almost wholly for lighting, and before most of our modern electric appliances had come into general use.

With age, the insulation on these older wires becomes brittle and drops off. The partly bare wires thus become a fire hazard.

With overloading such wires become a positive fire menace!

Consider the additional appliances you are now using, compared with the appliances you had when wiring was first installed. If you have added appliances without regard to the maximum load the wiring was intended to carry — you are incurring a grave risk of fire, regardless of the condition of the wires.

Bringing your wiring up to date does not necessarily mean a complete re-wiring of your premises.

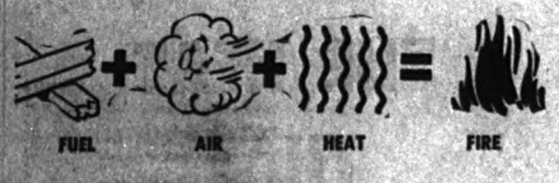

In your own interest — for the safety of your loved ones — we suggest you consult your local electrician, if you have any doubts as to the adequacy of your wiring, for today's electrical living.

Grass fire loss 'ain't hay'

Grass fire losses in Canada "ain't hay", if you will kindly pardon the expression.

Thirty thousand dollars last year was the out-of-pocket cost of fighting grass fires in but one of hundreds of rural districts across the country.

At this rate, the direct national financial burden on the taxpayers may well run into boxcar figures.

From Match to Nightmare

For the community, citizen and volunteer firefighter alike, a grass fire can be a nightmare. From a single match or cigarette carelessly tossed by a passing motorist, or a thoughtlessly-left picnic fire, may come a terrifying wall of flame to waste crops, buildings and precious parklands.

Numerous, too, are the cases of people collapsing from heart strain in their frantic efforts to beat down the creeping flames with broom, shovel, and wet sacking as they see their homes threatened.

The trouble with a grass fire is that no sooner does it appear to be licked than it can start up again, fanned by wind from another quarter.

Bulldozers, Not Shovels

And if it gets into a bog, bulldozers, not hand shovels, may be needed.

If you've never experienced the terror of a grass fire out of control, you're lucky.

And if you're never the cause of starting one, the community will be lucky, too.

Remember — grass fire losses "ain't hay" either in dollars or in public distress !

Man about house is hazard with a blow torch !

Fire safety is no accident and this is particularly true for the "do-it-yourself" operator around the home. Here are practical hints from the experience of Canada's 55,000 fire fighters, pretty self-reliant fellows themselves in family chores and crafts.

Blow torches and welding equipment. No other equipment has greater "built-in" hazards. Fuel and light them out-of-doors. You're asking for trouble when you light a torch in a crowded space to thaw frozen water pipes.

Gasoline and other fuels. Never store in glass bottles, which may fall and break, igniting or vaporizing and exploding.

Clean up shavings, sawdust and other debris after each day's work. A tidy work area will make the next go at the job a happier and a faster one.

Recent occurrence — business-house blaze

André Bergeron, an active member of the Lachute Volunteer Fire Department, is seen receiving first aid treatment from a fellow fireman, for a severe gash on his hand and finger. The incident occurred at the height of a blaze which recently destroyed the office and warehouse of H. Stanley Church, local electrical contractor. The fire was discovered shortly after three o'clock, and firemen were on the scene for well over an hour.

Origin of the blaze is unknown, and the loss, estimated in excess of $10,000, was partially covered by insurance. Firemen were hampered by intense heat and smoke, exploding light bulbs and ammunition, which was stored in the shop.

Both pumper trucks were used to answer the alarm, and one line of hose was laid from a nearby hydrant, several other lines being connected directly with the pumper trucks.

To control subdivisions, ensure playground areas

Town Council, at its October meeting, adopted a by-law demanding landowners to submit any proposed subdivision or re-division of lots. The by-law, No. 240, includes also the mapping of new streets.

The ruling also provides that a proprietor planning a development or subdivision must cede to the town at least five percent of the area involved, for purpose of parks or playgrounds; or alternatively, must remit a sum not exceeding five percent of the valuation of the land to be subdivided, to the town for that purpose. Such contributions will be assigned to a special fund for the purchase or maintenance of parks or playgrounds. In the case of land ceded to the municipality, this shall not be used for any other purpose than that mentioned.

The regulation has no application to cultivated land as classified in the Cities and Towns Act, until a subdivision of such land shall be so registered.

Through this by-law the town corporation, following the example of many other municipalities, fulfills a double purpose — firstly, to control the establishment of streets and subdivisions, and secondly, to ensure provision for future recreation areas.

New features for readers of The Watchman

With this issue — and continuing regularly except when short of space — this newspaper presents three syndicated columns of widely varying interest. All three are of tried and proven appeal, and should merit the commendation of our readers. . .

Bill Smiley's universally popular "Sugar and Spice" is described as the greatest feature in Canadian weeklies, offering a blend of humor and comment with a strong hometown flavor.

A Canadian social worker, Doris Clark, is author of "Dear Doris", giving personal advice to readers in her human relations column written exclusively for the Canadian weekly newspapers. Miss Clark answers letters from readers, and deals with problems common to town and country residents.

Ray Argyle, editor of Toronto Telegram News Service, writes a penetrating analysis of Canadian and world events in his exclusive feature, "This Week and Next". He covers Canadian politics and major foreign news trends.

Police Dept. will revamp burglar alarm system

The police department answered a total of 335 calls during September, and investigated 21 accidents, one of which was fatal. There were 46 other investigations arising from the various calls on the department. Eighteen stolen bicycles were recovered, and there was one arrest in this connection. There were eight thefts of under $50 value; two were solved and three arrests were made.

In September also there were 115 traffic tickets issued and $942.50 collected in fines.

Ald. Linton Armstrong, in presenting this report, also stated that the police commission planned to change and modernize burglar alarm systems connecting headquarters with various business establishments. At present there are about 15 such installations, and a number of new requests have been refused since the facilities are inadequate. The new system will be installed by Dominion Electric Protection Company, and will cost $65 a year to each customer connected.

Fire Report

Chief Don MacCulloch's report listed eight fires in September — six in the town limits and two in Ayersville.

The fire department was given permission to display signs for Fire Prevention (October 6-12), and asked the authorities to proclaim this period a Clean-up Week, as a deterrent to fire hazards.

$1000 allotted for street markers

A petition signed by a number of Lafleur Street residents and presented by Ald. P. E. Pariseau at Council meeting, asked that signs be erected clearly marking this thoroughfare — which goes sometimes by the name "Lafleur" and sometimes by the designation "Foundry Street". It is recalled the name was officially changed to "Lafleur Street" two years ago, but the old signs were never replaced.

A general plan for street marking is in consideration, study having been given to this matter by the police commission. However, as the budget does not allow sufficient funds to make complete changes this year, the department was authorized to spend up to $1,000 for the adequate marking of four important streets — Main, Bethany, Chatham and Lafleur — and certain others within the amount allotted.

3rd Reading for by-law on annexation

Town Council last week confirmed the decision taken by citizens of the annexation area of St. Jerusalem, and passed third and final reading of By-law 237 to annex that part of the adjoining parish.

The two previous readings of this by-law were passed at the August meeting of Council. On September 23 and 24 the St. Jerusalem taxpayers involved gave a 71-vote majority in favor of the measure.

The by-law will now await approval of the Lieutenant-Governor of the province.

Mayor Dave Campbell, in discussing the by-law, said the St. Jerusalem parish council had been both courteous and co-operative. "We shall aim for the welfare of these new citizens, just the same as those of the town. They will benefit from all the advantages our municipality has to offer, and they will share the same responsibilities and obligations as our own citizens," he said.

The territory annexed to Lachute extends its boundaries north to Lake Sir John and includes the contiguous area presently regarded as suburban, for a total valuation of $1,968,415 and population of 1,557 — increasing the population of Lachute proper to around 8,000.

Discoloration in the town water supply last week was caused by cleaning operations in the bottom of the reservoir, according to Dr. A. L. Middleton, alderman in charge. It seems a mass of wood debris at the rebuilding of the bridge above the dam, caused an obstruction of the water flow.

Another enterprise deserving early attention is the Toy Repair Shop promoted by the Lachute Cubs for the benefit of underprivileged children, here and elsewhere, at the Christmas season. Watchdogs on The Watchman. . Our story last week from the Hamilton Spectator concerning Leslie M. Waddell, "principals' principal", mentioned (on a note from our informant) that he was the son of a former Methodist minister here. By strange coincidence a churchman here, looking up the United Church records for a baptism, remarked that the late Rev. Waddell was a cleric of the Presbyterian, not the Methodist Church. And that was before the turn of the century. . . Another reader has since corrected us on this detail.

THE SCENE Around Brownsburg

By M. E. Cowley

— For all interested persons, French conversation classes are being held in the Brownsburg High School on Monday and Wednesday evenings, at 7.30 . . . For information phone Mrs. Florence Zimmer.

— While the "dog by-law" is treated with indifference by some, others show a reluctance to have anything to do with it. Regardless, Council is now at the stage where they will be forced to do something, since a number of complaints have been lodged with the Town Secretary. Council's "reason" for the little action so far — members of the police department are too busy to bother acting as dog catchers!

* * *

— Gerry Quinn, president of the local Canadian Red Cross Society, states that 132 pints of blood were donated in the recent drive in Brownsburg; 81 of these came from the C-I-L clinic. The town's population — 3,500 people.

— The Brownsburg Home and School Association begins its season on Wednesday, October 16, with the popular "Meet the Teacher Night".

* * *

— The traffic control boys at the Brownsburg High School have probably earned their keep already, but comments from a number of sources again point out the need for supervision by the police department — before 1 p.m.

— All persons concerned will probably appreciate the installation of an asphalt surface on Woodbine Avenue North and on Woodbine South and McVicar Street. At the same time, it causes concern when it is apparent that the street could become a "speedway".

RCA Battery to give training demonstrations

During Saturday afternoon, October 12, the local Militia Battery of the Royal Canadian Artillery will visit four locations in Lachute and Ayersville, demonstrating their equipment and the type of training undertaken by this reserve unit.

The demonstrations will commence at 1.30 p.m. at the C.P. freight yards, then moving to the I.G.A. car park, the La Ruche car park, and Ayers baseball field in Ayersville.

The general public are invited to watch these demonstrations, which are being given to show the work of the Battery, and it is hoped that anyone interested in joining the unit will enquire for further information — any Thursday evening at the Battery offices in the basement of the Town Hall, between 8 and 10 o'clock.

(If the weather on October 12 is unfavorable, the demonstrations will be held the following Saturday.)

Boy Scouts to canvass for paper, bottles

Householders and businessmen are advised that the 1st Lachute Troop Boy Scouts will conduct their fall canvass for waste paper and discarded bottles on Saturday, October 26. Co-operation of the local public will be appreciated.

Brilliant ballet is opening feature of Community Concerts '63-64 series

"The shadow of a gypsy camp is visible near a dim camp fire. ." Thus the introduction of a scene in "Gypsy Life", a ballet presentation including the entire troupe of Hungarian "Biharis".

"Wedding in Tokay" is another five-scene, 20-minute work of the "Biharis" troupe, depicting the folk rituals of marriage in a typical Hungarian village.

These two glimpses of color and atmosphere convey the mood of a lively and intriguing program — one which Community Concert members here are anticipating with great pleasure, next Monday at l'Ecole Secondaire.

The troupe is named for the famous gypsy violinist-composer of yesteryear, Janos Bihari. Ballets "Bihari" brings together a company of spirited dancers and a quartet of fiery gypsy instrumentalists playing violin, clarinet, cimbalom and bass, all in costume, and all prepared to regale their audiences with a program of Hungarian folk and classical ballet numbers, with original choreographies.

Organized by Kovach and Rabovsky, free Hungarian immigrants to the United States, the troupe presents as featured dancers Margot Miklossy and Imre Varady, stars of the Holland National Ballet.

Here is a new conception in programming, and who but Kovach and Rabovsky could do it! This charming couple are former stars of the Budapest Opera Ballet and the Leningrad Ballet, whose exploits have been vividly described in their book "Leap to Freedom".

Another action picture from the sensational Hungarian Ballets "Bihari" — Nora Kovach and Istvan Rabovsky, who will appear with a brilliant troupe of 14 free Hungarian dancers and musicians. The program is set for next Monday, October 14, at 8.30 p.m. in the Catholic "Ecole Secondaire". — Community Concerts subscribers please note change of place.

Council deliberations, October meeting —

To seek three-year term for mayor and councillors

With Mayor Dave Campbell presiding, the Council, in regular session last week, decided to petition the Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs to permit extension of the term for mayor and aldermen, from two years to three years.

Notice of motion was presented to effect this change, but the measure will not likely be put to the Council for adoption until the December sitting. Reason for the delay is that certain Council seats will be vacant for election November 2; and the new term of office will thus apply to the administration in mandate after that date.

Aldermen concluding their term will be — François Charlebois, in west ward; Robert Marcil, in centre ward; Alphonse Thibodeau and Dr. A. L. Middleton, both in east ward.

Nominations will be held in the council chamber at City Hall on October 26, with voting if necessary on November 2.

Month's Civic Affairs

Another notice of motion was given concerning homologation of certain parts of the municipality.

Two communications from Ayersville, received since the last session of Council, were given consideration. One gave notice to the local authority that it would be subject to a share of the expense for a new collector sewer serving the two municipalities. The other letter was relative to the new water rates. . . Ald. François Charlebois proposed that, in reply to the first notice, the Village of Ayersville be asked to submit plans and confer with Lachute before work be started on the sewer. As regards the second letter, Mayor Campbell, Ald. Robert Marcil and Mme Yvette Raymond, secretary-treasurer, were authorized to meet Ayersville representatives to discuss water rates. (Ayersville presently pays 15 cents per 1,000 gallons; Lachute is seeking to increase the rate to 45 cents, in view of costs incurred in construction of the filtration plant.)

The Richelieu Club submitted a copy of its financial statement showing a deficit of $2,500 in operation of its swimming pool this past season. The statement was directed to Ald. Linton Armstrong as chairman of the recreation, parks and playgrounds committee. While on this subject, Mayor Campbell invited all councillors to attend a discussion on organized recreation, to be given by the Rev. Father La Sablonniere at the St. Alexandre School on October 10.

Measure to be introduced at December meeting

Noble's Woodwork & Supply Reg. was awarded a $675 contract for work to be done in the entrance hall at town headquarters. Also bidding for the job was the firm of Charlebois & Fils Enr'g; and it was Ald. Charlebois who proposed giving the contract to Noble's.

The secretary was asked to procure prices for the installation of warning signals at three level crossings, on Barron, Hugh and Gilbert Streets.

M. G. McCaskill, electrical contractor, was given the job of rewiring the old arena, now serving as the municipal garage, at a cost of $863. H. S. Church was the only other tenderer.

Accounts for the month, totalling $20,184.08, were approved for payment.

Ald. R. Marcil, who had been absent lately on doctor's orders, resumed his seat at this meeting and was welcomed by the mayor. Ald. J.-Orphir Desjardins was the only councillor absent.

Lions Rink — no skating, yet!

Come the month of December — this picture will present a striking contrast, when young hockeyists are streaking across the ice at the Lions Rink. Right now Jacques Bourgoing, the devoted manager of this enterprise and an active clubman, is readying the scene for icemaking when the weather turns cold. Jacques is seen above with young helpers, tackling a formidable growth of weeds to clear the way for action.

Lions members hear strange life story of fellow clubman, 'Emmett of Arabia'

Club proceedings at the Lions' regular meeting last week were chaired by the president, Keith Clarke.

Major Geo. G. Mitchell paid tribute to the late "Herb" Underhill, who was one of the club's charter members.

Paul Deslauriers, chairman of the blood donor clinic, solicited support to that project. . . Bert Rigg, membership committeeman, stressed the need for new enrolments to maintain a vigorous membership. . . Jos. Dumais, program chairman, announced Mr. Gaspard Massue, president of the Quebec Hospital Association, as speaker for the next meeting.

Dr. Eric Mongeon spoke on the coming Lions' TV Auction in this district, to help finance a new dining centre at the Quebec Crippled Children's Camp. For this venture 260 donors had already contributed $50,000 worth of prizes. The call in Lachute is for volunteer workers on the day of this event, November 2. . . Lion Horace Lamarche reported that, through ready co-operation of the Society, a wheelchair had been procured for a young invalid in Whisselltown.

Lion Hal Joyce led an enthusiastic song session.

An Interesting Speaker

Speaker at this meeting was one of the club's more active members, ex-President Col. Ernest Emmett of Lachute, whose personal biography makes him a man of rare and unusual experience — a "man apart". He spoke of a period prior to, and during, World War I, and of the Middle East, which was his personal theatre of experience in those earlier years.

Young Emmett was literally born into the British Army. His father was in military service; his mother had been an army nurse. He was one of four brothers and three sisters; and the family circulated and received their education in military schools wherever their father happened to be posted — from Valdivostok, Siberia, to the "rat holes" of the Mediterranean and the sweltering belt of tribal India. The discerning parents decreed that each child should learn an alternative language, and Ernest chose the Arabic tongue. . . His career thereafter led to a long and varied record, which rings with adventures comparable to those of the famed and fabled Lawrence of Arabia.

Col. Emmett was wounded four times in battle — the first time on the Somme before his transfer to the East. This he mentioned as a "stab in the mouth". (Private information reveals the incident occurred in a type of warfare unknown today. Emmett, then in the Cavalry, was pierced in the roof of the mouth by a lance, in a skirmish with the crack German Uhlan Lancers.) His three brothers died in different spheres of service.

Emmett's acquaintance with the Eastern customs and language, admirably fitted him for battle experience in charge of camel-mounted Scout forays, in Egypt, Palestine and the desert countries, and for special service, in which he mingled with native tribes and was assigned to missions only guessed at in this brief narrative.

The Colonel remarked that the holy cities and sites of the East had been revered and respected by Turks, Germans and English alike. That in oil-rich Saudi Arabia, then one of the poorest countries in the world, the lives of men were cheap — those of women, cheaper. That the discipline of the Army in his youthful years was comparable only to that of the Foreign Legion.

Col. Emmett was introduced as speaker by President Keith Clarke, and thanked by Herb Graves.

By BOB ATCHISON

Numerous calls about cruelty toward pets at the auction market near town, made me amble down that way last auction day. Believe me, all the tales told to me were warranted. Pets huddled into cages that were meant to hold less than half that number, with appalling filth. I think some of these pets had been in the same cages at least a week. I'm sure the S.P.C.A. would be interested in this mess. Some of these animals appeared to be sick; and they certainly were starved. One particular cage caught my attention, filled with pigeons crammed so close together they couldn't even spread their wings.

I know this is not the fault of the market itself, but surely they could see these animals were treated a little better. If they refused to auction these animals, then maybe something would be done to help them.

A large flock of geese was seen going over town the other day, so it certainly looks as though they were on their way. Flying very high, even the calls were a muffled echo. They may have been passing over this way for some time though; flocks were seen very early this year, and it is possible they have been continuing, without being noticed. It also appears some of the Northern ducks are with us. . . A few very large Blacks can be seen around the river just now — these larger than our locals. Mallards are very scarce. I did hear of a few of them being shot, but not in the numbers they were last year. These birds seem to be having a tough time. With more and more land being drained, this is spoiling the nesting areas, and the young ducks starve to death or die from lack of water.

I know the clearing of land is supposed to represent progress. But in some cases this is done without much thought of problems that turn up afterwards. However, more and more attention is being given to situations of this kind by the Federal Wildlife Bureau, and they should come up with some workable solution soon.

• • •

Deer do not seem to be plentiful in this immediate district, but until all the leaves have fallen, it will be hard to determine exactly. Moose have been spotted in a number of places; this is most encouraging. The more wildlife we have in the district, the better it will be for the visitor during the summer. I don't think anything can beat the sight of an early-morning visitor — deer, moose, bear or what-have-you — it's a great sight. Maybe in the future a park for the protection of these animals could be established in this vicinity. To me that would be the realization of a long dream.

• • •

I wonder how many of you read "The Silent Spring". Those that did, must have been worried about the results of sprays and insecticides. Now, the authority who started out co-operating on this book has come out with a general contradiction. Maybe because he was let go before the book was published. At least, it looks like a case of sour grapes on his part. He is, of course, an expert in his field; but far too much information has been gathered on pesticides to be discounted in this way. Even if only a very small percentage is true, then we still have to worry. Hearing from different observers, you realize that the use of some of these sprays is a ticket to death. . . We seem to be getting fall-out without any bombs!

• • •

You have no doubt read in the newspapers the stories on water pollution in and around Montreal. You also know this has been going on for many years without anything ever being done about it. It's a huge job, and credit should be given in some quarters; yet we as ordinary people are doing more damage to our waters than all other factors combined. The use of detergents may be a very small thing in your everyday routine, yet when you consider the millions of people who use these things without thought as to the results on wildlife, it gets to be pretty terrifying. Manufacturers naturally try to blame everything else — and so far they seem to be doing a good job of it.

• • •

I was reading of a lumber mill that had been closed down in the U.S. The operators of this mill had been warned before to stop dumping sawdust into a small river adjoining the mill. After repeated warnings over a period of a year, with no improvement in the situation, the authorities stepped in. And the mill will not be allowed to re-open until dumping has stopped. . . Evidently the officials inspecting these rivers were not going to be put off by promises. I wonder just how this would work in this province! It sure would be nice to see some definite action.

• • •

Jacklighting is rampant in this County. Calls have come in from various parts about this practice. I received a call one night around 11 o'clock about shooting over towards the Mille Isles area. There must be a number of this type of hunters in the vicinity; I know they were fairly numerous last fall, but from the accounts it just could be much worse this year.

There is also another infraction that should be taken care of before it is too late. Trout fishing is all over, as we know. But with most of the fish spawning at this time, it is pretty easy to catch them once you have found the spawning beds. And right now, with the Wardens busy checking on the hunting, they seem to have forgotten the fishing. Lots of it is going on, and before the spawning is through there will be much more.

Maybe you read the Watchman article on woodcock, and what the biologists are asking hunters to do. Most of you will wonder just how sex, age, etc., can be determined from a bird's feathers. Even as a fly-tyer, I can usually tell the sex and age from feathers, and estimate how the feeding has been in their particular habitat. Young birds have a very fine web in the feather itself. Gloss tells the feeding conditions — dull, poor eating; shiny, good. A bird that has been dead for a period will have brittle feathers, and these will be no good for tying flies. Softness and size of the feathers, give you the age of the bird. The biologists, of course, can tell you much more from these samples. . . It looks good for the upland shooters, however. Not too much information has ever been given out on these birds, so the more we have, the better it will be in later years.

Information is also needed on our Mourning Doves. I know considerable information on these birds has come from southern parts of the country, but not too much is known of their northern habitat. For the past few years we have had numerous flocks of these, in and around this district, so maybe they are on the increase. I know a number of shooters who would welcome them as permanent residents. Very hard to shoot, they provide excellent sport; and if you are lucky enough to hit one, you have a delicate dish in prospect.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

EVEN I LAUGHED AT THESE!

At a county fair, an old lady decided to take a 20-minute ride in a two-seater plane. The pilot explained that the engine had to warm up for a few minutes, left the old lady in the plane and went to the office. As soon as he had gone, another man jumped into the plane and took off in the air.

"I hope you'll be careful, young man," said the lady. "This is the first time I've ever ridden in one of these things."

"You've got nothing on me, Mum," replied the new "pilot". "This is the first time I've ever driven one."

