Also honored at the mother-and-daughter banquet were five Guides from the Brownsburg Company who received their All Round Cords within the last few months: (left to right) Ann Jackson, Sandra Hall, Patsy Low, Diane Cruise and Wilina Robillard.

Guides honored at Brownsburg mother - and - daughter banquet

Brownsburg — Two Girl Guides from the Brownsburg Company were honored recently at the annual mother-and-daughter banquet, held at the Legion Hall. Guides Ann Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton, and Lorraine Sugden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sugden, received their Gold Cords, the highest award for which a Girl Guide can aim, and which is awarded only after the member has proven herself worthy of this honor.

Two members receive coveted Gold Cords award

The color party made their formal entry, and the banquet invocation was given by Ann Jackson; the toast to the Queen was proposed by Sandra Hall; and the head table guests were introduced by Diane Cruise, Wilina Robillard and Patsy Low. A toast to the Mothers was given by Carol Creswell, to which Mrs. W. Morrow, president of the Local Association, responded.

A welcome to the guests was extended by Mrs. R. Sugden, Captain of the Brownsburg Company. This was followed by a "trefoil ceremony".

A brief record was then given on the Guiding career of the two Gold Cord winners, Guides Ann Hamilton and Lorraine Sugden, from the time they entered Brownies, through their 21 proficiency badges, to the receiving of their Gold Cords. The Gold Cord presentations were made by Miss Lowe, Camp Advisor, and Mrs. Sugden, Captain.

The program concluded with a campfire singsong, "Taps", and retirement of the color party.

Special guests at this enjoyable function included — Mrs. R. Bourget, Commissioner; Mrs. A. Wright, badge secretary for Argenteuil; and Miss Ann Lowe, Divisional Camp Advisor.

Lineman suffers shock and burns

Edouard Girard, 48, who has been 15 years in the employ of Gatineau Power Co. here, suffered second and third-degree burns on his left side, when he touched a live electric circuit last Monday.

The mishap occurred while he was working on a cut-out at the corner of Princess and Ayers Streets. He inadvertently touched contacts through which the current was in circuit and received a shock which knocked him unconscious. He was revived by a fellow lineman, Emile Monette, who applied mouth-to-mouth respiration.

Dr. Marcel Sylvestre gave first-aid at the scene, and the victim was taken to the Argenteuil Hospital in the police emergency vehicle. He was reported (Tuesday) progressing satisfactorily.

Grenville seeks $1-million from Quebec Hydro

The municipality of the Village of Grenville is seeking $1-million compensation from Quebec Hydro for works made necessary by raising of the river level due to construction of the Carillon Dam.

Mayor Rolland Landriault told a representative of Le Droit, Ottawa newspaper, that the claim has been placed before the Department of Municipal Affairs, and that officials of that department are negotiating with Quebec Hydro on behalf of the municipality; it is expected the outcome will be known in about a month.

On advice of its engineers and legal advisors, the municipality has rejected offers made to date by Quebec Hydro. Mayor Landriault did not mention figures, but intimated these were much lower than the indemnity claimed.

The $1-million request is largely to cover the construction of a sewage-disposal plant, a new collector sewer, and filling a small bay near the Dansereau sawmill.

The Water Purification Board at Quebec has advised Grenville to install the sewage-treatment plant with the shortest delay, said Mayor Landriault. The municipality has plans (prepared by Arsenault & Garneau, consulting engineers, of Ville LaSalle) for a plant costing around $500,000. It would be built probably on a site at the riverbank.

The collector sewer, the Mayor explained, is necessary since studies have revealed the present sewer system is below the future Ottawa River high-level, foreseen when the Carillon project reaches full operation. Plans for the collector sewer, and of the land-filling operation near the Dansereau mill, have not yet been prepared, and the exact estimate for these two projects has not yet been established.

Agricultural Society to cede plot of land for Lions' Arena

The Agricultural Society directorate has passed a resolution to sell to the Lions Club, for a nominal sum of transfer, a piece of land on the exhibition grounds for purposes of erecting an arena. . . . This is the word from Mozart Carriere, who will be president of the club in its next term and who has been in negotiation with the Agricultural Society for this project.

The re-location of the Lions' Rink has been a matter of concern to the club directors for some time, and it now appears most probable the arena project will take shape within Mr. Carriere's term of office.

The land will presumably be in the midway area of the exhibition grounds, and negotiations will not proceed until after the 1964 Spring Fair. It is understood the agreement will permit use of the building by the Agricultural Society, if suitable or if required by that organization.

The announcement gives hope for a new lease on youth recreation, for which the Lions' Rink in the east ward has provided space and facilities over the past years.

500 Children to annual circus, thanks to Shriners

Almost 500 Roman Catholic and Protestant schoolchildren, including 24 retarded and handicapped youngsters, will attend the Shrine Circus in Montreal this week, through courtesy of the Lachute District Shrine Club.

A number of Shrine Club members contributed sufficient funds to provide a bus for transportation of the handicapped children to the Monday performance, and the various school commissions are providing buses for transportation of the regular school children.

Children from Lachute, Brownsburg, Calumet, Grenville, St. Andrews East and Vankleek Hill schools will journey to the Montreal Forum towards the end of the week, with complimentary tickets supplied by the local Shriners.

Don Wilson, assisted by a number of local Shrine Club members, has been in charge of this project.

Bushfire fought with aircraft water-bomber

Roger Richer, forest ranger for Argenteuil County, has been directing the efforts of two crews of firefighters in successful attempts to gain control of two bush fires reported during the week-end.

The most serious fire was on the Grace Park development, north of Dunany, where the assistance of a Department of Lands and Forests water bomber aircraft was required on Sunday. The plane arrived from Quebec a short time after being summoned, and made seven descents on Lake Louisa, quickly loading with water, which was dumped on the blazing bush. Mr. Richer was reported to be still working at the fire location on Tuesday afternoon. It is believed that the fire was caused by careless fishermen.

The Lake Louisa fire, reported to be in the Black Bay area, was not too serious and was quickly extinguished. No buildings were reported to have been consumed by the flames, although a number were in danger in the Dunany district.

Student Council explains its role at closing meet of Home and School

The final meeting of the Lachute and District Home and School Association was held April 22 in the High School, with the Students' Council in attendance to introduce themselves and explain their functions and duties. This they did with such poise and ease that they thoroughly impressed the parents who came to hear them. There are 24 members on the Students' Council, but they were represented at this meeting by their nine committee chairmen.

Mr. R. Bailly, vice-principal of the school, and staff advisor for the Students' Council, introduced the members, and each in turn explained his or her duties. The chairman is Miss Judy Kettyle, and the secretary Miss Bonnie MacKimmie, who stated the rules and regulations followed by the Council and explained that the election of officers for each classroom, starting at Grade 8, is by secret ballot, supervised by the teachers.

The vice-chairman, Linda Whiteway, explained the Book Clubs, a non-profit and worthwhile project taken on by the Council this year, in which students in the elementary and high school grades were able to buy books, first screened for suitability, for a very reasonable sum.

The House Committee chairman, Dianne Boa, explained her duties in the management of the Tuck Shop, with special mention of the new school sweater which is now being sold. These sweaters are cardigans of washable orlon, and cost $8.

The Athletic Committee chairman, Richard Evans, stated that four trophies had been added to the school's collection this year, which is a very creditable showing. The Council provides all sports equipment used by the students.

The Social Committee chairman, Mary Beth Painter, is in charge of organizing school dances, and all social recreation for the students. She mentioned a concert which is being sponsored by the Students' Council on May 15 in the school auditorium, to be presented by a band and choral group from Hawkesbury.

Types of investment explained to Rotary

Speaker at the weekly meeting of the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was Andy Hughes, regional manager of the Investors Syndicate Corp. Ltd., whose topic was Investment Funds.

Mr. Hughes gave a very concise explanation of just what investment funds are, and also explained the large variety of funds and their objectives.

Mutual Funds have been in existence for well over 100 years. In Canada they date back to about 1932, when stock brokers began selling them only to their own select clientele. But in 1950 the general public became aware of their existence, when the first Fund to retail its shares direct to the public with its own sales representatives, made its appearance. Since then other Funds have also come into existence, and in the space of only 11 or 12 years the industry has grown from comparatively nothing to over 800 million dollars. Moreover, it has become a noteworthy factor in Canada's economy, aiding the expansion and growth of many industries and giving Canadians an opportunity to share in this growth and help keep more ownership of Canadian companies in Canadian hands.

The speaker went on to classify Mutual Funds, in a broad sense, into the following five categories:

(1) The Fixed Fund — where safety through diversification, and a good income, are stressed as its objective.

(2) The Growth Fund — wherein the stress is upon safety through diversification, but with emphasis placed on capital gain with little regard for income.

(3) The Balanced Fund — combining the objectives of the first two and usually referred to as a "middle of the road" type.

(4) The Specialty Fund —

Neighbors assist, riverfront family ousted by fire

(Our District Correspondent)

Cushing West — On Thursday afternoon about 3.15 a fire of uncertain origin began on the C.N.R. track at Cushing West and, fanned by a strong east wind, soon spread to a house owned by Mrs. C. J. Cooke and occupied by her daughter, Mrs. Henry Villeneuve and five children, and Miss Agnes White. The fire then spread to a vacant field, endangering Mr. A. C. Pinkerton's buildings, but, with the help of local residents and passers-by, the blaze was brought under control before it extended much farther.

In the house at the time was Miss Agnes White and Olive Villeneuve, 11 years old, who called for help, and with the response of local residents, the contents of the house were saved; and as more people gathered, they kept the fire from spreading to other outbuildings before the fire brigades arrived.

The Lachute fire department and the St. Andrews fire brigade were called to the scene and, with a good supply of water from a nearby creek, soon had the house fire under control, but not before the interior of the home was almost completely gutted.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Lions' young lady orators beat Que.-Ont. competition

Two of the Lachute Lions Club protegées scored top honors in the Eastern public speaking finals, held last Saturday at the High School in Port Hope, Ont.

The winning contestants were Dianne Boa (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Boa, Lachute) of the Lachute High School, who won first place among nine English-speaking girls; and Hélène Desforges (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Desforges, Cushing West) a student at the St. Alexandre School, who ranked first in a class of four French-speaking girl finalists.

Each of these winners receives a $150 cash award, a $300 bursary, and an engraved desk-set.

There were altogether 26 finalists from different parts of Quebec and Ontario, including northern communities and two from Buckingham, in this area. The event was the culmination of a series of local contests and district eliminations, held by the Lions Clubs of Eastern Canada.

Supporters from Lachute

There was a considerable delegation from Lachute to witness the proceedings and to encourage the local students. Those from Lachute included the two winners, above mentioned, and another competitor, young Paul Lamarche, of l'Ecole Secondaire, accompanied by his friend, Serges Monette, of St. Andrews East; also Mrs. Desforges, accompanying her daughter, and their Lions Club escorts, Keith Clarke (president), Mrs. Clarke and son, Peter, and Paul Deslauriers, committee chairman for the local club.

Others attending from the Catholic School staffs were Sister Superior Damien Bernard and Sister Agnes (teacher of Miss Desforges), Bro. Emile Bayard, principal, and Laurier Giroux, teacher and coach of Paul Lamarche.

Man drowned while starting outboard motor

Henri Gagnon, a 56-year-old Montrealer, drowned in the Ottawa River near St. Andrews East, early Sunday afternoon in a boating mishap.

According to investigating Q.P.P. officer Yvon Faucheon, the victim was starting his 10 h.p. outboard motor, which apparently was in forward gear, and the sudden lurch of his boat threw him off balance and into the water. Q.P.P. officer Gaston Paquette assisted in the case.

The incident was seen by friends of the victim, who stated that the boat circled and struck Mr. Gagnon.

Joint District Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie declared the death accidental.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

We around Lachute have been fortunate again — in being able to watch what was, in my opinion, a major flyway of geese this past week. At one time I (and a couple of hundred others) witnessed a flight that must have strung out for three miles. I would think this one flight had at a minimum of 5,000 geese. Some of the flocks settled down on the North River for a rest. In eight cases that I know of, there were between 10 and 50 birds landing for a feed down near the flats at White's Bridge. They were also reported to have landed almost in town the other morning. Believe me, after watching so many of them passing on their way, I wouldn't doubt they did this!

* * *

Now, why we should have had so many of them in this district I wouldn't know. Certainly we are not in any established flyway, and seemingly never have been. Many reasons could be suggested, but I guess the big factor will have been the high winds in their usual areas. . . The ways of birds, however, can never be really understood by man; we can only try and guess. Another guess is that the usual routes may have been eaten out and the birds had to find a new throughway to survive.

* * *

Some very good trout were taken this past week, with many of the lakes still ice bound up north. One informant told me of a catch of Reds from Silver Lake that would do credit to the late spring fishing; eight trout were taken, all of them weighing a pound or more and the largest one about 2½ pounds. The fishing from here on may indeed be the best we've had in a number of years.

* * *

The woods in this past week have produced sprouting violets, iris and other wild plants — a sure sign that we are in for some warm weather. Birds are really busy in the building trade; every little bit of string, fluff, straw or material that looks usable, is gobbled up for this important project. I watched a couple of sparrows during supper, picking up everything they could — thinking to myself, I sure won't have to do any raking if this keeps up.

* * *

I think most of you fishermen know all about the Bals Wood baits on the market last year. At that time I had little opportunity of giving them a workout, but not so this year. It is not too often I go all-out for any bait, but really, everything I could say about them would be inadequate. Wonderful action, very good coloring, light enough to use on a spinning rod — with one more quality I consider very important to any plug-type bait, they float. If you get hung up — unless it is a bad snag, you have every chance of getting it back, just by releasing the line. Certainly the best bait to come on the market in a number of years.

* * *

I received a query the other day on boats and the equipment they are supposed to carry. It is really not a question of "supposed to", but just common sense. First of all, every boat should be equipped with life jackets, an anchor, spare oars or paddles, and a fire extinguisher (if a motor boat). By the way, carrying life jackets means one for every person in the boat. As you all know more swimmers are drowned every year than non-swimmers. All motor boats should be equipped with running lights; by this I mean lights that can be seen running at night. A spare rope never hurt anyone, either. . . Then, of course, you know that every motor boat over 10 horse power MUST be registered with the Mounted Police. They also give you the complete regulations for motor boating, which are certainly worth studying.

With "Be Kind to Animals Week" being observed right now, it may help you to make a better life for your pets if you do a couple of these things every day: Make sure they have fresh and clean water. This is not a hard chore to take care of, but far too many pets are left without it. Brush the coat every once in a while. Believe me, any animal likes this. Make sure the claws are not too long; if they are, have them trimmed, or you can do this yourself, but do not cut them too close. I have noticed during the winter all animals grow extra long dew claws, and these can become very troublesome for your pets. If your pet seems listless just now, put a little sulphur in its water, not too much; and this will help the coat along. If your pet has had shots for various diseases, check how long ago it had them. It is possible it will now need booster shots; this is not an expensive proposition and it sure is worth while.

— All this might seem like a lot of trouble, but aren't your pets "one of the family"? You would do this for your youngsters, so how about your pets? Another thing, don't maul them just now. After all, they have just got over a long winter and they don't like this a bit.

* * *

Once again, the detergents are receiving attention. It sure seems as though, with the coming of spring, our supposed water purification experts come out of hiding. I wonder just when something will be done about this. Down through St. Eustache the other day I noticed the amount of foam on the waters; this could not all be caused by natural conditions — nor is it beer suds; so the only conclusion is, soap. This of course is common around the Island of Montreal during the summer, but not this early. From enquiries made, nothing is even contemplated, except the usual work — checking this and that, but with no authority to DO anything. This will make you laugh — any industry can dump waste into the river, be caught, and the only penalty is a warning not to do it any more! Promises mean nothing, and the very next day it happens all over again.

* * *

Some of you kind-hearted readers keep enquiring about our canary. Well, he is fine, getting along wonderfully, full of fight and food. We tried to give him his bath the other day, but gave it up as a bad job; he would drown himself if given a chance. So he takes his bath by dipping his head into his drinking cup, then shaking it all over himself. To me his recovery has been one of those things you can't talk about, but we are thankful we can enjoy and love him for a short time longer — let's hope another 12 years.

* * *

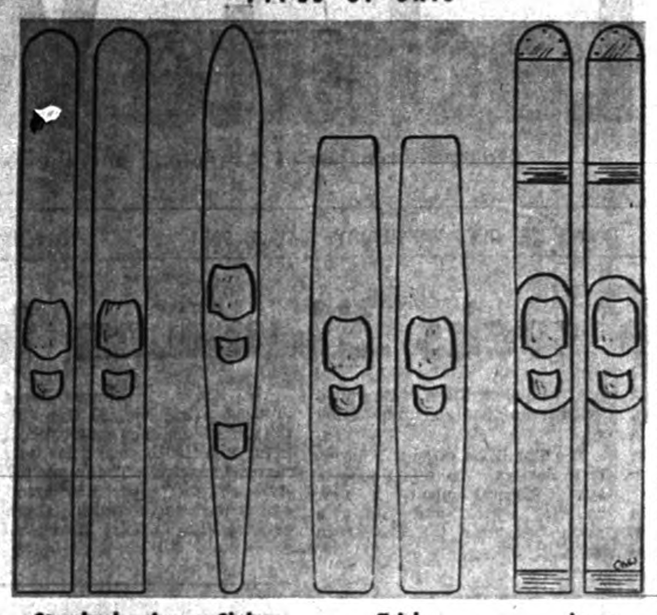

We repeat this warning: Anyone seeing skunks around that seem to be unusually friendly, take care! I know most people will run from one of these perfume-dispensers, but the odd time they get close enough to you without your knowing of it. This is your time to be off! I have been told of these animals, also a fox, that seemed unnaturally anxious to approach a human, so it must be rabies. The fox went right into a yard near town, and stayed for some time before it disappeared.

* * *

More moose have shown up, this time right close to town — one was spotted just south of the river, approaching the railroad tracks. As some of you know, a couple of them were in the vicinity of the golf course for some time; these moved on towards St. Andrews and Carillon. This moose more recently sighted may be going to do the same thing. If anyone spots it, will they be good enough to phone the Game Wardens and let them know? In this way we can give them the best protection.

Water Skiing with CLINT WARD

TYPES OF WATER SKIS

A bewildering array of water ski equipment is available in the stores. At first glance picking the right skis may seem difficult but a little knowledge will soon dispell any doubts.

To start out you will need a standard pair of skis. These will come in varying lengths and the right ski will depend upon the user's weight and the power of the tow boat. In the 185 lb. plus range, buy skis 69 to 72 inches long. For 130 to 185 lbs. get skis that are 60, 66 or 69 inches long; 100 to 130 pounders could get along well on 60 inch or 66 inch skis. Under 100 lbs. will put the user into the junior size range. An important feature of junior size skis is that they should have smaller bindings. Junior sizes are 48, 54 and 60 inches. All of the above figures assume the skier is using a tow boat of medium performance, that is under 30 mph. If you have a powerful boat then you could get along on a ski shorter than I have suggested above. Prices of standard pairs will vary from $25 for the small junior skis to $40 for the largest adult ski. One bitter fact to face after you have graduated to one ski you will want to purchase a special slalom ski. This ski differs from "one half of a standard pair." It will have the front binding mounted farther forward because the balance point on a single ski is different. A toe binding will be mounted on the ski for the back foot.

The ski will be tapered in design to allow sharper turns and it will have a deep metal fin. Slalom skis come in varying shapes and sizes, all relating to the ability of the skier and again to the power of the tow-boat. For a beginning slalom skier behind a medium-power boat, use a 72-inch moderately tapered ski for weights over 160 lbs. Under this weight the length should be 66 inches. If you become real expert you will want a high speed tournament type slalom ski. This type of ski, which is narrow and very tapered, is tops for slalom thrills. A word of warning though — unless you are under 130 lbs. you will need a high performance boat to get the most from a high speed slalom. Slalom skis begin at $20 for the junior sizes and is that one size ski will not do for the whole family.

can cost as much as $45 for special tournament models.

A real water ski challenge is trick skiing. For this you will need a special ski which is short and wide, does not have much bend at the tip and no fin on the bottom. A popular shape today is the 'blunt' or 'square end' although the ski can also be bought in the 'banana' shape. Trick skis vary in price from $30 to $40.

The ultimate in thrills and spills is jumping. Never try jumping without using special skis. These skis are made heavier from choice woods and re-inforced to help prevent breakage. Bindings should be mounted on aluminum plates to protect the feet in case of breakage on landings. Jumping skis that will last usually cost $50 or more.

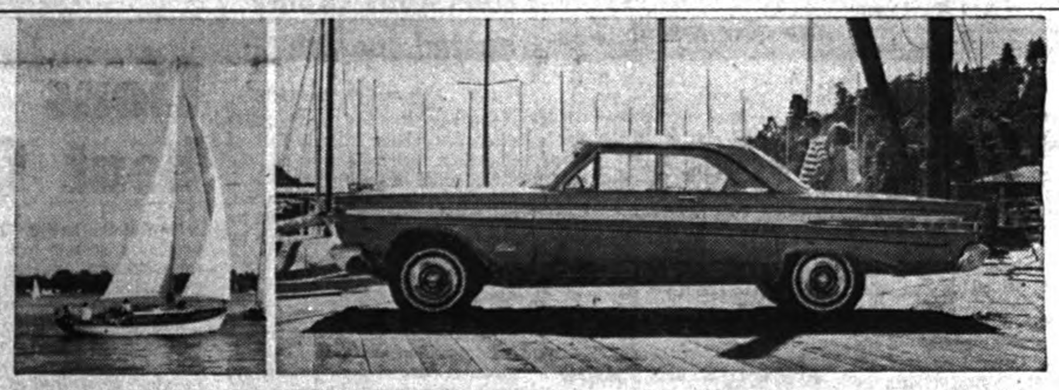

When choosing your skis pay particular attention to the bindings. The most comfortable type are made of pure gum rubber.

It is possible to buy skis that are guaranteed and this extra bonus is worth shopping around for.

Curling season awards presented at closing meeting of men's club

This is it — the last curling news report until next autumn. President Keith Rutherford chaired his final meeting on Wednesday, April 29.

After a fine dinner, served by the ladies of the Club, reports were heard from the various committee chairmen, showing the close of a highly successful year. The finances are in good order, as the year produced a healthy operating profit. From a playing point of view the club won more honors than usual, and from a social point of view a fine year was enjoyed. President Keith's year was successful due to his faithful attendance and giving unstintingly of his time and of his personality. He lived the role of a president, and was ably assisted by his directors and committees. . . Teamwork brings results.

RULES FOR VISITORS AT THE ARGENTEUIL HOSPITAL

The directorate of the Argenteuil Hospital submits to the public the following regulations for guidance of those visiting the patients. These rules are established in order to permit the earliest recovery of hospitalized inmates, and to allow all time and facilities for doctors and staff to give the best medical care.

Children under 12 are not admitted as visitors, due to the possibilities of contagion. By exception, however, they will be allowed special admission next Sunday, May 10, which is Mother's Day.

We thank the public in anticipation of their full co-operation in the work of the Hospital. Following are the regulations in brief:

VISITING HOURS

Afternoon, from 2 to 3 o'clock. Night, from 7 to 8.30 o'clock.

In order to supply the greatest comfort possible to the patients, visitors are requested to comply with the following rules:

1 — Collaborate with the management of the Hospital by not arriving at the patient's room before the indicated time.

2 — Maximum of two visitors to each patient at one time.

3 — Do not persist in staying longer than regular visiting hours; patients are hospitalized in view of bettering their health as soon as possible, and they must avoid any unnecessary fatigue.

4 — Remember that, if visiting hours were extended, this would give the staff less time to attend to the patients.

5 — Do not smoke in the rooms.

6 — Be of respectable appearance and conduct; make no unnecessary noise to inconvenience other patients in the same room, who need rest and quietness.

7 — Do not sit on beds, even if they are unoccupied. There are enough chairs available for visitors.

8 — Leave the room as soon as visiting hours are over; do not insist on staying longer.

9 — In order to avoid possibilities of infection, children under 12 years old are not admitted as visitors.

— THE DIRECTION,
ARGENTEUIL HOSPITAL

Student Council explains role at Home-School

man is Linda Bradford, who explained the magazine drive which is put on in the fall, sold by students from Grades 6 to 11; this is the Council's biggest source of revenue. With the money collected, the group bought 25 volumes of the Colliers Encyclopedia, and is buying the Encyclopedia Americana. (These sets were requested by the Library Committee, not just chosen by the Council themselves.)

The Classroom Committee chairman, Joyce Doig, explained that her committee is used in supervision of the playrooms. Treasurer Dawna Swail told the parents that the Council is sponsoring a student to attend the bilingual seminar to be held at Macdonald College in August, the student chosen being John Villeneuve, from Grade 10.

The Council members were thanked for their sincere and capable deliveries; their participation was warmly appreciated by the parents present.

Mr. Harry Booth expressed congratulations and thanks to Mr. Wes Younkie, for his considerable effort in arranging the most interesting meetings which have been enjoyed this year by the members of this organization. The themes of these meetings have been timely, and to the point, being directly concerned with education both in the local school and at the provincial level. The Association itself has served many useful purposes this year — to such extent that those skeptical of its purpose would do well to extend to the organization, and to their own children, the courtesy of attending a meeting next year, to find out for themselves whether or not their criticism is justified.

This is Sue.

She is mentally retarded.

Sue can't learn things... can't do things... the way other kiddies can. Even when she's twenty, thirty, or forty years old, she will have the mental age of a child of two.

There are more than 600,000 mentally retarded in Canada. In fact, one child in every thirty is born mentally retarded. These children need help.

Your local Association for Retarded Children is dedicated to giving all who need it the special care and training which can help them grow into useful, happy citizens. If you would like to support this vital work, please send your cheque.

Plant a seed of Hope for Canada's retarded children.

FLOWERS OF HOPE
CAN BE THE ANSWER TO HER PROBLEM

Every family's first hope is for the health and happiness of their children, normal or retarded. But the parents of a retarded child know that, without HELP, that child is a child without HOPE. He needs more help than just the love and devoted care of parents. He needs your help and understanding based on knowledge of his handicap to develop his capabilities to the limit . . the kind of help that recognizes his rights as a person.

Your dollars can bring this kind of help to the mentally retarded in your community, and HOPE to their parents.

A Flowers of Hope campaign is being conducted in the nine communities of this locality from which pupils are being sent to the school operated by the Lachute Association for Retarded Children. When you receive your Flowers of Hope package containing seeds, please respond generously. By planting the seeds on Mother's Day, they will be a constant reminder that you have helped the Mentally Retarded of your community to help themselves.

Resurrection — A Definition

Resurrection is a restoration to life of the nonexistent dead. The Greek word, anâstasis, means "a raising up." It is an act of God dependent entirely upon God's marvelous power through Christ and upon His memory of the dead. It is the reactivating of the life pattern of the creature, a transcription of which is on record with God, and is referred to as being in His memory. Resurrection does not involve the restoring of the original identical body of the creature. The life pattern is the personal life-long record of the creature built up by his thoughts and by the experiences in the life he has lived resulting from certain habits, leanings, mental abilities, memories and history. It is also a register of the individual's intellectual growth and his characteristics, all of which make up one's personality. Hence, according to God's will for the creature, in a resurrection one is restored or re-created in either a human or a spirit body and yet retains his personal identity by the setting in motion again of the distinctive life pattern of that individual.

Hope of Resurrection Clearly Taught in Scriptures

Isa. 25:8 — "He hath swallowed up death for ever; and the Lord Jehovah will wipe away tears from off all faces; and the reproach of his people will he take away from off all the earth: for Jehovah hath spoken it."

God's Power of Resurrection Manifested in Resurrection Through Christ.

Rom. 1:4 — "But who with power was declared God's Son according to the spirit of holiness by means of resurrection from the dead — yes, Jesus Christ our Lord."

1 Thess. 1:9, 10 — "You turned to God . . . to wait for his Son from the heavens, whom he raised up from the dead, namely, Jesus who delivers us from the wrath which is coming."

John 11:25, 26 "Jesus said to her: 'I am the resurrection and the life. He that exercises faith in me, even though he dies, will come to life, and everyone that is living and exercises faith in me will never die at all.'"

John 5:26 "For just as the Father has in himself the gift of life, so he has granted to the Son to have also in himself the gift of life."

Only Those in God's Memory Have Hope

John 5:28, 29 — "Do not marvel at this, because the hour is coming in which all those in the memorial tombs will hear his voice and come out."

Acts 2:27-32 — "David . . . saw beforehand and spoke concerning the resurrection of the Christ, that neither was he forsaken in Hades nor did his flesh see corruption. This Jesus God resurrected, of which fact we are all witnesses".

Rev. 20:13 — "And the sea gave up those dead in it, and death and Hades gave up those dead in them, and they were judged individually according to their deeds."

Christ the First to Be Raised, Therefore Opened Way for Others.

1 Cor. 15:20-22 — "However, now Christ has been raised up from the dead, the firstfruits of those who have fallen asleep in death. For since death is through a man, resurrection of the dead is also through a man. For just as in Adam all are dying, so also in the Christ all will be made alive."

Rev. 1:17, 18 — "I am the First and the Last, and the living one; and I became dead, but, look! I am living for ever and ever, and I have the keys of death and of Hades."

— Taken from the book, "Make Sure of All Things"; inserted by Mrs. W. H. Warren.

Building Ignited By Grass Fire

What might have been a major loss was averted by the hard efforts of volunteers, when the former clubhouse of the golf club was set on fire by a grass blaze, which spread rapidly and ignited the building. Strenuous work on the part of the men present prevented it from spreading to the house and barns of Herbert Cooke. The firefighters stayed late to see that everything was safe before leaving the scene.

National Retarded Children's Week —

New approach to an old problem

FOR SOME 15,000 of the half-million children born in Canada during the past 12 months, this week has a particular significance. . . These 15,000 are very special children. They are the estimated three per cent of newborn Canadians denied their birthright of a normal, healthy existence by a quirk of nature over which they have absolutely no control. They are a part of Canada's continually growing total of mental retardates. A few years ago their prospects, and those of the other 600,000-plus Canadians afflicted by mental retardation, would have been sad indeed. But the situation today has changed.

May 6 to 16, National Retarded Children's Week, gives evidence of the new approach, the awakening which has brought hope where there was once hopelessness, and instilled a compassion to assist where there was once confusion and ignorance.

Sponsored by the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, working through its local branches across Canada, National Retarded Children's Week seeks support for a widely based program of treatment and research, which has made giant strides in providing a better existence for these sadly afflicted Canadians and their unfortunate families.

Not only in Canada but around the world, citizens and their governments have been aroused. The medical profession, led initially by a few dedicated specialists, has in recent years launched a massive, international assault on mental retardation and its causes, as well as the development of more humane, not to say more practical, treatment aimed at training these subnormal children to the limit of their abilities so that they may lead more meaningful lives.

Vast initial strides have demonstrated that the majority of the mentally retarded are not the hopeless cases they were once considered. They can, in all but a comparatively few severe cases, with proper care, treatment and training be salvaged to lead useful and reasonably happy lives.

There have been important advances also in prevention. Here whole new fields have opened up, as medical science probes relentlessly for the causes of mental retardation. Some of the answers, it has been found, are relatively simple, as simple as proper prenatal care. Others are more complex, demanding prompt specialist attention to correct a potentially crippling condition at birth.

In other areas, the mystery is giving way more slowly. There are glimmers of light and promises of major breakthroughs, but there is still much work to be done.

The important fact, is that there has been progress, hope-giving progress, in which Canada's 600,000 mentally retarded have a vital stake.

This is why the period May 6 to 16 is so vital to three per cent of the children born in Canada during the past 12 months. Our strides in the next few years, the extent to which we will be able to aid these 15,000 infants and those yet unborn, will be decided in large measure by the size of the investment their fellow Canadians are prepared to make on their behalf.

A doctor shortage

THE DEMAND for doctors in Canada, particularly in rural and less-populated regions, is growing to the point where in some situations the shortage is virtually an emergency.

Yet the training of new doctors is almost at a standstill relative to the growth in demand, new statistics issued by the profession show.

While factors such as isolation and the inability of a community to provide what a doctor would consider adequate remuneration, cause doctor shortages in some areas, the training system at present apparently is failing to turn out doctors at a pace that matches the demand.

A report in the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association shows that enrolment in the first year of medicine at 12 Canadian medical schools in 1963-64 numbered 1,086 — an increase of 25 or 2.4 per cent over the previous year. Total enrolment was up 3.6 per cent to 3,689 in all the four years of the medical course. (All of the increase in first-year enrolment, incidentally, was due to the registration of more women.)

The number of students enrolled in the first year is less than one-third the number of serious applications received — 3,818 — which would include some duplication, but excludes applicants lacking requisite academic standards.

The Journal report says flatly that "fully qualified applicants are being denied admission to Canadian medical schools because of the lack of facilities." It notes that eight schools increased their enrolment without enlarging facilities, in "an effort to increase the output of graduates in the face of an obvious shortage of physicians in the future."

There has been criticism of the system whereby the medical profession, which controls medical education, limits the number of doctors being graduated. The response is that even if the number of suitable applicants does exceed the number admitted each year, facilities available would not accommodate a greatly-increased enrolment, and small classes are essential for proper training in any case.

Elsewhere in the same Journal, an article on European medical education comments that "huge" medical classes, particularly in Russia, achieve a satisfactory standard.

Perhaps the Russian example, in which a teacher-student ratio of one to nine is maintained despite large classes, would bear further study by Canadian authorities.

Pension agreement a major milestone

AGREEMENT by our federal and provincial governments on a National Pension Plan is seen as a decisive turning point in Canadian history, by The Financial Post in a page-one editorial. The effects of the decision will go rumbling and roaring on for decades and generations to come. But here are some of the more immediate effects, as seen by the writer:

1. — Confederation has been stabilized.

2. — The end of minority government at Ottawa and the return of the Pearson administration with a decisive majority at the next election right now seems likely.

3. — The stature of the provincial governments in the Canadian scheme of things has been greatly enhanced. Their revenue position will be much improved by their extra share of the income tax. But their power will be enormously enlarged by their control over the use of the gigantic sums which will be collected in pension premiums. Provincial capitals, rather than Ottawa, will be the place to go to influence decisions about the distribution of money. Some provinces, some of the time, will behave wisely. Some, some of the time, won't. This decisive shift in big decision-making away from Ottawa to the provinces will deeply affect all our people and the kind of community we live in.

Those who look into the longer term effects of the plan will be delighted or appalled, according to their prevailing political predilections. Some provinces may use pension funds for building social capital — more schools and universities and hospitals, urban re-development. To some, this will be too "socialistic". On the other hand, nightmares can be dreamed of drunken manipulation of funds for sleazy political purposes. One thing is certain: Canada's much-lacerated taxpayers will pay and pay heavily for the tax deal with the provinces that helped put the National Pension Plan across. Not only will Ottawa have to collect an extra $200 million a year to offset the bigger share of taxes going to the provinces, but it could have to make up another $200 million in tax revenues lost because more people will be making bigger pension payment deductions from taxable income. Plainly, Canada's new pension plan is not only a major landmark in the evolution of the economic system under which our country operates — it is also an expensive one.

OVER THE YEARS With The Lachute Watchman

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 14, 1889 —

There is a marked decline in emigration from British ports to Canada this year.

Cushing — On Tuesday the 28th., Inst. Miss Barber of Montreal will (D.V.) visit the Front of Chatham and will hold two meetings on Temperance.

St. Andrews — Yesterday a number of gentlemen, Messrs. Globensky, Secretary of the Great Northern, C. S. Baker, C. E., contractor Mackin and J. S. Buchan, went over the proposed line to St. Andrews. It is learned that immediate construction of the road is planned.

Brownsburg — The cheese factory is now in full operation under the management of Mr. Flood, of Plantagenet.

St. Andrews — The complacent bartender at Bellevue House, on the riverside, was dipping up a pail of water when a large fish (genus suppressed) leaped up and, attracted no doubt by the appearance of the representative of the above House, unintentionally dropped into the pail. The astonished bartender, more frightened than hurt, served it on the breakfast table the same morning, to the delight of his appreciative guests.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 1, 1914 —

Mr. Yelland has removed his family from Montreal to occupy the residence of Mr. Simon MacKimmie for the summer.

The Merchants Bank has decamped from town as mysteriously as it came. Their stay was a brief one, with no explanations offered.

Following the resignation of Mr. Dumouchel from the management of the Provincial Bank, one of our prominent townsmen, Mr. J. R. McOuat, has been appointed as his successor. The choice is a wise one; Mr. McOuat has for many years had dealings with the public through his general store.

Mr. J. H. Dumouchel has been appointed to the position of assistant manager of a Bank of Ottawa Branch in Hull, Que.

Mr. Jas. W. Griffith has removed his family to his new home in Arnprior.

Over $1,300 has been subscribed to the new organ fund of the Presbyterian Church.

Lyall Funcheon, youngest son of J. W. Funcheon, Beech Ridge, accidentally shot himself with a .22 rifle he was carrying, when a gander flew at him and he swung the rifle to ward it off. In a serious condition, he was taken by train to the General Hospital in care of Dr. Mason.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 4, 1939 —

A telegram from Temogami to the Toronto Globe & Mail: "Fear of invasion from the north by enemy forces completely averted by war measure taken by Minister of Highways, to leave the Ferguson Highway in its present condition."

Boys' Band Week at Brownsburg included concerts at the parish hall and United Church, and a matinee for school children at the Capitol Theatre.

The time-honored custom of planting a flag on the ice at Grece's Point on May Day was observed again this year.

Athanase Latour, city engineer at St. Jerome, has been appointed assistant deputy minister of roads at Quebec.

A congregational meeting approved the architect's plan for rebuilding of the Lachute United Church, which was destroyed by fire in February. The estimate is around $35,000.

About 100 children from Lachute High School will go to Montreal on May 15 to get a glimpse of Their Majesties on their tour of the metropolis. Simular arrangements have been made for Catholic children and pupils of Brownsburg Consolidated School.

A building on Main Street, Grenville, containing a butcher shop and two dwellings, was destroyed by fire. The store was occupied by J. P. Lessard, butcher, and the block was owned by his father, proprietor of the Lessard Hall or Long Sault Hotel.

Goldwater Vs. Lodge

By RAY ARGYLE

The two most important Republican presidential primaries of the year will be run off within the next month — in Oregon May 15 and in California June 2. The likely winners at this stage are Henry Cabot Lodge in Oregon and Barry Goldwater in California.

Ray Argyle

And the only reason Goldwater will probably win in California is that Mr. Lodge —the hardest-running non-candidate in the United States — is not listed on the California ballot, where no write-ins are allowed and the contest is limited to authorized candidatures.

I have recently returned from a swing through these states, where I talked with Republican party pros, seasoned newspapermen and many typical voters.

The race for the Republican party nomination is following a curious course in this presidential election year. The harder the declared candidates campaign, the more unpopular they become. The greater the exposure of the two major campaigners, Mr. Goldwater and New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, the less enthusiasm they appear to be able to whip up among the party faithful.

This unusual state of affairs accounts in large part for the phenomenal popularity of Mr. Lodge, the 1960 Republican vice-presidential candidate who has served for the past year as U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam.

It took Lodge's upset victory in New Hampshire to convince Republican party pros that neither of their big guns were able to sell themselves to the rank and file voter. It also knocked the stuffings out of Richard Nixon's pretentions to the 1964 nomination, although his public support remains generally widespread.

As both the California and Oregon primaries will commit the state's convention delegates on the first ballot, Sen. Goldwater will have to sweep both of them to remain in serious contention.

It is clearly evident he will be unable to carry Oregon, where the public opinion polls give Mr. Lodge nearly 50 per cent. of the vote, with the balance split among five other candidates.

Despite Mr. Goldwater's inability to seriously discuss the political issues that confront the United States today, he probably will carry California. It will be a slender victory, however, made possible only by the lunatic fringe of right wing conservatives and John Birchers that dominate the party in Los Angeles County.

It is becoming increasingly likely, in fact, that none of the leading declared or even undeclared candidates will be nominated by the Republicans to face President Johnson this fall. The following thumb-nail sketches given me by a high-ranking Republican authority will help explain why:

Barry Goldwater — "The most ignorant man in American politics today, totally incapable of understanding the issues of our time."

Gov. Rockefeller—"Probably the most capable of the leading candidates, but a hopeless loser because of his divorce."

Richard Nixon — "A man who will say anything if he thinks it will win him votes, but who has in the last four years personally alienated every important Republican leader in the country."

It Happened One Sunday

By BILL SMILEY

Bill Smiley

Does going to church improve your golf score? Do you put the good side out or in when you build a fence on your property? How many people attend evening service at church? Why do women live longer than men?

