Junior golfers enjoy corn roast

A corn roast and sandwiches at the golf course last week, as the juniors enjoy this happy occasion on their closing tournament day. The outdoor kitchen was set up at the "Sugar Bush" shelter on the new course. Seen here satisfying the hearty appetites of the young participants are Mrs. Joyce Stephens (at the table, left) Mrs. Rita Fillingham (Junior chairman), and Mrs. Doris Gravel at the outdoor fireplace. Prizes were handed out to the junior players at this closing event.

Scrutiny into school-book dealings and students' year-end failure rate

Quebec this Week — by the Canadian Press

Last January, a Royal Commission study of the province's school book trade revealed that some education officials were members of bodies which authorized the purchase of books in which they had a hand.

The "conflicts-of-interest" declaration was made against some of Quebec's top educationalists. Highest of these was Roland Vinette, secretary of the old Public Education Department and of its Roman Catholic Committee. The report singled him out particularly for "lacking judgment and spirit of initiative" and for allowing such practices to continue, "if not expressly, at least tacitly."

Shocked, Mr. Vinette appealed personally to Premier Lesage requesting that his conduct be re-examined. Moved by the appeal, Premier Lesage appointed a Civil Service Commission to go into the whole thing all over again. Now, the Civil Service inquiry has been completed. Their announced conclusions were the same as those of the Royal Commission.

In the strongest terms, they advised Mr. Vinette to cut all ties with textbook publishers and with textbook-approved bodies, or resign. "There existed a strange, even false system of preparation and approval of curricula and textbooks for schools," they wrote. The civil service commission recommended the unconditional dismissal of Gerard Filteau, technical adviser to the Public Education Department, which was replaced last month by a cabinet-level Quebec Education Department. Both commissions found Mr. Filteau guilty of plagiarism.

Of the 12 civil servants named in the original Royal Commission report, the Civil Service Commission reprimands 10, and clears one. It exonerated Marie-Jeanne Davignon, secretary of the old Elementary Schools Commission, because she wasn't employed by the government in 1956 when books by her were adopted.

Meanwhile, the Federation of School Boards of Quebec has launched a province-wide inquiry into the reasons for a deplorable failure rate by students in year-end examinations.

In a speech to the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants, Premier Lesage said governments should take guidance from the dynamism of private enterprise, although the two systems are difficult to compare.

He said the government of Quebec resembles "a huge enterprise with bright possibilities, but in need of plenty of capital."

Police warning on observance of school bus law

With the re-opening of schools next week, motorists are reminded of section 36D of the Provincial Highway code, which states: "When a motor vehicle overtakes or meets an autobus used in transporting school children, duly identified as such, which is stationary to take on or discharge children, the driver of such vehicle shall not pass or drive beyond such autobus until it is again put in motion, nor shall he do so until the children have boarded the autobus or left it and reached the side of the road. Such autobus must be equipped with signals by means of which the person in charge shall give warning as long as the children are not in safety."

Cpl. Dallaire, Q.P.P., wishes to inform all motorists that the patrol officers will be on the alert for infractions of this law, as they have been in the past.

Sunday noise from recreation spot disturbs East Ward

East Ward, Lachute,
August 31, 1964

To the Editor:

A survey taken early Sunday afternoon would have shown East Ward residents checking their radios to see what was producing the rise in decibels. Further investigation pointed to the swimming pool at "Le Parc Richelieu" as the source. Now, fellow citizens, I am glad the swimmers subsequently raced in a bilingual atmosphere, but is there any need for the surrounding neighborhood to be subjected to more amplification all Sunday evening, featuring drums and dance music? Moreover, due to a property of sound transmission, acoustics were even more resounding at the eastern boundary of the town. Eleven-thirty p.m. and loudspeakers were still blaring. I was concerned for those parents who tried to put children to bed, for those ill, and for those citizens who prefer a normal background noise level for sleeping.

I would direct this letter, Mr. Editor, particularly to administrators of outdoor functions — that they be carried out in an atmosphere of consideration for others, and that this be taught, by example, to junior citizens.

Dr. Z. Saindon fills council seat for west ward

Contenders for the west ward council vacancy staged an earnest contest for election last Monday. Dr. Zoel Saindon won the seat (No. 2) by a 22-vote majority against Russell Murray. Both were newcomers as aspirants for municipal honors.

Dr. Saindon was elected to complete the term of the late Ald. J. O. Desjardins, whose recent death left the vacancy on the Council. The term will conclude in two months' time.

The votes were as follows:

Dr. Z. Saindon	—	202
Russell Murray	—	180
Ballots rejected	—	4

Two traffic deaths ruled accidental

At the city hall last Thursday evening, inquests were held under District Coroner Dr. J. C. MacKimmie into two recent highway fatalities. By co-operation of Town Council the hearings were conducted in the council chamber, the auditorium being occupied that evening for entertainment purposes.

Accidental death was the verdict given by the jurors after hearing evidence in the case of Miss Brenda Bangs, a 19-year-old student nurse at Hawkesbury, who was killed while driving with four companions on the Brownsburg - St. Philippe highway on the night of July 25.

Passengers in the car — Everett Kennedy, 23, of Grenville, who had been four days unconscious in hospital following the crash; Ross McLeod, 21, of L'Orignal; Ruth Barton, 19, of Vankleek Hill; and the driver, Euclide Lemay, 26, of Ste. Therese — were among the witnesses all testifying to the movements of the party prior to the accident, which occurred when the car hurtled from the road at a curve 1½ miles south of Brownsburg. Q.P.P. Cpl. J. P. Dallaire, in charge of the Lachute headquarters, gave evidence for the investigating officer, who was unavoidably absent. The presumption was that the driver was proceeding too fast for adequate control on a tricky road; and as a result of the road descriptions, there was a rider attached to the verdict, recommending that white lines be extended over the curves and humps of this section, that signs be erected to draw attention to its hazards, and that the stretch be designated a 40 m.p.h. zone, instead of 50 as at present.

In the recent death of Kenneth R. Stevenson, of St. Andrews and Montreal, who met his death on Highway 8 in a collision with a Boyd's Express transport on August 6, a verdict of accidental death was given by the same jury.

Evidence was heard from the transport driver, Normand Jetté, 28, who stated that Mr. Stevenson appeared slumped over the side of the Triumph sports car which headed towards the heavy truck, and although the truck driver swerved his vehicle aside, he was unable to avoid the collision. The victim's son, John Stevenson, testified that the sports car was in excellent order, thus outruling mechanical causes. A passing motorist, Percy Tomalty, of Montreal, and the investigating police officer, Agent Alain Robert, QPP, also testified. There was discussion concerning certain parts of the car having been removed from the pavement to the roadside, before arrival of the police. A report on the autopsy performed on the victim was also given.

Chairman of the jury was J. O. Portelance, who duly announced the accident verdict.

Dominion Store now open in new and modern quarters

Thursday morning marks the Dominion Store's opening of its brand new premises in Lachute. Established in this town for nearly 40 years, this is actually a removal to bigger and better quarters, with ultra-modern improvements in structure and in merchandising facilities. In the new block at the Bradford site, corner of Barron Avenue and Main, the store is airy, well lighted and double the floorspace of its former location.

In the basement of this store are facilities essential to operation but not in prominent view — a food-freezer room, a refrigeration department for perishables, heating and air-conditioning plants, a modern cafeteria and washrooms for the staff, and extensive warehousing with conveyors from the delivery door and also to the display area.

The manager, Damase Audette, is well known. In the service of Dominion Stores for 23 years, he has served here as manager for the past 12 years. His previous experience was in Ste. Adele and what is now the city of Chomedey. (Shoppers will recall the names of previous managers here, in chronological order — Guy St. Onge, Eugène Miron, Bert McDonald and Wilfrid Raymond.)

A complete staff has been engaged at the new Dominion store. Managers of the key departments are: groceries, Marcel Boyer; fruits and vegetables, Gaston Bastien; meat, André Proulx; merchandizing, Miss Claudette Barbeau. Accountant is Miss Monique Filion, and the head cashier, Miss Nicole Boyer.

Drowning victim is student from West Indies

Samuel K. Robinson, a 32-year-old Trinidad student, was drowned while swimming with friends near Montfort. The mishap occurred Sunday afternoon. According to investigating Q.P.P. officers, the victim was swimming, when he suddenly disappeared. His friends immediately searched for him, and he was brought to the surface within five minutes. In spite of artificial respiration performed by residents and a nearby doctor, the victim failed to respond.

The body was transported to the local morgue, and funeral arrangements will be made by the British High Commissioner.

Heads provincial trade group

L.-Jos. Dumais, of Lachute, was elected president of the Fuel Oil Dealers Association of Quebec at its annual meeting held recently in Ste. Agathe.

Sawmill blaze at Christieville

Morin Heights — A fire at André Legault's sawmill at Christieville on the evening of August 24 caused heavy loss. When Morin Heights firemen arrived at the scene the building was burning fiercely and all they could do was to direct their hoses on nearby structures, to quell any spreading of the fire.

The loss was augmented by the burning of a vehicle in the barn. There was also a couple of tons of hay, trucks, buggies and wagons.

It was believed the fire was started by combustion of the hay.

Fire Chief Ed Morin, of Morin Heights, reports his crew were on the site from 7 p.m. until 10.45 p.m.

Labor Day postal services

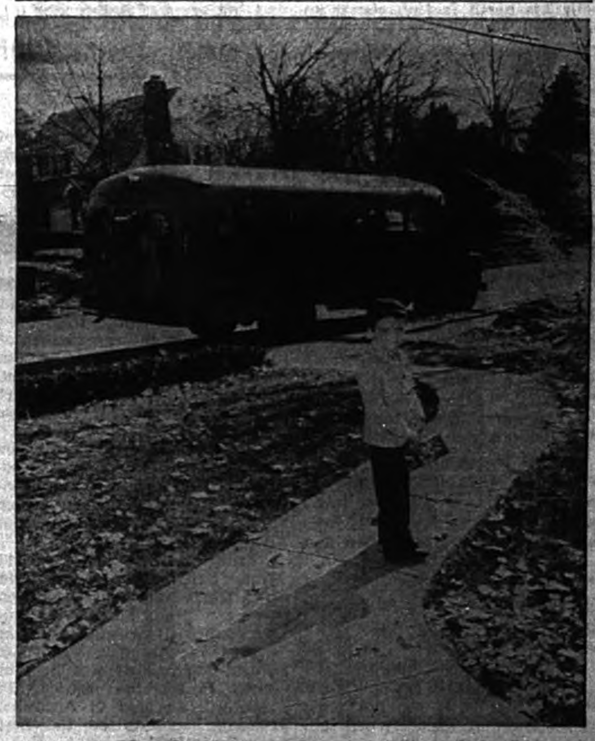

The postmaster at Lachute advises there will be no service at the wickets on Labor Day, Monday, September 7.

However, the lobby will be open for access to mail boxes from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

There will be no door-to-door or rural delivery on Labor Day, but all mails received at the local office will be despatched as usual.

Traffic patrol

Provincial Police here, as well as throughout the province, will be on duty with extra patrols again this holiday weekend. Motorists are reminded that the police are on the highway to enforce laws and save lives, not to issue infraction "tickets" which mean fines.

All alone and off to school

A momentous occasion in this young life is the first day at school! New clothes, a haircut, and well-scrubbed cleanliness are parts of the ritual — and a few glistening tears may betray an inward trepidation this youngster would not readily admit. . . A big day — in a big world — it happens to thousands, as this season comes around.

Plans pending for Lions' arena

At the re-opening meeting of the Lions Club this week, the new president, Mozart Carriere, made known the fact that plans for a covered arena this coming winter are well in hand.

President Carrière is chairman of the committee on this project, and has spent much effort this past summer, preparing the way.

In answer to public enquiries, he stated that plans, estimates and details of financing would be ready for approval of the club members. Their finalization depends now on the site of the structure. At present there are two alternatives, and developments in the nearest future should clear the way for a decision on this point. Visualized at this stage is an artificial rink completely enclosed with roof and bare walls.

The public will be informed as plans materialize.

BCG vaccination clinics in County

The anti-tuberculosis vaccination clinics in this County started Monday at the times and places announced. These clinics will continue as listed hereunder.

Eligible and recommended for BCG vaccination are children from one month to six years of age. BCG reduces the danger of Tb. infection by 80 percent. It is, moreover, absolutely harmless and causes no reaction.

Municipal library for Hawkesbury's Confed'n project

Hawkesbury — It has been officially announced that a municipal library will be Hawkesbury's project for the Centenary of Confederation observance.

The town corporation plans to take over the Rutherford building on Main at the corner of James Street. The ground floor will be occupied as temporary town offices, while the upper floor will be adapted to the requirements of a public library.

The announcement followed a recent discussion between the town council and the library committee. There had been disagreement as to which authority should occupy the ground floor quarters. Council took the initiative — and the preference — informing the library group that the town was ready to purchase the Rutherford building, taking advantage of a Centenary loan. The town corporation would be owners of the building.

If the library committee did not agree, however, the town would abandon the idea, and give an alternative 50 cents per capita ($4,300) towards a library. . . The library authorities accepted the proposal on the Rutherford building.

Museum visitors, month of August

Visitors at Carillon Museum in the month of August numbered 1,488 persons — according to Mr. Alvin Heatlie, the curator at this increasingly popular centre. The visitors included many tourists, from the U.S., the Canadian West and the Pacific Coast. All were favorably impressed, and some, familiar with these parts, wondered if Argenteuil residents were fully appreciative of this mecca of local history.

The August registration of visitors sets a new record. The number is over half the volume of visitors at the Museum during the entire season last year.

Regular hours for visiting are from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. daily; however, Mr. and Mrs. Heatlie are ever ready to open the premises to tourists passing through. It is anticipated a number of school groups will visit this interesting site before the season ends.

Reopening of Retarded School

The Lachute School for Retarded Children, 249 Mary Street, will re-open its classes on Wednesday, September 9. New applicants for the classes are requested to call LO 2-6534 — or after the school opening, LO 2-8265 (during school hours).

Theatrical show for Brownsburg 'Loisirs'

Federation president sends message to Quebec workers on Labour Day

Additional to a Labour Day message from the Quebec Federation of Labour president, Roger Provost, featured on page 6 of this issue, the following sentiments are expressed in Mr. Provost's text:

"Just as the people of Quebec as a whole have condemned the violent and the trouble-brewers, so we believe will they reject appeals for trade union separatism by those who thrive on difficulty, and care not which or how many drums they beat at a time.

"Time itself does not belong to narrow-minded fanaticism nor to sporadic sincerity. The wave of extremism we witnessed has attained its culminating point. The outgoing surf will carry with it those opportunists who exploited it for their own ends.

"It is in a spirit of moderation, therefore, that we intend to use the strength that the QFL has gained for itself; or at least which it became aware of while combatting the first version of Bill 54. We rejoice in the fact that we were not compelled to use it against the government; we will never use it to bully anyone. We are glad, however, that the Quebec workers feel it is at their disposal. We know they will employ it wisely in the service of the common good and society as a whole.

"I wish at this time to extend best wishes to all the workers of this province, be they unionized or not, whether their work is manual or intellectual, whether they are in factory, farm or office. I wish each one a happy Labour Day, and I trust that in the year to come all will benefit in full measure from our struggles of the year just ended."

QPP promotion

J. P. Dallaire, officer-in-charge of the local Provincial Police detachment, on Tuesday received word of his promotion to the rank of corporal, effective from May 1 last. Cpl. Dallaire has worked in various phases of police work throughout the province and has recently completed several training courses.

Five injured

A Monday evening accident near Harrington, on Route 31, resulted in five young Arundel residents being taken to hospitals in Lachute and St. Jerome. Details are scarce, but it has been reported the mishap was a head-on crash between a car and a truck, and that one person was in serious condition.

"ARGENTEUIL OUTDOORS"

By BOB ATCHISON

It has been a long time in coming — but at last, some hope is held for the control of pollution from soap detergents. For years the manufacturers have been telling us these synthetic soaps are not to blame — and we have been pardonably skeptical. The Shell Oil Company has been engaged in research on this problem, and they seem to have come up with the answer. "Alcohols for soft detergents", is their solution — and full scale production of this will take place early in the new year at their Houston plant. These synthetic primary alcohols are expected to be used in the manufacture of fully "biodegrable" dishwashing detergents. The prospect of this, and the good that will come of it, cannot be imagined. If all manufacturers are forced to use this solution in the making of their soaps, then we'll be well away combatting pollution from detergents. Of course, there will still be the problem of rectifying already polluted areas. And this will be another tough job.

I heard of a real hunting story. It seems some of the locals are trying to make sure of a deer this year, planting salt-licks and then covering them with syrup. Let's hope the other animals get to it before the deer. . . I have also heard of some of the boys starting to spread corn on the Ottawa, to attract the ducks. Hope they get a real miserable cold out of this. That isn't what I really want to say, but after all —.

Taking in the gun show the other day in Montreal, I was really surprised at the number of Army guns for sale. These are the old standbys that have had no care whatever at any time; as a matter of fact they are sold to these dealers as junk, then put together. If the bolts, etc., fit, then it's more by luck than planned procedure. As you will understand, these distributors are not real, regular dealers; just out for the fast dollar. It's strange that they are permitted to sell these potential killers without any restrictions.

Our summer birds are getting ready to flit southward, so this looks like a good time to get your feeders ready for the coming winter. If yours are anything like mine, they will have to be overhauled. Maybe you could make some more, and believe me, this will be more than repaid by the bird companions. There are a great number of chickadees in the bush these days, and I think we'll be lucky to keep many of them around next winter. Not too many jays are to be seen; with the foliage on the trees still very heavy, it is almost impossible to spot them anyway. As most of you know, you have only to approach close to any jay and it starts howling to high heaven. Ducks are still scarce, and unless the flights are very heavy from the north, I'm afraid our duck shooting will be more of a miss than a hit. We did have a few around the North River, but early hunters on the scene have minimized the ducks. This group have been going up the river very late at night, shots can subsequently be heard — so this is where they have gone.

Numerous enquiries are still received about the health of our canary; believe it or not, he is going strong. He is almost bald on the head, and his wing feathers are worn down to almost a frazzle. You see, he uses these to balance himself on the gravel, which is a very effective abrasive. Naturally his perch is low, almost on the cage floor; since he cannot fly at all, he has to have a perch on which to rest sometimes. But the thing that amazes us most is his ability to find the feed and water. My ritual of giving him his sugar is unchanged; and how he can smell this sugar across the other side of the cage is beyond comprehension. Try and imagine a bird, totally blind, walking on the cage floor without a miss — feeding himself, even trying to wash himself. . . Truly, we still can learn from Nature.

The Ottawa River has been giving up some good catches of doré; I believe they're the best I have seen this year. A few odd pike are also hitting, but the real catch is the doré. . . Lake Louisa is still the best lake in the area, the most consistent at any rate. Silver Lake has been disappointing, and I imagine the rest are the same way. Even the North River is bad. I have no idea why the fishing should be so poor. Maybe the rain washed too much feed into the streams and lakes. Or maybe they are just fed up with us anglers trying to fool them!

I encounter a good number of youngsters in my travels, and really, the number that haven't the faintest idea on how a gun should be handled is frightening. Not too long ago, Father used to try and show all the youngsters the hows and whys of firearms. With more and more people taking up this sport, and with the tragic loss of life in accidents, you would think all young folk would have had this opportunity. Maybe Dads are too busy trying to earn that elusive living — or maybe they're just too lazy.

I know it's early yet — but have you given a thought to your snowshoes since you put them away? Now is the time to give them a good soaking with saddle soap. All your leather could be advantageously treated right now; for instance, your hunting boots will in all probability be hard as rocks. That is, if you didn't get them with paper to hold their shape. That is, if you didn't get some neats-foot oil and really work on softening them. When they are nice and supple, pack them with paper and they will be o.k. for your hunting trip. All your straps, boots, and even laces, should be looked after in this way before it comes time to use them.

And as regards your guns, any repairs to be done should be looked after now — as I'm sure you are doing. It's not much fun having your favorite gun out of action because you were too lazy to do it before. Check the action; this includes the bolt, firing pin, etc. This also applies to lever-action types. It also would be a good idea to dress up the woodwork on the gun; it probably needs it, badly. Maybe scrape all the varnish off with very fine sandpaper or glass, then polish it with linseed oil. This makes a terrific job, if done right.

Some of you will be thinking of putting your boat up for another season, right after the Labor Day holiday. Usually you end up by not taking it in until the ice has formed around the edges of a lake, then you are in trouble. I know you still have lots of time, but a word to the wise is sufficient. At least, think about it.

Water gala held at Richelieu Park

Favorable weather Sunday afternoon and evening attracted a large crowd of competitors and spectators to participate in a swimming meet and water gala at the Richelieu Park swimming pool.

At 2.30 the program began with swimming competitions for children, teens and parents. These competitions were limited to members of the swimming club and members with passes. Trophies and ribbons were awarded to the winners of the races.

Following are the results of the competitions:

Girls' Races

7 & 8 yrs. — Cathy Lowe 1st, Susan Walsh 2nd.
9 to 11 yrs. — Pat Chalmers 1st, Sheila Lowe 2nd.
12 & 13 yrs. — B. Painter 1st, Nicola Audette 2nd.
14 & 15 yrs. — Claudine Nadon 1st, Susan Barlow 2nd.
16 & over — Margaret MacRae 1st, Sheila Walsh 2nd.
Relay Team — Anne Walsh, Claudine Nadon, Louise Leclair.

Boys' Races

8 & 9 yrs. — Christian Godette 1st, Stephen Riley 2nd.
10 & 11 yrs. — Denis Painchaud 1st, Keith Scarborough 2nd.
12 & 13 yrs. — Ronnie Lowe 1st, Jacques Monette 2nd.
14 & 15 yrs. — Jim Berniquer 1st, Philip Richards 2nd.
16 & over — Richard Zetchus 1st, Daniel Robert 2nd.
Relay Team — Gerald Clermont, Ronnie Lowe, Gerald Caron.
Mothers' Race — Mrs. L. Walsh 1st, Fathers' Race — Sylva Robert 1st.

Diving

12 and under — Nancy Lowe, Hubert Laframboise.
13 to 15 — David McGill, Claude Nadon.
16 and over — Richard Zetchus, Louise Leclair.

At 7 p.m. the program continued with diving, swimming, water rescue and artificial respiration demonstrations. The following members of the swimming team and winners of the diving trophies presented the diving demonstration — L. Leclair, C. Nadon, M. Scarborough, D. MacRae, P. Giroux, C. Guenette, D. Robert, M. Paquin, D. McGill, J. Monette and R. Zetchus.

The swimming demonstrations were presented by the lifeguards of the pool, followed by a water rescue executed by one of the lifeguards, R. Zetchus. J. Berniquer, J. Black, R. Bowe and R. Scott completed the rescue by blanketing the victim and removing him on a stretcher.

Artificial respiration demonstrations were presented by Louise Leclair, Claudine Nadon, Anne Walsh and Micheline Scarborough. The respirators demonstrated four methods of respiration, Holger, Neilson, Shaefer, Sylvestre and Rescue Breathing.

Four clowns, C. Guenette, D. Robert, R. Zetchus and J. Berniquer, entertained young and old during the afternoon and evening.

The water gala was completed by a dance around the pool, with the "Playboys" of Lachute supplying the music.

The day's activities were so enjoyed by young and old that the organizers hope to make this an annual affair.

Water Skiing with CLINT WARD

Competitive Water Skiing

Competition is the lifeblood of all sports. These wise words certainly apply to the sport of water skiing. Without the inspiration provided by many of the competition water skiers the sport would not be advancing as rapidly as it is today.

The improvements in water ski design, in water ski equipment and in water skiing techniques all stem from the experiments of the tournament skiers. These improvements, passed on to the "week-end skier", make the sport more enjoyable for countless thousands.

Each year there are many water ski tournaments held across Canada. These tournaments are controlled by the Canadian Water Ski Association or by Provincial Water Ski Associations.

Every second year a World Water Ski Championship is held with teams from 33 Nations competing. Canada has sent a team since these tournaments began over ten years ago. The last World Tournament was held in Vichy, France, the next one, in 1965 will be held in Australia. Canada hopes to be the host country in 1967.

Three events are held at most tournaments — Slalom, Jumping and Trick Skiing. Classes are Junior Boys and Junior Girls, 16 and under; Men and Women, over 16; and Senior Men, over 35. It is not uncommon to see families participating in these tournaments, with Dad and Mother and the children all competing.

This last season has been extremely active, for tournaments. There are active Provincial Water Ski Associations in Manitoba and Quebec and many tournaments were held in those two provinces. The CWSA sanctioned tournaments in Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

Two Canadian Championships are held each year — the Canadian Closed and the Canadian Open. One is closed to Canadians only and the other is open to entrants from all countries.

The Canadian Closed has already been held during the first week of August at Minnedosa, Manitoba. It was an excellent tournament with skiers from all parts of Canada journeying to Minnedosa to compete.

The Canadian Open was due on August 29 and 30 at Dunnville, Ontario, and an excellent tournament was expected, with skiers in top "end of season" form.

In World Class, Canada ranks among the top 10 nations. The United States is the strongest water ski nation, followed by Italy and France. Our overall performance ranks somewhere about five years behind our neighbors to the south; partly due to our short season. I say partly, because a new breed of young skiers is now competing and they are dedicated to closing the gap. Youngsters like Jean Perrault of Sherbrooke, Que., Andy Murdison of Toronto and Brian Muirhead of Winnipeg, are reaching levels of performance very close to the World standards. Recently, at the Canadian Closed, Jean Perrault ran up over 2,500 points in the trick event. This is an excellent score, even by United States standards. At a tournament in Ste. Agathe, Que., in mid-July, Andy Murdison established a new Canadian Slalom record by completing perfect passes through the slalom course at speeds of 36 and 38 m.p.h. This is a performance that ranks with the best in the world.

If there is a water ski tournament in your area, go and see it. Besides learning a lot about the sport you will, I am sure, enjoy the spectacle. Better still — enter the tournament. First or last, you will find your skiing improves with tournament experience — and it's lots of fun too.

wonder QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY THE RESEARCH SERVICE OF THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

Why Is the Maple Leaf Our Emblem?

The Maple Leaf is now recognized all over the world as the emblem of Canada, but it was not always so. Our other national emblem, the beaver, is much more ancient. It first appeared on the coat of arms granted by Charles I of England in 1632 to Sir William Alexander, a nobleman with many Canadian connections. For centuries afterward this animal was used, both officially and unofficially, as a symbol of Canada.

All this time the maple was making more and more appeal as a national emblem because it is a tree that holds a commanding place in the Canadian landscape. In the heat of summer, its foliage casts a cool shade; in the spring, it supplies luscious syrup and sugar. With the first frosts in the fall, the maple trees burst into such a riot of crimson and gold that no Canadian, however long away from home, would ever forget the flaming beauty of his autumn woods. Then, too, the maple forests provided fuel to keep the early settlers warm and lumber for their houses and furniture. Small wonder that this lovely and useful tree found so much favor.

Like such symbols as the rose of England, the thistle of Scotland and the shamrock of Ireland, the maple leaf of Canada found its way into people's minds and hearts long before it became an official emblem. At a great banquet held in Montreal in 1836, the hall was decorated with branches and leaves of sugar maple. The main speaker, Denis Viger, spoke with great enthusiasm about the virtues of the maple tree of the Canadian countryside.

Again in 1860 the maple was to the fore on a big occasion. This was when the Prince of Wales (afterward King Edward VII) visited Canada. A group of Toronto men met and agreed that when the Prince came to the city on September 6, each would wear a maple leaf in the lapel of his coat. Most of these men had come to settle in Canada from the Old Country but they wanted to show their loyalty as adopted sons of their new land. The idea spread and many of the men, women and children who gathered to cheer the future King wore this symbol in lapels or hats and dresses.

Not long afterward a Toronto school teacher, Alexander Muir, wrote the famous song The Maple Leaf Forever. It was first sung in public at a patriotic demonstration at Beaverton, Ontario, in 1871 on May 24th, Queen Victoria's birthday. Soon it became a kind of national anthem for English-speaking Canada.

The maple leaf was the badge of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in the first World War. After the war it was decided to have a new coat of arms for Canada. The maple leaf became the chief element in the design, thus taking its place as our official emblem. On the shield in the coat of arms is a three-leafed maple branch and above, in the paw of the Queen's lion, is a red maple leaf, symbol of Canada's sacrifice on the field of battle.

I WONDER . . . Curiosity is a priceless gift. A youngster's daily questions indicate a bright, inquiring mind. They should be answered intelligently. In this column periodically the editors of this newspaper, in cooperation with The Book of Knowledge, will print those questions — and the answers — most frequently asked by children of their parents.

Many of our most efficient modern textiles, engineered to protect us from wind, rain and extreme cold, were inspired by clothing of the Canadian Eskimo. Fabrics for modern ski jackets, warm but lightweight pile, foam and fibre interlinings, and coated rainwear have resulted from the search, first to imitate and later to improve on Eskimo garb.

The development has been fairly recent, however, because it took civilized man hundreds of years to recognize that the Canadian Eskimo was the real expert on cold weather clothing. Describing the development of Arctic clothing, Scott E. Alexander of the Northern Affairs Department, points out that it really began in 1948 when RCAF researchers started scientifically measuring and imitating the known qualities of Eskimo caribou skin clothing.

Some of the greatest tragedies of Arctic exploration and many of the hardships suffered in the north resulted from failure to learn from the Eskimo earlier in our history, he says. Vilhjalmur Stefansson who was the only explorer to adopt in toto the Eskimo way of life, recognized that the natives had developed the highest techniques of survival.

Mr. Alexander points out that the RCAF began the search for the synthetic caribou skin in 1948 which resulted in the 1949-50 development of the now famous nylon pile fabrics combining the good qualities of the hides with superior tear strength and washability. This was followed by nylon fleece fabric which proved excellent as a liner for parkas and boots.

It was long a common misconception that low temperature clothing should be completely impervious under all circumstances. Arctic dwellers know this is unwise as work or any extra exertion would cause sweating.

Eskimo clothing is ideal because it insulates, keeping body heat inside but allowing just enough air circulation to ventilate and keep the body dry. The necessity for this "air permeability" was the biggest problem in developing waterproof fabrics for Arctic wear. The usual rubber, neoprene or latex coatings stopped fabrics from breathing.

Government researchers finally settled on a nylon taffeta coated with polyurethene which though water tight was also comfortable. The fabric developed with the help of the Canadian textile industry is now familiar to us in ski jackets and windbreakers.

The newer foam fabrics, and the featherweight fibre fillings which operate on the principle of trapped air spaces providing the insulation, are also used now for lining cold weather clothing and have practically taken over in such related fields as sleeping bags.

Mr. Alexander says that at present, the scientific research has resulted in reducing the weight of cold weather clothing and footgear for the RCAF from 17 pounds to 7½ pounds. It is interesting to note that Eskimo winter clothing, boots included, has always weighed about six and a half pounds.

Shopping complex in England

Birmingham's $24-million Bull Ring Centre is one of the most advanced projects of its kind in the world.

It is a fully enclosed, air-conditioned shopping complex in the heart of the city, with market halls, department stores, supermarkets, and 100 individual shops and restaurants. The total floor area is over 23 acres, and 40,000 people can shop there easily at any one time.

Activities at the Centre continue almost all round the clock. The Centre Court has regular series of films, fashion shows and exhibitions. The Mecca, the largest banqueting hall in the Midlands, can seat up to 2,000 people.

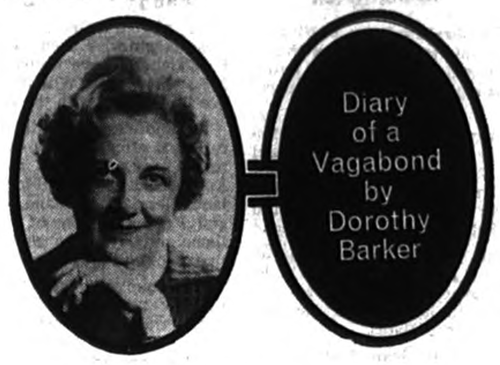

A nine-storey office block is part of the development, and high on its north wall a 44-foot wide screen carries news flashes, sports results, weather forecasts and advertisements.

There is a multi-storey carpark for the convenience of shoppers, and a large bus station which copes with 10,000 buses each week. 20 Million shoppers are expected to come by bus each year, from places as far afield as Cheltenham, Shrewsbury, Leicester and Hereford.

SELF-HELP

To ease another's heartache is to forget one's own.

— Abraham Lincoln

"LIFE BEGINS..."

There comes a moment of panic in every woman's life when she discovers her first gray hair or realizes she has laugh wrinkles at the corner of her eyes. The majority accept this evidence of maturity sensibly, but for those who are inclined to throw in the towel and consider the best part of life is past, I have news.

Because the evidence of my own birthdays are my grandchildren, and because I consider this time of my life the best yet, I have been gathering inspirational items to be used in this column about women who might be considered well past their prime. I'm sure if they could speak for themselves at this moment they too, would express the same opinion about their present existence.

A few week-ends ago May Case was celebrating the 75th anniversary of her debut in the news business. Weighing in at 88 pounds with 90 years over her head she has been chosen "Newspaper Gal of the Year" in Los Angeles. The news release announcing this honor included the fact she tired of housework at the advanced age of 16 and started setting type for the Purcell Register in Oklahoma. Her husband, the publisher Spurgeon S. Case, sent her back to her pots and pans. She later returned to newspaper work and since 1924 has been on the Clovis Independent Register in California. She is a news reporter and the paper's travel editor. Mrs. Case says she has no intention of retiring.

The same week I clipped that item I read that Helena Rubenstein, at the age of 90 plus, had routed some would-be thieves from her Park Avenue home in New York City. Her agelessness and business acumen have been legend for many years. Retire? Not Helena, she is still actively directing her cosmetic business, travelling between New York and her native France, and says she will die with her boots on. And, no doubt, a jar of cold cream in her hand.

Mrs. Jeanette Rothberger was a star in the graduation exercises this spring when the University of Arizona awarded her a Bachelor of Arts degree. This young 80-year-old aspired to a college degree from the moment she landed on Ellis Island, New York, from Romania in 1901. Her course was long and arduous. She had to drop the idea of a degree more than once. Now with her sheepskin in hand she says she will go right on learning. "I want to learn to type too", she told reporters while preparing to celebrate her granduation at a dinner dance in honor of her birthday.

Well Adjusted Canadians

In Canada we have Kate Aitken, whose later years have been filled with a series of careers from broadcasting to director of women's activities at the famous C.N.E. Her weekly column is read from coast to coast... As chatelaine of Government House in Ottawa, Madame Vanier's gracious hospitality has became famous. She created a lasting monument to her tenure as Governor General's lady when recently, with her husband, she called a conference on the "Canadian family" which they both hope will become an annual event.

The late judge Emily Murphy of Edmonton played a tremendous part in fighting for the rights of women in Alberta well after she could be considered a senior citizen. Cora Hind, who will live forever in the memory of western Canadians as one of the greatest agricultural judges and colorful newspaper women this country has ever known, never let her age curtail her energy or ambition.

None of these women let the thought of advancing years interfere with their zest for living.

Slatted floors for beef cattle

The first completely slatted floor for confinement feeding of beef cattle was on demonstration at the Farm Progress Show in Morton, Illinois, this fall. The floor slats are made of steel and measure 5" wide with 1½" space between each slat.

The sides of each slat are tapered in and under to allow the manure to drop away rather than cling. The floor is self-draining and provides a clean, dry surface for firm footing by the cattle. Developed by Republic Steel Corp., the slats come in 8 and 16 ft. lengths and require only a hammer for installation.

Reported advantages of the steel flooring are:

(1) Less slipping of cattle as compared with wet concrete or wood.

(2) Permits greater concentration of cattle in space as little as 30 square feet per head.

(3) Elimination of the need for bedding.

(4) Less time required for manure removal.

(5) No absorption of waste, moisture, or disease.

Disease problem in poultry meat production

Chronic respiratory disease (CRD) causes a large number of poultry carcass condemnations at slaughter plants inspected by CDA's Health of Animals Branch.

Federal veterinarians are interested in two main approaches to tackling this disease, which has been causing heavy losses to producers for many years.

The disease is associated with pleuropneumonia-like organisms (PPLO). Although other disease factors are also involved, one of the best controls is the establishment of PPLO-free breeder flocks based on blood tests. Progeny from such stock would undoubtedly bring about a reduction in carcasses condemned for respiratory diseases, but there is a difficulty. Poultry breeders require more knowledge and experience in setting up environments that can be guaranteed free from pathogenic PPLO. Only a limited but favorable amount of data is available on this subject at present.

A second approach to the control of CRD in commercial broiler chicks involves the use of an antibiotic. It aims at freeing young chicks from PPLO transmitted via the egg or contracted during hatching. This can be attempted by dipping hatching eggs into an antibiotic solution before incubation in such a manner that the antibiotic penetrates the egg contents effectively. It can also be attempted by injecting an antibiotic solution into the newly hatched chick.

Large scale experiments with an antibiotic that is credited with specific control of PPLO were carried out recently in Canada and a decrease in carcass condemnations was reported as a result of these studies.

After further studies along these lines, Canadian producers may soon find themselves with the means of combatting one of their worst problems in economic production of poultry meat.

Restaurant meals steadily improving

By Ambrose Hills
("Of Many Things")

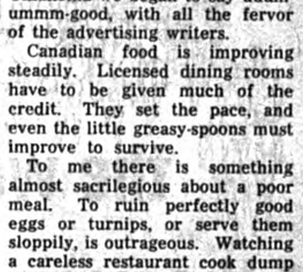

A couple of years ago our family drove to El Paso from Winnipeg. We were impressed with the way food improved, the farther South we went. In North Dakota it was poor; South Dakota, indifferent; but when we reached Oklahoma we began to say uuum-ummm-good, with all the fervor of the advertising writers.

Canadian food is improving steadily. Licensed dining rooms have to be given much of the credit. They set the pace, and even the little greasy-spoons must improve to survive.

To me there is something almost sacrilegious about a poor meal. To ruin perfectly good eggs or turnips, or serve them sloppily, is outrageous. Watching a careless restaurant cook dump beautiful eggs into a rancid oil is enough to prompt homicide. When a succulent Western steak is treated that way, riots ought to break out in the streets.

Canada has vegetables unmatched for flavor. A potato fresh from Canadian earth has a rich, satisfying taste you'll seldom find in the South. Our tomatoes, too, have more tomato flavor than others. Our soil is fertile and all the necessary minerals and other elements contribute to our abundance. We ought to serve meals so good that tourists come here just to eat. Instead, southerners often take meat and vegetables inferior to ours, and yet serve them so tastily they make us envious.

FAMOUS CANADIAN ARMY BADGES

Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps

The garter displayed on the cap badge of the Royal Canadian Army Pay Corps is a device accorded "Royal" corps and the crown signifies allegiance to the Queen. The beaver on a log is symbolic of the industrious and meticulous nature of the corps, while the maple leaves supporting the scroll inscribed RCAPC indicate the nationality of the corps.

Relatives gather on silver wedding of Lachute couple

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nicoll on Wednesday, August 26, when a surprise family gathering was held to celebrate the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blute (the former Edith Jones).

Humor was enjoyed in a mock-wedding ceremony, performed by Mr. Walter Gordon, who then presented the "bride and groom" with a gift of money, also a heart-shaped plaque with 25 silver dollars on it. Mr. Stewart Jones presented them with a lovely 25th anniversary plaque.

Prior to this gathering Mrs. Blute was presented with a crystal vase from the office staff at Jones Insurance Inc.

Motion pictures were shown, and the serving of dainty refreshments brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Old-time Resident Revisits Here

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Dewar, of Dewar Lake, Sask., were in town this week visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Dewar left for the West in 1907 and has returned here on several occasions, each time being impressed with the growth and advancement of Lachute. When he was attending school here, the principal at the Academy was Mr. Mabon. . . A pleasant hour was spent at The Watchman Office talking with an old friend, R. A. Giles, and looking over some old photos. . . Mr. and Mrs. Dewar motored for their trip east.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Wilson, who were married in Dalesville Baptist Church last Saturday. — Drew Photo Service

Wilson - Tomalty

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Dalesville Baptist Church on Saturday, August 29, at 3 p.m., when Shirley Mae Tomalty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Urbane Tomalty, was united in marriage to Mr. Henry Ramage Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, of Scarborough, Ont.

The Rev. W. L. Hisey officiated. Mrs. Larrie Dickerson was at the organ, and Mr. Keith Graham sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer".

The church was decorated with stands of white gladioli and fern.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was in a full-length gown of white silk organza over taffeta and net, with bouffant skirt and chapel train. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a crown of pearls and drop crystals. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink Sweetheart roses.

Miss Shirley Kerr, as bridesmaid, wore a floor-length turquoise gown of embroidered silk organza over taffeta and net, with matching headpiece. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Mr. Wm. Franklin acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. Nelson Tomalty, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Graham Tomalty, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Lachute Baptist Church hall.

The bride's mother wore a blue dress of embroidered organza, with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother wore a two-piece dress in beige brocade, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Many relatives and friends from Toronto attended the wedding. A telegram extending best wishes was received from Mr. and Mrs. Milton Townsend, and the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Annie Stephenson, of Port Credit, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson left for a motor trip around the Gaspé and to other points of interest. The bride travelled in a green suit with matching hat and a corsage of yellow roses. Upon their return they will take up residence in Toronto.

Bid farewell to student pastor

Last Friday evening the Young People's groups of Dalesville and Lachute Baptist Churches met in the Lachute church to bid farewell to Mr. James Stevens, who has been here for the summer as a student pastor.

After a short devotional period, Mr. Arthur McElroy presented Mr. Stevens with a set of mother-of-pearl cuff links and tie-clip. The meeting then adjourned to the hall, where games, conducted by Mrs. Ernest Kettyle, were the order of the evening. Refreshments followed, and the occasion was brought to a close by a brief inspirational and challenging message by Mr. Stevens.

As he returns to Toronto this week to resume his studies, best wishes are extended for the future: (2 Corinthians, 9:8) "And God is able to make all grace abound toward You; that ye, always having sufficiency in all things may abound to every good work."

Observe law on school buses

The summer holidays are almost over and the school bus will soon reappear on the roads to take the children back to school. Many will be going to school for the first time, and even the older ones, being children, will often forget the rules and become careless. This puts a heavy responsibility on car and truck drivers, but one which must be accepted. The law states that when a school bus is stopped to load or unload its young passengers, all vehicles must come to a stop and not attempt to pass the bus in either direction. Even if they are not near the bus, when you see children along the road slow down and be very careful to avoid an accident. — C.I.P. Woods Notes

HOW THE FIGHT STARTED

Some of you will remember having seen this one before. I am repeating it only by request. . .
Who made the request? I did — well, because right now I can't think of anything new.
I often am consulted for advice in certain cases —
For instance, what to do to make a lot more parking spaces.
With traffic jams on every hand
there's nothing but congestion
But what to do about it? That's the Million Dollar Question.

A Mayor came to me and said,
"Hey, Walt, have you the answer?
Can you give me some good advice?"
And I replied, I can Sir!"
"Just pull down all the buildings and create all vacant lots,
So then, when someone wants to park, he'll have a choice of spots."

"Prosperity would follow, for there'd be a building boom
Building cities in the country where there's lots and lots of room.
I know places in the country where a man can park all day
And later, when he drives off home there's not a cent to pay."

"But in a town of any size
(I guess they're all the same)
There are no vacant lots because the buildings are to blame.
Come over to the Grand Hotel
— we can discuss it there",
Said I, while he tagged on behind

When I told him what my charge was for professional advice,
He knocked me down and broke my specs. I ask you — was that nice?. . .

Now boxing used to be my hobby,
And so I smacked him in the lobby.
And as he gazed at me in wonder
I kicked him twice in the rotunda.
When he got up and tried to flee
I hit him on the balcony
And socked him a teriffic jar Between the desk and the cocktail bar.
Then he hit me a lusty whack
And broke my sacro-iliac.
But he ignored my good advice
And never paid me the stated
price,
And I can't figure a way to make Him pay for advice he didn't take.
So now we're each in a separate cell
For the damage we did to the Grand Hotel!

Be seein' ya!

HOMAGE TO OUR WORKERS!

LACHUTE - CALUMET DISTRICT LABOUR COUNCIL

LABOUR DAY MESSAGE FROM ROGER PROVOST, PRESIDENT, QUEBEC FEDERATION OF LABOUR

To Men and Women Workers
And All Citizens of Quebec

The trade union year which ends on Labour Day will long remain, in the minds of all Quebec workers, the year of Bill 54. The difference between the first version of the proposed law, which was quite unacceptable to us, and the final version, which can stand considerable improvement, permitted us to measure our strength, to take cognizance of our solidarity and of our unity.

We must truthfully say, with neither boasting nor false modesty, that without the participation of our union central in the battle of Bill 54, and without the vigilance of its leaders and the support of its militants, the new labour relations law today would contain serious blows to the fundamental rights of the workers. It must not be forgotten that despite long parliamentary study of the first version of the bill in June 1963, at which time trade union spokesmen expressed their views over a six-day period, the first easing of the government attitude came after a general strike vote by a special convention of the QFL last April.

Today we rejoice with the population as a whole over the fact that the general strike never came; that it was not needed to secure just about total recognition of the basic rights of the workers. Further, we have found hopes now that it will be possible to settle equitably the case of the provincial functionaries and teachers; to work with the government on the drafting of a truly progressive labour code without ever again having to resort to threats which are repugnant to every true democrat.

The workers have no lawless inclinations. They only wish to have — and indeed demand — the opportunity to live in harmony with society and its laws.

We live in very troubled times. Our actions not only follow us but sometimes get ahead of us. The denunciation of the foremost Negro leaders in the United States by the Harlem rioters, and that of French-Canadian Leader André Laurendeau by Quebec separatists, should prompt reflection by all those among us who have social or political responsibilities, including trade union leaders.

The grave events that are occurring in many parts of the world prove two things: first, that demagogy even when invoked by the finest of causes has no further place in the conduct of human affairs. And second, there are reforms that must come in time or they will lose their salutary effect. In other words, while some must abstain from pouring oil on the flames, there are others who must hurry and train streams of water on the fire.

MESSAGE FROM DORIS CHAMPAGNE, PRESIDENT OF THE LACHUTE-CALUMET LABOUR COUNCIL

The year 1964 has opened a new era in the history of the Labour movement in this district. In fact, it was Labour Day which launched this Union year, which has brought all our district organizations into greater activity.

We have been happy to note several new labour agreements, on behalf of the employees of Lowe Bros., L'Heureux Dry Cleaners, Seven-Up, and others.

Last March saw the birth of the Lachute-Calumet Labour Council, of which I am honored to be President. The Canadian Labour Congress, in granting us a charter, made possible the grouping of all local Unions affiliated with the C.L.C., enabling them to become members and take part in the activities of our Council. In so doing, we are becoming a more united body, contributing greatly to the social security and welfare of our members.

I feel that the coming year will witness more notable contributions on the part of the Labour movement to the social and economic administration of our various communities.

I would like to point out that we will, during the course of this year, speed up our Union education program, which is in the best interests of all concerned.

To each and every one, I wish a pleasant Labour Day, and a successful year.

Teatime Topics

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's first federal food and drug law came into force in 1875 to prevent the adulteration of food. Under it foods were adulterated if they contained certain specified ingredients.

Tests done in the next few years showed nine coffee samples out of 10 adulterated, 34 milk out of 58, six out of six mustard, five out of five cloves. The spices were adulterated with flour, corn and peameal. Samples of coffee consisted mainly of chicory, roasted wheat, peas, beans and ground crusts. Milk was adulterated by taking out cream or adding water.

In 1894 the legislation changed and substances which could be permitted in foods were listed rather than the reverse, says an article in Canadian Consumer magazine written by a member of the Food and Drug Directorate staff.

The new act listed specifications for tea and it was 15 years before more standards were accepted.

A Long Battle

The work of the Chief Dominion Analyst in 1907, Dr. Anthony McGill, was impeded because there were no legal Canadian standards for food. Dr. McGill and an advisory board began working for them, and the first major standards were set in Parliament from 1910 to 1912.

Now 270 foods, including most staple foods, are listed in the Food and Drug regulations. Today a food processor, consumer association or an individual may request that a standard be written for a given product. If the Food and Drug Directorate decides, after consultation, that the standard would be useful, it is drafted and recommended to the Governor-in-Council for inclusion in the regulations.

Spell It Out

Modern standards state clearly what ingredients may be used in the preparation of a food. They are designed to prevent such abuses as the substitution of cheaper ingredients for expensive ones, the omission of beneficial ingredients, or addition of things not normally expected in a product.

Some standards don't list ingredients, but offer a basic definition of the food. Milk (whole milk), for instance, is defined as "the normal lacteal secretion obtained from the mammary gland of the cow, genus Bos, and shall be free from colostrum".

Generally, the regulations don't require manufacturers to list ingredients of standard foods on labels. They do stipulate that the contents of foods with more than one ingredient, for which there is no set standard, must show a list of ingredients, in descending order of their proportions. There are few exceptions to the rule.

Most labels must indicate when preservatives, coloring and artificial flavors have been used.

The main purpose for the regulations is to safeguard health and give the consumer some guarantee that the food he buys is the food he thinks it is. They also protect the ethical manufacturer from competing with substandard products. They serve, too, as a yardstick for food testing.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Now and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may often cause backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, rest better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all drug counters. You can depend on Dodd's. 60

A better breakfast - ensures a better day

How much thought have you given to breakfast lately? Nutrition surveys have found that this important meal is the most often neglected and that too many children and adults go off to school and work inadequately nourished for the day ahead.

Now that the holiday season is about over, why not take a look at your family's breakfast habits.

Mid-Morning Slump

Health authorities tell us that after eight to ten hours of fasting the body needs the nutrients that only a good breakfast can provide. If you've experienced that "mid-morning slump" after skipping breakfast, your body is just protesting that it can't go on without proper nourishment. Studies have shown that children do better at school and adults at work when they have eaten an adequate breakfast.

Improving the breakfast habits of your family is a real challenge but well worth the effort in better health and efficiency.

Here are some suggestions by the home economists at Ottawa, to help you start your day off with a good breakfast:

— Get the whole family up at least half an hour earlier; that way you can all enjoy a leisurely breakfast together.

— Set the table attractively. Start every morning off in gay spirit.

— Set the table the night before or have the place setting on a tray for quick and easy preparation in the morning.

— Prepare the more time consuming recipes the night before if possible. For example, measure the dry ingredients for pancakes or coffee cake the night before, then all you have to do is add the liquid at breakfast.

— Use your freezer — frozen waffles, muffins, coffee cakes thaw in minutes.

Employ as many time-saving electrical devices as you can — electric coffee pot, frying pan, grill, etc.

— If appetites are poor or resistant to breakfast — coax them with small servings, then gradually increase the serving size.

— If teen-age daughters are afraid of getting fat on breakfast — a heart-to-heart talk with the school nurse might help.

— Serve a variety of foods. Try breaking away from the traditional breakfast foods. Occasionally serve your family's favorites; even if it's hamburgers or grilled cheese sandwiches!

— Plan your menus for a week in advance.

Follow a Basic Pattern

According to nutritionists each day's food must supply many different nutrients:

— Protein for growth and repair.

— Minerals and Vitamins for growth and to aid efficient body function.

— Fats and Carbohydrates (sugars and starches) for energy.

Since no single food can provide all the nutrients in the amounts needed, try to plan your family menu to include in each meal some of the food groups in Canada's Food Guide: milk, fruits, vegetables, bread and cereals, meat.

Breakfast should include from a fourth to a third of the day's food requirements.

Here is a Basic Breakfast Pattern. These foods should be included in some form at breakfast every day:

*Fruit or juice
Whole grain cereal with milk
Egg or other protein food (if desired)
Toast with butter
Beverage — milk for children.

*Preferably a satisfactory source of Vitmain C such as vitaminized apple juice, tomatoes or citrus fruit or juice.

Use this basic pattern to prepare a breakfast menu for one week. With the variety of foods available, breakfasts need not be monotonous.

How about starting the day off on a cheery note with a nourishing breakfast like this — oatmeal cereal with milk and maple sugar; hot jam-filled muffins; a side dish of crisp bacon, served with lots of milk and hot coffee. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, advise adding a chilled glass of vitaminized apple juice to complete this nutritious breakfast.

Autumn check on child's study area

September means back-to-school for our elementary and secondary school children. The beginning of a new school year is a good time to take a look at your child's study area. Is it large enough? Is it away from television noises and other potential distractions? Is it bright, cheery and uncluttered? Is the lighting adequate? The lighting is particularly important, for inadequate lighting will lead to eye strain and a subsequent loss of efficiency and interest. Remember that ceiling lights alone are not enough — there should be a non-glare light close to the reading subject.

EDITORIAL NOTES...

"In this Parliament are three Estates, the Lords Spiritual, the Lords Temporal and the Commons, but in the Reporters' Gallery yonder sits a Fourth Estate more important far than all." — Edmund Burke

Holiday week-end ahead – take care!

THE VERY WORD "Holiday" conjures thoughts of fun, frolic and happiness; yet a holiday never passes without death and destruction dominating the scene. The day after a holiday week-end, newspapers headline scores of tragic, horrible deaths on the highways. Back of those lists of broken and torn bodies lies the deeper tragedy of the deprived and heartbroken parents, mates and children whose lives have been cruelly disrupted and shattered.

Adding to the horror is the fact that almost all of the deaths could have been prevented, that almost all the accidents were unnecessary. Somebody, in each case, did something he knew he should not do, or did not do something he knew he should. It might have been an inch or so on the wrong side of the highway's centre line, or the mere twist of a steering wheel at the wrong time. No plea, no exhortation, no law enforcement alone can stop this. Only the person driving or walking, only the individual can do it. The individual must accept that responsibility, not leave it to somebody else. Until that is done, Canada's roads and streets will continue to be littered with screaming and wrenching human forms. It's entirely up to YOU — not somebody else.