He circled around and banked, saying: "See that big grey building down there? That's the mental hospital. Oh, boy! Will they be mad when they find out I've escaped!"

(Let's hope this story had a happy landing.).

Jock and Sandy had not seen each other for several weeks. On the day before Christmas they met on the street.

"What are you doin' Christmas Day, Jock?"

"Naethin' particular, Sandy. Why?"

"Suppose you drop in to my place any time durin' the day. We can hae a wee nip together for auld lang syne."

"Aye. I can do that Sandy. Any time at all?"

"Aye. Any time. An' by the way, ye dinna have to knock on the door. We hae one o' them new-fangled electric bells. An' the button for the bell is just the right height to ring wi' yer elbow."

"Ring wi' my elbow? Why can't I just ring it wi' my finger?"

"Weel, ye can suit yersel' aboot that, o' course. But I thocht ye might find it a trifle inconvenient wi' yer arms full o' Christmas gifts!"

Animal Care

LOOKING AFTER SMALL ANIMALS

Small animals are a lot of fun for younger children but they do have to be looked after properly. One of the important points to emphasize is that no animal likes being picked up by the scruff of the neck. A small pet should always be supported by two hands, one at the shoulder and another at the rear end.

Since small animals are usually so friendly and inquisitive children tend to hold them a lot, particularly when they first join the family. But remember that however friendly he wants to be, a small animal can be easily frightened and may start biting.

The child should be shown how to hold the animal and should be taught to deal with it gently. When they are babies the small animals are easily injured by too much pressure from eager hands.

Of the small animals perhaps the most entertaining and easiest to look after are guinea pigs. They can be allowed to wander around the room and when it is time to put them back in their box you will have no trouble finding them.

The home for a guinea pig, or a pair of them, can be a box 2 ft. wide, 3 to 6 ft. long and about 18 inches high. Bedding can consist of finely torn newspaper, fine wood shavings, sawdust or other absorbent material. It must be changed at least twice a week and the new material should always be clean and dry.

It is important to keep the rest of the box clean and to maintain a constant supply of food and water. Guinea pigs eat vegetables and with them you can give a generous supply of rabbit or special guinea pig pellets obtainable from a pet shop.

If you keep your pets living in a temperature of about 70 degrees you will have very few problems with sickness.

Mother is expert diving teacher

Elmira, Ont. (CP) — There are only two other women in the world with the same qualification as attractive Mrs. Eileen Grignon, the mother of two school-age children.

For she is one of the only three women in the world certified by the National Association of Underwater Instructors, making her an expert scuba diving instructor.

The other NAUI women are Erma Britton of Hamilton, Ont., and Helen Drew of California.

Most of the time Mrs. Grignon is an active housewife but when her husband Wilf became interested in scuba — self-contained underwater breathing apparatus — she also was bitten by the water bug.

"The first time I put on the mask I threw it away and vowed I'd have nothing to do with it," she says. "It was a real battle to conquer my fear. But now I love it."

Dived for Wreck

One of the greatest thrills of her underwater hobby was diving over a wreck near Penetanguishene, in the southeast corner of Georgian Bay. In 35 feet of water the wrecked lake boat was still swaying gently and the sunlight through the water cast an eerie light on the "bones" of the vessel.

Last winter she spent a fortnight diving off Fort Lauderdale, Fla. "The coral formations are fantastic and the fish are fabulous," she says.

Asked if it is more difficult for a woman to become an expert scuba diver than a man, Mrs. Grignon said:

"Not necessarily. it all depends on the person's familiarity with water. But women do have one problem not common with men. Women have a greater bouyancy in the water. "Their bones are lighter and their flesh is not as heavy," she says.

Stolen car found at St. Canut

A 1963 automobile belonging to Gustave Joannette, of Sydney Street, was stolen September 22 and recovered a few days later on a side-road near Colford Lodge. Provincial Police of the Deux-Montagnes detachment discovered the abandoned car, which was damaged to the extent of about $500, and the local police were duly notified.

Grenville girl is bride in double-ring ceremony

Thistlethwaite - Cowan

In a double-ring ceremony on Saturday, September 14, Marilyn Cowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cowan, of Grenville, was wed to Mr. Robert Thistlethwaite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Thistlethwaite, of Vankleek Hill, Ont.

The Rev. A. G. Moore, of Montreal, officiated, assisted by the Rev. J. Lynn of Hawkesbury. Music for the wedding was played by Mrs. Shaw, of Hawkesbury. Miss Jean Kelly, also of Hawkesbury, as soloist, sang "Because" before the ceremony, and "Oh Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Floral arrangements of Orchid pink and white gladioli were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of brocaded satin, the bodice having a scooped neckline and long sleeves ending in points covering the hands. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a crown of pearls and crystals. She wore white pearls, a gift from the groom, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Miss Judy Cowan, as maid of honor, and Misses Barbara, Carol, Norma Cowan and Miss Jean Thistlethwaite, as bridesmaids, wore matching street-length dresses of holiday blue brocaded satin. All attendants wore pill-box hats with shoulder veils, and carried bouquets of miniature mums to match their dresses.

Mr. Donavon Mahon, of Vankleek Hill, acted as best man for the groom. The ushers were Gary and Donald Cowan, brothers of the bride, Ewing Atridge, of Montreal, and Allan MacKinnon, of Vankleek Hill.

Mrs. Cowan, mother of the bride, was dressed in an emerald green cocktail dress of peau-de-soie, with matching accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses. Mrs. Thistlethwaite, mother of the groom, wore a brown two-piece suit with matching accessories, and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception for the bride and groom, followed in the church hall. From there the happy couple left for a honeymoon in Niagara Falls and New York, the bride travelling in a brown and beige-flecked suit, gold hat and gloves, and brown shoes and purse. Her corsage was of yellow roses and white carnations.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Baie Comeau, Que.

Highly respected B'burg citizen mourned by many

Late Leslie A. Keatley

After a brief illness during which he was confined to the Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury, Ont., Leslie Alfred Keatley, born on January 18, 1909, passed away on October 2.

He was the beloved husband of Maudie Gertrude Seary, whom he married February 27, 1933.

For over 26 years Mr. Keatley was an honored and respected employee of the C-I-L plant in Brownsburg.

While he was widely known and loved throughout the district, apart from his home Mr. Keatley's main interest and concern was in his church and the promotion of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

For several years he served as usher, Sunday School teacher and board member of the Brownsburg Pentecostal Church.

A favorite with the children and a friend to all, he will be sorely missed at home, at work, in the community and in his church.

Left to mourn are his wife, Maudie, his son, Gary, and daughter, Faye; his mother, Mrs. Abr. Keatley, of Montreal; his brothers, Dawson, Ross and Arthur, of Brownsburg; his sisters, Annie Keatley, of Ottawa, Mrs. Wilfred (Pearl) Stone and Mrs. Clifford (Mae) McVicar, of Brownsburg, Mrs. Bernard (Lillie) Reeves and Mrs. Ernie (Ellen) Mott, of Calumet, Mrs. Leslie (Ada) Cant, of St. Laurent, and Mrs. Gerald (Norma) Bennett, of Montreal.

The funeral service was held in the Brownsburg Pentecostal Church on Saturday, October 5, conducted by his pastor, the Rev. R. E. Solmes. Assisting him were two former pastors, R. Unger, of Montreal, and E. McNutt, of Peterborough, Ont. At the request of the family, Mrs. E. McNutt sang "I won't have to cross Jordan alone".

Among the pall-bearers were members of the board, Messrs. K. Murdoch, M. Graves, Wm. Stansfield and Wm. Tomalty, with C. McAndrew and S. Murdoch. Honorary pall-bearers were H. Maslin, T. Pascoe, G. Tomalty and J. McRae.

The many floral and memorial tributes, as well as the large attendance at the funeral, bore tribute to the esteem in which the late Mr. Keatley was held.

Interment was in Ogdensburg Cemetery.

A season-long deer contest is announced for the coming hunting season, with $1 registration good for the entire period, and no restriction as to territory, within this province. There will be a $10 award for the best deer specimen at the end of each week, open to members only; and the chance on a drawing for a rifle, for participants in the contest. This will be held at the closing soiree of the Association. (Forms are available for the reporting of deer.)

Duck, hare and partridge hunting is now in swing. Members should report and register their bags in these varieties of game, and perhaps qualify for a winning award.

Main St. merchant dropped dead of heart seizure

The late Eddy Mansour

A Main Street storekeeper, well and favorably known, was removed by the sudden death last Monday of Assad (Eddy) Mansour, proprietor of the Argenteuil Bazaar Store. Mr. Mansour, 56 years of age, collapsed with a fatal seizure in his apartment, after climbing the stairs from his store at the noon hour. He had complained during the previous night of feeling unwell, but apart from this, had always enjoyed good health.

Born in Montreal of Lebanese parents, he came to Lachute in 1931 and started a drygoods business like his parents, in the Raymond property where L & P Shoe Store now has its premises. In 1955 he occupied, and purchased from the late Abdulla Assad, the building a few blocks west on Main Street, where he has continued in business since that time. He was a member of the Chamber of Commerce, unassuming by nature, and co-operative in measures contributing to the retail interests of this town. He and his wife were members of St. Simeon's Anglican Church.

He is mourned by his widow, the former Cecile Libbos, to whom he was married in 1945; also his sister, Miss Rose Mansour, who had been in the business here since its inception. He was predeceased by another sister in 1951.

The remains were taken to Montreal, where rites will be held at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church on DeCastelnau Street, Thursday at 2 p.m.

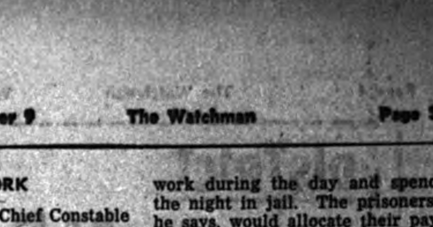

Fellow residents extend sympathy to the relatives in their sudden bereavement.

WANTS JAIL WORK

Winnipeg CP — Chief Constable Robert Taft has suggested a work release program for prisoners in provincial jails. Prisoners would work during the day and spend the night in jail. The prisoners, he says, would allocate their pay to their families, thus relieving the burden on the provincial welfare department.

C.W.L. meeting

The monthly meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held Monday evening at L'Ecole Supérieure, with 26 members in attendance. Members were advised by the president that Father Yvon Mailloux is their new director, replacing Father Harold Conway.

A tentative business session was planned. A wreath is to be placed at the cenotaph for Armistice Day. Final arrangements were made for a rummage sale to be held October 26 at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The usual Christmas raffle of a fruit cake will be held, with Mrs. T. Dwyer as convener.

Mrs. B. Lowe closed the meeting and refreshments were served by the tea convener and her group.

Illustrated travel theme enjoyed at United Church Women's thank-offering

A very enjoyable evening was spent recently at the Autumn Thank-offering meeting of the Lachute U.C.W. The president, Mrs. Edgar Pollock, was pleased to welcome so many friends, who came to share the fellowship and the travelogue provided by the Rev. Arthur Organ, D.D., guest speaker from the Town of Mount Royal United Church.

Dr. Organ's excellent pictures, both on color film and in his descriptive talk, showed not only the beauties of Hong Kong, India and Greece, but also the great need of millions in Hong Kong, where the population has mushroomed from half a million to three million, since the war; where whole families and their chickens live on a tiny sampan in a crowded community of masts, in the harbor; where 12 people use an apartment 10 ft. by 12 ft.; where the rooftops of the apartment houses are used for schools. One bright spot is the Isle of Happy Healing, where lepers are now given fresh hope for recovery.

India truly is a "Land of Contrasts". This country with its beautiful buildings — such as the Taj Mahal, built of marble and inlaid with precious stones; the "Pink City", with its buildings of pink sandstone; Agra, with its Red Fort; New Delhi, laid out by the British and described as more beautiful than either the capital city of the U.S.A. or our own capital — is also the country of 100,000,000 needy people, where the monkeys eat enough food to feed 10,000,000 people, but must not be destroyed because they, like the cows, are sacred in India.

This is the country of marble elephants, a solid jade gate, the Peacock Gate, inlaid with precious stones; but also the country of the Untouchables, who, thanks to Mahatma Gandhi, are now allowed to enter a temple. Two thousand gods are fearfully worshipped in India . . . but our own Christian College and Christian Hospital, with bright faces of native doctors, nurses and teachers, are there. Of particular interest to this gathering was the picture of our own native son, Dr. "Bob" McClure, at work in the operating room.

Greece, the "Land of Truth and Beauty", was a study in ancient and modern architecture and sculpture — the Acropolis, where Paul walked, Areopagus, the Greek "shopping centre", and finally Mars Hill, where Paul found the altar with the inscription, "To the unknown God", and where Dr. Organ fulfilled an ambition — to stand where Paul stood.

Devotions conducted by Mrs. J. Bates and Mrs. E. Armstrong had been suitably based on a passage from Acts 17.

Mrs. R. Griffith expressed the appreciation of the meeting to Dr. Organ, who then pronounced the benediction.

Next event of interest to the local U.C.W. will be the Fall Rally in St. James United Church, Montreal, on October 22.

Old-timers Return To Visit Former Friends

Harold V. O'Reilly, who was widely known here over 50 years ago (on the staff of the old Bank of Ottawa), was back in Lachute recently along with his wife, the former Annie MacArthur, as guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. George Hunter.

While here for a week, the O'Reillys called on over 40 individual old friends and relatives in the area, and were entertained by many, before going on to Don Mills, Ont., to visit their son-in-law and daughter (Lois), Mr. and Mrs. E. M. P. Winch, and granddaughter Audrey.

The visitors were pleased to see the many evidences of change and solid growth hereabouts, but Mr. O'Reilly was most amazed at the luxurious environment he found at the Lachute Golf and Country Club. "Out of this world," said he.

After a few weeks in Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. O'Reilly will fly to Calgary for a week-end with their son, Clifford and family, before going on to Victoria, B.C., where they now live in retirement at the Glamis Manor in Oak Bay.

Report on recent Witnesses' meet at Trois Rivières

Jehovah's Witnesses numbering 2,042 attended their largest convention held to date, in Trois-Rivières. Mr. J. Blair Shearer, presiding minister at Lachute, states that one of the highlights was the baptism ceremony, where 54 persons, varying in age from 11 to 76, were ordained as ministers by immersion in water.

The four-day program emphasized the importance for Christians to read the Bible every day. "The Bible is not just the best seller, but is also the only Book that has the solution to problems menacing humanity today and gives the hope of a better world," declared Mr. Shearer. The Witnesses released a new French Bible Translation written in modern French, to facilitate their daily Bible reading.

The Witnesses listened attentively to a series of lectures on marriage. "The Bible counsels husbands to love their wives as themselves, and wives to be in subjection to their husbands. Children must show their obedience to God by being obedient to their parents. Experience has proved that the happiest married couples and the most successful children are those who regularly read and study the Bible."

The main event of the assembly was the public talk, "When God is King Over All the Earth." Mr. Shearer declared, "We can expect difficult times ahead, but soon mankind will experience the greatest change ever known. The end of the world will come during the present generation by the most terrible war; a war, however, different from all others, in that only the wicked will be destroyed."

NOT ALWAYS NEEDED

Emergency (sometimes) demands the use of an ambulance siren, but there are many, many more occasions when there is no need for using it.

Of Many Things

SEPARATION IN MARRIAGE

There is nothing quite so good for a marriage as brief separations.

This is something a clergyman friend told me the other day. He said he had patched up many a shaky marriage by arranging to have the husband transferred out of town for a fortnight or so. He had figured out the reasons why it works, too.

"The husband soon begins to be lonesome," he said. "The orderliness of his hotel room is attractive for a day or two, and he enjoys ordering up his favorite food. But in a couple of days, he is watching for mail from home, hungry for news of the family."

The clergyman said that seeing bereaved husbands suffer had given him the idea. They would give the world to have their wives back again — and soon they experience a nostalgic longing for all the little family jokes and habits and routine. A separation, he said, accomplishes somewhat the same thing — but with a joyful reunion at the end.

So there you are, fellows. If you want to really appreciate your marriage, take a brief leave, or let your wife go home to mother for a week or two. The betting is you'll be glad to get back together again as quickly as possible.

Fire Prevention – a pointed plea

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK is a good time for all of us to pause in what we are doing, and give a thought to care with fire. We repeat this plea — it cannot be echoed too often.

Too many fires need never have happened, and a little care on the part of all of us can reduce our tragic fire toll in lives and property destroyed.

On the average, about 170 fires start in homes in Canada every day. Last year 620 persons lost their lives in fires and hundreds more received bad burns.

And last year, dollar fire losses in Canada totalled $126,000,000.

The tragic thing about all these fires is that three-fourths of them were the result of carelessness, according to the Canadian Underwriters' Association.

With a little care, lives can be saved and needless burning of property prevented. To re-emphasize some of the warnings issued in our Fire Prevention supplement last week, here are a few suggestions that may keep your home safe from fire:

(1) — Never leave small children alone. Even if you are leaving for only a few moments, get a responsible person to stay with them. When going out for an extended period of time, employ a baby sitter.

(2) — Small children and elderly people are the more frequent fire victims. If there are elderly persons in your household, plans should be made to get them out of the house quickly in case of fire.

(3) — Use care with cigarettes. Never discard a cigarette or drop a match without being sure it has been extinguished. It's a good plan to break a match after using, just to be sure it's out. Keep matches out of reach of children. And never smoke in bed.

(4) — Keep a flashlight handy for use in dark places. Never strike matches or carry lighted matches or candles into closets or attics.

(5) — Keep your electrical appliances in safe condition. Take them to a qualified repairman if they have loose connections or frayed or worn cords.

(6) — Throw out old newspapers, magazines and other waste combustibles regularly, rather then let them accumulate in the basement or attic. These are the things on which fires feed.

(7) — Impress upon everyone in your household that, in case of fire, they first get everyone out of the house, then call the fire department. Call the department from your neighbor's home, if need be, but never re-enter a burning house.

These suggestions could save your life, or the lives of members of your family. YOU are the one who can help keep your home safe from fire.

Thanksgiving Day, October 14

THANKSGIVING, one of the few religious observances native to North America, will be celebrated in Canada this year on Monday, October 14. This colorful post-harvest season of plenty is the time of year when we give thanks to God for our well being and share with family and friends our hopes for the future.

In the valleys and lower altitudes, the trees are still bedecked in their most colorful dress for this season, with scarlets and golds blending in with green and brown leaves. The mellow countryside invites us outdoors, on this last public holiday of the year.

Although most of us treat it as just another holiday, we should not forget the true significance of this day. It is a day in which we should give thanks. Some of us, perhaps, believe we have little to be thankful for, but if we look deep enough and long enough, we can find things near us that should make us thankful we are living in a free country like Canada. Thankful for the friendliness and confidence of our community — one of the hundreds, large and small, which collectively make up this country we are proud of. Thankful that law, order, godliness and good will are its dominant influences — instead of those rebellious and destructive factors which might prevail, to shake our faith in humanity and to undermine the future of our offspring.

Indeed, we need not look far, or tarry long, before the full extent of our good fortune dawns upon us. Let us then be thankful, and seize upon each opportunity to share with others less happily endowed — those in sorrow, those in need. This is the true spirit of Thanksgiving.

Automobiles booming

CANADIANS bought over a half a million new cars in 1962 — a record 502,565 units — according to the 1963 edition of "Facts and Figures of the Automotive Industry", the annual publication of automotive statistics.

According to "Facts and Figures", there is an average of one car per household and 3.2 persons per vehicle in Canada. This compares with a density of approximately 2.4 vehicles per person in the United States and 6.6 in the United Kingdom.

Motor vehicles provided governments with an estimated $655 million in revenue in 1962, which represents 21.2% of the total net general revenue of the provinces. Of the total motor vehicle revenue in Canada in 1962, 15% was derived from motor fuel taxes and 6.2% from registration fees.

Other interesting facts and figures in this informative booklet about the Canadian automotive industry in 1962 include:

— Total production of passenger cars and commercial vehicles amounted to 508,780 units — an increase of 117,883 units over 1961.

— The average hourly earnings by wage-earners in the motor vehicle manufacturing industry amounted to $2.47.

— Retail sales of passenger cars, trucks and buses totalled $1,782,916,000.

— There were 21,027 convertible cars produced in Canada in 1962 — an increase of 10,501 units over 1961.

— There were more than 5,780,000 vehicles registered in Canada in 1962, of which 4,536,000 were passenger cars.

— Canadians drove an estimated 47.5 billion miles during last year on a total of 467,106 miles of highways, roads and streets.

— Net sales of gasoline totalled 3,314,910,000 imperial gallons and net sales of diesel oil totalled 153,571,000 imperial gallons.

AUTUMN HOLIDAYS. — Our United States visitors should try a holiday in Canada in the autumn. Canada would probably seem to be more like what they expect, bracing northern air and all that, and Canadian autumn scenery, fishing and hunting is well worth travelling a good many hundreds of miles to see and enjoy. —Gananoque (Ont.) SEVENTY MILES an hour is a speed when a blowout can hardly fail to have fatal consequences. If we wish to reduce the accident toll then all factors should be taken into account. — Chilliwack (B.C.) Progress

PLANNING NEEDED. — Not enough thought is given to the conditions surrounding the initial establishment of utilities in many urban communities. The claim is frequently made that lack of vision has resulted in installations not large enough to care for increasing consumer demand. — Melita (Man.) New Era

DIFFERENCE ON THE PRAIRIES. — What a difference this crop and the Russian sales have made to the general outlook of all of us on the Prairies. With the exception of those who were hailed out, for the first time in many years there is a feeling of optimism and security. Rosetown (Sask.) Eagle

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

Attended a fighter pilots' reunion last weekend, and am happy to report there's still a lot of fight left in the old fighter pilots, although I am forced to confess that a good many of us were not as young on Sunday morning as we thought we were Saturday night.

I shuddered deeply when the long-distance call came through, and the familiar voice chortled, "Hullo, Willie. Dutch here."

Each time Dutch calls, which is every two or three years, I whisper gently to myself, "Oh, dear." I know perfectly well that whatever he has in mind will be intriguing but exhausting.

We have a peculiar relationship. He taught me to fly Spitfires about 20 years ago in England. Ten years later, he walked into a hotel in a Canadian resort area, grinning broadly, and said, "Hullo, Willie." I had not seen him in the meantime. Next day, I went off with him on the most unusual fishing trip I've ever experienced.

He's an Australian of great charm, a certain ruthlessness, a fantastic energy, and an extreme individuality. Add to these a keen mind and a rare flair for the wild caper, in some moods, and you have most of him.

Except that he's a bachelor, and doesn't have to cope with women and children and responsibilities and all that rot, when he comes up with one of his hair-raisers.

* * *

The infuriating thing is that he always acts as though one of these ordeals he gets me into is purely medicinal, a tonic rather than a mankiller. 'Twas so this time:

"Fighter pilots' party in Montreal. Thought it would be good for you. I've booked tickets for tomorrow's flight. Should be a good bash."

I grinned into the receiver in sickly fashion, as this devil's advocate went on, and my mind whirled through the domestic and economic obstacles between me and the reunion. With half-hearted promise to see what I could do, I hung up.

"That was . . ." I began lamely, to the Old Battleaxe. "Why don't you go?" she queried. "It would be good for you." So help me, I haven't been so shaken since the day I found myself over Holland, at 8,000 feet, with no engine.

"You're kidding!" I finally blurted. "That was Dutch, and he wants me to . . ."