I don't know how you spend Sunday, these fine spring days, but I got the answer to these questions, and a few others, last Sunday.

Went to church Sunday morning, and was early, for once. It was twenty to eleven when I arrived, and it's usually eighteen minutes later than that.

The reason was that I was on hand to teach Bible Class, which begins at quarter to ten. You guessed it. The Smileys for about the tenth year in a row, had forgotten to join the swing to Daylight Saving time.

* * *

Took advantage of the extra time to line up golf game with fellow pillar of congregation. Answer to question 1: No. I can't understand it, but going to church doesn't improve your golf. This other good Anglican and I took on a couple of Presbyterians who admitted they'd missed morning service. They licked us. Badly.

Home at 4 p.m. Sat in chair in sun in yard, licking golf wounds.

Wife appears. Glares around yard. Looks meanly at me, then at half-raked leaves, half-baked dog who messes everywhere, cat who climbs screen on kitchen door and ruins it, huge branch off oak tree lying across flower beds, fence leaning towards us at 45 degrees.

She tells me we've got to have a new fence. It'll cost hundreds of dollars. I produce a diversion. Ask her whether we'll put good side of fence in or out. I suggest out. She says no. I say everybody does. She says I'm crazy. I say, calmly, she's ridiculous.

* * *

Leap in car to inspect fences all over town. Some face in, others out. Nobody will give in. She gets sore. I give in. But I'm telling you right here, answer to Question 2: Depends on whether you want to look at the nice side of your fence, or want your neighbors to see it.

Urgent call during dinner. Sidesman needed for evening service. Can't think quickly. Agree reluctantly. Get to church. Not a pillar in sight. Not a sinner. Not a choir member. Three altar boys, rector on the job. Congregation is me. Got the works, including sermon. Answer to Question 3.

But rector told a good story later. One elderly cattle farmer turned up, once, for evening service. Preacher said, kindly, "Since you're the only one here, perhaps we'll dispense with the sermon."

Farmer says, "Well, if I loaded the whole wagon with feed, and only one old cow turned up, I think I'd feed her." Preacher agreed it was good logic. Went through entire service, including one-hour sermon.

When it ended, he asked farmer what he thought. Latter replied, "Well, if I loaded the whole wagon with feed, and only one old cow turned up to be fed, I don't think I'd dump the whole wagon in front of her."

And the answer to the last question? Why do women live longer than men. 'Taint original, but I like it. "Because they don't have wives."

Danish farmers to visit Canada

Ottawa — Agriculture Minister Harry Hays states that a group of some 70 Danish farmers plan to visit Canada late next September or in early October, to look into the possibility of buying Canadian dairy cattle.

During a visit to Denmark last September, Mr. Hays informed the Danish Minister of Agriculture, Kary Skytte, about the high quality of Canadian dairy cattle, and suggested Danish livestock producers might find them attractive to add to their herds.

Mr. Hays commented: "Denmark is one of the few European countries which has a favorable trade balance with Canada. Canadian exports to Denmark last year totalled $6.8 million while Denmark's sales to Canada amounted to $13.2 million. Denmark is therefore in a good position to buy more from Canada, particularly in the area of quality agricultural production.

"Canadian dairy cattle are a quality product and I welcome the decision of these farmers to come over and have a look at what we have to offer."

The Danish farmers will be flying to Montreal by chartered plane. They are expected to visit Ottawa, and have been in contact with the Canadian Holstein-Friesian Association headquarters at Brantford, Ont., about visits in that area. They have expressed an interest in looking into other aspects of Canadian farming as well.

A Mother's Gifts

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

A mother's gifts are many and varied. Lloyd C. Douglas, in A Prayer for All Mothers, mentions that God has endowed mothers with sympathy for childhood's foolish fears, dismaying greeds, flashing rages, and careless responses to costly devotion.

Likely the greatest thing our mothers did for us was to set us an example of gracious, kindly living and provide us with happy childhood memories.

My own mother enjoyed being hospitable, she shared her love of books with us, she tolerated our pets and encouraged us in our interest in birds. Most of all she lived her religion in such a way that it was an inspiration to her family.

Hospitality

Mother's hospitality to all kinds of people was part of our family life. She welcomed our friends and expected us to be courteous to her visitors, too. How many individuals often discouraged and anxious made their way to the manse, where mother served them a cup of tea (with whatever else she could find to go with it) and listened as they unburdened their hearts!

Mother had many interests and even in lean December there was always a book for each member of the family under the Christmas tree. We were allowed to choose one book as a birthday present each year. Father served as chairman of our local library board, and each week we went with Mother to the library to choose our books while she chose hers.

No matter how weary she was at the end of the day, when we were small, she read aloud to us at bed time. I can almost hear her voice as she repeated poems such as Hiawatha and Evangeline and read Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch during weeks of quarantine.

Although she herself lacked Father's warm affection for animals, Mother tolerated our pets with remarkable patience (and cared for them if we were away or forgot our responsibilities for them). Our black and tan terrier, Togo, was loved by all of us for 14 years. A strange succession of other livestock — rabbits, cats, chickens, pigeons, "goosey-boy," and a painted turtle made their home with us.

Keen Interest

Mother took a keen interest in our bird-watching, and encouraged our bird house building. We were all thrilled when wrens built in a home we made and each spring for a number of years we welcomed them back. We had a well-worn small bird guide and we kept a family list of birds in our area.

My mother's greatest gift to all her family was her training in the Christian faith from our earliest years. She helped us to grow in our praying from the very simple little child's prayer to prayer in which we expressed our own petitions and thanksgiving at the end of the Lord's Prayer.

The Sunday School teacher found a real supporter in my mother. She thought it was just as important that a child should prepare his Sunday School lesson as his assignment in history or arithmetic or spelling for weekday school.

We knew that prayer and Bible reading and worship at church were not just a duty but a "means of grace" which gave Mother fresh courage and patience and also joy. Mother lived her religion in such a way that we saw the Christian life was attractive and challenging.

This is a very different age, with the threat of nuclear war and of materialism as well as Communism. But are the needs of our children different from ours when we were small? What are the gifts we are giving to the children growing up in our homes?

Farewell to arms

Not the least of the rewards which come from attending Home and School meetings are the stories one occasionally picks up there.

A recent one involved students in a ninth-grade English class who, as part of a test, were asked to write a letter that some famous historical figure might have written during his lifetime.

Although time was admittedly limited, the teacher was hardly prepared for one boy's terse contribution, to wit: "Dear Josephine, I am sorry to inform you that I did not make out so well at Waterloo. Yours truly, Napoleon."

A farewell to arms, you might say.

— Industry

Texstyles

Madeleine Levason

The spinning of thread and the weaving of cloth are among the oldest and most universal of crafts practised by mankind, so it is not surprising that words and phrases originating in the making of textiles should have become woven into the fabric of our everyday language.

That is the word from the Canadian Textiles Institute where an intriguing collection of many textile words, now a legal part of the English language, has been kept. Spinster, for instance, originally meant a woman, or man, who spun thread as a regular occupation. From being appended to a woman's name to denote her occupation it later became the legal description of an unmarried woman.

English being a living, changing language, there are many other such words where the textile background has been forgotten. BOUT is a complete round of knitting; BRAT a coarse garment; BRIDE a thread connecting different parts of a lace pattern; SAD describes a dull and sombre fabric; ILLUSION is the name given long ago to a very transparent variety of silk cloth. Yet, FLEECE is still a common enough word for skinning an easy mark, and VESTED once meant types of highly ceremonial costume.

Two words which they say illustrate both derivation from a textile background and the changing nature of language are BOMBAST and FUSTIAN. Bombast originally meant cotton or any soft fibrous material used as padding. Fustian was a coarse cotton and flax cloth deriving its name from FOSTAT, an Egyptian town where it was first made.

Outside the textile usage, these words both came to mean the same thing in English; that is, inflated, pompous, and ridiculously inappropriate language. Shakespeare speaks of a fellow that "dost bombast his labors with high-swelling words" and of a similar character as a "fustian rascall". Bombast survives today as a working word. We still speak of a speech as bombastic and of an orator as full of bombast. Fustian however is used only by the writer displaying scholarship.

The English language is particularly rich in terms of textile origin because of the importance of the textile industry in the history of English people.

Sheep certainly were domesticated in Britain long before Roman occupation, but the Romans established factories to supply their armies of occupation. It is no wonder that when we speak today of a man as being homespun, all wool and a yard wide, everyone knows what we mean.

He is a genuine dyed-in-the-wool type. He may have a rough finish, but he is not run-of-the-mill type. His moral fibre is strong.

According to the Textiles Institute, which represents Canada's vast industry of 80,000 workers, one could spin this out to some length by shuttling back and forth between good and bad uses of textile terms. Perhaps these are enough examples to show the intimate association between the development of the textile crafts and the development of language and culture and all that stuff. STUFF, by the way, is fabric or woven material not yet made into garments.

SWEET LANGUAGE

Music is the only language in which you cannot say a mean or sarcastic thing.

A MAGNIFICENT GRAVY MAKES ITSELF

If chicken is a favourite in your family, you probably serve it often to take advantage of its popularity and of the plentiful supply. Then, no doubt, you're eager to learn exciting, new ways to prepare it.

SAVOURY CHICKEN 'N GRAVY WITH BRUSSELS SPROUTS

(MAKES 6 TO 8 SERVINGS)

3 to 3½ pounds frying chicken pieces
¼ cup flour
¼ cup melted butter
2/3 cup (small can) undiluted evaporated milk
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed cream of celery soup
1 cup grated Swiss cheese
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
8 to 10 small cooked onions
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked and drained
Dash paprika

Coat chicken with flour. Arrange chicken in single layer, with skins sides down, in melted butter in baking dish (12 x 7½ x 2 inches). Bake uncovered in 425° (moderately hot) oven 30 minutes. Turn chicken; bake until brown 15 to 20 minutes or until tender. Pour off excess fat. Combine evaporated milk, soup, cheese, salt and pepper. Add onions and Brussels sprouts to chicken. Pour evaporated milk mixture over chicken. Sprinkle with paprika. Cover dish with foil. Reduce oven temperature to 325° and continue baking 15 to 20 minutes.

Fresh halibut now in season

One of spring's most flavorful foods is on the market — 1964's first fresh halibut, now arriving at Fisherman's Wharf in Vancouver.

Wise homemakers across Canada will serve this tender fish often during May, when prices are low and flavor unsurpassed.

When buying fresh halibut fillets or steaks, look for a mild characteristic odor, but not a strong or "fishy" smell.

Fish should have a firm, springy flesh that does not separate from the bones, or retain imprint of fingers when handled.

The fillets or steaks should be fresh in appearance, with no browning or drying out of the flesh.

Magic Ten Minutes

All fish have very little connective tissue, and therefore require only a brief cooking period.

Make sure not to overcook halibut: overcooking will make any fish tough and stringy.

Cook only 10 minutes per inch thickness, at a high temperature (about 450° if baking.) Or, if using frozen fish, cook 20 minutes per inch thickness.

Serve piping hot while tender and juicy, accompanied by lots of lemon slices or quarters.

The words "Open Sesame" were the key to Ali Baba's treasure. And they'll work wonders in your kitchen, too!

You're probably familiar with sesame seeds as a crunchy topping for bread or pastry. But did you know that their toasty, nut-like flavor is perfect for main dishes as well?

This tropical herb is especially good with fish: as a topping for canned salmon casseroles, or added to the breadcrumb or flour mixture when frying salmon or halibut.

In the following easy recipe for Sesame Baked Halibut, sesame seeds add crisp, golden texture to tender fresh halibut, now in season. Why not make a point of serving it during May, when halibut prices are low?

Sesame Baked Halibut

Two pounds halibut fillets or steaks, salt, ⅓ cup melted butter or margarine, 3 cups soft bread crumbs, ¼ tsp. black pepper, 3 tbsp. toasted sesame seeds, ¼ tsp. thyme.

Put fish in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, and pour on ¼ cup melted butter. Mix 1 tsp. salt, remaining butter and remaining ingredients. Spread on halibut. Bake in moderate oven, 375°F. about 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Vitamins and food products

In addition to flour and bread, some 130 enriched food products are sold in Canada. But enrichment without discrimination is an economic waste, according to Mariette J. Blais, assistant professor at the University of Montreal's Institute of Diets and Nutrition.

On the market are 17 enriched cereals, about 20 enriched margarines, 12 enriched flavored powders, 40 vitamin-added fruit juices and a variety of other foods, containing additives.

Miss Blais pointed out during a recent conference on food enrichment that the most valuable enriched foods were those for the nursing mother and bread for all the family.

The enrichment of flour consists of restoring nutritional qualities by adding the B-complex vitamins as well as iron and calcium.

"Thanks to this enrichment program, the consumption of four slices of enriched bread daily satisfies approximately 25 percent of the body's needs in the form of thiamin, riboflavin and niacine," Miss Blais said.

One cannot insist enough upon the moderate consumption of vitamins and the respect of a balanced diet but, as in the case of flour and bread, our basic food products should be enriched only to restore original values, Miss Blais said.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

When a flour company in Montreal held a contest for the best pie recipes from old Quebec, they found more than 100 new old recipes in the preliminaries. Most had been handed down from grandmother, and had never been seen in public before.

Typically, the meat pies included tortieres, a traditional French Canadian pie; hare and rabbit pies. Dessert pies were made of raisin and maple syrup, rhubarb, pumpkin, and apple and honey with cheese pastry.

One of the finalists who bakes an old Gaspé recipe, a sour-cream raisin meringue pie, attributed her success to using chilled ingredients. Mrs. Gerard Gagné of St. Laurent said she was a professional cook at the age of 14.

"I use shortening for all my baking. For me, a recipe has to be very special before I use butter."

It Took Time

Mrs. Paul Csipak of Montreal, who entered a pie of chicken and pig's feet, said, "I loved to watch my grandmother cook. She did it so well — very simply, but with lots of care and lots of time."

This recipe for raisin and maple syrup pie was entered by Mrs. Serge LaRocque.

Pastry

1¾ Cups sifted flour, ⅔ cup shortening, 4-5 tablespoons ice water.

Sift flour, measure into bowl. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse meal.

Sprinkle water on top gradually while stirring with a fork until mixture no longer sticks to sides of bowl. Press into ball.

Roll out pastry on lightly floured surface to line an eight inch pie plate and allowing for one inch overhang. Reserve left-over pastry to make strips for top of pie.

Filling

1½ Tablespoons cornstarch, ¼ cup water, 1 cup maple syrup, 1 cup raisins.

Mix cornstarch and water in saucepan. Add syrup and raisins. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and transparent, about five minutes. Let cool.

Pour cooled mixture into pastry-lined pie plate. Cover filling with strips of pastry in criss-cross fashion. Fold edge of bottom pastry over ends of strips and make a fluted edge.

Bake at 425 degrees Fahrenheit (hot) for 15-20 minutes or until pastry is golden brown.

FOR A NEW THANKSGIVING DAY

I have read somewhere that a condemned murderer is allowed to order anything he wants for his final meal, on the eve of his execution. Never having occupied a cell in Death Row, I don't know just what my reactions would be if such a banquet were offered me at such a time — but I imagine that the anticipation of mounting the scaffold on the following morning would not be conducive to a ravenous appetite.

That is why my reactions to Autumn follow similar lines. Thanksgiving week-end, with its glorious colors of the changing leaves, is one of the highlights of the year, but is marred by the knowledge of what follows this brief period — a drab, wet November and then that protracted period of undiluted misery, Winter.

So I suggest that the date of Thanksgiving Day be shifted to late April, when everything starts coming to life — the first green shoots of grass, the crocus, snowdrops, bloodroots and all the other wild and delicate spring flowers — the budding trees in all shades of greens and yellows — the return of the birds, the warmth of the sun. The most amazing thing about Spring is the exact rotation of all growing things. One never sees asters nor goldenrod blooming in April. With perfect timing, never varying from year to year, everything comes up in the same order and at its proper time. It is the time for colts, calves and lambs to take their first look at this funny world. It is the time for us humans to start smiling and rejoicing, that at last the winter is over and the summer is ahead.

So why not have Thanksgiving Day at a time when the vast majority of folks feel like giving thanks?

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Classical ballet at Hawkesbury

The Hawkesbury Rotary Club are sponsoring an appearance of the Classical Ballet concert group of Ottawa. The concert will be held at the Christ Roi School on Saturday, May 16 — a matinee at 2.30 p.m. and an evening performance at 8.15 p.m.

The ballets to be performed are Copelia Act II, Pas de Quatre, Les Valses, for the matinee; and Pas de Quatre, Copelia Act II, Medusa and La Bayadere, in the evening.

The company is headed by Joanne Ashe, Joan Askwith, Marilee Williams, Frederic Braun and Edgard Demers. Approximately 20 members of the group will be taking part. It is interesting to note that Madame Toumine, who is choreographer for the company, went to New York City earlier this year at the request of Igor Youskevitch and taught the two ballets, "Les Valses" and "La Bayadere", to his company.

Proceeds of this concert will go to the crippled children's fund of Hawkesbury Rotary Club.

(Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. C. Cottee, of the Hawkesbury Women's Club.)

Asparagus in springtime — here today, gone tomorrow

Asparagus is our first spring vegetable. The warm spring days and nights that encourage Canadians to get outdoors and enjoy nature renewing itself, also favor the growth of the tender shoots of asparagus. They begin to push their way through the rich brown earth near the end of April in British Columbia and flourish during the month of May in various areas across the country. By the middle of June they have passed their peak in most localities. Wise shoppers will place asparagus high on their food lists during its brief appearance.

The asparagus we see today, "asparagus-oficinalis", is only one of several species that are edible, although it is the most important and has been popular for many centuries.

It is interesting to know that asparagus will remain productive, under the best conditions, up to 30 years. However, commercial beds are usually renewed every 10 to 15 years.

The home economists of the Consumer Section give this information about buying, preparing and cooking asparagus:

— Look for fresh, tender, firm asparagus with close, compact tips. A tender stalk is brittle and easily punctured. The tips should be a deep green or bluish-green color; avoid asparagus with an excessive amount of white stem for it is very likely to be tough. Asparagus ages quickly after it is cut; the tips tend to spread and the stalks become tough and woody.

— Asparagus may be advertised by grade as Canada No. 1 or No. 1. Try to choose bunches of approximately the same size stalks. This will ensure more even cooking. For six average servings buy about one and a half to two pounds of asparagus.

— Store in the refrigerator in a moisture-proof bag or container if you cannot serve it the day it is bought. Wilted stalks may sometimes be freshened by placing in cold water for a few minutes before cooking.

— Carefully cooked asparagus ensures the retention of most of its nutrients. Asparagus provides vitamins A and C and also some of the B vitamins.

* * *

To Prepare and Cook

Handle asparagus by the stalks to prevent injuring the tips. Break off each stalk as far down as it will snap easily. Rinse well in cold water. Trim off the small scales at the bottom of the stalk where sand may have collected, and wash again. Use a soft brush for this. Now the asparagus is ready to be cooked.

A simple method of cooking asparagus is in a skillet or frying pan (preferably not iron). Pour in boiling water to a depth of ½ inch and add salt (½ teaspoon for 6 servings). Lay asparagus flat and cover pan tightly. Bring water back to a boil. Reduce heat and boil gently until stalks are just tender. Cooking times suggested are: small stalks 6 to 10 minutes; medium stalks 7 to 11 minutes; large stalks 8 to 12 minutes. Serve promptly.

Asparagus needs very little to enhance its flavor — a little butter, salt and pepper and a sprinkle of lemon juice, or a Hollandaise sauce blend well with this vegetable.

* * *

Asparagus is good raw, too. It has a nutty flavor and crunchy texture. In England, apparently this vegetable was once as popular raw as cooked. The 16th Century writer, Evelyn, records in his diary that "spirage" was "delicious eaten raw with oyl and vinegar." It is also delicious cut in slivers and added to a favorite tossed salad. It's nutritious served this way too.

The home economists offer a marinated asparagus side salad and an exotic oriental dish "Chinese-Style Asparagus". They hope you housewives will try them both soon.

Asparagus Salad

1½ Pounds asparagus, ½ cup French dressing, lettuce, 1 to 2 hard-cooked eggs (chopped or cut in wedges or slices), 1 to 2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Wash asparagus, remove scales and wash again. Cook until just tender, then drain well and cool. Prepare dressing, pour over asparagus and marinate in refrigerator for about 1 hour. Serve as a side salad on lettuce leaves. Garnish with hard-cooked egg and sprinkle with parsley. 6 servings.

Chinese-Style Asparagus

1 Pound asparagus (about 3 cups cut), 1½ cups cut celery (½-inch diagonal slices), ¼ pound mushrooms (about 1½ cups sliced), ¼ cup butter, ½ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, soy suace.

Wash asparagus, remove scales and wash again, then cut diagonally in 1-inch pieces. Slice celery and mushrooms. Melt butter in frying pan, add asparagus and celery and mix well to coat pieces. Cover closely and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes. Stir in musnrooms, salt and pepper, cover and continue cooking until vegetables are barely tender, 8 to 10 minutes, stirring once or twice during cooking. Serve with soy sauce; makes 6 servings.

Atrazine for weed control in corn may have its faults, but it is much too valuable a chemical to leave on the shelf. That is the opinion of a good many who have used this wonder weed-killer over the past three or four years.

Last season, I followed up a dozen reports of damage by residual Atrazine to grain crops following the corn. In every case, the harm could be traced to faulty application.

In one instance, too small a pump had been used; not enough material re-circulated to keep the solution stirred up. In another, the wrong nozzles had been bought for a home-made sprayer. Several were simply the result of overlapping; strips of white, shrivelled oats showed down the field exactly one boom-width apart. You could often see just where the sprayer had turned on the corners.

On the other hand, sugar beets are very sensitive and should not be planted after Atrazine-treated corn. There has also been injury to tomatoes, turnips, white beans, peas and tobacco. But if care is used, and the recommended rates are not exceeded, the risk to oats, barley and new seeding is small.

Now for the good points. Atrazine has made it possible to plant the corn, spray, and then close the gate until harvest. No cultivating, no ridges for the harvester to bounce over, and near perfect weed control.

Rate of application is 1¼ to 2 lbs. active material per acre. That is 3 to 4 lbs. of 50W material. But I notice there is a 65W on the market this year for the first time, and, in the States, 80W is sold. You would have to use proportionately less of these concentrated materials.

Apply it as a spray in at least 30 gallons of water to the acre, at pressure of 35 p.s.i. or more. It can go on anytime after planting, but before the weeds are 1½ inches high.

The cost for material is somewhat less than $8.00 an acre. The returns are labor-saved cultivating, and a much better corn crop. It's really worth it.

Atrazine will handle twitch grass, too. But you have to double the rate, and you don't dare plant anything but corn the next year.

Linuron (Lorox) will probably be used also this year. I haven't seen this chemical in the fields yet, but I understand that, while it gets away from residue risk, it is more expensive and not quite as good as Atrazine on corn.

Rogers Bradford, Lachute, has a good thing going for him. He sells lambs for the Easter market. It is one enterprise that fits in with his full-time job in town, and a rocky farm.

Buyers pick the lambs up at the door, and give a good price for them. They take any that are over 30 lbs. live weight.

The trick is to have the lambs arrive soon after New Year's. Roger tries to fool the sheep into thinking the breeding season is in August. He imitates fall conditions by bringing them into a cool, dark shed early in the evening.

His customers are mostly New Canadians from the Balkans, who have memories of young lamb roasted whole over a grape-wood fire. Their Easter was on May 3 this year.

The same day that I visited Rogers Bradford, I called on his brother Floyd and his father Douglas, who have a dairy farm. It was milking time; their routine was as efficient as any I have ever seen. The 32 cows were milked in one hour 10 minutes. The two men used three units, but I couldn't figure out how they worked back and forth across the walk without tangling up. I think the secret of their speed was in washing each cow one minute before the milker went on. That gave her just time to let down her milk. They didn't hand-strip, and there was no mastitis.

The Bradfords tell me they are using a new high-energy dairy ration. I want to find out more about that.

Cruelty or Discipline?

(Including a reference to local Auction Barn)

— Contributed by Norman Thorburn —

What some people consider as cruelty, others consider as discipline.

Cruelty is a relative word, to a great extent. For instance, some may consider the lash for prisoners as a form of cruelty, instead of as a disciplining measure.

Some may even consider strapping, in school, as an act of cruelty, instead of a disciplinary act.

The last time I got the strap in high school, I received a real good licking that I never forgot. I was talking in class to a little Jewish boy named Goldstein. The teacher turned and accused Goldstein of talking in class. "Go out into the hall," he thundered, "and wait for me."

I could have got off easily, but I couldn't help thinking of poor Goldstein. This teacher was the toughest in the school. He wielded the strap with a heavy hand. Some said he gave the strap a flip at the end, just as it hit the boy's hand; this really raised the flesh. . . After some hestitation, I blurted out, "I guess I was talking too, sir". . . "You go out too, then," said the teacher.

He gave me five strokes on one hand, with all the strength he could muster. When I lifted my hand for the last stroke, it felt as though I was lifting a hundred pounds, with one sore hand. "Your other hand," he growled. I presented my other hand for punishment.

I received four strokes and as I lifted my injured limb for the last stroke, I found I couldn't raise my hand high enough to suit the teacher. My arm was temporarily paralyzed. "I guess you've had enough," he said. I didn't give him the satisfaction of saying, "Yes".

My hands were black and blue, and twice as thick as usual. But that wasn't cruelty, that was discipline, and I well deserved all I got. I would be the last to say that strapping in school should be abolished.

Young humans, like the lower animals, have to be disciplined.

On the farm, when a young cow kicks you in the head as you stoop to milk her, and sends you sprawling on a cement floor — if you live to tell the tale, you don't get up and say, "Nice bossie, you shouldn't have done that." You take a switch and give her something to remember. If we didn't do that, the animals would soon be masters of the farmer.

When a heavy horse steps on your foot and almost squashes it, you take the other unfettered foot and give the clumsy lummox of a horse a swift kick. Many farmers have been seriously injured in this fashion.

When a bull pounds you in the arm as you give the ungrateful beast a pail of water, you have to teach him good manners; and a really wicked bull is better hanging in a butcher's shop.

Now hunting and fishing, are in a different category. These are blood sports, necessarily cruel, appealing to man's lust to kill. When you snag a fish with a barbed hook, when you wound an animal in the bush, and it dies in misery — this is cruelty.

It is appalling the number of birds that hoodlum hunters, and bush bandits, shoot out of the skies and leave to hobble around on the ground — to die a slow agonizing death.

I rescued a wounded snow-bird some winters ago, and we restored it to health. Last fall I picked up a wounded crow, two weeks after his fellow corvines had departed for the south,. but in spite of my best ministrations, it died. I also tried to rescue a wounded snipe, but it ran too fast for me, although it couldn't fly.

The savage Indian, before the white man came to these shores, treated the wild animals much more respectfully. He approached his quarry stealthily in the bush, shunning all animals unfit for human consumption, and he shot his arrow, straight and true to the heart of his victim. Then, bending over its prostrate form, he begged forgiveness of its spirit, for parting it from its fleshy body because his tribe was hungry.

* * *

The people who find cruelty at the local farm auction are not farmers, have never been farmers, and never intend to be.

Instead of acting like self-constituted private detectives, snooping around the auction and sniping at the proprietor's operations, anonymously through the medium of the local press — why don't they speak to the boss? He is the kindest of men.

I know, for certain, that this auction is protected from disease by the federal veterinarian, Dr. René Toupin, who, as everybody knows, is no friend of the wrong-door, albeit, an honest and entirely impartial administrator of the health laws of this country.

If I were to take a horse to the local farm auction, and beat it unmercifully in public view, I would expect to be grabbed by angry farmers, and choked to within an inch of my life!

We have been told that the auction barn must soon be demolished to make room for an overpass, and the continuance of the auction, itself is threatened. We farmers are sorry to hear this.

Editor's Note: Criticism in this case was not "sniping at the proprietor's operations anonymously", as you suggest. The Watchman does not lend itself to tactics damaging to legitimate business or personal character. The writer was (and is) concerned with cruelty to animals — in this case irreconcilable in any way with discipline. The blame is in the perpetrators' inhuman slant, and also in lack of supervision by the authorities concerned, whoever they may be.

Scholarships to Carleton Univ.

Carleton University has announced the establishment of a large number of new annual scholarships, the Dr. Frederick W. C. Mohr scholarships. The awards, 26 in number, with a maximum value of $500 each, have been made possible through a substantial bequest to the university by the late Dr. Mohr of Ottawa.

The scholarships will be awarded to students from the Ottawa Valley district who are entering Carleton or who are already in course at the university. Students from the following counties in Ontario and Quebec are eligible to apply: Ontario — Carleton, Dundas, Glengarry, Grenville, Lanark, Leeds, Nipissing, Prescott, Renfrew, Russell, and Stormont; Quebec — Argenteuil, Gatineau, Hull, Papineau, Pontiac, and Temiskaming.

Making the announcement, Carleton president Davidson Dunton noted how grateful the university is for such a valuable bequest, and added that the new scholarships will provide additional incentive and means for Ottawa and district students studying at Carleton.

Awards will be made on the basis of high academic performance and financial need. The University registrar, Dr. John McLeish, stressed that both new and continuing students must make special application for these scholarships, on forms supplied on request by the university.

FAMOUS CANADIAN ARMY BADGES

The Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada

Centuries of British tradition are steeped in the cap badge of The Black Watch (Royal Highland Regiment) of Canada.

On the Cross of St. Andrew and a diamond-cut Star of the Order of Thistle is superimposed a wreath of thistles and the inscription "Nemo Me Impune Lacessit" all surmounted by the Crown.

The design of the entire badge is adopted from the British Black Watch and shows the alliance between the two regiments, and the motto translated as "No One Provokes Me With Impunity" aptly describes the fighting capabilities of this unit.

PARTISANS MEET AT ST. HERMAS —

Plan re-organization at Prog.-Cons. rally

At the invitation of Roger E. Regimbal, the ex-Progressive Conservative candidate, over 300 supporters of the party in Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes gathered at St. Hermas last Wednesday evening to hear Léon Balcer, provincial chieftain of the party, who spoke with enthusiasm of a new zest in the P.C. ranks since a strictly provincial organization had come into being.

Mr. Balcer vigorously criticized the Liberal government's treatment of the agricultural classes, notably in their failure to appoint an Agriculture minister for eastern Canada.

Mr. Louis-J. Pigeon, deputy for Joliette - l'Assomption - Montcalm, introduced by Mr. Régimbal as prime challenger of the Liberal members in the Commons, criticized this County's inadequate representation in Ottawa.

Mr. Regimbal thanked all those who had rallied to the appeal to set up a truly representative P.C. organization for this constituency. To put this into fuller effect, a provisionary committee was named to lay the structure and plan for a convention as early as possible. The five partisans appointed were — Mme Lucy Francoeur and Conrad Caza, for Deux Montagnes, Marcel Godin and Donald MacRae, for Argenteuil, together with Mr. Regimbal.

When questioned on his personal intentions regarding the candidature, Mr. Regimbal said he would agree to return, if that was the desire of the Progressive-Conservative supporters, but he would like to see their choice confirmed at a meeting of the new association. . . Mr. Regimbal and his plans for re-organization were warmly applauded.

W. M. Cottingham, M.P.P. and Mr. J. O. Latour took part in a question period following the speeches.

Co-chairmen of the rally were Mayor H. Lafond of St. Hermas and Notary Jacques Beaudoin, of Lachute.

Nominations for councillors

Nominations for councillors for the Municipality of Chatham are called for today (Wednesday) and citizens are reminded that, should an election be necessary, this will take place on Tuesday, May 19.

Nominations are also taking place for vacancies in Brownsburg and Ayersville.

Fines imposed, permits suspended

The man and wife arrested in March for impaired driving, Mr. and Mrs. Clodomir Theriault of Brownsburg, appeared before Judge Omer Côté at St. Jerome on Friday, and each received a $50 fine and suspension of their driving permit for three months.

The couple were arrested by town constables Cuilleries and Durand, assisted by provincial police officers, when they were caught zigzagging with their car on the Main Street. They became abusive in their language and, during the intervention of the cops, Mrs. Theriault took the wheel of the auto and backed it into the police officer's car at the Barron's Bridge approach.

On the evidence of several witnesses, Judge Côté "had no hesitation in finding them both guilty" of impaired driving.

* * *

Victor Girard, 20, of Lachute, was condemned to pay a $50 fine and costs, on a similar charge; also, his driving permit was suspended for three months. Girard was charged in connection with an escapade in which his car damaged three other automobiles on Main Street East.

Repetitious theme - notice of motion for pay-council by-law

Following an overture at last Council meeting on the revamping of store hours, Antoine Malaket appeared at the May meeting, to present a formal request from a number of merchants. They asked for an amendment to By-law 205 to allow business hours Thursday evenings. Ald. François Charlebois gave notice of motion to present the revision at a future sitting, to give satisfaction to the merchants.

Also amendment for Thursday p.m. store hours

Correspondence

The Carrefour du Livre wrote thanking the Council for the use of the Auditorium. The hall will also be made available without charge to the People's Church, for a convention on May 18.

A letter from the Argenteuil Liberal Association endorsed the town's request to Quebec Government for the rebuilding of Barron's Bridge.

Appreciation was expressed by the High School authorities for signs erected to prohibit parking on Harriet Street.

A request for water service to the property of H. Clarke, Hill Head, was held over for consideration. A similar request for sewerage on a terrain situated at the rear of the Dairy Queen, was agreed upon, on condition that costs would be paid, on cash terms, by the parties interested.

Property tax was reduced for Alex Gervais, who suffered heavy loss by fire, and also in the case of a garage which had been demolished.

The roads committee were commissioned to look into two requests, (1) for construction of a sidewalk and drain on Hamelin Street, submitted by Marcel Dallaire, and (2) a complaint from Mme Plouffe concerning damage to the gallery of her property, at the corner of Grace and Bethany.

On Trail of Errant Dogs

Three councillors, Messrs. J. O. Desjardins, N. Lepage and F. Charlebois, were named to look into application of the by-law for impounding and destroying stray dogs. Frank Barron has already offered his assistance in this matter.

Aldermen Charlebois and Lepage proposed that another radio inter-com be installed in Foreman Simard Larocque's truck.

Finally, notice of motion was given by Ald. Charlebois for introduction of a by-law providing remuneration of the Council members.

Ald. P. E. Pariseau was the only councillor absent from this statutory meeting, at which Mayor Dave Campbell presided. The "minister of finance", Ald. Laurier Carrière, was appointed pro-mayor for the ensuing three months.

Council impasse on tenders for road paving

Council reached a stalemate at its regular May session, on the matter of a contract for the paving of certain thoroughfares. At the meeting last Wednesday, chaired by Mayor Dave Campbell, the councillors could not agree on which bidder should receive the contract.

The project is for re-paving of Harriet, between Main and Filion Streets; Mary, between Main and Grace Streets; and St. Julien, from Wilson to Charles St. Offers from five different paving contractors were read by Ald. Francois Charlebois, who had originally moved the resolution.

The bids were as follows; Entreprises d'Argenteuil, $15,868.80; H. J. O'Connell, $13,999; Rosaire Quenneville, $13,850; Argenteuil Construction & Paving Ltée, $13,874; and Benoit Morrissette, $12,986.41.

Ald. Ed. McFaul and Dr. Middleton favored the firm of H. J. O'Connell, while Ald. F. Charlebois and Dr. Dumais favored Benoit Morrissette, the lowest bidder.

Ald. Lepage proposed that the contract be given to Argenteuil Construction & Paving, but there was no seconder to this motion.

As for Ald. J. O. Desjardins, he declined to vote, on the contention that his proposal for a survey of the sewer system should come first before re-paving the roads.

Finally it was agreed (by all except Ald. Desjardins) to advertise in the papers for new tenders — such bids to be sealed and accompanied by a guarantee of execution.

Winners of girls' oratory in Lions Que.-Ont. contest

Dianne Boa of Lachute High School (left) and Hélène Desforges of l'Ecole St. Alexandre, are seen here with the Eastern Canada Lions oratory trophies which they won in the English-speaking and French-speaking girls' contests, respectively. They reached the finals, held May 2 at Port Hope, by excelling in the local club contest, then in the district eliminations and the district semi-finals, at St. Lambert, Que.

Winner in the English boys' section was John Sabine, of London, Ont., and in the French boys' section, Maurice Godin, of Buckingham.

The trophies are accompanied, in each case, by a $150 cash award, a $300 bursary, and an engraved desk set.

Overpass at Simon's to cost $468,700

Plans and estimates have been prepared for a viaduct to eliminate the long-notorious Simon's Crossing, west of Lachute on Route 8. The Quebec minister of highways has asked the Federal Board of Transport for an ordinance to authorize this safeguard, which will cost in the neighborhood of $468,700.

The project will tie in with the re-making of Route 8, planned by the Department, and estimated costs have been given as follows:

Viaduct construction	$199,867.40
Ramps	165,879.15
Removing Signals	3,000.00
Expropriations	36,750.00
Detour Approaches	18,531.94
Temporary Crossing	2,000.00
Planning, Supervision	42,671.51
Total —	$468,700.00

The cost will be apportioned in the following manner:

Fed'l Board of Transport
80% — $374,960.

Canadian Pacific Railway
5% — $ 23,435.

Quebec Dept. of Highways
15% — $ 70,305.

The cost of maintenance, after construction, will be the responsibility of the provincial department.

The plan, submitted for approval of the Ayersville Municipal Council, was endorsed at its statutory meeting for May, held under chairmanship of Mayor Gaston Plamondon.

A committee study on civic library

The committee on grants and donations came up with a recommendation for $1,650 to four different organizations, to be taken out of the municipal budget of $4,475 set aside for that purpose.

The Red Cross campaign receives $25, the Canadian Cancer Society $25, the Carrefour du Livre (library) $1,500, and the C.N.I.B. $100.

The committee chairmen, Alderman J. O. Desjardins, remarked that the Chamber of Commerce and the Agricultural Society had not submitted their requests. "Regarding the Centre d'Art," the councillor stated, "last year they received $4,000 from the Provincial Government. We granted $500, but the directorate seemed dissatisfied, and I do not recommend a grant this year."

The budget of $4,475 represents one percent of the town's annual estimates, $447,670 — with a small reserve for unforeseeable demands.

Council votes $1,500 grant to 'Carrefour'

The $1,500 grant to the Carrefour du Livre raised comment, from Aldermen N. Lepage and Ed McFaul. The latter felt that the town should give $1,000 now and $500 later in the year; this view, backed by Ald. Lepage, was rejected when six councillors, J. O. Desjardins, F. Charlebois, Dr. R. A. Dumais, Dr. L. A. Middleton, Laurier Carriere and L. W. Armstrong, voted in favor of a resolution for over-all contributions of $1,650, divided as above-mentioned.

Ald. Desjardins remarked that he had received commendation from the Department of Cultural Affairs on his proposal to municipalize the library, and he now suggested a committee should be set up to study the project. Mayor Campbell urged that both elements of the population should be represented.

Barron Ave. corner to be parking lot

A vote to restore the vacant lot at Barron and Main Street for municipal use — as a parking area — was recorded at Council meeting last week. Five aldermen were in favor and three against, with one member absent.

The site of the old town hall, known as the Victoria Hall and meeting place, has been rented for the past several years as a used car lot, by Pollock & Graves Ltd.

The lease will terminate June 30, when the site will be assigned for parking purposes, probably with meters installed.

Aldermen Charlebois and Dumais sponsored the motion, with Messrs. McFaul, Desjardins and Lepage supporting, and Aldermen Middleton, Carriere and Armstrong opposed.

Ald. Dr. Middleton explained his objection in the fact that there is space for only about 16 cars, and it was hardly worth making it into a parking area; besides this, he felt a free space was essential here for members of the fire department. When firemen are answering a call, they must leave their cars somewhere in a hurry, and this space next to the fire station fills the purpose to perfection. Fire Chief Don MacCulloch agreed. . .

However, the motion was upheld, and the corner will become a parking lot.

Nearly $35,000 taxes and debts due to Town

Amounts owing to the town corporation reached the formidable total of $34,922.20, as at March 31 last. Ald. Laurier Carrière, chairman of the finance committee, gave the breakdown as follows:

General Tax	$ 4,171.67
Water Tax	18,638.24
Various Items	6,783.09
Business Tax	5,329.20
Total	$34,922.20

Ald. Carriere noted that these arrears and dues were for the past two years, 1962 and 1963.