There's another holiday week-end coming up. Think about it in the meantime; you can make it safer.

Drop-outs – on the outside looking in

THIS MAY BE the last call for pre-editating "drop-outs" — the last opportunity to counteract the urge of those who, lured by illusions of independence and the crackle of the pay envelope, are prematurely leaving school. At this time we can do no better than to quote a sentiment addressed to Westinghouse employees, in a back number of the company journal published by that industry. . .

"Drop-out. To many, the word doesn't mean much, but in the years ahead, the drop-out problem in Canadian schools will touch the lives of every one of us with children or teen-age acquaintances.

"A drop-out is a boy or girl who leaves school prematurely. In Ontario (to cite the province with the best record) fully 36% of those who left school last year lacked any kind of certificate or diploma.

"That these teen-agers should be tempted to start earning their own living is understandable. That they should succumb to such temptation in great numbers is tragic, both for themselves and for Canada. Chances of them finding the dependable well-paid jobs they seek are mighty slim, as many are finding out every day. The problem is just as grave for the country.

"In today's highly technical world of industry, the drop-out is on the outside looking in. Unskilled or semi-skilled jobs that drop-outs used to fit into are growing scarcer: elevators in office buildings are automatic; fork lift trucks now do the jobs once done by warehouse helpers; heavy machinery has taken over much of the arduous work of construction workers. And so it goes.

"To those with training, the ceiling's unlimited in today's industry. Job opportunities have never been so varied and interesting, or so well-paid. But the key to success is that school diploma."

New high in exports

CANADA'S prosperity depends on selling enough abroad to balance the country's heavy purchases of foreign goods. Thus, figures just released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showing record exports in the first half of the year are encouraging.

The value of exports in the first six months was $3,833,600,000, a 22-per-cent jump over comparable figures for the first half of 1963.

The first-half figures indicate that the value of exports over the year will exceed 1963's total of more than $7,000,000,000, which gave Canada a trading surplus when balanced against 1963 imports worth about $6,500,000,000.

But while the trade figures raise hopes for a continuation of the current economic boom, the long-term prospects remain subject to doubts about how long the expansion of exports will last.

The chronic doubt involving Canada's trading position involves the country's dependence on a limited number of commodities such as grain and forest products for the bulk of its exports and on a limited number of buyers, such as Britain and the United States.

In 1963, almost one-third of the value of Canadian exports consisted of grain, newsprint and pulpwood. These sales were matched by imports of machinery, electrical products, automobiles, aircraft and parts.

Much of the gain in exports in 1963 and this year is due to big wheat shipments to Russia and other Communist countries. There is no guarantee that sales will continue, and in fact Soviet Agricultural Minister Ivan Volovchenko says Russia is "not very likely" to place an order for Canadian grain this year.

An encouraging feature of the 1964 export figures is that sales to countries other than Canada's chief trading partners, Britain and the United States, increased by 52.7 per cent in the first six months. While this again reflects the big wheat shipments to Communist countries it also indicates some success in the search for a more diversified market.

However, the increase in exports was due almost entirely to greater volume of traditional primary products — grain, forest products and minerals. One exception was an increase in the sale of aircraft and parts to the United States by 2½ times.

The record exports should not obscure the fact that Canada must continue to search for new markets and broaden the range of commodities sold abroad to increase stability through diversification.

Unsolicited

ONE OF THE AREAS of Canadian business where private enterprise is rampant, is the business of printing and publishing a weekly newspaper. The weekly publishers are inclined, more often than not, to do their own thinking, and will uphold to the last the right to live their own lives and the right of others to live their own lives, says The Printed Word, in a commentary which we reproduce with all due modesty.

It is not likely that weekly publishers will become millionaires from the profits of their enterprise. But they have a satisfaction that doesn't often come to individuals in other lines of business, especially to individuals who have, perforce, to live in big cities.

Most of the time they must work hard, and not only work in the sanctum sanctorum where the learned and sensible paragraphs are composed. Many of them either are now, or have been, very competent printers. And where an inveterate cigarette smoker will have nicotine-stained fingers, the printer is apt to have printer's ink on his fingers. Printer's ink is hard to scrub off.

MONEY AND EVIL

Quite frequently one hears television characters comment that "Money is the root of all evil." Not so. It is the love of money that is evil, not money itself or the possession of it. Indeed, money is a symbol of work done, of useful things accomplished, and in these things all sensible persons take pride. Pride in the money itself is stupid and evil.

It has always seemed to me that those persons who are obsessed about money, either their own or someone else's, are lost souls, and are to be pitied. They either condemn a neighbor for too much money, or pity him for too little; their minds never dwell on his real character or his abilities, his indolence or his diligence. Blind in their judgment of others, they are equally unlikely to take a good square look at themselves.

This misconception about money is more serious than it sounds. The boy who leaves school bent on nothing but making money is not likely to make very much of it. He is more likely to become a bitter loser, because he thinks of money as something worthwhile in itself and not as a symbol of achievement. Had his goal been achievement, money might well be a result of his striving for that goal. Money as a goal in itself is a will-o-the-wisp, seldom brings success.

It is true that the love of money is the root of a great deal of evil, and I think it is also true that hatred of money is nonsense. Emotions related to money are wasted. In itself, it deserves neither love nor hatred. Get the heart and eye on something more substantial if you want real satisfaction out of life.

Much Fury, But No Flag

BY RAY ARGYLE

OTTAWA —When one returns here after a lapse of a few months to find Parliament as far away as ever from a solution to the flag debate, it seems readily apparent that there is more fury than fact in Canadian nationalism.

The day I spent in the press gallery of the House of Common was supposed to have been the day that the flag debate would head in a new direction — either toward action or election. Instead, the debate slithered through the same quagmire of obstruction and obstinancy that has been its trade mark from the start.

Alvin Hamilton, the Saskatchewan Tory who gave the Department of Agriculture one of its best stewardships in history, was telling a near empty chamber that the flag debate should be taken out of the House and put into the hands of an all-party committee. What would happen when the committee failed to reach agreement, Mr. Hamilton didn't say. Asked whether the Conservatives would accept a limitation on debate after the committee reported back to Parliament, Mr. Hamilton wasn't sure.

But he was insistent that a Canadian flag bear the symbols of both founding races. This is in line with Opposition leader John Diefenbaker's stand — which took several weeks to come into focus — that Canada retain the Red Ensign while offering French Canada the token of a fleur de lys on the fly.

"I am not one who has much confidence in the statesmanship of Real Caouette, but the Quebec Creditiste told Parliament that day a simple truth which has been too long overlooked in English Canada.

The people of Quebec, Mr. Caouette explained, are not interested in the symbols of either Britain or France for a Canadian flag. Quebeckers reject both the Union Jack and the fleur de lys as symbols of Canada, he said. They will accept the Jack as a link with the Commonwealth, but not as the mark of Canada.

Through the long, frustrating summer which Parliament has wished on itself this year, Mr. Caouette's statement was, to me, one of the bluntest and most accurate to be heard.

Another myth which needs to be put to rest is that the proposed maple leaf flag has divided Canada along purely French and non-French lines, with only Quebec offering strong support for the new design.

The fact is that while Quebec is naturally a bedrock of support for a distinctive Canadian flag, there is also strong support for the maple leaf among millions of other Canadians of British descent.

Mr. Diefenbaker has made it clear that his party will fight any flag which does not include the Union Jack. The people of Quebec, through their MPs, have made it equally clear these many years that they will not voluntarily submit to a Canadian flag which does include the Union Jack.

And so the impasse in Parliament. A majority of MP's favor the maple leaf flag, but coupled with the Conservative party's delaying tactics aimed at preventing the government's bill from even coming to a vote, it is difficult to see at this stage any way in which the stalemate will soon be resolved. The Conservative party could be digging its grave with more finality than anyone now realizes.

Things Were Hectic!

BY BILL SMILEY

How I envy the fellow who has two weeks holidays! He takes his family to a cottage, or on a motor trip, or out camping, and that's all there is to it. He can then go quietly and sanely back to work.

Things are always pretty hectic around our place in the summer, but this was the hecticest ever. As a teacher, I'm almost frantic for school to start so I can get off the ferris wheel.

Five weeks at summer music school for Hugh. Three weeks at a dfiferent summer music school for the old lady. Two weeks at camp for Kim. Two weeks refresher course in English and two weeks as a weekly editor for me.

Now this doesn't sound so bad, when you say it quickly. But all these things were going on in different places at different times. The result was a combination of the Grand Prix, Musical Chairs, Who's Been Sleeping In My Bed? and Let's Break The Bank.

My wife gets home every Saturday night, heads for the basement with a huge armful of soiled clothes, and we don't see her until it's time to get in the car late Sunday and charge off once again in all directions.

Last Sunday, for the first time in six weeks, the four of us were under the same roof together. We were all a little uneasy at being with these strangers.

Hugh came through virtually unscathed, desnite the trembling and trepidation of his parents. He talked us into extending his stay at the summer school from three weeks to five, in a letter emphasizing the "inspiration" he was getting there.

After deep and midnight consultations, we reluctantly sent off the requisite extortion for the extra two weeks. Soon after, another letter arrived. In this one we learned he'd been out for dinner — steak and mushrooms, Chianti, the works — with a Yank girl whose father was an English teacher, was divorced, and was having an affair with the daughter of the bartender in the place they'd eaten.

Hugh's momma was ready to call out the militia, declare war on the U.S., and invade if necessary to snatch her boy back to safety. His father was trying to soothe her fears and at the same time, remembering, with not a little sadness, what he was like at that age.

However, he surprised us. He arrived home the day he was supposed to. Even more amazing, he had some money left. Completely astounding, he looked only slightly depraved. In those five weeks, he had: become 17, fallen in love at least twice, bought a pipe and tobacco, cooked for himself for two weeks, living mainly on pablum and cheese, and been in a beer joint.

None of this bothered me too much, although his mother gave him an interrogation that would have done credit to Inspector Maigret.

Perhaps the most rugged two weeks of the summer were those I spent as a weekly editor. It all began with a wedding — my partner's, and very nearly ended with a funeral — mine.

Is being a weekly editor. And how doubly devastating it is to be a weekly editor in a tourist town, where every old-friend cottager within a radius of 40 miles is hell-bent on wrecking your marriage, your constitution, and the next day, with his hospitality.

Oh well, the worst is over. There remains only a gritting of the teeth, a girding of the loins, and a hardening of the resolution, to get through the last week of summer — the weekly newspapers convention. When that's over, and I come home, a shambling skeleton, a shadow of the fine, healthy young fellow I was on the first of July, my plans are made. I phone a sanitorium, take my 20 days sick leave, and resume living about the end of September.

Safety outdoors for children

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Most parents realize that motor vehicles are the leading cause of accidents in childhood. According to the National Safety League of Canada accidents kill more children between birth and age 15 than all other diseases combined!

More than 2,000 were killed in a recent year and three or four times that number crippled for life. Of the 1,177 pedestrian accidents, more than 4 out of every 10 were children under 15.

Almost half (48.2 percent) of Canadians are under 15 years of age. According to the last census there are over 4½ million households in our country and 71 percent of these have a passenger car; in fact 9 percent have two or more cars. What are you doing to teach your child safety by the car driving and traffic rules?

There are few more tragic accidents than a little child being hit in his own driveway by an adult backing out quickly. It is not enough to look and see if the driveway is clear. He might toddle onto it after you start to back out. Know that your child is in a safe place before you start your car.

Driving in the city and driving on the highway present special problems. Facing heavy traffic and the action of pedestrians, especially children, make urban living hazardous.

Fatal accidents occur on highways, often involving drivers who drive at high speeds, who on a long drive, with a false sense of security, become fatigued, inattentive, complacent.

Children on vacation trips are sometimes hurt by jumping out of the car onto the road into traffic while parents are preoccupied taking a little child to a washroom or buying ice cream.

Is your car mechanically roadworthy and are your tires dependable? Check on all your car's safety equipment. Safety belts, bolted to the floor of your car, and used regularly, are an excellent investment.

A baby's car bed should be provided with a safety strap which can be fastened securely to both front and back seats or to the floor. A baby should never be left alone in a car, locked or unlocked.

If you should have to stop suddenly, would your baby be hurt? If he can sit up he needs a safe car seat, in which he is fastened firmly, and which also allows him to look out the window. The plastic steering wheels attached as playthings to some car seats, in a sudden stop sometimes shatter a child's face or cause internal injuries.

Small children are apt to open the door when the car is moving, or it may fly open, the child fall out and be injured or killed. Safety locks on doors, if youngsters often ride in the car, are essential.

One of the ways father and mother can prepare Junior for kindergarten or First Grade is to have him memorize Elmer's Safety Rules. Boys and girls in many areas know Elmer, the Elephant, which is the symbol of safety.

Instruction in traffic regulations is not just the responsibility of teachers. Parents should know Elmer's Rules, make sure their child knows them and go over them regularly.

Elmer, the Safety Elephant's Rules

— Look both ways before you cross the street.
— Keep out from behind parked cars.

Swiss Steak Easy to Make

Swiss steak is a great favorite with many people. It takes over an hour to cook, but it can be done either on top of the stove or in the oven, and requires very little attention during the cooking period.

SWISS STEAK

1½ to 2 lbs. round steak, cut 1¼ inch thick
1/3 cup flour
1½ tsp. salt
1/8 tsp. pepper
3 tablespoons fat or oil
1 cup water
2 tsp. Worcestershire Sauce
1 bay leaf
1 medium onion, chopped

Cut meat into individual serving pieces before pounding, or leave it in one piece. Mix flour, salt, pepper and sprinkle over the meat, and pound in with a meat pounder or the edge of a saucer. Heat oil in large skillet with tight-fitting lid. Add meat and brown thoroughly on both sides. Add water, Lea & Perrins, bay leaf and onion. Cover tightly and simmer over low heat for 1½ to 2 hours, or cook in a 350° F. oven for the same length of time. Turn steak when cooking time is half done. Serve with the gravy which you can thicken with flour and water mixture if you wish.

Two Montrealers prominent in Lionism, Wilfred G. Pugh (left) and G. Edward McLean (right), with two young charges to benefit by the recently opened recreation hall and dining pavilion at the St. Alphonse de Joliette crippled children's camp. Wilf Pugh is donations chairman and Ed McLean in honorary campaign chairman, of the coming drive for "Lions Camps on Wheels", to provide buses for children of various district boys' and girls' clubs.

Opening of Lions Club dining and recreation hall, St. Alphonse de Joliette crippled children's camp

By means of a Mammoth TV Auction on Channel 12 last October the Lions of Zone 12 raised over $25,000 to help build the new dining and recreation hall for the Crippled Children's Camp at St. Alphonse de Joliette.

Donations from the various clubs raised the total to $40,000, and the magnificent new building was opened to the delighted children on August 8.

The proceedings were opened by the singing of "O Canada" by the Cadets of Joliette, who were present with their band. Lions District Governor Don L. Gamble then unveiled the plaque and made the official presentation of the building.

J. Arthur Dupont, president of the Province of Quebec Society for Crippled Children, accepted the gift on behalf of the Society and Mr. Gilham, past-president, thanked the Lions for their effort and the tremendous amount of work that went into the Mammoth TV Auction.

Also presiding at the presentation was International Director Lion George Laughlen, who came down from St. Catharines, Ont., especially for this wonderful event.

The Rev. Father Lamarche, who has been padre of the Camp for many years, then blessed the new building.

Kiddies on crutches, in wheelchairs, and even in beds, were shown over the new building, which will be such a vast improvement over the crowded, overheated quarters occupied since the Camp was opened in 1938.

This year the Lions are contemplating another TV Show in October, to be titled, "Lions Camps on Wheels". The proceeds will provide buses for the transportation of children from the various boys' and girls' clubs in the district.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

I will be glad when my family comes back; they are still at the farm. The novelty of "baching" very quickly wears off. A stew can become awfully boring after the third day. And things are always happening that shouldn't. Yesterday, the coffee pot stayed on the stove all day; I will have to buy a new one. And the day before, the washing machine overflowed while I was cooking breakfast. True, the floor needed washing, but not at that time of day. And I have learned also why you don't put woollen socks into the washing machine. Specialization, again.

Alfalfa must be rested in September if it is to survive the winter. That is the advice we hear from crop men over and over again. The quickest way to kill a good stand of alfalfa is to pasture it close or to cut it in September, they say.

A bear or a groundhog goes into hibernation rolling fat. He comes out in the spring lean and hungry. But alive. He used the fat off his back for the energy necessary for survival.

In much the same way, the alfalfa plant uses energy even while dormant. And that energy comes from starch stored in the root. There must be enough reserve to carry the plant through the winter and to push up the first leaves in the spring.

There is only one place in nature starch is made — the green leaf in sunshine. It is manufactured there, then transferred to the root for storage. Cut off the leaves before they can perform this function, and no starch is stored for winter.

Beekeepers do much the same thing. They take honey from the hives all summer, but in the fall, they allow the bees to store away enough for their own use.

For alfalfa, this period of storage comes in late August and September. Trefoil can be left a week or two later. Ladino and grasses, too, should have a chance to build up reserves.

After growth has ceased, the top growth can then be grazed off. It is of no further use to the plant and will die down during the winter if not removed.

Good management, then, is two things. First, avoid pasturing or cutting for the plant. Top-dress the hay and pasture fields in late summer or fall with a fertilizer such as 0-20-20.

But what do you feed the cows while the pastures are being rested? Hold back the field for grazing in September which you are going to plough up this fall. Or compromise with the deal by dividing the alfalfa field into two; rest one before mid-September and the other one a bit later. Better still, have a variety of pasture available — ladino, trefoil and alfalfa, which requires different rest periods.

Then there is always the exception to the rule. I know one chap — a consistent pasture competition winner — who says he never rests his fields in the fall. But look into his program and you find he never grazes closer than six inches, and his fertility level is very high.

School starts again next week. To those youngsters who are thinking of dropping out, heed the advice of this old man. Stick with it. It is much easier to push on now than to go back when you have discovered you quit too soon, as I did.

The farmer of the next quarter century will almost certainly have some college training. And off the farm, there are six jobs waiting for every agricultural graduate.

"Know Your Merchants" contest is for eight weeks, commencing August 27, with 48 prizes of $10 shopping value.

There will be a page of advertisers in each edition, in which there will be intentional errors (misspelling or transposition) in six merchants' names. The page also contains a coupon for readers to correct these errors and return to the publishers; those not received before the Thursday, one week after publication, will not be eligible.

Every week, six readers will be rewarded each with a $10 credit slip by a store mentioned — the drawing taking place on the premises of one of these advertisers. There is no limit to the number of replies one may send in.

The barrel will be at this store all week prior to the drawing. Ticket-holders may deposit their coupons here, and save mailing. BROWNSBURG PHARMACY, Main St., Brownsburg

'44 Class reunion of old LHS students

The 20-year reunion of the 1944 Lachute High School graduation class was held at the Lachute Golf and Country Club on Saturday evening, September 5. There were 16 members present, the other nine being absent due to unavoidable circumstances. All members of the class were traced to their present whereabouts, and for his effort in organizing the event, Earl MacLean was presented with a plaque. The event took the form of a dinner and social evening, and several citizens stopped in during the ceremonies to renew friendships.

Reports indicated that the event was enjoyed to such an extent that another reunion will be held in five years' time.

New president at helm for Lions Club year

At the recent resumption of Lions Club activities, the re-opening meeting at La Lorraine dining room was well attended — around 33 members being present, under the chairmanship of Mozart Carriere, the new president. Dr. Eric Mongeon, back in swing after a period of ill health, was welcomed as the secretary in office this year.

Royal Carriere gave incentive to the membership drive, which comes in October and coincides with the official visit of District Governor Lion Don Gamble, of Granby.

Dr. Mongeon, as an item of Lions Information, outlined changes in the Zones as a result of new club branches having been formed.

Keith Clark aired plans for the district Mammoth TV Auction, through which the Lions made a fine contribution last summer to the Crippled Children's Camp at Joliette. Objective for the effort this coming October is to provide buses for transporting children, to be known as the "Lions' Camps on Wheels" project.

The new president welcomed the members, announced the list of committee chairmen for the current year, and gave an outline of progress on the Lions' Arena. (reported in The Watchman last week).

Council gamut at September meet, from sewer odours to unpaid debts

A new councillor, Dr. Z. Saindon, was welcomed by Mayor Dave Campbell at the September meeting, last week. (Dr. Saindon was elected to complete the term of the late Ald. J. O. Desjardins.) Absent from this statutory meeting was Ald. Dr. L. A. Middleton.

Authorization had been received from Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs to borrow a sum of $38,700 for the purchase and installation of water meters. On this subject, Ald. Dr. Saindon expressed his opposition to purchasing the meters required to complete this job, started some months ago.

Various other correspondence raised opinions and responses. . . Permission was given to Miss E. Dallaire to enlist the services of J. Arthur Lafrance, surveyor, to define the limits of her corner property at Mary and Robert Streets, at her own expense.

A request from the High School, and others from various quarters, asked for work to be executed on sidewalks. Ald. Edmund McFaul recommended that these jobs be held in abeyance for a while.

A complaint from J. F. Gorman regarding sewer odours brought a statement from Ald. F. Charlebois that the town is presently using chemicals to counteract this nuisance, and the Council is awaiting results.

A plan for subdivision of the Cruise property was accepted, on proposal of Aldermen Armstrong and Charlebois.

Council decided against purchasing some radio equipment, siren, radar, etc., offered by the Village of St. Andrews.

Ald. Charlebois was authorized to sign cheques, pending the appointment of a new town secretary.

Answering a question from Ald. Nelson Lepage, the mayor and secretary stated that Ayersville still owes a debt of $26,932 to Lachute Town. On the other hand, Lachute has withheld $8,582 which was due to Ayersville in sales tax revenue. Ald. Lepage protested that it is not fair for Lachute to force tax levies on its citizens, while the neighboring corporation fails to pay its just debts.

Council decided to assess Gatineau Power Company with a $10 charge for replacing asphalt, each time the company erects or moves a pole.

Civic handshake at Dominion Store opening

Mayor Dave Campbell congratulates the manager of the newly opened Dominion Store, Damase Audette, at an inaugural reception last week in the new and modern premises on Main Street. Dorsay, merchandiser; and R. L. Netherton, Province of Quebec divisional manager.

Letter to Minister draws note to views on wildlife policies

The following letter from a member of the district clergy was addressed to the Quebec Minister of Tourism, Fish & Game in the interest of conservation for the wildlife resources of this province and the general welfare:

St. Sauveur des Monts, Que.
Aug. 26, 1964

The Hon. Lionel Bertrand,
Minister of Tourism, Fish & Game,
Quebec City, Que.

Honourable Sir:

I was very distressed to learn that the hunting season in the Province of Quebec, generally, and specifically in my own district, has been extended for the 1964 season. Also that licenses will be issued more freely and, in some cases, at a lower cost.

I am sure that these steps were taken by the Department after deliberation, but I am concerned as to whether adequate consideration was given to the over-all picture and with sufficient foresight.

It is common knowledge that the last hunting season did not come up to expectations, and I am wondering why the Department, despite this fact, has felt it prudent to extend the forthcoming season.

There are several questions which come to mind:

(1) Why does the Department permit the killing of all deer — bucks, does and young alike, when a policy of protecting the does and young would indeed protect the future of our wildlife in the Province, and in addition assist in preventing hunting accidents?

(2) Why are licenses issued so liberally, in a great many cases to those who are not equipped to hunt in a humane manner? It is also a fact that the use of these licenses is seriously abused, as in many instances this has come to my attention. Perhaps it would be well to take more safeguards in selecting game wardens. This would help us considerably in our struggle to save the wildlife.

(3) Why are not various districts closed each year, alternately, to allow the wildlife to establish itself and so provide a great delight to residents and tourists alike in seeing wild creatures unmolested in their natural habitat? This has not been the case in Argenteuil or Terrebonne for many years. It is a rarity in this area to see a wild animal.

(4) Does the Government consider the influx of American dollars more important than the preservation of its greatest gift — its wildlife?

I thought perhaps you may be interested in reading an excerpt from an article which appeared recently in the Reader's Digest. I am enclosing this excerpt and would be pleased if you could spare a few moments to read it. Mr. Lindbergh has said so much more aptly what I am attempting to say in this submission.

You, Sir, are indeed in an enviable position in that you have it within your power to contribute so much to the future of our Quebec wildlife. May God's blessing — and assistance — be upon all your endeavors which are made towards this objective.

Respectfully yours,
(Rev.) Horace G. Baugh, Rector

Excerpt from —
"IS CIVILIZATION PROGRESS?" by Charles A. Lindbergh
(As taken from "Reader's Digest" of August, 1964)

The Crisis for Wildlife

Above all else, when I am in Africa, I feel this miracle of life, for one is constantly surrounded by it. Life seems to me to have more validity than any other standard as a measure for the progress of mankind. In fact, what other standard can there be? On earth, even the spirit is attached to a quality of life. Civilization is progress and aviation a boon only if life improves because of them. To what extent is this improvement taking place?

In considering his own life's quality, civilized man has many problems to solve before a conclusive answer can be given — problems of adjusting to his scientific environment with its atomic weapons, mental tensions and "exploding" populations. In meeting his own problems, although man is pressed, he still has an indefinite period of time. But to the extent that he is unselfish and wise enough to be interested in other species than his own, the answer is clear. Our civilization has been alarmingly destructive of wildlife. A number of species have already been exterminated.

Wherever civilization comes, wildlife tends to disappear. I think of my father's stories about frontier days in the Mid-West. Woods were full of deer, and the sky was often black with duck when he was a boy, he said. He had seen a bear run through his school yard. One generation later, I never saw a deer in the woods around our farm. Duck seldom rested on the creek or river, and deer existed only in the stories my parents read or told to me.

Adult courses in French, English

Réal Urbain, secretary of the Catholic School Commission of Lachute, advises that courses in French, in English, and also to qualify for certificate in 9th and 11th Grade, will be available free to Lachute and district residents. The classes will commence the first Monday in October, at the l'Ecole Secondaire (boys' school) on Mary Street, Lachute. — See advertisement in this issue.

Business troubles due to parking on Barron Avenue

Two businessmen on Barron Avenue — Bertrand L'Heureux (Dry Cleaning) and Marcel Bélanger (Lachute Auto Parts) — sent a request to Council to regulate parking on that thoroughfare, in the area occupied by their premises. According to these two proprietors, certain drivers park cars in front of their establishments all day long, in such manner as to discourage customers. They suggested a 10 or 15-minute parking restriction, as a remedy.

Ald. Dr. R. A. Dumais, well familiar with this section, gave his opinion that parking should be prohibited altogether, on both sides of the street. The suggestion did not meet with general approval, however, and it was decided to submit the question to the Police Department for their views and suggestions.

LHS graduate named assistant school principal

Friends note with pleasure the appointment of Stanley Alexander, B.A., as assistant principal at Lake of Two Mountains High School, St. Eustache.

A graduate of Lachute High School and young townsman of this community, he attended Bishop's University, where he received his B.A. degree. He holds a French Specialist certificate from McGill.

Prior to his appointment to the high school staff at St. Eustache in 1963, he taught school for six years at Buckingham H.S., during the latter three years of that period serving as vice-principal.

Police report — 31 accidents in month of August

Police department revenues for August amounted to $1,217.80 — from traffic fines and other sources. There were 291 desk calls for police attention, and 31 accidents investigated, two involving injuries. There were 31 arrests during the month, on various charges. The police issued 95 "tickets", 27 permits, and brought 177 cases to court.

There were nine robberies, all of which were solved; three automobiles stolen and ten bicycles, all of which were re-claimed; one case of break-in and theft was also listed.

The report, prepared by Sgt. J. R. Chartrand, acting chief, was presented before Council by Ald. L. W. Armstrong. Commissioner Armstrong received approval of the Council to re-engage patrolmen for the school intersections.

Avoca lady is 102 years of age

(Our District Correspondent)

Avoca — This community extends hearty birthday greetings to a lifelong resident and dear friend, known to all as "Aunt Emma" — Mrs. James Arthurs, who celebrated her 102nd birthday on Sunday, September 6, at her home here in Avoca. Many of her immediate family — a son, daughters, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and great-great-grandchildren — were present, while during the afternoon nieces, nephews and a host of friends called expressing good wishes, and were entertained to afternoon tea by the family.

Week's Epigram

An old saying states, "If your family physician can scare you into taking care of your health, and your lawyer can scare you into behaving yourself, you'll live a long and fruitful life."

Progress at Ayersv'l on new parish church

Work is well under way on the building of a new parish church at l'Immaculée Conception, Ayersville, and according to the Rev. Father Yvon Mailloux, in charge of the parish, the structure should be ready for use in time for the Christmas observances, that is, in three months time.

The firm of Pierre Travaillaud, St. Sauveur, are contractors for the building. Their bid of $150,696 for the church structure and complete interior woodwork, was the lowest of six tenders received. The architect is Robert Menard, of St. Jerome, and the cost for the actual building, $128,159.

Construction will be of stone, brick and cedar, the edifice being 153 feet long and 50 feet wide. The lateral aisles and choir area will be terrazo tiled, while the floor in the seating area will be of cement. The main entry will be on Hammond Street, with two other entrances, and the front will be surmounted by a belfry with electronic chimes.

A loan of $150,000 has been negotiated for the project; this is in bonds, the whole redeemable in 25 years, at the rate of $11,000 a year. The finance committee responsible for all decisions includes the following — Messrs. Laurent Tessier, Claude Cousineau, Richard Sabourin, Jacques Richer, Ronald Hébert and Onil L'Heureux.

It was the previous parish priest, Father Dalma Brisebois, who set the plans in motion and first instituted a building fund, in 1957. Initial drawings were prepared by Architect Dufresne in 1960, but the firm of Robert Menard was engaged to draw up the revised plans. At this stage there is no provision for the building of a presbytery.

There are 635 families in this parish, numbering 2,900 individuals. The nave of the new church will accommodate 675 worshippers, with space provided for choir and organ. The altar will rest on an immense stone base, and the priest will celebrate mass facing the congregation. . . The basement auditorium, which has served for worship for several years pending the realization of these plans, will be used as the parish hall; and during the construction period, religious services are being held in one of the assembly halls in the Clément School.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

Nice to see the patrolmen on duty again at school crossings. One thinks they must be chosen on qualifications of patience and fatherly concern.

In commercial establishments, work is advancing on the new Murphy Oil filling station, and on extensive re-building at Muir Bros. service station. Also of public interest is the quick progress evident on the new Anglican rectory, Francis Street.

Through failure of one of those temperamental fluorescents, a sign announcing "Tires" in a big way, has latterly been advertising "Ties". . . But there has been no rush for haberdashery.

Last week-end, prior to Labor Day and with two big new stores attracting visitors, there was a shoppers' invasion on Main Street, and traffic congestion was at its worst.

A hose spray can use 240 gallons an hour, and a car-washing, without undue wastage, can consume 20 gallons of water. It's obvious that water rates levied since the addition of Lachute's purification plant are lenient to some and exorbitant to others. Example — some are paying 2c a 1,000 gallons, while others are paying $3 a 1,000 gallons. . . A sound argument for water meters, which state the plain facts.

Cpl. J. P. Dallaire reported a fatality-free week-end throughout the County, in spite of fatal accidents all around Argenteuil. Local Q.P.P. officers worked a 12-hour shift over the long week-end, and four patrol cars were on the highways at all times. Several minor accidents were investigated, but no serious injuries were reported.

Local name is linked with Confederation

A news item from Fredericton, New Brunswick, notes that seven hills in the northern interior of that province have been named after Fathers of Confederation.

Effective from September 1, the centennial of the New Brunswick delegates' arrival at the Charlottetown pre-Confederation conference, the hills are to be known as — Tilley Ridge, Mount Johnson, Mount Gray, Mount Steeves, Mount Mitchell, Mount Chandler, and Fisher Ridge.

One of these is immediately recognized as the name of a Lachute family. Mr. Willard M. Steeves, east ward townsman, when questioned on the ancestral link, informed us that the Hon. William Henry Steeves, after whom one of the hills is to be named, was a cousin of his immediate grandfather.

The family story is interwoven with the history of Albert County, N.B., and one of William Henry's brothers, with the shipbroking business in England. William Henry was a member of the Legislative Council of New Brunswick, and became a Senator in 1867, the year of Confederation. He died in 1873 in Saint John.

"Sampshire Greene", by Esther Clark Wright, of Kingsport, N.S., is an interesting chronology of the Steeves ancestry. The original Henry Steeves (Stiefa) and his seven sons, it appears, settled in the Maritimes from north of Philadelphia, in the 1760's. . . It is understood that a sequel volume is being prepared by the same author, which will include the two present generations of Steeves now represented in Lachute.

First winners in 'Know Your Merchants' contest

In the first drawing of the "Know Your Merchants" contest sponsored by The Watchman and L'Argenteuil, Guy Bélanger, one of the participating merchants, is seen selecting the winning contestants, at his jewelry store on Main Street. Right to left — Mr. Belanger, Miss Claire Ménard, store employee, and Miss Cécile Fauteux, next-door business neighbor.

Winners drawn in this first week of the contest were — Mrs. David Rozon, Miss Stella Murray, François Papineau, Jean Gravel and Laurent Beaudry, all of Lachute, and Wayne Kennedy, Brownsburg. Each has received a $10 credit note for purchases at one of the stores listed.

By BOB ATCHISON

With the cool weather we have been experiencing, one would expect the bass to be almost free from Black Spot infestation. However the low water seemed to have made this just as bad as in former years. Visiting Lake Sir John the other night, not too many bass were caught, but those taken had dozens of the worms in them. This also was evident in the few small perch in our diminutive haul. I have also been told of other lakes, which seemed to be free of this spot and they now have it. The real cause of this trouble, I do not know. It does not seem to be prevalent in fish being caught in the rivers; this could be due to the current washing everything down. In Sir John, the parasite has been bad for a few years, and no matter what is said, it spoils the fishing. This year, however, it's very much worse. They can be seen all over the fish, not only along the backbone, and in a lot of cases right under the skin little holes may be seen where the eggs themselves have hatched and burrowed into the fish.

A couple of bears have been seen in the vicinity of town. I would imagine they are young, more than likely, this year's birth. It will be too bad for them if they're still around when the mighty hunters get going. Deer do not seem to be in great number, but the foliage on the trees would still protect them from view. I don't believe they have been bothered too much by humans or dogs. Nevertheless, after the great move back to suburbia, there will be plenty of dogs left to roam the bush. It has always happened this way, and I see no reason why it should change this year. I hope that there are lynx around, in sufficient strength to take care of any wild dogs on the loose.

The poor results at the last fishing derby should point out the fact that contests like this do not pay, either in good catches or in good will. There were complaints about the stupid motorboating while the derby was in progress. I know some of these beefs were legitimate, but I also know others were not. After all, a fisherman anchoring in a known channel for boating can expect to be pounded by waves as the boats go by. Another point, most of the fishermen do not live around this area, therefore the regular summer residents have every right to use the lake as they see fit. It's up to the residents to organize some sort of safety program for boats.

Back to the fishing and the fishermen — what about the fishermen scattering all their junk on the waters? This was done, I happen to know. It seems to me that our fishing club should consult with the Louise association whenever they propose to use this lake for a derby. After all, co-operation is a keystone to good organizing.

Squirrels, mostly black, are having a ball; for a time I had thought these little animals had been shot out by the summer residents. I do not mean to imply that summer residents are responsible for all shooting of game, this sure is not so, but with youngsters around the bush all summer it's only natural for them to get a hold of a gun and try and kill something. However, this does not seem to have been the case; it just could be that youngsters are learning to leave the animals alone. I certainly do hope so. It's easy enough for me to write and blame someone else. Actually the youngsters should not be blamed, the parents are the teachers — but having watched some of the supposed teachers, it's no wonder their offspring have destructive tendencies.

There is still no word (official, that is) on just when the duck season opens, or just where the boundaries are. Calling on the Department last Wednesday, I could procure nothing in the way of printed information. I did confer with two of the "bosses", and was given two different boundary lines. The first of these has the Ottawa River in the "Central" district, while the other has it in the "Southern" district. This will mean a week either way in the season for duck shooters, so I guess the only thing is to wait and see what takes place. The reason given for the delay sounded very far-fetched — a study of the waterfowl is supposedly being worked on. They have just finished the survey, so this is the reason given. Just where this survey took place, when or how, no one seems to know. No information could be gleaned on this.

This is for the information of shooters: .22s cannot be used for deer. Last year the Department of Game prohibited the shooting of deer with this calibre of weapon, but most people seem to think the restriction was repealed — which shows just how much the game laws are studied by the average hunters.

I know this is old stuff to most shooters, but to the newcomer, maybe it will do some good. Use your gun with care, and know how to handle your gun. . . So many don'ts can be written, and so many have been written, that if you are still unfamiliar with the first rules of safety — then forget it, you'll probably shoot yourself anyway.

Another thing, our Wardens need every help they can get. They are doing a terrific job in this County, but not with our help. True, some of you do help by giving them a call about infractions, but not enough are sufficiently interested to do this. We realize that lawbreaking has increased tenfold in the last couple of years, yet we don't seem to give a damn. As long as people will buy game meat illegally, then we will have these offences. A call to the Wardens would end this fast — but this will depend on you, the citizen.

Of course, WE are not entirely to blame. Take the matter of fines. As I have often said, these are no deterrent to lawbreakers. Only when the government wakes up to the fact that heavy fines should be imposed for game offences, will we get anywhere. I could write about the laws on trespassing too, but what's the use? Those who make the laws have no livestock or possessions exposed to this rural invasion each season.

The fishing should pick up within the next week or so, especially if water levels rise in the lakes and streams. I was talking to a resident from Montreal who has a private lake that he wished to stock with trout. It seems the water was so low that, when tests were carried out, the water was found unsuitable for these fish. Yet there are some of these in the lake. Evidently the water remaining is just enough to sustain the present fish population, and the visiting biologists advised him to wait another year until conditions might improve . . . And such conditions are probably general all over.

A news item on detergents, from the U.S. It seems that water used by a laundry was allowed to be dumped into the drains. . . Fish were found dead by the hundreds . . . and only after much checking was the culprit found. . . Yep, detergents.

One last word, take no chances with the skunks. A few of them appear to be rabid, some even being killed while halted in the middle of the road.

Thurso Golf Club held first open tournament

On Sunday, August 30, Don Westphal of Buckingham won the Directors' Trophy of the Thurso Golf Club. This was the first open tournament held by the club, and was attended by approximately 100 golfers. Don Westphal, Jean-Marc Comtois and Ernest Page were the champions in Class A, B and C, respectively.

Don Westphal established a new record for the club by playing 70 (two under par). Darcy Boucher and Ruben Paluck followed with 79 each. Georges Potvin finished fourth with 80 and a net score of 70.

Jean-Marc Comtois won the championship in Class B with a score of 84. He was wollowed by Ronald Blais 87, Roger Leblanc 88, and Jean-Louis Carriere 89.

Ernest Page won the championship in Class C with a score of 92, followed by Frank Nadeau, 93, and Gaetan Legresley, 96.

This first tournament was a great success, thanks to the organizing efforts of Marc Biron. All outsiders participating were greatly pleased with the condition of the course, which has been in operation for the past two years.

Ballet lessons in Brownsburg by choreographer

Madame Susta, who prior to her arrival in Canada years ago, was a noted choreographer in Europe, is now teaching ballet in Brownsburg, apart from conducting classes in her own studio.

An ever-increasing number of parents are sending their children to ballet school to achieve grace, poise and refinement. Ballet lessons have become — as was formerly the case with piano lessons — a question of prestige.

Is ballet dancing harmful? What can be told to parents who ask "What does ballet dancing do for my child's health?" There is a vast difference between ballet training for fun, grace and poise as compared with strict professional training, which serves a different purpose and is consequently much more intensive.

There is no reason why any healthy, well-developed child should not study ballet. The tendency towards flat feet is present in a high percentage of children, but this need not necessarily hinder ballet study. On the contrary, ballet lessons exercise the feet, teach children to walk correctly, and therefore aid in the development of normal feet.

Not all children like strict ballet instruction. Should your child show more inclination towards interpretative dancing, it would nevertheless be desirable to continue with some basic classical training. This is important for any kind of dancing, because no other form of dance training will ever accomplish the same mastery and control over body movement.

Madame Susta will welcome all children in Brownsburg interested in taking ballet lessons, at the Legion Hall.

Draws note to views on wildlife policy

ward over lands where antelope and buffalo had grazed. All around the world I have listened to men telling how birds and animals dwindled in numbers and then disappeared as civilization progressed. On every continent, and in almost every country, the crisis for wildlife is acute. If present trends continue, the extermination will be appalling and it can never be redressed. The American eagle, the whooping crane, the Arabian oryx, the mountain gorilla, the blue whale, the polar bear and many other species are all in imminent danger.

Man can stop the extermination of animals if he has the desire to do so. To what extent he has this desire will, I think, be the measure of his greatness — whether he places more value on his own material accomplishments or on God's miracle of life. The extermination of animals can be stopped: through the action of a nation's statesmen, through a small fraction of the support philanthropic foundations give to physical and intellectual sciences each year, through interest and donations on the part of individuals who believe as I do, that life itself is more important than any material accomplishment life makes.

This is why I have been devoting attention to the wildlife I flew over with too little thought in decades past. There is no time to lose. Some species now number only dozens, where thousands existed not very long ago; and with all the progress of our science, we cannot replace a species once extinct.

But conservation measures can still be effective in most instances. More national parks are needed. More game reserves are essential. Information and skilled assistance must be made available to governments of both old and newly established countries.

Is civilization progress? The challenge, I think, is clear; and, as clearly, the final answer will be given not by our amassment of knowledge, or by the discoveries of our science, or by the speed of our aircraft, but by the effect our civilized activities as a whole have upon the quality of our planet's life — the life of plants and animals as well as that of men.

Boating Clinic

— BY STAN DAVIES —

Boating is one of the last areas, in our automated lives, for do-it-yourself family fun. And the fact that there is a large number of people still thirsty for knowledge, is shown by many of the questions that come to me:

Is it possible to convert a used car engine for use in a boat? (K.S., Nipigon)

Answer: Yes, particularly, if the engine is out of one of the popular brand of cars. BUT, get a conversion kit for the motor, you'll save money in the long run. It contains such things as a water-cooled manifold, marine type water pump, proper mounts and a new oil pan if the engine has to be installed at an angle. Talk to a marine dealer who can find out for you about such kits.

Can dry rot be cured without replacing planks?

Answer: Prevention is a better procedure. Ventilation is the best preventative. But as for a cure, there is a product sold which when applied to a rotted board soaks in and hardens. I have tried it and it is very effective over areas not too large. Sorry, I can't mention trade names, but you'll see it advertised.

I have taken many canoe trips through northern Quebec with my wife and two children. I would like to try the Northwest Territories. Where should I start? (B.H., Lachute)

Answer: Start by contacting the Hudson's Bay Company, at Winnipeg. It operates, or is agent for, a canoe rental and outfitting service in the Northwest. And, "Bonne chance, Voyageur!"

Does a boat trailer require brakes? What are best? (T.S., Fort William)

Answer: It depends on the weight of the trailer and its load. A lot of provinces and states in the U.S. require brakes on a trailer which grosses 3,000 lbs. Electrically operated brakes are really the only ones readily available. A new system is coming out soon, called the impulse brake. When the car is braked the trailer pushes forward on the tongue and automatically applies its own brakes in proportion to the push.

I have four sons and I would like to start taking them fishing. What's the smallest reasonable size boat I can get away with? (J.H., Lindsay)

Answer: Congratulations, Dad! I've got six boys, I know your problem. The Queen Mary may be a bit small for four scrappy kids. But seriously, I have a 12-foot cartop boat, and I take TWO at a time. Try one at each end of the boat, you in the middle. Running the outboard is a reward for good behavior or catching a fish.

Do they enforce the speed limits you see posted up on some waterways?

Answer: Yes, sporadically. The day you speed through, may be the day the Mounties have a speed trap set up. If ever you enter the harbor at Bronte, on Lake Ontario, take care. The police there have a radar set-up, just like the ones on the highway, at the harbor entrance, where a 5 m.p.h. speed limit prevails.

Are the "stern drive" inboard installations better than the old kind in which the propeller shaft went through the keel?

Answer: Way better! They are more efficient because the thrust is straight ahead, not partly up. But they cost more..

My wife has trouble steering the car when we launch our trailer boat . . . any suggestions? (A.S., London, Ontario)

Answer: Why don't you drive and let her wrestle the boat off the trailer. Or put a trailer hitch on the front bumper of the car . . . to be used just for the launching and take-out. Then she can see what she's doing.

What is a Volkswagen 1500?

All this  And more.

The Volkswagen 1500 is the other car in our life. It's got all the nice things that made the beetle famous. Engine in the rear for better traction. No radiator to freeze or boil. Low gas consumption. And a design that never changes. And the VW 1500 gives you a lot more. It's a Volkswagen with more power, more room and more looks. It goes from a standing start to 50 mph in 12 seconds. Our station wagon is big enough to carry a bathtub or 14,600 bars of soap. The sedan is so roomy it's got two trunks. With the VW 1500 you get sports car power and family car room. Sort of a family sports car. That's the Volkswagen 1500. It's more Volkswagen than any other Volkswagen.

Car enters store window

Damage estimated at several hundreds of dollars was the result of this accident Saturday morning on Water Street. According to municipal police, who investigated, the car owned by Roy Evans, Lachute, R.R. 3, was parked some 50 feet down the street from the Singer Sewing Center. A 14-year-old boy in the car reported he was playing with the gear-shift when the auto started forward and he was unable to stop it. Damage to the car was limited to the front fender, while the store window was smashed and several electrical appliances, including a sewing machine, were damaged. — Photo, Syd Drew

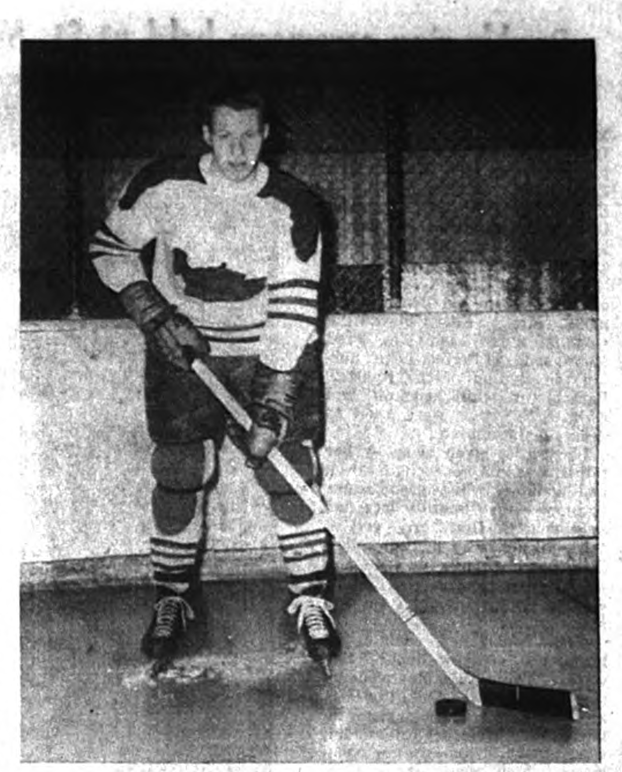

Provincial plowing championships at Joliette

One hundred years ago what is now the City of Joliette was unique in that it started, not as a rural village, but around an industry. Today Joliette has many thriving industries, but a large part of its prosperity depends on the sale of farm produce, and the servicing of the needs of farmers. It is thus fitting that this year, 1964, when Joliette is celebrating its centenary, the part played by the farming populace in that growth should be recognized.

One event in this recognition will be the staging of the Provincial Plowing Championships at Joliette, when expert plowmen from all parts of the province will compete, and two plowmen will be chosen to represent Quebec at the Canadian Plowing Championships.

At Joliette the County Agricultural Association, the Centenary Commission, and the Provincial Plowmen's Association are actively preparing for this event, to be held September 30 and October 1.

Plowmen and farmers from Joliette and the surrounding counties will be anxious to attend this unique event. There will be demonstrations of the latest types of farm implements.

To play hockey in France

Gilles Red Pilon (above) and Yves Caouette have just signed a six-months contract to play hockey for the town team of Gervais-les-Bains, France. Caouette, right wing, is from Val D'Or - Abitibi, and Gilles Pilon, centre, is a former Brownsburg boy; the pair have played together these past two seasons for Val D'Or in the Northern Ontario (Senior) Hockey Association. . . They leave October 25, and will return next May.

"Pit" Pilon (brother of Roland Pilon, Lachute) first played hockey for the Bouchard School, then for the Bombers, in Brownsburg. In his line of business he was transferred to Val D'Or, where he has continued to play hockey, was top scorer for his team last season, and ranked fifth player in the league.

FIGHT HIGH TAXES

Every unjust tax assessment ought to be fought tooth and nail.

The word "taxation" is a poor one. Somehow or other it does not seem to represent what it really is — the taking of bread and milk from the citizen, in return for certain services. It is a dangerous power in the hands of federal, provincial and municipal governments. These days it is being used in an extreme form, even by small town councils, and there is a great deal of private grumbling.

Private grumbling is not enough. There must be the willingness on the part of every individual to go much further and fight all the way against discriminatory or unjust taxation in general and in specific cases. Far too many citizens grouse but pay up.

It is true that government must have revenue. A reasonable man does not complain about paying his share of the cost of really necessary services

However, because taxes are a first charge against income — they must be paid even before provision is made for food and clothing — every effort should be made to see to it that they are kept within bounds and scrupulously fair in their application.

The government, at whatever level, which looks upon the right to tax as a chance to grab every possible penny from the citizen, deserves nothing but disgust.

The use of taxation as a tool for any other purpose than the raising of needed revenue for essential services is getting fairly general these days. This is a curse, for it is so often forgotten that it is the family larder that is being used — the bread, milk and butter of Canadian families.

EDMONTON'S IN A KLOND'IKE DAZE!

In these times, when any project needs a gimmick to grow on, Edmonton, Alberta, has latched on to one that looks like a winner.

There has always been considerable friendly rivalry between Edmonton and Calgary, with certainly a serious case of envy on Edmonton's part for Calgary's well established tourist attraction, "The Stampede". In 1963, perhaps a bit adventuresomely, Edmonton launched "Klondike Days" a catchy title in which to cloak its annual exhibition's weeklong activities. Male members of the community were encouraged to wear Klondike gambler-type homburgs, or straw boaters, brocaded vests and string ties. It didn't take too much coaxing to persuade the female population to adorn themselves in the ravishing elegance of the Gay Nineties costumes. Plumes, parasols, velvets and calicos quickly bloomed among the crowds. Given 12 months to simmer from its first launching, the idea has mushroomed in popularity.

When I arrived at Edmonton's CN station, I was well aware of the fact that my visit would coincide with the city's annual Exhibition. What I hadn't heard about was the "Klondike" theme.

My first reaction, when I encountered numerous Dan McGrews and Klondike Kates, when a uniformed band escorted my taxi to the Macdonald Hotel with a lusty blast of brass horns, was that TV's Wagon Train had settled in this Alberta city to shoot a few sequences.

After several days observation and celebration, I think it's a safe bet to predict the idea "Klondike Days" will have wide appeal, not only for Canadians, but for tourists from across the international border.

Klondike Days will take constant promotion — summer and winter — for it doesn't take a very long memory to remember that Calgary's Stampede popularity wasn't arrived at in two seasons.

Well chosen is the event's craggy little gold miner "Mike" as a trade mark. He adorns souvenirs, grins at one from newspaper columns, bill boards, street signs, car stickers and even the cover of the city's news magazine and TV guide.

Nothing nas been neglected on the part of Edmonton's promoters. From the moment a gun is popped to start raft races on the swiftly flowing North Saskatchewan River, to panning for gold at Chilkoot Mine within the fair grounds, tourists and Edmontonians alike enjoy a bonanza of fun.

Free flapjack breakfasts are tossed daily by Macdonald Hotel chef, Emile Bezan, on a street corner just off Jasper Avenue. Emile sets his alarm for 5 o'clock each morning, when he arises to prepare 30 gallons of pancake batter in the hotel's kitchen. He also slices 115 pounds of bacon. In two hours time he reckons he flips enough pancakes to feed 3,000 "gold diggers" their breakfast.

Noon hour highlights "the thrill of a lifetime". Outriders on palaminos, rooty-toot-tooting their trusty six shooters herald the stage coach drawn by four black horses with its passenger, the previous day's winner of the $1,000 gate prize. Crowds, three deep, line the route to get a glimpse of the lucky gal or guy on the way to deposit the winner's "loot".

This, and a car, 10 bags of $50 in coins, even a trip to the World's Fair, are drawn for each evening in front of the grandstand. A "Dream Home Draw" winds up Edmonton's bid for the reputation of staging the biggest, noisiest and best annual event in Canada's Golden West.

"The fastest growing city in Canada" has surely found the answer to its search for an original promotional idea.

Growth retardants for tailoring of garden shrubs

Do you have trouble getting your ornamental trees and shrubs to grow into the size and shape you would like? Take heart! Help may soon be on the way!

Scientists at the CDA's Saanichton (B.C.) experimental farm have been testing growth retardants which they hope will enable the home owner to chemically tailor his shrubs to suit his own taste.

J. H. Crossley, a researcher at the Saanichton farm, notes that chemical growth retardants have been used successfully to regulate valuable greenhouse crops such as potted chrysanthemums, poinsettias and azalias. With proper dosage and timing the plants are actually tailored so that their dimensions compare with the size of the plant container. The result is a more appealing and useful plant for the housewife's centrepiece.

The retardants restrain the plant's internal processes which ordinarily would produce an upward stretching plant.

Using growth regulating chemicals on trees and woody ornamentals would be a step further.

Mr. Crossley relates that the tests at Saanichton have shown that all shrubs don't react the same way to the same retardant chemical and have shown that dosage is important.