"I know. We can't afford it, but you should go. You'd enjoy it." This is like a preacher telling me he sees nothing wrong with sin. My first thought — and I was immediately ashamed of it was that the old lady was having an affair with the milkman or somebody, and wanted to get me out of the way for the week end.

I felt a little more comfortable about the whole thing when she made me promise to take out $100,000 in that air travel insurance. The kids were unashamedly fascinated by the idea. "You mean, if you crash, we'll be rich?" Hugh wanted to know.

Well, it was a good bash, and I did enjoy it. Most of it was a bit chaotic, with names and squadron number and roars of delight as old friends spotted each other. But a few vignettes stand out in my mind.

There was the old fighter pilot whose thrifty wife had packed a lunch. He clung to the paper bag as to a life-raft through the lunch reunion and the afternoon reception, and I've never seen anything finer than the sheer, naked courage with which he doggedly attacked the thing at 4.30 in the afternoon.

* * *

There was the real, live Spitfire. Chap had assembled it at the Lakehead and had flown it down for the reunion. He put on a show in what is probably the last flying Spitfire in the world, and the eyes of the old boys, majority of whom had flown Spits, were almost wet with nostalgia and booze as they watched the little lady go through her paces.

There was the awesome exhibition of hair-fine precision flying and cold nerve of Canada's famous Golden Hawks. With the old pros looking on, the boys really put on a show that made most of us glad we'd been born 20 years before these jets were invented.

Having strayed from the main group, as I so often do, I watched the air show with a little French kid, about eight, who came and stood beside me. He spoke no English, I only a little French, but we had rapport. We said "WOW!" together every time the jets seemed certain to collide. He shook hands gravely when he had to leave "pour le supper."

My only regret is that the fighter pilots don't meet every year, instead of every two or three. But, as one of them explained to me, if there was an annual bash like that one, in a very few years there wouldn't be any fighter pilots left. They couldn't stand the pace.

THIS WEEK AND NEXT

Battle of the Pensions

By RAY ARGYLE

The battle now raging over the Canada Pension Plan is a struggle between the private and public authorities in the field of personal security. It is, in effect, the same kind of contest as we have seen on medicare.

RAY ARGYLE

The $10 increase in the flat old age pension was the first business to be dealt with when Parliament resumed last week. It is to be financed by increasing the personal income tax rate for pensions from three to four per cent., with the maximum annual tax going from $90 to $120 for top wage-earners.

No one will begrudge our pensioners their new rate of $75 per month. But it is becoming increasingly obvious that Canada will never provide its aged with a decent living standard by financing pensions out of taxes.

This is why Health Minister Judy LaMarsh has been given the job of creating a federally-sponsored, contributory pension program which will supplement the flat rate old age pension.

It is needed because the great majority of Canadians do not have access to company pension plans where they work, and because insurance companies will never be able to provide adequate pensions for low wage earners.

Those who already have company pension plans will not be affected by the Canada Pension Plan, which will be financed by contributions of one per cent. of an individual's earnings up to $4,000, and a like amount from their employer. Existing private plans can either be reduced by this amount, or can be left as they are with the federal plan being taken on in addition.

Canadians now realize our record in providing security for our aged is the worst in the western world. Europe and the United States have been doing a better job for years. And Canada—with six persons in the work force for every one of pensionable age—is in an ideal position to finance adequate old age security.

It is inevitable that the Canada Pension Plan will affect the business of private insurance companies. It also will increase the cost of operation of companies which do not now have pension plans. Further, it will withdraw via forced savings some two per cent. of current purchasing power, to be fed out later in combined flat rate and contributory pensions of up to $118 monthly at 65 or up to $175 monthly at 70.

But this is the price that this generation is going to have to pay to lift the terror of insecurity and penury that faces too many of Canada's elderly today.

The future of the Canada Pension Plan still rests on a number of unknown factors. The withdrawal of Quebec on constitutional grounds leaves Ontario as the key to the scheme. Premier John Robarts has already designed a provincial plan which would be left entirely in the hands of insurance companies.

Canadians should insist that Ontario and Ottawa bridge their differences so as to make a federal plan feasible.

Miss LaMarsh has not made this any easier by her truculent partisan attitude, particularly her intrusion — with disastrous results — into the Ontario provincial election.

Prime Minister Pearson now concedes the practicality of a parliamentary inquiry into the details of the plan. Parliament should continue to target for putting this epic piece of social legislation into effect as soon as possible. But not at the expense of reasonable debate and inquiry into its details.

Canadian Thanksgiving

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

In many lands Thanksgiving as well as being a festival of family reunions, marks the Harvest Home season. Our neighbors to the south trace their Thanksgiving to the Plymouth Colony. There in 1621 the Pilgrim Fathers gave thanks for their first harvest. In the U.S. Thanksgiving is observed on a Thursday late in November while our Canadian Thanksgiving is more than a month earlier.

Our first Official Thanksgiving as a Canadian nation had a special royal connection. It was on April 15, 1872, when our government asked us to thank God for the recovery of the Prince of Wales from a long and serious illness. Later when he became ruler, Canadians on August 9, 1902, celebrated the Coronation of Edward VII with another Thanksgiving Day. There were two special Thanksgivings associated with Queen Victoria, one on June 21, 1887, marking her fifieth anniversary of her ascension to the throne, and ten years later on June 22, 1897, Canadians rejoiced in the great Queen's Diamond Jubilee.

We have experimented with different dates. After the First World War we tried combining Thanksgiving and Armistice Days. These two events were observed on the Monday of the week in which November the Eleventh fell. But this dual celebration satisfied no one, especially the veterans. To their credit they made their protest known.

Parliament in 1931 set aside the second Monday in October as Thanksgiving. With the exception of 1935 when Thanksgiving was postponed until Thursday, October 23, because of a general election, the second Monday in October has been a popular Canadian Thanksgiving date.

What does this time mean to you and to your family? Does it find you on Sunday worshipping in the church of your choice? Surely this is one Sunday when recreation, visitors, or the multitude of excuses which keep people at home, should be forgotten!

Last Sunday as we walked towards church a small girl on a tricycle joined us. "Where are you going?" she asked. When we told her she answered, "I don't go to church . . . or to Sunday school now. I just go in snowtime."

In Canada in some areas winter does arrive fast on the heels of the glory and the color of the Autumn days. But every season is so rich with beauty, let us express our gratitude to the Creator who has given us such abundance and loveliness in "our own, our native land"!

We do not need long lists of statistics to convince us that here in Canada we have been experiencing an amazing period of prosperity in most areas. But let us not count our blessings just in our increased wealth.

The Bible reminds us that in good times it is easy for a nation to forget God. This Thanksgiving in our rejoicing for the beauty, promise, and freedom of our land, in the midst of our prosperity, let us recall Paul's request to the Ephesians to sing and make melody in their heart to the Lord, "Giving thanks for all things unto God."

Report on drugs, first aid kits

Over the years, people have come to think of ASA as a safe drug, "but no drug is safe," a Consumer report warns.

"It has been reported in scientific literature that the use of ASA over prolonged periods has led to gastro-intestinal hemorrhage and severe stomach disturbances."

ASA also has special dangers for children, who are much more sensitive to the drug than adults, the testers reported.

The first "Canadian Consumer" also offers tips on first aid supplies which should accompany every family on holiday picnics, motor trips and other journeys.

Medical consultants advised the testers that kits should be kept as simple as possible to minimize confusion in an emergency.

Each kit should contain: ASA tablets for the general relief of pain; absorbent cotton for washing wounds; gauze pads for dressing; a triangular bandage; tannic acid jelly for burns; an antiseptic for treating wounds; safety pins; scissors.

For comfort

From the colorful cotton braid rug on the floor to the exposed beams on the ceiling, this living area has the bright appeal required of a family room. Crisp cafe curtains make an attractive background for the circular table attractively covered with a round cotton cloth boldly striped at the edge.

Synthetic foods seen in future

Toronto — Synthetic foods made from soya beans, wheat, potatoes and even oil, may someday feed the world's millions of people who live in hunger, says October's Imperial Oil Review in a special agricultural issue.

One product, soya bean protein fibre, is now being processed into "meat." It looks, feels and tastes like chicken, turkey, ham or whatever else the processors choose to make of it. Two scientists, Drs. Norman Tape and M. S. Chan of the federal government's Food and Research Institute at Ottawa, hope we can learn to do the same thing with protein from wheat, the Review says.

Using a mashed-potato base, the institute has produced a nutritious dehydrated food. They've made fish-potatoes, meat-potatoes, and cheese-potatoes, which are stored and shipped as a powder, "rehydrated" with water or milk and cooled into croquets.

"Even the oil industry may be able to help, with a protein product now being produced experimentally from crude oil. If experiments are a success, a little more than one per cent of the world's oil production could satisfy the protein-deficient diets of Asia and Africa," the Review continues.

"Food processors say that within 10 years, 57 per cent of the housewife's food expenses will be on convenient new foods like these. More important than their convenience: some of the foods may prevent the daily toll of 10,000 deaths through malnutrition."

Before we can begin to attack the problem of feeding the world's hungry people, says Dr. Rolland Poirier, dean of agriculture at Quebec's Laval University, we need a great many more professional agriculturalists. "I believe the agriculturalist must redefine his job and broaden his outlook," he writes in the Review. "He must become a specialist for human feeding. We must graduate men from our universities who understand all the aspects of food processing, biological as well as technical."

A new look in turkey

There are great changes going on these days in the poultry business and one of the most revolutionary is in the merchandising of turkeys. Yes — turkeys are becoming another of the "cut-ups" in the poultry business. For the small family desiring turkey for one meal or for the busy housewife wanting a simple-to-prepare turkey dinner, cut up turkey is the answer.

We've already seen quarter turkeys on many markets. The front part is mostly dark meat. This month pieces such as breasts, thighs, drumsticks and wings will be coming on the market in some centres.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, have recently cooked a great many of these "cut-ups" in their test kitchens in Ottawa. The larger pieces can be roasted either with or without stuffing. One of the most interesting cuts cooked was a half breast of turkey from a 20 pound bird. It weighed about 3 pounds and would give 6 to 8 servings.

This half turkey breast was placed on stuffing on a piece of foil. The skin was skewered to keep it from shrinking — then it was brushed with butter and covered loosely with aluminum foil (dull side out). Roasting of this cut took about 2½ hours in a 325° oven.

If you find cup-up turkey on the market in your area this month, why not try cooking the pieces and see how you like them!

Leaflets on "Cooking Cut-Up Turkey" as well as "Cooking Whole, Halves or Quarter Turkeys" are available from — Information Division, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

A turkey for Thanksgiving

Wash turkey in cold running water. Pat inside dry with paper towels; leave outside moist. Use ½ teaspoon Ac'cent per pound of turkey ready to stuff. Set aside half the total amount for the dressing and gravy; divide the remainder between skin and body cavities. Sprinkle cavities also with salt and pepper. Stuff turkey. Fasten neck skin to body with skewer. Push legs under band of skin at tail, or tie them to tail. Place turkey, breast side up, on rack in shallow open roasting pan. If desired, cover with a loose covering or "tent" of aluminum foil. Roast turkey in a slow oven (325°F.), according to weight. Cook the bird 3½ to 4 hours for a 6 to 8-pound turkey; 4 to 4½ hours for an 8 to 12-pound bird; 4½ to 5½ hours for a 12 to 16-pound bird; 5½ to 6½ hours for a 16 to 20-pound bird; 6½ to 7 hours for a 20-to 24-pound bird.

Dear Doris

Canadian social worker Doris Clark invites you to write her about your problem. She answers letters of general interest in this column but can't undertake personal replies.

DEAR DORIS — I followed your advice and moved into my own aprtment rather than stay home with my overbearing mother. But I had to go back. My poor dad, who is in a hospital, worried himself sick over her being alone, and made me promise not to leave her alone any more.

Now she's happy because she has won another victory. But she doesn't use me much, if any, better. If I only felt free to invite my friends or to go out sometimes, I would not mind so much. But I can hardly go anywhere without her. BABS

DEAR BABS — It's as if your father said: "Please sacrifice yourself to make your mother happy. Promise me you'll never try to get out of it." The promise was an unfair one.

To remove its one-sidedness, your mother's promise to give you courtesy, freedom, and the right to entertain your friends, should also be exacted.

It should be constantly in her mind that if she does not make life livable for you, you'll leave. Stiffen your spine and do it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS—My son of 25 is marrying a very nice ladylike young woman of 21 who, unfortunately, has an illegitimate daughter. Up until now she has supported herself and the child by working. She was a young girl of 16 when she had the baby.

My son wants to give the child his name, but how does he go about this? We were advised by one party to go to the Children's Aid Society, but they have never had anything to do with the child or her mother. I can't see where it concerns them in the least.

Her mother and her aunt have supported the child up to now. I'd rather things were different, but what can I do or say?

GRANDMOTHER-TO-BE

DEAR GRANNY — Your daughter-in-law-to-be made one mistake. It seems she has lived through it and it shouldering her responsibility. Your son accepts the situation; so should you.

There are official child care agencies which arrange adoptions. In several provinces these are the Children's Aid Societies. You are well advised to seek their professional, confidential help.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Women candidates fared badly in the Ontario election September 25.

Of 14 women candidates, only one was elected — Mrs. Ada Pritchard, Progressive Conservative in Hamilton Centre.

She is only the third women to have ever gained a seat in the Ontario legislature.

Why have women gained so little ground in this particular field? It may be the persistence of a conservative attitude that politics is "unlady-like," prevalent in the days of the late Agnes Macphail, first woman member in both the House of Commons and the Ontario legislature.

When the dauntless Miss Macphail encountered this opinion, she used to quip: "I'm no lady; I'm just a human being."

She never capitalized on her sex or femininity, although some reporters of her day described her as having "a pleasing form," "a straightforward and steady gaze," and "a wealth of hair as black as a raven's wing."

When she spoke, she stated her facts bluntly and tersely. For her campaign in the 1921 federal election in which she was elected, she made 55 speeches.

Dress No Worry

Miss Macphail seldom thought about fashion. "This is the only dress I have worn during the campaign," she remarked one day to a companion, referring to her blue serge suit and sailor hat. "It is going to take me to the House of Commons or the house of refuge."

She toured her constituency in an old car which repeatedly broke down and after the election was able to boast of not having kissed a baby or solicited a single vote.

Her entire campaign cost only $550, just about half of which came from her own purse and the balance from one-dollar subscriptions.

Miss Macphail was born on a farm and when she entered the political arena, the farmer remained her prime concern. She felt farmers had never received a square deal and that their sons and daughters did not enjoy the same social standing as urban dwellers.

This outspoken personality also championed women's emancipation and participation in public life and attempted to bring to the attention of law-makers the worthy aims of many women's groups across the country.

She led crusades for penal reform and for the abolition of military training in schools.

* * *

Same Spirit

Mrs. Ada Pritchard, a grandmother of four, echoed Miss Macphail's individualism when she said following her election: "I don't intend to emulate Agnes. All I want to do is a good job."

She said she intends to aim her political career at "all the things women are interested in" such as low rental housing, welfare, children's aid and care of the aged.

Mrs. Pritchard had experience in these areas while she worked on Hamilton City Council for 11 years.

She said she was happy she was elected because "there's so much legislation in the province affecting women and children; there should be at least one woman sitting in the house."

Women's Institute

The members of Frontier W.I. who attended the regular meeting of the branch held at the Brownsburg School, enjoyed a special treat in Dr. G. R. Rigby's pictures of the wild flowers that grow each year in this vicinity. Dr. Rigby jokingly remarked he had almost termed these "the wild flowers of Cushing", seeing that there were so many ladies from Cushing present. Most of the wild flowers were those which had been found in and around Carillon, on the canal side to Grenville, and now covered by the risen waters of the Ottawa. Dr. Rigby had never seen trilliums until he came to Canada, but the mallows were common in England as well as in this country. . . Frontier Women's Institute is much indebted to Dr. Rigby for this treat.

An enjoyable contest regarding food was held, the questions being given regarding the nursery rhymes of our childhoood. An interesting reading was given regarding W.I. work, from Mrs. Ellard. $3,182 towards the Senior Citizens' Fund had been received; any donations to that fund will be gratefully accepted. Donations of books for the West Indies may be left with Mrs. Ralph McOuat, of Lachute, but they must be in good condition, clean, and without pencil markings.

'Shoulders to the wheel' for recreation — speaker pleads

"The approach to youth recreation has undergone a change. Twenty years ago, the slogan was: 'Save our youth'. This is still applicable, for young people will always need adults to help combat their boredom and keep them occupied; but today the emphasis is on constructive and disciplinary pastimes." . . This, broadly translated, was a sentiment expressed by the Rev. Father Marcel de LaSablonnière, director of the Immaculate Conception youth centre in Montreal, who was invited last week by the provisional committee on Recréation to give a talk in Lachute.

"We are entering an era of shorter work hours and more leisure. Will our young citizens profit by this greater freedom to improve their physiques and faculties, or will they just grow flabby?

"The moral aspect of recreation is important: it can help combat alcoholism, counteract the attraction of hotels, the hazards of driving, and influences of bad company. . . The organizing of wholesome recreation is essential to the mixing of our young people in proper surroundings. It is, moreover, an 'apprenticeship' to life and to the correct use of their freedom."

Father de LaSablonniere spoke with equal emphasis on the physical benefits of organized recreation. In the Province of Quebec, he said, we are lagging in physical education. In 400 schools in Montreal (he remarked) there are only nine university-trained physical education instructors.

The speaker answered numerous questions from his audience. In conclusion he urged all parents, municipal councils, school boards, social clubs and the population at large, to "put their shoulders to the wheel" for the establishment of centralized and co-ordinated recreation, befitting the needs of this town. "Let this be the concern of everybody, not just the objective of a small group," he pleaded.

The discourse, presented at the St. Alexandre School, was well attended. The speaker was introduced by Gérard Laurier and thanked by Dr. J.-P. Dorion, Chairman of the gathering was Laurent Beaudry.

Brownsb'g Scouts' paper canvass this Saturday

The Brownsburg Boy Scouts will hold their fall paper salvage collection on October 19. In case of rain the drive will be held on October 26.

Residents are requested to tie securely in bundles, or place in cartons, all old newspapers and magazines, and place them at the roadside before 1 o'clock.

Fence Viewing, a rare hobby, is Rotary topic

At the last regular meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary, the club was honored to have as guest speaker Dr. Paul Aird, of Canadian International Paper Co. Dr. Aird's subject of "Fence Viewing", a hobby of his for a number of years, including many interesting slides showing the great variety of fences and their origins in Eastern Canada. Mr. Aird was thanked on behalf of the club by Wes Freeland.

Club members were treated to some home-grown entertainment September 26 when past-president Jack MacKimmie screened a number of color slides which he took on his recent trip to Hawaii. He also filled in the presentation with considerable detail and interesting personal sidelights in his dialogue.

The Rotary Club was again entertained by a fellow member on October 3, when Tom Johnston gave an interesting talk, illustrated with numerous color slides, on the newly enlarged golf course at Carling Lake. The slides were very beautiful, having been taken when the leaves were at the height of their fall coloring — and the coverage was such that nothing was left to the imagination.

Spot-checking of automobiles

An automobile verification program is presently being carried out by the local Q.P.P. detachment, according to Cpl. Maurice Dinelle, officer-in-charge.

Cars are being stopped on a "spot-check" basis throughout the County, tested mechanically, and either approved with a windshield sticker or sent to a garage for repairs.

Plywood workers withdraw from U.S. labor union

Employees in one of the Dominion Ayers industries (Woods Division) cast a majority vote to break away from the American union and to affiliate with a Canadian labor group. The decision was taken at a meeting Monday afternoon — to dissociate the local body (No. 3058) from the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Woodworkers of America, and to join with the C.S.N. (Confederation of National Labor Unions), whose president is Jean Marchand.

Basis for the separation is a contention that local interests have not been sufficiently represented in the American union, also that too great a portion of the contributions has been remitted to the U.S., with inadequate services in return. All the local officers of the Brotherhood resigned.

The new syndicate here, "National Union of Plywood Workers (Lachute)", is seeking recognition of the Quebec Board of Labor Relations as bargaining agent. Negotiations for renewal of contract with the local management will proceed as soon as the new union is recognized. The present contract, negotiated in December 1961 after a two-months strike at the Dominion Ayers Woods Division, will terminate December 2 of this year.

Plan 'Hallowe'en for UNICEF' effort

One department of the United Nations effort, UNICEF, affords an opportunity for children and adults to "lend a hand" in even the humblest sphere. "Hallowe'en for UNICEF" is an opportunity for fun-loving children to contribute their "shell-outs" to less privileged and more needy youngsters around the world. In this annual gesture they have the leadership of understanding adults or organizations. In Lachute and district, Mrs. W. E. Butterfield is once again organizing the effort, through schools and junior groups.

Public support will be appreciated. Please bear this in mind when Hallowe'en comes around.

Home and School - what's the use!

— This is the question that will be discussed, and answered, at the next meeting of the Lachute and District Home and School Association, to be held in the music room of Lachute High School at 8.15 p.m. on Tuesday, October 22. The leader of the discussion will be Mr. Jack Chivers, of Montreal, a well qualified speaker on Home and School matters, as he has been active with this association for many years. In fact, many people may have heard him on CJAD's "Sounding Board" a few years ago, answering questions on Home and School.

Mr. Chivers is presently district manager for the Industrial Life Insurance Company in Montreal, current president of the Life Underwriters Association of Montreal, and president of the Montreal Life Insurance Managers Association, both of these associations being the largest of their type in Canada.

In connection with Home and School, Mr. Chivers has been president of both an Elementary and a High School association. He was chairman of several Quebec Federation committees and, from 1959 to 1961, was president of Quebec Federation of Protestant Home and School Associations. From 1961 to 1963, he was National vice-president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation, and is director of Public Relations for the same organization. Mr. Chivers is active in Kiwanis and in the United Church of Canada, where he is currently chairman of the National Committee on Adult Work. He is also chairman of the Youth Advisory Committee of the National Safety League of Canada. He is a resident of the Town of Mount Royal.

Youth wounded in first mishap of hunting season

A hunting accident — the first of the season reported in this district — occurred last week at Carillon, when a 19-year-old youth was wounded in the heel by gunshot, while out hunting for partridge. The victim was Maurice Belair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donat Belair, of Carillon, and the mishap occurred in vicinity of the station on the C.N.R. line near that village.

Although bleeding profusely, the youth managed to struggle some distance and was found by Olivier Briault, who happened to pass nearby. Dr. Marcel Sylvestre, of St. Andrews, gave medical treatment and the young hunter was removed to hospital for further attention.

Lions' mammoth TV Auction to finance dining hall for Crippled Children's Camp

One day last August, dozens of clubmen of the Lions of Zone 12 (comprising 23 clubs and 900 members) visited the camp of the Province of Quebec Society for Crippled Children at St. Alphonse de Joliette. The occasion was the turning of the first sod for the new Dining Hall.

Here were more than 275 crippled kiddies enjoying a month's vacation. Here, for instance was little Kathy Banville the 1962 Queen of the Camp. . .

Kathy wore low-cut running shoes striped in red, yellow, black and orange. They seemed new. . . Kathy has never run in them, for she has cerebral palsy . . . She has never seen them, for she is blind.

In the winter Kathy is just another unfortunate, blind crippled child who gets along with loving care and the limited means at the disposal of her family. But in the summer, for one glorious month, Kathy really lives. Indeed, last year she was a Queen. She, with all the other youngsters, was laughing and singing happily, happy because visions of a dream coming true danced through their heads.

