Dalesville resident killed in Chomedey mishap, Route 8

The late Howard Dixon

The tragic death of Howard Dixon, a 58-year-old resident of Dalesville, in an automobile accident last Saturday at Chomedey, occasioned deep regret in this area, where he is widely known and related. Mr. Dixon died in the Sacre Coeur Hospital at Cartierville, where he was taken by ambulance after the crash. His wife, suffering a badly fractured arm, was taken to the same hospital for first-aid treatment; she will be under hospital care for some time.

According to the Chomedey police department, which made the investigation, the Dixon car, slowing down due to congestion of traffic, was struck forcibly from the rear by an oncoming car in charge of André Cardinal, 24, of Laval West. Mr. Dixon's auto was projected into the car ahead of him. The accident occurred 1,000 feet from the St. Martin intersection on Route 8. It was just after 7 o'clock in the evening, when the Dixons were returning to Lachute.

Cardinal and a passenger accompanying him, also occupants of the third vehicle, escaped without injury.

The funeral was held Wednesday, from Maple Avenue Baptist Church to the Dalesville Cemetery. Sincere sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

Illegal moose killing in cases before the courts

Two cases of moose killing came recently before the courts, one for hunting out of season, and the other for killing in this County, which is a protected area for the moose species.

Justice Camille Beaulieu at Ville Marie heard a charge brought by game wardens against André Carrière of St. Jovite. Sentence was imposed January 14, and Carrière paid a fine of $1,175 for proven implication in the killing and handling of three moose out of season. Two of the animals were females.

(According to Isaak Hunter of The Montreal Gazette, "involved in this case were several young men of the St. Jovite district forming part of a gang of poachers with which Carrière has been identified. As with similar gangs it seems to have been their custom to chip in to pay the fine of any member caught. Whether this is the case in this instance is not known. It seems probable that others of the group will be brought to book before long."

Case in Argenteuil

Judge Omer Côté at St. Jerome dismissed the case against a 23-year-old St. Michel woman charged with "hunting and killing a moose out of season in Argenteuil County". The lady resident shot a female moose calf while hunting with her husband and a friend. The case was investigated by Wardens Gordon Cooke of Arundel and Adelard Gagné of Lachute.

Again according to Isaak Hunter, but quoting only the evidence of the case:

The trio were hunting for deer or partridge. The young woman had a .410 shotgun with rifle slugs as well as birdshot. She was on a stand which her companions had not thought would be productive of any shooting. But there was a crackling of bushes, there appeared a "deer creature", and she fired. The animal dropped, and on investigation turned out to be a calf moose. . . The party made for the nearest warden (Gordon Cooke) to report the matter. Mr. Cooke accompanied the men to the scene. The meat was taken out of the woods, and the incident reported to headquarters.

Taking into consideration all angles of the case, Judge Côté ruled leniently and dismissed the charge against the young woman.

Grade XII students from High School visited Capital

On Friday, February 21, 22 Grade XII students of Lachute High School, and their History teacher, motored to Ottawa where they were cordially welcomed by Mr. Vincent Drouin, the Liberal M.P. for this constituency.

After seeing the House of Commons in session, the students were treated to dinner in the parliamentary restaurant as guests of Mr. Drouin. Points of interest in the trip were visits to the National Gallery, the Mint, and the Museum.

The students would like to publicly thank Mr. Drouin for his friendly interest and his part in helping to make this trip a success.

Half a century — how times have changed!

"High Cost of Living" was the headline of an advertisement by McFaul Bros. (West End) in The Watchman 50 years ago. In the same breath the advertisement announces extra fine bleached cotton 12½ cents a yard! . . .

Confronted with this little item today, a Main Street storekeeper says the current price is 49 cents. But he hastens to add, there is absolutely no comparison in quality. Housewives of 1964, if offered the 12½-cent product, would not favor it with a second look.

Our consultant is Mr. Chas. McFaul, who was clerking in the actual store about the time this advertisement was written. To illustrate how radically things have changed, he recalls that his wages were $50 for the first year and $75 for the second year.

In addition to safety belts for cars, another good idea would be ejection seats for backseat drivers.

Firearms removed, watchmen on duty at Armoury

On order of the Department of National Defence, a full-time caretaker service has been initiated at the Artillery Reserve armoury on Robert Street. Four members of the unit are on duty, in three eight-hour shifts, keeping the premises under surveillance 24 hours a day.

Following the entry and theft of military materiel and firearms at armouries in Montreal, Shawinigan, Val d'Or and elsewhere, these precautions have been taken locally, in addition to the removal of .303 Enfield rifles and ammunition used by the Ayersville Air Cadets, the same at the Highland Cadet quarters in the Auditorium, and all portable weapons and ammunition at the Artillery Battery headquarters.

'Drop out and drop dead,' title of Rotary topic

Guest speaker at the last regular meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was Mr. Andrew Houstoun, registrar of the Radio College of Canada.

Mr. Houstoun pointed out that the largest problem that faces secondary education today, is the high rate of drop-outs from our high schools. The rate of drop-out in the Province of Quebec is 62% Protestants and 63% for Catholics — an alarming statistic when one considers the high calibre of education required for today's career positions.

Mr. Houstoun stressed that the responsibility of preventing drop-outs rests with parents and responsible adults within the community. Everyone should do his utmost to help a student complete his education.

Rotarian Bert Moore thanked Mr. Houstoun on behalf of the club.

Two minor fires last Sunday

Firemen were called to two outbreaks of a minor nature on Sunday of this week. The first was at 11.45 a.m., at the home of Horace Mallette, 216 Main Street, where stove pipes had ignited. Shortly before eight o'clock the same evening, a chimney fire occurred at the home of H. Lalonde, 512 Lafleur Street.

$4,200 objective in Lachute district Red Cross appeal

Three local citizens, Bill Steeves, Bob Armstrong and Pierre Brousseau, as co-chairmen of the 1964 Red Cross financial campaign have announced that the campaign will once again be led off with a "blitz" drive, to be held in Lachute on Monday evening, March 23, commencing at 6 o'clock.

Homeowners are requested to leave their outside lights on, to welcome the canvassers, who are devoting an evening of their time for this very worthy cause.

The objective as set by Montreal headquarters for the Lachute district this year, is $4,200, and it is hoped that all will do their part to help the Red Cross reach this objective.

Catholic Scouts' group chairman addresses club

Dr. Bernard Massicotte, as Father of the "Amis des Scouts" (sponsoring group of the Catholic Boy Scout troop in this community), addressed the Richelieu Club and drew comparisons between the two movements in terms of objectives, and common links in terms of personnel and sponsors. . .

It was possible the affinity might extend still further, for the Scouts might be calling upon the Richelieu for a spot in their park, on which to erect a clubroom. This, said Dr. Massicotte, would provide more spacious quarters and permit the troop to reach fuller capabilities.

The troop, said the speaker, has its present restricted quarters in the St. Julien Church basement. New recruits, to form new patrols, have to be refused through lack of adequate space.

It was also suggested at this time, that someone should undertake to start a Wolf Cub pack, which would be a valuable preliminary to Scout training. The Richelieu members were asked to give public support to an Easter Egg sale by the troop, on behalf of the funds.

Sky diving at Ayers Ski Centre

An overall scene on the Ayers ski hills at Pine Hill, Que., where a team of parachuters from Montreal Sky Divers Association made a series of parachute jumps last Saturday for the entertainment of the large gathering of ski enthusiasts. Met by staff members with a snow scooter, the parachuters on landing donned skis and descended the trails.

Top picture shows one of the team in descent, and lower, a view after a less propitious landing, in which one of the jumpers landed in a free and his chute hung tangled in the branches.

Easter Seals, Lions-sponsored appeal, aids crippled children

The season is marked by a certain charity and reverence, which is a fitting prelude to Easter, anniversary of the world's most poignant sacrifice.

It is today a season of appeals and campaigns, which symbolize man's collective charity to his neighbors. And among these gestures is one which unfailingly enlists our sympathy — the Easter Seals campaign, which brings effective aid to crippled children.

Promoted by the Lions Club in this community, the seals are now in the mails, addressed to prospective donors. It is urged that generous support be extended to this effort.

From year to year the help extended by Lachute Lions to those crippled and handicapped, has increased notably. Foremost in their donations this past year have been appreciable sums towards the Lions' memorial dining hall, a pressing need at the Joliette camp for crippled children. Members of the local club have personally visited this camp at the peak of its season; their hearts have been touched by the nature of its work, and they have been forcibly convinced of the need of adequate dining quarters.

The local club is proud to have its part in this endeavor, and it is felt the local public will share that sense of pride in their generous support to Easter Seals.

Giuseppe Fiore exhibition March 8-22 at Centre d'Art

An exhibition of fine art by Guiseppe Fiore will be opened at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Centre d'Art, 360 Main Street. Mr. Fiore has conducted classes for adults at the Centre d'Art for the past two years, and it is hoped all current and past pupils will be on hand for the "vernissage" of this exhibition.

In this show Mr. Fiore (instructor at l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, and other institutions in Montreal) displays examples of oil colors, ink etching and wash, tempera and drawings, under a general theme, "Five Years of Experiment in Fine Art." Also included, however, are landscapes and sketches from his first years as an emigrant in this country.

Guiseppe Fiore studied architecture for two years in Naples, then extending his studies in French and Belgium, before coming to Canada. At the Beaux Arts he concentrated on design, working and exhibiting in the Province, executing murals in Ile Bizard, Beaconsfield, Dorval and Montreal, and in the past two years working in glass transparency. His work has been featured in many collective and one-man exhibitions, drawing highly favorable comment. He is, at heart, primarily a painter and a teacher, and in these capacities he leads a busy life.

Opening Sunday at 3 p.m., the current exhibition will be on view at the Centre d'Art until March 22, weekdays from 2 to 5, Sundays from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p.m.

"Over Ninety" Birthday Club

Mr. Edward ("Ed") Morrison, a familiar figure and well known resident, reached the venerable age of 98 on Wednesday, publication day of this issue. The Watchman joins with his many friends in extending congratulations. Mr. Morrison is still able to be around, and enjoys fair health, even though he is understandably less active at this advanced age.

Arundel — Warmest congratulations are extended from this community to Mrs. Thomas Graham, who celebrates her 90th birthday on Sunday, March 8.

One dead in Saturday night crash

Driver, 23, killed eight injured

Aurele Duval, a 23-year-old resident of Rouyn, lost his life when the car he was driving was involved in an accident on Route 8, several miles west of St. Philippe and immediately opposite the Bertrand dance hall. Eight persons were injured in the mishap, which occurred at 10.45 p.m. last Saturday.

According to investigating traffic officer Sam Kille, the accident is believed to have occurred when the victim, who was headed towards Lachute, apparently lost control of his vehicle and swerved across the highway into the path of an oncoming light-delivery, driven by Pierre-Paul Renault, 22, of Chute-à-Blondeau. Witnesses stated Mr. Renault attempted to avoid the approaching car but was unable to do so. He and his two passengers, Ernest Mallette, 19, and Jean Yves Larocque, 19, both of Chute-à-Blondeau, were treated in hospital for internal injuries and minor fractures, and four passengers in the victim's car were released from hospital following first-aid treatment. The fifth passenger, Miss Gisèle Lacompte, 15, of Glen Robertson, Ont., was reported to be in serious condition.

The body of the victim was transported to the local morgue and Dr. John C. MacKimmie, joint coroner, indicated that an inquest would be held at a later date.

Investigating officer Sam Kille was assisted by Traffic Officers Maurice Landry and Gaston Paquette.

Received I.O.O.F. 50-year jewel

At Laurentian Lodge 14 of the I.O.O.F. recently, Gilbert Demerse received one of those rare honors accorded to lifetime Oddfellows, when he was presented with the 50-year honorary veteran's jewel.

Here from Montreal to make the presentation, was the recipient's brother, Deputy Grand Master Lindsay Demerse, of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, also District Deputy G. M. Bro. Glass (son-in-law of Mr. Lindsay Demerse).

Mr. Demerse was escorted in the ceremony by five brethren of his lodge all wearing the 50-year jewel — which is a notable circumstance.

Gilbert Demerse was secretary of the lodge for 17 years — missing only three of its weekly meetings during that long period.

Approaching 104th birthday

Mme Alfred Deslauriers — in terms of longevity this district's most venerable resident — attains the age of 104 next Sunday, March 8. Confined to her bed and in ailing health, she resides still at the home of her daughter, Mme Ferdinand Deslardins, on Wilson Street. Her appetite is good, but her mind wanders frequently. The above portrait was taken four years ago, on her 100th birthday.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

I would imagine that a good number of people read the articles on the influx of wolves into the Sept Iles area. From some of these accounts the wolves have even been parading down the main street and killing off dogs that get in their way or are chained. You also may remember, when we were up in Labrador a couple of years ago, I mentioned dogs and plenty of them running around loose in Sept Iles. At that time I mentioned dogs of every breed and description that were just wandering around scavenging. At the time I did not know the reason for all this, but when trying to get our dog into Labrador and being stopped by the RCMP, I was told no outside dog was allowed into this area without special permission from the Newfoundland government. This was done to stop the inbreeding of poor dogs among the Indian dogs.

As I remember it, all the iron ore workers had dogs with them at some time or other when they were in town, and with families moving into the district and more dogs being brought in, the reason for all this was easily understood. It was natural that some of these dogs would have mated with the wolves, producing something that makes a wolf look like a timid creature, the cross-breed.. With the fighting ability of the wolf, it has the know-how of the domestic breed, a bad combination. Then to make matters worse you have the real wild dog, one that has been shoved out on its own; this specimen soon learns everything that's bad.

I don't know why the wolf must be blamed for every and any evil thing that comes along. I'm not defending the wolf, he can do that himself, but I sure would like to see a lot less baloney written about this animal. They are branded as killers by everyone, including those who know nothing about the species and its habits. It's safe to assume that most of these writers have never seen a wolf except on their vacations, which seems to qualify them as an authority on the subject. Considerable research by federal government wildlife specialists, reveals the wolf is a lazy animal; and why should a lazy animal chase after a healthy type, when it can catch a sick or maimed one? There is nothing in these federal government conclusions to substantiate anything written by outsiders. With all the proven evidence, it is hard to understand all this beating of drums against the wolf. One very good article I read on the subject was about a herd of caribou that supposedly were killed by wolves; but on investigation it was found that wolves were not the killers, but rather man, in the form of Eskimos and their dogs. Two hundred sets of bones were found of the slaughtered caribou, killed both for dog and human food.

Seeing some of the fishing rods in for repairs, their general condition gives me the willies. It is unbelievable that these objects, costing so much money, should be stored away without any thought to their care. Rods are stacked away in the fall behind the season's discarded items, and never even looked at during the winter; in the spring they come out badly warped, or wrecked. Yet, if you asked the owners to throw away 10 dollars just for fun, they'd say you had holes in your head. But that is just what they have done. There can be no excuse offered for rods being broken by heavy objects placed on them, or for the warping either. All that can be done in a lot of these cases is to buy a new rod, and this is pretty expensive.

The number of towns now endeavoring to clean up their waters through sewage disposal units is heartening — but not yet as good as it should be. Maybe it's a little late to talk of this, but I still think that no law exists worth a darn in this respect. We all recall the promises that were made during the last (bull) session of the parliament. How much, how fast, how good — all this made fine reading, but that's about all. Our system of controlling pollution is outdated. With all the very good men working on this, one would anticipate no real problem. I guess the only real problem is patronage. Pollution control should have been forced on the municipalities a long time ago, yet in most cases were are still just talking of it. . . Incidentally, I did not see Lachute in this list; maybe they forgot to put it on?

I have seen a number of good looking partridge around, these past few days; they are apparently in fine condition, well fed and certainly not scared. I have been told of numerous coveys seen in the district, along with a few pheasants. (Some of these I have seen myself, on the road down near my home.) There have (to date) been no rains to speak of; these are apt to smother partridge under the snow at night; also, the lack of high winds for some time has left certain feed available on trees and shrubs. In the bush I noted signs of these birds around a couple of raspberry groves not covered with snow.

With so many birds in evidence, it makes you think of spring. We seem to have a lot of the southern type around. There are also a great number of juncoes; and when these things take over a feeder, they don't even leave a husk. We have a small group of chickadees with us too; I still think these are the nicest little bird to be seen.

A letter the other day expressed the views of a sportsman against shortening of the deer season. He also blamed the very mild weather for the poor deer-kill this year. . . In the first instance, my opinions are still unchanged — close the deer season for a certain time; then open it to buck only for a time; then maybe, have open season for another short period, then close it again. As for the warm weather, I think this can be ruled out, as this was not prevalent over the whole province during the hunting season. Yet with a very few exceptions every County reported the deer kill below that of '62.

I would also like to see a later date for opening of the deer season; this would eliminate a lot of supposed hunters travelling around in the bush. Another thing, how about a two-week period for the whole province; this would give us three week-ends, surely long enough for us bloodthirsty humans. I also would have tighter regulations on the purchase of hunting licenses, it is far too easy for a hunter to procure a half-dozen of these, all supposedly for his family. The way it stands right now, aunts, uncles, wives, mothers, along with the youngsters, can be fixed up with a license. I know a seller is supposed to issue these licenses only to identified people, but we know what happens when friends of friends get into the act.

I have been reading some of the literature on the hiking trails in Ontario, and what is being done for sportsmen who take up this sport. Believe me, it is a sport; after reading of some of the exploits of these walkers, one would have to be a sport to take it up. Accommodation is well looked after for these people, with all sorts of publicity available to those just starting out. Do you know that we, in Quebec, haven't got a marked trail in the whole province? With all the historic sites we are supposed to have, someone sure seems to have missed the boat for a lucrative return from tourists. We know the government at present cannot be blamed for previous mistakes, but with all the furore on "culture" now being thrown at us, one might think some attention would be placed on this. I know the Department of Tourism is starting to do something, but past performance gives no ground for optimism.

heeled protest. Seems that some of the scooter boys have been bloating around summer homes with no thought to any shrubs that may have been planted. A caller told me of flower beds chewed up with bulbs, etc., strewn over the ground, young fir trees broken off, and — tracks of snow-travellers much in evidence. (Another landowner mentions fences broken down.) I certainly don't blame the complainants, after trying to improve the grounds around their dwellings, only to have some unthinking person ruin it all. . . Maybe this is youngsters "just having fun", but they are spoiling it for others. Surely a word to the wise is sufficient.

Lachute-B'burg Maroons take Laurentian League top honors

The Lachute-Brownsburg Maroons are the new champions of the Senior Laurentian Hockey League. They have succeeded on their first try, having beat the Ste. Therese Beavers 3-1 in Ste. Therese last Sunday night. This victory, coupled with last Thursday night's avalanche 16-3 win over Laval, pushed them one point ahead of Crabtree and 5 in front of Ste. Therese in the final standings. At the same time, the starry speed merchant, Ronnie Gionet, finished on top of the scoring heap with a comfortable margin of 14 points over his closest pursuer.

Team captain Willis McAdam accepted the championship trophy from the league president, Jean Aubin, at the conclusion of Sunday night's game. This presentation was cheered loudly by a crowd of local spectators, who had made the trip just for that purpose. The players, obviously tired after a hard-checking game, were nonetheless smiling and happy as they exchanged congratulations at centre ice.

This win was a team victory. Each player contributed a strong defensive game, the likes of which a lot of people thought our high-scoring team incapable of. Time and again, the forechecking of our wing lines forced the Beavers deep in their own end. Each new forward thrust by Ste. Therese was met by a decisive check by a forward, or failing this, a thumping bodycheck by a suddenly rugged defence corps. And, when need be, Marcel Paul, the Maroons' brilliant goal-tender, was there to execute some of his patented gloved stops, which effectively discouraged the opposing forwards. On the other hand, the Maroons took advantage of the few good scoring chances they had, concentrating rather on defensive work. They scored once in each period, and this was more than what they needed.

In the first period, André Payer opened the scoring when his ice-hugging sizzler from the blue-line caught the Beavers' goaler looking. This came only seconds after Maurice Desrosiers was refused a goal, when the referee ruled that he had purposely kicked the puck in the net. In the second stanza, André Ouellette, on one of his typical rushes made it 2-0 when he, too, shot low and hard. And in the third, Ronnie Gionet tipped in Roy Cruise's drive from the blue-line to end the Maroons' scoring. The Beavers scored a lucky goal with 4½ minutes remaining to play in the game. From there, the locals practised an air-tight checking game and the Beavers failed to get another shot at the net.

The semi-final series between Ste. Therese Beavers and the Lachute-Brownsburg Maroons will be played Sunday, March 8, at 2 p.m. and Thursday, March 12, at 8 p.m. These playoffs promise some exciting and top-calibre hockey. The teams are well balanced and the Beavers, led by the famous "Lulu" Denis, former scoring champion of the Montreal Royals in the now-defunct Quebec Senior League, will be out to avenge this latest defeat. However, Coach Claude Landry's players are in fine physical shape, and are ready to defend their championship.

Between 135 and 150 turned out for the buffet supper and it taxed the kitchen's crew to the utmost to see that all had enough of the goodies. The preparation of food is always an anxious problem. The ladies in charge never know how many will turn out for the meal. You prepare for a hundred, you get a hundred and fifty. You prepare for a hundred and fifty, you may get a hundred!

The novelty at the party was that each man was to wear a special kind of corsage. Jack MacKimmie won the prize for the "most representative" corsage. His represented the circles of a curling rink-end, with a lady curler, with broom, delivering a stone. Don Hay won the prize for the "prettiest" corsage. His represented a display of lovely colorful vegetables in attractive array. Dick MacLean won the prize for the "funniest" corsage. His was a "chamber" pot which held a bouquet of sweet peas. There were many other corsages which received honorable mention.. A great deal of effort went into their making, and provided a lot of fun for the large assembly.

Emmett Lowe and his orchestra delighted one and all with their excellent music, and they were persuaded to play over an hour longer than their engagement had called for. — Sounds like quite a good time, don't you think?

B.N.A. protects Argenteuil and dozen counties in Redistribution

Quebec — A special House committee, charged with revising the province's electoral map, ran into a major legal hurdle in the fact that there may be as many as 21 ridings protected by the British North America Act.

The problem raised by National Union Leader Daniel Johnson and Attorney-General Hamel before the 46-member committee stems from the 13 counties that are protected by Act of Confederation of 1867.

These counties, mostly in the Eastern Townships, are protected by Article 80 to the effect that their boundaries cannot be touched without a majority vote of their sitting members.

Mr. Johnson said the "12 or 13" original counties now took in the territorial area of at least 17 counties.

Mr. Hamel said he had a legal opinion that there could be as many as 21 counties affected.

The committee decided to hear more legal opinions, then summon the sitting members to find out whether they agree to boundary changes in their respective ridings.

The original 12 counties of 1867 were Pontiac, Ottawa, Argenteuil, Huntingdon, Missisquoi, Brome, Shefford, Stanstead, Compton, Wolfe-Richmond, Megantic and Sherbrooke.

Mr. Johnson arrived at the figure 17 because of changes to the original Ottawa county, but Mr. Hamel said the original counties now comprised 21 ridings.

Mr. Johnson said the case of redistribution in Montreal could be turned over to an "independent commission." He warned of any threat of "railroading the Opposition by imposing counties on us that are Liberal fiefs," which he charged happened in the past in "federal gerrymandering."

Mr. Hamel noted that the original 13 counties were once represented by English-speaking members, which was not the case today. "So while this was to protect the English-minority it is a question of deciding whether it is still needed."

He noted there are only four English-speaking members at the moment: Raymond Johnston (UN-Pontiac), Glen Brown (L-Brome), Alistair Sommerville (UN-Huntingdon) and William Cottingham (UN-Argenteuil).

Second 'Hus-Ski' to garage customers

Ski Trails

By Ross Cole,
Director, Ayers Ski School

Ski Tips —

Many times people have entered the ski shop saying their skis are very slow. After a little investigation I find they have ice on the bottoms of their skis.

I have noticed that many enthusiasts take their skis out of warm cars, heated lodges, or rental shops, and lay them directly on the snow. The result is that the snow, contacting the warm skis, melts into water or moisture, which then freezes again to ice on the running surfaces of the skis.

This condensation and freezing process will occur even if the skis are lacquered and waxed. Then you will have the hard task of scraping ice from the bottom of the skis. Beginners, especially, are never aware of this condition and it makes their first try on skis almost impossible. The skis will not move, since the ice under the skis acts as a brake.

To remedy this condition, it is not necessary to bury the skis in the snow overnight, as I used to when I was racing, but let them stand up against an outside ski rack or wall for 15 minutes before putting them on in the morning; you will then condition the running surface of the skis to the outside temperatures and keep them from icing up.

Next week — Waxing Skis.

Life in the Navy

I'm sitting here and thinking
Of the days I left behind,
And I think I'll put on paper
What's running through my mind.

Some people on the outside
Think a sailor's life is swell,
But I'll let you in on something,
Mate,
A sailor's life is hell!

I've shined a thousand miles of brightwash,
I've chipped a million miles of paint,
A meaner place this side of Hades
I'll swear to God there ain't.

I've scrubbed a million deck plates,
I've sweated out my mail,
I've missed a thousand liberties
And been on every dirty detail.

But when my final taps are sounded
And I lay aside life's cares,
I'll take my final shore leave
Right up those golden stairs.

'Tis then St. Peter will greet me
And loudly will he yell,
"Take your seat up there in font,
Sailor,
'Cause you've done your stretch in hell."

— Your faithful sailor,
Ian Cairns

44-Student band to perform at B'burg High School

On Thursday evening, March 12, Brownsburg High School will present a concert by the Shawinigan Falls High School Band.

Formed two and a half years ago, this band now numbers 44 musicians, who take instrumental music as a subject.

The band on its present trip visits Asbestos, Rosemere and Grenville, in Quebec, and South Burlington in Vermont. Previous performances have been given in Arvida, Pointe Claire, St. John's, Latuque, Three Rivers and Quebec City, and the band has been represented by groups of players at the last two Mount Royal Music Festivals.

The band rehearses five mornings each week from 7.30 to 8.45, and a class in theory has been started this year in Grade 10. Players also attend concerts of special interest as part of their more advanced work.

The program in Brownsburg will include Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition", Reed's "La Fiesta Mexicana", Debussy's "Andantino", Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" with Stephen Blanchard as narrator, and the polka and fugue from Jaromir Weinberber's folk opera "Schwanda".

Variety in programming is matched by variety in activity, as the band also plays concerts for students, goes on musical field trips, sponsors concerts and conducts its own summer music camp. The music played and the activities that make up the band's year, are selected on the basis of their value in increasing the students' musical appreciation and understanding through the medium of instrumental instruction.

School Ice Carnival

A beautiful full moon looked down on a colorful scene last week, when the Students' Council of the Arundel School sponsored their annual ice carnival. Costumes both comical and beautiful were worn by young and older people alike, and the judges had a hard task selecting the winners. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. R. Allan, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Boyd. . An innovation this year was a broomball game, between teams from Arundel and White Acres; the visitors won. This encounter created lots of fun and sparked some good-natured heckling from the crowd. There was a large delegation from White Acres rooting for their team, but Arundel, not to be outdone, cheered just as lustily. During the evening hot drinks and sandwiches were served.

The Students' Council are to be congratulated again on this successful event.

Grenville

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Barron returned recently from Alberta after spending two months with their two sons and families, who reside in Edmonton and Spruce Grove. They had a most enjoyable holiday.

Que. estimates hit a record budget speech due in April

QUEBEC THIS WEEK

By Gerry McNeil, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec (CP) — The government expects to spend a record $1,229,378,600 in the 1964-65 fiscal year.

Where it will get the cash will be announced sometime in April, when Premier Jean Lesage reads his budget speech.

He delivered the estimates this past week: $957,353,200 in ordinary expenses, $214,500,000 in capital expenses, and cost of debt servicing $57,525,400.

The billion-dollar figure was reached for the first time in last year's $1,051,664,700 budget. With federal payments included, the 1964-65 budget may reach $1,524,364,700.

How much federal help Quebec will get will be determined late in March at the resumed Federal-Provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa. Quebec came away from the first half of the conference last December with $43,000,000 in additional taxation powers. However, spending in 1964-65 will increase by more than $177,000,000. Most of the federal money went into education, as will a great deal of the 1964-65 estimates.

Ordinary expenses in the Youth Department are estimated at $319,073,500 — this year's were $250,400,700. Health costs will rise to $195,503,300 from $176,968,000. The Family and Social Welfare Department expects to spend $141,363,300 — almost $10,000,000 more than in 1963-64.

And capital spending in the Roads Department will reach $150,000,000, compared to $100,000,000 this year. Ordinary expenditures of this department are expected to be $65,664,500 — about $6,500,000 more than this year.

A sum of $50,000,000 has been set aside for work on the Trans-Canada Highway — an increase of $15,000,000. Improvement or construction of roads throughout the province accounts for the rest of the capital expenses of the Roads Department.

Ordinary expenses went down in only one department. Agriculture and Colonization will spend $59,317,400 compared to $60,228,300 the previous year.

Northern Grenville

Mrs. Lem Noble, of Eastend, Sask., with her brother, Mr. Ken McHardy, visited Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Hoare on Wednesday evening of last week.

Mr. Harvey Hoare, of Cornwall, spent the week-end with his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. John Arthurs visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, in Kilmar on Sunday. Mrs. Samson Arthurs, of Calumet, was also a Sunday visitor.

Mrs. J. McDougal and Mrs. A. Gay visited with Mrs. Ed Matthew and Walter on Sunday, also visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. Hoare.

Mr. Asa Young, Mr. and Mrs. Wyman Young, Carl and Arlene, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Earl McRae and Mrs. Jack McRae on Sunday, and also called to see Mr. Alex Young, who is very ill at present.

Presentations to church couple on departure

Following the lenten service on Wednesday evening last, members of St. Simeon's Church Choir, Ladies' Guild and Woman's Auxiliary met in the parish hall to express their appreciation and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Hewitt, who are leaving this week for Grand Forks, B.C.

The rector, the Rev. C. R. Lang, spoke of the interest and support which Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt had devotedly given to various activities in the church during the past 12 years, particularly in the choir.

Mr. Hewitt has also served on the Select Vestry of St. Simeon's for several years, while Mrs. Hewitt has been active in the Woman's Auxiliary and the Ladies' Guild. She has been president of the W.A. for four years and since last autumn has held the diocesan post of Secretary of Life Membership.

As a token of appreciation and a remembrance, Mrs. C. R. Lang, on behalf of the W.A. and the Ladies' Guild, presented Mrs. Hewitt with a prayer and hymn book. The choir expressed their appreciation and good wishes in the form of a gift of money, presented by the organist, Mrs. R. Dewar. Mr. Joseph Sewell, People's Warden, expressed the regrets of the congregation at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt, and best wishes for their future.

March is annual Red Cross Month

March is Red Cross Month in Canada. Each year at this time we're asked to dip into our pockets and purses to give whatever we can to the Red Cross.

There's a good reason why we should dig deep into our pocketbooks because the many services provided by the Red Cross help to make our community a better place in which to live.

The Canadian Red Cross free Blood Transfusion Service, for example, is a vital part of the huge medical complex that saves lives in our hospitals.

Though blood is given voluntarily by hundreds of thousands of blood donors across the nation, it takes money to operate this service. Trucks, refrigeration equipment, empty bottles and laboratory equipment must be purchased. Doctors, nurses, laboratory technicians and administrative staff must be paid.

The immense task of the Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service may be seen by the simple fact that in order to keep up with Canadian hospital demands for blood, the Red Cross must collect one bottle of blood every nine seconds of every working day in 1964. This amounts to about 850-thousand bottles of blood.

This service is made possible through the generosity of the thousands of men and women who donate their blood and who give their financial contributions to maintain this vital health service. This gives us the assurance that if an accident or serious illness struck our own home, whole blood and blood products will be available if needed, free of charge.

This year, when the Red Cross canvasser asks you for a donation, dig deep into your pocket or purse and give as much as you can.

Dial-A-Message service instituted by local church

On Tuesday, February 18, the congregation of the Brownsburg Pentecostal Church began a unique ministry to the communities of this area. A Dial-A-Message service was installed in this church, whereby anyone who dials LE 3-4834 is able to hear a two-minute message of inspiration or hopeful challenge, day or night. This ministry has proven very successful in several Canadian towns and cities, and the Pentecostal congregation are confident that it can, and will be, just as uplifting to the residents of this area.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW

The winter now is dying fast, and soon (I hope) will breathe its last. We still rejoice at its last breath, releasing us from frigid death.

I still remember how I felt, last Spring while watching snowbanks melt, and gave the Sun the thanks that's due her, as each one trickled down the sewer.

A few more days and you will see a sap-can on each maple tree, and little girls with skipping ropes at play out on the sunny slopes, and little boys with muddy feet playing at marbles on the street.

Then warmer winds and welcome showers will pave the way for first spring flowers, when redwing blackbirds in the marsh mingle their sounds with grackles hoarse, and in the evening frogs will chirp from all surrounding bogs.

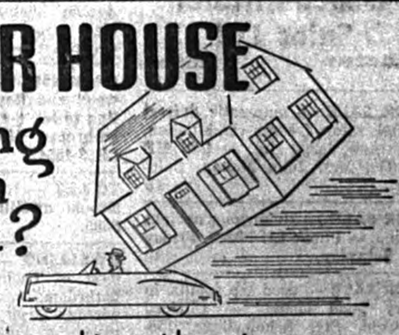

And on the roads, the asphalticians will all resume their old positions, a-filling holes with mud and gravel to make things safe for those who travel. And signs on every road and street saying, "Cahot 500 Feet."

Be seein' ya!

This we change. This we don't.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep. Every part you can see (and every part you can't see) has been changed again and again and again. As a matter of fact, there are only six parts left from the original VW.

But we never change the Volkswagen without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better.

When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too.

So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.

Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars. And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.

We made the rear window bigger one year so you could see other people better.

And made the tail lights bigger so other people could see you better.

But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.

Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car. It doesn't go in one year and out the other.

Grandma would have blown a fuse!
if she could have shopped at a modern store

Nobody had much of an answer for the age-old question "What will we have for dinner?" in Granny's time. She was tied by seasonal products and to the basic ingredients with which she roasted, fried and baked.

Canadian manufacturers have done much towards relieving kitchen drudgery. Better cooking methods, better tools, canned and frozen goods, semi-prepared foods — all have helped to provide the demand of the harassed housewife — LEISURE TIME.

Advertising has made a vital contribution to making prices within reach of all, because advertising makes for mass production and this means lower cost to produce — to sell.

Advertising too, provides innumerable answers to "What will we have for dinner?" New recipes, new foods, new menus, new ways to save time and effort.

This newspaper would be quite a different thing without the new ideas, where to buy and for how much, provided by the advertising.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

"Silence will not solve our problems"

THERE WAS something mighty stirring in a Commons speech last Thursday, and we are proud to note that it emanated (however indirectly) from Argenteuil County. Extracted from Hansard — quoted in the press across Canada — ably reviewed in a TV commentary — these sentiments were expressed by John R. Matheson, MP for Leeds, Ont. A native of Arundel, Que., he evidently retains the roots of racial accord which are part of this County's enviable heritage. In the hope that such common sense may outweigh all the hate-mongery sown by minor malcontents today, we can find nothing more inspiring to head our editorial column this week. However brief, the Canadian Press report of this speech shows the enthusiasm with which it was received, and we quote it here in preference to the direct Hansard text. . .

War veteran John R. Matheson mustered the names of French Canada's war dead in the Commons last night and urged that they be heard over the voices of separatism.

"These French-Canadians, my brothers, who have given everything they had . . . have got to have a say in this business too. How would they feel about a divided Canada?" he demanded.

The earnest Liberal MP also rang in excerpts from the Bible, Shakespeare and Sir Wilfrid Laurier — and reminiscences of his boyhood days in Quebec City — in an urgent appeal for national unity.

"Canada is going through the winter of our discontent," said Mr. Matheson. But he declared: "I believe that no Canadian, French or English, would want to belong to any other nation or live in any other era."