Lawson cypress responded favorably to the retardant B995 but reacted negatively to phosfon and cycocel. At the highest doses (of B995) the dwarfing effect was still apparent at the end of the season. At lower doses, however, the retarding effect was shorter-lived, suggesting that repeat applications may be required.

In the case of Madrona (a broad-leaved native B.C. evergreen) growth was effectively retarded by both phosfon and cycocel but not by B995.

None of the three retarded or injured European mountain ash at three different dose levels.

Maples as a group varied widely according to the particular species.

Cycocel was most effective on Japanese maple but phosfon either killed or injured this type at all dose levels.

Phosfon spray worked best on Amur maple (acer ginnala) while on the large-leafed Oregon maple soil drenches of phosfon and cycocel were very effective — in fact so effective that most specimens treated in 1962 did not need retreatment in 1963.

Mr. Crossley points out that while the Saanichton experiments have opened up a new field of exploration, innumerable limitations and obstacles must be overcome before growth retardants are satisfactory for general use.

APPRECIATION

I take occasion to thank sincerely those who organized my campaign in the recent West Ward election — likewise all who voted for me in that contest.

I am not discouraged by defeat, but will come before the electors again at a more opportune time, when I hope to be able to convince the 22 voters who constituted my opponent's majority.

Thanking you again, and until another time —

IN MEMORIAM

CHAMPAGNE — In loving memory of a dear husband, Felix, who passed away Sept. 11, 1949. — Always loved and remembered by his wife, Dolly.

"May the winds of heaven blow softly
On the quiet and peaceful spot,
Where the one I loved is sleeping
And will never be forgot."

CHAMPAGNE — In loving memory of our dear dad and grandfather, Felix Champagne, whom God called home to rest on Sept. 11, 1949. — Always loved by all the family.

"It's just a line, but it means a lot,
To say, 'Dear Dad, we haven't forgot,
You won't come home, we know that's true.
But someday, Dad, we'll come to you'."

KENNEDY (Charles) — In loving memory of a dear husband, who passed away September, 1962. — Sadly missed by his wife, Mary.

"God knew that he was suffering,
That the hills were hard to climb,
So He closed his weary eyelids
And whispered 'Peace be Thine'."

KENNEDY (Charles) — In loving memory of a dear dad and granddad, who passed away September, 1962. — Always missed and remembered by his daughter, Eleanor, Jerry and Brian.

"We had a Dad we were proud to own
How much we miss him, will never be known,
The heartaches in this world are many,
But the loss of our Dad, was the greatest of any.

KENNEDY — In loving memory of a dear son, who passed away August, 1959. — Sadly missed by his mother.

"A thousand tomorrows I would give,
If only God had let you live;
To be with you in the same old way,
Would be my greatest wish today.
Two little words not hard to write,
But I shall remember them all my life —
'My Son'."

KENNEDY (David) — In loving memory of a dear brother, Dave, who passed away August, 1959. — Sadly missed by his sister, Eleanor.

"A little prayer keeps me in touch,
With a wonderful brother I loved so much."

MacLEAN — In fond and loving memory of my dear husband, Willie, who passed away Aug. 30, 1962. — Wife, Annie.

"It's sad to walk the road alone
Instead of side by side,
But to all there comes a moment
When the ways of life divide.
When evening shades are falling,
And I sit in quiet, alone,
In my heart there comes a longing —
If he only could come home."

McLEOD (Neil) — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away Sept. 10, 1960. — His wife, Kate.

"Not a day we do forget him,
Loving memories keep him near,
Time only proves how much we miss him
As it dawns another year."

STOTE — In loving memory of Frank Stote, who went to be with his Lord Sept. 2, 1963. — Remembered by school friends: Valerie, Lorne, Harry and Wayne.

"The gift of God is eternal life Through Jesus Christ our Lord."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Double-ring ceremony held at St. Mungo's, Cushing

Elliott - Moncrieff

The marriage of Florence Ada May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Moncrieff, of Kilmar, Que., to Mr. Roy Elliott, son of Mrs. Elliott and the late Mr. Albert Elliott, of Liverpool, England, took place on Saturday, August 15, at four o'clock in St. Mungo's United Church, Cushing.

The Rev. Harold Thompson officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. V. Elliott played the wedding music, and Mrs. Fred Moore sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register. Baskets of white gladioli and white satin bows were used to decorate the church.

The bride, given away by her father, was in a floor-length gown, and train, of white peau-de-soie, trimmed with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. Her tiered veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a bow of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of orange Delight roses and white mums.

Miss Vivian Janes, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of pale blue peau-de-soie trimmed with Chantilly lace. Mrs. Kenneth Moncrieff, sister-in-law of the bride, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of pale yellow peau-de-soie; and Miss Lenora Eastwood, as bridesmaid, wore a gown of mink brown peau-de-soie. All had matching headdresses, and they carried bouquets of white mums and orange Delight roses.

Mr. Derek Elliott acted as best man for his brother, and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth Moncrieff, brother of the bride, and Mrs. Owen Ellis.

Mrs. Moncrieff, mother of the bride, wore a dress of blue crepe with black accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses. Mrs. Elliott, the groom's mother, wore a dress and matching coat of green crepe de chine, with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Brownsburg Legion Hall.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott left for New York and Barbados, the bride travelling in a suit of blue silk, with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias. The couple will reside in Schefferville, Que.

Out-of-town guests were — Mrs. A. Elliott, of Liverpool, Eng.; Mr. and Mrs. Derek Elliott, of Long Island, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John Bastow and family, of Schefferville, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Dove, of Toronto; Mrs. Elsie Gregory, Carol and Lynne) of Lachine, Que.; Mr. Ed Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Gaskill, Mr. and Mrs. George Porteous, Mr. Archie Janes, Miss Vivian Janes, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Kennedy, Miss Helen Kennedy, all of Montreal; Mrs. Kate Shute and Miss Joyce Kennedy, of Ottawa; Mrs. Clara Hoskins, of Kenora, Ont.; Mr. Gordon Kennedy, of North Augusta, Ont.; Miss Heather Clifford, of Newboro, Ont.; Mrs. John Greig, of Kingston, Ont.; Miss Norma Farwell, of Avers Cliff, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Pete O'Connell, of Asbestos, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Eastwood, of Shawbridge, Que.; Miss Lenora Eastwood, of Schefferville, Que.; Mr. and Mrs. John Moncrieff, of Arundel, Que.

Lifelong resident of Harrington laid to rest

Mrs. Alex MacTavish

Funeral services were held at Harrington on August 21 for Mrs. Hazel Helen MacTavish, wife of Alex MacTavish, who died August 18 in the Argenteuil Hospital, Lachute, after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. MacTavish, a lifelong resident of Harrington, was in her 55th year, and was the daughter of Mrs. Catherine MacLeod and the late Neil MacLeod. She was a good neighbor, and her kind and cheerful disposition endeared her to all.

Besides her husband and mother, she is survived by a daughter, (Grace) Mrs. Charles Downing, of Harrington, and three sons, Walter, of Sudbury, Ont., Dougald, of Thompson, Man., and Lloyd, of Harrington, and ten grandchildren; also, two sisters, (Gladys) Mrs. Mack MacTavish, and (Sadie) Mrs. Evan Bates, of Avoca, and two brothers, Ernest and Melvin MacLeod, of Harrington.

The Rev. Harold Thompson, of Lachute, conducted the service in the chapel and at the graveside, in Shaw's Cemetery. Pall-bearers were — Walter MacTavish, Charles Downing, and nephews, Keith Staniforth, Mackie MacTavish, Ernie MacLeod and Rory MacTavish.

Business man died suddenly

The late Wilfrid Speight

Friends and customers regret the sudden death of Wilfrid (Fred) Speight, long established in the butcher business here, who was fatally stricken at an early hour last Monday, at his home on Lafleur Street, Lachute. He was only 45 years of age.

The late townsman is mourned by his wife (the former Alberta Huneault) and a family of three — Micheline, at home, Mrs. Walter Duncan (Claudette), of Montreal, and André, of Lachute.

He is survived also by his brother, Henri Speight, residing here, and two sisters, Mme (Jeanne-Alice) Cousineau, of St. Jerome, and Mme (Gertrude) Laframboise, of St. Philippe.

Funeral rites are being held Thursday morning at Ste. Anastasie Church.

APPRECIATION

I wish to express sincere thanks to all friends for the beautiful flowers, cards and visits received during my stay in the St. Jerome Hospital, and since coming home. Very special thanks to Dr. Alford and (Mrs.) Frances Carruthers.

Improvements in cable vision to local subscribers

Lachute Cable Vision Inc., now under the ownership of Trans-Vision Magog Inc., while still being managed by Alex Kerr, is presently undergoing numerous changes which will improve and broaden the service to present and new subscribers in the Greater Lachute area. Mr. Kerr, as general manager of the local concern is now backed by another company with 15 years' experience in the cable field, both in Quebec and Ontario, and has a full-time engineer on call at all times.

To date, since the change in ownership, approximately $15,000 has been spent on the system. An extensive check has been completed on all available cable; replacement of all antennae on the tower has been completed; the head-end has been modernized for peak efficiency; a new substation has been installed in town to keep the picture quality high; a new music system has been installed to supply background music 24 hours a day; and an additional channel, CBOT, Ottawa, has been added.

Negotiations are in progress with the Bell Telephone Company to wire the balance of the town for the new fall season, and plans have been approved for some sections. In addition, the supply of FM programs for those interested is being worked out.

A full-scale overhaul of the system for the new season is currently underway, and according to estimates, the approximate cost of the future development will be in the vicinity of $60,000. At present, ten channels of U.S., Canadian and FM entertainment are offered on the local cable network.

Not for novices

The highways are no place for the new driver, reminds the Quebec Department of Transportation and Communications. And this holds especially true during the week-ends, when highways are crowded. If you do not have perfect control of your car, don't drive. Driving too fast is illegal. You must keep up with the traffic flow. Driving too slowly is also illegal, and dangerous.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gunn, of Brownsburg

Fitting celebration for couple's diamond wedding anniversary

A happy event took place last Saturday evening, September 5, in the hall of Lachute Baptist Church, when many relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. George Gunn, of Brownsburg, gathered with them to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary.

Approximately 80 persons sat down to supper, eight of whom had attended the original wedding, which took place at Hawkesbury, Ont., on September 7, 1904. One noteworthy aspect pertaining to this event, is that the attendants at the wedding many years ago, are still living also. They were — Miss Ruth Gunn (now Mrs. Faye, of Philadelphia), and Walter McLean, of Harrington East, Que. Unfortunately, due to distance and ailing health, they were unable to attend this celebration.

The hall and tables were ornamented with yellow and white marigolds and gladioli. A beautiful three-tiered cake, which had been decorated by Mrs. Melvin Dewar, graced the head-table. Mrs. Dewar also added a little humor to the occasion by singing a self-composed ditty, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gunn.

Appropriate remarks were made by the Rev. Lorne Hisey, and the Rev. George Hicks proposed a toast to the honored couple. Guests enjoyed solos beautifully rendered by Mr. Frank Kettyle, of Montreal, accompanied by Mrs. Larry Dickerson at the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. Gunn (the former Mary McLean) spent most of their married lives in Dalesville, where they raised their family, eight of whom are still living. Except for Clarence, of Kapuskasing, and Elden, of Montreal, all reside within a few miles of Brownsburg.

A family picnic, held the following afternoon, was attended by most of their 31 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Bishop Maguire honored at dinner in Mille Isles

Mille Isles — The Rt. Rev. Kenneth Maguire, Bishop of Montreal, was honored with a dinner in the Community Hall at Mille Isles on Saturday evening, with the rector acting as chairman.

Mayor S. Jones welcomed the Bishop on behalf of the Council and people, and the Bishop spoke on "Mutual Responsibility".

On Sunday morning a confirmation service was held at Christ Church, when the following were confirmed — Clifford Lloyd Dawson, Stanley Walter Dawson, Peter Anthony Grice, Brent Lawrence Ward, Gordon Garnet Ward, Garnet Donald Arthur Wood, Susan Margot Buchardt Christiansen, Vivi Mariane Buchardt Christiansen, Shirley Elizabeth Mary Dawson, Barbara Ann Laura Morrison, Carol Ann Smith, Carol Nancy Ward, Corinne Elizabeth Ward, Ruth Rae Ward, Alvira Ellen Elizabeth Wood, Mary Noella Wood.

Following the service the Bishop was entertained at luncheon at the residence of Colonel Garnet M. Strong, Cambria.

While at Mille Isles, the Bishop dedicated a new prayer desk in loving memory of Mrs. Hannah Buxton, a gift of the family, also the new pulpit and lectern, as gifts of the congregation. . . The present project of Christ Church is raising funds for new pews and kneelers.

The Bible Today

University students and church young people joined in a neighborhood Scripture distribution campaign in Ceylon. Starting with a study of the Christian Scriptures, the youth felt the urge to give these books wider circulation.

Three mixed groups of students and youth from the area churches, after meeting for worship and Bible Study, visited from door to door in Ceylon, selling packets of Scriptures.

Twenty-five packets were sold, in one campaign, totalling 400 copies of various portions of the Bible. Each purchaser of a packet is expected to re-distribute to fifteen people. In this manner the Scriptures are given very wide distribution.

During the few months it has been operating this Ceylon House Scripture Evangelism project has distributed 772 packets containing 12,352 portions.

The Bible-A-Month Club supplied Bibles in Tamil for the Ceylonese during the month of July.

EDUCATION IMPORTANT

Of all the taxes we have to pay, that which is devoted to education is most important. It is most important that they be used to the best advantage in the light of modern trends, so that our young people may be trained to fill their places in the new age that is developing.

A special message to all parents of boys and girls now in high school
You can guarantee your youngster's College Education in partnership with "MY BANK"
BANK OF MONTREAL
UNIVERSITY EDUCATION PROGRAMME
A comprehensive, life-insured plan for financing a college education for boys and girls now in high school

If you are like most parents with children in high school, you are probably wondering how you are going to meet the costs of financing your youngster's college education. To help parents solve this problem, the Bank of Montreal has introduced its University Education Programme—the first life-insured plan of its kind in Canada.

Under this comprehensive programme, parents, guardians and sponsors of high-school students can spread the cost of a university education over periods of up to nine years, thus keeping monthly payments to amounts they can afford without hardship. And the cost to the parent is only a fraction of the interest paid on a straight loan programme.

HOW THE PROGRAMME WORKS
Under the basic plan, the parent agrees to make monthly payments to the Bank starting, say, two years before the student enters university, and terminating one year after graduation. In return, the parent receives an annual sum from the Bank at the start of each of the four university years.

VARIANTS OF THE PLAN
Several optional plans are available under the programme, and these vary as to the number of years in which the parent wishes to make monthly payments, as well as to the amount required annually for university expenses. Plans are based on objectives ranging from $1,000 to $8,000 payable to the parent in four annual instalments.

Here is an example of how one of the basic plans can be varied to suit your needs:

OBJECTIVE: $4,000
To be paid to the parent in four annual amounts of $1,000 each

OPTIONS	YOU PAY MONTHLY	PERIODS OF PAYMENT	YOUR PAYMENTS BEGIN
Plan A	$49.55	7 years	2 years before university
Plan B	42.78	8 years	3 years before university
Plan C	37.56	9 years	4 years before university

LIFE-INSURANCE FEATURE
If the parent concerned should die after the start of the programme, the funds for education specified in the agreement will be advanced by the Bank each year without any further payments being made by the family or the estate.

HOW TO JOIN THE PROGRAMME
See the people at your neighbourhood B of M branch. You will receive a warm welcome from a staff who will be pleased to give you further details and to help you select a plan suited to your needs. Ask for your copy of the Bank of Montreal University Education Programme folder.

P.S. If you need help in financing a student already in University — or planning to register this year — talk to your B of M Manager. Chances are he can arrange a tuition loan with extended payments adapted to your circumstances.

if you can lift a finger you can start the 1964 Lawn-Boy

The 1964 Lawn-Boy has the easiest starting power mower engine ever built. Simply (1) switch starter button to "on" and push once to prime engine; (2) lift up starter handle with two fingers and you're ready to start cutting.

And there's an ingenious new grasscatcher that can't clog because it fills from the back first. A throttle control provides low speed for light cutting and high speed for tough cutting. Quick adjustable wheels let you adapt to desired cutting height without tools.

Lawn-Boy's 3 horsepower engine gives you enough spunk to cut through even the thickest grass. And back of it all, you get Lawn-Boy's two-year warranty; twice the warranty anyone else offers. Get your fingers on a new Lawn-Boy soon . . . at your Lawn-Boy Dealer's. He's listed in the yellow pages.

Small towns can take the lead

CANADA'S SMALL TOWNS can do more to make Canada's centennial a success than can the major governments, Centennial Commissioner John Fisher told weekly newspaper editors at their convention in Toronto — and we pass this sentiment along for the consideration of Watchman readers, notably for our public leaders and local administrators.

In a rousing speech to the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, Mr. Fisher called upon editors to take an active part in promoting enthusiasm for the Centennial in cities and small towns across the country.

"This is not just a Centennial for Ottawa and Toronto and Montreal," said Mr. Fisher, "but a Centennial for all of Canada. We have a unique opportunity to celebrate our birthday in a way which will make Canada a much more attractive place for Canadians and others alike."

Centennial projects need not be expensive, but they should be imaginative, he said.

"Many towns will build prosaic things like police stations and fire halls as their centennial project," he said, "but others will show more imagination and undertake projects which wouldn't be done otherwise . . . campaigns of beautification and community improvement which will be of value both to the resident and the visitor.

"Many things in our home towns offer themselves as worthwhile projects if we have the wit and the energy to tackle them," he said. "We can achieve greatness in our Centennial celebrations if all of us work towards their success."

— It was with more than the customary news interest that The Watchman, last week, printed a report from Hawkesbury on that town's decision to acquire a property for a municipal library. This is to be a Centenary project — and one which should prompt some serious thinking in Lachute and neighboring towns.

A plea for caution

HOW OFTEN have you seen a traffic accident while driving along the highway — slowed down for a few minutes while the scene was still fresh in your mind — and then forgotten all about it?

Such accidents are all too common. Unfortunately, it also is all too common to dismiss them from mind and turn to pleasanter subjects, such as the scenery on the road, the people you are going to see, or the place you plan to visit.

Avoiding trouble while driving calls for constant vigilance, and for a car in top performing shape. You must have your wits about you, obey the rules of the road, show courtesy to other motorists, and always be prepared for the unexpected.

Traffic fatalities in Canada last year totalled 4,367, an increase from 4,224 in 1962. But that was only part of the picture. Many more people were injured, property damage was heavy and so was loss of working time.

What can be done to halt this rising toll? Traffic authorities employ various devices to remind the driver of the hazards he faces. Some cities display billboards giving the number killed in the community during the year, along with the previous year's figure. The display may carry a slogan, such as "What's Your Hurry?"

This helps, but the ultimate responsibility for safety rests with the individual driver. If he looks after his car and keeps himself alert at the wheel, he is on the right track. If you get sleepy on the highway, stop for a cup of coffee or tea, or just get out of the car and walk a bit. Following such simple advice may save a life and, as the safety slogans say, the life may be your own.

Before starting a long trip, make sure that your vehicle is sound mechanically. Have the brakes and the steering checked. See that the tires are okay. Equipment trouble can spoil an outing and even lead to an accident.

Most of us encounter bad or careless drivers on the road. It is always a temptation to catch the motorist who cuts in on you and do the same to him. But the wise man doesn't. He knows it is safer to mind his own business.

Every year more cars appear on the roads. Every year driving hazards increase as traffic becomes thicker. The best advice is still to drive with care and consideration — always.

A blast at provincial sales tax

PREMIER LESAGE proposes to have sales taxes collected for Quebec in other provinces. This would require licensing of all retailers in Canada by all provinces... This is probably the most absurd proposal that ever has been made by a statesman ravenous for revenue — says a criticism in the Fort Erie Letter-Review.

It would mean, among other things, the end of Confederation as it exists today (says this observer), because jurisdiction over retail trade heretofore has been exclusively provincial.

Retailers of Canada already are badgered by provincial tax collectors in their own provinces. There is no justification for compelling retailers to collect taxes from consumers. Most of continental North America is already afflicted with such taxes. It is merely a question now as to when the retailers are going to rebel. Government can collect taxes only with the consent of the tax collectors. The tax collectors en masse could stop this outrageous action in each province by the government of that province.

It would be incredible for Mr. Lesage to persuade his fellow premiers to try to put over such a scheme — concludes the Letter-Review, in condemnation.

One method for a province to collect retail sales taxes in another province would be to have a constitutional amendment which would enable or require the federal government to collect a flat federal sales tax (in addition to the present manufacturers' sales tax) and distribute it pro rata through the provinces. — And who would want that?

Modern-day pioneering

THE THOUGHT of a cabinet minister or company president driving a railway spike (usually "the last spike") takes the mind's eye back to Victorian top hats, frock coats and beards. But, says The Financial Post, the railway age is not yet over, not in Canada anyway. The Hon. Arthur Laing, Minister of Northern Affairs, has just driven a spike at Mile 363.3 of the Great Slave Lake railway. The spike firms a piece of steel crossing the 60th parallel, from Alberta into the Northwest Territories.

There is a Canadian railway farther north in the Yukon; but this is the first time a line linked with a transcontinental system has been pushed past 60. It was an occasion worth making speeches about. Canada has been much slower than the Soviet Union in settling and developing its Far North; but this is at least partly because the ice age did incalculably more damage to Canadian than to Russian terrain. We may never have, as the Russians have, passenger ships plying our Arctic waters and big cities on our Arctic coast; at least we have made a start. The U.S. has its new frontiersmen; but there is one thing Canada has that the U.S. lacks, and that is a new frontier.

Viewpoints and perspectives

CANADIAN MOTORISTS, according to Facts and Figures of the Automotive Industry, drove an estimated 51 billion miles in 1963 and paid $717,000,000 to provincial governments in motor vehicle taxes and registration fees.

'The Great Society'

BY RAY ARGYLE

President Johnson begins his campaign for re-election this weekend holding a commanding lead. The question does not seem to be who will win the presidency of the United States in November, but how great will be Johnson's margin.

The president emerged from the Democratic convention, after only nine months in the White House, in complete control of his party. By capturing the broad middle of the road followed by most Americans, he has begun to put together a coalition, or consensus, more formidable than even the great New Deal structure of FDR.

As Mr. Johnson made clear in his convention acceptance speech, the Democrats will press four chief themes. They are unity, peace, prosperity and justice — all wrapped together in the Johsonian tag of The Great Society.

While the right wing philosophy of Sen. Barry Goldwater holds great appeal for many Americans, it is still doubtful whether there are really any genuine issues dividing the parties despite Republican sloganeering about choice instead of an echo.

On civil rights, Sen. Goldwater has committed himself to enforcement of the new federal act. On foreign policy, he has publicly extended Gen. Eisenhower a veto over key appointments such as the secretary of state, thus promising continuation in general terms of the Eisenhower-Dulles-Kennedy-Johnson policy of containing communism while working toward an eventual stand-off.

Despite early extreme statements, the Arizona Republican now favors continued American membership in the UN, continued support of the graduated income tax and the social security system — in fact of all the welfare state structure assembled since 1932.

None of this, however, will stop Sen. Goldwater or his running mate, Rep. William Miller of New York, from violently attacking the Democratic administration on every possible position.

President Johnson, in Sen. Hubert Humphrey, has a colleague who is more than capable of answering the slashing attacks of the Republicans, thrust for thrust. It will be Johnson's strategy to take the high road of the Presidency, leaving to the articulate and sharp-tongued Humphrey the job of getting down to platform level with Goldwater and Miller.

Sen. Goldwater's hope of winning the White House rests in putting together a western and southern coalition of conservative states while also cracking at least three big states such as California, Illinois and Texas.

Late summer surveys have indicated, however, that Goldwater is at this time strong enough to count on only two southern states, Alabama and and Mississippi. He also appears unbeatable in only two other states, Indiana and Wyoming. They account for but 33 of the 270 electoral votes needed for election.

More than a score of pools suggest Johnson now holds a commanding lead of better than 60 per cent of the electorate. Pools have been wrong (but never more than a few percentage points) and either a disaster abroad or a virtual upheaval at home would seem necessary to bring much of a change between now and November.

In contrast with the Democratic espousal of civil rights and the party's willingness to admit Negroes from now on, the Republican party is being fashioned as an exclusive white preserve in the South. Herein lies both Sen. Goldwater's strength and folly.

It used to be that no presidential candidate could win the White House without the South. In Canada, it also used to be that no party could win Parliament without Quebec. John Diefenbaker shattered this myth in 1958.

President Johnson has already made clear his determination to win —not necessarily without the South — but without the South if necessary.

DIRECTIONS ENCLOSED!

Any American tourist visiting Montreal who has a compass with him must wonder if the Magnetic Pole is on vacation, or if they don't make compasses like they used to any more!

Because — Montreal West is really south of Montreal. Montreal East is north of the city. St. Lambert and Longueuil are on what is known as the South Shore but they lead to the Eastern Townships.

When a Montrealer leaves for his cottage in the Laurentians he says he's going up north for the week-end. But he isn't. He is going west, right into the setting sun.

So if a tourist in a room of the Queen Elizabeth Hotel facing the river sees the sun rise over the South Shore he would probably say to himself, "That's funny. In the States the sun rises in the east. Why do they do things differently in Canada?"

Rudyard Kipling once said, "East is East and West is West, and never the twain shall meet." But in Montreal, East is North, West is South, North is West, and South is East. And I don't suppose that they will ever meet either. But there's nothing I can do about it.

Be seein' ya!

Summer: Who Needs It!

BY BILL SMILEY

Waning summer is a sad time, in a way. The halcyon days are nearing an end. The sun has lost its burning, baking strength. The nights come sooner, and cooler.

Young lovers who have had a summer affair part with a last embrace, desperate promises to write, and a great heart-wrenching, a feeling that something is going to be lost, irretrievable. And they're right.

There is a slightly forlorn, lonely air about the beaches and the resorts and the summer places. They have acquired a certain air of shabbiness that goes with the end of summer.

Canadians fall asleep every year, in June. Lulled by the whispered, scented promises of that lush and lovely month, they dream of dazzling beaches, pine-scented woods, fun and sun, health and happiness.

And then the dream turns into the reality. The sizzling irritation of the July heat wave, when they have decided, for a change, to take their holidays in August this year. And the cold, wet blanket of August, which turns camping trips into shivering family feuds, cottages into miniature mental institutions, and resort owners into wild-eyed neurotics.

But don't let this end-of-summer sadness bother you. It's phoney. Canadians are not really sad as summer ends. At least, they're no more sad than I am, when I dream I'm flying to Hongkong with Elizabeth Taylor, and I've just drifted off with her head on my shoulder, and she shakes me gently and leers into my eyes and says, "I think I WILL have a double brandy", and I suddenly wake up and the Old Battleaxe is shaking my shoulder, the one with the bursitis in it, and mumbling, "Gemme a drinka wodder."

Summer in this country is an absolute fantasy, something in which no sensible Canadian would put any more faith than he would in his Irish Sweepstake ticket, or his old Aunt Ethel who has changed her will six times.

Summer in this country is a fraud, an illusion. Every time I lie out in the backyard, on the green grass, with the green trees enclosing a circle of blue sky above me, I shake myself and pinch myself, until I know it's a dream, and that if I tried the same thing four months later, I'd be buried under three feet of snow.

That's why I feel no real sadness as summer draws to a close. The Canadian summer is about as real as Gilbert and Sullivan.

In fact, I am elated at the thought that another two months of muddling around with visiting relatives, irrational golf balls, reluctant fish and lippy kids is at an end.

As any true, red-blooded Canadian knows, fall is the time when we begin to live again. We love it. We come alive. We stop dreaming.

We look at our kids with clear eyes, after the opium-dream of summer, and find they've grown four inches. We look at our stomachs, after two months of barbecued chicken, french fries and dairy queens, and find they've grown two inches.

We look with loving eyes at our schools and realize with some joy that it's only a few days until we can take advantage of our position as taxpayers, and get rid of the kids for the best part of each week.

We look at our country and see it with new eyes. It's beautiful. Not a tourist in sight.

We look at our soft, soppy, silly, summer selves, and realize that this is not what life is all about. And we give a dim silent Canadian cheer for the fact that it's all over once again, and we can get back to the serious things of life. Like having a baby. Or running for the school board.

Paths to happiness

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

"Whatever are you doing?" asked Jimmie's mother when she came into his room to see if he had finished packing for a week-end visit at his grandparents. His suitcase was closed, he was in his good suit, but he was busy emptying the contents of the pockets of his old jeans onto the bed and then transferring various objects to his pockets. Jimmie, picking up his jack knife, said with a grin, "I'm fixing to be happy!"

Jimmie had the right attitude. He had lost the argument with his mother about taking his jeans with him, but at least he could rescue the treasures in the pockets and enjoy them. He didn't want to go visiting very much but he was determined to have as good a time as he could.

Individual happiness depends a great deal on the expectation that things will go well. Dr. I. Newton Kugelmass in his book on "Child Care" states that happiness is what you have, divided by what you think you ought to have. The numerator is not too large in some area of life for everyone. Who would not like more health, more congenial work, and more friends, more money, more skills, more leisure? Who would not want a world with less tension, less fear of atomic destruction, less strife between classes and nations? But the numerator can be whatever a person wishes. If a man or woman can keep what he thinks he ought to have from expanding too rapidly, his happiness ratio is apt to be high.

This may seem rather abstract thinking for most adults but it makes good sense. It is very important that children grow up in a home where there is a happy atmosphere most of the time. Early in the new year parents do well to consider what they are doing to maintain poise and contentment. Are they helping their children to cultivate the art of happiness?

A public school teacher told each new class that he had found three paths to happiness for himself. He suggested that his pupils give them a trial. They were, each day — learn some new, interesting thing; do something for someone else; enjoy some activity or hobby.

Learning can continue as long as life. Grandma Moses, who lived for more than a century, and who did not start painting until she was in her late sixties, had a great zest for learning. The beautiful "Grandma Moses Storybook for Boys and Girls", published by Random House, is a treasure of poems and stories by outstanding writers illustrated by lovely color prints of paintings by Grandma Moses.

It is an excellent thing for a child to discover that learning can be exciting and satisfying, not an unpleasant duty but something which adds to one's worth and happiness. Naturally some school subjects make a greater appeal than others to pupils with varying ability. But parents can assist their children to find joy in acquiring new knowledge when they take an interest in their study, provide them with a quiet place, free from distractions, to do their homework and encourage them to use extra aids such as library books.

The Boy Scouts have made the "good turn" idea well-known and it is only through experience that individuals recognize how much satisfaction comes from helping another person. It seems a pity that so many people who show kindliness and imagination throughout the Christmas season, slip back into selfish ways for the rest of the year. Mothers can often discuss with a son or daughter some practical errand for a shut-in, or some friendly act shown to a shy newcomer, which they might care to do.

Children find happiness in very little things. In a home where parents realize the importance of hobbies and creative interests and reading, boys and girls form habits which will serve them well all through their lives. A child's day should not be so filled with school work and sports and clubs and chores that he has no free, unorganized time to enjoy as he pleases.

There are many paths to happiness. Are you and your children taking time to discover the ones which mean most to you?

Deep-pile rugs

Owners of poodles or other long-haired dogs are best equipped to care for those deep-pile rugs made with acrylic fibre. Like the poodle, the rug should be groomed frequently with a wire brush. Between brushings or whenever time doesn't permit them, the rug (not the dog) should be given a good shaking. This usually straightens out the fibres in a long-napped surface.

At the first sign of soiling, the rug should be laundered either by hand or mechanically, using tepid water and a mild detergent. Use a low temperature if tumble drying. When laundering by hand, rub the pile gently, rinse and squeeze out excess water before drip drying. Try to hang the rug in an accessible place, such as over the shower rod, where it can be shaken several times. Whatever method is used, always give the rug a vigorous brushing when bone dry to restore its soft, fluffy appearance and rich color.

Home-approved dessert recipe

A dessert which is easy to make, requires the minimum heating up of the stove, and draws raves from the Cheese Cake fans, is the following Lime Cheese Cake. This "husband approved" recipe from the Poultry Products Institute disappeared rapidly when taste-tested. It will hold in the refrigerator for three or four days if it should happen to last that long.

Lime Cheese Cake (Unbaked)

1 Envelope unflavored gelatine, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, ½ cup milk, 1 teaspoon grated lime or lemon rind, 1½ to 2 cups creamed cottage cheese, 1 tablespoon lime or lemon juice, 2 egg whites beaten stiff, ½ cup whipping cream (whipped).

Mix gelatine, sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Beat egg yolks and milk until blended and add to gelatine mixture, stirring thoroughly to blend. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatine dissolves and mixture becomes thick, about 10 to 15 minutes. Remove from heat. Add lime or lemon rind and cool. Stir in cottage cheese, lime or lemon juice. Beat with rotary or electric beater until smooth. Refrigerate and cool until mixture mounds slightly when dropped from a spoon. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and whipped cream until mixture is well blended.

Pour into crumb crust and sprinkle with crumbs.

Crumb Crust

½ lb. Unsalted crackers, ¼ to ½ cup melted butter, dash each of cinnamon and ginger.

Make fine crumbs from crackers by rolling with rolling pin, or put through food grinder or electric blender. Mix crumbs with melted butter, cinnamon and ginger. Cover bottom and sides of nine or ten-inch pie plate or 8 or 9-inch spring form pan, reserving ¼ cup crumbs to sprinkle over top of filling. Yields 6 to 8 servings.

Nowadays it's difficult to tell what a fabric is made of, or even what a fashion article is talking about, sometimes. The New York Couture Group helped solve the problem by issuing a glossary of fabrics used in its fall and winter fashion show.

Broadtail Velvet is a luxury fabric with the velvet cut to look like the lambskin of broadtail, for which it is named.

Brocatelle was originally a heavy cross-ribbed fabric for upholstery and draperies. It is similar to brocade but has a higher relief to the surface and usually comes only in one color.

Boucle Surface Tweed is a tweed with a surface resembling hand crochet.

Carpetbag tweeds are woven like a rag rug.

Cavalry Twill is a slightly ribbed fabric used in both suits and coats.

Familiar Lace

Chantilly was originally a lace made in Chantilly, France. Its delicate scroll or floral designs are used in cocktail and evening clothes.

Chevron Matelasse has a zig-zag pattern looking like a herring-bone.

Cire has a lustrous surface created by application of wax, heat and pressure. It looks like quilting without seams. The back is laminated to foam and the fabric used for coats and suits.

Cloqué (pronounced clo-kay) is a textured fabric with a bubbly pattern.

Crepe Knit is 100 per cent silk crepe which looks like silk jersey but has more body. It is woven.

Double-Faced Fabrics are woven to have no wrong side, and often with contrasting sides for use in reversible garments.

Eyelash Brocade is woven with clusters of thread, lash-like in their arrangement.

Herringbone is a patterned wool classic for men's clothes, now used in women's clothes with the pattern scaled to a larger size.

Some Metallic

Lurex is a non-tarnishing metallic yarn created to be woven by itself or mixed with other fibres.

Matellase fabrics have floral or geometric surface design, shown frequently in silk.

Melton is a stout, smooth wool with short nap.

Metallic Tweed combines lurex and wool.

Needlepoint or petit-point wo is flat with a delicate embroider like pattern.

Rope Tweeds are of outsta herringbone, plaid and checks, which very wide threads are use They are light in weight but lo heavy.

TEEN-AGE GIRL NOTORIOUS BREAKFAST SKIPPER

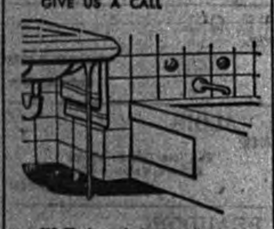

Did you know that the mo undernourished member of th average family is the teena girl? She's usually a notorio breakfast skipper — too busy ba ing her hair out of curlers or to timid to eat in case she puts o unwanted pounds.

Skipping breakfast to lo weight is a poor practice — it may actually lead to overweight because the dieter usually ove eats at the next meal. Three we balanced meals a day are recom mended by most medical author ities for reducing diets — and this includes breakfast.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

Farming in England is efficient and productive. That was the impression which Dr. John Bubar received when he was over there this summer for six weeks. Dr. Bubar is the forage plant breeder at the College; in that capacity he took part in the Tenth International Botanical Conference in Edinburgh.

A few years ago, a farm of any size in England employed several men. John found that farm labor had largely been replaced by machinery. He said it was common to see two or three large self-propelled combines working in one field. These were quite often the property of a custom operator, who contracted for the complete harvest operation.

John noticed that barley had become the most popular grain, with the same publicity and prominence as is given to corn in this country. He noted, too, that it was very often being grown in the same field year after year by men who specialized in grain growing. Fertilizer was used heavily, to the point that they looked for the grain to lodge.

Combining is often done, he said, in conditions of weather considered impossible in this country. The crop, however, was kept free from any green growth, or new seeding, to make the threshing easier. Artificial drying is considered a necessity.

The growing of grass without legumes was another trend he noticed. The nitrogen normally produced by the legume is supplied out of a bag. The theory is that straight grass, heavily fertilized, can produce more feed per acre than the combination of grass and legumes. But land values are very high in England; John doubts that the practice would pay here.

British farmers are working toward year-round pastures in an attempt to reduce feed costs. This was another interesting observation John made. The plant breeders have picked up a fescue from high in the Atlas Mountains of Africa which will be green in January in the British Isles. That, and kale, have stretched out the normal pasture season. Rye grass and cocksfoot (orchard grass) are the popular forage grasses. I asked John about his favorite plant, trefoil. He said it was growing wild in many places, but had not yet been selected for a field crop.

Dr. Bubar also wonders if there isn't a trend in England toward vertical integration. One of the chain hotels he stayed in advertised that the dairy products served were from their own farms.

Like most visitors to the British Isles, John and his wife found the Scottish Highlands very attractive. But he found that the unsolved problems of keeping the hill farms productive were forcing the young people off the land and into the big cities. It may be that the beautiful rugged countryside will find its ultimate use for grouse hunting and holidaying.

The College is a hive of activity these days. Last week there was the Rural Sociological Society, meeting for the first time outside of the U.S. Our 330 visitors went home very impressed with the kind of weather we provided for them.

Then the External Aid Conference took over. Professors, teachers and their families are on their way overseas to do their bit for the less fortunate countries. They have stopped for a few days for their final instructions.

And this week, there is a high level meeting concerned with the problems of financing education in Canada.

The College housekeepers must be looking forward to the nice, peaceful days when the students will be back. They have done a tremendous job.

Dr. L. N. Andreev, plant pathologist with the Academy of Science, in Russia, has been a very interesting visitor to the college for the past three days.

His visit is part of a scientific exchange between Russia and Canada. Last year, Dr. W. E. Sackston, who does research in plant pathology and physiology at this College, spent several weeks visiting experimental stations in Russia.

Dr. Andreev is particularly interested in rusts of cereal crops and admires the way our plant breeders, pathologists and biochemists work together to keep ahead of the problems in Canada.

QUICK N' EASY

Recipe of the Month

Most of us discover at an early age the delights of that part of the meal called dessert. And from childhood on, this remains the favorite course to plan, prepare and happily devour! For the budding baker of the family or for your own party menus, here's a sweet dish that takes but minutes to make, yet has all the qualifications of a good dessert. It's good to look at, good to eat—made the easiest way possible with a roll of refrigerated butterscotch nut cookies and canned strawberry pie filling. These two convenience foods are the only ingredients you'll need to create these Strawberry Filled Cookie Tortes. You'll find the crisp nut-studded cookies a pleasant flavor partner for the bright, fruit-fresh berries.

STRAWBERRY FILLED COOKIE TORTES

1 roll refrigerated butterscotch nut cookies
1 can (2½ cups) strawberry pie filling

Cut cookie roll into slices ⅛ inch thick. Arrange in groups of three on ungreased cookie sheets with edges overlapping slightly to form cloverleafs. Bake at 375° for 7 to 9 minutes, until golden brown. Cool one minute before removing.

Place a cookie layer on each plate, add ¼ cup pie filling and top with second cookie layer. Top with more filling and sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Makes 6 to 8 tortes.

Meat carving

Who's the meat carving expert in your family?

To be able to carve meat easily and properly (points out the Meat Packers Council of Canada) simply takes practice and a little bit of knowledge about the different kind of roasts and cuts of meat. Here are some tips to remember the next time it's your turn to do the "honors".

First, make sure the knife is sharp! Don't use the carving knife for regular kitchen chores. Keep it in a special place by itself. Start your apprenticeship as a meat carver, with boneless roasts, until you've gained some skill and can try the more difficult cuts of meat, like a leg of lamb.

A roast will carve easier if it's taken out of the oven and allowed to "set" for about 15 minutes. This lets the meat "firm up" and makes carving much simpler. If the meat cools down too much in the process, put the platter with the carved slices of meat back in the oven for a few minutes before serving. Always carve a roast across the grain, not with it . . . and this will not only make the job easier, but you'll end up with better looking slices of meat.

A sharp knife, a little bit of practice and know-how, and that's all there is to it!

For the best procedure in carving any one particular kind of roast, check with your butcher or pick up a book on meat carving.

"THEY CAN'T MISS"

I was standing with a group of friends the other evening, relishing the hot thigh of a barbecued chicken, when a short, lean gentleman approached me. I had noticed him before, because among a crowd of close to a hundred persons he was the only guest in a gray flannel suit and tie. It was a casual affair, and we all had donned jeans and sweat shirts anticipating the hand-to-mouth method of enjoying our host's picnic hospitality.

"I understand you are a 'travel-by-rail buff' and a writer," he commenced his conversation. Then he launched into a voluble discourse on his opinion of where railroading was headed. This gentleman, by the way, turned out to be the comptroller of a very large chicken processing plant owned and operated by one of the most prosperous milling companies in Canada. Their freight bill for one day, from just this subsidiary alone, would match the average citizen's pay. Not to mention a transportation account for several executives, who I learned, prefer to make their business trips by rail. In fact he was in his immaculate and rather unexpected attire at a cook-out because he was leaving within an hour for the West (by train).

Hard Come By

He strongly believed that the railways have the greatest period of prosperity ahead of them in their transportation history. Was he really being overly enthusiastic? Judging by my difficulty and those of several friends to make rail travel reservations in the past month, I could make a few predictions myself. Certainly this season there is a remarkable upsurge in not only sales but daily requests for information. A 1964 record could very well be established in long distance travel for all the years that lie between V Day and today.

If we Canadians harken to the plea of Pierre Delgrave, president of the Canadian Tourist Association and vice-president of passenger sales and services for the CN, and do our bit to promote his suggested "Canadian Meet Canadian" campaign, it could do a great deal in making major contribution toward converting forces of division into forces of unity. The countries that have benefitted to the largest extent from tourism are the European nations. Mr. Delgrave urges Canadians to know their own country and their countrymen better and to promote travel TO Canada.

Perhaps my picnic buddy had learned that CN expected more than 2,000 American tourists in organized tours of the Prairies and Rockies this past summer. His enthusiasm appeared a very personal one. He was expressing appreciation, not only of freight handling experienced by his company, but commenting on greatly improved passenger services the CN had implemented for the comfort and pleasure of its travellers.

If tourism can produce more dollars than the export of automobiles, whiskey, machinery and woollens for Britain, cover 85% of Italy's trade deficit and be France's largest single dollar earner, why cannot this bonanza rate high on our business chart? "Canada's share of the world's tourist market is unsatisfactory, we must remedy the situation", Mr. Delagrave said recently.

Lachute High School well in stride with advances in Quebec education

Principal's report at Commencement and annual prize distribution

The principal of Lachute High School, Mr. F. H. J. Royal, gave a report last week which was virtually his annual accounting to the parents and Protestant taxpayers. This was the substance of his address at the school commencement exercises, and it gave fair indication that, in Lachute as elsewhere through the province, education is not static but definitely on the move. . . "I understand that much progress is in store for Quebec Education, both Protestant and Catholic, in the next few years. The one thing I hope it will provide — and this I think is fundamental — is that each student will leave school with a better education. This, after all, is the purpose of our entire organization, schools, teachers, school boards, buildings, etc."

Three evidences of progress were notable in Principal Royal's commentary: He spoke of Regional School Boards to be set up, and composite high schools to offer technical and vocational training — with a logical prospect that one of these would be established here for the area of Lachute. . . The report gave also a digest of reactions to the Cuisenaire Method, a recent experiment in Grade I teaching of Arithmetic, which had been found advantageous at LHS. . . And a third indication of this progressive trend, a plan (with Department approval given) to teach Geography in one specific class entirely in French. . . This and other experiments will be watched with interest, just as Subject Promotion, now tried and proven, has been practised with gratifying results here over the past two years.

Commissioner Lorne Duncan chaired the assembly at which this report was given. It was the occasion for the annual prize giving, and parents and friends gathered in the school auditorium in large number. On the plat-

Crisis met in water supply to Lachute system

Lachute,'s water supply was at a dangerous level up until Tuesday night when, due to the lack of any flow through the Lake Sir John Estates causeway, a new 15-inch pipe was laid, thus allowing the water to pass through to the filtration plant several miles downstream.

There were four large pipes running through this causeway, and late last week two of these were raised, according to officials of the town corporation. This stopped the normal flow of water, and the town authorities immediately had to open the dam at the lake, several hundred yards below the causeway, to maintain the water level in the filtration plant reservoir. On Wednesday morning (at press time) the level at the plant was 31½ inches below normal, and some 10 inches below yesterday's level.

Water is presently flowing through the new pipe to a volume of approximately five inches, but should the lake level continue to drop through lack of rain, Lachute will once again be on the brink of a serious water shortage.

Lay groundwork for new Lachute ratepayers' league

About 40 citizens assembled Monday evening to lay the basis of a Lachute taxpayers' league — whose immediate objectives, it appears, are to present a slate of candidates for the November council vacancies and to organize a systematic opposition to the installing of water meters.

In this latter objective, a petition is presently being circulated asking ratepayers to protest (1) due to lack of public information on the subject; (2) because the taxpayers were not consulted, and (3) because the project would be financially disadvantageous to the community and to its taxpayers.

According to Dr. Zoël Saindon, newly elected councillor and prospective candidate for the mayoral seat, a taxpayers' league must include not only proprietors but also tenants, since the latter pay the "indirect" taxes; moreover, many tenants eventually become property-owners, and therefore should take more active interest in municipal affairs.

According to the organizers of this project, letters patent will be applied for, in order to incorporate.

Besides Dr. Saindon, other candidates mentioned for the November council elections include J.-Roger Lamarche, Notary Simon Valois, Philippe Masson and Maurice Gregoire. Another candidate will be selected to represent East Ward.

A provisional directorate was formed, with Georges Brunelle as president. The organizers will meet again next week.

Grenville man was victim in fatal subway explosion

A man fatally injured, taken still alive from Friday's Metro tunnel cave-in which claimed three lives, was identified as Roger Roy, a 19-year-old former resident of Grenville. He was the son of the late Paul Roy, who was accidentally killed in July of last year, and of his wife, Marguerite Rheaume.

The subway accident victim died a short time after admittance to Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal. He had driven a truck into the tunnel moments before the explosion. While being rushed to hospital, the victim reportedly told an ambulance attendant, "I struck the switch box, and wires (power lines) fell on the magazines." The magazines were said to contain 300 sticks of dynamite.

Roy was given emergency treatment at the scene of the accident, and the last rites of the church by the Rev. Father Dollard Morin, chaplain of the Montreal Fire Department.

The victim was married last February and resided in Montreal. The funeral was held in his parish church in Montreal and interment was in the family plot at the Grenville Catholic cemetery.

Fire protection, water reserve, safety at crossings provide a variety of fare at Brownsburg Council

Brownsburg — In an era when education is becoming all-important — the Brownsburg Council seemed to agree at its September session, when Councillor Gerald Vowles reported that Fire Chief Fern Brisson had expressed a desire to further his education to the benefit of the town, by attending a course in fire prevention and fire fighting at l'Ecole Polytechnique in Montreal. The course is to be held two nights each week over a period of two years. After a little discussion, Council passed a resolution to pay for the cost of the course ($115 for the first year, $100 for the second).

Chief Brisson raised two other points while at the meeting — the first regarding the lack of government reply to the town's application for a 50% grant towards the purchase of new fire fighting equipment. At Chief Brisson's suggestion it was decided to employ other means in an attempt to speed up an answer. Speaking as town foreman, Mr. Brisson also asked that the townspeople be informed that on September 23 his department intends flushing out the water mains in town, and consequently the drinking water in the homes may be discolored for some time on that date.

Town Engineer Gaston Legault reported that work was progressing in the designing of a new dam to raise the water level in the town reservoir. He ran into some resistance when requesting permission from the town to hire a contractor to drill test holes at the proposed dam site, in order to establish the type of base material. However, the motion was finally made and approved, after Council realized that without the drillings there could be no dam.

A letter from Mr. Legault also recommended that the town hold back only 5% of the contract price instead of the usual 10%, for sewerage and water extension work done by Atomik Construction Co. on Woodbine Avenue. While fully recognizing that the contractor had done a good job, Council voted to retain the stipulated 10% figure.

Mr. Rosario Turpin, local taxi owner, asked for Council's help with the problem of losing potential fares in Brownsburg to Lachute taxis, when the latter's owners do not pay a business tax in Brownsburg. In Council's opinion such occurrences are difficult to control and since no one seemed to be completely sure of the interpretation of the law, there was little help forthcoming.

After Police Chief Richard Bell had read his report, which listed 40 traffic tickets issued for various infractions, he asked that Council consider hiring two or three older men to act as guides for school children at road crossings. A proposed payment of $1 per hour for 15 hours a week, did little to enthuse Council members, since this would add a minimum of $1,200 to the budget. The Chief was reticent to leave the responsibility for safety of the children in the hands of older schoolboys, who at times were apparently not as reliable as they might have been. The subject was dropped with no decision made, though it is an item which bears much importance.

Chief Bell also presented a request that Council consider installing two-way radio equipment in the police car and in the office. Since the subject had been discussed previously, it took little selling to persuade Council to pass a motion to adopt its use. Consequently, a vote approved the installation, subject to the Department of Transport's approval of a license application.

Also included in Council business, was an invitation to Cedar Crest Homes, B. & P. Hall Bros. and Atomik Construction Co., to submit sealed tenders for a water and sewerage extension project on St. Lawrence Street. Since the estimated cost of the project was obviously below $5,000, Council was not required to publish a public notice asking for tenders.

As a final item, in reply to a Council request, provincial authorities agreed to undertake an investigation to determine whether local grills are frequented by individuals under legal age.

Disagreement on town taking over Richelieu Park

There are still several stumbling blocks to the agreement between Lachute Town and the Richelieu Club, over the proposed transfer of the Richelieu park and swimming pool to the ownership of the corporation. Negotiations have continued, but both parties are adamant on one or two clauses of the proposal.

It is recalled that the Richelieu Club offered its park, playground equipment, swimming pool and incidental structures, for a nominal sum of $1, on provision that the municipality should assume a $25,000 balance of debt and agree to rent the swimming pool back to the club at a nominal figure.

With this in view, the Club drew up a contract, but there were certain clauses which the municipality has sought to revise, in order to protect the taxpayers' interests.

One such detail is the word "donation" employed in several clauses, to which the city fathers take exception.

Another bone of contention is a stipulation by the Club that, on six months' notice, it could cease its rental and abandon its operation of the swimming pool. The Club, however, does not extend the same privilege to the municipality in its proposed agreement.

A third obstruction is a commitment by the Club to the Lachute Catholic Scout Troop, which hopes to build headquarters in the park. While appreciating the good work of this organization, the town authorities feel they cannot accept this obligation without knowing what part of the site has been earmarked, and what type of building will be erected.

Finally, there is a clause which states (translation): "In case the Town of Lachute should desire to part with this land, or to dispose of any portion of it by sale, gift, lease, or in any manner — it agrees to re-offer this park to the Richelieu Club for a sum equivalent to any improvements added to it (to that date) and reimbursement of $25,000 without interest . . . excluding any part of the land on which a permanent building may be erected from this date." This paragraph is not accepted by the municipal council.

Correction — no borrowing

A Council report on this page last week stated that authorization had been received from Quebec Department of Municipal Affairs to borrow a sum of $38,700 for water meters. . . This was incorrect; there is no question of "borrowing", and the authorization was given for "transfer" of a reserve in the available capital (specifically, in the waterworks fund).

The Watchman's error was due to a slip in translation.

Verbal free-for-all as taxpayers invade Chatham Council meeting

A verbal free-for-all in which several taxpayers from the Pine Hill area, reportedly led by Polydor Gagné, threatened Mayor Wm. Morrow of Chatham and members of the Council, resulted during the regular session held Tuesday evening of last week at St. Philippe. The turmoil, which was attended by a number of Chatham residents and taxpayers estimated between 250 to 400, was the result of By-law 132, Municipality of the Township of Chatham, which concerns "Buildings and Uses of Land and Buildings". All members of the Council were in attendance at the meeting.

The by-law was passed at a special meeting of Council on May 26 last, following regular notice of motion and an appeal for interested citizens to attend the meeting and express their views. There was no opposition to the by-law at that time.

According to one of the spokesmen for the organized protest, a number of petitions were passed throughout the municipality, demanding repeal of the by-law. It is reported that several hundred persons signed the petitions, but one councillor pointed out that all the signatories were not ratepayers, so it was not known just to what extent the petition had been circulated. Four spokesmen for the organized protest were Messrs. Dupuis, Lucien Ranger and Roger Millette and Mrs. Annie Goldup, along with several other ratepayers of the municipality. Reports indicated that this group was verbally pushed into the background by Mr. Gagné, who assumed charge and made no bones of informing Mayor Morrow and the Council what he and many others thought of the building by-law, demanding that it be nullified immediately.