A camp for cripped children is no ordinary camp. The success of such a camp requires a large and specially trained staff. . . Headed by a camp director, it consists of a resident doctor, physiotherapists, trained nurses, nurses' aides, life guards and swimming instructors, arts and crafts professors, counsellors, kitchen, dining room, laundry and maintenance staffs, comprising in all some 150 people.

The camp was opened in 1938, with 60 children attending. This year nearly 300 crippled boys had a month's vacation in July, and the same number of girls in August.

The present dining hall, originally designed for a maximum of a hundred, is totally inadequate for present-day needs. Many of the children are wheel-chair cases, and quite a number cannot feed themselves. Frequent table settings are required and the time-lag interferes with the scheduling of daily camp programs and activities. It is not insulated, and in warm weather particularly, conditions are almost unbearable for staff and patients.

So the Lions Clubs of Zone 12 have undertaken to help build the new dining hall. It will cost $75,000, and the Lions are raising half this amount with a Mammoth TV Auction. This will take place on Saturday, November 2, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Channel 12 is donating the time and facilities free of charge.

The Lions have collected over $40,000 worth of merchandise. Among the items to be auctioned off is a swimming pool completely installed, a Chevrolet car, a live steer, two sheep, a pony, a dog, and hundreds of other items such as TV sets, refrigerators, washing machines, etc. All merchandise is donated.

As this is a one-day operation with volunteer help, all sales are for cash with the exception of three or four of the larger items, on which financing can be arranged. Travellers' cheques will be accepted.

Cubs' repair shop requests toys

Lachute Wolf Cubs are repeating the Christmas toy repair shop, through which they were instrumental in brightening the festive season for many poorer children in Lachute last year, besides youngsters to whom they were distributed in remote northwest regions.

Any families having discarded games and repairable toys can help substantially in this effort by donating such articles immediately. . . Please call Mrs. T. A. Bignell (LO 2-6191) or E. S. Gordon's machine shop, Berry Street (LO 2-6035).

United Church extends call to N.S. minister

The Rev. Harold Thompson, B.A., B.D., of Windsor, N.S., was guest preacher at the Lachute United Church on Sunday morning last. A large congregation was present for the Thanksgiving service.

A special meeting of the congregation was held in the afternoon to study the report of the Pastoral Relations Committee, under chairmanship of the Rev. A. Norman, interim minister of the church. A resolution was presented by the Clerk of Session, Stuart Armstrong, and seconded by Charles L. Duncan, clerk of the Pastoral Relations Committee, that a call be extended to the Rev. H. Thompson. This resolution was overwhelmingly supported by the meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Thompson was later presented to the people in attendance, and he accepted the invitation; he will be able to take over the pastoral charge here by November 10.

Teen-agers in hospital after early-morning crash

Four young people in this automobile were taken to hospital with various injuries following a crash in the early hours of Sunday morning. Robert Laporte, 19, of Hope Street, was the driver of the car, which went out of control on Chatham Street and struck an auto belonging to Dr. Prévost, then hurtled into a hydrant and landed into a brick wall at Lachute Lumber Co. factory. Other occupants of the car were Lise and Nicole Tremblay, aged 16 and 19, Germain Labre, 17, and Robert Gauthier, 21. Nicole Tremblay was the most seriously injured, with both legs fractured. . . Sparkling performance of ballet by free-Hungarian concert troupe

A keen and infectious enjoyment of their art was apparent in the troupe of performers which visited Lachute last Monday, for the first entertainment of the Community Concert season. The Hungarian Ballets "Bihari" (thus named after a famous gypsy violinist-composer, Janos Bihari), organized by Nora Kovak and Istvan Rabovsky, fugitives from communism — include a group of free Hungarian musicians and dancers who exemplify the tradition of their country in the Western World — and impart to their audiences the sheer joy of their performance.

They were heard and acclaimed by a large assembly at the Catholic School, where the audience reaction was a compliment to the troupe and gratifying to the Association, whose directors had worked hard for a full membership and a satisfying selection of programs this season.

The various numbers on the "Biharis" program featured the six dancers and six instrumentalists in eloquent moods and tempos. The Hungarian gypsies (as stated by the president in her introduction) express temperament in music and dancing — joy, sorrow, love, anger. Their art on the stage effectively conveyed these emotions; but the spirit of the performance was by no means secondary to other qualities appreciated by their listeners — the color, the chorography, the costumes, and (still more notable) the skill, and grace of the artists. . . Mr. and Mrs. Rabovsky are former stars of the Budapest Opera Ballet and the Leningrad Ballet. The troupe has appeared six times on the Ed Sullivan Show. The orchestra is composed of the finest free-Hungarian artists resident in America . . . and Rudi Surányi, their director, gave fair demonstration of this quality in several instrumental numbers. One unit of the ensemble, the cimbalon — a stringed instrument resembling a xylophone, played dexterously with hammers — proved specially interesting. Its depth of tone, yet versatility in staccato playing, created an intriguing music. It was played both solo and in unison with the other instruments.

Ensemble numbers by the dancers, "Gypsy Life" and "Wedding in Tokay", were complex and particularly colorful. But the grace and technique of the performers was most effectively apparent, perhaps, in the duo and solo dances. . . Altogether this was one of the most scintillating recitals ever presented by Community Concerts in this town.

Mrs. Fernand Legault, president, welcomed the gathering. The Catholic Women's League provided refreshments in the school cafeteria. Also during the evening, Mrs. G. E. Rigby and Miss Juliette Rodrigue made public announcements of a concert to be given December 4 by Wayne Riddell and his Tudor Singers, concerning which more will be further announcements.

By BOB ATCHISON

The State of Maryland has adopted a new litter law, which points the way to other states and provinces. All boats of any size, must carry a litter bag, AND it must be used for all types of litter. A person caught dumping litter into any waters, is liable to a fine from $5 to a maximum of $250, AND from 30 to 90 days imprisonment. This certainly will stop this type of garbage hound. As a matter of fact this law could be adopted on any waterway, and there would be plenty of offenders. I don't know how this could be worked effectively in our province; it's bad enough catching them on the highways, without trying on the lakes and rivers. But it's worth thinking about.

For the ardent fisherman, the North River has come into its own again. Some of the fish being taken have been extra good. Dore of 4, 5 and 6 lbs. have been pretty common; small-size Northerns have also been very active, running from 5 to 12 lbs. It looks as though we are on the way to some good fishing in this river for the next few weeks. . . A final report — a 43-lb. Northern or musky was taken here recently on a Red Devil lure, large size. The group after them were in a boat, and had tried around the small creek running down from Lake Sir John. Catching nothing in this spot, they moved on up towards Bourbonniere settlement and had a trailer just below this spot. A large fish seemed intent on getting caught — it trailed this one lure five times before it came from underneath the boat to hook himself.

As most of you know, this is a hard stretch of river to land anything in, what with eel grass, sunken logs, stumps, etc. I know just how rough it can be, as I have lost more of these doozers than I have caught. Believe me, a fisherman catching and landing anything big in this type of water deserves a gold medal. I'm sure glad this fish was taken; as you know, I've talked and preached the North River as one of the best waters I have ever fished, even if it IS kind of dirty once in awhile.

Catching one of these much maligned fish is, in my humble opinion, the highpoint of any trip along the river. Trying to guess just what they will do, is like trying to figure out the antics of a beautiful cat. I know a lot of fishermen hold their noses when you talk of Northerns. They come in towards the boat like a log, but when they spot that boat, hang on to your hats, rods and everything else lying around loose! They usually take off with all super-chargers working, and the way they can strip line off a reel is a breath-taking revelation. The sound of the reel squealing, and the line running through the water, makes an old man of you before your time. Seeing them come out of the water with teeth snapping at the lure, throwing water all over the place, is a sight never to be forgotten. Even after the fight is all over, you can still see these fish flailing away in the air. — Truly the King and Queen of fresh water fish. Long may they reign!

I talked with some of the groups who went after moose this past week. Of course, nothing can be determined from these reports, but it does look as though too high a count was made of the animals this spring. A number of these beasts were brought into town, but considering the numbers that went away, the hunting was poor. I did see one weighing about 1,400 lbs. and another that would hit around 1,100. Good specimens, and they should make good eating. One of the groups with six hunters, dividing up two to a party, did not see a thing on their trip in the bush; they did not even have an answering call at any time. The other parties did see cow moose, but not too numerous. It could be that we just don't have the number of moose around we are led to believe. We'll have to wait for the official count of the kill, from government sources. It would be nice to find out how many hunters went out after moose through the licenses issued, and the actual number killed. I think we would get a big surprise.

It may seem a little early to start talking about bird houses — but remember the feeders you didn't build last year. (Maybe it will be different this year!) I have found the best material to build them with has been plywood, ¼-inch thick. Build it about 12 inches square at least, and make it closed on three sides. Have the top a couple of inches larger than the sides, and in this way you will stop a lot of the snow from blowing back into the feeder. A small strip of wood must be placed across the open end, at the bottom; this stops the feed from blowing out. You can either scatter the seed in the bottom, or have a can with holes punched in it that will allow the seed to fall through. Make the holes large enough for corn to pass through; if you don't the seed will not drop down. You can also have some small blocks under the can if you don't want to shake the holes. Don't use wire in the feeder, as the cold weather and wire could hurt your birds.

Where to place them, is another thing. Do not set them facing a north wind; during the winter the prevailing winds are north and northeast, so that the feeder will fill up with snow. If you have a few trees or hedges around, then you should have no trouble finding sheltered spots. But without these you will have to try and think up some good and convenient place for the feeders. I'm sure you can do this. And any little trouble you may have now, is more than repaid later on by the visitors you attract.

Partridge shooting in the district seemed to be very good at the opening. All the birdmen I talked to seemed to have luck, and even one pheasant was reported shot. This was in the Lakefield area, and I would say a number more will be shot before the season is over. Ducks have not been flying too well this past week, but that is to be expected; with the recent warm weather they just won't move. But any time now, they will get going in a hurry!

• • •

A few of the Greater Blue herons are still with us; I guess these have been lucky so far, what with the sure-shot duck hunters and the different kind of weather we have been having. A good number of Blue Bills have been seen flitting around, and some wood duck. I haven't heard of too many Mallards being taken yet; the same applies to the Northern Blacks.

Ducks Unlimited will be very happy at the flights of ducks reported on the prairies, even though some of the farmers have had trouble keeping the birds out of the grain fields. I have been reading a report on some of the havoc these birds can do. Imagine an acre of grain cleared in just over half an hour with a full flock in feeding. No wonder they complain. I believe the provincial governments in each of the prairie provinces makes adjustments on this, and I guess they should. This year the birds were lucky insofar as predators were concerned; it seems they met with some fate unexplained. It could have been the cycle of these things. Maybe nature is relenting a little for the duck population.

In Montreal the other day looking around, I noted more and more orange is being adopted for clothing in the bush; about 60 percent of all apparel is in this color. One thing I did like very much — they have a small vest that pulls over your regular hunting clothing. Easily put on, it has only one button, but has elastic inserts so that it will fit any size. These are particularly good for the person who is using his ordinary clothing, greens, browns, etc. They seem will be a life saver. I hope the hunters will use them.

85 in Association's final fish derby of the season

In fine weather last Sunday, there was an enthusiastic entry of 85-odd fishermen in the last contest of the season held by the Argenteuil Hunting and Fishing Association, at St. Placide.

A 16-ft. rowboat was given by Fernand Ouellette, owner of the property, and was won by young Bernard Berthiaume, of Lachute. Several other worthwhile prizes were donated.

Top catch of the day was taken by Claude Larocque and Raymond Archambeault.

There was a bean feed in conclusion, with numerous door prizes to add zest to the festivity.

Deer Hunting

The five-weeks deer season opens Saturday, and the Association is offering a prize for the best specimen taken each week of the season. Entry cards ($1) and all necessary information may be obtained from officers of the Association.

Vows pledged recently at Maple Ave. Baptist Church

Thompson - Tomalty

— Bertrand Studio

The marriage of Miss Grace Agnes Tomalty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carson Tomalty, of Brownsburg, to Mr. Douglas Owen Thompson, youngest son of the late James R. Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, of Lakefield, took place in the Maple Avenue Baptist Church on September 14, the Rev. R. L. McPhee officiating.

The wedding music was played by Mrs. Hugh Morrison, while "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Perfect Love" were sung by Mr. Linton Tomalty, cousin of the bride. Standards of white gladioli and yellow mums were used to decorate the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon organza over taffeta, the fitted bodice fashioned with a scoop neckline and long sleeves coming to a point over the hands, while the skirt was designed with tiny bows. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of pearls and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white stephanotis. Her jewelry consisted of a string of pearls and earrings, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Faye Tomalty acted as matron-of-honor for her sister-in-law, in a short sheath gown of blue organza over peau-de-soie, with a matching overskirt. Her headpiece was of matching tulle, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white mums.

The flower girl, Miss Nancy Tomalty, niece of the bride, wore a dress of apricot shot taffeta with a matching circlet headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and yellow baby mums.

Mr. Wayne Berry acted as best man, while Mr. Robert Tomalty, brother of the bride, and Mr. Earl Thompson, brother of the groom, were ushers.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Tomalty chose a three-piece taupe double-knit suit, accented by a blouse of bronze and turquoise. Her accessories were of turquoise and brown, and she carried bronze mums on her brown satin purse. Mrs. Thompson, mother of the groom, wore a teal blue brocade ensemble of dress and matching jacket. Her corsage was of pale pink carnations.

Following the reception at the Brownsburg Legion Hall, the happy couple left on a trip to central Ontario, returning via Algonquin Park. For travelling, the bride chose a blue silk linen suit, with navy accessories; her corsage was a deep pink carnation.

The couple have taken up residence in Brownsburg.

Rural development theme this year for Farm Forum

Quebec Farm Forum is interested in the community and how the rural community is changing. The directors of Quebec Radio Farm Forum requested the Department of Extension, Macdonald College, to program and staff a Leadership Training Course.

On September 27 to 29, 25 delegates from rural Quebec attended this course, at the McGill Study Centre at Mt. Ste. Hilaire.

What is happening to the rural communities? How are communities planning their future? Has the rural community disappeared in some areas? What is the role of the Church? How do you interest people in continuing education? What does the future offer to the young people from rural areas? Questions like these were discussed by the delegates to the Leadership Training Course.

"The Farmer and Rural Development" is the theme for this year's Farm Forum broadcasts.

There is a great need for leadership in almost every community. There are many followers and few leaders. Farm Forum is trying to encourage local leadership in rural communities. With capable guidance, it is felt that rural people will more fully discuss and plan the development of their communities.

• • •

Effective immediately, Mr. Galen A. Driver will assume the position of Provincial Secretary for the Quebec Farm Radio Forum and Quebec Farmers' Association.

Mr. Driver, a native of Richmond County, graduated from Macdonald College with a diploma in Agriculture in 1953. He was since employed by Canadian Johns-Mansville, Asbestos, Que., as an industrial engineer until the fall of 1962, when he returned to Macdonald College to resume his studies in Agriculture.

Stretch fabrics

In the clothing business, the good word is s-t-r-e-t-c-h. Although stretch fabrics, both natural and man-made, have been exciting the textile world for some time, big gains in production and sales are being made this year, reports The Financial Post. Output gains of 50% are reported by some mills. Stretch fabrics' big selling point: garments have all the comfort of a Roman toga, without bulk and shapelessness. Only sagging note: Some industry critics say women won't like the appearance of stretch cloth in regular clothing.

On strike-bound Empress of Canada

Mr. and Mrs. W. Y. Shearsmith, of Lachute, arrived home this week from their two-months vacation visit to Britain. . .

Their arrival was not so serene as this social note suggests, however — for Mr. and Mrs. Shearsmith were aboard the Empress of Canada strike-bound in the St. Lawrence during the longshoremen's recent work stoppage. They have vivid impressions of frustration on the part of C.P. Steamships officials and ship's officers, and of the ominous attitude of the strikers at Quebec.

An attempt to take on a pilot by helicopter proved abortive, but finally, after a successful effort to re-fuel the ship and to embark a pilot off the Isle of Orleans, the vessel took off for Halifax. Mr. and Mrs. Shearsmith returned to Montreal on Sunday, aboard a special train from Halifax.

Through this unusual experience Mr. and Mrs. Shearsmith have highly favorable comment for the consideration shown by the Empress officers and crew, and by officials at Halifax. Their outstanding regret is the unsavory impression received by numerous couples and families immigrating to Canada or visiting these shores for the first time.

To link Ste. Adele village and parish, one municipality

The councils of the Village and the Parish of Ste. Adele have adopted resolutions to unite their territories under one municipal administration.

The decision was reached on a recommendation of the Chambre de Commerce de Ste. Adele.

After careful study, it was found that the Village of Ste. Adele, with a territory of one mile square, has reached its limit of development and as a result cannot cope alone with the problems that it will have to face because of foreseen expansion expected with the completion of the Laurentian Autoroute.

The Parish of Ste. Adele, on the other hand, has a territory of 32 square miles.

"We have had the collaboration of the two councils," said Jean Bergeron, secretary of the Chambre de Commerce, "and we are happy to say that we can now hope for a prompt solution to our problems.

"We are sure that with the linking of our municipalities, we will be able to offer to our residents, present and future, a better guarantee on their investment in our locality."

Former resident died in N.Y.

The late Russell Dallaire

Russell Dallaire, a member of an old Lachute family and a long-time resident of New York State, died October 5 at Rochester, at the age of 63. The remains were brought to Lachute for burial, the funeral being held on Tuesday, October 8, from the Menard parlors to Ste. Anastasie Church.

The late Mr. Dallaire is survived by three brothers and two sisters — the Rev. A. Dallaire, parish priest at St. Hyppolite, Ednas Dallaire, of Montreal, Léo Dallaire, of Lachute, Miss Louise-E. Dallaire and Mme Henri Chamaillard (Marie-Ange), also of Lachute.

Here's our 1964 Rambler American— completely re-designed and still the lowest-priced Canadian-built car

Just look at the '64 Rambler American! It's the best thing that's happened to compact cars since we started the trend 13 years ago.

All new from roadway to roofline, the '64 American features Rambler's exclusive Uniside construction. The entire sides of the car have been stamped out of single sheets of steel. It means greater strength, longer life, doors that fit perfectly.

A longer wheel-base is another new feature of the 1964 Rambler American. Now there's plenty of room for six full-grown men, improved suspension for greater riding comfort, minimum exterior dimensions for handling and parking ease.

To top it off, the 1964 American has been re-designed from its extruded aluminum grill to its 22 cubic feet of trunk space. Lower overall height, curved glass windows, new interior fittings, and fresh-from-the-drawing-board styling makes the 1964 American one of the best-looking cars on the road.

And under that smart new hood is a 6-cylinder engine that's the talk of the industry. It's famous for dependability, wins economy runs with ease, has power enough to make highway driving fun. (For extra performance, specify the optional 125 hp overhead valve engine. It's available on all models.)

Add up the many famous Rambler features—the world's best rust-proofing, guaranteed Ceramic-Armoured muffler system, guaranteed battery and coolant, battery-saving alternator, self-adjusting Double-Safety-brakes, reclining seats, 3-year or 30,000-mile lubrication, and 2-year or 24,000-mile warrantee on the entire car. One thing is clear: the 1964 Rambler American continues the well-known Rambler philosophy of "maximum usefulness to the user." Prove it to yourself with a test drive. Tomorrow?

Tugboat captain killed in fall, rites held Tuesday

The late Denis Malette

Denis Malette, of 173 St. Jacques Street, Lachute, died last Friday following an accident at his work the previous day in Montreal.

The victim, the captain of a tugboat, suffered a fall of about 20 feet on Thursday morning, and was taken to the Neurological Institute in Montreal with a fracture of the skull, a broken leg and rib fractures.

Only 37 years of age, he is mourned by his wife, the former Yolande St.-Denis, and three daughters; also his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas Malette, all residing in Lachute — besides his four brothers, Theodore, Lorenzo, Martial and Gilles, of this town, and three sisters, Mme Henri Parent (Georgette), of Richmond, Mme Roland Corbeil (Gilberte) and Lorraine, both of Pont-Viau.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning at St. Julien Parish Church.

Sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

Mourn old citizen of Arundel, Que.

The late Frank Davis

Arundel — The funeral of the late Mr. Frank Davis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Merton Davis, took place in the Arundel United Church on Monday, October 7. The Rev. Wesley Ball, of Morin Heights, conducted the service.

Mr. Davis, who was born in Waterbury, Vt., came to live in Arundel when he was young. During that time he was employed by the C.N.R. as tie inspector, and later by the Canada Creosoting Co. as manager of their Truro plant. He then returned to Arundel to take up residence with his family and to engage in the lumber mill business, later turning to woodworking and contracting. He will be greatly missed in the community not only for his artistry, but for his warm and friendly personality.

He is survived by his widow, two sons, Edgar, of Arundel, and Wallace, of Maniwaki, Que., and two daughters, Frances (Mrs. Kitts) and Lilias (Mrs. Carslaw) both of Ste. Rose, and 10 grandchildren; also a sister, Miss Laura Davis, of Arundel.

Pall-bearers were members of his Masonic Lodge — Messrs. Mervin Davis, Wm. Owen, Robert Allan, Edward Craig, Douglas Williams and George Champagne. Interment took place in the Arundel Cemetery.

The deepest sympathy of the community is tendered to the bereaved family.

BELL LINES

by JIM MENZIES

LEAVE YOU HOLDING THE BAG?

Hang on, there, we wouldn't do a thing like that! No siree, a wall phone is a WALL phone is a WALL PHONE, and there's no need to drag over a table or whatever to rest the receiver on if you want to leave your caller for a moment. No need either to try a "test drop" to the floor to see if it's safe to just let go (puhleeze don't do this), or worry about the receiver dangling there against the wall. As is seen here, the handset hangs quite snugly on the notch on the top.

Incidentally, wall phones are available in white, ivory, grey, beige, yellow, pink, red, and green. White seems to be the most popular — probably because the wall phone is especially ideal for the kitchen (where it's close at hand yet out of the way), and white matches the stove and fridge.

TWO WRONGS

Ever answer the phone only to find no one on the other end of the line? Downright irritating, isn't it? Usually when this happens, the calling party has suddenly realized that he has the wrong number, and simply hangs up. Elementary politeness would require that he excuse himself for bothering others needlessly, but he prefers to hide in the shade of anonymity and compound his fault. A simple, "I'm sorry, I've got the wrong number," may not quite make up for the mistake, but it certainly indicates a sense of social responsibility and, as often as not, is all that's needed to bring a sympathetic or even humorous reply from the "wounded" party. Of course, no one in his right mind would ever purposely call a wrong number, but — despite all our emphasis on looking the number up and jotting it down, etc. — mistakes do happen. When they do, it's good to remember that two wrongs can never make a right.

ATTENTION, HUNTERS!

Now that the hunting season is open, we would like to remind our hunting friends to take care of our cables strung along our country roads. These are easily damaged by shot of any kind, and, the puncture may not show up until a rainy day, when all of the circuits in the cable could go out at the same time! This could leave sections isolated, and hold up emergency calls for sickness or accident (even to fellow-hunters). — So please help us to keep our lines in order, and shoot at less vital things. Hoping you have an accident-free season, and that your quota gets filled.

Thoughts on Newspaper Week

SOME AMERICAN towns have lost their newspapers in the past 10 years, and now they have no agency to perform the functions that a newspaper can perform.