At the end of his 20-minute speech, during which he skipped from English to French a dozen times, he was given a round of desk-banging applause from all parties.

The speech by the 46-year-old Brockville lawyer, a native of Arundel, Que., was an emotional one of a type rarely heard in the Commons.

Harking back to his schoolboy days in Quebec City, he recalled that "I always got licked by a French boy every day on the way to school and I got licked by an Irish boy on the way home." He also told of a momentous two-hour battle between his Sunday School and "the French boys" in a maple sugar bush outside the city.

"I still look upon those events as very fine lessons in race relations," he remarked, noting that Quebec Liberal Senator C. G. Power once said that "perhaps what we need is more honest fistfights."

"If I may use the language of Arthur Miller, I would say, 'silence is not going to solve it any more.' We have had too much silence."

Mr. Matheson referred to Quebec as "my homeland" and said that "what I say of national unity is not inspired by anger but by love."

A former artillery captain whose legs were crippled in action in Italy, he spoke of the several months he served with Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment as "one of the greatest satisfactions of my life."

"During the whole Mediterranean campaign, I carried their insigna on my beret beside my own artillery badge."

TV — "a germ-carrier of crime"

"JUVENILE CRIME and brutality are mounting rapidly in the Western World. Canadian parents do not realize the gravity of this social sickness. Nor are they aware that one of the principal germ carriers may be right in their living rooms — the TV set." — So says C. E. Edwards, of Bridgetown, N.S., deputy president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation. He is a school inspector and a specialist in audio-visual education. In 1962 he was Canada's representative to the International Conference on Screen Education in Norway, sponsored by UNESCO.

Mr. Edwards believes that television has almost unlimited possibilities as a medium for educating and civilizing. But he fears that the fine influence on children of the many good TV programs is swamped by the constant flow of programs that emphasize crime and violence.

"This 'conditioning' goes on year after year. And the whole time unthinking parents abet the gradual process of brutalizing their children by allowing unrestricted use of the TV set; and by going out to buy the products advertised between the sluggings and shootings".

Mr. Edwards once returned his credit card to an oil company because they were sponsoring a series of early-evening programs that (until he turned the switch) "had my children vicariously enjoying the excitement of the juvenile TV actors as they broke into homes, molested old people, destroyed property, pillaged and plundered." Resulting correspondence between him and the Company brought about some improvement in the early-evening fare they sponsored.

"Two decades of constant glorification of the fast-draw, the switch blade and the judo chop are showing clearly in the police courts. There are other contributing factors to the increases in youthful crime, no doubt. But I accuse the massive, continuous injections of TV violence into the home as a major cause," said this critic — expressing views which we believe are generally shared.

It is hoped that such accusing voices will rise in crescendo and in numbers, until they have some effect.

Canadian Home and School has been asking the Board of Broadcast Governors and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, for three years, to undertake comprehensive, long-term research into the effects of TV on children. Since the requests have had no success, a direct appeal has now been made to all members of parliament to help get this urgently-needed research started.

Pointers on neighborliness

PRIME MINISTER Pearson recently put his finger on one of the main barriers to mutual understanding between Canada and the U.S.

In an address in New York to the Pilgrims of the United States, he said Americans tend to "underplay . . . problems until or unless they become conflicts."

At the same time Canadians "tend to overplay them, and make a disaster out of a difference."

Canadians would undoubtedly be pleased if this situation could be changed and particularly if Americans would take notice of irritating situations before they develop into serious differences.

To be realistic, however, it should be recognized that there is no real hope of any change.

The United States has 10 times as many people as Canada. It's deeply involved in vital problems throughout the world. Only when disagreements with Canada over policy develop into full-fledged disputes do Americans generally begin to notice.

And as long as a seemingly unimportant American action can have serious consequences in Canada we're likely to continue reacting violently.

Perhaps the best thing we can do, then, is to try to impress on Americans that such reactions do not spring from any basic unfriendliness; that we're deeply concerned with Canadian interests and are merely doing our best to keep from getting hurt.

Mr. Pearson has tried to do this. Discussing Canada's attitude, he said "there is no anti-American feeling, in the sense that there is any unfriendliness to the American people."

On the contrary, he added, "we are so friendly that we feel that we can criticize the United States like a Texan does — and in the same idiom."

He made a plea for Americans to "consider any Canadian government as a friendly foreign one (he emphasized "foreign") whose first responsibility is the protection of the national interest of its own people."

He added that this naturally included the "necessity of close co-operation with a good and gigantic friend and neighbor."

If Mr. Pearson's first premise — that Americans tend to ignore most of what Canada says — is correct, then few persons in the United States will pay more than passing attention to what the prime minister has said.

But education is a gradual process and if we're going to impress Americans with our point of view, explanations of this sort must be made — over and over — until they begin to sink in.

Oh, How We Danced!

By BILL SMILEY

Have you watched teen-agers dancing lately? If you haven't, and you are old-fashioned, and your blood pressure is high, take my advice. Don't.

Saturday afternoon, through sheer inertia, I found myself before a television set showing one of those teen-age dance programs. Fortunately, I am neither old-fashioned nor high-blood-pressured (it says here). But I must confess, I was wishing I were 25 years younger.

Bill Smiley

Today's kids dance dolefully, but sweetly, to the slow numbers, heads knuckked together, bodies scarcely moving, intent, serious, tender yet strangely impersonal.

But when the music begins to clang and thump, they come into their own. They laugh; they bob and bounce; they wiggle and and jiggle and giggle. Their faces light up. Their feet weave and shift and trace peculiar patterns. They are very young and very much alive, and completely caught up in that most ancient means of communication—rhythm.

Watching them, I was sad. It's a pretty bitter thing, after all, to have been too young for the Charleston, too old for the Twist.

But I couldn't stay sad. Letting my mind drift back over the years, I actually began to feel sorry for the youngsters.

"These kids," I thought disdainfully. "How many of them have mastered a step as I did? Sure, they can do the Cha-Cha and the Twist and the Bossa Nova. But is there a single one of them who can base a whole era of dancing on one step—the fox-trot—as I did?"

There are ample-bosomed middle-aged ladies across the land who will testify that Smiley was a corker, if not a terror, when he tripped the light fantastically.

There are grandmothers in Canada, England, France and Belgium whose eyes still light up when they remember the way we whirled about the dance-halls, a symphony of smoothness, a fantasy of fox-trotting.

"How many of these kids," I wondered, "have ever danced with a Brazilian beauty who couldn't speak a word of English and was doing a dreamy tango while you were doing a brisk fox-trot?"

"How many of them," I queried, "have ever been to a real old country square-dance, where the sign that the dance was over was not the band playing 'The Queen', but the stovepipes coming down when the fight started?

"How many," I thought, "have ever tried to fox-trot with a brawny Land Army girl who was bound she was doing a waltz, and could lift you right off the floor in the process?

"How many of them," I considered, "have walked up to a flashing-eyed young French matron in Brussels, at a nightclub, bowed to her, bowed to her husband, asked her for a dance in impeccable Grade Eleven French, and received a slap in the face from her, a kick in the groin from her husband?"

No. Let them have their fun. I have my memories. Long before these kids were running around with their diapers dangling, I was cheek-to-cheeking it on enchanted summer evenings, and breathing heavily into the ears of their Aunt Mabels.

What Primaries Prove

By RAY ARGYLE

The first votes in the long campaign to elect an American president will be cast in New Hampshire next week. But don't expect a decisive verdict from the state's March 10 Republican primary.

Ray Argyle

New Hampshire is the first of some 17 states and the District of Columbia which holds presidential primaries. The principle behind the primaries is to give party followers a voice in the selection of the presidential candidate.

This seldom works out in practice, however, as the party conventions usually go ahead and choose their nominees without worrying excessively about primary results. Only in the states where the primaries are used to elect committed delegates for the winning candidate, do the primary results count. The others are just popularity polls.

Only one successful presidential candidate — John F. Kennedy — has been able to use the primaries as a lever to capture the nomination in recent years. In 1960, the late president successfully used the primaries to prove to the Democratic party that he could overcome the handicap of his being a Catholic.

Because of the inevitability of President Johnson's nomination by the Democrats in August, the Democratic primaries count for nothing this year. All the attention will be focussed on the Republicans, with the key tests after New Hampshire being Oregon on May 15 and California on June 2.

Of these, California will be the most significant because it will commit the state's 86 delegates to the winner.

The New Hampshire contest will likely be indecisive because of the long list of entrants. In addition to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Sen. Barry Goldwater, there's Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of neighboring Maine and the perennial GOP hopeful, Harold Stassen of Minnesota. To make the vote a real free-for-all, there also have been write-in campaigns organized for Richard Nixon, for Henry Cabot Lodge and others.

Because of the multiplicity of candidates, no one will really win New Hampshire, nor will any of the serious contenders really stand to lose much either.

Despite this, Sen. Goldwater runs considerable risk of having his lustre dulled, especially if Nelson Rockefeller is able to prove that his divorce has not seriously weakened his public following. The state's leading daily newspaper, a supporter of the conservative Goldwater, has run an emotional campaign against Mr. Rockefeller, labeling him, among other things, a "wife swapper." The strategy could backfire.

The tremendous shake-up which has been going on in American politics since President's Kennedy's assassination is not yet over. Rockefeller has been damaged to some extent by his divorce, but Goldwater's radical right-wing views may prove more of a handicap in the long run. And there's still Mr. Nixon to be heard from, along with such people as Gov. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Gov. Romney of Michigan.

Here's to Minor Hockey!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Hockey on Saturday morning for me," my nephew, Mac, announced with pride. There is no mistaking the satisfaction and enjoyment which hockey brings into the life of this 11-year-old, playing minor hockey under the direction of an experienced Pee-Wee coach.

Hockey is as Canadian as maple syrup and this game has an important part to play in the education of our boys.

Radio and TV bring the important Big League games regularly into thousands of Canadian homes during the winter months. There are no more eager listeners or watchers of Star Hockey Players than the small boys playing on countless teams throughout Canada. They know the names of all the most important players on all the main teams.

A very popular book choice for a young hockey player is Scott Young's new story: A Boy at the Leafs' Camp, (Little, Brown). His two earlier books, Scrub on Skates and Boy on Defence are fast-paced thrilling hockey yarns. This latest book, as it follows the fortunes of Bill Spunska, a rookie from a Western High School team, struggling to make his way up the hockey ladder at the Toronto Maple Leaf Training Camp at Peterborough, is exciting reading.

Boys playing hockey have the chance to learn many other things besides skillful stick handling, checking and shooting goals. The Terms of Contract on my nephew's Norwich Minor Hockey Association's Membership Card are enlightening.

As well as agreeing to take care of League equipment and supply himself with skates, legal hockey stick and hockey helmet, a boy promises to be on time for all games, and if unable to play a scheduled game to notify the coach. In carrying this out a player is likely to become more punctual and more responsible than many a pre-teen youngster who takes no part in competitive games in a regular schedule.

Written right into a boy's contract are these commitments: "To be fair, sportsmanlike and to play hockey according to O.M.H.A. rules... To be honest, courteous, to refrain from using profane language, to respect my manager and my coach." There is nothing vague or childish about these conduct suggestions.

A minor hockey player is warned that a false statement of age will mean suspension for him.

There are no statistics about smoking being a threat to health and something no aspiring athlete should indulge in. Just the plain rule: "No smoking in dressing room."

Minor hockey is a tremendous force in building physical fitness in countless youngsters. Some of the ideals of good sportsmanship should rub off on the players as well as sensible habits which mould character.

There could be no minor hockey teams without the support of citizens who care about boys and without the voluntary time of a large number of coaches and managers. Everyone interested in the youth of our land, and especially parents, should get behind those who make minor hockey games possible for their sons.

Don't overcook beef roast

Most housewives know that when it comes to cooking a beef roast, lower oven temperatures over a longer period of time usually produce the most satisfactory results, particularly when it's not top grade beef or if it happens to be one of the less tender cuts.

In some cases, however, a roast of beef can be cooked at too low a temperature and for too long a time — notes the Meat Packers Council of Canada. In one cooking test involving "Choice" round roasts, it was found that a slow temperature of between 200° and 250°F. required a longer cooking time and resulted in the meat being dry and hard to slice, especially if it were cooked to the well-done stage. Considerable juice was lost and the total yield of the roast was significantly decreased. The difference was not quite as noticeable when the meat was cooked to the rare or medium stage.

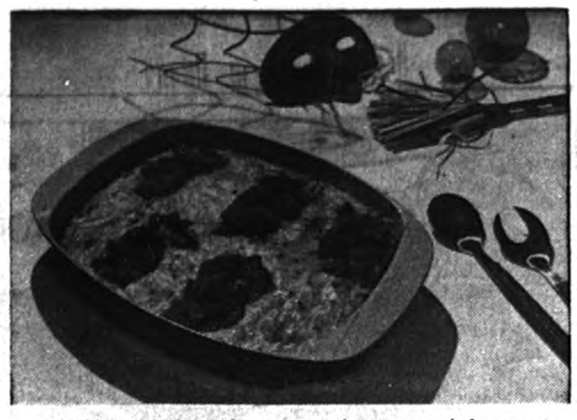

There was no appreciable difference in the tenderness of the meat, indicating that it was basically tender to start with.

When a temperature of 300° F. was used, the test showed that all roasts yielded about the same regardless of whether they were cooked rare, medium, or well-done. On a per pound basis, larger roasts yielded a little higher than smaller roasts.

Since beef is generally considered rare when the internal temperature of the meat reaches about 140°F. (175° F. for well-done), total length of cooking time is an important factor. At lower oven temperatures, the roast takes longer to cook and while this may be helpful for less tender cuts, it has little advantage for the naturally tender beef cuts of top grade quality.

STILL COLLECTING

Montreal CP — L. K. Caplin, 82, is the oldest living graduate of the United Talmud Torah School and the institution's oldest canvasser for funds. Fifty cents was a big donation when he began canvassing 50 years ago. Now, says Mr. Caplin, he can collect as much as $8,000 from 30 donors.

Meal-in-a-dish that is handsome and tasty enough for a party, is this Harlequin Sardine Casserole.

Lent is a time to enjoy our bountiful supply of seafoods. Fresh, frozen, and canned fish in a myriad of forms beckon at the food stores. All a hesitant consumer needs is a little confidence in her ability to prepare them.

Take Canadian sardines for example. When you know how, you can do many big things with these delicious silvery little fish. For a start, let the family revel in the good flavor of Harlequin Sardine Casserole, as pretty a dish of fish as you'll find to grace a Lenten table. The recipe which follows is easy and has been consumer tested by the home economists of the Department of Fisheries of Canada.

Harlequin Sardine Casserole

3 Cans (3¼ ounces each) Canadian sardines, ½ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup melted fat or oil, 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1¾ cups milk, 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese, 1½ cups packaged pre-cooked rice, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 can (15 ounces) tomatoes, 1½ cups liquid (reserved tomato juice and water).

Drain sardines and break into bite-size chunks. Cook onion and green pepper in fat until tender. Blend in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk gradually and cook until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Add cheese and stir until cheese melts. Place rice in a well-greased baking dish, 12 x 8 x 2 inches. Sprinkle with parsley, oregano and ½ teaspoon salt. Drain tomatoes, reserving juice. Add water to juice to make 1½ cups. Pour over rice, stirring until all of rice is moistened. Place half of tomatoes over rice. Top with sardines. Pour cheese sauce over sardines. Top with remaining tomatoes, placed in a checkered design. Bake in a moderate oven, 350°F., for 30 to 35 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Accidents have unusual twists

Sometimes an accident that has an unusual twist has a happy ending, sometimes tragic. But almost always it is preventable.

Take the case of the two-year-old youngster who had a sunflower growing in her lung. She had had pneumonia with recurring illnesses before it was discovered through X-ray that she had a sunflower seed with a half-inch sprout and roots in the lower lung. Surgeons removed the plant with a bronchoscope.

Then there's the case of the man who left a 12-gauge shot gun he was cleaning, on a chair, to answer the doorbell. When he brought his friend into the room to be seated and started to remove the gun from the chair, the trigger caught on the arm and the gun discharged. He was wounded in the right leg.

A youngster, age seven, was blowing a whistle in the shrill way little boys will, when he gulped and swallowed it. Doctors discovered the whistle, about one inch long, in his stomach. They hoped that by feeding the boy bulky foods the whistle might move out naturally and it would not be necessary to operate. He was, of course, for a while, a rather unusual youngster in his neighborhood.

Two children, age two years and 15 months, became ill after they drank liquid air deodorant. They were treated in their local hospital.

Another two-year-old went to a great deal of trouble to drink some fuel oil. Somehow he managed to get a piece of rubber hose to sip the oil from a can in back of the stove. His stomach was pumped out.

It isn't everyone who gets burned from a fall. A man slipped and fell. He landed on his hip and a box of matches in his pocket ignited from the friction. This was a fall that produced more than a bruise — he suffered burns.

These accidents cost much. Medical and hospital expenses, physical suffering and loss of loved ones have already taken their toll in these and thousands of other cases. How much better to spend the time and effort in the prevention of accidents. How much better to transfer these hardship costs to welfare credits.

FOREVER SEEKING

There is still much that must be answered before travel is established between the earth and the moon. It is much the same as when man first started to travel over the oceans of the world. Strange notions were held as to what might happen out in those expanses of sea. Now we wonder about space. Man's curiosity never ceases — he has to be forever seeking out the unknown.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A sure sign that winter has gone on long enough, is that feeling most women get of hating the sight of their cold weather clothes. They begin to think lovingly of the light, bright spring things in the closet and the stores.

That helps make any season-ending time a good time for a wardrobe review. And determination and ruthlessness are two allies to bring to a review. The determination is needed to get through the dull job of mending, washing and getting to the cleaners or shoe repairers all the clothes that need attention.

The ruthlessness is necessary in dealing with clothes to be thrown out or given away. If they've been around without being worn for more than a year, they aren't ever going to be worn. If they're out of style and really can be re-modelled, the re-modelling should be done now. If they're too good to throw out, but are a mistake that should never have been brought home, they should be faced up to and given away. If they're half worn out, they should be relegated to house cleaning and gardening clothes, cut down for a child, or thrown out.

Must be Firm

No half-hearted attack will accomplish this. But once the worst is over and everything in the closet or dresser really is something to wear, the whole atmosphere improves.

When the pruning and repairing is done, it's time to consider building and replacing. This brings another virtue into play, restraint.

First consideration is how much the budget will stand, of course. The most urgent gaps top the replacement list. Figuring out what goes with what is a help. New combinations may appear. A new blouse or sweater might bring a little-used skirt into service. Accessories can give an effect of variety, used thoughtfully, not in profusion.

On a slim budget it's wisest to stick to one or two basic colors and color combinations. This cuts down the danger of cluttering the closet with orphans and odd shades that were never meant to be there.

Careful Buying

Fashion is fun, but the best way for a woman (or a child or a man) to buy clothes is with an eye to everyday life. Three up-to-the-minute party dresses are next year's dust catchers for a woman who really wears skirts and sweaters most often.

One way to reduce the margin of error in clothes shopping is to buy known labels and to buy in reputable stores, especially at sale time. A real bargain is a rare bird. Phoney bargains are not usually returnable, and a mistake should be returned.

Generally, the better the quality, the better value for money clothing will give. No need to strain the budget for house dresses, some sports clothes or accessories. Decide what kind of clothes warrant the biggest investment. Cheat a bit on the others, and buy the best possible where it counts. One good item of clothing is worth four cheap ones.

STILL CUTTING

Gananoque, Ont. CP — One of the barbers here who favor a proposed increase to $1.25 from $1 in the price of a haircut, starting May 1, is Peter LeClair. He started in the business 46 years ago, when the price was 40 cents.

Dear Doris

Canadian social worker Doris Clark invites you to write her about your problem. She answers letters of general interest in this column but can't undertake personal replies.

DEAR DORIS — I would like to be contented with my life but can't seem to manage this. I came to Canada 10 years age from Germany. We lived in a city and I was very active in the choir, a folk dancing group, sewing circle and gym club.

Now I am on a farm and have four beautiful children. But we never go anywhere. I'm getting tired of crocheting and crossword puzzles. My husband doesn't understand my restlessness.

The winter is unbearably long and dreary. What can I do?

CAGED ANIMAL

DEAR CAGED — Start something. For instance:

1. Start a Women's Institute group.

2. Contact the Canadian Association for Adult Education, 113 St. George st., Toronto 5, Ontario, which is rich with material for study and conversation.

3. Consult your nearest library for books on crafts to enjoy in groups or alone.

4. Form a bridge foursome, and work from the book of an expert.

DEAR DORIS — I understand that there is a way that the healthy eyes of people who die can be used as replacements for injured eyes and thus restore the sight of live people. Can I arrange to will my eyes to such a cause?

BRIGHT EYES

DEAR BRIGHT EYES — That's for sure. The need is such that in some cases a person whose cornea is injured or diseased waits for a healthy eye to become available before his operation can be performed.

The procedure for bequeathing your eyes when you die is simple. You and your next of kin complete and sign a form stating your intention. Your doctor is also informed about it. Write for form and further facts to: The Eye Bank of Canada, Ontario Division, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1929 Bayview ave., Toronto 17, Canada.

DEAR DORIS —My little sister, 10, lies and steals constantly. She eats very little. For years my stepmother spanked her every meal but it did no good.

My stepmother drinks and and is in poor health. She's very sorry for herself and blames my sister for worrying her. What can I do?

BIG SISTER

DEAR BIG SISTER— Who's worrying whom? Little sister's revolt for not enough loving care is expressed in lawless acts. Her stepmother's imbalance has in turn upset her. Find an adult—someone professional, if possible — with whom to talk it over.

Confidential to No Confidence — It is time you lowered the boom on your husband's philandering. Long suffering and patience can only go so far. He must demonstrate that his word now means something by sharing with you any letters or phone calls; and you must demonstrate that you are not going to be anyone's dupe any longer.

200 Phones added in this region; report for 1963

Expansion was again the keynote for 1963, as Bell Telephone spent an unprecedented $234 million on construction, according to the company's 84th annual report.

Over the past five years, Bell has spent more than one billion dollars on construction.

Net income for 1963 was $68.3 million, equivalent to $2.58 per share, or a return of 6.1 per cent on total capital.

After payment of $2.20 per share in dividends, the balance of 38 cents per share was added to earnings reinvested in the business.

Over 95 per cent of the materials used were produced in Canada, and many thousands of jobs were supported among the thousands of Canadian firms that are Bell's suppliers.

The company added 199,472 telephones during the year, bringing the total in service to 4,090,102.

This expansion was reflected in Lachute, where 200 telephones were added — according to Bernard Parent, Bell manager for the region, who revealed that 5,100 telephones were in service here as of December 31.

Of total shareholders, 97 per cent live in Canada, and own 93 per cent of the stock. Employees hold 6.2 per cent of the company's stock.

As of December 31, Bell employed 35,441 men and women. The company's payroll in 1963 totalled $179,297,157.

By 1967, the company will be operating Canada's first major electronic central office. It will serve the World's Fair and parts of downtown Montreal.

THEY OBVIOUSLY EXIST

We are already doing big business with the Chinese — even the U.S. is now doing the same — so it is obvious that we must eventually recognize them. This does not mean that we now endorse the principles of communism any more than when we sold the wheat. They probably do not expect us to. But it would give them a seat in the family of nations; reduce international friction; and admit to their obvious existence.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY, Macdonald College

Last week, I was in Cookshire for Compton County's annual Seed Fair. And I liked what I saw. The exhibit of oats was one of the best I have seen in a long time. The number of potato exhibits was surprising; it seems to indicate a potential there for a market crop. The corn entries proved that grain corn can mature if the blackbirds leave it alone long enough.

But most interesting to me were the hay classes. At this seed fair as at others I have attended in the past year, this is the part of the show that is growing.

And, when you think of it, there is a good reason. Quality of the forage can do more to affect income on a livestock farm than any other crop factor.

We have fussed around with oats at the fairs too long. We have argued whether this variety is better than that, whether Russell yields more than Gary, whether Rodney rusts more than Glen and so on. And what does it gain us? Perhaps five bushels, more or less. That's $200 in 50 acres.

Now, look at what we can do with hay. For every week earlier we cut, we can put $500 in our pocket. Cut before the middle of June instead of the first week of July, we are ahead $1,500.

If we can get across the value of early hay cutting at our seed shows, then we have made a real contribution.

Don't believe it? Of course, we won't be convinced until we have tried it on our own farms. But the next best thing is to take results of carefully conducted trials. A 1,500 pound Holstein cow will eat enough hay, cut when the alfalfa is in first bloom and the timothy heads are just showing, to give 40 or more pounds milk a day without any drop.

But, when hay is cut later, two things happen. First, the cow won't eat as much of it. Second, what she does eat, isn't digestible. In fact, by mid-July, that hay is good only for 10 lbs. of milk.

To make up the difference, we'll feed chop. One pound to three of milk. That's 10 pounds chop per cow. Twenty cows in the herd. Two hundred days in the winter. Dairy ration worth $75. There's $1,500, or $500 for every week we were late haying.

But maybe you won't feed chop in the winter; maybe you just take what milk the cows will give on hay alone. Twenty cows giving twenty-five pounds less for 200 days at $3.00 a hundred. That's $3,000 lost. Working it that way, early cutting is worth twice as much.

But maybe I am all wrong. Maybe the cows would be all dry, anyway.

Parts per million (p.p.m.) is a term we hear more and more in agricultural measurement. You use it for orchard sprays, stable disinfectants, residues in food, trace elements in soil. How big is one part per million? All these things are 1.0 p.p.m.:

One inch in sixteen miles.
A needle in a one ton haystack.
One minute in two years.
Or should we have said,
how small is it?

Mark's TV program from the College on March 6 will be "Cows and Cowculators". That isn't a misspelling; it's the term given to the electronic computers when they are used to figure out better breeding and feeding programs for livestock. Prof. John Moxley and Dr. Herb MacRae from the College, Alan Webster from West Brome, and Fred Shufelt, Farnham, will be guests. The time is 12 noon, Friday, over Channel 6.

FAMOUS CANADIAN ARMY BADGES

The hat badge of the Royal Canadian Regiment is distinctive — it bears the Royal Crown and Imperial Cypher "VRI" of Queen Victoria.

Conferred on the Regiment by the Queen herself, the Crown and Cypher wil remain forever on the badge thanks to King George V, who gave his consent following the First World War.

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

I'm one of those ancients who can remember back to the days when there was no broadcasting. My first "listen" was at a Chautauqua tent, in Manitou, Manitoba. Everyone in the tent was allowed to file up to the front and have a headphone held to one ear for a few seconds. All I heard then was a series of whistles and screeches — perhaps some early Beatle group?

Only a few years later, a chum and I were sitting up until the late hours trying to catch Little Jack Little.

When I went teaching, I bought a small crystal set on which I could hear Earl Hill and his Capitolians. They were wonderful, and I imagined all sorts of glamorous surroundings in which I thought they played.

Later, as a radio announcer myself, I learned that the surroundings are about as glamorous as an institution. Nevertheless, I loved the broadcasting business, and often wished that my voice had been good enough to go on to the big time. My voice was heavy, and too much exposure to it must have been a wearying experience to listeners . . . but since radio was new and glamorous there were no complaints. In fact, I even had plenty of fan mail, which I loved.

All the while, however, I was writing, for print. The radio words were gone in the air, but print was substantial and I kept plugging away at it. I knew in my bones that radio, though powerful, would never supplant the printed word. The printed word has a magic of its own.

Then TV came. Now the airwaves are full of music, talk, and pictures! I often wonder what will be next. Certainly one day in the not too distant future, your daily newspaper will be printed in your own home on a machine that picks it up from the air.

Today, people are going back to radio. One can listen and read at the same time. TV is a very powerful selling tool, but often so strident it drives one away from it. Radio is coming back into its own as a family companion along with books, magazines and papers.

It is wonderful that these means of communication have come along and ended the great hush that must have encompassed the world in the old days. But let us also hope that no dictator, such as Hitler, is ever able to use them for his purposes. Let them concentrate on entertainment and news, delivered by free men who do not have to fear censorship.

Mabel

Mrs. Inez Curren, of St. Lambert, and Mr. Homer Soromenger, of St. Armand, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Black. Mr. and Mrs. John Mahon, of Calumet, were also Sunday guests at the Black home.

Mrs. Cecil Clark and Miss Janet Clark, also Mr. Carson Tomalty, attended the Macdonald "Royal", held at Macdonald College on Friday. Mr. Wayne Clark accompanied them home to spend the week-end here.

Mrs. Kenneth Tomalty is a patient in the Smith Clinic. Best wishes are extended for her quick recovery.

Sympathy Extended

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the family of the late Howard Dixon, of Dalesville, whose death occurred on Saturday night following an accident.

Remuneration by-law passed by Council measure goes to public meeting Mch. 18

Members of Town Council voted with a majority of 6 to 3 in favor of a yearly remuneration of $2,000 to the mayor and $1,000 to each of the nine councillors, amounting to a total of $11,000.

While Mayor Dave Campbell stressed his conviction that the town could not afford $11,000 a year for its council, the six aldermen in favor of this move maintained their stand, and the three opponents were equally adamant, in three consecutive readings of the by-law.

The councillors in favor were — P. E. Pariseau, François Charlebois, Dr. R. Dumais, Edmund McFaul, Nelson Lepage and J.-Orphir Desjardins (father of the motion).

Those against were Aldermen Linton Armstrong, Laurier Carrière and Dr. L. A. Middleton.

The Cities and Towns Act requires a two-thirds majority for measures of this kind, and the by-law was therefore constitutionally passed. This, however, is only the first stage. Legal procedure now requires the consent of the taxpayers. For this purpose a public meeting is called for next Wednesday, March 18, the outcome of which will decide (1) whether the matter is left to discretion of the Council or (2) whether there shall be a taxpayers' referendum.

Specifically, at the meeting commencing at 7 p.m. March 18, if 20 taxpayers register their objection to the by-law, a public referendum will be required. (Article 593, Cities and Towns Act.)

In the interval between second and third readings at the regular sitting last Wednesday, Mayor Campbell declared he was in favor of some sort of remuneration to the councillors, but he felt the town could not foot a yearly expense of $11,000. "I believe what you have proposed is out of proportion to the work some of our councillors perform, even though each one of you is the chairman of a committee. Besides which, the town cannot afford this."

The taxpayers will now be responsible for a decision. A protest from 20 or more will bring the question to a public vote.

Flash fire puts paper machine out of operation

A flash fire which consumed two 160-foot nylon-dacron papermaker dryer felts occurred early Friday evening, and forced the No. 4 paper machine out of operation until Monday afternoon, in the J. C. Wilson Co'y plant. The material loss was estimated to be in the vicinity of $10,000.

The fire call was received shortly before 8 o'clock, and members of the fire brigade remained at the scene until the building had been cleared of the dense smoke. Three shifts worked full-time to get the machine back into operation.

Medical talk at Lions Club, feature for Health Week

Between 40 and 50 members and their guests attended the Lions' meeting at La Lorraine Motel last Tuesday, when a former Lachute man, now highly rated in medical circles, came back to his home town to speak on a topic appropriate to National Health Week.

The speaker was Dr. J.-Paul Legault, urologist of the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Montreal and a brother of (Lion) Justice Fernand Legault. The visitor was ably introduced by Dr. Paul Prevost, who enumerated some of his many titles and offices in the profession. The speaker's subject, illustrated by slides, was lucidly presented in layman's language, although the guests, incidentally, included several physicians from this community. Dr. Legault first mentioned the sentiment and kindly feeling of this town towards his family and antecedents, who dated back among the earliest residents. . . On conclusion of his talk the speaker was cordially thanked by Dr. Eric Mongeon.

President Keith Clarke, who chaired this enthusiastic meeting, reminded the club of the public speaking contest March 16 at the Legion Hall; this annual highlight is in charge of two committeemen, Paul Deslauriers and Donald M. Hay. Next regular meeting of the club, March 17, will be visited by the District Deputy Governor, William Adams, of Greenfield Park.

Lion Col. E. Emmett gave a boost to the Easter Seals campaign, which he has conducted for this club for several years past. It was noted that $1,200 (plus $30 marking the club's 30th anniversary year) had recently been donated towards the Lions' memorial dining hall at the Joliette crippled children's camp. This hall will be ready in June, for use during the coming season. A letter of warm appreciation was read. It was emphasized by Lion Emmett that this is just part of the achievement made possible by Easter Seals.

Affairs of the newly-formed Mont Laurier Lions Club (for which Lachute members are sponsors) were reviewed by Lions Jos. Dumais and Tony Zaplaski — the latter reading, from Braille text, a report of his personal visit and contacts with this club.

Lion Horace Lamarche reported on the Anniversary Theme Song contest, and examples were sung by the club quartet. All entries will be judged and voted on by the members, at next meeting.

Lion Claude Landry, of hockey fame, was an efficient pinch-hitter in the role of tail-twister; and three Catholic Boy Scouts, "fathered" by Dr. Bernard Massicotte, were on hand to sell Easter eggs to augment their camping fund.

Cub Pack held parents' night

Parents' Night of the First Lachute Cub Pack was held Friday evening. A large gathering of parents and friends were on hand to witness a very impressive ceremony.

After the "Grand Howl" and flag break, Mrs. T. Bignell introduced her assistant, Mrs. F. Stein, also Blair Vessie, acting as Cub Instructor in place of Richard Paulsen, who works along with the leaders as Cub Instructor regularly. The District Commissioner, Mr. Bill Bray, was present and spoke briefly to the parents.

The boys then displayed their play-acting by performing the "Indian Peace Pipe" ceremony, each boy wearing full Indian dress (shirt, headbands, feathers, etc.) After this the boys demonstrated some of their First and Second Star work. A rousing singsong and refreshments rounded out the evening.

March 13th is 50th anniversary date of Women's Institute in this County

Pioneer branch, the first 'Argenteuil' Homemakers' Club, to mark birthday

The Women's Institute in Argenteuil County will mark its 50th birthday on March 13. Pioneer Branch is the senior group in this County, having been organized on that date in 1914.

The W.I. movement, originally named Homemakers' Clubs, started at Stoney Creek, Ontario, in 1910 under the leadership of Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless. Its motto has always been "For Home and Country", and it is now a world organization.

Early in 1914 Miss Frederica Campbell held a meeting in Raitt's Hall, Lachute, to acquaint women of this district with the new movement sponsored in Quebec by the Home Economics Institute of Macdonald College, and of which she was superintendent.

The result of that meeting was the formation of the Argenteuil Homemakers' Club on March 13, 1914, in the Geneva school-house on Lachute Road. In attendance were women from Beech Ridge, Centreville, Lachute Road and other districts. Mrs. David Todd was made its first president, Mrs. John Cooke its vice-president, and Miss Annie Watson its secretary.

In June 1920 at the provincial convention, it was resolved that all Homemakers' Clubs in Quebec be re-named Women's Institute. Consequently, the local club became the Argenteuil Branch of the W.I.

Over the years other branches were formed in the County, by women who had attended meetings in Geneva school-house. Therefore, to avoid confusion in name, a motion was adopted at the April meeting in 1928 to change Argenteuil Branch to Pioneer Branch, a name suggested by the late J. W. McOuat, school inspector.

Pioneer Branch, meeting monthly, has remained active during the half-century. At present the members come from St. Andrews East, Lachute Road, Beech Ridge, River Rouge and Monalea Road. A celebration of the birthday anniversary is being planned for early spring.

Sergeant resigns, police promotions and addition

A shuffle has been made in the town police force, with promotions and new enrolments, on the resignation of acting-Chief Pineault to occupy a better job.

Cpl. Chartrand has been promoted to the rank of sergeant, and Constables Arcouette and Beauregard have been promoted to corporals, while another member, Dubeau, on probation, was made constable 1st class. There is now a Cottingham in the ranks, also — a recruit of this name (unrelated here) having been enrolled on two months' probation period.