The meeting got underway at approximately 8 o'clock and discussion of the by-law commenced about a half-hour later. A citizen called the Provincial Police and informed them of the pending trouble at 9.25 p.m., and three cars arrived at the municipal hall, in order to avert possible trouble.

The main objections to the by-law are sections which state that "any house must be completed within one year; a lot must be 100 feet in width and the construction must be 35 feet from the road; there must be 25 feet on each side of the construction"; and limitations as to the outside finish of buildings. One of the spokesmen for the organized protest, which has dissociated itself from the charges made by Mr. Gagné, stated there were "many sections of the by-law which do not fit in with the type of municipality in which we live." This was countered by a councillor who stated, "They just want to do what they like, and never mind their neighbor, or the future."

Indications are that a number of persons in the audience were in favor of the by-law and simply wanted information to clarify certain aspects, but were denied this right when the meeting got out of hand. Mayor Morrow repeatedly tried to restore order, but to no avail.

It was explained that it was impossible to rescind the by-law, and following this a resolution was presented to Council, signed by 20 ratepayers, demanding that Council take immediate action to nullify the measure, even by referendum if necessary. It was then moved by Councillor Rhéal Demers, seconded by Councillor Ernest Lacasse, that this resolution be acted upon in accordance with the wishes of the meeting, and that the mayor seek legal advice as to the manner in which this action would take place.

One Council spokesman stated the councillors would reconsider and were willing to meet any proper delegation at any time, but would not "take any more dirt from anyone". It is understood Council will meet shortly to study the matter and make known its decision. In attendance at the meeting were Mayor Wm. Morrow, Councillors Reg Morrow, Rhéal Demers, Ernest Lacasse, Adam Meyers, Basil Clark and Chas. Maisonneuve. Secretary-treasurer of the municipality is Roland Cadieux.

When questioned on the proceedings of Council and the above meeting, Mayor Morrow declined to comment.

New town secretary appointed by Council

Appointed to the position of town secretary-treasurer is Ronald Hebert, a well known citizen. Council selected Mr. Hebert to fill the vacancy made necessary by Mme Yvette Raymond's resignation, since she intends to move to St. Jerome.

The decision was taken last Wednesday evening, at a closed meeting of the town fathers, deliberating for two hours in the mayor's office, and the announcement was made at a special Council sitting held afterwards. The appointment is on a temporary basis, one month's notice on either side being sufficient to terminate the agreement.

At this meeting also, the waterworks committee were instructed to continue negotiations started some time ago with the representatives of the United Mine Workers.

Replying to a question from Ald. Dr. Zoël Saindon, the secretary informed him that new electoral lists will be ready for election time in November.

Regarding taxi operators who are not local property-owners, it was made clear that these would be subject to regulations of the Towns and Cities Act.

Sentiments and Sidelights

(Comments on the Local Scene)

Committeemen are drumming up enthusiasm for the next voluntary Blood Donor Clinic. . . Blood transfusions are not so new. A book printed in Sweden in 1764 states: "Over 100 years ago attempts were first made to improve the health of weak people and prolong their lives by pouring into their veins the fresh blood of young animals." — That makes it now 300 years ago.

Closing of the Laurentian Autoroute access from Route 41 towards Ste. Adele, is a hardship to motorists proceeding from this region through St. Antoine des Laurentides and north. They are now obliged to cross the City of St. Jerome, incurring delays, and contributing to traffic congestion in that centre. . . Reason given for the closing is that certain drivers proceeding north from Montreal have been quitting the Autoroute at St. Janvier and reconnecting at Ste. Marie, thus avoiding the toll booths at St. Jerome.

It is stated that the average of all salaries paid at the G.M. plant when it starts operating at Ste. Therese, will run from $5,000 to $7,000 a year. When it opens in a year's time, the $75 million plant will employ 1,000 workers — indicating that about 2,500 persons will seek homes in the region. Presently there are 450 homes under construction, and an ultimate of 2,200 are foreseen in the neighborhood of the plant.

250 Guests attend field day and demonstrations, C.I.P. Forest Farm

Some 250 persons of farm and allied interests, friends, municipal authorities, and members of the press, were guests of the Canadian International Paper Company at the Harrington Forest Farm's annual field day last Friday. Crisp, sunny weather favored the occasion, and the assembly enjoyed this opportunity to inspect the farm's tree plantations and learn methods of sylviculture, to hear something of 4-H Club work along these lines, and to witness the demonstrations of woods equipment.

The gathering assembled at the staff house during the noon hour, and in a sheltered clearing in the grounds, lunch was served picnic-style by courtesy of the company.

A brief session was devoted to formalities, when speakers were heard and the objectives of this venture explained.

Woodlands Manager Is Speaker

Introduced by Manny Wilson, manager of the Grenville Woods Division, Mr. L. G. Bastin brought greetings from the president, Mr. E. B. Hinman. Also introduced to the gathering were L'Abbé F. C. Deslauriers, chairman of the Rouge River Development Association, and Robert Raynaud, who is president of the Quebec Forestry Association.

The Harrington Forest Farm was founded in 1952, said Mr. Bastin, manager of the Woodlands Division of C.I.P. In 1960, tree saplings were first distributed from this project to the Rouge Valley area, and in the subsequent three years 2,132,000 seedlings have been handed out to no fewer than 307 woodlot owners. The Farm has become one of the leading research and demonstration centres in woods culture.

Apart from this experimentation and cultivation, the Farm has filled another constructive role in youth organizations, notably the 4-H Clubs, Boy Scouts, and Guides, which have headquarters and camping grounds on the site. There are also riverside picnic spots maintained for use of the public.

The Farm (continued Mr. Bastin) has become the hub of reforestation work for the Rouge Valley, and the C.I.P. has noted with satisfaction a number of abandoned farms brought back into production through the re-planting of trees. This re-establishment must prove a valuable factor in the economic status of the region. The speaker thanked his listeners for their attendance in such large numbers at this event.

Tree Farm Certificates

L'Abbé Deslauriers was then called upon to present the 16 Forest Farm certificates. In making the presentations, he congratulated the men (and women) who had qualified by the assiduous supervision of their properties. Each year adds to the number who take advantage of proven principles to increase the productivity of their woodlands.

Altogether this outing, and the hospitality of the Forest Farm, were appreciated by the large number who attended.

Town policemen qualify in First Aid

Sgt. Réal Chartrand, acting Police Chief, reports having received St. John's Ambulance certificates for seven members of the Lachute Police Department, bringing to nine the total of qualified St. John's Amublance attendants on the municipal force.

The course was completed and examinations written in June, and while the results were duly received, they were announced only on Monday of this week. All members of the department volunteered to take the course, which was given by Roger Guimond, and paid all expenses personally, at no cost to the town. The examination was given by Dr. Marcel Sylvestre.

Three other members of the department are expected to take the examination in the near future. Sgt. Chartrand is a qualified instructor, and Cst. J. C. Beaulieu, who was recently engaged, holds his certificate along with other training he received while in the Canadian Army Provost Corps.

By BOB ATCHISON

Duck hunting is, I believe, only open in the northern part of the province, but as usual there are some of the shooters trying to get a first crack at them. Along the North River shots may be heard almost every night, while the Ottawa River has more than its share. Right along the shore these supposed hunters are operating. As I have suggested before, a phone call to the Wardens from responsible citizens, would certainly help to stop this.

Our deer have apparently had a successful spring, and we have a few of them around. However, the "hordes" will soon take care of these, and once more we will be on the verge of having no game in the County. Talking to one of the big shots in the Wildlife Department the other day, and having asked about the possibility of declaring a closed season for a couple of years, or having the buck law brought back again — it seems the department is not interested in this. According to word, there would be just as many deer killed illegally as before. This I doubt very much, but they are the ones to have the last say.

Fishing is once more picking up; with the cooler lakes and rivers, the fish seem to have gone on a feeding spree. This will make you laugh: as most of you know, the Association had a derby in Louisa a couple of weeks ago, with not-too-good results. Last week one of the parties who fishes this lake consistently, brought in four greys for me to see — the smallest, 1½ lbs., the largest just a shade over 3 lbs. It just shows you can never count on the fish to co-operate at any time. However, the North River has been very poor this past while, the worst since I landed here. As to the reason, your guess is as good as mine.

Increased activity is evident among the hunters these days; guns are being brought out of moth balls to be checked over. In some of the cases there have been loud moans of anguish, on account of rust. It appears some of the guns were stored away with very little oil wiped over the barrels. As we know, hands are the cause of more rust on guns than anything else. Certainly some of the guns were checked during the summer, but they were not wiped over before being put back. In most cases all that needs to be done is to wipe the gun with oil and leave it for a while. However, you do come across the odd case where rust has really got a good hold. Re-blueing is the only solution. If you have to do this, be sure and get every trace of oil off all parts of the gun, then wipe it with a dry rag before putting the blue on; do not touch the gun with your hands while doing this though. Oil off the hands will queer any chance of the blue staying put. You know, to keep anything as delicate as this in fair condition, it should be wiped every time it is used. We older persons seem to forget all about this, but not so the younger set. Seeing some of the guns they own, it amazes me that they have not been polished away altogether.

Remember also that a gun does not fire by itself; a human being has to do this. And if that person happens to be stupid, then someone could get killed. Unfortunately, it is very seldom the person who is careless that gets hurt; too bad. . . Treat your guns with respect, do not leave them loaded after you have finished with them. This applies to homes; far too many youngsters get killed this way. Anyway, you shouldn't have to be told this. . . Out hunting, take a very good look at the supposed deer you are going to shoot; if it's wearing a red hat or vest then it probably isn't a deer. . . Above all, respect the rights of others, this means the farmers who own the land. Ask for permission, then find out if any cattle are in the fields or in the bush.

Don't use fence poles to start fires for that pot of tea. If you do light a fire, then make sure it is out. And clean up after yourself. Don't leave empty beer bottles lying around, or papers; as a matter of fact, if you have to drink, then don't go hunting. With the amount of publicity being given to the do's and don'ts in hunting, it should end up the safest sport in season; but all it takes is a little stupidity, and that's it.

Around the countryside this past week-end I spotted a group of bird watchers. Quizzing them on their findings, they appeared more than surprised at the numbers of new birds they had observed. As a matter of fact, I have never seen some of the birds they noted. So I must be going blind. This group sure took their time in looking over an area. One of the ladies, armed with binoculars, had spotted 71 birds all of different breeds. Sounds pretty good for us, doesn't it? Too bad these varieties couldn't stay around during the winter, but that would be asking too much. . . While still on this subject, how about putting a little feed out for them, starting right now. With most of them due to take off at any time, they would appreciate a good feed for a few days; at least this would help them on the long jaunt south. And as for our winter birds, they will find this feed, and will keep coming back all winter.

As usual at this time of year there are numerous domestic animals that have been left to fend for themselves. Mostly cats; this is too bad. I wonder just why people who supposedly cherish such pets, cannot wait a few minutes for them to come back home, before they take off for Montreal. Maybe they will be back, hoping to pick up the strays later on, but this is a very poor way of doing things. No animal will hang around unless it gets fed.

Noticed a few of the citizens shooting this past week-end. They have made themselves a skeet range, and were having a lot of fun. It was a good range, where people were not too likely to wander, and even had signs posted warning them of shooting. I have often wondered just why there aren't more of these ranges around the district. There are some ideal spots for this type of shooting, and with not much danger of anyone getting hurt, due to the shooters themselves being safety-conscious. Sure would be a good thing for C-I-L to get into. They have their own up at the plant, but in a lot of cases it is just not possible for people to get up there.

As most of you know I have a real yen to have a park for wildlife in this area. I don't suppose I will ever get it. But a thought on this: with the World's Fair coming to this province, don't you think it would be a great attraction to have something of this sort? I know it is some miles from Montreal, but I believe that enough people would be interested to travel this short distance. It would bring tourists, and bringing these visitors would mean money — and with at least some of this money, maybe a good program could be worked out for the protection of wildlife. Now, by this I don't mean that we should have a zoo; far from it — but rather a park, where everything would be protected from human destruction, where they could roam free as the winds, and with care being given for their survival.

While on this bit, how about our river? Just what does this town intend to do about it? There is a great deal of work to be done on this pollution from sewage, and now's the time to do it, not a year before the Fair. And the old argument, "It was good enough for Dad, so it's good enough for me," will not hold, under present-day conditions.

Water Skiing WITH CLINT WARD

Enjoy early spring or late fall skiing by using a wet suit or a dry suit. The skier on the left has on a thin rubber dry suit shirt. The skier on the right is wearing a wet suit top and short dry suit pants. A wet suit is a good floatation device. A shirt of 3/16 inch thickness will float a fallen skier.

How to Lengthen Your Water Ski Season

Boating and water skiing are among the fastest growing participation activities in Canada today. How many people really get the most out of their boats in terms of months of use? The answer is quite simple. Most people sell this great water activity short and don't get the full use that is possible from their boats.

Most water skiers begin unlimbering in late May or early June and they are usually ready to put away their skis in early September. Why do they do this? Because most people find cool or cold water very hard to put up with, and would sooner seek warmer pastimes.

But recently, something new has happened along, which can add months to your water fun. It is a rubber suit. The same type of rubber suit that is worn by skin divers.

There are two types of suits. A wet suit and a dry suit. The names are self explanatory. A dry suit is designed to do just what the term implies — keep you dry. This type of suit is made of thin rubber and comes in two pieces, pants and shirt. The pants usually have feet in them and the shirt fits very snug at the wrists, and neck. When the suit is properly sealed at the waist where the shirt and pants join, clothes can be worn underneath which will be kept completely dry even when the skier falls in the water.

These suits are available for about $15 for the pants and $15 for the shirt. The ring for sealing the waist is extra. Some of the shirts are equipped with a hood. The disadvantage of a dry suit is the difficulty that is usually encountered getting in and out of them.

A wet suit is made of thicker neoprene rubber. Standard suits are 3/16 of an inch thick but suits are available in thicknesses of ¼ inch and ½ inch. Wet suits are more expensive than dry suits and can cost as much as $70 for a good one, tailor made. A wet suit is not waterproof, hence zippers can be employed, easing the problem of getting in and out of the suit. Proof that these suits are warm can be seen in the fact that divers work in perfect comfort in frigid arctic waters.

Wet suits are available at some marine dealers and divers' supply stores. Recently some of the big sporting goods manufacturers have added wet suits to their lines thus making them available in sporting goods stores.

Using wet or dry suits it is possible in most areas in Canada to begin skiing in late April and continue almost into December. From May to November is seven months. I am sure that only the hardy fanatics will realize that length of season, but the rest of us can certainly enjoy five to six months of water skiing.

Water skiing in September and early October can be the best of the season. The fall air is refreshing, the leaves are turning and best of all everyone else is at home and you can enjoy the lake all to yourself.

CIP Bulletin on forest travel

The vast woodland areas of Quebec are the natural habitat of a wide variety of game birds and animals, making this province one of the finest hunting regions in the continent. . . But when the hunting season opens, a great many hazards will confront the unwary. It is absolutely essential that the hunter wear clothing which will distinguish him clearly from animals and from trees, and that firearms be in perfect working condition. Canadian International Paper Comany asks hunters to remember that there are people working and travelling in the forest, and to use all possible prudence.

When leaves fall from the trees, they are dry and brittle, and fire spreads rapidly through them. It is therefore urgent that even greater care be taken with fire at this time of the year. Please obey provincial game laws and make sure you have the necessary permits.

The number of travellers on C.I.P. roads for the week, preceding this issue was 11,735, and number of C.I.P. forest workers, 6,832.

Fires on C.I.P. limits during that week were two in number.

Association had sightless guest at fishing contest

Last Sunday at their fishing tournament held at Lake Wentworth, the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association had as their guest Anthony C. Zaplaski, field secretary for the Laurentian District of the CNIB. His companion and guide for the day was Mr. Paul-Emile Gravel.

Plans are now underway to encourage other blind anglers to take part in the sport of fishing. The CNIB are deeply interested in encouraging sightless people to take part in all types of sport, and fishing is one sport that lends itself admirably to the capabilities of blind people.

Mr. Gravel and the Association president, Mr. H. Lepage, have volunteered to look after the sightless anglers. Any blind person who wishes to take part in the next tournament, to be held October 4, is advised to communicate with the CNIB Office (LO 2-2686) and he will be provided with a guide for the day.

Mr. Zaplaski will be attending the next tournament, as he found the last one very enjoyable, with true comradeship existing among all the members.

Hunting season awards offered

Duck, hare and partridge shooting opens shortly in this area, and the Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association urges all members to register their hauls during the season and thus be in competition for awards in these three species.

The registering of game with the Association involves no cost or trouble. It needs only to be taken to a director of the organization, who will note the weight and other required information. Any who may be in doubt as to this procedure, may telephone LO 2-6031 or LE 3-4596.

Dates

Duck hunting opens September 19 on the Ottawa River below Carillon Dam; for the area upstream, which falls within another Zone, the opening date is September 26.

For partridge and rabbit, the opening date hereabouts is also September 26 (— all according to details of the regulations given by this Association).

Badminton Club reopens activities

Lachute Badminton Club reopened its season on Wednesday evening, and games will be played weekly, each Wednesday from 8 to 11 p.m. in the High School assembly hall. All interested are invited to turn out and enjoy this healthful pastime.

Information is available from Mrs. Mabel Prophet (LO 2-2401).

Aug. 20-21 — Montreal City and District Championship, 0-18, at Kanawaki. — Congratulations to Barbara Wilkins, of Lachute Golf Club, who was the 2nd low net winner. This tournament had a large field entry of over 100.

Aug. 31 — Mother and daughter Tournament, at Glenlee (Ottawa). — Lachute Golf Club is proud to announce that this tournament was won by our very own Mrs. Gilbert Ayers and her daughter, Mrs. Daniel Carrière.

Sept. 1 — Inter-Club Play at Summerlea. — Teams of four players representing 25 different clubs took part in this event. The Lachute team comprising Miss Barbara Wilkins, Miss Gil Ducas, Mrs. F. Feldman and Mrs. Abe Scwartz, placed third. Congratulations!

Sept. 2-3 — Montreal City and District Bronze Championship, 19-32, at Lachute. — This two-day tournament was most efficiently organized by the Lachute Ladies' Golf Club. The Club is very proud that in a field entry of 180, the low net winner was Mrs. Philippe Ayers, Lachute. Another local entry, from the neighboring golf club at St. Andrews, Miss Elizabeth Burroughs, was the low gross winner the first day, with a score of 94. Many members were on hand to make the two days as pleasant as possible for the visitors. Miss Evelyne Ayers and the ladies of the Entertainment and Decorating Committee organized the serving of coffee and Danish pastries in the Tartan Room each morning.

The Ladies' Branch has been busy with plans for the glamorous "Parisian Night", to take place this Saturday, September 19. The Entertainment and Decorating Committee have hinted that they have some spicy and intriguing sketches in store. So if you can't get to Paris this fall, be sure to be on hand for "Parisian Night", September 19 at the Lachute Golf and Country Club!

A word of reminder to the members: The closing dinner meeting is taking place this year on the evening of October 7. Letters to this effect will be sent to all lady members in the near future.

Lachute asst. pro wins provincial golf event

Last Friday Alf Shand distinguished himself and brought credit to Lachute Golf Club by winning the Quebec Assistant Professional golf championship tournament, held at the Beaconsfield Club.

After being runner-up twice previously, Alf finally won the Ernie Findlay Memorial Trophy. He shot 72-71-143 for the 36 holes to beat Adrien Bigras of Ste. Dorothee and John Porter of the Elmridge Golf Club by two strokes.

The participants numbered over 50 assistant pros from the province.

Rotarians enjoy inter-club golf

Golf and fellowship were foremost in the regular weekly meeting of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club, held at Dunany Golf Club.

It was a very special occasion, since the Westmount Rotary Club had invited the local group to participate in their annual golf outing, Wednesday, September 9.

The host club, hospitably led by their president, Bill Raey, made the day one to be remembered by the large number taking part.

It was golf all day for some, all afternoon for others. They couldn't have wished for a more beautiful, sunny, fall day — in more beautiful mountain and lake country.

Lunch at noon and a full clubhouse for the buffet dinner at night, served by Mrs. Orrin Gordon and her efficient helpers, made the prize-giving session a very satisfying and jolly affair.

Les Stewart, of the Westmount Club, presented the many prizes, with humorous comments and repartee. Local prize-winners included — Syd Drew, who won low gross for the visitors, Bob Armstrong and Edgar Pollock, who received prizes among the low net group.

Special guests to the inter-club meeting included some well-known businessmen — Bill Haldimand, of the Montreal Club; Tom Hodgson, past president of the Montreal Kiwanis Club; and Lion Herbie Graves and son, Bryant.

The local club president, Phil Grant, thanked the Westmount group for their excellent hospitality.

This is my daddys 1965 Volskwagen with the bigger windows

(Drawn by Martin Hilliard, age five)

Bigger windows. On a Volkswagen. Hard to picture?

Well, it's like this. We started with the windshield and we made every single window just a little bit bigger. All the better to see with. But the new Volkswagen still looks pretty much like the old Volkswagen. Unless you look real close. Martin Hilliard looked real close. Kids are like that.

He didn't care that the windows are only 15 per cent larger. He knows bigger windows when he sees them. And he knows how to draw them. So that's why we show you Martin Hilliard's drawing of our new car. And the bigger windows. It shows you what the bigger windows feel like.

And you can be sure when we make changes in a Volkswagen it's not just window dressing. It's the same with all 16 changes on the new VW. They're all there for good reasons. Improved brakes. Better gearbox. Lubrication-free steering assembly. And improved wipers to clean the bigger windshield.

Get in a new Volkswagen and see what Martin Hilliard has in mind. Even if you're just window shopping.

Lachute High School Commencement exercises form were representatives of the prize and scholarship donors — individuals and organizations to whom Commissioner Duncan expressed warm appreciation for this incentive to student zeal and enthusiasm.

An innovation at these exercises was the part played by last year's graduates, who attended in a body and combined, in the program, certain features of the regular graduation exercises. Dianne Boa gave the Valedictory, and two other graduates, Ann Hardie and Judy Kettyle, recited the plans of their individual classmates — some of whom are continuing their studies in Grade XII; some proceeding to other institutions of learning; and others now embarking on business, industrial or professional careers.

School Enrolment

Other details in the principal's report concerned the pupil enrolment and the teaching staff.

The complement of pupils is very little changed from last year, namely, 764 (last week) with still a few additional newcomers expected. There are 68 in this year's Grade XI, the largest number on record, and 28 in Grade XII.

Starting this year, the terms Grade "eight, nine, ten, eleven" will be dropped, and they will be known as "first, second, third and fourth year" high school. This is largely in order to correlate the pupil-grading with Ontario standards and thus avoid confusion of terms.

The teacher staff of 38 is unchanged in number; there are, however, eight newcomers, together with Mrs. Doris Campbell, who has returned after a year's leave of absence. Mr. Royal enumerated the new teachers, as follows:

SAFEGUARD

Said the kindly old gentleman to a small boy carrying a load of newspapers under his arm, "Don't all those papers make you tired, my lad?"

"Naw," replied the boy. "I don't read 'em."

New Teachers

Mr. Leigh Coffin, B.A., who taught last year in Shawville, will be Guidance Specialist and assist with the teaching of English. Mr. Coffin is also a qualified French Specialist.

Mrs. Kay Sanford, B.A., will teach Chemistry and Mathematics; her previous teaching position was at Val D'Or.

Mr. Frank Andai, with a doctorate in History from the University of Budapest (where he was an assistant professor during the Hungarian fight for freedom) will teach History and Geography.

Miss Susan Thomas, a graduate from the Fredericton Teachers' College, will teach English and Mathematics for 1st Year High.

Miss Gerda Tanner, graduate of Macdonald College, will be Physical Education instructress for girls.

Mrs. Lorna Cairns, a resident of this town, will be class teacher for Grade V.

Miss Phyllis Angus, graduate of Macdonald College, will teach Grade IV.

Miss Fay Young, previously at Shawville, will fill the position of Music Specialist.

— Principal Royal publicly welcomed these newcomers to the school staff.

Off-street parking in shopping area

By initiative of the proprietor, Donat Saulnier, this parking area at the rear of Beaton's Pharmacy has been made more attractive and more convenient, for frequenters of the Main Street shopping centre. It has spacious accommodation, well marked and well lighted, and is free to all users. Mr. Saulnier invites all motorists, especially during peak hours of traffic congestion, to make use of this facility. The entrance is from Berry Street, opposite the C.P.R. station yard.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

While I was burning coffee pots and overfilling washing machines at this end, it seems that my family were having their own difficulties up at the farm. In the small, quiet hours of one night, when only the crickets were chirping, and the harvest moon was setting in the west, a skunk hopped in through the open cellar window. Then, for reasons better known to himself, our collie, full of reckless fury, jumped in after him. The details of the next four hours are too lengthy and too confused to relate here. I only hope that the house is fit to live in by the time we return next spring.

We have decided to go ahead, in a very modest way, with our plans to bring the farm back to life. Five acres of the front field, now in trefoil, will be saved for seed next summer. Seven acres of the back field will be ploughed this fall for direct seeding next August to timothy for seed. The rest will be rented for pasture until we see how it goes.

This back field was last planted to rape five years ago. Unhappily, it was not seeded afterwards. Now it is one awful mess of quack grass. Some white clover has crept in; here and there are six foot high mullein plants, monuments to bad farming. I just about ruined the same field eight years ago in a futile attempt to cultivate the twitch grass out of existence.

So this time we will try to use chemicals to clean up the field. A neighbor has agreed to do the spraying. If we can get it done before the first of October, while the quack grass is still growing vigorously, we will use Amitrol T at two gallons chemical per acre mixed in 20 to 30 gallons of water.

Other chemicals we could use are Amino Triazole at 4 to 6 lbs. active material per acre, or Dalapon at 10 to 15 lbs. product per acre. It is going to cost us about $15 per acre, but if it saves ruining our sandy loam field with cultivation, it will be worth it.

Then we will plough in late October, after the chemical has had a chance to work. Next spring and summer, we will keep the soil black and then seed to straight timothy in August. We hope to have the first seed crop the following year, 1966.

If we can't get the spraying done this fall, we will still go ahead and plough. Then next spring, when the quack is a vigorous green mat over the field, we will spray with one of these chemicals, wait a while, then disc.

If this field were going into corn next year, heavy rates of Atrazine could be used at seeding time. Jerry Duncan at Ormstown did this; results were not quite as good as he hoped for; it was just too dry in June. But we will have a normal season one of these years.

Galen Driver, whom many of you met at the fairs this past month, has finished his summer's work with the College and gone back to classes for his final year. Our best wishes are with him. However, he carries on as Quebec Provincial Secretary of the Farm Radio Forum. You will be hearing his voice on Monday nights, at 9.00 o'clock, starting November 2nd, when the new Farm Forum season opens.

The Price of Life — a discussion of medical care, is the first night's topic. From the programs, it looks like a powerful series this year.

Two students to share industrial scholarship award

The Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute of Canada has announced that the Prescott-Argenteuil Industrial Scholarship for 1964 has been jointly awarded to Miss Janice May Young of Pointe au Chene, Que., and Udo A. Mehner, of Vankleek Hill, Ont. Miss Young and Mr. Mehner plan to attend the Science course at Carleton University.

The scholarship amounts to $675, and is supported by seven industries located in Argenteuil and Prescott — Canadian Refractories Ltd., Kilmar, Canadian Safety Fuse Ltd., Brownsburg, Dominion Ayers Limited, Lachute, J. C. Wilson Ltd., Lachute, International Cellulose Research Ltd., Hawkesbury, Norda Limited and Sinclair Supply Ltd., both of Vankleek Hill.

The award will be presented to Miss Young and Mr. Mehner at a meeting of the Hawkesbury Section of the Chemical Institute. Guest speaker will be Mr. T. H. G. Michael, general manager of the Chemical Institute of Canada.

Co-chairman for blood donor clinic addresses clubmen

Speaker at the Richelieu Club last week was Paul Deslauriers, co-chairman for the Red Cross blood donor clinic, who solicited the co-operation of the club in this effort, September 28-29.

The major difficulty encountered by the Red Cross in its transfusion service is the maintaining of the blood bank, and this is where the voluntary clinics play an important part in meeting the increasing needs for surgery and emergencies, said the speaker. "Experience shows that the most successful donor clinics are in centres where businessmen collaborate in these efforts."

Mr. Deslauriers stressed the valuable assistance of service clubs, by their example in giving blood, by their community influence, and (in the case of employers) by allowing their staffs to attend and contribute to the clinics.

The speaker was introduced by Bernard Cadieux and thanked by Raymond Beaulieu. Gaëtan Leclair was chairman, and the two-minute impromptu talk was given by Claude Lamarche. A film was shown on the properties of blood and functions of the circulatory system in the human body.

Pretty wedding at Weir, Que.

Hunka - Bowie

The Church of the Redeemer, Weir, was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding on Saturday afternoon, September 12, at 3 o'clock, when Carole Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bowie, of St. Laurent, was united in marriage to Mr. Terrance Bertram Hunka, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Hunka, of Two Hills, Alta.

The Rev. Winter LeCras officiated, and the church was tastefully decorated with gladioli, phlox and autumn leaves.

The bride — wearing a floor-length gown of jacquered taffeta, with long sleeves ending in points over the hands and a string of pearls, the gift of the groom, her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion held by a cluster of tiny white leaves, and carrying a white Bible (a gift of the groom's father), with a cascade of red rosettes and stephanotis — entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the Wedding March played by Mrs. W. D. Morrison.

The maid of honor, Miss Joyce Howard, and the bridesmaid, Miss Lovietta Hunka, wore floor-length gowns of peacock blue peau-de-soie with matching headbands, and carried semi-cascade bouquets of yellow and white pom-poms.

Mr. John Craig acted as best man for the groom, and the ushers were Messrs. Philip Williams and Warren Sinclair.

Mrs. Bowie, the bride's mother, wore a brown bouclé suit with turquoise accessories and a corsage of red rosebuds. Mrs. Hunka, the bridegroom's mother, was dressed in green with black accessories, and wore a corsage of yellow mums.

During the signing of the register the congregation sang "O Perfect Love".

Immediately following the ceremony a reception and wedding supper was held in the auditorium of the Arundel School, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion and where some 85 guests were present; this was afterwards followed by dancing.

Later the bridal couple left on a motor trip to Niagara Falls, the Thousand Islands and Toronto — the bride wearing a suit of Royal blue wool tweed with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. . . On their return they will reside in St. Laurent.

Out-of-town guests were from Two Hills, Alta.; Seattle, Wash.; New Liskeard, Ottawa, Pointe Claire, Longueuil, Montreal and Arundel

Northern Grenville

Mrs. Samson Arthurs, of Calumet, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young, with Greg and Anita, visited Mr. and Mrs. John Arthurs on Sunday afternoon.

Once again free French lessons will be conducted in the Lachute High School, each Monday and Wednesday from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m.

The Lachute Women's Institute sponsors these classes, the Lachute Protestant School Board provides the classrooms, and the Quebec Provincial Government provides free instruction.

Residents are invited to take advantage of this opportunity to learn French. Enroll at the L.H.S. on Monday, October 5, at 7.30 p.m., or phone Mrs. R. P. Fraser, LO 2-4996.

Editor died at Buckingham

Mrs. Muriel P. Simpson, 82, editor of the weekly Buckingham Post, died Monday in that town. She was one of Canada's oldest active editors, and had spent all day Saturday working in her office at the newspaper.

She is survived by her son John, co-editor of the paper — to whom The Watchman extends its sympathy.

FACT

In a year Canadians spend more than twice as much on taxes as they spend in all food stores and restaurants.

Brownie notes, 2nd Lachute pack

Miss Catherine McMahon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McMahon, through her outstanding work in the 2nd Lachute Brownie Pack, received her Signaller's

Brownie Catherine McMahon

Badge, the first time this badge has been awarded to any Brownie in Lachute in over ten years.

A Tawny Owl is needed to assist Mrs. W. R. Skinner, Brown Owl of the 2nd Lachute Pack. Any interested person is asked kindly to phone Mrs. Skinner, so that this pack may begin their meetings.

Modern play on religious theme

The United Church in Lachute has invited the "Chancel Players" of Beaurepaire United Church to present their production, "Christ in the Concrete City" on Sunday, September 27, at 8 p.m.

This controversial play has been staged many times in the Montreal area, and the actors have been widely acclaimed for their fine presentation. The play is meant to be presented in the sanctuary of the church, and it will be so shown in Lachute.

The author of the play had this thought in mind, that Christ must proceed from the boundary of the church to the needs of the concrete city.

Tickets for this production are now available, and the general public are invited to attend.

Argent'l Duplicate Bridge Club

At the Argenteuil Duplicate Bridge Club, the north-south winners were Mrs. E. Jones and Miss Joly; east-west, Mr. George Calder and Mr. Foster.

The first session of the winter season will be held at the Lachute Legion Hall at 7.45 p.m. on September 21; master points will be awarded by the Club.

This club now holds the charter from the American Contract Bridge League. All bridge players are invited to join the group, and thus assist in efforts to help the Retarded Children's organization. About $2,000 has been donated since the club was organized, and with further support, this assistance will be continued.

Refreshments were served in conclusion.

County couple wed here, to reside in Brownsburg

McCutcheon - Leishman

The Rev. Harold Thompson officiated at the marriage of Doreen Mary Leishman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dougall Leishman, of Lachute, to Mr. Joseph Glenden McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector McCutcheon of Rivington, on Saturday, September 5. The double-ring ceremony took place at 5 p.m. in the Lachute United Church.

The wedding music was played by Mr. L. B. Hopkins. During the service Mrs. Don Barbour, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Wedding Prayer". Baskets of mixed gladioli and white satin bows formed the decorations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a floor-length model of organza embroidered with Swiss lace, fashioned with a scooped neckline, fitted bodice and long, tight sleeves with points ending over the hands. Her dome skirt, trimmed with lace appliqués at the waist, formed a chapel train at the back. Her bouffant chapel veil of tulle illusion fell from a headpiece of roses and lily of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses with tiny white mums.

Mrs. Ross Cleary, as matron of honor, Miss Elva McCutcheon and Miss Carole Smith, as bridesmaids, wore identical gowns of parfait peau-de-faille, fashioned with bell-shaped skirts and accented with a bow at the waist. They wore matching shoes and headpieces, and carried bouquets of white and parfait carnations.

Best man for the bridegroom was Mr. Ross Cleary, with Mr. Ivan McCutcheon, brother of the groom, and Mr. Ronald Leishman, brother of the bride, as ushers.

The bride's mother was gowned in a sheath model of blue peau-de-soie and lace which had a draped side effect with blue and white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. McCutcheon chose a beige sheath of lace over taffeta with white accessories; her corsage was also of pink roses.

A reception was held at the Orange Hall. For travelling, the bride chose a Royal blue double-knit suit with black and white accessories. Following a motor trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will reside in Brownsburg.

Out-of-town guests were from Ottawa, Sudbury, Hemmingford, Montreal, Avoca and Rivington.

Late H. E. Cooke Arundel citizen

Funeral service was held at Arundel United Church on Tuesday for the late Homer Edgar Cooke, a prominent agriculturist, who died Sunday after a long illness.

Mr. Cooke, 62, graduated in agriculture from Macdonald College in 1925 and founded the Laurentian Poultry Farm with his brother, Leslie. He was well known in the business for nearly 40 years.

He was the founding president of the Laurentian Protestant Colonization Society.

He was a 32nd degree Mason (Scottish Rite); a past-master of Laurentian Masonic Lodge No. 81 in Arundel; and a past deputy district grand master of the Ottawa Masonic District.

Mr. Cooke is survived by his wife, Lila; a son, Robert; a grandson; three sisters, Gertrude, Ethel, and Winnifred; and his brother, Leslie.

Married recently at St. Simeon's

Hall - Parker

The marriage of Carol Elsie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Parker, of Lachute Road, to Mr. William MacLeod Hall, of Vankleek Hill, Ont., took place in St. Simeon's Anglican Church, Lachute, on August 29, the Rev. C. R. Lang officiating, assisted by Rev. Winter LeCras.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white peau-de-soie trimmed with lace around the scooped neckline, with elbow-length sleeves, and belt ending in a bow at the back. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white pom-poms.

Miss Elaine Marshall, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Kenneth Underhill, as attendant, were gowned alike in Royal blue printed jersey, with pill-box hats and blue shoes, and carried nosegay bouquets of white carnations.

Mr. Douglas Hall, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and the ushers were Donald Parker, brother of the bride, and Malcolm McIntyre, of Vankleek Hill.

Mrs. Parker, mother of the bride, wore a dress of Empire blue crepe, a pink feather hat, and black accessories, and wore a corsage of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Hall, mother of the groom, wore a dress of dusty pink chiffon and a hat to match, with black accessories and a corsage of white roses.

The soloist, Mrs. Kenneth Billingham, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O, Love Divine", the organist being Mrs. Rhian Dewar.

The reception was in the Orange Hall, where Henry Todd piped the bride and groom into the hall and also on their departure. The happy couple left for Western Ontario, the bride travelling in a blue suit, white and black feather hat, with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Branch W.I. held meeting

The September meeting of Jerusalem-Bethany Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Hay, as joint-hostess with Mrs. N. McGeorge. The roll call, "Name a country you would like to visit, and why", was answered by 19 members. The president, Mrs. Allan Walker, welcomed two guests and one distant member. The next meeting will be held in the afternoon, October 1, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Walker.

Mrs. Charles Stephens, the County president, gave a brief talk on the convention at Macdonald College in June, and also told about attending the unveiling of a plaque at Dunham.

Mrs. Sidney Seary, guest speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Foster Campbell. Mrs. Seary, a former war bride from England, gave a very interesting talk about a trip she had made back to England in 1962 after an absence of 17 years. It was interesting to hear of the changes she had found. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Allan Hammond.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Hay and Mrs. McGeorge.

BELL LINES

by JIM MENZIES

CONTINUING ALERT

Now that the youngsters are back to school, I hope that Lachute drivers will not relax the caution they've been exercising during the summer months. True enough, the children aren't out during most of the day but they ARE out on the way to and from school, and during "lunch hour". And then again, there's a new crop of little ones who have just started school and haven't had too much experience in protecting themselves from senseless or careless drivers.

I cringe when I read stories of cars jumping the sidewalk and killing or maiming people who just happened to be there. A little four-year-old girl was killed in this kind of accident near Montreal last month, and her young mother had to have a leg amputated. I'm sure none of us ever wants to read of such tragedies happening in this community.

COLOR TV

The day of color TV in Canadian homes is still around the corner, but when it comes, the Bell will be ready to play its part. Only a few weeks ago, at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, RCA Victor demonstrated its color TV equipment by operating the first closed-circuit color TV network in Canada, and Bell facilities were used to carry the signals to the television sets located at various points throughout the fair grounds.

You may already know that the Trans-Canada Telephone System, of which the Bell is a member, carries TV from coast to coast for both the CBC and CTV networks. It's also nice to know that the transmission facilities now in use for black and white programs are already of such a high standard that they could handle color with only minor modifications. That's worth a pat on the back, don't you think?

Have you heard about the Chinese scholar who was giving a lecture when all the lights in the room went out? He asked the people in the audience to raise their hands. As soon as they complied, the lights went on.

"This proves the wisdom of the old Chinese saying," he said: "Many hands make light work."

This Beatlemania

THE HYSTERIA that followed the Beatles on their recent North American tour — which included appearances in Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal — has apparently caused some concern among a segment of the adult population.

Not all adults, mind you. Some were simply amused at the displays of Beatlemania, and others went out of their way to get tickets to the shows.

But there were those who looked at the photographs of wild-eyed youngsters and shook their heads wondering about where the modern generation was heading.

Admittedly, the Beatles have caught the imagination of a surprisingly young element — children little more than 10 years old in some cases.

At least several young girls faint at each performance of the singing quartet from Liverpool. And many go to ridiculous extremes just to get a glimpse of the long-haired lads.

But somehow it's difficult to work up a real case of worry about today's youth, especially when one examines the reaction brought about by singers over the years.

There is many a respectable grandmother about today who sighed and even screamed when Rudy Vallee was breathing his romantic ballads in a megaphone more than 30 years ago.

And the teen-age girls who screeched and occasionally passed out at the excitement of seeing Frank Sinatra in the 1940's have in most cases married and settled down to raise families in their split-level suburban homes.

Even those who went wild at the gyrations of Elvis Presley a decade ago would appear to have settled down into respectability as young married folk.

The point of it all seems to be that the kids who swoon over some singing idol are likely to outgrow the madness in time and go on to lead normal, healthy lives.

As for the Beatles, they appear to be fairly intelligent young men who look on Beatlemania with amusement. They're undoubtedly happy about all the money they are earning but they don't take their so-called art seriously and it's difficult to dislike them.

The kids who idolize them will grow up, and when some new rage captures the imagination of the young people a few years from now there will probably be some old-time Beatle fans who will shake their heads and wonder whether the younger generation is going to the dogs.

Canada unique in 4-H work

THE COLLABORATION of government and business in the "Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs" in planning and financing 4-H at the National level, has been lauded as "unique" by delegates from 21 countries at the International Rural Youth Seminar, held in Herrsching, Germany, last June. Canada was represented at these meetings by James D. Moore, Ottawa, manager of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs, who, in addition to presenting a paper on the structure and organization of 4-H work in Canada, was appointed as general chairman of the English-speaking study group at the Conference. Lectures and discussions were conducted in English, French and German, with simultaneous translations provided in order to make the seminar a truly international one.

The Canadian delegate reported: "The seminar provided a splendid opportunity for various countries to share ideas on methods of conducting youth work. Much of the educational value came from the exchange of experiences in the halls, around dinner tables and in the after-hours discussions of programs and procedures with youth leaders from other parts of the world. Valuable personal contacts were made with people with whom Canada will be able to exchange program ideas in the future." Correspondence with seven countries on matters of mutual interest has already been initiated.

Mr. Moore's report will give the supporters of the Canadian Council on 4-H Clubs a clearer picture of program operations in other countries, and a more sympathetic understanding of the problems and needs of youth at the world level.

Countries represented at the Youth Seminar included Austria, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, England, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, Norway, Portugal, Scotland, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, Tunisia and the United States.

Dubious "restraint" on imports

FINANCE MINISTER Gordon recently told the Commons that the just-concluded "voluntary" quota agreements with Japan provide for an increase in Japanese exports to Canada from three to five per cent this year.

"In virtually all cases, these increases are not greater than the expected growth in the (Canadian) market for the products in question," he added.

This observation is not one calculated to bring much joy or optimism to Canadian manufacturers of goods that must compete with Japanese imports (our thought, in Lachute, being directly related to textiles).

What the Minister of Finance is saying, in effect, is that Japan has "voluntarily" agreed to limit her share of the growth of the Canadian market to the proportion of that market already held. In other words, Canadian manufacturers — by definition and by agreement — cannot hope to improve their market share.

To call agreements such as this "restraints" almost seems to be stretching the true meaning of the word. The dictionary, after all, defines "restraint" as: "the avoidance of excess or exaggeration".

Trends of thought in pharmacy

THE PHARMACISTS' ASSOCIATION, meeting recently in Halifax, wants the elimination of the 11 per cent sales tax on drugs. This would be of some advantage to individuals who use prescription drugs to a considerable amount. There are cases of people of small means who have to pay out many dollars per month for drugs prescribed by their physicians — says the Fort Erie Letter-Review, commenting on this opinion.

Another question worrying the druggists is self-medication. They think that TV is, by blatant advertising, contributing toward what the druggists consider an evil.

The druggists are also of the opinion that no one but a graduate pharmacist should be allowed to own a drugstore. This, on the ground of ethics. But it is quite possible that a corporation or a non-professional individual could own a drugstore and see that it was operated properly.

YOUTH'S SOCIAL NEEDS. — We cannot imagine a community that would refuse to provide schools for children's intellectual needs. Is it any less shocking for communities to be blind to youth's need for social life for which neither the school nor the home is equipped to be entirely responsible?

RIGHT TO EDUCATION. — The time has come when every boy or girl with the mental equipment and the desire for higher education should be able to get it. OVER THE YEARS With Lachute Watchman

75 YEARS AGO

September, 1889 —

Sir John A. Macdonald passed through Lachute by special train to Ottawa on Thursday.

A crowd of Italians arrived here to work on the St. Andrews railway. They are distributed along the line in tents. McLennan, the contractor, has undertaken to have the grading completed in 60 days.

Parties wanting graves dug, leave orders at Mr. Charles Geiger's Coffin Store, East End. (Advt.)

On Thursday last, the Agricultural Society of Argenteuil held its annual Exhibition at Lachute. The dinner was held at Lafleur's Hotel and was on strictly temperance principles. The chair was occupied by the president, John Hay, Esq., having on his right Dr. Christie, M.P., and on his left the Hon. J. J. C. Abbott.

Mr. Owens, M.P.P., gave a pleasant excursion to a few of his friends, up the North River on the steam yacht owned by Mr. Brisson. The party proceeded 10 or 12 miles upstream from Barron's Bridge.

The Great Northern Railway Co. have opened an office for the engineer of the St. Andrews branch, over the store of Robt. Banford.

50 YEARS AGO

September, 1914 —

Following an appeal in our last issue, the firm of Ayers Limited have donated $150 to the Patriotic Fund, in addition to $230 subscribed by the employees.

When Mr. Robt. McArthur was meditating the erection of a new store, the Oddfellows' Laurentian Lodge asked him to furnish accommodation for their needs, and Mr. McArthur, one of the most enthusiastic members of the Lodge, applied himself to the task. On September 1, 255 guests were present for formal opening of the new hall. . . The Oddfellows have been meeting in the upper part of McFaul's Store, in the West Ward, but a change of premises became necessary.

East Settlement has sustained another severe loss by the death of Mrs. John Rodgers.

The greater part of Belgium lies prostrate under the heel of the invader. Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, deeply moved by the plight of the Belgian people this coming winter, has asked Sir Robert Borden and the provincial premiers to join in measures towards lessening their suffering.

25 YEARS AGO

September, 1939 —

The Ottawa Winter Fair, scheduled for November 14-17, will be cancelled this year due to the Coliseum being required by the Department of National Defence.

Among those enlisted in the forces are Stephen May and George Powell, of Ste. Agathe; Andrew Cleland, Lloyd Creswell, Carl Demerse, Jock Cunningham, Bob Fulton, Lachute; Ernest W. Rodger, St. Andrews. A number of young citizens are awaiting acceptance in the Flying Corps.

Grenville — Preacher at the 107th anniversary of St. Matthew's, Grenville, was the Rev. C. C. Phillips — whose great-grandfather, Rev. Joseph Abbott, was the builder of the churches at Grenville and Lakefield. He is the grandson also of Sir John Abbott, the Grenville boy who became Prime Minister of Canada.

Direct from the Toronto Exhibition where it has been on view for two weeks, a Chrysler Royal model specially built and equipped for the recent tour of the King and Queen, was displayed for a few hours at MacRae's Garage, Main Street.

THIS WEEK & NEXT

Let's Save The Queen

BY RAY ARGYLE

Threats of violence this week cast a shadow over the coming visit of the Queen to Canada. What should be a joyous occasion is now being filled with acute apprehension at the prospect of attempts to disrupt the visit.

It is now evident there definitely will be demonstrations in Quebec while the Queen is in that province.

Maximum security measures will be used to keep the demonstrators away from Her Majesty but, with the memory of the tragedy of Dallas still sharp the visit has now taken on absolutely frightening overtones.

Canadian government authorities have taken the position — and perhaps rightly so — that public threats by the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois to assassinate the Queen are aimed more at winning publicity than actually bringing harm to Her Majesty.

The Queen is coming to Canada Oct. 5 for a 10-day visit which will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Quebec Conference which laid the foundation for Confederation.

Her Majesty will arrive at Summerside, P.E.I., and after visiting Charlottetown will go on to Quebec City and Ottawa.

It is unfortunate that the Queen is being brought to Canada at a time when there is a sharp rift between Quebec and the rest of the nation. Although the terrorists of the FLQ are few in number, their actions — as well as those of even the non-violent French Canadian nationalists — have put all Quebec under suspicion in the eyes of probably a majority of English-speaking Canadians.

Because the Quebec revolutionaries aim at dividing the country, they will use the Queen's visit to attack British "domination" in the hope of gaining adherants to their own ranks within French Canada. At the same time, they will seek to insult the rest of Canada by their attacks on the Queen — verbal, written or physical — with the aim of further straining relations within the country.

Thus the prime purpose of a Royal visit — to develop the unity of Canada through the symbol of the Crown — has been seized on by these elements to achieve the opposite end.

There will always be a warm welcome for Her Majesty in the hearts of most Canadians, but unless another tour is planned for 1967, the Queen will actually miss out on what should be the most exciting year in Canadian history when we celebrate our Centennial.

We can hope that by 1967 the very real and genuine steps now being taken by the federal and Quebec governments to bind up the rift between our two founding peoples will have achieved some measure of success and that the country will be more tranquil than it is now.

Against this background, it is readily obvious that the decision of the Canadian government to invite the Queen to visit her senior dominion in 1964 was a mistake.

The reaction of the authorities thus far has been security measures will be adequate to guard the Queen and that it is now too late to cancel the visit. It is also apparent that the question of "losing face" is paramount in the government's thinking.

While the possibility of an attempt on the Queen's life is unthinkable to any rational individual, the government should be reminded that the French Canadian revolutionaries are not rational individuals.

To them, the Queen is the symbol of a foreign tyranny, however ridiculous this proposition appears to the rest of Canada. These same people have already demonstrated by their riots, bombings and robberies — which have claimed more than one life — that they will not stop at murder.

In an atmosphere charged with terrorism — be it Dallas or Quebec City — it is physically impossible to guarantee the life of any person.

While Canada might lose some "face" in cancelling the visit, this would be nothing compared to the bad publicity which this country will receive in the press of the world if violence in any form occurs while Her Majesty is here.

The Japanese — to whom "face" is a supreme fact of life — found caution the wiser course in 1959 when they cancelled the visit of President Eisenhower because of left-wing violence.

The Queen should not be put in the embarrassing and dangerous position which she will have to endure in Quebec next month. The visit should be postponed.

SUGAR AND SPICE

Gone With His Guitar

By BILL SMILEY

This column will be made up, for the most part, of excerpts from letters from my son. The first one was found, in the breadbox, one morning a couple of weeks ago.

I'd sat up until midnight with Hugh, convincing him that for financial and political reasons, his ambition to spend a couple of weeks in Quebec, on his own, was foolish.

The letter read "Dear family: this is not a suicide note. By the time you read this, I will be sailing along the highway towards the midnight sun (or noonday moon). I'm off to where 'the grass grows greener still.'

"Don't think that I've run away from home. I'm a little too old for that and anyway the idea's revolting. I may be disillusioned and be back on my doorstep by dinner hour, but if everything goes as I plan, I will spend the next two weeks in Quebec, learning French and discussing crucial topics with fiery French radicals. I know you think I'm a romanticist and will probably wind up in jail or hospital, but believe it or not, I'm quite capable of handling myself away from home.

"Now, don't dare send the Mounties after me. I'd be so embarrassed I'd run away from home for good. Besides I have my supply of heroin with me. Have yourselves a swingaroo at the convention."

There was more to the letter, but that was the gist of it. You can imagine the ensuing scene.

His father was ready to horsewhip him, or call in the police and charge him with something-or-other.

His mother was ready to have a good cry, cut him off without a cent, or run down the highway in her bare feet, calling after him.

His kid sister was interested but not impressed. Her comment was, "What a dope!"

Then society intruded, as always. What will the neighbors think if he comes home in a police car? What will the neighors think, and ask, if he doesn't come home at all? Why did he do this to us? Has he no gratitude for all we've done for him? And so on. Kim merely repeated, "What a dope!"

People are tough. We cooled off, we realized there wasn't a sensible thing we could do about it, and we went to the convention. But not before we'd done some checking, and found he'd cleaned out his bank account, taken his guitar, and, to his mother's extreme mortification, absconded with only two clean shirts.

Back from the convention, we received two letters. Excerpt: "Two really friendly ladies drove me from Kingston to Ottawa and bought me a sandwich and milk-shake. I insisted on paying, of course, but they told me just to do the same for somebody else some time."

Excerpt: "I am going to Grand'Mere, Quebec, to spend a couple of weeks with a French family. I met the boy at the station in Ottawa. He is 19, his name is Michel, and he's going to U. of Montreal in the fall."

Excerpt: "I am staying with the Ricards. He is a painter (in houses). Mrs. Ricard is 40 and rather pretty, a bit taller than her husband and doesn't speak a word of English. They are all extremely friendly and hospitable. At first, I could not understand a thing. They have an accent which pronounces mere, mire, and soeur, sire; moi is moee and Toi, Toee."

Page 4 and 5 of this letter are missing. P. 6 begins, "Just like you, Mom," which is driving my wife crazy.

There's a lot of other stuff, then: "Last night, Michel and I double-dated with one of his girl-friends and her sister (they are both really cute). We went to Shawinigan for a band concert. There were about three times as many boys as girls and they all stood 'bumper to bumper' on each side of the path while the couples walked between them. Soon it started pouring, so we went to a dance."

Well, the kid's getting some sense. He knows enough to get in out of the rain. There was a little message on the outside of the envelope of his last letter. It was the least literary thing he'd written. It said, "Please send $10."

When the whole thing started, I was ready to send him to jail for 20 years. Instead, I sent him the 10 dollars.

Paper-craft fascinates

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Are you looking for something which will keep your child busy and out of mischief? Paper craft may be just the thing! It can be a creative experience by which a boy or girl learns a great many things.

It need not be 'messy.' Just spread out a number of old newspapers to make a working base. These can be gathered up afterwards and then the table does not have to be wiped off or the tiny scraps picked up one by one.

If there is an old, large, loose-leaf book for snapshots around the home, remove a few of the pages as background sheets. A child will enjoy the contrast of bright pieces fitted onto black instead of onto white cardboard or brown wrapping paper.