What are these functions? . . . A Colorado editor, Houston Waring, has consulted journalists on three continents, and records the following answers to that question. National Newspaper Week (October 13-19) is a fitting occasion to take note of these opinions. . .

1. First of all, the newspaper makes a community's economy work by advertising. Retail trade drops markedly when newspapers cease to operate even temporarily.

2. The press permits the expression of public opinion through "Letters to the Editor" and by means of interviews. Thus, all sides of a question can be debated.

3. The press has a decision-forcing function. Everyone may be aware that a community has drifted into a bad situation, for example. Massive publicity requires each citizen to take a stand; the evil can no longer be ignored because it is a topic of conversation.

4. Newspapers have a status-conferring function. Anyone picked for mention is recognized as standing out from the crowd. Unfortunately, some newspapers (and radio interviewers, we may add) confer status on underworld characters by glamorizing them.

5. Perhaps the most important function is that of acquainting community leaders with the activities of other leaders. The school directors learn through the paper what the state highway department is thinking. The ministers discover the problems of the county welfare director. An organization planning a community event avoids conflict of dates through press notice given by other groups.

6. The newspaper helps the reader understand his environment. He learns to pay his taxes, where to register his child in school, how to get a driver's license, whom to see for free polio shots, and so forth.

7. If the environment needs changing, the newspaper can assist citizens in crusading for improvement.

8. The press is a sounding board for policy. Public officials often send up "trial balloons" to determine the public reaction to a proposal.

9. The press strengthens moral resolution, especially in small cities where citizens don't live "anonymously". Because tempted men fear newspaper publicity (just as they do an audit), they are better able to resist temptation. The press in a small and medium-size city thus becomes, perhaps unwittingly, a community chaperon.

10. The press is a medium of entertainment, discussing hobbies and specialized interests. Its columnists and cartoonists are regular entertainers.

11. The press, by devoting so much space to sports, is what William James termed, "A moral substitute for war". Readers vicariously identify themselves with a halfback or a goaltender, rather than with a major general!

12. The press attends to small wants. Through the classified ads it brings people together to solve their lost-found, rental, employment, and other problems.

13. Finally, the hometown press imparts a sense of identity. All of us wish to belong to a definite community that has a spirit of its own.

Hoards of boards

"GOVERNMENT by delegation" has penetrated nearly every important aspect of Canada's commercial life, writes Frank Oxley in The Financial Post. Across the country, a growing multitude of boards and commissions flourishes. Even personal lives are affected: Calling long distance? The charge is fixed by the Board of Transport Commissioners; Having a party? The price of your liquor is set by the provincial liquor board; Want to grow tobacco? In Ontario — no dice, unless the Tobacco Board says you may; Want to change the label on the beans you can? The Quebec Marketing Board says, "No."; Selling gasoline? In Nova Scotia, the Public Utilities Board may regulate the price.

Neither Ottawa nor any one province has an exclusive franchise for boards, commissions and the like — they exist from coast to coast. Some have extraordinary powers and their decisions are not subject to any appeal. Others have clearly defined powers and their rulings must be confirmed, amended or nullified by an elected body. Among the best known and most common of these administrative tribunals are the boards governing transport, broadcasting, energy resources, municipal affairs, the securities industry, labor relations, workmen's compensation, farm marketing, and pensions. But there is a host of others, large, medium and small, national, provincial and local — all wielding formidable powers over impressive segments of the Canadian economy.

Summer's 'fly in the ointment'

THE MATURE CUSTOMER at the marina asked the dispenser of gasoline if he would tell the driver of the noisiest water-slapper in existence that the police would be called if he ever came near the man's summer home — says a story in the current Printed Word which might be readily applicable to this area. . . "But," countered the attendant, "that fellow spent all winter making the boat. He did it all himself and that little outboard motor pushes it at 50 miles an hour." That apparently was sufficient justification among the young, who glory in noise.

The complainant also was told that the police had been around and had instructed the young man not to go out after midnight. This sounds as if the police have made a law, for a nuisance after midnight is perhaps no greater than a nuisance in broad daylight.

There must have been a time when these resort areas were really quiet. Transport by small boat was with oar or sail. On a still night the music of a gramophone might be heard across the bay, and occasionally a party would be held where there was enough gaiety for people to burst into song.

But not any more. The noise of outboards is worse than that of tomtoms, and seemingly with less purpose. People are being run over and killed or maimed, and this in the so-called rustic areas where people from the city go to get away from it all.

Viewpoints and perspectives

SWEEPS NATION — Mrs. Mary English, of Calgary, has 500,000 signatures, and she's wondering what to do with them, notes The Financial Post. As the sparkplug of "Operation Canadian Sweepstakes," she has travelled 20,000 miles organizing a nation-wide petition asking that lotteries be permitted in Canada. Now that the 18-month campaign has reached its objective, Operation Sweepstakes is unsure what move to make next. Mrs. English plans to continue travelling — this time to Ottawa — to consult with sympathizers on Parliament Hill.

PENSIONS for the aged, old age pensions, or whatever you may wish to call them, have become part of our way of life. This has happened over the years and in practically every country of the world today. While it might be said that everyone should provide for their old age when they cannot work any longer, this is a proposition that is not within the reach of all. Varying conditions and abilities affect this and all are not able to look after themselves in this way.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

What did you do, old friend, on Thanksgiving week end? Whatever it was, it could not have been anything but pleasant on this odd, pagan holiday, so peculiarly Canadian.

I know. We imported it from the States. But we have made it very much our own, and it has a flavor that is purely Canadian, much different from the Thanksgiving observed across the line.

Pagan? Yes, indeed. It should be a religious time, with the entire population on its knees, giving thanks with full hearts.

* * *

The percentage of the populace that is on its knees on Thanksgiving Day could probably be accommodated in a couple of trolley cars. The rest are on their wheels, their feet, or their tails.

Thanksgiving week end marks the last gay, mad fling of the Canadian people before they get down to the serious business of trying to stay sane through another winter.

It's the week end to charge about the country, visiting relatives or friends, pointing wildly to the last furious fling of color in the trees, making the last nostalgic trip to the cottage, getting out in the boat for one, final buzz.

It's the week end to tramp the lush, fall fairways for that last, blasphemous game of golf, to stroll the muted woods with a gun, to wade the navel-deep ice-water for that last rainbow trout.

* * *

It's the week end to sit in your favorite chair, cold beer to hand, and watch all the football games on television, your peace broken only by the maddening aroma of roasting turkey.

Or, if you're the domestic type, it's the week end for quiet pleasures, deeper satisfactions: putting on the storm windows, raking and burning leaves, bringing in your bulbs.

Not exactly a religious holiday, is it? I think there's a great dumb feeling of thankfulness in Canadians at this time of year, but it doesn't manage to break through the pagan rituals with which we have surrounded the occasion.

I'm not complaining; merely observing. But every year, at Thanksgiving, I make personal and lonely effort to take an hour off from the fun, compose my features into a suitable solemn expression, and think about the things for which I should be thankful. I don't have to search. Sometimes I can do it in 10 minutes.

* * *

The first thing for which I am thankful is being alive. Hundreds of millions aren't, and look at what they're missing! The second is food. I have been hungry, and it's the most degrading, demoralizing, soul-destroying illness in this world.

Another reason to be thankful is for freedom. In this country, we have a personal freedom to speak, work and worship that is beyond the wildest dreams of the majority of our fellow humans.

Health is a reason for raising thanks. I can no longer outstrip a gazelle, but I can outrun a 60-year-old lady with arthritis. I can't swim five miles any more, but I can swim farther than my wife. That's good enough.

Work you like is reason for thankfulness. I like mine. It's too hard, and I don't make enough money, and I'm always behind in it, but I like it. Environment is another source of thankfulness. I wouldn't trade my oak tree and my black squirrels, my favorite trout stream and my partridge-haunted woods for the Taj Mahal with Liz Taylor in residence.

There you are. Out of space, and I've barely started. Try it. You don't know how rich you are until you begin to count.

THIS WEEK & NEXT

The English Separatists

By RAY ARGYLE

The shock waves of the great ferment stirring French Canada have by now lapped across the country. But while our attention has been focussed on this fact, an undercurrent of reaction has swelled up in some segments of English Canada.

RAY ARGYLE

This has been overlooked in the dialogue now going on over the role of our two main cultures in the future of Confederation.

The Royal Commission on biculturism and bilingualism sets out this week on its long journey of inquiry into the relations between the two cultures.

And the fact must be recognized, while we listen to the demands of les Canadiens for a new deal in Confederation, that there always has been much anti-Quebec prejudice within English Canada.

ONLY A LULL

It seemed for a time, during the comfortable boom years of the 1950s, that French and English-speaking Canada had reached a quiet accord. We now know this was all superficial, merely a surface calm, and that below, the rip tides and undertow were waiting to do their work.

Out of the social and political revolution which has raged in Quebec since the death of Maurice Duplessis has come the most serious challenge yet to Confederation's status quo.

English Canada watched this upheaval not without sympathy, but also not with much real understanding. In the wake of the FLQ tragedy and the rise of three distinct separatiste blocs in Quebec, some segments within English Canada have begun to get their backs up.

There is Alberta's Premier E. G. Manning reminding Ottawa that official recognition of a dual English-French culture in Canada would be "unrealistic" and would impair national unity. There is Douglas Fisher, the eloquent NDP parliamentarian from Port Arthur, declaring "We have to take a stand, not as partisans, but as English Canadians." There is the acclaimed historian, Dr. Frank Underhill, warning French Canada it is time it started trying to understand English Canada.

Go out and talk to your neighbors and chances are, you'll find similar sentiments expressed in more pithy terms. This is what Prime Minister Pearson meant when he talked about English "separatists."

The danger is that French Canada's aggressive advocacy of its legitimate aspirations is bringing a reaction from some English Canadians that could cripple any real effort to solve our bicultural problems.

If a significant segment of English Canada decides to stiffen its back against the French Fact in Canada, then — despite what royal commissions or governments might do in legislating constitutional equality — the fires of separatism will be fanned, for the separatists delight in every slur from les Anglais, citing them as further proof of the hopelessness of Confederation.

The problem of building a bicultural and bilingual nation — which Canada is not and never has been despite the pretensions of the British North America Act — is enormously complex. But the attempt is going to have to be made.

It will first have to be recognized that this is not an issue between the provinces; it it not a case of Quebec being arrayed against the other nine. It is a problem involving two national streams, enjoined by force originally, by necessity today, into one mainstream, but with the French Canadian now insisting on political, economic and cultural equality and identity everywhere within the broad river of the Canadian Confederation.

The fact is that English Canada must understand French Canada, and hope that French Canada will understand us.

Canadian "fall lamb" is now at its peak and a good buy on many markets. At this time of year, lamb is more mature and at its best in flavor. The Consumer Section home economists suggest this tasty dish made with lamb shanks. Three pounds of lamb shanks will give six servings. The meat is browned and baked for approximately two hours in a spicy, tomato-juice sauce. Sliced onions and carrots add color and flavor.

'Fall lamb' in its prime

"According to marketing reports it would be more realistic if we referred to Canadian 'fall' lamb rather than 'spring' lamb." So says the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Lamb is most plentiful and at its lowest price in the fall months from September to November. At this time of year, lamb is more mature and the meat has its best flavor.

Lamb need not be considered only for Sunday dinners. There are lots of good, tasty cuts which are good buys right now. Take a good look at lamb-in-the-basket, for example — a fairly recent way of selling lamb fronts. Some stores will sell the whole front in a package as roast, chops and stewing meat and others will sell part as chops and stewing meat. You can get two or three dinners from this — a roast one day, chops or stew the next.

Braised lamb shanks are quite inexpensive and are quite meaty. The home economists of the Consumer Section recommend this tasty recipe:

Braised Lamb Shanks

3 Pounds lamb shanks (cut in 1-inch slices), 1½ cups sliced onion, 1½ cups sliced carrots, ¼ cup water, 1½ cups tomato juice, ½ cup liquid from meat, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon chili powder.

Trim as much fat as possible from meat and brown well over medium heat, about 10 minutes. Place in a shallow baking dish, add onions, carrots and water. Cover tightly and bake at 325°F. for 1 hour. Drain liquid from meat and skim off all fat. (If meat is chilled, fat can be more easily removed.) Combine remaining ingredients, add to meat and vegetables and continue to cook covered for 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue cooking until meat is tender, 30 to 45 minutes, basting once or twice during cooking. 6 servings.

Shoulder Chops or Steaks are larger and meatier than rib or loin chops but not quite so tender. They may be baked, broiled or panfried. Thin ones tend to be a little dry when panfried or baked, so that covering the pan after browning helps to make them more juicy and more tender. Shoulder chops baked in a 325°F. oven or panfried take about 8 to 10 minutes for those ½ inch thick; and 16 to 18 minutes for those 1 inch thick

* * *

Many seasonings go well with chops. Sprinkle one of the following over the meat after browning on both sides — thyme, dried mint, marjoram or ginger. The seasoning also flavors the gravy.

* * *

Try also glazing the chops after cooking with apple or currant jelly mixed with a little prepared mustard.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Patricia Rusak, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A child is thrilled when his parents see the desk he sits at in school, or a piece of his art work on the school wall.

Such limited participation in the most important activity of a child's life — school — is good reason to belong to the local home and school association, Marguerite McLean, a Torono mother of two children, wrote recently.

In the past few years, many criticisms have been aimed not only at local associations but at the provincial level and the federal Home and School Parent-Teacher Federation, with a membership of more than 300,000 across Canada.

Some parents consider the association a waste of time; some find the business of the meetings dull and the fund-raising a bore, wrote Mrs. McLean.

"I have enough trouble keeping up with the needs and demands of my own family without getting involved in problems at school," one parent said.

Another mother said: "My kids don't even play hockey. Why should I be asked to supply the school with sweaters?"

One father said if he had a legitimate complaint about his child's education, he would go directly to the school principal or the school board, explaining that he did not need the association as a go-between.

Solving Problems

But, she says, the associations help establish good parent-teacher relationships which are helpful when a child develops a problem, either at home or while at school.

The home and school associations can spur other local government officials to tackle problems in their areas.

Mrs. S. Buzynski, who arrived in Toronto from Brazil eight years ago and joined the association to learn about the school system in Canada, said that in her district the home and school was responsible for providing recreational facilities which had been lacking.

D. W. F. Mayer, president of a local association, said his group is studying the origins of racial prejudice in their area, which is heavily populated with immigrants. Eventually a school program will be set up to combat this.

Another committee is studying a problem common to many school districts — the need for supervision of children of working parents during lunch, recess and after school.

Help Keep Balance

Within the structure of the home and school, the provincial body receives most criticism. Many local associations feel they can do without a provincial body.

But Mrs. P. J. Glaubitz, the Ontario president, says educational opportunities across the province are still not equal — some areas have schools with outdoor plumbing; others have teachers who are not fully qualified. The provincial federation can help balance the inequalities.

Helpful hints from consumer tests

The conscientious shopper will find many helpful hints in the "Canadian Consumer," a small magazine now being published by the Canadian Association of Consumers.

The first issue of this publication contained the results of scientific tests of three products: portable electric drills, ASA tablets and first aid kits.

Main test factors for the drills were performance, convenience and price, the magazine reported. Eleven drills had been purchased for testing but only 10 were completely examined — one fell apart before completion of the tests, the report stated bluntly.

Thirteen brands of ASA (acetylsalicylic acid) tablets, more commonly known as aspirin, were tested.

There was no apparent relationship between the price and quality of the brands tested, the report said. "One 5-grain ASA tablet is as effective as any other, no matter what its brand name or price." Therefore the consumer's best buy is the cheapest.

ASA tablets will deteriorate if not sealed tightly in a warm damp room. "It is false economy to buy these tablets in large quantities," the CAC testers reported.

Get behind the U.N.

(Copyright)

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

The economic difficulties of the U.N. today, arising from the non-payment of some member countries, is of concern to everyone. Have you discussed this with your family?

October 24, United Nations Day, focuses the attention of the world on the U.N., its purpose, its history, its achievements and its problems. But teaching boys and girls about the United Nations cannot be crowded into one day. It must be a continuous process in which both teachers and parents try to make the U.N. real to the younger generation.

Is there a United Nations flag owned by the officials in your village or town or city which will be flown on "U.N. Day"? There should be — and there are two Canadian firms which now have the right to manufacture this flag. Why not make a few inquiries and encourage the "town fathers" in their plans to make this special date significant?

Children love flags and every Canadian boy and girl should know the U.N. flag. On a blue background it carries the official emblem of the United Nations in white, which appears on both sides of the flag. A paper replica of this flag in blue and white, may be obtained from the U.N. Headquarters in Ottawa.

The U.N. design of a polar world surrounded by a laurel wreath, represents "One world in peace and honor". There is no lettering on this flag because at least six different alphabets are used by the member nations of the U.N. There is no religious symbol such as the cross on this flag because men of many faiths adhere to the ideal of the U.N.

The U.N. flag was adopted in 1947 and was first flown on October 21st of that year simultaneously at the General Assembly Building at Flushing Meadows and over the Secretariat Building at Lake Success. The United Nations troops in Korea have been fighting under this flag.

It is flown from its own staff. The code followed in displaying a flag, in treating it with dignity, must be followed in flying the U.N. flag. It cannot be used for commercial purposes or to promote the sale of any article.

The United Nations acting together to preserve freedom is the one hope of liberty-loving, democratic countries. Fathers and mothers and teen agers who soon will be citizens, should all be familar with the Charter of the United Nations and with the general organizational plan of the U.N. Inquire about the $5 family membership in the U.N. Association of Canada, 329 Bloor St. W., Toronto 5, Ont.

They should also know something about the formation of the General Assembly, the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council and the International Court of Justice. These are the six principal bodies in the U.N. set-up. They should also be acquainted with the various Commissions such as the Economic, the Social and the Commission on Human Rights. The work of the Health, Educational and Cultural and other agencies should not be just names to them.

There are excellent pamphlets and booklets on the U.N. in the Public Library. One of the best publications is a book by Eleanor Roosevelt and Helen Ferris Tibbets called "Partners, United Nations and Youth To-day" published by Doubleday & Co. Garden City, N.Y. The price in Canada is around three dollars and both the writing and the illustrations in this book are exceptionally fine. This is a splendid addition to any family library.

In the preamble of the Constitution of UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization) are these pointed words of Attlee. "Since wars begin in men's minds, it is in the minds of men that the defence of peace must be constructed." It is of vital importance that the ideals of the United Nations should become real to us and to our children.

The dream of world brotherhood in practical terms must succeed in this century if we are to escape disaster. The U.N. deserves your support — be sure you give it whole heartedly!

Why is Chevrolet building a fifth line of cars when it builds four great ones already?

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE — Chevelle Malibu Super Sport Coupe

A fair question. ■ And we could give you a lot of impressive-sounding answers. But basically the explanation is quite simple. It has to do with people. ■ Each year their tastes become more discerning, more selective. They want a car that fits their particular needs. "Almost" isn't good enough. ■ So for '64 we're building the Chevelle — a totally new line of cars that combines some advantages nobody else has come up with yet. Chevelle's ride and room, for example, compare favorably with many of today's bigger cars. Yet it gives you the handling ease and agility you expect in a smaller car. And as for looks — it's styled with a fresh and youthful flair all its own. ■ And, of course, you'll find the kind of quality craftsmanship and reliability you've come to expect of a Chevrolet-built car. ■ Matter of fact, once you really get to know it, we have a hunch you'll come up with some reasons for building the Chevelle that haven't even occurred to us yet.

BUSINESS IS GOOD

The advertising manager of a huge grocery chain always winds up his letters with a cheerful "Business is good!" instead of the formal "Yours truly". Canadians can do much the same as far as 1963 is concerned. According to "Industry", it would be one of our best years, even if there should be a decline in the final quarter, which is highly unlikely.

The grocery chain counts on and gets pretty good business every year, even though its profits on the dollar of sales is quite low. They go for volume. They know that if they can keep their prices a bit lower than competitors, they will do all right.

And that, too, is the secret for Canada. If we can increase our productivity, and thus keep our prices competitive with other countries, business will be good.

This, of course, means that we can't have everything we want the minute we want it. We have to work hard in a world of very tough marketing conditions. Each employee has to give of his best, and each boss has to provide the most modern tools he can get his hands on.

The governments — at all levels can help by cutting their spending down, or at least holding the line. Taxes form part of prices. If taxes are held down to reasonable levels, manufacturers and retailers can keep prices more in line.

Business is good in 1963. Let's see if it can't be better in 1964. Let's all dig in and give full value for every dollar we receive!

Airforce officer breeds horses

Halifax (CP) — You might say that Bill Maggs leads a double life. He is a horse breeder and an officer in the RCAF.

Flt.-Lt. Maggs arrived here to begin a new stationing with the air force and brought 21 horses with him.

A native of Vermilion, Alta., he became familiar with horses in his youth because his father raised them for the RCMP. In 1953 he was in Edmonton when it occurred to him that something should be done to preserve the magnificent breed of Arabian horses.

Soon after that he purchased a six-month-old Arabian stallion in Nebraska. His first choice was Ibn Raddan, which at the age of 23 months became Alberta's first grand champion Arabian stallion.

"After this," he said, "interest in Arabians in Alberta just skyrocketed."

At Camp Borden, Ont., he began to import horses from all over North America. He now owns quarter horses, thoroughbreds, walking horses, a palomino and hackney ponies.

An expert on Arabian horses, Flt. Lt. Maggs had considerable difficulty in planning how to get his family of animals to Nova Scotia, and was pleased at the way in which horse-lovers in the province helped him find proper facilities for the steeds near Halifax.

Sharing his enthusiasm for horse-breeding are his wife and two sons. A pet deer, Bambi, ran away when the confusion of the day of the Halifax transfer approached.

Ottawa — "Credit handled by a competent operator at the right time, can be the most useful tool on the farm", says the Farm Credit Corporation in its recently revised information pamphlet, "Credit for Profit".

The FCC points out, "A few years ago, credit was regarded as something to be avoided and farmers took pride in being able to get along without it. However, mechanization and other technological developments in modern farming require greater investment and expenditures, the result being that today's operators must boost their income to meet mounting costs.

"In 1960, a farmer fed himself and six other persons. Today, he produces enough for his own needs and 25 others.

"This increase in efficiency is due to technological advances and because capital is gradually replacing labor. These changed conditions have made credit vitally important."

The new FCC booklet not only outlines the provisions of the Federal Farm Credit Act but provides timely and useful hints on the use of credit in today's farming operations.

It points out that credit can be used effectively to acquire productive land and livestock, labor-saving equipment, high-utility buildings and many other essential improvements. However, farmers are advised against using credit as a substitute for income and warned to avoid using it to cover losses or to refinance debts caused by unprofitable farming — unless the weaknesses are corrected.

The FCC says common misuses of credit are:

— Buying unproductive land and livestock.

— Purchase of unnecessary equipment.

— Constructing costly buildings that lack convenience and utility.

— Inadequate or unwise use of short and intermediate term credit in financing productive farming operations.

The FCC stresses that for credit to work profitably it must be supported by efficient operation and management.

Farmers considering the use of long-term mortgage credit are urged to plan carefully to ensure that they have selected the most profitable way to operate the farm in line with the credit available. Sound judgment with respect to probable production and market trends will play an important part in making these planning decisions. The Farm Credit Corporation has a staff of trained credit advisors ready to help farmers with their planning and credit problems.

Corporation lending in the current fiscal year continues to set a record pace according to FCC Chairman George Owen. Loans approved to September 30 numbered 5783 and amounted to $71,120,500 — an increase of 26.5 per cent over the $56,236,300 approved for 4515 farmers during the corresponding period in the previous fiscal year.