Mayor Campbell and Commissioner L. Armstrong, informing the Council of these changes, said they had been effected smoothly and to everyone's satisfaction on the acting-chief's resignation, and they expressed approval of the performance and operation of the entire department.

The police report for February showed 288 service calls and 24 accidents investigated. Traffic fines amounted to $1,296.80 and there were 43 arrests during the month.

Fire Chief Don MacCulloch reported four fire calls — one outside the town limits, for which $125 had been charged; and 24 man-hours of service or practice.

Night-time entry and robbery at Court House

Thieves gained entry to the County Court House during Monday night and, while little was reported missing, considerable damage was done. The robbery was discovered by Ken McOuat, custodian of the building, early Tuesday morning and was immediately reported to the municipal police.

Entry to the building, situated on Grace Street, was made by means of a rear door, which was smashed open, and acetelyne tanks and a torch were used to cut a large hole through the two doors of the vault in the License Bureau office. Lucien Lacoste, manager, reported a few automobile registration permits missing from the office, which was ransacked.

Apparently becoming frustrated by the lack of money in the license bureau, the culprits then moved into the Registry Office, where they did a thorough job of searching all the desks, etc. It was reported that around $100 was missing from this department.

A roll of roofing paper was used to cover the window in Mr. Lacoste's office while the vault was being cut open, and the empty acetylene tanks were left in the office.

Provincial Police authorities were notified, and a squad from Montreal were summoned to continue the investigation.

Home and School parents' night takes adults back to classroom

The teachers of Lachute High School must wonder what it takes to make parents interested in their children's education. Many of them waited in empty classrooms for parents to come and acquaint themselves with what their children were learning and how they are being taught. . . This was at the recent Lachute District Home and School meeting, held Thursday of last week. The occasion took the form of a "Back-to-School" night for parents, wherein the parents visited the classroom in which they had a student, and sat at the desk while the teacher explained the curriculum, and the methods used.

Principal Fred Royal and his staff are to be highly commended for their part in the evening, which was well planned, prepared, and carried out, and it was regrettable that only about 45 parents took advantage of this opportunity to show their children they are interested in their education and their future.

One feature which many more than parents of the junior pupils wished to hear about, was the Cuisiniere method of teaching Arithmetic, which was introduced in Grade I this year. Miss Helen Kenney and Miss Gertrude McMahon explained in detail the use of the "colored logs", and the amazing results that have been obtained from their youngsters, who have been doing fractions, equations and square roots with apparent ease. The results must be seen to be believed.

Parents and teachers finished the evening with refreshments and a social gathering in the cafeteria.

The final meeting for this year will be held April 22, at 8.15 p.m. in the music room of the High School.

Week's Epigram

If marriages are made in heaven, it's no wonder so many married people keep harping at each other!

Man and wife face charge of impaired driving

An "impaired driving" charge with an unusual twist involved a married couple, who were arrested here in the early morning hours last Wednesday and spent the rest of the night in the police cells.

Mr. and Mrs. Clodimir Therriault, local residents, were taken in charge by Cst. Cuillerier and Cst. Durand of the town police. They were stopped on Barron's Bridge after the night patrolmen had noticed their car zigzagging on Main Street. While the police were questioning them, the woman took the wheel of her husband's car and backed it into Cst. Durand's police car, causing $700-odd damages.

Formal arrest was made by Provincial Police officer Yvon Fauchon, and the couple were taken to St. Jerome the following morning. They will appear in court March 20.

Council Clippings

Town Council, in regular session under Mayor Dave Campbell, took note of a letter from the Department of Municipal Affairs giving approval to winter works costing $120,000, and agreeing to a $54,000 grant for labor engaged on these projects.

A request for the annual grant to Canadian Red Cross was referred to the committee on donations, and Mayor Campbell gave civic blessing to "Charities Month" in connection with the diocesan charities' appeal.

Permission was given to the Carrefour du Livre to use the civic auditorium on April 2-3-4 for a library exhibition.

Council engaged the firm of Armand Parent, St. Jerome, to audit the town books on the same terms as least year ($750). Payment of $500 was authorized to the firm of Francis Hankin, due in connection with the filtration plant installation. The installation of water meters will proceed as planned, the town allowing a rate of $3 an hour for master plumbers and $2 for helpers. A request for raise in salary to Mr. Malette, caretaker, was held for consideration.

The Highways and Public Works Departments will be requested to resurface Routes 8 and 41, and to replace Barron's and the West River Bridges. Legault & Paquin, Advocates, were assigned to represent the municipality in proceedings to homologate the Barron property.

Heavy loss in warehouses, business buildings, at St. Philippe Village

The remains of the Derouin building, their garage at the right

Damage estimated at over $35,000 resulted from a fire early Saturday morning in the Village of St. Philippe. The blaze was noticed shortly after 3 a.m. by a mail truck driver on the Ottawa-Montreal route. The driver awakened the Marchand family, general merchants in the village, who in turn summoned the Lachute Fire Department, who, according to Mr. Marchand, were fighting the fire within 15 minutes of the call.

Consumed in the fire were a garage and warehouse owned by the Derouin brothers, where the fire started, an adjacent warehouse owned by J. L. Marchand, sheds owned by Jean Desjardins, and a separate garage owned by the Derouins. All the buildings were in close proximity.

Fire Chief Don MacCulloch of Lachute reported that, upon arrival at the scene with his crew of men, only the Derouin building was on fire, but the lack of water in the village prevented any effective measures to save the adjacent structures. The Derouin home and business were severely threatened, however, and this building was saved. Lawrence Derouin indicated that a total loss would have resulted, had the fire departments not been on the scene. Trucks and crews from Brownsburg and St. Andrews East were summoned, and arrived at the fire some time after the Lachute brigade.

Upon the arrival of the Lachute crew, the cistern situated at Marchand's store was pressed into use and was eventually pumped dry. The Brownsburg and St. Andrews brigades used the water from their trucks and then had to leave in search for an additional supply. Chief MacCulloch reported his usual difficulty in obtaining water, having to travel to the former CNR crossing to gain access to a sufficient source. Members of the Lachute brigade returned home at 8.25 a.m., and were called out again around noon for an additional two hours.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

Up in the bush over the week-end — warm weather with just a few clouds, sounds of trickling water, and the joyous peeping of the birds — I was happy to think that spring is not too far away. There is surprisingly little snow in spots — right down to the bare ground in places. Naturally, I had a look at some of the old fishing spots, and some of the creeks have open water rushing down. I'll admit they are not open too far, but at least this is a good sign. On top of this, the squirrels were all having a field day. I saw three reds but a good dozen of the blacks, and a couple of chipmunks. Only one rabbit made its appearance, but this has been a very poor season for them.

Looking under a blown-down cedar, I found a den that I think belonged to a lynx; this had not been used for some time, but there was enough hair around to show that the occupant had not moved too long ago. Possibly this animal was going to have kits, and had sought a better place to bring them into the world. This is just surmise; with a fair den, and no human tracks around, it just doesn't make sense to see this nest deserted. Incidentally, if you are fortunate enough to spot any of these kits born around this time, don't try and take them home as pets; the old lady sure won't like it, and you'll get scalped. Another good thing you can do, DON'T SHOOT. With young around, the adult animals will have to forage a great deal, so if you kill one of them, what happens to the young? Do your good turn for the day. Believe me, they won't hurt anything running in the bush just now.

I imagine a number of you saw the lynx on the hood of a car in town the other day; a mighty hunter had shot himself three of them. I wonder if they had any young around.

I don't know just how to write of this incident and make you understand; but here goes. . . Two weeks ago I had put our canary up to the window for his usual "seeing" event. His cage had been up for about 10 minutes, and as usual he was taking a loud interest in everything he could see. A loud bang was heard with squawkings, and there was his cage on the floor, with the bird motionless inside. We managed to bring him around, but we find he is now blind in both eyes. A good deal of blood was on his neck, so I imagine the optic nerves were damaged. Naturally he is getting the very best of care, and he seems to be coming along O.K. Of course, he cannot fly up to his perches, so we have had to change his feeding habits, getting him accustomed to finding his seed on the cage floor, and so on. The lower perch has been left, and this he uses a lot. Seeing him get up on this one is a real lesson in know-how. Reaching up, he uses his bill to find the rung; he then settles his wings on the gravel and springs up, always keeping his bill on the perch in order to judge the distance. . . It's so easy writing about this, but believe me, to try and tell you how we feel is impossible. This little companion has travelled all over with us, in every form of conveyance; and to have this happen to him right in his own home is not easy to take.

Don't forget the birds just now; it is not time to stop feeding them yet. Some of you good people seem to think the birds can forage on their own right now; but actually they need it now more than ever, especially the suet sticks. Birds are the same as humans; after a long, hard winter we kind of get rundown and catch every malady that's going — birds are the same. Maybe you could give them an extra treat — raisins, suet, sunflower seeds crushed up; they sure like these.

By the interest shown in the moose shooting in this County, it seems that a lot of people are game-conscious in the district. Let me give you a little more information. The Montreal column you have been quoting seems to have taken the story from the persons involved, or others sympathetic. For the information of that columnist, the reason the Lachute wardens were called in, was that the St. Michel police called them. And concerning the charge: Anyone carrying a gun, be it loaded or not, in the bush is deemed to be hunting. It says so in the law books, so what other charge could have been brought up — maybe picking their teeth with a .410? As for Argenteuil not being a moose county, this we all know, and it is this indiscriminate shooting that has made it so.

Not too much information is available on the deer killing on Christmas Day or thereabouts, but some of the information gleaned is worth while.. I hope to have the whole story of this in a couple of weeks, and you'll see for yourself how funny it was.

* * *

It's kind of stupid to be telling you fishermen it won't be long now. But here's a few tips that may help you get a fish on the opening day. It is possible you will be fishing creeks only, so don't use heavy sinkers in your still fishing. Use the free float method, and this will pay off better. Use a light sinker and just let it drift with the current. I know you will have to keep picking it up, but believe me, you cover a lot more area, thus more fish. If you are going to use flies, the streamers and large cranes will do the trick. Nymphs may pay off if the water is reasonably clear. Spinning lures will have to be light. Most people use the same weights, starting with the opening right up to the finish, and they lose a lot of good fishing this way. Different weights are preferable with different lures. Some of you use different methods of reeling; this does not always work, but with lighter or heavier baits sometimes it does. Try it and see.

As most of you know, certain parts of Ontario are open for trout fishing. The southern parts of the province have been well stocked, and good fishing is a fair certainty. The last time I was up in Prince Edward County everyone took out after trout. I have often wondered just why we couldn't have an early season in certain parts in this province; maybe it has to do with lack of fish, maybe the climate. Whatever the reason, it sure would be nice to take off on the first of March for trout, even if you didn't get any! I don't think it will be too long before the North River is open, so that will help. The Ottawa will soon be ready for the opening of the dore. Here's hoping the area around the dam will be as good this year as it was last; some excellent fish were taken last season.

Concerning the lack of fish in certain of our rivers, as usual much of the blame seems to be centred on the fisherman. However, the greatest blame can be placed on pollution. With rivers slowly being filled up with all kinds of filth, the lack of oxygen in the water makes it impossible for anything to live. This is one of the big reasons why detergents are so deadly; everything is covered with this goo, thus cutting off the air. I know I'm always beefing at the water purification authorities, and the seeming lack of interest in certain sections of our waterways. We do have a good Water Board, but this provincial body gets no help whatever from the governments and administrators concerned. When we are going to have pure water is not known, but you can bet it won't be in our lifetime — unless, of course, they pass out some of the millions being poured into the World's Fair. Just imagine if this money was spent on beautifying and purifying, and the long-term revenues it would produce from tourists.

Desrosiers scores five goals in two games —

Maroons tied 1-1 in games of league semi-finals

Before a crowd of more than 750 specators at the Brownsburg Arena last Sunday afternoon, the Lachute-Brownsburg Maroons defeated the Ste. Therese Beavers by a score of 8-3 to tie the semi-final series "A" of the Senior Laurentian Hockey League play-offs.

Although the final score would seem to indicate an easy victory for the locals, the outcome of the game was not decided until the 17th minute of the last period, when the Maroons exploded for four goals in 1 minute 13 seconds, to settle the issue right there and then.

The Lachute-Brownsburg team had controlled the play for most of the game, but were unable to put the puck past Ste. Therese's starry netminder, Eric Reid. They did everything but put the puck in the net. The passes between players were accurate and clicking, streaking shots were coming from all directions, the Beavers were completely outplayed — but still the Maroons could not score. Time and again, Reid stopped breakaways. When he wasn't stopping them, there was a player lying in the goal-crease to make the stop for him. And even when there was no player, every goaler's best friend, the goal post, was there to stop the puck. . . As one wag put it after the game, the posts now look as if they had been painted black during the game. . . But sooner or later, something had to give and when it did, the flood gates were opened wide-open.

Maurice Desrosiers, the diminutive centre, played a big role in the Maroons' victory. He scored three goals and had one assist. But it was his tenacity that supplied the inspiration for the other players to keep trying. His second goal, a sizzler from about 30 feet in front of the net, brought the crowd to its feet in a great ovation for the little competitor. Payer-McGibbon, Racine-Gionet and Prévost scored the other Maroons' goals.

This marked the third game in succession in which the Maroons have burst for five goals in the 3rd period. In last Wednesday's game in Ste. Therese, the opener for this semi-final series, the Maroons were trailing badly 6-0 with only 10 minutes to play in the last period. And there again, they went on a scoring spree, blinking the red light five times in less than 7 minutes. However, time ran out on them, and they could not register another score to tie the game.

Maurice Desrosiers again was the sparkplug of the team when he scored two goals and had one assist. Ménard, Racine and Ouellette scored the others.

You will remember, Sunday two weeks ago in the Brownsburg Arena, the Maroons were on the wrong end of a 3-0 score, when they fired five successive goals against Crabtree to win the game 5-3. This also happened in the late stages of the third period.

The next game of the semi-final series will be played in the Brownsburg Arena, Thursday night, March 12, at 8.30. No doubt this game will be as lively as the first two games. The winner of the contest will take a giant step towards entering the final series against the winner of the Crabtree-Pont Viau series.

SKI TRAILS

By ROSS COLE, Director, Ayers Ski Centre

This is the time of year when most people complain of their skis becoming very slow on the ski hills. The major reason is that the combination of the water in the snow and the smooth running surface of the ski create a suction; this increases the friction and therefore makes the skis slow up at higher speeds. It's a very exasperating experience, as well as a very tiring one.

Waxing, for the recreational skier, doesn't have to be an involved process. A simple application of a soft wax, e.g., silver, will help to some extent. Application of this type of wax should be across the ski, that is, in short strokes from edge to edge, instead of the common practice of down the length of the ski. This type of wax should not be rubbed smooth, as the main purpose of the application is the rough surface to break the suction.

Another very popular method of spring waxing, is brushing melted wax onto the sole of the ski. Again, a soft wax, paraffin and silver melted together, will do the trick.

After the wax has melted in the pot, take a 2-inch brush and, starting at the tail of the ski, apply an even stroke about 12 inches long towards the tip, making sure you cover the groove as well. The next stroke should start about 4 inches from and overlapping the previous stroke. Repeating the procedure to the tip, will give a shingle or "stepped" effect. These many steps in the wax will again give air a chance to enter between the ski and the water-drenched snow, thus breaking the suction and resistance.

If these simple procedures are taken in spring, you will find your skiing will become much more pleasurable.

C-I-L Annual Bonspiel

The C-I-L Bonspiel was held last Saturday, with teams from Shawinigan, Beloeil, Cornwall, Montreal and Brownsburg competing for the J. D. Converse Trophy. Lachute Curling Club ice was used in the morning and early afternoon, as well as Brownsburg, to allow completion of the competition in one day. All six-end games were played with the high percentage of three games as winners.

Keith Rutherford, president of the Lachute club, did a bang-up job serving coffee to all the early-morning curlers. Many thanks are extended for this extra effort, which was greatly appreciated.

The winners of the J. D. Converse Trophy were Brownsburg — S. Rose (skip), G. Tomalty, R. Sugden and Harry Millar.

Winners of the Consolation were Cornwall Chemicals Ltd. — S. Johnston (skip), J. Spinney, B. Brady and B. Maynard.

Runners-up for the Trophy were Brownsburg — J. M. Humphrys (skip), D. Troop, Ernie Gagné and J. Dixon-Smith.

LACHUTE 1884 CURLING CLUB

Art Lobel (skip), Don McFaul, Lionel Rendell and Carl Rodger carried Lachute's colors with distinction in the Lakeshore bonspiel. This bonspiel draws some of the best competition in the Province of Quebec and eastern Ontario. Our boys lost their first game but went on to win their next five games, to take the Lake of Two Mountains trophy. They brought home a shield to be kept in the club — an engraved stein and an excellent prize, each. Good going, fellows!

The Colts were not so fortunate. They travelled to Ottawa last Monday afternoon, but stumbled in the first round. However, they had won the district finals to represent us at Ottawa. Better luck next time.

Four teams from Lachute played at Maxville last Saturday, but there were no high-plus winners to qualify in their finals.

All local curlers are requested to become ambassadors of our club and to solicit entries for the Lachute Open Bonspiel, which will be held from March 20 to April 4 (no play on Good Friday). Entries are coming in steadily, but a lot more will be needed. So — everybody — please put in a plug for this big annual event.

OLDS-a sure feel for action -a solid sense of value!

Point an Oldsmobile toward the horizon and let her go. That's Rocket power you feel pushing you deeper into your seat. And every Olds has it in good measure. How good? Up to 345 hp with the Starfire V8.

Now, take Olds over back roads. Yes, those are bumps you see but don't feel. Oldsmobile's balanced coil spring suspension takes care of that.

Pilot an Oldsmobile into a crowded city canyon. Notice how smooth and relaxing downtown driving just became. That's because Oldsmobile's famous Hydra-Matic Drive, Roto-Matic Power Steering and Pedal-Ease Power Brakes (optional at extra cost on some models) take on the effort, and leave you the fun.

Sooner or later, you'll get that Oldsmobile feeling. And when you do, your Olds dealer is the man to see. He has 21 variations on the Oldsmobile action and value theme. Buying any one makes very good sense.

Sentiments and Sidelights

Coinciding with our editorial on "TV, a germ-carrier of crime" was a tragedy reported last week in the Vankleek Hill Review — the case of an eight-year-old boy near Lancaster, found hanging from a beam. The lad was playing cowboys. His death, through accident and misadventure, was most probably attributable to lurid scenes on television drama.

Don't "let George" do this one... If you have received Easter Seals in the mail, please return the pink envelope with your donation, and help the Lions Club in its annual effort for the Quebec Crippled Children's Association. . . New residents, or any not contacted by mail, may subscribe to this effort by remitting to The Watchman, Box 220, Lachute.

"Ottawa River at Hawkesbury Nothing But a Vast Sewer", says a streamer in Le Carillon, newspaper of that town, headlining a report of the Ottawa Water Resources Commission.

Last week the local Red Cross called on the services of four townsmen of special blood type in an emergency case, on behalf of the late A. D. Beaulieu of Carillon (whose death occurred Thursday morning) at the Argenteuil Hospital. Those called were Messrs. Keith Clarke, Adrien Derouin, Conrad Gagné and J. Art Whiteway. The Beaulieu family are deeply grateful to these citizens.

"Education, the Human Contact" was the theme at an Education Week seminar for the Catholic comunity here last week. But some of the audience found it paradoxical that the speaker dealt with the audio-visual approach — television — which very effectively eliminates the "human contact" in today's teaching.

Easter Seals, small gesture with big and inspiring ends

The "pink envelope man" (Col. Ernest Emmett, Lachute) is again pressing the annual Easter Seals campaign for Lachute Lions Club and on behalf of the various individuals and projects assisted by this fund.

The club's record on this score is a highly creditable one. . . A certain percentage of the proceeds remains here for local disposal. In addition to individual cases assisted by the Lions, a sum of $1,230 has been donated this past year to the Lions' memorial dining hall to be erected at St. Alphonse de Joliette crippled children's camp this spring. This donation was derived largely from Easter Seals.

From the portion of funds remitted to the Easter Seals Society, the record of still wider service is inspiring. This includes hospital treatments, orthopedic aids, rehabilitation and training centres, and continued research.

Indication of the value and extent of research was given in a medical article this past week:

"According to a symposium at an annual meeting of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults held in Dallas, this (malformation) is due to something unfavorable that happens to the child between the time of conception and the time of birth. The Easter Seals Society holds such meetings annually, at which these problems are discussed by leading clinical and research authorities. Much of the money raised through the Easter Seals is spent for research into the causes of these deficiencies."

Sympathy with this work of improving the lot of crippled children and adults, has been most heartening, and it confidently hoped all residents and organizations here will continue their support. Individual subscribers are asked to return the pink envelopes with generous donations to this cause.

to a gratifying response in the Charities Federation campaign, which opened last week throughout the St. Jerome diocese. The organizers are encouraged by early reports on the progress of this appeal.

Old townsman found dead in his home

René Laurin, a longtime resident on Evelina Street, was found dead at his home by his son, Paul, last Friday. Mr. Laurin, 54 years of age, was well known about town.

His wife, the former Imelda Brisebois, survives him together with two sons, Roland, in Montreal, and Paul, of Lachute, also a daughter, (Aline) Mme Robert Dumais, of Manicouagan. Surviving also are his three brothers and four sisters.

Funeral service was held in the MacKimmie chapel on Monday afternoon, the remains then being taken to Montreal for cremation, in accordance with the wishes of the deceased.

PRICING THE TELEPHONE

How much does YOUR home telephone cost you a day? 10¢? 15¢? 20¢? I'll let you in on a secret: It's considerably less than the price of a small pack of cigarettes, less than the price of most magazines, less than the price of a fancy soda. In fact, when you consider all that the telephone does for you, you realize that the small monthly charge cannot fairly be said to represent the VALUE of your service. That cannot be measured until someone can put a price on calls that say, "It's a girl," "The job is yours," or, "Come quickly, doctor." And that cannot be done until our hearts are made of stone.

NEW DIRECTORY AND "BLUE BOOK"

As is customary around this time of year, you have probably received your new phone directory. Don't assume that the only innovation is on the cover! This directory includes many new listings and changes. So the best way to save time and annoyance, and to avoid getting wrong numbers, is to consult your directory, take note of the number, and dial carefully. Also, it's a good idea to use your Blue Book constantly. A new Blue Book, of reduced size, handy to note down your most frequently-called numbers, is now available. It gives a lot of helpful new information — inter-urban regional code numbers in Canada and the U.S. — and a special section for anniversary dates! To procure one FREE, just call our Business Office.

SPECIES EXTINCT

Seems a shame, but the last of the bonafide smoke signallers has apparently crossed into the Happy Hunting Grounds.

An advertising man discovered this after being hired to find an Indian to send smoke signals to promote a new product. He toured reservation after reservation, but couldn't locate a smoke signaller. Exasperated, he finally approached an old Indian sitting before a campfire.

"Tell me," he said, "what do you do when you want to send a message to someone on the next reservation?"

The Indian regarded him coldly: "I use the telephone. What do you do?"

Heavy loss at St. Philippe

During the fire, citizens reported an 8-inch or 10-inch well which had been drilled behind the municipal hall several years ago, at a cost in the vicinity of $2,000, but which had never yet been put to use. Chief MacCulloch reported he was not able to find any such well. Chatham Mayor Wm. Morrow, when questioned on this matter, stated that the well had been drilled before his term on the Council and he was not sure of the circumstances. He informed The Watchman, however, that it was his intention to look into the situation, which he agreed was serious, and discuss possible solutions with the Council and the various fire departments in the area.

APPRECIATION

We would like to express our sincere appreciation for the assistance given us during our recent loss by fire, special thanks going to the Fire Departments of Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Andrews East, without whom our loss would have been much more severe.

St. Patrick's parade set for this Saturday, 14th

Organizers have reported that this year's St. Patrick's parade, barring inclement weather, is shaping up in grand fashion, as many local groups and firms are showing enthusiasm in preparing their respective entries for the occasion.

Following an established custom, the parade will again be held on the Saturday immediately preceding the feast day of St. Patrick, which this year will be Saturday, March 14. It will assemble on Paquin Street, to get underway at 2 p.m. Participants are asked to be on time. Delays frequently cause inconvenience and discomfort, especially to riders when their horses become restless and unruly.

Among those participating will be the Lachute Army and Air Force Cadet bands, local Boy Scouts (English and French groups), riders, floats, local Army Unit, and at least two additional outside bands.

Routing of the parade is being planned in conjunction with the local police force and will quite possibly be the same as last year, i.e., commencing on Paquin Street, crossing over to Main Street by Gilbert Street, proceeding west on Main to Bedard Blvd., east on Bedard to Bethany Street, north on Bethany to Main and back to the Auditorium, where the parade will disperse.

(It was first thought that the routing of the parade would include Ayersville; however, since many horses object to crossing the bridges because of the nature of their surface, it was considered in the interest of safety, that this be postponed for another year.)

Everyone is welcome, and indeed invited, to join the parade, either privately or as an entry deemed to have some public appeal — the only conditions being that the organizers be advised in advance and the "Spirit of the Irish" shall prevail.

March meeting of Red Cross Lachute branch

The March meeting of the Canadian Red Cross, Lachute branch, was held in the United Church hall on Wednesday last, March 4.

Mrs. Fernand Legault, president, was in the chair and minutes of the February 5 meeting were read by Mrs. Harry Booth, secretary.

Mrs. Legault reminded those present of the forthcoming campaign for funds, starting with the "blitz" drive in Lachute on Monday evening, March 23. She also announced the suggested dates for the Blood Donor Clinic to come to Lachute. This will be in September, and the dates, subject to alteration, 28th and 29th.

Mrs. Fraser Morrison and Mrs. R. F. McGibbon showed a beautiful quilt which was made by Mrs. Robertson and presented to the Red Cross by the Upper Lachute W.I. Also on show and much admired, was a magnificent white quilt which is for sale. This is decorated with an intricate design of maple leaves in varying colors, and is a lovely example of appliqué work.

The Red Cross and the working party in particular, will sadly miss Mrs. Bernard Hewitt, who has moved to Grand Forks, B.C., where she and Mr. Hewitt will take up residence near their elder son. Mrs. Hewitt has worked for more than 10 years with the Red Cross in Lachute, and in addition to attending the weekly work meetings, served also as captain of a large district during financial campaigns responsible for the canvassing and collections. Her cheerful personality, hard work and enthusiasm in all projects will be hard to replace.

Exhibition at Centre d'Art paintings by Guiseppe Fiore

A considerable crowd of art lovers, friends and former pupils of Guiseppe Fiore gathered Sunday afternoon for the "vernissage" of an exhibition depicting his adventures in art during the past five years. The artist and his wife, also Mr. and Mrs. Jean Laforest, directors of the Centre d'Art, were present to welcome the visitors in the gallery of the Centre on Main Street — quarters which are admirably suited to a display of this kind.

Guiseppe Fiore proves himself a master of various media and techniques, in a range of subjects from portrait and landscape to abstract, design and neo-cubism. In this latter style he shows special mastery in the effects of transparency. Here there is none of the slapdash nonchalance which sometimes raises a query as to modernists and their competence in rudimentary essentials. Mr. Fiore has progressed from the ground up, and is a basic conformist in color harmony and balanced composition. The results of his experimentation bear evidence of his artist's inspiration — plus perseverance and hard work.

The exhibition remains open daily from 2 to 5 p.m., with additional hours on Sundays, 7 to 9 p.m., concluding March 22. All visitors are welcome.

Dairy Queen reopens for season

Spring must be just around the corner, 'cause the Dairy Queen store on Brownsburg Road is opening for the season. You refreshment fans will be able to enjoy your favorite Dairy Queen taste treat with the curl on top after tomorrow, which marks the official re-opening date, according to an announcement from Al Mady, owner and operator of the local Dairy Queen store.

You're invited to stop by and try the delicious sundaes, shakes, splits and shortcakes which have made "Dairy Queen" a household word for over twenty years. Dairy Queen taste treats are made with fresh, sweet, whole milk — then frozen to a satin-smooth, taste-pleasing texture. It's drawn fresh from the freezer while you watch — and served at the peak of flavor perfection. You'll enjoy the service, too — the same prompt, courteous service found at more than 3,500 Dairy Queen stores throughout the United States and Canada.

So stop in soon and say "hello" to Al Mady and his crew. As a suggestion, get together a party of friends and make "let's all go to the Dairy Queen" an occasion for fun and refreshment.

On Saturday, March 21, a special guest at the local Dairy Queen store will be Channel 12's Johnny Jellybean. Plan to meet this popular TV personality during his stay in Lachute. 1x

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

WHO'S A DUMMY?

I feel sure that any old-timer will remember the shop-window dummies around the turn of the century. If seen by the younger generation they would be good for some hearty laughs, because they looked just like they were — shop-window dummies. But today they are called "mannequins", and they look so natural one could almost expect them to speak.

Now let's take a look at the pictures of professional models in any one of the sophisticated fashion magazines, advertising gowns, furs, jewelry and cosmetics. Take a good look at the faces of these models. Did you ever know anybody that looked like that? I have seen monkeys in the zoo with more character and expression on their faces than on those of some of these professional models. Assuming that the advertisers are trying to sell goods, wouldn't you think that they would realize that their prospective customers are human beings and not mechanical robots? Yes, times have changed. Nowadays shop-window dummies look like human beings — and according to the fashion magazines, the human beings look like shop-window dummies.

Maybe there's a moral to this story, but for the life of me I don't know what it is. Doesn't make sense to me.

Be seein' ya!

Crashed thro' ice near Masson, Que.

Two Orleans (Ont.) men had a narrow brush with death recently when their car broke through the ice of the Ottawa River and sank to the bottom — reports the Buckingham Post.

Mr. Valmar Gauthier, 54, and his son Royal, 18, were crossing the river on the ice between Cumberland and Masson when the left side of their car started to go through the ice.

The two men had time to get out through the right-hand door before the vehicle disappeared into the water.

The pair had been following another car across the river when the mishap occurred. The first car made the crossing without incident.

According to police the accident happened about 300 feet from the Quebec shore. The ice was about four inches thick where the car made its dive.

National Health Week

CANADA'S 20th National Health Week is being observed from March 8 to 14.

It has been said that the whole future of preventive medicine in Canada depends on education and it is essential that this education be universal. If even the present knowledge about means of preventing illness were generally known, years could be added to the length of life of the average human. Hospital beds could be kept empty instead of being occupied by patients who should not be ill, frequently by the adoption of simple measures. We have conquered many diseases, with the result that since the beginning of this century more than 20 years have been added to the average length of human life. Many years more could be added if there were means of telling every Canadian what he or she should do in order to conserve health.

It is true that Health Departments are doing some health education; public health nurses, doctors and technically trained persons carry on their daily work and yet there are vast areas in Canada where the importance of preventive measures is unknown because there just is not the machinery to disseminate information universally. The Health League of Canada co-operates with doctors, health officers and dentists, and with other voluntary health associations. All media of communicaton are being used in this attempt to get some information into the minds of Canadians everywhere, even into the consciousness of those who live in the most distant villages and hamlets.

You who are reading this announcement may belong to a church, a service club or some other organization, which has invited a speaker for this occasion. You may be able in some way to use this information, which is broadcast in order to inform yourself or acquaint your neighbor about how to keep healthy.

Health is not only the business of the doctor and the Health Department — it is surely everybody's business.

Red Cross spans the world

IT HAS BEEN SAID that there is a natural progression in social advancement, from the individual spirit to the family, to the community, to the nation and to the world at large.

We are fortunate in having a vehicle for the expression of this philosophy in the Canadian Red Cross. No other organization provides the means for action at each stage of this progression. From the individual's realization of that inherent desire to do good, to the physical manifestation of this desire, the Red Cross is there to provide the guidance and the humanitarian means.

It is true that there are many other organizations providing similar means to express the same desire, but the Red Cross is the one voluntary organization that spans the world and can, therefore, bring to fruition the complete progression.

Through the Red Cross, the individual in the smallest community is joined with the 170 million Red Cross members around the world who think and feel the same as he does. The desire to help others can be expressed actively without the petty hindrances of race, nationality, creed or political opinion.

March is Red Cross Month in Canada. We think that the Red Cross deserves the wholehearted support of everyone, because it provides the link between our community and thousands of other communities the world over who believe as we do.

It provides a common basis for universal understanding and, as such, provides means for positive action toward world peace through humanitarian deeds. — Support your Canadian Red Cross.

The matter of "answerability"

IN ITS ANNUAL report "Le Conseil d'orientation Economique" has suggested that it should be completely independent of the provincial administration and that it should have to answer to the premier only.

This is a suggestion which needs to be examined with some care.

In the first place, if the Council is to be made to answer to the premier, how then is it supposed to be "completely" independent of the provincial administration? The premier, be it remembered, heads the administration, which in the final analysis is answerable to him. Moreover, if the Council, in point of fact, is to be freed from government influence and control, to whom is it to be made answerable? This is a very important question, since the Council is not an elected body and since the plans that it draws up might have to be imposed forcibly on those to whom they are meant to apply.

These considerations all suggest that the provincial government would be well advised to proceed with great caution in its current excursion into the field of planning.

How to lose friends and influence people

THE FOLLOWING editorial in one of our Ontario contemporaries shows clearly what is happening in that province — a change of attitude which is nothing more than Quebec's extreme nationalists may expect. They have asked for it, and in terms of diminishing tourist popularity, they will undoubtedly get it. We quote from the Midland (Ont.) County Herald (January 17, 1964):

"Hospitality Spoken Here". — This slogan is one that is used quite frequently in tourist promotional literature issued by the Quebec government.

It has a warm friendly ring to it. It implies that whatever differences may exist between those who make La Belle Province their home and those who live outside its boundaries, not one — language, race, color or creed — presents an obstacle to the development of a lasting friendship. It seems to say that here hospitality is the unifying factor which destroys barriers and overcomes separatism.

Two years ago we visited in Quebec and, like a goodly number of Canadians we found this slogan was not an idle boast. Our hosts made us feel most welcome. On the streets and in the countryside we found a marked friendliness among the people. In spite of language difficulties, at no time was any hostility displayed toward us or our party.

When we returned to Ontario, we vowed we would go back as soon as possible to learn more about our neighboring province and its gracious people. It had been a pleasant visit.

But the passing of the years seems to have made a difference. In the last year and a half a succession of militant speeches by leaders of various factions in Quebec, the violence and disorderly demonstrations, and the hate-filled actions of subversive groups in the province have caused us and other Canadians to have serious second thoughts about making a return trip. Although we are essentially the same folk, fanatical elements in Quebec now are picturing us as ogres bent on thwarting the efforts of French-speaking Canadians who are trying to achieve their true destiny. The gospel of separatism is building up an invisible wall that tends to discourage any mingling.

Nor were these misgivings alleviated one bit recently by the ultimatum issued by Quebec's Natural Resources Minister René Levèsque. He made it quite clear that separatism and not unity with the rest of Canada is the objective of those in authority.

Suddenly, those of us who live beyond the borders of Quebec have been and are being painted as a sinister force to be hated and shunned like the plague. We are 'the enemy'.

Quite frankly we are at a bit of a loss to know why we have become suspects with questionable motives. The majority of English-speaking Canadians want to see Quebec develop equally with the other nine provinces, and to do so within, not outside, the framework of Confederation. And let us make no mistake about it, Quebec needs the rest of Canada if she is to "achieve her true destiny", just as much as the rest of the country needs her. It's a point that needs to be emphasized and re-emphasized.

Small wonder, then, if we foreign folk ask, "Is hospitality still spoken in Quebec?" In all likelihood it is among the common folk. But we can perhaps be forgiven if we have doubts, and especially so in the light of recent statements by one of the province's leading politicians.

Our Centennial Crisis

By RAY ARGYLE

Three years remain before Canada will mark its centennial of Confederation. Assuming that this nation is able to hold together that long, little has been accomplished to date to fittingly mark our 100th year.