At April 30, 1964, the Municipality of Ayersville owed Lachute $23,954.75, of which $21,471.75 was for water service, and $2,483.00 for various items such as fire department services and rental of equipment.

The councillors registered some dismay at the water-supply item, $21,471, which they considered far too much to be owing. They felt it was not fair for Lachute's taxpayers to be supporting this debt owed by Ayersville.

Two alternatives were open, for the recovery of this amount — either to sue the neighboring municipality, which is undesirable, or to try and collect the amounts by legal procedures.

The mayor and the secretary-treasurer were asked to negotiate some agreement with Ayersville and report back to the next Council meeting. If nothing could be worked out satisfactorily, the Council would then decide on firm action to collect.

Incidental problem at B'burg, no by-law on mobile homes

(Our District Correspondent)

Brownsburg — After a special session which produced nothing but ill feelings, the regular May meeting of Brownsburg Council proved worthwhile from the standpoint of items covered, and also in that, aside from a cool hostility at the start of the session, the mayor and councillors got along very well. The special April meeting had to be adjourned due to lack of a quorum, even though there were sufficient councillors seated in the room. This odd situation arose when Councillor G. Vowles asked Mayor Donaldson to retire from office. The mayor refused, so Councillors Baccardax, Therrien and Vowles moved away from the table, remaining in the council room as spectators only.

A request from a local citizen for permission to bring a mobile home into Brownsburg, produced some uncertainty — since this type of dwelling was not listed in the town's building by-laws. The subject was shelved for further study so that a by-law could be drawn up to cover them.

Question of Wherewithal

Later in the evening a group of citizens presented a petition on behalf of a majority of taxpayers from Park Avenue, asking for acceptance of their street by the town, widening of the street to its maximum width, and installation of sidewalks (at the owners' expense). Mayor Donaldson stated that he approved of the idea but once again he had to ask the question, "Where will the money come from?" Councillor Georges Therrien opined that the money could come from the sum that the town would receive from the government as replacement for the 2% sales tax which was cut off recently. This brought some disagreement between the two regarding correct interpretation of the news releases published on how municipalities would fare with the adoption of a uniform

Blood clinic at Brownsburg

Brownsburg — A mobile Red Cross blood donor clinic will be located in the Legion Hall at Brownsburg on Thursday, May 21, from 3 to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

All who are capable of donating blood are requested to visit the clinic. The opportunity to donate blood in Brownsburg occurs only once or twice a year.

Blood is a perishable product. After 21 days it cannot be administered as fresh blood. It is then transformed into fractions and last year Quebec Provincial Division supplied 2,924 bottles of Serum Albumin, 8,024 of Frozen Plasma, 238 vials of Fibrinogen and 4,761 bottles of Gamma Globulin. Every one of these services or by-products is given free by the Red Cross. All these services are made possible by contributions of blood donated by those who care for the welfare of others.

By BOB ATCHISON

It sure looks as though our moose herds will be a thing of the past, before very long. The authorities have noted the bull moose is in short supply, so they have decided to open the season for all types, the cow, and even the young. This has become necessary due to the over shooting of the bull — and to me the authorities should know this. I'll admit there is not much to be done about it now, in the forthcoming seasons. Yet I wonder if this is not going to be the straw that breaks the moose's back. True, it is only going to be an experiment, but to my way of thinking, this may turn out to be a very costly experiment. Biologists of the Wildlife Bureau, and the liaison committee of the Federation of Fish and Game Clubs, recommended this. Let's hope they are right. Goodness knows we are sadly short in all types of game.

As most of you have noted, the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association are holding a fishing derby on the Ottawa River this coming week-end, May 16 and 17. Some excellent prizes can be had just for the taking. Anyone may take part in this who is over 18 years of age, so let's try and give this a boost to get things rolling. Incidentally, anyone wanting to get themselves a free boat should get into this affair: a drawing for one of the NuCraft models will take place at conclusion of the derby.

A sportman passed on this information the other day. One of the lakes he fishes has a mother bear and two cubs around. So, anyone seeing these, make sure you don't get between the cubs and the mother, or you'll probably end up with a free scalp massage.

Still on the subject of lakes, a couple of acquaintances have been in touch with me complaining of filth and trash left around some of their lakes. In one particular case there were 14 beer bottles, five cans, and enough newspaper to start an old book store. For anyone's information, this is going to be a costly affair if you are caught. This is not just a scare either. One of these gentlemen stated that, from now on, action will be taken against these litterers. . . This could also apply to the town too. With everything being spruced up for a change, and certainly looking as though the town was lived in — some jokers have to dump junk all over the centre of town in the form of newspapers, chip containers and so on; surely this could be stopped, if for no other reason than sanitation.

* * *

Fishing has been pretty good for so early in the season. I have seen a few very good Reds taken this past week. Greys are not of the heavy variety, but this will come with the warmer weather. Some of the creeks are starting to pay off, they have not been very active for this past week; with the water so cold, this all helped to slow up any fish that may have been in them. Perch are also starting to hit; some of these catches have been very good, both for quantity and, best of all, for quality. A couple shown me must have weighed two pounds; these were taken from Lake Filion, or Emily. Of course, the catfish are very plentiful in this spot too, so anyone wanting a feed of these should try this spot. . . For me — I'm going after those big logs with fins, which I have talked so much about. Yep, they are still around, just waiting for me to visit them. At least, I have hopes.

* * *

I have been told that some "sports" have been shooting at the ducks starting to nest on the North River. Anyone hearing any shots at all is asked to phone the wardens, at once — either A. Gagné or R. Harding; they'll be more than happy to get down where you are, in a hurry. I don't know what has to be done, to get across to this type of person just what damage they're doing. The ducks seem to have had a very successful winter, and this promises well for the nestings if we get enough rain. However, for every one killed right now, this means a loss to the duck population of at least six by the time the fall comes around. This kind of wanton killing is not to be excused and should not be tolerated. The public can help.

* * *

Still a few of the varmint shooters out on their favorite sport, after woodchucks and crows. Plenty of crows may be seen; they also seem to be nesting very close to the town. As for the woodchucks, some of these do become pests. I saw a clearing last evening that looked as though a bulldozer had been plowing around. And this is pretty hard to believe, for only three woodchucks could be seen — and they were not even shot at! It looks as though they will be plentiful later in the summer; what with late births, and the broods on the way, there should be a few thousand, even close to town. If you doubt this now, take a look at some of the fields on the way to Montreal.

Large flocks of starlings are starting to roost across the river from us. Before long, these too will be real pests, certainly for those people who hang out their washing.

* * *

Fires have been occurring, close to home and farther afield. A couple of these fires could have been serious if it had not been for the protective plane service from the Forestry Dept. With so many people taking to the woods, this is a bad time for the bush workers. As you also know, some of the forests have been closed to travel, and when this happens, you can assume that things are not too good. Anyone walking in the forests these days should be extra careful; the ground underfoot is bone dry and it does not take much to start a major blaze.

* * *

I have noticed a couple of boats running up the river these past few days, both travelling at high speed. I don't think the operators realized just how dangerous this is. With all the deadheads floating down during the floods each spring, it is wise to find out just where they might have landed. Underneath the Black bridge there is an embedded log just under the surface, and hitting this at any speed, will wreck a boat and motor very fast. I also noticed a line of fence poles with wire and everything attached; just where this sank I don't know, but to hit an obstruction of this kind is not a nice prospect either. Of course, a lot of this flotsam will show itself when the river drops, but for the time being, it would be wise to travel a little slower.

* * *

I also noticed a couple of the boys getting their boats ready for the annual paint-up job. Both of these craft had been well scraped, and what's more important, they had been stored in a dry place under proper conditions. This pays off in the long run, believe me. I know this is no time to talk of storing boats, but consider all the trouble you may have this spring, just because you were not in the mood to do it right last year.

There were 37 traffic tickets handed out, and 330 permits were issued. Receipts from these and other sources amounted to $1,365.

Fire Department

Th fire chief's report noted 21 calls during the month, two of which were turned over to the Brownsburg brigade due to their location closer to that village. Eleven of the calls were within the town limits, while four were in Ayersville and four in St. Jerusalem. Nine of the 19 calls were grass fires.

Due from out-of-town calls were revenues of $1,500, while the firemen had worked 115 man-hours and salaries were in the neighborhood of $464.

Council approved expenditures around $1,700 for new equipment, plus $25 for installation of a radio in the chief's car.

The committee chairman asked for salary increases on behalf of Chief MacCulloch and Assistant Chief Harold Deacon; these were held over for consideration. Aldermen L. Armstrong (the commissioner) and Dr. L. Middleton were averse to postponing the matter.

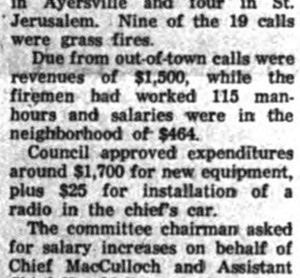

Chief MacCulloch also asked for re-instatement of Sunday and holiday duty during the summer, to ensure immediate attendance of firemen in the season when many are out of town.

At a firemen's meeting Roger Simard had tendered his resignation, due to confliction with his full-time job; and Chief MacCulloch now asked Council also to accept his resignation from the fire department.

Boating Clinic

— BY STAN DAVIES —

Getting a boat ready for the water in this day of fibre glass and aluminum, often means just a wash job. But sometimes even that can suffer complications as a few of the following questions from letters indicate.

My aluminum boat was out all winter in the snow, and it's covered with dirty stains. How do I get them off?

Answer: If household cleansers won't touch them . . . and I know sometimes they won't . . . try pot scouring pads, the kind with the soap already in. Try fine steel wool, try fruit acids like citric and tartaric (you know how stewed rhubarb cleans an aluminum pot) BUT don't use lye or cleaning products containing lye. It will eat holes in aluminum.

* * *

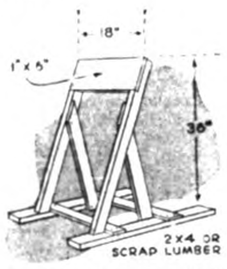

The shine has gone off my fibre glass boat, it's pitted and etched around the water line. What can I do?

Answer: Try the rubbing compound they use on car bodies. It's a paste which carries an abrasive . . . but it's special. The abrasive cuts quickly at first, but it's soft, and soon breaks down into a powder which polishes. Follow the rubbing compound with a coat of wax.

* * *

You once told how to build a stand for spring tune-up of an outboard motor. Can you repeat details?

Answer: A stand for an outboard will vary with size of motor. Accompanying sketch shows the one I'm using at present for an 18 h.p. It would need a little extra bracing for a 100 h.p.

"OUTBOARD STAND"

MAKE IT EASIER TO SPRING SERVICE YOUR OUTBOARD WITH HANDY STAND MADE FROM SCRAP.

* * *

I'm buying a plywood boat. In a couple of places the wood is springy, as though the plywood has separated. Is this bad?

Answer: No, it's not bad, it's terrible. Make sure the price is low enough so that you have money left to replace this "springy" plywood . . . something you'll have to do very soon. This problem is called de-lamination. It's something you look for in buying a second-hand plywood boat.

* * *

Can I paint a fibre glass boat, which I'm buying?

Answer: Yes. Any good marine paint will do, but it's best to get a resin base paint of the same material as the plastic material in the boat. A dealer will advise. But why paint? First try rubbing compound as suggested in question two.

Scenes at recent riverfront fire

Firefighting in this instance was a real community affair — neighbors on the riverfront, and fire brigades from Lachute and St. Andrews, battled the blaze with water from a creek, and evacuating the adult occupant and effects of the Villeneuve family at Cushing West.

The extensive brick dwelling was owned by Mrs. C. J. Cooke and occupied by her daughter, Mrs. Henry Villeneuve and five children, also Miss Agnes White.

The interior was gutted, but most of the contents were saved, thanks to the efforts of many helpers who labored strenuously at the scene.

The blaze, first noticed in the roof, was believed to have caught from a grass fire nearby.

Local chapter of Barbershoppers at convention

A convention was held in Montreal recently for the "Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America," and 14 Barbershoppers from the Lachute Chapter were in attendance. Harmony lovers from distant places, 150 in number, enjoyed this evening of Barbershop harmony. It was both inspiring and gratifying to hear their rendition of "Sweet and Low" and "The Lord's Prayer". The Canadian Capitalaires, the quartet who are now the Ontario District comedy quartet champs, proved very impressive.

After the jovial evening, which was completely enjoyed by everyone present, refreshments were served. Many of the local enthusiasts report meeting friends and acquaintances whom they had not seen in a number of years.

Are you interested in singing? ... Well, the "Barber Shop Chorus" is still in business and going strong. Everyone is welcome; all that is required is a heartfelt interest in harmony singing. Come along and try it out — every Monday evening at the La Lorraine Motel; and, by the way, did you know — "Barbershoppers are the world's finest people".

Rotary speaker describes Center for education of infirm children

Speaker at the May 7 meeting of Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was Dr. L. P. Patterson, of the MacKay Center for Deaf and Crippled Children in Montreal. Dr. Patterson was born in the Maritimes and holds the degree of B.A. from Mount Allison, M.A. from Harvard, and D.Ed. from the University of Columbia, New York. He has occupied many important positions in the teaching world, and is a past-president of the Canadian Teachers' Association.

Dr. Patterson prefixed his remarks by paying a tribute to Mr. Wayne Riddell, a native of Lachute — stating that his musical efforts with the Tudor Singers had made Lachute known throughout Canada.

Dr. Patterson's main theme was concerned with the building of the new MacKay Center, which will be located on a three-acre site on sloping ground between Decarie Blvd. and Prud'homme.

Dr. Patterson began this venture by writing to over a hundred similar institutions in the U.S.A., asking opinions as to which were the best-rated schools. He then visited these along with an architect to obtain the latest ideas for the design of the new Center, which was then drawn up in plan. The plans were then submitted to six of the best schools for criticism.

In the final plan, the building consists of four floors to eliminate the long distance that a single-floor design would impose on crippled children. The third floor contains most of the 26 classrooms located on the south side of the building, which has the advantage of being both the lighter and quieter side. This third floor also contains the auditorium and the dining room, since this group of rooms is the most used by the children.

Dr. Patterson considered that ramps were hazardous for children who had to be pushed in chairs, and there is an elevator located in the centre of the building to communicate between the floors.

The fourth floor contains the doctors' and nurses' quarters, general medical and physical therapy rooms.

The children are brought to the school in buses which enter a covered area, and doors, which automatically open, allow the children to enter the school. One room on the ground floor contains 80 wheel chairs.

Dr. Patterson then touched on the difficulty of designing a Center because the deformities of crippled children were continually changing. In the old days, it was common to have children who were crippled through tuberculosis of the spine and poliomyelitis, but both these diseases are now disappearing, along with infirmities concerned with rheumatic fever, which has also disappeared through the new antibiotics. Dr. Patterson considered that in the future most children will be crippled because of hereditary diseases, one of the most common being muscular dystrophy, which he considered to be the most serious of all ailments catered to by the school, since the children become steadily worse.

APPRECIATION

Mr. Neal Moore wishes to express his thanks to all kind friends who remembered him during his recent sojourn in hospital, by visits, gifts and flowers. Special mention of the Legion, Masonic Chapter, and L.O.B.A. organizations.

Varied agenda at B'burg Council

6% sales tax. The question of finances was dropped subsequently, and the discussion switched to methods to be used for widening the street. A motion was later passed to have estimates made for grading and levelling the street from Cottage Avenue to the northern-most end of Park Avenue.

Another citizen from "up the hill" asked that the town provide increased water pressure in his area. Council really wound up on this one and discussed the problem in groups of twos and threes, with visitors and all taking part. It was pointed out during the conflab that, at times during the summer, the pressure falls from a high of 16 p.s.i. to 8 or 9 p.s.i. Council agreed that the situation must be remedied, but could not decide just what steps they would take.

Among the other items confronting Council was a need to pass a motion to adopt "fast time". This needed little discussion, but Councillor Vowles was in favor of wording the motion to the effect that the town remain on fast time, since the clocks were actually moved ahead in April.

Council also approved acceptance of a labor contract with the town employees which will provide them with a regular union work agreement.

On Brink of Referendum

A week prior to this Council session, a public meeting in this same room produced some anxious moments for the attending property-owners of Woodbine Avenue N., as they came within two names of having to go to the townspeople with a referendum to authorize the borrowing of money for the proposed sewerage extension on that street. The general concensus was that, if the referendum had been required, the proposal would have been turned down.

For various reasons eight taxpayers placed their names on the secretary's book as objecting to the by-law which had been passed by Council. However, four of these removed their names before the meeting ended. Ten names were required to defeat the by-law, which was designed to give Council the right to borrow some $8,000 to extend the water and sewerage system to three new homes on Woodbine Avenue N.

It seemed odd to councillors, to observers and the Woodbine home-owners, that so much talk was prompted by a project which in all probability would raise the water tax by perhaps $1 for one year for each taxpayer in Brownsburg, and yet only one name appeared on the list in opposition to another by-law which authorized the borrowing of $60,000 for the construction of a new municipal office building. One opinion set the tax increase at something like $5 or $6 per year for 20 years, for this improvement.

Community loss — sudden passing of Morin Hts. citizen

The late F. T. Watchorn

The Laurentian community of Morin Heights was saddened on Thursday morning last to learn of the sudden passing of one of its oldest residents, Mr. Frederick Taylor Watchorn, in his 74th year.

A man who had dedicated his life to his work in the butcher business, and was a long-time member of the School Board, of the Town Council, also a faithful church warden of Trinity Anglican Church for 25 years, he had won for himself many friends throughout the area, as was evidenced by the overflowing congregation at the funeral service, held Sunday, May 10, at Trinity Church. . .

The service was conducted by the rector, the Rev. Horace G. Baugh, and the Rev. Canon C. W. P. Baugh of Lakefield. Mr. Carl Elder was organist, assisted by members of the United Church and Anglican choirs. Hymns sung were "O For a Faith that Will Not Shrink", and "O Master, Let Me Walk With Thee". The rector spoke of the many activities in which Mr. Watchorn had played so large a part, and paid tribute to his association with his church.

The deceased was also a member of the Masonic and Orange Orders.

Pall-bearers were — Melvin Dey, Keith Garayt, Owen Le Gallee, Keith Seale, George Watchorn (Mayor of Morin Heights), and John Watchorn. Burial was in Trinity Anglican Cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Martha (Seale) Watchorn, one daughter, Barbara (Mrs. Bob Ar ford), and two brothers, Tom, of St. Jovite, and Ned, of Morin Heights.

Miss Lynda McFaul

Miss Barbara Hay

Miss Nancy Freeland

Miss Pat Warwick

Mrs. Arthur Gauley

Due to finish their training course in August, these young ladies received their nurses' diplomas at the graduation exercises at Montreal General Hospital last Friday evening. The ceremony was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends from the district. Left to right — Miss Lynda McFaul and Miss Barbara Hay, of Lachute; Miss Nancy Freeland and Miss Patricia Warwick, of Brownsburg; and Mrs. Arthur Gauley (Diane Laurin), of Lachute. Also among graduates listed from this County was Miss Heather A. McCullough, of Morin Heights.

Sister Superior addresses United Church Women

The Rev. Sister Damien Bernard was the guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Lachute United Church Women. As principal of L'Ecole St. Alexandre, she was well qualified to speak on the subject, "Youth". Her sometimes witty as well as serious remarks held the undivided attention of her audience and gave much food for thought.

In speaking of youth, she stressed the point that adults are often to blame for the faults, which are criticized in the youth of today, and it is their responsibility to be available when young people have problems to discuss, and to make an effort to understand them, remembering perhaps their own foolishness when they were very young.

Sister Damien repeatedly emphasized the need of "Faith, Prayer and Confidence" in the guidance of youth, and with this thought she concluded her informal address.

May meeting, Lachute branch of Red Cross

The monthly meeting of the Canadian Red Cross, Lachute Branch, took place on Wednesday, May 6, in the United Church hall. This was the last of the present series. Regular meetings will be resumed in the fall.

Mrs. F. Legault took the chair and called on Mrs. Bert McGibbon for a report from the working party. All sewing work is completed and ready for packing; Mrs. Fraser Morrison confirmed that nothing is left over, and a final shipment of quilts, socks, shirts, etc., will be dispatched by the end of this month.

Mrs. Legault announced that Mr. Jos. Sewell will take over Red Cross and Veterans' Welfare in the Royal Canadian Legion from Mr. Carl Demerse, who has moved to Montreal.

The president also gave the latest figure reached in the financial campaign, now $3,500. Friday, May 8, is International Red Cross Day this year, and it was noted that on Sunday last a special radio program was to be featured with highlights from the Geneva conferences.

Before the meeting adjourned Mrs. A. G. McOuat, honorary president, called for a special vote of thanks to Mrs. Rod Carreau in appreciation of her untiring work over the years with the sewing committee. Mrs. Carreau is to leave Lachute shortly and will be missed sincerely by many people, in Red Cross circles particularly.

Paper canvass next Saturday

The Lachute Boy Scouts' salvage drive for waste paper and cartons will be held this coming Saturday. Householders are asked to have bundles tied up and placed in view when the trucks and volunteers call.

A market is assured also for unbroken flower pots. Contributions of these items will be appreciated. (Bottles and glass are not solicited at this time.)

Residents desiring out-of-town pick-up are requested to phone the residence of Ernest Gordon (LO 2-2858).

WATCHMAN WANT ADS BRING RESULTS.

APPRECIATION

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all friends, relatives and neighbors for their encouragement and many acts of kindness in sending gifts, flowers, get-well cards, and visits during my stay in hospital.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all."
— Edmund Burke

Canada a little different

IN 1960 the late President Kennedy performed something of a miracle by getting Congress to approve the Trade Expansion Act. It gave the U.S. government the power to cut tariffs by as much as 50 per cent if other countries would do likewise. This caused quite a bit of excitement among the world's major trading nations since it raised the prospect of freer trade and lower tariffs. . . As the world's fifth largest exporter, Canada was naturally enthusiastic.

Today, four years later, economic representatives of Western nations are meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, trying to work out a tariff-cutting agreement. The talks are likely to go on for at least 18 months, an indication of how complex the whole problem is, and there's no assurance that agreement will ever be reached at all.

The reason is that it's much easier to talk about a 50-percent reduction in tariffs than to hammer out a set of terms that will be accepted as fair by all the parties. For example, if one country has an 80-percent tariff on some goods and another nation has a 20-percent duty on other items, snipping away half the tariff in each case doesn't necessarily benefit each side to the same degree. And if there are other restrictions on imports, such as quotas, it becomes all the more difficult to decide how much a quota must be cut to balance out a lowering of tariffs.

As a country that imports 10 times as much manufactured goods as it exports, Canada is in a rather special position. Our representatives have insisted they will pay for any benefits they get. They also recognize that some tariff cuts will harm some segments of Canadian manufacturing. But they won't stand for a wholesale reduction of tariffs that might drive many Canadian industries out of business altogether. What they want is a sort of selective treatment of this country, so that, while some Canadian products might be rendered uncompetitive, there will be other fields in which we might be given greater opportunities for sales abroad, allowing us to specialize.

The major trading nations have generally conceded that we have a right to expect special treatment in some instances. But only when the hard bargaining comes will we know how serious they are.

Your vacation plans

ANYONE WHO suffers from hay fever knows the utter misery this form of allergy reaction can produce. Vacations can be completely spoiled or there may be absenteeism from work or school. And most of the trouble comes from one scruffy-looking weed that is unbelievably common in this country. While there are many plants and even trees that shed pollen and cause trouble, ragweed is the chief offender, the omnipresent pest.

When planning your vacation it's a good idea to shop around. There are many places where the enemy is abundant, but there are also areas where it doesn't grow in fields and flower gardens, on waste land or around the roots of trees on city streets. To the susceptible person, such ragweed-free localities are havens.

Research on the subject of ragweed incidence has been done by Federal Government departments and provincial and local tourist associations to provide a free service to help tourists in their search for areas most suitable to their particular health requirements. The Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa, will answer any inquiries and send helpful information. In the meantime, learn to know what ragweed looks like, and promote a personal campaign to rid your own property of the pest.

The gloomier side

A SPECIAL report on pension plans, commissioned by the Quebec government, finds that the sort of plan the province and the federal government have agreed upon will have painful consequences for small business. The increase in production costs, following from the contributions employers and employees must make to the plan, will force many small companies in the red and restrict the growth of others. The joint federal-provincial plan will also divert savings out of investment in production, the report continues, and bring about a greater reliance upon foreign capital. Existing private pension plans, many now providing a higher scale of benefits, will also be forced to wind up their operations.

Performance with a guaranteed audience

"ONCE UPON a time. . ." With these words of the storyteller of yore would weave his tale of fantasy, letting his imagination gallop unbridled through fields of fiction to create a tale that would be entertaining while serving the objective of telling the listeners what he or she wanted to hear.

There was a time, too, when circulation figures — the barometer of a successful publication — were likewise the product of imagination and tailored to tell a flattering tale of abundant audiences.

But times have changed and now this is not possible in an industry built on a solid foundation of facts.

To those of us who produce a newspaper, "circulation" is a group of readers whose appetite for news and features we must satisfy in each issue. How well we respond to our readers' demands is reflected in our circulation figures.

To the business places whose advertisements are a major source of our revenue, our circulation is a list of prospective customers — an audience for the news about their merchandise and services.

In both our relationship with our subscribers and our advertisers, confidence plays an important role.

This is why, periodically, the Audit Bureau of Circulations scrupulously checks the number of newspapers we print, and how and to whom they are distributed.

The ABC insignia carried at the foot of this column is the hallmark of circulation integrity. The position of esteem of the ABC was not easily come by, nor is it easily accomplished. The standards are the highest; the demands for accuracy implacable.

The facts concerning our audit findings are published nationally, and are made available on request to local advertisers and interested parties.

The Watchman takes satisfaction in its ABC membership, for we subscribe to its policy of accuracy, based on audit, with the intention of serving both the reader and advertiser with an up-to-date appraisal of audiences being offered through this newspaper.

WEEKLY EDITORS have, of necessity, been required to adapt their economy to requirements — cut their cloth to the measure of their suit — or whatever metaphor may best describe the process of sound financial operation. Leave it, then, to a weekly editor to express in concise terms the perils of over extravagance. In the words of Mrs. Katherine Marston, of the Elora (Ontario) Express, the metaphor here is gastronomic:

"We need the essentials. We do not need the frills. We need the greatest service to the most people at the particular level at which they need it. And so long as local autonomy, government grants and the limitless patience of taxpayers continue to be the ingredients, the broth will become richer and richer, until the time comes when a horrible dose of indigestion calls a halt."

Teachers Assocn. seeks mementos, pictures, recalling earlier education

With the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec centennial coming up next fall, many people will be looking back over the years and realizing what great changes have been occurring in Protestant education in this province. The Association has been watching them for nearly 100 years! It has been doing much more than watch, however — for through its members it has provided much of the dedicated service to education that has brought about the changes.

As a tribute to these members, past and present, and as an inspiration to new and future members, plans for centennial celebrations at the Association's convention include the preparation of a photographic exhibit, to record events, people and places for as many periods of the 100 years as possible.

A sub-committee is in charge of this project, but readers of The Lachute Watchman can help in search for good material. Do you have a copy of your grandmother's teaching certificate? — Or a picture of a well-known personality as teacher or pupil in your district? What about that first little one-room school? — Or the day they turned the sod for the new school building? Remember when the teacher had to live in the schoolhouse? Now perhaps he or she drives to and fro in a smart little car. . .

Photographs, pictures, samples of work and documents from then and now, anything that can be used or reproduced flat, can help to tell the story of our teachers, pupils, schools and system through the years. Individuals, as well as groups, are asked to do a little digging into private and community records for some gem of educational information to help make this project of interest to all.

It is hoped that after the convention showing, the material may be assembled into a travelling exhibit at local functions throughout the province.

Original material of value can be photographed and returned immediately, on request. The committee would also like to hear about anything which might require examination or photographing on the spot. Please get in touch with the Sub-committee on Exhibits, P.T.P.T. Central Office, 2100 St. Mark Street, Montreal 25; the chairman, Miss Grace Campbell, 609 Victoria Ave., Montreal 16; or Harry Haydock, Dunton High School, 5555 Montée St. Leonard, Montreal (who has submitted this request for the attention of Watchman readers.)

THIS WEEK AND NEXT —

The Flag Debate

By RAY ARGYLE

Canadians who want a distinctive national flag had their long dormant hopes warmed like a fast-rising thermometer last week.

Ray Argyle

Prime Minister Pearson marking his first anniversary in office, definitely committed his government to bringing in a new flag before 1967.

For those who have wanted a flag bearing only Canadian symbols, the PM's announcement was a welcome gesture. But as always seems the case in Canada, what has been planned as a move toward unity rebounded in a chorus of disunity.

This observer, for one, has never been able to get very excited about a distinctive Canadian flag. Like most Canadians, I'm not a strong nationalist and the trappings of nationalism have never held great appeal. Anyway, there didn't seem to be much hope that we'd ever have a Canadian Prime Minister with the gumption to produce a distinctive flag, so why debate a strictly academic subject?

Mr. Pearson's courageous move has changed all this. We now have been clearly warned that we're going to get a flag whether we like it or not, and if we don't like it, we'd better speak up now.

This is exactly what numerous organizations are doing, ranging from the Canadian Legion to the IODE, and including many influential newspapers, Canadian mayors and other legislators.

The most voiced argument of the opponents of a distinctive flag is that Canadians have fought and died under the Red Ensign or Union Jack, that Canada is a British nation, and that the symbols of the Crown are dear to most Canadians and should be retained.

Other more suspicious critics see this all as a sell-out to Quebec, with the proposed maple leaf on a blue and white background favored because Quebec's colors have been blue and white.

Others add that a flag for Canada wouldn't mean anything anyway because a flag, to have a worth more than as a mere duster, must have been fought and died for. I heard the distinguished Canadian editor, Arnold Edinborough, use just this argument when he said the other day that there isn't a flag in the world worth anything unless blood has been shed to unfurl it.

This is virulent nationalism at its worst, and it seems to me this is the wonderful distinction which a Canadian flag would have. It would be one arrived at by evolution, without bloodshed or riot, and it would fly peacefully over all the diverse racial elements that make up modern Canada.

To do this, it is evident that Canada's flag must indeed be distinctively Canadian. To have any meaning, it must exclude any and all symbols of our motherland, be it Britain, France or any other country.

As Mr. Pearson said it so magnanimously, let us have our own symbols "to bring us together, in a way that will show no disrespect for those other symbols that mean so much to us and represent our ties with England."

I will accept any reasonable design that is Canadian. And I believe that for all the outspoken pro-British opposition, the time has come to turn our first loyalty to Canada. A distinctive flag, if produced in time, will win the next federal election for Mr. Pearson's Liberals.

More than 1,800 workers hired on Incentive Plan

Hon. Allan J. MacEachen, Minister of Labor, announced that 1,811 workers aged 45 and over had been hired under the Older Worker Employment and Training Incentive Program at March 31, 1964, the expiry date for hiring under this experimental program.

The older workers who had gained jobs had been unemployed for six months or longer, while employers received an incentive payment of up to $75 per month for each worker hired.

The experimental program evidenced the need for workers to improve their skills and educational standards in order to meet today's demands, the Minister commented. An evaluation of the program will be made in the next few months, and the information obtained should be helpful in planning future action on behalf of older workers.

There was increasing interest shown in the program by employers during February and March; a total of 2,347 applications for workers had been approved by March 31.

The number of workers hired was less than the number of jobs available, and the Minister reported that NES had been unable to locate suitable applicants to fill many of the vacancies. In some instances this was due to employers laying down specifications which could not be met by available applicants. In other cases the low wages offered had posed a problem, while in some non-urban areas it had been found difficult to fill certain jobs because of inadequate transportation.

Another factor contributing to the imbalance between the vacancies and available workers, was that applicants with specialized skill were frequently reluctant to consider employment outside their usual occupation.

Wise Words From Will

By BILL SMILEY

Bill Smiley

Everybody is writing about Shakespeare these days. The only sour note in the fanfare of acclaim marking his 400th anniversary is a deep, rumbling sound that has many people baffled.

A few romantics claim it is the ghostly applause of nearly four centuries of playgoers, echoing down the years. A few realists assert that it is the mutinous mumbling of 20 generations of students who had to memorize chunks from his works.

Personally, I think the discordant note is caused by the rapid rotation in his grave of the bones of The Bard, a shrewd businessman, as he agonizes over all those royalties he is not collecting.

Otherwise, things are going swimmingly as the critics and professors of English peer and peek and poke among the magnificent debris, and the inane argument about who really wrote his plays waxes once more with futile fury.

But I'm not concerned with that. There are enough people plodding about through his works, trampling poetry underfoot as they search for clues to prove that he was really Bacon or Marlowe or the Earl of Something.

Let's look for a moment at the real Will Shakespeare.

We find him in the hundreds of brief passages that have come ringing down the years with their universal truths. He had to put them in the mouths of others, of course, but the man himself is there, warm, alive, grinning, scowling, scolding, exulting.

What could be more human, for example, than his pride in his own success? When the opening night performance of Hamlet showed that the play was a smash, he deftly inserted in the last scene, and on the spur of the moment, the joyful line, "A hit, a very palpable hit!"

We can see his amused tolerance of his wife's lack of muscle in another famous line. She'd been spring cleaning and had slipped a disc while trying to move an old trunk full of sonnets. "Frailty, thy name is woman," quipped Will.

We can sympathize with his honest rage (this was before dry-cleaning) as he scrubbed the gravy-stain on his new silk breeches and bellowed, "Out, damned spot! Out, I say!"

What man's heart does not warm to The Bard's forthright suggestion, in Henry VI, Part 2, "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

Is there a housewife living who has not echoed, at some time, Shakespeare's immortal comment when his wife came home from the butcher with a stringy roast, "This is the most unkindest out of all."?

Many a man has wished he had the gift, and the nerve, that Will displayed the night he got home from the pub, tiddly and tardy, and was confronted by his wife, her sister, and his mother-in-law. Did he say he was sorry and would never do it again? Not he. He roared, "How now, you secret, black and midnight hags!"

He knew men, as witness, "'Tis ever common that men are merriest when they are from home." He knew women, too. "There was never yet a fair woman but she made mouths in a glass."

As this piece of research ends, I can hear a multitude of English teachers saying, in unison, "For this relief much thanks."

Nursing Career

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Is your daughter wondering about nursing as a vocation? All kinds of nurses are needed — private duty nurses, nurses for staff and research positions in hospitals, for industrial jobs, for clinics and doctor's offices, Red Cross, Victorian Order, public health, and other special types of community service nurses.

The nursing field is expanding continually and new jobs, such as a nurse's position on an ocean liner, are appearing. In many new nations overseas nurses serving under church boards or UN agencies do very essential work in the war on disease and the fight for health. Wherever she may travel, a nurse finds little difficulty in finding employment.

A nurse's life is not as carefree as that of many other students. Sometimes nursing tasks may seem unpleasant but they are necessary to the comfort and welfare of a patient. There are many compensations. Nurses in a residence have good times, but they cannot expect institutional life to be like home.

To find out if your daughter is interested in nursing, visit a hospital in your neighborhood. Talk with graduate nurses and girls in training. Perhaps she could get employment as a volunteer hospital worker or a nurse's aid for one season, and thus learn about hospital life from the inside.

In cities, some hospitals have a training plan, part-time for high school students.

A girl who is attracted to nursing should write to the executive secretary of the Registered Nurses Association in her province for a list of approved schools. The cost of training is less where a small monthly allowance is made. Medical care, laundry, board and room are usually provided free by the training school. The competition for good probationer material is keen, and inquiries are welcome.

A number of probationers are not accepted because they are emotionally unstable or have no aptitude for nursing. Others are not strong enough or become discouraged and leave. A student nurse would be less apt to give up if she had some accurate picture of a nurse's life before she enters training.

The entrance age for a student nurse is usually 18 to 30. The academic standing varies but the minimum requirement is at least four years of high school or collegiate. In most schools, students are asked to complete high school work before becoming probationers.

In Canada less than 10 percent of nursing students are enrolled in university schools. The remainder attend hospital-controlled nursing schools. The Canadian R.N. (registered nurse) degree is recognized in other lands.

Many of our graduate nurses go to the U.S. for employment, although they are needed in Canada.

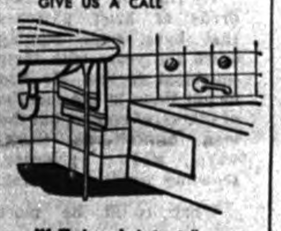

The 60,000 members of registered nurses associations in the provinces exert a steady influence. The hours of work and the pay of nurses has been improving slowly. A private duty nurse must budget for her vacation.

Nursing is a vocation which demands a high level of responsible behavior. Carelessness in administering medicine or carrying out a doctor's order might be fatal to a patient. It is one of the most rewarding, personally, of service vocations for a girl with high ideals, and the training is very useful to a future homemaker. If your daughter is eager to become a nurse, encourage her to explore her own fitness for this work and the best place for her to train.

BACKACHE? ..not me!

For relief from backache or that tired-out feeling I depend on—

Cheese loaf, with herb undertone

A member of the parsley family, cumin is an herb whose seeds have a penetrating, peppery taste. They're used to excellent effect in the manufacture of chili and curry powders, and to pep up hot foods such as chili con carne and barbecue sauces. Cumin seeds are also used with cheese to play up its natural sharpness.

In Cheese Luncheon Loaf, cumin seeds give a haunting undertone of flavor that's difficult to pin down, although it's reminiscent of parsley. In this particular instance, it's not a strong and over-powering seasoning — rather, a pleasant note that sets off the rich cheese taste. These round loaves are very soft with an airy, open texture. This interesting bread is a particularly appetizing accompaniment to luncheon casseroles or main dish salads; it's an excellent foundation for sandwiches, too, and makes delectable toast.

Cheese Luncheon Loaf

(Yield — 2 loaves of 8-inch diameter.)

1½ Cups milk, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, 2 teaspoons cumin seed (optional), 1 cup lukewarm water, 3 teaspoons granulated sugar, 3 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast, 5½ cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, 8 ounces shredded old (sharp) cheddar cheese — approximately 2 cups; also soft margarine or butter.

Scald milk. Stir in 3 tablespoons sugar, salt, one tablespoon margarine and the cumin seed. Cool to lukewarm.

Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large mixing bowl. Stir in remaining sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes; then stir well.

Stir in lukewarm milk mixture and 2½ cups of the flour. Beat until very smooth. Mix in shredded cheese. Work in enough additional flour to make a soft dough (about 3 cups more). Turn out on lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Brush top of dough with soft margarine. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Punch down dough. Turn out on lightly floured board. Cut in half. Cover. Let rest 5 minutes. Shape each half into a ball; place each in a greased round cake pan, 8 inches in diameter.

Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes.

Bake in preheated hot oven (400 deg. F.) about 45 minutes. (Bake at 375 deg. F. if using glass ovenware). Crusts of loaves will be a very dark brown. If a less browned color is desired, loosely wrap tops of loaves in aluminum foil after five minutes of baking. Remove foil a minute or two before end of baking period.

Remove loaves from baking pans; cool on racks away from drafts. When thoroughly cooled, cut in thick slices and serve toasted or plain.

On warts and 'worry warts'

With all the medical advances of modern times, old-fashioned "charms" may sometimes remove warts. Often they just go away after a while, for no known reason. And usually a wart is nothing to worry about.

A wart is a virus infection of the outer layer of the skin, according to Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association and reported by the Health League of Canada. The ordinary wart, it states, is a benign tumor that does not turn into cancer.

Warts can turn up anywhere on the body, but are most common on the hands, fingers and soles of the feet. Girls are four or five times more likely to have warts than boys, but in adults the incidence is about the same for both sexes. Warts are contagious and are started by contact with the virus that causes them.

The plantar warts (those on the soles of the feet) cause the most trouble. These are most common in adolescents and adults with moist feet. Plantar warts occur most often at points of pressure and sometimes can be confused with painful calluses. They can be most uncomfortable, even making walking painful.

Physicians generally use either an electric needle or a freezing process to remove warts. Either process will work and the choice is up to the individual doctor.

For some unknown reason, warts sometimes can be "charmed" away by suggestion. Mark Twain readers still recall the stump-water and dead cat remedies of Tom Sawyer. If the patient firmly believes the remedy will cure warts, sometimes it will. Sometimes the physician will destroy the largest wart and then find that the smaller ones go away without further treatment.

If a wart is so located that it is constantly irritating and causes discomfort, such as a facial wart that gets in the way of shaving, or is unsightly, it is advisable to have it removed.

Most of the non-prescription wart remedies contain acid. These could cause harmful burns if the patient did not follow directions carefully.