Keep It Simple

When first beginning paper craft, if mother has a large sheet of paper of her own, and makes a design or a picture at the same time as her child, he will get into the idea more quickly by practical demonstration than by a lot of verbal instruction. Keep the idea simple. Have the child work on only one sheet at once.

Put in the background of a picture first and then arrange the foreground. Place all the cut out pieces where they belong before pasting any of them and then paste the basic, lower pieces first.

If you wish, begin with one dark color and make a silhouette on a light background. But a child loves color — of the brown earth, or the white sails on a red boat, with blue water and green banks. Perhaps he will want to attempt a picture, reflecting an activity he likes such as a child sliding on his sleigh down a hill, or skating on a pond, or running with his dog along a path.

Children are quick to appreciate color and in paper craft the small child learns their names. The older child realizes that the three primary colors are red, yellow, blue. Black and white are grouped with these three to form the basic colors.

Secondary colors, orange, green, purple, brown and other shades are formed by mixing basic colors. But keep to three or four colors at first, so that the completed design or picture will have a pleasing effect.

Jigsaw puzzles are popular and a little child will enjoy fitting a number of colored pieces together into a pattern. At first mother can help him cut squares, rectangles and triangles. When he becomes more expert he will want to add circles and other shapes. Outlining a coin of different values is an easy way to make a perfect circle.

Show the Child

Gummed paper may be purchased and is not very expensive. However, if paste is used, show the child how to apply the paste, not using too much and then wipe the pasted on piece with a soft, clean rag. This removes any surplus paste which may squeeze out around the edges of the piece.

Have a large flat book to store scraps of colored paper and the pieces of gold or silver paper which sometimes are used in greeting cards. A package of sheets of paper of different colors can be purchased at a small price at a stationery store, along with a pot of paste with a large brush.

A little child must use blunt scissors, and if he has a long piece of looped tape attached to them, by which he can hang them up on a nail, they are not so apt to get lost. Learning to handle scissors is no easy task for small fingers. After doing a little cutting, mother can suggest he put down the scissors and start arranging his pieces.

The time span of his interest is short and in paper craft work, the material can be carefully put away in a flat box. It should be stored in a low cupboard where he can get it out himself and work at it again.

Shed pounds with salads

If a few pounds have come between you and your sleekest dresses, now is the time to reduce.

If you're planning to slim with crisp main-dish salads, remember to guard against deceptive salad dressings. (Some of the sneakiest contain as many as 100 calories per tablespoon.) Instead, use a commercial low-calorie dressing. Or use this smooth, low-calorie Mermaid Dressing recipe, given below.

Remember, too, that your salad meal should contain a large helping of a protein food — fish, meat, eggs, cheese or milk products. Proteins are necessary for good health, and they'll keep you from feeling hungry, as well.

Why not add low-calorie, high-protein fish. Use chunks of B.C. pink salmon, right from the can. Or use cooked, chilled salmon or halibut. Here is a low-calorie seafood salad, with its own weight-watcher dressing. Serve it often during these hot summer days.

Mermaid Salad

1 Can (15½ oz.) B.C. Pink Salmon or 2 cups cooked salmon or halibut, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 1 cup diced celery, ½ cup Mermaid Dressing, salt to taste, lettuce cups.

Break fish into bite-size chunks. Sprinkle with lemon juice. Add celery and toss lightly with dressing. Salt to taste. Serve in lettuce cups. Makes 6 servings. About 120 calories per serving.

Mermaid Dressing

2 Tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. each celery seed, dry mustard and salt, 1 cup skim milk, 1 clove garlic (optional), 2 egg yolks (beaten), ¼ cup vinegar, 4 drops liquid sugar substitute, few grains of monosodium glutamate.

Combine flour, celery seed, mustard and salt in top of double boiler. Add milk slowly. Cook and stir until thickened. Add garlic if desired. Cook 8 minutes. Add egg yolks and cook 3 minutes. Remove garlic and stir in vinegar, liquid sugar substitute and monosodium glutamate. Chill. Makes about 1¼ cups. 13 Calories per tablespoon. (Flavor tip: for variation, add chili sauce or ketchup to taste.)

POTECA

Sweet bread, a triple treat

Poteca is a very light dessert or tea bread. This yeast-raised sweet bread originated in Yugoslavia, where it's pronounced "Poteet-za".

Cutomarily, the dough is spread with a nut filling, rolled up, formed into a snail-like coil and baked. Each slice of the Poteca has a triple swirl of bread and the rich filling.

Our version of Poteca is baked in loaf pans. It produces the same swirls of nut filling, lightly spiked with lemon, but the shaping is a little easier to achieve than it is in the Slavic recipe. This type of Poteca has a triple-scalloped top, too, which makes the sliced loaf even more attractive.

Incidentaliy, if you own an electric food blender, use it for speedy grinding of the nuts for the filling.

Poteca

Yield, 2 loaves (9x5 inches)

1 Cup milk, ¼ cup grantulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ cup margarine or butter, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 3 teaspoons granulated sugar, 3 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast, 2 eggs (well-beaten), 5 cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, ¼ cup margarine or butter, ¼ cup brown sugar, 1 egg, beaten, 2 cups ground or very finely chopped nuts, ¼ teaspoon lemon extract.

Scald milk. Add ¼ cup sugar, salt and ¼ cup margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large mixing bowl. Stir in 3 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes. Then, stir well.

Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, the two eggs and 2½ cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Work in enough additional flour (about 2½ cups more) to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; brush top with a little soft margarine or butter. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, make filling. Cream together the ¼ cup margarine or butter and the brown sugar. Blend in the beaten egg, ground nuts and lemon extract.

Punch down risen dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide in half.

Roll out one half into 9x24-inch rectangle. Spread with half of nut mixture. Roll up jelly-roll style, starting from long edge. Pinch outer seam to seal firmly. Cut roll into 3 equal pieces, approximately 8 inches long. Place these three rolls, side by side, seam side down, in greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Repeat with other half of dough.

Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk and dough rounds slightly above tops of pans, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderately hot oven, 375 deg. F., 25 to 30 minutes or until done. Remove to racks to cool. If desired, sprinkle with icing sugar before serving.

Meat powder as food supplement

Meat powder, made entirely from meat, is being used successfully as a food supplement for Africans. The new substance smells like cooked meat and tastes like meat gravy, it is reported.

Dr. I. Mann, Minister of Agriculture in Kenya, recently detailed the successes of this product at the first African meeting on animal production held under the sponsorship of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

Another product called "nyamazia" containing 40% dry skim milk and 60% meat powder is also reported to be selling in vast quantities for shipment over long distances without spoiling or losing flavor, etc.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Sign in a restaurant: "Our steaks are so tender we wonder how the cow ever stayed together."

Sign outside a church: "Redemption Centre. No stamps needed."

To measure meat tenderness

A new machine called a slice-tenderness-evaluator (STE) has been developed in Beltsville by U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists in an attempt to accurately measure the tenderness of meat. The STE device first punctures, then shears, a circular plug from a slice of cooked meat. The force needed to penetrate or shear the meat sample is recorded by electronic testing equipment.

Tests can be made at different locations in the same piece of meat. Quarter-inch-thick slices of beef rib roast for example, were tested at nine sites, and the average of the nine measurements gave the tenderness score for the entire sample. In beef roast, the tenderest meat is along the outside away from the bone.

Similar tests of pork roasts showed the tenderest part is at the narrow end near the bone. These variations in meat-tenderness sites may help explain why tenderness scores by other instruments or human taste panels often vary widely on a given cut of meat.

Toronto (CP) — Nearly 100 eager women pushed their way into a Toronto discount store after it advertised free matching "topless and bottomless" bathing suits. Each received exactly what was offered — an empty box.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

While arguments rage about whether they should, and why they want to, more and more women are going to work.

How drastically the picture has changed in the past 25 years or so, is indicated in statistics compiled by the Women's Bureau of the Ontario Department of Labor, based largely on Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures.

In 1914, during the years which first took many Canadian women into the working world, one married woman in 20 had a job. The percentage has doubled twice since then. In 1961, one married woman in 10 was working, and in 1961 it was one married woman in five.

The bureau estimates that out of every hundred women, 59 are married, 33 are single, six are widowed, one is separated, one divorced.

In Canada, almost two million women are in the working force. They do not all have full-time jobs, part-time workers are included in the figure. But they make up nearly one-tenth of Canada's population, and nearly one-third of the six million women in the country.

What They Do

The figures show that half the women work in 26 occupations. Sorted by job classification, the largest group are in clerical and sales work — 41 per cent.

Nearly one-fourth are in service jobs, in such categories as hairdresser, nursing assistant, stewardess, waitress, police-woman.

Seventeen per cent have achieved professional or managerial status. Manufacturing claims 16 per cent and farming and primary industries five per cent.

How Old Are They?

The age group statistics may be the most surprising of all. The young stenographer waiting for her husband is not "average". The average working woman is age 37 and married.

More of the women who work are over the age of 35 than under, and almost a third of them are over 45.

Since 1950 the age group which has shown the biggest percentage increase in workers is the 45 to 65-year-old bracket.

No matter what the age group, a high percentage of women are working. Over half of Canadian women between 20 and 24 are working. After that, taking 10 years as an age grouping (25 to 34, 35 to 44), about one-third are holding jobs in each group. Even in the case of women 65 and over, seven per cent are now working.

To complete the picture, national figures show that almost 60 per cent of the women in the country are "women keeping house", and about seven per cent of females over 14 are in school.

Ontario and Quebec account for the largest share of the women who hold jobs. Ontario alone has 763,000 working women, 40 per cent of the national total.

INEVITABLE

The science class was having its final test and one of the questions was "Which are the last teeth to appear in the mouth?" One youngster answered simply, "False." Perfect score.

Progress report on Lions' Arena project

At the Lions Club last week, a highlight of the meeting (from a community viewpoint) was the president's latest report on developments for the Lions' Rink.

President Mozart Carriere, speaking as chairman of the rink project, stated that — since the Richelieu Park negotiations with Town Council have folded up — the Lions Club committee has now seen fit to proceed with the original plan for a site at the Exhibition Grounds. Matters were advanced to the point of signature — the Agricultural Society's offer including an area of land on Hamford Street of sufficient dimensions for a covered arena and parking space, for the nominal price of $1.

Added to this area was a plot of land adjacent to the Town of Lachute boundary, which the Lions wish to include in the "deal" — this in order to facilitate any annexation measure which might in future embrace the arena in the town limits instead of in Ayersville as at present.

Legal counsel for the Club, Lawyer J. P. Paquin, had drawn up a proposed contract. This was now presented for the members' approval, and it was endorsed with one revision — namely, in the length of time required for notification by the Agricultural Society when they might require use of the building for exhibition or other purposes; this had been one of the conditions of the Society's offer.

"Lions' Camps on Wheels"

Present at this meeting were two visitors from Montreal, Lion Mickie McKinnon, past Zone chairman, and Lion Wilfred Pugh, donations organizer for the coming Mammoth TV Auction. The visitors, together with Keith Clarke of the home club, spoke on this project to be held October 31 by 20 district Lions Clubs, whose aim is to finance "Lions' Camps on Wheels" — buses to transport children in various worthwhile endeavors.

Blood Donor Clinic

This club is proud of the role played by one of its younger members, Paul Deslauriers, an active townsman who is going all out to organize a successful blood donor clinic here next week. Paul brought the message convincingly to his fellow clubmen, and appealed for their support as donors and promoters of the project. He afterwards showed two films on functions of the circulatory system in the human body. . . Lion Deslauriers had presented a similar appeal at the Richelieu Club meeting, a week previously.

A quintet of members, all enthusiastic "Barbershoppers", sang harmony selections. Ray Desormeaux livened the meeting with his antics as Tailtwister. Dr. Eric Mongeon gave brief facts and figurcs on national and district organization, in his role as dispenser of Lions' Information.

Taxpayer group asks for meeting to revise Annexation

Two aldermen, F. Charlebois and Dr. Z. Saindon, accompanied by André Lefebvre, president of the Argenteuil Liberal Association, waited on the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs last Wednesday and were informed that the injunction granted by Judge René Duranleau of Superior Court (in the Annexation of part of St. Jerusalem Parish) could be reversed in the course of time. However, according to the Deputy Minister, the opposing parties might well reach a compromise by excluding the Lake Sir John region, which is the bone of contention in the Annexation move. The North River would then be the line of demarkation, and it was to be hoped the Lachute and St. Jerusalem councils would meet to revise the by-law to mutual agreement. From that point, Annexation would be practicable.

This was the gist of an explanation given by Dr. Saindon to the new Taxpayers' League on Monday, and it was decided to ask Mayor Campbell to convene a special meeting between representatives of the two municipal bodies. A resolution was passed accordingly, to send a letter to the mayor, with copies also to the councillors.

Another matter discussed with the Deputy Minister concerned the validity of water meters.

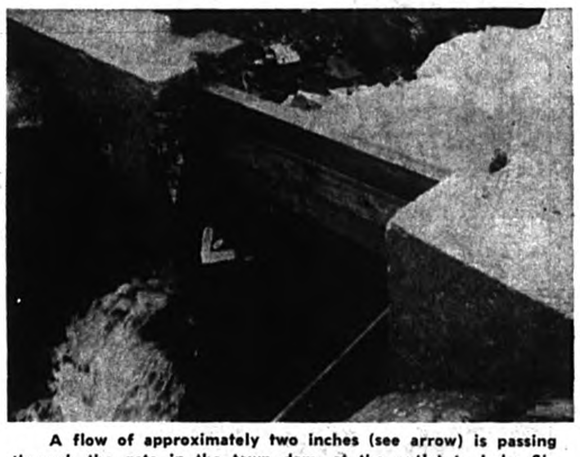

Hotels raided for under-agers

The two hotels in Brownsburg were raided by Provincial Police officers over the week-end, and a total of 15 persons under the legal age of 20 years were apprehended and later released by the officers. All will be summoned to appear in court at a later date.

Cpl. J. P. Dallaire stated that the raids on all County hotels would be continued, and that in the future charges would be laid against the hotel-keepers.

ACTION IMMINENT ON 'CRITICAL' WATER RESERVE

A special meeting of the Lachute Town Council, held Tuesday evening to discuss the serious lack of water reserve, failed to reach any decision, and was adjourned until word is received from the Department of Health at Quebec. Both Mayor Dave Campbell and Ald. Dr. Lyall Middleton, chairman of the Water Committee, stressed the need for action of some kind within the next few days, and termed the situation as "critical". The mayor pointed out, however, that a few days of intense rain would relieve the situation considerably.

A flow of approximately two inches (see arrow) is passing through the gate in the town dam, at the outlet to Lake Sir John. This is the total supply of water flowing into the filtration plant, where the reservoir level has been dropping steadily for the past several weeks.

According to the mayor, the main cause of the present shortage at the filtration plant is the Lake Sir John Estates causeway, which is holding back some 24 to 30 inches of water from the corporation dam at the outlet of the lake. Mr. Romer denies this charge and states more care should have been taken in conserving the water earlier in the summer, but he admitted Tuesday that the pipe presently allowing the water to flow through the causeway was considerably above the original lake bed.

"Our first duty as the Council of Lachute is to the citizens of this town — not Ayersville or St. Jerusalem," the Mayor pointed out, "and while I would hate to have to take any action which would lead to cutting off the water to either of these neighbors, this is going to have to be considered before too many hours, if some solution is not found to relieve the situation." In addition to this, he pointed out, it is essential to have water at the hospital, in sufficient quantities to assure complete operation.

Mayor Campbell reported on the past week's developments in this water problem, and stated he had hoped to receive official word from the Department of Health prior to the meeting, as to exactly what action could and should be taken.

Ald. François Charlebois asked if water could not be saved from the clean-out operation, which uses in the vicinity of 120,000 gallons a day, and following some discussion with the mayor and Ald. Dr. Middleton, it was decided that the latter should contact Mr. Delany, the engineer, and follow his recommendations.

Dr. Middleton pointed out that last summer the filtration beds had been washed almost daily, but on one occasion recently, one bed had gone ten days without having been cleaned.

Commenting on the Provincial Health Department engineer's opinion of last week, that there would be sufficient water for another seven days, Ald. Dr. Middleton stated that there was still sufficient water for a few days, but no longer than this, without some sort of action being taken.

"This may be all right for the present situation," stated Mayor Campbell, "but what will the situation be in another eight or ten years? I feel we should go to the bottom of the lake with our pipes, and in this way, find out just who has exactly what rights."

The Sir John Lake Estates causeway, which due to the long summer drought and low level of Lake Sir John, is now holding back between 24 and 30 inches of water from the Town of Lachute dam, a short distance below. Since this photograph was taken on Monday of last week, an additional pipe (3) has been installed and is allowing five inches of water to flow through to the filtration plant. Marked in the pictures are (2), two large cement pipes which, while 30 inches above the water here, are only several inches above on the lake side of the causeway, and (1), the two pipes which last week were raised from below water level to their present height.

The mayor pointed out, following consultation with Town Foreman Simard Larocque, that it took seven hours for the water to flow from the lake to the filtration plant, two days to fill the reservoir at the plant, and a full 24 hours to fill all the pipes in the distribution system throughout the municipality. "We therefore cannot wait too long, before taking any action." In closing, it was decided that the meeting would be adjourned until Monday evening, with a special meeting to be called in the interim.

In commenting on the seriousness of the water situation prior to the meeting, Mayor Dave Campbell stated that, in his opinion, there were three possible solutions, namely: (1) Have a partial or complete shut-down of the water for certain periods of time each day or night; (2) Shut off either the eight-inch or 14-inch pipe from the filtration plant, either completely or for certain periods; or (3) Shut off the supply of water to St. Jerusalem and Ayersville. "We have no wish to act on any of these possibilities, but the situation has reach-

Sentiments and Sidelights

For enthusiastic readers of Margaret Cook, we direct attention to her article this week on page 15. In summer and in winter, "Sunnyacres" is a refreshing commentary on this County and the suburban scene — appearing regularly in these pages on the fourth issue of each month.

A reader points out a misleading reference in this column last week, to the effect motorists from these parts must pass through St. Jerome for northbound access to the Autoroute. This is not strictly the case, since a new access was opened just below the toll booths, by which local motorists may enter by going southward out of their way for half a mile or so.

Says our neighbor the "Buckingham Post", when criticized by irate aldermen for inaccurate reporting:

Anyone who has attended a meeting of Town Council and listened to the yards of needless words which flow like water at all sessions, usually is surprised that the meetings get as accurate coverage as they do. If members of Council insist on "to the letter accuracy" they should be willing to foot the bill for the taking and preparation of a verbatim transcript of all meetings.

Curtailment in CP train services

A notice on the C.P. Station bulletin board announces the cancellation of trains 132, 133, 137 and 138. This will cause no elation among users of the train service between Montreal and Ottawa.

The change will start on Sunday, October 25, when the abovementioned trains will be discontinued.

In short, there will be no morning train, Ottawa to Montreal, and no evening train, Montreal to Ottawa; nor will there be any Saturday afternoon trains. The regular morning train from Montreal and the regular evening train to Montreal will continue.

While this change will be most inconvenient to the many townsfolk using this service, it is hoped that the CPR officials will now seriously consider the long-requested commuter train from Lachute to Montreal, which would undoubtedly be well patronized.

Blood Clinic organized here for next Monday and Tuesday

Back of a community effort to be staged next week, known as the Red Cross blood donor clinic, there is heart-warming co-operation from dozens of volunteer workers, and a mass of organizing which would stagger any but the most energetic and dedicated chairman.

In an inaugural meeting at the Golf Club last week, plans were formulated for the two-day clinic — next Monday and Tuesday, September 28-29, from 2 to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m. each day, at the Lachute Auditorium. Chairman this year is Paul Deslauriers, serving jointly with Ernest Ayers, who, however, has since been directed to Montreal on business duties.

Active participants and their respective roles in the organization, may be mentioned as follows:

Gaetan Leclair is publicizing the effort intensively through the Catholic schools, churches and other bodies. Mrs. G. Arundel-Evans fills the same publicity role among the English-speaking groups, including the farm communities.

Ray Desormeaux has charge of transportation and personal approach for donors in the business establishments. (Mr. Desormeaux reports that Larocque Taxi, likewise the car dealers, have volunteered their assistance, providing free transportation to and from the clinic for all who need it.)

Mrs. Fernand Legault, president of Lachute Red Cross Unit, will supervise and co-ordinate the participation of the branch.

Mrs. Leonard Bedard is enlisting aid for a complete telephone coverage to prospective donors.

Mrs. F. A. Hungerbuhler will promote the campaign in St. Andrews East. . .

Lady residents have charge of various departments of the work, and these are but a few of the busy helpers actively engaged. Others are giving assistance of an equally constructive nature, in medical attendance, donations of various kinds in services such as sign-writing and advertising — all of which counts up to invaluable manhours and material.

According to the chairman, Paul Deslauriers, several industries have signified their willingness to co-operate, by encouraging volunteer donors among their employees. Among those mentioned at the time of the campaign meeting were Dominion Ayers Limited, J. C. Wilson Company and Boyd's Express Ltd.

A telephone installed at the Clinic reception desk will ensure transportation for all who require it. The phone number is LO 2-2700. (Prior to the clinic dates, information is also available from Mr. Deslauriers, LO 2-5291, or at his residence, LO 2-8114.)

The peak of blood donations recorded in Red Cross clinics at Lachute, was 608 pints of blood. The quota this time is 625. Paul Deslauriers is informed there will definitely be no clinic in Brownsburg at this time, therefore this higher objective in Lachute should be reasonably obtainable.

With the organizational work so efficiently tackled, it remains now for volunteer donors to respond in such manner as to reach the quota and make the effort a success.

"The Scene" IN BROWNSBURG

(Our District Correspondent)

— The directors of the Brownsburg Community Rink Association have announced that the arena will be opening one week earlier than usual, this year. The opening is scheduled for October 2 or 3, depending on ice conditions. At the moment, skating dominates the week-end activities. During October and November there will be evening skating on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and afternoon skating on Saturday and Sunday. Because of a continual decrease in the demand for season tickets, skating will be on a cash basis this year.

— Council has now given the go-ahead to property owners on Park Avenue to build their own sidewalks. The town will put the walks in where property owners are not interested. The walks will run from the north end of the street down to Cottage Avenue on the east side, but will stop short by some 450 feet on the west side.

Week's Epigram

Three main causes of accidents: "I didn't think; I didn't see; I didn't know."

Vicious attack on Union promoter

Returning to his home at Ayersville in the small hours last Thursday morning, 27-year-old Claude Lavoie was savagely attacked and beaten up.

Lavoie is an employee of Dominion Ayers Wood Division and a militant Unionist supporting the C.S.N. (Confédération des Syndicats Nationaux).

The victim resides with his parents, and it appears he was driving home around 2 a.m. when he found a car blocking the path of his automobile on St. Jean Street. He disembarked to investigate, and was set upon by an attacker, who was joined by two others. They struck him with their fists and kicked him about the face, with results shown in the accompanying photograph, then took to flight.

Lavoie was taken to the Argenteuil Hospital by Provincial Police patrolman Maurice Landry, and was given medical treatment by Dr. Gérald Daigle, of Brownsburg. Officers of the Provincial Police are investigating the attack.

St. Jerome man killed in car crash at Mille Isles

Roland Bourgeois, a 26-year-old St. Jerome resident, was instantly killed early Sunday morning when the car which he was driving left the road on a curve near Mille Isles, and travelled a considerable distance into the bush nearby.

The accident occurred around 2.30 a.m. as the victim was driving towards St. Jerome. Investigating Q.P.P. Officer Maurice Landry reported the driver apparently missed the curve, hit a power pole and broke six guard-rail posts, and then swerved off the road. The driver was thrown out of the car a distance of some 60 feet, landing on a rock; the car continued on past this spot a considerable distance.

The victim's wife and two other passengers received minor injuries and were taken to hospital at St. Jerome. . . An inquest will be held on the victim at a later date, according to Dr. J. C. MacKimmie, joint district coroner.

Vice-president of Laurentian group

Roger Lagarde, QC was unanimously elected a vice-president of the Quebec Liberal Federation for the Laurentian district, comprising the Counties of Argenteuil, Deux Montagnes, Terrebonne, L'Assomption, Montcalm, Joliette and Berthier. . . The appointment was made last week-end at a Quebec Liberal Federation meeting in Montreal.

Representing the Argenteuil Liberals at this convention, besides Mme. Lagarde, were the local president, André Lafebvre; the secretary, Mrs. Annie Gaidon; Lucien Ranger; also Mr. and Mrs. J. Gardner, Morin Heights.

Opening exercises held at Brownsburg High School

A large crowd of parents and friends attended the Brownsburg High School opening exercises this past Friday evening. Mr. J. Rutherford, chairman of the Brownsburg School Commissioners, was master of ceremonies. Before beginning the exercises, he introduced the platform party to the audience. This group included School Commissioners Douglas Dixon, K. Klausen, W. Dimock; and the following, who assisted in awarding the prizes — Mrs. M. Cowley, Mrs. R. Plummer, Mr. R. Sugden, Mr. R. Bell, and Mr. G. Jackson.

The chairman then introduced the school teachers to the audience, briefly outlining the duties of each one and giving a few facts about the new members on the staff. In his remarks Mr. Rutherford discussed such items as school enrolment, the number of pupils requiring transportation, and the various projects the School Commissioners planned to work on during the course of the year.

Mr. J. Leggitt, the school principal, reported on the past year's work in the school, and briefly discussed plans for the coming year. Speaking about the extra-curricular activities of the past year, Mr. Leggitt drew the attention of the audience to the numerous trophies on display on the stage. These had been won by the school last year. Among this year's projects he mentioned Educational Television, the Cuisenaire method of teaching Arithmetic in Grades I and II, the school newspaper, dramatics, and an art club.

Mrs. M. Cowley, vice-president of the Brownsburg Women's Institute, Mr. D. Troop, president of the Home and School Association, and Mr. D. Dixon, of the School Commissioners, assisted Mr. Rutherford in presenting the prize books to each student who had achieved proficiency in Grades 1 to 10. Prize books were also given for attendance and progress in each of these grades. Mrs. R. Plummer, of the Frontier W.I., presented Miss Eileen Paulsen with the Institute's prize for Grade 8.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the scholarship awards in Grades 10 and 11. Miss Betty Dalrymple was awarded the School Commissioners' scholarship for the highest aggregate in Grade 10. The scholarship was presented by Mr. Rutherford. Mr. G. Jackson, a member of the local branch of the Orange Order, presented Gordon Tomalty with the L.O.L. scholarship for a deserving Grade 10 student. Mr. R. Bell, president of the local Union Branch of the United Mine Workers, presented Miss Diane Hall with their scholarship award; Miss Hall had received the highest aggregate of the girls in her class in last June's High School Leaving examinations. Mr. R. Sugden, president of the local Legion branch, presented the Legion scholarship to Brian Richardson, who had received highest aggregate in his class in the High School Leaving exams.

Mr. Rutherford concluded the exercises by once again congratulating the prize winners and thanking the audience for their presence.

Historical Society guest speaker

Canon H. D. J. Brosseau of Montebello, a popular cleric of the Ottawa Valley now retired from active priesthood, will be guest of honor and speaker at the Argenteuil Historical Society annual meeting, Saturday, October 3, at Carillon Museum.

By BOB ATCHISON

Some of my readers may not realize, that getting any information from government sources is pretty difficult. Occasionally, however, you do manage to get something very worthwhile. The other evening, I had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Courtemanche, of the Dept. of Fish and Game, the director of marine biology for this department. The first real bit of information pertained to licenses for fishing; starting in '65 fishing permits will date from April to April — and to me this is a step in the right direction. No longer will we have to worry about having an old permit, when ice fishing.

Commercial fishermen are no longer permitted to take pike, perch, doré, and in a number of cases fish that are considered to be "coarse". This is another constructive step. I've often wondered who has the final say in deciding what fish are of no value; if you take a long-range look at this, then it should benefit all types of fishing.

Another item that I was surprised to learn — the Ottawa River is now producing large-mouth bass; what's more, they are spawning, and from tests being carried on, they will continue to do so. I know most of you don't care for bass, but we must still admit that bass is without a doubt the gamest fighter of them all. I think this will throw you the way it did me: a large-mouth bass will spawn, that is, lay her eggs, and they will have hatched within 47 hours; for this reason the eggs cannot be taken for study, as the least disturbance will set them hatching.

9,500 Musky fingerlings have been placed in the Ottawa River this season. These fish were not just dumped into the water, as in former years. Time was taken to have them placed in the proper environments, not in a group either, but spread out over great distances. We know that fingerlings dumped in groups will hang together, with the result that fish on the prowl for food can scoop up a great many before they catch onto the fact they are going to be a meal. So this precaution of spotting them in certain weedy areas will pay dividends in later years. The first place these small fish head for is the weeds; once in there they are safe for a while.

Another type of fish is starting to show up in the Ottawa also; this is thought to be coming down from the Rideau Canal chain and the Great Lakes. It is the long-eared crappie. I saw a couple of this variety. They are much like the ordinary crappie in shape, only a shade larger with a distinct black mark in the centre of the gill plates. This fish is also a good scrapper, and makes very good eating. . . There are many points to be considered when fish are planted in a specific area, and it appears this province is finally getting some worthwhile attention to these safeguards.

As I've often said, it appears the only fish considered in this area is trout. But let's face the fact, we no longer have the trout of former years, and we never will have again. So for sportsmen who love the pastime for the sake of fishing, this could be a redeeming factor. . . But no matter what is done to stimulate our fishing, we will never be any better off until we can convey the idea, that fish in their habitat must be protected from the human more than the predator.

I mentioned this before — the duck breeding and feeding area up near Calumet. I travelled up that way to take a look, and believe me, this is one spot the Government should make into a wildlife or bird refuge. There are feeding grounds by the acre, with plenty of marshlands. But of course, there's a fly in the ointment; this is the land that the Town of Calumet wishes to take over. The reasons for this I do not know, but it's a passing thought, there may be some interest in the shooting of these ducks.

While visiting that section, I had the opportunity of seeing the plaster cast of an animal's footprint — an animal seen in that area a good number of times. I don't suppose I should revive this matter, for some trigger-happy shooter will take advantage. Anyway, it was a panther, and this was the most beautiful print I had ever seen. Another print I was shown had me mystified; it was the very sharp outline of a hoofed animal — a deer no doubt, but it nevertheless had the pad-print of something else.

The trout season is just about over; however, there are still a couple of real wetbacks after them. This past week has not been too good, but enough have been caught to make the fishing worthwhile. No fish worthy of note have come out of the North River; however this should open up very soon — with the colder water, some of those big Northerns and muskies should get going.

The numerous people who have been enquiring about the posting of lands for the invasion of shooters, makes you wonder what has happened to our "sportsmen". It seems today no one takes the time or trouble to ask for permission to hunt or fish. Of course, most seasoned hunters do take the time, and it's only common courtesy to enquire anyway. But the new breed of gun handler never gives a thought; it's a case of, "Well, I've bought a license; what are you going to do about it?" I had hoped something would come out of all the complaints by private organizations and discussions with the authorities — but now we'll have to wait another year.

The trouble seems to be that no one of importance in government circles has ever been shot at, or threatened; in a way, that's too bad, for if they had been, then there would be no trouble such as we have today. Another contributory item is in the licensing of our new immigrants. You know how I feel about this, and it could be that this is hitting at some of the real outdoorsmen in the government, too. As long as the Wildlife Department is a political project, nothing will ever develop of any use to the sportsman. I realize that briefs are presented by almost every association, for all kinds of laws to be enacted, and some of these are a little far-fetched. But at least these clubs are trying to improve our wildlife situation. It's a pretty poor show by the government, taking it all round. There are some really dedicated men in the service, but their efforts are unavailing.

Boating Clinic

— BY STAN DAVIES —

Here's a funny thing: I know a man who has half a million dollars public liability and property damage insurance on his car; he doesn't have a dime's worth on his boat, yet every week-end he lets his 13-year-old boy run the boat around a lake like a cowboy.

The problem of protecting your boat . . . and yourself from damage done by your boat, is an important consideration. Too many people ignore it. Here are some questions I've been asked on the topic:

Does my car insurance cover my trailer and boat on the highway? (T.D., Toronto)

Answer: Generally speaking, yes: if you inform your agent that you will be trailing the boat. But be sure to check with your agent. It may be necessary to add a rider or clause to your policy.

What kind of insurance should I have on my boat? (O.S., Peterborough)

Answer: TWO kinds! Public liability and property damage, this protects you if your boat damages another or injures someone and you are sued . . . and fire, theft and damage insurance on the boat and contents. This pays you if your boat is damaged by acts of nature, thieves or a fire aboard.

Is insurance REALLY necessary on a boat? I've got a 12-foot boat and 10 h.p. motor. (K.R.T., Brandon)

Answer: Remember this. Your boat could break loose, or in the hands of some irresponsible person it could kill someone or do great damage to an expensive boat, and there is a good chance that you would have to share some of the responsibility. What would happen if there was a $100,000 court judgment against you.

How about passengers in the boat?

Answer: This is an important thing to consider. In most provinces a passenger in your car rides at his own risk and if he's hurt he can't sue. But a passenger in your boat is YOUR responsibility and if he's hurt and can show any negligence on your part, you are stuck. Be sure of passenger insurance in your public liability policy.

Is a trailer covered by a boat policy? Also, how about a boat cradle or stand used for winter storage?

Answer: A trailer is not usually covered by any boat insurance, it is usually covered by the insurance on the car. Check with your agent. A boat cradle used at a marina or boatyard for storage is not covered by any type of policy usually held by the average person. If you have a cradle and you think it might burn . . . or fall over on somebody and hurt them . . . talk to your insurance agent right away. You're vulnerable.

If I'm pulling a water skier and she is hurt, can she sue me? What are the chances of her collecting anything? (A.P.T., Edmonton)

Answer: You're sticking your neck out a mile if you do anything even faintly foolish when pulling a water skier. She's your responsibility to the extent that you must take every possible care and precaution for her safety. If you don't and she's hurt, she can sue and . . . you'd better have insurance.

If my boat breaks loose in a storm, am I responsible for any damage it does. (T.M., Hawkesbury)

Answer: This would be for a court to decide, based on evidence as to what care you took, others' responsibility and many different factors. But generally speaking, you are responsible in some degree . . . maybe 100 per cent . . . for damage done by your boat. A precaution is to make sure the boat is tied up adequately at all times even if it's just pulled up on the beach for a few hours or overnight.

If I lend my boat to a friend and he hits someone?

Answer: You will probably share the responsibility with him. But if he has no money, and you have, guess who they'll sue. Make sure your insurance covers this eventuality.

Hunt Club plans 10th annual event Sunday, Sept. 27

The Lake of Two Mountains Hunt Club holds its tenth annual races at St. Lazare this coming Sunday. Proceeds from the event will again be in aid of the Montreal Association for Retarded Children.

Commencing at 1.30 p.m., the nine-race program includes steeplechases of various distances and two flat races with professional jockeys from leading Canadian tracks. For the younger fry there will be free pony rides, and refreshments will be available at all times.

People wishing to attend should take the Montreal - Ottawa Highway 17 as far as the Cote St. Charles crossroads at Hudson Heights, then turn south and follow the signs to the picturesque Hunt Races location.

Patrons for the event are the Hon. Paul Gérin-Lajoie, Minister of Youth; Louis Levèsque, president, and Sydney J. Langill, executive, of Blue Bonnets Raceway; Mayor E. Boileau of St. Lazare; and the Hon. Sarto Desnoyers, Mayor of Dorval.

A Sky Diving exhibition is planned for about 3 p.m. — midway through the races. This will be carried out by three skilled members of the Montreal Skydivers Club. Richard Wilbur, Albert St. Louis and Raymond Parker will jump from 12,500 feet. They will perform a "free fall" (parachutes unopened) for 60 seconds, during which time they will steer themselves in such a way that they will be able to pass a riding crop from one to the other. After this spectacular manoeuvre, they will open their parachutes and guide themselves to the target area on the Hunt Races site.

Another attraction this year is a small Vintage car show featuring antique models, plus some 1965 cars from the G.M., Ford and Chrysler plants.

Plans for filming Tokyo Olympics

The shooting script for the official two-hour documentary record of the Olympic Games in Tokyo in October has been completed.

To be called simply, "Tokyo Olympics", it will be produced by one of Japan's finest directors, Kon Ichikawa, who achieved world fame with his "Fires on the Plain", "Younger Brother" and "Harp of Burma", all of which won awards at international film festivals.

Ichikawa has this to say: "I would like to make the film in such a way as to give a feeling that the Olympic Games is a festival of peace. I will be satisfied if people who see the film discover something new in the extraordinary animal called the human being and if they have the chance to reflect on how wonderful the human being is."

The film will cost close to $1 million. Technical work will be done by the Tokyo Olympic Motion Picture Association.

According to the script, the first scene will depict the sun as a symbol of peace and equality. This will be followed by scenes of the National Stadium where the Games will be held and scenes of Tokyo.

The camera will then focus on Greece, where the Olympic Torch will begin its relay to Tokyo. This will be followed with scenes of the opening ceremonies and of the athletes. A highlight will be the Marathon run and the final scenes will be of the empty stadium.

MODEL 870 "WINGMASTER"

Make 1964 your year to get more game with the extra-dependable, super-fast Remington "Wingmaster".

This is the pump gun more than a million shooters had dubbed "Old Dependable". It functions where others fail. It takes all the punishment you can give it, and asks for more. It's the world's finest pump gun. It has double action bars, hardened barrel extension, quick-change barrels and much, much more. But it's not what this gun has that makes it so overwhelmingly popular, it's what it does. Ask any man who swings an 870 and he'll tell you, "It gets more game!" And it's quality-made in Canada to last. Choice of chokes and barrel lengths, plain or vent rib. 3" magnum model in 12 gauge and 20 gauge. "Brushmaster" slug gun with rifle sight barrel in 12 gauge. Sold only by Authorized Remington Dealers.

Standard equipment: a bank loan

It has become almost standard practice today for people to go to their bank to finance the purchase of cars and other family items. You, too, may have found it a good idea to borrow where you save — at your local bank. It is often simpler, because the bank already knows you as a savings customer. And it also may save you money because bank loans are low-cost loans. For borrowing and saving, and for any other bank service you may need, just visit your local chartered bank. It's the one place where you can get all your banking done, under one roof.

THE CHARTERED BANKS SERVING YOUR COMMUNITY

Through 5,650 branches, all across Canada, the chartered banks bring full-range banking within the reach of everyone.

Taken from the causeway, this photograph shows a maze of slime-covered dead trees, along with stumps and branches. This is the section between the causeway and the town's dam (see arrow) which is normally covered with several feet of water. Since this photograph was taken on Monday of last week, Mr. Romer has had a crew of men clearing the bottom of the lake, which should make for more sanitary conditions when the water reaches its normal level.

ed a critical stage," he added.

Ald. Dr. Lyall Middleton, chairman of the Water Committee, pointed out that at noon on Monday, the water at the filtration plant was 41¼ inches below the top of the dam and still dropping. (The water level is never allowed to rise over the 14-inch mark.)

Acting on orders from Mayor Campbell and the engineers, the power was shut off to the automatic gate in the filtration plant dam at 5.30 p.m. June 25. From then until late August, the water remained at a more-or-less constant level, fluctuating from 14 to 19 inches below the top of the dam, and only occasionally dropping to 20 or 21 inches below. For a few days towards the end of July, the water was from 24 to 28 inches below. The gate was opened on July 7 for approximately four hours when the level reached 13 inches, and again on August 22, when the water was dropped from 14 inches to 17 inches. Since early September it has not been higher than 20 inches, and has varied from this point to Monday's low. The latest reading, taken Tuesday was 44 inches.

To the best of our knowledge, the Town of Lachute does not have any "water rights" on Lake Sir John. However, the Town does own the outlet and the "water power of the creek" leading from the lake to the filtration plant. In addition to this, the Town of Lachute some years ago raised the height of the dam at the outlet of Lake Sir John approximately one foot, so as to retain more water for such an emergency.

A short distance above the outlet dam is the Lake Sir John Estates causeway, erected in 1959, which at the present time is virtually acting as a dam, as only a limited supply of water is being permitted to pass through to the creek. Four large pipes are completely above the water level of the lake, and a fifth, which was installed only on Tuesday night of last week, in an attempt by Mr. Romer to postpone this serious problem, was on Tuesday morning allowing a flow of five inches of water through the deepest section of a 15-inch pipe. Behind the causeway and this pipe, which is approximately 24 to 30 inches above the actual bed of the lake, lies sufficient water to supply Lachute for at least another month.

In commenting on the situation, Mr. Romer stated that "according to a firm of engineers who were at the lake on Monday of this week, .5 cubic feet of water per second was entering Lake Sir John at the inlet, while 1.25 cubic feet of water per second was flowing through the pipe in the causeway. Going further towards Lachute, 2.3 cubic feet of water per second is flowing through the open gate in the town dam at the outlet of the lake." The lake is presently approximately 26 inches below the summer normal, and according to Mr. Romer, has dropped six and one-half inches during the past week. It can be assumed, according to the increase in the flow from the causeway to the town dam, that a large portion of the water in the lake is derived from springs.

Arg. School of Ballet in 8th season, giving a high calibre of instruction

With high hopes for the future and a solid record of achievement behind it, the Argenteuil School of Ballet enters its eighth season of healthful and entertaining activity for the youngsters of Lachute and surrounding communities.

Organized under the direction of Mrs. Ernest F. Gow, of R.R. 3, Lachute, the School has prospered largely through her personal efforts, reaching a peak enrolment of 63 students in the 1961-62 season.

The "prosperity" referred to, of course, has not been financial, as the struggle to make ends meet in this respect is a continual problem. Prosperity rather takes the form of satisfaction, in watching the students progress and mature.

Actual instruction of the ballet is under the direction of Mlle Lucille Dubreuil of St. Jerome. Mlle Dubreuil holds an Imperial Society of Teachers diploma and a Royal Academy of Dancing diploma which qualifies her to prepare youngsters for the Royal Academy of Dancing examination. In attaining this status, Miss Dubreuil has studied both at home and abroad, having spent three years in England. This will be her sixth season as ballet teacher with the Argenteuil School of Ballet.

The importance of music to ballet is paramount, and Mrs. Gow and Mlle Dubreuil have been fortunate in enlisting the services of Mme Leon Couchon, of Lachute, as pianist.

Four Classes

Students enrolling with the Argenteuil School of Ballet are assigned to one of four classes, depending on their age, physical development, natural ability and degree of training.

From the Pre-Ballet class which features rhythm, mime and music for the three to six-year-olds, youngsters can advance through the "Ballet", "Elementary" and "Advanced" stages.

Beginning in September, classes of one hour duration are held on Friday of each week, between 4 p.m. and 8 p.m., at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Lafleur Street.

Scholarship Awards

Despite very limited financial resources, the school has managed to award seven scholarships to deserving students during the past seven years.

These scholarships consist of free tuition for one season and, while the monetary value may not be great, the incentive which such recognition provides puts a high value on them among the students.

Spring Recital

While most of the season's lessons are spent on the serious business of working through the R.A.D. syllabus of ballet, efforts in the last few weeks have been directed towards preparations for the spring recital. This is the time when parents have an opportunity to see their offspring in action. Last spring's large crowd of parents, friends and other interested observers, were treated to a polished performance by a poised group of youngsters which was a more-than-adequate testimonial to the calibre of instruction they are receiving.

Annual appeal, Salvation Army Red Shield fund

A Lachute businessman, Harold A. Deacon, is again chairman for the Salvation Army's "Red Shield Appeal", and has directed this campaign to the attention of a considerable list of loyal subscribers. Others not contacted directly by mail, however, may give support to this deserving cause by handing donations to the treasurer, Donald M. Hay, at the Bank of Montreal, Lachute branch. Another active patron of the campaign is Leopold Carrière, of Lachute.

There are many well known, and less known, services of the Salvation Army made possible by public generosity. To enumerate just a few of these endeavors — Emergency and Disaster Relief, Rehabilitation Centres, Missing Persons Bureau, Fresh Air Camps, Prison and Police Court Work, Institutional Visitations, Hospitals, Sunset Lodges and Eventide Homes, Children's Hostels, Homes for Unmarried Mothers and Infants, Harbor Light Centres and Homes for Wayward Boys. . .

The list is impressive, but the benefits are no more eloquent than at the receiving end — where pocketbook generosity can heal a wound and change a human outlook.

— The Watchman commends this appeal to its readers.

Lady resident died Monday

The late Miss M.-J. Church

At the Argenteuil Hospital on Monday, the death occurred of Miss Marie-Jeanne Church, 37-year-old Lachute resident, who had been in ill health for a number of years.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Church — besides whom, she is survived by two brothers, Raymond and Robert, of Lachute, and two sisters, (Bernadette) Mrs. Paul Whissell, of Lachute, and (Georgette) Mrs. P. A. de Grand'Maison, of Laval des Rapides. There are also two nephews and four nieces.

Funeral rites will be held from the Menard Parlors to Ste. Anastasie Church at 10.30 a.m. on Thursday, with burial in the parish cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MacLEOD — In fond and loving memory of our dear son, Neil, who was accidentally killed on Sept. 26, 1957. — Ever remembered by Dad, Mom and family.

"In a near and silent graveyard,
Where the trees and branches wave,
Sleeps a kind and loving son,
In a cold and silent grave.
He is gone but not forgotten,
Never shall his memory fade,
As sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Round the grave where he is laid."

McRAE — In loving memory of our dear little granddaughter, Joan McRae, who was taken from us suddenly just one year ago, Sept. 16, 1963. Dearly loved and sadly missed by Bappy, Granny and all the Arthurs family.

"Your memory is our keepsake
With which we will never part,
God has you in his keeping,
We have you in our hearts."

SCOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband (Walker), father and grandfather, who met death accidentally on Sept. 22, 1963. — Always remembered by his wife, son and grandchildren.

"Take him in Thine arms, dear Lord,
And ever let him be
A messenger of love
Between my heart and Thee."

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

BATES — We wish to express sincere thanks and appreciation to our relatives and friends for the many acts of kindness, messages of sympathy, and beautiful floral tributes received during our recent sad bereavement in the loss of a beloved mother.

Funeral at Arundel of old citizen and agriculturist

Late Homer Edgar Cooke, B.Sc.A.

Arundel — Funeral service was held in the Arundel United Church September 16 for the late Homer Edgar Cooke, B.Sc.A.

Mr. Cooke died Sunday, September 13, in the Montreal General Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Arundel, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Cooke, he was the beloved husband of Lilia and dear father of Bob.

He was educated in Arundel High School and graduated from McGill University as Bachelor of Science in Agriculture, in 1925. He and his brother, Leslie, were in business in Arundel for over 20 years.

Mr. Cooke was president of the Laurentian Protestant Colonization Society at its foundation in the Arundel district. He was past Deputy Grand Master of the Ottawa Masonic District, and a 23rd degree Mason (Scottish Rite).

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Robert Blair, of Montreal, a close friend of the deceased, who delivered an impressive address, taking as his general theme — "He was a prince among men". Burial was in the Arundel Cemetery.

Mr. Cooke leaves his wife, his son and grandson, three sisters, Gertrude (Mrs. C. S. Fosbery) Ethel, Winnifred, and one brother, Leslie, to mourn his loss.

PRICELESS!

No money can buy it. No machine can produce it. Only a human being can give it. That's why blood is so precious. The Red Cross mobile unit will be at Lachute Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, September 28-29, from 2 to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m. The objective for this clinic has been set at 625 pints of blood.

Funeral held for late resident of 'The Glen'

Late Mrs. Eva Edith Purcell

Weir, Que. — The funeral of the late Mrs. Eva Edith Purcell took place in the Church of St. John the Divine, Glen of Harrington, on Monday afternoon, September 14. The Rev. C. R. Lang, of Lachute, conducted the service, assisted by Capt. T. Buckle.

Mrs. Purcell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moore, was born in Arundel November 9, 1895. She was an ardent church worker and member of the Eastern Star order. She was predeceased by her former husband, the late James W. Bailey, in 1928.

Left to mourn her passing, besides her husband Oliver Purcell, are her two sons, Bertram J. and Harold W. Bailey, one brother, Walworth Moore, of North Bay, Ont., and two granddaughters, Patricia and Elizabeth Bailey, of Montreal.

Two favorite hymns of the deceased were sung, "We love the place, O God" and "On the resurrection morning". Mrs. W. D. Morrison was the organist.

The pall-bearers were six nephews of the deceased — Messrs. Charles Moore, of New Liskeard, Harold Moore, of Maniwaki, Alex Barrette, of Milton, Stewart McGrandel, of Richmond Hill, Walter and Malcolm Leroy, both of Montreal. Interment took place in the Arundel Cemetery.

Air Canada's more than 700 stewardesses will appear in a new uniform in mid-October, the first major uniform change since 1953 and the sixth in the airline's history. The simple elegance of the new charcoal green winter ensemble, modeled in a jet engine test cell, contrasts vividly with Air Canada's first uniform, modeled in 1938 beside the landing gear of a 10-passenger Lockheed 10A aircraft.

GEOLOGY

Geologists state that the pre-Cambrian Shield which lies like a giant horseshoe around Hudson Bay and covers nearly half of Canada, has more lakes than all the rest of the world.

RIGHT DESTINATION

A speeding motorist lost control of his car and ran it into a telephone pole. When he came to his senses he was on the ground clutching telephone wires.

"Thank goodness" he murmured. "Harp strings."

Silver wedding at Morin Heights

Morin Heights — At a party in Trinity Hall, Morin Heights, on Friday, September 18, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hollingworth, of Dixie, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Hollingworth, the former Grace Margaret Seale, daughter of the late Col. Joseph Edgar Seale and Mrs. Seale, was born and brought up in Morin Heights.

Mr. J. Douglas Davis, a family friend of long standing, conveyed the good wishes of the many relatives and friends present and then introduced Luc Michel, the young Belgian magician presently on tour in North America, who presented his act for the entertainment of the guests, assisted by Miss Margaret Hollingworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollingworth, at the piano.

Mrs. Hollingworth very graciously thanked Michel for his performance, and all the relatives and friends, for this party and their presence.

The hall, glowing softly with firelight and candles, looked warm and attractive; the decorations were locally grown Peace roses, autumn leaves and silver sprays.

W.M.S. meeting

An open meeting of the Montreal presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society, Presbyterian Church in Canada, is being held on Tuesday evening, September 29, in the Margaret Rodger Memorial Church, Lachute.

Seasonal tours by members of Garden Club

Two recent meetings of the local Garden Club took the form of outings. . .

In August the group held their meeting at Mrs. J. Barbour's at Lake Louisa, where the members were entertained at a luncheon with Mrs. Barbour and Mrs. Barnes as hostesses.

Transplanting of perennials and the care of hedges were the main topics. It was agreed that the most economical time to trim hedges was when the active period of new growth was about at an end — early July for deciduous plants and about September for conifers.

It was also stated that hedges should be clipped during cool, dull spells of weather, as this would avoid tip burning, to a great extent. Hedges require high potash as well as nitrogen to form stalky growth of good color. It was suggested that an application of well rotted barnyard manure be put on in the fall and forked into the surface soil in spring. Chemical fertilizer might also be applied by the punch-hole method.

A tour of the Ottawa Experimental Farm arranged for the September meeting, proved most pleasant and instructive. The group thoroughly enjoyed the tour of the grounds on the covered farm wagon drawn by two prancing Clydes. The remainder of the afternoon was spent touring the beautiful gardens and the members availing themselves of so many gardening tips generously given by their jovial guide. The visitors were reluctant to leave the beautiful rose and mum sections of the garden as they boarded the taxis for home.

CNIB Auxiliary

The Women's Auxiliary to the Argenteuil CNIB held their first meeting of the fall season. Mrs. C. Robinson, president, was in the chair.

A proposal was passed that a year-round effort be organized to help the blind citizens of this community. It was pointed out that the handicapped blind people are sometimes overlooked; therefore the members of the Auxiliary plan to visit the blind shut-ins of the district, especially the elderly, who would greatly appreciate a visit from a sighted person. . .

Should any lady be interested in doing welfare work for the blind, they may please call the president at LO 2-5108, or the Institute office (LO 2-2686).

Attended biennial conference of Pentecostal Ch.

Delegates attending the 24th biennial conference of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, convening in Montreal on September 17-22, included the Rev. R. E. Solmes, of Brownsburg.

The denomination's senior officer, Rev. Tom Johnstone, in the keynote address, indicated that the fundamentalist group still believes in the historical reliability of the Bible. Said the leader of the 685 Canadian churches, "I personally believe the Bible to be the infallible Word of God — of course, this includes the Book of Genesis."

Dr. C. M. Wortman, general secretary-treasurer, indicated the staggering growth of the Pentecostal Church in Canada. . .

The founding convention of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada was held in Montreal in 1917, when 13 ordained ministers met. At this conference the denomination had 666 ordained ministers, besides a large number of lady preachers, deaconesses and lay preachers. The 1961 General Canadian Census reported the Pentecostals to be the fastest growing denomination in Canada, 144,000, a gain of 52% in the 10-year census period.

A highlight of the Conference was the Missionary service held on Sunday, September 20, when all churches across Canada participated in contributing a Missionary offering, the sum total of which was telephoned to Montreal. This aggregate offering amounted to $88,648, which brought great rejoicing to the assembled congregation of twelve hundred.

Bridge Club activities

At the Argenteuil Duplicate Bridge Club, the north-south winners were Mr. T. Gagné and Mr. S. Seary; east-west winners were Mrs. E. Pollock and Mrs. Jane McGibbon.

The next meeting will be held at the Orange Hall on Monday, September 28. Since this is the beginning of the new winter season, new members are urged to join immediately, in order to obtain full benefit of the season.

Thanks are extended to the firm of Ayers Limited for donating new cards which were needed for the Bridge Club.