Ray Argyle

Despite formation of the Canadian Centennial Commission under the able administration of John Fisher, and the birth of a host of lesser committees, neither Ottawa nor the provinces have yet drawn up any concrete plans for the 1967 celebrations.

The most publicized project thus far is the World's Fair to be held in Montreal. The Fair is designed as the glittering crown jewel to a galaxy of Canadian baubles which would glisten around the world. But the Fair's planners are already counting on running at least $50 million in the hole.

One of the reasons that our Centennial plans are so slow in getting off the ground is that the general commissioner, Mr Fisher is laboring in the unenviable position of being a Conservative appointee now answerable to a Liberal Government. While Mr. Fisher —universally admired and respected as "Mr. Canada" for his earnest life-long promotion of a Canadian consciousness—is a natural choice for the job, the hard realities of political life have not made his task any easier.

What can the average Canadian community do to make a lasting and meaningful contribution to Centennial '67?

Every Canadian city and town should now launch a two-pronged drive aimed at climaxing this country's century of Confederation.

One aspect of the drive would be to plan, finance and erect permanent structures of community value, such as new town halls incorporating libraries and auditoriums, new parks, or new recreational centres.

The other aspect of this great national crusade should be to remake the face of every community through general civic improvement and beautification campaigns. Such campaigns would require both municipal and private participation, by as many householders and businessmen as possible in each community.

A variety of plans should be considered. One of the most appealing of civic redevelopment plans — and most economical — would involve closing several blocks of a main business street to motor traffic and turning it into a pedestrian shopping mall, with provision for ample off-street parking nearby.

A practical and low-cost plan for general beautification of the business community is the "Norwich Plan," so named after the city in England which first developed it. The Norwich Plan is being promoted in this country by the Community Planning Association of Canada and has already been put into effect in Oakville, Ont., and other centres.

This plan provides for a co-ordinated face-lifting of downtown business premises, with the average cost per merchant usually not running over a few hundred dollars. It's time now to put pressure on local council to see that at least one major building project, plus a general civic improvement plan, is undertaken immediately for Centennial '67.

Let Late Sleepers Lie

By BILL SMILEY

There are some people in life whom I just naturally admire. Among these are generous, beautiful women who are modest, old men who don't give a dang, and little kids who are shy.

Bill Smiley

Another species I always felt I should admire was the Early Riser. "Surely," I thought, "there is something clean and fine and wholesome in a man who gets up early, winter or summer, and faces life with a decent taste in his mouth, and a good appetite."

For years, accustomed to waking with sheer horror, shrinking from the moment of truth, and finally swinging my bad leg to the floor with both hands, groaning as I lurched to the bathroom, I felt inferior in the presence of the Early Riser.

Now, when it's too late to do much about it, except publicly admit that I have always secretly hated the Early Riser, I learn that he's a big phony, that it's all a matter of metabolism, that my own species, the Late Starter, is just as normal, wholesome and decent. If not more so, bless us.

Some people, they tell me, are at their lowest ebb in the morning. They can scarcely climb out of the sack, and don't get warmed up until noon. By midnight, there's no holding them, and at 3 a.m. they are just getting into their stride. These are the Late Starters. Us.

In the opposite metabolic mess are those who can't sleep in the a.m.

They bustle about, gargling, rattling pots, and generally being sickening. They've done a full day's work by noon. By 6 p.m. they're getting a bit gray around the gills. After dinner, they drowse over the paper, yawn until the tears spurt from their eyes in rivulets, and totter off to bed at 10, full of hot milk and virtue.

No marriage is quite as grotesque as one between an Early Riser and a Late Starter. Sad part of it is that it doesn't show up until it's too late, because when people are courting, they're keen.

Thus, before the ceremony, the Early Riser, desperate to win his girl, will fight off sleep until well past midnight, even though his eyes get starry, his grin a bit fixed. And his girl, who normally shuns the sun until it is over the yardarm, drags herself out of the pad, with a supreme effort, to meet E.R. for lunch.

But when they've had a couple of years of that holy old wedlock, it's a horse of a different hue.

He wouldn't trade the arms of Morpheus for those of Elizabeth Taylor. She snarls that he's getting old, wails, "You don't love me any more!", when he starts to face right after the dishes are done.

It's just as bad when the roles are reversed. After using everything but dynamite to get him out of the pit and off to work, she resorts to, "Come on, Prince Charming. Let's see a little of that gay vivacity we saw at 2 a.m., when you were dancing with all the women at the party. Let's hear a little of that brilliant conversation you were promoting at three, when everybody with any manners had gone home, so our hosts could go to bed."

So he gaily and vivaciously feels his way to the bathroom, and when he finds it, converses brilliantly with the Thing which faces him in the mirror. Thus: "Ugggghh!"

It's not metabolic. It's diabolic.

Don't worry if he sucks his thumb!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"He sucks his thumb!" many a mother says in a despairing tone about her older baby or little child. Many doctors and specialists in this field are not so alarmed as parents about this habit, indeed Dr. Bert Levin, an orthodontist, not long ago declared at a Dental Association Convention:

"Pre-school children should be allowed to suck their thumbs. Most cases grow out of it of their own accord and little damage is done to secondary teeth if the child stops before the age of six."

Approximately one child out of every three or four sucks his thumb to some extent after babyhood is left behind. Only when this habit is long-continued with the hand pressing on the roof of the mouth or the lower jaw is the shape of the mouth and the formation of teeth harmed. Cases of very sore thumbs and mouth damage are comparatively rare.

The parents who go to the Child Specialist to discuss an undesirable habit (thumb sucking is just one of several) which is persisting into the school age, will discover that the doctor tries to look beneath the surface and find the cause.

The doctor, as a rule, does not prescribe an artificial way to force the child to stop. But rather he attempts to find the conditions under which the child resorts to thumb sucking. When the parents can remove the cause, the thumb-sucking will gradually disappear.

Mothers usually observe that a child sucks his thumb when he is tired or hungry or not feeling well, or is shy or emotionally upset. Many children go through the day without thumb-sucking until bed time.

Changing the child's routine — with more rest or earlier hours for meals and bed, may help. A doctor, after a routine physical examination, may prescribe a tonic, or make a suggestion which will improve the child's general condition. Frequently his thumb-sucking will be replaced by more active, satisfying play.

Occasionally a child who is in excellent physical condition sucks his thumb because he is bored. He needs interesting play material to keep him busy. If he is three or more he is beginning to long for companionship of other children his own age. Mother would do well to provide him with chums rather than buy mechanical restraints for thumb sucking.

Babies have a need to suck and during the first year of a child's life, sucking during the feeding time is one of the main sources of pleasure. This instinct is strongest in his first six months, and then gradually lessens and is replaced.

In primitive tribes and in homes where a baby is fed, not by clock, but "on demand," when he cries for his meal, thumb sucking is uncommon.

A baby should never be hurried away from the breast or the bottle. He should have time to enjoy his food while his mother holds him in her arms. The mother who forces her child to drink from a cup at a very early age, and makes him forego the pleasure of sucking his milk, may find that the baby substitutes his thumb for a nipple.

It is the rare infant who does not suck him thumb once in a while! A habit is easier to prevent than to break once it is firmly established. Giving a baby a sterilized rubber ring to bite or suck, or handing the older baby a clean toy to hold, will often redirect the youngster's attention away from his thumb.

Not long ago, a doctor pointed out what countless parents know is true, "Nagging by parents to check thumb sucking makes many a child suck harder and the habit may be maintained. Children often find something else to suck, like a sweater, or hair in the case of a girl."

In old McGill

Reminiscing in his Outremont home after being presented with the McGill official graduates' tie, George M. Edwards, 95, who graduated from McGill University 75 years ago, had this to say:

"We had little time for fooling around in those days. It was mostly hard work. At that time there were only 13 in the graduating class."

Mr. Edwards, who studied Science, said it was hardly a popular subject then. "Almost all of the students were taking an Arts course of some kind, and they thought us Science students a very odd lot."

Mr. Edwards graduated with first-class honors in Applied Science and he received the Governor-General's Medal for his efforts.

"Tuition was only $45 a year for the science course when I was there. Almost all students worked for their fees in the summer, including myself. Often we would walk to school on snow shoes — after shovelling off the sidewalk, that is."

PEANUT HONEY BUNS

Time factor in home baking

Time needn't be a major factor, as many mistakenly believe, in baking at home with yeast. Many yeast recipes consume less than half an hour in physical work such as mixing, kneading and shaping. The rest of the time, as you go about your normal routine, the dough itself, and the oven, are doing the work for you.

Peanut Honey Buns are a case in point. The sweet, very light dough can be mixed and kneaded in about 20 minutes. After the dough has risen, it will take you about 10 more minutes to roll it out, apply the nutted sugar filling, roll it, cut it and place it in muffin pans. Then your work is all but finished. Later, just slip the risen buns into the oven and, then, after baking, turn them out to cool.

These are rich, soft buns, with a syrupy, glazed coating and crunchy peanut topping. Peanut Honey Buns are specially welcome at brunch and coffee time; they also team well with fresh or canned fruit desserts.

Peanut Honey Buns

(Yield) 2 dozen

½ Cup milk, ¼ cup margarine or butter, ¼ cup granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry-yeast, 1 egg (well-beaten), 3 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, melted margarine or butter, ½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar (golden or dark brown), ¼ cup liquid honey, 3 tablespoons melted margarine or butter, 1 cup chopped cocktail peanuts, ½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar (golden or dark brown).

Scald milk. Stir in the ¼ cup margarine or butter, ¼ cup granulated sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large mixing bowl; stir in the 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes; then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture and egg. Add 1½ cups of the flour; beat until smooth. Work in sufficient additional flour to make a very soft dough, about 1½ cups more.

Turn out on lightly floured board or canvas; knead until smooth and elastic. Place in lightly greased bowl. Brush top with melted margarine or butter. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Meantime, blend together the ½ cup brown sugar, honey and 3 tablespoons melted margarine or butter. Stir in half a cup of the peanuts. Divide mixture evenly among 24 greased muffin cups, approximately 2¾ inches in diameter by 1½ inches deep.

Combine remaining half cup of peanuts with the ½ cup brown sugar. Set aside.

Punch down risen dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board or canvas; cut dough in half. Roll out one half into a 9 x 12-inch rectangle. Brush lightly with melted margarine or butter. Sprinkle with half of reserved peanut-brown sugar mixture. Roll up tightly from long side like jelly roll; firmly seal long edge. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Place, cut side up, in 12 of the prepared muffin cups.

Repeat with second half of dough and rest of peanut-brown sugar mixture. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated moderately hot oven, 375 deg. F., about 15 to 18 minutes or until done. Turn out of pans onto cooling racks immediately.

Red Cross behind the disaster scene

Whenever a major disaster strikes in any part of the world, the Red Cross answers the call for help with relief supplies for the victims. However, there's another very important task that goes on behind the scenes during such an emergency. The Red Cross Enquiry Bureau searches and makes enquiries as to the whereabouts and safety of persons in the disaster area.

Relatives of the victims in many parts of the world turn to the Red Cross for information about their loved ones. Are they alive? Have they been hurt? What help do they need?

Questions such as these are processed by the Enquiry Bureau of the Red Cross. No other organization in the world offers such a reliable, free service. No other organization has the world-wide affiliations to handle such an operation. Such action is supported by 120 national Red Cross, Red Crescent and Red Lion and Sun Societies.

Enquiries are not only associated with major disaster. Relatives in many countries seek help daily through national organizations and through the League of Red Cross Societies in Geneva, to find members of their families who became separated by war, civil disturbances and other causes.

Welfare reports are frequently requested by close relatives in Canada and other countries concerning members of their families who are ill or who have met with an accident. The Canadian Red Cross Enquiry Bureau also handles these requests.

Requests for meeting service for invalids, aged persons and unaccompanied children at transportation terminals, are also processed through the bureau.

Many other kinds of requests are received by the Red Cross Enquiry Bureau and, where possible, these requests are complied with or referred to the organization best equipped to deal with them. The Bureau is a vital "behind the scenes" operation. It is an unheralded Red Cross service which helps to dispel the worries and anxieties of thousands of persons the world over.

You can share in this work by giving your financial support to the Red Cross. When the volunteer canvasser calls, be generous.

Too fat? Eat fish

The fish industry could get a shot in the arm from studies of a fish diet and blood cholesterol levels. According to The Financial Post's "World of Health", Dr. C. M. Harlaw, laboratory director at Camp Hill Veterans' Hospital, Halifax, is conducting an extensive test on the effect of a diet in which fish replaces meat on the cholesterol levels in the blood of 41 volunteers. "Early results are encouraging," Dr. Harlaw says. "The majority of tests show a reduction in blood cholesterol levels and in body weight." The tests are in their eighth week. It hasn't been proved that there is a relationship between cholesterol levels and coronary heart disease, but studies show countries such as Japan, where there is a high average consumption of fish, have a lower rate of heart disease.

Teatime Topics

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

As towns and cities grow, not only is much of the countryside flattened under the bulldozer, so are many of the country's old homes.

If not destroyed, they stand in disuse or disrepair as families move into newer houses. In town or country, many end their time sadly as offices, rooming houses, stores.

Some of them could repay patient, planned rehabilitation with a glow of comfortable, mellowed beauty.

A showcase in point is a rooming house in Toronto's Rosedale which has been renovated by designer Maria de Nagey and turned back into a family house.

"It's a nice experience to give a good old house a new lease on life," she says. "I'd no more tear down a well-built old Canadian house than I'd deliberately destroy a fine old piece of furniture. Things that were built to last should be helped to last."

Spread Cost

All of the materials used in her restoration were Canadian-made. The cost of a similar job would vary from area to area, but Miss de Nagey and the people who worked with her say it need not be excessive. Once the basic work is done, the rest can be spread over months or years.

They warn that in initial stages, restoration should be done with professional help. The soundness of the house will need to be determined. If rooms are to be changed, an expert should decide whether a wall can be taken out or a hole cut through it safely. Old plaster may need to be stripped off and replaced. Out-of-date wiring and plumbing should be checked.

Preserve Charm

The best renovating makes use of charms a house already has. It does not dress an old lady in girls' clothes. The woodwork in banisters, elaborate door frames and plate rails may show time-softened grain when it is cleaned and refinished. If not, paint will make wood trim stand out in effective relief. A scarred door can be veneered or replaced by a slab door to set off a carved frame.

High ceilings give draperies and wallpapers a chance to be dramatic. Parchments, stripes, murals and period patterns suit an old house.

The right choice of tiles, veneers and laminates puts a modern bath or kitchen in harmony. They will also smooth worn flooring.

Light walls brighten a dark passageway, complement a window seat nook, show off a venerable leaded or stained glass window.

Having more than one fireplace is part of the fun of an old house. Decorative woodwork or tile can be cleaned and refinished. Worn brick can be painted or re-faced.

If the outside is in good repair, painting it all one color, perhaps a pearl grey or an ochre shade, will minimize wooden gingerbread, give a new look to weathered brick or stucco. Contrasting solid-color shutters and doors break the monotone and give it life.

Of Many Things

KINDNESS

I've a friend who works in a large plant. The other day, the young lad in the shipping department ran his jallopy into the ditch and injured himself badly. He was a likeable, happy-go-lucky lad and his kind friends in the shipping department decided to levy a charge against each employee of the plant to give the boy a "purse" that would compensate him to some extent for the suffering he was to face.

My friend paid the levy, but the kind chaps in the shipping department do not know that he needs the money far more than the young lad who ditched his hot-rod in a reckless moment. My friend has a son at university, a father who is in constant trouble, and a series of difficult problems that keep his heart aching and his purse empty. He is therefore a little bitter about the so-called kindness of the shipping department. He felt they plundered him and others like him, whom they do not know, in favor of the lad with whom they had rubbed shoulders every day. He thought they were kind-hearted but short-sighted.

I suppose he is right. There are many do-gooders who take from those they do not know to give to those they do know — people in their own group. They do this with the best of goodwill, but often with serious consequences.

I asked my friend what could be done. How are you going to stop kind people from their wrong practices?

His answer, I thought, was a good one. "Kindness should be a personal matter. One man should not organize another's kindness — he should do his own good works and leave others to do theirs. He shouldn't rob Peter to pay Paul."

"You could have refused," I said. "The levy wasn't compulsory."

He shook his head. "It was compulsory . . . unless you wanted to be ostracized. There is nothing kind about the way those guys talk if you try to escape one of their collections!"

The moral could be that one should not have secret problems — a father who drinks, a son who costs a lot to raise, and so forth. Go out and break a leg or get some dramatic ailment. Then your kind friends will take up a collection for you!

College Royal has come and gone. Thousands of hours preparation by students and staff; then in one short day it is over.

Since it was my first time through, I was determined to have at least a quick look at everything. But I never did get all the way around; there was just too much to see.

The option exhibits were all well done. Then General Biology students won first place with a demonstration of "Friendly Radiation". At the moment when radiation is a nasty word, theirs was a timely theme. We have come to associate that word with deformed offspring, with deadly food and with contaminated plants.

But radiation isn't all bad. In fact, some forms, when harnessed, are extremely useful. The students showed this in three good examples.

In the first, two rye plants were shown side by side. No difference, except one had two stems while the other had several tillers. Each plant had been grown from a single seed, but the second seed had been exposed to radiation. Succeeding generations will also carry the same tillering characteristic. This particular change (or mutation) may or may not prove to be beneficial. But it does point to the new doors open for plant breeders.

In the second example, the students showed the possibilities of radiation in food preservation. It destroys molds and bacteria; it stops potatoes sprouting in storage. And the food is completely safe to eat.

The third part of their exhibit showed the use of radiation in agricultural research. For example, to find out how a plant uses phosphorous fertilizer, radioactive tracers are added. It is something like putting bells on the cows — you can find them in the dark. Only, in this case, the tracers expose themselves on photographic plates to give away the location of the phosphorous particles in the plant.

We are hoping to borrow this "Friendly Radiation" exhibit to take to Ottawa, on March 18, 19, 20. This year, the Ottawa Valley Seed Growers are expanding their fair to a full-grown Farm Show. It should be interesting.

If you are there, we hope you will look us up.

Syrup season is close now, but I haven't heard of anyone tapping yet. We can only wait to see what effect the mild weather of the past few weeks will have to yield.

In the last year or two, there has been an interest in the use of formaldehyde pellets. These aspirin-like tablets are inserted in the fresh taphole behind the spout. The purpose is to prevent the fungus growth which heals over the wood and slows sap flow.

I asked Professor A. R. C. Jones whether this treatment has any real value. He is doubtful.

They have tried it in the College sugar bush and the increase in sap flow was not significant. However, it did improve the keeping quality of the sap.

Legally, the use of these pellets is permitted provided that no more than 2 parts formaldehyde per million appears in the finished syrup. I understand that no manufacturer has yet registered them for sale in Canada, but that they are available in the States.

Personally, I hope the use of these pellets behind the spouts will not become a practice even though I know formaldehyde occurs naturally in some foods. I like to think of maple syrup as one of Nature's purest products.

Prof. Jones does recommend, though, rinsing all the spouts, pails and equipment in a solution of "Javex" or some other chlorine product at the start of the season. He says this practice will do much toward keeping down the bacteria which spoil sap.

Now it is covers for the evaporator. Jones is enthusiastic over this idea. He has tried it, and finds that he saves a third of the fuel. In addition, there is less steam in the sugar house, the sap does not boil over, there is no skimming to do, and the syrup is better quality.

I haven't seen these covers, but understand they can be made of aluminum or heat-resistant plastic. Not sheet-iron; it rusts. Apparently the stacks which take the steam outside create a partial vacuum over the pan, speeding up the evaporation.

The materials to build them yourself might cost $50 or $75. Plans are available without charge from the Department of Woodlot Management at Macdonald College.

"What happened to Brome County?" This is the subject of the TV program from the College this week. The guests, Bill Pearkes, Rev. John Peacock, Cowansville; Lloyd McKeen, Albert Smith, Rudi Dallenbach, Knowlton; and Ernest Bradley, Mansonville, will look at the rural development to date in Brome County. The time is as usual: 12.00 noon, Friday, March 13, over Channel 6.

Why a St. Patrick's Day parade?

Any parade is designed to give public recognition to some person or historical event — normally a united festive activity by people of goodwill, of all races, nationalities and religious denominations. Historically, and possibly the most significant of all demonstrations, was Christ's triumphant entry to Jerusalem on Palm Sunday. After the death of Christ early church members publicly recognized Christ as spiritual leader of the Christian Church, by means of parades or processions. As Saints were recognized, they were honored, asked for intercession, and thanked in this manner.

Each country adopting a particular Saint to honor, does so because of that Saint's special interest in that country, e.g., St. George in England, St. Andrew in Scotland, St. David in Wales, St. John Baptist in France, and St. Patrick in Ireland, etc.

In Canada and the U.S.A. no national Saint has been adopted — each nationality or ethnic group, depending on ancestral origin, honors the Saint recognized by his particular ancestry.

Since it appears to be a natural attribute of Christians to recognize events of Christian and moral values, whatever form they may take, it is not surprising that many citizens participate in the St. Patrick's Day parade in Lachute, as opposed to the few Irish families of this community. All nationalities of different Christian denominations participate. They do so (or should) to honor the feast day of St. Patrick, who brought Christianity to Ireland and subsequently, through Irish monks, to the Germanic nations, and Irish people brought this same faith to America.

We of all nationalities — in Lachute, New York, or Ireland or anywhere — wish to publicly acclaim the name of St. Patrick to make known that we publicly recognize his works on earth of bringing the message of love to man. That we know and recognize that he still intercedes for us. To remind ourselves and others that man's very survival may very well depend on this type of co-operation.

Man's aim on earth is ultimate happiness with God. In this life of happiness which St. Patrick now enjoys, there is no such thing as different nationalities or Christian denominations. In the next life all is one. So it is fitting on such occasions as St. Andrew's Day, St. Patrick's Day, or St. John Baptist's Day, that all should join as one in honoring these great Saints. In doing so there will be greater reverence to the Saint or the event being celebrated, and also greater peace and and harmony fostered among men.

Surplus on 1963 civic operations

Sales tax and business tax exceeded estimated revenue

According to the 1963 financial statement prepared by the auditors, Lachute Town Corporation ended the year with a $43,135.26 surplus.

Starting the year 1963 with a $3,811.75 surplus from 1962, the budget estimates were well balanced; but revenues from sales tax and business tax were the big factor in accruing the surplus over expenditures.

The sales tax produced $111,748.92 — which was $23,748.92 over the estimated $88,000. The business tax produced $39,886.05 — $14,886.05 above the estimate of $25,000.

These two items account for $38,634.95 of the $43,135 overall surplus. . . Total revenues for the year were $468,368.32 and total expenditures $425,233.06.

There is a considerable sum represented in arrears of taxes — business tax $6,653.50; municipal and water tax, $34,891.87 — a total of $41,545.37.

Biggest item of expense for the year was debt servicing, $83,045.25. Next in order were — administration, $58,886.28; public works, $46,566.97; police, including vehicles, traffic signs, radar, radio, etc., $46,087.83; waterworks, $42,609.28; machinery and equipment, $25,446.05; fire department, $18,075.99; buildings and property, $15,605.90; garbage disposal, $15,538.99; roads, $12,908.83; welfare, $8,347.78.

There is a deficit on the estimates in only two of these departments of operation, fire service and buildings. In all other cases there was a surplus.

The report shows $9,375.38 received from Ayersville for water supply in 1963, as compared with $12,475.35 in 1962.

It seems reasonable to expect, as Mayor Campbell forecast last December, that it will be possible to lower the tax rates.

Criminal blame at inquest on Chomedey death

André Cardinal, a 25-year-old resident of Laval West and father of four children, was found criminally responsible for the death of Howard Dixon, a well known resident of these parts, in a collision on Route 8 at Chomedey, Saturday, February 29. Blame was attached to the offending driver in a unanimous verdict of the jurors; the lengthy coroner's inquest was presided over by Mtre Marcel Trahan last Thursday and the charge was laid next day.

Testifying with protection of the court, André Cardinal stated that on the Saturday afternoon he went to the home of a friend in Ville St. Michel. He there consumed two small bottles of beer and a glass of rye. Later, going to the home of his employer where his car was parked, he had a few minutes' sleep. One of the friends accompanying him then advised him not to drive his car home. But he ignored this advice and took the wheel.

Crossing the bridge at Cartierville (he testified) the traffic lights were against him, but he had driven through in the belief that they were about to change to green. Some distance farther along Labelle Blvd., opposite the Vaillancourt Restaurant, he had been involved in a three-car collision. In a state of shock, he said, he had driven on his way and failed to stop.

It is recalled that Cardinal allegedly crashed into the rear of the local car. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dixon, severely injured, were taken to the Sacré Coeur Hospital at Cartierville, where Mr. Dixon died early next day.

Ayersville by-law to impose new $30 water tax

Ayersville Council, with Mayor Gaston Plamondon presiding, passed a by-law last week to impose a water tax on all consumers.

It is recalled that a ruling handed down by the Quebec Public Utilities Commission set a rate of 26 cents per 1,000 gallons supplied by Lachute to Ayersville. This will mean a cost of $18,000 a year to the neighboring village, and the council has to impose a water tax to meet it.

The by-law must, however, be approved by public referendum. If the taxpayers reject it, the municipality will have to pay the bill out of the sewers and waterworks fund in the municipal budget.

The by-law calls for a $30 annual tax on each residence or household; $30 for each family unit in a multi-dwelling property receiving water service; $20 for premises used as a store, office or workshop; $30 for water service laid on to an unbuilt lot. Apart from these levies, any business, trade or industry using water in manufacture or production for profit, will be taxed 30c per 1,000 gallons, plus annual rental of a meter at the rate of 15% of its purchase price.

It is understood that all premises in the last category here mentioned will be metered.

The by-law was passed with one dissenting voter, Coun. Raymond Champagne, who recommended a lower tax rate of $20 a year.

The referendum will be announced at next special Council meeting, on Thursday, March 26.

Servicing of residential areas, other problems in Brownsburg

Brownsburg — As has occurred so often in recent months, the regular monthly meeting of the Brownsburg Council required more than a single sitting to consider all the problems confronting the municipality. With some of the items submitted by visitors at the sessions, Council often finds itself with little of the agenda covered by late evening, and consequently must assemble again to discuss unfinished or thorny problems which were put aside. It is obvious from time to time that the councillors themselves are aware of the fact that they are discussing items of little significance, but seem to be able to do little about it when the subject drags on.

One item which was not discussed at any length concerned the question, "Did the town actually hire a dog catcher when authorization was given?" The answer was in the affirmative; however it was revealed that the career of the applicant was short-lived and we were once again without a dog catcher. At this point Secretary Vincent Charbonneau stated that he had received a visit from a citizen who had voiced some vitriolic comments regarding the number of dogs straying loose in the town. Mr. Charbonneau made it clear that the taxpayer had emphasized that the complaint was directed to the Town Council, not to him. Council members had no particular comments to make, except words to the effect that the problem would be looked at!

Servicing Home Areas

Local contractor Hilaire Binette and an entourage of new or potential home-owners, took Council's attention later on with the problem of water and sewerage on Woodbine Avenue N. With three new houses ready for water, the owners and the contractor were obviously anxious to get the services they had asked for last fall.

Make survey for fire protection

Mayor William Morow of Chatham Township informed The Watchman that former Brownsburg Fire Chief Art Robbins has agreed to conduct a survey and investigation into possibilities of providing more adequate fire protection in the St. Philippe area. Mr. Robbins is to commence his study immediately and report to Council as soon as possible.

In commenting on the recent St. Philippe fire, Mayor Morrow reported he had obtained additional information on the well which had been drilled several years ago. Cost of the well was $800, and it is eight inches in diameter and 100 feet deep, according to the figures supplied. (It was reported in last week's paper that the well had cost in the vicinity of $2,000.) It is expected that Mr. Robbins' report will include some recommendations as to how this well can be put to use.

Camp Malvina residence burned

Fire razed the home of John Yurenos, on the St. Jerome highway, around 9.30 Tuesday morning. The building is better known as the main residence at Camp Malvina, for many years the home of J. E. Bourbonniere; it was constructed approximately 30 years ago.

Mr. Yurenos was working on one of the summer cottages, and his wife was across the highway feeding the chickens, when the fire started. It was discovered by Mrs. Yurenos, who stopped a passing motorist. The first alarm was turned in at the police station at 9.45 by the female motorist, a resident of Terrebonne. She gave only meagre details of the fire, and it was almost 10 minutes later that a call was received giving sufficient information for the fire brigade to leave. When they arrived, the frame building was a raging inferno. A few contents were salvaged by neighbors, and the building was levelled to the ground in less than an hour.

Students and adults enjoy annual oratory highlight

Contest held under sponsorship of Lions Club

Enthusiasm was at a peak when high school students and adult friends gathered Monday evening for the Lions Club annual oratory contest. The Legion Hall was well filled, and the only disappointment (as voiced by Dr. Eric Mongeon, m.c.) was the lesser interest shown by English-speaking participants.

Following the standard procedure of this contest, the young speakers were called to give a 5-7 minute discourse on a subject of their own choice. They were then given 15 minutes for preparation of an impromptu talk, on a subject chosen by them from several listed as suggestions.

Judges, seated independently among the audience, marked the competitors on subject matter, arrangement, delivery and similar factors, also on the time occupied by the speeches, between prescribed limits. On conclusion, the points were tabulated, with resulting prize-winners as follows:

English-speaking boys — 1st, Andrew Butterfield, Gr. XI, L.H.S. (only entrant).

English-speaking girls — 1st, Diane Boa, Gr. XI, L.H.S.; 2nd, Linda Whiteway, Gr. X, L.H.S.

French-speaking girls — 1st, Hélène Desforges, Gr. XI; 2nd, Jacqueline Paquette, Gr. XI (both of the St. Alexandre School).

Two other entrants from the girls' school were Francine Dumais and Lise Masson. All received cash prizes.

The top winners from Lachute will proceed to district semi-finals to be held April 11 at St. Lambert. The winners at this elimination will then compete in the Quebec-Ontario finals early in May.

Judges who selected the winners in this exceedingly close contest were — (English) Dr. G. R. Rigby, Mr. A. S. Cockhill and Mr. Wes Younkie; (French) Lt.-Col Gilles Gamache and Mr. Alban Coutu, both of Montreal.

President Keith Clarke addressed a word of welcome to the audience, and of thanks to those who had taken part or assisted in encouraging this venture. Members of the Lions Club had heard finalists of these contests speak at the club's district conventions, and it was now gratifying (he said) to notice sons and daughters of local Lions among the speakers on this occasion.

Sister Damien Bernard, superior of the St. Alexandre School, took occasion to thank the Lions Club and to commend the teachers who had coached the young orators.

Committeemen responsible for the complex planning of this event were Lions Paul Deslauriers and Donald M. Hay.

The performance of the young orators revealed surprising ease and confidence; insight and ideas which might contribute notably to better citizenship; poise, humor and originality to provide a keen delight. Space does not permit further elaboration on the topics and arguments, but throughout the speeches these held the interest of an attentive audience.

Library Week observance here

Canadian Library Week is April 4-11. Most libraries will arrange special programs, speakers and displays during this period to focus public attention on their services and on their plans and hopes for future development. Needless to say, books are the central stock-in-trade of libraries, and there will be a close tie-in with books and authors in the programs of various libraries. Plans for future development in many cases include new buildings under construction, or in the stage of advanced planning.

In Lachute the "Carrefour du Livre" will feature a three-day display of literature and library services in the civic auditorium, April 2-3-4, in observance of Canadian Library Week.

Water supply waste, improvement noted

An eagle eye on major outlets and plant economies

The town of Hawkesbury is having troubles with its unusually high water consumption, according to the chemical engineer in charge. Reporting to the town council, Yvan Seguin stated the population was using an average of 2 million gallons a day, or per capita consumption of 200 gallons. The normal rate should be around 125 gallons, he stated.

In Hawkesbury the engineer attributes part of this high consumption latterly to people leaving their taps running to avoid freezing of pipes; also to leaks in the system — one had been discovered wasting 500 gallons a day.

Situation in Lachute

This situation prompted enquiries by The Watchman on the rate of consumption in Lachute, which last fall was at an alarming peak. Our enquiry has revealed a very marked improvement.

In June-July of last year (which may be termed the "sprinkler season") Lachute population was using the same per capita volume as Hawkesbury, 200 gallons a day. Town engineers went on the warpath for leaks and wastage, especially in industrial establishments. Today, Alderman Dr. Lyall A. Middleton, chairman of the waterworks committee, reports the consumption has been brought down to a (winter) reading between 800,000 and 1 million gallons, or in round figures, 80 to 100 gallons daily per capita. This improvement is attributable in part, of course, to the lower seasonal demand, but also to economies effected in two or three industrial plants and in a number of co-operating households.

Metering of major consumers is expected to effect still further savings, in volume of consumption and in costs of chemical treatment, which give promise of a better outlook for the tax rate.

As regards sanitary analysis, Dr. Middleton reports the town water is consistently excellent, and behind the scenes at the chlorination plant there is continual research and experimentation to maintain high standards of treatment, while effecting such measures as will make the operation still more economical.

St. Patrick's — wearin' of the green

Characteristically Irish displays brightened the St. Patrick's parade here Saturday afternoon, with bands, troupes, horse riders and a generally enthusiastic turnout. The organizers, the St. Patrick's Society of Lachute, may be commended on the success of this event, which entailed considerable planning and enlisted the co-operation of many citizens and business firms.

The route of the parade — extending from east ward down Main Street to Bedard Blvd. then returning east along that thoroughfare — was well lined with spectators, especially in the shopping section. The Molson loudspeaker system broadcast Irish music during the day.

Notably Irish features were the Queen of the Parade and her dancing folk, on one of Boyd's Express platform trailers; Mrs. O'Leary and her cow (sponsor, Ken Riley); Danny Boy and his Irish harp (J. P. MacKimmie & Sons); an Irish shrine in replica from St. Malachy's Church; and girls on horseback in green riding jackets, from Wal-Ken Stables.

(The shrine was a miniature of "Our Lady of Knock" located in the village of Knock, County Mayo, Ireland.)

Prominent in the parade were four bands and other attractions. Besides the features mentioned above, the Highland Cadet unit and their band; the Two Mountains Commandos flag party and drum and bugle band; the Ayersville Air Cadets; the Artillery Reserve and field gun unit; and a boys' and girls' drum and bugle band from Vankleek Hill High School, added the martial touch. Colorful also were the junior hockey teams in full regalia.

Commercial additions included boats from Deacon Motor Sales showrooms, and the fibreglass boat and outboard which is the prize in this year's Legion 70 drawing; also a line-up of new

Western beef comes by carload — on the hoof

A carload of western beef was received here last week. The point of interest, however, is that these animals arrived "on the hoof", consigned to the Younkie Farm, Upper Lachute, which is going into the business of feeding cattle for the packing-house market.

The 34 head of steers came from the cold outdoors of St. Boniface, Manitoba, shipped here by CPR cattle car. They were unloaded and taken by truck to the farm, where they are now at home in an open barn and corral. The zero feeding plan (no grazing) will be used.

This is the first consignment of a herd which will number over 200 steers within two or three years, if plans develop. Arrangements are being made by Mr. Younkie and his manager, Felix Desfosses, eventually to accommodate and feed that number. The 34 which were received last Saturday are 1½ to 2-year-olds, averaging 850 lbs. weight; they are of various breeds, Hereford, Aberdeen Angus, Shorthorn and Durham. Another such shipment will shortly be on its way.

Mr. Wes Younkie is benefitting by the assistance of Louis Ph. Thibodeau, B.S.A. (federal agronome) as farm management officer, in planning land use and crop production for a feeder-beef program of this size.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

Early births in various species of animals have been notable this year. Deer, or rather, young fawns, have been spotted in a number of places; in one case two fawns were seen with the mother right near a road. The parties telling me of this had the opportunity of watching them for a few minutes, but just as soon as they stepped from their car, they took off. In this particular spot they have been yarding, from the numbers of tracks around; however, this is no true indication. But since it is on private property, the animals would not be disturbed by humans — certainly no "snow cats". I also was told of four lynx kits being seen; the mother was moving them from the old den to another not too far away, so the observer had a good view. I was pleased to be told that these animals went unharmed, nor was any attempt made to discover their new abode.