Farmers wishing the FCC's booklet "Credit for Profit" can obtain a copy from head office, Farm Credit Corporation, 150 Kent Street, Ottawa.

BOY SCOUTS LAUNCH FITNESS PROGRAM

To meet the growing challenge of a mechanized age and easy living, the Boy Scouts of Canada is now launching an action program, "Fitness Through Scouting". Backed by the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, the program calls for each boy in Scouting to have a medical check-up, followed by physical testing, plus exercises and adventurous activities typical of Scouting. Next spring and summer the boys will undergo re-testing to point up the number who have bettered their standards through the "Fitness Through Scouting" campaign.

Animal Care

FEEDING SMALL ANIMALS

Small animals are quite easy to look after but it is important to keep watch on food and water supplies. Small animals like to feed often — there's no question of three meals a day for them — and you should check at least once a day to make sure food is available and that their drinking water is clean.

Rats and mice like to gnaw on small sized dog biscuits but in addition to this you can give them almost any types of food, particularly meat and fish. Any neglect in feeding or watering will quickly show up, for the animals become listless.

The golden-hamster, looking something like a cross between a mouse and a guinea pig, needs a special arrangement for drinking. You can buy bottles from pet stores which, when turned upside down, allow only a drop of water to come out at a time.

The bottle is fastened to the side of the cage with a small container underneath. You can make a similar feeding arrangement by running a piece of glass tubing through a cork to fit a small bottle.

The hamster eats the small biscuit-type food you can buy in pet shops, with green stuff and carrots. He should also be given milk, and occasionally, a drop of cod liver oil.

Guinea pigs are vegetable eaters and should have greenstuff and carrots as well as biscuits. Rabbits have a similar diet but in addition to lettuce and carrots they have dandelion leaves, grass, turnips, clover and hay. Give the rabbit as much as he can eat during the night.

One final note about rabbits: never pick them up by the ears alone. The body is quite heavy and should be supported by the other hand.

This is a weekly column from the Montreal C.S.P.C.A. If you have any questions on animal care, address them to C.S.P.C.A., 5125 Jean Talon W., Montreal.

INTRIGUING

Paper drinking cups may be more sanitary, but old-timers claim the old gourd dipper at the spring was more exciting. Frequently a lizard ran out of the handle while you were drinking.

RODE WHILE DRUNK

Niagara Falls (CP) — Charles Vankolkenburg of Niagara Falls was fined $30 for riding his bicycle down the main street while drunk. A police constable told the court Vankolkenburg swerved his bicycle in and out of traffic before he was stopped.

INSTEAD OF ARMS

Given the resources freed by disarmament, the crucial problem would be that of deciding which of many competing needs we should satisfy more fully. In Canada we could accelerate, among other things, our programs for urban renewal, industrial and agricultural development, health and education, to say nothing of what we could contribute through foreign aid to underdeveloped countries. — Manitoulin Expositor

Most people do something special for their Silver Anniversary. Mercury creates its most luxurious cars in 25 years.

For 1964, all eight Mercurys are special Silver Anniversary cars. Special in the sense that even if you don't intend to buy a car this year—they may make you change your mind.

Mercury offers two rooflines this year. The fastback model in the foreground typifies the spirit of the Montclair Marauder. Mercury's famous Breezeway Roof (the rear window lowers) is available on both the Montclair and the ultra-sophisticated Park Lane, in the background.

These cars are special inside, too. Ostrich-grained vinyls feel like hand-rubbed leather. Box-pleated fabrics are rich and elegant. Bucket seats are of a special shell-type design. Carpeting is deep pile. Doors are finished in walnut-grained panelling and soft suede. The rear seat has a big pull-down arm rest. Even the foot pedals are accented with bright metal.

It takes a big car to give a truly luxurious ride — that's why Mercury is built on a big 120 inch wheelbase.

Mercury also has a suspension that allows wheel movement backward and forward as well as up and down. You drive the level line of luxury — powered by your choice of big Mercury V8's.

But above everything, there's an intangible something extra that makes the 1964 Mercury a car to remember. It is the anticipation with which you'll look forward to driving it and even seeing parked in front of your home.

Silver Anniversary Mercury for 1964, be sure to see it soon at your Mercury dealer.

Carol Lane awards to women's groups

The Carol Lane Awards program, for the past seven years an annual recognition of traffic safety achievements by Canadian women's organizations, has been expanded. The new system enlarges the scope of the awards to include non-traffic as well as traffic safety, and establishes provincial as well as national wards. The expansion is designed to attract a greater number of women's groups to the promotion of Safety.

Administered by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the National Safety League of Canada through a grant from Shell Canada Ltd., the Carol Lane Awards will now encompass traffic, home, child, farm and recreation safety work. National winners will be selected from the top-ranking provincial winners. As with the original program, any Canadian women's group, regardless of its size, scope or location, may enter. Winners are decided on program concept, originality, need and effectiveness of the project entered.

Quebec provincial award winners will receive cash prizes of $100, $50 and $25 for first, second and third places respectively. National winners will be awarded $250, $150 and $75 cash, the first-place winner also getting a trophy.

A brochure giving full details of the Awards can be obtained by writing to the Province of Quebec Safety League, Box 839, Montreal 3. Deadline for entries for the 1963 Awards will be February 1, 1964.

COULD LEARN FROM JAPAN

Montreal (CP) — Canadian builders can learn a lot from their Japanese counterparts, says Romeo Mondello, Montreal director of permits and inspection.

Mr. Mondello, just returned from a study mission to Japan, is enthusiastic over what he saw.

He would like to convince Montreal builders to construct revolving restaurants atop high-rise buildings so customers, during a meal, could view the city from every direction.

Tokyo builders also exploit vast underground shopping arcades, he says.

"Montreal's subway will provide a perfect opportunity to construct such arcades. We could have one long arcade linking the city's four big department stores with all sorts of stores in between and underground.

Some Antics about Antiques

Contributed by Felix A. Hungerbuhler

A few days ago I was introduced to a representative of our newest and seemingly very lucrative home industry, restoring antiques. I must admit I have always had some awe for any antique article, be it an heirloom, a piece of furniture, or any artistic creation of former periods of civilization. With our changing society, most old articles are now valued from a different point of view. They give prestige, status, or whatever you want to call it.

A lot of this stuff has actually no useful value to the owner, however; the wealthier one is, the easier is it to accumulate useless junk and be admired or envied by one's acquaintances. Just look at all the old buggy wheels that adorn driveways, and all they do is make snow-clearing more difficult. Yet, how many of the present owners would have cared to be seen in a buggy when they went courting! Most of their fair ladies would have left them at the hitching post. It had to be an automobile or else . . . Buggy wheels are only one specialty of the antique business; I would say, the lowest rung of the ladder.

Next in line are chairs, rocking or otherwise. Oh how lovely they look, all scraped and polished, given that old look with that new-fangled invention called Old English Oil and the cracks filled with wood-paste, a product of the new chemical industry. Are you or I allowed to sit in them? Beware, the whole contraption might cave in when one of the present generation wants to rest his weary limbs. However, they do look nice, giving the room a distinguished appearance of grace, with status.

On my visit to the antique restorer I was shown an old table with a lot of drawers. I certainly had to admit the table was old; you could see that the top boards had been planed by hand, and the feel of them showed that they had suffered a lot of scrubbing over a period of years. What puzzled me were all the drawers, and I was told that this antique once belonged to a Convent. Being skeptical, and materialistic, I cannot understand that the good Brothers or Sisters could have parted with such a prize. We all know that they are great collectors and would never part with anything of such value. How the table got into circulation is a mystery. The present owner will need an awfully big room in which to display it, and to tell his guests that it was the dining table around which his ancestors celebrated their fabulous wedding feast.

Now let's talk about cupboards and the different sizes of chests. At my friend's shop I saw some kind of a contraption looking like a miniature desk. Noticing my close examination, he explained to me the state of disrepair in which it had arrived. Actually the whole thing had consisted of the two upright sides, half a door, and part of the top that now can be turned down to serve as a writing table. The whole thing reminded me of a pair of boy's pants from the period when mothers had time to mend them with a lot of patches — in other words, more patches than the original material. I have to admit the workmanship was perfect, just as it would have been executed by a ship's joiner (a trade that seems to have gone out of fashion through the application of assembly-line production). So here we have another dust collector to show our friends, mentioning casually that grandmother wrote her love-letters on it to grandfather, who had been pioneering at the time, building the first transcontinental railroad.

A section that cannot be forgotten are old beds, fourposters, or even from a later period, iron ones. For my part, an antique bed is very uncomfortable, and an expensive item as most of the present day mattresses don't fit them. Canopy beds are most unsanitary — so much dust collects over them that it would take an army of hired help to keep them dusted.

The most useless contraptions to collect, it seems to me, are spinning wheels. They are real dust collectors and can only serve an ornamental purpose. How many ladies displaying these artifacts really do understand the workings of this former household article? Most of them would not even make a good job darning socks! Spinning wheels have a place in a museum, and a collection of the different models can be interesting for the Household Science scholar. I don't know how many different types were used, but I would like to know why the difference. Was it country of origin, or design, maker, or even different types of yarn that had to be produced? It could not have been the same reason as applied to our present-day household articles or automobiles, that have to become obsolete in order to create a continuous demand.

Last, but not least, I come to antique houses. They are real gems for real estate brokers. Any farm with an old stone house is easily sold to our antique buffs. The more dilapidated, the easier the sale. So if you own a poorly producing farm with run-down buildings, you have a more marketable investment than your neighbor with land in good tilth and up-to-date buildings. Just imagine how lovely your future ancestral home will look when it is rebuilt, at a cost, of course. You will have the old kitchen with the drafty open hearth, cast iron kettles, and all the trappings on one side of the room; and nicely set in the corner is the most modern electric stove with timing devices, etc., for everyday use. Nobody would think of using the old cauldron, because the hot water comes from the tap happily. The old barn, after a lot of expense, will be a most wonderful studio, but don't forget to install a box stove or a field-stone fireplace. (Have you ever seen a barn with a chimney?) As to the old woodshed, how about converting it into a play-den for the younger generation complete with hi-fi and TV? Should the youngsters really want to enjoy themselves they can always go over to the neighbors and play cow-boys and Indians. A hidden asset that a lot of these old houses have, are ghosts. Believe me, they do exist, and actually have been seen perambulating in broad daylight.

All things said, I truly believe that our second-hand goods business deserves a lot of respect, and with the demand for old articles that far too often have been neglected by a former generation, some good will come from it. Eventually we might become more careful of our chattels, and less reckless in wasting our heritage.

Education under tri-service plan

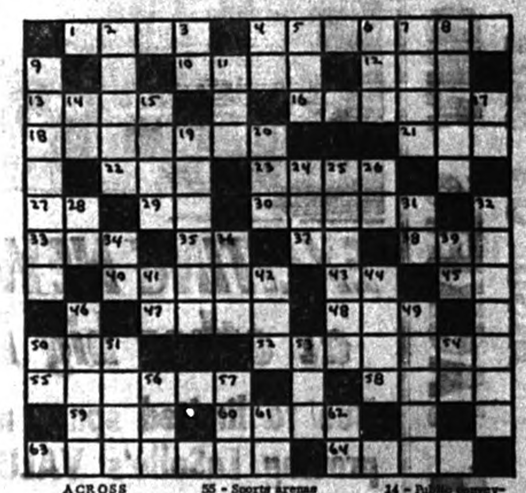

A university education and a military career will be combined by 185 young men from across Canada who have been enrolled in the Royal Canadian Navy as officer cadets under terms of the Regular Officer Training Plan.

Of these, 91 have been accepted for entry into the three Canadian Service Colleges: Royal Roads, near Victoria, B.C., the Royal Military College of Canada, Kingston, Ont., and le Collège Militaire Royal de Saint-Jean, Que. The remaining 94 will attend university.

Under this tri-service plan, cadets are educated, at Government expense, to university level and, upon graduation, receive, with their degrees, commissions as officers in their respective services.

The program is designed to develop leadership and qualities of character while conducting a concentrated course of academic study to prepare future officers for positions of responsibility.

"I'm going across to the bank for a minute"

Wherever Canadians live and work, a local chartered bank is nearby—a familiar, friendly source of financial services. Banking in Canada has been brought to people as in few other countries—the proportion of banking centres to population is among the highest in the world.

Every day more customers become aware that a chartered bank can not only guard their savings, cash their cheques and make loans, but help in many other ways too. They find new banking services being introduced, others being changed, improved or enlarged. For example: personal money orders, life-insured loans, company payroll plans, night depositories, banking by mail, safety deposit boxes—the list could go on and on.

The local branch of the bank is the one place where you'll find complete banking facilities—all under one roof.

Armed hold-up, $40,000 robbery at post-office in Calumet Village

Applying Japanese-made handcuffs on their victims, a trio of bandits held up Postmaster Robt. Whinfield and his assistant at the Calumet post-office, shortly after noon last Thursday, and escaped with a registered package of $40,000 destined for the local branch of the Bank of Montreal.

The bandits crashed their way into the post office at 12.10 p.m., within five minutes of the mail delivery having been made. One leaped the counter; two others followed swiftly, guns drawn; all wore masks and gloves.

"Where's the money? Don't make a move, you won't get hurt," were the orders snapped by one of the trio.

There were no customers in the post-office, staffed only by Postmaster Robert Whinfield, 58, and an assistant, Miss Fernande Racine, 35, who were sorting mail when the robbers broke in.

"First thing I knew of it was I heard a man land on his feet behind the counter," said Mr. Whinfield. "I was told 'this is a holdup, be quiet'. I did as I was told," he said, according to an Ottawa news report.

Miss Racine said her immediate reaction was one of "let them do what they want". "What other choice did we have? I was sorting morning mail with Mr. Whinfield. I thought the noise I heard was kids in the lobby. I couldn't believe it when it happened," she said.

"They were looking all over for money. One had a knife out. They wore these masks — well, hoods — right down to their necks. There were no eyes in them. It was like cotton. They could see right through," she said.

"One of them must have been no older than 15 or 16 . . . he was ordered around by the other two. He handcuffed us together . . . he asked if he was hurting me," she said. "None of them could have been much more than 20."

Postal Department investigators and Q.P.P. officers were quickly informed. About 30 provincial police converged on the area.

A neighbor described the getaway car, a white late-model sedan, driven by a fourth member of the party. The car was found Friday abandoned on Regent Street, Hawkesbury. The car turned out to have been stolen in the city Wednesday morning, the day before the robbery. Hawkesbury police found a mask in the car, similar to those worn by the bandits.

Wilfrid Boisvenu, Montreal Post Office investigator at the scene Thursday night, said it was "normal" for the post office to ship bundles of registered mail to and from banks.

"We don't know the contents." He said all registered mail was put in a safe right away. He could not say whether or not it was normal for such large amounts to be sent by mail (according to the Ottawa news story).

Once registered mail is delivered, he said, it was the Post Office's responsibility until it was put into the hands of the receiver. The truck making the delivery was bound from Montreal to Ottawa on a routine delivery.

The money would have been picked up by J. P. Boivin, the bank manger, and a staff member about 2 p.m. The money is deposited in the bank vault to meet Thursday pay cheques cashed from the two nearby companies.

About 450 employees work at the Canadian Refractories brick kiln at Marelan, and another 225 persons at CIP in Hawksebury.

The post-office at Calumet consists of a front and rear lobby and open "centre" room.

"One of the men was shaking so bad I thought he was going to faint," said Miss Racine. She described the trio as about medium height.

An Ottawa-to-Montreal bound mail truck stopped off at the post office about five minutes prior to the robbery. "Often the two trucks arrive about the same time," said Miss Racine.

The bank set the approximate loss at $40,000.

QPP believe the raiders are members of the same gang that robbed a Montreal nightclub of about $8,000 the previous weekend.

THE SCENE
Around Brownsburg
By M. E. Cowley

— Local storekeepers have petitioned Council to allow grocery stores to remain open until 10 p.m. on Thursdays. According to J. C. St. André, spokesman for the group, the move is designed to keep local shoppers in town on market night.

* * *

— The Boy Scouts Association, Brownsburg Group Committee, will again sponsor the UNICEF Hallowe'en collecting, in collaboration with the local schools. The youngsters in costume collected $170 for the cause last year.

* * *

— It looks as though the question of a town dump is to be settled finally. The Chatham Council approved the site, subject to certain conditions which will be outlined at a future session of the local authorities.

* * *

— The town is still without the services of a dog catcher. At the present rate the dogs that have been with us since the subject was first brought up, should be easy to catch soon — they are bound to slow down with age!

* * *

— The police department copped 22 speeders last month, and Council seemed puzzled as to why there was an increase over the past few months. Why be puzzled? In all probability there were no more speeders — more were caught, that's all. (Obviously, unintentionally.) If Council is really interested in the problem they can learn a lot by observing the Maple Avenue North area any night between 6 and 10 o'clock.

Rotary Club sees demonstration of telephone wonders, things to come

Mr. Nick Powell, supervisor of news and information with the Bell Telephone Co. of Montreal, was guest speaker at the Rotary meeting last week.

His talk was mainly centred on "things to come" in the field of telephone communications, and he had considerable equipment along with him to demonstrate.

Mr. Powell's first topic of discussion was computers; he showed quite effectively, by means of a simple card test, that a computer could very quickly come up with the right answer when it was given information which it was programmed to handle, and that it was never wrong. However, he pointed out that no machine has ever been built that could actually "think" as a man does, and actually, the human element is where the possibility of error occurs.

He also showed the club the latest in push-button telephones and demonstrated that there is a big saving in time over using the ordinary dial telephone to which we are accustomed. This new instrument, and other equipment like it, will necessitate a changeover, since electronic switches will be used in control centres, rather than the relays system now in use.

Club members were also impressed with the model of the Vanguard satellite which was demonstrated by this speaker, and the operation of its solar cells which convert sunlight into energy. The solar cells were also used to operate a small transistor radio and other small electrical equipment.

The speaker was introduced by Bill Steeves and was later thanked on behalf of the club by Syd Drew.

Pedestrian killed, companion hurt near St. Philippe

One man lost his life and a second was injured around 9.15 Sunday evening, when the two were struck by a car while walking along the side of Route 8, a mile east of St. Philippe.

Dead is Romeo Pominville, 28, of Grenville, who succumbed instantly to injuries received, including a broken neck. His companion, Maurice Robillard, 29, of Calumet, was rushed to the Argenteuil Hospital by ambulance, and was reported to be in a satisfactory condition, his numerous injuries being of a minor nature.

According to the report prepared by the Q.P.P., the men were struck by a car driven by Miss Madeleine Crawford, 26, of Beaconsfield, Que., who is reported to have lost control of her car while passing another vheicle. Dr. Roger Lavigne, joint district coroner, was called to the scene and attended the victims. He stated an inquest would be held to determine the factors involved in the death. Agent Yvon Fauchon, of the Q.P.P., investigated.

Scouts to collect paper and bottles this Saturday

Lachute Scouts' fall collection of salvage paper and bottles will be held Saturday of this week, October 26. Residents are asked to have papers and cartons securely tied for handling, and placed in a spot visible for collection. There is a market also for glassware and bottles; these will also be appreciated.

Any out-of-town residents desiring a special pick-up are asked to phone Ernest Gordon, LO 2-2858, or any other senior Scout or leader.

Hospital affairs a timely topic by authority at Lions' meet

Among guests at the Lions Club session last week were members of the Argenteuil Hospital directorate and medical board, and the administrator-general — the speaker being Mr. Gaspard Massue, president of the Quebec Hospital Association.

Mr. Massue, who is director of administrative services at Ste. Justine Children's Hospital in Montreal, was accompanied here by André Dumais, member of a well-known Lachute family, who is also personnel director of the same hospital.

The speaker (introduced by Lion Ian Gordon) touched upon scientific advances and social progress in hospital affairs; changes and future possibilities in the structure of administration; the influence of new ideas; and a conformity of procedure while still maintaining an institution identified with its community.

An illustration of the community angle is the trusteeship of a hospital. Trustees are representative of all spheres of life; through them, the institution feels its "belonging" to the community. The "board" derives no personal interest, receives no dividends or remuneration; yet ever present, is a deep sense of responsibility.

The hospital staff has a similar responsibility, directed more specifically to the care of the sick. Dealing with life and death they must be ready to meet any emergency. The administration must account for the necessary personnel, 24 hours a day, both for medical needs and for all the services involved... Mr. Massue saw a need for closer integration of the hospital into the social structure, to meet more efficiently the needs of the sick and convalescent; to identify, and deal more adequately with, those in need of medical care and those in need of support.

The speaker also traced progress and improvement of conditions in the nursing profession, which carries a prestige challenged now by female technicians. There is a need for organized and collective thought, to promote the best interests and high standards of this profession, along the lines of labor-management relations in industry.

The speaker was thanked by Lion Horace Lamarche.

President Keith Clarke chaired this successful meeting with over 40 members and guests in attendance. A song session was led by Lion Hal Joyce; and Dr. Eric Mongeon, Zone chairman, elaborated on the Mammoth TV Auction (November 2) on behalf of the new dining hall financed by District Lions Clubs for the Crippled Children's Society camp at St. Alphonse de Joliette. This project is co-ordinating a giant effort of district clubmen, who have solicited hundreds of attractive items for sale and, under devoted endeavors of key Lions in Montreal, will spark the interest of a wide TV-viewing public. Publicity in the two Lachute newspapers will be supported by generous individuals and businessmen in the local club.

'Tudor Singers' coming Dec. 4

The Tudor Singers of Montreal, a group organized and directed by Wayne Riddell, will visit Lachute on Wednesday, December 4, to present a concert in Lachute High School. Music enthusiasts, and former acquaintances of this Lachute musician, anticipate the event with keen pleasure and hope for a full attendance.

The Tudor group of 19 singers were trophy winners at the music festival in Montreal last spring. They have won acclaim in several concerts presented in Montreal.

Their program will include motets in Latin and period French, folk songs, and madrigals of England's Tudor period.

Tickets ($1 for adults and 50 cents for students) will be distributed shortly.

— In connection with a recent story in these pages, another old subscriber writes to inform us that the late Rev. Waddell was a one-time Presbyterian (not Methodist) minister here. Mr. J. M. Armstrong, of Oxbow, Sask., writes: "He preached in the old brick church in the east end of town. His family sat in the seat in from my father and his family. I was a small boy then, and Leslie Waddell (subject of The Watchman's recent story from Hamilton Spectator) was smaller than I."

For Crippled Children's Camp —

Local participation in Lions' big TV auction

Plans are well in hand for the Mammoth TV Auction by the Lions Clubs of Region 12, which will take place on CFCF-TV Channel 12 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, November 2.

A full-page advertisement and listing of the 250-odd items for sale, will be featured in The Watchman and L'Argenteuil next week, generously contributed by members of Lachute Lions Club, which is assisting in this effort.

Sixty telephone operators will be on duty to receive offers by phone, and it is hoped there will be competition from these parts for the attractive items, which will doubtless go for bargain prices. Included are a Chevy II 1964 two-door, of $2,515 value, a swimming pool, an electric range, oil paintings and many items and services donated for the occasion. A number of local business men have contributed generously, and several Lachute members will be in Montreal to give personal assistance.

This major effort is a concerted fund-raising heave, to finance a much-needed dining hall for the Crippled Children's Camp at St. Alphonse de Joliette. It is a 100% Lions Club effort, and one that deserves wide interest and support.