County Women's Institute branches report highlights for September

Arundel — Mr. Louis Thibodeau, Agronome for Argenteuil, spoke on farm organization and mangement. The meeting was well attended and the lecture enjoyed. The roll-call was a garden hint. This group went bowling at St. Jovite, in place of an August meeting. Prizes were given by a W.I. member and good fun was enjoyed.

Brownsburg — Mrs. B. C. Fillingham and Mr. Wes Younkie spoke on the Lachute Retarded Children's School, after which a question and answer period was held. Mr. Younkie also showed a film of the children in this school at work and play, showing the great progress made in this worthwhile project. The roll-call was donations to "shut-ins", to which the members responded most generously. Five prizes out of ten were won on handicrafts by this branch at Ottawa Exhibition.

Dalesville - Louisa branch was entertained by the Lakefield W.I. at Manitou Club, in The Glen. A short meeting was held.

Frontier — Members of this branch entertained their husbands to a casserole supper. Mrs. C. Stephens, County president, was in attendance. Slides on the surrounding country were shown by Mr. Stuart Armstrong.

Jerusalem - Bethany — A member gave an interesting talk on a visit to Hershey Chocolate Co., Smiths Falls. Mrs. E. Kettyle received a silver tray for winning most points on her handicraft at Lachute Fair. Mrs. C. Stephens, County president, gave an interesting talk on the June convention, also on the unveiling of a W.I. plaque at Dunham; $5 prize money was given to the lower grades at Lachute High School.

Lakefield members answered the roll-call by naming a vegetable with their initial. This branch entertained Dalesville-Louisa and Mille Isles branches at Manitou Club, The Glen. Each branch held a short meeting, after which Mrs. C. Stephens, County president, gave an enlightening talk on W.I. work; also, Mrs. George McGibbon gave a few minutes' talk on the Senior Citizens' Home. A game was enjoyed and prizes given. Tea was served, and an enjoyable social time was spent.

Morin Heights W.I. entertained the Arundel branch. The local police officer gave a talk on Road Safety, and a quiz on safety rules was held. A paper was read on Immigration. A total of 87 pints of blood was given by members of this branch at a Blood Donor Clinic held on August 10.

Pioneer — A former president, Mrs. A. Thompson, received an F.W.I. pin, also a member who is leaving to join another branch. An interesting talk was given by Mrs. Lilly, a former teacher at McKay Institute, Montreal. Plans were made to serve lunch at the 4-H Club Achievement Day.

Upper Lachute - East End — Mrs. Thomas Bignell spoke on the club organization. The usual donation was sent to Lachute High School for the awarding of Progress prizes.

Aid of farmers sought in search for meteorites

Ottawa — With seeding operations getting under way, the Geological Survey of Canada, a branch of the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys, is asking Canada's farm residents to help in the hunt for meteorites. Because much of their time is spent working the land, farmers are the most likely persons to find meteorites.

Early this year a Shaunavon, Sask., farmer was paid $1,000 by the Geological Survey for a rare 2.88-pound iron-type meteorite found by him on his land. Mr. G. Reberger had written to the department for a copy of the pamphlet "How to Identify Meteorites", and from the descriptions and photos in it, believed he had a meteorite. This was confirmed by experts and the purchase made.

Not all meteorites are this valuable. The price per pound varies from $6 to $300, depending on rarity, size, whether intact or broken up, and other factors.

Meteorites contain nothing that can be recovered and sold for profit. They are purely specimens for scientific study, their value being the information derived from them. Scientists may determine, for example, information about the age of the solar system; the history of another world; the relative abundance of elements; whether radiation levels in parts of the solar system are so high as to mean death to the space traveller or help solve the re-entry problems of space vehicles.

An illustrated booklet on identifying meteorites is available free from the Geological Survey of Canada, Ottawa. The booklet is printed in both English and French. In non-scientific language it describes the appearance and characteristics of meteorites and with photographs shows three types of meteorites as well as rocks and other objects commonly mistaken for meteorites.

Anyone finding what he believes to be a meteorite is urged to write immediately to the Associate Committee on Meteorites of the National Research Council, Ottawa. Specimens may be sent to the Geological Survey of Canada or to the nearest university for identification.

Fumigant gases do many jobs

Fumigant gases have a wide range of use. These include controlling insects and fungi in stored grain, fruit, tobacco, and dairy products and controlling plant diseases, anthrax organisms, and nematodes in the soil. Some are used as rodent killers or as sterilants for air, bags, or spices, or to bleach and preserve dried fruit.

One of the big problems is measuring just how effective the fumigant gas is and in the case of foods, measuring how much of the gas remains in the product when the consumer receives it.

These are the problems Ben Berck, chemist at the CDA's Winnipeg Research Station, is facing in his work with the chemical aspects of fumigants for control of insect pests in stored grain and grain products.

A basic part of his work is developing more accurate measuring techniques. He has met with considerable success and can measure differences in gas concentration to one-millionth of a gram. Such techniques are being used to obtain facts on fumigants in grain and to compare different methods of sampling.

Normal gases that occur in the air all the time are also of interest in studying fumigants. Sensitive methods for measuring oxygen, nitrogen and carbon dioxide have been developed at Winnipeg. Carbon dioxide levels can be used to diagnose the degree of infestation of stored grain by insects, moulds, or bacteria. The oxygen level is important to the revival of some insects from non-lethal amounts of fumigants. Other scientists have shown that high nitrogen-carbon dioxide level help to maintain insect-free conditions in grain storage.

Methods of measuring fumigants and atmospheric gases have many other uses, says Mr. Berck. Some of these uses are measuring air pollution, the purity of solvents and gases, and oxygen requirements for fish and mosquito larvae and other aquatic life.

Your BLOOD saves LIVES

A PASSING FANCY

There is beauty even in a smoked fish. George Firth, a third generation smokemaster, opened the huge steel doors of Booth Fisheries' Winnipeg ovens and there, hanging in soldier-like precision from suspended rods, were several dozen ruby red Winnipeg Goldeye beauties.

In this job of mine, detailing my meanderings in diary fashion, I learn something new every day. I never knew for instance, that these delectable fish are becoming extinct. Booth's cannot begin to meet the demand for smoked Winnipeg Goldeyes. Restaurants, CN diners and hotels, plus the domestic demand, far exceeds the supply.

A Scotsman in peaked cap, rubber boots, open throat shirt and jeans, George Firth was as reticent as most of his nationality to discuss his family's secret process for smoking fish. Only when he reminisced about his grandfather, first of the Firths to improve on the Indian's method of preserving their catch, did Robert Firth's descendant unfold and show me vats, brine and oak logs which provide the ingredients for bringing the finished product to perfection. It didn't take guessing however, to realize that George Firth has inherited his grandfather's and his father's instinct for knowing just when his ovenload has reached the degree of "doneness" that has made Booth Fisheries' Goldeyes a gastronomic wonder.

The secret seems to be in the method of soaking the fresh fish in brine overnight. If they are to be colored, and today's packaging appeal sometimes demands this, they are quickly dipped in a vegetable dye and then when dry, hung over smouldering oaken embers. To me it all seemed elementary. Surely even a child could smoke a fish!

My guess is, that this third generation Firth learned from his ancestor and parent what a perfectly smoked fish feels like. George Firth doesn't time his smoking; he tests the degree of smoking with his hand. They have to reach just the right feel, not too moist, nor too cooked.

George Firth says his sons have no desire to become smokers and that the family secret will die with him.

Booth's smoke and ship from 150,000 to 200,000 pounds of fish every year. To meet the demand for Winnipeg Goldeyes they are importing the species from Alberta.

Atmosphere sometimes delays the drying but never the quality of the finished product. That is, if you know what you are doing, as George Firth obviously does.

Improved on Indian Method

Robert Firth, his grandfather, was a butcher in Scotland, who upon immigration to this country, set up his fires on the shores of the Assiniboine River and, long before Winnipeg grew to a populated metropolis, watched Indians curing their winter's supply of fish dinners. He kept experimenting until he found a way, not only to preserve the fish, but to cook the flesh of a Goldeye. Indian smoked fish were dry and tough; Firth's moist, tasty and tender. The Firth secret handed down from one generation to another is equally successful in smoking salmon, tullibees, eels, whitefish and sturgeon.

Standard size of a smoked Goldeye is about half a pound. Though a typically Manitoba fish, they are now found in St. Clair Lake in Alberta and smaller lakes north of The Pas. Previously, they were netted in great quantity in Lake Winnipeg and Lake Winnipegosis. Why are they so scarce now? George Firth says oils and chemicals introduced into the lake waters are the real cause, though the Goldeye is prey for more aggressive finny species.

Never look a Goldeye in the eye if you want to be sure you are being served the genuine article and not its prolific imitator, a tullibee. Look it in the mouth, if it hasn't any teeth — it's an imposter.

Third drawing in Merchants' Contest

The third drawing in the "Know Your Merchants" eight-weeks contest series was held at the Theoret grocery on Barron Avenue. Seen above on this occasion, last Thursday, are L.-G. Kingsbury, André Weightman, P.-Paul Theoret (proprietor) and Miss Micheline Durocher.

Elderly couple's 52 years cruising on Rideau waterway

Cushing West — A story of interest in this section of the Valley appeared recently in the Ottawa Journal, concerning Mr. and Mrs. W. Gordon Higginson of Hawkesbury — the parents of Gordon (Buster) Higginson formerly of Lachute, and cousins of Mrs. Thos. Weir, Cushing. Following is the story, bearing a Smiths Falls dateline:

Modern navigation devices and markers have taken the excitement out of a Rideau Canal cruise for Mr. and Mrs. W. Gordon Higginson of Hawkesbury, but a love for the water and the picturesque surroundings along the 126-mile waterway from Ottawa to Kingston, have lured the Higginsons here for more than half a century.

Gordon and Bertha Higginson made their first trip along the canal system in 1908 — three years after they were married — in a 21-foot open boat. They have missed their annual cruise only four times in the past 56 years and that was during depression years and the war when gasoline just wasn't available.

Mr. Higginson, 81, and Mrs. Higginson, 79, always look forward to their trip up the Rideau. "We have seen many changes along the waterway since we started our cruises but the kindness of the dockmen has always been the same," Mrs. Higginson told the reporter as they stopped over in Smiths Falls to visit their son Gordon, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia there.

Steered by Barn

"There was plenty of excitement in the old days when we had no charts marking the shoals, and had to use a cemetery stone, a bar or a tree, to tell us where we were going," Mr. Higginson observed. "There have been a lot of changes in the navigation system — all for the good," he added.

Mr. Higginson's grandfather worked on the canal as a stone cutter when it was being built, and stories of the canal were passed on to him. He had his first boat built for him and made the maiden voyage up the canal in 1908. "We had to take a tent with us and camp then," Mr. Higginson said.

Built 30-Footer

A retired mechanic, Mr. Higginson built his present boat — a 30-foot raised deck cruiser known as the "Winona" and launched it in 1938. The couple have been making the trips in that boat for the past 26 years.

Named after a lumber boat on the Ottawa River, the "Winona" is built of cedar above the water; British Columbia fir under the water line; and is powered by a four-cylinder automobile motor.

The Higginsons and their four sons (Gordon, Smiths Falls; Kenneth, Trenton; John, Peterborough; and Charles, Richmond Hill) always liked the water and spent a great deal of the summer on the river.

Mr. Higginson recalled that in the early days lockmen used to be on duty or on call 24 hours a day and many times the family would be locking through shortly after dawn.

Takes Six Weeks

Since Mr. Higginson retired in 1949 he and his wife spend six weeks on the river travelling from Hawkesbury to Ottawa to Kingston and back. They also make a trip up the Trent Canal.

"We are not in any hurry, so we just take our time," Mr. Higginson said, noting there were 46 locks to go through each way.

The lockmen have the highest regard for the amiable couple. "We always enjoy their visits and look forward to their arrival each year," Whip Malloy, lockmaster, said as the Higginsons bade farewell for another year to Smiths Falls.

Four injured in three-car mishap

Four local persons were treated in the Argenteuil Hospital for injuries received in a three-car mishap on Route 41, a short distance from the Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes County boundary. The accident occurred at 12.40 a.m. Sunday on a straight section of highway. Witnesses have no recollection of the exact cause of the mishap; however, it appears that cars driven by F. R. Corrigas, of Chomedey, and Gerard Miron, of Lachute, sideswiped while meeting. The latter driver apparently lost control of his vehicle and collided with a third car driven by Laimonis Gailes, also of Chomedey. Miron was headed towards Lachute and the two other cars were travelling towards St. Jerome.

The vehicle owned and driven by Miron was described as a total loss, and damage estimated in the vicinity of $600 was caused to each of the other vehicles. Mr. Miron, his brother André, and their wives, were treated in the local hospital, the two women being released the following morning.

Club visited by Rotary Governor of District 704

At the regular weekly meeting of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club, S. Gerald "Duke" Lockrow, of Massena, N.Y., met with President Phil Grant, Secretary John Leggitt and other officers of the club.

Among topics discussed at this meeting were the following: publishing of a book entitled "History of Lachute", by Dr. G. R. Rigby; operation of the swimming pool and park; student career conference: Science Fair; the convention to be held at Massena, September 25-26; and the October visit of the Scots curlers to the local club.

At the supper meeting, past-President Don Wilson inducted a new member, Kent Tompkins, of Brownsburg.

Les Davies introduced the District Governor, who spoke to the members and guests on club services. He urged the members to "Live Rotary" in all their business relationships, in their community, and in their contact with all people of the world.

He urged that they share Rotary by having a true cross-section of the community represented in the club. To do this, he urged that each club add three totally new classifications, and three new members to their club.

Rotarian John Chalmers thanked the District Governor for his talk, and Rotarian Wes Freeland presented Mr. Lockrow with an Ayers' throw.

Municipal hall Centennial project at Vankleek Hill

Vankleek Hill — At a special meeting of the Town Council it was decided to build a new modern municipal hall as this town's Centennial contribution. An architect will be engaged to prepare plans on the present lot where the town hall is situated. Mayor Pat St. Denis presided at the meeting.

Hand caught in meat grinder

Vankleek Hill — Sylvain Lefèbvre, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Léon Lefèbvre of St. Eugene, lost his right hand in a meat grinder in a recent mishap at his home. Following the extraction of his hand from the grinder he was rushed to Smith Clinic at Hawkesbury.

Oswalds officiated at all-Canadian plow match, P.E.I.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Oswald, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Oswald, of this community, travelled by car to Prince Edward Island to attend the Canadian Championship Plowing Contest, held Wednesday, September 16, at Brudenell Park near Montague.

Clifford Oswald served as one of the official judges, and Ross Oswald was a steward whose job was to see that the competitors followed the contest rules.

Eight provinces were represented, with two competitors from each province. Alberta and Newfoundland were the only provinces which had no plowmen. The top winner was Donald Dunkeld from Claremont, Ont., followed by Carl B. Willis, of Charlottetown, P.E.I. These two plowmen will represent Canada at the World Contest to be held in Norway in 1965.

As for Quebec, Roméo Besner, of St. Clet, Soulanges County, placed fifth, and Ange-Aimé Leduc, also of St. Clet, placed seventh.

The weather was perfect and the soil conditions were excellent for the contest.

It is interesting to note that Carl Willis' father, Stanley Willis, is competing this year at the World Match in Austria, with William Hostrawser of Ontario. This is the first time in world competition that a son follows his father to compete in this competition.

Transportation for blood donors

People who are willing to give blood on September 28 - 29, but do not have transportation, may phone LO 2-2400 and ask for a car to take them to the clinic and return them home later. There will be no charge for this service.

Also, a telephone call to LO 2-6262 will provide a taxi to or from the Lachute Auditorium and the unit; Mr. Larocque, the proprietor, is generously sending a taxi free of charge to answer calls from those who need help to reach the clinic.

Operation "Rescue" —

Emergency shows urgent need for blood supplies

With the blood donor appeal at a verbal peak in this community, an incident at the Argenteuil Hospital this week gave realistic evidence of the need for replenishments in the blood bank.

At 4 p.m. Monday blood was ordered for a St. Eustache lady, a patient of Dr. A. L'Allier, to undergo a serious operation the following day. The type required was "A-Negative", but there was none on hand at the hospital blood bank; neither was there any of this type at St. Jerome or immediately available in Montreal.

A call was issued to Paul Deslauriers, chairman of the blood donor clinic here next week, and in consultation with Mrs. Joyce Stephens, who has charge of the records, three volunteers were located to supply the type of blood required. The willing donors were Messrs, Daniel Carrière, André Beauregard and Laurier Chartrand, of Lachute.

The incident illustrates the urgency of maintaining blood supplies in ready availability. . . The clinic here next Monday and Tuesday, September 28-29, gives an opportunity to all residents in normal health to help avert a dangerous shortage of supply.

Use of headlights advised in daytime

Cpl. J. P. Dallaire, officer-in-charge of the Q.P.P. unit here, made mention that all Q.P.P. cars on patrol have latterly been driving during daylight hours with their headlights on. He pointed out that statistics from both Canada and the United States have proven that the number of accidents could be reduced by driving in this manner.

New cars are of such design that, from a distance, it is difficult to tell whether many of them are "coming or going"; this difficulty is worsened in the case of a light-colored car on a dull day, or at dusk. The Q.P.P. is presently setting an example, assisted by the major autobus companies, in driving with headlights illuminated at all times. Motorists are encouraged to do likewise. Co-operation is requested by the police officers in this small detail, which might save a life.

Is it a big car?
Is it a small car?
Is it a compact?

Yes.

It's a Volkswagen 1500. It's a big car because it can carry seven children, a mother and eight smiles. Or it can hold five grown-ups sitting down. It's a small car because it's three feet shorter than most station wagons. And it's a compact because we don't waste a single inch of space. The engine is hidden away deep down in the back. So you have a 5½ foot flat loading area. And up under the front hood there's a trunk. Just like in Volkswagen's famous beetle-shaped sedan. And our VW 1500 has all the other advantages of the more familiar looking Volkswagen. It gets better footing in mud and snow because the engine weight is over the drive wheels. There's no radiator to freeze or boil. And it doesn't use much gas. The VW 1500 usually gets about 35 miles on a gallon. That goes a long way with seven children and a mother.

Blood Clinic needs full support!

IT IS TIME AGAIN to give blood for the sick or the injured of this province. Twice a year the Red Cross mobile blood donor unit visits this community, to help meet the ever-increasing need for fresh blood.

The Canadian Red Cross undertook collecting blood and supplying it to hospitals in 1948 at the urgent request of hospital authorities, who were experiencing, then, great difficulties in recruiting enough donors to meet their rising demands for blood.

The vital service extends to every hospital in Canada, from Vancouver Island on the Pacific Coast to Newfoundland in the Atlantic.

The blood bank must be constantly replenished by volunteer donors, because blood is a perishable commodity. After 21 days, blood cannot be administered as "fresh" blood. New supplies of freshly donated blood must be maintained in every hospital for the sick or the injured who need transfusions.

In the Province of Quebec, each week, 5,400 men and women, between the ages of 18 and 65, must give blood to ensure a smooth operation of the blood service.

A great many people of this community have received blood transfusions during the past twelve months. It is reasonable to expect that more people will need fresh blood and blood by-products in the months to come. Let us make sure that there will be adequate supplies when it is needed, by making our personal contribution to the blood bank.

To the co-chairmen of this local drive, Messrs. Paul Deslauriers and Ernest Ayers, and to the many workers who will assist, we wish success, and the willing support of volunteers to meet a quota of 625 pints of blood. . . The clinic will be held at Lachute Auditorium next Monday and Tuesday, September 28-29, from 2 to 5.30 p.m. and from 7 to 9.30 p.m. each day.

Safe driving takes more than skill

SKILL IS THE one essential of good driving that the new driver thinks all-important. He concentrates most jealously — and self-consciously — on the acquisition and demonstration of skill. He seldom puts any conscious effort into the development of the other good-driving essentials — attitudes, habits, knowledge.

Obviously, skill is important in correct driving. But unless it is accompanied and balanced by the other three elements it can be a handicap rather than an asset.

It takes skill, of a kind, to drive at 60 m.p.h. only a few feet behind another car in the passing lane; to take corners at near-roll-over speeds; to cut in and out of traffic with only inches to spare. The ability to do these things is desirable; the performance of them, except possibly in an emergency, is criminal.

The mature driver shows his skill in quiet, inconspicuous efficiency. In smooth, unhurried operating; exact road-positioning at all times; helpfulness to other road-users, and mis-users; complete control in every existing, or potential, situation.

Maturity is mainly a state of mind. The mature driver can be of any age, from 16 up.

It started with the "drunks"

IT IS 84 YEARS since the Christian Mission founded in East London by William Booth became the Salvation Army, but the movement has lost little of the zeal which sent its message and its charity sweeping through country after country in its early days. . . This retrospective note is interesting, in view of the current "Red Shield Appeal" being addressed to regular supporters in the Lachute community.

Today the Army operates in 86 countries and has an estimated world membership of 5,000,000; more than 16,600 citadels, and nearly 27,000 full-time officers. It runs 828 day schools, 2,047 social institutions and agencies, including 134 hospitals, dispensaries, and clinics, and 370 hostels for the homeless, ten institutes for the blind, seven leper asylums, and 20 "Harbour Light" centres for alcoholics.

In Britain alone its citadels or evangelistic centres number 1,250, and its 200,000 members and 4,108 full-time officers run maternity hospitals, homes for mothers and babies, training centres for neglectful mothers, children's homes, approved schools, and numerous other centres covering a huge variety of social work.

Nowadays the young, uniformed girls who go into Britain's "pubs" on a Saturday night to sell "War Cry" (the Salvation Army's publication) are rarely greeted with jeers and insults, and if there is still some gentle ribbing it is generally offered almost as a token of affection, and certainly of respect.

Much of this change of attitude to the "Army" can be attributed to the work performed by the Salvationists in World War I, and to an even larger extent in World War II, in which the Army's "Red Shield" centres opened in almost every town and village where troops might be stationed, serving tea and meals day and night. This was a service offered without "strings", and without any attempts at conversion, and few members of the forces during 1939-45 remained untouched by it.

The Salvation Army has been responsible, either in part or in full, for many social reforms, for changing attitudes to the poor and destitute, and to the "fallen" of either sex. Its main line of attack in its early days, however, was on drink and its associated evils, such as cheap music-halls, dancing rooms, and so on. Then anyone could get drunk very cheaply, and many did so, if only to relieve the boredom of poverty.

The costly way of doing things

FROM INFORMATION made public on the results of Ottawa's program to encourage employment of older workers, it appears that most of the benefits have gone to the government employees who have administered the program. — This is the viewpoint of C. J. Harris, an observer widely quoted by the weeklies.

The following is an excerpt from The Labor Gazette: "By March 31, 1964, expiry date for hiring under the program, 1,811 workers aged 45 or over have been hired under the Older Worker Employment and Training Incentive program. Under the provisions of this program, the Department of Labor pays 50 per cent of monthly wages or $75 a month to employers hiring eligible workers, aged 45 or older, for new jobs in employment which is insurable under the Unemployment Insurance Act. Payments can be made for a total period up to 12 months."

As Mr. Harris sees it, no doubt workers helped into jobs by this program were grateful — although few in number, and many of them might have secured employment in any event. But cost of the program to taxpayers is disturbing. At $75 per month per worker for the six months up to last March 31st that the program had been operating, the wage subsidy could have cost $815,000 at the outside. But the federal budget estimates the program's cost at $5,000,000. In other words, the cost of administration was about four times the cost of the wage supplement. For the relatively few jobs provided over the six-month period, taxpayers put up more than $2,700 per job.

Viewpoints and perspectives

IF BETTER CROPS in Communist countries reduce these profitable exports of grain Canada never expected to enjoy, what plans are there afoot to maintain the Canadian economy and employment? The Communists' bad harvests have been well-timed for Canada with grain surpluses on her hands, but we require assurance that we depend on planning as well as luck to make future statistics cheerful.

SUGAR AND SPICE

It's The Happiest Day!

By BILL SMILEY

Everybody happy now that school has re-opened? You should be. With the possible exception of Christmas Day, it's the happiest and most exciting occasion in the year, for a large part of our population.

When I was a kid, we all hated going back to school. And it was real. Schools were grey and grimy. Classrooms were stuffy and poorly lighted and smelled. Teachers were maiden ladies of eighty or ninety years old, and crabby as hell.

Nowadays most youngsters are thrilled to enter the portals in September. They've had enough summer. They want to get back with their peers, and gossip, play, work, stretch their minds, find somebody to hate besides their parents.

Nothing is quite so charming as the gossoons entering Grade 1. Shined and curled and starched beyond recognition, they march off on opening day with the new schoolbag, clammy hand clutched by a disgusted older brother, or pompous sister. They're as scared and excited as a pilot on his first solo flip.

Next in sheer delightfulness, I think, are the kids entering high school. Last year they were the big wheels in Grade 8, the monitors, the safety patrol members, the seniors. Suddenly they are plunged into a vast high school where they are nothing, the youngest of the young, the rookies, the chickens just out of the nest. Their bewilderment is something to behold.

Mothers either weep or breathe a sigh of purest relief on opening day, depending on whether they have lost the first of their nestlings, or have just got rid of the last of the little horrors who have been nudging them towards an institution for the past twelve years.

Fathers, too, heave either a sigh or a groan, depending on the age of the kids. If the students are young, it means the old man at least knows they're in school and safe, not being buried alive at the sandpit, or frilling into the water-filled ditch, or running out in front of speeding cars to get their ball. If they're university age, he breathes heavily and grunts with a mingling of pecuniary pain and wild elation as he signs the first of many cheques for tuition fees, plus room'n board.

The "drop-outs" are happy as morons. They quit last Easter, took a job, the job petered out, and now they fervently agree with their mother, who said they were too stupid to make a living unless they had a university degree. So they've dropped back in, to keep warm for another winter.

The school board is happy. The long dull summer, with nothing to do but make money, is over, and they can get back to the fascinating topics of how much the new boiler will cost, how lousy the new teachers are, how much they dare submit to the council in their budget, and how different things were when they were at school.

The caretakers are happy. After all, it's rather frustrating to spend all summer washing, waxing and polishing, with nobody to appreciate. Now, their two months' hard work vanishes in a twinkling, and they can go back to 10 months of grousing about dirty kids and sloppy teachers.

The merchants are happy. Their "Back-to-School" advertising campaign went over pretty well. Now they can relapse comfortably into criticism of the stupidity of the school board, the hours and salaries of the teachers, and the manners and morals of to-day's students, compared to those of their own generation.

Theoretically, the teachers are happy. They return to school clear-eyed, refreshed, bushy-tailed, dedicated, after their long vacation, which they spent lying on the beach, pounding a golf ball, or touring Europe.

In reality, most of them totter in, red-eyed, wrung-out and broke, after seven weeks of summer school and one dreadful week visiting relatives, during which their kids were holy terrors and it rained every day.

Postage stamp for Queen's visit

A new postage stamp to honor the visit of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II will be issued on October 5, according to the Hon. John R. Nicholson, Postmaster General.

Her Majesty plans to visit Charlottetown, P.E.I., and Quebec City, marking the centenary celebrations of the two famous conferences that led to Confederation three years later. Special postage stamps commemorating the Charlottetown and Quebec Conferences have already been issued by the Canada Post Office.

The new stamp will be in a vertical format, with a portrait of Her Majesty. The denomination is five cents. As is customary in special stamps issued to commemorate Royal visits, no other wording will appear on the special issue.

A model of the stamp was submitted to Her Majesty, as is customary, before engraving, and Queen Elizabeth expressed her satisfaction with the design.

Our Country Divided

By RAY ARGYLE

Canadians are supposed to be great compromisers. One prime minister — Mackenzie King — built his entire career on his apparent ability to bring together conflicting points of view. Why, then, has the country been unable to reach a majority agreement on a national flag?

The chief reason, and the sooner it be recognized the better, lies in the division of the nation in racial blocs — English, French, Ukrainian, Italian, etc.

This was not so apparent during the many years in which Canadians of British stock dominated the political, commercial, and cultural life of the country. But since the last war, the influence of the British element has been declining.

That this has happened in Canada is due largely to the Canadian system of encouraging various national groups to retain their distinctive identity.

In the United States, by contrast, the melting pot of immigration has created one great mass of citizenry—Americans.

Americans have reached a national consensus on most fundamental issues. There is, for instance, general support for the free enterprise system modified by welfare state measures. In only one important area of American life has a national consensus not been reached — the Negro question. But the tide is there for all to see — and equal rights for the Negro will be achieved within this generation.

Diversity of attitudes and customs can be an attractive trait, especially when compared with the drugging conformity that runs so strongly through American life. But diversity will not ensure the survival of a country. For that, there must be a sense of national purpose among all groups which overcomes their differences.

Canada has failed to achieve this sense of national purpose.

You can see it in the flag debate, not only in parliament, but in millions of living rooms and offices across the country. The flag debate arouses just as much emotion among Canadians gathered privately in their homes as it has in Parliament. Little wonder, then, that Parliament has haggled over this for months.

Parliament's decision to send the flag issue to a 15-man committee may open the way for a settlement, but the chances are 50-50 that before Christmas the House of Commons will once more be gripped by unending debate.

Although there is already a clear majority of MPs ready to vote for a maple leaf flag, Opposition leader Diefenbaker's insistence on keeping the debate going has forestalled a final and deciding vote. Now Mr. Diefenbaker says that unless 13 or 14 of the 15 members of the flag committee are able to reach agreement, the debate should start all over again.

Majority rule means simply that — a clear majority of more than 50 per cent. Mr. Diefenbaker's insistence of an 80 to 90 per cent majority before the flag can become a fact makes one thankful such majorities have not been needed on more important issues. Not a single major law would have been enacted since Confederation if this kind of majority had been required.

The decision to send the flag to committee has probably killed all chances of Prime Minister Pearson's three-leaf flag being adopted. The tri-leaf flag will never be able to rid itself of the derogatory label of the "Pearson pennant."

The members of the committee have been promised a minimum of interference by their party leaders. Freed from the shrill debate of Mr. Diefenbaker, the committee might indeed be able to reach a consensus. If it fails, it will be because Canadians as a whole have once again been unable to put aside their group interests in favor of the national interest.

Plant bulbs for beauty!

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Bulbs for beauty! Is there any other small investment in money, time and care which yields more satisfying color and fragrance than bulb planting in the autumn?

It is important to buy bulbs of good quality either from a store or florist or order them from a seed firm. To avoid delay in planting, they should be purchased early and planted as soon as possible. Store in a dry, cool place until they are put in the ground.

October is usually the favorite month for bulb planting, although some varieties can be planted earlier and some bulbs can be put in as late as November, if the weather continues to be mild. It is important to get bulbs in before the frost hardens the ground. Do allow some time for root growth.

Bulbs do well in sandy loam, but grow in any well drained soil. Bonemeal is a good bulb fertilizer and so are rotted leaves. Care must be taken with manure and some commercial fertilizers so that they are mixed with the soil and do not come in direct contact with the bulbs at full strength. Sand mixed in with heavy soil helps the drainage and prevents the bulbs from decaying.

In an area where the soil freezes hard, it should be well covered during the winter months with leaves anchored down with evergreen boughs or straw. This mulch is removed when spring arrives and the soil around the bulbs kept weeded.

The rules for the best depth for bulbs varies in different areas, according to the severity of the frost in the winter. An approximate rule for planting bulbs is to place them in the soil at least twice as deep as their diameter and allow sufficient room for the mature plant to have plenty of sunshine. Both daffodils and hyacinths are planted six inches apart and six inches deep. Darwin and parrot tulips are placed five or six inches apart and the same depth in the ground.

For indoor bulb planting, choose the hardier varieties, which are grown most easily. Paper-white narcissi are exceedingly easy to grow either in water, with pebbles or fibre compost. Hyacinths can be grown in water, too. Tulips, daffodils and the smaller bulbs need sufficient time in a dark, cool spot in the cellar to grow sturdy roots.

Clean, uncracked pots worthy of good bulbs should be used. Good drainage in pots is essential. This is guaranteed by placing some pebbles or broken pieces of pot over the drainage hole. Plan to have the bulb growing tip protruding slightly. Fill the pot then with light porous soil to the depth at which the bulbs should rest. Place the bulb in the pot and fill up around it with soil to within one-half inch of the rim. Pat the soil down firmly and water well.

Good rooting takes time and it is best to set the pots away in a cool place for 10 weeks to three months, watering regularly. Do not keep the soil soggy nor let it dry out completely.

The first few days after they have been brought up from the cellar, the bulbs should be slightly shaded and kept at a temperature around 65 degrees. After that a sunny window is the best location for the bulbs. Once they have bloomed, the flowers will last longer if they are removed from the direct rays of the sun.

When the flower fades on a bulb in a pot indoors or outside in the garden, it should be cut off near the top of the stem. The leaves should be allowed to remain. Place the bulb pots in a cool, dry spot in the cellar and water sparingly until the foliage dies down. In the early autumn, remove the bulbs from their pots and keep in a dry, airy room until planted outdoors.

Discover for yourself that planting bulbs both outdoors and indoors can be a very happy co-operative parent-child venture. Do try it this season!

'Immunization' message issued

"This is the time to alert our members to check family health records to make sure booster shots are given if needed and our babies protected", says Mrs. Arthur MacKenzie, of Piapot, Sask., convener of Home Economics and Health for the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, in calling attention to the 22nd National Immunization Week (September 20-26). Mrs. Mackenzie points out that this valuable protection costs only a few cents and takes but a few moments of our time, so why take a chance on the lives of our children.

The once dreaded scourges of smallpox, poliomyelitis, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus can all be prevented or made less dangerous by timely immunization for children; and booster shots for adults about every five years maintain immunity against tetanus, smallpox and polio. "How many of us have read in our family records of infants and children dying from these diseases; today we do not have to take this risk", adds Mrs. Mackenzie.

She goes on to urge members to take part in all programs designed to educate the public to the availability of these safeguards and their value in preventing and eventually eradicating communicable diseases.

KIDS IN JAILS

Ottawa (CP) — There are 84 children under 16 years of age in federal adult penitentiaries, Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) reported to the House of Commons. He said they should be housed in proper institutions for juvenile offenders.

Arthritis strikes at eight or eighty

Arthritis may strike at eight or eighty. It strikes at any age, sometimes suddenly, sometimes gradually. As yet, there is no certain cure for any of the more serious or common forms of arthritis.

In addition to the misery of the person stricken, arthritis places a sorrowful burden upon the whole family. The suffering mother cannot give her children the care and devotion needed to prepare them for useful lives. The stricken father suffers the embarassment of having someone else support and care for his family.

Of the thousands of patients assisted each year by the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, no one case is typical. Yet few are the patients for whom some real help is not possible.

"Medical science already knows how to prevent serious crippling in a majority of cases," says the Society, "and medical research workers are confident that improved methods of treatment and prevention will continue as money for research becomes available."

Most Canadian universities now participate in the more than a score of university-based research projects, jointly financed by the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society and the Department of National Health.

'Assembly line' home sewing

If your sewing time is limited, why not use the assembly line technique?

It's especially practical if you're a girl who likes lots of blouses to mix and match with skirts and slacks. Using the same pattern, you can create three different-looking blouses in almost the same time it formerly took to make just one.

The secret is in multiple cutting and sewing. By using cotton of similar weight, you can cut out all the major pieces of the three blouses at once. Be sure the fabrics are light enough to be handled easily together. Place the three fabrics on top of each other, and then lay out the major pattern pieces that are identical for each blouse. Pieces used for one blouse only are cut separately. Mark each piece individually, and then stitch the darts and seams that all the blouses have in common.

Press in darts and seams for all three blouses in one trip to the ironing board. Then add individual touches to each blouse with a distinctive trim.

Season's popular dessert

This being the time of year when spicy desserts with nut toppings are in demand, Pecan Pumpkin Pie is a recommended recipe. Quite easily prepared, this flavorful dessert owes its smoothness to the better blending qualities of one of its chief ingredients, undiluted evaporated milk. The pie is richer, too, since undiluted evaporated milk has twice the vitamin D, protein and minerals of whole milk and now is fortified with vitamin C.

Evaporated milk is easier than ever to use because of the new sure-grip flared-rim design of its container. An ordinary beverage can opener is all you need to open it.

Pecan Pumpkin Pie

(Makes 9-inch pie)

1 Cup firmly packed brown sugar, 1½ teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each of nutmeg, cloves, ginger and allspice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1½ cups canned pumpkin, 1¼ cups (large can) undiluted evaporated milk, unbaked 9-inch pie shell, ½ cup chopped pecans.

Mix together brown sugar, spices and salt. Stir in eggs, pumpkin and evaporated milk. Pour into pie shell. Bake in hot oven (425°) 15 minutes; reduce heat to moderate (350°) and bake 20 minutes. Sprinkle pie with pecans and bake 20 minutes longer. Cool.

Ways to serve cottage cheese

There's a place for this palatable and refreshing food in any meal of the day, and with every course of the meal. The home economists of the Consumer Section urge you to use this staple food in as many ways as possible.

Serve with bread, crackers or potato chips. — Mix the following with cottage cheese for delicious spreads: chopped chives, parsley, or green pepper; chopped pickles; berry jam; chopped nuts, raisins, figs, or dates; fruit syrups.

Serve in salads. — Cottage cheese adds nourishment and interest to salads — as stuffing for tomatoes, green pepper, celery or prunes; as accompaniment on fruit plates; as filling for centre of gelatin ring molds; in frozen fruit salads; in salad dressing.

Serve with eggs. — Team cottage cheese with: scrambled eggs, omelets, or cheddar cheese in soufflés.

Serve in casserole dishes. — Cottage cheese makes a hearty addition to casseroles — macaroni and tomatoes; creamed tuna fish, shrimp or salmon; scalloped potatoes.

Serve as dessert. — Cottage cheese adds special flavor to cheese cakes; fillings for pastries, pies, and thin egg pancakes.

Serve with cream and sugar. — Cottage cheese served this way can be used in place of meat or eggs for breakfast or supper. For extra nourishment and flavor, add fresh or canned fruit.

Party Cheese Cake

This is a refrigerated cheese cake and is not as rich as the traditional baked type. Creamy in texture and refreshing in taste this large cake could be made ahead of time and served as a party headliner — wonderful for an outdoor barbecue get-together.

For extra flavor and color, top the cheese cake with a glaze of any of the fresh fruits available. Here is the recipe:

Crust — ¾ cup crushed Zweiback or Graham wafers, 2 tablespoons icing sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 3 tablespoons melted butter.

Filling — 2 envelopes gelatin (2 tablespoons), ¼ cup water, ½ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks, ¾ cup milk, 3 cups, sieved cottage cheese (1½ pounds), 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 egg whites, ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup whipping cream, whipped.

Combine ingredients for crumb crust and press mixture firmly on bottom of 9-inch spring-form pan.

Soak gelatin in water for 5 minutes. Mix the ½ cup sugar, salt, egg yolks and milk in top of double boiler. Cook over simmering water, stirring constantly until thickened, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, add soaked gelatin, lemon rind, lemon juice and vanilla. Chill until mixture is just beginning to set, then beat into the sieved cottage cheese.

Beat egg whites until soft peaks form, gradually beat in remaining sugar and fold into cheese mixture. Fold in the whipped cream. Pour mixture into pan and chill until firm, about 3 hours.

Just before serving, remove pan and garnish with sweetened fresh fruit if desired. 10 servings.

Note: If a smaller cake is desired, this recipe may be cut in half and served in a 9-inch pie plate.

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A silver communion set in the Anglican Church of St. John the Evangelist in Elora, Ont., was a gift from Florence Nightingale to a man said to have loved her all his life.

Rev. John Smithurst and Florence Nightingale were first cousins and childhood friends. When she was in her late teens and he in his twenties, their confession to her family that their friendship had deepened into love brought strong disapproval because of their blood relationship.

The girl's parents took her from England to the Continent to give her time to change her mind. It did not work, but in the face of family opposition the couple agreed to renounce their love.

It is believed that it was at her suggestion that John Smithurst entered the Church Missionary Training College at Islington to become a missionary to the Indians in Canada.

At Red River

In 1839, he set sail for Canada, the first Canadian Church of England missionary to the Indians. He was originally to be chaplain for the Hudson's Bay Company and live at Fort Garry. But he is said to have learned, en route, that Indians had built a house for him in their Red River village, and he chose to go there.

In his 12 years at Red River Mr. Smithurst worked to teach the Indians farming, to encourage them to get an education and to make community efforts to preserve life and health through the long winters, as well as to teach Christianity. In time, he had an assistant, a superintendent for farm work, and three school teachers.

Returns Home

In 1851 he went home to England. He indicated to friends later that he still hoped to marry Florence Nightingale. If this was so, he was disappointed.

He returned to Canada in 1852, this time to Elora, and this time brought with him the silver communion set.

The set is inscribed in Latin, which translated, reads: "Acting as an agent for someone, Ebenezer Hall gave, as a gift, this set of Communion silver to the Rev. John Smithurst, a very dear friend, in grateful recognition of his many kindnesses. A. D. 1852." Florence Nightingale was the "someone".

It was two years before the Crimean War which was to bring fame to her and a new and precedent-shattering concept of nursing and hospital care to the world.

Mr. Smithurst remained rector at St. John until 1857 when ill health forced his retirement. He died September 2, 1867, and was buried in the Elora cemetery.

The Communion set is still at the little church, sometimes known as "The Nurses' Shrine", where thousands of people in the past have come to see Canada's link with the founder of modern nursing.

Things to come

It'll be a sad day when the TV picture on the telephone becomes wide-screen, taking in the whole embarrassing situation. There used to be something nice about picking up the phone, dialing the number and talking to a friend. But the housewife won't be at all happy about the prospect of running upstairs, combing her hair, touching up her lipstick, straightening her seams and tidying the house before she puts through the call. And it's no good having the new phones fitted with curtains because if you pull the curtains too often you're going to wind up with a reputation as a bad housekeeper.

YOUNG MAN'S PREDICAMENT

I know a young man who entered the working force the other day. I don't envy him the decision he feels he must make.

In his opinion, he is joining a society in which he must strive to be very rich, or settle for being poor . . . a freeloader in a country determined to live high off the hog. He feels we older folks are loading society with services and costs. We will enjoy some of the services for a few years, quite cheaply. He will have to pay for them, quite dearly.

He is a talented young man, with two bents: either school teaching or writing poetry. As a teacher, he would be in the middle-income group, and every service would be a charge against his pay cheque. It is his conviction that the way things are going, the taxes and other charges he would have to pay from his teaching salary would allow him to live in gentile poverty. He has little taste for that.

On the other hand, he reasons that times will be excellent for the poet — because poets have little income against which governments can levy taxes. He feels that innumerable services would be his for free — paid for by the teachers, farmers, professional people, the great body of the middle class. He would live in poverty, perhaps, but with services fit for a king pressed upon him, plus a Canada Council grant now and then so he could live it up a little.

I pointed out to the young man that he had not discussed his other option: becoming quite rich. He said that he had abandoned that one, because he had no talent for finance, and his rich uncle was looking quite sturdy these days. If wealth is thrust upon him, he feels he can survive it, but doubts his ability to go out and get it for himself.

At the moment, he is rather set on becoming a poet, and living in bohemian poverty, cared for by a society more concerned about his welfare than it would be if he were teaching the children of the next generation. Perhaps he is right. Looks like a good decade for poets.

Most frequently asked questions on Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service

What is the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service?

It is a service operated by the Canadian Red Cross Society to supply whole blood and blood products FREE OF CHARGE to any patient in any hospital in the area served. All blood is the gift of volunteer donors. Blood cannot be manufactured. It must come from people.

What does the free Blood Transfusion Service mean to me?

Whenever you, or a member of your family may be in hospital and needs blood or blood products, you will receive these FREE OF CHARGE.

What happens if I need transfusions in the U.S.A.?

Have your doctor notify your local Red Cross in Canada and arrangements will be made to replace the amount of blood necessary at no charge to you.

What happened before this free Red Cross service?

The patient paid approximately $25 for each transfusion or frantically appealed to friends or the public for donors to replace two bottles for every one received.

How are whole blood and blood products used?

To control hemorrhage — to combat shock — to speed recovery — to prepare patients for surgery — to save infants born with heart or blood defects — to assist burn victims through a long convalescence — to help mothers in childbirth — to assist victims of accidents and other emergencies.

Why should I be a donor?

If everyone gives there will be an ample supply of blood when you, or a relative requires it.

How many donations are needed to maintain the service?

An average of one bottle of blood must be collected every 15 seconds of every working day to maintain an adequate supply of whole blood and blood products. More than 800,000 bottles will be required for transfusion therapy for patients in Canadian hospitals during the year.

Is donating blood painful?

No, There is no discomfort experienced in giving blood donations. Every phase of this program is under professional supervision. Specially trained nurses will take your donation.

How long will it take to give my donation?

Approximately 30 minutes including time for testing, registration, rest and refreshments. The actual giving of blood takes only 4 to 5 minutes.

Who can give blood?

The majority of people in average health between the ages of 18 and 65 years.

How can you tell whether I can spare the blood?

This is determined by a simple test given every donor by a Red Cross technician.

Are there any diet restrictions?

No. You may eat anything you like before making your donation.

How much do I give?

Three-quarters of a pint — only one-twentieth of the average body content. This is replaced within 24 hours.

How often may I give?

A man may donate every three months. A woman, under normal circumstances, every four months. A doctor may sometimes advise giving more often. You are not likely to be called more than twice a year.

How long can fresh blood be kept and used?

Whole blood can be stored and used up to three weeks when carefully refrigerated.

What happens if it is not used within three weeks?

It is converted into blood products which are also supplied to hospitals FREE OF CHARGE. These products are useful for the treatment of shock and severe bleeding and for the prevention of measles and other infectious diseases, and for many other forms of treatment.

Can blood of different races be used interchangeably for transfusions?

Yes. The structure and functions of both cells and plasma are essentially the same in every ethnic group.

Can animal blood be used in transfusions for humans?

No. Blood is species specific. Blood given to a different species acts as a foreign substance and is rapidly destroyed.

Do donors receive any recognition?

A personal identification card showing his or her blood group will be mailed to each donor after the clinic. In addition, buttons and scrolls are awarded for specific numbers of donations.

The approaching blood donor clinic will be at Lachute Auditorium on Monday and Tuesday, September 28 - 29, from 2 to 5.30 p.m., and from 7 to 9.30 p.m.

Contemporary and 19th century letters on history hereabouts

— Contributed by Norman Thorburn —

Recently I sent a letter to Mr. W. Kaye Lamb, the Dominion Archivist, containing my article to The Watchman about the very probable site of the Battle of the Long Sault. I wanted his opinion about this question. I was more than gratified by his reply:

330 Sussex Drive,
Ottawa 2, Ont.

Dear Mr. Thorburn:

Thank you for sending us your very interesting article on Dollard des Ormeaux.

In my official capacity as Dominion Archivist I can have no opinions about historical problems of this kind; my job is simply to gather, preserve and make available, material relating to the history of Canada. But as a private individual I naturally have personal opinions, and I share your view that the Dollard battle took place on the Ontario side of the Ottawa.

Some years ago, I visited the Ross farm with Mr. Tom Lee, who at that time was working for the National Museum. He had made many inquiries about rocks and rapids in the river, and like Mr. Kirby, was convinced that the Iroquois must have come down the river close to the Ontario shore.

Yours sincerely,
W. Kaye Lamb,
Dominion Archivist

I have come to the conclusion that most of the pioneer farmers of Argenteuil County were really British Army reservists, ready to repel any invasion from the States or to maintain law and order at home. Here is an old letter from Colonel D. De Hertel to Major Paul Doig of the 4th Battalion, Two Mountains Militia:

Argenteuil, 21st June, 1848

Dear Sir:

I am certain you would not be pleased if I didn't give you notice that on Saturday the 24th instant, I am to give instructions to my officers and non-commissioned officers of my regiment.

Therefore, if you wish to avail yourself of that opportunity, you will be down at my place at 4 p.m., with your officers and non-commissioned officers and with 4 of your best militiamen, with 2 light poles, 18 feet long, to prepare for the 29th instant.

I am, yours truly

D. De Hertel,
Lt. Col., 3rd Battalion

The poles were to make tents with, I would say.

There are many receipts here too, in the handwriting of that almost legendary figure of old Argenteuil, Colonel Tom Barron, of the 4th Battalion, Two Mountains Militia (known in history as the "Men of the Gore").

Here is a receipt to Alexander Smith, great-great-grandfather of my wife. Alexander Smith then owned the North River Farm. Colonel Tom Barron was a man of wealth:

"Received from Alexander Smith, the sum of 4 pounds, 4 shillings and ten pence currency, on account this 9th day of November, 1824. The above sum is part of the balance owing to me, of a mare sold to S. Buchanan." —

Mr. Buchanan resided at that time, we believe, on the farm of Sharman Doig.

GREETING CARDS

I walked today for many miles to seek for what I sought.
I ambled up and down the aisles till I was tired and hot.
I tried to find a greeting card for some folks that I knew —
I read their verses by the yard but none of them would do.

They were most inappropriate for what I had in mind.
It seems the ones I wanted most were very hard to find.
They had a lot of Birthday Cards for Father and for Mother,
For Uncle Bill and Auntie Kate, for Sister and for Brother;

Christmas Cards and New Year's Cards and Valentines galore,
St. Patrick's Day and Easter Cards and others by the score Including cards of Sympathy, of Weddings, Juveniles,
And Comic Cards by thousands that just cluttered up the aisles.

The kind I wanted seemed to be impossible to find,
Altho' the big stores seemed to have most every other kind.
The sort that I was looking for should be in great demand,
And if they'd only print a few
I think it would be grand.

They print a million Get Well cards for folks we love the best.
Why not a lot of "Drop Dead" cards for people we detest?
Imagine slogans such as these:
"Go Home and Soak Your Head!"
"Shut Your Big Mouth, You
Halfwit", "Why Don't You Die In Bed?"

What fiendish glee we could enjoy
if these cards were produced
To get back at some folks we know by whom we've been abused.
Let's agitate for Drop Dead cards with which to blow our tops.
And thus enjoy a sweet revenge instead of calling cops.

(They'd make an opportunity
For readers to get back at me.
So, after all, on second thought
Perhaps the idea's not so hot!)

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY, Macdonald College

This past week, the third-year agriculture students went on their annual bus tour of southern Quebec. And I was invited to go with them; it was a stimulating, pleasant two days. These kids, or should I say young men and women, were deadly serious. They were out to get information, and they filled pages of notebooks. No doubt they were inspired, in part, by the fact that this tour, along with a report and an essay based on it, counts as a full credit course at examination time. But I am sure, too, there was an awareness of the heavy responsibilities they will be asked to carry when they graduate 18 months from now.

For many of these students, it is their first look at rural Quebec. Some are from overseas, some from other provinces. A few have never been on a farm.

Several of the students in third-year have come in from the Nova Scotia Agricultural College. After completing two years there, they come to Macdonald College for the final two years. This is the only degree-granting, English-language Agricultural College in the five eastern provinces. And, incidentally, Laval in Quebec City is the only French-language one.

So this two-day bus tour is a splendid way for the newcomers to become acquainted with the area in which they will study. And it provides the others with a chance to see their native province in a different light. Instructors from the different college departments — soils, animal science, agronomy, forestry, poultry, sociology, engineering, take turns in pointing out highlights.

With a feeling of autumn in the air the tour was away to an early start in Tuesday's cool, bright morning. First three stops were in the Chateauguay Valley, near Ormstown.

With the 80 students in a semi-circle around him taking notes, James Winters described his newly established poultry enterprise. A former dairyman, Mr. Winters has replaced the stanchions in the stable with wire cages for laying hens. The birds did not seem to mind in the least the close confining quarters, even when there were three birds to a cage. Mr. Winters was enthusiastic about his change-over and not in the least discouraged by the present low prices for eggs. He estimates his cash costs for feed and labor alone at 22 cents a dozen.

Next call was at Jerry Duncan's where the students saw an example of a well-managed, medium sized dairy farm in the Montreal milk shed. Then the tour moved to the farm of Ewan MacDougal, where tile drains were going in. They saw one of the nine Department of Agriculture ditching machines at work, and learned that the use of this equipment costs the farm owner only $1.00 an hour. In addition, the province does the survey and pays the bill for trucking the tile. The only cost to the farmer is for the tile, (6 to 8 cents for 4" drains), and the labor of backfilling the trench.

One more stop was made before lunch, at the Stevenson orchard near Franklin Centre. Bill Stevenson, like Jerry Duncan, a Macdonald graduate, was happy to explain the economics of the orchard business. I think the students were surprised to hear that it now takes 50 acres of orchard at least to make an economic unit. And a large part of a dollar per bushel goes on cash expenses, spray materials, picking and labor.

At St. Clothilde, the students saw one of the province's oldest commercial vegetable farms. Eugene Guinois, with 500 acres of black muck in production, has a highly mechanized operation which supplies lettuce, cabbage, onions and celery to the Montreal market, and carrots to the New York market. This is the area which suffered 2 million dollars damage early last summer from drought and wind. The ditches are still full of soil.

It was a long stretch, but through beautiful rolling countryside to the next stop at Knowlton in the Eastern Townships. There the students had a chance to assess for themselves the part played in the agricultural economy by the so-called hobby farms.

Then it was on to North Hatley for a late supper and the night in one of the fine old hotels overlooking the lake. But the evening was full, too. Dr. Pelletier, a graduate of Mac and now assistant director of the Agricultural and Rural Development Administration at Ottawa, addressed the group.

On Wednesday, it was a full day again with stops at Albert Legrand's beef farm at Compton; the Canada Research Station at Lennoxville, and the Quebec Department's establishment at St. Hyacinthe.

It was an awful lot for any student to absorb in 36 hours, but past experience has shown that these tours give an excellent base for the year's courses.

Possibilities in farm irrigation

By Walker Riley, Macdonald College

Thinking of farm irrigation for another year? Seasons such as the dry mid-summer of 1964 raise many questions. The idea of turning on the rain with a press of a button has much appeal. It brings to mind visions of luxuriant pastures, giant strawberries and high potato yields!