I heard of geese being seen around St. Eustache lately. This is unusually early, but they may have been thrown by the good weather too. One flock was supposed to number about 100 birds. There have also been reports of geese being seen all along the St. Lawrence. The first group was in the LaSalle area, right near the bridge; they stayed around this part for a couple of days then took off for parts unknown. I guess the birds have "got that feeling" we too have been experiencing. Really, I think one of the most welcome sounds I've heard for some time was a large flock of crows heading a little farther north. Their noisy cawing made a pretty sound — but this won't last too long, we'll soon be out after them. . . Incidentally, from the number of people asking how to make a crow call, I gather there are a lot of them going to try some varmint shooting.

Another report on fishing in the West Lake area, tells of a foursome who have been fishing this water for three successive week-ends; they do not appear to be locals, from information I can gather, so I guess they came up from Montreal for a feed of trout. No large-scale poaching seems to have been carried on in this County this past winter; this should make us happy.. Now all we want is the deer season closed for a short time; with other restrictions this should do the trick. Doing this, we could at least enjoy our wildlife alive instead of dead. I think a great many people are starting to think this way too.

Rambling around on Sunday, I don't think I have ever seen as many partridge before — there were literally dozens to be seen. One covey I scared up had at least 12 birds, others were twos and fours, and I think I scared up at least 20 singles. Our turkeys were spotted again around the Louisa district this past week; every once in a while they show themselves, and this is encouraging. With a good spring, not too much rain, etc., maybe some hatchings would manage to survive. This also applies to the pheasants seen on different occasions. If we could only hold them in the district, they would multiply and add to our attractions.

There are signs of action around some of the more accessible lakes, with boats being scraped and repaired. This is rushing things, of course, but people just can't be blamed. As regards the boats, they should be washed all over, any loose paint should be scraped off, or better still, scrape the whole thing if there are any flakes of paint to be seen. Wipe it dry after you have poured clear water over it to remove the soap film; then cover it, being sure the cover is raised off the boat. Leave it this way, until the boat is thoroughly dry from the winter snows, etc. Before you try painting be sure and test it for dryness; this is important, otherwise the paint will lift the first time you use the boat. Of course, your repairs will have to be dry also; naturally this will be done before any painting is attempted, however, the washing beforehand will not hurt it. Any rotten wood must be taken out and replaced. This applies to a fibreglass boat too, that is, with the glass itself. You won't be able to repair the glass just now, with the low temperature outdoors, unless you have the boat inside and can heat it up. I think this is the only drawback to a fibre boat, great care must be taken when repairing them. If it is too cold, the repairs will drop right out. I found this out the hard way, in Labrador!

More restrictions are being placed on the use of detergents in the U.S. This is very good; maybe if they are severe enough the manufacturers will put out a non-toxic product one of these days. As usual we in Canada are lagging behind, either through lack of knowledge of what is happening, or through lack of desire to have anything done. I'm not talking of the provinces only, but of the whole dominion. Despite the dozens of briefs presented to the government by groups really interested in the preservation of our resources, nothing is ever done. Supposedly we are a forward-thinking nation, but we sure seem to be looking back just now.

A lady told a story the other day that made me just a little sick. A dog was hit by a car on Bethany Road, and as one might expect, the driver did not stop. The real story, however, is that although a good number of people saw this happen, and heard the dog yelping and trying to get up, none of these spectators bothered to do anything. Finally a gentleman travelling towards Montreal stopped his car, enquired where he could find the nearest vet, then loaded the dog into his car and had it fixed up. Fortunately, a broken leg was all the damage. . . Are people so callous today that animals don't count? Are they scared to get their hands dirty? Or maybe they are afraid of footing the bill from the vet? I sure don't know.

A lot of the creeks are open now, full and running over, with plenty of current. It looks as though we will be fishing the lakes a lot sooner this year, too. Some of the lakes have broken open at the outlets and are showing signs of black water under the snow. Talking to an addict the other night, he was telling about the worms he has saved for the opening day. Boy, this is tricky business; I tried this a couple of times, keeping them all winter, but it usually ended up with a real stink in the basement. Nothing I know of smells as bad as rotten worms, and I hope our friend will be spared this outcome after all the time and trouble of keeping them.

A few of the boys have been out practising with their fly rods. This is smart; getting a little work on the casting arm will do no harm. The more you use the rod the better you will cast, come opening. One thing you should not forget; do not try to heave your line out as far as you did last year — give it time, and your casts will lengthen out by themselves. Being still unaccustomed to the outfit, you could easily damage the rod; even your lines will take a beating, so take it easy. Keep on casting but at short distances, with a target, to keep your mind off those long casts. You'll be surprised at how smoothly it will go after a little practice.

L.H.S. girls win provincial inter-school basketball title

For the second year in succession the Lachute High senior girls' basketball team has won the McLeod Trophy, the highest award in provincial school basketball. The girls defended the championship with a fine display of skill, which at times made them look like professional players from the N.B.A.

In all three games that were played, the Lachute team gave a flawless demonstration of passing and shooting which was precision-timed. The guards, with their patented man-to-man defence, completely baffled the opposing forwards by breaking up plays and controlling the backboards for almost every rebound.

The comment heard from the opposing coaches was to the effect that the L.H.S. girls were able to move the ball so fast and accurately that it was impossible to defend against them. As the Knowlton High coach put it, "You were just too much for us". Their timing was perfect and it was a treat to watch a girls' basketball team play with such speed and skill.

The first game of the tournament was played at Macdonald High School on Friday night, with Lachute meeting Sunnyside. The game started with Sunnyside putting the ball into play but failing to score. Lachute gained possession but did not score until near the two-minute mark, when Mary Beth Painter connected for a field goal, to start Lachute on the road to victory. Nancy Hay then took over the scoring honors and soon had the Sunnyside squad looking on in amazement with her one-hand jump shots and lay-ups. When Hay was stopped in her drives, Painter, Linda McCaskill and Barbara Underhill took over to lead the team to a lopsided victory. The guards had very little trouble in controlling the defensive end as Sheila Owens, Elizabeth Hay and Wendy Graham presented a strong opposition to the Sunnyside forwards.

The final score of the first game was Lachute 49, Sunnyside 23. Top scorers were Nancy Hay, 35 points, Mary Beth Painter and Barbara Underhill each with 7 points.

After a night of sleep and rest (?) the second game was played Saturday morning at Mac High, the opposition this time being the highly-rated Chambly High School. Again, this game started slowly, and the first quarter showed only a 10-7 lead for Lachute. However, in the second quarter the L.H.S. spark grew to a roaring flame, and the girls widened their lead to a comfortable 25-11 score at half time. It was on the strength of the guards, who time and again broke up and intercepted many plays, that Lachute was able to gain victory. With their amazing control of the backboards, the L.H.S. guards were able to retain possession of the ball at will. The most standout guard of the game was Elizabeth Hay, who was left hanging with four fouls. Sheila Owens and Betty Elkington were lost to the team through the foul route. Wendy Graham and Margaret Cox backed up the steady defensive work.

Nancy Hay again led the front court hawks with a fine display of shooting ability. Playing with Mary Beth Painter and Linda McCaskill, Hay was fed the ball most of the game. Excellent teamwork was demonstrated in working the ball into scoring position. Final score of the game was 44-29 in Lachute's favor. Hay led all scorers with 25 points, followed by Painter with 15, Underhill and McCaskill each with 2 points.

The third and championship game was played in the Macdonald College gym, against Knowlton High School. This game was by far the least exciting, as Lachute showed in the first quarter that the game had already been won. Lachute had more ability and power as compared to the less-experienced Knowlton team. Final score was 39-27.

The stars of this final game were guards Sheila Owens, Elizabeth Hay and Wendy Graham. The forwards outmatched the Knowlton guards, as they dominated the whole game from the centre throw-in to the final whistle. The leading scorer was Nancy Hay with 19 points, followed by Barb Underhill with 12 points. Mary Beth Painter and Linda McCaskill each tallied four points.

The senior girls were in excellent condition for the tournament, from weeks of hard practice and a heavy schedule. Mary Beth Painter was the only player with an injury, that being a sore arm hurt in a previous practice.

The Lachute team would like to thank all those who helped to make this year's effort a success. Miss Jean Rogers worked hard at helping the girls, who owe her a great deal. Special thanks are also extended to Miss Jean Darbe, Mr. Bob Bailly, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hay, Mr. and Mrs. McCaskill, Mr. and Mrs. R. Underhill, Mr. and Mrs. Syd Painter, and all those who helped support the girls at the tournament.

Maroons eliminate Ste. Therese, now meet Crabtree in finals

The Lachute-Brownsburg Maroons, playing superb hockey and showing amazing endurance and powerful scoring displays in third periods, have eliminated the Ste. Therese Beavers from the semi-final Series "A", by winning three straight games after losing the first one. They earned a 6-2 victory last Thursday in Brownsburg, and won the right to play Crabtree in the finals by defeating the Beavers 7-4 in Ste. Therese Sunday evening.

The final series will start at 8.30 p.m. Thursday, March 19, in the Brownsburg Arena, and the second game will also be played in the Brownsburg rink, Sunday, March 22, at 2.30 p.m.

In last Thursday's game, the Maroons had it all over Ste. Therese, but could not hold on to their lead until late in the second period. The line of Gionet, Racine and Ouellette was outstanding, both in their powerful display of precision passes and hard shooting, and also by their scoring of all the Maroons goals. They were also very effective in their back-checking, as were the rest of the team, forwards and defencemen alike.

Ste. Therese scored the first goal at 10.59 of the first period, but Gionet got that one back at 15.42 on a neat set-up by Ménard. Seven seconds after the start of the second stanza, Racine put the Maroons ahead, but the Beavers tied it up in the middle to the period. Gionet made it 3-2 before the end of the period. This score held up until the 17th minute of the third period, although the Maroons completely outplayed their opponents. Within 43 seconds, the Maroons scored three goals to wrap up the game. Ouellette scored at 16.13 and 16.37, and Gionet, with his third goal of the day, at 16.56. Thus, Gionet with three goals, Ouellette with two, and Racine with the other one, dominated the game.

In Sunday's clash, things were little different and the end result was the same. Ste. Therese again scored the first goal, but that was the last time they held the advantage. However, they kept coming back to tie the game, every time the locals would take the lead. But the strength and endurance of our younger and speedier players prevailed again in the third period, and they scored three unanswered goals to end all ambitions the Beavers had to play in the finals. Each line scored twice in this game, and Roy Cruise, the burly defenceman, scored the other. McGibbon-Racine-Prévost-Gionet-Ball-Payer, in that order, scored the other markers. The McGibbon-Ball-Bourgeois line was noticeably improved in this game; their performance will be a factor to consider in the coming finals.

Both games were well attended, and the fans who made the trip to Ste. Therese made their presence known with an assortment of cow bells, air horns, bugles and what-not! After Sunday's game, the Beaver players skated over and shook hands with the Maroon players, in the best tradition of our national pastime.

This final series between Crabtree and the Maroons should be one of the best ever seen. Both teams have young, strong skaters and hard-hitting defencemen. They practice wide-open hockey that is both pleasing to watch and easy to appreciate. This is one series you should not miss.

The schedule for the first four games is as follows:

First game — Brownsburg Arena, Thursday, March 19, 8.30 p.m.

Second — Brownsburg, Sunday, March 22, 2.30 p.m.

Third — Joliette, Wednesday, March 25, 8.30 p.m.

Fourth — Joliette, Sunday, March 29, 2.30 p.m.

This final series is the best of 4-out-of-7 games, and the schedule of the remaining games, if any, will be announced in next week's report.

4-out-of-7 series starts Thursday in Brownsburg

The five-game-guaranteed bonspiel has been completed and it is a pleasure to note that a third, Bill White, took over for Ian Gordon, who was only able to skip two of the five games, and in no uncertain manner led his team to victory. The other players of the team were Freddie Pring, Hugh Dobbie and Lloyd Kettyle. Nice going, boys. The runners-up were Bob Wyse, Lionel Rendell, Garth Boyd and Harold Joyce.

George Calder, Norma Rodgers, Don Heggie and Julie Heggie won their way into the Lancaster mixed bonspiel finals last Saturday, and finished as runners-up in the second division. George Calder's team has given a very good account of itself on several occasions this year.

The Vice-President's bonspiel is now in play. However, it will be impossible to complete it before Friday, the opening day of our annual Spring bonspiel.

Speaking about the Spring bonspiel gets you to thinking. All our year's activities lead to a climax in the Spring bonspiel, but it also makes you realize the end of the curling season is fast approaching. It has been a good curling season, with keen competition and very enjoyable fellowship. Now is the time to put your best efforts forward to wind up the season in the best Lachute tradition. Our Spring bonspiel is known far and wide as one of the best. How can we keep up this fine record? (1) Plan to attend the games as often as you can. (2) Go out of your way to welcome the visiting curlers and to make them feel at home. (3) Attend the nightly suppers, when you can, and bring along some of your friends — they will enjoy a good meal and the warm atmosphere of friendship in curling. (4) Spring bonspiels, such as ours, just aren't successful by themselves. It is you who make them a success. We're counting on you.

Ram Ski Club News — Carnival Day

This coming Saturday is a big day for members of the Ski Club. The third annual Carnival Day will be held with its many events, as in the past.

In the morning the junior obstacle race will be run, followed by costume judging and a weiner roast. The afternoon events will consist of the adult races and costume judging.

Trophies for the junior races will be given in the afternoon. The boys and girls with the largest accumulated points for all events held through the season, will be the winners of these beautiful trophies donated by the various people and businesses in the area.

The big day will finish with a dance, at La Lorraine Motel in Lachute.

On Sunday, a senior race will be held for all members whose ages prevented them from competing throughout the season. I'm sure in these events we will see some great competition for the two large trophies which have been donated by the two local brewery agents.

Let's all get together and make this, our third Carnival Day, the biggest and best ever. I'm sure every member will make an earnest effort to join in the events of the day, and especially give some thought to having an original costume for the occasion. Anyone wishing to donate a prize for events may contact me at the Ski Centre, LE 3-4413; or Bill Jones, at LO 2-2426, Lachute.

SHOULD FIND OUT

Let's scrap the royal commission on biculturalism, and find out whether any significant number of French-Canadians really want to break Canada in two and, if so, what it would mean to them and the rest of us.

IN MEMORIAM

YOUNG — In remembrance of Mrs. Joe Young, who passed away March 31, 1959. — Always remembered by the Family.

YOUNG — In fond and loving memory of a dear father, Edward C. Young, who passed away March 18, 1942. — Always remembered by Greta, John and family.

"Your memory is our keepsake,
With which we will never part;
God has you in his keeping,
We have you in our hearts."

YOUNG — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Edward C. Young, who passed away March 18, 1942. — Ever remembered and sadly missed by his wife, Mabel, and family.

"Those we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they leave behind.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just in all his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind —
Beautiful memories he left behind."

Veteran hunter and craftsman

Toronto CP — Cliff Avann can turn a chunk of cedar fence post into a finished but unpainted duck decoy in about eight minutes. He thinks that makes him the fastest decoy maker in North America.

Avann has been turning them out now for nearly 60 years, and has taught many outdoorsmen, singly or in groups, how to make their own.

Working in his basement hobby shop the veteran hunter starts with a foot-long piece of well-dried cedar post with the bark still on it. With bandsaw, rasp, drawknife, penknife and sanding discs, he shapes the decoy. Then he traces the head with a cardboard outline and cuts the wood to form.

Avann estimates it takes him about an hour to paint a dozen decoys. He mixes his own paints.

As for the 60-year stretch, he recalled in an interview: "I lost a pump gun when the boat upset in Brighton Bay in 1905. . . And I'll be out again, come next fall."

Too eye-appealing

Toronto CP — Function and convenience of many products are being sacrificed for eye-appeal, says Mrs. H. E. Vautelet of Montreal, a past president of the Canadian Consumers' Association.

The situation now is getting out of hand, she said. On her last trip to San Francisco she found herself in a hotel room with a bath shaped like a sea shell. Unfortunately, she could neither sit nor stand up in it.

"The modern car," she said in an interview here, "increases the dangerous congestion on the streets purely for eye-appeal dimensions."

She finds it alarming that eagerness to sell nowadays seems to be wearing the aspect of contempt for consumer intelligence.

"When 5,000 new lines in groceries land on our markets in a year, with only some 300 succeeding; when we find 59 varieties of dogfood alone on our shelves, hasn't variety gone beyond sense?"

Red Cross appeal for B'burg areas

Brownsburg — March is the month for the Red Cross Campaign across Canada. The Brownsburg Branch is expected to cover a number of points in the surrounding area which do not have a branch of Red Cross.

Last Saturday, Financial Chairman Rafael Sharman and President G. H. Quinn, accompanied by Keith Quinn, visited several of the outlying points, without too much success. In Grenville, Calumet and Avoca no one could be located who was willing to assume the responsibility for the campaign. Messrs. Sharman and Quinn would be pleased to hear from anyone who is willing to take on the responsibility for the campaign for this worthy cause, at the above-mentioned points.

Differences of opinion arose between the mayor and the councillors in regard to whether or not the town could afford the project, and just how the finances would be handled if it were approved. The subject was discussed for some time before the boys threw in the towel and decided to hold a special meeting for further discussion. . . The meeting has since been held and the outcome did little to buoy up the hopes of the Woodbine N. property owners. A representative of another building area in town showed up to state his wants, and Council decided that perhaps the only step open to the town was that of conducting a referendum, to obtain permission from the taxpayers to borrow money for two projects. . . In the meantime the three home-owners may well begin to wonder if they should have built their homes elsewhere.

Tax Rate Unchanged

Taxpayers in town were favored with a decision by Council to maintain the present tax rate of $1.50 per $100 property evaluation — a move which should sit well with the local home-owners, particularly since Council has shown intentions of building a new town hall.

Donations

As a result of a request from the Quebec Federation of Charities, the councillors voted to declare the month of March as "Charities Month". Promptly turned down was a request for a donation to the Red Cross Society, and a request to buy a book at the Brownsburg High School book fair.

Dump Site Again

A delegation of citizens from the area of the proposed dump site in Chatham stated their desire to have the town re-locate the dump, since the garbage would no doubt contaminate the drinking water which comes from springs in the vicinity. Council agreed readily, but found out later in the meeting that they would have been forced to change, since local health authorities had revoked permission to use the site.

With regard to the hiring of a police chief, Council members decided to ask for tenders immediately, by inserting the information in the local newspapers only.

Street parade to inaugurate $4,200 appeal for Red Cross

On Monday evening, March 23, at 6 o'clock, the financial campaign for the Canadian Red Cross Society in this community will be started off once again with a truck parade through Lachute and Ayersville.

Messrs. Pierre Brousseau, Bill Steeves and Bob Armstrong, the co-chairmen of this campaign, expect the appeal to be a success and hope that everyone will do his part to enable the Red Cross to reach its objective of $4,200.

Immediately following the truck parade, the canvassers will be calling at local homes to receive donations, which will be turned in to Donald M. Hay, campaign treasurer, and some of his staff of the Bank of Montreal on Main Street.

Others deserving credit for their time and effort devoted to this project are Jim Murdoch, organizer of the parade; Jerry Moore, who has organized the canvassing of commercial establishments; and Mrs. Gordon McOuat, who is to be in charge of the rural districts surrounding Lachute.

Anti-alcoholic welcome centre

It is reported by the new Anti-Alcoholic organization in Lachute that their "welcome hall" on Main Street West has received many visitors, and the services of this enterprise have been well received, to the benefit of those taking advantage. An attendant has been engaged for afternoons and evenings, Mr. J. Raymond of St. Andrews East, who will be on hand to extend the courtesies of the hall and the friendship it offers.

This is a venture supported by public aid, and the limited number of firms and individuals so far approached, have responded generously. Jean-Marie Bisson will be glad to accept donations from any who feel sympathetic to this project. Meanwhile, thanks are extended to all who have given their support.

APPRECIATION

THE SCENE Around Brownsburg

By M. E. Cowley

Dissension in the council — a condition which has existed for some time, and which has in the past affected progress in the town — continues to grow. Each council session can be counted on to produce open defiance or thinly masked sarcasm between one or two (or more) councillors and Mayor James Donaldson. The fact that the mayor and the councillors could not agree on the dump site question, was but one instance of the current difficulty. In May 1964 the term of office will be concluded for Councillors Georges Therrien and Laughlin Baccardax. Past records have shown that these two gentlemen have had a lot to do with what progress the town has made in the past few years. When asked whether they intended standing for election in some two months time, both councillors answered with an emphatic "No". The reason is obvious.

Council has yet to cure the dog problem. In discussions with Councillor Georges Therrien, the question was asked, "Why don't town employees clear up the dogs, as a part of their job?" Mr. Therrien appeared to be in favor of the idea and stated that he would discuss it with other council members. One or two people have let the town authorities know of their feelings. Perhaps it might help if others did the same. . . Perhaps a letter or a post-card?

A date to remember — March 23, when mothers of Brownsburg and district will call at your door for donations to help complete the battle against polio.

APPRECIATION

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to relatives, friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses, for cards, gifts and visits during my stay in hospital.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

BIRD'S EGGS

A once-popular hobby that is seldom if ever heard of nowadays, was the collecting of bird's eggs. And a very good thing, too. The birds are having a hard enough time getting by in this day and age, without having their nests robbed. . .

But long ago, when I was a juvenile delinquent, boys would vie with each other as to who had the biggest or best collection. Sometimes a group of four boys would go "birds-nesting" and if a nest was found with four eggs in it, each would take one. My own collection was a very modest one, and was kept in a shoe-box half full of sawdust. But for a short time I was in the spotlight and the envy of the other boys, because I had found a loon's nest with two eggs in it. The eggs were useless from a loon's point of view, as the lake had risen and the eggs were nearly submerged. I gave one to an adult collector and put the other one in the shoe-box with my other blown shells. But the loon's egg was not blown. I didn't dare blow it, as the contents could be heard rattling around inside and I had some idea of what they would smell like; so I kept postponing the unpleasant job. Then one hot night in July I was saved the trouble. The egg exploded, blowing itself and the rest of the collection all over the cupboard where the box had reposed on a shelf!

Let's draw the curtain on the painful scene next morning when my sister made the discovery. It was in the same cupboard where she hung her dresses! That was my last experience as an oologist — which, I have been told, is the right name for a collector of bird's eggs.

Youngsters of today have better things to think about than robbing the birds — and am I glad! We could not live without the birds.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Quebec measure to speed inter-municipal fire aid

Quebec — The Legislative Assembly last week gave third reading to a bill that would enable the fire department of one municipality to come to the aid of another with less red tape.

The present law says that such aid can only be authorized by the mayor or two designated aldermen and their counterparts in a neighboring municipality.

Municipal Affairs Minister Laporte said that frequently one mayor could not reach another for extra fire help before a house burned down.

The new law will enable an employee of a town, such as the secretary-treasurer, or the police chief, who is usually available, to authorize firemen to go to the fire in a neighboring town.

The law also provides for setting the payment rate in advance, with the approval of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

4-H reorganized, officers appointed

The Lachute 4-H Calf Club was reorganized for another year, at a meeting held last Thursday, March 12, in Lachute High School.

The new president is Richard Thompson, with André St. Pierre as vice-president. Sheila Meyer is secretary-treasurer. Ross Oswald was re-appointed club leader, with Davis MacVicar and J. C. St. Pierre as assistants.

Donald Robertson, Federal livestock fieldman, was present and gave a talk on "The Outlook in Agriculture", which proved very educational. This was followed by a quiz, with two teams competing for prizes; this feature was enjoyed by all present.

The meeting was adjourned until April; the date will be announced in the "Coming Events" column of this paper.

APPRECIATION

I wish to extend my sincere thanks to the staff of the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, and to all my kind friends, for their good wishes, cards and visits, during my stay there.

That's how many times we inspect a Volkswagen.

These are some of the ok's our little car has to get in our factory.
(It's easy to tell the ok's from the no's. One no is all you ever see.)
We pay 5,857 men just to look for things to say no to. And no is no.
A visitor from Brazil once asked us what we were going to do about a roof that came through with a dent in it.
Dents are easy to hammer out.
So what we did shook him a little.
We smashed the body down to a metal lump and threw it out in the scrap pile.
We stop VW's for little things that you may never notice yourself.
The fit of the lining in the roof.
The finish in a doorjamb.
In the final inspection alone, our VW has to get through 342 points without one blackball.
One out of 50 doesn't make it.
But you should see the ones that get away.

Prime Minister of Canada endorses Red Cross appeal

The Red Cross this year enters its second century of service to mankind in peace and war. The respect in which it is held by people everywhere is a testament to the distinction and humanity of Red Cross service in its first hundred years.

Here in our nation, the Canadian Red Cross Society has been a part of our way of life for many more years than most of us can remember.

Its many programs, services and projects are backed by millions of Canadians of all ages who serve the Red Cross in some manner. The Red Cross is a unique organization. It needs the support of all of us to meet its many obligations in Canada and to help others far from our shores. It is my earnest hope that Canadians will give the support sought by the Canadian Red Cross Society in its current campaign for funds.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Give generously to the Red Cross

MUCH TOO OFTEN these days, we're apt to measure our accomplishments in terms of cash or material value.

The structure of modern society has caused us to evaluate our worth in this manner, and we're apt to forget that we may have other assets which cannot be measured by material standards, but which could give us a position of great importance in the community. This does not necessarily mean that one must be a leader of men, nor occupy the house on the hill. A person of importance today can be one with such seemingly unglamorous qualities as charity, human understanding, kindness, courtesy, tolerance and consideration.

The peacetime purpose of the Canadian Red Cross Society is "to carry on and assist in work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world," a purpose that is motivated by personal assets, a purpose which cannot continue without the active use of these assets.

WE are the Canadian Red Cross. We keep it going. Its success or failure is dependent upon how much we use our characteristics of charity, kindness and human understanding. The success or failure of the Red Cross is a direct reflection on the value we place on these assets; in the end, it is a reflection on us and our community.

A strong Red Cross means a strong community of individuals who place a high value on the finer qualities of human character.

When you're asked to give to the Red Cross next week — think of the many ways your Red Cross helps to improve health and relieve suffering throughout the world — then give generously.

The picture in your living room

THE POTENTIAL of television to mould youth's attitude to society, needs closer study; and that need cannot be too strongly stressed. To substantiate the views we quoted in a recent editorial, here is another opinion, from C. E. Edwards, deputy president of the Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Association. . .

Psychologists suspect that the minds and personalities of children are being changed by TV in many different ways (some of which may be beneficial). Children are under the sway of the TV set, on the average, for one-sixth of their waking hours. Only thorough and continuing research can accurately assess all the changes that are being imposed on Canadian children by TV.

But there is one effect of TV that has been established about as clearly as the relationship between cigarette smoking and lung cancer (says this authority). It has been foretold by sociologists, demonstrated by teen-age gangs in back streets, and tabulated in the police courts. The youth of today is more brutal, far more likely to land in jail than was his father — because he has learned to be like that from the picture tube in the living room.

Picasso side effects

PABLO PICASSO perhaps knows little, and cares less, of the reactions stirred by his works, some of which we have been privileged to see in this country, thanks to modern initiative in bringing the arts to a popular level. The critical article by a younger but equally "far out" contemporary, Harold Towne, and its mixed acceptance, may or may not for instance have come to his attention. It will bother him not at all, that's certain.

If we may, among such demagogues, be permitted our humble opinion, it is this: If Picasso, an undisputed master, had devoted as much time and effort to a truer and more pleasing portrayal of his fellow beings, as in those lost years which he has devoted to the distortions of man, beast and habitat — alas, what a sublime legacy he could have left for posterity! (As it is, his legacy of monsters can be anything but joyful.)

But this is not our point. Picasso knows little, and cares less, of the reactions. Down on the prosiac level — how he started something in the Queen City which actually could inspire a lasting benefit. . . In the Picasso exhibit at the Toronto Gallery, Girl Guides came to the rescue with a free baby-sitting service for harassed parents, taking charge of the youngsters for an hour or two while they puzzled over Pablo's monstrosities. The junior women's committee of the gallery organized the service, and the Guides were volunteers from seven Toronto companies. It was gathered from the news report at that time, that this gesture may well be extended to other functions. . . Viva Picasso; he has stirred compassion in the human soul — which is a far cry from whatever his pictures are aiming at.

Universities on year-round basis

THE FIRST UNIVERSITY in Canada to operate on a year-round basis will open in Burnaby, a suburb of Vancouver, next year. Simon Fraser University is to admit 3,000 students in the fall of 1965, and enrolment is expected to increase to 7,000 during the following six years — writes C. J. Harris in his current comment.

The new school is to have three 16-week terms. Students will ordinarily attend two, but voluntary attendance at three terms will be possible and will allow a student to complete a four-year course in two and two-thirds years. Chancellor Gordon Shrum insists he is interested in quality, not quantity, although he admits that traditionalists may accuse him of favoring mass-production methods. "This idea of taking five months off from university studies to go working as a cook somewhere, is no way to cope with the great increase in the amount of knowledge to be mastered," Chancellor Shrum said a while back. "We could cut a four-year course to at least three for gifted students if they had the chance to study the year round."

The year-round operation of universities may not be the ideal (observes this commentator, C. J. Harris). It would not suit all schools, all staff, or all students. But our resources for expanding university facilities are not unlimited, and year-round operation would permit more complete use of existing facilities. It is an idea that needs to be tried.

Viewpoints and perspectives

MUST BE PAID FOR. — Educating children today is an expensive business. . . Since parents demand the best that can be offered for their children, then they should be prepared to pay the price. It also follows that a society should also make every effort to keep the costs as low as possible.
— Estevan (Sask.) Mercury

ATTRACTIONS HIDDEN. — We have more or less hidden our historical attractions by hardly ever bringing them to the attention of the public, and therefore much of what we have is passed over. The Historical Society now is making plans to bring these things into the light and public attention.
— Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

ALL FROM THE TAXPAYERS. — It is well to remember no government can hand out money in the form of grants, for welfare, public works, or anything else, without dipping into the public pot. And every dollar in that pot comes out of taxpayers' pockets.
— Altona (Man.) Red River Valley Echo

THERE HAVE always been procedures (against cigarette smoking) which could be effectively taken in Canada alone, and which have not been consistently taken. We have particularly in mind the laws which prohibit the sale of cigarettes to minors. In many cases the public generally and storekeepers have become careless in the observance of this law.

The Irish In Spring

By BILL SMILEY

Caught between the Seventeenth of Ireland and the Twenty-first of Spring, I was in a quandary about a topic for this week's epistle. (A quandary is a cross between an Irish bog and the first day of spring in Canada.)

Bill Smiley

Come to think of it, the two have a lot in common: the Irish and spring in this country. You never know what to expect. You may be in for a bout of weeping, a hurricane of abuse, or a blast of hot air, from either.

Perhaps it is this unpredictability that makes the company of the Irish and the coming of spring in Canada such a constant source of bewilderment, delight and despair. I speak as an expert. My wife is half Irish and I've battled my way through a good few of those Eskimo's nightmares—first day of spring—in this land.

I never know any more than the kids do, whether my wife is going to hit me or kiss me. And I never know whether the twenty-first of March is going to wrap me in a great voluptuous embrace or flay me with a wind that would freeze the brains of a brass monkey.

There's a great deal of myth in the popular conception of those tricky twins, the Irish and spring in Canada.

Irishmen are supposed to be bubbling over with the juices of life. They are understood to be warm-hearted, charming, gay and lively. They're expected to be sentimental and eloquent, generous and devil-may-care. And many of them are.

But don't blame me if the first Irishman you meet after reading this is a lugubrious, long-faced, mournful, money-grubbing, pleasure-shunning, nit-picking, self-pitying, people-hating type. Some of them are.

Same with spring in Canada. It's supposed to be a day when the blood burbles, when the young mothers are all out with their new baby-carriages, when the sun smiles wildly over the scene, when the first tiny flowers poke their dainty heads up, and the streams gurgle with rapture, and the air smells and feels and tastes like champagne. And sometimes it is.

But chances are, on the Twenty-first of Spring, you'll be racked by 'flu, you'll have a hole in your rubbers, your eavestroughs will be pendulous with ice, your car won't start, the ice will stretch as far as eye can see on the bay, and a gale that would curdle the blood of a Laplander is howling out of the north.

However, that's life. And this is my salute to the Irish, whom I have loved and hated, fought with and laughed at. And this is also my salute to spring, which I have loved and hated, coped with and cursed at.

Perhaps we should let some more distinguished comoany have the last word on the Irish. Like George Moore, who said, "My one claim to originality among Irishmen is that I have never made a speech."

Or Mark Twain: "Give an Irishman lager for a month and he's a dead man. An Irishman is lined with copper, and the beer corrodes it. But whiskey polishes the copper and is the saving of him."

However, I intend to have the last word on Canada's first day of spring, myself. Here it is.

Canadian spring
Ain't even a season.
It's merely a Thing
That's usually freezin'.

Impasse in Vietnam

By RAY ARGYLE

The eight-year war in South Vietnam is moving into its final phase. After spending five billion dollars to keep this Asian jungle nation out of the Communist orbit, the United States is faced with one of three choices:

The first is to extend the U.S. military commitment there sufficiently to ensure a clear victory over the Viet 'ong insurgents who are supported by Communist North Vietnam.

The secord choice is to continue the present strategic and material aid to the Sou'h Vietnamese in the hope that the regime there will somehow be able to fight the Communist guerrillas to a standstill.

The third choice, which American authorities are slowly coming around to, is to attempt some sort of neutralizatio. of the whole of v.hat was once French Indo-China.

No Americar authority is yet saying so publicly, but this is the only interpretation which can be put on Defense Secretary McNamara's renewed declaration to get American troops out of South Vietnam by next year.

There appears no other escape from the present impasse.

This was first recognized by Gen. De Gaulle who in proposing neutralization, ran head-on into bitter American reaction which still equates neutrality with surrender to Communism.

And it is true that neutrality can be a prelude to surrender, unless the condition of neutrality is backed up by continued American military strength.

The old French Indo-Chinese empire was carved up into four states at the 1954 Geneva conference which brought an end to the French-Communist war there.

North Vietnam, under the control of Marxist Ho Chi Minh, became a Communist people's republic. Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam remained non-communist. Communist subversion continued in all three states, however, and South Vietnam was particularly vulnerable because the Americans made the mistake of backing an unpopular and despotic government.

Two revolutions later, South Vietnam continues to fight a losing jungle war. Laos is in near-paralysis under a princely triumvirate representing Communist, neutralist and Western viewpoints. Cambodia, long a staunch American ally, has moved recently toward an independent neutralist policy and is now protesting further American military assistance.

The attractions of neutrality for these states weigh equally on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

North Vietnam is suffering serious agricultural deficiencies which can be solved only by drawing on the farm wealth of South Vietnam. Communist China is in no position to render this kind of help, and thus the North Vietnamese are being drawn over to the Russian position of peaceful accommodation rather than the Chinese hard line of continued military assaults on Western outposts.

The United States has no desire to become further entangled in a long, and probably losing, guerrilla war in the jungles of southeast Asia. If President Johnson is able to win a strong mandate in the White House, he will then be able to resist the opposition to a negotiated settlement in southeast Asia.

Here's to the Irish!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Here's to the Irish!" "The top o' the morning to you!"

These phrases are repeated by many people on March 17. J. V. McAree, an Irish Canadian, has written a delightful book, Culled from Our Columns, and in it he points out, "We have yet to hear of an Irishman in Canada pulling up stakes here and returning to Eire. If Canada has been good to the Irish in that it has given them opportunities for material advancement which were denied them at home, they have no less given to the fabric of this country some threads of fun and cheerfulness, bravery and romance that it could not do without."