New Orange Hall dedicated in Lachute

A dream was fulfilled for the three branches of the Orange Order in Lachute, on Thanksgiving Day, October 14, when in the presence of a large and enthusiastic gathering the new Orange Hall was dedicated by the Grand Master of Quebec, R. W. Bro. Raymond Reside. It was a triumphant end to nine years of uncertainty, planning and endeavor on the part of the local members.

At the close of the dedication ceremony, the gathering adjourned to the basement hall, where a banquet was held. R. W. Bro. Alex Lough, Deputy Grand Master of Quebec, was m.c. for the evening. At the table an atmosphere of joy prevailed over the realization of this great achievement. The celebration was attended by over 150 members and friends.

Various toasts were proposed. The guest speaker was the Deputy Grand Master of British America, M. W. Bro. Carl Smith of Kitchener, who spoke on the danger of losing our civil and religious liberties, and what the Orange Order was doing in an attempt to preserve them. In connection with the flag, he stated that the rest of Canada would never accept a new flag which did not have the Union Jack as an integral part.

Following the banquet the remainder of the evening was spent in entertainment and dancing.

Miss Leslie Lucas, 21, of Dorval, died Sunday afternoon in an accident on Route 8, near Marelan, three miles east of Grenville. Death was attributed to internal injuries.

The young lady was a passenger in a sports car driven by Graham Harrison, 26, of Pierrefonds. Transported to the Smith Clinic in Hawkesbury, she succumbed one hour after admittance. Four other persons were injured in the accident which, according to police, occurred when an auto was passing a car driven by Maurice Lecompte, 35, of Hawkesbury, and pulled back into line striking the rear of the car and causing it to swerve out of control into the path of the on-coming sports car. The latter was forced onto the shoulder of the road and rolled over.

Injured were Graham Harrison, the driver, who was treated for severe shock and a broken arm; Normand Lecompte, 35, of Hawkesbury, driver of the other car involved, Mrs. Lecompte, 27, and young Gilles Lecompte, 11. All were reported suffering from minor fractures and injuries. Six other Lecompte children were not hurt in the mishap.

Held 'Operation Car Wash' for Junior Red Cross

The High School grounds were a scene of activity last Saturday when the students held a day-long car wash and effectively laundered a total of 92 vehicles, including one truck. During the peak of the operation four cars were being lathered simultaneously. There were a total of 70 or 80 volunteers engaged in the job between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., working in three shifts of about 25.

Quizzed on the success of this venture, Anne Hardie, president of the L.H.S. Students' Council, reported net receipts of $91.75 after the small expenses involved. The pupils were highly pleased with the outcome and gratified with the proceeds, to be devoted to Junior Red Cross funds.

Set clocks back Saturday night

The annual reminder to Watchman readers: Lachute and district areas will revert to Standard Time this coming week-end. Clocks should be set back one hour at midnight, Saturday, thus affording an extra hour in bed for those who wish to benefit. Travellers, churchgoers and all except hermits with no outside contacts, should govern themselves accordingly and save embarrassment the following day.

Q.P.P. officer transferred

By BOB ATCHISON

A good number of pheasants have been seen in the district, and one or two have been bagged by shooters. There are certainly more of them around than most of us had thought. . . As for the partridge, they are well scattered over the County. As a matter of fact, there are more of these this year than for a good long time. Of course the poor summer we had, tending to keep people and domestic animals out of the bush, along with the excellent feeding they are having right now, has all been to the good. . . Not too many woodcock can be seen, but those that are with us are pretty wary, and the shooters do not have much to show. . . Hungarian partridge seem to be plentiful in certain districts, especially around the St. Andrews area. The open fields in that district, and the know-how of these birds, give them a sporting chance. You can walk right over them without their moving an inch; then just as you pass them, they take off — and more birdshot misses the mark. Ducks have been very shy this past week, being almost impossible to decoy into any blinds, with the warm and wonderful weather we've been having, they do not decoy very easily. They prefer to stay out in deep water, rather than fly. Then, as for the "pass shooting", they fly so high you need an extra foot on your gun, plus some 40mm. shells, to get at them.

Wandering through the bush on Thanksgiving week-end, I was pleasantly surprised at the numbers of black squirrels in evidence. They all appeared well fed, and certainly were not too anxious to get away from anyone. Of course, once the shooting season for deer gets under way, they will be less venturesome. It is great to have these animals around. They seem to have taken over, and perhaps we may be fortunate enough to hold them in the district. Plenty of them will perish in the "war of the woods", but let's hope enough remain to start off next spring with a few more than we had.

At this writing, the bush is exceedingly dry, and a good rain is needed to lessen the fire hazards. With the trees slowly drying up, they will be very easily set afire. It is to be hoped we'll not have to contend with a fire problem this late in the year. Not too much care can be expected from the mob in the bush, including the influx of city shooters who are unmindful of what happens when they leave. I think we could be in grave trouble.

Excellent catches of doré are being taken in the Ottawa River. The largest I have seen was one of 11 lbs.. A very good fish, with no trace of disease of any kind. This specimen, when opened up, contained eight minnows, the largest being about 10 inches long — a real glutton! Some very good perch have also been caught in Lake Sir John this past week-end. From all indications the "black spot" that infested these fish has just about died out. The boys reporting on this spot told me they couldn't bait up fast enough to satisfy the fish. In all, 20 were kept — all very big, running from 1 lb. to about 1½ lbs.; the smaller ones were released, and maybe will swell some fisherman's bag next year. Only a couple of bass were taken from this lake; in my experience, this seems unusual for the present time of year. Any fishing I have done in this lake late in the fall, always turned up a couple of good bass.

I met up recently with a party of campers. In this group there are eight people, with three cars; they started camping as a group some six years ago, and they seem to have really covered the country. They have never ventured on fall or winter camping, but this year they hope to spend the Christmas holidays under canvas. By way of experiment, they are going to try a couple of week-ends during the colder weather, to see how they like it. But judging from their enthusiasm I don't think much difficulty is anticipated. . . I took occasion to ask them some questions that had bothered me for some time. Just how good are our camping facilities in comparison with other provinces? I got my answer in just one way: they do not camp in Quebec at all if they can help it! The reasons given were varied, but one observation cropped up repeatedly, especially with the ladies — they way they were rooked on anything they had to buy in the district or parks they visited. Chief complaint among the men of the party, was the total lack of information or help available; it seemed to boil down to the fact they were English-speaking, so that was it. This is about what one expects — but isn't it remarkable the way Tourism is preached so loudly, while those most concerned will not even practise the civil courtesies. They are the losers, of that lucrative harvest they talk of.

As readers have noted, hunting ACCIDENTS are again in the headlines. I imagine most of you read the story of the friend of a friend who was mistaken for a partridge last week. This does seem to be carrying things a little too far — as bad as the sport from New York State who mistook his nephew for a rabbit. . . From the general appearances of some of our shooters in the bush right now, I would estimate the human score is going to be high. And the government, of course, is doing nothing in the way of controls on so-called hunters. One kind of gets the impression — "So what, there's lots more where he came from."

A report came to me of a dead cow floating down the river; this carcass was near Upper Lachute, and apparently it had been drifting down the river for a few days. This is sure a great way to clean up a river! All the talk on water pollution seems to be a waste of time. The only way such abuses can be stamped out is by heavy fines. And don't ask, "How are you going to find out who did it?" Believe me, there are ways and means of finding out. The only thing is, the authorities have to be sufficiently interested to do something.

Right now our government departments are not the least offenders. Take a look at the North River this past summer. Hundreds of people remarked on its muddy appearance, but what was the cause? That is easily answered: The government has contractors building the new super-highway from St. Jerome; any water that was obstructing the work was pumped into ditches and streams, all running down into the North River. . . Keep our rivers clean, they say!

You may remember I wrote of the foreign shells being put on the market. This is a follow-up. . . An acquaintance was telling me of an experience he had with this same ammunition. He purchased some 12-gauge shot-shell for ducks and some for partridge. He had two misfires in the 12-gauge duck load in 10 shots. In the partridge load (7½) he had four out of nine shots. In all cases the only thing that fired was the cap; seemingly they had not been loaded with powder, so the shot just trickled out of the gun after firing. There is nothing the buyer can do in cases like this. After all, you probably have to send them thousands of miles to get any satisfaction; then there is the time element. This particular gentleman has learned an expensive lesson, and I'm sure it won't be repeated, as far as he is concerned. I wonder just how many others have had this same brand of performance. I think most of you fishermen will remember that certain reel marketed a few years ago, with all sorts of claims; but in actual use it just fell apart, and what satisfaction did the owners get? Not much, believe me.

I have not seen any high-powered rifle ammunition on the market as yet, but there must be some of it in circulation. I think I'd have some misgivings before I bought it. — But go ahead, take a chance; after all, you probably won't see a duck anyway.

Gov't department re-stocks a district lake

Photos taken at the recent stocking of Lake Wentworth by employees of the Department of Tourism — which was in fulfilment of a request by the Argenteuil Hunting and Fishing Association. The Association was represented by Hector Lepage, president, Florian Raymond and Ernest Villemaire to witness the proceedings, besides three property-owners around the lake.

Leaders attended Guide-Brownie training week-end

Three Guiders, Mrs. James McMahon, Mrs. W. R. Skinner and Mrs. Syd Drew, attended a "training week-end" at Far Hills Inn, Val Morin — sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Legion Branch 70. There were 120 Guiders at this conference of the Cartier Area including Guiders from Noranda and Port Cartier.

Senorita Maria Laura Avena, Guider in charge at "Our Cabana" in Mexico, was special guest speaker, illustrating her talk with colorful slides. As a contrast, slides on a camping week-end on Frobisher Bay were shown. Handiwork of Denmark was illustrated by a Danish Guider.

Demonstrations of programs, songs and games rounded out the week-end, which was greatly appreciated by the attending Guiders.

Parents and interested parties are asked to attend a meeting of the Local Association on Wednesday, October 30, at 7.30 in the Anglican Church hall.

Hallowe'en and the United Nations Children's Fund

United Nations Day, October 24, should serve to remind us of the momentous functions of this world organization and to stimulate public interest and support.

One department of the United Nations effort, UNICEF, affords an opportunity for children and adults to "lend a hand" in even the humblest sphere. "Hallowe'en for UNICEF" is an opportunity for fun-loving children to contribute their "shell-outs" to less privileged and more needy youngsters around the world. In this annual gesture they have the leadership of understanding adults or organizations. In Lachute and district, Mrs. W. E. Butterfield is once again organizing the effort, through schools and junior groups.

Please save your coins for the UNICEF containers, which will be carried by numerous young visitors who call on you next Thursday, Hallowe'en.

District Scouts rank high in marksmanship

Steven Millar and Gerald Vowles, of 1st Brownsburg Scout Troop, registered individual scores of 183/6 and 183/3 to rank first and second in the Senior Class of a recent provincial rifle marksmanship competition for Boy Scouts. In a field of 13 Senior teams competing for the Lysons Trophy, the Brownsburg team entry was 3rd and Lachute followed closely in 5th place. Also included in the top 10 individual senior scores in the province were two members of the Lachute team — B. Vessie, 4th, and A. Butterfield, 10th.

In the Junior competitions, 120 boys in 30 teams participated. Brownsburg teams captured 2nd, 4th and 5th places, and the Lachute team entry was also well up in the list, in 10th place. In the list of individual Junior scores, George Dixon, Alan Vowles and Colin Young of Brownsburg, and T. Fillingham of Lachute, all placed among the top 10 in the province.

This all adds up to an extremely creditable performance and hearty congratulations are extended to all the local boys who participated, as well as to the men who have contributed a considerable amount of time, coaching assistance, and general encouragement over a period of several months.

An added feature of the shoot was a special competition for the leaders and coaches. Not to be outdone by their boys, T. E. Dwyer, E. W. Bradley, R. Stansfield and George Gordon all managed to rank in the "top 10" category — in spite of one or two very embarrassing crossfires!

The events were held outdoors at the new grounds of the Montreal Anglers and Hunters near Laprairie.

M.P. sees high feed costs obstacle to eastern farmers

Speaking in the Commons on an amendment to the policy on feed grain to the farmers, the member for this constituency, Vincent Drouin, criticized previous government procedures at some length, then contended that the supply of feed grain was a matter of top priority facing eastern farmers. In the course of his remarks he re-iterated the need for a second Minister of Agriculture to be the spokesman for eastern Canada.

Taken from the Hansard record for Tuesday, October 15, following are translated excerpts from Mr. Drouin's speech :

Eastern farmers lie at the mercy of a group of speculators who control feed grain and who make millions by a few strokes of the pen. Those people freeze sales to boost prices. They also get a large share of the subsidies which the government has established to help farmers.

Whether a farmer produces milk or crops or whether he is a cattle breeder, he must be able to buy feed grain at a reasonable price.

That is why, in my humble opinion, the distribution of feed grain should be nationalized in eastern Canada and a crown corporation set up to control feed grain shipping, storing and wholesale selling in eastern Canada after firm contracts have been negotiated with the Canadian wheat board.

I quite agree with the hon. member for Qu'Appelle when he says that eastern farmers should have the same advantages as the Chinese, Russians, and Japanese who buy our wheat at a fixed price. However, what did the hon. member do when he was Minister of Agriculture to provide eastern farmers with the same advantages as the Chinese ? What did he do ?

The proposed crown corporation should control the shipping of grain and the government should pay the whole cost of the operation. At present, the government pays approximately $18 million in freight assistance for feed grain. If those subsidies were to cover the whole cost of shipping, they would amount to about $40 million a year. I feel that we can afford such an expense, the more so since those subsidies would contribute to the establishment of a uniform wholesale price throughout Canada, so that grain would cost the same in Halifax, Quebec City, Lake St. John, Montreal, Three Rivers and Fort William. . .

Reiterates need of Agric. Minister for eastern Canada

That body would control warehousing so that it would be carried out in a reasonable way.

That body would also control wholesale grain operations and be satisfied with a reasonable profit, only to help meet operation costs. It could work in co-operation with the mills, which are doing an excellent job of processing the feed grain required.

Our eastern farmers could then depend on a steady supply, twelve months a year. We could eliminate the blocking caused by speculators at the present time for price increases. Prices would go down and this would help to lower the production costs. Our milk products could face world competition. We could sell our butter, our cheese and our milk powder at reasonable prices on world markets without the government having to subsidize the manufacturing costs to the extent of 50, 60 and even 75 per cent.

I think that the savings made by the government in that way, could completely cover transportation costs of grain to the east. It could also pay for the setting up of a crown corporation.

Our farmers would then be able to take the place they are entitled to on the national consumers' market. We would not need those many million fowl and poultry which were imported from the United States when the former minister of agriculture was responsible for the future of our farming industry. (In a single fiscal year, we brought in more than 20 million birds from the United States, while we had in eastern Canada producers who could have supplied the market. But, because they are paying too much for their feed grain, they are unable to meet competition of American chickens and turkeys dumped on our market.)

Our farmers could increase their production of livestock. We have, in the east, the best pastures in Canada. We do not suffer from drought like the western farmers. . . and we have marginal land which would make excellent pasture for livestock.

We are unable to increase our livestock production precisely because the cost of feed grain is too high in some seasons of the year.

We, in the east, have the two largest Canadian consumers' markets : Toronto and Montreal. Yet, we only supply a very small percentage of livestock to those markets.

It appears that the former government wanted, by its legislation under date of February 6, to settle all its problems. However, we never saw the bill.

The former Conservative minister, member for Three Rivers (Mr. Balcer), came to my constituency. He claimed that this bill was marvellous, that it would settle all the farmers' problems; but when the constituents in Argenteuil-Deux-Montagnes asked the hon. member about the contents of this bill, he did not even know.

The policy announced by the present Minister of Agriculture, as concerns feed grain, is an improvement over the situation we experienced during the former Conservative government. I do not really consider it a solution, but it certainly is an improvement.

It is not yet ideal. . . Through this legislation, speculators will realize important profits on the shipping of grain. As soon as the navigation season is over, they apply the railway transportation costs, saying : "If grain is needed, it will be necessary to use railway transportation and it will cost $7 to $8 more per ton. We may just as well have it loaded now." They are business men who are there to make profits. If they could be replaced by government agency which would adequately perform the work — why not ?

The policies advocated by the present Minister of Agriculture are valuable but they may help speculators. Once more, speculators may be able to benefit largely from grants meant for farmers.

I do not feel that Conservative policies would satisfy the needs of Canadian farmers. That is why, even though I am not entirely happy with the present farm policy of the government, I will tonight vote in support of the Minister of Agriculture who has been in office for only six months and has proved his good intentions. I shall do so in the hope that, before long, we shall have a second minister of agriculture who will be the spokesman for eastern farmers within the cabinet.

Re-stocking at Lake Louisa

On Monday of this week another district lake, the popular Lake Louisa, was re-stocked by the provincial department on representations from the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association. Approximately 1,000 Red trout of appreciable size, about 12 inches, were released in this stretch of water, and the Association looks to the general public to assist in their conservation for the future of the sport.

Information on the season's deer contest organized by this Association is available from Florian Raymond (LO 2-6492) or any other director of the organization.

The first of a series of lectures on "Better Feeding" was held last Wednesday at the Farmers' Supply Co. Many local farmers attended this "Miracle" meeting. The group above shows (left to right) — Dr. E. E. Lister, Ph.D., feeds nutritionist of Miracle Feeds, Gerald Beauchamp, of Grenville, Milton Hooker, advertising manager of Ogilvie Five Roses Sales Ltd., and Davis McVicar, of Brownsburg.

While the farmers were learning new facts on feeding, their wives were shown different ways of decorating cakes. Miss Phyllis Farmer, home economist with the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company Ltd., decorated five cakes. Some of these cakes were later drawn for as door prizes, the winners being — Mrs. W. J. Dings, of St. Philippe, Mr. Arthur Beauchamp, of Grenville, and Mr. Irvin Bain, of Lachute.

Born in Bridgewater, N.S., she was the daughter of Millege Mosher and his wife Lilla Curll, both of whom predeceased her.

Her passing, though coming after an illness of some length, took place unexpectedly, and within three days of that of her brother, Cecil Mosher of Yarmouth, N.S. A second brother, Capt. Roy Mosher, was lost at sea some years ago.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a son, C. M. Curll, of San Francisco, Cal., a daughter, Barbara (Mrs. R. C. Morrison), of Arundel, as well as by three granddaughters; also by two sisters, Muriel (Mrs. R. M. MacLennan), Rita (Mrs. Phil Backman), and a brother, John, all of Halifax, N.S.

During her lifetime she was active in church and women's organization work, having held various offices, including that of president of the United Church Ladies' Union, chairman of the local Canadian Red Cross campaigns, president of the Arundel Branch Women's Institute, of which she was a charter member, and 2nd vice-president of its Argenteuil County Board.

A member of the Mont Tremblant Horticultural Society, she was widely known for her love of flowers, and her spacious flower garden was a source of interest and pleasure to all.

The funeral was held on Monday, October 14, in the Arundel United Church, the Rev. Wesley Ball conducting the service. The great number of friends and acquaintances attending, as well as the many floral tributes and contributions to the Cancer Societies, bore testimony to one who was greatly loved and respected by all who knew her.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Edgar Boyd, Gordon Cooke, J. Paul Coté, Don U. Findlay, M. A. Graham and Dennis Staniforth. Interment was in Arundel Cemetery.

Recent wedding at Terrebonne Hts.

Smith - Smith

The marriage of Miss Joyce Teresa Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, of Terrebonne Heights, to Mr. Harold John Malcolm Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smith, of Beech Ridge, Lachute, took place on Saturday, October 12, at 12 noon in the Church of Our Lady of the Holy Rosary, Terrebonne Heights, the Rev. Father Guilbault, of Joliette, officating.

The church organist played for the ceremony. Standards of gladioli, yellow mums and bronze chrysanthemums decorated the church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white sata poult-de-soie fashioned with a fitted bodice and scoop neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and an embroidered sheath skirt with matching overskirt. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by an embroidered open-crown pillbox, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink carnations.

The bride's attendants wore street-length sheath gowns of poult-de-soie with matching nylon overskirts, and pillbox crowns with scalloped brims. Mrs. Lois Boa as matron of honor, in gold-brick tone, carried a nosegay bouquet of white poms and pink rosebuds. Miss Grace Inch, as bridesmaid, in Canto blue, carried a nosegay of white poms and red rosebuds.

Mr. Thomas Smith acted as best man for his brother, and Mr. Frederic Smith, brother of the groom, and Mr. Ronald Marsh, uncle of the bride, were ushers.

Mrs. Wm. Smith, the bride's mother, wore a sheath gown with jacket of aquamarine and silver brocade, with matching feather hat and black accessories. She carried a gardenia on her handbag. Mrs. G. Smith, mother of the groom, wore a gown of sheer silver floral over Royal blue, and a muskrat jacket, with black accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations.

Following the reception at the Mascouche Golf and Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left on a motor trip through the Adirondack Mountains, New York State and Ontario. The bride travelled in a navy blue wool suit and wore a hat of red felt, and a corsage of red carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have taken up residence in Beech Ridge.

Mr. Donald Heggie and Mr. Murray Bryson, of Dominion Ayers Limited, were in Montreal last Saturday to attend a seminar and business meeting of the Quebec Section, Canadian Association of Textile Colorists and Chemists.

JOLSON NOTES

By Irvin R. Warwick

Today, October 23, marks the 13th anniversary of the death of a show business titan, Al Jolson. Again, as during the last couple of years, members of the International Al Jolson Society have sent out some hundreds of tribute request messages to radio and television stations, magazines, newspapers and columnists, etc. An excerpt from this message serves to sum up our feelings at this time:

"Early in his career, Al Jolson claimed the title of 'The World's Greatest Entertainer', and it was a designation he was to deserve for the rest of his life. At the height of his brilliant stage career in 1927, he made the first talking picture, 'The Jazz Singer'. He added radio to his conquests, and during World War II toured the armed forces' camps and hospitals. Al considered it one of the great achievements of his life that he was thus able to bring entertainment to those who needed it so badly. Small wonder, then, that after a tremendous increase in popularity due to the movie 'The Jolson Story' in 1946, he paid his own way to Korea in 1950 to entertain 'the boys'. The strain of this trip was no doubt responsible for his subsequent fatal heart attack.

"Al Jolson has not been forgotten. His records and movies are still popular. . ."

We hope and expect that many people throughout the world will pause to remember Al at this time. (Last year we received word that radio stations in such far-away spots as Israel and Lebanon saluted 'Jolie' on October 23.) On Friday, October 25, at 6.30 CBMT Channel 6 is scheduled to present The Immortal Jolson in the "Hollywood and the Stars" series. It is expected that viewers will have a second chance to see this half-hour show on Monday, October 28, at 9.30 p.m. on WPTZ, Channel 5, Plattsburg.

Some increases to be adopted in postal fees

Ottawa — The Postmaster General, the Hon. Azellus Denis, recently announced changes in postal rates for printed matter, registered mail, special delivery service, postal money orders and C.O.D. parcels. The changes for registration, special delivery and money orders will be effective November 1, while those for C.O.D.'s and printed matter will not take effect until April 1, 1964. Deferment of the latter changes will enable large users of these services, who prepare their mailings months in advance, to make proper plans. Direct mail advertisers and mail order houses would suffer hardships if the printed matter and C.O.D. rate changes were placed in effect too quickly.

Effective Nov. 1, 1963 —

Registration — present fees varying from 20 cents to 40 cents, according to amount of indemnity requested by the mailer, will vary from 35 cents to 60 cents.