If you have a wart that is located in an irritating spot or is causing an unsightly appearance, consult your doctor and follow his advice on whether it should be removed and what removal procedure to follow.

Guides, Brownies in urgent need of adult workers

An Appeal from Sponsors, Local Association

Here in Lachute there are 76 girls in Brownies and Guides, in two Brownie packs and two Guide companies.

Next fall, because of the lack of interest among the adults, approximately one half of these children will not be able to continue in their Guiding activities.

If this state of affairs should continue, in 1965 the 1st Lachute Company and the second Lachute Pack will be closed — their registrations cancelled, and all equipment that the girls and their leaders have gathered for their use will become the property of the Girl Guides of Canada, to be used as Headquarters sees fit.

We need Guiders (the name used for adult leaders) and even more, we need to have the support of all the parents and interested people of this community. These people can help us by joining and supporting the Local Association.

The Local Association is the organization of interested adults which stands behind our Guiders and helps them with much of their behind-the-scenes work. These are the ones whom the Guider can call on when she needs money for training or equipment, when she needs cars for transportation, when she needs some food for a parents' night, and for many other jobs. When Guiders have to do all these jobs without help, the fun of working with our daughters is taken out of Guiding, and they don't stay. Also we have trouble getting more Guiders.

Our Guide Local Association should have a membership of at least 50, but this past year it has had less than ten. If the ladies who have an interest in Guiding will come and support us, maybe next year we will have activities for all the girls who are interested.

— Anyone interested should get in touch with Mrs. Fred Jeffery, chairman of the L.A.; Mrs. Owen Stephens, vice-chairman; Mrs. Ronald Dawson, secretary; or Mrs. Sam Milnes, treasurer.

The Local Association will sponsor a Guides' "cookie day" on Saturday, May 16. Please buy cookies when the girls call at your door.

Medicos study in Quebec hospitals

Physicians from all corners of the world, as well as other parts of Canada, are spending several years of study in the hospitals of our province.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons discloses that 927 outside physicians are specializing at this time in our institutions, or doing research work there. The latter total approximately 200.

Among these 927 physicians are 700 who are not Canadian citizens, but 311 of them have entered as immigrants and have thus established their desire to settle in this country.

Graduates of medical schools in the Middle and Far East form the most numerous group: 259. Following them are 245 graduates of European medical faculties, 238 from other Canadian provinces, 149 from the West Indies and South America, 18 from the United States and 12 from Africa.

It may also be noted that 250 of these 927 physicians come from countries whose main language is French.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Greeks made wedding cakes of sesame and honey. Brides used them as sacrifices with prayer that their marriages would be fertile.

In the days of Romulus, young couples ate bread together to solemnize their marriage. A Roman writer said the ceremony was based on an Etruscan custom begun before Rome was founded by Romulus.

Then barley loaf was eaten after the families had completed social and dowry arrangements, as a sign that contracts were binding. Eventually the coarse cakes were replaced by finer and finer wheat cakes, and the custom of giving some to family and friends started.

Later, when the original significance of the cake had been forgotten, it is believed that the idea of unity stayed with it, and was the reason for the growing custom of sharing one large cake. When today's bride and groom hand out pieces of wedding cake, they are sharing their happiness and good fortune.

Throw Prosperity

In other parts of the world, wedding guests once danced around heaps of burning corn and bread. Among primitive peoples now, rice straw woven in the hair and kneeling or sitting on bread are still part of marriage rites. Our own custom of throwing rice at a wedding is another staff-of-life symbol of the wish for prosperity and fertility.

In Europe the bride cake almost disappeared in the middle ages. Like so many other pleasant customs, it is said to have been forbidden in England during Cromwell's reign.

At one time bridesmaids only got their bit of cake to dream on after a complicated ceremony. The bride held her ring between a finger and the thumb of her right hand and the groom passed portions of the cake through it nine times. Then, provided the curious maiden put it in the foot of her left stocking before she put it under her pillow, the cake was finally ready to conjure visions of a future husband for her.

The baking of a wedding ring and a sixpence in the cake also foretold the future. The girl who got the ring would be married soon, the girl who got the six pence would be an old maid.

Has a Rival

There is a theory that the bride cake was the first of the traditional fancy cakes. Its rival is a forerunner of Christmas cakes, baked as part of a celebration of the creation by pre-Christian Scandinavians.

Fruit cakes, traditionally used in Canada as wedding cakes, may first have been made in ancient Egypt. As we know them, their development probably dates from Norman England. By the 14th and 15th centuries there are references in England to spice and raisin cakes. In pre-Reformation days a pudding which consisted of layers of raisin alternating with custard-soaked tea cakes was popular.

The earliest elaborate bride cakes may have been made with aromatic spices. An icing of sugar and bitter almonds signified the mixture of sweetness and bitterness that marriage brings.

Ballet students require individual, careful training

(Contributed)

Every student who is taught ballet must be trained as if she is to become a professional. Good training is a must, from the beginning of a child's dance instruction.

There are no set rules as to when a child should start ballet training. Your child can very soon be taught to move in response to rhythm. Mime is another phase which comes most naturally to little children. Talent may not show itself for some time. It is important therefore that each student be taught as thoroughly as the teacher knows how. Good training is based on the syllabus of the Royal Academy of Dancing, of which Dame Margot Fontane is president. The Academy was established in 1920 to raise the standards of ballet, which had fallen to a new low at the time. It is the only syllabus that pays serious attention to the child who is not seeking to become a professional dancer.

Just as your family doctor is familiar with your medical history — a teacher will observe the child's capacity and become acquainted with her physical needs. A good teacher will work on pupils' individual problems and will help to minimize flaws in body construction and make the most of the pupils' natural assets.

Here in Lachute we are fortunate to have Miss Lucille Du-Breuil, a member of the Royal Academy of Dancing and who has, in fact, studied there for several years. She now holds the Royal Academy teachers' diploma. On the night of May 23, The Argenteuil School of Ballet is giving its annual recital. All interested parents and friends are invited to lend their support.

Delegates attend Presbytn. W.M.S. centenary event

An important event in the life of the Presbyterian Church in Canada took place last week-end in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, Montreal. This was the 100th anniversary celebration of the formation of the Women's Missionary Society.

Some 1,500 delegates assembled from all over Canada to join in a program which featured a challenging address by Rev. K. G. McMillan, B.D., D.D., General Secretary of the Canadian Bible Society; theme addresses by Miss Margaret Kennedy, one of the missionaries in India; a pageant entitled, "A Look Back in History"; and an impressive communion service on Sunday morning.

Dr. McMillan gave a vivid picture of the missionary need of the world today, and pointed out that while a backward look over the past 100 years had its value, the great need of the Church is to look forward into this new age of rapid change. He emphasized the need to provide food for the hungry millions, the Gospel for the Christless masses, and Christian literature to counteract the effects of communist and other propaganda, which is rapidly coming into the hands of those just coming to literacy.

All those present were deeply impressed with the story of what the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society had been able to accomplish through the past 100 years, and went away with a deeper commitment to their motto, "The World for Christ".

Delegates from Lachute to the Centenary celebrations were Miss Bessie Black, Mrs. J. Armour and Mrs. A. M. Vessie.

"I'd like to marry your daughter, sir. When can you introduce us?"

Reduce mail rate to armed forces for papers o'seas

In line with recent concessions in postal rates made to members of the armed services overseas, the Hon. John R. Nicholson, Postmaster General, announces further reduced charges for the mailing of newspapers and periodicals by the general public to Canadians serving abroad with our Armed Forces.

The home town newspaper will now cost only two cents for the first four ounces and one cent for each additional four ounces when sent by surface mail through a Canadian Army Post Office (CAPO) to members of the Canadian armed forces, their dependents and civilians attached to the military, and when sent through a Canadian Naval Post Office (CNPO) or Fleet Mail Office (FMO) to Canadian military personnel abroad. These special rates apply only to Canadian publications mailed in Canada by the general public.

Mr. Nicholson said that he felt that everything possible should be done to keep Canadians well informed, particularly those who are serving Canada in areas beyond Canadian territory.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY, Macdonald College

The unusually fine weather at the beginning of the month put tremendous pressure on the seeding. I was in Arundel, north of Lachute, on May 1; seeding was well under way then even though there was ice in the swamps and patches of snow on the hillsides.

Those light upland soils may lack the built-in capacity of clay to hold fertility, but they make up for it in other ways. They are early, and they are easy to work. And if their fertility shortage is made up, they can produce excellent crops.

I was interested in Stuart Cooke's herd of crossbreds. He is using a Galloway bull on half-bred Angus cows. The steers are ready for market at eighteen months. I don't know how much credit for this excellent rate of growth goes to that particular cross, and how much to Mr. Cooke's feeding.

It is the first time I have seen Galloways; there are not many of them in the country. The first were imported from western Scotland in 1830, but they have never gained the popularity of the Angus, which they resemble.

The first field of corn went in at the College on May 4. That is ten days ahead of last year. It is on the Provincial Seed Farm, rows of the variety Wisconsin 7 which is the male parent for the varietal cross, Algonquin. The female parent, Quebec 28, will be planted later, so that it will be in silk when the Wisconsin 7 is in flower.

Remember last year? There was a ten inch snow fall in the first week of May. Corn had already been planted at the Lennoxville Experimental Station. It came through fine.

It seems that we can very well push ahead the date for planting corn. Traditionally, it was left until the oats were in the ground. But, compared with oats, corn is a high value crop. Perhaps, if we get pushed for time, the corn should go in first.

• • •

Corn is a heavy feeder; you just can't get around that fact. Few soils are able to release enough nutrients in one year to keep a heavy crop going.

A heavy coat of manure — 10 tons or so to the acre — will go a long way to supplying the difference; a clover sod ploughed down, supplies valuable nitrogen; a few clay soils might release enough potash. But it is almost certain, if you want a decent yield that you will need fairly large quantities of commercial fertilizer.

Just how much and what ratio, varies with soils and conditions. General recommendations are published by the Quebec Fertilizer Board. A soil test, however, is the best guide we have to the most profitable amount and the right analysis.

With corn, you have to be careful of fertilizer "burn". A small amount near but not touching the seed is desirable for a starter. The practice is to band it two inches below and two inches to one side. But the bulk of it can be worked into the soil ahead of planting. It saves time, too.

Although corn is a heavy user of nitrogen, you don't have to side dress the growing crop any more. It has been shown that the nitrogen fertilizer can go on in one application with equally good results.

It looks as if we are in for some changes in beef judging. At the larger western fairs this year, there will be a class for steers judged both live and on a carcass basis. The purpose, of course, is to bring show ring standards and consumer preference closer together. It sounds like a splendid idea, if they can find judges to take on the job.

May 11 to 18 is 'Tree Week'

Quebec (CP) — Lucien Cliche, Quebec Lands and Forests minister, said that the week of May 11 to May 18 — proclaimed "Tree Week" — should remind Quebecers of the inestimable benefits we derive from our forests.

"I invite all the people of the province to develop an awareness of the highly important role the forests play in the economic life of Quebec," he said.

Their 'first new home' adventure for 70,000 bright-eyed Canadians

This year more than 70,000 bright-eyed young Canadians will step over the threshold of a new home, some to enjoy the thrill of their first new home. For them and for thousands of other Canadians nothing can take the place of "a home of your own". Since the purchase of a home usually represents the largest single financial obligation a family will undertake it is a selection the home buyer should make with care. Each home must be selected specifically to meet the needs of the individual family. Often the first decision to make is, whether to buy a house at all.

Rent or Buy?

Before making the decision you should consider your own particular circumstances. Is there a chance you will be moving from your present community within a year or so? If so, the house you purchase should be . . . chosen with a view to easy resale. It should be in a price range, and be in a location which will be attractive to as many as possible potential buyers.

Rental quarters carry far less financial responsibility, but also mean a compromise in comfort with nothing but a collection of rent receipts to show after a lifetime of occupancy.

For instance, a monthly rental of $100 equals a sum of $24,000 in 20 years. The same amount ($100) at 5% simple interest would total $41,841.98. For most families buying a house is a means of saving as well as providing shelter for the family.

Before buying discuss the matter with experts — your builder, banker, your local real estate agent, to help you estimate what equity you will have in your new home at any time in the future when you may wish to sell.

Build or Buy?

If you buy a new home it will be well built because of the great changes in home building practice which have occurred in recent years. Home building, a 2 billion-dollar a year industry in Canada, has developed new materials and designs which greatly enhance the quality, beauty and durability of a new home. Today's builders combine skill, the latest materials and modern management to provide better designed and equipped homes at prices and on terms that more families can afford to pay.

Today, competition between builders is keen — and this spells a better buy for the house-hunter. Land values in most areas are rising; they doubtlessly will be even higher in the future. This means that every penny spent in a home today is money well invested.

Today's homes are a better buy than ever for the reasons of: (1) keen competition between builders; (2) better construction methods and materials. The framework of most private homes is wood and wood members used in modern construction are better than ever.

Research men in the forest industries field have established "span tables", tables reflecting the relative strength of the various Canadian species and listing lengths of these species can cover unsupported. These tables include a safety factor, and thus make the best and most economical use of wood. No longer is it necessary for builders to over-engineer their houses. Oversize beams may have a pioneer look in old fashioned homes; but they were quite a waste of material.

CMHC have had in Canada for the past year, a grade marking system which requires all structural timber to be stamped. CMHC inspectors look for these grade stamps in the inspecting. This assures a strong framework, one which will keep the house sturdy and tight for years to come. Backing up all this is a quality control program at the sawmills where the lumber is cut. To insure a quality product, licensed lumber graders are employed (they have to re-qualify every year) and they keep a sharp eye on the quality of wood produced. All of them are careful inspectors conscious of their responsibilities.

When you see the frame of your house going up you are seeing the end result of a production team which began in the mill, continues on to the wholesaler and retailer and ends finally with your quality-conscious builder.

Selecting A Neighborhood

Once you decide to buy, the next step is to choose a neighborhood. In choosing a neighborhood in which to build or buy; good character may often be found where there is a high percentage of owner-occupied houses. This does not mean that rented dwellings detract from a community. They do not — if they are well maintained.

But pride of ownership, resulting in greater care for buildings and grounds, is a safe-guard against declining property values, and if the neighborhood is to retain good character, houses should be well planned and constructed; homes should be located so as not to conflict with one another.

Since the character of a neighborhood is determined by the people who live in it, a community of low-cost houses can be just as congenial as one limited to higher priced properties. Before making a final selection visit local schools, churches and the community centre.

Community Facilities

If you have children or are contemplating a family, schools deserve serious consideration.

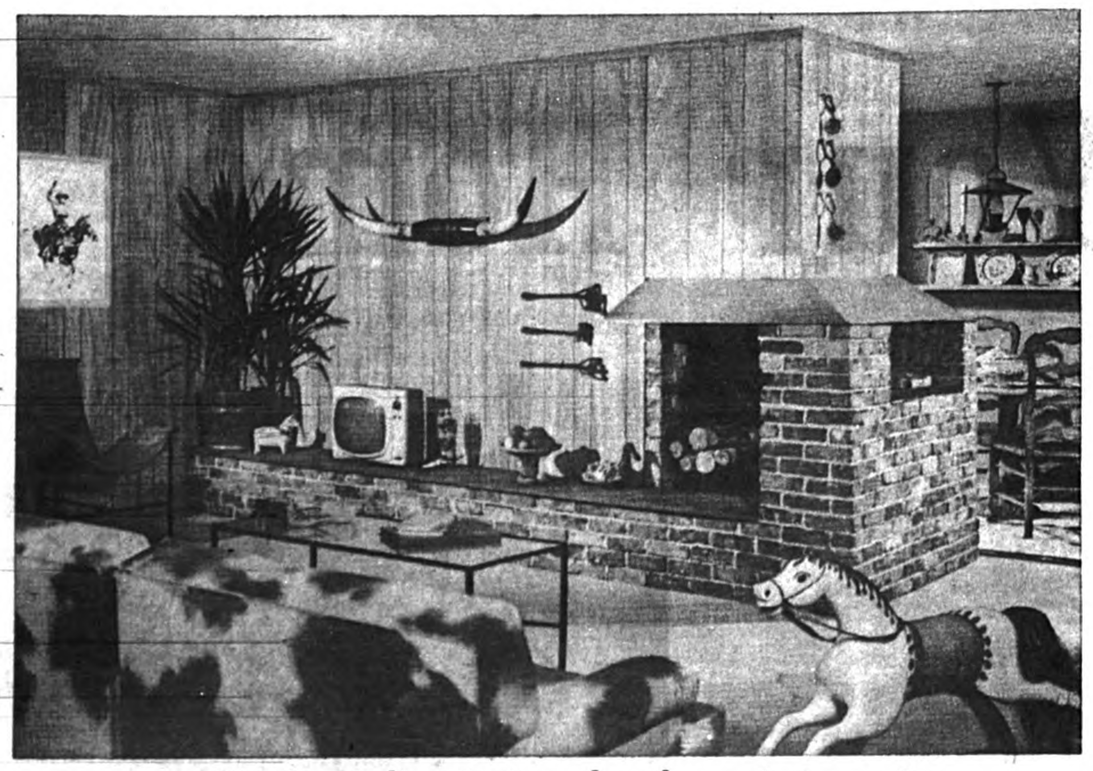

No neighborhood can be complete without a shopping area, which these days often means a large shopping centre.

It is generally recognized today that social activities are the form of recreation and amusement essential. It is well, therefore, to determine whether or not the neighborhood has facilities to meet the needs of your family. Theatres, golf, tennis, swimming, baseball, gardening — these and many others are individual forms of recreation which may be of interest and most of them require fresh air and open space.

You must determine too, whether or not the community will be a safe place in which to live. Is the traffic properly regulated? Is there (or will there be) adequate fire and police protection? What is the general reputation for safety?

An active public health service and nearby hospital facilities are also important factors to consider in selecting a neighborhood.

Rent or buy? pros and cons, where's and why's

Wood paneling invites the planner's ingenuity

The Western motif here comes natural to this wood-panelled wall, giving accent to the color and ornamentation of ranch-style living. The dining space is painted in a restful green. . . An example of versatility in wood wall-panelling, which lends itself to any decorative mood — Oriental, Colonial, or what-have-you. The dealers' samples and showrooms will suggest an interesting variation of themes.

Wood fills need for interiors

The ideal wall covering, for any room where people live and work, should have a fine appearance, harmonizing with the furniture and furnishings and creating a restful atmosphere. It should possess good insulating properties and durability.

In addition to these physical properties, it must be relatively economical to purchase, easy to install and maintain. Of all wall covering materials, wood best suits all these requirements.

The unique beauty of wood paneling is the chief reason for its wide popularity. Wood can be used either with a natural finish, clearly showing the grain, or it can be painted, stained, or wash-coated to obtain an entirely different effect.

Most homeowners prefer a considerable expanse of natural wood grain, particularly for living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, and dens.

From the many suitable species, almost any color can be chosen: woods that are nearly white, other woods that are dark, woods that are deep red, light yellow, pink-toned, light tan.

If an elusive tint is required for special architectural design, artificial coloring can provide the desired effect. This need not be of the kind that will hide or detract from the grain pattern. By these means, a dark wood may be made light in color and light woods darkened.

Painted paneling also has its place in modern architecture, either for covering the entire wall or in combination with figured paper or plaster walls.

Color is only one facet of wood's warm, elegant appearance. Others are its grain and pattern. A very important feature that makes wood panelling preferred is the natural pattern or "figure" of the grain.

Most woods have figures, depending on the way in which the wood is cut from the log, and there are thousands of variations from subtlest to boldest, in fact, no two pieces are ever exactly alike. The non-repetitious figure, feel, and texture of wood panelling cannot be duplicated or copied artificially.

The grain whorls around burls, knots, and other markings are especially beautiful. Some woods obtain character from deep fissures, caused by insects or fungi before the tree is cut, such as pecky cypress, pecky cedar, and white pocket. The popular knotty-textured and many other character-marked woods are favored because of their grain configuration.

The pattern of machined wood is another important factor that helps make wood panelling popular. In addition to the beads, curves, and other shapes that individual manufacturers apply, the method of application to the wall can affect the appearance.

The panel boards of hardwood plywood panelling may be applied vertically or horizontally or in combinations. Panels can also be built up in squares or other geometrical figures.

Trim for doors, windows, corners, and baseboards is closely related to panelling. Trim pieces generally are available to match any panelling selected. Further, the same kind of wood can be used to construct bookcases, room dividers, cabinets, and other built-ins.

Roof repairs — You or the professional?

One of the secrets of fixing things yourself is to know what you should attempt and what should be left to the professional. A do-it-yourself chore that falls into the area of decision is the repair of a slanted roof.

For those who are competent to work on roofs, minor repairs to roof flashing can be handled without too much trouble. Flashing is the name given to the sheets or strips of metal placed at certain strategic points to make joints waterproof. These points are wherever one angle meets another, or around chimneys and vents. When cracks or other openings take place in the jointed areas, water seeps through, even in a light rain.

Recapture youth and childhood

Room decoration reflects the spirit and tempo of its purpose — none moreso, perhaps, than the recreation room. This can be simply and effectively finished to spotlight its accessories and charm its occupants.

Select your atmosphere with wallpaper murals

Comes that exhilarating time of the year known as spring and many of us get the urge to be creative along with mother nature. We start thinking in terms of new things — new spring outfits, new ways to plant our gardens, of changes that will bring fresh new atmospheres to our rooms.

No doubt you have felt, over the last few drab months, that some of your rooms have grown stale with familiarity — that you really would like to create new atmospheres for them. Well, one of the quickest ways to change the look of a room is with color. When the change of color is combined with a pattern, the results can truly be spectacular. More and more homemakers are discovering that they themselves can create wonderful new atmospheres, both easily and inexpensively — they have discovered ready pasted wallpaper murals.

Design-wise, wallpaper murals offer tremendous variety. When you'd like to enjoy a room with a view, you can select from the designs that give serenity through their quiet country scenes, or just designs that provide dramatic vistas. A scenic mural will always give interest and a new look of dimension.

Perhaps you'd like to add a fascinating focal point in your room? Then your choice could be bold floral panels or an exciting "old fashioned" balloon race. For the bath, powder room or kitchen, where the wall space is apt to be limited, there are smaller mural designs — what could capture the imagination more, say in the bathroom, than four feet of personable little birds playing in the tall bamboo?

So if the season is urging you to create a fresh new look in your house, take a trip to the wallpaper store and seek out the new murals . . . they'll provide you with decorative inspiration to match your neatest notions.

Plastic counters decorative and useful

Kitchen counter tops can be replaced with laminated plastic where a decorative as well as useful surface is desired.

If the present counter top is wood, the plastic can be cemented directly to it provided that all grease, dirt, paint, etc., are removed from it. The wood should be sanded before the bonding. The same procedure should be followed when some other material is removed from the wooden base, with special care given to taking off all the old adhesive.

The best way to insure cutting the laminating plastic to the exact size, especially in the area around the sink, is to make a paper or cardboard template or model. In cutting the plastic to the paper pattern, keep the decorative side of the plastic face up. Use a fine-toothed crosscut saw, cutting only on the down-stroke. Allow one-eighth of an inch overhang, which can be filed off later. When making curved cuts, use a keyhole saw.

Place the laminated plastic over the area to be covered before putting on any adhesive. Once you are sure the fit is perfect, apply contact cement to both the wooden top and the back of the plastic. The adhesive must be dry to the touch before the two parts are bonded together.

How to remove stains from upholstery fabrics

Here are some common spots and stains, listed alphabetically, which are most likely to occur on upholstered furniture, with the recommended cleaning agents and methods of removal:

Acids. — Sponge with cold water to check action of the acid. Apply ammonia water or baking soda to neutralize the acid spot. Perhaps holding the dampened stain in the fumes from a bottle of household ammonia will suffice; if not, apply a few drops of ammonia water (half-strength) directly to the stain in a quick dab. Rinse off in cold water. With baking soda, sprinkle it on, and allow to remain until bubbling stops. Rinse out.

Adhesive Tape. — Sponge the stain with carbon tetrachloride.

Alcoholic Beverages and Soft Drinks. — These liquids may cause tannin stains which may turn brown and become impossible to remove if allowed to stand, or if ironed, or if washed in soap and water. They can be removed by:

Cold water and glycerine: sponge the stain with water, pour glycerine on it and rub lightly. Allow glycerine to remain on for thirty minutes; rinse with water.

(If glycerine does not remove the stain, apply a 10% solution of acetic acid with a medicine dropper, and rinse with water. Neutralize the acid with ammonia water or baking soda, and rinse.)

Animal accidents. — Sponge first with ½ cup salt in 1 quart of lukewarm water. Then sponge with 1 tbs. of ammonia to 1½ cups of water. Rinse well.

Beer. — Since beer stains are soluble in water, they are easily removed by sponging lightly with a cloth wrung out in warm water and soapsuds.

Blood. — Always use cold water first on blood stains; hot water will set the stain. Washable cottons and linens should be washed in cold water until the stain turns light brown, then wash in warm water and soapsuds. Silk or wood fabrics may be sponged with cold water to remove blood stains.

Candy. — Scrape off with dull knife. Apply carbon tetrachloride. Sponge with hot water.

For chocolate, use lukewarm water, and follow with pepsin powder rubbed in, then sponged out after 30 minutes.

Chewing Gum. — Scrape with a dull knife. (If fabric will not waterspot, hold a piece of ice against the gum stain until the gum becomes brittle, then scrape off). Sponge any remaining traces of gum with carbon tetrachloride.

Chocolate or Cocoa. — Sponge with carbon tetrachloride. Dry. Sponge with lukewarm water, rub in pepsin powder, then sponge out after 30 minutes.

Coffee. — Try to remove coffee stains while they are fresh. Sponge with lukewarm water. Apply carbon tetrachloride.

Cream, Ice Cream or Milk. — Sponge with carbon tetrachloride. Let dry. If dealing with ice cream, sponge with cold water next to remove egg and sugar stains. Follow with pepsin on the dampened area and let stand for 30 minutes. Dust out. Rinse.

Dyes. — Some dye stains may be removed by one of the commercial color removers available at drug stores; follow the directions on the package.

Egg. — Scrape off as much of the stain as possible with a dull knife. Sponge with cold water. Dry. Rub with carbon tetrachloride.

Fireplace Soot. — Cover with dry salt. Then sweep up both together.

Fruits and Berries. — Sponge with hot water. Dry. Apply carbon tetrachloride.

Grease, Oil or Tar. — Apply carbon tetrachloride, using a circular motion, and working from the edge of the stain to the centre, and re-apply. When no more free ink is absorbed, make powder into a paste, and apply. When dry, brush off. Commercial ink removers may be used if the manufacturer's directions are followed carefully. Rinse thoroughly after treatment.

Iodine. — Sponge with 2 parts water to 1 part alcohol.

Lipstick. — Sponge with carbon tetrachloride and press with a clean blotter on the dampened area. Repeat this process, using a clean portion of the blotter each time, until no red comes off on the blotter.

Mildew. — Treat mildew spots while fresh, or injury to the fabric will result. Apply warm soapsuds; rinse with cloth wrung out in cold water. If stains are old, remove as above, but the discoloration which results will have to be treated with oxalic acid. Pour enough acid on the fabric to cover the spot and remove by rinsing with cold water and drying with a clean blotter.

Mud. — Allow to dry. Brush off. If stain remains, sponge white fabrics with denatured alcohol, and colored fabrics and acetate rayon with carbon tetrachloride.

Paint, Enamel, Lacquer or Shellac. — If the spot is fresh, rub with a cloth moistened with turpentine.

If old, sponge with carbon tetrachloride or turpentine.

Perfume — Sponge with water, work glycerine well into the fabric. Rinse thoroughly with water.

If stain persists, sponge with acetic acid solution and rinse with water. (Acetic acid may affect some colors. Test first on inconspicuous part of the fabric).

Powder. — Sponge with lukewarm water. Apply carbon tetrachloride.

Shoe Polish. — Sponge with carbon tetrachloride. It may help to loosen the stain if glycerine is rubbed into it before applying the cleaning fluid. Stains on wool should be sponged with denatured alcohol.

Tar, Axle Grease, Road Oil. — Scrape off as much of the tar, grease or oil as possible with a dull knife; rub in lard or vaseline to soften the stain. Scrape off vaseline or lard; sponge with carbon tetrachloride.

Tea. — If clear, use mild soap and clear water. If with cream, use carbon tetrachloride.

Water. — Some non-washable fabrics acquire water spots which can be removed by placing a damp cloth on the stain and pressing over it with a warm iron.

(Another method is to sponge the area evenly with clear water or to dampen it by holding it in the steam from the spout of a boiling kettle. Press while damp.)

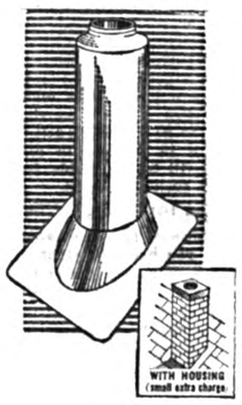

Wine. — Sprinkle salt on all wine stains immediately. Sponge with a damp cloth.

"A HOME OF YOUR OWN" —

Your home as a cash investment; the legal and financial angles

The prospective home buyer is often on unfamiliar ground and understandably confused when faced with the technical and legal terms involved in acquiring a home.

First of all, don't try to become a builder or architect yourself. Building is a very specialized field, an area where a little knowledge can be a dangerous thing. It is your builder's job to provide the technical know-how, and if you don't trust him, you shouldn't be buying a home from him.

Have Your Own Lawyer

You should engage your own lawyer at the outset of your negotiations to purchase . . . certainly before you sign anything. It is not a good practice to use the same lawyer as your builder or your mortgage lender. The lawyer of your choice will safeguard your interests and explain the transaction to you. Very often, home buyers blame a builder unjustly for misunderstandings over responsibilities, when the cause of the difficulty has been their own failure to become informed.

Despite the unfamiliarity of the average home buyer with the legal mechanics involved in the purchase of property, the buying of a home need not be an involved process. Every reliable builder will do his best to inform you fully about the house, the neighborhood, and the municipality, and your lawyer is dedicated to the protection of your interests.

Does It Pay to Prepay?

Is it wise — or foolish — to pay cash for your house or to pay off a big chunk of the outstanding mortgage if you have the money available?

The answer: It all depends — on finances, on whether you may wish to sell in the near future, on the investment return you might obtain elsewhere, on the level of inflation, on a lot of things.

First fact to consider is the money you spend on a house as an investment. In order to acquire the home you most likely have to borrow money from some one else. Each month you will pay them back a little of this money — although with interest and amount you still owe them, it stands to reason that during the first few years of your occupancy, when the balance yet to be paid is still large, a much larger proportion of your monthly payment is going for interest than for the principal of your debt. Therefore, the earlier in the life of your mortgage you pay off a big chunk of the outstanding principal, the more interest you save.

Prepaying Conventional Loans

With some mortgages, it is not possible to prepay a portion of your debt anytime you wish, however, this constitutes a change in the terms of your agreement with your lender, and he has been counting on you to adhere to these terms for the life of the loan. On conventional mortgages, lenders' policies vary and are sometimes flexible. Some charge a penalty for prepayment. Others restrict the time and amounts which you can pay in this manner. The cost of any penalty would have to be weighed against your savings in interest to discover if it will be profitable for you to make such a payment.

Prepaying an NHA Loan

With a National Housing Association loan, you have the right to pay off 10% of principal amount of the loan on the 12th installment date; another 10 percent on the 24th installment date; and the entire outstanding on the 36th or any subsequent installment date. If you do make the prepayment on your outstanding principal, however, your lender has the right to charge you 3 months interest on the account you pay off. He can waive this charge if he wishes, though, and can also accept prepayment over and above those set in the mortgage. When you make payment of your principal, your subsequent mortgage payments usually remain the same. Thus you would end up paying off the mortgage earlier than the original terms called for.

A basic point to keep in mind; it is the lender's money that is involved so he has the right of discretion in dealing with each individual case, within the framework of your agreement.

Should You Pay Cash?

If you are in the position of being able to pay cash for your house you are able to save yourself interest. In other words, you become your own lender, lending money to yourself.

But then your money is not earning anything for you. It is invested in a fixed asset, and your only earnings on the amount, the value of the asset depreciates. The only way you would realize additional return on your investment, while you are retaining your home, would be to pay yourself interest regularly and invest it elsewhere.

Even if you have the cash, it may not be wise to put it all into your house at the outset. A cash reserve should be retained for family financial emergencies, for one thing. There are sometimes more important things than getting your mortgage paid up as quickly as possible. There are things which are more profitable.

There is also the matter of inflation to consider. It has been estimated that money is losing its value at the rate of some 4% a year in Canada. If this trend continues, it means that ten years from now every one hundred dollars you pay in mortgage and interest payments will be worth only $60 by today's standards. This is one reason real estate is such a popular investment in times of inflation, because while the terms of payment are set today, the actual payment will occur in the future in dollars less and less value. In this way it can be reasoned that you save money by going into debt — if inflation continues.

Therefore, even if you have the money now to pay cash for your house, or to make a very large down payment, it might be more profitable for you in the long run to take nominal mortgage terms and invest your money elsewhere. When you are in the realm of investment, however, you can expect no guarantees. Investment implies that your best bet is to always consult with the most confident financial advisor you know . . . your banker, investment councillor or mortgage company representative, with him, calculate the alternative ways of using your capital. Only then can you decide the most advantageous method of investment.

Check house plans for woman's needs

It is too bad, really, that the woman whose responsibility it is to make a home out a house cannot pre-test it before the burden of its mortgage payments are assumed — writes Jean Sprain Wilson in a Home feature appearing in The Montreal Star.

Living in a prospective house even briefly would rawly expose the true working (or non-working) nature and sensitive or insensitive areas that lie beneath the surface charm — continues the writer.

As it is, a man checks the furnace, pounds on the walls, asks about the roof, tries the plumbing, marvels at the space in the basement for a future worshop, worries over the amount of grass to mow, and signs the binder.

And women thereafter are left to curtain odd-sized windows, manoeuvre furniture into improbable places, juggle clutter, scrub tirelessly, combat the dampness, cringe in the sun glare, wrestle with the appliances, strain over work counters either too high or too low, make a three-day pilgrimage to the nearest supply centre, and fight with incompatible neighbors the rest of the week.

A house to a man is to come home to in the evening, but to get out of as soon after the sun rises as possible. A house to a woman is her daylight world, hour by ticked-off hour, and each defect is subjectively magnified.

Unless a family rents with option to buy, trial home ownership is seldom possible. And considering the cost and inconvenience of uprooting a family is not really practical, as educational as the experience might be.

The only other recourse is for a woman to know beforehand what she requires. And to speak loudly, shout if necessary, until she is heard. What she requires in her 24-hour prison of domesticity depends on the needs of her family, as well as her aesthetic sensibilities.

If she has young children, she will seek a floor plan which separates their bedrooms from the living area, assuring them of quiet afternoon naps or evening study.

She will insist on an adequate play area, of course, and nearby schools; walls that easily rub free of fingermarks; safely-latched and high windows; moppable floors; low closet fixtures, and copious toy storage room.

If she works, or just hates housework and can afford to hate it, she will fret about the size, plumbing facilities and location of a maid's room. Let it be comfortable, equipped, and private, she'll tell you for she knows how hard it is to hang onto a maid these days.

If she is stuck with the housework, she will want counter tops built to her specific working height, appliances placed according to cooking sequence, deep and wide shelves for large-sized food and cleaning containers; and strong direct working light.

Moreover, she will demand floors with resilience — not unrelenting material in the kitchen where she spends the most time on foot. Her arches are at stake.

Since she is the daytime victim of the elements, she will also insist on the proper sun and breeze protection and exposure. And will talk to the neighbors about it to be sure. In fact she will call on the neighbors, if she's smart, just to be sure about them!

This will be her castle to decorate. Can she satisfy her creative urges? Or is the house too full of challenging nooks, crannies, recesses, and excesses?

Are the walls too cut up with windows? Are the rooms so large that, even with room divider pieces, the effect is like a furniture showroom? Or indeed, are the rooms too small for her treasured oversized heirloom pieces?

Can she repaint or wallpaper, to her artistic heart's content, or is she trapped forever with the builder's choice of a "just-hose-it-down" wall?

A home is hers to reign in as gracious hostess, but is her lifetime housing selection cooperative? If she yearns for candelabrum and crystal to go with her velvet hostess gown, a six-by-eight cement slab "patio" off the living room's glass sliding doors will never take the place of a dining room with a buffet and a massive china closet.

A home is hers to relax in — quietly, privately, beautifully — perhaps by a crackling fireplace and with shadows and lights dancing on a cathedral ceiling.

A home is smug satisfaction. And yet it is hard to know if that's what she's got — until after she's begun to pay the price.

Paint walls or woodwork first?

Generally, it doesn't make too much difference whether you do the walls or the woodwork first when painting a room. But if you're using flat paint on the walls and a gloss or semi-gloss enamel on the woodwork, there is some advantage to doing the woodwork first, letting it dry and then doing the enameling. The reason: it's easier to remove flat paint from enamel than vice versa, in the event that the paint brush doesn't always follow your bidding.

Rules few and simple for outside painting

In painting the outside of a house, you can avoid a large percentage of future troubles by proper preparation of the surface and the use of good quality paint. But you'll still get some king-sized headaches later on if you failed to observe certain fundamentals while applying the paint.

Number one on the list of "must" conditions for outside painting is dry weather, with temperatures not under 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Do not paint if the forecast calls for rain and/or freezing weather immediately after your paint job will be finished, even if conditions are satisfactory when you begin. Here are some other precautions about outside painting:

Do not apply the paint early in the morning if there is dew on the house. Do not put on the paint in heavy coats. Do not thin the paint too much trying to make one gallon cover a surface which requires two. Do not be in such a rush to put on a second coat that you fail to allow the first coat sufficient time to dry. Do not fail to seal knots or pitchy spots before painting. And do not fail to mix the paint occasionally to prevent separation of the oil and pigment.

Care and maintenance of home; helpful hints for the handyman

Your home should be your proudest possession. Nothing else brings more enjoyment and long-term satisfaction to you and your family. Like a new car, your home will require careful "breaking in" by you, the owner. The builder has some obligations after he has carefully assembled the materials and equipment which constitute your new home; most likely he has given you a one year warranty that promises he will take care of legitimate claims of faults or damage which don't come to light until you are in the house. But for the most part it it up to you to see that your new home is not abused, and is properly maintained. If you do so it will serve you and others who will follow you for almost an unlimited number of years.

To Prevent Moisture Damage

Condensation is at a maximum in a new home. When your home was built, many gallons of water went into materials such as concrete, plaster, tile work and even some types of paint. This water is still lodged within the walls — especially basement walls — and its gradual evaporation contributes to a higher moisture content in the air.

Provide ventilation wherever possible but do not try to accelerate the normal drying out process of a new home. Creating high temperatures will only tend to cause an uneven drying which will exaggerate the effect of normal shrinkage and can permanently damage lumber and millwork in your new house. Foundation or basement walls are subject to a wide variety of stresses and strains. The base of the wall, being in the ground, maintains a fairly constant temperature. The top portion, however, extends out of the ground and is subject to extreme temperature changes which cause concrete and other masonry to expand and contract.

The nature of the soil on which the foundation is placed may cause slight settlement or heaving due to soil expansion, which would induce additional stress.

A combination of these forces may, make some minor cracks appear. It is important for the home owner to understand that these surface cracks do not affect the strength of the walls in any may and it isn't necessary to repair them except for a touch up to improve their appearance. Masonry basement walls, like every other part of the house, are not waterproof in themselves. Where conditions warrant it, your builder will have dampproofed the underground portion of your foundation to prevent the entrance of water from the surrounding ground. Where a great deal of water is present outside, basement walls should be waterproofed at time of construction.

Moisture within the walls of a house can result in stained plaster, rotted wood, rusted metal and ruined interior wall paint. After removing the cause of condensation throughout the house — uncirculated warm and moist air — a good wall paint will help in resisting the inroads of moisture. It is well to remember that no type of exterior surface — wood, brick, stone or stucco — is in itself impervious to attacks of moisture. The surfaces can be protected by coats of paint especially prepared for the purpose and available at paint and hardware stores.

An automatic humidifier installed on the furnace or an unvented gas burning hot water heater can cause high humidity in the basement area. Constant use of such equipment is another source of moisture vapor. In many cases this situation can be corrected by improving ventilation and humidity control.