Irishmen are found all over the world. George Moore pokes a little fun at the Irish for scattering to the four corners of the globe, in these words: "English, Scotchmen, Jews, all do well in Ireland — Irishmen — never; even the patriot has to leave Ireland to get a hearing."

The Irish are a complex people and their little island of 32,600 square miles is divided into Northern Ireland, which has remained within the Commonwealth, and the Irish Free State. Walter Macken, modern author of books and plays, has graphically conveyed the Irish scene and his book, God Made Sunday, deserves special mention, with its vivid pictures of life on a small island off the West Coast of Ireland.

Ireland is the land of the Blarney Stone, the abode of fairies, the birthplace of many poets and dramatists, of musicians and writers. The traditional green flag of Ireland with its golden harp has been replaced for the citizens of Eire (the Irish Free State) by the green, orange and white flag.

The cross of St. Patrick, a red diagonal one on a white ground, was added to the Union Jack in 1801. It is not this emblem, but the green shamrock which appears on cards and party decorations for March 17. There are a few who do not know the old tale of St. Patrick, on the hill of Tara, explaining to the heathen priests the doctrine of the Trinity. He pointed to the three lobes of the shamrock which make up one leaf, the three in one.

There are many legends about St. Patrick. He was born, in the fourth century, at a place now called Dunbarton. His father was a Roman official, but this did not prevent the boy Patrick being sold as a slave to Ireland. Six years later he escaped to what is now France. He studied to be a priest under St. Martin at Tours. Later, moved by a dream, he felt called to preach the Gospel to the Irish. In 432 he landed at Wicklow.

The Druid priests were his greatest opponents in converting the Irish to Christianity. He is believed to have founded over 360 churches, and a cathedral and a monastery at Armagh. Many are the stories of his miraculous healing powers.

One of the quaintest legends found in Brewer's dictionary is about his driving the snakes out of Ireland. One old serpent resisted St. Patrick, but he overcame him with cunning. He made a box and invited the serpent to go into it. But the serpent objected on the grounds it was too small. St. Patrick insisted it was quite large enough to be comfortable. After quite an argument, the serpent was persuaded to prove that the box was too small by getting into it and stretching. As soon as he was inside, St. Patrick slammed down the lid and hurled the box into the sea.

You may laugh at this old tale, but can you explain why St. Patrick's Day is far more widely celebrated than St. George's or St. Andrew's Day? It is not because the Irish outnumber the English and Scotch in Canada! By the 1961 census in the classification of population by origins we had 4,195,175 English, 1,902,302 Scottish and 1,753,351 Irish.

Perhaps the Irish are more warm-hearted and they have such a zest for living that they, more than others, revel in their own special Saint's Day! At any rate, it is good for Canadians to recall with love and gratitude the land from which they have come. To be proud of our racial origin, need in no way weaken our loyalty as Canadian citizens. Our Canadian life is richer because of the laughter and good times associated with March 17.

ISSUE CHALLENGE

Tignish, P.E.I. (CP) — A group of men are the unsung heroes of the male sex in this northwestern P.E.I. village. Following completion of adult education classes this year, they challenged the female students to a speaking competition or debate.

"Miss Hopkins, I didn't mean for you to take a letter to Miami Beach, Florida, personally."

Here's a novel way of serving ham steaks. Two ham steaks (½-inch thick) weighing about 2 pounds, are baked with apple slices between and on top. They are baked in a covered baking dish in a vinegar-apple juice mixture for 30 minutes in a 325°F. oven, then uncovered and cooked 30 minutes longer. Tart jelly in the centre of each apple ring adds a decorative touch before serving. Makes 6 servings.

Cured and smoked pork for springtime variety

(Consumer Section)

There is more variety in pork than in any other meat. As well as all the fresh cuts available, there are almost as many cured and smoked cuts from which to choose. This year, pork is more plentiful than it has been for several years and is a good buy at this time. With the Easter season approaching, cured and smoked cuts will be in the news.

The Consumer Section at Ottawa gives us some tips on what to look for in buying these cured and smoked cuts.

Ham is probably one of our most popular pork cuts. Nowadays hams are most often skinned and sold in a casing with part of the surface fat and bone removed. Since a whole ham is too large for most families, hams are usually divided into half hams and marked as "shank" or "butt" end. They will average about 5 to 8 pounds with the bone-in or 4 to 6 pounds boneless. Boneless hams in casing are ideal for the small family as they can be bought in small sizes of 2 to 3 pounds.

Ham steaks may be cut from the centre part of the ham or one or two may be cut off the half ham. This would give the consumer several meals. A ham steak cut ½-inch thick may be heated and glazed and served either hot or cold. The remaining cooked ham may be cubed and served with a cream sauce for ham à la king, casserole dishes or minced for sandwiches. In other words, ham is good to the last morsel!

Picnic shoulders are given similar curing and smoking to hams. They are sold with the skin on, contain more bone than the ham as they are from the lower part of the shoulder and sell for less per pound. They range from 5 to 7 pounds bone-in and 3 to 5 pounds boneless.

Cottage rolls, from the upper part of the shoulder are sold boned and rolled. They may be sweet pickled and packed in a casing or rolled in peameal. They may also be smoked.

Ham is the most tender of these cuts and may be baked or heated (if sold pre-cooked) in a 325°F. oven. Picnic shoulders and cottage rolls are less tender but may be cooked in the oven, preferably in a covered pan with a little water added, simmered in water, or pressure cooked. All cuts should be cooked until they are well done.

Most people will want to buy enough meat for more than one meal. As a general rule, one should allow ¼ pound boneless meat or ⅓ to ½ pound of bone-in meat for each serving.

Cured smoked meats should be stored in the casing or wrapping in the coldest part of the refrigerator and cooked within a week.

Ham Steaks With Apples

2 Ham steaks, cut ½-inch thick (about 2 pounds), 12 cloves, ¾ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 3 tablespoons vinegar, ½ cup apple juice, 3 medium apples (about 1 pound), tart red jelly.

Press cloves into fat side of each steak and snip the fat between the cloves. Mix dry ingredients. Blend in vinegar and apple juice. Peel and core apples. Cut 6 apple rings about ¼-inch thick to garnish top. Slice remaining apples thinly.

Place one steak in a greased baking dish, cover with the thinly sliced apples and pour about ¼ cup of the apple juice mixture over them. Place second steak over apples and garnish top with remaining thick slices of apple. Cover and bake in a moderately slow over (325°F.) for 30 minutes. Remove cover and pour remaining apple juice mixture over steaks. Continue baking uncovered, about 30 minutes longer, basting occasionally. Place a teaspoon of tart red jelly in the centre of each apple ring before serving. 6 servings.

Note: When using red apples, the slices used for garnishing the top of the steaks may be left unpeeled, if desired.

Open-Faced Apple Ham Sandwich

6 Slices bread, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon mustard, 6 slices cooked ham (picnic shoulder or cottage roll), 3 red apples (about 1 pound), 6 slices cheese.

Spread each slice of bread with 1 teaspoon mayonnaise and ½ teaspoon mustard. Wash and core apples and slice thinly. Place ham slice on bread and cover with 3 apple slices. Broil until apple slices are partially cooked, about 3 minutes. Top each sandwich with a cheese slice. Broil until cheese melts, about a minute. Serve hot. 6 servings.

Wrap yourself in airplane insulator for most luxurious warmth. Since, it can protect a jetliner from stratosphere temperatures, just think what it can do for you.

Sound like a wacky fashion forecast? Not at all. You may be one of thousands of Canadians already wearing that airplane insulator in fabrics known as laminates.

The foam backing which gives laminates their warmth without weight, was first developed as lightweight insulator for aircraft. Only four years ago the plastic foam was adapted as lining for cold weather clothing. Look what has happened to laminates since then!

At first there was consumer resistance to the laminates. People simply could not believe that garments so light in weight could also be warm. The principle of warmth achieved by trapped air spaces contained in the foam was accepted gradually.

This acceptance began in utility garments and was first confined to hunting jackets and quilted sportswear items. It was when textile and fashion designers first developed the idea that the insulating foam laminated to the back of a fabric gave it new stability and shape retention as well as warmth, that laminates really began to go places.

The rest is current history. Laminates have created a sort of behind-the-scenes revolution in many branches of the Canadian textile industry by opening up new stlying possibilities and new uses for many types of fabrics.

The addition of foam backing, for instance, makes it practical to use a light-weight shirting fabric for a topcoat or a gaily printed dress jersey for a ski jacket. Besides creating new uses for many fabrics the foam-backed textiles have created a whole new type of sportswear and are now branching into dressier fashions.

In men's wear, the cold-weather outer garments and laminated rainwear are commonplace. In children's wear laminates represent a growing volume of winter clothing items and in women's fashions the foam-backed materials have moved from sportswear to evening fashions. Luxurious theatre and evening coats are an example.

The quality of foams and the standards of performances have been steadily improving during the past four years. One Canadian mill alone keeps its thermal processing equipment constantly busy laminating over 40 different types of fabrics of plain, textured and fancy weaves as well as knits.

The future of laminates is indeed bright. The number of fabrics of this type being made in Canada keeps multiplying each season. One of the newest for spring is crepe which takes on an exciting new appearance with the addition of fine foam backing. Each season sends stylists looking for new variations to broaden the appeal of fabrics.

Aid towards a 'fast recovery'

In nearly 600 communities across Canada, the Red Cross provides a free service to help many sick and injured Canadians on the road to a fast recovery. It's the Sickroom Loan Service, similar to the service conducted in Lachute, intended for those who are unable to provide the necessary sickroom equipment for themselves. Here's how it works:

Sickroom supplies are loaned on a reasonable term basis to ill and convalescent patients at home. For the protection of patients, the doctor's consent must be obtained before the Red Cross will loan the equipment.

Supplies available from a Loan Cupboard include adjustable crutches, wheelchairs, air cushions, back rests, bed trays, bed elevating blocks, canes, rubber sheets, hot water bottles and sickroom enamelware. In some large centres, even hospital beds are available. After the equipment has been loaned and returned, it is cleaned and made ready for the next patient.

Past records indicate that about 33,000 Canadians will use this service in 1964, and the number will continue to rise for some time to come.

You can help your neighbor on the road to a fast recovery by pledging your financial support in this year's Red Cross campaign. Your help will also ensure that when someone in your home needs a sickroom article the Red Cross will be on the job to help you. Be generous when the volunteer canvasser calls on you.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

What to do with the old drapes is a problem in a new house or a redecorated one. It seems extravagant to throw them out or let them languish unseen in a closet. It is, too.

If the fabric is still good, there are many ways to use it.

When the whole set can't be moved to the cottage or recreation room, but one pair will do in a bedroom, an extra pair will make a matching bedspread. Just take the pleats out and seam the drapes together. If they aren't big enough, use them to cover the top of the bed and make a mix or match skirt.

If they just no longer suit any room, the first thing to do is take the pleats out, have the drapes cleaned and the pleats pressed flat. The top few inches might have to be cut off if the pleating marks won't give up, and the bottom few inches, if the hem is worn or dirty. The lining should stay in until the new use is decided on.

Try Lampshades

Unless the color scheme has changed completely, lampshades and covers for throw cushions can be made from old fabric. A waste-basket takes on a cheerful air when it is covered.

Placemats, runners, bridge table and luncheon table cloths and napkins are a possibility.

Part of a panelled fabric might be used as a wall hanging. The material need only be hemmed so that a rod can be inserted top and bottom.

Bits of pattern can be backed and framed.

If the old drapes won't go at all with a new color scheme, there are other ways to make them useful.

Makes Clothing

Brocades, florals, stripes and plain fabrics all lend themselves to transformation into a stlyish floor-length hostess skirt.

They can turn into a theatre coat, a sports jacket, duster, housecoat or muu muu. They might be used to line or re-line a coat.

If only part of the fabric is still in good condition, there are still possibilities in a stole or an apron. A child's pinafore or skirt doesn't take much material.

Another idea is to use drapery material in a tote or beach bag, slip-on covers for purses or luggage.

The man who dreamed up many of these ideas is Ross Winson, owner of a Toronto drapery store, who says he is distressed at the waste of material in used draperies. "Most customers choose their fabric well, with an eye for color, texture, use and price. But I meet too many women who seem to be content to throw out their draperies just because they do not fit their new home."

Water meters aid municipalities — survey shows

Montreal — Because of the waste and leakage control provided by water meters, sanitary and public works engineers say they make for the most efficient public water supply operation.

An indication of this is the rising number of Canadian municipalities converting to water metering. A survey undertaken by "Canadian Municipal Utilities" in 1962 showed that some 200 Canadian municipalities are fully metered and that among 872 municipalities with a population of 1,000 or more, some 45 per cent of services are metered. At least 12 municipalities in Quebec are fully metered.

Meters stop the wastage of water without limiting its legitimate use, and increase the storage in relation to a given population. Water meters also reduce the capital investment in sewage disposal and treatment equipment, and satisfy taxpayers by reducing their water bill.

Surveys undertaken in communities converted to water metering show that 100 per cent metering will reduce the cost of water to be supplied 40 to 60 per cent.

According to W. J. Downer, chief sanitary engineer, State Department of Public Health, Springfield, Ill., there are 14,500 public water supplies serving an estimated population of 84½ million people in the United States, and it is estimated that these systems are needlessly delivering 4,000 m.g.d. of water which could be saved if the unaccounted for leakage and waste were brought under control.

Metering water puts the community on an even basis so that no one may use more water than another for the same price. Taxpayers pay for what they get and no more.

At camps for crippled children

Baseball games at the crippled children's camps are one of the popular activities each summer. Campers of all ages participate in camp activities to the best of their ability, and are therefore taking part in a competitive manner that is not possible the rest of the year. Easter Seals contributions have built these camps and sent the children on these vacations. Camping for crippled children is just one of the many services that the 1964 Easter Seals campaign will help to promote this year.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

Every so often there is a new flurry of interest in green sprouted oats. The thought of fresh, green pasture every day of the year for the dairy herd does stir the imagination.

We had a letter recently from a chap who wondered if this might be the answer to his small farm problem. He had seen the article in one of the farm papers. It seemed to endorse the system of germinating oats in growth chambers with artificial light and heat. He wanted some more information.

I can find no authority which recommends the sprouting of oats or other grain for the economical production of milk. Morrison, in the 22nd edition of his widely-used book, "Feeds and Feeding", sums up the research findings this way: "Careful experiments have shown that these expensive methods of feed preparation do not cause any saving in feed or result in greater production."

If you are going to make money out of milk, feed costs have to be kept as low as possible. Pasture, good hay and corn or grass silage are the cheapest source of feed nutrients. Grain costs twice as much.

Green sprouting does nothing to increase the energy value of grain. In fact, there is a loss of 15% or more in digestible dry matter. Energy is used up in the germination process. And artificial light does little to replace it. The increase in weight is almost all water.

I don't know how much power these incubators use, but, in principle, you just can't afford to grow cattle feed under artificial light. Full growth requires at least 300 watts on every square yard. Work that out on an acre basis at your cheapest hydro rate. It comes to something over $100 a day. Sunshine is cheaper.

Nor has it been shown in controlled tests that oat sprouts improve animal health or stimulate production over good, conventional feeding practices. Our best dairymen judge the effectiveness of their winter feeding by the smallness of the increase in milk flow when the cows go out on grass. They find that the stimulus needed for high milk production can be captured in early cut hay and good silage.

In last week's Notebook, I talked about the uses of "Friendly Radiation". Another one has turned up in Canada Department of Agriculture's "Farm News".

It seems that they "tag" fruit-destroying moths by giving them a drink of radio-active phosphorous. Then their travels can be followed by geiger counters. When their habits are learned, more effective controls can be worked out. I wonder what next.

Twenty-two months ago, a federal subsidy of 12¢ a pound dropped the price of butter. Many wondered at the time how much the lower price would increase sales. In Europe, where margarine has been used for a longer time, price changes have little effect on butter consumption.

But Canadians must still like their butter. In the year following the price drop, we each used 2.6 pounds more. Taken across the nation, it was enough to stop the build-up of surplus stocks.

This week, the last TV show will be presented in the Macdonald College series, "Down the Road". Mark Waldron, with Dr. George Dion, Dean of Agriculture at Macdonald, will look into the future.

If you have enjoyed these shows at Friday noon, or if you have suggestions or criticisms, we would very much like your comments.

Seeks webbing set for Army museum

Webbing! Hundreds of thousands of sets of it were issued during the First World War, but today they are as scarce as the proverbial "hen's teeth".

Capt. C. A. Holt, (ret.), Curator of the Army Museum at the Halifax Citadel, has been searching for a set of the 1914-18 web equipment for many months, but an exhaustive search by museum officials has failed to find a single set.

Pictures of Canadian soldiers wearing the broad belts and shoulder straps over their high-necked tunics are to be found, but the only actual sets of the old webbing are in other museums.

During that great conflict one could have found many an old 'sweat' who would have cheerfully given you his set without the asking, but the situation is different today.

Readers who have pieces of this equipment, or know the whereabouts of any, are asked to contact Capt. Holt at the Army Museum, Halifax Citadel, Halifax, N.S.

Lots of sheep in New Zealand

One item New Zealand is not likely to run short of in the next few years, is sheep. Present sheep numbers total about 50,200,000 head, an increase of 2% over the previous year.

New Zealand's sheep population has increased by an average of more than 3½% each year since 1948. Current production is being stimulated by high wool prices and relatively high prices for lamb.

Canada's sheep population has steadily declined for several years now, with present numbers estimated at only about 860,000 head.

Thoughts about the Germans

Contributed by Norman Thorburn

Two recent articles in Maclean's Magazine interested me a good deal. They both dealt with the Germans and their ideologies. A German immigrant, Jurgen Hesse, claims that the Germans are still unrepentant and will follow the first dictator that suits their warlike natures.

The Germans, he claims, still believe they are the "herrenvolk", the master race. This pride of blood will eventually set them on the warpath once more, if they get the chance. . . This is not news. The Russians have long feared this, and block every attempt at German reunification. The Russians know that the Germans, at times, become in love with tragedy and death.

Ralph Allen focuses our attention on another peculiarity of the German nature. Away from their own land, Germans make excellent immigrants. There are over a million people of German blood in Canada. They are the third racial group, numerically speaking, in Canada. Ralph Allen calls them the untroublesome Canadians.

This peculiarity of the German character has long been known, too. The 25 million people of German blood in the U.S.A. have helped that country immensely.

In South America the Germans learn Spanish, inter-marry with the natives, and in time, their descendants forget German. In North America, the German learns to speak passable English in about six months.

Budapest was once a German-speaking city, but the Germans learned to speak Hungarian and, in time, became good citizens of that country. The Germans always had a great respect for the fierce Hungarians.

The Germans in foreign lands, the "Deutch im Ausland", have never shown the same nationalistic fervor they did at home, in Germany. Hitler tried to change all this. It was in the period 1936-1940 that I made the acquaintance of several German families who were farming near my former home. They were very hospitable, and I enjoyed speaking English with them, after speaking only French for perhaps a week or two. I even picked up a little German. I got to like German black rye bread and strong coffee, sometimes laced with rum.

Bernhard Toebben, a young German who worked for a German neighbor of mine, told me he didn't like Hitler. He said there were anti-Hitler and pro-Hitler groups in Canada at that time, 1936-1940.

He showed me propaganda leaflets to prove this. Some were in favor of Hitler, some against.

One slogan I remember was "Hoite gehaert uns Deutchland, morgen die ganze welt." — Today, we have but Germany, tomorrow, the whole world shall be ours.

Another went like this:

"Hitler hat kine frau,
Die bauer hat kine sau,
Das ist der Dritte Reich"
Die bakker hat kine teig,

— which means Hitler has no wife, the farmer has no sow, the baker has no dough, that is the Third Reich.

These Germans all agreed the British had the best Secret Service in the world. I went with Bernhard Toebben once, early in 1939, to the "Deutch-Ungarn verein" in Montreal. This is a German-Hungarian club. I remember the serious looks on the faces of the Germans as they sat quaffing their beer, Hitler had ordered the able-bodied men to come home, to swell his armies.

Another man I knew of German breed, was a Mr. Orendi. He came from Transylvania, a Romanian province. His speech was old Saxon, although he spoke German as well. He told me that his people were sent to Translyvania about 850 years ago to keep the Turks in check. The Turks at this time were invading Europe in great numbers. Before World War II, there were a million of these old Saxons in Transylvania. The Germans called them the "Saxonische volk". If Harold, the last king of the Saxons in England, were alive, he would probably understand this language. The people resemble the English in looks, and many of them in Montreal have married Old Country English people. They said the King James version of the Bible bore a close resemblance to their speech.

One spring morning in 1940, I was chatting with Mr. Orendi in his yard, when a car drove in. Out of the machine stepped the tallest Mountie I have ever seen. He must have been 7 feet tall; he was very supple too.

He spoke to Mr. Orendi: "I would like to see your papers, Mr. Orendi."

Mr. Orendi, a man of about 5 feet 3 inches in height, looked like a dwarf beside the colossal Mountie. Noticing the anxious look on Mr. Orendi's face, the Mountie spoke kindly to him: "We have nothing against you, sir, your record is excellent, all I want to see is if your papers are in order."

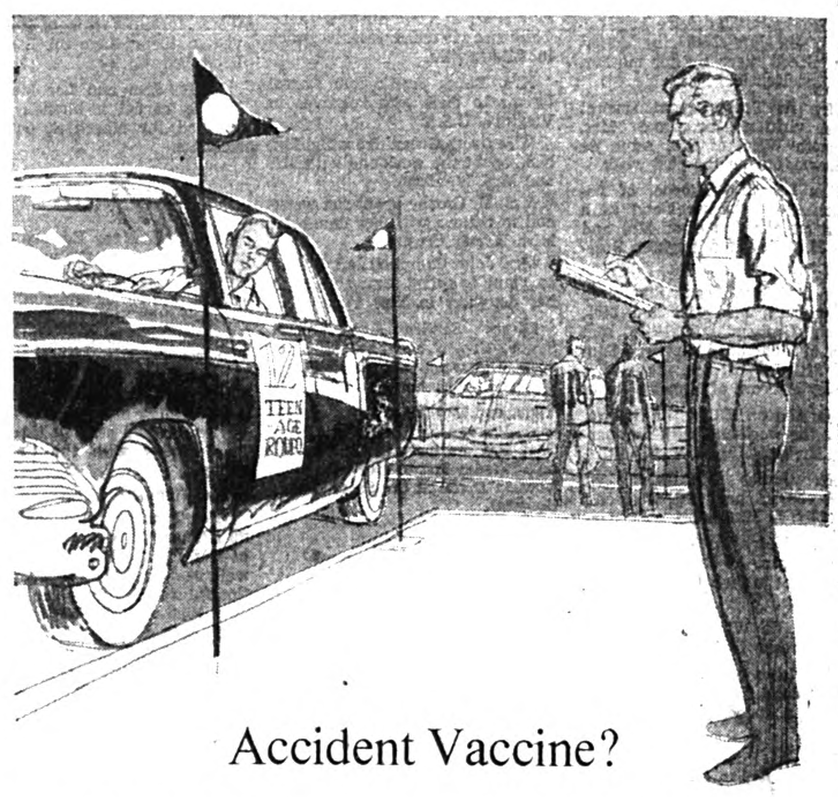

"How do you know all this about me?" asked Mr. Orendi. "We have ways of knowing what everyone is doing," the Mountie replied.

The pupils in the high schools I attended were preponderantly Jewish, and I have a great respect for Jewish intellectuality. I told a Jew, just a year ago, that his people were the smartest of all people. "No," he said, "the Germans are." I couldn't believe my ears. A third of his race had been slaughtered by Hitler's henchmen. "What about Einstein?" I countered. "Einstein had a German education," he replied.

The Jews have such a great admiration for intellectuality that they can overlook their dislike for the people that possess it. That is the only reason I can find, for this Jew saying what he did. The Jews have inter-married more with the Germans than with any other people.

Accident Vaccine?

WELL, NOT EXACTLY. Ten years ago, polio was a major killer of youth; today, vaccine has made the disease a comparative rarity. But, even when polio was claiming lives by the hundreds, traffic accidents were killing more people under 25 than any other single cause of death—and they still are.

Do we have an accident vaccine?

No. People can't be vaccinated against accidents, but the toll can be reduced through the teaching of correct driving habits—and safety habits—to our teen-age population at the formative stages in their lives.

This is what the automobile insurance business does through its sponsorship of the National Teen-age Safe Driving Championship—the culmination of a coast-to-coast series of safe driving competitions involving more than 30,000 young drivers in 225 Canadian communities each year.

Substantial reduction in general tax rate

In adopting the 1964 civic budget Lachute Town Council has given property-holders the benefit of a substantial tax reduction — from $1.50 per $100 valuation down to $1.20. There are also reductions and changes in the business tax.

Taxable immoveables have increased in the past year to $10,574,100.

Revenue Estimates

Estimated revenues are $447,670. Anticipated from general taxes is the sum of $126,889.20; sales tax, $112,000; business tax $30,000; amusement tax, $2,500; other sources, $15,050.

The waterworks revenue from Lachute, Ayersville and St. Jerusalem is estimated at $114,000.

A sum of $21,730.80 from last year's substantial surplus has been applied to this year's operating budget.

Expenditures Foreseen

The budget provides for the following expenditures in the various departments of administration:

Debt servicing (still the major expense item), $88,670; public works, $53,000; welfare, $10,000; administration, $75,000; buildings, $11,000; machinery, $31,000; waterworks and filtration plant, $48,000; roads, $16,500; garbage disposal, $17,500; police, $52,500; fire protection, $12,000; street-lighting, $15,500; bad debts, $2,000; winter works, $15,000 — for a grand total of $447,670.

The budget estimates were approved by Town Council at a special meeting last Thursday.

Business Tax

The meeting also passed a by-law amendment to effect certain reductions in the business tax.

The 6 percent-of-premises (rental) rate established in the business tax by-law, No. 236, is now reduced to 5 percent, and the minimum levy of $35 has been lowered to $25.

There is an adjustment in tax on the trucking business. The words "licensed transport companies" now reads "licensed motor-vehicle transport companies" and the rate in this case is $200 instead of $150.

Another change in the by-law is in the clause affecting refunds. There will be no refund in any levy which does not exceed $25, and there can be no refund which will reduce the total tax to a sum less than $25. In no case can the refund exceed $100.

Down from $1.50 to $1.20 per $100 valuation

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

The approach of spring is the time to avoid unsafe ice on ponds, rivers and lakes. Children, unaware of the hazard, should be sternly warned.

This week's curling news sounds a nostalgic note, recalling two teams who participated for the first time (1927) in the Quebec Challenge Cup bonspiel. Only one of those men, J. Romeo Charron, is still living — and curling. This year Lachute's entry won the cup, for the first time. (See sports news, page 2.)

Starting with a brisk response, the Lions-sponsored Easter Seals campaign is lagging this week, with companies and larger contributors down from last year's figures. Please help the crippled children, with a generous spurt to the finishing line!

The mobile driver's test unit will be in Lachute on Thursday and Friday, April 9-10, according to information received by Cpl. J. P. Dallaire. The unit is scheduled to arrive at 9 a.m. Thursday and will be in operation until noon on Friday. Persons requiring driving permits are requested to keep this date in mind.

Cpl. J. P. Dallaire, officer in charge of the local Q.P.P. detachment, returned Monday from a three-weeks course at the Quebec Police Training School, and reports a number of changes and improvements in procedure and general operations.

The Red Cross blitz drive on Monday evening resulted in the sum of $1,901.98 collected — according to the joint chairmen. Returns are not as yet complete and it is hoped a full list of the captains and district results will be available for next week.

Entry, robbery at summer residence

The summer residence of Mr. Thomas Ayers at Fraser Lake was entered twice last week, and investigating officers from the Q.P.P. detachment here report having found fingerprints, which they are sure will lead to apprehension of the culprits within several days.

Sometime between Tuesday night and Wednesday afternoon, a door was broken and a number of blankets and small items were reported missing. Entry to the building on Thursday night was made by means of a bedroom window, and a number of large items, incuding a TV set, were reported missing. It is believed a truck was used to transport the stolen goods.

Cpl. Arcouette and Cst. Descoeurs of the town police force arrested a 21-year-old stranger here in possession of a stolen automobile. A dramatic sequel to this incident was that the man, lodged in the police cells at headquarters, attempted suicide by cutting his wrist with a metal toe-plate on his shoe.

Provincial police alerted the town authorities here to watch for a 1955 Chevrolet car, stolen at Thurso, Que., last Wednesday evening. The two officers noticed a car of this description on the road passing the Riverside Restaurant. They made a quick turn and followed over Barron's Bridge, and on Main Street opposite Lacasse Automobiles they saw the car and identified the license number. The driver was ordered to follow the police car to the station, and he there admitted stealing the automobile, for which he had no registration permit.

Locking the man in the cell, the officers went outside to search the car, but were shortly called back by the desk attendant saying that the prisoner had slashed his wrist. The young man was taken to the Argenteuil Hospital, where Dr. Zoël Saindon made the necessary repairs.

The miscreant was identified as Harold Smith, whose home address is Ottawa. He was subsequently handed over to the Ontario Provincial Police.

At Rotary Club —

Bisley medallist speaks on guns and ammunition

Speaker at the regular meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club on March 12 was Major James W. Houlden, a technical engineer in the employ of C-I-L. Major Houlden was a charter member of this club when it was formed in 1945; and on this occasion the members were also pleased to welcome Mr. Sam Ross, of Verdun, charter president of the club, who made a special visit.

Major Jas. W. Houlden

Major Houlden has been a member of six Bisley teams (qualified 15 times but was only able to actually compete six times) and is a winner of three King's Medals. His topic was "A History of Modern Ammunition."

Weapons were used from earliest times in the form of clubs, bows and arrows, spears and darts. But guns and ammunition were not introduced until after the discovery that gunpowder could be made from a mixture of charcoal, sulphur and saltpetre, about 1,000 A.D. Artillery was the first application of the principle, and in 1350 Chaucer referred to "guns and pellets" in some of his writings. These first weapons were very crude, cumbersome and heavy, the powders used were very impure, and as a result many of these early guns blew up.

Around 1400 the first shoulder weapons made their appearance, and by 1500 shoulder weapons had been devised which could be fired when made ready. The first of these were the "match-locks", then came "flint-locks", and in Germany a gun made its appearance with a wheel on its side which could be wound up, and upon releasing the firing mechanism this wheel unwound, producing a spark which in turn lit a priming powder; this then ignited the main charge inside the barrel. These types of guns lasted until about 1850.

Rifling in barrels started in the early 1800's. This imparted a spin to the bullet, resulting in much greater stability in flight, and consequently much greater accuracy was obtained. Also in the early 1800's gun cotton was accidentally discovered, and this led to cordite and subsequently today's smokeless powder.

In 1807 fulminate of mercury was discovered; this led to the manufacture of detonator caps, and everything then began to change. Next came drawn cartridge casings; then came the discovery of Bessemer steel, a much purer form of iron, and the evolution to our modern, light and compact guns followed.

In 1920 non-corrosive priming was discovered in Germany, which reduced the wear on the insides of gun barrels. All told, in less than the last 50 years, accuracy has been developed from "accidental" at 100 yards to that shown in a recent experiment in which 8,000 match-grade 22's were fired at a target from a fixed barrel and the results at 100 yards showed all bullets hitting a mark the size of a quarter.

Major Houlden was introduced by Wes Freeland, and thanked on behalf of the club by John Chalmers.

Ayersv'l voting on by-law for $30 water tax

A taxpayer referendum wil be held in Ayersville — at a date to be announced this Thursday — for public approval of a by-law imposing a $30 water tax on all households.

The by-law was adopted with one councillor dissenting, Raymond Champagne, who proposed as an alternative a basic household tax of $20 for one tap and toilet, plus $3 for a bath, $1.50 for additional tap and $1.50 for additional toilet. This proposal before Council on March 12 was outvoted, and public opinion will be formally expressed on the by-law for a water rate of $30 a year.

Pay-for-councillors by-law nullified, due to protest

Taxpayers made their views decisively known at a meeting on By-law 245 last Wednesday, protesting in sufficient number to send the measure to a public referendum.

The by-law, passed in constitutional manner with a 6-3 vote of the Council, provided for a yearly stipend of $2,000 for the mayor and $1,000 for each of the nine aldermen. The measure was passed in three readings at the regular March sitting of Town Council.

Taxpayers Crowd In

The Council chamber was inadequate for the large crowd in attendance at this meeting, called Wednesday evening in conformity with the Cities and Towns Act. Many had to stand outside while the meeting was in progress.

Thirty-six taxpayers requested that the by-law be put to a public vote. The Act requires a minimum of 20 such protests, but there appeared to be a number closer to 200 present and of the same opinion.

On conclusion of the meeting Mayor Dave Campbell announced the referendum would be held April 22, and the following day, April 23, if necessary. It requires a majority in both voters and property value, to approve or reject the by-law.

The mayor presided, with the pro-mayor, Dr. R. A. Dumais, also in attendance. The clause in the Cities and Towns Act pertaining to the remuneration of council members, was formally read in French and English, likewise the by-law as appearing in the Council minutes. The mayor then answered questions put by certain taxpayers.

It is interesting to note there were a number of female property-holders in attendance.

By-law abrogated

(Late News)

At a special session of Council on Tuesday, called to discuss this issue — due to the overwhelming majority of ratepayers who expressed disfavor, and also due to the cost of holding a referendum, with indications of a negative vote — it was decided to withdraw the by-law. At this sitting it was enacted that:

1. By-law 245 providing a remuneration to the Mayor and Aldermen and adopted on 4th March, 1964, is hereby abrogated to all legal intents and purposes.

2. All procedure undertaken providing for the referendum on April 22, 1964, is hereby countermanded to all legal intents and purposes.

Six in hospital after collision west of town

Six persons were taken to hospital, two of them reported to be in critical condition, following a head-on accident on Route 8, opposite Quesnel's Restaurant several miles west of Lachute. The mishap occurred early Sunday morning, and both cars were a total loss. No charges were laid in the mishap.

In the Argenteuil Hospital are Jean-Pierre Dorais, of St. Andrews André Lalande, of St. Augustin, East, occupants of one car, and Oren Wells Robinson and Paul Sauvé, both of Vankleek Hill, Ont. Jean Pierre Lacombe, of Alfred, Ont., and Georges Ladouceur, of Vankleek Hill, were taken to Hotel Dieu at St. Jerome in critical condition. The accident was investigated by Q.P.P. officer Maurice Landry.

Found dead at Grece's Point

Douglas McKinnon, a 50-year-old resident of Grece's Point, was found dead on his verandah on Tuesday of last week, March 17. He was living alone in his house at the time of his death, and was found dead by a neighbor.

The Provincial Police were notified and the joint district coroner, Dr. Roger Lavigne, rendered a verdict of natural death. Q.P.P. officer Gilles Lavigne investigated.

The Easter outlook

Renewed hope of the Easter season is apparent in a general buoyancy of spirit — attuned also to the milder weather and expectations of spring. The religious significance is fittingly sensed; and with special services announced in all district churches, there is no doubt that Easter will be observed with fitting devotion in all faiths.

TV celebrity meets patrons of Dairy Queen

Johnny Jellybean, a well-known TV personality especially among the younger citizens, was greeted by a large crowd on Saturday afternoon when he visited the local Dairy Queen store. Al Mady, proprietor, reports the popular guest handed out no less than 700 autographed pictures, along with the season's supply of Dairy Queen souvenirs. Wholehearted co-operation from the municipal police force aided considerably in controlling the "Jellybeaners" and the adults in attendance.

Lions Club theme song gets 30th Anniversary twist

A visitor at the Lions Club meeting last week in La Lorraine Motel was Lion Mickie McKinnon from Ste. Rose-Rosemere, the current Zone Chairman, who gave a brief talk on Lionism, and its regional function in the broader aspects of the world-wide movement. He also had some constructive ideas on membership selection, and qualities required at the member level to ensure effective club operation.