Special delivery — the fee for letters will be increased from 10 cents to 25 cents; for parcels, raised from 20 cents to 35 cents.

Money Orders — a new schedule of fees will range from 5 cents (for orders less than $1) to 25 cents for larger denominations.

Effective April 1, 1964 —

C.O.D. — from a minimum of 15 cents to a maximum of 40 cents. (The old rates were from 10 cents to 30 cents.)

Printed Matter — the new rate for "householder" mail (items which bear no other addressing than "To the Householder") will be 2 cents for the first 2 ounces.

The general rate of 2 cents for the first 2 ounces (set in 1951) will be increased to 3 cents. This covers advertising material, unsealed greeting cards (including Christmas cards) and most books, when individually addressed.

A special rate of 2½ cents for the first 2 ounces will be established for large mailings — usually circulars — which are presorted by the mailer and made up according to postal regulations.

Orange service Sunday, Nov. 3, at Grenville

Grenville — At the invitation of the incumbent, (Bro.) the Rev. H. John Cohen, the L.O.L. Lodge at Grenville will be attending the evening service at St. Matthew's Anglican Church on Sunday, November 3, when the landing of King William III on English soil (November 5, 1688) will be commemorated. At this service the sermon will be preached by Bro. the Rev. H. John Cohen, L.Th., and the lessons will be read by Sisters Dora MacLeod and Linda Cohen, chaplains of the Ladies' and Juvenile Lodges in Grenville.

An invitation is extended to all members of the Orange Association, including the ladies and Juvenile lodges, to join with the Grenville Lodge on this occasion — Sunday, November 3, at 7.30 p.m. in St. Matthew's Anglican Church, Grenville.

Cash value in dusty places

If you find any old government pamphlets in your attic, don't toss them in the garbage can — they may be worth money, says The Financial Post. Four pages published during the third session of the first Parliament of Lower Canada, entitled "Act for Regulating the Manner of Licensing Public Houses", recently sold for $75. At a Victoria antique auction this year, Captain Walbram's "B.C. Coast Names", published in 1909 for less than $2, sold for $85. Bidding is keen among scholars, writers, librarians and museums for information material important to basic research.

Forest Products Week - Oct. 20-26

"Over 300 municipalities throughout the Province of Quebec are officially proclaiming this week, October 20-26, as National Forest Products Week, which is being observed again this year with the rest of Canada and the United States" said Provincial President Robert Raynauld at a press conference in Montreal.

The "Week" has been organized as an educational venture to acquaint the public with Canada's forest wealth and the importance of wood and forest products in our daily life.

"Forest products", added Mr. Raynauld, "greatly contribute in helping Canadians to maintain their high standard of living".

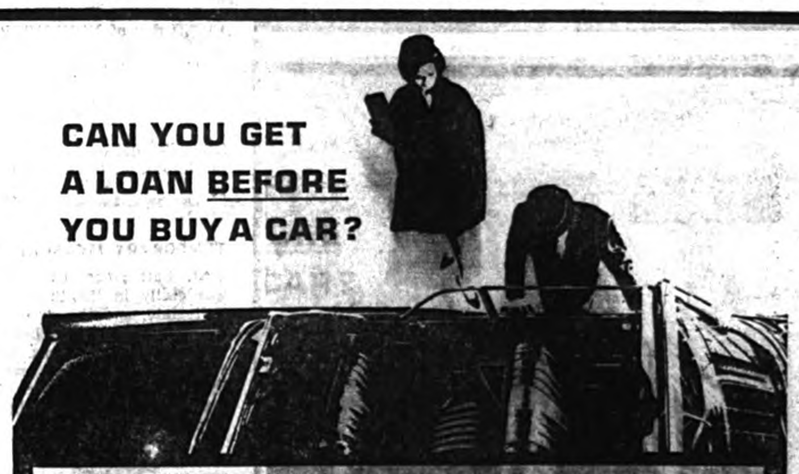

The Provincial Government and numerous municipal authorities, foresters, a large number of industrialists producing pulp and paper products, furniture, sash and doors and numerous other products, wholesale and retail lumber dealers, are enthusiastic in supporting the observance.

CAREFUL JAKE

I often wonder while I drive
How some folks hope to stay alive
The way they drive their cars around
And hope to stay above the ground.

Instead, why don't they try to be
A careful driver such as me
Who never yet made one mistake
That's why they call me Careful Jake.

I test the brakes most every day
And even cause a slight delay
By stopping at each street and road
Before proceeding with my load.

I signal as I leave the curb
And never do the peace disturb
By tooting on my noisy horn.
And never drive with tires worn.

I test their pressure with a gauge
And even spend my weekly wage
On buying new ones, guaranteed,
And never, never, do I speed.

I'm not one of those careless skates
Who drive with dirty license plates.

I wash each number and each letter
So that the cops can pinch me better —

And yet I'm sitting in a cell.
My lawyer tells me all is well.
I took my sweetheart for a ride —
She soon was to have been my bride.

I stole a kiss and lost control
And now am in this beastly hole.
My truck's a wreck, and no mistake.
They used to call me Careful Jake.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

No smoking for athletes

If you want to be a topnotch athlete, make the school football or basketball team, or play more than a passable game of badminton, then pay attention to your coach and "Don't smoke" — says the Health League of Canada.

For years anyone who has played football or some other team sport in school has been told by the coach to avoid smoking because it "cuts the wind". Now you don't have to just take the coach's word for it. Science can prove that smoking really does "cut the wind" — that is, cause a marked decrease in breathing capacity.

The Committee on Medical Aspects of Sports of the American Medical Association, and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, in a recent joint statement point out that the ability to produce maximum effort and to build endurance for sports is related to the capacity of the athlete to take in and utilize oxygen.

After reviewing reports on scientific studies of breathing capacity, the A.M.A. committee recommends that athletes should be strongly advised against smoking. In fact, ten inhalations of cigarette smoke have been shown to materially reduce airway conductance to the lungs. The decrease is as much as 50 per cent, and lasts for as long as an hour.

One effect of smoking on breathing is to slow down the rate at which stale air can be expelled from the lungs. The heavy smoker has trouble breathing easily and quickly under heavy exertion.

There comes a time in most team and individual sports when an absolute maximum effort is required for a brief moment. It may be a hard sprint in football, a leap for a rebound in basketball, a fast run to beat a throw to first base in baseball or softball, a quick breakaway in hockey, or a hard spurt in swimming.

The smoker, even though he may be a fine natural athlete, highly trained and skilled, may find that his capacity for that all-important finish sprint or leap is slightly less than it might have been if he laid off tobacco.

Contrast - the spirit of lawlessness and a gleam of Christian endeavor

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

Here we are nearly at Hallowe'en, and we well might be in midsummer. The weather gods must be in a penitent mood because of the peculiar things we endured in most of July and August. In suburbia, this dry, sunny air has its drawbacks. Some of the local college boys now make our nights sleepless by putting matches to piles of leaves at the front of properties. So far, the owner, or the fire-brigade, or both, has managed to cope. The head of our house saw two of these embryo leaders of the country putting light to a pile in front of our house at midnight, and was out almost before the arsonists were in the college gates. Fortunately, one of the kind people who came to help was the dean of the Agriculture faculty. . . Life always has a little joke to play on the wrong-doer.

In another suburb, thirty-five clothes-lines were cut one night, and any objects left lying about, were picked up, including a wheel-barrow, some laundry, and a pair of garden shears. This, you understand, is not in one of the under-privileged areas; quite the contrary. A baby-sitter of our acquaintance reports that at a certain home in one of our posher suburbs, the lad of the house, aged 14, ably assisted by a sister and two smaller siblings, took all the mattresses off the beds, (over her protests, naturally) and used them as trampolines. There was other mayhem committed with which I shall not bore you . . . but what I am trying to say, is that there is a spirit of lawlessness abroad. You in the country see it in the shape of cottages broken into, robberies with violence, etc. In the broader field, we see it in a union endangering the welfare of a whole state. It boils down to a lack of feeling of responsibility to anyone but one's self. In other words, pure selfishness! Selfishness is the antithesis of love, which is what all Christianity is about. It may seem a contradiction of the above to say that a good smack on the derriere in their childhood might not have instilled love in these young men and women, but it might have instilled respect. Permissiveness has gone too far. There are now signs that the pendulum is swinging back. But until the present generation of 13-23 has grown up, the rest of us may well be uncomfortable.

Sordid things are not confined to the city or its suburbs. I have spoken before, as does often my fellow-columnist, about garbage dumped beside the roads, in ditches, or alongside lakes. Having occasion to be at Weir the latter part of last month, I was revolted to see one of these dumps in a district renowned for its beauty. However, a person, presumably local, had kept his sense of humor. A wooden arrow at least four feet long and six inches wide had been firmly pointed at the offal. It read, "La Belle Province". . .

Which reminds me of an English-speaking Quebecer who, at the end of May, was still motoring about with a special license on his car, because he had refused to accept the above blurb in French on his license. He interpreted "biculturalism" as meaning French AND English, not just French. Personally, I do not mind this bit, but I do admire the man's persistence.

Margaret Cook herself is plenty persistent. She has recently written once more to the Minister of Fish and Game regarding the irresponsibility of hunters. Trouble is, just as one Minister and the writer get to know each other — the cabinet is shuffled — and she has to begin all over again. However, your columnist would like to say that she has had nothing but courtesy from officials. Come to think, that's a tongue-in-cheek statement. We have had increased patrols, which one presumes are by orders higher up. Just the same, during the hunting season, now in full swing, we must either put up or shut up. We could all cower in our houses until this is over, but that is to say that a few ignorant and lawless people are to hold temporary sway over the great majority of well-intentioned citizens. Post your lands — and many did last year for the first time — and be prepared to enforce those signs, if necessary. We note with great relief and joy the passing of a neighboring farm into the hands of responsible people. This was the farm which until recently harbored the man who shot to scare off berry-pickers.

To return to Weir, where a meeting for the Deanery of St. Andrews was held. It was a beautiful day, the hills a colorful tapestry. Inside, we were hot, tired and bored, as the meeting went on most of the day. But as I thought longingly of a cup of tea, or, indeed, of any liquid, I also reflected that all these women, well over a hundred (in number, not age) had voluntarily given up a day to further the cause of Christianity. We may do it badly, we may do it boringly, but, as was pointed out to us on another occasion, we are all victims of our genes, and have to express great ideas through the flesh which we have. At least, we try. I was happy to see a good delegation from Lakefield. Someone in the city had said to me that attendance at the St. Andrews Deaneries was generally poor. I was delighted to be able to think "Yah, and pooh to you." Lachute must have had three or four carloads. That's showing them.

I recently heard an animal story, also from Weir, which I liked. A certain gentleman is accustomed to feed a family of porcupine. This has been going on for a long time, and, intrigued by the hand-like paws of the porcupine, and their dainty eating habits, he had been feeding them on four trays, or rather, those foil pans. There was a break in this happy situation — I did not find out why, perhaps due to absence or illness. Anyway, the plates disappeared. So, food was put out tentatively, without plates. The next day, what was the man's amazement to find the four plates back in place, correctly arranged in order. . . This story is second-hand, and I hope I have not messed up the details beyond recognition.

Are you fond of Spoonerisms? We thought this was one to end all. True, too:

Exhausted teacher to colleague at lunch-hour, "Mass the pilk, please."

Pennies for world's children

In today's world, millions of children are ill-fed, poorly clothed and unschooled. We have never seen them; they are the "faceless" children.

Canadians as world citizens are increasingly aware that knowledge and understanding, tolerance and compassion, are the golden keys to the future. UNICEF (United Nations Children's Fund) is one of these golden keys. Established under United Nations, it is an international effort to give every child freedom from disease and hunger, an education and opportunity to earn a living.

UNICEF, participated in by more than a hundred countries, is not a charity but a co-operative effort to improve the lot of the World's Children. Interested governments must first request UNICEF assistance. For each UNICEF dollar from the International UNICEF Fund these governments spend $2.50 for local buildings, personnel, domestic food and facilities. UNICEF assistance is given on the basis of need regardless of political beliefs, race or creed.

On one night in the year (Hallowe'en) gaily dressed youngsters will come knocking at your door. For them you will have ready the traditional treats. But Canadian youngsters will feel happier if you place in their UNICEF collection boxes pennies for their "faceless" friends.

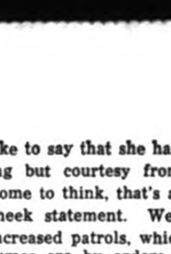

ADOPT SLOGAN

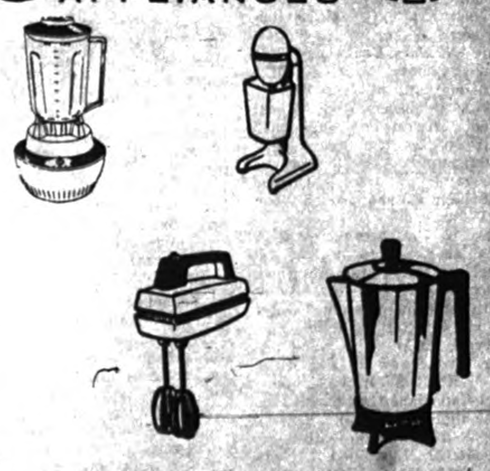

Moose Jaw (CP) — Any campaign needs a slogan, and the move to have householders in Moose Jaw adopt uniform-sized garbage cans is no exception. City commissioner J. A. Beveridge says: "If the garbage is neat, be discreet." He said wrong-sized cans should be the last to change, and inspectors should dwell on cleaning up more serious problems.

DO SOIL TESTS

Pembroke, Ont. (CP) — Soil tests are under way at the Ponderoza Ranch here with a view to finding gravel suitable to the Canada Cement Company if the tests prove successful.

PROCEEDS GO TO HELP QUEBEC'S CRIPPLED CHILDREN

Canada's grave problem of divided allegiance

Contributed by Norman Thorburn

I agree with Mr. Argyle, that the problem of bilingualism and biculturalism in Canada can only be resolved with great difficulty.

About one million French-speaking Quebecers also speak English, with some degree of perfection. About 70,000 English-speaking Quebecers speak French fluently. About one out of four French-speaking Quebecers speak fluent English. About one out of 10 English-speaking Quebecers speak fluent French. Very few of our High School graduates in Quebec speak fluent French, probably one out of four.

How is the average British Columbian going to become bilingual and bicultural, when we English here in Quebec are not?

With some justification, I think I can say that I am bilingual and bicultural. In the first place, my father spoke French almost as well as English. In fact, many French-Canadians thought he was one of their own kind. French was spoken in our home often.

At McGill, I studied French under Prof. Messac, a Parisian, who was a distinguished author and became an "Officier de l'Académie Française". I also studied French at the Monument Nationale in Montreal. For five years I worked on the railroad, speaking French as often as English.

In the depression, I lived on a little farm near St. Joachim de la Plaine, for seven years.

The French-Canadians are very sociable, much more than the stiff and reserved Anglo-Saxon. I used to "veiller" or pass the evening in their homes, every day or so.

When their buckwheat was "echaudé", withered up with the drought — when their strawberry blooms were endangered by "la gelée", the frost — when "les sauterelles", the grasshoppers, menaced their fields — they would flock to the wayside cross and recite the "chapelet", their beads. They would invite me to come along and say a prayer, which I did.

When one of the neighbors died, I was invited to come to "veiller le mort", the wake. Then, after much reciting of the beads and drinking of home-made wine, we would depart in the wee hours of the morning.

I always thought it was my duty to a departed friend and neighbor to "prier le bon Dieu au corps", pray to God at the side of the body. Even though I was not of their faith, we were like one family, we habitants, and they would never think of not inviting me to their prayers and wakes, even though I was a poor heretic.

In this way I became bilingual and bicultural, and there is nothing I like better, on a cold winter day, than a "bonne assiettée de la soupe aux pois", a good plateful of pea soup.

I don't believe too many English-Canadians would like to follow this regimen in order to be bilingual and bicultural.

It is quite obvious that 12 million English-speaking Canadians cannot dictate to six million Canadians.

At a political meeting at the Cabane à Sucre at St. Eustache, in December last year, I met Mr. Hellyer, the Minister of Defence, and Mr. Beer, M.P. for Peel County in Ontario. I sat beside Mr. Beer at the habitant supper, which we enjoyed. He said he enjoyed the main course of the repast, and asked me what it was called. The main course consisted of fried pork, ham and eggs. I told him the dish was called "les grillades". Griller means to roast. The French girl from Quebec City, sitting on the other side of me, who worked for the civil service in Ottawa, had never heard that word. She was no habitant!

I asked the Minister of Defence, Mr. Hellyer, and Mr. Beer, what they thought of the political situation in Quebec. They told me everything would be all right, once their party was in the saddle. I told them I thought the trouble would be harder to resolve than that.

"We are the real separatists," I told them. "Six per cent of the Anglo-Saxon race in North America, separated from the 94 per cent, the main-stream, who dwell in the U.S.A."

"If Quebec separated," I asked, "would not the rest of Canada regard the border between Canada and the U.S.A. as a meaningless, meandering demarkation, a purposeless barrier to the harmonious co-operation of one and the same people, the Anglo-Saxon race in North America?

"No," said the Minister of Defence, "That shall never happen."

A real good time was had by all. I admired the way Mr. Hellyer and Mr. Beer joined in the festivities, dancing with the French ladies, etc., demonstrating the Anglo-Saxon's art in compromise and diplomacy at its very best.

But, a certain uneasiness possessed my spirit. I knew the situation in Quebec better than they did.

On leaving them, I said, "You have seen French Canada in a gay and festive mood tonight, I hope you will never see it in an ugly mood."

"Everything will be all right," they said.

The winter that followed that celebration, as we all know, was a winter of terror for Montreal and Quebec — ticking, time-bomb terror.

We English and French-speaking Canadians have got to get together and find a "modus vivendi", a way of living together; and a "modus operandi", a way of operating the Canadian experiment. The danger of Canada's absorption, both economically and politically, by the U.S.A., is now being stressed by Mr. Pearson and Mr. Hellyer.

Harrington girl is bride in recent ceremony

Jean Louis Proulx

Baskets of pink and white mums adorned the sanctuary of Our Lady of Victory Church, Harrington, Que., on October 12 for the wedding of Evelyne Annes Proulx, daughter of Mrs. Zotique Proulx, of Harrington, to Maurice Jean Louis, son of Mr. Wilbrod Jean Louis, of Vankleek Hill, Ont.

The Rev. Father C. Gougeon, of St. Michel de Wentworth, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The organist, Mrs. C. Bell, of Grenville, accompanied the soloists, Messrs. Jean Louis Roy of Vankleek Hill and Omer Thomas, of Kilmar.

Mr. Guy Jean Louis, uncle of the groom, assisted as best man. Ushers were Messrs. Emmett Proulx, brother of the bride, of Harrington, and Bernard Boyer, of Vankleek Hill.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. William Proulx, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of white taffeta having a full skirt, fitted bodice adorned with pearls, bateau neckline and long lily-point sleeves. She wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom. A jewelled crown headpiece held her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of red baby roses.

Miss Beatrice Proulx, sister of the bride, was maid of honor; she wore a street-length bright blue poult-de-soie dress and accessories, and carried a bouquet of pink and white mums. The bridesmaids, Miss Louise Jean Louis of Vankleek Hill, sister of the groom, and Miss Patricia Proulx of Harrington, sister of the bride, were similarly attired in bright blue poult-de-soie dresses and accessories and carried bouquets of pink and white mums.

Miss Lorraine Proulx, niece of the bride, was the flower girl, attired in light pink nylon over taffeta. She carried a basket of blue tinted mums.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the Harrington Intermediate School. Later the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Timmins, Ont., by way of La Verendrye Park.

The bride's travelling costume was an aqua wool sheath and matching jacket with white hat and gloves. A corsage of pink baby roses completed her ensemble.

The couple will reside in McAlpine, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Timmins, St. Catharines, Ottawa, Bells Corners, Cornwall, Hawkesbury and Vankleek Hill, Ont.; Montreal, Limbour, Lachute, Marelan and Grenville, Que.

NEED SATISFIED

Edmonton CP — When Alberta's oil industry began taking its first baby strides in 1948, its need for a refinery was met not from the south or the east but from remote Whitehorse, 1,300 miles northwest on the rugged Alaska highway. The first barrels of gasoline and oil turned out by Imperial Oil came from a plant which had been trucked down the highway from where it had originally been built, to supply Alaska with gasoline during the Second World War. The move called for the transfer of 7,000 tons of steel.

The 1964 Ambassador V8 is a very special car— for very special people

990–2 Door Hardtop

No car made in Canada offers greater luxury or more distinctive features than the new 1964 Ambassador V8. The padded, wrap-around dash curves gracefully into the doors. A wood-grained finish adds distinctive beauty to instrument and door panels. There's curved glass in the side-windows... rich upholstery and carpeting... a wide selection of seating arrangements.

It's a car with distinctive beauty. The 1964 Ambassador V8 has a smart, clean look — the result of Rambler's exclusive Uniside construction. Uniside construction (with the entire sides of the car stamped out of single sheets of steel) grew out of Rambler's famous Single-Unit construction. It adds functional beauty to greater strength and longer life.

It's a car with power to spare. The 1964 Ambassador is equipped with a powerful 250 hp V8 engine (270 hp optional). This engine gives the Ambassador a power-to-weight ratio that is truly outstanding, performance that is excellent by any standards.

It's a car with value. In addition to performance, in addition to luxury and distinctive beauty, the 1964 Ambassador V8 features the world's most complete rustproofing, a guaranteed Ceramic-Armoured muffler system, guaranteed battery and coolant, a battery-saving alternator, 3-year or 33,000-mile lubrication, 2-year or 24,000-mile warranty on the entire car, and self-adjusting Double Safety brakes.

Recent wedding at Harrington

Zimmerman - McVicar

On Saturday, October 19, the Harrington United Church was the setting for the marriage of Laura Agnes Stella McVicar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor McVicar, of Harrington, to Flight Lieutenant Robert Godfrey Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Zimmerman of Pilot Mound, Man. The Rev. Howard Fraser, of Chateauguay Basin, officiated, assisted by Mr. Glen Jackson, student minister of the United Theological College of McGill University. Mrs. Dora McLeod played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of white and silver brocade, fashioned in a princess line, with a tight-fitting, long-sleeved jacket. A crown of pearls and crystals held her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion, and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. Diamond earrings, a gift of the groom, were the bride's only jewelry.

Mrs. Elsie Formagie, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and wore a street-length gown of blue velvet. Her headdress was of white net and feathers. The flower girl, Miss Peggy Wade, of Trenton, wore a Royal blue velvet dress, with a matching hairband covered with tiny flowers. Both attendants carried pink baby orchids and stephanotis.

Squadron Leader Alan Reed, of Calgary, Alta., was best man. Ushers were Mr. Gordon McVicar, of Grenville, and Flying Officer Winston Corbett, of Bagotville.

Mrs. McVicar, mother of the bride, wore a sheath dress of Royal blue lace over taffeta. Mrs. Zimmerman, mother of the groom, wore a sheath dress of powder blue winter wool.

A reception was held in the Harrington School auditorium. Following the reception, the happy couple left to spend their honeymoon in London, England. The bride travelled in a Royal blue wool dress with matching jacket, wearing black accessories, and a corsage of white orchids. From London, Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. Zimmerman will proceed to Germany, where they will reside at the R.C.A.F. Station at Baden Baden.