The Electrical System

Abuse or misuse of electrical equipment can be a contributing factor to home fires. Don't be an amateur electrical repair man, and don't let any other amateur handyman alter the wiring in the home or repair your electrical equipment. This work requires a professional; so when anything goes wrong call a reputable electrician or a recognized appliance service agency. In modern homes today, every homemaker depends on electrical appliances to do much of the everyday work around the house. To keep these working for you, you need a full "house power" — adequate electricity coming into your home and plenty of outlets to feed your appliances.

Heating System

There are many different types of heating systems and various methods of installation. As a home owner, it is to your advantage to know all about your own. Read all the descriptive literature supplied with the furnace, and for more detailed information check with the heating contractor who supplied and installed the system. Proper care of the heating system and good house insulation can reduce heat costs, permit considerable fuel savings during the winter and make air conditioning for the summer more effective.

Be sure to check for proper insulation when you are buying your new home. Some builders display cutaway wall sections so potential buyers can see exactly what is provided. Any reputable builder will be glad to explain to you how he has insulated your house.

If you live in a warm climate don't think insulation isn't necessary. Summer comfort alone justifies the cost of full insulation, especially if you are planning to use air conditioning. It is important to realize that insulation has year round value, and isn't solely to protect you during the cold weather.

Caring for the Wood in Your Home

The structural lumber used in your home has been selected by the builder in the sizes and grades which provide a factor of safety beyond the actual necessity to carry the load for which it is intended. Some shrinkage in these framing members — joists, studding, rafters, etc. — is to be expected but your home has been designed so that any settling that will take place will be as nearly uniform as possible. Wood, like any other building material, may contract or expand with changes in the weather. Wood is not affected by heat or cold, but it may shrink under extreme dryness, or swell under extreme humidity. Shrinkage is inevitable but it can be minimized by keeping your indoor temperature and humidity as uniform as possible, day and night, especially during the first year after the house is built. About 70° of temperature, and 30% humidity, are considered ideal. Very high temperatures with low relative humidity tend to dry the house too quickly, with the result that lumber and millwork twist, split and pull.

If moulding and trim separate slightly, it is due to shrinkage, the cracks may be filled with putty or wood filler. Should the moulding attached to the baseboards at the floor level separate from the baseboard, it is best to reset the nails. Lower the moulding to the rough sub-floor "finished floor" at an angle, through the crack between the baseboard and the finished floor. This should prevent the base moulding from separating either from the floor or from the baseboard. Nails should be set well into the wood so that the heads may be concealed smoothly with putty or filler. If door mouldings separate at the mitre joints, these cracks also may be filled. In such cases, recoat the repaired surface with paint. Proper painting minimizes further shrinkage, since it helps to keep out moisture. The finish plays an important part in protecting all woodwork.

If the doors stick from swelling, fold sandpaper around a wood block and sand the edge where it binds. Then paint over the sanded area.

Check top and bottom edges of doors to see if they have been repainted after fitting. If not it is a good idea to do so, to protect the wood from moisture. This is especially important in the case of outside doors. If the door continues to bind excessively, it may be necessary to plane it slightly but this should be done promptly for a door can be ruined by continually forcing it into an opening it doesn't fit. In the case of a door sticking slightly, a coat of paste wax, soap or paraffin to the sticking surface, often alleviates the trouble.

Exterior Wood

If your home has wood siding, you shouldn't worry about wear. Even unpainted wood weathers so slowly that the wear is insignificant. Don't paint the exterior of your home too often. Generally

Cotton canvas proves versatile aid to 'gracious patio living'

Summertime . . . and outdoors is the place to be.

Whether you are grilling hamburgers for the family, entertaining guests, or just lazing away the hours, you will want the setting to be as charming and comfortable as possible.

As you plan your outdoor living area, an important question to ask is: What effect do I want to achieve?

Whatever effect you decide on, you will find your job can be made easier through the use of cotton canvas. This versatile fabric has many guises, to make decorating easier — color, pattern, and texture. And textile chemists have developed new treatments, finishes and dyes, to give cotton canvas increased durability and a range of never-before colors and hues.

Do you want sophistication for your outdoor setting? Then be bold in your use of color and form. Avoid the commonplace for familiar objects. Let chairs and accessories be bright red, Delph blue, or lemon yellow.

Whether your patio is round, oval, oblong, or free-form, plan a canopy that imitates its lines. Off-beat shapes are easy to duplicate with canvas panels laced to framework of light metal tubing. Here, too, unusual colors are to be desired — coral, aqua, pink, magenta — all variations on basic colors.

Maybe you prefer something more formal in mood? Here the shape of awnings and canopies may take on traditional lines, and reflect today's trend toward elegance in exterior decor. Valances may be jester-cut, gracefully curved, or tailored in battlement designs for effects that complement a variety of home styles. Gay tassels or fringe lend an added charm.

By careful attention to color coordination and the cut of a valance, standard awnings can be made to repeat or accent the personality of your home.

The choice of colors can involve more than merely matching or contrasting one of the house colors. It depends on where the color is, and what effect is desired. If the house is small, canopies or awnings of related color will add visually to its size and avoid a busy, chopped-up look. If, on the other hand, the house has a large, boxy appearance, strong color contrast can be used to add interest and relieve monotony.

Something that is only one four-thousandths of an inch doesn't seem big enough to make a difference in the great outdoors. But, surprisingly enough, it can make a big difference in your outdoor decorating plans this summer.

A vinyl plastic coating is now being applied to cotton canvas, according to the Canadian Cotton Council.

As a result, you can get canvas awnings or patio canopies that will last as long as the paint on your house. And, what it more, the protective film makes pale pastel or even white awnings practical, since the finish sheds dirt quickly and resists fading.

Striking floral prints and co-ordinated solids go outdoors for spring in this patio furniture and poolside chaise lounge by Molla. The cotton fabrics covering the chair cushions are both colorful and long wearing.

WHY DIDN'T I THINK OF THAT BEFORE!

Wood floors may be finished many ways

The home owner who resurfaces a wooden floor has a variety of finishes from which to choose. He can use a stain, a varnish stain, paint, shellac, varnish, a penetrating sealer or a synthetic.

An oil stain adds color to the floor without hiding the grain. The time between the application and the wiping with a clean cloth determines the shading. The longer the stain is allowed to stay on, the darker the shade. It is well to remember, also, that stain tends to become darker with time, so a light color that suits you now may be somewhat darker with time.

Varnish stain is used when you want to apply a stain and a varnish at the same time. Professional refinishers say that this produces an acceptable result, but not as good as when the stain and clear varnish are applied separately. There's no argument about the fact that a varnish stain is a time-saver.

Paint rarely is used on good, hardwood floors, since it quite obviously hides the beauty of the grain. It is selected for special purposes where a particular color is desired and where there is no reason to show the design of the wood.

Shellac is one of the old finishing stand-bys. It is easy to apply and dries quickly. Critics say it has a tendency to become brittle under hard wear, but this condition usually is caused by the application of one or two thick coats instead of three of four thin ones. Shellac should not be applied when high humidity is present.

Varnish is another old-timer in the floor-finishing field. It dries slowly to a hard, durable finish. Because of this slow-drying property, every precaution must be taken to keep dust from settling on it after each application. It should be sanded lightly between coats.

Penetrating sealer is not a surface coating, as shellac and varnish are. It sinks into the pores of the wood. Because of this, it does not mar easily. It is simple to apply.

The synthetic or plastic finish is clear and tough, and so often used for bowling lanes. A second coat can be applied in an hour or so. While it normally dries to a satin sheen, a high gloss can be obtained if the third and final coat is thinned according to direction with a reducer.

Both the penetrating sealer and the plastic finish have the advantage of being easy to touch up at a later time without showing lap marks.

Prefabs to Britain

One Canadian prefab manufacturer has already set up an operation in Britain which is reaching the stage where a growing volume of sales can be expected, says O. Hickie, Commercial Secretary (Timber) in London, reporting in "Foreign Trade" magazine.

Another firm is currently making preliminary arrangements for entering the market and hopes to be in full swing before the end of this year. So far the one established company has shipped nine prefabricated houses and the response has been tremendous. The first unit, imported complete down to bathroom fixtures, arrived last August and was erected as a show house, says Mr. Hickie. It created a great amount of interest and got wide publiicty in the national and trade press. More than 25,000 visitors from widely scattered parts of the country came to see the house in less than three months after erection. The other eight homes arrived in February in the form of pre-cut kits and were assembled in Britain, says Mr. Hickie.

It is expected that this modest but auspicious beginning will ultimately mean a significant volume of new export business for Canada as more suppliers successfully enter the market. There is every reason to believe that the building industry in Britain is now on the eve of an unprecedented expansion that could last for a decade or more, says Mr. Hickie.

Plastics to play increasing role in construction

Toronto, Ont. — Plastics will account for nearly half of the material used in constructing houses in the next 10 years. According to Dr. R. V. Yohe, president of B. F. Goodrich Canada Ltd., rapid technical advances in the plastics industry will result in a lower-cost house with presently available materials. Although local building codes will have to be sharply updated to allow new plastic materials, processors and fabricators are quickly penetrating new markets.

B. F. Goodrich plant expansions are in hand, which will make Canada nearly self-sufficient in polyvinyl chloride resins. This is the basic raw material used in a wide range of plastic products including phonograph records, clothing, windows and doors, pipe, floor tile, and cable insulation.

Because vinyl is almost an ideal material for builders, the industry sees a great future in building products. It is resistant to fire, weather conditions and decay, and can be easily handled by construction crews.

Fabricators in Canada are presently producing everything from wall siding to window frames and roofing materials. Experiments are being conducted with more than 100 products for home building use.

"Right today, plumbing costs can be cut sharply by the use of vinyl pipe. Prefabrication of plumbing walls is possible with vinyl because of its light weight and the elimination of soldering. Vinyl pipe can withstand boiling water and is completely resistant to corrosion," said Dr. Yohe.

He predicted that homes may soon be produced in a factory on a room-by-room basis with exterior walls, insulation, plumbing, wiring, inner walls, subfloors and finished floors, windows, doors and roof all assembled of plastic components. The "rooms" could be erected on the home site with a significant saving in construction cost.

Ease of maintenance, variety in finish and design and lasting color are some of the benefits of plastic products.

Dr. Yohe said that the industry has made many advances but that new fabrication techniques must be developed if market potential is to be realized. He said the Plastic Show of Canada, which opened May 5 at the Colosseum in the exhibition grounds at Toronto, is a proud showcase for Canadian design and technical skill.

'Quiet' designs less obtrusive in tile flooring

Proper installation of floor tiles is more than a matter of care and patience than it is of skill. Putting down one little square of tile after another is not too far away from a child's pastime of playing with blocks. The strong popularity of floor tiles in recent years probably has been due as much to the comparatively easy method of installation as to anything else.

The usual practice of the do-it-yourselfer is to select one set of dark tiles and one of light, alternating the squares as they are laid on the floor. This is an effective method and easy to do. But it would be a good idea to run through some of the catalogues put out by the tile manufacturers to get ideas for different designs than the more common alternate-tile layout.

Home care and maintenance, helpful hints for handymen

speaking, a repainting every four to six years should be enough. Overpainting builds up an unnecessary and troublesome thickness of paint which may crack and peel. Most homeowners today do minor repairs about the house, and do minor paint jobs. If major maintanence or structural changes are necessary however, consult a qualified home builder.

Floor Care

All floor finishes in modern homes are designed to provide you with a lifetime of satisfaction, with a minimum of care and maintenance.

Excellent kiln dried wood is widely used in new homes being built today. However, even top quality hardwood sometimes will shrink slightly, causing a tiny separation between the floorboards. Maintenance of an even indoor temperature and humidity during the first year after the house is built will minimize this separation, however.

Never Use Water on Wood Floors

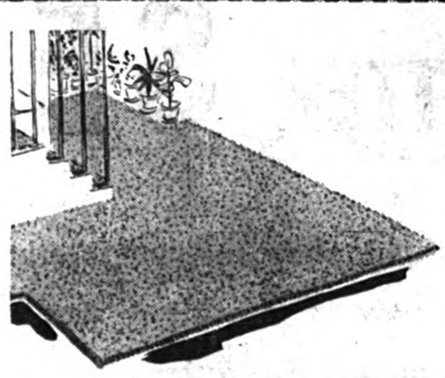

Clean them thoroughly with very fine steel wool and turpentine or similar solvent especially prepared for the purpose. Then apply two or three coats of old fashioned paste wax. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly and polish each one. This will give you a hard wearing and soil resistive finish which will probably not need redoing more than once or twice a year. Old wax should be completely removed with turpentine and steel wool before a basic rewaxing is undertaken. A liquid type of wax is often used for in between maintenance. It is easy to apply, and effectively removes dirt, scuff marks and grease. Leaving a protective coating. The frequency of application depends of course upon how much wear there is on the floor.

Always use thin layers of wax allowing each to dry thoroughly before buffing. Thick layers of wax tend to remain soft and sticky and so attract dirt.

Every few years, hardwood floors which are badly scratched or stained may be restored to brand new beauty by sanding and refinishing.

More and more Canadians decide every year to buy homes of their own. This trend stems from people wanting somewhere to put down roots and more security. These people find their standing in the community improves, their credit rating increases and they are more secure. Buying a home is an investment in happiness.

Cottingham hears protest on delay of annexation

An eight-man delegation called upon Mr. W. M. Cottingham, M.P.P., at his residence last week to express concern over the St. Jerusalem annexation project and its delays, asking him also to arrange an interview with the Hon. Pierre Laporte, Minister of Municipal Affairs at Quebec.

It is recalled that, on September 24 last, a majority of 71 taxpayers in St. Jerusalem gave approval in a referendum, on the annexation of a part of that parish to the Town of Lachute. In the eight months which have since elapsed, the Department of Municipal Affairs has given no response to the taxpayers' wishes, and the Lieutenant-Governor of the province has given no ratification.

Delegation to see Minister of Municipal Affairs

Mr. Cottingham made no secret of the fact that, both as a citizen and a taxpayer of the territory concerned, he is opposed to the annexation. "You are biting off too much," he told the delegation, which included representatives of both municipalities. "You should start by annexing first the urban part of the Parish. That is why I voted against the project — as everybody well knows, since it was an open vote."

Mr. Cottingham, however, expressed himself in favor of extending the limits of Lachute, and of expanding and developing the town. He was aware that a group in St. Jerusalem, opposing the project, had $10,000 at their disposal to fight the annexation move, and that they had made representations to the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The meeting with Mr. Cottingham was cordial, with a frank airing of views on both sides. He promised to arrange the desired interview with the Hon. Pierre Laporte, and in doing so, would give no emphasis to his personal viewpoints. The interview should come up within the next few days.

Court hearing held on death of taxi driver

Nineteen-year-old Ronald McCullough, of Montreal, appears at St. Jerome today (Wednesday) for preliminary hearing on a manslaughter charge, in connection with the slaying of a taxi driver at St. Hermas a few weeks ago.

The presiding judge will be Mr. Camille L. de Martigny. The preliminary hearing was delayed to this date on request of Charles H. Cliche, attorney, to allow time for a psychiatric report on the accused, from a specialist at Bordeaux jail. The psychiatric examination was requested by Allan Frank, counsel for the defendant, at the time of his arraignment.

At the inquest at St. Eustache under Dr. Louis Paradis, district coroner, McCullough was found criminally responsible in the death of Tony Ladansky on April 6. Evidence revealed that the accused surrendered to police at a summer camp in St. Andrews, and made a confession at the time. Ladansky was killed by knife wounds, and his body was found in a ditch not far from the Village of St. Hermas. McCullough had fled to St. Andrews in the taxi and taken refuge in the family cottage for four days before giving himself up.

Two fire calls

A crew of Lachute volunteer firemen were called to Whisselltown shortly before 11 p.m. Monday and were confronted with a blazing barn owned by Romeo Foucault. It is believed the fire started almost an hour before the call for assistance was received, and the firemen could do little but dampen the surrounding buildings.

Around 10 a.m. Tuesday, firemen were called to a miner blaze on St. Jacques Street, Lachute. Little damage resulted from the outbreak, in a newly-renovated apartment.

Planting 'Flowers of Hope'

Sister Damien Bernard, a popular public speaker and "doer of good works" in this community, was recently photographed while planting seeds during the "Flowers of Hope" campaign for the school operated by the Lachute Association for Retarded Children. District residents are reminded that the campaign needs the co-operation and donations of all citizens. — Please be generous.

Concerts campaign workers have Main St. headquarters

The annual campaign for memberships in the Lachute Community Concert Association — the 17th in the history of the local organization — opened with a rally last evening (Tuesday) at the Golf Club chalet. The president, Mrs. Fernand Legault, chaired the gathering of workers, who now, in their respective districts, are re-enlisting the past year's members and enrolling newcomers, to ensure the successful continuance of Community Concerts in this town.

Headquarters of the campaign are at the Deslauriers & Marcil premises, 498 Main Street (by courtesy of the management), and officers are in attendance to help the promotion of the drive and to keep tab on its progress.

Miss Juliette Rodrigue and Mrs. G. R. Rigby, co-chairmen of the campaign, gave help and encouragement to the workers in attendance, who were present from Lachute, Brownsburg, Dalesville, Dunany, St. Andrews and St. Eustache.

The secretary-treasurer, Jacques Bedard, discussed details of the canvass, and an inspiring speaker was Mr. Leo Bernache from Ottawa, who was introduced by the president. Mr. Bernache, now rated as an old friend of Community Concerts in this town, is Canadian representative for Columbia Artists Corporation, and is remaining in Lachute this week to help promote the membership campaign. Addressing the gathering, he was happy to recall a number of artists who appeared here in the past, who have since become celebrities of world renown. It has been the privilege of district music lovers to hear and meet these performers — illustrating that, at a very modest price, Carnegie Hall was literally "at our door".

Refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed among the 30-odd workers who attended this gathering.

Experts view Museum display of exhibits

The Historical Society of Argenteuil County is looking forward to a progressive step in the reorganization of its Museum exhibits. . . On Friday afternoon, May 15, members of the Historical Society executive met at the Museum at Carillon to consult with Mr. J. D. Hebert, head of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board, and his assistant, Mr. S. J. Gooding, who had come down from Ottawa to inspect the Museum and discuss plans for the future.

Many of the rooms of the Museum have recently been redecorated, and the present caretakers have done a wonderful job of cleaning and polishing. The executive members and their guests from Ottawa made a tour of inspection and were delighted by the change that has already taken place in the aspect of the rooms and the exhibits. Mr. George McGibbon, president of the Society, chaired the informal meeting which followed the inspection. Mr. Hebert and Mr. Gooding were consulted about the rearrangement of the rooms and their contents. It was suggested that Mr. Gooding be asked to spend a day or two at the Museum to study its possibilities and give advice. The visitor thought that he could spare two days later in the season, and he hopes to propose changes of arrangement which will revitalize the exhibits and stimulate fresh interest in the historic periods they represent.

It is hoped that residents throughout the County will make opportunities to visit the Museum during the present season.

Students' work on exhibition at Centre d'Art

The Centre d'Art's annual exhibition of work by art students — children, teen-agers and adults — opens Sunday at the Centre's headquarters, 360 Main Street.

On opening day, visitors will be given an opportunity to meet the instructors and discuss progress of the pupils in the various age groups.

There is no admission charge, and the Centre d'Art will be open every Thursday, Friday and Saturday until June 13, inclusive, from 2 to 5 p.m. only.

Cadets visited by group from Greenfield Park

A group of around 60 R.C.A. cadets from Greenfield Park visited Lachute last Saturday and joined the 50-odd members of the local unit for field exercises. The boys and their officers made a considerable turnout, accompanied by the Lachute unit's drum and bugle band, as they paraded on Main Street prior to the manoeuvres which took place at Clark's farm just east of town.

Major Wm. Butterfield, of the Artillery 131st Battery militia, directed the day's program. The visiting cadets were in charge of Capt. Ed Walker and the local unit in charge of Capt. Robert Haydon.

A steady rain set in to mar the field exercises, but the boys are reported to have been so highly enthused that the weather failed to dampen their ardor.

Dr. G. R. Rigby addressed grads at B'burg High School ceremony

This past Friday evening the Brownsburg Protestant School Commissioners honored the graduating class and their parents with a banquet in the school cafeteria.

The chairman of the commissioners, Mr. Albert Gagné, acted as master of ceremonies. During the banquet a "toast to the graduates" was offered by Andrew Izzard. Mr. Gagné introduced the guests at the head-table, and thanked the ladies of the Women's Institute for a delicious meal.

Following the banquet the guests adjourned to the auditorium for the graduation exercises. Mr. Gagné, again acting as master of ceremonies, welcomed the large audience and introduced the various events. Mr. Philip Grant presented school letters to Lorraine Sugden and Mary Vowles. These letters are awarded to graduating students who have fully participated in extra-curricular activities during their years in high school. Mr. Keith Smith presented the Birks silver medal for scholastic achievement to Brian Richardson, and the bronze medal for extra-curricular activities to Lorraine Sugden. Mary Vowles read the graduates her prophecy of their future, which sparkled with wit and humor.

Principal J. Leggitt introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Dr. G. R. Rigby. Dr. Rigby, the Director of Research for Canadian Refractories Limited, is also a well-known local historian. He stressed three points in his address to the graduates: First, that they should prepare for their life in the future, learning to do one thing well, no matter what the subject. Secondly, to enlarge their horizons, he suggested the graduates should travel and view the great works of the past and present. He said they should also be ready to move to new areas to further their own interests, and to gain a better impression of the way of life of other people. Thirdly, they should realize they are entering a scientific world, one with many changes, and new philosophies of life, and they should realize that scientific truth is beyond the perception of human beings. Even scientists have found this to be true, Dr. Rigby stated, and they have been humbled by this fact. He continued: "If you will accept this fact, you will not be intolerant of others as many are today. Our only salvation is to acknowledge that we are our brother's keeper — that intolerance is evil, and it is also scientifically untenable." Dr. Rigby's speech was well received by the graduates and an attentive audience. He was thanked on their behalf by Ken Campbell.

Following the Valedictory address by Brian Richardson, Mr. Gagné presented diplomas to the following students: Diane Hall, Ann Hamilton, Jean Hardie, Joanne McCullough, Lorraine Sugden, Mary Vowles, Ken Campbell, Truman Clark, Norman Forbes, Grant Murdoch, Brian Richardson, and David Villard. Elinor Campbell, also in this class, was absent. The exercises ended with "God Save the Queen".

Following the exercises, a committee of students cleared the chairs while the orchestra prepared their instruments. The first dance of the evening was reserved for the graduates. Following this dance they led all present in the Grand March. The gymnasium was decorated in a Parisian theme. Murals of scenes in and around Paris decorated the walls. Part of one side was made into an outdoor Parisian café, and was reserved for the use of the graduates. S. Gray and his orchestra provided appropriate music, and all present had a good time.

Interest keen, 9th annual meeting of Argenteuil Art Association Inc.

Between 40 and 50 members attended the annual meeting of the Argenteuil Art Association, held Saturday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. L. T. Porter, at St. Andrews East. The attendance was gratifying in view of the unfavorable weather.

With the president in charge of proceedings, the membership heard very satisfactory reports from the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Vivian Walker. Mrs. Porter then gave a review of the past year's activities, adding a note of regret in the passing of Mme F. Robin, who has been an active member of the executive.

There are almost 100 members of the A.A.A., in this ninth year since its inauguration, and it was reported by Mr. A. G. Talbot, that he had procured the charter as requested at last annual meeting, and that the Association is now an incorporated body.

Miss A. L. Wales, chairman of the nominating committee, then presented the slate of officers, which was formally adopted as follows:

Hon. president, Mayor Henri Labreche of St. Andrews.

President (re-elected), Mrs. L. T. Porter.

Vice-presidents, Mrs. Edgar Davidson, Don Titman, Jean Laforest.

Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Vivian Walker.

Directors — Miss A. L. Wales, Henri Labreche, Peter Walker, Melville Ballantyne.

Exhibitions — Mrs. L. T. Porter, Mrs. Vivian Walker, Mrs. G. R. Rigby, Mansiel Wilson.

Regional Representatives

Lachute, Mrs. T. Bishop
Brownsburg, Mr. A. G. Talbot
Cushing, Mrs. Flemming-Williams
Carillon, Mrs. Vivian Walker
Morin Hts., Mrs. Wm. Stock
Hawkesb'y, Mrs. Robt. Sherman
St. Andrews, Mrs. Kevin Clarke
Kilmar, Mrs. Wm. Bray

The members enjoyed the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Porter on conclusion of the meeting. Tea was served to the guests.

Subsequently, the directors met to discuss more specific plans for the season, which will be duly announced.

Child's body found at Cushing river front

The body of seven-year-old Luc Parent, a Hawkesbury child who had been missing from his home since Friday afternoon, was found at the riverbank at Cushing early Tuesday afternoon. The discovery was reportedly made by a Hawkesbury boy, who had been one of those sent to scour the surroundings among many other searchers. He found the young victim opposite a new riverfront cottage, below the highway near the Graham home. Provincial police from Hawkesbury and Lachute were shortly on the scene of the discovery.

When the youngster disappeared from the home of his father, Roger Parent, it was speculated either that he had gone fishing against his parents' orders, or that he had been picked up by a motorist. An intensive search over the week-end was conducted by 100 high school students and 150 adult searchers. . . The search ended Tuesday at Cushing, where the body was found in the Ottawa River.

The little victim had three younger sisters, besides his grieving parents.

Mixed party at Richelieu Club

Wives and lady guests joined the Richelieu members for a mixed supper meeting last week — an occasion to mark the annual observance of Mother's Day.

Good humor prevailed among the 70-odd in attendance, and a highlight was a talk and demonstration on the Cuisenaire method in mathematics, which has created something of a sensation in primary education this past year or two. The speaker, accompanied by colleagues of his profession, was Brother Yves Laberge, of the St. Viateur Order. On behalf of the audience, he was cordially thanked by Dr. J.-P. Dorion.

President Gaetan Leclair chaired the meeting and told the gathering that the club had voted $100 towards the Lachute Association for Retarded Children. At this meeting a further collection for the same good cause netted $32. A member of the Association's executive, Rev. Sister Damien Bernard, was present and warmly thanked the clubmen and their guests for these generous donations.

Death and injuries on fishing trip

Mella Giuseppi, a 64-year-old Ville St. Michel resident, was instantly killed shortly after 8 a.m. Monday when the car in which he was riding, pictured above, swerved out of control on a hilly curve near 16 Island Lake, and crashed into a large rock. The car was driven by Rossi Giuseppe, 24, a relative of the victim, who was treated in St. Jerome hospital along with two other young passengers, Ralph and Robert Cicarielle. The accident occurred while the group were on their way to a fishing outing, and were only a few hundred yards from their destination. Dr. Rondeau, of Huberdeau, treated the injured victims at the scene and rushed them to hospital. Joint District Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie ordered an inquest. The accident was investigated by Traffic Officers Landry and Jeanrie.

By BOB ATCHISON

The outdoorsmen are finally getting a break with the announcement by Canadian International Paper Company of its opening of new territories for the public. Roads that are suited will be opened for travel. Main access gates are now going to become information centres; they will issue maps and other items of information on the areas. Signs which are already placed will be made more legible, and more of them will be set up for safety of the travellers. Long-range plans call for campsites, then later, for regular camping; these will begin to take effect this spring. Refuse-disposal units and fireplaces will also be established; in this way the company hopes to have travellers stop at regular stopping places rather than anywhere-at-all, leaving all their refuse scattered around and increasing the fire hazards. . . This is a very sound program and should make the public more conscious of their responsibilities in the bush. Of course, this can all be nullified by unthinking persons who abuse the privileges; so for everyone's sake, I hope they use their heads instead of their feet.

A letter from Mrs. Green, who kindly wrote me from Morin Heights, tells of all the birds she looked after this past winter. On one day alone an assortment of 82 chicks, 4 nuthatches, 3 jays and a woodpecker visited her feeders; this to me is wonderful, having so many of these little feather-dusters come to visit. You know, maybe this would be a good time to get the old man of the house busy for next year. Forget the fishing for a while (boy, will I be criticized!) . . . As for the cow bird (Mrs. Green not having been able to see the band very closely) I would be unable to tell of anywhere to write with this information. Cow birds are banded by both the Canadian group and the American, also there are a number of bird watching societies which do this. I also understand some of the American Boy Scouts have a do-it-yourself project of this sort, so it's almost impossible to give any specific information.

This little story I have to tell: A well known sportsman of this area was up visiting his country cottage. A drawer in a table seemed to be stuck, so he applied a little pressure to it, and presto the drawer was open. However, the cause of the sticking turned out to be dried grass, all rolled up into a ball. Nope, it wasn't field mice. Poking around to find out what caused this, up pops a squirrel. . . And it would be hard to tell who got the biggest fright, the squirrel or the gent.

A call the other day from a VERY IRATE citizen about stupid youngsters shooting B.B.'s at windows and doors. I find this is a very common practice. So any of you parents whose youngsters own this type of gun — why not give them a kindly talk? Could save you some grief, such as a bill for damages — or worse, a damaged eye.

Fishing has been very fair this past week. I had the opportunity of getting out myself, and although not too lucky, I sure had a great time. Caught one good Red on the fly, and as usual, the Crane did the trick. I tried others, but finally it was the old reliable that produced the goods. A good number have been taken on wobblers and spinners — the spinners used with a large worm hanging on; this is especially good, so early in the season. Trolling has also produced some fish, but not so numerous as last season. However, it still may be too early to expect any really good fishing.

I mentioned the balsa-wood minnow last week. I can now say they are excellent for trolling, having seen them in action, both for realism and for their killing abilities. In one case I know of, the Grey hit the minnow so hard it had all three sets of hooks in its mouth. But I think there is one thing that would improve this — the use of a small spinner ahead of the minnow, for effect. Seeing it just as-is, it's more of a minnow than the real thing; but with the attractors it would show up much better. At least that's my opinion.

A couple of cub bears have been seen very close to town. The mother was not in view, so she probably was watching the tourists, to see that the cubs came to no harm. I also heard of a calf moose being spotted, but could not get too much information on this — which was maybe just as well. After all there are plenty of "sports" around who would take a crack at a moose, be it calf, cow or bull, and the season of protection wouldn't bother them too much.

* * *

Perch are starting to hit in the North River, very well too. Last Wednesday at closing time, we went out after a feed of them — filled our ambition, and had them for supper! I still say they can't be beaten for all-around good taste. There was only one objection, we didn't have enough. . . The first feed of the year, you are good for at least five pounds of fish per person. So I'm a pig, I do agree. Incidentally, I haven't connected with one of those finny logs nearby in the river, but I still have hopes. Maybe I'll fool you one of these days, with a World Record Northern, taken right out of your own North River!

* * *

I wonder how many of you spotters have noticed the flocks of hawks jetting down to earth these days. I watched at least 12, of different varieties all doing this power-diving. Just what they were after I couldn't say, but it looked just as though they were putting on a stunt show. This acrobatic display kept up for about half an hour, and never once did we see these birds come close to the ground. Maybe they were just trying to impress each other with their tactics. They certainly impressed me, and maybe a few more who saw this show.

* * *

A word to the early outboard-motorists: How about giving the trollers a break. I heard of one case already, of a line being cut. You know these lines do cost a little, and having them severed by a speed artist is not too funny. I don't think it's a case of carelessness, but rather just an impression they are well above the lines and there's no chance of hitting them. However, some of these troll lines are out a considerable distance and either by chance or intention, riding near the surface. . . A little care on the part of boat enthusiasts could save a lot of grief for trollers this coming summer.

* * *

A word of warning to fishermen, too. How many of you have a first-aid kit in your tackle? Not too many, I'll bet. I saw the results of a triple hook in a fisherman's hand this past week, and it wasn't very pleasant. The hook had to be cut out by the doctor. Naturally, infection was imminent, in the long lapse of time since it penetrated the hand. These kits do not cost too much, and if any need arises, then you have it when required. Another thing to remember, you can't cut a hook out of the flesh or clothing, unless you have a pair of wire-cutting pliers. So get them too, and have them along with you.

Water-ski troupe from Ste. Agathe widens repute

Ste. Agathe des Monts now claims distinction as the home of the Cloutier Brothers, whose water skiing troupe, seen on several occasions in these parts, has won repute in many well known resorts.

Remi and Marc Cloutier, both in the early fifties, learned the rudiments of water skiing on homemade skis. A few years later, Marc had become qualified enough to join the Cypress Gardens Show in Florida. He then became a member of the Esther Williams' Revue touring Europe, and competed in major championships.

On his return to Canada Marc, along with his brother Remi, set out to form a troupe which now bills itself as the Laurentian Water Ski Show. It performs every Sunday during the summer on Lac des Sables at Ste. Agathe. On at least two occasions, under Molson's sponsorship, they have appeared at Lake Louisa.

The show includes expert water skiers, kite flyers, clowns and fancy figure skiing by the Aqua-Belles.

Lady golfers held opening luncheon

The opening luncheon meeting of the Ladies' Branch, Lachute Golf Club, was held on Saturday, May 2, in the main dining room, to mark the official opening of the Lachute golfing season.

The president, Mrs. Richard Stephens, presided over the meeting, and welcomed old and new members to another golfing year.

The attractive table decorations, the menu, and the number of lady members present, reflected meticulous planning by the entertainment committee to make this a truly enjoyable day.

Mrs. Gilbert Ayers, the honorary president, explained in detail the new ruling for the handicap system, by which each member is responsible for her own handicap and score posting.

A set of three woods, which had been donated to the Ladies' Committee last year, was drawn as a door prize by a new member, Mrs. Claire Lalonde.

Water Skiing WITH CLINT WARD

Attaching the Tow-Line To the Boat

There are three good methods of attaching the tow-line to the boat — the tow-bridle, the ski-hitch and the towing pylon.

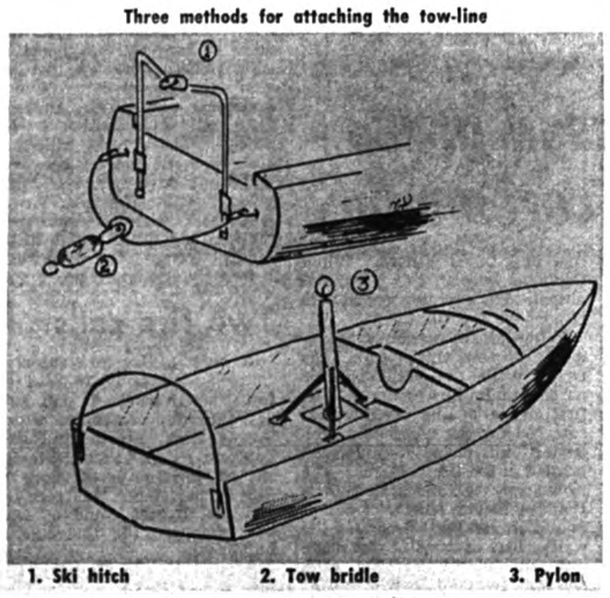

The tow-bridle consists of a length of polyethelene rope attached at each side of the transom. The attaching points should be transom hooks designed specifically for the job. Do not tie the rope onto transom lifting handles, which are often not secured in a strong enough way for pulling skiers. A pulley and float run along the bridle-rope. The ski tow-line is snapped onto the pulley-float assembly. The float is necessary to help keep the bridle rope from the propeller.

A ski-hitch, available at most marine dealers, is a better way to attach the tow-line. The ski-hitch is a strong metal bar assembly that is fixed to the transom at each side of the motor. The two bars of the assembly are bent in at right angles over the top of the engine. At their joining point there is a hook to which the tow-line is attached. The ski-hitch is designed and attached in such a way that it will pivot forward into the boat so that the engine can be raised. The use of a hitch of this type makes it easier to change and attach ropes and as the tow-point is above the engine the chance of foiling the propeller is greatly reduced.

By far the best method of attaching the tow-line is on a pylon. This type of attachment point is only practical where the boat is used almost exclusively for water skiing.

Pylons are not available through marine dealers and must be designed and built on a custom basis. All that is needed is a little ingenuity and some parts that can be obtained at the local plumbers. The post or pylon should be made of 2 inch pipe with a hook welded on top. It must be adequately braced and solidly secured to the floor or keel of the boat. The pylon should be placed forward of the motor. The best place is at the mid-point of the wetted surface of the hull when the boat is at skiing speed. The heavier the boat is the farther forward this point will be. If your boat is outboard powered then you must install a guard bar at the transom. This can be constructed of ½ rod or larger. It should be bent so that it runs from one side of the transom up and over the engine to the other side of the transom. It must be high enough so that the engines can be tilted up, under the bar. The guard bar is to prevent the tow-rope from catching on engine parts such as gear shifts, throttle controls, etc.

Three methods for attaching the tow-line

1. Ski hitch 2. Tow bridle 3. Pylon

If the pylon is properly constructed and placed the pull of the skier will be felt less on the boat. This is because the skier is no longer pulling at the end of a pivoting arm but right at the fulcrum or balance point. Rope handling is a snap with a pylon for it is done right in the boat and not while leaning over the transom or the engine well.

One word of warning. The pylon or hitch only works well with boats of a hard chine design. Round bottom boats will tend to roll if the skier is pulling from a high point.

1964 Lawn-Boy grasscatcher ends raking spring, summer and fall

In the spring Lawn-Boy's grasscatcher lets you tidy up the lawn without tedious raking. In the fall it collects leaves. In the summer, of course, it gathers grass so efficiently the neighbours will think you spent hours raking. The grasscatcher is no trouble to use because it comes on and off in seconds and empties in a shake or two. Even wet grass and leaves can't clog it.

Lawn-Boy's Finger-Tip-Start engine is the easiest to start in the world. Pushing is easy because Lawn-Boy is made from ultra-light magnesium. And, to be easy on the ears, Lawn-Boy is extra quiet. Its muffler is the largest on any mower.

See the 1964 Lawn-Boy at your dealer's soon. It's warranted for two full years—twice as long as any other mower.

500 Enthusiasts enter big spring fish derby

The announcement of a "giant" fishing derby for last week-end — the first public holiday week-end of springtime — proved no exaggeration of terms. Around 500 enthusiasts took part in the two-day contest, arranged by the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association. They came from far and near, despite the unfavorable forecast and rain which materialized in the early stages on Saturday. There were 300 participants entered that day, fishing in the rain and apparently enjoying it. The fishing limits, from up the North River to the Carillon Dam area on the Ottawa, and Lake of Two Mountains at La Baie, produced a wide variety of catches, both in game fish and less desirable species.

The list of prize winners shows Kenneth Graham, of Lachute, excelling all others with a 9 lb. 1 oz. Northern pike. (The full list of 24 winners is included with this report.)

On Sunday, with a high record of entries, the fishermen were turning-in their catches and officials were busy checking and registering at the headquarters set up on J. J. Dupré's grounds, between Carillon Hill and the river. The bass season is not yet open, so this limited the species of fish eligible.

The prize distribution took place Sunday evening in the station yard at Lachute. There were 50-odd attendance prizes, including a NuCraft boat donated by the manufacturers at St. Hermas; this was won by Edgar Lalonde, of Carillon. Many merchants gave contributions; to these, and to Messrs. Leonard Bedard and Guy Besner, of the Molson agency here, and Messrs. Lionel Boyer and Germain Sèvre, of the Molson Fishing Club, the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association expresses warm appreciation for their support.

Following is a tabulation of the winners and their respective catches:

16th — Evans Jelly, Montreal — mariannes, 16 ozs.
17th — Mrs. Esmond MacAdam, Lachute — white fish, 10 ozs.

Real Lemay, of St. Andrews, was the winner of the Molson Fishing Club prize for the largest haul, with a total of 195 fish.

Prize winners at fish derby

Edgar Lalonde, co-proprietor of the Carillon ferry, held the lucky entry ticket at the fishing derby, and was winner of a Nu-Craft boat, manufactured at St. Hermas, Que. Above are Denis St. Jacques, secretary of the Association; Mr. Lalonde, the winner; and Sylvio Lafond, donor of the prize.

Brief for new Highway 8 draws comparisons of usage

The brief submitted recently to the Minister of Highways by the Hull Junior Chamber of Commerce puts a strong case for a new Route 8 from that city to Montreal — claiming, with substantiating figures, that the present highway is a deterrent to the progress of this area, and diverts business and public favor to the Ontario side. Backed by a representation from the Junior Chambers of Gatineau, Gatineau Point, Aylmer and Templeton — and endorsed by municipalities along the route — the spokesmen presented the Hon. Bernard Pinard, minister of the department, with a strong plea for a new highway at least comparable with Ontario Route 17 on the south shore of the Ottawa.

Comparisons

Population of the area in 1945 was 173,000, according to figures presented in the brief. By 1963 it had reached 250,000, despite various factors retarding its progress. At its present rate of growth the population in 1980 will be 340,000; this is a Bureau of Statistics forecast.