The visitor was introduced by Lion Tony Zaplaski and thanked by Lion Clayton Robinson, who tendered a gift in token of the club's esteem.

President Keith Clarke reviewed the public speaking contest (held the previous evening in the Legion Hall), which had produced some excellent competition among the school students, and very gratifying results. The president thanked the committeemen and other Lions who had assisted with the program.

Col. Ernest Emmett reported progress in the Easter Seals campaign, which had proved encouraging to date.

Dr. Ben Massicotte drummed up attendance for an expedition to Roxboro (last Thursday), where the trophy was presented to that club as champions of the recent broomball set-to here at the Lions Rink.

Lion Horace Lamarche spoke on plans progressing in connection with this club's 30th anniversary, and a highlight of the meeting was the voting on entries for the anniversary theme song. The entries, 10 in number, were sung by the club quartet; and the members, with mimeographed copies of the text, cast their votes. The winning versions were by Lion Gabriel Valois (French) and Lion Don Titman (English). The club's original theme song, "Lions of the North", honored with a place in the International song book, is still going strong.

A major fund-raising effort, the annual $1,000 drawing, is now under way, to terminate on Lions' Night at Lachute Spring Fair. For this occasion some interesting entertainment is in the planning.

Bertrand L'Heureux was on hand as "tail twister", with his usual ingenuity befitting this role.

Week's Epigram

"Chances are that a boy out of school and out of a job will drift into delinquency. A total communal approach is needed, requiring the cooperation of the business community, the government and labour unions, to solve the problem of this 'bottom third'."

B'burg engineer gets promotion in RCA Victor

H. Mander Gardiner, formerly of Brownsburg and well known in that community, has been promoted to the position of manager of Record Plant Engineering at RCA Victor Company's Record Division in Smiths Falls, Ont. Mr. Gardiner succeeds M. A. Badior, who has been made plant manager of the company's new Kinescope Plant in Prescott.

Mr. Gardiner, a graduate in Mechanical Engineering from McGill (1959), spent two years in Brownsburg in the Industrial Engineering department at C-I-L, before being transferred to Mastex Industries in Brampton, Ont. In 1961 he joined RCA Victor Company Ltd. as industrial engineer in Smiths Falls. His appointment to manager of Record Plant Engineering was effective from March 9.

The Record Division plant in Smiths Falls now employs between 350 and 400 and manufactures phonograph records and their ancillary parts such as labels, masters, etc.

Lone driver misses curve, instantly killed on Rte. 8

Albert Nobert St. Onge, a 65-year-old traveller who resided at Lanoraie, near Joliette, was instantly killed Thursday evening of last week when the 1964-model car he was driving, swerved out of control at the curve where the North River montee joins Route 8, several miles west of this town.

The car was headed towards Lachute at the time of the mishap, which occurred at 10.20 o'clock. Q.P.P. officer Yvon Faucheon, who carried out the investigation, reported the car left the road, hitting the safety fence, and went a considerable distance into the field, where it struck a rock pile. The spare tire was thrown from the trunk into the wall of the Quesnel Restaurant, some 150 feet away, and the driver was found dead about 100 feet from the car.

The district coroner pronounced the death accidental. Q.P.P. officer Gerard Jeanrie was called to the scene of the accident and made the preliminary investigation.

By BOB ATCHISON

Two very large flocks of geese have been seen going over town this past week. Where these birds will land, farther north, I don't know, and it may be they will be back with us before too long. I watched a black duck disporting itself on the North River the other day, right beside the iron bridge. I guess it won't be long now before we are watching the young and their antics once again. . . Getting back to the geese, some of the winter flocks have already left the Southern States; this is earlier than other years, and I read a report that this was the earliest any flocks had ever departed. They seem to have wintered very well, and I don't imagine they would be depleted much by poaching; not in the States at any rate, the laws against this are far too strict.

Of course, we cannot blame poachers for the shortage of waterfowl. This situation has been developing for a good many years, due to pollution, sprays, droughts, etc. Ducks have slowly been dying out, and in certain parts of our country this is now a serious affair. In former years where hundreds of these birds were seen, they are now almost vanished. Wetlands are being drained at a great rate, all for the purpose of better farming, better communities, and so on. Yet don't you think we would be happier if we were able to go out and watch a few water birds during the summer? . . But such is the trend of progress.

I have written about this before and will continue to write. Our wardens are restricted in making cases in certain territories. They are supposed to be game wardens for the Province of Quebec, so why the restrictions? To my way of thinking, being a warden for the province should be for that purpose and not just limited to authority in certain areas. As most of you know, our own immediate officers are given authority in Clova during the moose season, yet from all accounts they are not allowed in certain parts of this County. Why this should be, I don't know, but it certainly needs looking into. Of course, this may apply to other counties too, but it still seems stupid having protection in certain areas only by certain wardens.

Thank all you good people who have enquired about our canary. Spadger is getting on very well; he can now find his feed and water without help from us. Last Sunday a broadcast from CFRA mentioned this little accident, and believe it or not, right after the broadcast we received calls from Vankleek Hill, L'Orignal and numerous other spots, 14 in all. . . If an outsider had heard the conversations they would have thought I was nuts! Imagine, so earnestly discussing the health of a canary!

I visited the Sportsman's Show last Wednesday, and to put it mildly, it was a poor show. Everyone I have talked to was of this same opinion. Certainly not too much sporting equipment was on display. There was some, I'll admit, but considering this show has been promoted so long, one would expect something better. Everyone seemed interested in selling you something, cokes, chips, souvenirs made in Japan, paints and what-have-you. Even the government display was a farce, and some of the company exhibits I considered in poor taste.

As you know, the fishing schedules are out; and as pointed out in this paper, they had to be corrected. This is traditional with this branch of the service. However, the law allowing certain limits is not too good. They have not changed the limits allowed out by a fisherman, no matter how long he has been away; in other words, if he spends good money for a trip, he is still allowed only the one-day limit. This is another one of those stupid laws made by "experts" who know nothing about the average fisherman. Allowing a two-day limit is the least that should have been done. I know certain groups have presented briefs for this change, but to no avail. They would much rather see the commercial netters taking all kinds of limits, in trout water or otherwise.

A couple of the varmint shooters have been out this past week, and from reports, they did well. It is kind of early to hit the crows, but I guess they just had to get out. I hope this is not too popular for a while, or these birds will become very scary. Right now I would be more interested in attacking some of the huge flocks of starlings. Boy, the reproductive capacities of these birds must be tremendous. They just take over everything. I know, once a gang of them comes into the feeders, no other species has a chance. And everything else left is unfit for the other birds to eat.

Another case of rabies has shown up, but the disease seems to have subsided a little. Maybe the sufferers have died without passing it on to any other animals; this seems unlikely, but it is possible. With the shortage of rabbits in some of the areas, for instance, there could have been little infection in this way. Let's hope it has taken its course.

This is for those select few who know about the beavers. They are getting along very well, and as far as I know, have not been disturbed during this winter. By the looks of things too, there is an increase in the family. I did hear of a gent who shot a couple of these animals this past year, which was very costly for him. So if anyone sees a beaver, leave it alone.

The North River is about due to break up soon. Of course, all you trout enthusiasts don't go for this, but I'm set to go out after those big Northerns just as soon as the water is clear. (Could be, this is the year to hook that "log".) Maybe if more of you tried this sport, then you wouldn't be so convinced that trout is the only fish. I'll admit they do not taste the same, but if you are going fishing just for food, then it's cheaper to buy it. Believe me, hooking and landing one of these monsters is a real challenge to any fisherman. I don't mean you should use a rope to take them — but the usual spinning gear, 4 lb. test line, with small spinners or spoons. If you do catch one, though, be careful of your hands in their mouths; they can give you a nasty cut. I remember many years ago around the Nipigon River, all the guides had either a finger or thumb missing from these brutes. Pretty rough on the manicure!

Our big Spring Bonspiel is now in full swing, and believe it or not, we have 150 entries in the draw. This is more teams than usual. These 150 teams are divided into eight sections and the team with the highest percentage in score in each section qualifies to play in the finals, to be held Saturday, April 4. The first section has now been played and Jim Grant's team, of Baie d'Urfé Curling Club, was the winning team in Section 1.

The ladies of the club have again undertaken to serve dinner each evening, and what a wonderful job they do. This is one of the big drawing cards in our annual bonspiel, and we are very appreciative of this tremendous help on their part. It's a lot of work, but I really think the ladies get a big kick out of it too, as they certainly seem to enjoy it. They served 62 dinners on Friday night and 117 on Saturday. This is more than last year. Keep up the good work — invite a couple of friends, come to dinner and enjoy good fellowship with our members and the visiting curlers.

Our members can look forward to a special event this Saturday evening. Our club is to be privileged to have Dr. Maurice Campbell, of Cap de la Madeleine, president of the Canadian Branch, Royal Caledonian Curling Club, play in our bonspiel. The third on this rink will be Henry Craig, of Montreal, executive vice-president of the branch; the second, William Braeside, of Cornwall, vice-president of the branch; and our own Linton Armstrong, vice-president of District 2 of the branch, as lead. Our president, Keith Rutherford, will skip a rink of past-presidents of our club to play against Dr. Campbell's team.

We have big news for you. Two Lachute teams travelled to Sherbrooke last week and won the 501st playing for the "Quebec Challenge Cup". This is the Branch competition which started in 1874. It is a double-rink event and is played for every two weeks throughout each curling season. Lachute first put in two rinks to compete in 1927, but this is the first time Lachute has ever won it. In 1927 the rinks were composed as follows: John A. Rice (skip), Gordie Fraser, J. P. MacKimmie and J. Romeo Charron. The second rink, Rev. A. G. MacKinnon (skip), Jim Gall, Bob Todd and Bob Hamilton. They lost by 12 points. Mr. Charron is the only member of these two teams still living. Romeo is still curling, and skipped a team in the opening game of this year's Spring Bonspiel.

The Canadian Branch comprises 72 clubs, all the way from Quebec City to Kingston. The next playing, the 502nd time, will be between Lachute and Pembroke, Ont. . .

Now then, the local gentlemen to be congratulated are — Art Lobell (skip), Don McFaul, Lionel Rendell and Carl Rodgers, who defeated their opponents 17 to 7; and Don Bradley (skip), Keith Rutherford, Doug MacKenzie and Lester Cheslock, who won 12 to 9. We are all very proud of you!

Maroons tied in finals after amazing comeback

Third game in B'burg Arena Sunday, Mch. 29

In what is probably the most unbelievable reversal of form in this hockey season, the Lachute-Brownsburg Maroons recovered from an 8-0 shellacking to, in turn, trounce the Crabtree Beavers 9-2, in the return game played in Joliette last Sunday night. What makes it most remarkable, is that both games were won by the visiting club and both losing teams were favorites to win the games they lost!

The first game of this final series for the championship of the Senior Laurentian Hockey League was played last Thursday in the Brownsburg Arena, before a near-capacity crowd that watched, in disbelief, the complete disintegration of the Maroons' supposedly deadly scoring attack. Many spectators, out for the first time to witness a game, were thoroughly disappointed in the players. Some of the most avid local supporters could not believe their eyes; the team executives had no answer; the coach was at a loss for words!

But the simple truth is that the Beavers had come to play hockey and they were not afraid of our reputation, while the Maroons were more or less lulled into complacency by a rather easy semi-final series victory against Ste. Therese. The Crabtree players were skating effortlessly, checking tenaciously, and scoring with a deadly eye. They had control of the puck most of the time and when they didn't, their goalkeeper was Johnny-on-the-spot with outstanding saves. This inspired play by the Beavers accounted more than anything else for their surprisingly strong showing and easy victory. On the other hand, the Maroons were muffing most of their good scoring thrusts, and when they got close enough to the enemy goal, they shot wide of the net or in the goalie's pads. After a while, this got to be discouraging. Finally, this fast skating team wasn't even skating, and the Beavers had real control of the game. Everybody left the rink displeased — some even felt the Maroons weren't even in the same league with the Beavers. This sentiment was even more emphatic after it was announced by a dictatorial decision of the league president that the next game of the series would be played in the Joliette Arena, no doubt to please the victors of the day's match. This surprising announcement was met with considerable dismay by the Maroons executives, who had spent hours trying to arrange for a convenient scheduling with Beaver management. After considerable discussion and the "or else" pronouncement of the president, the players themselves ended the affair by saying they would play in Joliette the next Sunday — and, my oh my, did they play! . . .

The Maroons, angered by the 8-0 drubbing, and needled to a top performance by an intimation that they were "quitters", poured on the poor Beavers the most devastating attack that they had seen all year. This time, it was the Maroons who were playing like everybody knew they could play. They started at the first whistle and never let up. Crabtree Beavers never had a chance.

The game was hardly started when Jacques Racine scored the first goal. Minutes later, Maurice Desrosiers had another. Then, Togo Larocque scored his first of two goals. Prévost made it 4-1. Desrosiers then scored two more. The Maroons were not to be called "quitters" by anybody, not even the league president! Before it was all over, Ouellette and Gionet had also scored, to make the final count 9-2. It was sweet revenge — a players' answer to some unearned criticism. This second game saw two young players take charge after two veterans were sent to hospital and another starry player to complete disability after a needless attack. Maurice Desrosiers, who at most weighs 140 lbs., scored three goals. On defence, "Togo" Larocque scored two goals. But he too was outstanding in defence work and in his rink-long rushes. Other players produced strong games — Marcel Paul, the goaltender, Willis McAdam when he was there, and all the others. A very satisfying victory indeed.

The next game in the finals will be played at Brownsburg Arena Sunday, March 29, at 2.30 p.m. This should be the best of the year and the one that could probably decide the championship. The two teams have now had a chance to look each other over, and both are confident of victory, although our Maroons must be given the edge since their amazing comeback. For this game and the rest of the series, the team management and the rink committee have agreed on a new admission price of 75 cents for the adults. Children's admission remains the same, 25 cents. (This decision was made after the trip to Joliette where they charge 75 cents to see this high calibre of senior hockey. And it was noted also, that even the professional Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs had raised their admission price for the play-offs by 50 cents!) . . .

Sidelights

Willis McAdam required three stitches to close a nasty cut on his lower lip, after getting hit by the puck. . . Roy Cruise needed one stitch to close a skate wound below the left hip. . . Both missed one period of the game. . . Ronnie Gionet was knocked unconscious near the end of the game when it was apparent that the Beavers were going nowhere. He recovered later in the dressing room. . . Even after their dismal showing of Thursday night, a full busload of local fans made the trip to Joliette. They were not disappointed this time. . . Don't miss the next one; it should be great.

SKI TRAILS

By ROSS COLE, Director, Ayers Ski Centre

Carnival Day this past Sunday proved to be a big success, with all the children and adults having a wonderful time.

It was a warm, clear day, just right for this type of event. The cars started rolling in around 9 a.m. and everything from big brown bears to French poodle dogs started popping out. The costumes displayed a lot of originality and skill; the members must be congratulated on the thought and work they put into them.

The first event was an obstacle race for the juniors. The course, which was set by myself, consisted of straw bales, poles, large tractor tires, etc., placed at strategic locations, and the children had to pass over, around or through them. It provided a lot of fun and laughs for the onlookers. At the completion of their run, the children had a weiner roast, with Jess Humphries in charge of keeping the fires going and Dot Humphries acting as chef.

The obstacle course for adults was similar to the children's, with a few exceptions. Mixed couples were drawn and tied together with a 6-foot length of string. If, during the run, the string broke, it had to be repaired before continuing. The hazardous course included three wine stops strategically placed to add to the enjoyment of the run. One was placed at the beginning to get them off to a good start; and, needless to say, when they finished, all were quite happy.

The day for the adults was rounded out with dining and dancing at La Lorraine Motel, where the senior trophies and prizes were presented.

This drew to a close the activities of the Ram Ski Club for this season. Despite the lack of snow this year (48" compared to 103" last year) the club, under the able leadership of Bill Jones, was a great success. This column is not large enough to include the names of all those who assisted in making it so.

Johnson boat and motor is top prize in nationwide contest

Above, the new Johnson fibreglass boat is cutting sharply through the water with its 90 horsepower outboard motor. This happy skipper has the assurance of Johnson that this type of boat is virtually unsinkable.

Johnson, the world's most famous name in outboard motors — will appear on boats in 1964 for the first time.

Two 16-foot runabouts will be produced in this line, and each has a newly-developed "gull wing" hull design, which has been in the process of development for the past eight years. Twelve of the world's leading marine designers reportedly collaborated on the "gull wing" principle.

Intensive research and testing of the "gull wing" hull has resulted in a boat bottom that produces a degree of comfort in riding quality that is completely unique in the boating field. The design also achieves a maximum stability and safety under all conditions and manoeuvres.

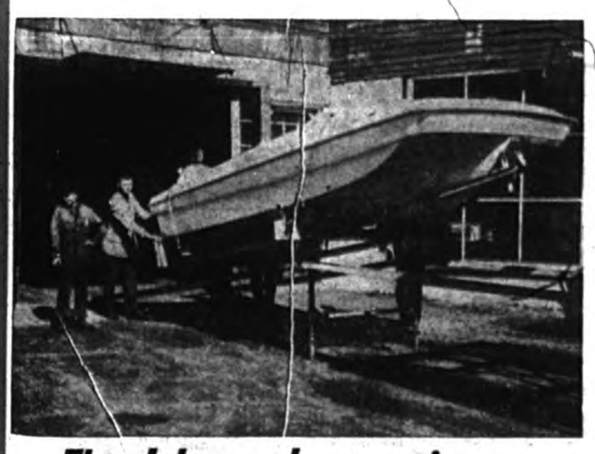

The "gull wing" is basically a deep-V-bottom design on which the centre portion of the hull flares out to form V-shaped sponsons on both sides of the bottom. These sponsons act as stabilizers. The deep-V bottom forces water upward into the troughs formed by the stabilizers, which then deflect it downward along the sides, ensuring a dry ride. This action uses the energy of the water to supply lift. The boat constantly rides on a cushion of water that gives the effect of a hydraulic shock absorber. The boat's deep-V entry into the water is sharp and clean, while the sponsons on both sides minimize the roll normally associated with an orthodox V or round bottom hull. The boat retains its level position when cutting through wakes or swells at any angle.

Johnson boats are virtually unsinkable, being moulded from reinforced fibreglass and containing 25½ cu. ft. of rigid polyurethane. This floatation material is "foamed" into the cavity between the inside boat bottom and the cockpit flooring. The boats are actually 16 feet 2½ inches in overall length, with a beam of seven feet, one inch. Textured deck surfaces help insure safe footing and reduce glare. The windshield is of plexiglass set in a sturdy aluminum frame that provides a solid hand-grip.

Bow and stern lights, steering, deck cleats, lifting rings and a dash panel with speedometer and running lights switch are standard equipment. So too is the versatile, custom-designed convertible top on the deluxe models, complete with side and rear curtains that completely enclose the cockpit.

Other features at the local boat show include the luxury 17-foot OMC Deluxe craft, and various Crestliner and Traveller runabouts, of aluminum and fibreglass construction.

The new Sunfish sailing craft, fibreglass canoes and aluminum fishing boats, in fact, everything for your boating needs including Vercheres rowboats, will be on display.

The Johnson boat arrives

First delivery of the all-new 1964 Johnson boat at Deacon Motor Sales garage took place on Friday afternoon of last week. The boat will be one of the features at the "All-Family Boat Show" which gets underway Friday of this week, in the Deacon showroom.

Johnson makes big changes in 1964 line of outboards

The 90 horsepower "Meteor" is a complete luxury boating package, with single-motion control, automatic electric transmission, 20-ampère alternator, and high-performance lower unit. Under the sculptured white hood a new crankcase design equalizes engine pressures and a four-barrel carburetor with straight-in manifold produces equal fuel distribution to each cylinder.

Only 59 pounds in weight and 34 inches long, the new 9½ has followed years of testing, development and research to learn what would best suit the customer. All controls are in the front panel of this super-quiet engine.

The new 60 horsepower model was created for families seeking power for water skiing, economy for cruising, and style to suit the demands of any runabouts in the 15-foot and up range. There is a thermostatically controlled cooling system, efficient new wiring and fuel routing systems . . . in fact most high-horsepower engine advantages at moderate price.

Coupled with the new line announcement is the shift to a 50-to-1 gas-to-oil fuel ratio on all 1964 engines, cutting oil costs in half. The previous ratio was 24-to-1, and this mixture now is recommended only for the brief break-in period, following which the 50-to-1 percentage can be used.

In addition to the three new models, Johnson's other engines for 1964 are rated at 75, 40, 28, 18, 5½ and 3 horsepower. And for the third successive year Johnson is offering its 75 and 40 horsepower models with either the single-motion Electramatic or electric starting. A third 40 horsepower model, with manual starting, also is available. Buyers of all 90, 75 and 40 horsepower models are given a choice of propellers.

Johnson's smallest, the Sea Horse 3, is offered in two models. In addition to the Anglematic weed resistant model, a lower unit with a new right-angle drive with 20 per cent more thrust has been developed, to aid the sailboat skipper using auxiliary power. In addition, a 15-inch lower unit extension to accommodate high sailboat transoms is available.

All models include refinements over their 1963 counterparts and all carry Johnson's two-year warranty. The hot air choke has been added to the 40 and 75 horsepower motors.

Fun afloat – making captains out of kids

Kids can't drive a car or fly an airplane. But, behind the wheel of an outboard boat headed for the open water, they can be captains of all they survey — provided the senior captain is on hand to supervise — cautions the Outboard Marine Boating Clinic.

It is natural as learning to walk for the youngster to want to drive a vehicle. The most appealing toys to an infant are those which allow him to exercise control over something in motion. He starts with a rocking horse and stroller, graduates to a tricycle and then on to the bicycle. From the time he learns to master a bicycle until he is old enough to drive the car is an eternity to most kids. But when boating became a family affair, it was only natural that the kids be allowed to drive. With hands on the wheel and eyes on the horizon, the youngster can experience a thrill that comes in no other way. The advent of remote steering, electric starting and full gear shift with forward, reverse and neutral made it as easy and safe for a kid to drive the family boat as his own bicycle.

Experienced hands should always be at the wheel when a boat is operated in crowded quarters such as narrow channels, boat basins or waterways crowded with other boats. However, on the open water of a wide river or lake, the youngsters can be allowed to take the wheel and handle the throttle with proper adult supervision. How old need they be? It all depends upon how well they understand the handling characteristics of the boat and how much responsibility they can assume. Even the very young can be allowed to sit on the skipper's lap and handle the wheel, while most any youngster of 10 years or older can handle the boat by himself.

Common sense should indicate the limitations. The skipper can always exercise a restraining hand on the throttle if the young captain gets over ambitious with the speed, or he can always lend a hand and give advice on proper steering.

Even though he may be under supervision when piloting the family boat, the youngster will have the feel of controlling a power-driven vehicle. Proper safety and courtesy habits will be developed early. The youngster allowed to be the pilot occasionally, will grow up to be a safe boatman, respectful of the rights of others and courteous to all with whom he shares the waterways.

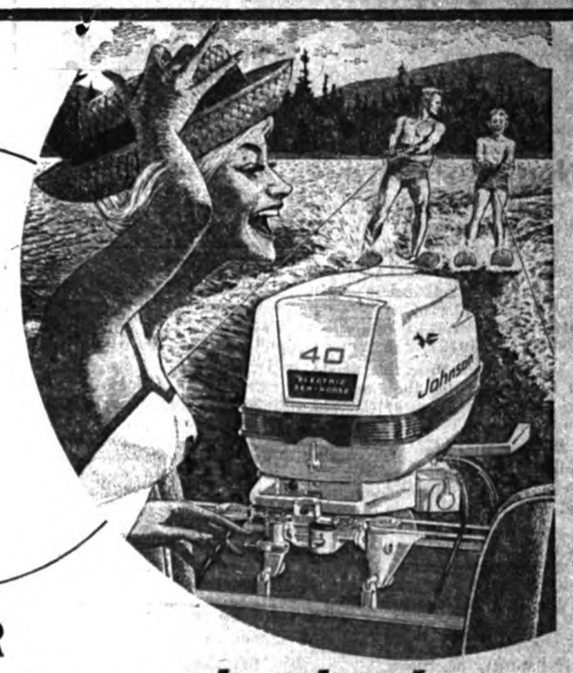

A boat lends itself to fulfilling the dreams of young captains better than any other means of transportation. Outboards have become increasingly simple to operate. They move slower than automobiles and are as easy to handle. They are normally driven in open water and are not confined by a roadbed as is the family car. As previously stated, when moving in narrow channels or crowded areas, the young skipper can be an observer, not a driver.

No family-loving father can resist the thrill evidenced by his youngsters when they are allowed to take the wheel of the family boat, whether it be just for a few moments or for a regular watch on a long cruise.

As usual, proper safety precautions should always be taken with youngsters aboard. Each youngster should be fitted with a life jacket, schooled in the "rules of the road" and taught basic boating courtesy.

The outboard motor has made captains out of kids, offering them a thrill never before experienced. And these early thrills pay the added dividend of safety education which will stand the young captain in good stead when he becomes the captain of his own boat in years to come. With proper training now, a generation of safe boaters can be developed for the years ahead, when the waterways are certain to become even more crowded.

Things 'n Stuff

By Walter Henry Jackson

THE NEW CANADIAN

The life of a poet would be sweet, if not sweeter, if he paid no attention to rhythm or metre. His disposition would be calm, if not calmer, if he did what he darn well pleased with spelling and gralmer. If he could disregard all rules of the English language and still make enough money to buy himself a ham or cheese sanguage.

It must be tough for a foreigner — a New Canadian or D.P. — to emigrate from Europe expecting to live in an Indian tepee, and then find he has to live in a rented room in a block of houses infested by mice and learn that it is not good English to say that the mouses are infesting a block of hice. For if mice is the plural of mouse, and not mouses, then why isn't hice the plural of house, and not houses? A moose is bigger than a mouse, but two of them are still moose and not mooses. Which makes the New Canadian wonder, if English grammar has any uses. And when a farmer wants to raise a barn he holds a barn raising, but if he wants to pull down an old barn, this is also called razing. And when a costumer sells a costume to a customer, the customer is called the consumer. No wonder the poor foreigner keeps making a bloomer. And if the customer goes to the U.S.A., it is customary to stop at the Customs and declare the costume; but the D.P. would not be accustomed to the custom as is customary, but would stop there anyway for a cup of coffee or Postume. So then the Customs would see the customer's costume and make her pay the duty, for it would be his duty to collect the duty due, even if the customer was a cutie and a beauty too. And if the foreigner bought a pear he would have a pear; but if he bought two he would have a pair of pairs. A pair of scissors is a single article of two parts, but each part is not called a scissor. Which would be a good subject for a Quiz program to puzzle the quizzer. But if the D.P. tried to pare a pear with a pair, how could he distinguish the what, why and how, when he tried to write it down and express himself in English?

He learns that the day breaks, but does not fall, and the night falls but does not break. And that "more often" is good English, but "less seldom" would be a mistake.

So be patient with the New Canadian and treat him to cake and sandwiches, for he probably is an educated man, and with the exception of English, speaks six or seven langwitches.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Glaucoma is painless attacker

Toronto — Paul C. O'Neill, director of public relations for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, gives excellent advice on the subject of glaucoma, a leading cause of blindness.

According to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, one out of every fifty Canadians over 40 years of age suffer from this disease, and most of them don't know it. These men and women are slowly losing their sight because of ignorance and neglect. Most of the victims of glaucoma had normal sight most of their lives, but glaucoma rarely strikes until after 40.

If you are in this age bracket you have a direct interest in knowing how to defeat glaucoma. Here are two important points to remember:

1. It is difficult to detect in the first stages.

2. It can usually be checked if caught early.

How Glaucoma Destroys Sight

The eyeball is shaped much like a basketball. But instead of air, a thick, jelly-like fluid fills most of the eyeball to give it a shape. During the first stages of glaucoma, the pressure of this fluid in the front of the eyeball mysteriously increases. Nobody knows just why the pressure rises. The fluid in the rear of the eyeball — under the increased pressure from the front — pushes against the retina, which is located at the back of the eyeball. The job of the retina is to receive light rays entering the eye and send them back to the brain, where the rays are then recognized as images.

At first, the increased fluid pressure damages only those retinal nerve fibres which enable you to see on each side. As a result, side vision is gradually destroyed. In the final stages of the disease, the pressure destroys the nerves which permit front or central vision, and all sight is gone.

Symptoms

— Frequent changes of glasses without satisfactory results.

— Inability to adjust the eyes to darkened rooms.

— Loss of side vision.

— Blurred or foggy vision.

— Rainbow-colored rings around lights.

The Risen Christ

It has been wisely said that no spiritual act is complete till it has been first prayed and then done. And after that comes the call to a purer prayer and nobler act. Such is the spiral stair by which man may ascend to heaven.

A chemical experiment may start with certain ingredients, but a new chemical may come in and entirely alter their character. . .

And so it was with the Christ — on that first Easter morn, that Christ fulfilled his earthly life of prayer and devotion, and injected a whole new meaning to the fact of Death. He removed the sting and fear of Death, to those who believed in Him.

As the Apostle Paul said: "Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, immoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord." Through his Passion, His Resurrection, and His life we have a new grasp of things eternal, which were hidden from mankind for millions of years.

Easter is now with us as a day of jubilation, to be marked this Sunday, but in reality it is experienced each and every day that we know our Risen Lord.

"Does the road wind uphill all the way ?
Yes, to the very end.
Will the day's journey take the whole long day ?
From morn to night, my friend." (CGR)

— Reverend Horace G. Baugh

Morris of Timothy Eaton Memorial Church officiated at the marriage of Thomas Barry Wilson Pyke, son of Mrs. Earl Seip and the late Charles Pyke, of Toronto, and Margaret Hazel Belanger, daughter of Mrs. William Belanger and the late William Belanger, of Montreal. The bride wore a floor-length white satin gown and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

She was attended by Miss Lillian Holder as maid of honor, and Miss Phyllis Hilson, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid. They were attired in aqua-colored chiffon dresses. Little Miss Barbara Nicholls was flower girl, dressed in white chiffon. They carried nosegays of white and pink carnations.

The groom was assisted by Mr. Harold Sanderson as best man. Ushers were Mr. Bill Voader and Mr. John Kinnon.

Out-of-town guests were Miss Violet Belanger, sister of the bride, from Montreal, Miss Vera Enticnap of St. Catharines, Miss Irene Riddell, of Galt, and Miss Betty Blair and Miss Dorothy Fields, of Hespeler.

Following the marriage ceremony a reception was held at Deer Park United Church.

The couple left for a trip to Ottawa, Lachute and Montreal, the bride travelling in a white brocade suit, green coat and white accessories.

H. & S. Speaker

Dr. Jane Catterson of the Quebec Department of Education, formerly of Lachute High School staff, addressed the Chateauguay Valley Home and School Association recently on the subject of "Modern Reading Programs" in the schools.

Don't Quit!

When things go wrong as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all uphill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile
but you have to sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest if you must — but never quit.

Life is queer with its twists and turns
As every one of us sometimes learns,
And many a failure turns about
For you might have won if you'd stuck it out.
So stick to your task, though the pace seems slow,
You might succeed with one more blow.

Often the goal is nearer than
It seems to a faint and faltering man
Often the struggler has given up
When he might have captured the victor's cup,
And he learned too late when the night slipped down
How close he was to the golden crown.

Success is failure turned inside out
The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
And you can never tell how close you are
It may be near when it seems afar;
So stick to the fight when you're hardest hit
It's when things seem worst that you mustn't quit.

An Easter Hymn

On Calvary's brow my Saviour died,
'Twas there my Lord was crucified;
'Twas on the cross He bled for me,
And purchased there my pardon free.

'Mid rending rocks and darkening skies,
My Saviour bows His head and dies,
The opening veil reveals the way
To heaven's joys and endless day.

O Jesus, Lord, how can it be
That Thou shouldst give Thy life for me?
To bear the cross and agony
In that dread hour on Calvary!

Where Jesus shed His blood for me;
O Calvary! dark Calvary!
'Twas there my Saviour died for me,
O Calvary! blest Calvary!

Que. firms study move to Ontario

Pembroke, Ont. — William Urquhart, acting manager of the Eastern Ontario Development Association said recently that negotiations are continuing in efforts to help a number of Quebec-based companies relocate in eastern Ontario.

Mr. Urquhart told Pembroke town council recently that a number of "fairly large" firms had expressed interest in moving from Quebec to Ontario. He declined to name the companies or to say why they wished to move.

The Bible Today

Two items of interest from Central and South America relate to the advance of the Bible in this hemisphere.

When the Third International Book Fair was held in 1962, Bible Society work in Columbia was under a cloud. There were organized demonstrations against the Bible stall, which police wanted to close.

In the better atmosphere of 1963, the Bible Societies were awarded a certificate of merit by the International Book Fairs Association for the layout of their exhibit in Bogota. The Bible itself proved to be the 1963 Book Fair's "best seller" with a total of 1,350 copies compared with a novelette which came second with 400 copies only.

Church and Bible Society co-operation was advanced by a luncheon at the Chapultec Restaurant in Mexico City when the Bible Societies of Latin America acted as hosts to some of the members of the Commission on World Mission and Evangelism of the World Council of Churches.

Guests included Dr. Visser 'T Hooft, Bishop Newbigin, Bishop Sadiq and Dr. Niemoller. In his reply to the address of welcome Dr. Visser 'T Hooft paid tribute to the life-changing power in the Scriptures and praised the increasingly happy relationship between the Bible Societies and the World Council of Churches.

EASTER MEDITATION —

Christianity, the One Foundation

THE GREAT EVENT commemorated on Easter Sunday means more to the world than any other event in history. . . Does that sound to you like a pious platitude? Then ask yourself what other event has brought results comparable to those produced by the resurrection of the crucified Christ.

Had Christ not risen from the dead, we do not see how the world could have had a Christian Church. The little body of disciples who had lost their Master were a group of thoroughly disheartened people. The Resurrection — and the mysterious events that followed it — put new heart in them. When Peter could say, "This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses," they were changed men. They founded the Christian Church. They sent out missionaries, and wherever they went, they formed branches of the Christian Church.

What would be the state of the world today if there were no Christian Church?

The Church, despite its many weaknesses has accomplished much. It has without doubt been the most active leaven at work in the growth of our Western civilization for the past 2,000 years. The Christian Church is responsible for the sublime idea of the sanctity of human life. The Church has liberated the poor from slavery and womankind from degradation. The whole basis and much of the superstructure of democracy is a direct product of Christian influence. Let no one say the Church has failed, the Church which is the Body of Christ in and through which His Spirit lives and works. Underlying all our differences is a common faith, and beneath all our divisions one Spirit is operative, the Spirit of Christ.

Canada in peace-keeping role

IT SEEMS THAT anytime the United Nations decides to set up an international peace-keeping force for some trouble spot, Canada almost automatically gets a call to provide some of the troops.

The reasons aren't difficult to figure out. For one thing, we're a country without any territorial or colonial ambitions and just about everyone knows it. For another, our troops have proved themselves several times in this sort of job.

Of course, the whole idea of sending such forces is Canadian-inspired. It was Lester Pearson, then Canada's external affairs minister, who proposed a UN Emergency Force be sent to the Egypt-Israel border after the Anglo-French-Israeli invasion, a plan that earned him the Nobel Peace Prize.

There are almost 1,000 Canadian army and air force personnel in the 5,300-man UNEF today and the absence of violence along the border they patrol is evidence of the success of the effort.

With the Middle East as a precedent, Canada was willing to contribute when the UN sent an international contingent to The Congo during the mutinous days of 1960. There were some early difficulties there, and there has been further violence in recent months, but all in all that operation was successful, too, and the work of several hundred Canadian army signallers, most of them bilingual, had a lot to do with it.