In recent weeks I have seen two irrigation systems at work, one on pastures at Tom Coddington's, at Melbourne, and one on potatoes, at Eugene Drouin's, Kingsey Falls.

Briefly, irrigation pays if, and only if, the value of the yield increase exceeds the high capital cost of equipment plus operating costs. For a medium-sized outfit these charges may total $20 to $30 per year. Your yield increase must be worth more than that. Tests show that, on the average, you can expect 40% to 60% more.

While the value varies from farm to farm, irrigation pays on high value horticultural crops, vegetables, berries, tobacco and potatoes. Tomatoes usually show an increase in yield, but may not pay for the cost of irrigation in every year.

Tree fruits, corn, white beans and sugar beets will benefit only on sandy or gravel soils.

Pasture irrigation will pay if you have a good milk market. But it must be teamed with higher fertility and good grazing management.

Hay and coarse grains rarely pay for irrigation.

Don't underestimate the water requirements of an irrigation system. Six to ten inches is a normal application for a season. Six inches sprinkled over one acre is 135,000 gallons. That means, unless you live on a river, you will need a well which can supply 10 gallons a minute for every acre you want to water. Or, it will take a quarter-acre farm pond for each irrigated acre.

The additional labor must be considered. Aluminum pipe and quick couplings make the job easy, but you have to be on hand two or three times a day to move the sprinklers.

An alternative to irrigation worth considering, is that crops which are well fertilized make better use of the moisture that is available.

Wife's misgivings stay unspoken

Calgary (CP) — The wife of retired rodeo champion Herman Linder says men in dangerous or competitive sports should not be told of their wives' fears.

"If they know someone is worrying about them they just aren't at their best," said Mrs. Linder in an interview.

She said she thought rodeos were fun to watch when she married the champion in 1932.

"If ignorance is bliss, that was me," she said.

Then she became more aware of the dangers involved in bronc riding and she began worrying. "I saw boys getting hurt and some getting killed."

But she said she never let her husband know of her worries.

"I'm trying to teach this to our daughter now," she said.

Rose-Marie, 20, is a barrel racer and her boy friend is in the rodeo business. Her son, George, 22, studies agriculture at the University of Alberta.

"I was sure glad when my husband's retirement came," she said. He quit active competition in 1939.

The couple now live on a ranch near Cardston, 45 miles southwest of Lethbridge and Mrs. Linder says she loves it.

She admits she never learned to ride. "It's not that I'm afraid of horses . . . but you won't catch me in the saddle."

Canada Dept. of Agriculture in ubiquitous role for consumer

Following is the (abriged) text of a talk by Agriculture Minister Harry Hays over two Alberta radio stations recently, describing the various and comprehensive activities of his department:

"A great deal of the work of the Canada Department of Agriculture is geared to serve the interests of the consumers of food, rather than just the farmer.

"For instance, when you go out to buy a roast of meat, you are reasonably sure that it's going to be safe to eat and of the quality you expect. This confidence is the result of our veterinarians checking every meat carcass and of our graders rating the meat as to quality. Practically all packing plants of any size in Canada are under federal inspection.

"The same thing applies to the eggs you buy — or the fruit, vegetables, and so on. Almost any food you buy bears a Canada Department of Agriculture grade.

"Nowhere in the world do people have the opportunity to eat as well as they do in Canada. In terms of their take-home pay, Canadians have to spend the smallest percentage of their incomes on food.

"This is the result of maintaining a healthy agriculture. And to maintain a healthy agriculture we must offer our farmers some measure of security. We do this through a variety of means — crop insurance, farm credit, price stabilization and so on. But actually our farmers get a great deal less help from government than do farmers in the United States or Britain and less indeed than practically any other advanced country in the world.

"If we don't help our progressive farmers over some of the rough spots like drought and so on, they simply won't stay in business. If we don't have farmers, then we'll have to import food, and our costs for food will skyrocket.

"Granted we might have butter for 40 cents a pound if we removed all the supports right away, but it wouldn't be very long before butter was 90 cents or a dollar a pound, because farmers couldn't take a chance on producing a product on which they might lose their shirts.

"Support prices, I believe, are even more beneficial to the consumer than to the farmer. They keep prices from dropping to disaster levels for the farmer but they also ensure a regular supply of food for the consumer at reasonable prices.

"As most of you know, the price the farmer gets for his produce doesn't tell the whole story of what the housewife has to pay at the store. For every dollar spent on bread by the consumer, the farmer gets only 12 cents for the wheat that made the bread. Putting it another way, for every dollar the farmer is paid for wheat that is made into bread, about $8 is pumped into the national economy.

"Our farm exports help the whole economy too. Our balance-of-payments earnings from our wheat and wheat flour exports in the past year have amounted to 1¼ billion dollars.

"Possibly you would permit me to detail a few of the aspects of my Department that touch directly on all Canadians, whether they live in town or on the farms.

"Our Health of Animals Branch looks after meat inspection. Our veterinarians are at most plants across Canada. They also look after contagious livestock diseases — some of which affect humans.

"Our two biggest problems here have been TB and Brucellosis eradication. As far as TB is concerned, we can now say that there is more chance of a cow catching TB from a man than the man catching TB from cattle.

"Brucellosis, which turns up as undulant fever in humans, is also on the way out. Through our modern testing programs, we shall soon see Brucellosis a thing of the past.

"Our livestock division grades meat products — these are people that put the familiar red or blue brand stamp on the beef you buy. Our Fruit and Vegetable Division, Poultry Division, Dairy Division do the same thing in their fields.

"Our General Services unit keeps an eye on retail stores.

"The Consumer Section has a crew of home economists working on recipes and homemaker hints that help you get the most out of the food you buy.

"Our Plant Protection Division makes sure that your flowers and gardens are not going to be attacked by some new bug from another country. They have inspection officers at ports to investigate incoming cargoes.

"Our research branch is a story in itself. The Canada Department of Agriculture either does, or pays for, at least 80 per cent of all the agricultural research done in Canada. Many of the research officers are located at field establishments across Canada.

"One of our research units that is of interest to the consumer is the Foods Research Institute. This Institute is concerned with developing new food products and improving old ones. They've done quite a lot of interesting work on instant foods and have produced instant potatoes, instant turnips, and even a combination of instant meat and potatoes.

"I could talk about our supervision of race track betting, or of our supervision of livestock records — but I think this gives some idea of the work we are doing. And that it isn't just for the farmer!"

Clyde's Choice OF A NEW MOVIE

By CLYDE GILMOUR

Shirley MacLaine copes pluckily with a second-class script in WHAT A WAY TO GO, but it's only fair to add that a lot of people have enjoyed this one more than I did. It's a farce about a simple girl whose husbands keep dying off and leaving her burdened with millions of dollars.

Book of the Week

By PERCY ROWE

Canadians have great fun playing a game which might be called, "Let's all hate Toronto." But the city is well represented in a glossy new book, TORONTO, NO MEAN CITY, published by University of Toronto Press at $15. It includes hundreds of pictures which evoke the past magnificently. Not everybody will share author Eric Arthur's pride in all the buildings he presents, but this book is a "must" for ex-Torontonians living elsewhere.

Sea's century-old mystery

By Dorothy Barker (Diary of a Vagabond)

I finished renewing my acquaintance with Sherlock Holmes over a late coffee, and closed Conan Doyle's "Best Books — Volume 2" on the tale of J. Habakuk Jephson's Statement.

The story, slightly embellished by the famous mystery writer, was quite familiar to me. I recalled the summer afternoon a retired New Brunswick fisherman let me hold the sword purported to have been found stained with blood aboard the "Mary Celeste". She was the mystery ship whose story has been the object of conjecture for nigh onto a century. He told me he was a descendant of a crew member aboard the "Die Gratia" when the deserted brig was found. The sword had been ground to dagger size. When I asked why, he said it was used by successive members of his family to stick pigs, gut fish and decapitate chickens.

Just remembering the feel of cold steel on my warm palm recalled the legend of the hapless, seagoing, sail-rigged little ship.

Launched as the "Amazon" in May 1861 from the shores of Spencer's Island in the Basin of Minas, Nova Scotia, it ran the gamut of fair voyages and foul. She was sold at auction from a New York dock in November 1868 to Richard W. Haines as a wrecked vessel. He refitted her and changed her name, hoping no doubt to change her luck. Why he chose "Mary Celeste" has never been discovered, but a subsequent owner could have been forgiven if he expressed the thought she should have been renamed "Mary Diablesse". In the New York Pilotage Record, dated November 7, 1872, the name maritimers are more familiar with, Marie Celeste, first appeared.

Many writers besides Conan Doyle have made subject matter of the brigantine's last voyage, but no one since she was found adrift without a captain or crew more than 90 years ago, has ever come up with a solution for the reason she was apparently abandoned. Or, even more mysteriously, why the stout little brig, according to the last entry in her log, sailed crewless more than 200 miles without any more damage than the loss of a foresail. Cargo, personal belongings of the ten who sailed aboard her into oblivion, even a spool of thread standing on a table near a sewing machine, were, according to witnesses from the "Die Gratia" who claimed her for salvage, not even disturbed. This belied their first surmise that pirates had boarded her and abducted her captain, his wife, daughter and the crew.

Years after her salvage court hearing — for her last voyage the Mary Celeste was insured for $25,000 covering ship and cargo — she was beached on a coral reef near Haiti on January 3, 1885. This created a scandal that, it is said, eventually led to one suicide, the failure of several firms implicated in the falsification of cargo details, the death of her captain in three months, and that of her mate in six months.

Is it any wonder that sailors are superstitious, or that the story of the Mary Celeste haunts the paragraphs of so many tales and the memories of Maritime folk! I hope someday the sword will find a resting place in some museum. Authentic or not, it is a wonderful prop to stimulate the imagination of future adventurers, or authors. Surely it should be under glass before it is ground to its hilt and smeared with more blood or ingredients for gastronomical indulgence.

"Sunnyacres Sketches"

By Margaret Cook

Here we are at the end of September, suffering from shock of transition from the Laurentians to Suburbia. This is really an unsatisfactory time of year, for we shuttle back and forth. No sooner do we get caught up on the work in Suburbia, than it is time to go to the old house, and do likewise. When things get too bad here, we go down to the cold-room, and look at the jars of jam and jelly, 74 in all. They shine like jewels, rubies, topaz (that's the peach marmalade), emeralds (mint jelly) and the pale pink of apple jelly. Very satisfying. It's a cheap way, also, to win kudos. To many of the younger, urban generation, such an art is a mystery. One woman, after inspecting my stores, said, "You are really a very talented woman". I assured her that my "talent" was as a pebble in a gravel pit, where I was brought up, and where I prefer to live in maturity.

The end of the "silly season" found everybody going about to community affairs. We enjoyed the Carillon Museum tea and open house at the end of August, and reflected that separatism must be a facet of our life in Canada. There was a big table with French compatriots being loquacious and gracious. Only the President and one bilingual lady dared to sit down with them! At another big table were assembled some social and political figures of the county, all English. We, with our party, sat at a small table between these two factions, and although we spoke English, the head of the house listened in at the French conversation, and reported it was all about The Flag... Rather fun, wasn't it? I mean the flag debate. All columnists like to prophesy, and I predict that this particular debate is not yet over.

Then there were two events at the new church hall at Lakefield, both very successful, so far as we could judge. It is pleasant to see a community gathered in its church hall. What the living-room is to a home, is the church hall to a parish. One worships in the church, but the hall is for meeting one's friends. (I do not say "togetherness", a word I detest.)

We also drove about the country a bit, one of the excursions being to see the gentleman who owns the albino porcupines. There are three now, one having given birth in May. The young one, appropriately called Snowball, is a delight. He is quite tame, but the owner reports that picking it up only a few hours after its birth, it instinctively flipped up its tail, in the hope of making him a pincushion. The quills harden about four hours after arrival. (No, they are not born with hard quills. Anatomically, that would be tough on Mama.)

The head of the house and a young friend explored the river bed that same afternoon and came home with several bits of jasper. Argenteuil is very interesting geologically, the glacier having got in some of its best effects there. We were hard put to it, to get our young friend home; one had the impression that, what with the white porcupines, the ten cats, including several cuddly kittens, the things to be found in the river bed, and a noble forest, his cup ranneth over! How much do children brought up in the city miss in life! Much of the prevalent delinquency could be cured by a hardly-won knowledge of nature, and by that old bugbear, work. I'm all for work.

This same young man says there are beaver near Lakefield, and a friend in a neighboring municipality, looking out of his kitchen window, was literally astounded to see a lynx sauntering nonchalantly up the path leading from the swimming pool to the shower. He was too stunned to call anyone for several moments; when he did recover his voice, the animal had disappeared. But it was a lynx, ear-tufts and all. We, not to be outdone, saw a black porcupine, his quills being white. A native suggests that it merely looked black, in the dusk. The trouble with this theory is that it was not yet dusk. It was seven o'clock, or earlier. We have long had a porcupine living with us, so to speak, and him I have seen this summer, his color being, as always, a dirty grey. No, it was black — and I had been drinking only tea. Truly the faces of nature are many and marvelous, and I am always being astonished by the ignorance of, and indifference to, its manifestations by the people who have lived in the country all their lives. "Having eyes, and they see not." Even my kind, good friend, Amos, once confessed to me that the only two flowers he knew by sight and name were the pansy and the rose. It was typical of the man that he was able to say this. I bet there are some who are not sure about pansies.

When we write again, we shall be in the hunting season. Has everybody his lands posted? And, is YOUR gun handy? I read an amusing story this week about a little old lady who spent her spare time in the hunting season, letting air out of the tires of hunters' cars. Well, anyway, she played this once too often, was caught and fined. Then, she took to roaming her acres with a gun. If she saw a hunter, she aimed the gun, then lowered it, saying in her quaveriest voice, "Oh, I thought you were a rabbit!" Soon, she had everybody so scared that they left her acres in peace. Good idea! I believe it is a maxim among men that there is nothing more dangerous than a little woman with a gun... I hear from a friend that the No Hunting signs about Christieville actually worked. Or rather, what worked was the fact that the Chief of Police of the community lived near them, and used to prowl the roads with flashing lights, and all the other appurtenances of his job. "It seemed," she said, "that was just enough to scare 'em."... Another idea? We have always tried to promote the idea of a patrol during the hunting season, for which we would gladly pay our share. Honest hunters in need of meat would not be worried; wrong-doers would. The usual low-down character is also generally a coward. The new Attorney General for the province is asking for more severity in dealing with criminals; let's begin with the petty sinners in our woods and fields.

FAMOUS CANADIAN ARMY BADGES

Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps

Derived from and identical to the Royal Army Chaplain's Department is the badge of the Royal Canadian Army Chaplain Corps.

In most Canadian badges maple leaves are substituted for the traditional oak and laurel of the British Army.

Oak and laurel leaves in this badge, however, have historical significance — that of religious glory coupled with the military association.

The Maltese Cross with quatrefoil and motto "In this sign conquer" is the traditional badge for Christians.

Statistics of registry offices

Quebec — A new bulletin, issued by the Quebec Department of Industry and Commerce under the title "Statistics of Registry Offices", supplies information which will enable legislators, planners and businessmen in general to keep abreast of real estate developments in Quebec.

Of the 452,176 documents registered in Quebec registry offices during 1963, 86,589 were mortgages totalling $3,364,116, and 134,973 property transfers, including 115,166 actual sales amounting to a total of $154,581,631.

Also included in the bulletin are two plans, one showing registration divisions with their respective registry offices, the other featuring the divisions in the order of importance of mortgages registered.

This new publication of the Quebec Bureau of Statistics is available from the Information Service of the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Japanese want univ. education

More than half of all Japanese families plan to send their sons to university, according to a recent survey by the Japanese Government.

The countrywide survey by the Cabinet Secretariat's Public Relations Bureau disclosed that 65% of families planned to give sons a university training. Only 14% of the families had similar plans for daughters.

Touching on all phases of family life, the survey showed that most families in Japan intend to limit the size of the family to three children, while 27% of Japanese families said they want no more than two children.

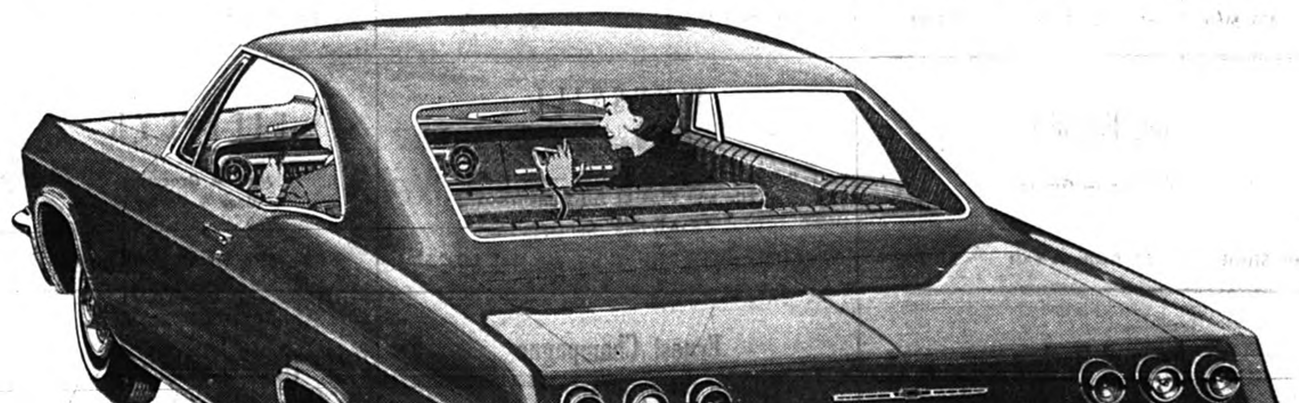

The survey showed that 60% of those interviewed were satisfied with their present living standards, and 49% said they were better off than a year ago while 31% felt they were worse off than a year ago.

The survey indicated that mixed living, combining Western and Japanese styles, is preferred by most younger families.

Council in protest to CPR service cut

Strong resolution to company and rail commission

A special session of Council, called to discuss the intention of CPR to drastically cut its railway passenger service, was held Monday evening in the Lachute Council chamber, with all members in attendance under the chairmanship of Mayor Campbell.

In the discussion, it was pointed out that during the past year passenger revenue has increased considerably on this line, some 2,200 fares having been sold last month alone. A resolution was passed, and it was decided to ask all petitioners to submit their protests to the municipal secretary-treasurer, so they could all be sent to the Board of Transport Commissioners and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

The change in CPR schedule will mean that there will be only two trains a day running between Montreal and Ottawa, one going to the Capital every morning and one returning to Montreal every evening. The change is contemplated for October 25.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas the Canadian Pacific Railway Company has announced that as of October 25, 1964, the services of trains Nos. 132-3 Montreal - Ottawa and Nos. 137-8 Ottawa - Montreal will be discontinued;

"Whereas such a measure shall have for effect to deprive of such services a population of 25,000 persons from Lachute and surrounding districts;

"Whereas the Municipal Council of the Town of Lachute deems it its duty to protest against such a decision;

"It is moved by Alderman Laurier Carriere, seconded by Alderman Dr. L. Middleton, and resolved that the Lachute Town Council hereby declare itself opposed to the cancellation of the trains (aforesaid) and that a copy of the present resolution be transmitted to both the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Board of Transport Commissioners in Ottawa."

Old stone dwelling holds mementos of past century

An old stone house at St. Hermas with a legendary background has been gradually furnished in the style of the past century, and bids fair to stand out as an authentic example of Quebec habitant living. On Route 8 in the Parish of St. Hermas, about a mile from the village, it is owned by Fernand Thibault, president of E. Thibault Ltée, manufacturers of Canadian-style furniture, at Ste. Therese.

Mr. Thibault has collected furnishings and utensils of the 1800's and categorized the building as a private museum, and it was inaugurated as such by a number of representatives from various tourist and cultural organizations, who gathered there on August 20.

The legendary aspect of this site is a story that, in the troublous times of 1837, the building was saved from fire and pillage by a barrel of wine! It was built in the year 1827, and the tradition recalls that soldiers burned the farmhouses in their path, but tarried here to satiate themselves with wine and exercised indulgence in return for the inmates' hospitality.

Among today's accoutrements of the household is a grandfather clock of 1824 with wooden cogs and movement; a three-decker wood stove over 200 years old; a four-poster bed; cradles; handmade pottery and other well-preserved antiques. In the attic are agricultural items, catalogued and displayed, representing early methods of farming.

Though not maintained as a public institution, it is hoped some day it may be opened for general visiting. In the old-time atmosphere of this house, the occupants, Mlle Madeleine Hamelin and her mother, served at the recent inaugural to friends and visitors home-made fare which was also reminiscent of the early Quebec cuisine. The Hamelin family are natives of the community, and one of its members is associated with Mr. Thibault in his business at Ste. Therese.

STOPPAGE OF WATER SUPPLY AVERTED BY QUICK ACTION

Agreement, remedial measures later endorsed by Town Council

A special session of Lachute Town Council on Monday evening ratified the action taken by Mayor Dave Campbell over the week-end, in an agreement with Norman Romer of the Lake Sir John Estates, without which Lachute district citizens would have been without water sometime Monday afternoon. . .

All-Night Operation

Starting at 7 o'clock Sunday evening, Mayor Campbell, Mr. Romer, Roger Alery of the engineering firm of Alery and Tanguay, and a crew of Lachute municipal employees, broke open a section of the causeway across Lake Sir John and installed a 24-inch pipe on the lake bed. The work was completed around 9 a.m. Monday, only due to the co-operation of all concerned and Dominion Ayers Limited, whose equipment was pressed into service; from then on, a substantial flow of water started on its way from the lake to the filtration plant. At 10.30 a.m. the warning bell on the plant clarifier rang, indicating there was not sufficient water to operate the plant, nor sufficient pressure to raise the water to the filtration beds. An hour later, it was estimated that there was a supply of water sufficient only for a two-hour period. The increased flow from Lake Sir John reached the plant only a short time before the plant would have been required to shut down completely.

Agreement on Control Device

In the agreement made between Mayor Campbell and Mr. Romer, the mayor assured Mr. Romer that the town would install a mechanical gate on the dam at the outlet of the lake, which would control the amount of water flowing from the lake in direct proportion to the amount of water needed, and would eliminate any possibility of wastage by means of an overflow at the filtration plant reservoir.

Council Endorsement

Ratification of the agreement was moved by Ald. Linton W. Armstrong, seconded by Ald. Laurier Carrière. With a full Council in attendance, the only dissenting vote was expressed by Ald. Dr. Zoël Saindon, who stated after the meeting that, while he was not necessarily opposed to the move, he did not see any reason for the necessity of rushing it through at that time.

The resolution, as proposed and carried, reads:

"That this Council does hereby:

"1. Approve of the various decisions and actions taken by the Mayor and members of the Council in connection with the recent emergency arising out of the low water level at Lake Sir John, mainly the installation at the Town's expense of a 24" pipe under the causeway through Lake Sir John;

"2. To take immediate action to install a mechanical gate of a proper size to regulate the necessary flow of water from Lake Sir John, to conserve the reserve and avoid waste of water in said lake which is the source of the Town's water supply. This gate to be of a type approved by engineers for said purpose."

The meeting, which was called for eight o'clock, did not get underway until 9.20 p.m., due to continuing negotiations between Mayor Campbell and Mr. Romer and his lawyer, and a caucus of the Council members bringing them up to date on all the proceedings.

Mayor Campbell pointed out that before the pipe was placed in the causeway, the water on the lake side was 2 ft. 9 ins. higher than that in the pond between the causeway and the outlet dam. In commenting on the verbal agreement made between himself and Mr. Romer, Mayor Campbell pointed out that, in spite of the Provincial Health Department having been notified, it might have been necessary to cut off the water supply to Ayersville and St. Jerusalem; no action had been taken by the Department. "We could have gone into Lake Sir John and done exactly what we did, on our own. However, we would have been responsible for all damages and become involved in a lawsuit and court action. This would have cost considerably more than the mechanical gate!"

"Early Monday afternoon, shortly before the water arrived from the lake, the filtration plant was non-operational, the water level being 61 inches below the top of the dam," reported Dr. L. A. Middleton, chairman of the Water Committee.

Mayor Campbell pointed out that an offer of a sufficient supply of water to meet the town's requirements for a number of days had been received from Neal Moore, a resident of the area, who has a considerable reservoir of water in two small private artificial lakes. The agreement with Mr. Romer, however, averted the necessity of opening the dams in these two lakes.

It was also pointed out that the mechanical gate was only a temporary solution, as Lachute could not hope to continually take more water out of the lake than was flowing into it. A survey of all the water available in the watershed above Lake Sir John was recommended, going back to Williams Lake, Lake Dawson and Long Lake (Lake Barron). . . This matter was shelved for further study and consideration.

Mayor warns on obstruction to water meters

Ald. Edmund McFaul reported to Council that approximately 50 persons had refused to allow the installation of water meters in their houses. It was pointed out that Council was authorized to enter any residence or place of business between the hours of 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. to install, check, read, or work on water meters, and persons refusing to comply with this by-law were liable to a fine of $40 plus costs.

"We would hate to see anyone get into unnecessary trouble in regard to this matter," Mayor Campbell stated, "However, these meters must be installed and if the people concerned insist on refusing meter installation, we will be forced to take the necessary action.

"This by-law has been in effect for a number of years, and as long as it is on the books, it is the duty of every alderman to uphold it, just as it is the duty of all citizens to respect it," he added.

Man charged in Ayersville assault, released on bail

Warrant for the arrest of a young Ayersville resident, Alain Murphy, a suspect in the assault of Claude Lavoie, was issued last week. The man turned himself over to Provincial Police on Thursday, and was arraigned in court at St. Jerome next day, on a charge of bodily assault with intent to maim. He was released on bail of $500, to appear before the court on October 16.

Murphy was identified as the attacker of Claude Lavoie, 27, whose picture appeared in The Watchman last week following a beating he received one night when driving to his home in Ayersville. A car obstructed his path on St. Jean Street, and when he alighted to investigate, he was set upon by his attacker. The latter was joined by two others, and Lavoie was badly kicked and beaten. The attack occurred around 2 o'clock a.m.

The accused will be defended by Pierre Rousseau, lawyer, of St. Jerome, while attorney for Lavoie will be Pierre Dulude, of Montreal, legal counsel for the CSN (Confédération des Syndicats Nationaux).

Red Cross blood clinic sets new local record

The 1964 Blood Clinic quota was reached early Tuesday evening, according to Paul Deslauriers, this year's energetic chairman, who reported a total of 707 pints of blood donated. The quota was set at 625.

A steady flow of donors was in evidence at all times during the Red Cross Clinic, with few peak periods, and while the number of donors far exceeded those of last year, the clinic did not appear to be so rushed or overcrowded.

Thirty-three donors from C-I-L and Canadian Safety Fuse were registered, along with a number of other volunteers from Brownsburg, where no clinic had been held this year. Donors made use of the free transportation offered, by calling from Brownsburg, St.

Conservation Centre opened at Arundel

A recent meeting at Arundel held jointly by the Laurentian Protestant Colonization Society, and the Protestant Colonization Society of Montreal, served to inaugurate the new Conservation Centre which has been erected through the efforts of the Arundel School Tree Farm Committee and the students of Arundel Intermediate School.

The group from Montreal was met by Melvin Graham, chairman of the Committee, and Wm. Barton, president of the Laurentian Society, and taken for a brief tour of the Farm, inspecting the more than 30,000 trees which the students have planted there.

Chairman of the supper meeting, the first such affair held in the splendid new building, was T. G. Sevigny, president of the Protestant Colonization Society, who asked Mr. Graham to outline the history and aims of the Tree Farm. The latter reported that the project had started in an effort to acquaint students with the facts of conservation and the practical value of tree farming.

The first project was the building of the sugar house and the production and sale of syrup, which gave the students their first taste of making money from the farm. Later, when the present farm of 135 acres had been deeded to the Committee by the Canadian International Paper Co., the students learned something of the hard work which must be done in tree farming. To finance the building of the Centre the students also worked hard, holding dances, bazaars, etc., so that their contribution toward the building fund now amounted to more than $4,000.

Mr. Graham modestly gave the credit to the students and to many commercial concerns for their contributions, both in cash and materials, and felt that the Centre would be a real help as a meeting place, and in acquainting the students with the value of trees in their science courses.

Mr. Sevigny then read a summary of the Hedlin-Menzies report on "Farming in Eastern Canada", which gave many revealing figures on the economic situation in Quebec, and the other four eastern provinces. Other topics discussed included the need for Government assistance in obtaining an adequate supply of hay, and whether it would be possible for the dairy farmers of the district to obtain a market for their milk in the bottled trade. It was pointed out that, while they were getting less than $3 per cwt. for their milk at the creamery, bottled milk from the larger centres, such as Lachute and St. Jovite, was being widely sold in their district, and members felt that they should be able to sell their milk at the fluid price of $5.11 per cwt.

Dr. D. G. J. Wilson, noted Montreal writer and lecturer, thanked the Laurentian Society for their hospitality and wished them well.

Week's Epigram

Too many things that go without saying aren't left unsaid.

Announce meeting on unionization of prov'l employees

A general discussion meeting for all provincial government employees and agents in Argenteuil, on the matter of the vote requested by Premier Jean Lesage, is being held Thursday, October 8, at 8.30 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Lachute.

Special speakers will be Eugene Asselin, of Montreal, vice-president of the Quebec union of provincial officers; Arthur Lapointe, of Montreal, and Jean Bernier, of Hull, organizers for the CSN; and Lucien Giroux, who performs the same role in this community.

The proposed vote will give provincial employees the right to unionize. According to Mr. Giroux this is a foregone conclusion, for provincial functionaries are painfully aware of the need of protection for their jobs in the case of change of power or political party. What they ask for, said this spokesman, is freedom of expression, like any other citizen, and above all, security in their work. . . Unionization will be dynamic and democratic, free of any political adherence, according to the local organizer.

Local firm has part in mobile display to promote Canadian plywood in U.S.A.

A mobile promotion display designed to sell Canadian birch plywood throughout the United States went on view recently on Parliament Hill, Ottawa. . . Dominion Ayers Wood Division has a part in sponsoring this project to publicize Canadian plywood products.

The Minister of Trade and Commerce, Mitchell Sharp, inspected the trailer and chatted with Linda Barks, the attractive young Ottawa woman selected recently as the Canadian Birch Girl. She will be the birch ambassador of goodwill as the trailer crisscrosses the United States from coast to coast. Also in attendance at the send-off ceremonies were officials from the member companies of the association, including Harold J. Holdsworth, general sales manager of Dominion Ayers Wood Products.

Birch is Canada's prime hardwood species, and the object of this promotion is to increase its popularity and consumption in the United States, thereby offsetting the effects of low-priced imports which have seriously damaged the Canadian market and depressed the domestic prices over the past seven years.

The birch exhibit is a joint effort financed by the Department of Trade and Commerce and the Canadian Hardwood Plywood Association. Dominion Ayers Ltd., as a member of the C.H.P.A., is contributing. The display will be transported throughout the United States in a trailer by a technical representative, John J. Legare. Early visits of the tour will include Springfield, Mass., Boston, Philadelphia, Dallas, Chicago and the U.S. west coast.

Divided into three sections, the trailer shows how birch can be used in kitchen cabinets, wall panelling, flush doors, and specialized industrial plywood items, all of which are being produced at the local Dominion Ayers Ltd. plywood plant.

At each exhibit, the attendance will distribute attractive literature on Canadian birch plywood. When possible, representatives of the Canadian Hardwood Plywood Association and locally based Department of Trade and Commerce personnel will be on hand to answer queries.

Hearing is resumed on chief's dismissal

Judge John F. Sheehan, of the Quebec Municipal Commission, has reopened the case of Jean-Louis Hébert, former police chief, vs. Lachute Town, over the question of his dismissal from the police force.

A hearing was held in the council chamber at city hall on Monday, when the judge recalled Ald. Nelson Lepage, who had testified at the first hearing; also other councillors were heard, who had not given previous evidence — Messrs. Edmund McFaul, P.-E. Pariseau, Dr. L. A. Middleton and Dr. R. A. Dumais.

The attorney for Lachute Town, Roger Lagarde, QC, presented a request that the secretary-treasurers of Rockland, Ont., and Gatineau, Que., be called to give evidence contributory to the case. (Mr. Hebert had served as chief at Rockland and assistant-chief at Gatineau.) These two witnesses accordingly stated reasons for Mr. Hebert's termination of duties in their respective towns.

It is recalled that the first hearing in this controversy was held last April. In a two-day sitting, a total of 20 witnesses were questioned.

On conclusion of last Monday's hearing, the judge requested the attorneys for both parties to submit their briefs in writing, within 15 days.

Counsel for the plaintiff is Gérard Lévesque, QC, who is legal consultant for the Quebec Police and Fire Chiefs Association.

Late Justice J.-L. St. Jacques was M.P.P. for Argenteuil in 1925-27

Justice J.-L. St. Jacques, a one-time lawyer in Lachute and M.P.P. for Argenteuil, died last week in hospital after a long illness. He was 87 years of age.

Born 1877 in St. Hermas, he was educated at Jacques Cartier Normal School in Montreal and Laval University. He became a lawyer in 1901 and practised in Lachute until 1907, when he entered a partnership with Gustave Lamonthe, KC, in Montreal. (Mr. Philippe Valois, of Lachute, later practised law under this partnership.)

He was created a KC in 1917, and he was Justice of Appeal, Court of Queen's Bench, from 1932 until he retired several years ago.

The late Joseph-Léon St. Jacques was elected Conservative representative here in 1925 in a by-election for the seat of John Hay, deceased; his majority was 435 votes. He occupied the seat in Quebec Legislature until 1927, when he was defeated in the general election by Georges Dansereau. The latter was succeeded in office by his son Georges-Etienne Dansereau, up until 1948.

The late Judge J.-L. St. Jacques is survived by three sons, Jules, Gustave and Gerard, and two daughters, Alberte and Mrs. Paul de Seve (Jacqueline).

Rites were held Monday at the St. Germain Church in Outremont, with burial in Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

Rotary Club plans events

Having been forced by inclement weather to postpone their "work night" at the community park, members of the Brownsburg - Lachute Rotary Club devoted program time at the September 24 meeting to a discussion of club business and financing. Evolving as a part of this discussion was a decision to hold a raffle of a Hus-Ski. Tickets will be on sale for the drawing, which is scheduled for the month of December.

President Phil Grant announced that Lucien Leroux, chairman of the scheduled Science Fair, has been put in charge of the program for October 1, when the guest speaker for the evening will address the Club on Science Fair programs.

By BOB ATCHISON

At Ste. Agathe this past week I had a preview of the '65 boats and motors manufactured by Outboard Marine, and to say they have improved is putting it mildly. One of them I took a shine to (well out of my price range, of course) was an Evinrude combination — a V-6 powered with a Buick special motor, an inboard-outboard affair of 150 h.p. It had a tri-point fibreglass hull that almost flew over the water. If you happen to be in the market for something like this, then you won't mind the gas consumption, roughly 6 gallons an hour. All these motors run around 4,400 r.p.m. for most economical operation, so you can imagine, they move right along. Another one I liked, not so expensive, was a "Traveller" boat; clinker-built, out of fibreglass, this boat seemed to be good at everything. I rode around the lake a couple of times in this one, and even with a light chop on the water it did not pound too much. What it would do in a real swell though, I don't know. But even the way it was, I was surprised, as most boats with a fair amount of speed will not even take a light breeze. . . Now all you have to do is wait until they are shown at the dealers'; then figure out just how to rob the youngsters' piggy bank without getting caught, and you are in business.

Last week-end, as most of you know, the duck season opened in parts of the County. You don't really have to be told this, however; with the barrage going on, it would have been impossible to ignore it. Up at home, shooting could be heard all the way down to St. Andrews. And this wasn't all, just shooting; the ducks sure took a beating on this occasion. All the summer ducks that had been with us are non-existent. I heard of a group from Montreal who had taken 47 ducks in the morning and then went right back out the same evening for the night shoot. No wonder we have no ducks! It always seems that the first day is the killer; once the ducks have been shot at, they smarten up

There's activity in the fishing field these days; greys and reds are being taken, some good ones too. Naturally, the greys are being caught on a troll, but not too deep right now. The reds are hitting on the spinning gear. So for any of you fishermen who have missed the sport for the past month or so, now seems to be a good time. A couple of the locals treked into the bush up north; they fished for three days, with not even a bite. However, this same lake had been good the week before. Even the creeks are filling up a little, and you might be lucky enough to get some brookies. But I would imagine any fish taken this way will be very hard to catch, so you'll really have to work for them. A few of us boys watched a Northern pike slashing through a school of minnows the other day. Watching the shiners trying to escape, was a lesson in futility; boy, those pike sure can clean up a bunch of minnows every pass they make at them. Seeing the tiddlers leaping into the air in a desperate attempt to escape was something to behold. I wonder just why it is that anything under attack will almost always band together in a mass, trying to get away; this is one time "safety in numbers" simply doesn't pay.

I seem to remember some years ago, being told that a certain dam "did not hold back water", yet I see where the town had to open a causeway a little to allow water to run down to the filtration plant from Lake Sir John. . . I might also remark, this problem is not peculiar to Lachute. All over the country there are complaints of low water; even the Great Lakes are at a lower level than at any other time. With the draining of the wetlands and so forth, it won't take too long until we are in a critical situation which will be hard to rectify. I don't believe that Nature alone can overcome this either; we have to start doing something for ourselves, some time. All the water boards seem to have bogged down; why, I could not say (besides, I would probably be wrong). Any way it is tackled though, it had better be soon. With new factories, developments and so on, all over creation, draining water in a never-ending stream of millions of gallons per day, it is no wonder we are in trouble.

I believe everyone knows the terrible mess the Department of Fish and Game made of the duck licenses and regulations. Not so much on the licenses; after all, they collect money for these — but the regulations don't seem to concern these authorities too much. Imagine a government finally getting regulations out for a sport that attracts thousands of shooters, just a few days before the season opens. This would not have been too bad, but most of the officials didn't even know where the shooting areas were. For instance, we have a divided zone in our County; east and north of the Carillon dam was opened on the 19th, west and north of the dam for ten miles was closed, until the 26th. Yet nothing was really known of these divisions until the last minute. You know, when you consider a great many duck men shoot over this area, and in some cases had made arrangements to do this for the 19th, as they were told they could — then you start to wonder about the efficiency of the "management" up top.

Information gathered in Montreal the other day, on the numbers of moose hunters this year, also makes you wonder. One observer gave his opinion that within a year everything worthwhile in this province will have been shot out; and after listening to him, I could well believe it. It seems that last year there were a good many disgruntled moose men in this province. With no bulls to shoot, there was virtually no game. With all types as legal game to be killed this year, then everyone is happy, I won't say all outdoorsmen — but they don't count. The reason given by the government for this is a dilly. It appears there are numerous cow moose on the loose, that are not breeding, so they must be killed. If the "brains" running this show have got this into their heads, then maybe we WILL end up with nothing. Of course the cow moose needed a mate, but just how do they expect to cure this by allowing all types to be shot? Don't they know that a bull may have many mates? Truly, as regards the protection of game in this province, we are so far behind, or indifferent, that it will take generations to catch up. . . . Once again, don't misunderstand me; I repeat, we have some very dedicated men working in this department, but the unfortunate thing is that they are just workers, and not politicians. The sooner this show is taken out of political handling, the better it will be.

Birds are starting to flock right now, so you bird lovers, please give them a hand. Scatter some of your birdseed around; this doesn't have to be put into feeders, any old place will do. The birds will find it fast enough. They have a long way to go, so a little feed will help a lot.

Water Skiing WITH CLINT WARD

Why Not a Water Ski Club?

Owning all of the equipment necessary to follow the three events in water skiing is impossible for most families. So why not join together with other families on your lake and through the concerted efforts of many, the extra equipment needed will become a reality.

First off you will need a small piece of property on the waterfront where you can build a starting dock. This meeting place could also include a clubhouse or perhaps just a storage building for the members' skis and gear. A small workshop could be included to facilitate minor repairs on boats, motors and skis.

The club should have a good water ski jumping ramp, which members can build themselves in the spring. When launched, the ramp should be anchored in front of the club property.

A slalom course should also be included in club plans. This course can be laid out in the spring in a protected water area near the club grounds. Better still if you are located on a lake, lay out the course during the winter by cutting holes through the ice.

Members of the club will likely have their own tow-boats but maybe the club as a group will be able to purchase a twin-rig or powerful inboard, fast enough to practice the men members in slalom and jumping. The club boat can also be used as a towing rig for water shows.

All of the above will require money and labor. This must come from the members in the form of fees and donated time. A good way to ease the burden of money payments is to raise funds through club activities such as tournaments and water shows. Local business men may also want to lend a hand financially, for in the long run a good water ski club is a benefit to any community.

The persons who will gain the most from such a club are the youngsters but the organizing will have to be done by the parents. Meetings can be held during the winter months to discuss many of the problems of organization. Such things as incorporation, by-laws, officers, fee structure and so on must be thrashed out to the agreement of all persons concerned.

One thing that must be realized from the start is that a new club is not born without hours of work on the part of the organizers. In the end all of the work will become worthwhile for it is through club organization that the great sport of water skiing will grow and prosper.

Many advantages can be realized from your club. First the members can benefit from an organized program of instruction with safety being a prime concern.

Progress will be quickened as competition among members spurs interest. And last but not least you will be able to join in the thrill of group water skiing, enjoying Canada's fastest growing family sport to the fullest.

Last fish derby October 4 on Ottawa River

The Argenteuil Fishing and Hunting Association's final fish derby of the season will be an affair next Sunday, October 4, at Fernand Ouellette's on the Ottawa River. This site, at La Baie, St. Andrews, will be made available by the proprietor, and the general public are invited. Fishing will be permitted this side of the Argenteuil and Deux Montagnes boundary, both below and above the Carillon Dam.

Fishing will conclude at 4 p.m., but according to the organizer, Paul Desjardins, Sr., an extra half-hour will be allowed for fishermen to register their catches.

Entry fee is $1; and a number of entrance prizes, for which all participants may qualify, will be topped by the awarding of a rowboat. (Information — LO 2-2256 or LO 2-4121.)

483 MAIN LACASSE AUTOMOBILE LTEE LACHUTE

Claims 'two sides' to Lake Sir John causeway

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Watchman

Sir: In view of the mass of misinformation, misunderstanding, ignorance and prejudice surrounding the water situation at Sir John's Lake, may I take some of your valuable space to set the record straight?

Early in 1963 I requested an interview with Mayor Campbell to discuss this matter, and on February 11, 1963, I confirmed our discussion with the following letter:

(Letter, abridged)

Lake Sir John Estates

Dear Mr. Campbell:

As advised, I do not think that there is any problem at the Lake which cannot be solved by mutual understanding and co-operation. For my part, I fully realize the paramount importance of Lachute having an adequate water supply, and would in no way interfere with this even if I could. However, in the final analysis, the only water that can be taken out of Sir John's Lake on a regular basis is the water which comes into it, otherwise you are just emptying the lake, and lowering it excessively merely reduces your reserves for emergencies after which you must inevitably return at some point to the normal flow. The problem therefore is mostly one of deciding on an "ideal" level to provide the town with the maximum reserves and protection, while at the same time establishing a "normal" level at which the property-holders around the lake can plan their beaches, docks, etc., without being subject to extreme variations of several feet. As the controlling factor in this regard is the town's dam, the maintenance of a "normal" level depends almost entirely on the intelligent operation of this dam.

The trouble up to now is that once opened the dam has often been left that way for days at a time, unnecessarily lowering the lake to undesirable levels, while the surplus water is overflowing through your by-pass at the filtration plant, where it does you no good and us a great deal of harm.

Conversely last fall for no apparent reason extra planks were added to the dam at the time of heavy rains, which raised the lake to unprecedented heights, flooding beaches and washing away docks, and coming within a few inches of flooding my cottage. Here again we are suffering damage, with no apparent advantage to the town.

I was interested to hear that Lachute is considering acquiring the rights to build a dam at the outlet of Williams Lake, with the object of raising the water level and creating an additional reservoir there. Properly regulated, this could be most helpful in solving both our problems, inasmuch as whenever Lachute requires an additional million gallons of water (to use a figure for illustration), which has to be drawn off Sir John's Lake, an equivalent amount could be released from the Williams Lake reservoir to replace it, thus maintaining a normal water level in Sir John's Lake. The danger would be in uncontrolled and unscientific manipulation of the dams by unqualified and disinterested town employees, who could for instance in a dry spell leave the Williams Lake dam closed, cutting off the flow into Sir John's Lake, while opening up the outlet dam of the latter. This would result in a rapid and even disastrous lowering of the water level in Sir John's Lake, leaving wide mud flats in front of many homes.

However, as mentioned above, I do not think that there is any especially difficult problem involved in this matter, it is mainly a question of an intelligent and friendly understanding of each other's needs and interests, followed by full co-operation to achieve the maximum results with the minimum friction. Most misunderstandings arise from poor communications, and if you feel that it would help I would be most happy to meet with the full council, or the Waterworks Committee, to discuss this situation further.

Yours sincerely,

Norman Romer,
President

I think this letter speaks for itself insofar as my desire to co-operate is concerned. Yet to hear some of the gossip around town, one would think that I was some kind of ogre whose sole desire was to deprive everyone of water out of pure cussedness!

In spite of my offer to meet with the appropriate officials to arrive at a mutually satisfactory working basis, I was never contacted or consulted by anyone, and the Town has carried on as before, opening the dam at the end of our lake at whim, without any proper controls, and leaving it open long after it was necessary, with the result that on at least one or two occasions the gates of the Filtration Plant reservoir were opened to relieve the pressure, as the water there was overflowing. This resulted in a tremendous wastage of water, while the level in Sir John's Lake continued to go down. It should therefore be clearly understood that this lack of scientific and intelligent control of the Town's dam is a major factor in creating the present shortage, and in lowering the level of the lake to its lowest point in many years.

Now, with regard to our causeway: Because the original 24" steel pipes, which were installed in November 1959, were not particularly well placed, we subsequently put in two 36" concrete culverts, which are more than enough to take many times the normal flow of the lake, except for a week during the spring run-off; and because the steel pipes were only 24 feet long, we decided last Monday to take advantage of the low water to remove them and make them 36 feet. . . In replacing them we raised them so that the main flow of water would go through the big 36" pipes, which were properly placed in the centre of the main channel. This work resulted in a temporary stoppage of the flow through the causeway, but by Tuesday evening we had installed a new pipe which is lower than the steel pipes which we raised, and which took all the present natural flow of the lake; this is proved by the fact that the lake continued to drop. The fact that the Town's open dam drained the lower part of the lake below the causeway during this period, resulting in a different level on each side, did not affect the flow of water through the causeway any more than the fact that the water has to drop several feet into the creek after it passes through the Town's dam.

Now some additional facts, which may come as a surprise to many people:

(a) The Town of Lachute has no water or other rights on Sir John's Lake whatsoever, other than the normal flow; some years ago they purchased some property south of the lake, with whatever power rights there were on the creek below the lake;

(b) Sir John's Lake Estates Ltd. had an absolute right to build a causeway on its own property, and to maintain a normal lake level, subject only to allowing free passage of the normal flow, which it has always done; "normal flow" does not mean allowing the lake to be drained to its bed by opening up its gate wide and drawing off several times the inflow.

In any event, because of the serious situation which had developed due to a combination of this lack of proper control of the Town's dam, and the lack of rainfall, a conference was held between the Mayor and myself and two qualified engineers on Friday last, as a result of which I agreed to permit the Town to install a 24" pipe in the causeway, virtually on the bed of the lake, in order to relieve the immediate shortage. This was conditional on:

(a) A scientific, mechanically-operated control gate, installed as soon as possible on the Town's dam, in order to eliminate the haphazard, guesswork method of the past;

(b) A long-range survey by qualified engineers be undertaken as soon as possible to determine and implement the Town's needs both now and in the future, as it is apparent that the normal flow from Sir John's Lake is not sufficient during a dry spell, and therefore, either additional sources must be found or additional reservoirs must be created.

It is unfortunate that it took a crisis to bring about the co-operation I have been seeking for the last five years, but if it results in the long-range solution of Lachute's water supply, while at the same time maintaining a reasonable mean level in Sir John's Lake, it will have been worth it for all concerned.

Shame (over an untidy house), fear (of consequences), ignorance (of what it's all about) — forget these things if you have an ounce of common sense. Welcome the visitor, an authorized fire fighter, if he knocks at your door suggesting a look-see for fire hazards.

But why wait for the fire fighter? Check these hazards yourself. Or call the fire chief and make an appointment.

Columnist writes to the Minister on abuses of the hunting season

An open letter from Margaret Cook, our "Sunnyacres" columnist, has been directed to the Minister of Tourism, Fish and Game — a copy of which has been received also by the mayor of the Township of Gore, Mr. Herbert McDonald. The letter reads in part as follows:

Ste. Anne de Bellevue,
Sept. 21, 1964.

To the Hon. Lionel Bertrand,
Dept. Tourism, Fish & Game,
Quebec City, Que.

Dear Sir:

As regards a recent letter from the Rev. H. G. Baugh addressed to the Minister and published in Lachute Watchman — for the past three years I have written you at the hunting season, and I now endorse the four questions asked by Mr. Baugh. . .

So far as I can gather from talking with people, it is the permission to kill does and fawns that particularly repels and incenses them. There IS something repulsive in the idea, and it is also foolish. If this permission is allowed, there will be in a very few years no game left in Argenteuil. Is the Minister acquainted with the area around Lakefield? Even twenty years ago, this was a wild part of the province, with abundant game; now it is a rarity, so balked of real sport, the "hunters" kill song birds, cows, cats, and dogs, making life a horror for the inhabitants, which are many more than formerly. At our own Lake Barron, the increase in population from early May till late November must be well over 1,000, with a proportionate increase all around us.

Another source of resentment is the feeling that the Game Wardens are not in sympathy with people who report such things as the wanton killing of song birds and domestic animals. My own experience in our domestic tragedy three years ago was different. But then I did not bother with a Game Warden. The officials of your Department were courteous and correct. Maybe it was because I have the means of being more vocal. I did note subsequently, the banning of the killing of les petits oiseaux, once this revolting habit was made public. Sitting in Quebec, it is not easy to know what is going on in the hinterland, and advisers sometimes shield the official from the hard truths.

With all good wishes in what I do realize is a difficult task.

Faithfully yours
(Signed) I. M. Cook

THE GROWTH OF CO-OPS

I see where one small-town citizen wrote to the editor to complain that the Co-ops are practically taking over in that town. In my own lifetime, I have seen remarkable growth in the Co-op movement, and if it continues at the present pace I doubt that there will be any independent merchants left by the time my son is my age.

While it may be true that Co-ops are run by clever men, I wonder if they are that much smarter than their private competitors. I doubt it. It seems to me it is the tremendous advantage they have been given by the taxation authorities that has accounted for their exceptionally rapid growth.

If I were a young man looking for a career, I would be very tempted to get into this business, at the top management level. I know of no other business which offers a greater chance to succeed. How, indeed, can a Co-op fail when it pays taxes at such a low rate while competitors are paying up in the 50% bracket?

Another big advantage, of course, is the declaring of patronage dividends, but not paying them out to the members; instead, the money is used for expansion, sometimes without interest, sometimes for long periods of time. Any good businessman or farmer, able to get such interest-free loan capital, could certainly grow by leaps and bounds.

The Co-operative principle is an excellent one. It started with a desire of good people to help each other. It pays local municipal taxes without complaint. I believe that it ought now, if it is to continue to be a high-principled operation, undertake to pay its full share of the cost of running the country.

The burden of taxation is an onerous one these days. It seems unfair that powerful formations of capital, such as the big Co-operatives, who do business with all-comers, should escape paying normal taxes in line with those of other companies.

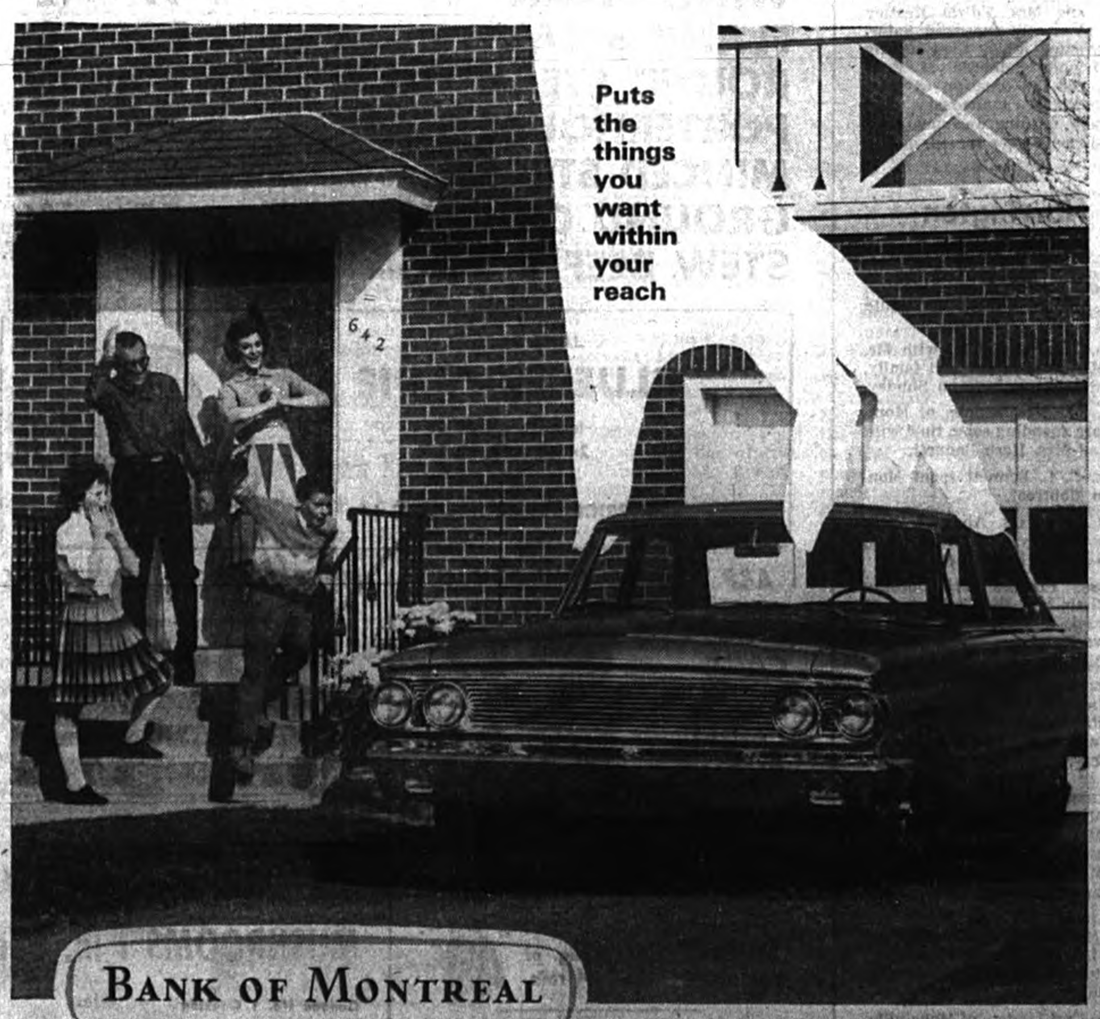

Blood donors set new record

Philippe, St. Andrews East, Lakefield and points farther afield.