In 1945 the so-called North Shore counties had a registration of 14,082 motor vehicles. In 1963 the registration was 65,000; and the estimate by 1980 is 150,000.

The shortcomings of the present traffic artery have retarded the growth of Papineau and Argenteuil counties. . . Papineau (federal) 1901, population 25,726; 1961, 32,971 — growth 6,971. . . Argenteuil growth, 15,423 in the same 60-year period.

Lack of communication facilities, moreover, has forced Gatineau, Hull and Labelle counties to use the Ottawa area, thus favoring the Ontario side with greater business volume.

Distances

The brief draws comparisons in distances:

Ontario-Quebec Route 17 from Hull to Montreal, is 119 miles.

Quebec Route 8 via Lachute and St. Eustache, is 109 miles.

Quebec Route 8 to Lachute, then via Route 41 and the Autoroute, is 112 miles.

If the best highway from Montreal to Ottawa were on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River, it is argued that motorists, truckers and bus-lines would logically use that route in preference to another.

Horse and Buggy Highway

The brief asserts that the present Route 8 is outdated, a rural road laid over 50 years ago when horse-drawn traffic was pre-eminent. Over the years its improvement has been by patchwork, without co-ordinated plan or study of its usage. Besides being inadequate, it is dangerous and fatal accidents are frequent.

Conclusion

The brief draws the following conclusion, translated in broad terms: "As for the procedure of re-building this highway, we do not presume to dictate to the experts. . . If they believe that the government should establish a creditable parkland with historic sites, recreation areas, camping grounds, bird sanctuaries, etc., from Carillon to Hull, like the national parks of the St. Lawrence in Ontario (example, Upper Canada Village) and leave the present Route 8, properly improved, for tourists — with provision to establish a completely new highway for Montreal-to-Hull traffic — then we approve wholeheartedly. The one essential we stress, is that the new Route 8 shall compare with Ontario Route 17, in a bid to draw traffic from Ontario to Quebec, and to ensure safe and convenient transit. . ."

Find body of missing 'doctor' in field near H'ksby

Hawkesbury — The body of André Couture, sought on a charge of impersonating a doctor, was found in a field not far from Hawkesbury last Sunday.

Couture worked at a Burlington, Ont., hospital for almost two years, posing as Dr. André Couture. He was exposed after an investigation, but disappeared about the same time.

Couture left Burlington for Hawkesbury on Saturday, May 9, promising to return to clear himself, but had not been seen since.

He was charged with impersonating his cousin, Dr. André Couture of Chicoutimi, the only doctor of that name listed in the Canadian Medical Directory.

Couture was hired by Brant Hospital at Burlington, near Hamilton after he produced a photostatic copy of credentials from Laval University. His brother, Paul Couture said the man's real name is Adrien. Paul Couture said his brother went to Burlington in poor circumstances, worked as a floor cleaner, then as an ambulance assistant in nearby Oakville; then one day turned up and said he was a doctor.

In Oakville, Dr. Campbell MacArthur, chief of the medical staff at the Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial Hospital, said the man had inquired about joining the medical staff there, but was turned down. Couture's credentials were investigated after his associates complained about his work.

Meanwhile, a car belonging to Couture was found abandoned in a creek beside the Trans-Canada Highway near Hawkesbury. Police said the 1964-model car was found in five feet of water in the Little Rideau Creek, about five miles east of Hawkesbury.

Barkmere citizen laid to rest at Arundel

The late Rosario Miller

Arundel — The funeral of the late Mr. Rosario Miller was held in the Arundel United Church on Monday afternoon, the Rev. H. Thompson, of Lachute United Church, conducting the service, assisted by Mr. J. MacDonald, of Arundel United Church.

A choir was in attendance, and two favorite hymns were sung, "Unto the Hills" and "The Lord Is My Shepherd". During the service, a duet was sung by Mrs. Stuart Cooke and Mrs. Walter McMahon, "When the Day of Toil is Done". Mrs. Leslie Cooke played the organ.

The late Mr. Miller was a well known figure hereabouts, having been born at Barkmere, where he lived all his life. He always took a deep interest and an active part in the life of the community, and his passing will leave a void that will be hard to fill.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, seven sons, Edward, Gordon, Gilbert, Donald, Bruce, Gerald and Keith, of Arundel, and five daughters, Margaret (Mrs. Dollmaire), of Belleville, Ont., Viola (Mrs. David Carnell), of Agincourt, Ont., Carol (Mrs. M. O'Shaughnessy), of Arundel, Iona, of Belleville, Ont., and Delia, of Arundel. He also leaves 16 grandchildren.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. George Jarvis, J. Frendal, H. Swan, D. Henry, R. Flemming and S. McNab. Interment was in Arundel cemetery.

Deepest sympathy of this community is extended to the bereaved family.

A.A.A. would share interests, members invited

At the annual meeting of the Argenteuil Art Association last Saturday, an impression was quoted that this was a "select corporation", for art amateurs or collectors, and that membership is by personal invitation only. . . This is not the case.

The president and directors are anxious to extend the interest shared by Association members, and they take the opportunity to invite all interested residents to participate. Membership is at the nominal rate of $1 a year, and all exhibitions are open to the public without charge for admission. A larger participation will invoke new and wider viewpoints, to improve the program of this Association and to enhance its prestige, which already extends beyond this County.

A report on the annual meeting, in this issue, also lists the names of Regional Representatives. Anyone interested in joining the A.A.A. may contact the representative in their particular district. An interesting series of exhibitions is planned for this season.

H'ksby School band concert successful event

Technically, the concert presented by the Hawkesbury High School Band last Friday, was a tremendous success, but the attendance was disheartening to the performers and their leader, Mr. John Roebuck. This concert was under the auspices of Lachute High School Student Council — and when there are more people on the stage than in the audience, such a venture is discouraging to the sponsors.

This concert was one of inspiration to those fortunate enough to attend. In only two years, Mr. Roebuck has moulded a band of 60-odd young people into an ensemble that can present Bach or pop music in a creditable manner.

Mr. Pierre Berube, English specialist of Hawkesbury High School, was announcer for the evening, and did a very capable job. Highlights of the performance were the Prelude and Fugue in B-flat major by Bach, and the Parade of the Wooden Soldiers by Jessel, the latter giving a good study of dissonate chording with its introduction and finale.

The Valley Choral, a group of interested vocalists under the direction of John Roebuck, gave several selections unaccompanied, providing a pleasing contrast to the band music.

"My Fair Lady" and "The King and I" selections were also worthy of note, and the program was one of good audience appeal and variety. The S'cool Cats, a quintet composed of members of the band and Mr. Roebuck, was featured in several modern compositions — and they were "hot".

Mr. Robert Bailly, assistant principal of Lachute High School, expressed the pleasure of those present, and commended Mr. Roebuck on the fine accomplishment of his band.

Dist. convention of Witnesses this week-end

Mr. Bryce Millar, presiding minister for Jehovah's Witnesses of Lachute, announces the semi-annual French convention for this district to be held at Hull, Que., on May 22, 23 and 24. . .

During these three days, delegates from Lachute, St. Jerome, Buckingham, Hull, Terrebonne, St. Eustache and Montreal North will meet together to increase their Christian activity. Jehovah's Witnesses invite all persons of different beliefs, who have an interest in Bible study, to attend also. The Watch Tower Society has reserved the Protestant School, 2 Millar Street, for this convention.

A film will be shown on Saturday night, May 23, entitled "Proclaiming the 'Everlasting Good News' Around the World". The purpose of this film is to give an answer to the problems existing in our modern society, filled with anxiety for the future.

"The convention theme will be 'Around the World with Jehovah's Witnesses'. There will be Bible discourses and practical demonstrations on the manner in which the Witnesses teach the Bible throughout the world. . . The highlight of the convention," said Mr. Millar, "will be the public discourse given May 24 at 3 p.m. by Mr. Laurier Saumur, provincial director. The subject to be discussed is 'Facing up to the urgency of our times'.". . All are cordially invited.

Centre d'Art seen deserving of civic grant

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

— St. Andrews East
May 18, 1964

Dear Sir:

It was with great regret that I read in The Watchman, that the committee on grants and donations had decided to discontinue their grant to the Centre d'Art.

At a time when so much stress is being put upon culture, it seems unfortunate that support should be lacking, for an endeavor that has done so much to foster an interest in the Arts.

We are proud of our Centre, especially as it was one of the pioneers in its field. It would be a great pity if, after having achieved so much for the community, it should be forced to move elsewhere. Let us hope that this will not happen.

(Signed)
(Mrs. E. L.) J. W. Jackson

APPRECIATION

I wish to thank the many friends who so thoughtfully sent me gifts, cards and letters during my stay in hospital; also, sincere thanks to the 3rd floor nurses of the Smith Clinic, Hawkesbury, for their many acts of kindness.

Settler group asks consideration of Agriculture Dept.

The Federation of Quebec Protestant Colonization and Settlement Societies, completing its first year of existence, held its annual meeting in Montreal recently.

The purpose of the meeting was the election of officers and discussion of a brief to be submitted to the Quebec Committee on the Constitution.

The aim of the society is the assistance of Protestant setflers in the province, particularly in rural areas.

The brief, which asks "more harmonious relations between the French Roman Catholic and the Protestant" suggests "better communication is the key to harmony."

The federation asks English-speaking Protestants in Quebec to make an effort to speak French, but hopes more recognition will be forthcoming from Quebec City for the 68,800 rural Protestants. In particular the brief requests "that a minimum of 20 per cent of the professional provincial agricultural staff meeting the public should be English-speaking Protestants."

Re-elected to the executive were: T. G. Sevigny of Montreal, president; and E. J. Struthers of Stanstead, vice-president. R. Hodge of Cookshire became secretary-treasurer. . . The directors include Edgar Boyd, of Arundel, Que.

BELL LINES

by JIM MENZIES

NOT VISIBLE

I suppose it may seem strange bringing up icebergs in May, but it suddenly occurred to me that they have something in common with telephone business! — Just like the greater part of an iceberg, the greater bulk of technological advances in telephone service is not visible to the average person. If asked, I suspect most telephone users would say that 'phone styles have changed over the years, and that transmission has improved markedly, but that in general telephone service serves the same single function today as it did fifty years ago. Not so! For example, telephone lines today carry computer "talk" as well as people's conversations, and carry charts, diagrams, drawings, musical scales and even handwriting as it is being written! Again, telephone lines are used to regulate traffic lights from remote control positions, or to regulate the flow of oil or natural gas in pipelines spanning the continent. But, as I say, many of these aspects are not apparent to the average customer.

• • •

CUSTOM MADE

I'd like to bring your attention again to the special telephone handsets that we provide for customers with speech or hearing difficulties. The "handset for confidential conversations" is not only meant for people who wish to speak softly for privacy, but for those who, perhaps as the result of an operation, cannot speak as loudly as they wish. (And for laryngectomies, of course, there is the artificial larynx). The handset for impaired hearing contains a rotary switch that raises the caller's voice-level to desired strength. If either of these handsets, or the artificial larynx, could possibly make your life a little pleasanter, please don't hesitate to call our Business Office and inquire about them.

• • •

On impulse, the man had written to an old friend with whom he had been out of touch for many years. When the out-of-town friend received the letter, he made a Long Distance call to our impulsive pal. "Your letter really surprised me after such a long time," he said, "And what's more . . . today is my birthday so I thought I'd give myself a birthday present and call you!"

How Do You View the Bible?
Few people believe the Bible actually came down directly frome heaven. Most will readily agree that it was written by men. Yet, if so, some wonder, how can it be inspired of God and absolutely reliable? Jesus believed that it was. He said to his Father: "Your word is truth." And Paul, the apostle of Jesus, said: "All Scripture is inspired of God and beneficial."
How did God inspire men to write? How has the Bible come down to us over so many centuries without losing its textual integrity? And how is the Bible beneficial to us today in this modern space age? You need

Community Concerts – 17th season

THERE IS NOTHING like the finest music to stimulate a desire for more music. Other musical activities in the community, such as church and school choirs, bands, barbershopping and ballet, all benefit directly or indirectly by the Community Concert Association.

The Association makes itself felt in many ways. Music in general is an intangible, that has general public approval; Community Concerts provides a definite program in which those interested can do something tangible about it. The success of a concert series engenders more interest in things musical throughout the whole community. In many places, Community Concerts has made music a living thing, rather than a treasure to be kept under glass in a museum. For in this venture everyone participates and enjoys the benefits, not just a select few.

Community Concerts provides a plan that is the result of 30 years of experiment and development. This is the foundation upon which a successful concert association is based. The plan starts with the local organization, which promotes a membership campaign and arranges the selection and presentation of the concerts. The parent organization provides professional assistance in which all local groups may have complete confidence. It makes available to the Association a comprehensive roster of the world's artists, orchestras and ensembles. This is only possible in a large organization that can arrange for these world-famous attractions to tour the whole country economically. Community Concerts also guarantees the appearance of all artists when it is humanly possible.

Thus, from the original organization to the final concert, Community Concerts for such communities as Lachute provides the most efficient service to music lovers that a quarter-century of experience has been able to develop.

There is increasing interest and a growing enrolment in Lachute, where the membership campaign for next season is now in progress. The campaign workers look for a ready response from renewing subscribers, and invite all newcomers to share the enjoyment.

Speaking of mobility

IN SMALLER centres of population where local government, social effort and cultural growth seem so closely linked with permanent residence . . . in such places as Lachute and Brownsburg, let us say . . . the mobility of humankind comes in for occasional criticism. A banker is moved, either east or west; a company executive is transferred; a teacher, a salesman, a professional, seeks a more lucrative field. And while regretting this transition, it is perhaps natural — if illogical — to deplore the system which creates these changes.

Let us note right here, that the two communities we speak of have benefitted immeasurably from the zeal, initiative and vision of newcomers — citizens who may go, today or tomorrow, just as fortuitously as they came. And this in no way disparages the core of old dependables, the native townsmen and women who see things through, until succeeded by sons and daughters who may remain in the community corral.

It is wise to keep a broader vision of our economic progress, and in support of this we quote (from the Fort Erie Letter-Review) a paragraph which prompted these thoughts on the local scene:

Mobility of workers has always been important. Being tied to a community is understandable but the world's work is done by people who move about for a reason. Perhaps the best reason for a person moving from his home community is that he can do better by himself and his family elsewhere. The Wall Street Journal reports that quite a number of coal miners from the Appalachian region have moved to Butte, Montana, to take jobs in the Anaconda Company's copper mines. One coal miner is reported to have moved after reaching almost the bottom in the economic scale, the place where he could not buy clothing for himself, his wife and three children. Within a short time of his getting to Butte, he was able to provide for his family and the family is again reunited. The world of discovery could not have been created by people who stayed at home.

The family is fundamental

THE CRISIS of our time is not so much a crisis in intergovernmental relations involving destruction by hydrogen bombs, as it is a crisis in human relations involving disintegration in men's minds — says the Monthly Letter of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Society is assailed by all sorts of ideological propaganda, and seems to have lost its grip on the fundamentals of human life. In the same way, the bases of Roman imperial society had crumbled for half a century before those living under it realized the fact.

Today's young people have lived their lives from infancy in a world of turmoil. Uncertainties crowd upon them; they see adults everywhere bent upon violence and destruction.

This is not the first such period. People who lived in the time of King Arthur expected the world to end in the year one thousand, and the reaction following its reprieve led to a burst of lawlessness and brutality which sickened Europe for centuries. Today's reprieve from the nuclear war which seemed so imminent a few years ago, is being followed by a similar reaction.

What we call civilization has moved so fast that the structure and instincts of man have not kept up. As well as the ideological battles raging in the political world men and women and boys and girls must still face the profoundly individual issues of life and the vital inter-personal relations of parent and child.

The most intelligent people are at a loss about what to think regarding the many questions hammering at us, and the time has come to look at the needs of parents and children steadily, clearly, and without pink glasses.

That is why Their Excellencies, the Governor General and Madame Vanier, convened the Canadian Conference on the Family.

The family is the single most important influence upon the life and future of the child. It is required to fulfil the definition given by St. Augustine; a group of people united by agreement as to the things they love. In such a society children learn that certain things are right and others are wrong, they grow from stage to stage of confidence, skill, affection, understanding and responsibility. They build character.

Hearing and driving

AUDIO-VISUAL tests are strongly recommended for car and truck drivers by the Province of Quebec Safety League. For the first time in this province, hearing tests with the most modern scientific equipment are now offered by the League. The good hearing test is essential:

1. For the perception of sounds of other vehicles.

2. For knowledge of the environment (loss of hearing is often the cause of a driver venturing on to a level crossing at the very moment a locomotive is approaching).

3. For awareness of any change in engine performance, and other noises.

4. In alerting the driver to danger he does not see, thus preventing him from acting abruptly (changing direction, braking, cutting in, etc.) without previous warning.

5. Because lack of hearing results in excessive reaction time, which may result in an accident.

In addition to the hearing test, vision and reaction tests are provided as part of the Safety League's service to train drivers. These tests can be a valuable aid in reducing the accident frequency.

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 17, 1889 —

Insolvent. — In the matter of George Bishop, printer, Lachute, P.Q., the above-named has made an assignment of his estate and effects. (Advt.)

The Stratford (Ont.) city clerk states that not more than one-half of the births, deaths and marriages are registered. — This is probably true of more places than the Classic City.

Dresses of pale green crepe-de-chine are now fashionable with black gloves and ribbons.

Brownsburg — Mrs. McGibbon, relict of the late Alex McGibbon, passed quietly to the home of the immortal, being nearly three weeks confined with a shock of paralysis. She was carefully attended by the physician until death claimed its own. Born in Lachute, 1819, she was a daughter of the late Major George Brown.

It is reported that a company is being organized in Ottawa for the delivery of city letters at a cent apiece in competition with the postal service, which, under the new regulations, charges two cents.

Grenville — The canal boats kept the lockmen up all night, busy continuously for 14 hours. The boats were all on their way upstream.

Wm. Tell's boy is remembered in history because he had an arrow escape.

50 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 8, 1914 —

At town council it was decided to purchase a complete set of road-making machinery from General Car & Machinery works at Montmagny, Que., for $6,500, with one pitless scale of 10,000 lbs. included gratuitously.

Dalesville — The Rev. A. E. White has accepted a call to Quebec; he will be succeeded here by the Rev. W. G. White.

Mr. Dave Campbell, of Montreal, was home for the week-end.

Brownsburg — In the D.C. Gun Club, the club spoon for gentlemen was hotly contested, the ultimate winner being F. Kettyle. The club lately started a ladies' section.

While out riding in his motor Dr. Alexander met with an accident. With Mrs. Alexander and Miss Evans he was proceeding in the neighborhood of the Shuttle Factory when the car swerved and tipped over in the ditch.

Cushing — Mr. E. F. Cooke, now of Dewar Lake, Sask., has sold his farm here to Mr. E. Whelehan.

Cushing — Mr. James K. Fraser, who is taking a course at Dalhousie College, Halifax, has taken a charge for the summer at Sheet Harbour, N.S. James is the only son of the Rev. and Mrs. Fraser of St. Mungo's.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, May 11, 1939 —

St. Andrews — A store property belonging to Mrs. C. W. Lamb, housing the J. Crevier general store and St. Andrews community library, was completely gutted by fire.

Tree climbing, peddling, and the use of car horns and sirens, will be prohibited in Quebec City during the coming visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The car of Alex Barker, Lachute Mills, was completely burned when it left the road and a stone tore a hole in the gasoline tank. Mr. Barker was driving home from his work at Brownsburg.

The fire chief at Arnprior is urging adoption of a by-law to make chimney fires punishable by a fine.

R. A. Giles was elected president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers, at their annual convention held at the Seigniory Club.

SUGAR AND SPICE

In Our Dreams

By BILL SMILEY

Bill Smiley

Do you indulge occasionally in the dream of coming into a lot of money? Most people do. It's something like taking dope: you're high, wide and dreamy while you're at it, but the let-down is jolting.

The bored housewife, for example, crouched over her ironing board, envisions herself in bikini suit on a deck chair on a yacht in the Mediterranean, sipping a long, cold drink. Tanned and handsome, Count Serge Popoff takes her hand and, devouring her with his eyes, leans forward to kiss it.

Just as she is thrilling right up to the shoulder from the cool, firm imprint of the count's lips on her mitt, she looks down and discovers that the cool, firm lips have suddenly become the cold, runny nose of her daughter, who is wiping it on the back of mummy's hand.

Maybe the factory hand, busy all day putting square pegs in round holes, begins toying with what he'll be doing if his sweepstake ticket comes through. In his mind's eye, he is lolling on his balcony in Acapulco's poshest hotel, overlooking the swimming-pool, while a beautiful Spanish job with a rose in her hair whispers gentle stuff in his ear.

It's a dangerous shock to his system when he suddenly realizes that the face so near his own is not the Spanish lovely, but the straw boss, and the tender murmurs have become a moose-like bellow that wants to know "what the helleryou gawping at?"

Even the Canadian farmer, a solid fellow most of the time, has his weak moments. Like when he starts dreaming that he had a thousand head of cattle, instead of twenty, and he sold them at forty cents a pound, instead of eighteen. Clear as crystal, he can see himself and Maw heading down the highway for a long holiday in the new Cadillac.

It does him no good at all to wake up and find that the Cadillac has been transformed into a tractor, and he's heading straight for the stone fence.

For years, I've had these dreams: riding in a ricksha in Rangoon, tossing silver dollars to the natives; dropping in on Princess Margaret and Tony for a cocktail; flying to Rio for carnival time. But lately, they have solidified into one recurrent dream which is more like an obsession. It comes almost nightly at this time of year.

In the dream, my wife says, "When are you going to get those storm windows off, have you any intention of cutting the lawn this year, what do you intend to do about that fence?"

I just tell her to shut up. This is how I know it's a dream. Then I reach out nonchalantly, push the bell-button beside my chair. A man appears and asks respectfully, "Yes, sir?"

I tell him, "John, get those storm windows off. And I don't mean tomorrow. The grass needs cutting, and do something about propping up the fence. Now, get cracking."

He says, "Right away, sir." I lean back, light a dollar cigar, and splash a little more soda into my brandy. That's the dream, in essence. There are variations on it, depending on seasons. Sometimes I tell John to shovel the walk, and I splash a little more brandy into my soda, but it's the same dream.

You can have your yachts, your Acapulco balconies, and your Cadillacs. Just give me John.

THIS WEEK & NEXT

Export and Live!

By RAY ARGYLE

The next 18 months will be decisive ones for Canada's foreign trade picture, and thus decisive for the prosperity of Canadians generally. This is the real meaning of the trade conference at Geneva which began last week.

RAY ARGYLE

Trade negotiators of 70 countries, met at Geneva to open the "Kennedy Round" of tariff talks aimed at cutting tariff rates by as much as 50 per cent.

The meetings, held under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, better known as GATT, were dubbed the Kennedy Round because it was President Kennedy who pushed through the Congress the most liberal trade act in its history, authorizing the U.S. to cut tariffs by up to 50 per cent.

The talks themselves got off to a slow start, but it was almost immediately recognized that certain countries — Canada included — could not afford to plunge immediately into a program that would bring down tariff walls by one-half in the five years after 1966.

Canada's case, as presented by Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, was that while Canada is anxious to move toward freer international trade, it would lose more than it would gain on the 50 per cent. cut rule. This is because only 20 per cent. of our exports are in manufactured goods, while two-thirds of our imports are in this category.

A major disappointment from Canada's point of view was that no agreement was reached to cut agricultural tariffs. There was only an understanding that the GATT nations should start talking about this soon.

Major reason for the hangback in this area was the determination of the Common Market countries of Europe to protect their high-cost farm operators — especially in France. It is Common Market policy to impose levies which bring up imported grain prices to the level of Europe's.

It is unlikely there will be a sharp attack on the agricultural deadlock until after the fall elections in Britain and the U.S.

No country in the world has more to gain from freer trade than Canada. Exports account for 20 per cent. of Canada's national product, compared with only five per cent. in the case of the U.S.

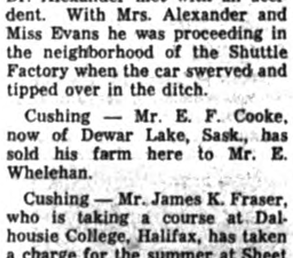

Canada's general trade picture was greatly improved in 1963, thanks to large-scale grain exports. Exports worth $9.2 billion came very close to catching up to the year's import figure of $9.7 billion.

World markets are Canada's only hope of maintaining high employment. The productivity of our farms and industries far exceeds the ability of our small population to consume our output.

We need greater exports to overcome the disadvantage of a small domestic market. Our technical skills compare with the world's best, and production costs have risen much less in Canada in the past decade than in Europe and Asia.

But tariff reductions encourage imports as well as exports, providing a secondary benefit to Canadian consumers. Lower prices on imported goods would ensure that no Canadian manufacturer would any longer be able to pawn off shoddy goods at high prices, protected by high tariff walls.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

If you don't happen to live in Pontiac County, take a drive up there some time. It is a beautiful trip and a most interesting corner of Quebec's agricultural area.

Geographically, the area around Shawville is an isolated "island" of good farm land. It is bounded by the Ottawa River on the south and west, and by a horseshoe of the Laurentians on the other sides.

I suppose at one time it was part of the bed of the giant river which flowed off the face of the glaciers 10,000 years ago. By comparison, the present Ottawa River is a mere trickle.

At one time, we are told, this whole area was under a mass of ice. As the glaciers retreated north, a lake was trapped in between the hills; fine material settled to the bottom to form the clay fields we see today.

Then, as the glaciers retreated still farther north, the lower St. Lawrence Valley became unplugged; the great lake covering the Ottawa Valley, eastern Ontario and southern Quebec drained away.

But the waters from the melting glaciers still came rushing down the Ottawa Valley, filling a channel several miles wide. It carved great gullies in the old lake bottom, and threw up sand banks you can still see.

As you drive up Route 8 from Aylmer, it is easy to let your imagination picture these massive forces of nature at work really only a few centuries ago. The old river bank is easy to see; the road just about follows it. Sometimes, it runs along the river bottom, sometimes it climbs up on top of the sandy shores.

In places, the Laurentians, several hundred feet high, squeeze the road close to the river. Then quite suddenly, they relax their grip and an area of good agricultural land opens out.

In places, it is quite flat. In others, the rushing waters have molded the clay into rolling, fertile fields where alfalfa is already knee-deep. Farther back are the sandy shore lines which have attracted tobacco growers to the area.

It was my first real visit to the area. I found a spirit of enthusiasm and optimism everywhere. Perhaps it was the remarkably fine weather; perhaps it was because the seeding was all but finished.

But it must be more than that; the evidence is everywhere. Tall, concrete-slab silos with their aluminum roofs dominate the landscape. Several new barns have been built. Bulk milk tanks are going in.

J. Arthur Kilgour's are building their new milk house; they are looking forward to retiring the old pick-up truck and its load of eight-gallon cans.

Kenneth says their new four-row corn planter should arrive any day. It will be available for custom work; three dollars an acre. Already, over 100 acres are booked.

It seems to me this is the most practical way to handle farm machinery. The charges, however, must be enough to cover all the costs.

Denzil Brownlee has bought a 150-acre farm. He found the 60 acres at home hardly enough to carry their 80 head of Jerseys. The whole family have worked together to build a very attractive enterprise.

Hillis Connelly and his father must have some of the oldest tile drains in the country. They went in 40 years ago — four feet deep and by hand — and those tiles are still working.

Walker Kilgour, along with several other enterprises, is planning for ten acres of potatoes again this year. He finds a ready market locally, and can't fill the orders.

The 4-H Club has 70 or so members again this year. This is the club that did so well at Sherbrooke Winter Fair. They say they will be back again this year to challenge the best from the rest of the province.

There are many more items I could tell you. Altogether, it was a very encouraging visit, and I am looking forward to the next trip.

HOOKS RUGS

Pictou Island, N.S. (CP) — Rug-hooking is one of the oldtime household arts that survives in parts of rural Nova Scotia. Mrs. Eddie Glover, a local resident, hooked 16 mats during the winter.

Changes coming in judging of beef cattle

Some significant changes in the judging of beef cattle will be tried out at certain agricultural fairs and exhibitions this year, according to the Hon. Harry W. Hays, Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Hays stated that if exhibitions are to be of the best possible service to agriculture, it is important that the classes and prize lists in livestock and other classes be related closely to utility values and encourage widespread participation by breeders. For a start with beef cattle, the classes for Herefords will be revised at some of the larger fairs in Western Canada this year.

There will be only seven classes instead of the usual 15 or 20. Prize money will be larger to make it more worthwhile for breeders to participate. One of the classes will be a steer class featuring the judging of steers on both a live and carcass basis. Steers will be judged first on the hoof and then on cutability, receiving 50% of final placing value from each basis.

The Red River Exhibition in Winnipeg is the first to announce the inclusion of the proposed changes in its fair this year. Judging of the Hereford steer class at the Red River Exhibition will be based on 60% live and 40% carcass. The federal government will contribute half the prize money and if the venture proves successful, it will likely be extended to other breeds in the future.

Scholarships to Japan

Two Canadian graduate students have been awarded Japanese government research scholarships for studies in Japan. The two-year scholarships pay tuition expenses at a Japanese university, travel costs to and from Japan, and a monthly living allowance.

The recipients of the scholarships are:

Robert Allan Stewart, a graduate of the University of New Brunswick, who also holds a Master of Science degree from that university. He will do research studies in Japan on nuclear magnetic resonance.

Richard T. Kazuta, a graduate of the University of British Columbia in Commerce and Business Administration, who will do research studies on Japanese business and taxation laws.

Annual report gives activities of Tourist Bureau

Quebec — Activities of the Tourist Bureau for the fiscal year 1962-63 were the object of a report tabled in the Legislative Assembly and circulated to various organizations engaged in promoting the tourist industry.

During the year under review, the Tourist Bureau was awarded four trophies or plaques for the most remarkable national advertisement appearing in Canada, for the most attractive exhibit at a large American travel show, for the best travel film produced in Canada, and the most striking publicity posters submitted in a contest held by the Publicité-Club of Montreal.

The summary of the work which formerly came under the old Tourist Bureau will henceforth be incorporated in the section devoted to the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game. The Tourist Bureau, which formerly came under the Department of the Provincial Secretary, no longer exists since the setting up of the new Department of Tourism, Fish and Game, the services which made it up having been grouped with those of hostelry and handicrafts to form a Tourist Branch, now responsible for carrying out the work in these various fields.

Local IAC branch receives award for safe driving

For the third consecutive year staff members of the Lachute branch of Industrial Acceptance Corporation Limited have been awarded the company's Merit Safe Driving Award. The award is presented in recognition of the accident-free record established by staff members during the past year while driving company cars. Presentation of the award was made to IAC Branch Manager R. Desormeaux.

IAC Merit Safe Driving Awards were first presented in 1956 as part of a program to promote good driving practices. Since that time annual mileage has steadily increased, and last year exceeded seven million miles. During this same period, the company cut its accident rate in half; 125 IAC branches received awards this year.

Your child listens to music

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"When music sounds, gone is the earth I know,
And all her lovely things even lovelier grow;"

What happens "when music sounds" in your child's presence? Any kind of music — singing, a band, an orchestra, a piano, or another musical instrument? Does he suddenly pause in whatever he is doing and listen? What expression is there on his face? Does it reflect rapt attention and enjoyment? or a fleeting interest? or is he indifferent?

Some parents make the mistake of judging their child as "not a bit musical." Undoubtedly children inherit various degrees of musical ability. But every normal child has within him the capacity to enjoy music. The little boy's or girl's pleasure in hearing their Mother sing a nursery rhyme or lullaby is quite apparent. Memories of a parent's singing form one of the happiest recollections of many a child's early life.

The radio and the phonograph form a musical background in many homes which can be good, bad or indifferent according to the programs or records which the child hears. Sometimes the plan to have Sunday supper on trays in the living room is followed so that the family can listen to the radio music or to records.

Some families find the "small fry" are especially fond of band music, others of opera or instrumental pieces. Consideration is given to the different tastes of the home circle.

The various phonograph companies are constantly producing excellent musical records, especially for children. Parents should ask for the free descriptive booklets. These include a wide variety of songs and other types of music. Quite a number of these are suitable, not only for marches, but also as an accompaniment for rhythmic movement and dramatic play. If mother shows a little interest and provides a few "props" as a paper hat for the "Little Toy Soldier" or a bouquet for the bride in "The Wedding of the Painted Doll," these can add greatly to the child's fun.

If parents can take a child to hear an afternoon symphony concert, this can be a very enriching experience. In our home city, Winnipeg, the Sunday afternoon "Pop" concerts are appreciated by hundreds of families. Many school children have the opportunity of attending a concert by an orchestra. If your child has these opportunities make the most of them.

Ask the librarian at the public library to show you the section on music for children. There is a wide choice of books on symphonies and other topics.

The number of people who are sufficiently gifted to become outstanding performers in music are comparatively few, but the number who obtain great pleasure from listening are legion. Appreciation of "the organization of sound towards beauty" begins in childhood.

Encourage your child to listen to music by having a regular time for this in your family schedule.

Poison hazard to children in gardening season

Toronto — A warning to parents about the additional home hazards brought on by the gardening season, has been issued by the Health League of Canada.

"To prevent accidental poisoning of children some parents should be reminded that the chemicals they use to spray, dust or paint their rose bushes, shrubs, trees or hedges can be very dangerous to people and special precautions should be taken to keep them away from children," the Health League says.

"Some commercial fertilizers," it notes, "are a pretty color and if left open in garages or basements where youngsters can get into them to make 'pies' or 'castles' the results could be very serious."

"These garden products include warnings about care required in their actual use or handling, but if people are careless about drugs or pills around the house — and there is evidence they are — they need a special reminder about garden supplies. And that includes safe storage of containers of gasoline for lawnmowers."

If poisoning occurs in a home, three steps are essential: (1) administer first aid to the victim; (2) save the container and any of the poisonous substances to identify it; (3) get medical help immediately.

First aid involves getting rid of the poisoning or delaying its absorption. To get rid of the poison induce vomiting, by finger gagging after a generous drink of tepid water. To delay absorption, have the victim drink milk or raw egg. Vomiting should not be induced when volatile oils like gasoline or kerosene are involved, or when corrosives like lye or drain cleaners have been swallowed.

A treat of fresh trout

Now that the sports fishing season is in full swing, anglers are heading for lakes and streams to try their luck. Freshly caught game fish is an epicurean treat, if properly handled and cooked. However, the excellence of the feast is not a matter of chance.

A fish never tastes better than when cooked and served at the water's edge, many sportsmen affirm. Like milk, fish is a highly perishable food product. To have it at its best, it must be kept chilled from the time of catching and not be kept long. Here are a few tips from the Department of Fisheries of Canada on how to preserve the good quality of the catch.

When you hook a fish, kill it immediately and place it in a cool shaded place. Wet moss or a wet gunny sack will help to keep it cool temporarily. Trailing behind a boat is not recommended.

Clean the catch as soon as possible, taking care to cut away the gills, and flush the body cavity with clean, cold water.

Keep your fish cold until cooking time. A refrigerated box or "cooler" is ideal for transporting fish and packing in crushed ice is highly recommended.

When you get the catch home, dress it as desired, wrap or place in a covered container, and store in the refrigerator. Cook and serve at the first opportunity — within 12 hours of catching if possible.

Small trout are a favorite game fish, and here is a recipe which will do full justice to this prize:

His Trout

6 Trout, each about 8 ounces eviscerated weight, 1 cup fat or oil (melted), ¼ cup parsley (chopped), 2 tablespoons ketchup, 2 tablespoons wine vinegar, 2 cloves garlic (finely chopped), 2 teaspoons basil, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Clean, wash and dry trout. When small, these fish are frequently cooked with the heads and tails left on. They tend to be juicier prepared this way. Place fish in a single layer in a shallow dish. Combine remaining ingredients to make a basting sauce. Pour sauce over trout and allow them to marinate for 30 minutes, turning once. Remove trout to a greased broiler pan. Brush well with remaining sauce. Broil about 3 inches from the source of heat for 4 to 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Turn carefully and brush the other side with sauce. Broil 4 to 5 minutes longer or until brown and fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Not so very long ago a typewriter was not a machine, but the girl who ran it. And running it she was taking over a man's job.

From the days of ancient Babylon, when scribes made note of the world's poetry and business because few other people could write, the secretary and clerk was a man. In Rome, Cicero dictated to a male slave who took it all down in shorthand.

It was about the turn of this century before a Boston businessman would complain that he knew "nothing so vexatious as an uneducated, careless or flirty typewriter."

He hired her because she would work for $8 to $10 a week — six days, 45 hours. Want ads at the time were offering male office workers as much as $30.

The head of a business school defended her on the grounds that "she never dallies with tobacco or the serpent lurking in the wine glass. You need never worry that she will lose money playing stud poker or high, low jack."

Aim for Status

To help set recognized qualifications for an executive secretary, the association established, in 1949, the Institute for Certifying Secretaries. The institute administers Certified Professional Secretary examinations.

A secretary with seven years' experience, whether she is an association member or not, may apply to take the exams. If she is accepted she writes two-day, six-part exams covering business administration, business law, secretarial accounting, secretarial procedures, secretarial skills and personal adjustment and human relations. If she passes she may ask the ICS to tell her boss she has qualified as a CPS.

Over 2,700 secretaries have qualified, only 27 of them Canadians.

There are 650 members of the association in Canada. It was started here in 1957. This year its annual meeting was scheduled for St. Catharines, Ont., May 15 to 16.

Seven Women

U.S. census reports for 1870 show only seven female office workers in the whole country. In 1881 the YWCA started the first typing courses for women, and by 1900, 200,000 female office workers were counted. By 1910 women held five out of every six stenographic and typing jobs.

There are now over two million secretaries, stenographers and typists in North America, says the National Secretaries Association (International), 97 per cent of them women. Over half are married and nearly half are over 40. They compare the figures with 1899 when 75 per cent were single and half under 25.

The international association has 550 branches in the U.S., Finland, Puerto Rico, and 14 in Canada.

In the 1920's, the association says, a top private secretary could earn about $40 a week. Now, in the U.S., she can command as much as $10,000 a year. For her, the association says, automation is a blessing. It can take over many of her routine chores to let her concentrate on the administrative part of her job.

Canadians eat beef

Canadians came close to setting a new record for beef consumption last year, according to the Meat Packers Council of Canada. They ate nearly 74 lbs. of beef per capita, and missed by just one pound the all-time high of 75 lbs. set in 1957.

Total red meat consumption including beef, pork, veal, lamb, variety meats, and canned meats amounted to 143 lbs. per person in 1963. This was more than 5 lbs. above the previous year, quite a significant increase when competition for the housewife's food dollar is becoming greater all the time.

Raise funds to promote hospital improvements

The administrative board of the Argenteuil Hospital requested a group of interested ladies, including wives of the directors, to organize an auxiliary to serve the interests of the hospital and its patients. That was a year or so ago.

Today this group is keenly active, having promoted various features to raise funds, including drawings, a sale of home-cooking, and other projects.

One of their more recent undertakings is a "Gift Corner", which greets the eye as one enters the hospital. Here, one of the auxiliary members presides at the counter, showcase and racks, displaying cheerful and serviceable items for sale — such comforts for patients as may be conveniently purchased by relatives and visiting friends.

Through the proceeds of these efforts the auxiliary has invested in items of equipment, accessories for pediatric and other departments, to add that extra touch of comfort and pleasure for hospital habitués.

The auxiliary has a committee which provides layettes for needy mothers, and another committee which undertakes to decorate the institution for special calendar occasions. . . Shown here is a picture of the "Gift Corner".

Council studies work contract with employees

Members of the Town Council gave study to demands of the corporation employees for a work contract, as presented by their syndicate (District 50, United Mine Workers of America) newly authorized by the Quebec Labor Relations Board. Included in this contract are manual workers only; the foreman and his assistant are excluded.

Principal details specified by the employee group are as follows:

Work week of 45 hours, nine hours a day, five days a week. The municipality to guarantee 45 hours of work, or failing this, the equivalent in pay.

Time and a half payment for hours exceeding the above. Double for time exceeding 12 consecutive hours, and double for work on Sundays.

Payment for nine hours on eight statutory holidays during the year, or triple-time pay for hours of work necessary on such holidays. Three days off with pay for death of a close relative, or one day for death of a relative by marriage.

One week's vacation after six months' employment; two weeks after one year; three weeks after ten years; four weeks after 20 years. Pay for vacations in advance.