Latterly, the UN asked Canada to provide men for a peace-keeping force in Cyprus, the Mediterranean island torn by differences between Greek and Turkish Cypriots. In this case, however, the government didn't accept immediately. It wanted some assurance that the force would be able to function effectively. Troops and equipment have since been despatched to the troubled area and there is confidence that, with reasonable co-operation from the people of the country, their assignment will be successful. Strange as it may seem, a peace-keeping contingent is able to handle only minor skirmishes with relative ease; it's not equipped to handle an all-out war.

Colorful colloquy

WHEN YOU'RE arguing about the match of your wife's new hat and her Easter apparel, it may console you to know that few, if any, are qualified to judge. For there is no such person as a "normal" observer of color, according to a leading Canadian dye specialist; and the point is of interest in this community where textiles are made, and where designers and colorists are a revered clan.

There is so much difference between so-called normal trichromats — people whose vision matches three primary colors — that a perfect match by any one of this group appears this way to only a small number of the group.

"The realization of this diversity among persons of normal vision has helped to lessen those frictions which are based upon the unrealistic assumption that vision is a constant quantity," said J. K. Mattear, of Sandoz (Canada) Ltd., Don Mills, Ont., to a meeting of the Eastern Townships Textile Association in Sherbrooke, Que.

He said that recent studies had revealed that approximately 8% of the white males and 0.5% of the white females in the U.S.A. possess color vision which is below that of the normal trichromat.

The physicist maintains that the primary colors are red, green and blue, but the textile dyer upholds blue, yellow and red. "The difference is that the physicist deals with light, and the dyer with a material substance — dyestuffs," said this authority.

Aristotle was the first to realize that color and light were in some way related, he said, but there was no significant improvement in lighting methods from 2500 B.C. to the beginning of the 19th century. The tremendous advancement in knowledge since then was described in scientific terms as a preliminary to the discussion on color vision.

Viewpoints and perspectives

THE DUPLESSIS STATUE. — This newspaper has disagreed many times with what the late Mr. Duplessis said, or did . . . and we made no secret of it. We cannot, however, see what harm a statue of this man can do if it is placed on public exhibition as an object of historical record. After all, he was Premier of Quebec.

— Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner

SALT THE BEST ANSWER. — You may loathe and detest salt on your streets in winter, but North American cities with a snow and ice problem will continue to use thousands of tons of the stuff, Frank Oxley writes in The Financial Post. A survey of winter conditions from St. John's to Vancouver shows that no better medium than salt has been discovered to melt snow and ice at low cost. Four leading U.S. cities endorse this viewpoint. A Metropolitan Toronto survey showed that expensive inhibitors can cut down on the car-corrosion rate, but with erratic results not worth the high cost. A spokesman in Hartford, Conn., summed up the use of salt on streets this way: "Since the public expects almost July-bare pavement in January, salt or some other chemical is likely to be in use for some time."

A JUNK HEAP seems an odd barometer of prosperity, but to car manufacturers it is one of the best of business indicators. And in Canada last year, they report, 283,000 old cars went to the wreckers and the scrap metal yards. The scrappage of old cars, they say, was the main factor in boosting new car sales to a record high of 560,000. Truck sales, at 95,000 units, were also at a new high.

VIOLENCE UNNECESSARY. — If only a few neurotics like Chaput and Caouette would shut up and quit trying to incite mob violence, the revolution now taking place in Quebec might be one of the best things that has ever happened to Canada.

THIS WEEK & NEXT

A New Dominion

By RAY ARGYLE

The dominion-provincial fiscal conference in Quebec City next week marks a new round in the stiffening struggle between Ottawa and the provinces for supremacy in the collection and spending of taxes throughout Canada.

As such, the conference will touch on the most sensitive nerve-end of the entire Canadian Confederation — more sensitive even than such emotion-charged issues as Quebec separatism and U.S. control of Canadian industry.

RAY ARGYLE

The reason for this is that while all these issues are bound up together in the general question of Canada's future as a nation, none is more fundamental than control of government revenues.

The Confederation that we know today is not the Confederation as laid down in the British North America Act of 1867. And it is efforts by certain provinces to get back to the original intent of that act which has caused many of the current stresses between Ottawa and the provinces.

Under the strains of war and the growth of government services undreamed of a century ago, the original spirit of Confederation has been reshaped until today provincial authority has been eroded almost to the vanishing point.

Now, at a time when a minority government in Ottawa must deal with unusually well entrenched provincial administrations, complicated by renewed French-Canadian demands for autonomy, the country is finally recognizing that the BNA Act is no longer a workable constitution.

The Act has foundered on two main obstacles. First, it reserved rights to the provinces which the provinces are today incapable of financing.

Education, highways and welfare, which a century ago were items of minor concern or cost, remain provincial responsibilities. The cost of these services is today staggering, and will grow as the country grows. This is why the wealthier provinces, and not just Quebec alone, are demanding a return of traditional tax fields to the provinces.

The second rock on which the BNA Act has foundered is that it remains an act of a British parliament, over which Canada has no vested control. Until it is replaced by a constitution of purely Canadian origin, it will be more divisive than unifying as a foundation for the Canadian nation.

Is the solution, then, merely to rewrite the BNA Act with a Canadian constitution and restore to the provinces such original rights as the raising of most taxes?

Unfortunately, no, because it is only Ottawa's intervention in the tax field which has held Canada together. The principle of provincial taxation is inconsistent with federalism, and will remain so despite such theories as "co-operative federalism" now being advanced by the Pearson government.

Canada needs more than a new constitution — it needs a New Dominion which would somehow grant to the provinces a degree of independence without balkanizing the country to the point of destroying the nationhood we are now struggling to preserve.

SUGAR AND SPICE

Luck To The Burtons!

By BILL SMILEY

A great load has been lifted from my mind. For a while there, I thought that chap, Richard Burton, was not going to do right by our Liz. Now I can sleep o' nights.

Bill Smiley

And I was delighted that they were married in Canada. Even though it took place in Montreal, and everybody is aware that Montreal is a wicked, wicked place, being married in Canada is a pretty serious proposition, as we all know, don't we?

I wonder if anyone pointed out to the happy couple that a Quebec marriage can be dissolved only by an act of Parliament. There could be some mighty exciting times in the House of Commons in a couple of years. Or six months.

Can't you just hear the separatistes bellowing that the English are trying to ram this divorce down the throat of La Belle Province, and thereby insulting her sacred traditions, detaining her ancient glory and honor?

Anyway, it was a fine ceremony: the English-born American film star of Jewish faith, married to the Welsh Presbyterian stage actor by a Unitarian minister in a French-Canadian city. On Sunday.

A pretty select company at the wedding, too. A few friends, a gaggle of lawyers, and a brace of public relations men. None of those maiden aunts weeping all over the bride's make-up.

I'll bet that, even if the groom was a little rusty, Liz knew her lines. This was her fifth appearance in that particular scene. She'd scarcely need prompting.

The groom had been through the ropes only once before. This culminated in a Mexican divorce last December, which is reported to have cost him $1,500,000. Question: Would you pay that to get rid of your wife? Depends on whether you had it, you say? Sorry I asked.

I'll bet I know what you're thinking. You're thinking I am writing this snidely, with tongue in cheek. You're wrong. I'm just glad things are settled so my wife can get back to the ironing.

A lot of people, including some who wouldn't give a nickel to their blind leper cousin if he ran around with girls, have taken a very dim view of the behavior of the glamorous pair. People have told me, with great satisfaction, that Toronto's upper crust deliberately ignored them.

Admit it, girls. Who would you rather be than Liz Taylor? Four husbands behind you, four kids, a couple of million bucks in the bank, and Richard Burton and a ring, all at the age of 32. Admit it, chaps. Where is the hardship in getting home from work and having Miss Taylor throw herself on your bosom?

They may not be Abelard and Heloise, Charles II and Nell Gwyn, or Napoleon and Josephine, but they have given us a love story with enough color, dash and flair to stir even Canadians in the grip of March.

Mr. Burton is the most electric actor I've ever seen. Miss Taylor is a lady I would definitely cross the street to chat with. Good luck to them. And if it's any help, my wife says, "This will definitely last. She's found the right man."

Easter vacation time

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"On Easter let your clothes be new,
Or else be sure you will it rue."
— Old English rhyme

Wearing new clothes to church on Easter Sunday morning is a custom in many lands. But what to do with the children during the holidays is just as much of a problem to busy mothers as trying to make the money stretch to cover the clothing needs of the family. Here are a few suggestions which can be used either at a children's party or for the 'small fry' when their chums come indoors to play on rainy days in the vacation period.

The new Easter hat is a real event in even a "little" woman's life. If your daughter belongs to a club, perhaps she would like to have the members in for an Easter Bonnet party. If you can find a milliner who is willing to be a special guest, have her demonstrate some principles in choosing and trimming a hat. This is sure to be popular.

If this is not possible, get several rolls of crepe paper in Spring shades, and have a competition for the prettiest crepe chapeau. Small girls can make a charming little hat, using a large size paper pie plate as a brim, with the crown cut out to fit the head, crepe ties under the chin, and crepe ribbon or flower trimmings.

A newspaper fashion show never fails to make a hit! Divide the players into groups of three. Hand each group four or five newspapers and a package of ordinary pins. Give them two minutes only in which each group will choose which one will be the "model" for a newspaper dress and hat. Then have the other two players fashion the most original newspaper outfit they can design. Warn the amateur dressmakers in their haste not to prick their model with a pin, and not to copy any other group's pattern. Award copies of a week-end newspaper with picture section and comics to the members of the team who create the most effective outfit.

Here are two Easter hat circle games. In the first, two old hats are passed around the circle to music. When the music stops, the persons holding a hat must drop out. Thus, the object of the game is to pass the hat along to the player on the left as quickly as possible. In the other game, the players stand in a circle holding each other's wrists and walk around an old felt hat. Each player attempts to pull the player on either side toward the centre so that he must step on the hat. The players who touch it are eliminated, until only one player is left as winner.

Many old favorites in games can be changed slightly for Easter fun. Instead of "Hide the Thimble," why not hide a tiny chocolate bunny wrapped in tinfoil? A "peanut hunt" can be converted into a search for small colored candy eggs. Substitute "Put the ears on the rabbit" for "Pin the tail on the donkey." The bunny may be outlined on a big sheet of paper. A ring-tossing game with ordinary embroidery hoops or Mason jar rings can be called "Bunny Ring Game." Each player tries his luck at ringing an upright cardboard bunny's ears, mounted on plywood or tacked to a large carton.

In a home where mother is in the background willing to cooperate by helping to find the necessary equipment for play, boys and girls and their chums usually become quite expert at making their own good times. This is an important part of training them to be independent, happy adults who will know what to do with their leisure. Parents who realize this can be more patient during vacation days when in Burns' words, "The mirth and fun grows fast and furious."

Walls feature cotton fabrics

Walls have had a lot of things put up against them — paper, dart boards, blindfolded revolutionaries — but today the vogue is cotton fabrics on the wall.

Interior decorators, both professional and amateur varieties, are using more and more cotton fabrics on walls in many ingenious new ways to enhance the decor of all rooms.

The history of fabric covered walls actually goes back to the time of the Renaissance when tapestry walls were considered the height of elegance. Some fabric walls were seen even after wallpaper was introduced, but the current renewed interest in fabric for walls is probably part of the "return to elegance" trend. Also, decorators have found that coordination between walls and furniture is easier to achieve with all cotton fabric than with companion wallpaper since the selection is unlimited and there are no problems of color shadings.

In fact, variety of fabric texture, color, and weight is one of the big reasons why all-cotton fabrics are leading the "climbing the walls" trend. Almost any kind of sturdy, closely woven fabric is suitable for walls, and there are more colorful, exciting cottons of this type than any other fibre.

Using cotton fabric to cover walls also reduces noise. The fabric alone is an effective and inexpensive acoustical material, but some interior designers take this a step further by attaching thin layers of cotton batting to the wall that also cuts down the volume of noise reception from the apartment next door — a factor of great importance in some new buildings.

Coordination is the secret in this room. Cream-colored cotton window shades, trimmed with the same fringe as the tie-back draperies, coordinate with a cool cream and citron yellow floral design applied to the walls.

Black in the boudoir is not a cure for insomnia, but the latest thing in household cottons. Canadian sheets and pillowslips have come a long way since the first timid pastel colorings ended the absolute reign of surgical white bed coverings.

The black striped or polka-dotted bed cottons are not as startling as you think. I first saw them in a bedroom display done in the Spanish theme and the black and white decor looked very smart sparked with red.

While the appeal of black may be limited to sophisticated decorating schemes, the introduction of this color is an exciting turn in the fashion cycle which has seen Canadian textile mills stock "linen" closets with a rainbow of colors and patterns.

The whole character of household cottons has changed so fast and fabulously — from mattress tickings inside to bedspreads outside — that it really is possible to redecorate every time you change the bed.

You can find sheets, pillowslips and matching blankets strewn with flowers, striped in myriad ways, polka-dotted, colored shades, and banded with printed, woven or contrasting borders. Every pattern or style is available in a range of colors which further widens the mix and match possibilities.

The familiar blue-and-white or gray-and-white mattress tickings are almost lost among the array of glamorized prints, florals and damasks. Bedding is getting larger too: wider and longer and the endless variety of bed coverings are made in as many as 12 different sizes ranging from crib to Hollywood.

Blankets have become so pretty they are often used as spreads and many are decoratively coordinated with sheets and pillow styles. There are other changes too. Canadian mills making wool blankets have developed a variety of blends with man-made fibres to make their products more easily washable, economical or quick drying. The cotton blanket has also been given new qualities by blending.

Colorful household cottons are as practical as they are decorative. The modern dyestuffs used in the glamorization will stand up to the life-time washing cycle. Various qualities of sheets made in Canada are clearly labelled as to thread count and finished size, or size "after hemming", unlike imported U.S.A. sheets, which shows sizes before hemming.

Canada is full of happy housewives who claim that fitted sheets are the greatest thing to happen since the box spring and mattress. These time and comfort savers are also as decorative as the flat sheets.

Half the total number of household cottons made in Canada are sold to hospitals, hotels, motels and the demand for plain white continues. The problems of mass bed-making no doubt discourage the decorative approach.

Not so with the individual. Besides indulging in colorful cottons for the bed, she has learned that modern sheets make excellent curtains, dresser skirts, and slipcovers which are not only easy to wash and iron but provide the co-ordinated look of professional decorating. Whether her tastes run to black polka dots or pink roses, the consumer knows she can do far more with a sheet than make the bed.

Easter association, pagan origin — hot cross buns and other varieties

You may thank the moon for your hot cross buns!

In pagan times, worshippers set aside certain days to honor the Moon Goddess and to her temples they brought special "moon cakes" each imprinted with oxen's crossed horns.

The ancient Greeks baked similar cakes to honor the Moon Goddess, but they interpreted the crosses as the four phases of the moon. Early Saxons ate what they called crossed bread in honor of the Goddess of Light (according to mythology quoted by the Montreal Bakers Association).

During the early Christian era, efforts were made to outlaw the baking of cakes to honor Selene, Luna and Diana, as the goddess was known. But realizing the difficulty of divorcing people from the celebration of traditional festivals, wise leaders adapted certain pagan customs to the new era and gave them new meaning.

Thus the marks on the bun became a symbol of Christianity and the baking of the buns became an exclusive rite of the Church. In England, in the middle of the 13th century, demand for these crossed buns became so great that bakers began making them in competition with the ecclesiastical authorities.

Although the practice was forbidden, the unhallowed buns sold like hot cakes. Gradually, as Protestantism spread, the ban was removed and Lenten buns were no longer considered holy bread.

Two small bakers in Chelsea became especially famous for their buns, and on Good Friday morning as many as 50,000 persons often patronized them, taking warm buns home in large baskets covered with flannel and white cloths. George III himself became a regular customer, calling in person for his tasty wares.

Today people all over the world have become acquainted with the sweet, spicy flavor of hot cross buns.

ONLY FRUIT CROP

The native low blueberry bush is the only commercial fruit crop in Newfoundland.

Dear Doris

Canadian social worker Doris Clark invites you to write her about your problem. She answers letters of general interest in this column but can't undertake personal replies.

DEAR DORIS —This letter is in regard to your remarks about kissing on the first date. In our area, at least, a girl becomes well acquainted with a boy before she goes out with him (except, of course for blind dates) and she is already fond of him. We don't consider it cheap to have one good night kiss on the front porch (or back porch, for that matter!). That is a nice way of saying, "Thank you, I had fun. Let's go out again sometime."

Could you possibly tell us other opinions which you have received? We'd like to see how others our age feel about it.

TWO MIDDLE TEENS

DEAR TWO—It depends. Your phrase "and she is already fond of him" is the crux of the matter. I know many first dates which are far more casual than this.

Other opinions are invited. Write to me, girls—and boys! I'll publish what I can find room for.

DEAR DORIS — I am a man 26. Have two brothers and a sister. Since my first days at school I have been very quiet. I am almost always home alone with our mother.

I do shopping, belong to our choir. But everything else I do with my mother; no one else in the family ever takes her out. I don't like it but how do I tell her? And how do I get confidence in myself?

TIMID TOM

DEAR TOM — Cut the apron strings. Every family member should be helping you instead of shirking a share. You need not feel guilty if your mother is alone sometimes, as she too is a person with resources, and need not indulge in self-pity.

Get into the passing parade by joining the activities which are going on around you. One learns to mix by mixing.

DEAR DORIS — Next month my husband and I are moving into a new house. We would like to have a housewarming.

Could you suggest some simple refreshments that wouldn't run into a lot of money?

TWENTY-THREE

DEAR TWENTY THREE —You don't have to break the bank to have a good time. I have just the ticket for you: a leaflet called Party on a Shoestring. Write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and it will be mailed to you. (Note to readers: This helpful pamphlet is available to anycne writing in as indicated.)

* * *

Confidential to Distressed Husband — By indignant outbursts in which she criticizes you, your wife shows just how inferior and hopeless she feels underneath. Your passive, analytical response doubtless infuriates her further. The migraine and stomach ulcers may well spring from tensions related to emotional disorder. Do try a psychiatrist.

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Not everyone approves of the Girl Guides.

Some mothers in South American countries are slow to let their daughters join the Guides because they think it might make tomboys of their sheltered girls.

Dictators don't like Guiding. They don't like what it stands for, and they don't like groups of people exchanging views.

Mrs. Stephen Dermady, of New York City, said on a visit to Toronto that in spite of the odds against it, there are 35,000 Girl Guides in Latin America, some in every country except Cuba.

Mrs. Stephen Dermady, who has helped to build Guiding in many of the southern countries, is a director of the World Bureau of the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts, and executive secretary of the western hemisphere committee.

See Them March

Explaining the difference in parental attitudes, she said: "People there don't always understand what Guiding is. They see Boy Scouts marching in parades and they think that is what the girls will do. They are afraid girls will become less feminine if they join the Muchachas Guias.

"The role of women has not developed as it has here. The educational system is still the old pattern of lecture rather than doing. Planning is a new thing to some of the girls who do join."

Brazil is the only country in South America where the organization is more than 10 or 15 years old. In most countries it got its start during and after the Second World War.

In some countries it was started only to be outlawed by a dictator. In some it was voluntarily disbanded when a ruler tried to use it as the nucleus of a fascist-style youth group. "It takes courage to keep the Guide movement free and independent under a dictator," Mrs. Dermady said.

The western hemisphere committee has a panel of 13 Spanish-speaking Guide trainers who will go to a Latin American country on request, to work with potential leaders and Guides. Mrs. Dermady said requests for help have sometimes come in to the head office as soon as two weeks after the death or deportation of a dictator.

Boiling Beans

She said activities change from country to country, and describes a camp she attended a few weeks ago in El Salvador, a Central American republic.

In Latin America girls do not pitch tents and camp out. The El Salvador camp was held on a coffee plantation, which pleased Mrs. Dermady as a sign that people like the owner were willing to encourage the Guides. The well-supervised girls were living in quarters used by itinerant workers at harvest time.

Mrs. Dermady recalled a big roofed dining platform outdoors surrounded by a bank of ovens fuelled with wood. An Indian woman was tending great vats of black beans which would be part of the main dish at dinner. "I thought how different it all was from up here," she said.

WHIP AND MOULD A PUDDING FOR SPRING

Would you like to make your family's eyes light with joy when dessert time comes? Then use a familiar flavour combination, chocolate and cherries, in a moulded dessert that looks elegant but takes just minutes to prepare. Evaporated milk blends with pudding and gelatine to make a smooth basis for this treat; additional evaporated milk, whipped to fluffy lightness, gives Chocolate Cherry Whipped Pudding its wonderfully smooth texture.

CHOCOLATE CHERRY WHIPPED PUDDING
(MAKES 6 TO 8 SERVINGS)

- 1 package (4 ounces) chocolate pudding and pie filling mix
- 1 envelope unflavoured gelatine
- 1⅓ cups (large can) undiluted evaporated milk
- 1 cup water
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon maraschino cherry juice
- ¼ cup chopped maraschino cherries (about 10 cherries)
- 1 cup angel food or other cake squares

Combine pudding mix, gelatine, 1 cup evaporated milk and water in saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Cover and chill until pudding mounds from spoon. Chill remaining ⅔ cup evaporated milk in refrigerator tray until ice crystals form around edges (10 to 15 minutes). Whip until stiff (about 1 minute). Add lemon juice and cherry juice. Whip very stiff (about 2 minutes). Beat pudding until smooth; fold in whipped evaporated milk and cherries. Layer pudding and cake squares in 1½ quart mould or bowl. Chill until firm, about 2 hours. Unmould; garnish with whipped topping and cherries if desired.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

A few days ago, I went with a crew from the College to Richmond County. The Kingsbury Farm Forum had invited us to take part in a discussion on "Profitable Pastures".

There, was Dr. John Bubar, of the Agronomy Department, and Dr. Ben Warkentin from Soils. Albert Legrand, who farms at Compton, joined us. Professor Murray and Galen Driver, Quebec Farm Forum Secretary, went on to Richmond High School to talk about careers to the pupils.

Albert Legrand told of his own successful experiences with pastures for beef cattle. He found that lime, fertilizer, and rotational grazing were all important in his program. He was enthusiastic about Ladino clover; last year, he still had good pasture in October.

Albert particularly stressed lime. Without it, he pointed out, it was difficult to get a catch and maintain a stand of legumes. And it helped to get full value out of the fertilizer.

Agricultural limestone costs him $2.35 a ton in bulk, plus an additional charge of $3.00 for each truckload spread on the field. The Department of Agriculture pays for the cost of transportation to the farm, plus 50c a ton rebate. Mr. Salvas, the agronome, pointed out that the subsidy was higher on bagged material, bringing it close to the price of bulk limestone.

Later in the discussion, it was mentioned that there were two types of limestone available. One did not contain magnesium. On farms where magnesium was known to be deficient, the source of lime should be chosen accordingly. Mr. Salvas reminded the group that boxes for sending away soil samples were always available at the agronome's office.

Some ideas for keeping up the mid-summer pasture supply were put forward by Dr. Bubar. Natural bluegrass, after a short burst of activity early in the season goes dormant for the rest of the summer, he said. An application of fertilizer to bluegrass does give some extra growth, but doesn't lengthen its season.

On the other hand, fertilizer on good alfalfa-timothy or alfalfa-bromegrass stands not only increased total growth, but kept the grass coming in late summer when it was needed most. Of course, good aftermath pasture helps also to fill the gap.

Dr. Bubar mentioned his favorite plant, trefoil, as one way to "store" pasture. Since this legume does not mature as quickly as other species, it is possible to hold a field for reserve pasture. Then, if it is not needed for pasture, it can be cut for hay.

Ladino clover came in for high praise several times in the afternoon. This legume appears to do exceedingly well under the high summer rainfall which favors that part of the country.

Some one told of fields producing 800 pounds of beef to the acre. If you value beef at 20c lb., that is $160 worth of beef from each acre — quite a remarkable contrast to perhaps $8 from natural pasture. Other fields in that area were reported to produce close to 10,000 lbs. milk per acre from pasture. It gives us an idea what can be done.

Sudan grass was mentioned by Dr. Bubar as an excellent annual pasture crop, but he cautioned that it must have hot weather for satisfactory growth.

Dr. Warkentin discussed in his talk the place of fertilizers in pasture management. Priority should be given to drainage and to liming, he said. In a poorly drained or a sour soil, plants could not make use of the fertility already there. Backing up the earlier speakers, he encouraged the use of agricultural limestone where soil tests showed the need.

Trace elements, such as Boron and Magnesium came in for considerable discussion. Dr. Warkentin felt that, while these might be important in some local areas, attention should first be given to the Big Three — nitrogen, phosphorous and potash. He thought that it was a good thing for everyone to do a little experimenting on his own every year.

The panel discussion which concluded the meeting brought out many problems and some answers. Each was a topic in itself; Vitamin 'E' injections to prevent white muscle disease in calves, hollow-hearted potatoes, weed control in direct seeding, merits of deep tillage. A lot of ground was covered in three hours.

We are looking forward to another meeting this Wednesday evening (March 25th), as guests of Pinnacle Farm Forum (Danville). We have a good film in mind, and Dr. MacKenzie from the Soils Department hopes to come along.

How to think like a woman (shopper)

Meat industry representatives were told recently that most women welcome information about any subject that will help them to do a better job of homemaking.

Miss Elaine Collett, Director of Chatelaine Institute, Toronto, told delegates at the 44th annual meeting of the Meat Packers Council of Canada that women want to know how to shop for meat more intelligently, how to distinguish good meat from poor meat, and how to determine which cuts are true bargains. As one idea, she suggested that women shoppers would appreciate folders placed alongside the meat counter showing the identification of various cuts, and some simple cooking instructions on how to roast, broil, braise, stew, and cook-in-water, etc. "A woman doesn't go shopping with her cookbook in her purse," observed Miss Collett.

"Many women often hesitate to buy an unfamiliar cut of meat because they're not sure of the proper cooking method. Even when there's a personal-serve counter, a woman often has too much pride to ask the butcher how to cook a certain kind. In general, women are pleased with the meat industry for providing faster service, better packaging, greater variety of cuts, and cleaner surroundings in which to shop," she said.

Word-of-mouth advertising is the strongest form of advertising, in Miss Collett's opinion. If a woman doesn't like the meat from one store, she'll ask her neighbor's recommendation. If the neighbor is happy with her meat purchases, then the first store has just lost a customer.

When it comes to buying the meat portion of the weekly groceries, however, it's not always the woman who has the last say. Sometimes it's the menfolk who do the buying!

Why one stop at your Chevrolet dealer's is like having your own private auto show

And if we had room here we could go on and on and list all the engines Chevrolet offers, starting at the Chevy II's 90-horsepower 153 4-cylinder (it's the thriftiest!) and ranging all the way up to the big Chevrolet's extra-cost 425-horsepower 409 V8 (it's the greatest!). We could wax eloquent about the choice of transmissions, and how they team up with those Chevy power plants to produce some of the going-est cars ever. Or the fact that you can have umpteen different exterior and interior color choices — enough, in fact, to allow some of our lady customers to have the sort of fun in buying and choosing that they generally reserve for shoe stores. And all the models with bucket seats and all the models without — all of them comfortable as all get-out. And the hundreds — yes hundreds — of different extra-cost options . . . serious ones like Positraction and gay ones like the new AM-FM radio. But all that's best left to your Chevrolet dealer. The long and short of it is, he'll go to any length to show you exactly the kind and size and price of car you want — and exactly how reasonable that price can be for you to be able to enjoy so much more car.

The Bad Example

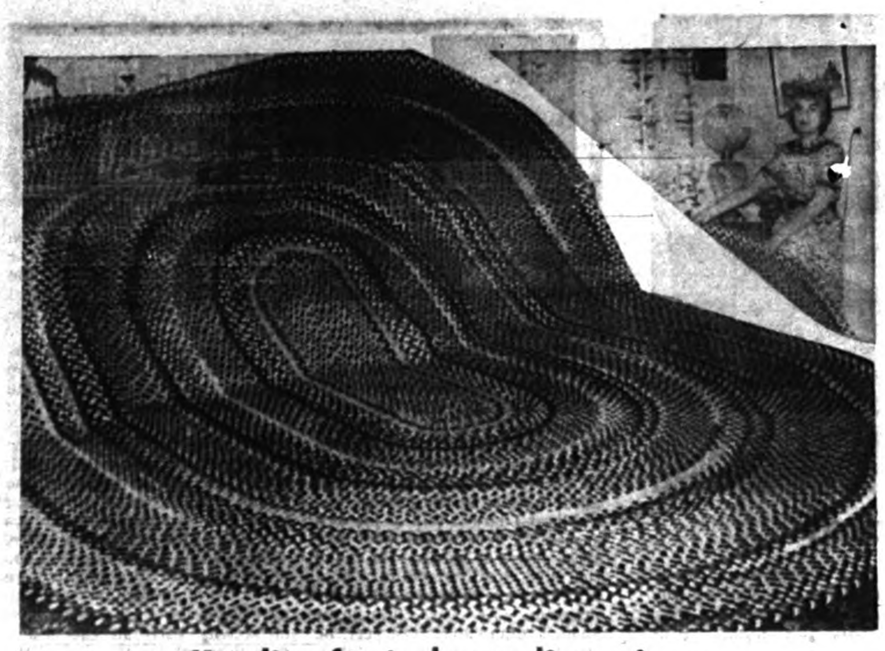

He whipped his boy for lying
And his cheeks were flaming red;
And of course there's no denying
There was truth in what he said,
That a liar's always hated —
But the little fellow knew
That his father often stated
Things that were not true.

He caught the youngster cheating
And he sent him up to bed,
And it's useless now repeating
All the bitter things he said.
He talked of honor loudly
As a lesson to be learned —
And forgot he boasted proudly
Of the cunning tricks he'd turned.

He heard the youngster swearing
And he punished him again,
He'd have no boy so daring
As to utter words profane;
Yet the youngster could have told,
Poor misguided little elf,
That it seemed unfair to scold him
When he often cursed himself.

All in vain is splendid preaching
And the noble things we say
All our talk is wasted teaching
If we do not lead the way,
We can never by reviewing
All the sermons on the shelves
Keep the younger hands from doing
What we often do ourselves.

"Diary of a Vagabond"

HE'S A WINNER

Though they may not be much older than the characters in Louise M. Alcott's "Little Women", they certainly know a "bread-winner" when they meet one. Members of a Saskatchewan 4-H Club in Prince Albert, recently awarded Robert Ferguson a prize for his breadmaking ability. He developed his prize-winning technique over a period of some 20 years.

During World War II, he prepared meals for 500 men at Aldershot, England, and later for 300 patients in the Canadian hospital at London. This training prepared him for his present occupation as cook for the CN. He travels in a boarding car through the north country providing meals for one of the most critical groups of consumers in the world — railway construction crews.

According to this CN cook, the secret in good breadmaking is in the kneading and proper oven temperature. He says that if the oven is too hot, the bread will be small with a hard crust and soggy inside. If the heat is too low, the bread will be too high and have a coarse dry texture.

Breadmaking must be an art among CN construction crew cooks, for this past summer I was the guest of Bill Ramey (another cook adept with the dough) in his empire, a boarding car on a siding near the CN's Halifax station. I am sure if I had tried that day I could have fried eggs on the sidewalk in front of the Nova Scotian Hotel, but prospects of partaking of the culinary art of a cook of Ramey's ability restrained me from testing this possibility.

I stepped up the ladder before the boarding car and into a blast from an old fashioned cook stove which had been converted to oil. I suddenly knew why Indians wear blankets in 90-degree summer heat. The car was so much warmer than the outside atmosphere that the breeze coming through the open window was like elixir!

Bill, when he greeted us, in his immaculate white apron and tall white cook's hat, was all smiles and apparently as cool as a cucumber though he had been "working over a hot stove all day" preparing our meal. He wouldn't trade that old range for all the flossy automatic electric stoves in Canada. It's his true love and he treats it like a mother her only child.

And I wouldn't blame him, for the meal he served up on thick white china plates supported by an oilcloth-covered old wooden table, was fit for a king. I consumed a huge plate of turkey, mashed potatoes, diced carrots, stuffing, fresh bread, cookies, apple dumpling and delicious tea by the tin mugful. Boy, how those CN construction men fare!

It's Home to Bill

Bill Ramey has been cooking for 22 years. He was born in Nova Scotia and started his career in a lumber camp.

The boarding car I visited was as neat as a pin. It is home to Bill, sometimes for a whole summer at a time. His quarters are at one end of the car and the kitchen dining area at the other. He likes the life and I sure liked his cooking.

Of Many Things

I MEET AN INVENTOR

One of the most pleasant assignments of my life occurred the other day when I was assigned to interview an inventor for a trade magazine story. I met Mr. Frank Sommer, of Winnipeg, inventor of the octopus parallel puller. He's a dynamic, fascinating Austrian in his mid-sixties, who has spent 34 years in Winnipeg and loved every minute of it.

I asked all the usual questions, but I was given unusual and exciting answers, mixed with advice that comes a bit late for me but might be useful to young men and women.

I asked how he came to invent the puller. He told me that in his own shop, pulling problems were terrible — no matter what machines they used, there was nearly always hammering and chiselling to do, and lots of time wasted. When wages went up, that time became costly, so he decided he had to find ways to make the jobs easier.

"I got in so deep, spent so much time and money on devising a puller that I couldn't quit. I was hooked. When I had the principle established (alignment of stress was the principle), I thought I was made. You have to watch yourself. You can see millions pouring in. You could go off your rocker. I knew that nothing in life came easy . . . and I was right. Years and years and thousands upon thousands of dollars still had to be spent to perfect the device, to get the patents established, to make up working models." In short, an inventor's life, like a policeman's, is not an easy one.

"Was it easy to find someone to manufacture and sell your puller once perfected?" I asked.

He laughed. Apparently he had everybody in the country eager to make and sell the thing for him. "But it's important — you must have the right manufacturer, the right people."

He had some advice on this point. Go to big people. They got big because they are big in nature and think big. They are less likely to let you down. He said that in all his business experience, he found that the bigger the company, the safer he felt. He found he could trust them. They would give him a yes or no, and mean it. And, oddly enough, they seemed more human.

"And never give up. Anything you start, see it through as long as you have any faith in it. And never expect it to be easy — you'll fool yourself if you do."

Canada's program to eliminate brucellosis disease from her cattle population is pushing ahead steadily.

The Health of Animals Branch, Canada Department of Agriculture, reports that preliminary testing will be completed in Saskatchewan shortly. It has already been completed in Manitoba, Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The target date for all of Canada is March, 1966.

More than 9.3 million head — or about 77 per cent of the nation's cattle population — have been tested since the program was launched in 1957, at a time when losses from the disease amounted to $9 million annually in decreased milk yields, loss of calf crops and cost of replacement animals.

To date, testing has been completed in 598 areas across Canada, with 556 qualifying as brucellosis certified areas. For certification, an area must not have more than 1 per cent of its cattle and not more than 5 per cent of its herds infected.

"Some areas have qualified following the initial test but many have required extensive retesting to reduce the infection to the required level," says Dr. W. H. Reeker, of the branch's Contagious Diseases Division.

Although the disease still has not been wiped out, says the veterinarian, the general level of infection has been reduced from an estimated 4.5 per cent to 1.5 per cent.

So far in the campaign, 149,000 reactor animals have been slaughtered and $10.3 million in compensation paid to owners.

Two screening measures introduced by the Health of Animals Branch are proving highly effective in keeping a check on herds in certified areas. They are the milk and market testing programs which permit early detection of a resurgence of the disease and which sharply reduce — and in many cases eliminate — the need for on-the-farm blood testing in re-certifying areas every three years.

In the milk testing program, milk and cream samples are collected from all dairies and creameries and tested for brucellosis.

In the complementary market cattle testing program, a blood sample is taken from each animal at the time of slaughter and tested. A coded back tag, applied earlier at a stockyard, sales barn or other assembly point, indicates the area and province of origin.

Whenever tests indicate the presence of brucellosis, the herd of origin is blood tested to determine the extent of infection.