An appeal to parents, in the form of a letter with a reply portion, distributed through the Catholic School system of the community, reportedly met with unexpected success; an excellent response was forthcoming. (A policy rule did not permit the same action through the Protestant schools.)

In 1962, the previous record was set under Ken Riley, when a total of 608 pints were donated. Last year, Chairman Paul Deslauriers reported 584 donors responding to the appeal, and this week's clinic sets a new local record for donors.

IN MEMORIAM

KEATLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband (Leslie), who passed away to his reward on Oct. 2, 1963. — Ever remembered by his wife, Maudie.

"As roses sleep in winter
Under mounds of drifted snow,
To bloom again in springtime
With a sweetness we have learned to know —
So God is tenderly keeping
The soul of our loved and best,
To rise in that glad great morning
After the season of rest."

KEATLEY — In fond and loving memory of dear Daddie, taken from us about a year ago. Dearly loved and sadly missed by Gary and Faye.

"Just a cluster of beautiful memories
Sprayed with a million tears —
If God could only have spared you
For just a few more years."

KEATLEY (Leslie) — In loving memory of our dear brother, who passed away Oct. 2, 1963. — Always remembered by Arthur, Dorothy and children.

KEATLEY (Leslie) — In loving memory of a dear brother, who passed away Oct. 2, 1963. — Sadly missed by your sister, Pearl, brother-in-law, Wilfrid, and family.

"The golden gate stood open
One year ago today,
With farewells left unspoken,
You quietly slipped away.
God knew that you were weary,
The hill too steep to climb,
He gently took your hand in His
And whispered 'Peace be thine'."

UNDERHILL (Herbert E.) — In loving memory of a dear dad and grandfather, who passed away Sept. 30, 1963. — Always remembered by Raymond, Beryl, and families.

"Memory keeps us ever near you"

WOODWARD — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel Evelyn, who passed away on Sept. 30, 1958. — Lovingly remembered by her husband and family.

Harrington lady mourned by many relatives, friends

Late Mrs. Geo. Ward, Sr.

On Friday, September 18, at the Powers Hospital in St. Philippe, Que., Mrs. George Ward, Sr., passed away after a short illness.

The late Mrs. Ward was in her 81st year; she had lived all her married life on a farm in Harrington, Que.

She leaves to mourn her loss four sons and three daughters. Elmer and Beryl, at home, Richard, of Ottawa, George, of Grenville, Billy, of Lachute, Susie (Mrs. Fred Myers) of Brookdale, Violet (Mrs. Albert Myers), also of Brookdale, and Jennie (Mrs. Jack Linton), of Namur — besides nieces and nephews, 25 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The remains rested at the Grenville Funeral Home. Service was held in Rivington Baptist Church, conducted by the Rev. H. Hill. Hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "The Old Rugged Cross". The remains were laid to rest in the McIntosh Cemetery at Rivington.

A profusion of flowers showed the high esteem in which the late Mrs. Ward was held. She was also a great helper in Red Cross work.

Pall-bearers were — Messrs. Robert, Percy and Roy Welburn, Eddie Linton, Donald Myers and Clinton Townsend.

Among the out-of-town relatives and friends attending were Mrs. Leggitt, Pat Cochrane and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Bisson.

Rivington

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McCabe included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meunier, of Boucherville, Que., and Mr. Marcel Villecourt, of St. Vincent de Paul.

A welcome to this community is extended to Mrs. George Higginson, of Lachute, who has accepted a teaching position in Harrington Intermediate School.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Campbell included the Misses Marjorie and Eleanor Campbell, Miss Hazel Godin, Miss Patricia Cole, Miss Beverley Wilson, Mr. Wayne Davidson, all of Montreal, and Mr. David Staniforth, of Arundel.

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith included Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Antle and family, of Otterburn Park, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Strader, and Mr. Claire Empy, all of Williamsburg, Ont.

St. Andrews East

Mr. F. W. F. Whitehead, who is one of the lay delegates to the Synod of the Diocese of Montreal from Christ Church, St. Andrews East, was invited by the Diocese of Niagara to attend the 10th annual conference sponsored by the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen, at Hamilton, on Saturday, September 26. Mr. Whitehead was invited to take charge of a discussion group on credit buying, its uses and abuses. . . Mr. Whitehead is also a member of the Diocesan Council for Social Service in Montreal.

Former president of Historical Soc'y died suddenly

The late Arthur F. Hanly

The death of Mr. A. F. Hanly occurred suddenly at his residence, just east of Lachute, on Friday evening, September 25.

The deceased gentleman, who was 72 years of age, was born in the vicinity of Almonte, Ont., where he spent his early childhood. He later attended college and graduated as an electrical engineer. His profession brought him to Montreal some 40 years ago, where he followed his vocation.

Mr. Hanly was married to Miss Grace M. Watson, of Montreal, in 1927. Their family comprises two daughters, Margaret and Diana (Mrs. J. Walker), both of Montreal, and one son, Kenneth, of Lachute, who with their mother and many friends are left to mourn his passing.

In 1949, Mr. Hanly acquired the former W. Jackson farm, and on his retirement from active business spent much of his time here, still however maintaining his city residence. The farm is now being operated by his son, Kenneth.

A Mason, a member of St. Andrew's Westmount Church, and active in numerous charitable works, Mr. Hanly was also keenly interested in the Argenteuil Historical Society, where he served constructively and graciously as president for several terms.

A private funeral was held on Monday from the D. A. Collins Chapel in Montreal, burial taking place in Mount Royal Cemetery.

35th Anniversary observances at Maple Ave. Church

Brownsburg — On September 26-27, at the 35th anniversary of Maple Avenue Baptist Church, all available space was used for the Saturday dinner and the Sunday morning service. A beloved former pastor, the Rev. Elmore Young, of Kitchener, Ont., was speaker at all occasions.

Highlights of the Saturday dinner, prepared by the Ladies' Aid, were a toast to the Church, by Mrs. Arthur Campbell, and the cutting of the cake by Mme Eugène Racine. On Saturday evening, the Rev. Mr. Young recalled humorous incidents in his ministry at Brownsburg. A presentation was made to Mr. N. E. Smillie, treasurer from 1933 to 1964. A plan for the extension of the building was displayed.

On Sunday, September 27, Baptists from Avoca, Rivington, Grenville and Chatham West churches, where Mr. Young had been pastor, joined in the services, as well as people from Brownsburg United Church in the evening. The Rev. Harry Hill brought greetings from Avoca-Rivington, and led in the morning prayer.

So great was the crowd on Sunday morning that the ministers had to leave the sanctuary to allow the choir room to sing. The choir, under the direction of Mr. Keith Graham, gave splendid leadership on all occasions.

On Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Young's subjects were, "I love the Church" and "What Is Salvation?"

Canadian Quiz

1. Name Canada's longest navigable waterway.
2. Which are the so-called "primary industries"?
3. Which of the provinces has the largest area of forested land? Which has the smallest?
4. How much is Ottawa's current contribution to the tax-supported hospital insurance program?
5. Agriculture now employs about one out of ten working Canadians. What proportion is employed in manufacturing?

ANSWERS: 5. Manufacturing employs about one out of five working Canadians. 3. Quebec, 220,000 square miles; P.E.I., 550 square miles. 1. The Mackenzie River system. 4. Ottawa will contribute $420,000,000 this year; total cost will exceed $1,000,000,000. 2. Primary industries are agriculture, forestry, fisheries, trapping, mining and electric power; they are responsible for about 26 per cent of Canada's net value of production, compared to 55 per cent for manufacturing and 19 per cent for construction.

Registration for junior classes at Centre d'Art

Next Saturday at 10 a.m. the children's classes will re-open at the Centre d'Art. Guy Racine will again give instruction in drawing, gouache, modelling, etc., following a syllabus directed by Miss Irène Senécal, who supervises centres affiliated with l'Ecole des Beaux Arts, Montreal.

All who have viewed exhibitions of work executed by the young pupils, have remarked on the progress achieved and talent developed by these courses at the Centre d'Art.

Instruction is available to all applicants from five to 17 years of age — offering reductions and very reasonable rates. Information on these and other details is available by calling LO 2-8218 or LE 7-3367.

These courses, by co-operation of the Quebec Department of Education, will continue weekly on Saturdays, at 9 a.m., 11 a.m. and 1.30 p.m.

— Jehovah's Witnesses —

DO YOU PRAY FOR GOD'S KINGDOM?

Jesus taught us to pray: "Our Father in the heavens, let your name be sanctified. Let your kingdom come. Let your will come to pass, as in heaven, also upon earth." (Matt. 6:9, 10) Jehovah God, the Creator, is the rightful ruler of the universe and the Kingdom is his government. He establishes it and he enthrones its king, Christ Jesus. Since God says that heaven is his throne, it is apparent that the Kingdom is heavenly. However, it will cause earth to be transformed into a paradise for the everlasting enjoyment of obedient mankind. — Dan. 2:44.

When will the Kingdom come? It is not an event that awaits the future. God's kingdom is here! Does that sound strange? Then remember that the establishment of a heavenly government would be unseen to human eyes. But the sign of its establishment recorded in Matthew chapter 24 has been in evidence since 1914.

Christians who subject themselves to the rule of God's kingdom do not get involved in the political affairs of this old world, nor do they make material possessions their goal in life. Their devotion is to God's kingdom and they unselfishly share in preaching about it to all who will hear. — Matt. 24:14.

THE WATCHTOWER is the only magazine exclusively "announcing Jehovah's kingdom." A one-year subscription of 24 issues is available for only $1. — Write Watch Tower, 150 Bridgeland Ave., Toronto 19, Ont.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY,
Macdonald College

I was able to take in only one day of Shawville Fair, but it was a good choice. The junior livestock show was excellent. Five 4-H clubs competed strongly for the regional honors. The calves were well-fitted and showmanship was at a high level. The white outfits of the young competitors added the final touch.

In the Beef Calf Club, Jackie Brennan led his animal to top place. Now, along with other members of his team, he will go to Sherbrooke Winter Fair for the championship competition. Judging will be on Wednesday, October 7.

But it was the Pee-wee class that really pleased the crowd. All the little tykes, many dressed in white just like their older brothers and sisters, had their chance to prove their showmanship. True, some did need a little help now and then with their calves, and some went around the ring the wrong way; but every competitor somehow won a prize.

Going to be short of hay? Instead of paying high prices for poor hay, it might be cheaper to feed extra grain this coming winter. If you can buy grain for $50 a ton, then you can't afford to pay much more than $25 for hay. At $60 for grain, hay is worth about $35. And that is for good quality hay; poor hay is worth about half those prices.

How little hay can you feed a dairy cow and get away with it? According to one authority, as little as 5 to 8 lbs. (or its equivalent in silage) is satisfactory. Others say don't go below eight lbs. a day. Then make up the rest of her requirements with coarse grain, balanced with the necessary protein and mineral supplements.

But if you are doling out the hay, don't let the cow eat her fill of grain. It is going to take a sharp pencil and a set of feeding standards to work out just the right ration. But as a rule of thumb, two lbs. grain replaces three lbs. hay.

Incidentally, the Farmer's Advocate has an excellent article on figuring rations in the September 12 issue, "Energy in Livestock Feeding", by G. K. Macleod. And the Family Herald has good material on the same subject in the September 10 number.

No serious livestock feeder should be without a copy of "Feeds and Feeding" by Morrison, in his farm library. The 23rd edition of this authoritative book is expected off the press in the next month or two. Perhaps a note to Santa Claus would be in order. It can be bought at the College Book Shop, Santa; price about $10.

If you had Yellow Rocket in your hayfield last May, this is the time of year to go after it. Spraying with 2,4-D, (or if there is a legume in the field, with 2,4-DB), on a bright warm day in October has proven to be very effective to handle this weed. Yellow Rocket is a winter annual. The little plant, which got its start in July, will live over the winter to become next spring's seed producer.

MEMORIES OF THE "MAUDE"

I was particularly interested in an article a short time ago about the re-discovery of the steamer "Maude" by skin divers. This bit of news appeared in at least two Montreal papers as well as The Watchman. My interest in the Maude dates back to 1900 when my father bought a second-hand round-bottomed rowboat that had once been a lifeboat on a steam yacht owned by one of his friends.

He shipped this boat by freight from Montreal to Grenville on the Maude. He and I accompanied the boat on a night trip up the Lachine Canal, Lake St. Louis, Ste. Annes locks, Lake of Two Mountains, and arrived at Carillon early next morning. It was a big adventure for me — a nine-year-old who had never been on a boat at night! I had an upper berth in the stateroom, but I was too excited to sleep, and listened to the unusual noises that accompanied the few stops we made. I remember the trip up the Grenville Canal with the trees meeting almost overhead, and the arrival at Grenville, where the driver, Mr. R. W. Scott, met us with an express wagon and a team. We got the boat on board the wagon. Mr. Scott had brought plenty of hay for the horses as he had to spend the night at Lost River before starting back. This hay was spread on the bottom of the boat, and I slept the entire distance up the old Scotch Road, about a five-hour trip, and woke up just as we entered Lost River and still had over two miles to go to Fraser Lake. . .

So that was my one and only experience with the Maude, and I will look forward to its eventual re-floating as a relic of the good old days of steamboat travel on the Ottawa.

Be seein' ya!

— Uncle Walt

Seat belts mandatory

Seat belts are mandatory for all privately-owned vehicles of Royal Canadian Air Force personnel in the air division in Europe. Air Vice-Marshal D. A. E. Bradshaw, air officer commanding 1 Air Division with headquarters at Metz, France, found the seat belt was "the most effective single item of protective equipment available to reduce the toll of traffic injuries and deaths". AVM Bradshaw added that a large percentage of drivers and passengers failed to use the protective device.

A semi-annual report on private motor car accidents from RCAF overseas showed that in a study of 160 accidents involving vehicles equipped with seat belts, only 20 per cent of the drivers had their belts fastened at the time of the accident.

AGRICULTURAL TOUR IS POSTPONED

Ottawa — The visit of the Standing Committee of the House of Commons on Agriculture and Colonization to agricultural areas in various parts of Canada, which had been planned for late this month and early October, has been postponed until next spring.

The Minister stated that pressure of parliamentary business would make it difficult for Members to be absent from Ottawa during the time for which the visits had been planned and that the advancing season made it impractical to consider a later date this year.

Curtailments in train service

NOTICE BY the CPR of the curtailment of local train services has caused concern to many who use this line, particularly between Lachute and Montreal.

We have every sympathy with the Canadian Pacific's policy to cut unprofitable operations; this is sound business. But the policy of the CPR and other transportation lines on every hand, is also to develop business potential; competition is keen, and this trend is notably in evidence today. In keeping with this, we feel it would be sound progress to inaugurate a commuter service, at least between Lachute and Montreal, to meet the requirements of business hours. The trend of settlement northward from Montreal is nowhere more apparent than in the crowded commuter services, and in traffic on the Laurentian Autoroute and other accesses to the city. This trend embraces Lachute today, in future if will increase, especially if the traffic is encouraged. . . Here is a strong point for better rail service.

From the outside looking in, it seems that a commuter service might be provided through an extension of the daytime runs between Montreal and Ste. Therese. This would obviate the cost of extra trains, and also assure that existing trains would carry more passengers. The added run from Ste. Therese to Lachute would be minimal in both time and distance.

One thing is certain: the discontinuance of the morning train to Montreal, and the returning evening train, finds no favor here. It will besides, be prejudicial to the repute of this town — which, if not a mushrooming crucible of commerce, is still a centre of stable industry and agriculture, of steady population growth, and enviable attractions, to which passenger transportation is essential.

Royal Visit

IT IS EVIDENT that Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip will carry on with their October 6-12 visit to Canada despite fears in some quarters that the Queen's life might be in danger when she is in Quebec.

Prime Minister Pearson could have recommended that the visit be cancelled. And perhaps if he were to receive information indicating that a serious threat exists, he would still take such action. But for the present he has ruled out the possibility, having told the House of Commons that "adequate security precautions are being taken."

This has not, however, ended the debate over whether it is wise for Her Majesty to visit Quebec at a time when separatism is a burning issue. And the arguments of both sides are worthwhile considering.

One view is that as long as there is even an outside chance that some will try to harm the Queen, the trip should be called off. The suggestion is that the prime minister would not be giving in to blackmail, but would be merely showing he has the strength to make a difficult decision.

Another viewpoint is that the visit should be cancelled only if there is evidence of real danger.

And those who favor going ahead with the tour say that, while there is always a chance that some lunatic might make an attempt on the Queen's life, the nation must not be blackmailed by fear.

Some in Quebec have raised the point, too, that it would be an insult to the province if the tour were called off. A few have gone even further, suggesting that there are people who are deliberately exaggerating the danger with the idea of damaging Quebec's reputation.

The visit is being made to commemorate meetings in Charlottetown and Quebec City 100 years ago which led to Confederation in 1867.

Whatever threat does exist, is supposed to come from those who want to see Quebec break away from Confederation and become an independent nation. But surely the separatists recognize that trying to harm the Queen would be the last way to help their own cause. The reaction might well eliminate, for many years, if not for all time, any hope the separatists might have of winning enough converts to succeed in their campaign.

Lesson from the World Olympics

FOR A GOOD PORTION of this coming month, the world's attention will be focussed on Tokyo, where the best amateur athletes in the world are attempting to bring honor to their respective countries.

Competition is the essence of the Olympics. Each athlete must give an all-out effort to win, to defeat his rivals. Yet, away from the field of battle, these athletes are not representatives of different, often opposed, countries. They are not of different races, different colors. They are of a brotherhood, bound by ties of common interest and demonstrating common respect.

Those of us who cannot compete at Tokyo can certainly learn a lesson from these Olympics. It is possible to differ ideologically, religiously, racially, and still be brothers. When we can all recognize this fact — and not until we do — we can hold out real hope for lasting world peace.

Fyodor Dostoevsky pointed this out when he said, "Until you have become really, in actual fact, a brother to everyone, brotherhood will not come to pass."

Aims for the "biggest province"

USUALLY when a premier reaches the point where he feels his province is no longer big enough, he pulls out and tries his hand at federal politics. If successful, he finds the whole of Canada is his sphere of operations.

Notable examples during recent years have been the late Angus L. Macdonald, who left Nova Scotia for the federal Liberal cabinet, and Stuart Garson, who did the same from Manitoba. And there was George Drew, who resigned as Ontario premier to become national Progressive-Conservative leader.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia apparently believes in a different approach. Instead of seeking bigger fields to conquer, he's trying to make his own province bigger — the biggest in Canada, in fact.

He has suggested to the Yukon and Northwest Territories that they approach the federal government with a view to joining British Columbia. An offer of $300,000,000 in highway development money is part of the bargain.

Union of the three regions would bring the total area to 1,878,234 square miles. It would include the 366,255 that now make B.C. third largest province, the 1,304,903 square miles of the Northwest Territories and the 207,076 of the Yukon.

By way of comparison, Quebec now is the largest province with 594,860 square miles, and Ontario is second at 412,582.

Mr. Bennett said that remote-control administration from Ottawa has held back development of the northern territories, and suggested they would be better off as part of B.C.

In any case, it would be up to the 36,000 residents of the vast northern region to decide. While their feelings haven't been canvassed, past experience suggests the proposition will have to be particularly attractive before it is accepted.

Suggestions that the four Atlantic provinces merge into one unit which would be economically stronger than any of its parts, have never made much of an impact. And even municipal amalgamation is difficult to push through, as current examples amply illustrate.

The point seems to be that, whatever the size and economic power of a particular region, its people and politicians have both pride and hope. They rarely give up their identity without a fight and they hold fast to the belief that someday they will attain greatness on their own.

Claims Lake Sir John not 'main bone of contention'

TO THE EDITOR

R.R. 1, Lachute, Sept. 24

Editor, Lachute Watchman

Dear Sir: Once again, through your newspaper, I would like to write on that tired old subject — annexation. It seems that annexation, like the flag issue, like old soldiers — will never die. But at least old soldiers had honor.

In your issue of last week, it is quoted that the "main bone of contention" in the annexation of St. Jerusalem, was the inclusion of Lake Sir John. This gem of a statement was accredited to the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs. Well, I beg to differ. This was certainly one of the many bones of contention, but by no means the only or most important one. Anyone who cares to read the wording of the injunction and the ruling of the judge can come to this conclusion.

Immediately after the judge's decision was rendered the Town Council declared its decision to appeal. Since we have never heard a retraction of this decision, why was permission given to two councillors to go to Quebec and seek a way to "peaceful settlement"? You cannot go to court with an appeal, and at the same time seek a settlement out of court. Lake Sir John has been added on and chopped off the annexation list a couple of times already, and I for one do not think that chopping it off again is going to make any difference to the issue as a whole. Or is the Town Council playing "both ends against the middle"?

Of late, hints have been dropped that owing to the stubborn attitude of those who are fighting annexation, chances of new industry have been missed, on one occasion because the town did not have sufficient population. The population is still there; whether they be of Lachute Town or St. Jerusalem, they are still staying in the same places. I would suggest that the front page splash of this week's Watchman is a bigger deterrent to industry than anything we in St. Jerusalem have been accused of doing. When the new filtration plant was built — at a price — the cry was, "Now we have water, all we need is land to encourage industry." Well, don't look now, but you have no water, it follows you don't need land, not until the water situation is rectified, at least. I do not intend to be flippant over such a serious situation as lack of water, as there is very little we can do without that precious commodity, and you have my sympathy, you who are in town and face this dilemma. All the more reason you should press for an end to this shortage. I suppose some blame for this situation will be placed on Mr. Romer. Well, he also has my sympathy, being placed between loyalty to his tenants, and the predicament of the town. I do not know the laws governing water rights, any more than the Town Council seem to know, but I do know I would not want anyone coming into my yard and pumping my well dry. Why, in the name of all that's reasonable, a new lake was not sought at the time of all the expenditure for a new filtration plant, I'll never know. Now, we can only pray for rain, to ease the situation, if only temporarily.

To get back to annexation, I feel that all that has gone before should be written off as a bad dream, and possibly at some future date the two councils involved should get together and in a friendly manner discuss the situation, and see what can be done in relation to what is required. We have never been opposed to annexation in a reasonable form. All that has gone before was a costly and unfortunate experience. Don't let us drag it any further. But I for one am not going to be appeased by the dropping of Lake Sir John. This is not what the injunction was about.

St. Jerusalem is one of the best-run communities in the province. I believe that the town was built up in a great part by the successful farming community surrounding it — the same community which it is trying to condemn. So don't blame us if we don't rush headlong to join a town with a lesser reputation, and lots of problems. It hardly makes sense.

Sincerely,
(Signed) Mrs. Elizabeth Cleland

Mainly The Money?

By BILL SMILEY

Phooey to you Mrs. F. J. Glaubitz, president of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations.

Mrs. Glaubitz was widely quoted recently as "expressing concern that some persons are attracted to the teaching profession because of high salaries rather than a genuine interest in teaching."

The lady is reported to have said that persons in the past have been drawn to teaching because of a sincere interest in human beings, but the higher salaries of recent years have brought an increasing number who consider it "just another job."

Dear Mrs. Glaubitz, you're all wet! Where are all these people who are flocking into teaching for the big salaries? Every spring, principals do everything but turn over stones to see what they can find under them, in the search for teachers.

Where are these big salaries, Mrs. Glaubitz? Now, I'm not going to get personal, and ask how much Mr. Glaubitz is making these days. But if there is a Mr. Glaubitz, I'll bet he's making a whale of a lot more than this teacher.

Teachers' salaries are reasonable after years of shabby gentility. But they're a long way from being opulent. They make less money than engineers, dentists or bone-benders. They're not even within sight of doctors and lawyers. They're about one jump ahead of the preachers, about on a par with the skilled craftsmen.

Anybody who has a wild idea about getting into the high-salaried profession of teaching should immediately take a tranquillizer, followed by a short course in hotel management, hair-dressing, or something in which he can make real money.

The story continued: "Mrs. Glaubitz emphasized that the association does not oppose high salaries for teachers because 'the whole future of the country rests in their hands'."

Well, bully for Mrs. Glaubitz and the association. But isn't that taking a very dim view of the church, the government, and the parents of all those who will make up the future?

It's a bit much to saddle the teachers with, isn't it? Frankly, if the whole future of the country rests in my hands, I'm going to put my hands in my pockets and stroll quietly away.

Mrs. G., in the same story, suggested that greater care be taken in choosing candidates for teaching training using such means as aptitude tests to weed out unsuitable persons Now, I realize that teachers have not the pristine purity of medical or law societies, where there is never a bad apple in the barrel, but I'm afraid aptitude tests are not the answer.

Here's the type of test Mrs. Glaubitz might approve, with the answers that would be given by one of the best teachers I know, a mature experienced man whose students worship him, whose colleagues respect him, and whose results are excellent.

Q. Do you have a sincere interest in human beings? A. Well, not really. I like dogs, though.

Q. Do you smoke? A. Sure.

Q. Do you indulge in alcohol? A. Just beer, except on the weekends.

Q. Do you enjoy helping people? A. Hell, no. I only do it because I have to.

Q. Are you interested in a higher salary? A. Are you kidding?

Q. What cultural interests do you have, aside from your profession? A. Watching football on TV.

Q. What sort of home life do you have. A. Well, the kids drive me crazy and I fight a lot with my wife. About average, I guess.

And so it would go, the aptitude test. This chap should be hurled out of the profession, by rights. He's not dedicated or anything. He's just a cracking good teacher.

Tories Try For Fifth

By RAY ARGYLE

To win Britain's Oct. 15 general election, Conservative prime minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home will have to convince voters that the nation's ruling Establishment is neither scandal-ridden nor decadent.

Sir Alec moved into No. 10 Downing at the height of a wave of criticism directed against Britain's ruling circles following the Profumo sex scandal.

It appeared then to many Briton's that the nation's Britons that the nation's loosely organized but powerful clique known as The Establishment, was becoming shot through with dissolution, immorality and decadence.

It was the handling of the scandal involving war secretary John Profumo and his play-for-pay girls, linked with possible loss of state secrets to Russia, that brought prime minister Macmillan's forced resignation.

When Sir Alec, an austere Scot who epitomizes Britain's Establishment and all it stands for, took office many Labor Party tacticians wrote him off as a sitting duck for the anti-upper class hostility then sweeping the island.

Sir Alec promptly delayed a general election until the maximum five-year term was up, and set about building Conservative party fences. He has done a remarkable job.

Six months ago, the Conservative party was being written off as a calf being led to slaughter by the dynamic new Labor party chief, Harold Wilson.

Today, the ignomy of the slammed door against Britain's bid to go into the European Common Market is forgotten. The Profumo scandal is history. Britons are caught up in the greatest prosperity they have ever known, and the election contest has become a nip-and-tuck affair.

Because of the Labor Party's success in introducing sweeping welfare state measures which the Conservatives once resisted but now strongly support, there is now little real difference between the parties' policies. Both are committed to a mixed society.

The Labor Party has made itself the Commonwealth champion, proclaiming that while Britain should look outward to Europe its destiny still lies with the Commonwealth. This is significant for Canada and for Canadian farmers especially.

The Labor Party, most of its chief aims long since won, is going easy on further nationalization, promising to socialize only the steel industry and public water supplies.

Labor is even hedging on its promise to abolish Britain's nuclear deterrent, no doubt due in part to the possibility—however slim—of Barry Goldwater winning the U.S. presidency in November.

Despite Conservative acceptance of Labor's welfare state policies, Prime Minister Douglas-Home is campaigning on an anti-socialist platform. "Ours is planning by consent, theirs is planning by compulsion," he is telling voters up and down the island.

A victory in the Oct. 15 voting would give Britain's Conservatives an unprecedented fifth successive term, and could send the Labor Party into political oblivion.

Waiting in the wings is energetic Liberal party leader Jo Grimond who knows he can't win but thinks he might be able to emerge from the elections with the balance of power.

It will take a turn-over of about 80 seats to dislodge the Conservatives.

The Gallup poll still gives the Labor Party an edge although other polls have put the Conservatives a fraction ahead.

But the Conservatives have a poor record in by-elections and the Liberals have even strengthened their standing by nosing out Labor and Tory candidates in close contests.

If the election is as close as it looks now, Britain could find itself looking on a Mother of Parliaments as divided as Canada's House of Commons.

IOU of fire

Every ten years wasteful Canadians run up a staggering IOU in fire destruction of more than $1,000,000,000.

Every Canadian in the long run has to chip in to pay off the debt, through insurance premiums. Else the victims take it on the chin.

An obligation not so easily squared is the terrible human toll of life by fire — more than 5,000 victims, the bulk of the dead being children and the aged.

It's worth thinking about.

Most costly blaze in Lachute's recent records

Lachute's "Black Friday", as far as major fires is concerned, occurred on October 25 of last year, when a large section of Main Street was destroyed by fire. The previous evening, the residence of Gilbert E. Ayers was gutted despite efforts of volunteer firemen from Lachute, three of whom were treated at the Argenteuil Hospital for smoke poisoning. . . The above photograph was taken at the early stages of the Main Street blaze just as an aerial ladder, owned by the Claude Neon Company, was being pressed into service. The Pariseau - Gervais block was demolished, and serious damage resulted to the Malacket block. Firemen from Lachute, Brownsburg and St. Jerome were required to bring the blaze under control. — Photo, Syd Drew

Four tots died in 'minor' fire

Would a mother leave small children alone in a closed garage, playing in a car with the motor running? Hardly likely. And yet four tots were asphyxiated by a smoldering fire in a chest of drawers when they were left alone. Smoke brought death to the children in an estimated 45 minutes. A defective lamp cord was said to be the trouble.

It is grimly ironic that this fire did only $25 damage and was quickly extinguished by the fire department using only a bucket of water.

Symbols of safety

CSA ULC APPROVED

These are symbols of safety. If you don't find one of them on your new appliance, tell the Fire Chief.

CSA is the mark of the Canadian Standards Association, testers of new electrical and fuel-burning equipment.

ULC is the mark of Underwriters' Laboratories of Canada, approving new appliances, including fire extinguishers and fire alarm equipment.

The label of the Canadian Gas Association appears on gas-burning equipment in good order when made.

The rear of the Pariseau - Gervais block was a mass of flames early in the fire, which raged out of control for a number of hours despite the efforts of firemen. This photograph was taken seconds after a break in one of 25 lengths of hose, when the wooden rear of the building once again burst into flames. — Photo, Syd Drew

Criminal Code of Canada

To parents and guardians of the young let it be known that, besides various provincial laws, the Criminal Code of Canada (section 189) reads:

"Everyone who unlawfully abandons or exposes a child who is under the age of 10 years, so that its life is or is likely to be endangered or its health is or is likely to be permanently injured, is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years."

People have a duty to their children, to the community and to themselves to see that the youngsters are properly looked after.

'Document for living' — National Fire Code a 'first' in Canada

— Its thinking occupied the minds and hearts of more than 30 experts over eight years.

— No best-seller in the conventional sense, it is not designed for popular bedtime reading. But for municipalities (and like-minded groups) in a nation of 19,000,000, with one of the world's worst fire loss rates, it is recommended study. And because hundreds of Canadians needlessly perish by fire every year, this is truly a document for living — a blue-print for greater community safety. For Canada, it is another "first".

— It is the "National Fire Code of Canada 1963," published by the Associate Committee on National Fire Codes, National Research Council of Canada, hard cover, 182 pages, $1.50.

Model Checklist for Safety

The authors provide the basis of a model fire prevention by-law, particularly valuable to authorities of smaller municipalities in adapting sensible, practical regulations for protection of their people. Also, of course, it offers a checklist for existing acts.

Hit firebugs hard

Checking a home, plant or office for fire hazards does not absolutely guarantee freedom from fire. But it helps . . . and there is a greater peace of mind for the occupants. Know something about the causes of fire, or ask the fire-fighter to help point them out to you.

Firebugs can be as common as flies around the place. They breed in trash and oily rags and the like and, far too frequently, in the hides of careless souls who fan fierce flames in stoves, or use coins as electrical fuse connections, or smoke thoughtlessly or leave matches for children to play with. Swat the troublesome breed of "firebugs" hard, the fire-fighter urges.

Watch out, buster!

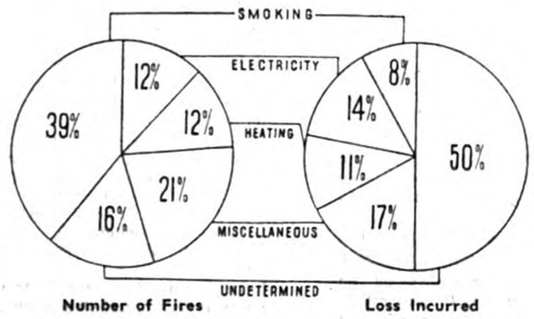

Chart sets out the 1962 fire experience. All but a sixth (14,000) of the fires are accounted for by identified cause. However, these 14,000 fires of unknown origin are tagged with a half ($70,000,000) of the total damage.

Electric fuse is your watch dog - Don't muzzle it

Many homes endangered; why gamble, for a dime?

An over-fused electric circuit invites fire. Hundreds of thousands, perhaps even a million homes in Canada, may have the wrong fuse (costing less than a dime) in a socket.

This alarming conclusion develops from a survey of home inspection findings by fire department teams in representative cities. For example, the fire chiefs of eight communities in one metropolitan area with a population of over a million, report that about one quarter of the homes inspected were found to be over-fused. Even more disturbing is the report from a municipality in the Eastern Townships — only 15% of homes visited were found to be properly fused.

There being nearly 5,000,000 homes in the nation, a 25% condition maintained across the board would make the projection 1,250,000. Utility and industry authorities consulted are in agreement with the estimate of the problem. They, too, express concern over the end use of a small but vital safeguard.

— For less than a dime, why gamble with fire?

"15" Serves Lamps, TV, etc.

What is over-fusing? It is the use of a 20, 25 or 30 ampere plug fuse in an ordinary household branch circuit. Such a circuit is one serving lamps, radio, TV and other small appliances.

Why is the use of a 20, 25 or 30 ampere fuse in an ordinary circuit a fire hazard? Because it engenders a false security. It does not "blow" when the "load" is dangerously increased. The wiring heats. Heat plus fuel plus oxygen means fire. If the wiring is concealed, fire may start in the wall. In minutes it may be out of control, perhaps tragically.

Because the fuse is the electrical watchdog, over-fusing is akin to muzzling the watchdog. Or cutting out the safety valve.

Says the Fire Chief of a large prairie city with 25,000 homes: "In most of the older homes where we found overloaded circuits, practically all were using 30 amp. fuses, and even pennies and tinfoil behind the fuses!" The fire service director of a Quebec city of 35,000 people reports that 80% of their homes are over-fused.

About 20,000,000 fuses are made each year in Canada. Of these, 15,000,000 are 15's. The 5,000,000 of the 20, 25 and 30 ratings are designed for use with stoves, dryers, sump pumps, home workshops, water heaters and similar special installations.

"Old Wiring Blamed for Blaze"

How often in a news report of a fire, sometimes involving loss of life, are we told that defective wiring may have been responsible?

Of course, there's another aspect. Maybe the wiring was asked to do more than it should, by being over-fused. If you still do not comprehend, call the Fire Chief, or an electrician, or the utility, or ask a knowledgeable neighbor and make sure that appliances and cords are in good shape.

Check your home right now to ensure that your fuses are in their proper sockets.

— For less than a dime, why gamble with fire?

"30 Costs the Same!". . .
"15 Keeps Blowing!"

Still current and choice is the overheard remark by a housewife: "I buy 30 ampere electrical fuses because they are twice as strong as the 15 size and because they cost just the same." Another overheard remark by a housewife: "Fuses you buy today aren't as good as they used to be 10 years ago. They keep blowing."

To the first lady, as the fire fighter points out, the answer is that the "weaker (15) size" is probably the only safe one.

To the second, the answer is that her own stupidity is her problem. She is probably using many more appliances and connections than she did 10 years ago, on the same wiring.

Look at it from the standpoint of appliances available then and now: 1914 — 5; 1934 — 19; 1964 — 60.

— For less than a dime, why gamble with fire?

Instruct your babysitter

Fire Protection ground rules for parent and babysitter:

Sitter has sense of responsibility, likes children, preferably lives in neighborhood.

— Instructions in writing: How to reach you. Fire department number. Exit locations. Furnace or stove operation. Flashlight handy in power failure.

— If there's a fire, get the kids out. Don't wait to dress them. Call for help. Say exactly where you are. If you can, turn on the front lights to attract attention. Don't re-enter the place.

How 11 perished in year's most tragic fire

The two-storey wood-frame dwelling in Ste. Adelaide de Pabos, Que., was occupied by 12 children and their parents. At about 4.30 a.m. January 29, 1963, one of the older boys got up to light a fire in the wood-burning stove in the kitchen, as was his custom. He stoked the stove with wood, poured fuel oil over it to hasten ignition, and lit the fire. He then went back to bed. At about 5 a.m. the boy smelled a strong odor of smoke and awoke his father, who went downstairs and found the kitchen wall behind the stove ablaze. The father pumped a pail of water and threw it on the flames without noticeable effect. The mother and two sons came downstairs to help fight the fire, but the intense heat and smoke soon drove the parents and two boys out of the house.

There was no fire department in the village. The nearest was some 10 miles away, at the town of Chandler. The boys went to get help, while the father got a ladder to attempt to rescue his other children from upstairs windows. Meanwhile, the mother, in her panic, ran back into the house to try to save her children. Her body was found just a few feet inside the door. The ten children who perished apparently died in their sleep. Their ages were from two months to 14 years.

Disaster to town when plant closed by fire

Boxcar figures of the loss in an industry fire are only part of the story of fire destruction. The community and human considerations of industrial fire disaster are even more important . . . particularly in a small town where new jobs are not easily found.

A firm with plants in every province adds: "A fire in the smallest of our interlocking establishments can throw our whole production out of kilter."

The direct loss of fire in a manufacturing establishment (building, equipment replacement) represents only a fraction of the indirect, economic community waste. The indirect loss may be five times more.

Everybody suffers in industry fire

The chances of a factory, a warehouse, a supermarket going up in flames in a small town — and also wiping out jobs and homes — are on the increase.

Climbing industry fires now account for half of Canada's yearly fire bill. Last year their estimated loss was $78 million — a jump of $13 million in the year.

Warehouse and storage fires did the most damage last year. Ten blazes ran up a loss of over $8 million.

Out-of-Work

The really grievous damage inflicted by an industry fire, however, is the disastrous way it throws people in a community out of work. If a factory or a store is the only one in town, every citizen — directly or indirectly — suffers if it permanently folds.

ABC for 'Always Be Careful'

ABC has a special meaning to the fire services. In the field of fire prevention it stands for Always Be Careful, the symbol of fire safety seen everywhere in Canada. Also to the fire fighter, Class A fires, Class B fires and Class C fires respectively describe fires in ordinary materials, flammable liquid fires and electrical fires. Now the atomic age takes in more of the alphabet: Class D fires involving radiation hazards.

Who, Why and What of Fire Prevention Campaign

A reduction in the spiralling losses of property and human life by fire is the goal of a new public education campaign against fire carelessness in Canada, a country with one of the world's worst loss rates. It is conducted by the Joint Committee of the Association of Fire Chiefs. Primary objective: the promotion of Fire Prevention Week (in reality, every week) in support of safety drives and inspection programs. Directors and officers serve without compensation. The campaign is financed by grants and subsidies from public and private sources. The effort is endorsed by all levels of government, and generously assisted by editors, broadcasters and poster media.

The Association of Canadian Fire Marshals and Commissioners comprises the Fire Marshals and Fire Commissioners of the 10 provinces and the Northwest Territories, as well as the Dominion Fire Commissioner, and the Fire Marshal of each of the three armed services, Navy, Army and Air Force. The strength of the Canadian Association of Fire Chiefs is drawn from municipal and industrial Fire Chiefs from coast to coast.

Nose can tell

If you cook with electricity the blowing of the fuse is your safety signal. With gas your nose gives warning of a leak. Whether natural or manufactured gas, a distinctive odor is deliberately introduced for your protection. The natural gas odor is sweet and sickly, even suggestive of a skunk. Manufactured gas may smell to high heaven like rotten cabbage. You may never enjoy such a rare fragrance! But if you do, open the windows, get out, and call aid. DON'T STRIKE A MATCH OR SWITCH A LIGHT.

Unsafe nursing homes — firetraps for the aged?

To all operators of private nursing homes: the National Fire Protection Association of Boston makes the challenging statement that thousands of old people are housed in "little better than firetraps".

What about yours? Are there reasonable exits? Are the wiring and heating in good shape? Do you make sure that there are only 15 amp. fuses in ordinary circuits?

Fear — A Wrong Approach

— By NANCY CLEAVER —

Do you sometimes envy the parent whose child fears him and jumps to follow an order?

Fear may seem to "work" in the immediate situation. But the parent who is consistently resorting to fear to control a child, is harming the youngster's development.

Our mental hospitals and medical clinics are filled to overflowing with fearful, worried adults. Much of their lack of mental balance can be traced back to insecure, unhappy childhood. Fear was used too often to make them conform to certain standards of behaviour.

Everyone from earliest days experiences some fear. A new baby exhibits fear of loud, sharp noises and is fearful of falling. Children fear getting hurt. Sometimes they are frightened of animals and burglars. They dread being alone and being in the dark.

Strange sights, startling events and strange noises also scare them. Extraordinary natural events such as thunder and lightning sometimes frighten them. Children, as well as adults, suffer from bad dreams.

In a home where punishment is very harsh, or where the mother is ill-tempered or the father drinks, a child may live in constant fear.

The older children dread school failure. Parents sometimes place a child in an impossible situation by expecting him to excel in sports or make high marks beyond his ability.

What does fear do to a child's body? Sometimes, it is accompanied by an excess of energy and a child resorts to a quick flight. The shock may be so great from an overwhelming fear that the child is almost paralyzed.

A certain amount of fear is necessary for self-preservation. A child should fear the dangers of traffic sufficiently to stop and look both ways before crossing the street. Parents should encourage a child to face any fear and react intelligently to danger.

There is nothing more contagious than cowardice. The mother who is terrified if she is left alone at night is likely to have a daughter who also hates to be by herself once darkness falls. If mother can calm herself, her own poise will reassure her child.

It is helpful if a parent helps a child to anticipate what might be a fear-provoking situation such as a dentist's visit. The child who is prepared is less apt to be afraid.

Parents should never deceive a child about the cause of fear. Neither should they shame him nor silence him when he expresses his fear. Repressing fear just drives it "underground" into the sub-conscious mind.

Talking over a situation which frightens him with an understanding adult helps a child to face his fear, and understand it.

A child who is fearful of dogs may gradually be encouraged to get to know and love one gentle dog. Unnecessary fear is a terrible handicap. Help your child to be free from useless fears. Cultivate his courage to face fears which play a necessary part in self-preservation.

In the modern world it is tragic that so many children fear the breakup of their family circle. Think how many boys and girls are affected by an average of over 6,000 divorces annually in Canada!

Another modern terror is atomic destruction. Small children are especially afraid that they may be separated from their parents if bombs fall. Let them tell you of their fears. Explain to them what to do if an attack should come. Get behind the United Nations and do all you can to prevent the destruction of countless children and adults in atomic warfare.

Faith is the most powerful of all weapons to fight apprehension. The poet writes:

"Courage is fear which has said its prayers."

Is prayer to a loving Heavenly Father a daily practice in your life and in your child's?

Raisin-rich tea buns

There's nothing dainty or skimpy about Raisin Tea Buns. Instead, these flattish, soft-crusted rounds are generously studded with raisins and have substance and good flavor that's on the sweet side without being excessively so. They're the kind of fragrant homemade bun that men go for in a big way, particularly when served instead of richer sweets with fruit desserts and a hot beverage.

Raisin Tea Buns are a pace-changing lunch box treat, too, especially if you dare to inject a new taste sensation by filling them with a blend of minced ham or luncheon meat, mayonnaise and sweet relish. The buns toast beautifully, too.

Raisin Tea Buns

(Yield — 2 dozen)

1 Cup milk, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, ⅓ cup margarine or butter, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 2 envelopes fast-rising active dry yeast, 3 eggs (well-beaten), 2 teaspoons finely grated lemon rind (optional), 6½ cups (about) pre-sifted all-purpose flour, 2 cups seedless raisins, melted margarine or butter.

Scald milk. Stir in ¼ cup sugar, salt and ⅓ cup margarine. Cool to lukewarm. Meantime, measure lukewarm water into large mixing bowl. Stir in 2 teaspoons sugar. Sprinkle yeast on top. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well.

Stir in lukewarm milk mixture, eggs, lemon rind (if used) and 3 cups of the flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in raisins. Work in sufficient additional flour (about 3½ cups more) to make a soft dough.

Turn out onto lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl. Brush top with melted margarine or butter. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch down dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Cut in half. Shape one half into roll 12 inches long. Cut into 12 equal pieces. Shape each piece into a smooth ball. Place balls, well apart, on greased cookie sheet. With palms, pat down to form flat rounds. Brush with melted margarine or butter. Repeat with other half of dough. Cover. Let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 minutes.

Bake in preheated hot oven (400 deg. F.) 12 to 15 minutes. Remove to cooling racks.

Texstyles

Madeleine Levason

"What's new in fashion?" is a question that can have many different answers, depending on where you ask it. You may consider your 1964 summer cottons in the latest styles but fashion is way ahead of you. The people who make your clothing are already looking at the newest cottons being made in Canada for spring and summer of 1965.

Cottons that stretch, cottons with a new silky look, cotton prints that look woven, new blends and new patterns are ready for next summer, and an exciting array they make. Cotton is one of the oldest textile fibres known to mankind, but there is nothing old about the fabric developments in 1965 cottons.

It used to be that floral patterns would predominate one summer, abstract patterns another, or polka dots, stripes or other motifs, but this is no longer true. Today fabrics are so varied the trends can only be described in terms of the use for which they are intended.

There are color and pattern trends for dresses, for blouses, sportswear, children's clothes, men's clothes, for sleepwear and so on. The only over-all trend to be seen is ever more variety in cottons of finer qualities with more sophisticated patterns and more expensive looking colors. In the industry this is known as "upgrading" and Canadian cottons today are constantly upgraded.

Stretch cottons are one of the newest developments and stretch denims, twills and other weaves in plain or printed versions are designed for the expanding field of sports and casual fashions. All-cotton stretch has excellent recovery and is designed primarily to stretch horizontally, i.e. across the shoulders, for extra comfort.

There are new blends of cotton with polynosic fibres that have a lustrous silky look, further heightened by silk-like prints of great elegance. Cottons are blended too with polyester fibres to achieve feather-weight no-iron fabrics for summer shirts, dresses and blouses.

Top fashion colors for women next summer will be pinks, turquoise and shrimp, in that order. Sportswear fabrics favor deep blues, reds and combinations of black and white. Lingerie fabrics remain extremely feminine with muted patterns and delicate colorings.

Fashion prints for women generally include all types of florals and abstracts but with a new look of sophistication in design and coloring. Cottons designed for men's sport shirts are so elegant they are bound to find their way into women's summer shirtwaist dresses and blouses. These are the new tonal stripes, checks and neat patterns so expertly done that they look like the most expensive woven fabrics.

There are also special designs for children, teen-agers, beachwear and just about any other purpose for which cotton can be used in clothing.

Graceful blouses for fall

A soft removable tie varies the cuffed neckline of this gentle blouse made of 100% synthetic crepe, by a Canadian manufacturer. The flowing long sleeves are gathered into tight cuffs, closed by covered buttons.

Steaks tenderized by new wrapper

Specially treated sheets of paper are now being used to tenderize portion meat cuts such as steaks, both fresh and frozen. The sheets contain a controlled amount of tenderizer and perform two tasks: (1) they separate the individual meat cuts, and (2) tenderize the meat.

When placed upon the face of the meat cut, the sheet of paper which has been treated with a built-in tenderizing agent, begins a controlled enzymatic action, softening the meat uniformly, according to the manufacturer.

Each sheet has a precise amount of tenderizer that is released when wetted by the moist meat surface. The amount released is controlled by the paper, which has a depletion level that safeguards against over-tenderizing. The new product reportedly has been approved by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for use with both fresh and frozen storage meats.

If You're TIRED ALL THE TIME

Now and then everybody gets a "tired-out" feeling, and may be bothered by backaches. Perhaps nothing seriously wrong, just a temporary condition caused by urinary irritation or bladder discomfort. That's the time to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help stimulate the kidneys to relieve this condition which may often cause backache and tired feeling. Then you feel better, rest better, work better. Get Dodd's Kidney Pills now. Look for the blue box with the red band at all drug counters. You can depend on Dodd's. 60

Safety awards for women's groups

Most women's organizations meeting this fall to plan their programs for the season will place safety projects high on the list. Much of this interest in safety promotion results from the growing prominence and popularity of the Carol Lane Safety Awards and their counterparts in each province. Projects on home, child, road, recreation and farm safety are eligible. Cash awards, national recognition, and the pride of achievement in saving lives and preventing injury in the community, are among the rewards from such programs.

Administered jointly by the Canadian Highway Safety Council and the National Safety League of Canada, and by Shell Canada Limited, the provincial and national programs have attracted increasing attention. Women's organizations, or women's auxiliaries of other groups, may enter. Details are now available from the national association in Ottawa, or from provincial safety organizations.

Specially Written for The Lachute Watchman

By Jean Sharp, Canadian Press Staff Writer

A stock of canned fruit and vegetables can be a comforting thing to have on hand, whether you are planning family dinners or have unexpected guests to feed.

The Canada Department of Agriculture has some hints on how to decide which ones to buy, and how to dress them up for serving.

There are three grade names for canned fruit and vegetables — Canada Fancy, Canada Choice and Canada Standard. The word Canada on a label means the product has been produced in Canada, and graded in compliance with federal regulations.

Volume Stamp

On the label a round stamp states the number of fluid ounces — the volume. There are six standard sizes, 10, 15, 28, 48, and 105 fluid ounces. The sizes sho help you calculate costs. A fluid ounce can of peaches, instance, has 2½ cups of fruit juice, about four servings.

The drained weight of a can product is specified by fede regulations, and in cans of t same size, there will be the s drained weight no matter wh the grade.

The percentage of sugar in the syrup of canned fruit also specified and shown on t label. For canned peaches t minimum is 45 per cent sug syrup, which is equivalent to syrup of one cup sugar to one c water. Other fruits are pack in varying strengths of syr depending on the sweetness of t fruit.

A minimum syrup is consider best for flavor and texture of t fruit. The amount of sugar the syrup has nothing to do w the grade, though. Fruits may a be packed without sugar a marked "unsweetened" or " sugar added".

Department home economi point out the canned vegetab are cooked and need only heated. The liquid can be u in sauces, soups and gravies.

Change of Pace

To add a gourmet touch green or wax beans, they l several suggestions. Heat t in fresh cream and a bit of p pared mustard. Serve he beans with sour cream and c ped parsley. Sprinkle crea beans with grated cheese a brown in the oven. For a ch sauce, add a mixture of cr and grated cheddar cheese beans and heat just enough melt the cheese.

Give canned kernel corn boost by heating it in butter a adding one of your family's fa ite spices — chili powder, ga salt, curry powder, horserad prepared mustard, nutmeg, cin mon or celery seed.

Top corn with chopped pars pimento or paprika.

Peas will respond to the s treatment. Try them with bu and garlic powder, nutm savory, minced sweet basil, th or mustard.

THE ELEGANT NEW FORD GALAXIE 500 LTD 4-DOOR HARDTOP
Certain features mentioned or illustrated are optional at extra cost.

This is the new "LTD"... the most elegant FORD of all!

This new LTD is limited only by good taste . . . it is the ultimate in luxury in the elegant new FORDS.

It is built only as a 4-Door Hardtop. And it begins with the delightful new features you'll find in the other new FORDS. The incredibly silent interiors, where noise is hushed to a murmur. The smooth, limousine ride on soft coil-springs. The many new conveniences . . . keys that fit either way up, an accelerator that adjusts to your foot, a swept-away instrument panel. To this elegance may be added an optional vinyl roof covering, giving it the chic of a convertible (with the comfort of a hardtop).

LTD luxury touches include new Silent-Flo ventilation and courtesy-lights in all four doors. Luxurious upholsteries are fitted over deeply-padded seats, and special luxury trim is added . . . with wheel covers and roof-line mouldings.

You'll know the new LTD by its distinctive monogram on the side of the roof. But for an unforgettable introduction, your Ford Dealer will be pleased to arrange a Test Drive. Call him today.