General increase of 30 cents an hour for first year of contract, plus 20 cents an hour for second year. In addition, filtration plant employees to receive 10 percent salary bonus on evening shift, and 15 percent on night shift. These employees to receive also 15 cents additional per hour for Sunday work, and a salary scale to be set up for this department.

Collection of union dues to be made by the municipality, as employer. A labor relations committee formed, and procedure agreed upon to arbitrate differences between employer and employees.

Entries affirm repute of Fair as an outstanding horse show

Keen enthusiasm is building up for the Lachute Spring Fair. Entries are coming in for the various classes, and there are more new exhibitors this year than ever before — according to Secretary-Manager Ken Riley. The cattle entries are good and an interesting show is in the making.

Any thoughts that draft horses are a "thing of the past", are dispelled by the greatest entry of heavy horses this fair has ever seen. At the time of this writing, there are eight 4-horse teams entered and eight 6-horse outfits in the show, with a strong possibility of a ninth entry to come. Both the Light Draft and Heavy Draft classes are filled, beyond those of previous years, and again more entries will be in by the start of this exhibition — "the greatest horse show in eastern Canada with exception of the Royal Winter Fair".

The poultry building will be filled to capacity with its variety of poultry and waterfowl. Also, the sheep and swine entries are excellent again this year. In the livestock classes at Lachute, the top breeders in Canada are numbered in all entry lists.

The grandstand will ring with excitement, featuring an excellent horse show each afternoon and evening, while the service clubs are busy finalizing plans for their entertainment programs. . .

On Thursday evening immediately following the horse show, the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club will have a full program featuring the annual tug-of-war contest, calf scramble and other exciting features.

On Friday night the Lions Club will feature the Blue and Gold Revue, as well as the cadet bands which are expected to be on hand for the Friday night and Saturday afternoon shows.

The Richelieu Club will feature harness racing on Saturday afternoon immediately following what promises to be a big spectacle of the fair — the 6-horse team driving competition.

Saturday night will be a grande finale. The children, mostly local riders, will thrill the crowds with their ponies, just before the Lachute Legion branch brings on the famous Black Watch Band for a fantastic performance and tattoo. . .

The 1964 Lachute Fair promises to be the greatest and most exciting ever, and everyone should plan now to get their membership (admission) tickets, which are on sale at the fair grounds, at Muir Bros', Cliff Cunningham's or Russel Rodgers' store.

— Plan to spend these four exciting days and nights at Lachute Spring Fair, June 17, 18, 19 and 20.

Qualifies for B.A. degree

W.I. anniversary occasion, 50th birthday of Pioneer br.

The Pioneer Women's Institute branch celebrated 50 years since its inauguration in Argenteuil County, when members, former members and guests, numbering 41, gathered in the St. Mungo's Church hall on May 21.

To help create an atmosphere for the occasion, there was a display of household articles, dishes, wearing apparel, etc., of vintage 50 years ago, or more; also a new quilt made recently by the members.

Supper tables were tastefully decorated with spring flowers, W.I. colors, and an anniversary cake. Seated at the head-table were Mrs. George M. Rodger, Pioneer Branch president, who was in charge; Mrs. Geo. S. Armstrong and Mrs. Jas. MacKenzie, senior members; Mrs. Chas. Stephens, County president; Mrs. George Leggett; Mrs. Geo. McGibbon and Miss Hannah Smith, representing the Provincial Board; and Miss Ruth Todd, daughter of the first president, Mrs. David Todd.

Charter members, old friends and associates present

Mrs. Rodger opened the program with a welcome to all present, with special mention to Mrs. Ross Brown and Mrs. Percy Burwash, two of the remaining three charter members.

The "Ode" was sung, and the Collect was repeated in unison.

On behalf of the Branch, Mrs. Howard McOuat and Mrs. Albert Thompson pinned corsages on members of long standing, namely, Mrs. G. S. Armstrong, Mrs. Jas. MacKenzie, Mrs. Ernest Cooke, Mrs. Jas. Cowan, Mrs. John Fraser, Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Gilbert Matthews, Mrs. Alfred Parker and Miss Emma Kerr. Mrs. Smith thanked the members for this gesture.

After singing the W.I. grace, all enjoyed a delicious supper, prepared and served by the United Church Women of Cushing. Mrs. James MacKenzie preformed the act of "cutting" the anniversary cake.

The chairman expressed her personal satisfaction in her association with W.I. In turn, guests at the head-table brought greetings and extended congratulations to Pioneer Branch for 50 years of achievement. Each paid high tribute to the first women who had had a vision of service in an organization which now extends throughout the world for the betterment of "home and country". Comments on happy events of the past were related, and all speakers were profuse in wishes for continued progress.

Mrs. G. S. Armstrong graciously thanked the speakers for their kind remarks and good wishes.

A singsong of old familiar songs was conducted by Mrs. Arnold Parker, with Mrs. H. V. Taylor as pianist. Mrs. Parker sang the solo, "The Perfect Day", as a requested number.

Mrs. Keith McCaig challenged the Branch to show as much foresight in future years.

Mrs. Stuart Armstrong read from the Branch history the names of the charter members of 1914, also the members in 1939, when the silver anniversary had been celebrated in the Geneva schoolhouse on Lachute Road.

The national anthem was sung, to bring to a close this memorable event.

Sentiments and Sidelights

Legion Branch 70, Lachute is proud to have procured the 3rd Battalion Black Watch R.H.R. military and pipe bands for "Legion Night" entertainment at the Lachute Spring Fair. Under Major Thomas E. Price, the 28 pipers and drummers, and 22 brass instrumentalists, will present a colorful tattoo for the grandstand crowd on Saturday evening, June 20.

Two charged with assaulting woman

Two men, both 30 years old, have been arrested by Provincial Police officers following a criminal assault which occurred at Huberdeau on Sunday evening. The pair are alleged to have gone to the house of a 61-year-old spinster on the pretence of purchasing some animals which were for sale. The woman was then assaulted and left. She managed to reach a neighbor's house, and a doctor and police were notified. The woman is in serious condition in St. Jerome hospital — while the two accused men are only several streets away, in jail.

Engineers to study rebuilding of Rte. 8 next year

Roger J. LaBrecque, Quebec's deputy minister of highways, has replied to a letter forwarded by Mayor Dave Campbell voicing a plea of a new Route 8 with the least possible delay.

Mayor Campbell, in his letter, drew attention to the plans by General Motors to build a plant at Ste. Therese. "The need for a good road from Lachute to the access road between Oka and the Autoroute is more urgent than ever," he wrote. "Secondary industries will be required to supply components . . . and it is our hope that we may be able to secure some of those industries for this area." Mayor Campbell further stressed the position of Lachute as a hub to resort areas northward, and for traffic to the busy Ottawa Valley centres.

The reply from the deputy minister, taking note of these arguments and of representations from the area, concluded: "We have asked our Engineering Department to make a special study of the whole situation and also to submit their recommendations as to improving and rebuilding Highway No. 8 next year".

Found bodies of children drowned at Pte. au Chene

The bodies of two young drowning victims, Jacques and Ethel Finlayson, aged 9 and 11 years, were found last Friday not far from the spot where they put out in a boat at Pte. au Chene.

The remains were brought to the Menard morgue here, and the joint district coroner, Dr. Roger Lavigne, made the formal inquiry.

The two children were reported missing about 4.30 p.m. last Wednesday, and a search was organized by Cpl. J.-C. Legaré, in charge of the Provincial Police detachment at Montebello. The boat in which the victims disappeared was found Wednesday evening at the Ontario side of the Ottawa River, near Lefaivre.

It was a commercial fisherman, Fernand Schyrer of Pte. au Chene, who discovered the bodies. Schyrer is familiar with the currents and eddies of the river. The little boy was found floating 50 feet from the riverbank, and his sister about 300 feet away.

The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Finlayson, of Pte. au Chene, leave 15 brothers and sisters.

Two new by-laws adopted, pay for Council rejected

Two new by-laws were adopted and one rejected in its first reading, at the Council sitting this week. . .

By-law 250

A by-law of the above number is actually an amendment to Statute 224 for the control of stray dogs. The revision states that the pound-keeper or officer responsible may keep such dogs, sell them for his own profit, or give them away, if not reclaimed within 72 hours. Expenses for housing stray dogs are unchanged, $2 a day when they are claimed within the prescribed time. . .

Dog owners may acquaint themselves with all provisions of this by-law at the town offices.

By-law 249

The second by-law to receive three readings, and to be adopted unanimously, extends the mandate of the mayor and aldermen to a three-year term. The change will come into effect next November, when the mayoralty and five council seats will become vacant for election on a three-year mandate.

By-law 251

The third by-law was defeated, five votes to four, in its first reading. This was a repeat of the original resolution to provide for remuneraton of the mayor and aldermen, presented several weeks ago and against which a large number of taxpayers protested, calling for a referendum. It was then decided by Council to withdraw the by-law, without benefit of a public vote.

The Cities and Towns Act requires a two-thirds vote of the Council to pass a by-law for payment of its members. In this instance five aldermen were in favor and four against, which was an insufficient majority; passing of the by-law would have required six votes in favor. . . The count was as follows: For — Aldermen Charlebois, Dumais, Lepage, Pariseau, Desjardins. Against — Aldermen Middleton, Armstrong, McFaul and Carrière.

Entry and theft east of Lachute

Thieves entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Arundel-Evans, just east of town, sometime during Thursday, May 21, and after thoroughly searching the house, made their get-away with considerable loot, including money, clothing and household effects.

Entry was gained by breaking in the French doors in the living room, and despite their intensive search the intruders are reported to have left the house extremely neat and tidy.

Q.P.P. officer Gilles Lavigne carried out the investigation.

Numerous items of civic business at special conclave

At a special meeting of Town Council on Monday evening, with Mayor Dave Campbell presiding, it was voted to offer Deacon Enterprises Ltd. the sum of $1,000 for a strip of land along Main Street West, in order to widen the curve opposite the Carrefour du Livre. The company's letter to the corporation asked $2,000 for the land, and specified that the town rebuild the sidewalk, re-locate the fence, assume legal fees, and expenses incidental to widening the thoroughfare. . . Aldermen Charlebois and Desjardins moved that the town should pay the sum requested, while Aldermen McFaul, Carrière, Middleton, Pariseau, Lepage and Armstrong voted for an amendment to offer $1,000. Ald. Dr. R. A. Dumais did not vote.

* * *

Albert Mady was authorized to install sewers on his land, at his own expense, with plans to be submitted to Council. (The plans, prepared by Mr. Whissell, consulting engineer, were approved at this meeting.)

* * *

A strong delegation from the Centre d'Art presented a written request for a civic grant. The vice-president, Mme Denyse Laliberté, was spokesman for the delegation.

* * *

Two petitions were submitted and held over for consideration, one asking for revision of the by-law, to allow evening store hours, and the other opposing this change.

* * *

Five contractors submitted new bids for the paving of certain streets, and the offer of Benoit Morrissette being the lowest ($12,986), this was accepted on a divided vote, Aldermen L. Armstrong and Dr. L. A. Middleton dissenting.

* * *

Council, in conclusion, voted unanimously in favor of a $300 grant to the Argenteuil Agricultural Society.

Minor fire

A small fire, which originated in oily rags, caused minor damage Saturday in the Lachute Auditorium. Three prisoners were taken from the police cells.

Graduating in Arts at the same university, Bishop's, is Miss Margaret Dawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Dawson, Lachute. Miss Dawson leaves Thursday with a group of around 148 students, for a three-months stay in West Germany — intending to spend part of the holiday touring and the remainder of the time in some form of employment. Miss Dawson expects to enter a business career on her return. . .

These two going ladies both attended Lachute High School.

Miss Lynda Silverson, who has an Intermediate diploma from Macdonald College and has taught school for three years, is another successful candidate for the B.A. degree at Bishop's. Miss Silverson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Silverson, Brownsburg, was a former pupil at the Brownsburg High School. She intends to continue her teaching career, and has accepted a position at Chibougamau, Que.

Roland Gow, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Gow, Lachute, will graduate from McGill on Friday with a B.Sc., major in Geography. He will be promoted to lieutenant and will leave for the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering, Camp Chilliwack, B.C., immediately afterwards. Roland has been spending the past few days with his parents, in Upper Lachute. . . This young townsman is also a graduate of Lachute High School.

Approximately 400 graduate and undergraduate degrees and certificates of completion were conferred by Bob Jones University at Greenville, South Carolina, May 27, at the 37th annual convocation. . . Among the successful candidates for degrees is Mrs. William Larry Dickerson, formerly Florence P. Hisey, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. W. Lorne Hisey, Dalesville. Mrs. Dickerson has qualified for the M.A. degree, majoring in piano in the School of Fine Arts. She received her Bachelor of Arts degree from this university in 1961.

Clubmen given awards for good service to Lionism

The Lions Club last week greeted an old friend, International Counsellor Larry Sheasgreen, as a special guest to represent the International Association, and to present various awards to local clubmen — for longevity, regular attendance, promotion of Lionism, and other achievements.

Notable among the awards were three 15-year "Old Monarch" certificates; seven New Member certificates; a 14-year Perfect Attendance pin to Lion Horace Lamarche; an Extension Award to Lion Jos. Dumais for chartering the new branch club at Mont Laurier, and other recognitions.

Mr. Sheasgreen, in presenting these awards, spoke feelingly of his long associations with the Lachute club, and of his affection for a departed member, the late Jack Giles. The visiting speaker was introduced by Bertrand L'Heureux and thanked by Royal Carrière, both of whom are past-presidents.

Lion Paul Deslauriers spoke with some pride in introducing two distinguished lady visitors, Miss Diane Boa and Miss Hélène Desforges, the club's protegées who had carried the fame of Lachute to the finals of the Eastern Canada public speaking contest, in which they won top honors in the girls' classes. The young visitors were warmly applauded.

President Keith Clarke chaired this successful meeting, held at La Lorraine Motel.

Local serviceman, war medallist, on TV feature

Viewers of television last Sunday evening, at 10 o'clock on Channels 4 and 6, saw the Horizon documentary "D-Day: The Canadians", marking the up-coming 20th anniversary of D-Day (June 6, 1944). In this program a number may have noted the appearance of a former Lachute boy, René Tessier, who was prior to the war an employee of Dominion Shuttle Company. He joined the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada in the early stages of the war, and landed with his regiment of the 3rd Division.

For conspicuous bravery Tessier was awarded the Military Medal, and he was wounded on D-Day. Following a second wound he returned, and served until V-E Day.

After his discharge René came back to Lachute and was employed by Ayers Limited until 1950, when he left to take a position in Toronto. He is presently employed with a printing firm in Montreal, and resides in Pont Viau. His wife was a former Lachute girl, Jeannine Girard, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Girard, of Berry Street. His mother resides in Montreal. He has a sister here, Mrs. Aimé Trudel (Jeanne), and a brother, Emile, who is employed by J. C. Wilson Ltd.

It is regrettable that notice could not have been given that Tessier would be interviewed on this film depicting the movement of ships, landing craft and troops going into the surf, storming the beaches and battling inland. However, numerous viewers did witness this program, and it is gratifying to note that another Lachute boy, enlisting under age, served his country well and brought honor to his home town.

Town police track clues to '62 school robbery

Intensive investigation and questioning by Sgt. Réal Chartrand, officer in charge of the Lachute municipal police, and Cst. Rolland Cuerrier, resulted in the arrest of two young Lachute men; the pair have been charged with breaking and entering with theft, in connection with a $900 robbery at L'Ecole Supérieure on December 7, 1962.

The investigation started with the arrest of Bernard Perriard, 20, who, after questioning, admitted to breaking a window in front of the Cinema Lachute on May 17 of this year. He was picked up on May 24, and appeared before Justice of the Peace J. Henri St.-Onge, who sentenced him to eight days in jail on this charge, to be served concurrently with another eight-day sentence for stealing shoes from the school basement while students were using the skating rink.

This re-opened the investigation into the school theft in 1962, in which three offices were ransacked and badly damaged and a hole smashed through a cement wall into the vault, where a considerable sum of money was stolen, along with other items.

Questions were asked, and the answers led to other persons, until Philippe Durocher, 22, of 216 Isabella Street, and a 19-year-old resident on the same street, were questioned and finally made statements concerning the school robbery.

The investigation got underway Sunday night of last week, and the statements before a Justice of the Peace were made Friday evening. The three were held in local cells until Tuesday, when Perriard was taken to Sennetarre by the Provincial Police, to be questioned in connection with a robbery in that district. The other two were taken to St. Jerome, where they are being held pending trial.

By BOB ATCHISON

Some of our local fishermen have been fortunate, with fine catches, while numerous others have not been so lucky. It has been a funny start for the trout season. Some of the lakes in this immediate district have been good, while others not too far away have been very poor. For a couple of days Lake Louisa yielded some very good Greys, but this did not last. Silver Lake was one of those that produced some good catches, and from information I can gather, it is still giving the fishermen plenty of fun. A number of the local gentry travelled farther north, but the results were not too gratifying. In one case I heard of, not even a bite was registered for a three-day period; this is poor fishing.

* * *

For the enthusiast who wants to catch fish just for diversion, one can have a lot of fun around Lake Sir John. Bass are starting to hit, along with some excellent perch; it is worthwhile trying. A good number of the bass have black spot, so it is better to check them over before eating — not that the spot will harm you, but the fish will have to be cooked very well. The North River is starting to yield some very good perch. Last Sunday, the wife and I caught seven all weighing over a pound; nice eating. Lake Macdonald is also giving some of these morsels. Even though most people don't like them, they still give you a lot of fun, and what's more, for every one you take out you are helping the game fish. So why not try it; don't throw them away though, for there are plenty of people who like eating them.

* * *

There are two geese lingering around this area. Maybe they are going to nest. This sure will be a good thing, and let's hope no trigger-happy gunmen spot them.

* * *

I have received a query this past week about waders, and how to repair them. To begin with these particular waders were just left in a cupboard, not even hung up — asking for trouble right off the bat. Leaving them this way allows the rubber to stick to everything, which causes it to perish; that is, it becomes soft and spongy, with dozens of minute holes in the rubber. These cannot be repaired at all, so if you have a problem of this kind, then forget about them and buy a new pair. However, if you just have a hole in them, then repair in the same way as a tire, with all the precautions taken with a tire. Make sure all dirt and grease is scraped off, either with the tire repair scraper or very fine sandpaper. Spread the rubber cement thin, on the patch and the waders, allow it to dry a short time until it becomes very tacky, then place the patch tight enough so that no wrinkles show up. Weights on the patch will help to seal it, and you won't have any trouble with it. One more thing, be sure to trim off the edges of the patch, in other words taper it; then your patch won't pull off with the water.

* * *

I know it's early to start beefing about the Parks and so on, but better now than later — at least, maybe some of the problems can be cleared up. Laurentide seemed to be in good shape, with a few exceptions. The first was the toilet facilities in the park, which were non-existent. Only a very few eating tables were around; but possibly these have not been brought out of mothballs so far. And the total lack of COURTESY by anyone associated with the running of this park. I would have imagined that the Hon. Minister would insist on having bilingual persons in attendance, but this does not seem to be the case. It certainly looks as though all the English-speaking persons are supposed to learn French but the French don't and won't learn English. But since this also applies to our government staffs, I guess this is no surprise.

* * *

The local fishing derby went off very well. Not too many fish were caught, nor many of appreciable size, but everyone had a good time. Prizes were won by almost everyone; even a whitefish won a reel for a lucky fisherwoman. No serious accidents occurred, nor were too many people lost. This all points to a lot of hard work on the part of the Association executive.

* * *

Something I have never mentioned before — your fishing bags or boxes. Did you sometimes wonder just what that odor is? Naturally, you don't notice it too much out on the water, especially if you are taking fish, but hanging it in a cupboard is a real test. Certainly if it has been in there for a couple of days, it has a scent that nothing can match. Best of all is to have a small box of worms in it, too! Believe me, this is a sure way to get rid of your wife, either by natural suffocation or divorce. . . Better clean out that bag with baking soda and luke-warm water. Hang it out in the air too; you can try cleaning it in the house, but my bet is you won't have to get rid of your spouse — she'll get rid of you!

* * *

With the rain we have had, it would appear the bush is safe for a while. But you know with the high winds that have also prevailed, it doesn't take long for anything to dry out. So no matter if you think it is safe, take care; put out any fire, cigarette or match. Better be alive than dead. On top of all this, think of the millions of greenbacks that are lost every year just through carelessness.

* * *

As most of you have noted in the Montreal papers, the sales of camping equipment are really getting under way. Some of these are very good buys, while others are not too good.

If any of you good people are pondering over these "specials" — take a very good look at anything you buy. I saw one of these so-called bargains last week-end — good canvas, but the sewing had pulled out in a couple of places, notably around the tent-pole opening. I have since learned this was changed by the company who sold it; but still — check it, you might not be so lucky. Another big thing, some of these canvas goods had the weight stamped on them, that is, for the weight of the canvas; but on being weighed, this information was all wrong. Now these tents were not made by any reputable company that I know of, but this gives a poor name to the real legitimate dealers whose sole business is tents and camping equipment. If in doubt about anything, think it over well; it's not a good way to lose money.

* * *

Another point on camping; I have also been asked about how to keep the usual pots and pans from sticking. This is pretty difficult; but one thing I always do, is to burn all cookware before using it. Build yourself a good wood fire, let it die down to embers, then throw the whole works in. Naturally, they turn blue and black, and you won't have the nice pretty pots you had, but one thing is assured — you won't burn everything you cook. So they hold the dirt? O.K., then put them in a sugar sack for carrying. I have found the only part of cooking gear that really needs to be cleaned well is the bottom, it heats up much faster with all the old carbon off. It may not hold the heat as well, but who cares, when you want a meal in a hurry.

* * *

We are still feeding the birds. I know it is not necessary, but with the flocks of them hanging around now all looking for a free hand-out, we are too soft-hearted. This past week or so we have been very fortunate in having a lot of White-Crowned sparrows with us. With a grey breast, no throat marking, their very erect posture, and their habit of dancing on the ground to scratch up feed, they're very intriguing to watch. This is also a pugnacious little bird, but only to its own kind. A dozen maybe scratching and dancing, then one of them will break away and actually run towards another. We also have a couple of Vesper sparrows, not as friendly as the others — or rather, I should say, more timid; you can't get too close to them. Whereas the White-Crowned will come almost up to you to eat, they even go so far as to scold Goldie, the dog, because she is near their food, which right now is on the ground. I thought I saw an American Redstart the other morning. You may see it too, and wonder what it is. This bird has black wings with a red stripe running right through the centre, it also has red outside feathers on its tail.

Ski Patrol wins top award

At the 25th annual awards banquet of the Laurentian Zone, Canadian Ski Patrol Society, held at the Mount Royal Hotel last Saturday, the ski patrol from Ayers Ski Centre received the Ken Case trophy for the "Outstanding Patrol of the Year". This is awarded for hard work done by each member of the Patrol in field operations, and organizational ability of the District Supervisor, Patrol Leader, and Assistant Patrol Leader. The award was accepted on behalf of the patrol by their Patrol Leader, Donald Barbour.

Those present at the banquet representing the Patrol were — Don Barbour (P.L.), Bill Jones, Rachel Barbour, of Lachute; Jacques Racine (Asst. P.L.), of Brownsburg; Ken Donaldson, of Chomedey, and Ross Cole, representing Ayers Ski Centre. Other members unable to attend were — Guy Leger, Evelyn Ayers, J. P. Beauchamp, of Lachute; Dr. A. R. Coté, of Brownsburg, Dr. Kirby, George Seay, Janet Miller and Bill Saxton, of Hawkesbury.

The Canadian Ski Patrol is a national non-profit organization comprising over 700 volunteer men and women across Canada, with two major objectives in view. They are primarily concerned with accident prevention, as well as providing the skiing public with a group of highly trained skiers who are capable of administering first aid to those in need.

To all the Ayers Patrol, and especially their Leader, Don Barbour — Ross Cole extends heartiest congratulations for the extraordinary job they have done this past year. The tremendous success of the club's varied activities, particularly those of fund raising, public relations, ski reports, hill safety, and the development of a real "patrol spirit", has been a fine example of co-operative effort.

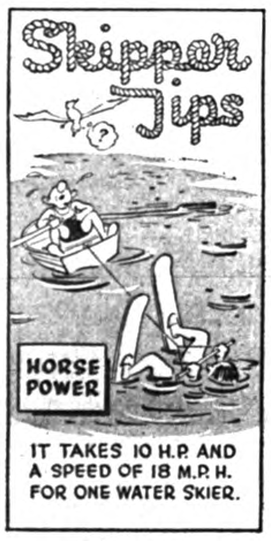

Stiff fines imposed on poachers, Labelle County

Quebec — A poacher from Lac David, Labelle County, received stiff sentences in Magistrate's Cout at Mont Laurier recently, for offences committed during the first three months of the year.

He was sentenced to $100 fine, plus costs, or two months in jail, for hunting deer out of season; $1,250 fine, plus costs, or 25 months in jail, for having illegally killed several deer while winter yarding; $100 fine, plus costs, or two months in jail, for hunting deer with traps; finally, $100 fine, plus costs, or one additional month in jail for having sold deer meat. This makes a total of $1,550 in fines, plus costs, or 30 months in jail.

Two other residents of Labelle County, from Lac-des-Ecorces, were also found guilty. For hunting deer out of season, they were fined $100 each, plus costs; also a $250 fine, for having hunted deer in winter. These offences were committed in February.

These sentences follow the warning to poachers issued last September by the Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game, Hon. Lionel Bertrand. "The Department of Tourism, Fish and Game must see that the hunting laws are respected," said Mr. Bertrand. "These laws are made to assure every hunter his share; we cannot tolerate those who hamper the true sportsmen respectful of the laws in their search for game."

Boating Clinic

— BY STAN DAVIES —

More boats are bought in Canada for fishing than for any other single purpose, statistics show. Yet many people are plagued by doubts as to the qualities such a boat should possess, as the following questions show:

What makes a good fishing boat?

ANSWER: Any boat that's stable. And to get stability you must have BEAM . . . that's width. In the excitement of landing a big one, a narrow, tippy boat can be fatal. The statistics show that more reliable, safe, sane, anglers drown from boats than any other group.

Is a canoe good for fishing?

ANSWER: If it's the only thing you've got, wear a life jacket and sit on the bottom, this makes it more stable.

Why does my 35 h.p. outboard run for a while then quit when I'm trolling?

ANSWER: It's likely the plugs foul up. This happens to a lot of older outboards, when they run at low r.p.m. for any length of time. There's not much you can do. You might pick up a smaller motor. Let the 35 get you to where you want to troll, then hang out a tiny kicker for the actual fishing.

I can't get my boat down to the 2½ m.p.h. required for trolling. What should I do?

ANSWER: Have you tried rowing? Or . . . trailing a pail behind the boat? If the motor won't run slow enough, cut out a disc of tin or wood a little smaller than the diameter of the propeller circle, then wire it over the prop. This cuts the prop's efficiency and lets you run the motor a little faster . . . then the plugs won't foul.

My outboard motor is noisy. Will it drive away the fish?

ANSWER: It may drive away other fishermen, but not the fish. Scientific tests indicate that motors and propellers often attract fish.

Is it proper to stand to cast from a boat?

ANSWER: Mostly it's stupid. Learn to cast sitting down. You may not make such long and accurate casts . . . you may not catch as many fish. . . But it's likely you'll live longer.

What do you consider an ideal boat for inland fishing?

ANSWER: This is strictly a personal preference . . . a 13 foot aluminum boat with 5 foot beam, light enough for two to put on a car top or carry half a mile through the bush to a secluded lake . . . without a heart attack. It will help you catch more fish than the best equipped tackle box.

Carillon Museum has interest and attraction for visitors

Favorable week-ends in early May have brought many visitors to the Carillon Museum, where Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Heatlie are now resident curators. Mr. and Mrs. Heatlie are old-time Argenteuil residents widely known, and have a grown-up family of three registered nurses. They will welcome all visitors to this interesting spot.

For those who have frequented the Museum in previous seasons, a delightful surprise is in store. During the shutdown period, Mr. Fraser Watson was in charge of a crew of men who gave the interior a thorough cleaning, followed by repainting throughout. Thus, the Argenteuil Museum seems hardly the same place.

An entirely new verandah has been built on the south side, and when visitors become physically tired from touring the exhibits, chairs and tables are here available for their relaxation. There they can sit in the sunshine, watch the navigation on the broad Ottawa River, and enjoy a view of the great Carillon Dam.

Recently a cheque was received from the County Council, with the recommendation that it be spent to publicize the Museum throughout the County. Last year the County Warden, Mayor Durocher, was an active member of the Museum's board of directors, and the same interest is continuing this year under Warden Mayor Frank Knights. They feel that many residents of Argenteuil County may frequently visit this interesting collection of historical exhibits, and perhaps enjoy a family picnic on the lawn or on the verandah — but they regretfully realize that many residents of the County have never been inside the Museum. These are those whom they hope this publicity will induce to make their first trip to the County Museum.

The Museum is operated by the Argenteuil Historical Society through the $2 annual membership, which permits repeated visits throughout the year, and through the 25c charge for a visiting adult and 10c for each child. To promote the teaching of local history, school groups or organizations of teenagers are admitted free when chaperoned by their teacher or leader. Such groups are most welcome, and it is hoped that this type of attendance will be sponsored by those concerned, from all sections of Argenteuil and neighboring areas. (It would be advantageous to all concerned if such trips were prearranged, by telephone contact with Mr. Heatlie.) Mr. Gilbert Arnold, a member of the promotion committee has undertaken to arrange for the bilingual marking of all exhibits.

Museum is rated by federal dept. as 'historic site'

The building originally was the barracks of the Regiment of Royal Engineers, who built the first set of canals to circumvent the Long Sault Rapids between Carillon and Grenville. Last year the Historic Sites Board of the Federal Department of Northern Affairs designated this museum a "historical site" to commemorate the Ottawa River Navigation as a part of our national development, and a plaque to record this fact is soon to be erected by the Board at the entrance of the Museum.

It is felt that many Argenteuil citizens would like to further the work of the Argenteuil Historical Society at Carillon Museum by becoming members, and that they have never made an application for membership because no one has ever approached them. The Argenteuil Historical Society will gladly get in touch with those interested; please clip the following form and address it to one of the officers mentioned.

Descendant enlightens clubmen on 'Uncle Jack' Miner, conservationist

A recent speaker at the Brownsburg-Lachute Rotary Club was club member Gordon Miner, who gave a talk on the life of his great-uncle, the late Jack Miner, the noted conservationist, and his birds.

"Uncle Jack" as he is still familiarly known by most of his descendants, moved to Kingsville, Ont., at the age of 12 with his father, who was a brick-maker. This trade was a seasonal one, with very little being done in the wintertime, and during this slack season the whole family turned to hunting and became very proficient at this pastime. As a matter of fact, they came to be very much in demand for providing food for church suppers and the like. Later Jack decided to use the old clay beds which his father had hollowed out for the brick-clay, clean them up, and provide a place for wild game to gather naturally so that long trips would not be necessary to hunt them.

In 1904 the first game arrived in these newly created ponds, and in 1905 the family started to feed the birds, which came in ever-increasing numbers each following year. In 1911 the first geese came in, and decided to nest in the area. Names were given to the parent geese, and in watching the geese and their families, interest in their welfare gradually became pre-eminent in their minds. Wounded birds came, and they were cared for. One of the facts which intrigued them most was the way of self-preservation which ducks and geese have of setting their own broken bones so that they will heal properly.

In 1915 "Uncle Jack" decided to start banding birds and to study their flight habits and migrations. In this way he studied their migrations from Hudson's Bay to the Virginias, and determined the four major flyways of the East, Central Prairies and West Coast.

Corn was the main food given to these birds, and having only 100 acres of this grain himself, he soon had to start soliciting money to help provide for them; and in 1919 the Federal Government started giving him grants for this purpose. Figures on expenditure for feed show a formidable amount needed each year for this purpose.

In 1923, Uncle Jack started going on lecture tours, preaching conservation, to supplement the government allowance, and became quite famous for this activity. He also studied crows and starlings, which he hated, and invented many devices and traps for killing them.

Gordon Miner was introduced by Ross Cole, and thanked later on behalf of the club by Alex Kerr.

Special sitting of Town Council

A special meeting of Town Council was held on Tuesday of last week, at which Ald. Laurier Carrière reported on a consultation with Mr. Matteau on the previous evening, preparatory to drawing up a work contract between the town corporation and its employees. Mayor Dave Campbell presided, and all councillors were in attendance.

On a motion of Aldermen J.-O. Desjardins and Dr. R. A. Dumais, it was voted 6-3 in favor of giving $100 to the Prêt d'Honneur, a fund promoted by the St. Jean Baptiste Society. Aldermen Charlebois, Pariseau, McFaul and Carriere voted with the sponsors, in favor, and Aldermen Armstrong, Lepage and Dr. Middleton against... Ald. Laurier Carriere, as pro-mayor, would represent the Council at the banquet in this connection (held last Wednesday), and any prize falling to the municipality in the drawing would be turned back to the civic grants-and-donations fund. . . It was further agreed that this gesture should not set a precedent, nor should the municipality be committed to contribute in future years.

Ald. J. O. Desjardins gave notice that at next meeting he would submit a motion for control of dogs within the town limts.

Succumbed in G'vl bar-room

Joseph Pilon, 64, of Grenville, succumbed to a heart seizure while in the Soumis Hotel, Grenville, according to a report by the local Q.P.P. detachment. The victim is reported to have entered the hotel around 9.30 Friday evening and after some time in the establishment, was thought to have fallen asleep on his table. Bartender Roger Racine attempted to remove him to a couch around 3 a.m., and found him dead.

Provincial Police were called to investigate; no inquest will be held.

Lachute W. Inst. on visit to Bronson Home

The May meeting of Lachute Women's Institute, under the convenership of Miss C. McGibbon, took the form of a visit to the Bronson Home for senior citizens, in Ottawa.

In visiting the Home, the members felt much the same as Lincoln when he said, "I will study, get ready and perhaps my chance will come."

Five of the board of directors, as well as the superintendent, were on hand to welcome the members, and after a resumé of how the Home came into being, and the answering of many questions, a tour was made of the Home. Many of the members were glad to renew an acquaintance with a former resident of Lachute, Miss Mary Prime, who now resides at this Home, 81 Bronson Avenue.

A delicious tea was then served by the directors, and the W.I. members came away feeling that, perhaps by the time the centennial approaches, they too could have something to show for their efforts. . . "The common characteristics of people make a community possible, but it is their uncommon qualities that make it better."

Local photo fans invited to enter A.A.A. exhibition

An innovation in the exhibitions program of the Argenteuil Art Association this summer, will be the holding of a photographic display, in which all camera fans, whether amateur or professional, are invited to submit some of the choicest examples of their work. Qualifying factors may be the technical quality of the prints, scenic beauty, human interest, news value or other features to merit spectator interest.

Dates of this first exhibition are June 20 to June 28, inclusive, at the municipal hall in St. Andrews East.

Rules

Following are the regulations for entries:

(1) Minimum size of prints, 5x7 inches.

(2) Prints must be mounted on suitable card. They should not be framed or covered with glass.

(3) Black-and-white or color prints accepted, not transparencies.

(4) Limit of five prints to any entrant.

(5) Name and address of owner must be clearly written on back of the mount.

(6) Every care will be taken, but prints are entered at owner's risk; the A.A.A. accepts no responsibility for loss or damage.

(7) Prints for exhibition will be selected by a panel of judges.

(8) Entries (well packed if by mail) may be sent to Mrs. L. T. Porter, president of the Association, St. Andrews East, Que.

(9) Only members of the A.A.A. are eligible; but $1 1964-membership fee may be enclosed with the photos submitted.

(10) Closing date for entry of photographs, Wednesday, June 17.

Two noted amateurs have agreed to plan and arrange this exhibition on behalf of the Association — Mr. Mansiel Wilson, Cushing (LO 2-4594) and Dr. G. R. Rigby, Lachute (LO 2-5733). Residents who have photos worthy of exhibit are asked to contact either of these gentlemen for any further details.

Graduation at Morin Heights

Morin Heights — Last Thursday, 11 pupils from Grade XI graduated at a ceremony held at the school. The guest speaker was Prof. R. H. Common, head of Agricultural Chemistry at Macdonald College. After the ceremony, refreshments were served to the graduates, parents and guests.

On Friday, a graduation banquet was given for the graduates, their parents and guests. The evening concluded with a dance and entertainment in which the graduates took part.

The names of this year's graduates are as follows — Dale Boyd, Scott Campbell, Lynne Cooke, Gloria Graham, Louise Jansen, Judy Lavoie, Myrna Lister, Kathleen Muncey, Larry Parkinson, Ernest Reigle and Grethe Sorensen.

Graduation dance at Arundel is colorful annual occasion

(Our District Correspondent)

Arundel — The graduation dance of Class '63-64 was held recently in the school auditorium, and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on the attractive decorations for this event. . .

Green and gold streamers festooned the ceiling and walls, and banks of beautiful flowers and rock gardens were illuminated by concealed lighting which cast a warm glow over the entire scene. A white picket fence enclosed the space reserved for dancing, and Chinese lanterns produced a beautiful lighting effect. At the back of the stage was a large mural depicting a waterfall. This, with streamers, formed a pleasing background for the orchestra. A similar mural occupied the rear wall of the hall; this, surrounded by flowers and white birch trees, gave one the illusion of a beautiful grove. The whole effect earned the committee many compliments during the evening.

At nine o'clock, the Grand March was led by two majorettes, Leah Reim and Karen MacDonald, followed by the graduates and pupils of the various grades. At the conclusion of the march the letter 'A' was formed, two Girl Guides (Earline Gray and Janice Swall) and two Boy Scouts (Russell Gordon and Malcolm Dobie) forming the bar of the 'A'. "O Canada" and the national anthem were then played, and the formation broke up into a dance.

At ten o'clock Principal Melvin Graham greeted the guests and introduced the graduates. Mr. Leslie Cooke, chairman of the school board, introduced by Miss Gerri Van Weiren, congratulated the graduates and spoke a few words appropriate to the occasion.

The graduates were — Miss Gerri Van Weiren, Miss Linda Crone, Conrad Graham, Wade Welden, Robert Boyd and David Graham.

The Valedictory was given by Conrad Graham, concluding the formalities of the evening. Refreshments were then served — followed by an excellent baton drill, conducted by Mrs. Keith Rathwell. Dancing was resumed for the remainder of the evening, to the music of Gordon Anderson's orchestra.

Regional leaders attended U.C.W. 'workshop' in Lachute

United Church Women from all parts of the Ottawa Valley Region gathered in Lachute United Church on May 13 for a "workshop", conducted by a group of 13 officers of the Montreal Presbyterial U.C.W.

The morning session was opened by Mrs. C. L. Duncan, Regional vice-president, who set the tone for the day, in the Call to Worship (Phil. 4, vs. 8). The atmosphere for the meeting was further created in the period of devotion led by Mrs. Phil Bate, of Kilmar, with Mrs. D. E. Hart as soloist.

Mrs. S. McFaul, president of Lachute United Church Women, welcomed members from Arundel, Morin Heights, Harrington, Kilmar, Calumet, Grenville, Cushing, St. Andrews, Brownsburg, Shawbridge and St. Jerome.

Greetings were brought from Montreal Presbyterial by the president, Mrs. B. K. Wasson, who introduced other members of the executive. They in turn briefly outlined the responsibilities of women on the various boards of the United Church, such as Colleges and Schools, Evangelism and Social Service, Publications, World Missions, Information and Stewardship, Christian Education, and Missionary Education, Finance, Programming, Board of Men and of Women.

During the noon recess, time was given to browse at the literature table, following a delicious luncheon served by Unit 3 of Lachute U.C.W.

The afternoon session opened with a worship service conducted by Mrs. Beauchamp and Mrs. McMichael, of Grenville U.C.W.

Once again the Montreal group, under the leadership of Mrs. Scoates, took over the program, presenting a clever and entertaining skit in two scenes — "How not to present a devotional period", and "How not to conduct the business session of a regular Unit meeting". Opportunity was given to the audience to list the errors and bad practices, and from these to build up a set of rules for reverent worship and correct business procedure. Groups then adjourned to the Sunday School rooms, to discuss problems and share helpful hints in various phases of United Church Women's Work.

Mrs. Davis, president of Arundel U.C.W., brought the Courtesy report. This was followed by an invitation, extended by Mrs. Lyle Kilpatrick, to hold the 1965 Ottawa Valley Regional meeting in Morin Heights United Church, as guests of the U.C.W., of which she is president.

Mrs. Harold Thompson pronounced the benediction.

Tea was provided by Unit 5, and served by Unit 3 of U.C.W.

UCW presbyterial meets in Mont'l

A meeting of the Montreal Presbyterial United Church Women will be held in Dominion Douglas Church, Westmount, on Friday, June 5, at 10 a.m. The president, Mrs. B. K. Wasson, will chair the meeting, and Miss Helen Mack will conduct the devotions.

Miss Anne Ward, secretary of the Board of Women of the United Church, will be guest speaker. Miss Ward went to West China in 1930, and spent many years as a missionary educator. She was one of the last missionaries to leave China as the Communists were gaining a foothold in that country.

From 12.30 until 2 p.m. there will be a coffee party. Mrs. Jacques Beaudon and Mrs. Eric Erry, who received diplomas at the recent convocation of the United Theological College, will preside.

Members of the Montreal presbyterial executive, and the presidents and a representative of U.C.W. from every congregation in the presbytry, will be in attendance.

Students' display opened here at Centre d'Art

Mlle Irène Sénecal, directress of extension courses affiliated with l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, Montreal, officiated for the opening of an exhibition at the Centre d'Art featuring the work of adult and junior pupils.

The display was opened Saturday afternoon in the presence of Giuseppe Fiore and Guy Racine, who have instructed the classes here; also members of the Centre executive, including Dr. Marc Papineau, president, and Mme Denyse Laliberté, vice-president.

Mlle Senécal warmly commended the progress apparent in this exhibition and complimented the instructors on their achievement. She looked forward to further strides and accomplishments next season, and was convinced the Centre d'Art d'Argenteuil was among the leading enterprises of its kind outside the metropolis.

This exhibition continues Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, 2 to 5 p.m., until June 13. All are welcome.

Children on trip

When on long trips with children, there is usually a constant demand for cold drinks. A vacuum jar or bottles filled with ice cubes and tightly corked can be carried. Along with this, take a large jar of water from home, since there are not always safe drinking water supplies en route. When Junior requires a cold drink, pour some of the water quickly through the ice and then fill his cup. This will be better for him than too many soft drinks, and the water won't be ice cold, which is not good for a small child.

FACT

Contrary to general belief, only 15% of traffic accidents are caused by speeding, says Reader's Digest.

Wagon wheel rustlers reported by rural dweller

— TO THE EDITOR —

Hill Head, Lachute
May 25, 1964

Editor, The Watchman:

We thought at first that the thieves could have been wheelwrights looking for parts. But no — it couldn't have been, as wheelwrights would have no interest in the three flower pots stolen at the same time. Antiquarians? No, because wagon wheels are still quite available, if one searches around a bit.

It happened last Saturday evening. We had noticed a car driving down our laneway without lights, but paid little attention, as we assumed that they were probably "sparkers" looking for an off-the-highway spot.

In driving out Sunday morning, however, we discovered the absence of the decorative wheel and flower pots which have adorned our mail box standard for the past four years. We are sorry in a way that they did not take the mail box, as that would have made it a Federal offence.

The thieves were kind enough to dump the earth from the flower pots, which had just been fertilized in preparation for the spring planting. The Mrs. had planned to do this today, Monday. Incidentally, the flower pots were simply round, hollow cement tiles painted yellow. If our (friend?) thieves need any more, we might help them to locate a few.

As we have the matching mate to said wheel, we would suggest that the thieves come back to dicker with us for its purchase at, say, a nominal price; or should they be willing, we could toss a coin to see who gets both wheels. After all, one wheel isn't of much use except for a wheelbarrow, and it is far too large for that.

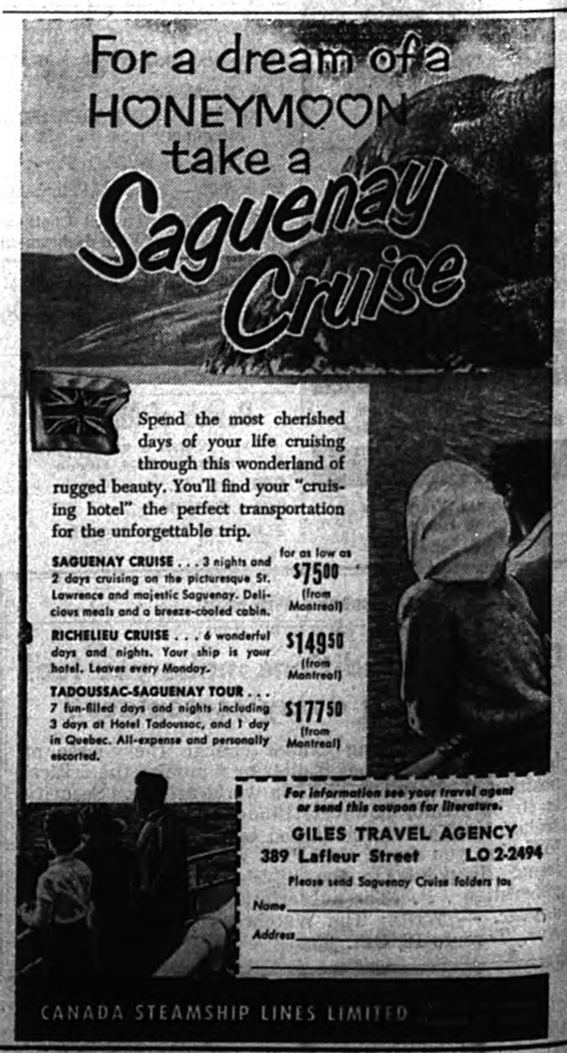

Oh well, happy wheeling (friends?) — but we do hope the darn thing falls apart on you. On second thought, why not ease your conscience, and dump it off where you got it some dark evening?

Note to Fellow Wheel-Owners: If your wheel or wheels are more than ten feet from the house, anchor them solidly and attach some sort of burglar alarm.

A milestone – Quebec's new Department of Education

A QUIET LOOKING man last week took over what he calls "a basic instrument in developing the province's enormous economic and intellectual resources.". . The man was Paul-Gérin Lajoie, and the instrument is to some extent of his own making — the brand new Quebec Department of Education.

The legislation providing for the department was first presented last June, but then came protests that the government was going "too far too fast". The legislation was changed and re-introduced by the Lesage government last January, and since then the Hon. Gérin-Lajoie has been campaigning up and down the province for its acceptance.

Mr. Gérin-Lajoie, formerly Youth Minister, was sworn in as first head of the new department, which incorporates and enlarges the functions carried out by his old office; and three veterans of the former Youth Department were inaugurated as top men under Mr. Gérin-Lajoie — Arthur Tremblay, technical adviser to the Youth Department and now Deputy Education Minister; Joseph Pagé, former Deputy Youth Minister, and now Associate Deputy Minister in the new organization; and Howard Billings, Mr. Pagé's partner as Deputy and a former Superintendent of Protestant Education.

Mr. Gérin-Lajoie said the department would not belong to one man or one group of civil servants. "It will belong to everyone interested in education — school administrators, educationists and parents."

Until the formation of the education department, a government group called the public education department, headed by an official appointed for life, administered education, with the government paying most if not all of the bills.

Officially the government had little to say and no responsibility for education policy.

Under the new regime, however, the Education Minister will exercise top authority for all but religious or moral education, which will be administered by the Roman Catholic and Protestant Committees of the Superior Education Council.

The Council too is something new. With 24 members, it has been described by a government spokesman as a "permanent Royal Commission set up to advise the Minister." Its members will represent most spheres of Quebec education, and some will be appointed by the Roman Catholic bishops of the province.

Flag comes to issue – overdue

THE FUSS about Canada's flag — or lack of a flag — is appropriately backed by a history full of ambiguity. The question, at last, is up for decision and for certainty. . .

The Red Ensign, which has undergone many changes in design and several alterations in status in Canada during the last 70 years, is not formally a flag and the rules of use are not too clear.

This has given rise to the continuing national debate, particularly since the Second World War, which features agitation for a distinctive flag, on one side, and advocacy of the Red Ensign on the other.

In between stands a section of the citizenry possibly a majority — who feel that heat generated by the debate is out of all proportion to the importance of the issue. These people pray merely for a settlement, one way or another, that would put to rest a dispute that at times borders on the fanatical.

The debate now is crystallized, the battle lines more clearly defined, with the declaration by Prime Minister Pearson last week that his givernment will press for a settlement — risking defeat and a general election — with legislation introducing a distinctive flag with the maple leaf as the main motif and the Union Jack removed.

Canada got its Red Ensign by a devious route. An order-in-council of 1924 authorized its use on Canadian buildings abroad, as well as on ships of Canadian registry. On September 25, 1945, an order-in-council — loudly opposed by lovers of the Union Jack — authorized the ensign's use in Canada in place of the Union Jack "until such time as action is taken by Parliament for the formal adoption of a national flag."

Whatever its merits or demerits, the maple leaf at least has the claim of being distinctively Canadian, neutral among the national groups forming the population and traditional in the sense that it has been widely used, in military insignia among others, and even on the badge of the Canadian Legion.

For safety on the farm

IN THE CURRENT twelve months 120,129 persons will be involved in farm accidents; of this total 32,645 will be seriously injured and 2,400 will lose their lives. These and other startling statistics make the situation down on the farm look serious and prove what many experts have said for years — farming can be dangerous.

Agriculture has the dubious reputation of having more accidents than any other industry. Statistics show that one member of every fourth farm family in Canada will be killed or seriously injured by an accident this year. Theoretically, of course, that means that once every four years someone in every farm family will have a serious accident. Shouldn't these facts waken up the farming population to the danger that lurks beside them every step of the way through each day on the farm?

How can it happen? The farm isn't a dangerous place to live. City dwellers long for the peace and quiet of rural living; native-born farm boys away in the big city say there is no life like it. And they are correct, as anyone who has lived on the farm or in a farming community will testify. But why the astounding accident toll?

Simply because we only talk about the good old days now. Horses have turned to horsepower, shovels and forks to stable cleaners and loaders; bringing in the hay — a happy tradition of old, is now a spectacle of modern machines — balers, mowers, rakes, loaders and lifts, not at all like the good old days. And 40 per cent of all farm accidents are caused by machinery. Farming is modern, fast and efficient.

Twenty-seven per cent of the farm accidents reported each year are the result of falls. Of course, the human factor is present in every accident, but in falls it is most evident, with the carelessness or neglect of the farmer illustrated most aptly. Many experts claim the real cause of accidents of any type can be credited to human error or failure. No one can disagree, because in the broad sense it is impossible for machines to operate without man.

What about halting this ever-rising accident rate? Start at the source, is the best way. Everyone on the farm can help by concentrating on everyday farm routine and practice. Each day some improvement can be made in equipment, property and procedures to make the farm a safer place to live.

Viewpoints and perspectives

ONE PROVINCIAL government which is finding the school grants burdensome, even though the taxpayer is complacent, is now investigating the possibility of reducing the cost of building schools. One safeguard would be to pay architects on a maximum fee basis. It is difficult for any human being to be careful in his recommendations for expenditure if it is a fact, as it is in the case of most architects in private practice, that the more that is spent, the more for the architect.

Of Many Things

By Ambrose Hills

Returning home from a trip I found a workload that looked impossible. Frantic to meet deadlines I began batting at all jobs simultaneously, and making about as much progress as a locomotive with each wheel going a different direction.

After a day of this hectic activity, and a tossing night of worry, I remembered something.

My Dad, years ago, had an expression. Whenever he'd see us cramming late for exams or jumping into a job of wood piling in a slap-happy way, he'd caution us with that expression, "Steady does it."

So I slowed down a bit. I called one place to ask if my deadline could be extended a couple of days. "Sure . . . we set it a bit early, because most writers miss deadlines. You don't, but giving an early one is regular practice here." I thanked the gent, and breathed easier.

Then I took the most pressing job and did it; then the next. Pretty soon, the desk was clearing. And then, lo and behold, the deadline I had postponed no longer needed postponing. I sent the manuscript by messenger, with a note explaining that I'd been able to get more done than I'd expected, but again expressed thanks for the patience. Pretty soon the phone rang. "Well, you kept your reputation and made an editor feel good for being patient," he said.

We've been reading lately that they're getting things straightened out with the Canada Pension Plan. Seems to me they'd have had the problems solved long ago if they hadn't jumped at the task so hectically to gain political advantage or out of sheer humanitarian zeal. Governments are slow because they try to be so fast. The Chinese had an expression for it, but I can't recall it right now. If you can't either, you're welcome to my Dad's.

THE HUMAN TOUCH

Computers are getting closer to humans in their operations, according to an interview with the late Dr. Nobert Wiener, published in Reader's Digest, Dr. Wiener, a pioneer in high speed computers, predicted that within 10 years computers will no longer store information on the magnetic tapes they now use, but instead will utilize substances closely resembling human genes.

THIS WEEK & NEXT

Toward Free Trade

By RAY ARGYLE

Canada and the United States are reaching the point of no return in across-the-border trade, judging from events of recent weeks. Canada appears to face only two eventual choices — either a tailspin into economic nationalism, or development of a free trade area with our big neighbor to the south.

RAY ARGYLE

The storm signals flew in the wake of the U.S.-Canada economic conference at which Washington rejected Canada's proposal to raise our tariff on imported auto parts.

The Canadian Government has been zeroing in on the auto industry as the most obvious field in which to cut down our unfavorable trade balance with the U.S.

Although Canada's total world trade picture should be in the black on imports vs. exports this year, we're still running in the red with the U.S., buying about $850 million more than we're selling there.

Of this, imports of auto parts account for about $500 million. Ottawa has sidestepped the issue of higher tariffs by a complicated system of bonuses to Canadian car-makers. They're being allowed a $1 refund on import duties for every $1 of exports. The Big 3 of the auto industry think they can boost profits 15 per cent. and create up to 50,000 extra jobs by making more car parts in Canada. But the scheme is unpopular in the U.S., where it has already caused layoffs.

This is one field in which the U.S. is being hurt. In other fields, Canada is suffering, notably in U.S. restrictions on Canadian lead and zinc and pressures against lumber imports from Canada.

There are a variety of organizations working to improve relations between the two countries.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon's so far fruitless attempts to curb U.S. investment in Canada shook these groups to their roots —but also made Americans take a harder look at Canada's many justifiable complaints.

American ownership of Canadian industry is now so overpowering that it is no longer realistic to talk of buying back Canada. Seventy-six per cent. of foreign investment in Canada is U.S. controlled. This gives Americans control of 95 per cent. of our auto industry, 90 per cent. in rubber, 60 per cent. in mining, 75 per cent. in oil.

An increasing number of thoughtful observers on both sides of the border now favor formation of a customs union or free trade area with complete abolition of across-the-border tariffs.

Many Canadians fear economic union would lead to political annexation, but it is possible that free trade would strengthen our political independence. If it meant expansion of Canadian industry by opening up the vast U.S. market to our manufacturers, such would be the case But it it must also be recognized that free trade might wreck economically unsound Canadian industries now protected by the $1 billion annual tariff bill which import duties cost Canadian consumers.

Free trade into the U.S. would give Canadians the advantage of trading north and south—the Maritimes into New England, central Canada into the Midwest, and Prairie and B.C. trade into the Northwest. Free trade with the U.S. shapes up as the big decision for Canada in the 1960s.

SUGAR AND SPICE

A Good Old Civil War

By BILL SMILEY

What this country needs is a good, five-cent civil war. It might relieve some of the pus and venom that seem to be filling Canadians these days, and get them back to the important things of life, like making money, love and rock gardens.

Symptoms of the national ulcer are everywhere: the ferocity of the Canadian flag argument; the lurking threat of violence in Quebec; the growing defiance of police by youth gangs; the increase in homicidal tactics on our highways.

Bill Smiley

Perhaps a little bloodletting would purge our native land of this tendency to quibble and squabble about everything from the national anthem to the water level in the Great Lakes.

There's also the matter of international prestige. All the big boys—England, France, Russia, the U.S., China—have been through an all-out civil war, and gone on to greater things. In each case the country was so whacked out by the end of the war that everybody stopped bickering and complaining, and got down to the job of becoming a Great Nation.

How can we hope to gain respect of the world if we never go through a testing time of seething hatred, unmentionable cruelties, gallant guerrillas, and all the other ingredients of a good civil war?

How is our national character to be transformed from lumpy porridge to forged steel if we never throw a Molotov cocktail, blow up a bridge, or hurl ourselves, barehanded, against tanks?

We should be ashamed of ourselves. Mumbling and grumbling about the CBC and the NDP and the Red Ensign and O Canada and what's for supper, when we could be stringing up cabinet ministers, dynamiting the Soo locks, and sacking the O'Keefe Centre.

The Irish had a rebellion nearly 50 years ago. It lasted a few days but they've written countless books about it, and every Irishman over the age of 20 swears he was in it, though he'll admit he was only a broth of a boy at the time. Why can't we have some grand traditions like that?

Think of the stories we'd have to hand down to our ancestors. "Yes, Hector, your grandaddy was there, back in '64, when Legion, enraged about the flag, marched on Ottawa. Mayor Charlotte Whitton slowed them for a moment at the ramparts with a tirade of invective, but nothing could stop them. They swarmed into the city, surrounded the government buildings, and fired a salvo of resolutions. One of these happened to pierce the National Debt, and the streets ran red with ink."

Or, "Yes, Clara, I want you always to remember, and to tell your own children, that your father was one of the brave freedom fighters in the Great Rising of '64. He was leading a wave of our gallant lads in a loot . . . uh, liberating attack on the Seagram distilleries, a capitalist stronghold. He was cut down by the fascist firehoses and seriously wounded in the, uh, lower back when he fell heroically on the mickey of rye in his hip pocket."

Only one stipulation. If this necessary catharsis, this national lancing of our abscess, breaks out, and it's brother against brother, father against son, may I be on the same side as my wife?

For Parents Only...

A Weekly Feature of Helpful Hints on Child Training.

(Copyright)

Child Training Goal

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Tommy, come inside this minute and get washed for dinner" Mother's voice is clear and urgent. Her son acts as if he did not hear a word she said — Tommy goes right on playing, Mother repeats her command, raising her voice. Tommy stirs a little. He looks up when mother calls a third time and says defiantly, "No ! No !"

Tommy's mother advances on her rebellious son with a glint of fire in her eye. She murmurs to herself, "If that child of mine says 'No ! No' flatly to me again today — I'll teach him different — or I'll go stark mad !"

A mother of a first child should be prepared for just such an experience as this scene describes. There is a vast number of little boys (and little girls too) — in the two to four year old period who are constantly saying "No ! No !"

This is provoking and puzzling to parents who have enjoyed baby's dependence on their care and the comparative ease in following his routine. Now the mother or father is confronted with his uncompromising negativism expressed by the child's "No ! No !". How best can a parent meet his refusal to obey ?

It is important that a mother should try to put herself in her child's place. The world is an exciting place. He is beginning to get around "under his own steam." All kinds of things fascinate him for short periods of time.

He wants to run his own life and is very opposed to being "bossed". Likely he has had pleasure from seeing what a commotion he can create by defiance. Even at this early stage he is struggling to assert some degree of independence.

Parents need a great store of patience and good humor — and also firmness when dealing with this "No ! No !" period. There are certain things in a child's daily routine such as washing his hands, coming to the meal table, which he must do. But there are certain techniques which make it easier for a child to conform to necessary requests.

Obeying is not easy. But if Tommy had been prepared for the call to dinner, by a five minute warning, he would have been more willing to drop his playthings and come. Tommy's mother would have been better to use the indirect command, "Twelve o'clock. Dinner time now !" and then take Tommy by the hand and start him indoors.

There is nothing to be gained by repeating a command over and over, or by arguing with a child. Tommy's mother should make sure she has his undivided attention before making her request. But once she has given her direction, she must see that he does what he has been told to do.

Parents should avoid unnecessary issues. Most mothers if they will check up on themselves, will discover that they give their child many unnecessary orders. Reducing commands to the minimum is one way to remove the number of opportunities for saying "No ! No !"

A mother will also perceive that sometimes a child says "No ! No !" when he does not know his own mind — almost from habit. He may even mean "yes !"

In a different form from "No ! No", dislike of authority is apparent in an adolescent's development. Parents, if they could only remember, went through these very same phases. So they should not be too much dismayed at the pre-school child's negativism or the teenager's yen for freedom from parental supervision.

A good parent's goal is not a child who never questions authority or who never defies a command. The goal in child training is an individual who in time, will be able to "put on the brakes" and say "No ! No !" to himself or his companions when he knows he should. A "Yes Man" is not a valuable citizen nor a happy person.

Waffles and spices

Here's a waffle recipe with a slightly different blending of ingredients. And, as a result, they hit the happy medium between those that are very crisp and those that are slightly thick and soft.

Another feature of these particular dessert waffles — the judicious use of spices to give a delicate new dimension to the flavor.

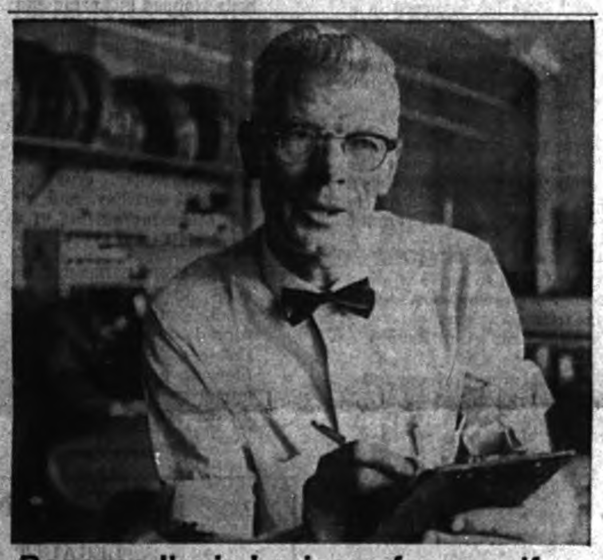

Serve them with syrup if you like. But, for those with more adventurous tastes, provide icing sugar, jam or honey as a topping. You'll be delighted with the combination.

Spice Waffles

(Yield, about four 4-section waffles.)

1¾ Cups once-sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 tablespoon granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon allspice, ¼ teaspoon powdered cloves, 2 eggs (separated), 1 cup evaporated milk, ¾ cup water, ¼ cup peanut or salad oil.

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Beat egg whites until stiff. Set aside. Beat egg yolks, well; stir in evaporated milk, water and oil. Add liquid mixture to dry ingredients, beating just until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in preheated waffle iron until done. Serve hot with butter and syrup, honey or molasses or dusted with icing sugar.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

The important part women play in teaching safety to their families and their communities was pointed up at a recent meeting of the Canadian Highway Safety Council in Toronto by a panel of women from national groups.

The potential force of the million Canadian women who belong to women's organizations was emphasized by Mrs. Burke McInerney of Ottawa, a representative of the Catholic Women's League. "Do you not believe, as I do, that if the women's organizations across Canada got behind the driver education program sponsored by the CHSC, to teach high school students the art of handling a car skilfully and safely, that this course would be on the curriculum of every high school in Canada ?"

* * *

Tailored for Clubs

Mrs. McInerney mentioned several safety programs designed for women's clubs. There is a seatbelt project, the Elmer program for young children, accident prevention in the home, and safety and older citizens.

The National Highway Safety Council, under Eve Gilstorf, director of women's activities, has information on boating and a baby sitters' course, on traffic accident facts, and administers the Elmer program nationally. The council's address is 30 The Driveway, Ottawa.

Several of the other programs were organized by the five provincial safety groups in Vancouver, Edmonton, Regina, Toronto and St. John's, Nfld. A phone book or the local police can give you their address.

Women's groups can plan their own projects, Mrs. McInerney said. A safety project for Christmas gifts and a safety at play and school campaign which resulted in a railing being put around a school stairway, were run by the Marshfield Women's Institute in P.E.I. They won the national Carol Lane award given by the Safety Council to women's groups.

A safe medicine cabinet project was described by Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, Ont., the national W.I. president. A group of mothers set up a 12-month project inspection of one another's homes, checking medicine cabinets for safety. She said that by the time the year was over they had all grown so conscious of taking safety precautions with medicines it had become a habit.

Keep Farms Safe

Mrs. Haggerty stressed the need for safety in the country. "The country woman . . . must take a firm stand that her boys are not allowed to handle any power machine until they have reached the required age and until they have been educated in the correct methods of operation and have respect for the power that is being placed in their control."

She said some provinces run workshops on safe electrical wiring and the operation of appliances and equipment used in the operation of farms.

All of the several women's groups which submitted the 33 entries in the Carol Lane competition wrote: "It takes a month or more to plan a safety program. It takes a little longer to get it on the rails. It takes a year to win a safety award. It takes one second to destroy life with one accident."

Two outfits for price of one

These little girls show how turnabout tactics make two outfits from one. The apron skirt of this white cotton broadcloth dress can be worn as shown at left or reversed to red, white and blue stripes for a different effect. Bias band stripes accent the neck, sleeves, and skirt of this versatile dress.

Poached halibut with savory sauce

If you can poach an egg, you can prepare fresh halibut to perfection.

Poaching is not only a simple method of preparing this delicious fish — it's the method preferred by Canada's finest chefs. . . The reason ? Spring halibut's fresh, delicate flavor needs only simple preparation: gentle simmering in a savory broth. For further accent, serve with your favorite hot seafood sauce — we suggest hot Lobster Newburg Sauce.

Poached Halibut

Allow 2 to 3 servings per pound of halibut fillets. (If frozen, do not thaw before cooking). Bring poaching liquid to boiling point. Wrap halibut in cheesecloth. Lower into liquid and simmer over low heat.

Cook only about 10 minutes per inch thickness, or 20 minutes per inch thickness if frozen. Halibut should separate with a fork when done. Lift from pan with large spatula and drain before unwrapping. Serve piping hot with Lobster Newburg Sauce.

Poaching liquid: Combine 2 cups water, ½ sliced onion, 3 peppercorns, 1 whole allspice, 1½ tbsp. lemon juice, 1 bay leaf, ½ tsp. salt.

Lobster Newburg Sauce:

2 Tbsp. butter or margarine, 2 tbsp. flour, 1 cup milk, 1 cup cooked or canned lobster meat, 2 tbsp. cream, 1 egg yolk, ½ tsp. salt.

Melt butter. Stir in flour, cooking until it begins to turn golden. Add milk. Cook, stirring until thickened. Add lobster. Cook until heated, stirring occasionally. (Don't mash lobster.) Add cream mixed with yolk. Bring just to boiling point, stirring carefully. Add salt. Makes 2 cups.

Dear Doris

Canadian social worker Doris Clark invites you to write her about your problem. She answers letters of general interest in this column but can't undertake personal replies.

DEAR DORIS: I am a 17-year-old girl, seemingly normal, have dates, go to school.

Four years ago, in grade eight, I had a lovely woman teacher. I absolutely worshipped her. I found myself rushing to school, early, so that I might catch a glimpse of her as she went into the school.

Well, I suppose that was a reasonable form of hero worship, but to this day I actually love this lady. I serve her sometimes in my part-time job at school, and nearly go crazy when I do.

Why do I have such feelings?

DREAMING OF HER

DEAR DREAMING: She is meeting a need you have felt for someone to idealize. Be reassured. You are not homosexual.

As you mature more you will come to recognize that this woman is human just like the rest of us, and that a human-type, companionable regard is more flattering to her than cloud-nine heroine worship.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: I have been having a half breed boy—in early twenties—at my home. He is a talented artist and I have been trying to encourage him.

Now I have been warned not to have him around because he has been in serious trouble with the law. I made inquiries and found that he has been in jail three times. He always seemed to be respectable in every way.

Please advise me.

UNCLE BILL

DEAR UNCLE BILL: What's the rest of the story? I'd want to know when, and for what, he served jail sentences.

If he has served his time and has turned over a new leaf, his past record should not hang over his head for the rest of his life. If he is unrepentant, that's different.

You could get sound advice about this young man by going to the nearest branch of The John Howard Society, a Canadian organization which helps to rehabilitate ex-prisoners.

* * *

DEAR DORIS: My trouble is mostly money and a domineering husband. He is full of self-pity because of an operation he had, yet there is nothing I can do that satisfies him.

He has run up debts until there is no money for decent clothes, yet he won't let me accept a job I've been offered. We jump when he says. He is very sex inclined and I have no inclination, so he accuses me of having someone else. I never have.

I am so fed up that many times I've gone in a corner in the basement and cried.

SICK AND TIRED

DEAR SICK: Climb up out of the basement and turn your tears into concrete action.

Your husband is a bully —and should be stood up to! If you can arrange about your school-age children, take the job. Since he is now well enough, require some co-operation from him. Even a worm will turn!

Canadian Average: 37.05 miles per gallon

We've always claimed that the Volkswagen 1200 gets 38 miles to a gallon of regular gas.

But sticking to our figure hasn't been easy.

Some customers say they get 45 mpg. Others report in the low thirties. (It seems to depend on how and where they drive.)

So we decided to settle the question once and for all. We sent questionnaires to VW owners across Canada.

The results are above. (You can double check our average simply by adding the figures together and dividing by 144) — So much for gas.

How about oil?

The average is 1500 miles without adding a drop.

Tires? The average is 35,000 miles to a set.

Trade-in? The average is better than average because Old Faithful never goes out of fashion.

There's one more thing we should tell you.

The average Canadian doesn't buy a Volkswagen.

But then who wants to be average?

Children on farm holiday

Holidays spent on the farm are usually happy and healthy; but the accidents that happen there are not so happy. A visiting child will enjoy the machinery, the equipment and the animals, but if he is a city youngster he should not have freedom. He should not be allowed to get involved with the cattle or horses — the gentle kine are not all angelic in temper and the horses may not be used to children. Even a small boy who has spent his life on the farm should not be allowed to operate machinery, including a tractor; a visitor should be made to keep a respectful distance from any of these dangers.

For archaeology field study

A summer field school for Canadian student archaeologists is being held this summer by the National Parks Branch on historic Ile-aux-Noix, a 210-acre island in the Richelieu River near St. Jean, Que. Ten students of archaeology from various Canadian universities will be enrolled in the first session of the school, which begins about June 1. They will be paid wages and the costs of accommodation and meals by the federal government. For three months the students will work under the supervision of professional archaeologists, learning the techniques of excavation, surveying, artifacts recovery, photography and report-writing.

Ile-aux-Noix was selected as the site for the school because of its great historic potential. Champlain is believed to have visited it in 1609, and it served the French as a defence position against Iroquois raids on the settlements of the Eastern Townships and Montreal. It was captured and garrisoned by British troops in 1760 and occupied briefly by an invading American army in 1775. Fort Lennox, a stone fortress which occupies a quarter of the island, was built by the British during and after the War of 1812 and since 1921 the fort and the island have been a National Historic Park.

TREAD 41 7.57 6.00/13 NO TRADE NEEDED Other sizes at equally low prices — see chart

TREAD 41: Twin-Ply Nylon. Built only in sizes where large-volume sales make it feasible to employ high-speed automated equipment that ensures uniform quality at costs previously thought impossible. Our lowest prices!

TREAD 51 Tubeless-Whitewall 10.39 6.00/13 NO TRADE NEEDED Other sizes at equally low prices — see chart

TREAD 51: A beautiful, low-cost whitewall of the same quality and construction as Tread 41 above. New streamlined design. Exceptional value.

TREAD 90 4 FULL PLIES 10.87 6.70/15 NO TRADE NEEDED See Chart

TREAD 90: Quality and service comparable to Tread 41 above, though only the popular 6.70/15 and 7.50/14 sizes now remain to meet the ever diminishing demand for the full 4-ply tire. Feels stiff by comparison with the newer Twin-Ply Tread 41, and with tires that are now standard equipment on most new cars.

TREAD 43 "Float-On-Air" TO CLEAR! 10.70 UP See Chart

TREAD 43: "Float-on-Air" Twin-Ply "Toughie". Double ply, double strength "Float-on-Air" construction. Very popular since its introduction two years ago. Designed particularly for softer, cooler, safer-running, high-speed highway travel. Now at reduced prices that represent amazingly good value.

TREAD 43 Old Heavy Style 4 FULL PLIES 14.45 7.50/14 Other sizes at equally low prices — see chart

TREAD 43: 4-Ply "Toughie". The same super-traction tread as tire above but has four full plies of regular Du Pont Nylon cord instead of double plies of double-strength super nylon. The 4-ply "Toughie" is not as soft-riding as the "Float-on-Air" tire, nor does it run as cool. But if any appreciable amount of driving is done on gravel or rough back roads it would be more economical to sacrifice the "Float-on-Air's" softer ride and install the Tread 43 "Toughie" with full 4 plies instead.

TREAD 47 Tubeless-Whitewall 4 FULL PLIES 14.50 7.50/14 Other sizes at equally low prices — see chart

TREAD 47: 4 Full Plies of Nylon—tough, shock-resistant construction. Exceptional value, but available in limited quantities only.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

Most of us are convinced of the merits of early cut hay. We know the cows will eat more of it, we have seen the results at the milk pail, and we have found that we can cut back on grain feeding.

But many of us seriously question if we can afford the risk of starting to cut before "haying weather" is here. We fear that we shall lose more than we gain if rain comes on a young succulent crop lying in the swath.

With this doubt in mind, an interesting experiment was carried out to test the effects of weather on early cut hay. A field of good hay was divided into three parts. The first section was cut in early June, cured and stored under ideal conditions. The second was cut the same day, but left out in the weather. Irrigation sprinklers were turned on for six days to simulate rain. The third section was not cut until July, but was perfectly saved.

The results? The weathered, early cut "spoiled" hay was still decidedly superior to the late cut well saved hay. The ideal hay had 67% Digestible Dry Matter, the weathered hay 57% and the late cut only 52%.

Last Wednesday, I made a few calls in the Chateauguay Valley.

Jerry Duncan was busy converting his weed sprayer to handle Atrazine for corn. He had bought larger nozzles, so that he could put on 30 gallons per acre. But he found he would also have to replace the 100-mesh screens with coarser, 50-mesh ones; the powder was building up on the screens.

He had a six-roller nylon pump. He expected the wear from the abrasive material to be heavy but figured it would be cheaper to replace the rollers in two or three years than to trade it in now on a piston type. It was rated at 8 gallons per minute — no more than enough to supply the nozzles and have some left over for by-pass agitation.

While I was at Bill Stevenson's, two aircraft came in to land on his pasture. The Stevenson farm is south of Ormstown, near the U.S. border. Curiosity took me over to talk to the pilots of the yellow biplanes.

I learned that this Air Service has been hired by the Canada Dept. of Agriculture to spray for the larvae of the Gypsy moth. Apparently it is part of an international effort to contain this destructive pest in an area east of the Hudson and south of the Canadian border.

The Gypsy moth is a native of Europe. It was brought in to North America for research purposes 90 years ago. It accidentally escaped.

The caterpillars become full grown early in July, and may then be three inches long and as thick as a pencil. They are brown and hairy, the hairs being somewhat clustered on the back; they bear five pairs of blue spots, followed by six pairs of red ones. They love apple leaves and the like.

Have you noticed how yellow rocket has blossomed out during the past week? It is that other yellow weed in hayfields that isn't dandelions. Some people take it for an early mustard. But an easy difference is the deeply-lobed, lower leaves.

There is nothing much you can do about yellow rocket at this time of year. Clipping above the grass may stop some of it from going to seed. And certainly, if there are only a few plants, pull them and carry them right off the field.

But this fall, on one of those warm September or October days, plan to spray with 2,4-D at 12 to 16 oz. acid per acre. If you want to save the legumes, you will have to use 2,4-DB (e.g., Embutox) at 16 oz. to 20 oz. This spray will catch many other weeds, too — dandelions, buttercup, blueweed and others.

Yellow rocket is a biennial or short-lived perennial. The fall spray catches the seedling plants which will produce seed-heads next year. It is a comparatively new weed for us, and spreading rapidly. It is worth the effort to keep it off the farm.

Ecstasy outdoors; stress in suburbia; a suggestion for intelligent voting

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

Yes, even as I said, back at the old farm. . . I must say I have seldom seen it looking more beautiful. The Chinese are a people who name years, the Year of the Dragon, etc. This should be the Year of the Violet. Never have I seen such a variety, and a profusion. Blue violets, yellow violets, white violets, in bunches, along banks, beside brooks, bordering a stone wall. Something appealing about violets, although not as much so as about pansies. Pansies look like kittens' faces. The apple blossoms are just coming out at the farm, but the cherry blossoms are frothing the fields and woods everywhere. The trees are that virginal green that they achieve only briefly in our springless climate, and the fiddleheads of the ferns crook at us from amid the rotting weeds of yesteryear. A lovely time, spring, a time of awakening and rebirth.

* * *

It is also, as I have commented before, the time of housecleaning. Recently, we spent the greater part of a week-end vacuuming the old house. It must have been surprised. Never before had it experienced the efficient and noisy attentions of a vacuum cleaner. It amused me as I worked, to think of the two women who had formerly occupied the house. How laboriously they must have gone about with broom, mop, and a pail of hot water. Not that I did not work; I sometimes think that hauling the vacuum cleaner about, lifting the wands so that one can reach the peak of the beams above one's head, is harder work than the more primitive methods. Also, if one could not reach the beams, one could leave them dirty.

The head of the house was busy in the garden; he has hopefully planted raspberry shoots, and strawberry plants, as well as the more usual lettuce, peas, beans. There will be no strawberries until another year. About the raspberries there seems to be some hesitancy to pronounce. But both, we are told, will spread all over the place if not firmly restrained. Well, we have plenty of acreage, but not all as fertile as the plot near the house. Between times, we visited the neighbors, or lay exhausted on the couches, luxuriating in the unaccustomed freedom from bells ringing, the raucous street noises, and yelling children. After a spell at the farm, we return with extreme reluctance to the suburbs, but with enough renewed strength to endure for another week or ten days.

In the suburbs, we once more plunge into the daily stresses and strains, of which the newscasts are not the least. As we write, the whole country is exercised over the choice of a flag. Not a one to be unduly disturbed by the bizarre activities of politicians, this time we were sufficiently nauseated by the design recently shown in the papers, to write the Prime Minister that in our opinion, the proposed flag was puerile in design, and peculiar in color. I added some other unkind remarks about appeasement being extended to the English as well as the French, and said I thought the ordinary voter should be heard on this question. I know of two other women who are writing in similar vein, and without trying to pressure anybody, I point out that unless the ordinary citizen makes his thoughts known, the Government cannot know the views of the people of the country. Unless, of course, a referendum is held on such a matter, affecting every one of us. One of the women writing the Prime Minister is infuriated by what she terms the 'undemocratic method used to cram this thing down our throats'. I'm not for this approach either, but if we all sit silent, how is the Prime Minister to gauge the feeling of the country? Use your democratic right to protest, and be thankful we have the right.

A former pupil of ours turned up at the tea hour this week. She now lives in Michigan on a small farm, where she and her husband live cosily with an Arabian stallion, fourteen pheasants, assorted small fry, such as cats and dogs. This kind of life suits her, but come time to retire for her husband, they propose to live in Scotland, where things are quieter. According to her, this segregation thing is dividing the country rapidly, with a swing toward segregation. She told of an amiable negress who works for a friend, and works happily, asking nothing of life but the right to live comfortably, which she does, except for the activities of her husband, who is an ardent member of a well-known society vocal about negro rights. He insisted she miss a day's work, and its pay, to spend the time in a large department store shouldering the whites. This kind of infantile reasoning seems incredible, but I have full confidence in the integrity of my source. The end result of that day's activity was to leave the poor woman with less money, and to ensure that the whites pushed about vote for the segregationist politician. This kind of thing is silly; as for me, I think that all youths come to voting age should have to pass an examination in civics and geography, irrespective of color, or tongue. Some of our own young people would not qualify, and great hordes of our French-speaking compatriots, and, I venture to guess, an army of negroes. But we might at least get an intelligent vote.

Politics, politics, groan my feminine readers (judging by the numbers who approach us with kind remarks about the column, we are more popular with the males than the females) so we stop the political chatter, although we long to say a few things about the reluctant Eskimo.

* * *

Gardening, housecleaning, politics, tea-parties, reading, that's our life at present. The reading is concerned with St. Francis who has always fascinated me, because of his association with animals. The particular biography which occupies me does not devote much time to St. Francis' dealings with animals and birds. But it does appear that the gentle saint may have been the first bird-waether. I must remember that when I feel an imp of laughter rising in me when a friend gives bird-imitations at dinner. The story I like best is of a family of robin nestlings that the brothers around St. Francis had adopted. All went well for some time but then the biggest of the brood got above himself and behaved very badly toward his brothers and sisters. St. Francis was saddened; he felt that the robin would come to a bad end. "The disturber of his brethren went up on a vessel of water to drink, and immediately fell in, and was drowned." A fearful warning to all wicked robins!
